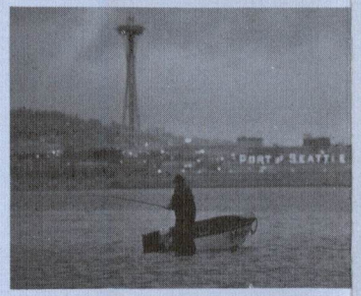
RIDE ALONG, OR SKIPPER YOUR OWN

Two options are available to the fishing visitor... skippered charterboats or u-drive rental boats (called "kickers"). The skippered charterboat allows you to just climb aboard and tend to fishing. These saltwater taxis glide to the most productive fishing areas and the anglers aboard benefit from the experience and aid of licensed, veteran skippers at the helm. Warm, comfortable cabins and hot coffee only add to the good features on this kind of fishing trip.

For those who prefer to master their own ship, the kicker is the answer. These 14 to 16-foot open boats are available with or without outboard motors. Depending upon the size of boat and motor, the package can be rented for under $25 a day. These kickers will accommodate three anglers comfortably. Fishing gear can be rented, if desired, and there's always plenty of free advice on fishing techniques and the areas where the fish will be found.



OTHER FISH

Salmon is just one of the species for which Washington State saltwater is justly famous. An abundance of Cods, Rockfishes and Flatfishes are also caught here. Coming from the cold, clear waters of Washington, they are targets for a gourmet feast. Some anglers, in fact, ignore the more famous Salmon and concentrate on hoisting these treats from the briney deep.

WHAT TO WEAR

Winter and Spring fishing requires very little additional clothing. An extra sweater, a pair of wool socks, a warm jacket, lightweight rain gear and gloves tossed into a suitcase will do it. Everything else is available for rent.

IF YOU USE YOUR OWN TACKLE

Those who prefer to may bring their own favorite fishing gear. Any 5½ to 8½-foot rod capable of handling 8-ounces of sinker weight will do the job. Reels used here are usually level-wind, holding 200 yards of 20-pound monofilament line. Additional terminal tackle, such as leaders, swivels and hooks can be purchased locally. A $5.00 bill will buy plenty for a couple of days of fishing.

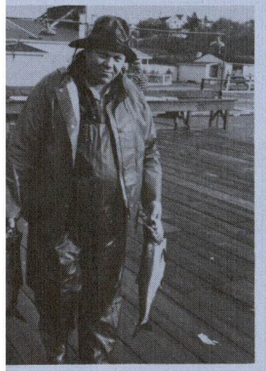
SALMON FISHING IN Washington state

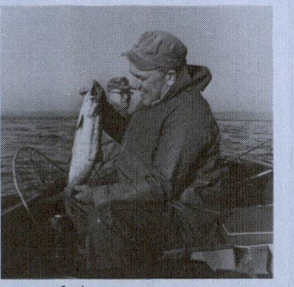
WINTER & SPRING

Winter and Spring Salmon fishing! Not "off-seasons" in Washington State—but highly popular salmon fishing periods now catching fire with residents and visitors alike. Many people visiting the state are tacking an extra day or two onto their stay, and are carting home fresh-caught salmon for their efforts.



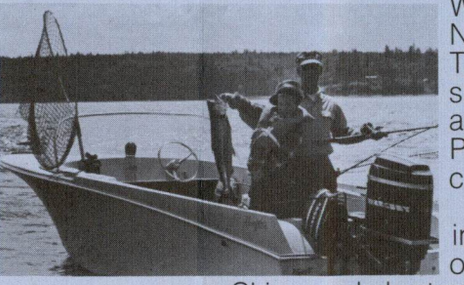
WINTER SALMON FISHING

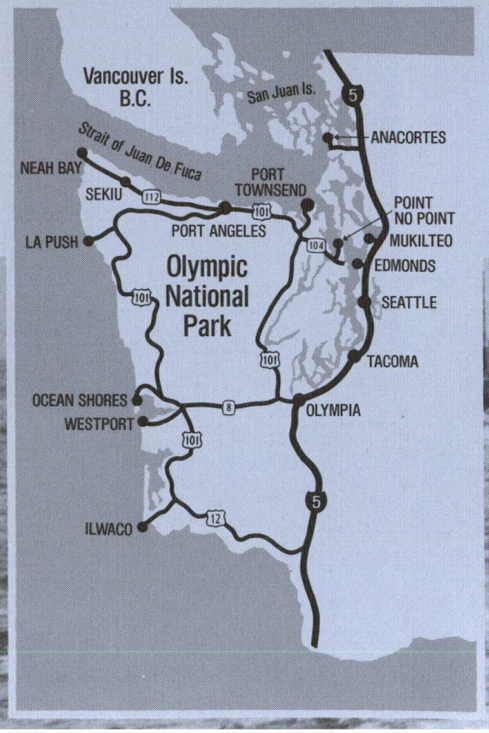
Western Washington's winter climate is relatively mild, with temperatures ranging from 40 to 55 degrees. While rains occasionally fall, fishermen who are properly prepared find their comfort is not compromised—and the precipitation often improves fishing. Take a tip from our local anglers... they don't stop fishing with the fading rays of summer. In fact, many of them claim the really good action is just beginning.



Inland saltwater areas east of the entrance to the Strait of Juan de Fuca are open to fishing year-round, providing an ideal calm water atmosphere for enjoyable winter fishing. From November through April, schools of salmon mill around and feed in the areas around the Strait, Hood Canal, Puget Sound and the San Juan Islands.

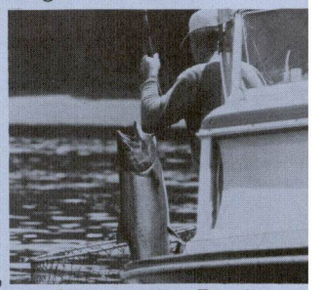
Both Chinook and Coho Salmon are on tap during this winter period. Feeding heavily during the second, third and fourth years of their lives, they range from a couple of pounds to 20-pounds or more.





SPRING SALMON FISHING

Outside the Strait of Juan de Fuca, along the Pacific Coast of Washington, the budding ocean salmon season begins in May. From the opening days through June, fishing often produces limits and exciting experiences. Salmon gather from all over the Pacific Ocean to sweep with the currents along the Washington coast on their annual feeding migrations. Chinook and Coho, ranging from 4 to 40-pounds are being caught by sportfishermen during this time.



Some areas servicing the Spring Salmon bite are Ilwaco, Westport, Ocean Shores, La Push, Neah Bay, Sekiu and Port Angeles. These ports primarily offer skippered charter boats from among the finest fleet in the Pacific. La Push features both charter and kicker boats.

Coastal visitors find prices inexpensive, and similar to those of the inland winter fishing waters. Skippered charters will run from $20 to $30 per person. Kickers will rent for under $25. All the gear—poles, reels, hooks, leaders, etc., is available for rent. These seaside communities also offer excellent accommodations for the visitor.

A great place to live and do business

Walla Walla is a city of 25,800 located at the foot of the Blue Mountains and surrounded by the agriculture land of the Walla Walla Valley. The rolling golden wheat fields, lush fields of green peas, famous Walla Walla Sweet Onions and other succulent garden vegetables grow bountifully in the rich volcanic soil of our valley. Field production, food processing and agriculture manufacturing create food, fiber and implements which help supply part of the world food market needs.

Government services, such as U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Bonneville Power Administration, Washington State Penitentiary and U.S. Veterans Administration Medical Center add other important contributions to the economy. Rapidly becoming a regional medical center, there are two other hospitals in the community.

Education has an important role in the community of Walla Walla. Whitman College, a four-year liberal arts college, is the oldest college in Washington State. Whitman's conference center, meeting rooms, auditoriums, dining and banquet facilities are available throughout the year. College Place is the home of Walla Walla College, a four-year Seventh Day Adventist college. Walla Walla Community College offers an excellent opportunity for continuing education as well as seminars and workshops offered through the Center for Management Development.

Cultural activities abound in the Walla Walla area. Symphonies, drama, art and crafts are available along with world-famous performers throughout the year. A musical is performed each summer during July at the outdoor amphitheater. Activities abound during the summer months at the beautiful city parks.

With approximately 500 motel units and a beautiful RV park and campground, Walla Walla welcomes conventions, company meetings and seminars to enjoy the fine hospitality of our local restaurants and motels. Whether you are looking for a quick lunch or a gourmet dinner, you can find it in Walla Walla.

Walla Walla is known as the retail, medical and professional center of southeastern Washington and northeastern Oregon. A healthy business community and a sound economy with emphasis on the needs of all make the Walla Walla area a great place to live and do business.

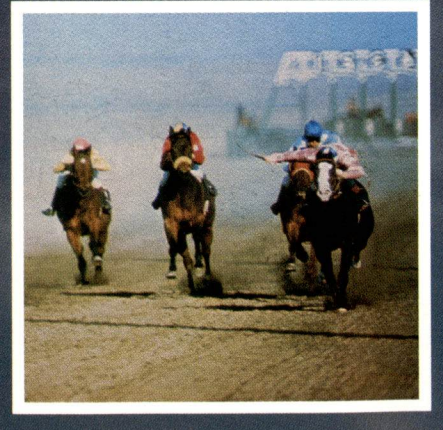
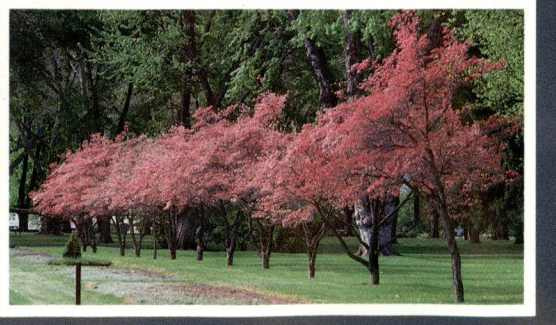
A great place for all seasons

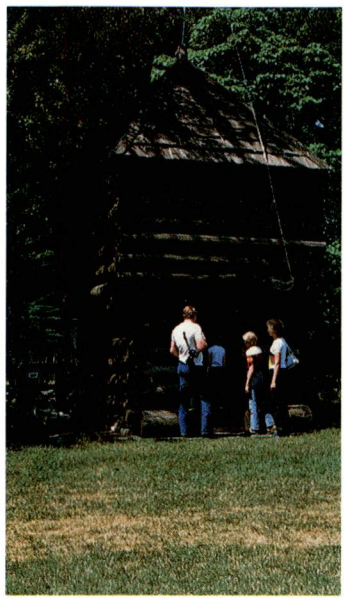
WALLA WALLA





A great place of history

"The Cradle of Northwest History" describes this great place. Today, you can visit and relive the rich history that unfolded in the beautiful wide Walla Walla Valley. Main Street is the address for an endless variety of historic "turn of the century" business buildings. Within walking distance of downtown are excellent examples of fine historic homes. One of these, Kirkman House, is on the National Register of Historic Places and was built in 1880. It preserves a Victorian style structure. Also, take a leisurely stroll through Whitman College campus, established as Whitman Seminary in 1863. Today, Whitman enjoys a proud heritage as an outstanding liberal arts institution. Along the City bus route is the Veterans Administration Medical Center recognized as a historic district and listed on the National Register. Today, both the hospital grounds, Fort Walla Walla Park and Museum Complex make up the historic 1858 military reservation. Near the museum entrance is an early military cemetery. The complex features a pioneer village of nine historic and five modern buildings, collectively preserving the finest collection of antique agricultural implements in the Northwest, as well as other items of valley history.



Just seven miles west of town is Whitman Mission National Historic Site and Museum where the National Park Service preserves the 1836 site of Marcus and Narcissa Whitman's mission, the common grave for the 1847 massacre victims, a section of the original Oregon Trail, the 1897 memorial obelisk and a modern museum.

A great place for recreation . . .

Walla Walla Valley, at the foothills of the Blue Mountains, is the heart of a playground with something for everyone during all seasons of the year.

Spring and summer present a time for water recreation of great variety on the two major rivers and streams found throughout the area. Trail rides, backpacking and camping are available in the rugged Blues. There are two beautiful golf courses; a bike path along Mill Creek; a jogging track, racquetball courts, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, ice skating rink and tennis courts. Summer recreation programs utilize the city's many fine parks. Softball teams compete each summer at the Veterans Memorial Athletic Complex. With fall and winter, new opportunities come forth with hunting migratory waterfowl and upland game birds, which abound in the area, or challenging the mighty elk and deer in the wilds of the Blues. Snowfall creates a winter wonderland in this mountain range for both skiing and snowmobiling.

Join us in Walla Walla for the pleasant sun-drenched summers, mild winters and excellent accommodations to make your leisure hours a time of enjoyment.

SPOKANE HISTORY

Spokane was originally named Spokan Falls, after the Spokane-ee Indians. Spokan-ee meant "Children of the Sun."

This area was first inhabited by Indians, trappers and fur traders, all reveling in the areas rich resources. The first permanent settlement was established in Spokane during the summer of 1871, consisting of a population of nine.

When fur trading faded, grain and lumber mills powered by the falls of the Spokane River brought even more people to the town of Spokan Falls. The new city became a center of commerce and finance for the surrounding area and by 1881 the population had reached approximately 1,000. The following year brought expanded activity in agriculture, mining, water power, rail service, and education.

In August of 1889, "the great fire" wiped out most of the city core. Work immediately began by the business and professional community to rebuild. The tragedy welded together the determination of the people initiating a thrust toward progress that continued and grew.

By 1890, Spokane's population had reached over 19,000, proof that a new city, "Spokane" had indeed been born.

Spokane was the site of the 1974 Worlds Fair. The fair site is now Riverfront Park.

SPOKANE TODAY

Spokane today is a thriving metropolitan area of over 350,000 residents. The community stretches from the west plains area to the Idaho border, a distance of about 25 miles.

The economy of Spokane is based on lumber, mining, agriculture, manufacturing, and services. Spokane is the center of the Inland Northwest economic trade area, providing transportation and services to several states and Canadian provinces. The natural beauty and lack of severe weather makes this area very liveable and enjoyable to visit.

Spokane has long been known as the center of the great outdoors with plenty of lakes and forests to enjoy just minutes from the downtown core. The outdoor playgrounds of Northeastern Washington and Northern Idaho are easily reached by highway with uncrowded beauty, the main attraction.

Spokane is the home to a variety of cultural and recreational activities for the tourists and the residents alike. Spokane is an outstanding place to relax. Take the time to explore the undiscovered jewel of the Inland Northwest.

GRAND COULEE DAM

Located east of Spokane approximately 82 miles is Grand Coulee Dam. The Dam is reached via U.S. 2 and S.R. 174. Grand Coulee Dams construction in the 1930s created Franklin D. Roosevelt Lake which is 151 miles long and stretches to the Canadian border. It is possible to boat into Canada from Grand Coulee. Maps are available from the U.S. Park service that give detailed information on the lake.

SHOPPING

SKYWALK SYSTEM

Spokane's Skywalk system in the Downtown core is the second largest in the world. The system connects 15 city blocks on the second level for access to retail department stores, specialty shops, restaurants, department stores and offices. There is easy access to the ground level sidewalks and also to the covered parking garages. This feature makes downtown shopping a pleasure all year 'round.

The attached is an account of an open air sermon delivered by Theodore Roosevelt in 1905 near Rifle, Colo.

There's quite a bit of good language which you may want to use at some point. I think the President has seen this.

Honorable George W. Bush
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D. C. 20500

Dear President Bush:

Having read that you are an admirer of President Teddy Roosevelt, I thought you might be interested in the enclosed personal, first-hand account of a visit and speech President Roosevelt gave in Rifle, Colorado, in 1905. Some of the president's comments could well be relevant today.

I typed this information, word for word, from the notes of my grandfather, Rev. Lewis L. Thomas, who was privileged to sit on the platform at that time and to take part in the program. I have also included a photocopy of an original photograph I have showing the president, platform party, and part of the crowd that was there that day.

I was in the crowd that came to see and hear you the day you visited the Sun Maid Raisin plant near Kingsburg on September 14, 1988, when you were campaigning for office. We are very pleased that you were elected and believe you are doing a fine job as president.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Shirley Thomas Bolton

A SABBATH WITH THE PRESIDENT - THEODORE ROOSEVELT

* * * * * * * * * * * *

For the first time in the history of Colorado, and probably for the first time in the history of the United States, the President of the nation rode several miles on horseback to meet the people and preach an open air sermon to an open-air people in God's big out of doors.

This, as a precedent, is important, but the circumstances surrounding it make it even more startling.

Out in the open, with no family retinue with him, with no bodyguard of hundreds of armed soldiers, such as the crowned heads of Europe would have to have, but alone and unattended, riding a prancing white horse, with the nearest railway station, Rifle, sixteen miles away, with a little blue school house as a fitting background, its platform the rostrum, President Roosevelt, attired in his canvas hunting suit, a blue flannel shirt, a white Stetson hat, no vest on and coat swinging wide open, his watch fastened to a leather string and tied in a button-hole of the coat, with large heavy hunter's shoes covering his feet and pants fastened tightly at the top, with a large silk, red handkerchief around his neck, preached to over 1200 people who flocked to see and hear him, pleading with them for a higher standard of citizenship, for higher and better moral lives, for a deeper and more fervent worship of a God, which he declared had "lifted our country from among the infant nations of the earth and made it a home for freedom and liberty."

Beyond the further edges of the throng, higher than the tops of the pines and cedars and spruces, the foothills climbed steadily, laden with their soft purple twigged forests. And beyond the rounded tops of the furthest foothills, the majestic foothills, the majestic mountains, stood in a ring, covered with virgin snows, glinting in the sunlight. Their tops rising and falling, sharply serrated against the blue, seemed like a great white crown set upon the brow of the smiling valley.

"Grand, sublime, Enduring sentinels of time."

Like one of the mountain people, like one of the many hundreds who had gathered from the mountain, valley, canyon and mesa, was the President. He himself might have been one of those who had ridden in from a lonely little ranch house to attend Sunday service. He might have been one moved by the eloquence of the regular pastor, Rev. Horace Mann, to rise and tell his own experience, for the good of his neighbors.

It was a gala day for Rifle and Divide Creek and neighboring towns. The people came from every direction and in every sort of conveyance. Cowboys and cowgirls came on horseback, the cowgirls vying in rhythm of movement with their more hardened brothers of the saddle. Whole families, of a size to gladden the President's heart, drove up winding roads, across the mesas and valleys, and over mountains and snow-born torrents in heavy lumber wagons, while others used stage coaches, carryalls, single and double-seated rigs, coaches and tallyhos.

They all brought capacious lunch baskets and at the noon hour it looked like one gigantic picnic ground. Some were just finishing their dinner when the President rode down through the cedars fringing the road.

"Now that's fine," shouted the President, as he looked down upon the picnickers from his white horse. "I wish I hadn't eaten, I'd have lunch with you." "You'd be mighty welcome," was the hearty response from every side. With the coming of the President, everyone started for the little school house. The platform had been arranged as a rostrum. There were chairs on it for the President, Dr. Alexander Lambert, the President's physician, Rev. Horace Mann, Rev. A. B. Sanderson and the writer.

There were no secret service men present. "The President didn't want them," said a member of the presidential party. "He knew that the people out here could take care of him all right." And so they could. The President could not be safer anywhere else in this wide world than right there. And not a man or woman or child but what would have gladly thrown themselves upon a sword or into the mouth of a belching cannon in protection of "Teddy."

"Blessed Assurance" was the first hymn sung. Then the 23rd Psalm was read, followed by the opening prayer by the writer, at the close of which the President's "amen" was as hearty as the writer's. In several places the President would respond to a sentiment expressed with a hearty, audible "amen" just like the Methodists used to. The next song sung was, "There's Sunshine in My Soul Today," the President singing with the rest.

Why, he was one of us. Great was his simplicity and common placeness. So great was it that everyone felt perfectly at ease and at home in his presence. Sitting at his side and exchanging words with him during the service and afterwards, it hardly occurred to the writer that he was sitting side by side with the chief of this great nation and a man that had been given the greatest popular vote ever cast for a President.

When the President was introduced and rose to his feet, there was a sea of fluttering handkerchiefs, giving the President the chautaugua salute. At this point someone said, "Have you got your handkerchief with you, Mr. President?" Whereupon he pulled out of the pockets of his hunting coat a large red bandana. This provoked a hearty laugh on the part of the people and set them to waving their handkerchiefs again.

President Roosevelt is always at his best when he is closely in contact with the people, and his voluntary appearance at the little blue school house on Divide Creek put him in a particularly favorable light. There was a wholesome simplicity about the whole affair, a democratic disregard of the unessentials and a getting down to the plain facts of humanity, such as we would like to see more frequently in our national affairs.

There are doubtless many more Americans that would like to get on a level with the people and feel their heartbeat, but there are comparatively few who know how to do this like President Roosevelt. There is no better stock of humanity anywhere in the world than is to be found in the rural districts of Colorado; and amid the cowboys and ranchmen of the Rocky Mountains, the republic of the future may well look for her Lincolns, her Garfields, and her Grants, if not her Roosevelts.

And the President knows that in what is best in nature and best worth having, it is akin to these simple, kind, generous, patient, whole-hearted men and women, who in their circles of experience have preserved so much that is too soon forgotten in the denser crowds of self-styled civilization.

The day was one of the prettiest imaginable in Colorado, under the blue sky and the fleecy clouds, with the green trees bowing on the mountainsides and down the valleys, with snowy peaks rising high above them and around them, we listened to a heart-to-heart sermon by our President. Straight from the shoulders he talked. There was no mincing of words or finishing of phrases, just good, straight English thrown straight at the crowd. A characteristic grin, in which the President showed his teeth, when he began speaking, called forth the following expression from a rancher in the crowd who had never seen the President before, except in pictures, "Say, them newspaper fellers can draw. I saw Teddy's picture in a paper, but I thought it was one of them thar cartoons."

The President spoke, in part, as follows:

"Friends and neighbors: It all seems real good to have a chance to come here today to say a few words to you. For a number of years I lived where my neighbors were just such good people as these whom I see before me. It is but true for me to say, then, that I feel thoroughly at home with you. I cannot say how much I have enjoyed my stay here with you. Not only have I been treated middling well by the bears (the President got 14 bear and 6 bobcats), which treatment has not always been kindly reciprocated by me, I am a little afraid, but the people have fairly outdone themselves in their hospitality. In the few words which I have to say to you, I am going to draw some illustrations from the Grand Army, many of whose representatives I see before me now. It is remarkable how many Grand Army men I see in the west, the little bronze button testifying mutely to their heroism in the days gone by.

"Comrades, I am going to say a few words on success, taking your lives as an example for the others here. Only the other day I was saying to the dominie here as to success and what it means. One of the best illustrations of American ideas and possibilities of success is the Grand Army man. Success in the dark days of '61, the days that tried men's souls had a meaning. From lieutenant-general to drummer boy, every man has the title of Comrade. Every man was and is judged not by his position, but by the way he does his duty in that position. So we judge the success of men as private citizens. Success from the soldier's standpoint meant that the man, whether he carried a musket or a sword, did his duty up to the handle. If a man did that, he had a right to feel that he left a name that would be an honor to his descendants. So it is in civil life--real success consists in doing one's duty in the paths where one's life is laid.

"And duty first, remember, is doing what is right to self, for if you cannot pull yourself, you cannot pull others, doing what is right to family and neighbor.

"It is not possible for any of us to say just how much accident there is in winning the great prizes of life. There is always some accident in it. No amount of skill, perseverance, energy or genius can win the great prizes of life if you lack character, moral character, and the courage of moral convictions. Real success consists in bearing yourselves so that your children will bless you for having done all that was in your power to bring them up to an honored name, and those coming after you will look upon you as having brought honor to them and your country.

"In this great country of ours it is absolutely certain that the government cannot rise higher than those who make it, any more than a stream can rise higher than its source. One leader, or set of leaders, cannot make the government. The government cannot be better than the average citizen. He alone can make it or unmake it. When the King of Sparta was visited by a neighboring king, the visitor said to him, 'Where are your walls?' The king replied, 'I will show them to you after a little while.' The king had his armies pass in review before his guest. As they were passing by he said, 'There go the walls of Sparta.' So I can point to every American citizen today and say, 'There go the walls of this Republic.' And the walls will not be any stronger than each individual brick in them.

"In the Civil War, comrades, we could not have got along without Grant or Logan or Sherman, but it was the average men in the ranks that made the army. So in civil life today.

"Now, as in the war days, as ever, the successful man is the man in the ranks, the man who carries the hod, or the musket, or the coupling pin, or casts the ballot and does his conscientious duty.

"Yet, friends, there is no secret, nothing remarkable in being a good citizen. The qualities that make a good citizen are ones that every man may have, if he will show them. If he will not, no brilliancy, genius or anything else can avail him or the nation."

Next the President poured a broadside into dishonesty in public and private life and particularly that kind which goes into business and is taken as an indication of ability when it is downright dishonesty.

"The dishonest man is a disgrace to himself and a community. If he is an educated dishonest man, he is more the dangerous. You can do nothing with a man or for a man that is dishonest. That is insincere; that is two faced. That is anything to get the spoils. He may think he is smart and others may think he is smart because he can corner this or that to his own advantage without any moral sense of the other man's wellbeing. I have a haughty contempt for that so-called smartness, ability unaccompanied by moral sense, which is getting altogether frequent.

"What we want is courage. The greater part of the courage needed in the world today is not of the military kind, but the common courage to be honest, the courage to resist temptation, the courage to speak the truth. The patriot who fights an always losing battle for the right, the man who though in the minority always stands for the right, the martyr who goes to his death amidst the triumphant shouts of his enemies, the discoverer, like Columbus, whose heart remains undaunted through the bitter years of his wandering woe, are examples of courage and heroism sublime, and these examples excite a profounder interest in the hearts of man than the most complete and conspicuous success.

"Press on with courage true and bold,
Press on with pulses beating high,
The morning breaks her bars of gold,
The sun in splendor mounts the sky.
Aim high, dear friend, and strive to climb,
The heights where heroes stand,
Whose purposes were all sublime,
And aspirations grand.

"Now, I do not want a timid good man. Not much! None of that kind, who when they meet evil face to face, say, 'how dreadful,' and then run away. No sir! I hate the timid good! I like the man who wades in and licks the wickedness. You all know of men, especially you comrades, who were forever boasting that they wished that they could find something heroic to do. Yet when these same men had to dig kitchen sinks they failed. Heroism is doing what your duty says you ought to do, little or big.

"We think too often of heroism as being displayed only on the battle-field or in the days of Feudalism and Knight errantry. We are apt to make our heroes mailed knights, charging a superior foe or a Decius plunging into the thickest of the battle single handed and alone, or a Horatio at the bridge, or a Richard the Lion Hearted leading to certain success as though heroism was a thing of the past or consisted in some great thing; but, in reality, there is more chance for heroism today than the world has ever seen before!

"A pure man is a hero! A man who will contend with the gigantic evils of this present age is a hero! The boy who can pass along the pathway of life, strewn on either side with the enticing gardens of sin, yet pass them by, is a hero of no common or mean mould! The woman who can pass goddess fashion in her gorgeous robes, yet be willing to be satisfied with her own small wardrobe, is as much a heroine as was Joan of Arc.

"The man who makes a tender loving husband, the young fellow who tries to make his friends glad when he returns home to the ranch, the young girls who help their mothers, these are heroes and heroines of every-day life!

"To do each day what that day calls you to do, so that at the end of your years you can look back and say, 'I tried my best to be a loving father and husband, a tender mother, a dutiful son and daughter,'--that is doing your duty; that is earning that immortal crown of a decent citizen."

After the benediction, the handshaking began and lasted for nearly an hour. Twelve hundred people passed along the line to bid him goodbye and tell him how much they appreciated his kindness in addressing them. Finally, it was all over. President Roosevelt stopped for a few moments to bid goodbye to the pastors, then he walked down to his horse and started back to his camp three miles up the creek in the mountain vastnesses.

Long live our Nation's Chief!

[This description of President Roosevelt's visit to Rifle, Colorado, in 1905, was written by the Rev. Lewis L. Thomas, pastor of the United Methodist Church in Rifle from 1904 to 1910.]

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Mrs. Bolton:

Many thanks for your letter and kind words. I appreciate your thinking of me.

I thoroughly enjoyed your grandfather's wonderful account of Teddy Roosevelt's visit to Rifle, Colorado. I'm a great admirer of our 26th President. Anyone who can say, "I hate the timid good! I like the man who wades in and licks the wickedness." -- and then can go on to extol such virtues as kindness, tenderness, and honesty -- deserves to be admired. He was a great man who set a marvelous example for all Americans.

With my best wishes and appreciation,

Sincerely,

Mrs. Shirley Thomas Bolton
1500 Windsor Drive

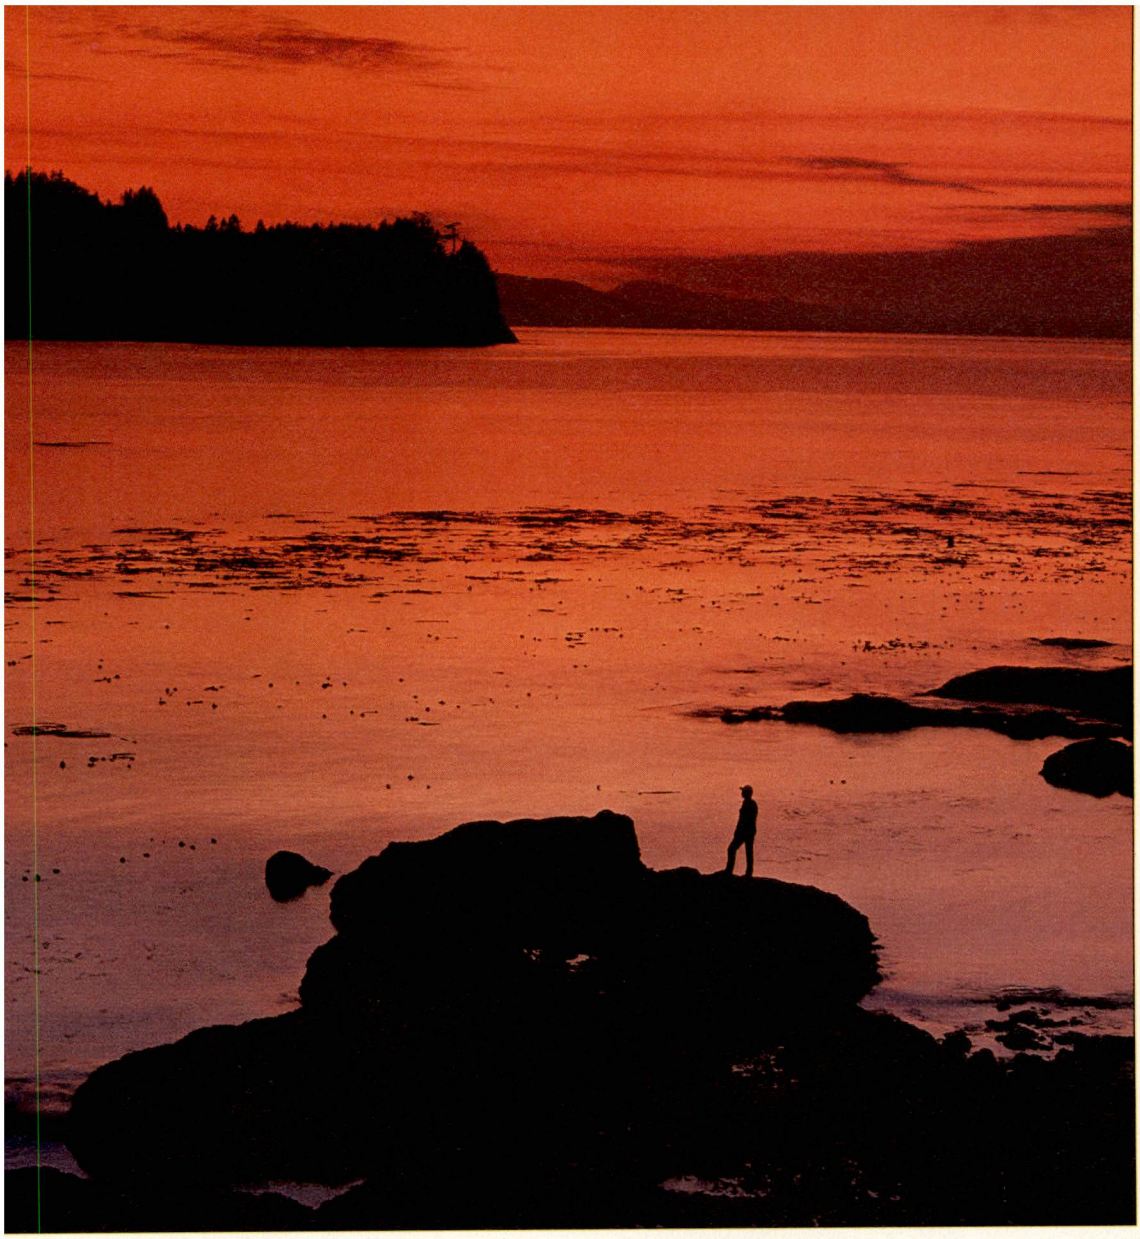
of wheat, sipping award-winning wine from one of Washington's more than 50 producing wineries.

And there's so much more. You're never too far from the shadow of 14,410-foot Mount Rainier. Nearby Mount St. Helens still smolders from its 1980 eruption. There's nothing quite like Puget Sound, perhaps the most impressive body of inland sea water in the world.

Huge inlets bring the ocean, and its succulent seafood, right to our doorstep. Colorful vendors at Seattle's historic Pike Place Market hawk salmon, clams, shrimp and oysters, just fetched from the sea.

It's all linked together by the nation's largest ferry system, making island-hopping in the San Juans a breeze. The ferries call regularly on the four major islands. From there, you can rent a boat, or catch a ride with a local resident, and explore some of the other 168 islands."



Bavarian festivals, major-league sporting events, acclaimed symphonies. Theater—commercial, community and university—thrives throughout the state.

Tour the Boeing Airplane Company. Explore the ports of Seattle and Tacoma, America's gateway to the Orient. Experience the feel of the Rhineland at eastern Washington wineries on the Columbia River, or taste the fruits of the Yakima Valley, often referred to as the "Fruitbowl of the Nation." Visit an apple packing plant in Chelan. Washington supplies nearly 40 percent of the country's apples. And they're delicious.

Enjoy select shopping, exciting restaurants and national art galleries. And there's more. Much more.

Don't worry about not getting a summer tan. Last summer western Washington basked under 42 consecutive blazing days of sun; to the east of the mountains, summer rain is rare.

Sure we get our share of winter rain and mountain snow—that's why we're the Evergreen State.

Washington isn't such a long way from home—just over two hours by plane from Los Angeles. The same trip can be made comfortably by car in two days.

So make Washington your destination. You're invited—come early and stay late." ■

"The San Juans aren't the state's only islands. At Potholes Reservoir, near Moses Lake, pack a picnic and boat to your own sandy island.

Hike into the Olympics, the Cascades or the Blue Mountains on the thousands of miles of maintained mountain trails. Ski spectacular runs on deep, dry snow at one of 12 winter resorts. Skiing is just a 60-minute drive from Seattle—and only 45 minutes from Spokane.

Summer activities will lead you to the Sound, or the beach, or a myriad of lakes and rivers. Grab a waterski and cut up crystal-clear Lake Chelan, where the sun shines 300 days a year. Rush with the whitewaters on a river rafting trip through Hell's Canyon, North America's deepest gorge. Explore the mighty Columbia River Gorge by boat; free locks lift you past the many dams.

When in Washington, do as the locals do. Canoe. Kayak. Sail.

Washington's coast is proclaimed as the sport-fishing capital of the world, a reputation protected in competitions with other angler hotspots. Charter a boat at Westport, Ilwaco or Neah Bay.

Trout fishermen reap the rewards of the Snake and Yakima rivers, a sportsman's mecca.

The good life beckons from sophisticated cities tucked away in dramatic settings. Columnist Neal Peirce has called Washington's capital, Olympia, the most beautiful in the country.

Rub shoulders with friendly people statewide. Washingtonians are outgoing and culturally diverse. The people of Seattle read more books, see more movies and own more boats per capita than any other city in the country.

Countless events crowd Washington's calendar of activities. There's the Ellensburg Rodeo, Leavenworth's

Region 8, Olympic Peninsula: Discover the Mystery of the Rain Forests 144

North America's only rain forests. Indian villages. Vast, uncrowded beaches. Freshly smoked salmon. You'll find it all here on the Olympic Peninsula.

PLAN AN ODYSSEY OF WASHINGTON STATE

DISCOVER VARIETY rarely found in a single state. Explore Washington, a land with two faces—east and west—defined by the Cascade Mountain Range.

These imposing mountains divide the state—rain forests in the west, geological wonders in the east. Islands on one side; the nation's most fertile wheat land on the other.

It's a state of many personalities, as distinctively different as night and day. Enjoy them all.

How to Use This Guide

The information in this guide is organized by regions. After the overview of Washington state, this guide focuses on each of the state's nine tourist regions. In each region, you'll find a map, touring suggestions and listings of events and activities.

If you have questions along the way, stop in at one of the state's nine official visitor information centers. They are located at:

- Vancouver; just north of the city on Interstate 5 between exit 1D and exit 2 (open year-round).
- Gee Creek Rest Area; 14 miles north of Vancouver near Ridgefield, on I-5 at exit 14.
- Megler Rest Area; one-half mile from the Astoria Bridge on S.R. 401.
- Sea-Tac International Airport; just south of Seattle on I-5 at the airport terminal baggage claim level (open year-round).
- Custer Rest Area; seven miles south of Blaine on I-5, near the US/Canadian border.
- Oroville; on U.S. 97, four miles south of the US/Canadian border.
- Spokane River Rest Area; off I-90. east of Spokane at the Idaho/Washington border.
- Maryhill; on U.S. 97 near Maryhill State Park and Sam Hill Bridge, on the Oregon/Washington border.
- Umatilla; less than one-half mile from the Oregon/Washington border at Umatilla off I-82 and the intersection of U.S. 730.

Start

If you're traveling north on I-5, you enter Washington at the Columbia River, a mighty waterway. Here, you're only about a three-hour drive from Seattle. But don't rush.

Continue westbound on S.R. 14 through the Gorge to where you may have started this tour, Vancouver, the oldest continuous settlement in the state, and now Washington's sixth largest city.

At Longview, relax on the banks of the river, nearly within reach of giant cargo ships.

Explore the newly designated Columbia Gorge National Scenic Area. Walled by skyscraping basalt cliffs and forests, it's home to the world's second-largest monolith, Beacon Rock.

To the north, off I-5, is Mount St. Helens National Volcanic Monument. Drive or walk through areas devastated by the blast, where nature now struggles to reclaim the moon-like landscape.

If you lack time to visit the monument, at least stop at the new Mount St. Helens Visitor Center, located near Seaquest State Park, just off I-5 on State Route 504. The center provides beautiful views of the still-steaming mountain.

Hopkins Hill, near Morton, also offers an unobstructed year-round view of the mountain's crater. On the way to the Hoffstadt Volcano Viewpoint, at the end of S.R. 504, you drive through the area devastated by the raging Toutle River mud flow.

From Mount St. Helens, drive west along the Columbia River on S.R. 4 to Long Beach, the longest beach in North America. Follow U.S. 101 north to Westport, an nationally-acclaimed fishing area.

Old-growth timber towers along U.S. 101, a scenic route leading to the Olympic Peninsula, with rain forests, rocky beaches, rugged mountains and placid lakes.

The forest in this area was so dense, the first lumberjacks once believed it could never all be logged.

Visit Mount Rainier National Park. The park is a sprawling, unspoiled preserve encompassing 14,410-foot Mount Rainier. Enjoy hiking or climbing, or simply relax in the spacious, rustic Paradise Inn.

From Olympia, visit Tacoma, Bellevue and Seattle, three of the state's cosmopolitan cities. Discover small-town friendliness on the streets of large cities, where exclusive boutiques easily co-exist with farmers' markets, and pleasure crafts share the waterways with huge freighters from the Far East.

Lake Quinault, famous for its charming lodge and freshwater salmon, is in the southern part of the Olympic National Park. The park is home to North America's only rain forests.

After exploring the forests' haunting beauty, continue on U.S. 101 to Kalaloch, just a stone's throw from Ruby Beach. Ask locals for directions to the trails leading down to the beach, a beautiful stretch of Washington coastline.

Cross the Hood Canal Floating Bridge to the Kitsap Peninsula, home of Norwegian towns and the naval shipyard at Bremerton. Or, drive south along Hood Canal to the end of the Oregon Trail, Olympia.

From Port Angeles, drive further east to Victorian Port Townsend, a community well deserving of its reputation for outstanding bed and breakfast accommodations.

Follow U.S. 101 as it loops past the beaches of La Push, around the Olympic Mountains, and sidetrack to Neah Bay, the western point of the continental U.S. Nearby, fish at Sekiu and Clallam Bay. Following the shoreline east, you'll reach the gateway to Hurricane Ridge, Port Angeles, where you can catch a ferry to Victoria, on Canada's Vancouver Island.

After introducing yourself to the southern Puget Sound area, continue north to the brilliant colors of Mount Vernon's spring blossoms. There, ferries run between Anacortes, the San Juan Islands and Victoria (Sydney), British Columbia. The San Juans, 172 emerald-green islands, attract boaters from throughout the world.

The four major islands—San Juan, Orcas, Lopez and Shaw—are all served by state ferries. After island hopping, return to the mainland, follow Chuckanut Drive near Bellingham for great views of Puget Sound and the Olympic Mountains.

This circle tour is one introduction to the state. But keep in mind, surprises can hide just around the next bend. So follow your nose; use your intuition. Above all, be open to suggestions. Washingtonians are eager to point you in the right direction, often to their favorite spots. ■

You can ski downhill.
You can ski cross-country.
You can ski it all in Washington State.

Because there are over 20 areas to choose from. And they're all so close, you can get up to go down in a hurry. Spending more time on the slopes. Instead of the highway.

And whether you're a beginning bunny or a powder pro, each Washington resort is a skier's wooosh come true. With a thrilling variety of runs:

Let 'er rip on the Rip Cord.
Show off on Show Off.

Tame the Wild Side.

You'll find some of the best skiing options in the snow wide world, right here.

If you're looking for the night of your life, for example, you'll love Washington's night skiing. We've got the largest variety of lit terrain in the Pacific Northwest.

Want to feel on top of the world? Ski Washington. Our highest ski resort has an elevation of 7,000 feet.

Cross-country trails abound in Washington. These and many other cross-country ski areas are listed in our free brochure (call or write the address at right).

Can't wait to get a jump on the ski season? Take a peak right here at home. We have some of the best early snow in the Northwest.

But if downhill skiing isn't your favorite way to ski Washington, you've come to the right paragraph.

Because, in addition to downhill runs, Washington has mountains of trails to cross-country ski.

All with views everywhere you look. And wildlife, too. Over 250 species. Including the original snow bunny—the Washington Hare. And the Bald Eagle. Even the Snowy Owl.

But okay. What if you don't ski? Does that mean you're doomed to sit home and watch reruns of Family Feud?

No. No. No.

There's plenty of fun for non-skiers.

Over 100 ski schools, for starters. Or you can snow shoe across the slopes. Take a ride on the lifts. Be creative—snow sculpt.

You can fling a couple snowballs. Or savor a mountain lodge meal. You can dance the night away. Sit in front of a crackling fire. Sip cocoa. In short, have a great time without putting one toe inside a ski boot.

It's all right here. So why don't you come on up and ski us sometime.

SAVOR WASHINGTON'S DISTINCTIVE PREMIUM WINES

WHILE IN WASHINGTON, enjoy locally produced wines. Sip a rich Cabernet Sauvignon, a spicy Gewürztraminer or a supple Riesling at tasting rooms from the Olympic Peninsula to the Blue Mountains.

Most wineries are located in the Yakima Valley and southeastern Washington, where the federal government has officially recognized three regions, or appellations, because they're ideal for producing premium wine.

"Wine tasting is the art of learning to concentrate—to take time to really smell and taste," says wine columnist Ronald Holden.

"In our hurry-up, fast-food society, we rarely take time to pay attention to our senses. Learning to taste wine helps us strengthen our powers of concentration in other areas of life," says Holden.

Washington wineries. You'll find them tucked away at the end of long driveways. Clustered along country highways. Wedged into the urban landscape.

In the prestigious 1986 San Francisco International Wine Festival and Wine Competition, two Washington Cabernet Sauvignon wines took the highest awards, double gold. If you have the chance, sample the winners from Woodward Canyon and Snoqualmie wineries.

Not only is there quality—there's quantity, too. In 1985, Washington produced 2.7 million gallons of wine. With 11,000 acres of vineyards, it grows more grapes for premium wines than any other state except California. And the Evergreen State ranks third nationally for the number of wineries.

Often, discovering these wineries begins with a telephone call for directions. If you get lost on Washington's scenic back roads, don't worry. Locals will steer you in the right direction.

Tracking down these wineries is well worth the effort.

You'll likely be welcomed as honored visitors. Chances are you'll visit a place like Tucker Cellars, a second-generation operation. There, you'll be served wine by the person who either planted the 60-acre vineyard, helped harvest the grapes, organized the 20,000-gallon crush, adjusted the blends or bottled the wine.

The Tucker winery is typical of the places you'll visit. Most—more than 55 percent—are family-run. And most have a fairly small annual production—5,000 gallons of wine, or less.

In striking contrast to Washington's smaller enterprises is Chateau Ste. Michelle. It produces more wine than the state's next four largest wineries, at sites in both eastern and western Washington. Chateau Ste. Michelle's largest visitors' center is just north of Seattle in Woodinville, where aged white wines are made and sampled. In eastern Washington near the Tri-Cities is the plush new $26 million River Ridge, where tanks hold 80,000 gallons of fragrant white wines until aged to perfection.

Take a wine-tour!

Grandview, their facility in the Yakima Valley, produces red wines.

Chateau Ste. Michelle is just one example of Washington's booming wine industry. Consider this thumbnail historical overview: When commercial wine-making was legalized after prohibition in the 1930s, the presses started to turn slowly, producing mostly fortified loganberry and dessert wines.

In the mid 1960s, the forerunners of today's Chateau Ste. Michelle and Columbia Winery started experimenting with premium wines. These wine-producing pioneers discovered that eastern Washington, with its sandy soil and long, hot summer days and cool summer evenings is ideal for growing grapes.

Although Washington wines took several decades to take root, they are winning favor on the palates of the most discriminating connoisseurs.

Many wineries are within a 30-minute drive of Seattle. In fact, wineries dot the entire Puget Sound, from the Columbia River near Portland in the south, to Bellingham near the Canadian border.

In eastern Washington, you'll find three wineries in the Spokane area and four near Walla Walla.

From the Tri-Cities, heart of the Columbia Valley growing region, to Yakima, you'll find more than a dozen wineries. This region may well become the next Napa Valley.

Anywhere in Washington, you'll never be more than an hour's drive from one of the state's 50-plus producing wineries with labels you've probably seen in stores and in fine restaurants.

The wine tasting experience in Washington is still an adventure. You'll be treated as a welcomed guest as you sample wines in some of the most picturesque settings imaginable.

It's always wise to call ahead for tasting-room hours and tour availability.

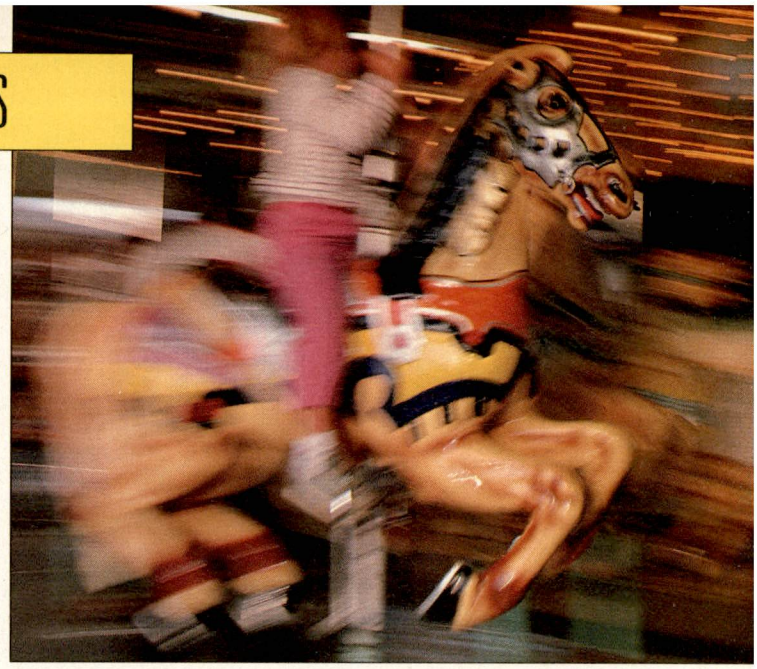
CELEBRATE THE SEASONS AT A POTPOURRI OF EVENTS



WHENEVER YOU VISIT—whatever your interests—pack an activities calendar. You're sure to be busy, boppin' at a jazz festival; or eatin' a scone at a county fair. There are rodeos, parades, loggers' competitions, chili cook-offs, and hydroplane races. And more. There's lots more.

In Washington, hoist a sudsy mug of ale at an Octoberfest in a Bavarian-like alpine village. Whoop it up at rodeos, where cowboys gallop in, searching for the rodeo limelight.

Or celebrate the arts at bustling sidewalk craft fairs, gala gallery openings or in hushed museums.

Experience small-town charm when an entire coastal community turns out for the annual salmon bake. Or join friendly folk in small wineries as they uncork a barrel for the first taste from last-year's crush.

These events grow out of the work, pleasure—even the landscape—of Washington. Many festivals are on, in or about water. Others celebrate bountiful harvests, the timber industry or, simply, the joy of life.

There are so many events, frankly, that this list is only a small sample. Many others are included in the free booklet, Washington Statewide Calendar of Events. For your copy call (206) 586-2102 or 586-2088, or write to the Washington Tourism Development Division, 101 General Administration Building, AX-13, Olympia, WA, 98504-0613.

EXPLORERS UNLOCKED GATEWAY TO WASHINGTON STATE

WASHINGTON STATE'S history awaits your discovery in a setting that invites exploration—much as it lured Lewis and Clark in the early 1800s. Southeastern Washington is a good starting point for modern-day adventurers hoping to discover the state's colorful past.

Led into this region by their Indian guide, Sacajawea, Lewis and Clark followed a centuries-old Indian trail that is now Walla Walla's Main Street.

Hundreds, then thousands of settlers followed that expedition to the Walla Walla Valley—what the Indians called "the valley of the rye." Among them were Marcus and Narcissa Whitman.

The Whitmans established a medical mission in 1836. While attempting to convert Indians to the white man's ways, they harbored harried settlers, and even adopted seven brothers and sisters orphaned on the trail west.

Although their efforts were well - intentioned, history counts the Whitmans among the region's victims. Indians, lashing out in protection of their own threatened culture, killed the pioneering couple in 1847, along with eleven others.

Today, visitors relive that moment of history at the 98-acre Whitman Mission National Historic Site, seven miles west of Walla Walla. A mile-long trail through the mission's remains traces the story.

In the years following the Whitman massacre, this southeastern region of the Palouse—an area 85 by 100 miles of the nation's most fertile wheat land—continued to play a key role in the history of Washington state.

Indian wars raged until 1855, when a huge convention of Nez Perce, Yakima, Walla Walla and Cayuse Indians met with government officials. They gathered in the same valley—the Walla Walla Valley—where the Whitmans died.

While nearly 3,000 horses grazed nearby, 2,000 tribesmen and 50 U.S. soldiers reached agreement on establishing Indian reservations. The conflicts gradually subsided.

Today, stately trees shade military graves at Fort Walla Walla Park, and history buffs delight in 19th century buildings at Fort Walla Walla Museum.

Other sites of interest are found in Pullman, home of Washington State University. Campus tours are free, and the university's museums of natural history, art, enthomology and anthropology are of great interest. WSU runs an outstanding dairy, whose well-deserved claim to fame is its Cougar Gold cheese. Watch all 140 cows being milked, or sample the wares at Ferdinand's Dairy Bar.

Ride the Whitewaters Through the Country's Deepest Gorge. It's something of a geological contradiction. The placid terrain near the Washington, Oregon and Idaho borders suddenly plummets 7,900 feet into Hell's Canyon. This 40-mile rift in the earth is the deepest gorge in North America.

Drive U.S. 12, following the trail taken by Lewis and Clark on their return from the Pacific in 1806, to Clarkston, and a bit to the south, Asotin. Clarkston is a starting point for a jet boat or whitewater rafting trip down the gorge. The Snake River carved this global incision: rocky cliffs tower more than a mile high.

In addition to the tour boats, you can ride aboard the weekly mail boat. You'll help deliver mail to ranchers living so deep in this rugged country, they can only be reached by boat or horse.

Don't be surprised to spy pheasant, osprey, chukar, beaver, deer, elk, otter or even bear. Wildlife thrives in this untamed wilderness, the centuries-old home to Nez Perce Indians.

Blow Through Deep Powder at Ski Bluewood. Discover some of Washington's finest powder skiing tucked away in a little-known resort just 21 miles southwest of Dayton. Ski Bluewood is the state's newest resort, and has the second-highest base elevation. This, coupled with dry, cold winters, makes for exceptional powder-skiing conditions. You'll find a day lodge with restaurant and bar, rentals and classes.

Surf and Spray in the Desert. Water activities abound in southeastern Washington, where the Snake and Yakima rivers converge with the mighty Columbia. Long, sunny summer days attract many waterskiers, windsurfers, sailors, swimmers and fishermen to dozens of parks on river banks.

Hydroplanes zooming at 150 mph churn the Columbia River into a frothy torrent at the Tri-Cities Columbia Cup Unlimited Boat Races the last weekend of July.

Enjoy a slower pace? Watch salmon make their annual spawning journey from the Pacific Ocean, up the Columbia more than 500 miles to small tributaries.

From April to mid-October, eyeball chinook and steelhead salmon at any of five viewing areas at dams operated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in southeastern Washington.

These dams—McNary, Ice Harbor, Lower Monumental, Little Goose and Lower Granite—all have visitor information centers and parks. At Ice Harbor Dam, descend into the heart of the concrete structure and watch water-powered turbines generating electrical power, one of the region's most valuable commodities.

Incidentally, if you're traveling by boat, don't be concerned about dams. Each has a series of locks that lifts your boat over the dam, free of charge.

Learn About Nuclear Energy at the Tri-Cities. The Hanford Reservation is larger than some countries. The site is home to both military and civilian applications of nuclear power. Three visitor information centers provide insights into the energy industry. They are:

- Hanford Science Center
  Located in the Federal Building in downtown Richland
- Fast Flux Test Facility
  Located 11 miles north of Richland on Highway 240
- Plant #2 Visitor Center
  Located 12 miles north of Richland on Stevens Drive

Experience the Craftsmanship of Hutterite Discipline. If you appreciate fine craftsmanship, take a few minutes and detour from Interstate 90, 18 miles west of Ritzville. Near the intersection of Rosenoff and Lauer Roads (locals will steer you in the right direction), you'll find a Hutterite community that produces beautiful handcrafted roll-top desks, beds, clocks and rolling pins. Visitors are welcome at the shop from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Bicyclists Will Love Southeastern Washington. The rolling wheat fields of the region make for scenic biking excursions. You can pedal through miles of swaying golden wheat—passing farmers in pick-up trucks—in the foothills of Walla Walla and the back roads linking Waitsburg, Dayton and Colfax.

For those with more endurance, do on bike what Lewis and Clark did on foot: travel through a series of lush, fertile valleys to the Columbia. The Tri-Cities—Richland, Kennewick and Pasco—have a well-developed network of bike trails, and offer a free map.

Shutterbugs take note—great photography opportunities exist throughout this region. In Dayton, call on the state's first train depot (1881), which now houses railroad memorabilia and pioneer artifacts. The historic Columbia County Courthouse is photogenic, and the Garfield County Courthouse in Pomeroy is among the most beautiful buildings in the state.

Sleep Under the Stars. For those who prefer to wake up to a crackling campfire, rather than an electric alarm clock, southeastern Washington provides a number of well-maintained campgrounds.

In addition to the Hell's Canyon area, campgrounds await you along the Snake and Columbia rivers and in the Umatilla National Forest, nestled in the extreme southeastern corner of the state.

Go Wine Tasting at Family-Operated Vineyards. An ideal climate in this region, combined with extremely fertile soil, result in succulent grapes. It's little wonder that wineries are emerging as a vital industry in southeastern Washington.

If you wish to visit area wineries, read the article at the front of this publication. Most wineries have tasting rooms, guided tours and gift shops. Some even have scenic picnic grounds, where you can savor one of the most enjoyable souvenirs of the area—a bottle of premium Washington wine. ■

THE EMPIRE REIGNS DIVERSE

THE INLAND EMPIRE. When the country clamored for gold in the 1880s, East Coast newspapers called Spokane a region of "limitless wealth." When the transcontinental railroad steamed into the Northwest, Spokane was the first destination. When the spirited architects of culture—missionaries and educators, entrepreneurs and entertainers—immigrated westward, many sought out Spokane. Pioneering ingenuity, applied in the wheat fields and deep in the mines, built an empire.

Today, the Inland Empire—a beautiful, expansive plateau—continues to reign over one of the world's most productive wheat industries. Its hub, Spokane, is the second-largest city in the state. The community boasts a first-rate symphony and fine theaters, highly respected universities and outstanding parks.

This is a "Land of Contrast," where ghost towns stand a stone's throw from lush farmland nurtured by modern-day irrigation. Rolling wheat land and desert ranges lie in contrast to forested foothills and rugged mountains. Giant rivers roar through the lowlands. Pristine lakes glisten in the high country.

Sportsmen test their skills in an unspoiled, untamed wilderness; others challenge themselves, and some of the world's best runners, in Spokane's Bloomsday, one of the country's most popular fun runs. The region's varying personalities—the lay of the land, its people and their interests—are exciting. Experience the contrasts.

Revisit a World's Fair. Riverfront Park, the boldest reminder of the World's Fair—Expo '74—buzzes with activity along the shores of the Spokane River.

Downtown is just south of the park. Enclosed skywalks link 15 blocks, allowing shoppers to roam the city in climate-controlled comfort.

Choose From Many Great Restaurants. By some counts, Spokane enjoys more restaurants per capita than any other American city.

Downtown Spokane also comes alive in fashionable nightclubs and congenial pubs.

West of downtown is the Browne's addition, Spokane's most exclusive neighborhood during the city's infancy. The 1898 Campbell House, furnished and restored to its original grandeur, is open to tours. Directly next door, examine pioneer relics and Indian arts at the Cheney Cowles Memorial Museum.

Visit the Library "Bing" Built. Just east of downtown Spokane is Gonzaga University, voted one of the top 10 universities in a USA Today poll of college presidents. Here visit the (Bing) Crosby Library.

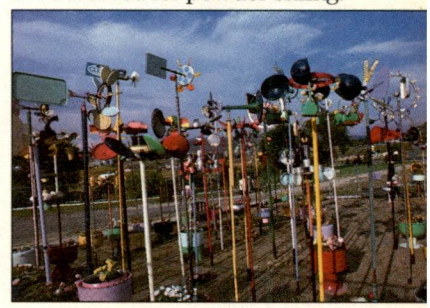
Also on Gonzaga's campus is the Museum of Native American Culture, showcasing one of the most complete collections of Indian artifacts in the country.

To the east, in the Spokane Valley, take the family to the Walk in the Wild Zoo, a 240-acre park with 160 wild animals in natural settings.

Tee Up For Great Golf. Many of the state's best golf courses are found near Spokane, where championship caliber links draw top-ranked professionals and amateurs. Nestled in a rocky gorge cut out by the Spokane river, the Indian Canyon course is especially popular for its beauty and challenging play.

A new, outstanding 18-hole course near Chewelah even offers fly-in service for those who don't have time to drive 42 miles from Spokane. Odessa, Colville and Harrington also have scenic public courses.

Ski Less Than an Hour From Spokane. There are two excellent ski areas near Spokane; both offer the thrill of night and cross-country skiing. Mount Spokane is about a 45-minute drive northeast of Spokane. The resort, 49 Degrees North, is near Chewelah. Mount Spokane has 35 major trails. Eighty of the 700 acres of ski trails at 49 Degrees North are reserved for powder skiing.



Winter conditions in the Colville National Forest are also ideal for cross-country skiing, and the area is popular with snowmobile enthusiasts.

Take the Scenic Loop. The journey north on U.S. 2 past Mount Spokane is a lovely, relaxing drive into the Colville National Forest. Follow the road to the lumber-producing community of Newport, one of only four incorporated towns in Pend Oreille County.

Visit the Pacific Northwest Geophysical Observatory in Newport for an understanding of how the Ice Age left imprints on the state.

Take State Route 20 north from Newport to the "Home of the Osprey," where the Calispell Valley cuts through the Selkirk Mountains. This area is particularly beautiful in the fall, when autumn brings a blaze of color. Hike to Manresa Grotto, a cave used in religious ceremonies by both Indians and white settlers.

The nearby Kalispel Indian Reservation—where over 250 head of buffalo roam—boasts the largest, wood-structure teepee in the country.

Duck Into The Largest Limestone Cavern. Follow the Pend Oreille River to Tiger and S.R. 31, which leads further north to Metaline Falls.

Further north on S.R. 31, near the Canadian border, is Boundary Dam.

At nearby Crawford State Park, explore the state's largest limestone cavern, carved out by an underground stream. Bootleggers were rumored to have stashed their goods here during Prohibition.

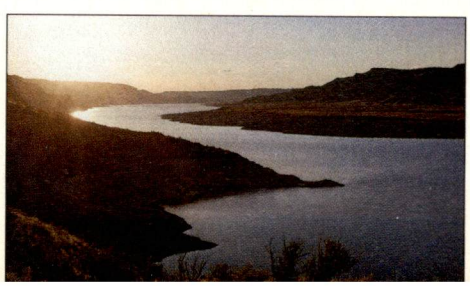
Return south to Tiger, where you can tour the Ghost Town Museum. Then drive west on S.R. 20 to Colville, a friendly community surrounded by wooded mountains.

Kettle Falls: Fisherman's Paradise. Continue west on S.R. 20 to Kettle Falls, a region of crystal-clear streams and lakes. This is truly a fisherman's nirvana.

Sportsmen hunting for deer and elk, or pheasant, grouse and waterfowl, favor this region.

The area has a distinguished history. The Hudson's Bay Company built Fort Colville near Kettle Falls in 1825; then it built a grist mill on the Colville River, where in 1866 it ground the nation's first patented flour.

Above the falls, St. Paul's Mission still stands near Indian burial grounds dating to 600 A.D. Jesuit priests built the mission in the mid-1800s, but the history of this area dates back much further. Archaeologists believe that before the continents drifted apart, this region's first inhabitants arrived in 7,000 B.C. via a land bridge from Asia.



Explore Gold Rush Towns. From Kettle Falls, climb 5,575-foot Sherman Pass (the state's highest), then coast to Republic, which boomed in the 1890s gold rush. The Old Bodie and Old Toroda ghost towns are near Republic, an area also known nationally for its plentiful population of whitetail deer.

Fishermen will want to fetch a pole and drive a bit north on S.R. 21 to Curlew Lake, rich in bass and "Big Macs,"—Mackinaw trout.

Ferry Across Lake Roosevelt. Backtrack on S.R. 21 and head south through Republic along scenic Sanpoil River, which cuts through dense fir and pine. The Keller Free Ferry will take you across Lake Roosevelt, where you can continue south on S.R. 21. Formed by the immense Grand Coulee Dam, the lake is 150 miles long, an ideal playground for water sports, fishing and boating. Thirty species of game fish populate this mighty lake.

South of the lake, at Wilbur, head east toward Davenport on U.S. 2. Davenport is the county seat of the largest wheat-producing county in the nation. Sidetrack north on S.R. 25 to Fort Spokane, where the Spokane and Columbia rivers merge. The 19th century U.S. Army post is now manned by park service employees decked out in the military garb of the late 1800s.

Explore S.R. 28 south to Harrington, where you'll find the 17,000-acre Turnbull National Wildlife Refuge for migratory birds. Continue on S.R. 28 to Odessa, a town established by Russo/German immigrants in the late 1800s, and famous for its "Deutsches Fest."

Backtrack from Odessa on S.R. 28 to U.S. 2 eastbound if your plans include a return trip to Spokane.

Other Great Fishing Holes. The road from Spokane to Chewelah, U.S. 395, leads to trout lakes—Loon, Deer, Waitts, and Jump-Off-Joe—are just off the main road. In mid-summer, Chewelah entertains over 50,000 visitors at Chataqua, one of the nation's largest art shows. Chewelah also hosts an annual "Festival of Lights" in mid-December. The holiday spirit shines bright in spectacular lighting displays throughout the town. ■

THE STATE FLOWER SELECTED IN A HEATED ELECTION

An election was held in 1892 to determine the Washington state flower. A fierce debate raged over whether it should be clover or the western rhododendron. The state legislature ruled that only women could vote on the issue, and voting booths were set up in department stores and banks.

The rhododendren was selected over clover, 7,704 to 5,720. The choice was ratified February 14, 1893. A 1925 law prohibits the picking, cutting down or destruction of any rhododendren within 300 feet of any state or county road.

The state tree is the western hemlock, a pine tree valued for its lumber and pulp. There was little debate over this selection, as the western hemlock is an evergreen native.

Region 3: North Central DRIVE ONE OF AMERICA'S MOST EXHILARATING HIGHWAYS

THRILL TO THE FUN OF driving a mountain road conforming to, rather than reshaping, the land. Discover the North Cascades Highway, rated one of America's most scenic drives by the Rand McNally travel guide.

The North Cascades Highway (State Route 20) is the high road to Washington's friendly people and diverse scenery. You'll meander along rivers, into dense forests, over snow-capped mountains and through vast range lands. You'll discover a route not entirely unlike the first trails ever blazed in the Pacific Northwest. You'll discover Washington as it's always been.

Perhaps the most intriguing stretch of S.R. 20 is the state's north central region. Here the North Cascades Highway goes from the heart of snow-covered mountains to the edge of a desert transformed into wheat land by irrigation.

This region is a land of spurs and saddles—tributes to its Old West origins. Cowboys still drive cattle from the rugged high country of Okanogan. The local folk work hard, then play harder. They preserve their culture, on the open range and in western-theme towns. They make the most of their land, a natural, four-season playground.

Just Breathing Is Healthy Reward. In this part of the country, everyone seems to love the great outdoors. The crisp air is invigorating. The wide-open spaces vast. And there's plenty to keep everyone active.

Lake Chelan is one of Washington's most popular resort areas. The lake cuts a narrow, but very deep 55-mile swath into the Cascade foothills. Most of the activities are based on the south shore. You can rent a boat, water ski, sail, fish or just lay on a sandy beach, where sun shines 300 days a year.

You can see the entire lake on a vintage excursion craft. This passenger ferry steams to the distant west shore, and the remote, tiny town of Stehekin, one entrance to the North Cascades National Park. The 300-foot "Rainbow Waterfall" is very photogenic.

Other popular spots for summer fun are Moses Lake, the Potholes Reservoir, Sun Lakes State Park and Tonasket —"the land of many lakes." Moses Lake attracts trout fishermen and four-wheelers who race up and down mountainous sand dunes. You can rent a boat at Potholes Reservoir and stake claim to your own sandy island. And 50 nearby lakes are rich with trout.

For a different type of water activity, soak up the healing properties of Soap Lake. Thousands visit each year to bathe in the lake and coat themselves with mud. Locals and tourists alike swear that the lake—which contains 16 natural chemicals—has medicinal powers.

North of Soap Lake is 3,365-acre Sun Lakes State Park, a popular campground with several lakes, beautiful hiking trails and an 18-hole golf course. Nearby, explore the caves of Lake Lenore, carved by Ice Age upheavals.

Ski Downhill or Cross-Country. Cross-country skiers will love the Methow Valley, one of the largest cross-country ski areas in the country. A skier's paradise with more than 90 miles of groomed trails, it's possible to tour without backtracking, skiing hut-to-hut for overnight stays.

Ski at one of the many downhill ski resorts. Mission Ridge, near Wenatchee, has a 4,500-foot base elevation and four double-chairlifts. There is also excellent skiing at:

- Bear Mountain Ranch, Chelan
- Echo Valley, Chelan
- Leavenworth Ski Bowl, Leavenworth
- Loup Loup, Omak
- Sitzmark, Tonasket
- Badger Mountain, Waterville
- Squilchuck Ski Bowl, Wenatchee
- Sun Mountain, Winthrop

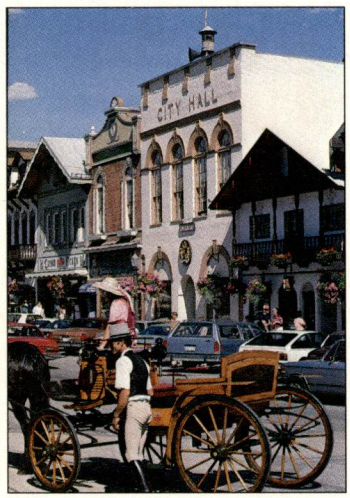
For a truly uplifting experience, try heli-skiing out of Winthrop, an Old West town complete with boardwalk and false storefronts. The helicopter crew guides you on five to 10 runs a day throughout 400,000 acres of the north Cascades.



Toast Bavaria; Witness a Stampede & Suicide Race. Leavenworth hosts spring and fall festivals in the Bavarian tradition. The locals dress in Old Country garb, and invite you to sing along at the lively Autumn Leaf Festival. Hoist a stein of ale, then indulge yourself in a hearty German meal.

The festivals aren't limited to Leavenworth. The Okanogan high country is home to the legendary Omak Stampede and Suicide Race. Every August for more than 50 years, daring—some say foolhardy—riders and their powerful steeds plunge down a steep cliff, across a river and hell-bent-for-leather into the rodeo arena.

Still More Sights Await Exploration. Final notes on must-see attractions in this region: On a bluff overlooking the Columbia Valley—600 feet above Wenatchee—enjoy the Ohme Gardens. The nine-acre park is almost magical, with pools, waterfalls, evergreens and rock outcroppings. Rocky Reach Dam, to the north, is a pleasant spot for a picnic. Its prime attraction is the powerhouse, exhibiting works by regional artists and providing a room for fish viewing.

Just to the north of Sun Lakes, marvel over Dry Falls, a crater three-and-one-half miles wide and 400 feet deep. It was left high-and dry centuries ago when the Columbia River changed its course.

See An Engineering Marvel—The Grand Coulee Dam. Swim in the crystal-blue waters of Banks Lake at Steamboat Rock State Park. During the Ice Age, the Columbia River cut a new channel two-to-six miles wide, an average of 600 feet deep and more than 50 miles long. When the glaciers retreated, this gorge—the Grand Coulee—was left. The coulee was filled with water in the 1950s as part of the Columbia River Basin Reclamation Project, and became Banks Lake.

While you're in the area, visit the Grand Coulee Dam, both the largest hydroelectric dam and the largest concrete structure in the world. It's particularly spectacular at night, when bright lights illuminate the expansive spillway. ■

WASHINGTON'S WILD CHOICE FOR A STATE BIRD

THE WILLOW GOLDfinch, also known as the wild canary, is Washington's state bird. Because it's only found on the West Coast, the selection caused some controversy. A biology professor at the University of Washington pointed out that if eastern Washington residents wanted to see their state bird, they'd have to look it up in a picture book. Nonetheless, the choice was approved.

The state fish is the steelhead trout. A steelhead is much like the colorful rainbow trout, but it migrates from fresh water to the sea. The steelhead is a favorite of sportsmen, because it fights long and hard. It's also very tasty.

Region 3: South Central CATCH A GUST, AND WINDSURF UP THE COLUMBIA

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE to glide over gentle swells in the mighty Columbia, powered only by the wind on your surfboard's sail? Experience that adventure in the newly designated Columbia Gorge National Scenic Area.

Breezes funnel down the Columbia River from Stevenson to White Salmon. Near-perfect wind conditions, coupled with the summer heat, are a windsurfer's dream.

Little wonder this stretch of the river is gaining international windsurfing recognition. The Columbia River Gorge Blow-Out is held in August, when about 200 windsurfers from throughout the world race over 19 miles of open river while thousands of spectators cheer them on.

The windsurfing season usually starts in early April and continues through September. You can rent equipment in shops along the Columbia.

Visit a Museum in the European Tradition. Maryhill Museum resembles a French Chateau, transplanted on the towering cliffs above the Columbia River between White Salmon and Goldendale. Construction on this estate with 7,000 acres was started in 1914 by Sam Hill, wealthy son-in-law of the railroad tycoon James J. Hill.

In 1926, Maryhill was dedicated as a museum. Today, it houses one of the country's largest collections of Rodin sculpture, 19th and 20th century paintings, 19th century Russian decorative objects (including Faberge pieces and icons), antique chess sets and extensive native American artifacts.

Three miles east of Maryhill, on the cliffs above the Columbia, is a replica of England's Stonehenge. Sam Hill constructed this as a tribute to American World War I victims.

Get Moonstruck by the Stars. Near Maryhill, go star gazing at the Goldendale Observatory State Park and Interpretive Center, the country's largest public viewing observatory. Situated on a wooded hilltop one mile north of Goldendale, the observatory is outfitted with a 24.5 inch reflecting telescope.

Bluebirds Outnumber People 20 to 1. Set aside several hours to visit Bickleton, the uncontested "Bluebird Capital of America." This rural community (population 97) is home to more nesting bluebirds than anywhere in the country. The birds are certainly welcome–the locals have constructed more than 2,000 birdhouses. The flocks arrive in Bickleton, located northeast of Goldendale, in February. They build nests in May and June.

Also, visit the Whoop-N-Holler Museum 12 miles south of Bickleton where you can examine more than 30 antique cars and sleighs.

Understand Indian Perspectives at the Yakima Nation Museum. Gain an Indian perspective on Northwest history, here on the seven-acre complex, including the Yakima Nation Cultural Museum. The museum, open weekdays, is about a mile west of Toppen-ish on U.S. 97. A gift shop features locally made bead work and the resource library is open to the public.

About 27 miles directly west of Toppenish on State Route 220 is one of the best-preserved frontier military posts in the state. Fort Simcoe was established in 1856 to protect the Ninth Regiment of the U.S. Army.

Taste Treats from the "Fruitbowl of the Nation." For good reason, the Yakima Valley is frequently referred to as the "Fruitbowl of the Nation." The miles of fertile valleys produce tons of apples, grapes and cherries—a virtual cornucopia of fresh treats. Stop at any of dozens of highway fruit stands to sample world-famous Washington apples.

From early spring to fall harvest, the valley is a garden of delightful color. Widely recognized and respected, the Yakima Valley's vinifera grape-growing and wine-making industry boasts many awards. Most wineries have tasting rooms, and offer tours. See the guide at the front of this publication for information on wineries.

In Yakima, tour the Yakima Valley Museum, located in beautiful Franklin Park. Displays include the "Gannon Collection" of carriages, coaches and wagons, and a display dedicated to former U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Explore a Petrified Forest. To the north, visit Ellensburg, a university town with beautiful views of the Cascade Mountains and turn-of-the-century buildings. Here the Kittitas County Museum has an exceptional collection of petrified wood, which may tempt you to explore the Ginkgo Petrified Forest State Park and Muesum.

The petrified forest is 28 miles east of Ellensburg, near Vantage. Vantage commands a spectacular view of the Columbia River. Indian arrowheads, rock carvings and some of the most unusual fossils in the world are on display at the museum.

On the way, stop at Olmstead State Park, where a hand-hewn log cabin (circa 1870) has been preserved. The park is just five miles east of Ellensburg.

Enjoy Mountain Hospitality. Just off I-90, enjoy mountain hospitality at the gateway to Snoqualmie Pass. Cle Elum, once a coal-mining town, is now well-known for popular bakeries, restaurants, cozy country inns, guest ranches and its historic telephone museum.

Nearby is the new Iron Horse Trails State Park, where you can go on a 25-mile trail or sleigh ride, from Easton to Thorp. Campgrounds are located in the Alpine Lake Wilderness Area. When you grow thirsty, you may want to visit the state's oldest tavern in Roslyn. The Roslyn Museum has a collection of old photographs documenting the history of a region rich in pioneering spirit. ■

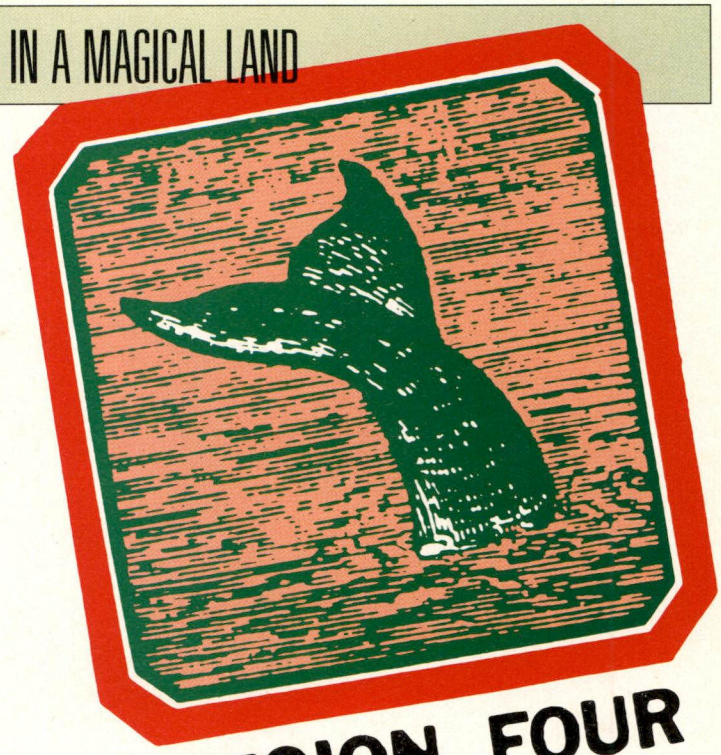
LIVE OUT YOUR FANTASIES IN A MAGICAL LAND



THE FIRST ADVENTURERS must have found Washington's northwest region an exciting, mystical place. Mountainous forests and cascading rivers led them to one of the country's most beautiful wonders: Puget Sound and her emerald isles—the San Juans and Whidbey.

This region is still a land of dreams. Many of the islands are uninhabited, inviting exploration. The Skagit Valley, home to the world's largest tulip bulb producer, is as eye-dazzling as The Netherlands in the spring—a spectacular sea of reds, yellows, pinks and purples.

Boasting the most scenic stretch of the nation's longest hiking trail, the Pacific Crest Trail, the region includes more than three million acres of national parks and forestlands. Stand in awe of the surging currents at Deception Pass. Feel the inspiring presence of the Cascade and Olympic Mountains overshadow all else. Lose yourself for hours combing beaches.

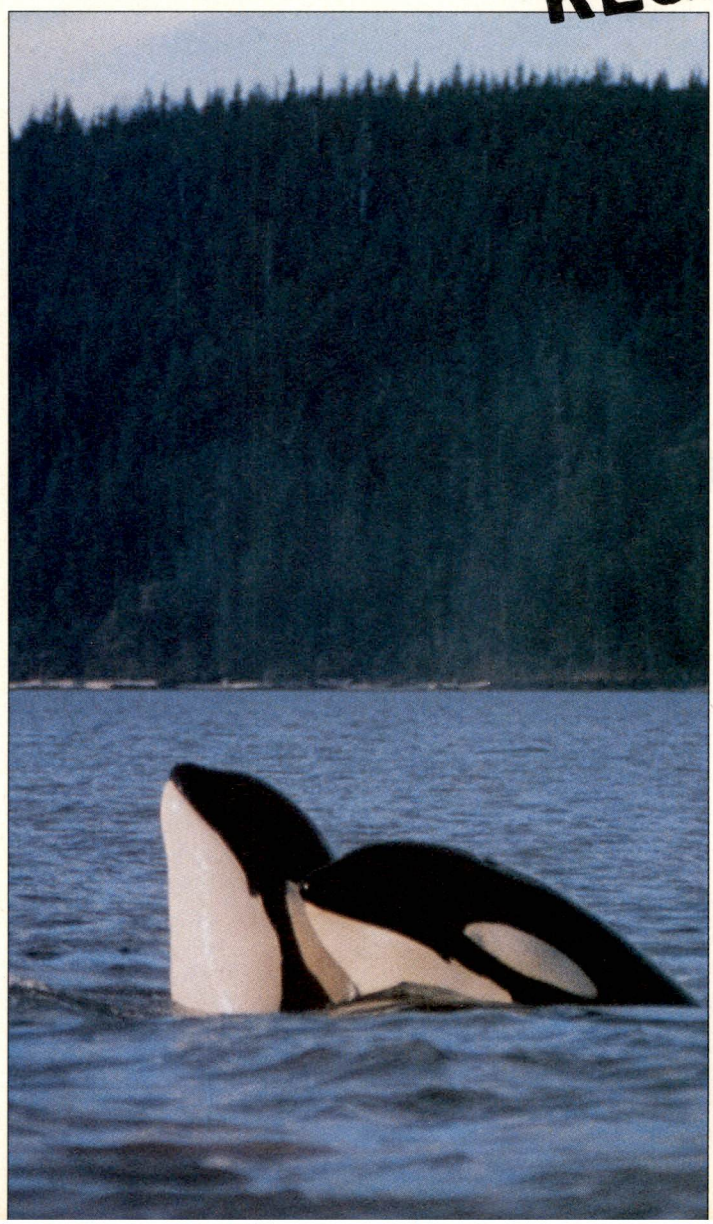
And don't miss an excursion on one of Washington's favorite tourist attraction—the largest ferry system in the country.

Let the Ferries Show You the San Juans. The Washington State Ferry System calls at the ports of Edmonds, Mukilteo, Keystone and Anacortes, attractive waterfront communities with marinas and beautiful views of the Olympic Mountains. All are jumping-off points to the San Juans.

From Mukilteo, sail to Whidbey Island, the largest island in the contiguous United States. At the south shore, choose from several cordial bed and breakfast inns, then stroll the long sandy beach at South Whidbey State Park.

Beauty to Move You to Words. For poetic inspiration, visit Langley, an artists' community. Its alluring main street showcases shops offering authentic Northwest art and fashion, and a view of Saratoga Passage.

Stop at Coupeville on your way to Whidbey's north shore. It also features specialty shops and restaurants, as well as Victorian homes and an 1855 blockhouse open to the public. Bring your camera to record a view of the nearby Strait of Juan de Fuca from Ft. Casey State Park. A whitewashed lighthouse typical of the Pacific coast also houses displays on the history of Washington's coastal forts.



Oak Harbor (population, 12,600) is Whidbey Island's largest city. It prospered in the late 1890s, as immigrating Hollanders instilled a proud Dutch heritage into the community.

At the island's northern reaches, don't fail to see Deception Pass, where surging currents swell under its bridge. The pass is at the heart of 2,300 acres of state campgrounds, beaches and forests. Follow the bridge to Fidalgo Island and 1,300-foot Mount Erie, where you'll get panoramic views of the Cascade and Olympic Mountains and Puget Sound.

The Anacortes ferry angles through many of the San Juans' 172 islands. It stops at the four major islands— San Juan, Orcas, Lopez and Shaw. From any of these islands, take a boat to the multitude of uninhabited islands awaiting your exploration.

Another exciting way to see the San Juans is by air. Char-national 70-mile Ski-to-Sea relay race, beginning at Mount Baker. Bellingham, the state's seventh-largest city, is on a harbor with waterfront restaurants, fishing charters and 1,500 acres of developed park. Western Washington University has an outdoor collection of sculptures with 17 major works by sculptors including Mark di Suvero, Isamu Noguchi and Beverly Pepper. Just a few miles north of Bellingham, near the Peace Arch at the Canadian border, Hovander Homestead invites kids to get a hands-on introduction to farm animals.

To the south, the Skagit River is a favorite with river rafters. Darrington, in Snohomish County, offers deep-forest camping and backpacking trips. The steep rock cliffs at Index lure climbers from around the world, and the Big 4 Ice Caves await exploration near Granite Falls. Further south is the Brackett's Landing Park, with 22 acres of tideland featuring the most popular scuba diving park on the Pacific Coast.

Drive One of the Most Scenic Highways in America. If you're driving to eastern Washington, or planning to arrive in this region from the east, you must experience the North Cascades Highway (State Route 20). The Rand McNally travel guide rated the route as one of the most scenic drives in the entire country.

Follow an exciting route, where you'll see numerous waterfalls, cliffs and snowy peaks from the comfort of your car. The highway scales 4,840-foot Rainy Pass and 5,480-foot Washington Pass, where a park offers views of 7,600-foot Liberty Bell Mountain and Early Winter Spires. A short, paved trail to a vantage point even accommodates wheelchairs.

Along the way, north of Sedro Woolley on S.R. 9, the Lake Whatcom Railway operates scenic steam-engine excursions.

From Concrete to Newhalem, bald eagles take up residence during the winter. At Newhalem, tour the Skagit hydroelectric project, which supplies Seattle with electricity, then ride the incline rail, or take the boat trip on Diablo Lake.

But if you're in the area during spring, before taking to the mountains, dazzle yourself with the brilliant displays of daffodils, tulips, iris and lilies in the Skagit Valley. The Mount Vernon Chamber of Commerce offers maps to the flower fields. And if you miss the spring blossoms, admire the crisp, bright colors of autumn.

Boeing Introduces You to Its Airplane Company. Everett is home to the much-visited Boeing Tour Center, housed in the largest building by volume in the world. Here you'll learn about the development of the commercial airplane industry. The tour center is open weekdays.

Everett also has the second-largest marina on the West Coast, and a new Marina Village offering waterfront dining and fishing charters. This marina is but one of many in the region. Across Puget Sound, while on Whidbey Island, visit the Island County Historical Museum at Coupeville.

The works of an early 1900s filmmaker, Darius Kinsey, Eskimo ivories and testimonials to logging lore are featured at the Whatcom Museum of History and Art. At Lynden, the Pioneer Museum displays antique farm equipment and chronicles local history. And in the picturesque harbor town of La Conner you'll find the Skagit County Historical Museum and the restored 1891 Victorian Gaches Mansion, which houses the Valley Museum of the Northwest.

See An Acclaimed Dance Company. The internationally acclaimed Vela Luka Dance Company represents Anacortes' 100-year-old Croatian community. Their shows introduce hundreds to the harbor town, known regionally as "The Friendly City," and home to commercial fleets and pleasure crafts.

In Darrington, enjoy monthly bluegrass jam sessions, highlighted each year by a bluegrass festival, an event popular with locals in this region. ■

PARK YOUR FAMILY FOR A DAY

Parking takes on a whole new meaning in Anacortes where more kinds of parks appeal to more kinds of people. So many we need a "Parking Guide" to describe them all. Kids love Anacortes. There's lots to do. Ride a miniature steam train, board Puget Sound's last sternwheeler, and more! Best of all, the parking is free so you can spend the day without spending a dollar!

BELLINGHAM

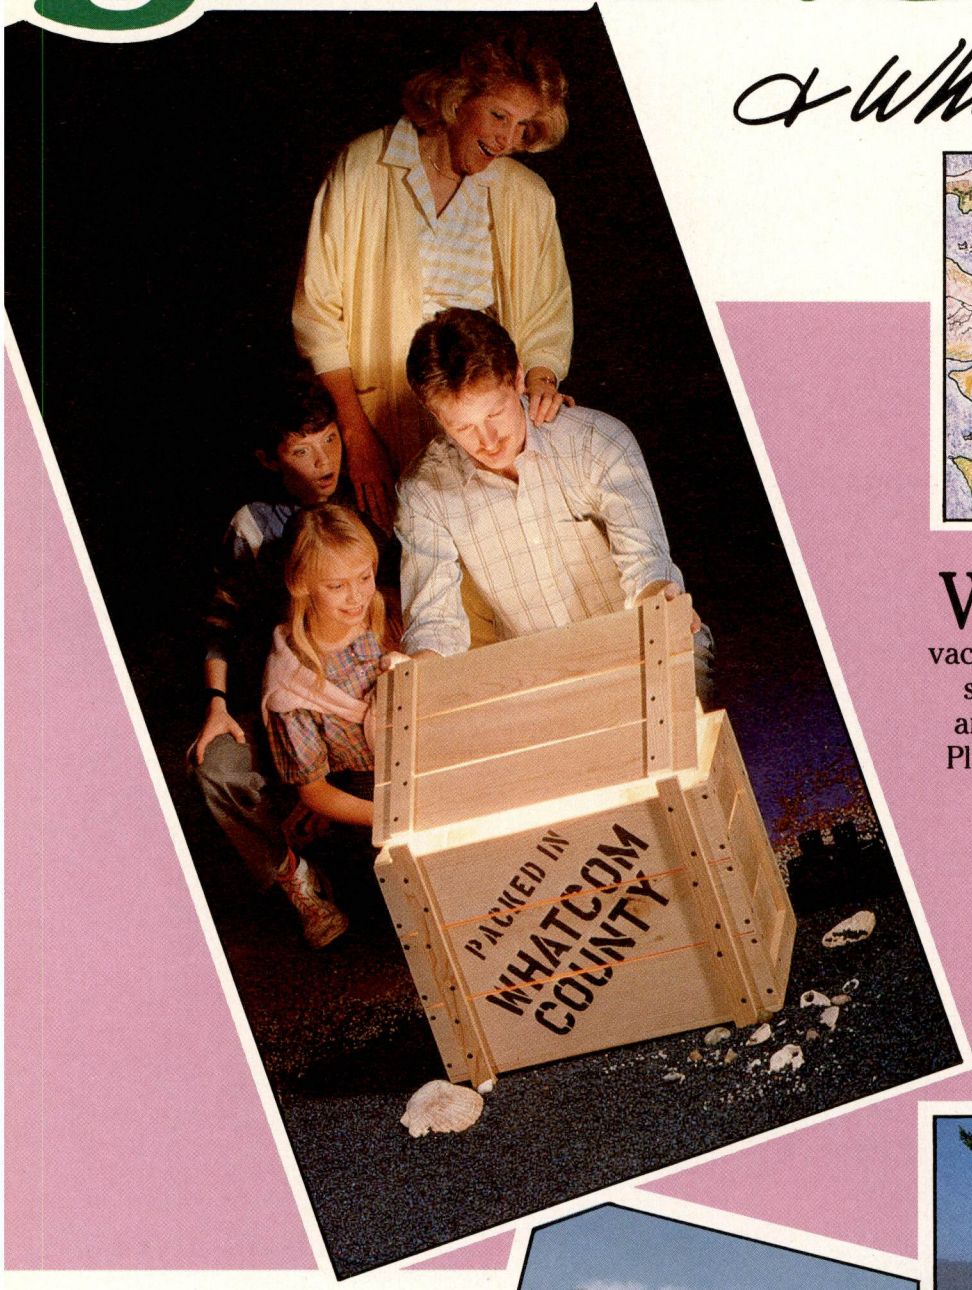
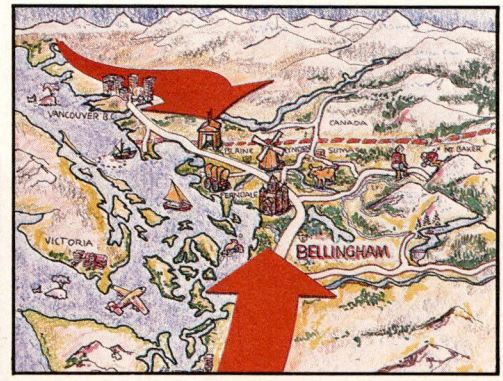
& Whatcom County





Whatcom County is packed with everything you need for a great vacation: We have miles of unspoiled shoreline, snow-capped mountains, and crystal-clear lakes and streams. Plus fine food and accommodations. Affordable antiques. And inviting shops and galleries. It's a stimulating blend of natural beauty and the best of contemporary living.

Come! Unpack Whatcom County — for a fabulous day, or a whole vacation!

Visit historic Fairhaven 1

Enjoy our mountains 2

Stay at Sudden Valley — golf course, accommodations, restaurant, meeting rooms 3

Tour Bergsma Gallery 4

Dine at il Fiasco 6

Stop at the Visitor Information Bureau 8

1. Take a walking tour of Bellingham's historic Fairhaven District, a refurbished turn-of-the-century community of quality shops, restaurants, and galleries. The contemporary arts are very much alive here. Affordable, too.

2. Skiers, Mount Baker has the best early snow in Washington! And skiing is only one of a hundred sports and recreations we offer — from back-packing, to tours of Mount Baker Winery, to a beachside waterslide!

3. Nestled in the forest-green foothills, Sudden Valley is a great place to discover the very best of Northwest living: Fishing and boating on Lake Whatcom; golf on a championship 18-hole course; restaurants, convention center, resort living and a residential community. Catch LaConner Seaplanes for the San Juan Islands and destinations all over the Northwest.

4. At the Bergsma Gallery, delight to the whimsical world of Jody Bergsma's "Little People," and her dramatic works of abstract art.

5. Whatcom County Museum exhibits the best contemporary artists, familiar classics and American craft against the backdrop of this stunning example of Victorian Architecture.

6. Whatcom County is full of wonderful dining experiences, from country "bed and breakfast" fare to sophisticated restaurants like il Fiasco.

7. Fishing, boating, wind-surfing, even whale-watching. They're easy to find at the Port of Bellingham's Squalicum and Blaine Harbors, where you can shop, dine and explore the activity along a busy working waterfront.

8. Whatcom County Visitor Information Bureau is located right off I-5 at exit 253. Stop by for directions and information about lodging, dining, shopping and recreations-or phone us at (206) 671-3990.

Region 5: King County — THE AREA RATED THE BEST AMERICAN VACATION SPOT

SEATTLE AND KING County offer the vacationer almost everything—urban sophistication, cultural diversity, outdoor recreation and some of the most magnificent scenery in the country. In a single visit, you can be pampered in a five-star hotel, visit a winery or museum, ride a wild river, ski pristine slopes or fish for salmon; then return to the city to dine in an elegant restaurant and attend a performance of ballet or opera.

Little wonder Rand McNally rated Seattle/North Cascades/Mount Rainier the #1 U.S. vacation destination in 1986.

Explore Seattle On Foot. Seattle is a compact city, easily explored on foot. And if you tire of walking, simply climb aboard a city bus. They're free in downtown Seattle. A Monorail high above city streets speeds between downtown and the Seattle Center.

Perhaps you'll want to begin at Pike Place Market. One of the country's last authentic farmers' markets, its vendors hawk their wares from stalls along an enclosed shopping corridor. Coffee, tea and spice shops delight your senses with their pungent aromas. Colorful heaps of fresh fruit, vegetables, and seafood are displayed by friendly merchants.

Proceed to the bustling waterfront and stroll past more than a mile of seafood restaurants, import shops and moored ships. You'll find the

Get A Bird's Eye View From 605-Foot Space Needle. Use the Compass Northwest display on the observation deck of the 605-foot Space Needle, to get your bearings. It will point out landmarks in a tapestry of peninsulas, bridges, barges, mountains, lakes, parks and the six hills of Seattle. On a clear day, visitors enjoy breathtaking views of the Olympic Mountains to the west, and the Cascades to the east.

At your feet is the 74-acre Seattle Center, legacy of the 1962 World's Fair. Seattle Center is enjoyable in any season, but on weekends and fair-weather days between April and October, it's a beehive of activity: outdoor concerts, amusement park attractions, impromptu performances and special events attract residents from throughout the state.

The center is the cultural heart of the city. The Pacific Science Center has hands-on displays, the Imax Theater and laser shows. The Bagley Wright Theater is home to Seattle's repertory company and the 3,100-seat Opera House hosts the Seattle Symphony, Pacific Northwest Ballet and Seattle Opera.

Seattle Aquarium here, with its viewing dome beneath Elliott Bay. Board one of the old-time streetcars that shuttle along the waterfront.

Seattle is a maritime city; no visit is complete without a harbor tour. From Pier 52, board a ferry for the 30-minute ride to Bainbridge Island or the 55-minute cruise to Bremerton. The Bremerton run can also be made in about 30 minutes on a catamaran.

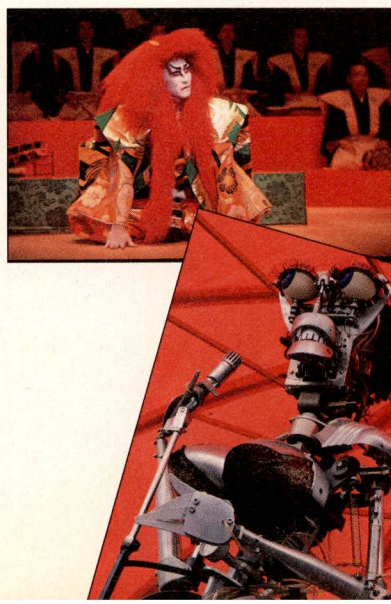
Also, excursion boats provide narrated tours of the harbor. Take the cruise to Tillicum Village at Blake Island State Park, where Indians bake salmon over alder fires and perform costumed dances in a traditional cedar longhouse.

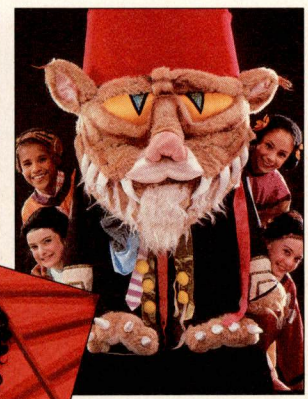
From West Seattle, another island awaits you: Vashon. Board the Fauntleroy Ferry at the south end of Lincoln Park and within 30 minutes you'll be on an island of rolling hills, peaceful farms, hidden coves and quaint towns. On your way to that ferry, visit Alki point, where some of the first settlers arrived in 1851.

Pioneer Square, A Culturally-Diverse Historic District. At Pioneer Square, near the south end of Seattle's waterfront, you'll find old brick and sandstone buildings painstakingly restored to their original beauty. Along streets decorated with hanging flower baskets, find specialty gift stores, art galleries, furniture stores and fine restaurants.

The Underground Tour takes you under the present-day Pioneer Square for a glimpse of Seattle, circa 1890.

You can't miss the Kingdome, at the southern border of Pioneer Square. Here, the Seahawks scramble for touchdowns and the Mariners wallop home runs. The Kingdome is also the site of boat, automobile and home shows each year.





Nearby is the hub of the city's Asian community, the International District, where you can select from dozens of ethnic restaurants and shops.

The shopping is superb throughout Seattle and Bellevue, just east of Lake Washington. Out-of-towners especially look for the fine fashions, art work and high-quality recreational equipment manufactured here.

It's Not Panama, But the Locks are Impressive. Set aside time to visit the attractions of Seattle's north end. The Hiram M. Chittenden Locks connect the sea waters of Puget Sound with the fresh waters of Lake Washington and Lake Union near Ballard, north of downtown. Watch dozens of commercial boats and pleasure craft lowered to the sea level of Puget Sound, or raised back into the lakes.

And when you're in Ballard, do as they do in Scandinavia.

You'll find Swedish and Norwegian shops, restaurants and a Nordic Heritage Museum in this area. Nearby is one of the country's top ten zoos, Woodland Park Zoo, which includes a five-acre savanna with hippos, lions, zebras, and giraffes. Several miles east of Woodland Park is the University of Washington campus, the Arboretum and the Museum of Science and Industry.

What began as a modest preservation of the Boeing Company's original aircraft factory has become the world-class Museum of Flight, which recently expanded to include historic aircraft displayed in a lofty glassed-in exhibit hall. You'll find it at the south end of the city adjacent to King County Airport, where you can watch the latest jetliners being readied for delivery.

Bellevue Glistens with "Just Completed" Freshness. For a city with that "brand new" feel, visit Bellevue, Washington's fourth-largest city. It's a short drive from Seattle, over one of two floating bridges spanning Lake Washington. Near the city center, you'll find a large enclosed shopping mall, Bellevue Square, which houses the city's art museum.

During the summer, the city's Pacific Northwest Arts and Crafts Fair attracts creators of stained glass, pottery, paintings and dozens of other handmade items.

Just to the north is Kirkland, a thriving city on the shores of Lake Washington—an ideal place for a lakeside meal, a leisurely stroll or viewing historic vessels moored there.

Minutes east of Kirkland is Redmond, where you'll find 486-acre Marymoor Park, with a museum housed in a 1904 mansion. The park was designed by the Olmstead brothers, famed for their work on Central Park in New York. Visit the Marymoor Park Velodrome, where national and local bicyclists zoom around the outdoor race track.

East of Bellevue, don't be surprised if you see parachutists and gliders above you in Issaquah. The Issaquah Skyport attracts hundreds of spectators who'd rather watch than jump.

The city has retained its old-time charm in Gilman Village's 19th-century-like buildings, housing shops and restaurants. Hiking trails traverse the slopes of Squak and Tiger mountains, nicknamed locally "The Issaquah Alps."

Further east on I-90, don't miss Snoqualmie Falls, where the Snoqualmie River cascades over a 268-foot embankment, a longer drop than at Niagara Falls.

The falls provide a dramatic backdrop for a theatrical production on the early history of Washington state at the Snoqualmie Falls Forest Theater and Family Park.

Headed east, back on I-90, you can't miss towering 4,190-foot Mount Si, near North Bend. Don't just observe the mountain; experience it by climbing the switchback trail.

Beyond North Bend, scenic I-90 climbs into the Cascades' great snow-capped peaks. Snoqualmie Pass, at 3,022 feet, is Seattle's winter recreation playground. Four ski areas offer a variety of slopes, from "bunny" hills to steep, fast runs that press the best skiers to their limits.

Trails for cross-country skiers and snowshoers wind through the national forest adjacent to the alpine slopes. ■

Opposite page: (left to right) traditional Japanese theater, Bumbershoot; Misty the Robot, Bumbershoot; The Nutcracker, Pacific Northwest Ballet.

If you see only one thing in Seattle, see everything.

Come on up to the Space Needle.

And put Mt. Rainier, the Olympics, Puget Sound, all the lakes, all the islands, Pioneer Square, the Kingdome, Seattle Center, the Pike Place Market, and all the rest of Seattle at your feet.

Or at your table.

Because in addition to our observation deck (we're one of the few world towers with an outer deck where you can breathe in the breezes and the pulse of the city below), we have two fine restaurants, both of which revolve.

And while you overlook everything, we overlook nothing in preparing your feast on the best of the Northwest —fresh salmon, crab, clams, mussels, oysters, and fine, aged, tender meats along with fruits and vegetables that are virtually handpicked each day at the Pike Place Market.

So come on up. There are exhibits to see. Gift shops to shop. Regional foods to savour. And one of the world's most incredible 360° views.

Carnation Research Farm

HOME OF CONTENTED COWS

Nestled in the scenic Snoqualmie Valley, the Carnation Research Farm has been known for decades as the "home of contented cows." Come see a 1,200-acre working dairy farm and research center for Carnation's many divisions. On your self-guided tour you will see the milking parlor, maternity and calf barns, Friskies Nutrition Research Kennels, and beautiful flower gardens filled from spring to early fall with roses, fuchsias and begonias. Excellent picnic facilities are available nearby. Bring your family out and make a day of it at the Carnation Research Farm. (206) 788-1511

Two great bedtime stories

Upstairs and downstairs.

During a stay at The Holiday Inn of Bellevue, you won't waste time in high-rise elevator rides or long-distance treks to your room.

Close to all of suburban Bellevue, we offer Northwest hospitality in a beautifully landscaped, resort-like setting adjacent to Interstate 405. You will enjoy the superb cuisine of Jonah's Restaurant (including our fabulous Sunday brunch) and unwind to live entertainment in Jonah's Lounge.

Courtesy limousine service is yours throughout the Bellevue area. A complete convention center is also available. Call or visit us today.

It's one great story on top of another.

Your Pulse Quickens, You Swallow Hard And Out The Door You Go.

And For 40 Seconds You're Free.

All you have to do is be willing to jump out of an airplane more than a mile above the Earth with one of our Instructors harnessed to you.

The thrill of skydiving.

It's all yours, complete with a 40 second free fall.

All you'll need is a 20 minute training session conducted by a certified tandem instructor with a minimum of 500 jumps . . . and up you go.

Your free fall is followed by a glorious 5 minute parachute ride and a soft, on target landing.

So if you're looking for a way to begin the sport of skydiving or just the ability to say "You'll never guess what I did", call the biggest skydiving center in the Northwest.

Reservations are available Tuesday through Sunday from 10:00 a.m. until dark.

Walk-ins are welcome too.

Come on . . . drop everything. What have you got to lose?

INDIAN DINNER THEATER

In Seattle, you can attend the only AUTHENTIC Indian Dinner Theater in Washington State. This magnificent display of American Indian culture is housed at the Daybreak Star Indian Cultural Center, located 15 minutes from downtown, in Seattle's beautiful Discovery Park (formerly historic Ft. Lawton, scene of this country's last Indian attack on an active Army post). There is no theater as vital, as full of grace, as rich in tradition. When the singers sing, and the dancers dance, they do so as the spirits of their ancestors look on.

Guests are treated to a very special Salmon dinner, with Indian Fry Bread and wines to compliment. The guests are invited to enjoy a bowl of clams and nectar while watching the cooks prepare Salmon in the traditional coastal manner, staked on cedar and baked slowly over an open, alderwood fire.

Buses will pick up and return guests to Seattle's major hotels. For information, contact your hotel Concierge, Information Desk, or Guest-Tel in your room.

Reservations can also be made by calling (206) 285-4425, or writing to the address below.

The Daybreak Star Center also exhibits one of the nation's largest collections of major contemporary Indian art, representing the four major geograhic and cultural regions of North America.

See the only compass with a 500-foot needle.

The new Compass Northwest® at the top of the Space Needle is the place to see first in Seattle. Because this "compass" points out a lot more than what direction you're facing.

It tells you exactly what you're seeing, what lies beyond what you're seeing, and what there is to do in every direction.

Find out the name of that building with the sloped roof. Learn about the fish, plants, and wildlife of the Pacific Northwest. Discover details about Mt. St. Helens. Or plan your next outing.

With the help of 12 easy-to-read display panels situated around the Needle's 360° observation deck, you can explore all kinds of possibilities.

From gunkholing in the San Juans to gorilla-watching at Woodland Park Zoo. Feasting on Indian-style salmon at Tillicum Village to fishing from your hotel window on Seattle's waterfront. Taking an underground tour at Pioneer Square to taking a hike in the Cascade Mountains.

Washington State. It's a real experience.

After a visit to Compass Northwest,® you'll be ready to do some real exploring on your own.

So come on up and get your bearings. You'll be amazed at what you can see from 500 feet in the air.

Welcome To Seattle.

There may be lots to do and see in downtown Seattle. But there's only one place to stay. The Seattle Sheraton Hotel and Towers.

The city's finest shops, stores and restaurants are right next door. And the Pike Place Market, waterfront, Pioneer Square and the Seattle Center's monorail are just down the street.

The Sheraton is Seattle's most complete hotel, with an accent on personalized service.

You'll especially enjoy the Sheraton Towers' unparalleled hospitality, including complimentary breakfast brought to your door by the Towers' butler, and a rooftop pool, Jacuzzi, and health club.

Dine at Fullers, winner of the 1986 Travel Holiday Award, and delight in Banner's 27-foot dessert buffet. Then dance the night away at Greens.

No one gives you a warmer Seattle welcome than the Sheraton. And all rooms are 50% off every Friday, Saturday and Sunday. For reservations, call your travel agent. Or call toll-free 1-800-325-3535.

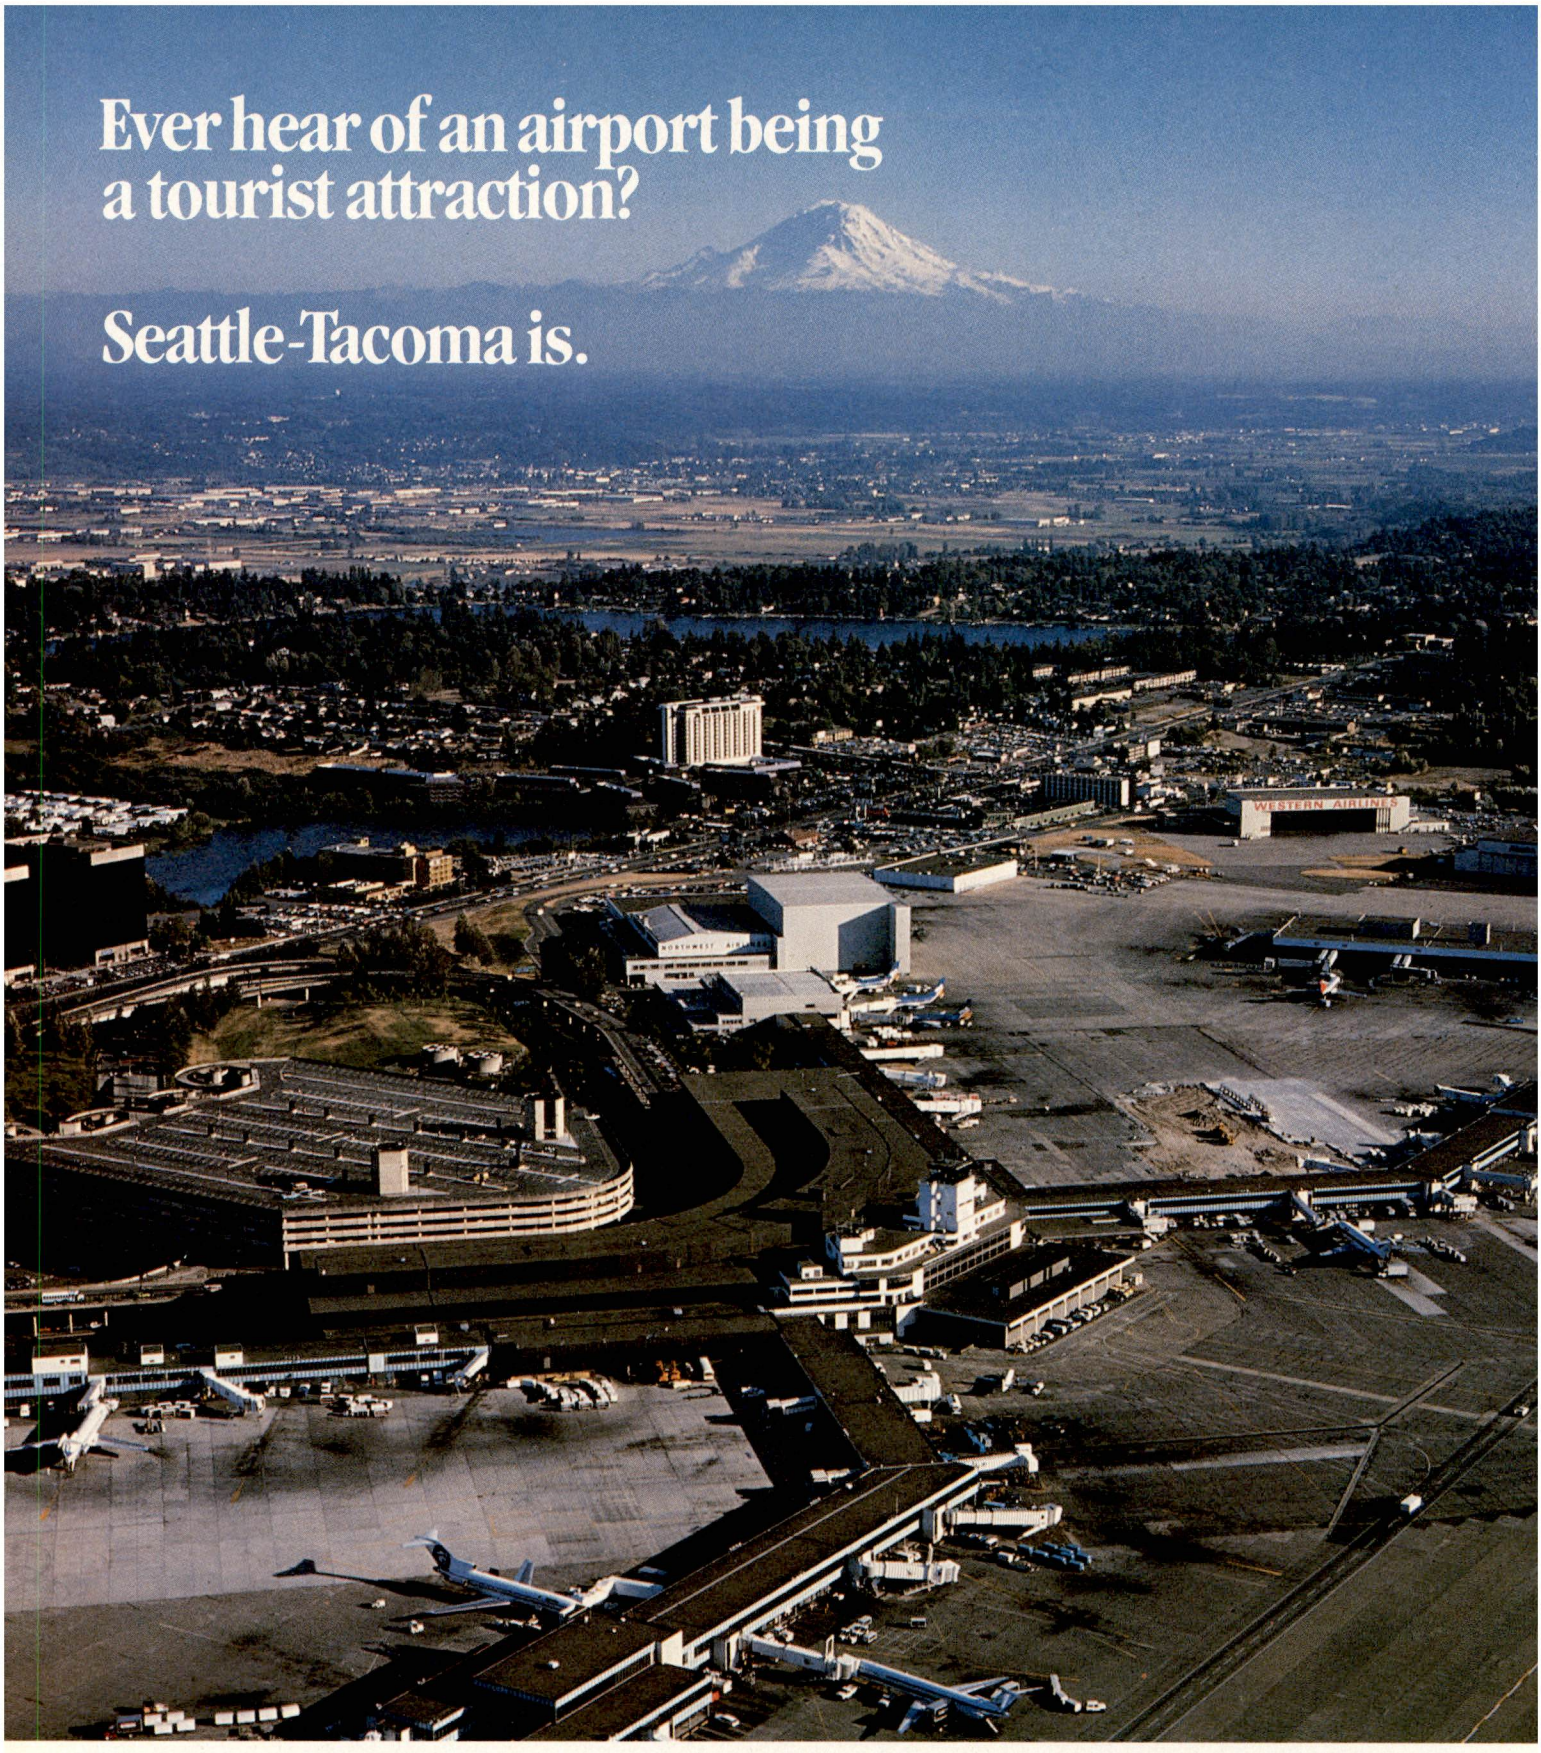
Ever hear of an airport being a tourist attraction?

Seattle-Tacoma is.



You're looking at one of America's five best airports — as voted by the International Airline Passengers Association.

Over 11 million passengers passed through Seattle-Tacoma International last year. And they did it with ease and comfort. Why? Because this world-class facility was built to handle 20 million travelers.

So here's one airport that is spacious, uncrowded, and unfrenetic.

But passengers find other pleasant surprises, too. Like soft-lighted lounges decorated with fine modern art. Subway trains that speed tired travelers from arrival gates to the main terminal in 120 seconds. A cosmopolitan selection of restaurants, bars, and shops.

And best of all — downtown Seattle is but 20 minutes away.

We're not just tooting our horn by saying Seattle-Tacoma is a tourist attraction. Our customers voted.

Region 6: South Puget Sound A LAND OF SUPERLATIVES

SOUTH PUGET SOUND IS a region where you can use words like tallest, oldest, largest and best without fear of exaggeration.

Mount Rainier, elevation 14,410, is the tallest peak in the Cascade Mountains.

Steilacoom, oldest incorporated town (1854) in the Washington Territory, is home to the first Protestant church, first jail and first library.

"The Puyallup" is the largest fair in the Pacific Northwest, and the Tacoma Dome is the world's largest wood dome.

The Pantages Centre for the performing arts is, perhaps, the best example of theater renovation in Washington.

Tacoma: A City Undergoing A Cultural Renaissance. Tacoma, the state's third-largest city, is in the midst of a bold architectural and cultural rebirth. Stroll among Impressionist paintings and the Early American Collection at the Tacoma Art Museum. Wander through five floors of pioneer artifacts, Indian history and nautical lore at the Washington State Historical Museum. Or examine exotic plants at the Seymour Conservatory, a historical conservatory in the Victorian style.

Tacoma is one of the largest natural deep-water ports in the world. Walk or bike along the park-like waterfront as ships glide in from Dakar, Monrovia, Yokohama, Piraeus, and other points between.

At Broadway Plaza downtown, dine in an ethnic restaurant, browse through a boutique or buy a juicy Washington apple at a fruit stand.

"Doin' The Puyallup." Oldtimers say Puyallup means "friendly people," and it sure fits. This lush valley in the shadow of Mount Rainier bursts into bloom each spring, and the annual Daffodil Parade makes its way through Tacoma, Puyallup, Sumner and Orting.

"Doin' the Puyallup" means enjoying the Western Washington Fair. More than a million people do it each September, making it one of the largest fairs in North America. Seventeen days of family fun, the Puyallup Fair draws top entertainers. There's well-groomed livestock, a dazzling midway, the aroma of scones and burgers, statewide youth contests, arts and crafts shows and more.

While in the area, visit the beautifully restored home of pioneer Ezra Meeker, founder of Puyallup and a driving force behind the mapping-out of the Oregon Trail. Browse through the Western Frontier Museum and discover the realities of the Old West.

Olympia is Democracy In Action. Just off Interstate 5 in Olympia, you'll see the neoclassical dome of Washington's Capitol Building. At 287 feet, it is the fifth-highest all masonry domed building in the world.

On the main floor of the Capitol Building you can link up with a free public tour—or sit in the galleries and watch laws being made. Information about tours is available at the Capitol Information Center.

While you're in the Olympia area, set aside time to see the Crosby House, the Henderson House, the State Library and the State Capital Museum in the Clarence J. Lord Mansion, with its exhibit of the Mount St. Helens' eruption, and displays on Northwest native American culture and history.

From the Capitol Campus, walk downtown and visit the copper-domed Old Capitol Building, now restored and housing the office of the state Superintendent of Instruction. Then head downtown and browse through the city's newly renovated business center, where you'll find interesting shops and the Washington Center for the Performing Arts.

Stop by Washington's second-largest public market, and pick up some fresh baked goods, cheese and fruit for a picnic at nearby Percival Landing. Here you'll find a 100-foot viewing tower, whale sculpture, fountains and boat moorage.

Also visit Tumwater Falls Park. Just across a bridge from the park, you can tour the Olympia Brewery which welcomes visitors daily.

Animal Life Thrives in Parks.

Nisqually National Wildlife Refuge. Observe the resting and wintering area for migratory fowl from the interpretive trail and photo blind. The refuge is adjacent to I-5 at exit 114 near Olympia, and is open every day during daylight hours.

Point Defiance Park. This 700-acre park on Puget Sound is one of the Northwest's best. In this world-class zoo and aquarium, you'll literally come face-to-face with polar bears. Tour the Rocky Shores display, a marine mammal display with whales, sea lions, otters, seals and walruses.

Pet the animals at the Farm Zoo. See the musk oxen, mysterious Ice Age giants, in their tundra habitat.

Visit the Northwest native gardens and Japanese, rose, rhododendron and dahlia gardens. The young-at-heart will enjoy wandering the forest paths of Never Never Land, where 30 Mother Goose scenes are tucked among the fir trees.

Overlooking the Narrows Bridge is historic Fort Nisqually, a restored Hudson's Bay Company fur trading outpost of the mid-1800s.

At Point Defiance Boathouse, you can rent a boat, motor, tackle—everything you need for some of the best fishing on Puget Sound.

Wolf Haven. Have a howlin' good time at Wolf Haven, the only wolf sanctuary west of the Mississippi. Get a rare, close-up look at a variety of species within a natural habitat. Join in the summer Friday-night howl-ins, when folks gather around a blazing bonfire, sing songs and howl with the wolves. It's located seven miles southwest of Tumwater.

Northwest Trek Wildlife Park. The animals run free. It's the humans who are confined. Ride in a tram car through 600 acres of wilderness near Eatonville. See moose, bighorn sheep, woodland caribou, bear, wolves and a herd of buffalo.

Mount Rainier: 14,410 Feet of Sheer Beauty. The Indians called it Tahoma, and when you visit Mount Rainier, you'll see why they chose a name that means "Next to Heaven."

Even if you're not an outdoor buff, squeeze time in your schedule to get close to this magnificent mountain, and its snowy peaks, glacier-fed streams, colorful fields and

There are several ways to get to the mountain. State Route 706 takes you to Elbe, where you may board the Mount Rainier Scenic Railroad. You'll also pass Longmire, where the National Park Inn is open year-round. A wildlife museum is just inside the western entrance of Mount Rainier National Park.

Or, head east from Puyallup on S.R. 410, which follows the White River south.

Whichever way you choose, your destination should be Paradise, a settlement high on the slopes of this giant mountain. Survey the scene from its picturesque country inn, built in 1917. Here you'll find a visitor information center.

In the spring and summer, hike on alpine trails among wild flowers—in the winter, snowshoe or ski cross-country. One ski trail leads to ice caves.

The area gets an annual average of 620 inches of snow—one reason Crystal Mountain, just north of the park, is one of the most popular ski resorts in the state. ■

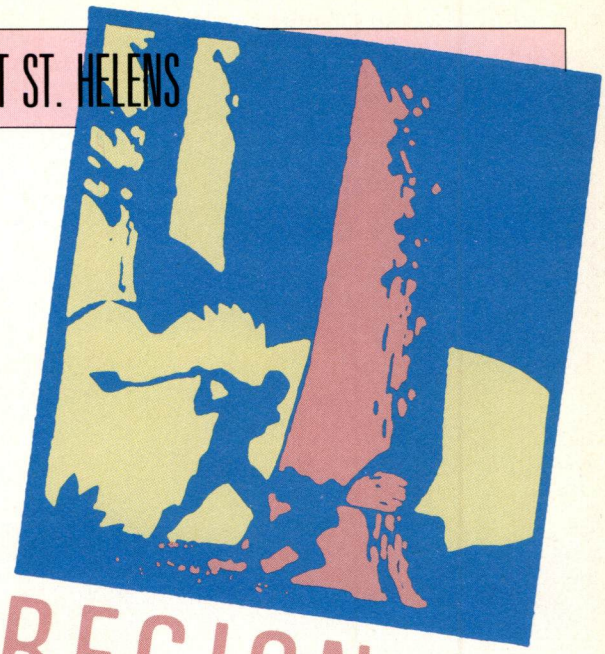
BEHOLD THE DEVASTATION OF MOUNT ST. HELENS



REGION no.7

THE AWESOME FORCE of nature can extract a terrible price. That's clear at Mount St. Helens, where you can still see deep scars inflicted by the May 18, 1980 eruption.

Explore the haunting, lifeless moonscapes of ash-covered hills and valleys where forests once carpeted the infamous mountain. Then imagine when a single, stupefying blast pulverized the mountain's peak into hot ash mushrooming 12 miles into the sky.

The blow packed a wallop 500 times the force of the first atomic bombs. It blew down 150 square miles of timber like so many matchsticks; it buried 5,900 miles of roads under heavy, gritty ash that, in its finest form, circled the globe. A cone-like, 9,677-foot mountain quickly became a flat-top 1,300 feet lower.

Today the aftermath of that destruction is showcased at the 110,300-acre Mount St. Helens National Volcanic Monument, established by Congress in 1980. Here you can drive and walk through areas devastated by the blast.

Stop by the new Mount St. Helens Visitor Center, located just off Interstate 5 on State Route 504, across from Seaquest State Park, for views of the mountain and information on the national monument. Castle Rock is near this forest service information center, the entrance to the Spirit Lake Highway (S.R. 504).

Many vistas offer beautiful panoramas of Mount St. Helens. Hopkins Hill, near Morton, has a good view of the mountain's steaming crater. When you get hungry, eat at a nearby old-style roadhouse. If you happen to be in the small logging town in August, attend Morton's acclaimed Logger's Jubilee. Lumberjacks from throughout the Northwest compete for the honor of best all-around logger.

The Hoffstadt Volcano Viewpoint is at the end of S.R. 504, east of I-5. Take this highway through Toutle for the best views of the devastation left by dangerous mud flows triggered by the eruption.

For a close-up view of the crater, go to Randle, off U.S. 12 at Windy Ridge. The town of Cougar also affords fine views of the mountain.

pedition of 1805 is chronicled at an interpretive center. Two historic lighthouses stand nearby, and the Ilwaco Heritage Museum features an authentic, old-time railroad depot.

Relive the History of an Enterprising Region. The history of Washington's southwest region is readily apparent inland, as well. A number of historic forts are a testament to the importance of this region to early-day settlers and trappers. Fort Vancouver was founded on the banks of the Columbia in 1825 by the Hudson's Bay Company. From this headquarters, the company monopolized the early Northwest fur trade.

At the Fort Vancouver National Historic Site, explore buildings just like the ones where trappers lived during that era. Visit the Victorian homes, which were once the exclusive Officers' Row.

Vancouver, the oldest continuous community in Washington, is now the state's sixth-largest city, boasting an active port. A scenic walking trail follows the Burnt Bridge Creek through Stewart-Glen Park.

Fort Columbia Historical Park sits dramatically at the mouth of the Columbia River, where the sea violently meets the river, beyond the Astoria bridge. Old artillery emplacements and three museums are featured at this park. Chinook Point is nearby.

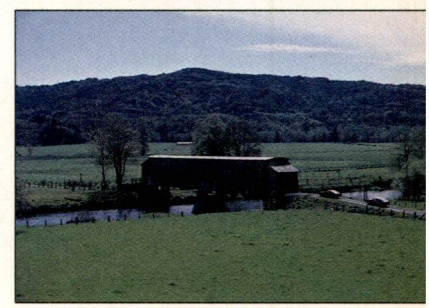
Upriver, as you enter the newly designated Columbia Gorge National Scenic Area, tour the Pendleton Woolen Mill in Washougal.

About 15 miles to the east, climb Beacon Rock, the world's second-largest monolith. The 900-foot column of lava was not conquered until 1901, when a Columbia River steamship company erected a banner as a promotional stunt. Today a trail will lead you to the summit for panoramic views of the gorge.

The Bonneville Dam has a new visitor information center. The kids will marvel at working models of the dam, and self-guided tours reveal the river's history, as well as views of the powerhouse and underwater fish-viewing room.

Hike Part of the Nation's Longest Trail. Across the road from the dam, you can gain access to the Pacific Crest Trail, the nation's longest hiking trail. It scales Mount Adams (12,307-feet), a beautiful mountain, sometimes overlooked between towering Mount Rainier and smoldering Mount St. Helens.

Further north of the Pacific Crest Trail, White Pass is stunningly beautiful; deep mountain valleys rise in sheer cliffs of stone. Grab some provisions in Packwood, then head east to Goat Rocks Wilderness for a picnic high in the Cascades.



Back in the Columbia Gorge, east of the Bonneville Dam, ride a sternwheeler at Stevenson. The world's largest collection of rosaries is housed here, at the Skamania County Historical Museum. An outdoor logging museum is located at Rock Creek Park.

Hike into the world's largest tree nursery at the Wind River Ranger Station near Carson. Explore nearby ice caves and lava beds, then relax in the hot mineral baths at Carson.

See the World's Tallest Totem Pole. North of Vancouver, stop in at Woodland, home of the Hulda Klager Lilac Gardens. Then visit Kalama for a look at the world's tallest single-strand totem pole, carved by Chief LaLooska.

Nearby Longview, founded in 1923, is unique in that it was totally planned before it was built. You'll find historic buildings and parks, Lake Sacajawea, Hotel Monticello and fine art galleries. The Cowlitz County Historical Museum is in neighboring Kelso.

Further north on I-5, at Toledo, sidetrack to Jackson Highway, one of the area's first roads. The scenic route leads to the twin cities of Centralia and Chehalis where you'll find Fort Borst Park and the Lewis County Historical Museum.

Adjacent to the park is the Borst homestead. Built in the early 1860s, it was long one of the finest homes in the entire state. Legend has it Ulysses S. Grant once visited pioneer Joseph Borst at his home.

In Centralia, take time to admire 10 huge murals depicting the area's historical development. ■

ENJOY THE SUN WITHOUT OPPRESSIVE SUMMER HEAT

Do you want to escape from stifling summer heat, yet still get a great summer tan? Or dash off for a holiday during the fall or winter without fear of frostbite? If so, consider Washington state.

Forget what you might have heard about Washington's penchant for rain. Surprisingly enough, Seattle often records less annual rainfall than Houston, Texas. Last summer, western Washington enjoyed 42 consecutive days without rainfall. The previous summer, locals prayed for rain, as one of the state's greatest assets—its forests—became tinder dry.

In central Washington, Lake Chelan, one of the state's premier resort areas, receives about 300 days of sun a year.

Western Washington's summer temperatures are generally in the 70s, but July and August usually enjoy several days in the 80s and low 90s.

In eastern Washington, summer temperatures are usually in the 80s. A few days each summer, temperatures exceed 100 degrees.

Also, perfect cross-country and snowmobiling conditions exist statewide during the winter.

There is a greater chance of snow throughout eastern Washington. The snowfall in the east is not excessive, but travel advisories are sometimes posted in the higher elevations from November through February. ■

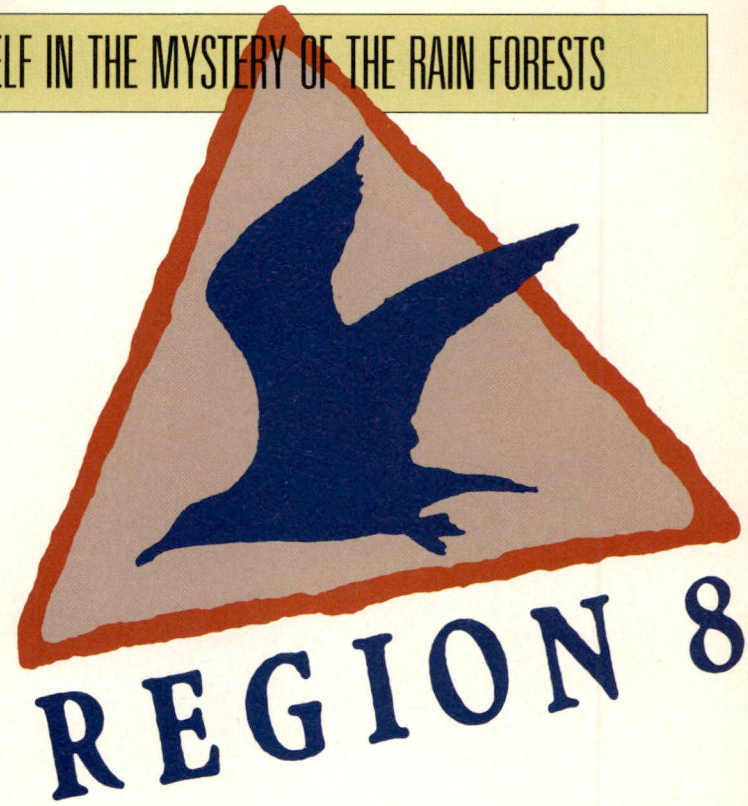
Discover America

Region 8: The Olympic Peninsula IMMERSE YOURSELF IN THE MYSTERY OF THE RAIN FORESTS



THE OLYMPIC PENINsula is enchanting and powerful. Towering, lush evergreens and carpet-like moss, broken only by glittering creeks and streams, engulf this hauntingly beautiful area. North America's only rain forests are crowned by the rugged peaks of the Olympic Mountains. The forests shield inland logging and fishing communities against the wild and raging, but always enticing, Pacific Ocean.

The lure of the peninsula hasn't changed much since the days of the earliest settlers. Indian tribes—Quinault, Taholah, Makah, Klallam—make their living as their ancestors did, harvesting fish from bountiful rivers. Huge trees still remain, despite the hearty efforts of four generations of lumberjacks.

Explore the Peninsula Loop. The rain forests are skirted by U.S. 101, known to locals simply as "The Loop." Combined with frequent side-trips into the Olympic National Forest, the Olympic National Park and the Kitsap Peninsula, U.S. 101 is the route to discoveries on the peninsula.

If you're coming from Seattle, ferries crossing Puget Sound call at Kingston, Southworth, Winslow and Bremerton. Each of these communities is a short drive from U.S. 101. If you're driving south on Interstate 5, exit at Olympia and head west to Grays Harbor, named for Captain Robert Gray, the first American to explore the Washington coast.

Net Dinner at a Salmon Fishing Capital of the World. Grays Harbor is a historic port. Much of the greatest stand of Douglas fir ever found in the Pacific Northwest was shipped from the docks at the twin cities of Aberdeen and Hoquiam. When the timber industry was at its peak, mills around Grays Harbor produced more plywood than any other area in the world.

Today, Grays Harbor's docks are still busy. Huge cargo ships from Southeast Asia take on timber at the two towns born of lumber.

Of course, Grays Harbor's history is a long litany of lumberjack tales. The Polson Park Museum in Hoquiam displays logging memorabilia, and the 19th-century Hoquiam Castle, once the home of a lumber tycoon, has been restored to its original opulence.

A 30-minute drive west to the harbor's south shore leads to the self-proclaimed sportfishing capital of the world: Westport.

Salmon, rockfish and tuna challenge the sportsman, yet charter-boat anglers frequently reel in their limits. If you'd rather sightsee at sea, whale-watching charters are available from March to May. Get close-up views of the mammoth 45-foot, 45-ton grey whales swimming north from Baja.

A sandy beach stretches 18 miles south from the Westport jetty (a prime angling spot) to Grayland, a fine beach for kite-flying and long, contemplative strolls to the steady rhythm of a pounding surf.

Across the harbor is the popular resort community of Ocean Shores, with plenty of beachfront accommodations. Explore six miles of uninterrupted beach, the quaint bay front and glistening lakes and canals. There's an 18-hole championship golf course, horseback riding, even an airport serving private planes. Go beachcombing or clam digging.

North of Ocean Shores visit the tiny seaside communities of Ocean City, Copalis Beach, Pacific Beach and Moclips. All offer lodgings on the beach, and are popular in the winter, when couples stoke a cozy fire and snuggle to the racuous melody of thundering coastal storms.

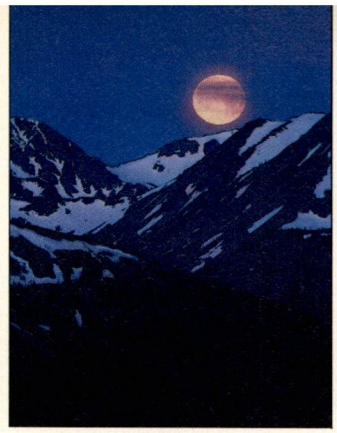
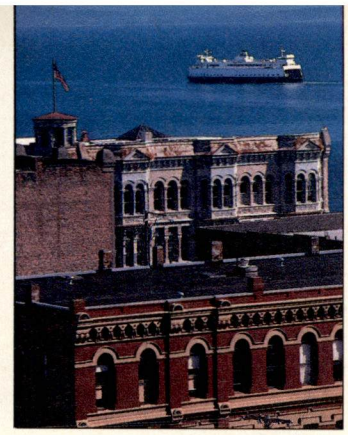
Visit Mountain Peaks. Port Angeles, where the Olympics greet the sea, is the gateway to Hurricane Ridge. Here you'll experience the spell-binding majesty of the jutting, rugged peaks of the Olympic Mountains.

But before rushing to the mountains, tour Port Angeles. Stroll the waterfront and the award-winning City Pier. Take the trolley tour to Ediz Hook for a close-up look at lumber mills, and a photogenic view of the city and its mountain backdrop.

Charter fishing boats are also available, and the Coho Ferry makes regular trips to Victoria, capital of the Canadian province of British Columbia.

Snow attracts alpine and cross-country skiers to Hurricane Ridge, just 17 miles south of Port Angeles. An overnight trip to a secluded ski hut is popular with cross-country skiers. Spend the night, then ski four miles back the next day. In the summer you'll find yourself among wildflower meadows, grazing deer and the massive blue-ice glaciers at the heart of the Olympic National Park.

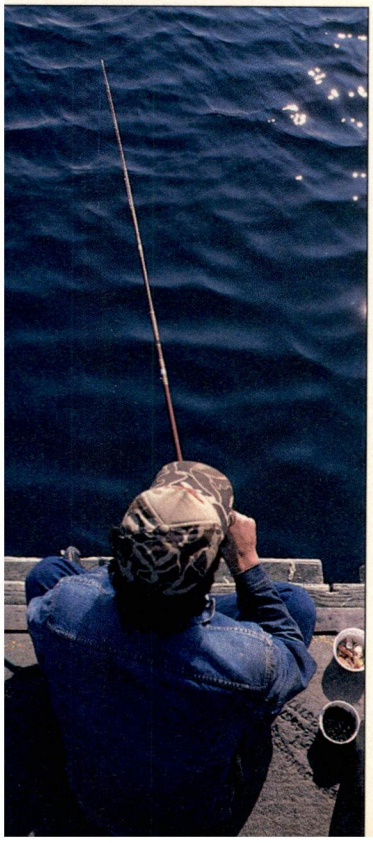




Bask in the Olympic Rain Shadow. Nearby Sequim, east of Port Angeles on U.S. 101, enjoys the phenomena of the Olympic rain shadow. The valley basks in exceptionally dry weather year-round. In fact, it's one of the driest Pacific Coast areas north of San Diego.

While the rain forests average 120 inches of precipitation a year, Sequim gets just 16—though it's less than 100 miles from the rain forests, as the crow flies. This, coupled with the inspiring setting, makes Sequim a popular retirement community.

The "Dungeness Scenic Loop," just east of Sequim, leads through farmlands to the edge of Dungeness Bay, for which the famous crab is named. Hike out on Dungeness Spit, the longest natural sand jetty in the world. It's more than a six-mile hike, but the hearty hiker will likely be rewarded with a tour of the lighthouse at the tip of the spit.



Tour Classic Victorian Homes. At Discovery Bay, 18 miles from Sequim, head north on S.R. 20 for Port Townsend, where you'll find the finest Victorian architecture north of San Francisco. Some homes are open to visitors, and many offer bed and breakfast accommodations.

Within city limits is Fort Worden, where much of the movie "An Officer and a Gentleman" was filmed. Designated a National Historic Landmark, the fort was constructed between 1897 and 1911 to protect Puget Sound cities and the Bremerton Naval Shipyard. It is now an oceanfront state park. Many original buildings still stand, and the officers' quarters have been remodeled into travelers' lodgings.

Returning south from Port Townsend, there are a couple of travel alternatives. The drive southbound on U.S. 101 parallels beautiful Hood Canal to Hoodsport, where in May and June you can stop by roadside stands and buy shrimp just pulled from the saltwater. Further south is Shelton, nicknamed Christmas Town U.S.A. because of its many Christmas tree farms. Shelton is near the Skokomish Tribal Center and the Kamilche trading post, operated by the Squaxin Island tribe. Here you'll find authentic, fine-crafted Indian goods.

Or, from Port Townsend, drive east on S.R. 104 and cross the floating Hood Canal Bridge to the Kitsap Peninsula and Port Gamble, a restored New England-style mill town illuminated with gas lights. A bit further south is Poulsbo, which celebrates its Norwegian heritage at popular folk festivals in a fjord-like setting. In Suquamish you'll find the grave of Chief Sealth, for whom Seattle was named. The Suquamish Tribal Museum is here, near the Agate Pass bridge.

See the Shipyards and a Home to the Navy. The home of the U.S.S. Missouri before it was recommissioned in 1984, Bremerton is truly a Navy town. Today, there are still a number of mothballed naval ships, and the shipyards blaze with the round-the-clock activity of welders. Visit the Bremerton Naval Museum.

Across the Sinclair Inlet are the marinas of Port Orchard, and great views of the shipyards and the Olympic Mountains. Just a 30-minute drive south is Hood Canal. Twanoh State Park is a popular weekend camping spot, and the warm waters of the natural canal swell with boating action, a common activity on the Olympic Peninsula. ■

WIN A GREAT EVERGREEN ESCAPE

EVER DREAM OF A FEW nights on a beautiful island, where peaceful beaches meet crystal-clear seas? Ever wish for a few days on the slopes of one of the country's top ski resorts?

Then make your dreams come true—for free. Enter Destination Washington's Evergreen Escape contest, and win a spring/summer or fall/winter get away to Washington. It's a state for all seasons.

HOW TO ENTER

No purchase is necessary. Simply fill out the attached questionnaire, affix proper postage, and return it postmarked before May 31, 1987 to qualify for the spring/summer contest. The postmark deadline for the fall/winter contest is September 30, 1987. Only one entry per household. Multiple entries will be disqualified.

SPRING/SUMMER GET AWAY:

Grand prize is a trip for two to Lopez Island, one of the beautiful, world-famous San Juan Islands. You'll win three days and two nights at The Islander Lopez. Transportation between Seattle and Lopez Island is courtesy of Kenmore Air Harbor.

Second prize is overnight accommodations for two at the luxurious Stouffer Madison Hotel in Seattle, and two tickets to a local special event (subject to availability).

Third prize is a ride to the top of the Space Needle for breakfast or brunch for two, and breathtaking views of Puget Sound, the Olympic and Cascade mountains.

FALL/WINTER GET AWAY:

Grand prize is mid-week lodging and skiing for two at Crystal Mountain on the slopes of majestic Mount Rainier, where you'll stay for three days and two nights. You'll receive lift tickets, meals and other enhancements. A car is made available by National Car Rental.

Second prize is overnight accommodations for two at the popular Inn at The Market in Seattle, and tickets to a local special event (subject to availability).

Third prize is another ski trip for two. National Car Rental provides a car for transportation to 49 Degrees North, a ski area near Spokane. Lift tickets and ski equipment are included for one day.

CAN YOU HUM "WASHINGTON, MY HOME?"

"WASHINGTON, MY Home," by Helen Davis of South Bend was adopted as the state's song in 1959. Davis describes the song as having a folklore quality. School children sing it, President John F. Kennedy based a speech on it, a Japanese welcoming committee sang it to a former governor when he visited their country and some American Legion posts sing it at meetings.

The state also has a couple of unofficial state songs. "Louie, Louie" by Richard Berry is the unofficial rock song; Woody Guthrie's "Roll On, Columbia" is the unofficial folk song.

Square dancing is the official state dance.

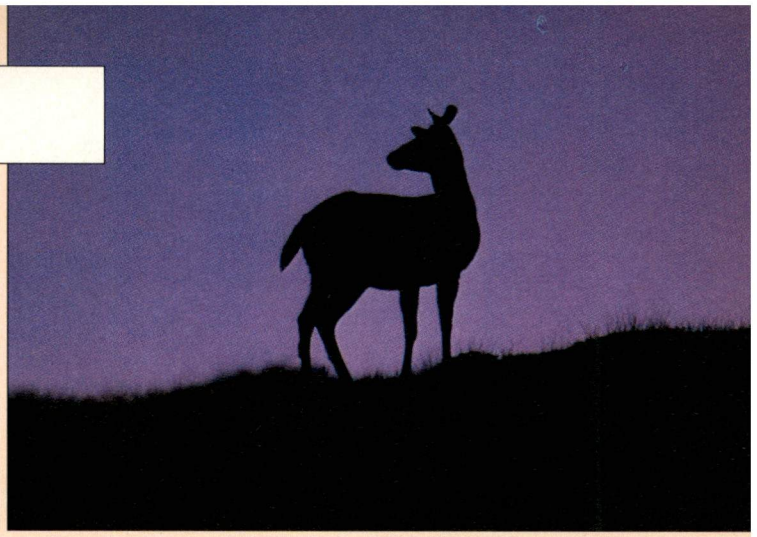
A TRAVELERS' GUIDE TO WASHINGTON STATE LAWS



Hunting and Fishing Regulations: If you want to fish or hunt in Washington, get the latest updates at hunting and sporting-goods stores throughout the state. Seasons and regulations vary with many conditions. Hunting seasons vary widely from region to region.

At varying seasons, most of the state's many rivers are open to fishermen. Fishing on Puget Sound is usually allowed year-round, except for Chinook salmon, which are protected by some season closures. Hardshell clams and crabs may be harvested year-round. But crab pots are restricted from April 15 to July 15. All waters are open to shrimping from May 15 to September 15, except for Hood Canal and Carr Inlet, which are usually open from the third Saturday of May through June. Razor clam season generally runs sometime between Oct. 1 and June 30, but is subject to cutbacks.

License fees are as follows:

Fishing: An annual fishing license is $14 for residents; non-residents pay $40, or $14 for a three-day license. A steelhead punchcard is an additional $15. Call the Washington State Department of Game at (206) 753-5700 for more information.

Hunting: Residents pay $12 for a hunting license; non-residents pay $125. A deer tag is $15 for residents, $50 for non-residents. An elk tag is $20, or $100 for non-residents. A bear tag is $15; $150 for non-residents. Turkey tags are $15, regardless of residence. A state stamp for hunting migratory water fowl is $5 for everyone. Pheasant licenses cost $15 for western Washington; $8 for eastern Washington. Most seasons vary from fall to early winter. For more details, call the Washington State Department of Game at (206) 753-5700 or (206) 775-1311.

Salmon Fishing: Residents pay $1 daily or $3 annually for both salt and fresh water fishing. Non-residents pay $3 annually for salt-water; $10 annually for fresh water. Non-residents are charged $1 for one-day salt water license, but $5 for a three-day license to fish fresh waters. There's no fee for anyone 70 or older, 16 or younger, but punch cards are required.

Razor Clams: Residents pay $2.50; non-residents $10 for an annual pass. No charge for residents 65 or older, 16 or younger.

Shrimp: A shrimp license is $5; non-residents pay a $15 state fee. Persons over 70 pay $5 for a lifetime license. Call Washington State Department of Fisheries at (206) 753-6600 for seasons and regulations on salmon, shellfish and sport fishing.

Other Important Information:

Alcoholic Beverage Laws: Washington state liquor laws are typical of drinking laws in many states. The legal drinking age is 21.

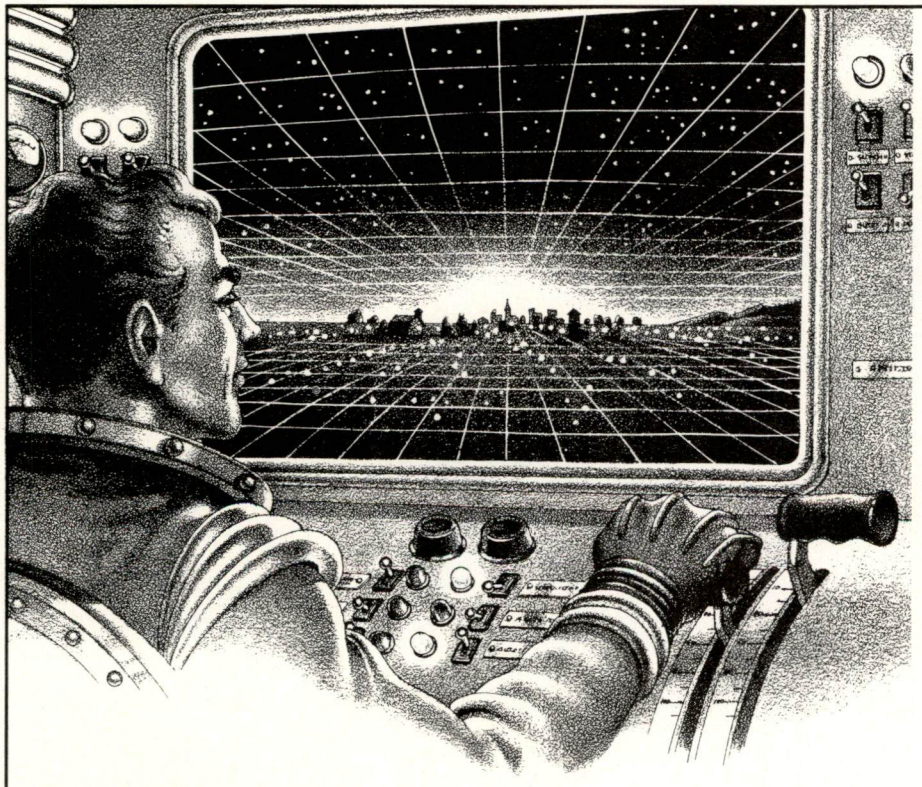
Liquor is sold by the bottle in state liquor stores, and by the drink in licensed establishments. Beer, wine and liquor are sold by the drink daily from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m.; no package sales are permitted Sundays or holidays.

Persons are considered legally intoxicated if they have an alcohol/blood content of .10 percent or higher. The state implied consent law requires persons operating a motor vehicle to take a breath test to determine alcohol content upon request.

An "Open Container Law" passed in 1983 makes it illegal to drink any alcoholic beverage in a motor vehicle. Also, it's illegal to possess an alcohol container with a broken seal in your car. It may be stored in the trunk. There are certain exceptions that apply to commercially chartered transits and to the living quarters of motor homes or campers.

Other State Highway Laws: You're likely to be so captured by Washington state scenery, it probably won't be difficult to adhere to the national 55 mph speed limit. That's a good thing, because the law is enforced on highways throughout the state.

Washington now requires that all persons wear safety belts. Authorities don't stop vehicles simply on the suspicion that the occupants aren't wearing safety belts, but persons stopped for other violations will be cited if they aren't buckled-up. Persons driving older cars not originally outfitted with safety belts by the auto maker are exempt from the seat belt law.



Sorry, Buck Rogers.

We got to the future before you did—with the amazing new voice and data system called the GTD-5. It's all modular and can give even a small town the capacity of a huge metropolis.

The computer-controlled "base unit" is installed in a main central telephone office; then smaller "satellite units," controlled by the base unit, can be installed in any remote location.

PROFILE

Spokane — gateway to the vast Inland Pacific Northwest — was founded in 1881, by a group of independent, innovative and determined people. Since that time it has become known as the "hub" of the Inland Empire, an 80,000 square mile trade zone which encompasses parts of four western states and two Canadian provinces. This region has a population of some 1½ million people. Spokane meets its responsibility by serving as the regional center for: transportation, communications, agriculture, industry, manufacturing, retail, culture, finance, health care, law, education, sports and recreation and other professional businesses.

In 1975, following Spokane's successful World's Fair — Expo '74, the National Municipal League selected Spokane as an "All America City", and in 1977 the National Association of Realtors cited Spokane as one of the most "livable cities" in the western United States.

Nature has blessed the Lilac City with an abundance of natural resources. However, the most important resource is its people which have a heritage of hospitality which tempers the rapid pace of contemporary life with a strong attitude of independence and self-reliance.

From the rolling wheat fields to the mountain's majesty, from the mighty Grand Coulee Dam to the rich mining deposits and fertile forests this land is truly a unique and beautiful place to live or visit.

SPOKANE FACTS

LOCATION AND POPULATION

Spokane is located near the eastern border of Washington state. The county seat, Spokane is 18 miles west of Idaho and 110 miles south of Canada. The largest city between Minneapolis and Seattle, it is the eastern gateway to the Pacific Northwest, and is the second largest city in the state.

ECONOMIC PROFILE

The Spokane economy is heavily based on service industries, wholesale and retail trade. There are 435 manufacturing establishments, 2,414 wholesale and retail stores, and 1,977 service businesses. Annual wages paid in Spokane for 1981 were in excess of $1,851,562,605. The per household effective buying income was $18,738. in 1982.

Approximately 13% of the economic base is comprised of manufacturing employment representing: food and kindred products; lumber and wood products; primary metals; fabricated metal and machinery, and others.

Since the late 19th century, Spokane has served as the center for lumber, mining, agriculture and energy. Minerals found in eastern Washington and northern Idaho include: lead, zinc, silver, gold, uranium, and 15 other major minerals. Agricultural producers grow/process some 100 different products which are consistently found in top national rankings for production, i.e. wheat, lentils, livestock.

An abundance of hydro-electric power gives area firms and residents definite rate advantages over other parts of the U.S. There are 26 public and 29 investor-owned hydroelectric dams in the Columbia River Basin, including Grand Coulee Dam. The Columbia Basin Project irrigates over 1 million acres for food production.

Sports, recreation, the arts and the convention/visitor trade also add to Spokane's varied economic base.

EMPLOYMENT: Spokane's current unemployment rate is 10%. The Chamber of Commerce is not an employment referral service. For employment information contact one of the chamber's member employment agencies, or, contact the Washington State Job Service Center — 536-1412.

FINANCE

Spokane has served as the financial center for this region for over 100 years. It's one of the few cities in the nation to have its own stock exchange.

A breakdown of the financial community shows:

- 9 commercial banks
- 7 savings and loans
- 2 mutual savings banks (combining for a total of 100 area branch offices)
- 33 credit unions
- 45 finance and/or mortgage companies
- 38 stock and bond brokers.

The Federal Land Bank, Bank for Cooperatives, and the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank are also in Spokane.

All combine to sustain Spokane's position as one of the largest financial centers in the northwest.

RETAIL

As the retail center for this region, it is not uncommon for residents in rural areas to drive hundreds of miles to Spokane for their shopping needs. Downtown Spokane is connected by 14 blocks of a unique skywalk system which allows for weather-free shopping. The four major shopping centers (Northtown; Shadle Park; University City; and Franklin Park Mall) combine with over 20 neighborhood centers to provide the best selection of goods and services in the Inland Empire.

PARKS

Spokane and the State of Washington have a long-standing tradition of maintaining and promoting some of the finest parks in the United States.

The City's showcase is world-famous MANITO PARK, noted for its 18th century-styled Duncan Gardens, perennial lilac and rose gardens, conservatory and the Japanese Gardens. RIVERFRONT PARK, former site of EXPO '74, is 53 acres of greenery, entertainment, community activities and serves as home for the historic Loof Carrousel. The majestic Spokane River cascades to raging falls as it passes through Riverfront Park.

The County's Sullivan Park, on the Spokane River in the valley, is site for the Western Dance Center; while Mirabeau Park is home for "Walk in the Wild", a zoo.

Finch Arboretum, a 65-acre tree preserve is conveniently located near downtown. Riverside State Park, on the upper Spokane River, offers overnight camping, hiking and horseback riding — with hook-ups for 100 vehicles.

NIGHTLIFE ACCOMMODATIONS

Spokane is famous for its fine restaurants and eateries. There are over 600 eating establishments in the county, offering a wide variety of cuisine and specialties.

Many of the restaurants and hotels provide dancing, music, and other entertainment in their lounges.

There are hotel/motel accommodations from the economical to the luxurious, with nearly 3,000 fine guest rooms available throughout the county.

Spokane's Riverpark Convention Center joins with the major downtown hotels/motels in making Spokane an ideal city for conventions, meetings, trade shows, and special events.

EDUCATION

Because of its geography and demographics, education has a vital role in the area. Both public and private, primary and secondary schools produce students who are consistently ranked in the upper range of national scholastic ratings; while the higher educational institutions offer graduate and undergraduate degrees and training in all aspects: from law to agriculture, or engineering to nursing.

The State of Washington ranks in the top ten for funding of public education in the United States.

community.

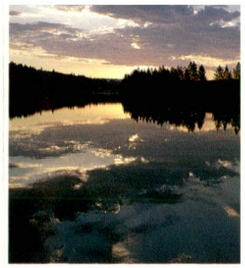
But perhaps the real beauty of this timely plan is in the barriers it transcends.

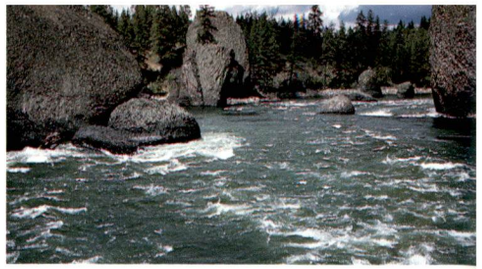
It will be shared by young and old.

It will beckon sightseers, commuters and athletes alike.

And the trail will confirm a bond of kinship among the people of Spokane, the Spokane Valley and Coeur d'Alene. Constructed along the banks of the river that links us, Centennial Trail will be a physical affirmation of the remarkable unity that we've established throughout

PAID FOR BY MOMENTUM '88





Spokane House, 1812
The first fur trading post in Washington and Oregon. For fourteen years, this site served as headquarters for the fur trade between the Rockies and the Cascades.

The Spokane River, through the ages.

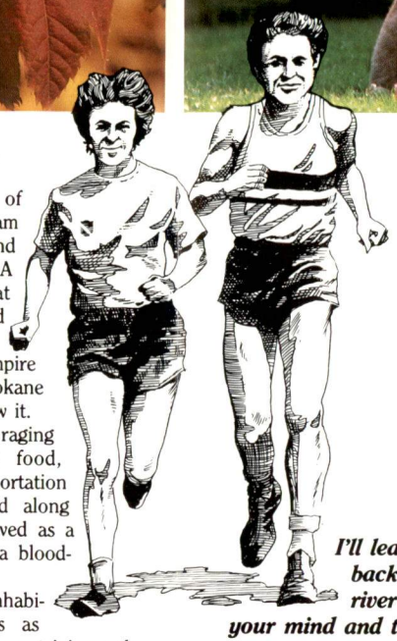
Many thousands of years ago, an ice dam broke across the Pend Oreille River Gorge. A spectacular flood, at times over a thousand feet deep, swept through the Inland Empire and created the Spokane River as we now know it.

More recently, this raging life-source provided food, protection and transportation to those who settled along its lush banks. It served as a spiritual temple and a blood-soaked battleground.

For these early inhabitants, the river was as significant as the sun. As sustaining as the earth, itself.

Today, while life's new complexities have surely relaxed this time-honored relationship, the Spokane River remains a vital symbol of our past, our present and our future.

It is our Fountain of Youth. And our Old Faithful.



I'll lead you back to the river. Clear your mind and test your soul.
I'll tune you for Bloomsday, Troika, The Coeur d'Alene Marathon.
Show you fiery sunsets, to help pass the time. And fuel your effort with the purest air.
I'll promise silence, except for birdsong. Calm, apart from rocks against water.
And I'll be there, as you pad along.
I am Centennial Trail.

The Spokane River is still cherished by those who settle along its banks.

It is our Nile.

The adventure begins. Again.

In 1986, an inspired handful of local citizens unveiled a plan for the river. A plan that would, again, fully endear us to her serenity and her turbulence.

The Spokane River Centennial Trail.

Conceived under the aegis of Washington State's 100th birthday celebration, this multi-purpose pathway will escort the river for as many as 39 miles in the state of Washington and 21 miles in the state of Idaho.

The Spokane River Centennial Trail will begin near the old Spokane House fur trading post, stretching southward through Riverside State Park. It will continue to thread its way along until both river and trail meet the mighty falls, in downtown Spokane's famous Riverfront Park. And from here, it will wind its way eastward, through the Spokane Valley to the state line.

At the border, Centennial Trail will meet with a similar path to be constructed by our neighbors in Kootenai County, Idaho. This adjoining trail will extend from the state line to Wolf Creek on Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Most of Centennial Trail will be twelve feet wide and paved. It will be supported by fourteen trailheads, each equipped with parking facilities, power, water, picnic tables, hitching posts, restrooms, directories and river access.

And, by design, it will call out to every member of the community.

If you are a runner, a walker or a bicycling enthusiast, you'll find Centennial Trail a welcome alternative to motor driven routes. For you, the trail will mean increased safety and decreased noise and pollution.

If you're a horse lover, bring your pal. Separate but adjacent gravel trails will be laid down for you.

During the winter months, Centennial Trail will also accommodate cross-country skiers. Bring your I'll lead you back to the river—our original and most beloved freeway.

I'll take you the way of trappers, explorers and the countless generations before them.
I'll give you gentle rapids to dance through. Serenity to bask in.
So paddle softly, and hold your head high.
For you are a Child of the Sun.
And I am Centennial Trail.

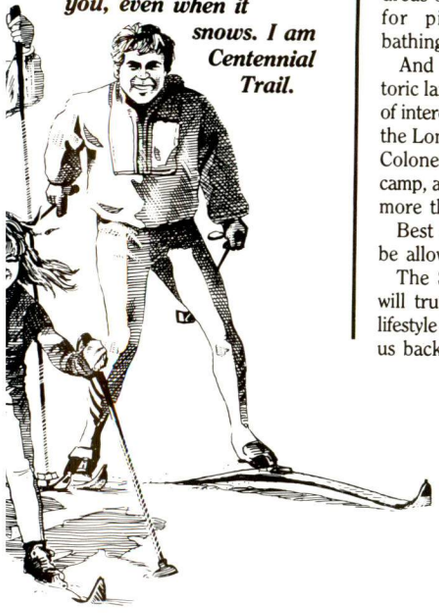
Yes, I'll be here for you, even when it snows. I am Centennial Trail.



camera—the trail will provide new and dazzling vistas, as the Spokane River region changes with the coming of snow.

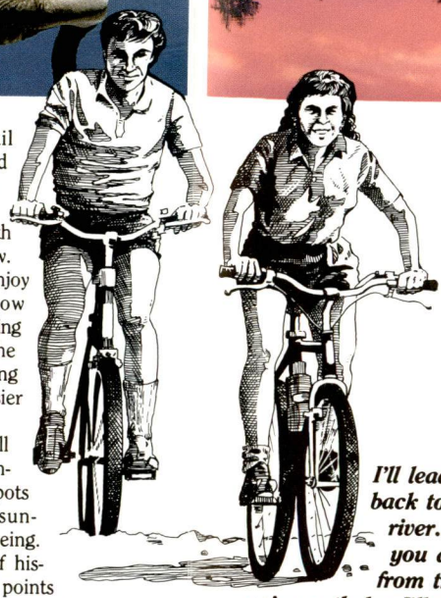
Maybe you'd enjoy canoeing. Or how about a summer rafting trip with friends? The trail will make loading and launching easier than ever.

Of course, you'll enjoy access to hundreds of beautiful spots for picnicking, sunbathing and sightseeing.

And a number of historic landmarks and points of interest will dot Centennial Trail. From the Long Lake petroglyphs to the site of Colonel Wright's brutal horse slaughter camp, a trip down the trail promises much more than recreation.

Best of all, no motorized vehicles will be allowed on Centennial Trail.

The Spokane River Centennial Trail will truly complement the adventurous lifestyle of the people it serves. It will lead us back to the river.



I'll lead you back to the river. Steer you away from traffic, noise, potholes. I'll whisper encouragement as you slice through the air. Tempt you further with pristine landscape. I'll usher you to work, school, nowhere in particular. And I'll honor your commitment to a healthier lifestyle. I am Centennial Trail.

A pathway to economic growth.

Its potential impact on our economy is perhaps one of the trail's most exciting contributions. As we enhance the quality of life in this region, we naturally enhance area tourism and industry.

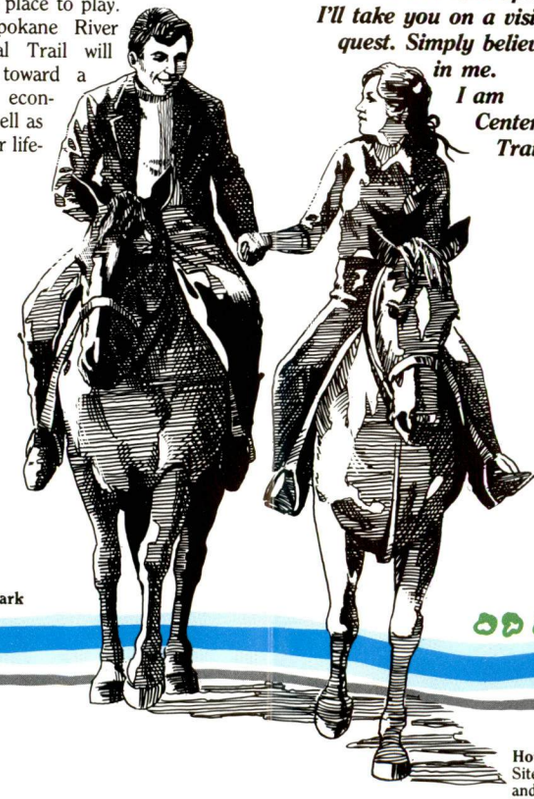
Year-around visitors will frequent the trail. Bearing canoes, ski gear, innertubes, fishing rods and picnic baskets, this new band of tourists will, in turn, introduce new money into our economy.

And, because quality of life is always a major consideration during company expansion or relocation, a project of this magnitude will likely attract new industry.

The Centennial Trail will help to identify us as an active, forward-thinking community. A rewarding place to work. And a spirited place to play.

The Spokane River Centennial Trail will lead us toward a healthier economy, as well as a healthier lifestyle.

I'll lead you back to the river. Bring your gentle friend. Together, the three of us will gallop through time. We'll ride with Peone, Seltice and Illim-Spokanee. I'll take you on a vision quest. Simply believe in me. I am Centennial Trail.



A lasting commitment.

If there is any single trait attributable to the people of the Inland Northwest, it is an insatiable love for the open air. No matter what the season, we demonstrate an almost child-like aversion to coming inside. The Spokane River Centennial Trail will help feed that universal hunger for the beauty and excitement of nature.

Centennial Trail promises to enrich our lives as it enhances and protects the cherished river that courses through our community.

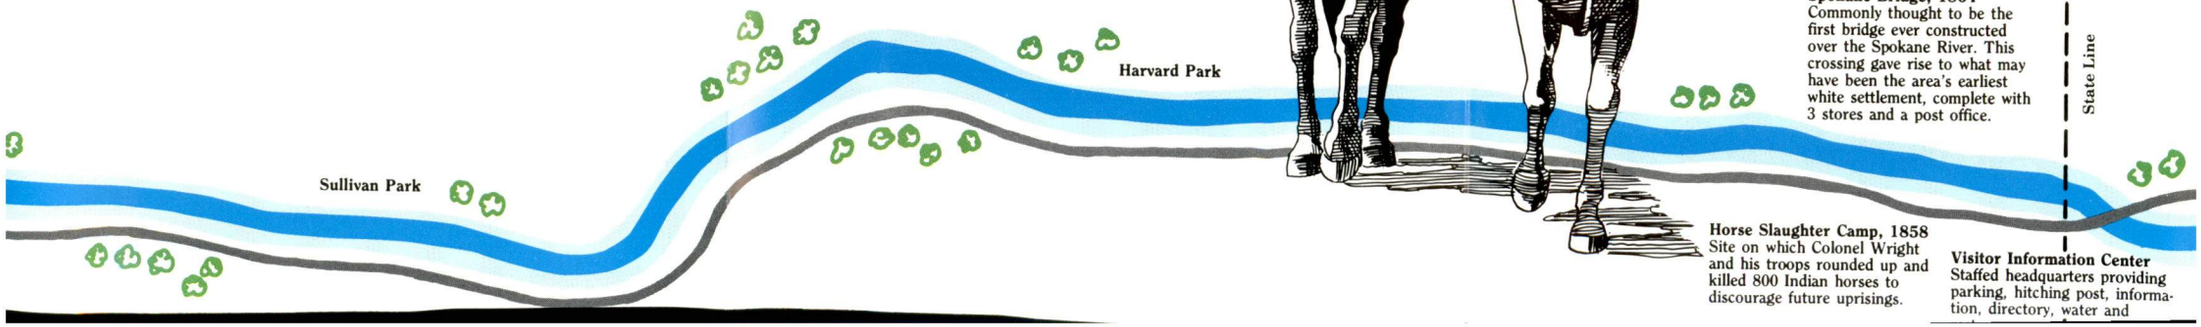
But perhaps the real beauty of this timely plan is in the barriers it transcends.

It will be shared by young and old.

It will beckon sightseers, commuters and athletes alike.

And the trail will confirm a bond of kinship among the people of Spokane, the Spokane Valley and Coeur d'Alene. Constructed along the banks of the river that links us, Centennial Trail will be a physical affirmation of the remarkable unity that we've established throughout the region.

Borne of pride and purpose, The Spokane River Centennial Trail will affirm our commitment to building a brighter future for ourselves and for generations to come.



Spokane Bridge, 1864
Commonly thought to be the first bridge ever constructed over the Spokane River. This crossing gave rise to what may have been the area's earliest white settlement, complete with 3 stores and a post office.

Horse Slaughter Camp, 1858
Site on which Colonel Wright and his troops rounded up and killed 800 Indian horses to discourage future uprisings.

Agriculture

Agriculture is this state's largest industry with a value of over $3 billion each year. Washington is among the top ten states in the production of 22 different commodities and is second only to California in terms of the number of crops grown. The diversity of Washington's agriculture is the direct result of wide variation in climate and economical irrigation in the Columbia River Basin. Major crops are: wheat, milk, cattle and calves, apples, potatoes, lentils, hops, spearmint oil, cherries, barley, pears, prunes, plums, apricots, asparagus, processed green peas, carrots and wine grapes.

Finance

Spokane has served as a financial center for this region for over 100 years. It's one of the few cities in the nation to have its own stock exchange.

A breakdown of the financial community shows:

- 8 Commercial banks
- 8 Savings and Loans
- 2 Mutual savings banks
- 164 Credit Agencies other than banks
- 36 Security and Commodity brokers
- 26 Holding & Investment companies

All combine to sustain Spokane's position as one of the largest financial centers in the northwest.

Health Care

The health care industry employs nearly 20,000 people in the area. Spokane doctors, nurses and hospitals have received national acclaim for their superior ratings in many fields, including open heart surgery, treatment of cancer and neo-natal care. Dental and medical care are among the best in the nation with all modern equipment and techniques available.

The six major hospitals provide care for patients from throughout the northwest. Nine specialized facilities provide care and treatment from mentally and physically handicapped, crippled chidren to alcoholism. There are also a wide variety of nursing homes.

It is a fact that Spokanites by nature tend to live longer than the national average.

The Spokane Regional Convention & Visitors Bureau works with all segments of the community to enhance tourism.

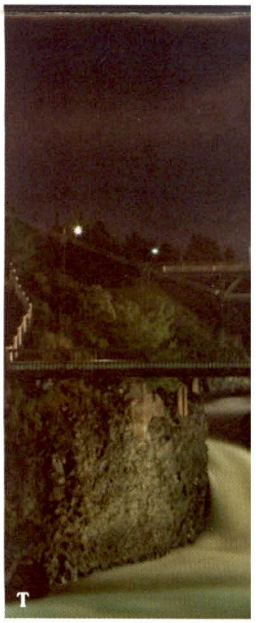
Libraries

The City maintains a downtown library and four area branches. The County has three suburban branches as well as libraries in Cheney, Deer Park, Medical Lake and Fairfield.

Religion

This is a city of deep religious strength and commitment. Residents attend religious services in over 250 places of worship. Religions represented include: Buddhist, Catholic, Greek Orthodox, Jewish, Mormon, Quaker and all Protestant sects.

Catholic and Protestant missionaries were among the first settlers to this region in the mid-1800's.



Profile

This land was first marveled at by the Lewis & Clark expedition of 1805. Since the city's incorporation in 1881, Spokane has been recognized as the metropolis of an immense territory fittingly designated the "Inland Empire," commonly referred to as the Inland Pacific Northwest. This 80,000 square mile, 53-county trade zone encompasses parts of Washington, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, British Columbia and Alberta, Canada. Over 1½ million people reside within this region of natural boundaries; they possess a purchasing power of over $8 billion.

From the rolling wheat fields to the mountain's majesty, from the mighty valley to the water's edge, this land is truly a great place to live, work and play. This is Spokane — The Lilac City!
