Andrea Phillips holds a photo of her husband, Capt. Richard Phillips, whose being held hostage by Somali pirates.

In the fine tradition of high-seas heroism, Capt. Richard Phillips traded his safety to save his crew from the buccaneers roaming his ship.

"He offered himself as the hostage," said his sister-in-law, Gina Coggio. "That is what he would do. It's just who he is and his response as a captain."

Though he was still held by pirates in a drifting lifeboat Thursday night, his wife, Andrea, said she was sure he'd come out okay.

"I have faith in my husband," she told WCAX-TV. "He's a smart man and I know he'll be all right."

Phillips, 53, is a former Boston cab driver who went to sea.

Growing up, he was an athlete and plenty tough, but modest about his successes on the field. "He was kind of like Gary Cooper," said childhood friend, Donald Carey.

Phillips had ideas of studying international law, but transferred from U. Mass to the Massachusetts Maritime Academy, graduating in 1979. Since then, he has traveled the world at the helm of multimillion-dollar commercial tankers and massive cargo ships.

1Peter 5:2-4 Shepherd the flock of God among you, exercising oversight not under compulsion, but voluntarily, according to the will of God; and not for sordid gain, but with eagerness; nor yet as lording it over those allotted to your charge, but proving to be examples to the flock. And when the Chief Shepherd appears, you will receive the unfading crown of glory.
