At FIVE Months in the Womb:

You began to hear sounds and may have opened your eyes for the first time.

You were regularly sleeping and waking–possibly in response to what was happening outside the womb!

The main airways (bronchioles) in your lungs were developing, which helped you breath once you were born.

Child Connection Activity:

Build various structures (i.e. dominos, blocks, cups) and see what structures you can blow down with a straw!

Family Activity Ideas:

Play name that tune.

Create I spy sensory bottles.

Go for a walk and listen to all of the sounds; try to identify them!
