At ONE Month in the Womb:

You started communicating with your mom the moment you came to be, and by week two, you had already built your own placenta! Your first nerve cells formed within three weeks; at this point, you began to feel sensations. Your tiny heart tube was beating about 65 times per minute by the end of your fourth week of life!

Child Connection Activity:

Write a note or draw a picture to your parents telling them you are thankful for them.

Family Activity Ideas:

Your child was as small as a grain of rice at four weeks old. Explore rice together in various ways such as cooking, making sensory bottles, creating rice art, and talking about how even at this size, your child's life was important and already loved.
