Sigma Alpha Mu, led by Mel Kline trounced Phi Delta Theta, 19-0 in the feature game of last night's intramural league contests. In other games played, Collendale A-9 defeated Washington Arms 19-6, Skytop M-2 swamped M-6 27-6, while Zeta Beta Tau and Alpha Epsilon Pi battled to a scoreless tie.

Psi Upsilon, Skytop M-5, M-8, M-10, Alfred E. Smith, Beta Theta Pi all won by forfeits.

Mel Kline proved to be a one-man offense as he ran and passed the Sammies to their convincing win over the Phi Delts. Early in the first period he intercepted a pass and ran 20 yards for a touchdown. In the second half Kline continued his fine play by tossing a 10-yard scoring pass to Goff Lebhar and ended the scoring with a 25-yard dash to paydirt in the final canto. Also outstanding, defensively, was Bunky Alderman of the Sammies.

Three men from M-6 valiantly attempted to hold a full team from M-2 but the running of Dick Comboy proved too much to handle. Dick easily evaded the undermanned group at every opportunity and racked up four TDs for the men from M-2. In the other game of the night Carl Matte's three scores were the downfall of Washington Arms 2 and 3.

Swim Notice

All men interested in trying out for the freshman and varsity swimming teams should report to Coach Ted Webster today after 1 p.m. at the Archbold swimming pool.

Carnival . . .

sponsored by Alpha Epsilon Tau and Zeta Beta Tau.

Hendricks chapel will sponsor an entertainment booth while food for the hearty will be obtainable at Tau Epsilon Phi's refreshment stand. This is the only place where money will be accepted since the other booths will only accept tickets.

THE DUCATS will be sold for 10 cents throughout campus by members of Lambda Sigma Sigma, junior women's honorary. The girls will walk through the campus in Bermuda shorts.

To help guests find the various booths, booth chairmen will be at the library steps all day with a layout of the midway. The general setup of the carnival will find booths on the main driveway from Bowne Hall to Archbold gymnasium and in the area between.

Some of the other attractions will be the "Hat Toss" of Sigma Delta Tau and Phi Epsilon Pi and Delta Tau Delta's fortune telling display. Rumors are that one of the Delts will turn clairvoyant for the day.

Anyone who is hungary and doesn't want to patronize the refreshment stand will be able to satisfy himself by trying to "Slay a Salami and Have a Slice" at Winchell hall's display.

FOR THE gamblers in the crowd there will be Alpha Delta Pi's "Take a Chance," Sims III's "Take a Gamble," Gamma Phi Beta's "Chuck a Luck," "The Wheel of Fortune" run by Pi Kappa Alpha and Zeta Tau Alpha and "Bingo" under the direction of Sigma Kappa and Sigma Chi.

Athletically inclined visitors should try their luck at Alpha Chi Omega's "Ring Toss", Shaw's "Croquet," Tri-O's "Golf Putting," Phi Sigma Delta's "Tricycle Race," Sigma Alpha Epsilon's "Tomato Throw," Phillip's cottage "Football Through the Loop" and Phi Gamma Delta and Pi Beta Phi's "Smash the Plate."

One recent addition to the festivities is the "Carmen Jones' booth. Murray Bernthal, the chairman of the Famous Artist series has announced that student tickets to Carmen Jones, to be performed here on Nov. 7, will be sold with a percentage of the income going to Campus Chest.

These are just a few of the many attractions to be presented though. Estimates are that a crowd nival going to the Campus Chest of 2,500 will be in attendance with all the profits from the carfund.

ROTC Will Send Messages To Servicemen At No Cost

Stan Kenton's Band Heads Jazz Festival

By DICK CASE

Colgate weekend will get a big off-campus christening on Friday evening, Nov. 13, with the local appearance of the "Festival of Modern American Jazz" at the War Memorial auditorium.

Featured will be the popular modern orchestra of Stan Kenton and his talented blonde vocalist, June Christy.

THE PROGRAM, sponsored by Syracuse Nationals shows, will also present the Erroll Garner trio, Dizzy Gillespie and his All Stars, Stan Getz and his orchestra, Slim Gaillard and his guitar interpretations, and Candido, termed "king of the bongo drums".

The jazz festival, currently on a long tour of major American cities, is one of the largest shows of its type ever to play before Syracuse music enthusiasts.

Four time winner of Down Beat magazine's poll as leader of the nation's number one band, Stan Kenton will be making his first local appearance since the "Biggest Show of 1952." In addition to the featured artists appearing on the bill, Kenton's group boasts 20 of the top jazz instrumentalists.

Notable among these are alto-saxophonist Lee Konitz, trumpeter Conte Candoli, drummer Stan Levey, trombonist Bill Russo and guitarist Sal Salvador.

JUNE CHRISTY returns as vocalist with the Kenton band after playing several years as a single. The lovely songstress was one of Stan's most popular attractions during her years with the band when June cut such Capitol records as "Tampico," "How High the Moon" and "Daddy."

Miss Christy and Kenton recently returned from a highly successful European tour.

Erroll Garner as well as Dizzy Gillespie and Stan Getz are well known in the world of jazz music for their many recordings and personal appearance tours. Gillespie is perhaps best remembered as an originator of the current "be-bop" craze.

Tickets for the "Festival of Modern American jazz" are now on sale at the Syracuse Nationals office in the State Tower Bldg.

STAN KENTON, master of modern music, will lead his orchestra as one of the highlights of a jazz festival set for November 13.

Would you like to send a message free of charge to any member of the Armed Forces in the United States or overseas? Well, here's your chance.

The Army ROTC radio station, part of the Military Affiliate Radio system, will perform this service for you. All you need do is fill out a form available inside the entrance to Machinery hall and the message will be sent.

THE STATION, K2WAT, has been moved from its former position in Machinery hall to the southwest corner of Archbold stadium. Major Milton Falk is director of the station with Sgt. I.C. Roy F. MacInnes in charge of receiving and transmitting.

In order that the system might be prepared in case of emergency, a continuous peacetime program is in effect. This station is one of the major stations in the Civilian Defense system throughout the nation.

Many civilian stations are members of MARS as well as military outfits all over the world. The local station operates on a specific schedule between 6-8:30 a.m. and 4:30-7 p.m. and is available at any time for extreme emergencies involving either military or civilian personnel.

The station is able to contact servicemen in all parts of the world except England and parts of Austria where national laws prohibit it and areas where military regulations do not allow direct communication.

HERE IS how the Military Affiliate Radio system works: messages are transmitted by Sgt. MacInnes to receiving stations throughout the world. Since there is such an abundance of ham setups, virtually any town in the U. S. can be reached and many overseas stations are in operation. From the receiving station the message is relayed by phone or letter to the desired receiver.

At present between 300 and 400 mesages are being handled each week.

Hill Registers 8,161, 20 Under Last Year; Frosh Class Larger

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

On-campus enrollment at Syracuse university this fall is 8,161, a drop of 20 students from last year, Registrar Keith J. Kennedy has announced.

Total registration figures at all 17 colleges and schools of the University is 12,817, as compared to 13,627 in fall, 1952, he said.

Once again the College of Liberal Arts is largest in the University with an enrollment of 2,625.

Other registration figures by colleges and schools are: graduate school, 1,359; fine arts, 1,070; education, 927; business administration, 765; engineering, 550; home economics, 369; nursing, 326; speech, 222; law, 202; library science, 61; journalism, 48; and public health nursing, 43.

There are 4,849 men and 3,312 on campus, according to the registrar.

In addition to these figures 925 students are enrolled at the two state units here—285 in the State university of New York College of Medicine and 640 in the College of Forestry.

How to Replace Lost ID Cards

Students who lost their ID cards or football tickets now have the opportunity to replace them. They are required to call Steven Reiss, 7-50037 or Elizabeth Brydon at 7-54191 or ext. 264, before noon Thursday Nov. 12.

It is imperative that students wishing to replace either ID cards or football tickets contact these people in time.

Juniors Will Sponsor 'Orange Breakfast Tradition Preserved

By PEARL BERNSTEIN

A Bill Orange breakfast, sponsored by the Junior class, will be held Colgate weekend to continue a tradition started last year.

The Junior assembly voted for the event, similar to the Strawberry breakfasts held Spring weekend, at its Wednesday meeting. Patricia Parker and Ann McKaig were chosen co-chairmen.

Juniors have also bought 1000 balloons, to be filled with helium and sold at the Colgate game. Chairman Dorothy Bronin will accept orders from fraternities, sororities and living centers. Balloons will also be sold before the game. The price is 10 cents apiece.

Treasurer Gregg Doherty announced yesterday that juniors had voted to have a national band instead of a local outfit at the annual Sno-Ball, sponsored by the class. Only about 350 class members expressed a preference.

Curt Ford was chosen speaker pro-tem of the assembly, Suzanne Woodrow is secretary and Veda Higger treasurer. James Baird and Patricia Bowen were elected to the steering committee. Jacquelyn Jarrett is editor of the class paper, with Dorothy Burman and Mary Todd associate editors.

At its next meeting the assembly will select three MSG assembly representatives, two of them independents and one a city student, either Greek or independent. Junior men interested in getting these posts are requested to attend the Nov. 11 meeting.

Keys to the Contest

GILBERT KATZ, DARWIN BOLDEN and MARVEN WALLEN, all of Orange Key, junior mens honorary, map plans for the annual Colgate queen contest. Katz and Wallen are co-chairmen of the weekend and are handling the queen competition. Bolden is Key president.

Seniors Will Sell Mums on Weekend

Colgate Flower Sale Set by Assembly

Plans for Colgate weekend mum sales and the senior show were discussed at Thursday's senior assembly meeting.

Students are needed to man the mum booths on Saturday of Colgate Weekend, according to Kay Horan and Alan Gefen, co-chairmen of the sales. Booths will be located at the Stadium pl. entrance to the field, the Corner Store, Men's gym, Sims, Machinery hall, and five other pertinent points on campus.

ALTHOUGH THE class has not been given exclusive permission, Gefen urged the assembly to inform their houses of the positions of the booths and to urge their houses to buy from these booths.

Jerry Leider, faculty adviser to Boar's Head, discussed plans for the senior show with the assembly. Boar's Head will put on the show with the senior class helping on the promotion. The class will receive 20 per cent on all tickets sold. Spring Weekend is the tentative date for the three-night show. Last year the Class of 1953 netted $600 in four nights.

However, a book is needed for the musical show. Boar's Head is offering a $100 prize to the student or students who can write a book and submit it by December 11. The music will be written by members of the drama department.

The assembly also held its election of officers. Alan Gefen was elected speaker pro tem. Gefen is a member of Tau Delta hi, Daily Orange junior sports editor, united students party, and has worked on committees for the Soph Hop and Sno-Ball.

Entries Due Today For Colgate Queen

By EMILE BEN JOSEPH
Daily Orange Feature Writer

Prospective Colgate queens have until this afternoon to get applications in to compete for the coveted title under the sponsorship of Orange Key, junior men's honorary.

Entry blanks printed in the Daily Orange should be mailed or brought to the co-chairmen, Gilbert Katz at Tau Delta Phi, 747 Comstock ave., or Marven Wallen, Phi Epsilon Pi, 423 Euclid ave. Applications should include name, home and local addresses, living center or sorority, class and phone number.

THE ENTRY fee is $1 from each contestant. There is no limit to the number of applications that will be accepted from any house, the co-chairmen said.

Eliminations will be held starting Nov. 9, with finals scheduled for the Daily Orange fans' forum Nov. 11. The queen and her court will be introduced to the campus at the pep rally the night before the Colgate-Syracuse game.

Her Majesty will reign over the weekend Nov. 13-15 and be special guest at the grid clash, taking part in the halftime ceremonies.

The fall football queen idea originated in 1945. Not until 1950, however, did the regents become queens of Colgate weekend as well.

Last year's queen was pretty Jane Gates of Sigma Kappa, now a junior. She went to the Orange Bowl on New Year's Day representing the beauties of Piety Hill.

Peck II Will Hold Hill Open House

Peck II, cooperative dorm for women, will hold an open house for all independent frosh women from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday at 114 Waverly ave.

Peck II is the only full cooperadorm on campus. The girls do all of their own cooking, cleaning and other tasks at the house. All independent freshmen women are urged to attend the open house.

Engineering School Slates Interviews

The College of Engineering has announced job interviews schedules for this week, according to Mrs. Ann O'Connell, placement secretary.

Monday, Nov. 2—Linde Air Products will interview all engineers with degrees.

Tuesday, Nov. 3—Corning Glass Works, will interview electrical, chemical, industrial and mechanical engineers and people with degrees in chemistry, physics and mathematics.

Wednesday, Nov. 4—Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co. will interview physicists and electrical and mecanical engineers.

Thursday, Nov. 5—Hughes Aircraft will interview physicists and electrical engineers while Hazelton Electronics will talk to the job-minded students.

Tau Delts Lead In Scholarship

Tau Delta Phi led Hill fraternities last year with an average of 1.7557, Prof. Theodore C. Denise, fraternity advisor announced Friday.

Phi Sigma Delta, leaders the year before, and Pi Kappa Alpha were next with averages of 1.7190 and 1.7188 respectively.

Average of all fraternity men on campus was 1,3726. The all men's average was tabulated at 1.3670.

Houses in fourth to tenth place were as follows:

Alpha Epsilon Pi, 1.6354; Acacia, 1.5941; Tau Epsilon Phi, 1.5852; Kappa Sigma, 1.5275; Sigma Alpha Mu, 1.5105; Beta Sigma Rho, 1.5005; and Sigma Pi, 1.4822.

WAA Will Hold Volleyball Drills

WAA volleyball manager Leila Tormes has scheduled the first volleyball practice session from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 4 in Gym B of the Women's building. All coeds are eligible for participation.

A team will be picked to represent Syracuse in a Nov. 27 sports day slated for William Smith College.

Volleyball will be offered every Wednesday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. and every Friday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. The volleyball schedule includes contests with student deans and members of the Physical Education department.

FOREIGN POLICY

The conference slated for March 5-7, will focus attention on various aspects of the United States' foreign policy. Panel discussions will be included in the agenda, as well as speeches by nationally-known authorities in the field of foreign affairs.

Freshman Elections Set For Wednesday

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Freshman elections will be held Wednesday.

After being postponed last week to provide time for a court decision in the Piety Hill Alliance illegal campaigning case, the elections will be conducted in booths probably located in Maxwell, HL, Sims dining hall and on the squad.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT civil service officials made tentative plans to hold the frosh voting Friday or today, following the trial. However, the Wednesday date was set after it was found that ballots could not be prepared in time for an earlier election.

United Students' party will have top position on the ballots. Placing was decided by lot.

Second position went to Tri-Orange party, which is the only other party supporting candidates in this election.

Presidential candidate on the USP ticket is Warren Kimble. Running for vice president is Arlene Plotkin. Daphne Burke and Donald Fulsom will vie for secretary and treasurer respectively.

RICHARD GREEN is the Tri-O candidate for president. His running mates are Elizabeth Bartlett for vice president, Barbara Solo-

Business Honorary Holds Initiation

Rushing for the honorary will be held soon for eligible and interested business administration students.

PHYSICS TALK

William Allen, graduate student in the physics department, will speak on electroluminescence at 4 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 5, in 106 Steele.

There will be a tea at ?:30 in the Library immediately preceding the meeting. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Big Decision

Only six days remain.

Fifteen hundred students must turn in their subscriptions for the Onondagan by Saturday or the book will not be published for 1954.

Should the latter occur, there is little possibility that a 1955 ON will appear, or a 1956 ON or an ON in any of the years following.

Once students have indicated they think there is no need for such a publication, either by refusing to purchase a copy, or more likely, by not making the effort to hand in the money, they will have doomed future issues.

Once the line of succession is broken, where can an experienced editor be found? Where can a staff be obtained who will understand the details of production?

Students, by their silence, will have spoken more than a thousand words. The Administration could only conclude that Syracusans do not believe a college this size should have a yearbook. (Should that happen the Hill would be one of the few Universities of its size to be without such an annual publication.)

Administration personnel could only believe that students do not think there are sufficient sports, activities and people on campus to justify its publication. They can only conclude that the students "don't care."

We can't believe that the student body doesn't care about the fate of the yearbook. We've heard too many students asking anxious questions about its future to think that.

But now it's up to the students to prove that the ON is necessary to the Syracuse campus. The fate of the 70-year tradition lies with every individual.

If sufficient money is not given to house ON reps, or handed in at the Pi Phi house or at the Hellbox, and there is no ON, every student on campus who has not given money can feel responsible—not only for this issue but for every lost ON of the future.

NOTES ON THE CAMPUS CARNIVAL

By HOMER

(Editor's note: after a date with some cold coffee we fled to the Hellbox for solace and found the following notes on the desk. There were two kewpie dolls and some ticket stubs on the floor but our man had vanished.)

Struggled out of bed at 11:30, got dressed . . . followed the racket to old oval. No oval, got up to my knees in mud; finally got to the carnival . . . met with a girl selling tickets, bought three: suddenly somebody gave me three darts . . . people yelling, threw . . . caught a cop, a barker and one ballon. Was pleased to know I had won, grabbed a cane and ran for the tricycle race . . . hopped in . . . cop caught bike behind me . . . raced like mad for five minutes . . would have got away if I hadn't run out of tickets . . . I slipped quietly away . . . heard a loudspeaker bellowing about a kissing booth, ran out, caught three sponges in mid-air, missed the fourth: drenched. Beat it to the booth ahead of my English prof . . . kissed the most beautiful blonde there . . . noticed prof marking comment in book . . . may get a D . . . ah, ah, blonde was his daughter . . . I slipped quietly away. Skirted around, found weighing machine . . . filled my pockets full of rocks and stepped up. Must have looked lumpy, guy frisked me, guessed and weighed. He missed, the fool, and I won another cane. Later noticed wallet missing, broke cane over barker's head. Plunked down two tickets for some punch . . . served in shot glasses, interesting. Had two glasses . . . felt dizzy, slipped quietly away. Came to with pounding sound in my head . . . found myself under Can-Can stage . . . crept out looking for Gertie's garter . . . found it . . . unfortunately it was on leg of English prof's wife . . . better leave the country. Found I had only three tickets left, bought some food at Chapel booth, angel food cake. Took a bite . . . felt like the devil, noticed devil food cake, ate it . . . dangest airplane ride I ever took. Mushed across the mud . . . made it to S. Crouse. Put three tickets on the bar and asked for rye and ginger . . . slipped quietly away.

Dog's Life

It's not every dog that is fortunate enough to attend Syracuse university. Those selected canines or rather "doggies of distinction," are getting their education in a unique way. It might go somthing as such:

7:00—first growl of the day
7:30—lick chops after breakfast at fraternity house
8:00—Oh that bering philosophy lecture, and why must I crouch on the floor?
8:55—wag tail or stretch before going to psyc. lab class. I'm getting to be quite the intellectualist!
10:00—English lit.—nice class. Wonder why my barking wasn't appreciated!
11:00—Ah; no class. Maybe a nice stroll across campus to visit a friend.
12:15—Now for some chow with the boys at the fraternity house.
1:15—Trig. class. I slept through most of the examples because it's still "Greek to me."
2:00—French class. It sounds good anyway.
4-5:30—A little football practice with the boys. What a well-rounded education!
5:30-6:30—Dinner. Since I have no formal attire, I eat on the floor in the kitchen. Oh well, food is food!
6:307-7:30—A little survey of the left-overs at Sims.
7:45-8:30—Boys at the house play scrabble, but it's too complicated for a canine; all I can spell is CAT.
8:30—A little TV for a while.
10:00—Last howl of the day, lick chops again, and perhaps stretch a little for a piece of candy or so. And then to bed!

I never do any homework; I just get along in college "doing what comes naturally." C'est la vie!!

ON THE SHELF

On the 'Wets' of College

By MARY THOMAS LUINS

Daily Orange Book Reviewer

DRINKING IN COLLEGE by Robert Strauss and Selden Bacon. New Haven: Yale University Press, 1953. University Bookstore: $4.00.

"Drinking is 'collegiate'!" Or is it? Are college students the tipplers American newspapers headline them to be, the guzzling kids painted in the age-old wild tales, the "Stein-lifters" Yale men sing of, or the potential alcoholics so gravely discussed in college communities everywhere?

Robert Straus of the Syracuse Medical school faculty and Selden Bacon have used a mass of current facts and statistics to refute these stereotypes. Their book, Drinking in College, is the result of a long-anticipated report of the survey made by Yale's University's Center of Alcohol Studies on the confessed drinking customs and attitudes of American college students.

Made over a period of two years, the survey took the form of a questionnaire, sent to 17,000 men and women students in 27 selected colleges and universities.

In perhaps the most objective manner the subject of alcohol can be treated in a non-fictional work, the two Yale authors present an interpretation of their findings.

How many collegians drink? In private, men's or women's nonsectarian colleges, 92% of the men and 89% of the women students are drinkers; in private, coed, nonsectarian schools, the same per cent of men, and 84% of women, use alcohol. For the private, coed, "dry" colleges, the book gives the percentages of 65 and 39 for men and women drinkers, respectively. Of students attending public colleges of all types, 80% of the men and 74% of the women know the incidence of drinking.

Who drinks? Here, three factors of allegiance and environment are thought to bear upon the drinking customs of American students. According to religious affiliation, 94% of college users were of the Jewish faith; 90% of the Catholic; 77% of the Protestant and only 54% were of the Mormon faith. Classification into ethnic groups revealed that the Russian, Italian, German and Scandinavian men students polled the highest percentage of college drinkers, while the British, the American Negro and the American white students polled the lowest. According to the authors' third factor of influence, both men and women students of families with incomes under $2,500 were the lowest percentage of college drinkers and both sexes whose families have incomes of $10,000 and over were the highest. Realizing that these statistics alone lead to faulty interpretations, the authors devote considerable space to explaining their significance.

What and how much do college students drink' "The proportion of students who drink heavily and frequently is very small," and of these users, most prefer beer to wine and spirits.

Why do college students drink? Because college students are "rational beings," they also endeavor to give reasons for the customs they practice. Those reasons most frequently given were: "To be gay;" "Because of enjoyment of taste;" "To comply with custom" (especially given by women); "To relieve fatigue or tension;" "To get high; and "To get along better on dates."

The average adult in every phase of American society has some opinion to contribute on the drinking problem in the nation's colleges; but the most important opinion is that of the students themselves. Most students admitted being more sympathetic than scornful of the heavy college drinker (the potential alcoholic), but expressed either indifference or approval of the "occasional" user. The degree to which these students approved or disapproved of drinking, however, depended greatly upon their own degree of abstinence.

Although this review has previously expressed the objectivity characteristic of Drinking in College, it must also express the sympathetic attitude toward colleges which is fairly obvious throughout the book's interpretations. The fact that both authors are not only college professors themselves, but are also scholars in the fields of psychology and sociology and frequent associates of the students they teach, is greatly responsible for the genuine understanding of students and their problems which they show. College students are of that age which is likely to present "drinking problems" in any phase of the society, for it is at this age that such individual problems and conflicts are known. On the other hand, the authors explain, it is also this part of the American society which is more discussed, and to which more peculiarities are ascribed than any other.

Despite the weaknesses of its solution to the college drinking problem and in spite of nationwide skepticism toward the Yale survey, Drinking in College, through its interpretation of facts, makes a definite contribution to college drinking and its related problems.

Like may others, this book exploints one of the greatest fields of research; but unlike others, it is research designed for public reading. If either absence of alcohol or temperance with alcohol is desired. This is the book that should be read.

AT THE FLICKERS

ON 'LUTHER': ALL WORDS & NO PLAY

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

"Martin Luther" is a film so superbly mounted, elegantly staged, and well acted that it commands and rightfully deserves close scutiny. It is unfortunate that under such scrutiny it reveals itself a mass of exquisite drapery employed to conceal a rather faulty framework. It must be stated that "Martin Luther" is all mounting and very little else.

To condemn a picture of such lofty purpose would seem inhospitable, but this film has been conceived with all the explicitness, characteristic of its ethereal region. It is a great, glittering generality in which the characters toss around such phrases as "absolute values," "dictates of conscience," "truth and honor" and "righteousness and piety", as if they were names of rather well-known breakfast foods. Their meaning is not so clear and their scriptwriter did not feel put upon to explain what his characters meant by them. The result is that the script reads like a politician's creed: lofty but empty.

In dealing with a subject as important as the man who caused one of the world's great religious ideological battles, several methods of presentation could have been employed.

Martin Luther emerges a thoroughly explored doctrinaire but an unthoroughly explored human being. The fact that the characters are either all black or white, reduces the thing to a "hiss the villain—halt the hero" fracas. And that period of history was not. The period has been oversimplified.

Consequently, it is a film of important subject matter, but a faulty presentation of this subject matter. In the end the scenery, the actors and the staging can not compensate for the film's unsuccessful delineation of Luther, but they make for a film of great physical beauty.

Campus Reflections: Meyers Bldg. to New Quad

From these humble beginnings . . .

In the past few weeks it has become a daily event for us to walk across the new quad and admire nature's autumnal loveliness. Yesterday as we reflected on all the beauty around us, we noticed a small group of people gathered around Machinery hall.

The new engineering building is under construction and even the hill has its share of sidewalk superintendents. As we watched the newest addition to Syracuse's campus going up, we couldn't help but wonder where it all started.

As always when we want that sort of information, we called on Lester Wells, who has an office in the library and is sort of Syracuse's unofficial historian.

It seems that back in grandpa's day when four years of Greek and Latin were required for admission, and tuition was twenty dollars a term (half price if your father was a minister), classes were held in a building that contained a fruit market and a vaudeville emporium.

The corner of E. Genesee and Montgomery is now occupied by a drive-in bank and a parking lot, but in 1817 classes started there and a university was born in Syracuse.

Freshmen, after passing numerous entrance examinations in the classics and religion were told to report to the chapel room "with tablet and pen." There were no decisions to make at registration. The required courses for all freshman included, Latin Grammar, Latin Composition, Livy, Greek Grammar, Homer's Iliad, History of Greece and Algebra.

The juniors and seniors took such subjects as Metaphysics, Evidences of Christianity, Moral Philosophy, and Acoustics and optics. There were weekly rhetorical exercises for all students throughout the year.

The catalog issued by the school stated that all students will select their own boarding places. "The price for room and board should not exceed four dollars a week and any price over this should be reported to school officials immediately."

The new Chancellor, Mr. Winchell, issued his first directive, the second day of classes. Starting the following June all diplomas would be in English instead of the conventional Latin.

It was while the school was in this location that the official colors were changed to pink and blue. The sun in all its orange variations was setting behind the Chapel by now, and as we sat in the library and gazed out the window at the mixture of solitude and progress on the quad, we knew now why the colors had been changed.

Will Shakespeare And 'Crazy Jive'

By BOP

Breathes there a man with so square a head that never once to himself he has said, If Willy Shakespeare were alive, would he dig this crazy jive? Or would he refuse to doff his topper and curse the birth of this modern bopper?

First Witch: When shall this trio play again . . . in thunder, lightning or Memory Lane? Second Witch: When the hurlyburly's done, then we'll really have some fun. Third Witch: If perhaps we'd like to dance, I'll bring some platters by Norman Granz.

All: Paddock calls: dig me Max. Blow us a tune on your tenor sax.

Scene: Macbeth's place.

Lady Macbeth: How now. What's the jive? Did you bring a new needle for the "45"? Macbeth: Sure, lady, I never forget. Say, you heard that new side of Illinois Jacquet? Lady: Yeah, dad, that's the most but where is Duncan, our royal hast?

Macbeth: Oh, he's in the courtyard watching TV. What evil deed would you have of me? Lady: I think it's time that Duncan was gone. We'll draw his blood as he sleeps at dawn. Macbeth: Say, I'm with you . . . on with the show, false face must hide what false heart doth know.

Scene: Still Macbeth's place.

Banquo: Alas, alas, our master's had it. He just cut out, this is his obit. Lady: Flip me, boy, is all this true? I can't believe he really blew. Banquo: Hod-bodkins, he's swung, he's bopped but now his pulse has finally stopped.

Lady: Who will get his LP's?

LETTERARY COMMENT

Error on Oriental Name

The Editor
Daily Orange

The main headline of the DO for Wednesday, October 29, carried a glaring error. The ambassador from Korea is Dr. Yang. Chang corresponds to the middle name. It is as though a Korean paper announced "Dr. Foster, Secretary of State of the United States of American will speak."

For a University paper to fail to check the name of so important a person as the Korean ambassador is almost inexcusable.

I don't know what can be done now. I do know that orientals, or near orientals like myself, laugh at "the ignorant American students," as one put it to me. A few are insulted.

As a new student in journalism, I have already learned that one of the most important things in news is to get names and identifications correct.

Sincerely yours,
Edith W. Simester

THE ONONDAGAN has been published at Syracuse university since 1883. Through its years of publication, the format and size have changed radically. 1954

THIS YEAR, HOWEVER, students may not have a yearbook. Due to the withdrawal of the University subsidy, the annual may not be published. Six days remain for pledges to keep the ON.

Pledges From All Classes Needed for Annual; Only Six Days Until Deadline to Purchase ON

STAFF MEMBERS, shown working in the Onondagan office in Yates Castle, have to move their headquarters to 121 College pl. since the Castle is being destroyed. The yearbook occupied several rooms in the front of the Castle, looking out onto Irving ave. and the College of Medicine. Space is being given in spite of the doubt that there will be an Onondagan this year.

TOM BECKETT will become an editor without a yearbook to edit, if the students do not back the 70-year-old publication.

CHARLENE VELON, business manager, has charge of the drive for student support and is the person to contact.

Story by JOY YUNKER

The fate of the Onondagan is still undecided.

The decision is in the hands of the students and they must make their answer before Nov. 7. The question is not will there be an ON, but do the students want a yearbook? If they do, the 1954 Onondagan will be published.

Charlene Velon, business manager of the ON, told the Daily Orange that only 34 out of 72 representatives attended the ON house reps meeting last Tuesday. At this time subscription blanks were distributed and the yearbook discussed.

All money and subscriptions must be turned in by 12 noon Saturday to Miss Velon at the Pi Beta Phi house, Beverly Barr at the Chi Omega house, or Mary Arnold, publications office in the Hellbox. All reps are asked to report to one of these people twice before Nov. 7.

The yearbook first appeared on the Hill 71 years ago as the "Syracusan" published by the Delta Kappa Epsilon, Zeta Psi, and Psi Upsilon fraternities. Thus the book was published until 1883 when the junior class members of DKE and Psi U continued it as a fraternity publication known as the "Onondagan."

The first "Onondagan" bore the words: "Elected by our tribe we have built and filled this wigwam. 'Onondagan' we shall call it in honor of the tribe and beautiful valley in which we dwell."

In 1889 the junior class at large took over the reins of the publication from the fraternities. The control remained with the juniors until it became an all-University yearbook edited by a senior executive staff with associated editors from the junior class.

The first two years the annual appeared, there were no pictures, until 1885, when a few cartoons, reproduced by steel engraving were used.

Photographs appeared in the ON in 1887 and 1903 saw the first use of color. In that year the margins of the book were done in orange.

The covers and styles of the first yearbooks varied with the individual taste of the early staffs, until 1905 when the Indian on horseback, reproduced on top of the page, appeared. He remained a fixture of the ON until 1928, when the staff, daringly enough, broke from the tradition.

Succeeding Onondagans fluctuated but little in size and general style. The war produced a series of smaller ONs, and influenced the staff to use military motifs and patriotic slogans.

One of the greatest changes in the ON came in the 1953 issue. This book, chiefly composed of pictures was fashioned after Life magazine's pictorial summary of world war 2 and enlarged to the page size of Life.

The 1953 yearbook, which was promised for Spring weekend, has not reached the students yet. Miss Velon explained that the delay in publishing was caused when the printers went out on strike. The printer has promised that the books will be delivered during the first or second week in November.

The 1954 Onondagan, if published, will be back to the usual size. The editors found that the larger book while attractive, is too cumbersome to be practical.

In past years, the ON staffs have used various devices to stimulate interest in the yearbook, and liven up the pages. Notable among

m that point on, seniors were billed for the Onondagan when ceived their diploma bill. The assured revenue from approxi-2,000 seniors every year was enough to finance the annual. nal student subscriptions added to the available money and the production of a bigger and more elaborate yearbook.

ny seniors since then, however, were not pleasd with the arent and disliked being forced to pay for a yearbook they did nt. Some, who wanted the annual, objected on ethical grounds. mber of complaints became so numerous that the Administrdecided this fall to drop the subsidy program and again rely lent subscriptions.

uring registration, the seniors were polled to determine their rt. Approximately 500 of the 1,200 seniors replied. The Daily e then conducted another survey which brought 600 pledges. rd poll of women's living centers was taken. Approximately Syracusans pledged support of the book in the three surveys.

e plight of the Onondagan was brought before the board of tions meeting Oct. 21. At this meeting it was decided that the ok should conduct a drive to obtain 1,500 subscriptions. A was passed that if the drive were not successful, the 1954 ould not be published.

The book has been promised for sometime in November. A mailing system will be set up to distribute annuals to last year's seniors at their last known home addresses.

FROM THIS STAGE to the finished product is a chain of effort which involves months of planning, work and a sudden emergencies. The Onondagan staff spends several months arranging for the hundreds of pictures which go into the annual, and then work several months more placing the photographs in pleasing order on the pages of the yearook and arranging for printing and distribution.

Tennis Team Sweeps Summer Tourneys

McGrath Leads Orange Netmen In Court Tour

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

While the average Syracusan was enjoying his summer vacation, the Syracuse tennis team was busy sweeping the summer tournament circuit in Central New York.

The Orange netmen captured the Men's singles, double's and mixed doubles titles in the Syracuse city Championships, as well as both Singles and Doubles in the Central New York State Championships.

Men singles and doubles crowns were also taken in the Genessee Valley Invitational Tournament at Rochester, the Herkimer County Championship and Yahundasis Invitational Tournament at Utica. In addition to these, Syracuse won the doubles title in the Rocky Point Invitational tournament.

IN THE SYRACUSE City Championships, Bob Marquardt won the Singles championship and then teamed up with John Kerr to take the Doubles title. The mixed doubles were won by Marquardt and Francis Harback.

Hal McGrath, Jr., who formerly coached the Orange racquetmen, won the singles Championship and then teamed up with John Sim to take the double's honor in the Central New York State tournament.

Last year, for the second straight season, the netmen compiled a 3-3 record. Union, Duquesne and Sampson were among the Orange's victims while Penn State, Cornell and Colgate were victors over the Hillmen.

IN LAST SUMMER'S National Intercollegiate championships, Hal McGrath won his first three matches before finally bowing to Alan Wickersham of Tulane. Wickersham was the doubles partner of Ham Richardson, intercollegiate champion of 1953.

The other Orange entree in the tournament, Bob Marquardt, advanced into the second round with a bye before being eliminated from the tournament.

Frank O'Brien took over the coaching reins in 1953. Previously, McGrath was acting coach as well as captain of the netmen. O'Brien, who teaches advertising in the School of Jounralism, is the second faculty member to be coach of a varsity team. Dr. Burtt of the chemistry department, who has been fencing mentor since 1949, is the other scholar turned coach.

Although fall is going to make way soon for winter, Coach O'Brien hopes to get in at least a few practice sessions before the Thanksgiving vacations. By doing this, he hopes to get a line on his boys in order to be better able to plan for the campaign.

The Piety racquetmen do most of their practicing on the Skytop courts. In case of inclement weather, however, they practice on the squash courts in the men's gymnasium.

AXEL SPOTS—Coach O'Brien is still looking for more frosh and upperclass tennis players. Those who would like to join the team are urged to leave a card with their name, address and telephone number in the Athletic office of Archbold gymnasium. Otherwise, they should send a card with the same information to the Athletic office in care of Coach O'Brien.

Orange, Big Red Mark Old Rivalry

By HANK GREENWALD

When the Orange and the Big Red of Cornell clash at Ithaca Saturday, it will mark the 31st renewal of a gridiron series that dates back to 1891. Cornell leads the series, 22 games to eight.

The rivalry, which saw the Red capture the first 11 contests by shutouts, was temporarily halted after the 1900 contest. It was resumed in 1933 and Syracuse celebrated its arrival with a 14-7 win.

IT WAS UNDER the guidance of former Hill great Vic Hanson that the Orangemen found their winning ways against Cornell. During Hanson's reign, Syracuse captured three of the four battles between the two schools.

As is the case in many outstanding rivalries, this series has been marked by upsets. It was in 1937 that a previously undefeated crew from Ithaca was humbled for the first time that season. Another Orange all-time great, Marty Glickman, directed Syracuse to a 14-6 win.

The following year, under Coach Ossie Solem, who replaced Hanson after the 1936 season, the Saltines brought home a thrilling 19-17 win from Ithaca. Will Sidat-Singh accounted for all three Orange tallies as he hurled three touchdown passes.

The pre-war era, which produced such Cornell greats as Brud Holland, Hal McCollough, and George Peck, saw the Big Red finish on top in 1939-40-41. It was Carl Snavely who guided the destinies of these victorious outfits.

AS THE WAR ended, Syracuse got a look at more of Cornell's football flashes. Men like Bob Dean, Hillary Chollet, Jeff Fleishmen and Stu Merz became yearly nuisiances to the Orange gridiron forces.

After Clarence (Biggie) Munn's charges of 1946 upset the Cornellians, 14-7, Syracuse proceeded to drop the next five games. It was not until 1952 that the bowl-bound express of Ben Schwartzwalder could halt the growing Cornell win streak. This time the victory was a sweet one, as Bob Leberman and Ray Perkins collected two touchdowns each and the home forces walked off with a 26-6 decision.

Thus Leberman and Perkins add their names to a list which includes such heroes as Phil Allen, Babe Ruth, Tommy Maines, Bunky Morris, Joe Watt, Sliver Slovinsky and Johnny Mandarino. Through their gridiron efforts, these men have helped to write Cornell-Syracuse football history.

One of the outstanding features of these games is the fact that no contest has ever ended in a tie; all 30 struggles have reached a decision. Two extremes in the series are the Cornell 68-0 win in 1891 and the Syracuse 26-6 rout of last year. The initial ball game resulted in Cornell's most lopsided win, while last year's Orange victory was likewise its biggest margin.

AND SO IT is that this series has reached its 31st game. What outstanding memories will this contest leave? This is something even the experts cannot foretell. Chances are, however, that this battle will take its place next to the other 30, which combine to make this series one of the finest in the country.

Fencers Continue Practice Sessions

Coach Ben Burtt sent his swordsmen through another week of rough practice sessions in an effort to get his foilers into condition early for the long fall season which starts soon after the Thanksgiving vacation.

Abe Gillman, Willard Schop, and Ed Wang figure to fight it out for the No. 2 and No. 3 saber positions, with returning veteran Al Peck assured of the No. 1 spot.

In epee, Capt. John Goldstein will retain the No. 1 slot. The other positions will not be settled for some time to come.

Foil is the section in which no starting positions have yet been awarded. Jerry Marcullo appears in the lead for a starting spot but four or five other foilers are also in the running.

Andreas in 16th Year As Athletic Director

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Since 1924 Lewis P. Andreas has served Syracuse university's athletic department in some capacity. For the past sixteen years he has been athletic director on the Hill.

Lew attended the University of Illinois prior to world war one and played freshman basketball there. After the war broke out he left to become an ambulance driver in the service of his country.

WHILE STATIONED at Camp Crane, Allentown, Pa., he played with the championship service team which won 21 straight games. Later he was sent overseas and saw service in France.

Upon discharge, he came to Syracuse to finish his collegiate career. He played end on the football team and saw service as a catcher on the baseball nine before graduation in 1921. He was fortunate to be able to play on some of Syracuse's greatest teams in those sports.

The following three years found him teaching and coaching at Norwich, N. Y., high school. In 1924, he joined the Hill staff as an instructor in the department of physical education.

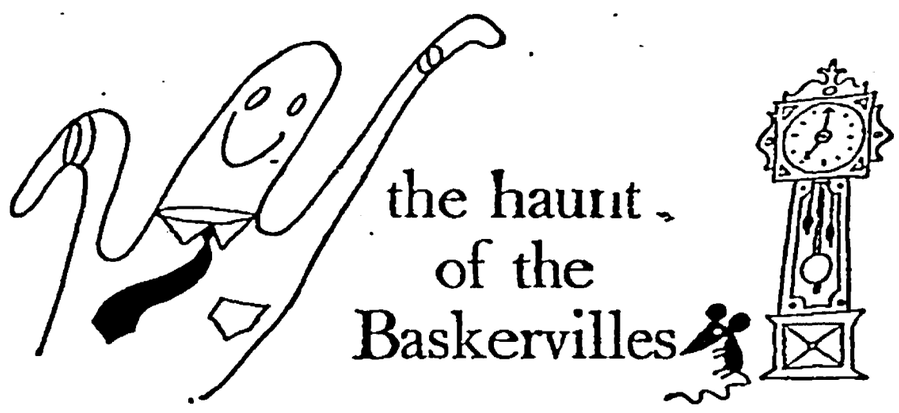
He also assumed the duties of head basketball mentor. In 1927, he was handed the reigns of the football team and handled that task, in addition to directing the hoop squad, for the following three years. In 1930, the administration decided that each major sport should have a separate coach and, thus, appointed Vic Hanson to the head football coaching post.

WHILE ANDREAS directed the Orange gridders, his teams compiled a record of fifteen wins, ten losses and three ties. This certainly was a splendid record, in view of his having to spend much of his time with the Piety basketeers in the latter portion of the grid season.

Andreas assumed the position of athletic director in 1937 and has held it ever since. He retired as head basketball coach in 1950 after several successful campaigns on the Hill. His hoop fives won a total of 355 contests, as compared with only 133 defeats during the 26 year span.

In 1948, a great honor was bestowed upon Lew. He was named to the Helms Collegiate Basketball Hall of Fame for his outstanding contribution to the betterment of the sport.

LEW ANDREAS, former hoop mentor and now athletic director of Syracuse university. Andreas was also head football coach in his long association with Syracuse.



ONCE there was a ghost named Leroy, who lived in a haunted cottage near a large Eastern university. Every Friday night, at exactly seven o'clock, he'd slide under the door of Baskerville Hall (the main dorm), and give the students all the answers to next week's quizzes.

This was quite a set up. No studying, no cramming . . . and straight A's all term long. But then, one Friday, the hour came and went. No Leroy! And the following week, all the Baskerville Boys got an F on every quiz!

The Friday after that, all of Baskerville Hall waited . . . and waited. But still no Leroy! In high dudgeon, they set out to find him. Creeping into Leroy's haunted cottage . . . the Baskerville Boys found him moaning and groaning. "What's the matter, Leroy?" they asked.

Leroy wiped a ghostly tear from his ghostly eye. "The weather's so hot, every time I put on a shirt the collar curls and wilts. I haven't been out for two weeks!"

In high glee, the Baskerville Boys hurried to the local Van Heusen dealer and bought a dozen Van Heusen Century Shirts with the revolutionary soft collar that won't wrinkle ever. Regular collars, spread collars. $3.95 for whites, $4.95 for colors. "A very good investment," they thought.

Leroy was delighted. He rewarded the boys with all the answers to the following week's quizzes. Two months later, all the boys from Baskerville Hall had flunked out. Leroy's good-looking Van Heusen Century Shirts made him so popular with the co-eds, that he didn't have time for quizzes or answers.

Five New Teams on Hoop Card

Fleck, Leberman Elected Permanent Grid Co-Captains

Seniors Bob Fleck and Bob Leberman, who were elected co-captains for the Holy Cross game, will continue in that capacity for the remainder of the football season. This was determined after the election Thursday night. Previously the players had been electing separate co-captains for every game.

The election of Fleck and Leberman as permanent captains is a tribute to their fine play all season. Fleck had a sensational game out in Illinois and Leberman, always cited for his offensive play, proved to be one of the best defensive players on the field against the Illini.

Fleck collected many honors last year, the most important being named all-American tackle by International News Service. Fleck also made the all-East team and several all-opponent teams last year.

Orange basketball fans will have an attractive hoop schedule paraded before them this winter as Marc Guley's basketeers face 12 opponents in the Archbold gym and eight on the road.

The Syracuse coach has issued a call for all varsity basketball aspirants to report to him today at 3 p.m. in the Archbold gym. Initial practice for the varsity squad will be held this afternoon.

FIVE NEW TEAMS, Yale, Princeton, Pittsburgh, Ithaca and NYU, will be met here in Syracuse. They replace Quantico Marines, Temple, Holy Cross, West Virginia and St. John's from the 1952 schedule. The Orangemen clash with Cornell, Colgate, Penn State, Canisius and Niagara in a home and home series.

One of the highlights of the coming season is expected to be the game with New York university on December 12 in Syracuse's annual Madison Square Garden visit. Last year, the Pietymen dropped an overtime thriller to St. John's in one of New York city's top collegiate games.

Opening against Ithaca on the last Saturday in November, the Guleymen will attempt to better their disappointing 7-win, 13-loss record of last year. The '52 campaign was the first below .500 season for Guley.

Returnees from last year's team include Capt Mel Besdin, who played in the Jewish Olympic Games this summer, and Pat Stark who missed the first half of last season due to the Orange Bowl. Others that are back are scrappy Billy Nelson, Ron Kilpatrick, Skip Thaw, and Dave Klein.

FROM '52's excellent frosh team which dropped only a one-point loss to Colgate, Guley will be able to pick from such stalwarts as Gus Castellini, Manny (Boob) Breland, Walt Scott and Ron Gillespie.

All home games will begin at 8:45 p.m. with the freshman battle about an hour earlier.

GUS COACHES SAILORS

Gus Eriksen, bettter known as the crew coach, is also coaching the sailing team in the capacity of Yacht Club faculty advisor. Eriksen, an ardent sailing enthusiast, purchased a sloop of his own in Norway last year when he attended the Olympic Games.

Hoop Schedule

Nov. 28, Ithaca;

Dec. 5, Canisius at Buffalo Memorial auditorium; 9, Sampson Air Force base; 12, New York university at Madison Square garden; 16, at Niagara; 19, Yale; 30, at Cornell; 31, Princeton;

Jan. 2, at Rochester; 6, at Penn State; 9, Pittsburgh; 13, Cornell; 16, Fordham;

Feb. 2, Niagara; 6, Army at West Point; 10, Pennsylvania; 13, at Colgate; 17, Canisius; 20, Penn State, 27, Colgate.

Orange Harriers Conquer Army

Bouncing back from their upset loss to Cornell last Saturday, Bob Grieve's cross country team defeated Army, 23-32 Friday at West Point.

Ray Osterhout continued his unbeaten ways with another first while Stu Parker placed third and Ray Alger notched fourth. Cory topped the losers with his second place finish.

The Orange frosh were set back by the Plebes 19-44.

Sigma Chi Clinches Intra Flight Title With Friday Win

By BILL DAY

Sigma Chi, led by the passing attack of Al Harding, clinched their flag with a 12-0 win over Phi Epsilon Pi Friday night, and Delta Tau Delta lost to Phi Kappa Tau 18-0.

Theta Chi downed Pi Alpha Chi to the tune of 18-6 behind the aerial attack of Moller to Gozigian, which was good for two tallies and an end run by Al Wehrsdorfer.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon squeaked by Delta Upsilon 13-12 on the strength of Ed Dalton's conversion run, and a pair of long romps by John Kaup and Otto Webber.

Alpha Tau Omega was snowed under by Phi Kappa Psi's attacking team of Wurstill and Shaughnessy.

Tau Delta Phi was blanked by Omega Pi Alpha 7-0 on Rich Slingerland's 30 yard romp.

Pi Lambda Phi also failed to score as they were overrun by Psi Upsilon, 20-0.

Lambda Chi Alpha failed to put in an appearance and forfeited to Kappa Sigma.

Korean Emissary Speaks

By ROS BROWNSTEIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Republic of Korea will again defend their rights if necessary by driving back the aggressor not by a world war, but by winning a limited and restricted war, Dr. You Chan Yang, Korean ambassador said in the opening address to the Far Eastern conference Friday evening.

Dr. Yang, ambassador since 1951, emphasized that the free world is becoming dangerously divided and that the whole world is in a state of uncertainty.

"HOPEFUL OPTIMISM, not fear, must be our guide," stressed Dr. Yang.

Recently returning from a trip to Korea, Dr. Yang commented on the conditions there now. He said that there are one million Chinese Communists in occupation of the northern half of his country. Russia has been shipping crated airplanes from the north, which is Manchuria and Russia. "The Communists have given us a semi-explanation after their fashion by saying that these will be used for commercial purposes, but we all know that the chief commercial purposes of the Communists are to corrupt and, in failing that, to kill," added the speaker.

After contrasting the terroristic control prevalent in Russia to the opportunistic and free life in America, Dr. Yang said that the Koreans too, want the opportunity to "work their land, to build up their industries, to educate their children and to reunify their ancient land."

They do not want terror, secret police and whispering when they meet friends, he added.

IN SPEAKING of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, India's prime minister, the far eastern representative said "Mr. Nehru is trying to evolve a new Hindu rope trick. He is attempting to walk a tight rope and be nice to the Communists on one side and appear equally nice to the free world on the other side. I do not go for prediction, but you can have one guess as to what I personally think of the outcome of this 'aerial tiptoeing.'"

According to Dr. Yang India has not lived up to its moral responsibility towards an unfortunately weak Asiatic country . . . . Korea. This obligation, which is stated in the Indian Declaration of Independence, is not being carried out because Indian troops in Korea are killing Koreans and Chinese.

In closing the Korean ambassador urged "that we look at the facts of the world situation as they really are, and that we deal with these facts in the same spirit of resolution with which democracy, only 200 years ago, first established itself among men."

Dr. Yang Describes ROK Determination

Koreans Will Fight Alone if Necessary

By AL BARTKEVICIUS

"If the Communists have not proven sincere in trying to bring about peace, our only alternative is to shoot again."

The spirit and determination of the Korean people and government were thus described by Dr. Chan Yang, Korean ambassador to the United States, at a press conference last week.

DR. YANG was referring to a possible events following the end of the six months truce period between the UN and North Korea. He accentuated the point that Korea would fight alone, if necessary, to unite the country.

In commenting on recent disclosures of war atrocities commited by the Communists. Dr. Yang stated: "We must not be too lenient with these criminals but use very strong measures and punish them so that they will not be encouraged to go on with similar crimes in later years."

The ambassador went on to say that there was a great possibility that the War Crimes Commission would investigate the charges of atrocities, confirm them, and then do nothing more about the situation.

He said he particularly feared for the safety of about 70,000 Korean military and civilian personnel and about 3,000 American GIs who are being held by the Communists. These prisoners "will probably suffer again if they do not submit to Communist propaganda, so we should put forth definite demands that they return the prisoners immediately or suf- stated that the Communists do fer the consequences." Dr. Yang not admit the existence of these prisoners but that "we know they have them."

HE WENT on to define the insecure relations between Japan and Korea and stated that this situation was a too little-known fact. Discussions at a bi-lateral conference between the two countries were broken off Oct. 16 because of what he considered outrageous claims.

Business Staff To Meet Today

All Daily Orange business staff members must attend a staff meeting at 4 p.m. today in the Hellbox. All prospective salesmen are urged to attend today's meeting, according to Robert Goldstein, business manager.

Political Honorary Slates Tea Today

Pi Sigma Alpha, national political science honorary, will hold a tea from 4 to 5 p.m. today in Maxwell's Founders room. The tea is in honor of all undergraduate majors in the field.

The purpose of the tea is to acquaint political science majors with other students in their field. An opportunity is also presented to meet the faculty members of the program.

At this time any political science major who is qualified may fill out an application for membership. Qualifications for a junior are a 2.0 over-all average and six completed hours of advanced Political Science with a B average. Seniors and graduates need a 1.8 over-all average, and 12 completed hours of advanced Political Science with a B average. Associate membership in the junior year may be obtained if the over-all average is 2.0 and the student is registered as a Political Science major with no grade below a C.

Ski School to Start Instructor Training

Apprentice Teachers To Meet Wednesday

Student skiiers interested in University Ski School's apprentice instructor training program are requested to meet at 4 p.m. Nov. 4, at the University Ski Lodge.

The 1953-4 Ski School program, inaugurating a new method of progressive ski instruction, is designed to give apprentices the fundamental principles of teaching. Apprentices will apply principles to practical situations during Ski School classes, scheduled to open Nov. 17.

Bob Friedman, assistant director of Ski School, emphasizes that students need not be expert skiiers to be eligible for teaching positions on the Ski School staff. Both men and women are urged to investigate the program.

Drama Department Sponsors Playwrighting Competition

Aspiring Syracuse playwrights have been offered a chance they have been waiting for to show their stuff and to see their creations produced on stage.

The drama department is sponsoring a contest for an original musical. The prize is $100 plus a joy of seeing a manuscript come to life with lyrics, music and all the talent that Boar's Head has to offer.

SAWYER FALK'S students, members of Boar's Head, are seeking an original production from a student playwright.

It has been Boar's Head policy to produce about four other productions, one a musical comedy. Because "White Bucks" was so popular the drama department is looking for another all-student endeavor to produce, according to Jerry Leider, faculty advisor for the Hill drama group.

All entries in the contest must be in by Friday, Dec. 11, so those who want to play a major part in the next student musical must start pounding typewriter keys, and soon!

Contest rules issued by the drama department who will judge the entries are as follows:

1. Any enrolled student may enter the contest, whether he is graduate or undergraduate.
2. Either a full length musical comedy, musical comedy revue, or operetta is acceptable.
3. Collaborations of authors are allowed. In case the play wins the prize will be divided.
4. The winning script must be produced at the University for the prize to be awarded.
5. Manuscripts must be typewritten, double-spaced and written on a single side of the sheet. They should contain the author's name, Syracuse address and living center, phone number and his home address.
6. Entries must be sent to Syracuse University Drama Dept. 401, Drama Building, Syracuse 10, N.Y.

These are the rules, and now it's up to those students who want to see their talents come to life to get busy. Remeber that deadline is December 11, be sure and make it!

Tau Delta Phi and Washington Arms won trophies in last year's Cornell Rally.

To register posters call Lois Cohn, 4-3121 ext. 12; Leonard Eisen, 4-9217 or Samuel Shawhan, 75-6216.

Dean Eric C. Faigle of the Liberal Arts College will speak at the pep rally.

Police Break Up Worcester Brawl

WORCESTER, Mass. — Police swinging night sticks managed to break up a college rally in the streets of downtown Worcester Friday on the eve of the Holy Cross-Syracuse football game.

Four youths were injured and 25 reported arrested in the demonstration after police told several hundred students of Holy Cross and Worcester Polytech that they were blocking traffic and warned them to move on.

Appleby Addresses Far Eastern Convo On American Policy

Altruism Set as Guide By Maxwell Dean In Weekend Talk

By ROS BROWNSTEIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

"Sheer self-interest if not altruism should drive us to assist Far Eastern countries," Dean Paul H. Appleby of the Maxwell school advocated last weekend at the far eastern conference.

Many problems in these countries stand in the way of promoting democracy, the dean said. Some of the obstacles cited by Dean Appleby are:

1. ALL OF these governments time to find out how to remedy them.

2. Lack of money to develop the country is a major hindrance to these areas.

3. "These countries have an inadequate filling up of the social hierarchy. The middle class is missing in some of these areas and they have more stratification and little movement between levels than the United States."

4. Communication, as far as language is concerned is also difficult.

5. "ALL OF THESE countries have the problem of priority, what to do first." In India the government says that all has to be done right away. India needs roads, railways, larger industry, hospitals, and education all at one time, but they do not know where to start.

Using India as an example of these conditions in other countries, Dean Appleby said that the problem of leadership in this country is different now since she has gained independence. They have had to pass from an "agitational phase of government to an institutional phase of government.

One of Nehru's greatest difficulties today, said the dean, is the translation of political issues to the people. Political policies are hard to communicate to the people.

Although the caste system is legally abolished, the people in the lower strata maintain it. "Indian would fall open at the seams," if the caste system were really destroyed, stressed Dean Appleby. The caste system holds India together, he said.

In India and the other countries too, there is difficulty in establishing a two-party system. India has a one-party system.

"India is dedicated to democracy and is the most tolerant nation in the world," commented the dean. In conclusion, the dean said that "Americans must help India's present efforts to succeed."

POWERS CLUB

Tonight's meeting of the Powers club, organization for students with a Christian vocation, has been postponed until further notice, due to lack of publicity.

Pact Against Vandalism Renewed by Hill Leaders

The "Cazenovia Agreement," a pact which outlaws vandalism as a means of promoting school spirit, was renewed by student government leaders from Colgate and Syracuse who met there yesterday.

The anti-vandalism pact condemns such acts as a "false means of developing and encouraging spirit and rivalry." Vandalism is in part defined as "all acts which cause permanent or semi-permanent damage, disfigurement, mutilation defacement or destruction of any of the properties of the two Universities."

THE AGREEMENT also outlaws abduction of students from either of the two campuses and the enforcement of traditions in any area outside of the two schools boundaries.

Student leaders pointed out that the pact was not drawn to eliminate tradition or friendly rivalry but to prevent the excesses of such acts and to lessen the danger of personal and property damage.

Under Syracuse enforcement policy, the Hill student court is granted jurisdiction to try Syracusans found violating the agreement. The court may impose a $25 maximum fine, take away the offender's Colgate ticket or recommend to the Administration that the student be suspended for not more than one semester.

Colgate enforcement will also concern their student court. In addition any student engaging in road-blocking activities outside of campus will lose his student driving permit.

STANLEY LEFF, men's student government president, Mary Anne Dalton, president of women's student government, Stephen Reiss, chief of MSG civil service, Elizabeth Brydon, WSG vice-president, Dean Frank P. Piskor and Arlene Lambert, DO editor-in-chief, represented Syracuse.

The recent history of anti-vandalism agreements extends to 1948 when members of Colgate, Cornell and Syracuse met to formulate the first of such pacts. Each succeeding year delegates renewed the agreements, adding stronger provisions as the need arose.

Annual Chest Carnival Draws Largest Profit

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Saturday's 4th annual Campus Chest carnival was the biggest financial success in history. Co-chairmen Harold Steinberg and Inga Loeb announced that profits from the event are approximately $870.

Fifty-two booths were entered in the affair including a larger representation of independent living centers than ever before. Three trophies were awarded to organizations for outstanding booths.

SIGMA ALPHA MU, Beta Theta Pi and Alpha Gamma Delta co-sponsored the "Chairo-plane" which had the largest profit of $86.70. Sigma Alpha Epsilon was awarded a new trophy for the organization who individually had the largest profit, $47.40. The SAE's booth was "Hit the Dumbbell."

The most original booth trophy was awarded to Kappa Kappa Gamma and Kappa Sigma for their "Vaudeville Show." Judging the winners were Major Howard Schwendler, air force ROTC; Dr. Melvin Eggers, economics department; and Miss Margaret Parker, University social director.

Runner-up booths in the largest income category were "Dart Throwing" sponsored by Alpha Epsilon Pi and Phi Sigma Sigma; and Alpha Epsilon Phi and Zeta Beta Tau's "Flying Saucer".

Another top booth financially was "Break The Dish" run by Phi Gamma Delta and Pi Beta Phi while the top independent living center booth was run by Skytop M-3 and Thornden cottage,. Their "Pie Throw" grossed $30.

CHANCELLOR WILLIAM P. Tolley and Vice-President Frank Piskor opened the proceedings, which lasted from 12 noon to 5 p.m., with addresses from the library steps. From that time on, the estimated crowd of 2,500 kept the booths busy continually.

All proceeds from the carnival will go to the Campus Chest fund to be distributed to eight charity organizations. Campus Chest, the only fund-soliciting organization on campus will have its annual drive later in the year.

Tau Sigma Delta Announces Rules For Poster Contest

Again this year Tau Sigma Delta, architecture and allied arts honorary, will sopnsor the traditional Colgate poster contest for dormitories, fraternities and sororities.

No general theme has been set by the honorary for the competition, but every poster must bear the words "Beat Colgate" in a prominent place.

IT IS EXPECTED that more than 90 houses will enter the contest this year, with awards planned in four divisions—fraternity, sorority, large independent house and small independent house.

More than 40 students in a dormitory constitutes a large house, the honorary emphasized. Each section of Shaw dormitory will be judged in the large house division, while Sim's sections will be in the small house group.

Collaboration between small men's houses and small women's cottages is permissable, with competition then being in the large house division. The poster in such a case must be set up at the house nearest the center of campus.

Judging is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 13 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Cups will be presented to the winning houses by the Colgate weekend queen at the pep rally that night.

ORIGINALITY AND quality in carrying out the poster's idea will be main points under consideration during judging, Tau Sig reported.

Registration for the contest will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 10 and 11 at a special desk on the fourth floor of Slocum hall. Entry fee is $1.50. Copies of rules and application forms have been sent to every house by the contest committee.

Rules are:

1. Size of the poster is left to the discretion of the competing houses and no general theme need be followed. Each poster, however, must bear the words "Beat Colgate" prominently displayed.

2. The posters must be painted on a flat surface. Although several flat surfaces may be used, they cannot be joined together to give the appearance of solid mass.

3. NO SOUND is allowed in connection with or near the poster during the times of judging.

4. Judging will take place between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Nov. 13.

5. Applications accompanied by a fee of $1.50 must be submitted by 5 p.m. Nov. 11.

6. Number cards will be issued to each entry and must be displayed in front of the poster.

Sno-Ball Chairmen Applications Due

Sno-ball co-chairmen applications are due Sunday, Nov. 8, Sponsored by the Junior class, the dance will take place on Winter Carnival weekend in February.

Applications should include previous experience on weekend committees activities, ideas, name, address and telephone number.

Applications must be in to Samuel Shawhan, 129 College pl.; Jacqueline Jarrett, 500 University pl. or Leonard Eisen, 805 Ostrom ave. by Sunday. No later applications will be considered.

Foreign Students Seek Invitations

A drive seeking invitations for 50 foreign students to spend Thanksgiving day and the weekend on local farms and village farms has begun.

The students, now at Cornell, will arrive by bus on Nov. 25 at Penn Yan and will be honored at a community welcome dinner in the Penn Yan Grange Hall.

After Thanksgiving visits, the group will meet in Penn Yan for tours to inspect the industrial operations in the community. The Kiwanis Club will hold a luncheon for the foreign students afterwards.

Freshmen Choose Officers Tomorrow

About 1,400 freshmen are expected to go to the polls tomorrow to choose officers for the class of 1957.

Four men are vying for the post of president—Warren Kimble, United Students party; Richard Green, Tri-Orange; Francis Procopio and William Brown, independent.

BOOTHS WILL be open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in front of Maxwell and the Hall of Languages and on the north side of the Quadrangle. Hours of booths at Washington Arms and Sims dining halls will be 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 7 p.m.

Only freshmen are eligible to vote in the election. Identification cards are required. Ballots may be split in any way, according to civil service officials.

Vice presidential candidates are Arlene Plotkin, USP; Elizabeth Bartlett, Tri-O; and Dorris Lemp, independent. Running for secretary are Daphne Burke, USP; Barbara Solomon, Tri-O; and Alta Burg, independent. On the ballot for treasurer are Donald Fulsom, USP; Jeffrey Wenig, Tri-O; and Norman Butterfield, independent.

Training Groups To Meet Jointly

Dean M. Eunice Hilton of the College of Home Economics will address a joint session of Chapel, WSG, and MSG training programs at 7:15 p.m. today in the Chapel.

The dean will talk on leadership to the three groups. William Kagler, chairman of the Chapel training program, had originally scheduled the talk and invited the other groups to join.

THIS IS THE first time that the three programs have been united for a program and about 350 persons are expected to attend.

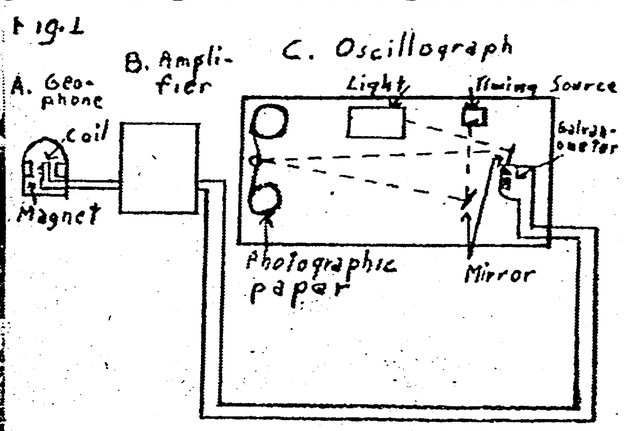
The session is compulsory for women enrolled in the TTK program, chairman Ann Lines has announced. Kenneth Brown, MSG training chairman urged all men in the government program to attend.

This will be the fifth in a series of six sessions for the Chapel program which is designed to acquaint students with the organization and functions of the Chapel.

HOP TRYOUTS

Tryouts are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. today in 201 Crouse for parts in intermission entertainment of the Soph Hop, Director Gilbert Katz announced yesterday.

Seismic Service Measures Rock Thickness



By DON HENRY

Seismology is generally defined as the science of earthquakes and attendant phenonema. The seismic center of Syracuse university then would seem to be connected with the study of earthquakes. But this is not so.

Our seismic unit deals directly with the problem of determining the thickness of overburden (various materials such as gravel, sand and clay which are located between top soil and bedrock) and depth of bedrock. This problem has always been especially pertinent in the civil engineering, construction and mining fields.

THE SEISMIC UNIT, which operates under the auspices of the GeoJogy and Mineralogy Division, Institute of Industrial Research at Syracuse, began taking jobs to investigate geological layouts in September of 1952.

The seismic method of determining subsurface conditions functions like this: Seismometers, or geophones (see Fig. 1), are placed on the ground at points where the subterranean make-up is to be determined. A small charge of dynamite is exploded within the sensitivity range of the geophones.

Following the explosion, wave fronts, both horizontal ones which travel along the top of the ground, and refracted ones which travel down to bedrock, are reflected along the bedrock and then return to the surface of the ground, are picked up by the geophone.

This in turn emits an electric signal which is transmitted by means of a cable to the amplifier (at point B on the diagram). Here the signal is amplified and transmitted to the galvanometer (at point C) where it is recorded.

THE OSCILLOGRAPH (point C) is so set up that light is continually reflected by mirrors onto the moving positive photographic paper. When the timing source or a wave impulse from the geophone interrupts the light beam, vertical and horizontal lines, respectively, appear on the paper.

This forms the oscillogram. From it the seismologist can determine, by means of a time-distance relationship the velocity of each wave. Different subsurface materials show a characteristic velocity, and this is the means of discovering what conditions are present.

To get an actual profile of the bedrock, the seismologist solves a mathematical formula which utilizes the velocity and distance figures he has already established. The answer gives him the depth of the bedrock in feet.

The seismic unit has completed four major jobs so far. It has conducted a sewer investigation in DeWitt, where the depth of bedrock was determined. The unit explored the subsurface conditions at Waterville, N. Y. to see if there was enough overburden present to allow construction of a dam and attendant buildings.

AT SOLVAY it surveyed the ground to see how deep sand, gravel and other possible water-yielding materials were. This type job is known as a water survey.

The last major project was in Baltimore, Md., where foundation conditions for the construction of the Jewish Medical Clinic were determined. The unit is currently involved in preliminary investigations of dam sites in Baltimore.

The permanent staff consists mainly of graduate students in the geology department. Part time work on the unit's projects is given to interested geology majors. Dr. Earl T. Apfel, head of the geology department, is the director of the seismic center.

The geological consultant is Dr. James E. Maynard. Russell Kaiser is the field supervisor and Abe Kreitman is the group's seismologist. The portable apparatus that the center uses was made by the Century Geophysical Corp. of Tulsa, Okla.

Long Intermission

The stage is bare . . . plain cotton valances bridge the open mouth of a vacant platform somewhere. But now in the wings the scraping sound of work begins, and the senior show of 1954 is being moved into the reality of sets and staff, the robustness of showmanship and song.

The tunes that netted $600 are but lightly lilting memory. The show that enjoyed itself as much as the audience has passed and the boards are cleared . . . not for something fantastically new, but for the second act of "Syracuse university presents . . ."

This year there is a drive for improvement even over "White Bucks and Tales." While "White Bucks" had spark and song it lacked a real thread of continuity. Now there is an attempt for that linkage of lyric to lyric. Boar's Head, the producer, will present $100 for a book for next May's presentation.

A book seems to be an unimportant item in the scheme of costumes and songs that "sell" a show to those beyond the pale of the footlights. There is a dearth of credit for the man's name that follows that small type on the program that reads "Book by . . ."

If there is any man who can refute this thought it is the lyric man of four musical greats of Broadway: Oscar Hammerstein II. The famed librettist as a student at Columbia university wrote many student shows. He has said he did not think that anybody was really serious in putting together the book of a musical . . . that it had always stood purely as a background for the real body of the show. But as he went on to the brighter footlights of Broadway he has pointed out that he learned that it is the magic of the book that makes song and melody melt into the precision of a hit show.

In six months the curtains will swing away to reveal a colorama of cast; the baton will flick for the swell of a tune . . . and someone will have earned that $100 and the handclap and cheer for the senior show of 1954.

Good fortune. It has been a long intermission.

Year of Decision

The legislative body of men's student government will convene for its first meeting of the year tonight. Although missing one-quarter of its membership (those yet to be elected by the class assemblies), the body can legally begin to function now.

Much of the assembly work of last year involved proposed changes in the structure of the group. More time was consumed in endeavoring to build active participation for the coming year than was devoted to the legislative work of that year.

The changes were eventually approved by the male student body and the new campus-elected group was chosen last week.

This is the year of decision for the MSG assembly. If the body fails in its responsibilities to student welfare after last year's relative inaction, its death is almost certain. The MSG executive and civil service would be forced to decide the solutions to all student problems. It is also conceivable that the Administration would have to assume more control to fill the void left by the absence of a working assembly.

The assembly can investigate and formulate solutions to a great variety of problems. The relocation of Student Union facilities, the promotion of intra-mural insurance and revisions in reserved seating are major tasks that can be undertaken. The status of minor sports, changes in the elections laws and campus lighting should be investigated.

The MSG assembly has come to a point of no return. It must make substantial progress this year or face eventual dissolution.

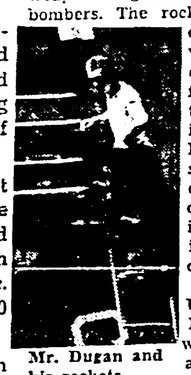
Rockets and 'Frogmen'

One of the more unusual duties of the career of Marty Dugan, (SU '57), was working on the filming of the movie "Frogmen." This will be remembered as a film giving recognition to the Navy's Underwater Demolition Teams. The picture was made in the Virgin Islands in 1951. Marty was a Navy ordnance man working on explosives and smoke screens used in the film.

Marty also worked on the "Mighty Mouse" rocket, considered to be one of our most potent weapons against high altitude bombers. The rocket was developed at the Navy's Rocket Test center in California. After attending school in Memphis, Marty was well suited to work on all sorts of ordnance material, which he did in many parts of the fleet.



Mr. Dugan and his rockets . . . loading the wings of a Navy Corsair.

While with the U. S. fleet in the Mediterranean waters, he served as an ordnance man in charge of loading aircraft with bombs and rockets. In this job, he was aboard the carriers Midway, Wright and Palau, at various times, and also was one of the crewmen who removed ammunition from burning planes should they crash during take-off.

Now back home, which is Watertown, N. Y., Marty is studying business administration and hopes to engage in foreign trade after graduation.

HEARING AIDS

FROM BRE'R RABBIT TO MR. DISNEY

By DICK CASE

Daily Orange Columnist

I think it was that noble Southern gentleman Joel Chandler Harris who first revealed to the world that "everybody has a laughing place."

Much later in history, a noble Southern California fellow named Walter Disney (1928 to be exact) rediscovered the elusive American laughing place with a quick-witted little animal in the person of Mickey Mouse.

Today at age 25, Mickey Mouse no longer appears on the screen in Papa Disney's cartoon parade. Now worldly and wise friend Mic has retired to a director's chair and assumes a background role while his descendants in the form of a thousand or so pigs, owls, rabbits, dogs, cats, horses elephants, dwarfs, whales and crocodiles covort about in the Disney cartoons.

I would like to congratulate Mr. Mouse and Mr. Disney as they waltz off toward the half-century. They and their many children have tickled the American funnybone to the point of near-hysteria and at the same time, have painted their silver screen with a laugh, a moral and a tear.

And, in addition to all this, Messrs. Mouse and Disney have filled the world of song with melodies much the same way a master cobbler bends a golden stick to his finished product.

When Walt Disney turned out his first feature length cartoon with "Three Little Pigs" in 1933, his staff knocked out a ditty to accompany the animated action. The song, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf" became somewhat of a novelty sensational in the 30's. To prove that his luck had not run dry on the first venture, since that time, Walt has inspired "Heigh Ho", "One Song", and "Never Smile at a Crocodile," to list a few.

There may be those who would doubt the quality of this contribution to music but then again, they may never have been touched by a kid's smile when he learned that Disney's buddies could jump to life out of the funny papers and sing and dance and do most anything you'd like.

I find Dumbo and Snow White's seventh dwarf ever so entertaining and the thought of a crocodile bursting into song sends me into unspeakable rapture.

So, I bow to you Mr. Disney and to you Mr. Michael Mouse, you old rascal. You may continue to tickle my ribs from here to eternity.

It's a Long Long Time...

Now is the time to get suspicious.

We were scuffling leaves the other day and watching the crawling yellow beetle that scoops dirt up by the cubic yard when we suddenly realized that it was November.

All we had on was a windbreaker and we shuddered automatically. Somehow Syracuse was not doing its bit in getting winter off to a good start. Autumn, the hasty visitor, has nearly packed its ragged clothing of yellow and red. The fellow is puzzled that nobody has come to sweep him out.

Yesterday we dug down into the winter clothing trunk and had it all set to wear yesterday morning. No avail. Whenever it gets gray out we feel encouraged to write the folks that "that lousy Syracuse winter is with us again." No use. Conversation topics in letters are hard to come by . . . and the ole' standby has failed us.

Tomorrow we've decided to wear our overcoat . . . with wool socks. There is no guarantee that it will fool anyone . . . including the weatherman.

But it is November in Syracuse . . . I wonder what luck we'll have come Winter Weekend?

LETTERARY COMMENT

About 'Luther,' Goons

Movie

To the Editor
Syracuse Daily Orange

More power to criticism!! As a "good" Lutheran I realize the value of freedom and thought and expression . . . and as I take this stand I'd like to do a little expressing too.

The "Martin Luther" picture was a superb presentation of just what Luther did to upset the world. With two hours of time and limited interest span what can one do but pick and choose with discrimination and hope that what is produced is accurate, clearly delineated, and interesting.

Martin Luther emerges a thoroughly explored doctrinaire but an unthoroughly explored human being" , , , "black and white" characters etc. and several other remarks of a recent review seem to me to entirely miss the point. Luther, to an obviously prejudiced observer, seemed only too human, and no consistently the "holy man" at all. One minute he's blowing up at his cohort Carlstadt and the next we hear about the Christian and his basis of behavior—love.

If it did anything else, it confronted some people with phrases such as "absolute values" "dictates of conscience", and I could add a few such as "justifications", "faith", and "good works"—people who would have no other occasion to hear them.

And I could add a few criticisms of my own, one being the secret feeling the actor Martin was awfully Irish looking (but fortunately I'm fond of the Irish).

Most sincerely,
Marilyn Pflueger

Congrats

Dear Goon Squadders:

The Sophomore Executive Council wishes to congratulate all of the Sophomore "Goons" whose eagerness and hard work made possible the Jiminy Cricket ball. The dance was a tremendous success both financially and socially and we were proud of you. You proved once again that the Class of '56 is "Rarin' to go and Ready to mix."

You showed true college spirit for both your University and class, and your efforts were very much appreciated by everyone, especially those of us who can proudly say that we are members of the Class of '56.

Sincerely,
Sophomore Executive Council,
Harriet Ehrlich, Secretary

Frosh Stars

In response to an inquiry concerning Capitol recording artists, the Four Freshmen, it appears that the boys have rightful claim on their title. They banded together in 1948 at the Arthur Jordan Conservatory of Music in Indianapolis and since that time, have progressed to whatever distinction they may hold in the record field today.

'FAMILIAR' IN 'BELL, BOOK & CANDLE'

When a woman decides she wants a man, she uses her wiles to get him.

This has been the subject of thousands of plays, those both produced and mouldering in playwright's trunks. It's probably the oldest plot in the world.

But when she's a witch, look out, because the switch in plot means a twisted-up situation. Particularly, when the play is written by talent such as John Van Druten, who scripted "The Voice of the Turtle."

"Bell, Book and Candle" may introduce new words into the area's vocabulary. Those who are not familiar with such lore as "poltergeist," "warlocks," and "familiars" will learn what the mystic side of the world is like.

The "familiar" will undoubtedly be the most important of the spiritual manifestations, because Pyewacket, the cat stopped the show in New York and the Astor fondly hopes she will repeat the trick here.

Silvia Sidney, star of the play, has brought her own Siamese cat, "Miss Greasepaint," to play the part of the "familiar" who enables the lovely witch to cast her spells.

The cast also includes Herbert Patterson, Ronald Telfer, Ken Bowles and Camilla Ashland.

Life in Postwar Germany Educational for Hill Coed

By FLIP SIROTA
Coeds Corner Editor

The youth of the western sector of Germany are very anxious to meet and talk with Americans to discover what democracy really is all about. Unfortunately, the Americans in the country now want to have as little to do with the German people as possible.

This is the opinion of the post-war situation as voiced by Claire Swan recently returned to this country after spending three years in the historical city of Munich.

NOW A sophomore majoring in speech therapy Claire considers Germany the most exciting and interesting of all the places she has lived during her years of camp-following her father who was a colonel in the Army Engineer corps.

When Claire arrived in Munich in 1949 there were only four American girls in the city. She decided to go to the University of Munich to learn the language.

Enrolled in the "auslander" or foreign course for people who wan to learn to speak German, Claire went to school in a bombed-out building. There was no heating so the students collected wood and built fires for warmth.

Social life in Munich is very different and quite a lot of fun. Nightclubs and dives are housed in renovated air-raid shelters which are usually underground. According to Claire there is no such thing as a small drink of beer; a quart stein is the smallest one can get.

WHEN THE SPIRIT of the beer and of the occasion rises everyone stands up on a chair, puts his arms around his neighbor's shoulders and sings and sways.

Parties usually start at 9 p.m. and it is considered an insult to leave before six the next morning. Three weeks before Lent the German people have a huge celebration similar to the Mardi Gras in this country. It is a gala costume party, replete with much dancing and merry-making.

Everyday attire for students in Munich is quaint. The men wear leather shorts, suspenders and just the cuff of a stocking around the calf of their leg. The girls dress in dirndles, topped with contrasting aprons. The sleeves of their dresses are enormously puffed.

Claire attended the University of Munich and an extension of the University of Maryland. There is no set schedule of courses a student must take. Courses are given when a professor noted in that field comes to teach for just a few weeks in that subject and then leaves.

CLAIRE SWAN

DURING HER three years in Germany Claire had the opportunity to travel all over Europe. She considers Rome the most fascinating of cities because historical ruins are right in the city; just walk down the block, turn a corner and there is a pile of stone and columns dating back to Caesar's time.

When she finishes her speech therapy training here Claire plans to head for California where she will open a school to teach deaf children to speak.

Eyewitness Tells Of Greek Quakes

By LIZ GODDARD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

One of the few Americans to witness the tragic Greek earthquakes this summer was a Syracuse coed.

The first came at 5:30 a.m., Aug. 10. Marie was staying at her uncle's home in the country when the household was awakened by a rumbling noise and the building soon began to shake. They ran outside but there was little damage.

THERE HAD been some destruction on other parts of the island. Marie and her mother went to town the next morning to see some of the damage.

"A longer and worse quake occurred when we were on the second floor of another uncle's home," the blonde freshman tells.

"I kept saying to myself. 'This is the end. This is the end. Things danced up and down and then sideways. We couldn't go down the front stairs because the second floor had collapsed on them and we couldn't use the back stairs because a wall had covered them."

They managed to crawl from the building through an opening in a wall. Sixty-five persons had been killed and many were pinned under the rubble. The waterfront road had split completely in two.

A PIECE of wall fell on Marie's ankle which later became infected. She was scratched and bruised and still has some scars from the injuries.

A third major earthquake struck in the country at 2:30 p.m. the same day. Fires had broken out all over the island, spreading and burning continuously for three days.

The Greek government sent American and British navies brought tents, food and blankets. They set to work opening the roads. There was a mass exodus to the mainland and all except one of the doctors fled for their lives.

The combination of earthquakes and fires left only three buildings standing on the island—a church, a school and a bank.

"AN EARTHQUAKE comes with no warning," Marie related. "You hear a big rumble under the earth and the shaking begins immediately. I was so scared when it was happening but I soon realized that the aftermath is much more horrible."

She described the sight of a mother searching for her children, of men kneeling in the rubble and crying hysterically, of kerosene "burials" of the quake victims.

"Actually the fire caused the most damage," she said. "People had no homes to return to and could recover none of their belongings."

Many of the homeless moved into bamboo sheep folds called "mandri." For the remainder of her stay on Zante, Marie lived in one of these small roofless houses with 25 other persons. Most of the island's inhabitants are still living in mandri or tents.

Gals Eligible For Bowling Competition

With the opening of the new bowling alleys in the Women's building and the start of an intramural kegling program, coed interest will turn towards the sport more and more as the year goes on.

At the same time, nationwide interest in bowling will be focused on Syracuse, due to the annual national tournament scheduled for this city during the spring.

THE WOMEN'S International Bowling Congress, a nationwide organization which sponsors organized league bowling, holds the tournament every year in a different city. This is the first time Syracuse has hostessed the meet since 1940.

Organized bowling has one of the largest rosters of any participating sport in the country, with more than 2 million, and women account for more than 25 per cent of the total. The annual WIBC tourney attracts over 25,000 women to the hostess city all competing for the $100,000 worth of prizes and cash, being offered.

Syracuse coeds come into the picture since they are eligible to enter the tournament in a special class called "Tournament City Boosters." Merchants in the Syracuse-Onondaga county area pay the usual entry fee, and the teams are made up from the list of non-affiliated area bowlers, who are interested in competing in the meet.

Since many of the Tourament City Boosters are new bowlers, they compete in a special category along with the average sanctioned teams. Called the Booster class, it includes teams with an average of under 700 as of Jan. 1, 1954 and the recruited bowlers from the hostess city area.

WOMEN INTERESTED in registering for the tournament are requested to contact Doris Phillips, secretary SWBA, 206 Thompson st., Fayetteville, N. Y. or telephone 65-9986.

Individual or team registration will be accepted and five coeds may enter the tournament together as a team from their sorority or living center.

Male Senior Confesses: 'Women Still Scare Me'

"I'E GADS, MUST I?" Looking aghast at the idea of kissing a lady's hand is JOHN BEACH who says that he is still wary of Hill coeds even after three years. The lady, or rather coed, is JAN CARO of The Daily Orange, who volunteered to teach this shy male a few tricks of savoir faire. Photo by Oscar Keuker

By JOHN BEACH
Senior Class President

So I'm supposed to write my reflections on over three years' association with Syracuse women. To tell the truth, they still scare me almost as much as when I was a freshman.

I can remember trudging down to the Chi Omega house with my application for freshman elections. I'd never been in a sorority and the very thought of that first time rattled me pretty well. I had the irrational desire to turn around and run.

DECIDING NOT to go through the agony of ringing the bell and encountering one of those real, live co-eds, I stuck the application in the mailbox and vacated the premises—fast.

Unfortunately for my pride, it turned out that the proper destination for my application was Alpha Chi Omega. In my confusion I had picked a house of the opposite political party (I was pledged to that crazy Fiji Lodge and it was affiliated with the Co-op group) so my political aspirations fizzled.

I can't say that my fear of Syracuse queens (I enrolled under the old regime when every coed was a queen, not a twirler) was mitigated in the least by the perennial attempts at social polishing—the after-dinner-coffee.

I remember our pledge class being led like lambs to the slaughter into the yawning doors of a sorority house which shall remain nameless. It was organized terror. If one pair of fluttering eyelashes is sufficient to make the male strangely hot under his starched collar, what is to be expected of an uncomfortable young sprout thrust into the midst of a houseful of smiling, extraverted, overwhelming young ladies?

MY BEHAVIOR was bumbling and embarrassed—one of those nights when you put your best foot forward and into your mouth. One lovely girl did single me out and attempt to put me at ease. I had just decided that I might go for her when she began to tell about the football player she was pinned to.

But my timidity is not a universal or even campus-wide phenomenon. I confess to secret admiration of those smooth-talking male rascals who attract Syracuse coeds by the swarm.

As a sophomore my pride and envy made me think it was the cars they all seem to drive that made Syracuse, for them, such an interesting campus. But I no longer delude myself—some guys have just got it, as the saying goes. But maybe with a convertible I could . . .

The trouble with attempting an article like this lies in the complexity of the subject matter. I'm not at all convinced that even Freud could have figured out one single, solitary Syracuse gal. They're unpredictable. They defy explanation.

WHEN THE Coed's Corner editor asks a mere motral to write "a few lines" on the feminine populace of this university, it's enough to discourage one from matriculating.

These gals come to Syracuse each fall by the trainloads. Liberal artists, calculating Business Administrators, nurses, embryo Bernhardts, home eccers and that final kiss of death—the Fine Artist.

Get an insight into what makes one of them tick and they set 'em up in another alley, so to speak, and you have to start learning all over again.

So what's the use? It's impossible to catch the glowing essence of female Syracuse in a few lines of copy. Guess I'll have to let it go by waving my tuition receipt and telling the world that I think they're all keen—just real keen!

Sparkling Stones Not Always 'Real Thing'

There is no longer any need to go into tailspins of ecstacy and envy upon meeting someone wearing a large diamond ring or some other piece of jewelry appreciably decked with stones.

All that glitter may have cost the owner just a fraction of the imagined cost if the stones in the jewelry are man-made twins or "cooked jewels."

IF THE OWNER isn't telling then there is no way by casual observation that one can find out if the stone is the real thing or not. Lapidary experts need to examine the gem under a powered-lens microscope for absence of slightly curving growth lines which are the clue to the difference.

Magnificent jewelry at an economical price is the advantage of these stones. Prices range up to $20 a carat for "cooked" rubies, star sapphires, emeralds and diamonds.

Fashioned from natural mineral formations, and not glass or paste imitations, these stones have color and durability to make them worth many times their price.

Most famous of these man-made stones is the titania which dazzles so much it out-dazzles the diamond. Engaged couples who have financial problems find they can purchase an engagement ring set with a stone costing $10 to $20 a carat. Good one-carat diamonds cost approximately $500. Thus the difference in costs is quite a savings.

THE TITANIA STONE WAS born by accident about eight years ago. The National Lead co. was experimenting with titanium dioxide to find a way to make white lead whiter. Then overnight they were in the gem business.

Natural rubies and star sapphires can usually only be found under glass and guard in a museum. The few perfect stones of these types that there are in the world are owned by Eastern princes or museums.

Synthetic stones of these types have been manufactured since 1942 but actual discovery of the mineral compound from which they are made happened forty years earlier.

Survey Reveals Rating of Factors For Happiness

Every woman believes she is a law unto herself. However, there are certain generalities as to what makes a woman happy that apply to all on the female side of the fence.

OF THE FUNDAMENTAL HUman drives and needs seeking satisfaction in everyday life 21% was given to love and being loved. However, once satisfactorily married, the survey found, many women rate their husband's earning power above his faithfulness.

Children were rated 15% because they provide satisfactory outlets for energy and a striving for accomplishment.

Fashions were rated 15%. Even on a limited wardrobe if a woman is well-dressed and attractive she feels happy. Added security comes from self-approval and compliments. Beauty contributes 12%. A happy woman will consider herself attractive, despite physical shortcomings. Use of cosmetics helps.

10% is given to friendship. Helping people, being interested in them and even dominating some is a factor of happiness. A yearning for self-improvement finds its outlet in reading, even if it is only the daily newspaper or an occasional magazine. This factor received a 6% rating.

One of the findings of the survey was that gossip was given a happiness factor rating of only 2.05%. Further checking is being done on this subject however.

Case of the Ugly Knees

Above the cuffs of three-quarter stockings,
And below those Bermuda shorts,
There's a sight that sends us quaking,
And causes the following retorts.

A new fashion sight on the Hill this year leads us to some sarcastic comments on coeds who still haven't learned that there is a time and a place for everything.

Speaking specifically of the ludicrous fashion described in the rhyme above it is be appropriate to say that the correct time and place for such attire is the time and place when nobody, but nobody, will see.

DEEP SIGHS of relief are in order for the fact that there are not too many of these "knee addicts" on the Hill. Most coeds seem to realize what an outlandish sight they would make in such a costume.

To begin with this is not the fair and balmy island of the Caribbean, but the wind-swept hills of Syracuse and chilly blue knees are not the same as nice-tanned ones.

Added to this unappetizing sight of goose-bumpy knees is a pair of legs incurven and outcurven in peculiar directions. Don't be surprised at this divergence for three-quarter stockings have the uncomplimentary ability of making even the most perfect legs appear oddly bowed.

Take a look at one of these gals with the knobby knees as she hurries across campus for a class!

UP THE steps or down she waggles—and this movement is never more pronounced than in Bermuda shorts. Her legs are a bowlegged kaleidoscope of colors and ugh—between the end of the sock and the start of the short rolls the most ungraceful and unappealing bit of female anatomy—knobby knees.

Let's face it gals. Knees were made to support thighs and facilitate movement of the leg. That's why knees are knobby and movable. They do their job well. It's just too bad no one ever told them at the time of creation that they should look beautiful too because a few coeds would want them to spotlight the show.

When you bring one piece of material down and another piece up and between them put a movable hub-cap the sight is certainly odd.

WHAT SHE did certainly wasn't beautifying but surely a good deal more interesting. With lipstick she painted comical faces on her knees.

If the "knee addicts" on campus will follow any style that is dreamed up, how long will it be before some unfortunate professor is subject to the sight of leering knees.

Surveys have found that American women have the nicest legs in the world. Granted that the surveyors were American press photographers and therefore were slightly prejudiced but the thought is a nice one to snuggle up to anyhow.

Luckily they never happened to venture up this way or they would have been rudely jolted out of their reverie.

Come on gals, let's bring those more appealing skirts out of mothballs and consider the case of the knobby knees, if not finished, at least covered.

By Juli...

Our Coed's Corner designer has done it again. This time the fashion illustrations show four of Juli's versatile collection of suits to be worn now and right through the months till May.

Nothing is more adaptable to dressy, casual or business engagements than a suit. This is the type of outfit which allows one's accessory imagination no bounds.

First panel from left to right: by a barrel jacket accented with a barrel jacket accented with huge graduated buttons and arc panels sweeping from the high collar to the rounded tip of the jacket.

Second panel shows a rarity in suit features—the flair skirt. The mandarin neckline is snug with triplets of buttons down the front.

Last is the sophisticated one-button suit with the huge stand-up collar and nipped waist. Skirt is slim.

Syracuse Booters Invade Brockport Today In Final Away Meet of Current Campaign

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Fresh from their 4-3 overtime conquest of Union College last Saturday, the Syracuse booters resumed practice sessions yesterday in preparation for today's match against Brockport State Teachers college at the teacher's home field.

This will be the Orangemen's last away match of the campaign. Colgate and RPI round out the booters' schedule with home matches on the 6th and 13th of November.

SATURDAY'S WIN over Union was the first for Coach Andy Coccari's charges. For a while, however, it looked as if the Orange were going to go down to their third successive setback.

Union opened the scoring with two quick goals in the first quarter, a lead which they held until mid-way in the second quarter. Then Syracuse exploded.

In the third quarter, Sig Wirth put the Saltines ahead 3-2, with a penalty shot. The Orange kept this lead until two minutes of the 4th quarter when Union scored again to knot the count at 3-3.

APPARENTLY AIMING for a tie, Union pulled in its offensive line around the goal in the overtime period and it appeared that Syracuse would be denied its initial victory. The Hillmen received a break, however, when Nelson was given a free shot and they capitalized on it.

Nelson propelled a powerful shot towards the opposition's goal. The goalie got his hands on the ball but the shot deflected off the goal posts into the twines for the winning margin of the game.

Singled out for praise by Coach Coccari were halfbacks Don Moller, Don Shupe and Bud Gormon, and offensive linemen Vic Oberschal, Nelson and Wirth.

Moller showed that he had completely recovered from his leg injury with his finest defensive game of the year while Shupe and Gormon turned in their usual fine performances.

DESPITE THE FACT that he scored no goals, the single biggest factor in the Orange's victory was the performance of Oberschal. The lanky forward, who was making only his second start of the season, was the key factor in integrating the Orange's attack, which in past games has been ineffective.

If today's tussle between Brockport and Syracuse approaches last year's contest in thrills, the fans will certainly be seeing plenty of action. Last year, the Plety booters edged out Brockport 5-4 in double overtime after overcoming a 4-0 edge held by the Teachers at halftime.

Sig and Gunnar Wirth, Nelson and Moller, who were key figures in last year's Orange triumph, will be back for another crack at the teachers.

The only Orange booter who figured prominently in last year's Syracuse triumph and who will not be back is Steve Godayol. The fine play of Bill Ayres, however, has made Godayol's absence go nearly unnoticed.

AXEL SPOTS — While Coccari leads his booters into battle against Colgate this Friday, assistant Coach Marshall Johnson will be taking the tangerine booters to Ithaca to meet the Little Red. The frosh booters lost their only previous start to Colgate, 5-1.

Orange Inside Threat

THE EXCELLENT job done by soph DON LAAKSONEN in subbing for the injured Bill Wetzel at fullback has been one of the reasons why the Orange are holding their own with all opponents. Laaksonen played his best game against Holy Cross last Saturday.

Light Drill Features Hill Football Practice

One look at Ben Schwartzwalder's practice session showed one thing: the hard work for Cornell begins today. After a rough Holy Cross game, Ben rested his weary. The varsity watched the frosh run through Cornell's plays and set up a dummy practice against it.

At last, the disabled list is being subtracted from. After six games of adding to the injury list, Uncle Ben can now look to what he hopes will be a bright future of returning starters.

YESTERDAY, RAY Perkins was in pads for the first time in two weeks. And despite his painted leg he will probably start against Cornell.

Against Holy Cross last week, the Syracuse Orange sputtered and wheezed like a well run dry. Then, in the third quarter, Pat Stark acted as a primer for the pump by weaving 48 yards on a bootleg that started the flood.

Up until then, it was tough going for the Orange. Yancey, a former quarterback, started at right halfback and wasn't used to the plays. Stark was forced to limit his calls to Bob Leberman and Don Laaksonen primarily. Leberman, until the fourth quarter, when the Cross line tired, had a tough time going on the offensive. Just to show that he could get you from both ends, Leberman's defensive game was gem-like.

LAAKSONEN did a creditable job of taking up Leberman's offensive slack. After Stark's score, however, the whole team changed for the better.

Paul Slick was another surprise change. Slick who has been general handy man for the team, saw action as an end, a defensive tackle and center. Where will Slick finally settle? Only Ben can decide and he hasn't.

FROSH CAGERS

Coach Andy Mogish has announced that all candidates for the frosh basketball team are to report to him this afternoon at 3 p.m. in Archbold gym.

Football Movies Set for Forum

The movies of the Syracuse-Holy Cross game will be shown Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Maxwell auditorium. This week all students who wish to attend will be asked to show ID cards.

Because of the proximity of Cornell and Colgate, anyone without an ID card or without means of proving he is connected with the University will not be admitted.

It is not known who will narrate this week's forum, but it will probably be Rocco Pirro or Les Dye.

Intra Bits

Betas Take Intra Harrier Tourney; Crowell Tops Field

By DAVE BENNETT

Chuck Crowell of Beta Theta Pi raced to a decisive victory in Saturday's intramural cross country run and the Beta house scored an impressive win in team competition in the annual event held in perfect weather on the Drumlins course.

Crowell covered the 2.2 mile distance in 11 minutes 39.4 seconds and the Betas scored 49 points, putting them far ahead of second place Kappa Phi Delta, with 75 markers.

Sigma Chi finished third with 80 points, Phi Delt was fourth, 96; Phi Psi placed fifth, 105; A Chi Rho finished sixth, 153; and TEP and Zeta Psi tied for eighth, 182 tallies apiece.

Intra bowling will make its campus debut tonight at the newly completed Women's bowling alleys. This will mark the first time intramural bowling has been held on the campus since the men's gym fire in 1947.

At 6:15, the Army Comptrollers keglers will meet the Charles Whitman team, the Washington Arms 4-5 squad will clash with Nathan Miller house and Cleveland B will tangle with Thomas Dewey house.

PHI TAU and A Chi Rho will meet at 8:15 along with Theta Chi vs. ATO and the Kappa Sig-Phi Ep matches.

Football enters its playoff round, with the Betas meeting the Zebes this evening at 7 and the flight II fraternity champs Sigma Chi facing the flight V titleholders, Phi Gam at 7:45.

Tomorrow night, Theta Chi, flight VI winners will meet the victor of tonight's Sigma Chi-Phi Gam tilt at 7:30.

Skytop M-2, M-4 Win First Round In Intra Playoffs

Christie, Conboy Lead Offensive Attack Against Cleveland

By ERNIE ETOLL

In the opening round of playoffs last night Skytop M-2 won out over Cleveland B 26-13. The other game of the evening found Skytop M-4 trouncing Skytop M-5 20-2.

Led by Tom Christie, Dick Conboy, and Bud Latorre the boys from M-2 were never in trouble. Christie threw to Doyle Roberts for one TD, handed off to Conboy for another and ran for an extra point. Conboy scored another 6-pointer on a 40 yard kickoff return, and Latorre scored on a 30 yard pass interception from the hands of Cleveland's Bob Kniffen.

Leading Cleveland B was Bob Kniffen who passed to Paul Moran for one touchdown, and to Ken Hobbs for the other, plus an extra point.

M-4 led by Finn Jensen, Joe Sproule, and Jim Wexler easily defeated M-5 which offered little except for the hard running of Chic Kotick, and the fine defensive play of little Winnie Rushnell.

Jensen, a speedy back, darted around left end for M-4's first score. Joe Sproule who made himself a general nuisance to M-5 then ran end for another TD and point after. Wexler ran 50 yards on an intercepted pass and threw to Bill Mittag for the extra point.

M-5's two points were garnered early in the game when a bad pass by M-4's center fell into the end zone for an automatic safety. This made the score 2-0 in favor of M-5, but the strong M-4 defense prevented any further scoring.

INSIDE INTRAS

Any team which forfeits an intra bowling match must post a $5.00 fee to re-enter the league. This rule was set by the intramural council because the new alleys in the Women's building are reserved for the intra program and should not remain unused because of forfeits.

Cornell Ticket Deadline Set

Students have until this Thursday to pick up their half price football tickets to the Cornell-Syracuse game at Ithaca this Saturday.

Ticket buyers are reminded to bring their Cornell exchange tickets along with their ID cards to the box office in Archbold gymnasium. The office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ticket sales thus far have fallen behind last year's sales which reached 3,000. Only 1,500 students tickets have been purchased.

BLEACHERS COLLAPSE

One person was killed and 150 injured when a section of the old bleachers collapsed during the second half of the Syracuse-Colgate game in 1906.

144-0

The Saltine Warriors of 1904 piled up a total of 144 points against Manhattan. The losers failed to cross the Orange goal line.

Dedication Ceremonies Slated for November 15

Chancellor Tolley Will Participate In Day's Events

By DON BARNEY

The dedication of the Women's building, a main feature of this year's Colgate Weekend, will be held Sunday, Nov. 15 at 2:30 p.m.

Miss Kathryn Sibley, founder of physical education for women at Syracuse university and director of the department until 1950, and Mrs. Huntington B. Crouse, member of the Syracuse university Board of Trustees will cut the ribbon to open up a new era for coeds at Syracuse.

MISS SIBLEY and Mrs. Crouse will be presented gold keys by Albert Merrill, president of the Board of Trustees.

Also participating in the ribbon-cutting ceremony will be Chancellor William P. Tolley, Francis Byrne, contractor, Miss Marjorie C. Smith, dean of women, Lorimer Rich, architect, and Miss Lucille H. Verhulst, director of women's physical education.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony will be concluded with the singing of the Alma Mater by 100 women students under the direction of Miss Mary Ann Dalton, president of Women's Student Government.

Immediately following the ceremony, a dedication banquet will be held in the main gymnasium of the Women's building. Dean Smith acting as mistress of ceremonies will introduce more than 70 honored guests. Miss Dalton and Miss Verhulst will extend greetings. Chancellor Tolley will make the dedication address paying tribute to Miss Sibley.

A FEATURE of the banquet will be the presentation of a portrait of Miss Sibley to her by Gamma Phi Beta sorority. The portrait was painted by Mrs. Hilda Grossman Taylor, class of 1912, and graduate of the School of Fine Arts.

At the conclusion of the banquet ceremonies, the Syracuse university concert band will play the Alma Mater.

An informal reception in honor of Miss Sibley, who was instrumental in the drive to raise funds for the construction of the new $2,910,000 building, will be given by the Syracuse university Alumnae Club on Saturday evening at 8 p.m. in the Alumnae Lounge of the building.

Open house with guided tours will be conducted Friday evening following the Brotherhood service and Saturday morning from 9 a.m. until noon.

Committee to Pick Conference Head

Prospective chairmen for plenary sessions of the March foreign policy conference must hand in applications by 5 p.m. today to Marcia Michelbacher, Chi Omega.

The plenary chairman will be chosen by the conference steering committee at 9 p.m. tomorrow at the Chi Omega house. All applicants are asked to attend the meeting.

The conference, scheduled for March 5-7, will be attended by delegates from New York state colleges and universities and will focus attention on various aspects of US foreign policy.

Groups sponsoring the conference include men's and women's student governments, National Students' association, Young Republicans, Young Democrats, Students for Democratic Action and UNASU.

WAA Badminton Opens Today

The opening WAA badminton session is slated rom 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Wed. Nov. 4 in Gym B of the Women's building. All coeds are eligible for participation.

A tournament for advanced players will be drawn up, and instruction will be offered for beginning badminton players, according to manager Bayne Chase.

Badminton will be offered every Wednesday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. and every Friday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

GOP Gets Syracuse, Wagner Takes NYC

Democrats elected two governors and the mayor of New York city yesterday as Republicans in Syracuse won by electing a Republican mayor and president of the city council. The Republicans kept the balance of power in the state.

Robert Minor scored an upset in New Jersey by getting the nod for governor, and in Virginia, Thomas E. Stanley, apparently proved the power of the Harry Byrd machine by obtaining a Democratic victory in the gubernatorial race there.

In Syracuse Donald H. Mead, Republican, was elected mayor of Syracuse by a plurality of 15,162 votes. Mrs. Melanie Kreuzer was elected city council president in a Syracuse GOP sweep.

Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, won the New York mayoralty contest by a 2-1 count, according to figures received at 2 a. m. today. Harold Reigleman, Republican hopeful, was second and Rudolph Halley, independent, trailed.

All nine amendments to the state constitution were approved but the county director plan for Onondaga county was defeated in what politicians termed a severe "thumping." The plan was approved by city voters but swamped by the rest of the county.

Midwest reports have not yet been tabulated, but here in the East, the Democratic candidate of New Jersey for Congress was reported ahead of the GOP.

Here in New York state, the Democrats copped seven mayorships, with Republicans and one independent winning the other 14 contests reported. Republicans won in Geneva, Norwich, Olean, Plattsburgh, Rye, Little Falls, Ithaca, Oneida, Oneonta, Amsterdam, Poughkeepsie, Oswego and Glens Falls. Saratoga Springs mayor is an independent.

The Democrats won Binghamton, Cortland, Peekskill, Beacon, Hudson, Albany and Ogdensburg. Dr. Robert Kerr in Cortland swept three councilmen in with him and gave Cortland the first complete Democratic slate in its history.

Races in Cleveland, Ohio, Louisville, Ky., Pittsburgh, New Haven, Conn., also went Democratic in mayoralty contests. Westchester county and surrounding areas remained Republican.

The races in Hartford, Conn., are still undecided.

A Negro was elected president of the Borough of Manhattan for the first time in history. Democrat John Cashmore won in Brooklyn. The results of Bronx and Queens are still indefinite, although Queens, normally a Republican stronghold went Democratic for mayor. Staten Island also went Democratic.

Although the New Jersey race was considered by some to be an indication of a national feeling concerning the popularity of the Washington administration, many analysts said that the election yesterday failed to establish a trend that might be indicative of the results of next year's national elections.

'Think of Tomorrow', Leff Tells Assembly

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Describing this as a "crucial year," men's student government President Stanley Leff last night advised MSG assemblymen "to plot a course leading toward a better student government of the future."

Leff's message came in the annual review and preview of student government at the first meeting of the year for the revised MSG assembly. Twenty-five of 27 delegates were present.

EDWIN HOCHBERG, senior fraternity representative, was unanimously elected speaker of the legislature. Arthur Kinney, junior fraternity, was unopposed as speaker pro tem.

Among proposals for the year made by Leff were the following:

1. Reorganization of the panel structure of the assembly.
2. A foreign students guides program for male students similar to that in effect under women's student government.
3. Permanent joint student court system.
4. Continued investigation of the status of minor sports.
5. Possibility of University scholarships to student leaders, particularly the chief of MSG civil service.
6. Continued support of an intramural insurance program.

THE PRESIDENT suggested that four panels replace the former setup of seven. The new ones would be ways and means; public relations and organizations; conduct and welfare; and rules and elections.

Leff expressed confidence in the new assembly system and the delegates present. "If things don't get done this year, it will be hard to blame the structure," he declared. "The disease then would be something deeper."

He asked the representatives to "always remember your constituents . . . because without them student government doesn't exist to any great degree."

The group unanimously adopted a resolution proposed by junior independent Roger Herz urging all students to support the Onondagan.

Syracuse Will Try To Out-yell Cornell

Zip Team, Cheerleaders, Band to Lead Orange

A triple-threat in zest will side with Syracusans on Schoellkopf field Saturday.

The coordination of the Zip team, marching band and cheering squad has been arranged for pep festivities at the Cornell game. This marks an attempt on the part of three groups to give the students in the stands a reason to want to follow the organized gyrations on the field.

The thought is in the air that Cornell will outyell the followers of the Orange Saturday . . . in some corners it is a foregone conclusion. Robert McAllister, head cheerleader; Chris Chrisfield, Zip team manager; and Kenneth Fredericks, graduate band leader, are the triune that will try to rectify this error.

The Zip team takes its final flips this week before its tryout before hte most critical audience of all Saturday. The members of the team are Danny Traficanti, Frankie Cipoletti, John Barkle, Ferdie Fournies, Bill Lee and captain Corky Sebbo.

And the members of the cheering section? . . . sign your names below.

Torbert to Speak To Debate Club

Edward L. Torbert, vice president of the Onondaga Pottery Co. and past president of the U. S. Potters association, has accepted an invitation to be guest speaker at the Debating club meeting at 8 o'clock in room 415 H. L. tonight.

Torbert will act as resource man for the club by giving information on this year's national debate topic, "Resolved: that the United States should adopt a policy of free trade." He will also present arguments for the negative side of the subject.

The guest speaker is a director of the Lincoln National Bank and Trust Co., a director of the Excelsior Insurance Co. and treasurer of the Vitrified China association, Inc.

Army ROTC Offers Trick Drilling

Army ROTC is offering a special session in trick drilling. The purpose of this course is to promote better drilling for those interested.

There will be one practice session a week and no social activities in connection with the group. All interested people should attend a meeting tonight at 7:30 in 113 Machinery Hall.

Sophs to Feature Collegiate Theme At Annual Dance

By POLLY REED

The "Krazy Kollege Kickoff," 1953 version of the Soph Hop, will have its debut at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 13.

Three-D decorations will transform the men's gym from a mundane gymnasium to an exciting football field. From the walls 3-D spectators will cheer the couples as they dance between two huge goalposts at either end of the floor.

A BAR in one corner (serving coke and "teeny weenies") will add that special "Orange" flavor. Tables and chairs will be placed around the floor.

The dance, as in other years, will be semi-formal and corsageless.

An innovation by the Class of '56; a cup will be awarded to the fraternity, sorority, or living center which sells the most tickets, either among its members or to outsiders. The cup will move from winner to winner each year.

Tickets for the hop will first be given to sophomore senate representatives to sell in their houses. Any house or individual needing extra tickets should contact Suzanne Taylor, Alpha Epsilon Phi.

"WOMEN ATTENDING the Hop will receive special 2 o'clock permissions," said Elizabeth Brydon, women's student government vice president. One half of the soph hop ticket must be attached to a pink special permission to convert it to a special 2.

Ken Fredericks' popular "Saltines" band will provide music for dancing. The "Saltine's" first engagement was the Goon Squad Jiminy Cricket ball, where they were hailed as the best dance band on campus.

Intermission entertainment will be sophomore-written, and sophomore-staged and performed. Kenneth Luchs, who wrote last year's freshman weekend show, and Sidney Kalcheim are writing the soph hop show. Gilbert Katz is director and Raymond Caldiero emcee. Fred Gressinger, Kenneth Sparks, and Barbara (Corky) Corcoran headline the sophomore entertainment. All the original songs are based on the hop's theme, the Krazy Kollege Kickoff.

The posters decorating Marshall st. and campus buildings, will also be in 3-D to carry out the theme of the wall decorations of the hop.

Honorary Pledges Two Senior Coeds

Nancy Hoele and Virginia Sheldrick, seniors in the School of Speech and Dramatic Arts and the College of Fine Arts, respectively were pledged to Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, in surprise serenade ceremonies late Monday night.

Membership in the honorary is based on service to the University, responsibility, character, a 1.5 cumulative average and participation in at least one major campus activity.

MISS HOELE has been active in WAER work since her freshman year and now holds the position of station program director. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, Alpha Epsilon Rho, speech honorary and Zeta Phi Eta, women's speech honorary.

She is a resident of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Sheldrick is president of women's athletic association and acts as a senior guide. Last year she served as WAA vice-president and represented the group on WSG council. A native of Hopewell, N. J., she is a member of Rho Delta Phi, English hoorary and Delta Delta Delta sorority.

JSF Will Present 'What is a Jew?'

The Jewish Student Fellowship of Syracuse University will present a 15 minute documentary on WHEN TV this morning at 9:15. The theme for this show, as well as this year's entire series, will be "What is a Jew?"

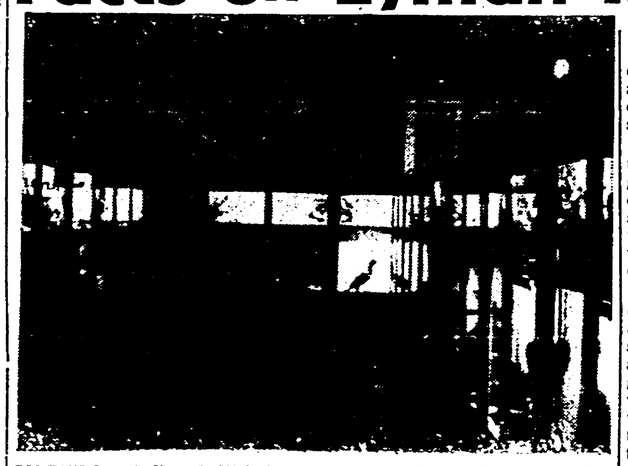
JSF participates once each month as part of a series seen daily on the station. The series "These Things We Share," features representatives of the various faiths in Syracuse.

Featured in the cast will be Dot Stein, Jack Cook, Carol Leib, Sylvia Stayman, Bob Steres, Dave Carlin, and Mitch Rothman, son of the Secretary to the Jewish Chaplain. Nancy Kulik and Mimi Leinwand will be the singers. The show is produced by Phyllis Lavine and directed by Milt Shefter. Dr. Fred Krinsky is advisor to the group.

FORESTRY LEGACIES

Fifteen sons of alumni of the State University of New York College of Forestry have enrolled in the College for September, 1953.

Facts on Lyman Revealed



ON THE fourth floor is little known and even less visited part of the campus. Here the Museum of Natural Science is located. Among the collections in the museum are the birds found in the Syracuse area.

By JOHN JOHNSRUD

Little known to most people on campus, and unknown to some, are the exhibits, displays and facilities of the Museum of Natural science.

This museum occupies most of the fourth floor of Lyman hall together with a class room and several office and work spaces. A study area is also provided for the convenience of students not wishing to leave Lyman between classes.

THIS STUDY hall is located in one corner of the museum. Shelves on one wall contain many scientific textbooks. On one table are current science periodicals of general interest. These are provided for the use of those people who want to study as well as those who merely want to pass time in the study hall.

Sockman to Speak At Colgate Service

JSF to Sponsor Program In Hendrick's Chapel

The sixth annual Colgate Weekend Brotherhood Service will be held at 8:30 Friday, Nov. 13, in Hendricks chapel, co-chairmen Jane Shechells and Avis Yaffee have announced.

The traditional service, sponsored by Jewish Student Fellowship, will follow the pep rally.

Dr. Ralph Sockman of the Christ Church, New York City, will be the speaker. Dr. Sockman has also spoken at all previous Brotherhood Services. He will be introduced by Dean Charles C. Noble.

Rabbi Irwin Hyman will lead the service, assisted by Cantor Lerner of Temple Adath Yeshurin, Syracuse, and the combined Chapel-JSF choirs, under the direction of Dr. Arthur Poister.

Groups desiring block seating for the all-university function may contact Mrs. Arlene Rothman, JSF councilor, university extension 496.

Assisting the co-chairmen are the following: Beverly Kaplan and Jane Williams, choir; Marjorie Lavine, speakers bureau; Joseph Lauderstein, program; and Mary Ann Lana and Marcia Morrison, secretarial.

Rules Announced For Shaker Contest

Originality and adaptability to cheerleading motions will be the main factors in the choosing of a winning cheer in the Shaker contest sponsored by Pi Lambda Phi fraternity.

All entries, which will be judged by Robert McAllister, head cheerleader, ust be turned in by the Nov. 6 deadline to the Pi Lambda house.

The rules for the entries are that they must be original, involve the "Beat Colgate" idea and use the shaker.

The winning cheer might possibly become a standard cheer to be used at every Colgate football game, states the fraternity.

Prizes for the contest are two tickets to Schine's Paramount theater, two tickets to the Sophomore Hop, an orchid corsage and two tickets to the Bill Orange breakfast.

Dean Noble Stresses Maturity in Marriage

By LIZ GODDARD

A couple must be economically, psychologically and sociologically ready for marriage before they take the step, Dean Charles C. Noble advised students in the third social hygiene lecture yesterday.

Speaking on "Choosing a Mate," the Chapel dean said, "I am old-fashioned enough to believe that a couple must be able to pay their own way and be economically independent."

"THEY SHOULD be psychologically mature enough to cope with the outside pressures that are placed on a marriage," he warned, adding that community responsibility is also important.

He stressed the importance of "playing the field" but urged that "when you reach the point where you begin to focus, you should go with groups where there are the minimum of obstacles in adjustment and development."

The Chapel dean listed three criteria for telling when you have the right person although he cautioned that "no one can tell you when you are in love."

Biological love and physical attraction is an essential element of any marriage, he said, "but physiological juxtaposition is not enough."

RESPECT AND admiration for the other person's total character and personality and an actual liking for your partner are also necessary.

Common interests were the dean's third point. "I am not asking for cultural inbreeding, but a couple should be able to speak the same cultural language," he counseled. "It will pay off in family cohesiveness."

He urged students to marry within their own religious faith. "The integrity of both parties is involved in a mixed marriage and it is difficult to face the obstacles involved."

He listed reasonably good health, the ability to earn a living, and high psychological maturity of both parties as important considerations.

"Marriage should be a thing of mutuality and not of domination by either party," he stated. "There will always be successful exceptions to the rule, but a couple must be fully aware of the obstacles they have to face and be prepared to cope with them."

Procopio, Green, Kimble, Brown Vie for President

Five polling places will be open today as about 1,400 freshmen cast ballots for officers of the class of 1957.

BOOTHS WILL be open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in front of Maxwell and the Hall of Languages and on the north side of the Quadrangle. Hours of booths at Washington Arms and Sims dining halls will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m.

Only freshmen are eligible to vote in the election. Ballots may be split in any way, according to civil service.

Identification cards for the class of 1957 must be presented before a ballot may be cast.

United Students party will have top position on the ballot. Placing was decided by lot. Second spot went to Tri-O, the other party supporting candidates in the election.

The complete list of candidates and their activities as supplied by civil service follows:

SDX, J-Honorary, Schedules Smoker

Sigma Delta Chi, professional men's journalism honorary, will hold a rushing smoker at 7 p.m. today, 724 Comstock ave. All interested students are invited to attend, according to Hugh O. Muir, chapter president.

Requirements include enrollment in the School of Journalism and a 2.0 cumulative average in journalism courses. One of the basic aims of the organization is to promote entry into the journalism field after graduation.

The group sponsored the contest last year to find the Daily Orange queen. Its current projects include a "style book" that will be used by many New York state newspapers, Muir said. Several professional members are initiated into the local chapter each year on the occasion of conventions of New York editors' and publisher's meetings in Syracuse.

Cornell Apathy

Only 1,600 student tickets for Saturday's Syracuse-Cornell clash have been sold, according to word received late yesterday from the athletic office.

This is less than half the amount sold two years ago, the last time the traditional tussle was held at Ithaca.

Many reasons have been advanced for the slow sale, but one of the most important is that the students do not understand the nature of the Cornell ticket received at registration with their other ducats.

Those tickets are merely exchange tickets and must be presented at the athletic office before 5 p.m. tomorrow in order to obtain admission at $1.80. If the tickets are not exchanged by that time, the student will have to purchase the regular $3.60 seat when appearing at Cornell.

Another reason for the poor sale to date is the lack of organizations wishing to attend in a body. Two years ago, IFC organized block seating for the fraternities and 3,500 students attended. This year less than a dozen groups have asked for block seating.

It shouldn't be necessary to plug a Syracuse game, especially against Cornell, the leading Ivy League school. According to staseven years.

The hour drive to Cornell is inexpensive and not too time-consuming, even for those who like to catch up on a little study on the weekends. The beauty of the Cornell campus and impressive Schoellkopf field are not to be missed.

The cheerleaders will join the festivities as well as the Zip team, making its initial appearance. The "100 men and a girl" group led by Alta Burg will be on hand to increase the spirit.

There are 1,900 seats in the Ithaca stadium still reserved for Syracuse students. Let's show the Hill team and the Big Red that we can hang out the SRO sign, even at the Cornell field.

Weight of a ballot

Today is election day for some 1900 students, but it is, through logic, fruitless to exhort these people to "get out and vote."

It is an adage that politicians have learned that people rarely "go out and vote" because they consider it their duty. Duty and politics are too frequently strangers.

No, people take the trouble to break their daily routines and vote because they have a personal interest in what the results will be.

For an attempt at proof of this 'personal interest' we could cite a national parallel. Parallels are dangerous things to draw. Too often the similarities are alike in fact but not in principle. However, one cannot help but notice that exactly one year ago today this nation had the largest turnout for balloting in its history. And it has been readily agreed that it was the personal elements of the two major candidates that caused this.

To quickly focus this down to our level, we wish to draw this one parallel: do the candidates that are competing today rate the interest of the student to the extent that he or she will break the college routine and vote?

The answer, unfortunately, is not a black or white "yes" or "no." Obviously, regardless of the size of the vote, someone will be elected. With this impending result in mind it seems that the only valid course of action is to take a part in trying to elect the best qualified person. This is the only way to clog the machinery of politicians, which all too often runs off balance.

In the alienation between duty and politics, which side do you choose?

'...And Almost No Story'

By ROGER J. HERZ

Daily Orange Columnist

Undercurrent:

A new inertia, (definition: lack of energy or activity), has appeared on the Syracuse campus.

It's SAG.

Student Apathy group.

Soon MSG will be dead. WSG will die. IFC and Panhell will kick the proverbial bucket. There will not even be obits when the publications cease. The outing club will die and will no longer meet on the library steps. The library will be dead.

Pathetic part of this new apathetic group is that it's rather negative in approach.

Member NAA—National Apathy association.

The idea started in the offices of that great campus monthly magazine, which prefers to remain nameless. Three individuals down at the end of the Hellbox though of SAG and pledged themselves to secrecy.

Philosophically, we suppose they are correct—it would be so much more indifferent to let no one know of the existence of such a group even if it fills no need in such a perfect way.

There'll probably be a National Apathy day, on which everyone will stay home.

So you don't think campus life is changing, brother?

Seems that The Daily Orange Monday issue is featuring death. The deceased student union brought tears to our eyes a few weeks ago. This week we stoically refused to cry over the impending death of the ON.

Remember the ON? It WAS a great tradition. The alumni that treasures theirs stop with the class of '53. It's only a few more days until we'll probably hear the glad tidings that the yearbook has hit the dust.

It'll be quite sentimental to look back to this year and say with a tear in the eye—"The ON died that year."

But don't rush out and put down three bucks on an ON just because we're insinuating that it's worthwhile.

It really doesn't make much difference.

Nothing is very important any more.

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

CARNIVALS & TRAFFIC LIGHTS (?)

By MILT SHEFTER

To say the least, the Campus Chest Carnival was the most. Everyone including cohorts Dick Case and Homer lent their presence to help make this one of the tops yet. While whirling through the maze of chance games, lucious legsters from Haven, and assorted torture chambers called amusement, our sights were set in many directions.

Pup gets the Gate: The presence of last year's football queen, Jane Gates, helped sell many more tickets on the Bingo-Raffle. Many fellas thought Jane was included with the mongrel. As she carried one of the three pups around the carnival, we couldn't help thinking, It's a dog's life.

Minstrel Music: We couldn't help but enjoy the corn and music in the tent beside the Chem Lab. With music from Jolson to Showboat, and a trip, to gay Paree and the Can-Can, what else could be said than "that wasn't by wife—I bought ou the Haven Stand.

One poor soul was drowning his sorrows at the Pepsi stand. His date had called to break their date saying she was engaged . . . and not just for that evening.

Light Reflections: Over a week has gone by since the new yellow poles were sunk along University Place. And still no lights. It appears the gentlemen concerned are waiting ro Christmas so the bulbs will be in style. To add to the complexity of the situation, recently installed ditches were becoming most effective in snarling traffic and causing a simple street crossing to become an obstacle course. That no serious accidents occurred could only be attributed to bigger powers than Notre Dame football. Down with delays and up with trenches. This was not a paid political announcement.

And now if you'll excuse us, we must get our razors sharpened. Scalping season on Colgate opens next Monday.

LETTERARY COMMENT

ON CO-OPS & SUNDAY'S SERMON

Co-op II

November 2, 1953

To the Editor
Syracuse Daily Orange:

On Monday, Nov. 2 in a Daily Orange article announcing an open house at Peck II, cooperative dorm for women, the following statement appeared: "Peck II is the only full cooperative dorm on campus. The girls do all their own cooking ,cleaning and other tasks at the ohuse."

This is not altogether correct. Located at 516 Ostrom avenue is a red brick building known as the Syracuse Men's Co-op. We also claim the title of "full co-op," since like the girls, we do all our own cooking, cleaning and other tasks at the house."

Along with Peck II, we represent the co-op movement at Syracuse university, working and planning to make available to S. U. students "without regard as to race, color or creed, a cooperative spirit of living brotherhood," as well as the most economical housing and board we can cooperatively provide.

Shock

An Open Letter to Charles Noble:
Dear Dean,

Your man Friday, Chaplain Arnold Nakajima, really gave us a mental shock treatment Sunday morning in Chapel. It was one of the most lucid diagnosis of the ills of our modern world I have ever heard. It awakened me to full consciousness of my responsibility as a member of the human race to realize my unlimited possibilities o fmaking my world a better one through "rediscovering my faith in myself."

I stand condemned among those who have been acting as "victims of forces beyond our control" and not "victors." What we are witnessing in our generation are the consequences of our own lethargy and unwillingness to overcome our problems, fears and anxieties.

The Chaplain's message has given me hope for civilization, my own chaotic world of existance, for I feel transformed to do something about it in my own small way.

A Senior '54

Dull Dames

One of the strange things about this country of ours is that most men who have to talk to a woman for more than ten minutes (barring, of course, communings of an amorous nature) are bored stiff as a smoke herring. Both socially and matrimonially speaking, amusing and interesting talk between the sexes is a rarity.

The Central New York Men's Wear Club announced "Bare Knees for Men" next summer. Shorts for everyday wear are expected to be all the rage by the leading manufacturers, whether knees are natty, knobby, or obnoxious.

Also shown was a sort of "Bikini" suit, held together on the sides by black laces.

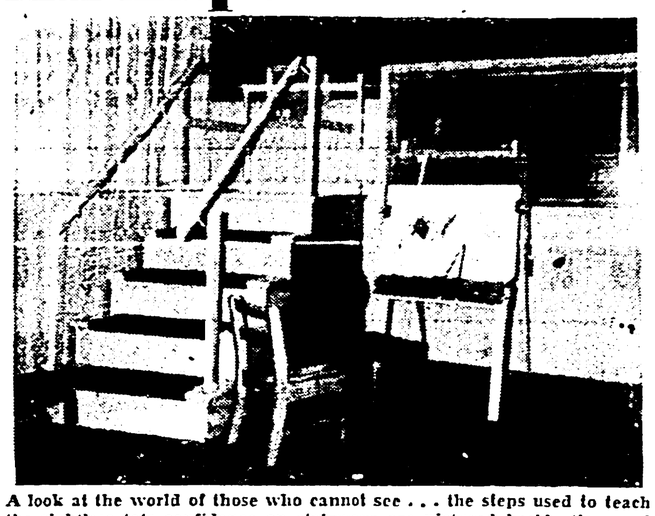
An Experiment for the Blind

Special Ed Has Instruction For Tots

By AMELIA KRONGOLD



A look at the world of those who cannot see . . . the steps used to teach the sightless tots confidence on stairways are pictured beside the easel of the kids who are learning young how to fit into this world of light.

There they were: The twins were standing on chairs next to the sink, washing dishes, Joe was painting a picture, and Chucky was playing in the sandbox. It certainly was difficult to believe that these three year olds were partially or totally blind.

This nursery school for blind children is conducted by Mrs. Ferne Root under the auspices of the Community Chest project of the Lighthouse for the Blind. Mrs. Root is very ably assisted by Miss La Verne Tupper and members of the Syracuse Junior league.

The class takes place in one of the regular playrooms of the Special Education building. They have all kinds of toys, including blocks, wagons, brooms, painting easels, and blackboards. The only exceptional piece of equipment in the room is a model staircase. This is used to teach the children how to walk up and down stairs, judge distances, and develop coordination.

The main purpose of this unique class is to encourage the children to become independent, and yet cooperative. The teachers hope that these handicapped children will be accepted in the public schools and will adjust themselves in the educational world.

The children go about their business very matter-of-factly. They are very determined to overcome their obstacles. As Miss Tupper stated, "We are not teaching blind children, we are teaching children who do not see." At 10:30 a.m., the class takes a "coffee break". Juice, or milk and cookies are usually served. As any child of three, they don't like to be fed or helped. They are very eager to discover things by themselves.

After this "refresher", the twins really went into action. Yvette and Yvonne love to wash dishes, and this was their golden opportunity. They put on their aprons and got right to work. Although one of the twins is totally blind and the other has partial sight, their handicaps are not evident. They know every spot in the room, and as sisters are very protective of each other.

This class is still in the experimental stage. At present there are only four other such classes in the state. They are in New York city, Brooklyn, Buffalo, and Rochester. If they are successful, it is hoped that other cities and communities will take up the project. Although there are only five tots attending the class at present, there are a total of eight children who are eligible in the Syracuse area.

An Evening at the Theatre

Witches & Cats in NYC

By JOAN NADELHAFT

Daily Orange Drama Critic

The local talent had it all over the imported last night, when "Bell, Book and Candle" walked through its first evening at the Astor Theater.

Ken Bowles was a fine, snappy warlock in John Van Druten's comedy about witches in modern Manhattan. Ken is the local talent we spoke of, and a warlock is a male witch.

He is at his best playing those grandiose roles, and the part of the scheming brother gave him opportunity to perform miracles in a nonchalant regal manner which was a delight to watch.

Sylvia Sidney was uneven in the role of the beautiful witch. Physically, she fitted the role admirably, and her costume for the first scene of the third act—tight black velvet lounging slacks and white jacket—showed this well, but she was miscast as Gilian.

Her nervous scene was well played and showed her capabilities, but she lacked the necessary verve to carry off the opening acts, particularly the first. Her gestures and timing were good, in the last act and the switch from violent, supernatural anger to shock and sudden fear were especially dramatic. This scene is probably the best in the show.

Unfortunately, if Miss Sidney was uneven, her leading man was much more so. Herbert Patterson was very good in the first act. As the play progressed, however, he did not, and ended speaking his last lines rather like a high school senior in his class play. He was like the little girl in the nursery rhyme, who, when she was good was very, very good, and when she was bad . . .

Camilla Ashland was excellent as a flighty, slightly stupid aunt, who is also a witch. She played the role in a manner somewhat reminiscent of Josephine Hull-type parts but still much her own. She went to the depths of the shallow character, and played her for all she was worth.

Thomas Ratcliffe, a summer stock producer, stepped into the play in an emergency. He played the role of a writer, who appears a few times, and adds to the comedy, plotwise. The part did not call for much, and Mr. Ratcliffe did the job.

The principals did not enjoy themselves playing the parts, and it showed. The play ambled where it should have trotted, and the first act simply introduced the characters and set the scene. It is supposed to do that, yes, but it can do much more if played right. This one did not. There is an old saying that any play would be improved if the first act were removed. This may not be true of every play written, but certainly fitted this one.

This is not the type of play which can weather any acting, as long as the lines are spoken in English and loud enough for the audience to hear, as some past efforts at the Astor have been. Plays such as "Born Yesterday," and "The Man Who Came to Dinner" can withstand almost anything and still be entertaining.

Some of Van Druten's lines were gems. As good as his "Voice of the Turtle," in fact. The script is draggy in spots, and becomes talky in the middle. The choicest bits are the "witching" scenes.

This comedy needs interpretation and enthusiasm to put it across. Miss Sidhey and Patterson did not give it that. Miss Ashland and Bowles did.

The set was pleasing, and the technical side done well, this week. If Kurt Steinbart, the director, had paced it a little faster, some of the speed might have inspired the principals and given them a little more pep.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Everybody's going down to Ithaca this Saturday. Brother, they're really gonna' tear the joint apart. Plenty of that sour tasting beverage, lots of singing, all that party-party stuff and a football game, too. Yeah, they're going down to Big Red territory this weekend but it may be the last trip for quite a spell. That's the strangest part of the whole story.

I'd really like to see them take Army and Navy apart. And what would happen if they broke the Yale-Harvard rivalry. But in 1955 that gradually growing spirit between Cornell and Bill Orange is about to be broken. Everyone knows that the Cornell game is slowly giving the Colgate contest a real fight for priority here at Syracuse. Why break something down when it is beginning to really blossom into something fine? That's the question everyone here in Saltineland is asking as Saturday approaches. But no answer is in sight.

The whole story goes way back to last year when it was announced that because of earlier promises Syracuse could not be put on the Cornell football slate in 1955. It seems that the game was to be played sometime in early November and the date had been set aside for another team. Since Syracuse could not fit the Redmen into its October scheduling the contest was called off for the year. That's what the papers said, but they were "way out in leftfield."

Sure Syracuse wants the game but if it comes to begging the Cornell schedule makers to fit it in then Jim Decker, Lew Andreas and co. want nothing of it. It's a fine tradition playing that third Upstate grid power every year. The series has dated way back to 1891 and produced some of the most exciting football seen around this part of the country. But that is all in the past now.

Down through the years Syracuse has been a sort of doormat for the Cornell elevens. Getting beaten 22 out of 30 games is tough for any team to take but the Orangemen have just turned the other cheek. For the first 11 games played between the institutions the Redmen won every one by shutouts. In 1900 the series was stopped, then resumed again in 1933.

Robert Kane

In recent years it has been a known fact that a certain group of Cornell alums were trying to get Syracuse off the schedule. They were tired of the Redmen drubbing the Orange year after year. "We want all Ivy league schools to play Cornell," these alums shouted into the ears of Athletic Director Bob Kane. And so it finally happened after the repercussions of the past two years of competition.

With the arrival of Coach Ben Schwartzwalder here on the Hill, football began to grow. And it grew and grew and grew. Real material was given to the West Virginian who knew how to handle it the right way. And so football came to Syracuse and with it came success.

With Schwartzwalder at the helm, Bill Orange began to pay the Redmen back for their past beatings. Two years ago they gave them a scare before losing 21-13 on a play which resulted in a score on the opening kickoff via the fumble route. But last year the Syracuse grid machine ran through the Red line and catapulted to a brilliant victory. Right there the group of alums were given the chance to act.

And then, after the Orange won the Lambert Trophy, these fellows decided it was time to make the big break. They had their big opportunity and made the best of it. They cried and moaned that Syracuse was supposedly too strong for the Cornell teams. Thus they have dropped us from their slate in '55.

It's too bad these loyal alums don't think about the other fellows in this situation. They just can't try and think what the average Central New York state football fan is thinking about this closing of a football rivalry for supposedly just one season. Nope, these guys are out for "Strict Ivy" and the only way they can do it is to drop the Orange by one way or another. It just seems that Syracuse is not attractive enough for them. Well, that's just too bad.

Sure we would like to have Cornell on our slate in '55. And we'd love to keep the annual series in tact, but when you buck up against alumni power it's mighty tough. You just can't tell. Perhaps in 1956 the name of Syracuse might be satisfactory for these men. And then they will kindly put us back on their slate.

But why should Syracuse have to wait until these guys get good and ready. We've got a real good football team and our name is beginning to move way up in football circles. The Illinois loss showed the whole nation just how good at football we can be. Our frosh club has some very fine potential and the returning veterans next season should produce another winning club.

So let's go down to Cornell feeling mighty proud this Saturday. So what if we are not on their schedule in '55. There are a dozen clubs who would like to play us. We've got a good team, a fine school and a top football coach. And say, how about giving Mr. Lefty James, his team and those alums with the "important improvements" the best shellacking they have ever had as a delayed farewell gift from Bill Orange.

And so a fond goodbye to Ithaca, home of the Big Red and now rapidly "grwing Ivy." We hope it's only for a short time.

Fordham, Iona Meet Grievemen Saturday

Van Cortlandt park will once again be the scene of a Syracuse cross-country meet this Saturday. Two weeks ago last Saturday the Piety harriers defeated teams from Navy and St. John's and will, therefore, be striving for their second victory on the New York city course.

Fordham and Iona will provide the opposition for the Saltine runners this time. Both of these metropolitan area teams have faced small schools for the most part and, thus, their records to date would be difficult to compare with that of the Orangemen.

AFTER NOTCHING a 23-32 victory over the cadets of West Point, Syracuse has relegated itself to preparing for the final meet before the IC4A meet in New York city Nov. 16.

Gene Parker returned to his early season form by finishing third against the Cadets. Another early finisher for the Orangemen was Ed Alger, who placed fourth.

Booters Score 1-0 Victory

By STAN ROSENFELD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Sig Wirth's second period goal gave the Orange booters their second victory of the season by a score of 1-0 at Brockport yesterday afternoon. The victory evened the

The return to form by Steve record of Coach Andy Coccari's charges at two wins, two losses and a tie.

The game played on a wind swept field was completely dominated by the Hillmen. They carried the attack completely to Brockport and blew numerous scoring opportunities.

THE GOAL came on a three man charge of Nick Razos, Bill Nelson and Wirth. Nelson, the diminutive all-American received credit for the assist.

Syracuse's defenses lead by Capt. Don Moller, Don Shupe and Bud Gormon were superb. Moller has starred in every one of the Hillmen's games to date.

Key factor in the game was not any of the players but the howling wind. The short passes of the Hill booters tended to overcome this obstacle while Brockport was attempting long shots and passes with little success.

Gunnar Wirth turned his best performance for the Orange in the net. Although his saves weren't numerous, those that he made were excellent. It was Wirth's first shutout in inter-collegiate competition.

THE HILLMEN go back into practice today for a Friday afternoon home encounter with Colgate. Game time is slated for 2:30.

The Red Raiders have shown a team that has alternately looked very good and very bad. In their last game, it took Penn State two overtimes to edge them, 1-0. The Nittanies are rated as one of the top Eastern teams.

Against Cornell however, the Colgate booters were swamped 5-0. Syracuse played Cornell to a 1-1 standstill earlier in the season.

Net notes: Syracuse's loss to Sampson does not count in intercollegiate competition. Hence the only loss for the Orangemen came at the hands of Cortland State Teachers. Billy Nelson is currently engaged in practice for both soccer and basketball. He is trying to be a three letter man, with baseball being the other sport.

Nationals Face Improved Rivals

Fans who intend to visit the Onondaga County War Memorial this Fall and Winter to see the Syracuse Nats in action against their National Basketball rivals should see several of the weaker sisters of the league last year greatly strengthened this campaign.

The disintegration of the Indianapolis franchise brought about the distribution of the players on the Olympian squad to the teams which did not fare so well last year.

Joe Grabowski and Paul Walther have joined the Philadelphia Warriors. Leo Barnhorst is now with the Baltimore Bullets, and members of the Milwaukee Hawks. These teams are expected to give the Nats and the other NBA teams more trouble now than they did a year ago.

SPLASH PARTY

The swimming team will sponsor an all-University splash party Friday evening from 7:30-10 in the Archbold pool. A 50 cent admission will be charged and all students are welcome.

"T" for Two

Talented Soph Backs Boost Cornell Offense

Cornell's Ivy league-leaders will present a varied offense Saturday when they seek to clinch Upstate grid honors against the Orangemen of Syracuse.

DEGRAAF, A 6 ft. 2, 195-pounder from Clifton, N. J., also the home of Syracuse's Ted Kukowski, is a far better passer than his record indicates. Bill has completed only 23 of 66 tosses this season but his inexperienced soph receivers have dropped nearly an equal number.

Bedrossian, 5 ft. 11, 196 pound native of Hartford, Conn., is rated among the East's best fullbacks. He was Cornell's chief threat a year ago when the Orange dumped the Red, 26-6 in Archbold stadium and figures prominently in plans for Saturday's tussle.

The victory over Columbia was the Reds' third of the season as against two losses and a tie and gave them undisputed possession of the Ivy league lead. Yale, erstwhile Ivy leader, was dumped by Dartmouth, 32-0 to drop into a second place deadlock with Princeton.

Now the Ithacans, earlier victors over Colgate, are looking for a sweep against Upstate competition and the Big Three championship which Syracuse won in 1952.

Final Opportunity For Cornell Tickets

Students must present their exchange tickets and ID cards in addition to $1.80 by 5 p.m. tomorrow at the Archbold gymnasium ticket office in order to obtain student tickets for this Saturday's Cornell-Syracuse game at Ithaca.

Anyone who does not pick up his tickets at the Archbold gym ticket office by Thursday will have to pay $3.60 for his ducat.

Ticket buyers should be reminded that the Cornell ticket issued at registration is not an admission ticket but must be exchanged for a regular ducat at the Archbold ticket office in order to obtain the student price.

Freshman Coach Les Dye Conducts Forum Tonight

Tonight at 7:30 in Maxwell auditorium Fans' Forum will run again. The movies of the Holy Cross - Syracuse game will be shown with freshman Coach Les Dye at the switch.

All those who wish to attend will have to bring ID cards. In the past this has not been strictly enforced, but by the proximity of both Cornell and Colgate have made it a necessity. In the past, there has been some difficulty around this time of year.

COACH DYE played for Syracuse in 1942. After a stint in the service, Dye played end for the Washington Redskins in 1946. This was around the same time that Sammy Baugh was putting in some of his best years with the Redskins.

From the Redskins end position, Dye moved to a position as Clarkson's coach.

Dye has coached the freshmen to a 1-1 record this year. Undoubtedly among the questions that will be put to him at the Forum is the reason for the upset his frosh suffered last weekend. After beating Army's frosh down at West Point, previously thought an impossible feat because of the local officiating, they dropped a game to Wyoming Seminary.

Coach Dye saw the Cornell Redmen play Yale and is therefore capable of answering any questions fans might have concerning Cornell. Because this is the week that the injured are expected to return, fans can find out just what sort of shape the team will be in for Cornell. Very likely, the weekly question: "When will Wetzel be back?" will be asked again.

SYRACUSE'S STRANGE showing out in Worcester will be interesting to see on the screen. The Orange did not start to move until a 48 yard TD run by Stark. It was this run that demoralized the Holy Cross team that, up to that time, fought hard but had nothing to show for their efforts.

Yancey's first game at right halfback and Slick's first job at end will be of interest to the fans. Also from his work in the Holy Cross game, Ted Kukowski was named: "unsung lineman in the East" last week. The citation claimed that it was Ted's work that kept Holy Cross from scoring when they threatened

GYMNASTIC MEETING

A meeting of all varsity gymnastic candidates will be held this afternoon in the main portion of Archbold gym at 4:30. It is important that all aspirants for the team report to this meeting.

Phi Gams in Quarterfinals; Al Smith Rips Men's Co-op

By PAUL RIPP

In last night's action on Hendricks field, Phi Gamma Delta squeaked its way into the intramural football quarter-finals with a 13-12 victory over Sigma Chi.

The Phi Gams tallied both their touchdowns by returning both of their rival's kickoffs, which followed the Sigma Chi scores, to paydirt. Stu Parker and Burt Rich carried the ball on these point-producing runs. Rich topped off a perfect evening with the game winning extra point pass to Al Collier.

Al Smith copped the Flight III championship with a 26-18 win over Men's Co-op. Gene DeMarco and Bob Conklin ran roughshod through the opposition. Each scored a brace of touchdowns to lead Al Smith to victory.

In a close fight Beta Theta Pi edged Zeta Beta Tau 2-0 for Flight I laurels.

ENGINEERING GRADUATES!

Representatives of CURTISS-WRIGHT CORPORATION PROPELLER DIVISION

Will Be On the Campus

NOVEMBER 11

BE SURE TO CHECK WITH YOUR PLACEMENT BUREAU FOR AN INTERVIEW!

● The Propeller Division of Curtiss-Wright Corporation is a vastly broader and deeper engineering field than the name implies. In addition to development and production of propellers, including the new turboprop type, there is continuous work in machine design, stress analysis, aerodynamics, hydraulics, metallurgy, electronics, servo-mechanisms, instrumentation and controls. This division is engaged in the development of rockets for both military and peacetime applications.

This makes for long term stability and creates sound career opportunities for engineers, with a wide choice of interesting, well-paid jobs.

If you are looking for a secure and rewarding future, be sure to talk it over with the Curtiss-Wright Propeller Division Representative when he visits the campus.

Contest for ON Set By Beta Sigma Rho

Fraternity Offers $40 Cash Prizes To Help Yearbook

The faltering '54 Onondagan was given a boost today with the announcement of an essay contest, "I Bought a 1954 Onondagan Because . . ." to be sponsored by Beta Sigma Rho.

Cash prizes of $25, $10 and $5 will be awarded to the three winners who complete the sentence in 25 words or less to the satisfaction of the judges.

ENTRIES WILL be judged on originality, neatness and clearness.

The contest is open only to students who make deposits of $3 on the 1954 Onondagan. Blanks can be picked up from ON staff members and at the Hellbox.

Those who have already purchased books can obtain a blank upon showing their receipt to an ON representative. Providing 1,500 ON's are sold before Nov. 7, the contest will go on until Nov. 23.

Sales of the yearbooks have reached approximately the 500 mark. "This is still about 1,000 short of the minimum figure needed for publication," announced business manager Charlene Velon.

A SIMILAR situation concerning the fate of the ON occurred with the '50 publication. In that year, 3,000 subscriptions were needed to insure the publication of the yearbook.

If the minimum of subscriptions were not reached the ON was to be discontinued. The Nova club, the organization that was the forerunner of Beta Sigma Rho fraternity, sponsored a similar ocntest that year.

The ON staff, with the help of the Nova club contest and other organizations including the Co-op council, the Syracusan staff and Independent Men's association reached the minimum goal and there was an ON that year.

This year, Thomas Beckett, editor of the ON, currently in the infirmary, praised the members of Beta Sigma Rho for their support of the ON and said that the contest would be of great help to that publication.

York area, an extensive collection of rock types, many examples of bird life found in the Syracuse - Onondaga county area, and a display of some of the many butterflies that inhabit the locality are among the varied displays in the museum.

Fred Holley, curator of the museum, and his assistants hope someday to have collections of the small mammals living in the Syracuse area and of the wild flowers growing in these regions. These and other exhibitions would be set up in the form of habitat groups.

The museum's budget is severely limited, however, and the exhibits are a long way from being added to the present displays. Because of this lack of money no work is being done, even on the present exhibits.

Space as well as money is an important factor in the future operation of the museum. New habitat groups and other exhibits require more room than is now available. All of the existing usable space is already being taken up by exhibits.

Col. Stevens Presents Posthumous Medals

Lt. Col. George R. Stevens III presented the Bronze Star medal to the mother of Private Arthur M. Darling and the Distinguished Service Cross to the brother of Sgt. William R. Smith in two ceremonies yesterday at Onondaga County War Memorial. Col. Stevens is professor of military science and tactics on the Hill.

ROTC cadets from the Hill detachment participated in the ceremony.

MRS. PEARLE DARLING, the dead soldier's mother, accepted the award made to the soldier "for is conscientious effort, great initiative and unhesitating courage under enemy fire" in Korea. Col. Stevens noted "It is the supreme sacrifice of men like your son which has made this country great and which will assure that the ideals of this nation are forever perpetuated."

Patrick A. Smyth accepted the Distinguished Service Cross, awarded to his brother, who was killed by a mortar burst in Korea a year ago yesterday. After Col. Steven's adjutant, Capt. Alan T. Sylvester, read the citation from the Department of the Army, Col. Stevens stated, "The tide of battle has often hinged on the actions of single individuals whose indemitable spirit refused to accept defeat when crisis arose.

"Your brother, Sgt. William Smyth, was one of those who met the challenge and in so doing has left an inspiring example which should renew in all of us the determination that the ideals for which he fought shall never be tarnished or destroyed." The award is the nation's second highest.

Darling, a native of Cleveland, is survived by his mother and several brothers and sisters. Smyth, a native of Syracuse, is survived by two brothers, one of whom is veteran of world war II. The other brother holds the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and Bronze Star.

COL. STEVENS, who made the awards, was preceded by an address by Maj. Gen. William O. Reeder, ret., now a professor on the Hill. Gen. Reeder was formerly Commandant of the Signal school, Ft. Monmouth, N. J.

He also served in the China-Burma-India theater of operations during world war II as Signal officer. After the war, he was Foreign Liquidation commissioner and Deputy Chief Signal officer.

Col. Stevens served as Executive officer and Battalion commaner of the 1st battalion, 17th Infantry regiment, 7th division, in the Korean police action, which pushed to the Yalu river in the fall of 1950. He saw action in Europe during world war II as a member of the 507th Parachute Infantry regiment of the famed 82nd Airborne division and 17th Infantry division. Col. Stevens holds the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Presidential Unit citation and the Croix de Guerre.

Duo Pianists to Give Vet Benefit Concert

Duo pianists George and Elizabeth Mulfinger will present a benefit concert for veterans' hospitals at 8:15 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6 in the auditorium of the New Nottingham school.

Sponsored by the alumnae chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, national music honorary, proceeds from the concert will go toward purchase of musical instruments for veterans' hospitals in the area. This is in conjunction with music therapy programs for disabled former members of the armed forces.

TICKETS ARE on sale for $1.50 at the Clark Music co., Crouse college and Civic Morning Musicals.

Special buses are scheduled to leave the Syracuse Eastern terminal on Montgomery st. at 7:55 p.m. Friday to take people to the school, at 3100 E. Genesee st.

Friday's program will include three Bach selections, the Brahms Variations on a Theme by Haydn, and Schumann's "Kreisleriana No. 5." Two Chopin numbers, "Nocturne Op. 32 No. 1" and "Polonaise in F sharp minor," will conclude the third section of the program.

OTHER compositions planned by the Mulfingers are "Danse Russe" by Stravinsky, "Allegretto from Andalucian Suite" by Lecuona, Khatchaturian's "Lullaby" and "Fledermaus Paraphrase" by Strauss-Kovacs.

One composition by Mulfinger will be presented. It is "Sinbad's March."

Prof. Mulfinger studied in Europe following his graduation from the University of Chicago in 1923. While on the continent he gave debut recitals in Berlin, Vienna and Southern Germany. Returning to America, he performed in New York, Chicago and Cincinnati. He then joined Syracuse as a professor of piano.

Dr. Fox will give the background and then a critique of the work accomplished by UNESCO throughout the world.

Fate of Ruby

RUBY, once a waitress, now seems perfectly happy in her new position as a cashier in the Treasurer's office.

Disclosure on Ruby; Disappearance Solved

This story is being written for the benefit of all persons who spent their coffee time (or dime, whichever you prefer) in the Corner Store last year. Remember Ruby, the hustling cheer-filled waitress? You do? Then perhaps you too wondered to yourself upon returning to the Hill after the summer respite, "What happened to Ruby?"

The answer is this: Ruby is working as a cashier in the Treasurer's office. She is still the same gay, delightful Ruby, but now has discarded the Corner Store blue for a cool-looking skirt and a blouse ensemble.

RUBY DIETRICH, alias Mrs. John Irwin Zerbe, began working in the Corner store in September of 1951, just two weeks after she was married. She needed a job so she could aid her husband financially while he attened the New York School of Forestry.

"I wanted a job where I could work around students," Ruby told us, "and what better place than the Corner Store." She started working there behind the counter. When we first came in contact with her last year, she still held the same job.

Ruby, as we recall, was busily taking orders. After several fruitless attempts to place our order, we overheard the password to service.

"Hey Ruby!" we yelled, "How about a cup of coffee." It was effective as a similar call is at the circus grounds. "Coming right up" she yelled back. From that day on, Ruby was a friend of ours. No wonder we missed her this year when we tried in vain to get a cup of coffee.

RUBY HAILS from Pitman, Pa., a small town near Harrisburg. She met her husband, a native of Sacremento, Pa., while he was hunting with her brother. Zerbe is currently woring for a doctor's degree in wood technology.

When we interviewed Ruby, our first question was: "How come you're not working at the Corner Store this year?" "Well," she answered, "I finally decided there wasn't any future in working there, so I quit."

"I took a job with Carl's Bakery, but that lasted only two weeks. I'd heard about this opening here (the Treasurer's office) and I applied for the job. I was really glad I got it, because I wanted to get back here among the students."

We then asked her a very unfair question. Do you like working here better than working at the Corner Store? She frowned "Put it this way. I like working the five day week here better than the six day week at the Corner Store. It leaves me more time for housework." Seems natural enough.

In conclusion, here's a tip. If you are one of the countless number of students who might be standing in a long, long line next year in order to pay your room and board fees, try yelling "Hey Ruby!" See if it doesn't get you service spelled with a capital Smile.

CORNELL TUITION RAISE

A $50 raise in tuition will go into effect at Cornell university after this academic year.

The new $750 cost will affect the colleges and schools of architecture, arts and sciences, business and public administration, engineering, hotel administration, law, graduate school and the division of unclassified students.

President Dean W. Malott stated that the move was necessary because of a sustained rise in operating costs.

Chapel Will Hold Open House

Chapel will hold an open house from 3 to 5 p.m. today in the lounge. Refreshments will be served and all students are invited to attend.

Campus leaders and members of the faculty and administration have received invitations from the public relations committee, co-chairmen Ethel Smetts and Arthur Kinne announced.

The tea was planned to help the campus become more familiar with Chapel and those who work there.

ON Booths Open, Contest Aids Sales

—Booths—

In an effort to save the faltering Onondagan, five subscription booths will be set up on campus today and tomorrow.

Students will be able to purchase subscriptions for their 1954 ON at booths in the Women's building, HL, Slocum, Maxwell and the Main library. They will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days.

CHARLENE VELON, business manager of the yearbook, revealed that ON editors hope the booths will attract the city students, who so far have not been contacted.

In general, returns have been slow, Miss Velon reported. Only several hundred subscriptions have been handed in. Editors need 1,500 by Saturday in order to begin publication of the '54 book.

All returns and subscriptions must be in by Friday night or Saturday noon at the latest, the editor stated. They may be taken to the Pi Phi or Chi Omega sorority houses or the Hellbox, behind Yates castle.

A $3 deposit is payable now while another $3 will be collected in January. The final $2 payment will be made in late spring. The entire $8 can also be paid now in one sum by cash or check.

THE ON CRISIS began last month when the Administration revealed that seniors would not be billed for a '54 book. Since three-fourths of the revenue had come from the senior sale, there was no guaranteed minimum number from which to make production plans.

Several polls were conducted to determine student support. The Onondagan board of publications then announced that if 1,500 subscriptions could be obtained by Nov. 7, production could begin.

Several campus organizations joined the fight to "save the ON." Women's and men's student government and the senior executive council and assembly have announced their support.

—Contest—

'54-40 or bust!

The '54 Onondagan contest, sponsored by Beta Sigma Rho fraternity, with cash prizes totaling $440, was given a boost today as Marshall st. merchants backed the efforts to save the faltering yearbook by offering gifts to contest winners.

THE PRIZES will be awarded to the three winners who best complete the sentence "I Bought the 1954 Onondagan Because . . ." in 25 words or less, and will be judged by a trio of faculty members including Vice-Chancellor Finla Crawford, Dean of Men Frank Piskor and Dean Charles Noble.

Entry blanks are available today and tomorrow at the ON booths on the oval, or can be picked up from ON staff members or at the Hellbox. The contest is open only to students who make deposits of $3 on the '54 ON.

Those who have already purchased books can obtain a blank upon showing their receipt to an ON representative. Providing 1,500 yearbooks are sold before Saturday, Nov. 7, the contest will go on until Nov. 23.

Beta Sig is offering a first prize of $25, backed by a $10 second prize and a $5 third prize. Merchandise prizes which have been added to the three first prizes include 'Songs of Syracuse' record album, Olmsteds' Record shop; case of Coca-Cola, Jerry's Supermarket; sweater, Lund's Men's shop, and five dollars in merchandise of the winner's choice at the Varsity Camera shop.

ALSO AN imported British Sasieni pipe, Hill Smoke shop; a dinner, Cosmo restaurant; haircut and a bottle of hair tonic, University Barber shop; and a double wash, four rinses and fluff dry for 16 pounds of laundry, Maxwell's launderette.

In 1950, the Nova club, which preceded Beta Sig on the Syracuse campus, sponsored a similar contest which was won by Richard Woodbury, then a senior in Liberal Arts. His winning contribution was:

"In twenty years when our papoose
Is toting books at Syracuse,
This ON will prove what time conceals—
That Ma and Pa were also wheels."

Senior Architects Visit New York

Wolseley Edits Indian J-Book

Prof. Roland E. Wolseley of the Syracuse university School of Journalism is editor of a pioneer book, "Journalism in Modern India," just published by the Asia Publishing House of Bombay.

The book is the first authoritative volume to present an overall picture of journalism in India. A. D. Main, president of the All-India Newspaper Editors' conference, describes it as "the first of its kind."

Prof. Wolseley returned to Syracuse this summer after spending nearly two years in India where he founded the Department of Journalism at Hislop College, Nagpur. He is chairman of the magazine department at the journalism school here.

Prof. Wolseley organized the book and coordinated its chapters written by 14 prominent Indian journalists and educators. He also wrote two of the chapters.

Another edition in the Hindu language will be published shortly.

Rushees Invited By Pershing Rifles

Pershing Rifles, national drill honorary, will hold a rushing session at 7 p.m. today in 301 Machinery hall. All brothers and rushees are requested to attend. Instructions in the manual of arms and in drill will be given and refreshments will be served.

City Businesses Approve Survey

Two Syracuse business associations have joined forces to make a detailed study of the way the city can be expected to develop economically during the next ten years.

The project is being carried on under a grant from the committee for economic development, a private research organization. The year-long project will be directed by an advisory committee of the newly organized Economic Research council of Syracuse. The nine member council is made up of representatives from the Syracuse chamber of commerce, the Manufacturers Association of Syracuse and the University.

More than twenty young business executives will be selected. In cooperation with local business concerns, to carry out the first project dealing with business stability and opportunities for the growth in metropolitan Syracuse.

Arnold Air Society Holds First Rusher

The Arnold Air Society's first rushing session will be held today, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house, 113 College pl. The second session will take place on Wednesday, November 11.

Outstanding Air Force cadets, enrolled in the advanced corps compose the society. Their activities are multi-fold and include such things as co-sponsorship of the annual Military ball and the queen contest.

Red Cross Offers First Aid Courses

The Red Cross will offer free first-aid courses on the Hill this year. An eight-week standard course will be given, followed by five weeks of advanced instruction.

Open to all, the classes will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesdays in room 209 of the Women's building. The course is particularly recommended to ski instructors, members of the ski patrol, and camp counselors.

Cornell Pep Rally Poster Judging Scheduled Tonight

Posters for the Cornell pep rally must be registered with Lois Cohn, 4-3121, ext. 12, Leonard Eisen, 4-9271 or Samuel Shawhan, 75-6216 by noon today. The pep rally is scheduled for 6:45 today.

The pep rally, complete with posters, band, drum major Alta Burg, and cheerleaders, will leave from Sims. It will travel the regular route, then go to Hendricks field where the posters will be judged. All posters must be carried in the parade to become eligible for judging.

Poster judges are Miss Margaret Parker, university social director, and James E. Dwyer and Horace Clark of the School of Fine Arts. Eric H. Faigle, dean of the College of Liberal Arts will address the pep rally at Hendricks field.

Trophies awarded by Traditions commission will go to the outstanding fraternity or sorority poster, and to the outstanding living center poster. Last year Tau Delta Phi and Washington Arms were the winners.

Lois Cohn, chairman of the pep rally, requested that only judges, cheerleaders, and people entering posters go on Hendricks field. Everyone else should sit or stand on the hill on the side of the field. Posters should be taken to the left hand side of the field.

Aviation Cadet Interviews Slated

Information on Program Available Nov. 9, 10

A U. S. Air Force aviation cadet procurement team will be on campus Nov. 9 and 10 to explain the cadet program to those interested. Information may be obtained in the foyer of Maxwell from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on those days.

Only single men between the ages of 19 and 26½ who have completed two years of college are eligible. The candidate must pass a physical and will be personally interviewed before acceptance.

The aviation cadet program offers pilot training and an aircraft observer plan. The pilot training lasts 16 months, two more than the observer plan.

Graduates of the course receive 2nd lieutenant commissions in the Air Force reserve. They will be allowed to enlist in the Air Force for two years. Normal minimum enlistment is four years.

Robin Hood Dinner Held by Foresters

Prof. William P. Hotchkiss of the history department was guest speaker at the initiation banquet of Robin Hood junior honor society of the forestry college recently. Prof. Harold Core of the wood technology department, the group's faculty advisor, received a gold key from Robin Hood members. Dr. John Decker of forest botany takes over as advisor this year.

Junior members who received shingles at the banquet were Daniel Meyer, Robin Hood; Stanford Hovey, Little John; Arthur Flick, Will Scarlet; Paul Foster, Alan A'Dale; and Edward Stone, the society's representative to the forestry club cabinet.

Pinchhitter Named As Junior Officer Resigns Position

Miss Campbell Assumes Duties as Academics Panel Chairman

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Carol Campbell, a junior in the College of Liberal Arts, was appointed acting junior officer and chairman of the academics panel at last night's meeting of women's student government assembly.

STANDARDS COUNCIL President Elizabeth Brydon announced that two o'clock permissions will be granted to all coeds who attend the Soph Hop on Saturday, Nov. 15. Ticket stubs must be attached to the pink permission slips and Miss Brydon stated that special ticket collectors will be stationed at the dance throughout the evening to remind the coeds of this stipulation.

The constitution of women's athletic association was accepted by the assembly with no changes and members voted to place under panel investigation the possibility of allowing women other than house presidents to become members of WSG panels.

To aid in bettering relations with local citizens the public relations panel has prepared a questionnaire to be distributed at house meetings Sunday. Coeds will be asked to describe any volunteer social service work which they may do in the city. This information will be co-ordinated into a report at a later date.

Chairman Charlotte Easterbrook of the house policy panel reports from heads of newly-formed subcommittees on house problems, rules and regulations and standard solutions.

The standard solutions subcommittee plans to obtain written material on frequently occurring problems in coed living centers, to suggest some solutions which have been successful in the past and incorporate the information into a pamphlet which will probably go to all house presidents.

Ways and means panel will investigate the discrepancy in fees charged of girls using the Women's building. In some cases the coeds are charged $5 and in others only $3.

'Fall Faculty Frolic' Planned for Friday

The first attempt in recent years to get the Syracuse faculty together will take place at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Women's building dance studio.

"Fall Faculty Frolic," sponsored by the faculty club, will be free to faculty members.

Square dancing with a demonstration from the Syracuse Outing club, led by Ted Budrow, will start the program. Dr. Irving Cheyette and Dean Charles C. Noble will lead in group singing, to the accompaniment of the dean's accordion.

FACULTY FORUM

Paul Adanti, station manager o WHEN-TV, was guest speaker yesterday at the second Faculty club forum in Haven Hall. Mr. Adanti discussed "Programming Problems of the Commercial Broadcaster."

Frosh Presidency Copped By Procopio in Landslide

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Independent candidate Francis Procopio won the presidency of the freshman class in a landslide yesterday as 50 per cent of the class of 1957 went to the polls.

United Students party took two of the four class office posts with Arlene Plotkin named vice president and Daphne Burke secretary. Independent Norman Butterfield was elected treasurer in a close contest.

COLD WEATHER mingled with rain and snow kept the number of ballots down over last year's record figure, when Tri-O captured three of four offices. A total of 952 freshmen voted yesterday, as compared to the 1,023—73 per cent—figure in 1952.

Procopio garnered the greatest number of votes in the election winning by 514-189 over USP's Warren Kimble. Richard Green, Tri-O and William Brown, Independent, also ran.

The new president is a resident of Fulton, N. Y. and lives in Skytop M-3. Winner of the Elks award for outstanding high school graduate in Fulton, he had been active in dramatics and debating and was treasurer of the student council. Planning to major in radio-television and political science, he is a member of the St. Thomas More choir.

Miss Plotkin of USP won over Elizabeth Bartlett of Tri-O by 386-313, for vice president. Doris Lemp, Independent, received 215 votes.

RACES FOR secretary and treasurer were close, Miss Burke, USP, topped Tri-O's Barbara Solomon, 379-359, while Independent Butterfield edged Fulsom of USP, 370-352. Alta Burg, independent and Jeffrey Wenig, failed for secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The two candidates among the runners-up who received the greatest number of votes—Fulsom and Miss Solomon—will become members of the executive council.

Procopio took an early lead and never was headed. Most voters split their votes between parties, according to student government civil service, administrators of the election. Those who stuck to the party line went USP.

Transition from Youth Named Anxiety Basis

The basic source of anxieties in campus life is the difficult transition from childhood to adulthood, stated Dr. George G. Stern, at the mental hygiene lecture series at the Chapel Colonial room.

Dr. Stern, associate professor of psychology, was the second lecturer in the new series, sponsored by Chapel under co-chairmen Everett Gertner and Beverly Darrow.

Speaking on "Frustrations in Campus Living," Stern said that, upon entering college, there is the choice between dependence upon the family and independence. "This problem, as well as many others, involves adjustment, and requires the basic problem of finding one's self," he said.

Prof. Stern defined frustration as the thwarting of a need and also the choice between two objects. These usually disappear, he stated, when the individual reflects upon the matter.

"Look at our daily inconveniences. Are these the real sources of contentions or are they minor inconveniences?" asked the former University of Chicago research worker.

However, when these anxieties become general and reach a peak where capacity for problem solving is no longer useful, the situation begins to develop into a real frustration, Dr. Stern said.

Most frustrations, he believed, referred to what we ourselves find frustrating.

Ukraine Musicians To Present Concert

The Ukrainian Bandurists chorus, a unique group of lute instrumentalists, will present its third Syracuse concert Friday at 3:15 p.m. in the Civic theater.

Sponsored by the Syracuse Ukrainian National Home and Syracuse branch of the Ukrainian Congress committee, the chorus will present a program of folk and classical music, both instrumental and vocal.

The bandura, a lute-like instrument, came into existence in the Ukraine during the 16th century and since has become the national instrument of the Ukrainian people. The chorus was organized in oltava, Ukraine in 1923 and this year marks its 30th anniversary.

The group is currently touring 36 American cities and in the past, has been subject to harsh control in Europe. Many of the singers, directors and composers were liquidated or banished to Siberian labor camps during the war.

The bandurists chorus is under the direction of Hryhory Kytasty male dancers are included in the company for its local appearance.

Tolley to Address Foreign Students

Foreign students entering Syracuse this semester will be honored by Chancellor Tolley at a reception and convocation this evening.

Vice president Piskor, and Dr. Albert George of the Romance language department will speak. University Vice Chancellor Finla Crawford will be general chairman of the meeting. The program is scheduled to start at 7 p.m. this evening at the Founders room of Maxwell.

Colgate Mum Sale Needs Volunteers

Volunteers are needed to help sell mums for the Class of 1954 on Nov. 14 before the Colgate game, according to Alan Gefen, co-chairman of the sales.

Those interested in attending booths should contact Gefen at 4-9182 or Katherine Horan at 4-4326.

This is the third year that the Class of 1954 have sponsored the mum sales on Colgate weekend. In other years they have averaged a profit of approximately $125.

Pi Lam Will Sell Shakers Sunday

All Profits to Go To Campus Chest

Pi Lambda Phi fraternity will open its annual shaker sale with sales in university living centers on Sunday, Nov. 8 and in fraternities and sororities on Monday, Nov. 9.

As in the past, the shakers will sell for 10 cents and all profits will go to Campus Chest.

The shakers, which will be used at the Colgate game Nov. 14, will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis, as there is a limited supply available.

Groups wishing to order in advance of the regular sales may do so by calling "Gary" at 75-9285.

The shaker tradition was started in 1949 at the Holy Cross contest, but since then has been planned for the Colgate tilt. Pi Lambda Phi advises "Shake it up . . . Get your order in now."

Tryouts Scheduled For Drama Recital

Dr. R. L. Irwin, school of speech and dramatic art, has written a dramatic reading entitled, "Alcestis in the Underworld." It is an adaptation of the Greek legend of Alcestis and is to be presented in a group theatrical reading similar to "Don Juan in Hell."

Anyone interested in trying out for a part should come at 4 p.m. tomorrow to 402 H.L. It will be presented early in December on the large procenium. Rosemary Sinnett and Dr. Irwin will be featured on the same program in Edith Sidwell and William Watson's "Facade" which is a blending of music and poetry.

Bill Orange Sets Breakfast Date

This year the Bill Orange breakfast will be held on the Saturday morning of Colgate weekend in the Shaw dining room. Because of the limited space it will be necessary to limit the number of available tickets to 350.

The co-chairmen for the breakfast are: publicity, Susan Berman and Stanley Mosier; tickets and program, Barbara Witter and Andrew Merce; poster, Betty Killian and Jane Gates; waitresses, Marilyn Young and Merm Nelson; entertainment, Michael Shaffer and Carole Amaker; decorations, Marcia Le Fevre and Jean Jackson; invitations, Susan Woodrow; hostess committee, Junior Women's honorary, Lambda Sigma Sigma.

Anyone interested on working on any committee should call Ann McKaig 76-3249, or Patricia Parker 4-9225.

DEADLINE EXTENDED

Because so few entries have been received for the Colgate queen contest, Co-chairmen Gilbert Katz and Marven Wallen announced yesterday that the deadline has been extended until tomorrow. Applications accompanied by $1 should be sent to Katz, 747 Comstock ave.

Military Group Conducts Rusher

Scabbard and Blade, national military honorary, will hold its second rushing session at 7:30 p.m. today in 301 Machinery hall, Walter Andrews, rushing chairman, announced yesterday.

Requirements for the honorary are junior standing in army or air force ROTC, with a 2.0 average in military or air science. There are 35 men in the group at present.

Officers of the organization, which held its first rushing session last Thursday, are Eugene Seymour, president; George Kepner, vice-president; Richard Hollander, treasurer, and John Doty, secretary.

Krasner to Present Violin Concert

Louis Krasner will present a violin concert Sunday, November 8, in Crouse Auditorium, 4:00 p.m. Adrienne Galimir, pianist, will assist.

The program will include selections from G. F. Handel, Max Bruch, and Alban Berg. Alban Berg's concerto for violin was suggested to the composer by Mr. Krasner in 1935.

Mr. Krasner has appeared as soloist with the Boston Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra and many European orthestras, as well as at the Library of Congress. His talent has been hailed in thirteen countries.

In accordance with the tradition of honoring various colleges and schools in the concert series, the concert will be dedicated to the Syracuse University College of Engineering.

New Hill Group Assumes Student Union Functions

By MARY VIVIAN
Daily Orange Associate Editor

Associated Campus Services was organized recently at a meeting at which the Student Union transferred its service functions to this group.

The new body will endeavor to provide the services which were offered by the Union last year. The Union was closed shortly after Spring Weekend '53 and all of the equipment and furniture stored at Ainsley dr.

ASSOCIATED Campus services, or ACS, hopes to sponsor the service projects which the Union undertook last year, such as dance classes, textbook lending library, silk screening, proctoring and tutoring services, activities center, talent bureau, browsing library, chess and bridge lessons and many other small services.

Nancy Boerner has been appointed to revise and adapt the the old Constitution to the new group.

To this date, none of the Union facilitlies have been provided on campus, except the travel bureau which is now sponsored entirely by Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity, and is located at the Women's building. Also, meeting rooms are available in the same building.

In addition to the above-mentioned services, the group is also interested in seeing that social and recreational functions of the Union are carried on some place on campus, according to James F. Carr, president of the new group. This would include television, Friday night dances, open ping pong and general lounges.

ALONG WITH other individuals and groups on campus, the members of ACS are concerned oce the "decentralization of the University's informal, social and recreational facilities which tends to disunite and deter integration of students into a campus community," Carr added.

The textbook lending library opened in the Women's building the first two weeks of school but because of the shortage of space was moved into storage again. It currently is composed of 2,000 volumes worth approximately $6,000.

As a last resort, the lending library will be sold to the book mart and to Barnes and Noble if no home can be found for it. The large turnover of textbooks on campus creates a depreciation of books in the lending library.

The executive members of the organization include: president, James F. Carr; vice-president in charge of public relations, Mary Vivian; secretary, Mary Todd; treasurer, Lester Sleinkofer. Also Nancy Boerner, Alice Camp, Anna Garner, Lucille Levine, and Ethel Smetts.

All through the halls of Maxwell, Slocum and Crouse, students talk about the plight of the 1954 Onondagan. They sit over coffee and glance with worried looks at headlines announcing the latest development.

In a good many cases, however, the talk and the worried frowns are the extent to which the students go in alleviating the problem.

Perhaps they don't believe that a school the size of Syracuse could possibly be without a yearbook. But the possibility is almost a fact. Only two more days separate the two words.

There are also some people who evidently fall into the "I don't believe anything I read" category. They think that the whole problem is greatly exaggerated and that there certainly will be an ON. "Why there's always been an ON," they say.

There always has been one; that's true. For 70 years students have produced yearbooks for the Syracuse student body. Many times before they were faced with similar subscription problems and the students always came through.

But years ago they did not face such problems at a time when other projects were also being dropped because of lack of participation or support. They did not attend the Hill when intra-mural insurance failed, or a student government legislature had trouble getting enough candidates to compose even a 36-man group.

When students in the days of previous crises talked or frowned over coffee, they did something about it too. They went out and purchased their yearbooks and came up with 3,000 subscriptions.

The 1954 ON editors are pleading for only 1,500 students to lend their support. The Pi Phi and Chi Omega sororities as well as the Hellbox have been designated as places to return money. Five booths are going up on campus.

The fate of the 1954 yearbook is not the only one which hangs in the balance. If the ON fails this year, it is doubtful that the book will ever be published again.

Editors do not grow overnight. It takes years of experience to publish an annual of high quality.

It's about time that every student stops talking about the ON and puts words into action.

On pep rally pep

Fact number one: tonight there will be a pep rally starting from Sims at 6:45 p.m.

Fact number two: there will be those who "won't have the time" or who don't consider it important enough to attend.

In the light of world headlines, a pep rally may appear small and insignificant, but to the 43-men to whom the demonstration is directed, the rally, symbolizing Syracuse spirit, will mean that the students are backing them at Cornell.

It is this backing that helps put a team "up" for a game. Two weeks ago, Orange fans got a small inkling of what can happen when their team is "up" for a particular clash. The near-upset over Illinois wasn't due entirely to top playing. A well-known cliche—"the old college try"—had lots to do with it. In other words, spirit.

The Big Red are laying for the Orange. They too will be having a pep rally. Cornell's spirit will be built up to fever pitch.

A part of this fire is in the poster contest. This should provide another incentive to join the Syracuse rally.

The real enthusiasm, however, will come from the students who feel that they not only can, but will be there, regardless of other interests. They want to have a part in helping the team attain the right mental attitude before this big game.

Which students will you be among?

LETTERARY COMMENT

Get ON It

Nov. 4, 1953

To the Senior class:

The indifference on the part of many students on this campus toward activities, clubs, voting and a host of other student responsibilities is a subject which has been the point of many rather turbulent discussions. To add to this list of differences I wish to direct this letter to the senior class, in regard to the publication of a yearbook.

For a considerable period of time, strenuous attempts have been made by the staff of both the Daily Orange and the Onondagan to encourage the student body to voice their opinion for or against the production of the yearbook. Those concerned with its publication have done all they can in putting forth effort and encouragement. Now it's about time that the seniors, those most interested in this publication, put forth a little of their effort.

Anyone who has reached deep into his wallet for fifteen or twenty bucks for a wild weekend, which leaves nothing for the money but memories, can surely dig a little deeper for something that has pictures and stories to go with a four year collection of memories.

There are students on this campus who would break their necks getting tickets for the Colgate game, but who wouldn't lift their anatomy to preserve a tradition equally as important.

There are but a few days left to send in your subscriptions. So let's move; let's show the Administration that student apathy has not reached a new high.

Someday, an inquisitive collegian may appreciate seeing Syracuse university through your Onondagan. I hope you won't feel as small as I will when you have to tell him that, "Our school just wasn't big enough for a yearbook."

Sincerely,
Norman P. Ehrlich, '54

Germany

(The following letter is in reference to a story printed on the Women's page of last Tuesday. The story was written about an American girl who spent three years in Munich and is now a student on the Hill. The letter was written by a German student who is doing graduate work at Syracuse.)

To the Editor:

Once again, the old story about establishing an opinion on a foreign country and the life that goes with it has gained new light. Really, if it is that difficult, why not give it another try or, what seems to be more logical, to abstain from voicing an opinion for the use of the Syracuse Daily Orange.

Is it true "the Americans in the country (Germany) now want to have as little to do with the German people as possible"? We believe that this is not so. We have not witnessed it or felt it ourselves. It is well to recall to our memory, as it is so well practiced in this country, the right interpretation of democratic ways of life, are all unmissable tools for the promotion of international relationship and understanding. Does not the present political world situation remind us, all the people in the western world, not to pass up any chance for better understanding?

And what's this all about? . . . the students' social life at the University of Munich! To recognize "the quaint attire of Munich students, leather shorts, suspenders, puffed sleeves" as a description of 14th Century students' apparel might well be a profound observation, but in the 20th Century it is an amazing revelation!

Oh, fellow tourist, SIC TACUISSES, PHILOSOPHUS MANSISSES.

AT THE FLICKERS
'BEGGAR'S OPERA' NOTES

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

Hey-Nanny-Nanny and Olivier too.

John Gay's rowdy satiric operetta of the morals and manners of 18th century England, "The Beggar's Opera", has been given a superb and well-rounded production in its present screen version. We think you will find it delightful but you might not, since it has a very limited appeal.

If you are an Anglophile; if you like your comedy high and your necklines low and your songs punctuated by an occasional hey-nonny—nonny; this is your cup of tea and crumpets too. If, on the other hand, your love of England extends only to Mr. Churchill, and your love of antiquity no further, this could, quite conceivably, bore you silly.

Even if the film itself fails to capture your interest, you will find it a magnificent physical production. The autumnal richness of the technicolor, suggests a fine English landscape and the characters looked as if they stepped right out of a Hogarth drawing. The film has captured the era in its very essence.

Recently we were confronted with the spectacle of a singer who could not act. Laurence Olivier's situation is the reverse of Mr. Crosby's. His histrionic ability, however, so far outweighs his lack of vocal ability that his performance would not seriously displease anyone. As the lusty highwayman, MacHeath, Mr. Olivier proves that he can play farce with the best of them and can out-Fairbanks Douglas Fairbanks. Outstanding in the large, excellent supporting cast is Dorothy Tutin. Miss Tutin, a delectable piece of plum pudding, gives a charming performance as one of MacHeath's many conquests.

Christopher Fry has spent much of his time in composing a series of linguistic fruit salads for the stage, too, so he says, bring back poetry to the theatre. In adapting "The Beggar's Opera" for modern audiences he has set aside his rather lofty purpose and has turned out a screenplay that is pithy and risque. Along with a series of delightful lyrics, he has shown himself a faithful translator of Mr. Gay.

The real hero of the proceedings is Peter Brook, who has directed the production with a loving hand and a rougish eye. This is very stylized and specialized entertainment but it is a superb example of its genre.

Three cheers, pip pip and hey nanny nanny for this beautiful of cinematic art.

'Grandeur that was Rome'

By HELAINE BRAND

This is the second in a series of architectural articles on campus buildings.

All paths lead to Rome, they say—and it seems that this statement has proved true, even where Syracuse's campus is concerned. For, on whatever path our feet may choose to travel, they'll ultimately find themselves in front of Hendricks Chapel, the grand-daughter of the Roman Pantheon. In doing this, they are simply conforming to plan, though, as it was the architects' intention that Hendricks be the commander of the oval, and though it's now a quadrangle which she commands, she is still faithfully doing her duty.

Completion of Hendricks Chapel, the gift of Senator Frances Hendricks, a prominent Syracusan, was in June of 1930. The architects to whom goes the credit for this building, are Dwight Baum and John Russell Pope. They chose for their architectural structure, the Georgian Colonial style and upon completion had a building which had characteristics of both the Roman Pantheon and the Villa Rotunda of the sixteenth century architect, Palladio.

Hendricks can, with some modifications, be considered an eight sided building. This, its stone portico at the entrance, its magnificent dome, its brick work and stone and wood trim, are all characteristic of Georgian architecture. The Palladian window, which is an arch window with square ones on either side, is a replica of those found in the Christ Church in Philadelphia. The Ionic columns which comprise the buildings face, have been said by authorities on the subject to be an example of almost perfect architecture.

The building, itself, however is and architectural fraud. From the outside the observer has the impression that the interior is an eight-sided or at least a square, clear expanse. This is not so as the balconies cut across the middle of the Palladian windows and the center room does not even approximate a square as it forms an irregular cross.

The big brother of Hendricks is the memorial library on Columbia university campus. This, too, is the "heart of the campus" for the old King's college. The Chapel design is also punched on the back of the nickles minted since 1938.

The hole in the ceiling is an interesting copy of the original design in the Pantheon. In that building the hole was 30 feet across and soared over 140 feet above the floor . . . a masterpiece of Roman engineering.

"All roads lead to . . ." The new walk narrows down to the heart of campus. The building design is Roman but the pediment and columns are of Greek origin. And the background of the gentleman at the end of the walk? . . . Methodist, for it is the solitary figure of Dean Charles C. Noble.

MSG: Musing on Future After Timid Beginning

By ROGER J. HERZ

Few words ever fit a situation so perfectly as did Stan Leff's terming of this year in the men's student government assembly as "crucial."

The first meeting of the revised assembly, held Tuesday night, was mild. Assemblymen appeared meek and almost scared.

The major speech of the evening, by the MSG president, was greeted with snapping of fingers and not applause.

The speaker and speaker protem were elected by "white ballot," having no opposition.

After the first election one of the assemblymen asked the meaning of "white ballot." An alert legislator should question any action unfamiliar to him, before, not after its occurrance.

Many of the men were new, of course, and unfamiliar with parliamentary procedure. A good sign was the attendance of 25 of the 27 men in the assembly at present. Nine are still to be elected by class assemblies.

Perhaps the men realize the great task ahead. The fate of a legislative group rests in their hands. They appeared serious and seemed to absorb Leff's address, which outlined a program of suggested action.

The body must come to the realization that they are a government of, by and for the male undergraduates of Syracuse university. Timidity must pass, to be replaced by ambition.

Communication will be more difficult this year, as there are fewer assemblymen and a classification, not an area representation. Some responsibility lies with the constituents. Every student should endeavor to inform his assemblymen of needs or problems which come up.

The academic year 1953-1954 stands as the proverbial crossroads. The weight of decision falls on the shoulders of 36 MSG assemblymen. Success or failure are the paths. There will be no turning back.

Scrraaaatch!!

Ye, gads, National Cat Week is still upon us. And to all disbelievers, the American Feline Society, Inc. would sight the assorted events in history involving our be-whiskered pals.

Cleopatra was a feline fan and it is said that even George Washington had a passion for the furry monsters. Then there was the cat and the fiddle who pursued the cow over the moon and the three little kittens who lost their mittens, etc.

In addition to all this, it was most certainly a rythm-inspired feline who fostered all this "crazy" and "hep cat" talk which is so abundant today.

And yes, only four more days of National Cat Week.

In re Buildings

Recently The Daily Orange has been running a series of articles on various campus buildings, such as the one on this page dealing with Hendricks chapel. The stories accentuate the architectural aspect, while historical data is also included.

The next article in this series, to be printed soon, deals with the next "set" of buildings to join the campus. The topic will be the Library. Though it was built 20 years before the Chapel, it represents a completely different architectural background.

The Coach Says:

Presenting Les Dye

Having entered Syracuse in 1938, and at the same time, having had the opportunity of playing freshman football, it was a pleasure for me to return to my alma mater and conduct the freshman football program under Coach Schwartzwalder. It has been five years now since I first came to Syracuse in my present status, and every season seems to be a more interesting one that the one before.

It has always been our policy to invite all freshman athletes out for football. We have had as many as eighty boys report for the squad. Next year, when all of our freshmen will be living on campus, we look for a greater number to remain than ever before in the past five years.

At Syracuse, as all universities and colleges do, we try to develop our boys for the positions where we feel they can best play. On the varsity, we have at the present time, Pete Schwert, who was a single wing tailback. During his freshman year, we converted him to an end on offense and tackle on defense. We have Cal Smith, who was a fullback in high school, and he is doing a splendid job as guard on the varsity since we converted him to that position on the freshman team.

WE HAVE MANY boys on our team who are not playing the positions they played in high school, merely because the coaching staff feels that they do not have the necessary ability to play the position they played in high school. Probably one of the outstanding examples of this on this year's team is Jimmy Ridlon, who was a quarterback at Nyack, and now is doing an outstanding job at left end. We also try to develop boys for the positions where the varsity will be the weakest due to graduation.

At Syracuse, we have always run the varsity offense with the hope that we can teach them our style of play so that when they become sophomores, it will be easier or them to make the necessary adjustments. Varsity football, in comparison with freshman football is to a great extent as different from high school to freshman. Many of the high school boys who are on our team have never run the offense that we have, and the signal system is completely different. It makes it very difficult to mold a smooth functioning freshman squad.

In some cases a boy might be taught in high school that the three-hole is over right tackle, and another boy might have been taught that the three-hole is over the right guard. Then, when they enter Syracuse, it is necessary for the boy to learn all over again. When you have forty or fifty boys, where none of them have ever had the same signal system, it is not unusual to have a few heads hitting together just due to their high school training.

Les Dye

It has always been our policy to scrimmage the varsity at various times during the week, and many times we will have a defensive unit scrimmaging against the varsity offense, a freshman offensive team running the varsity opponent's plays, and scrimmaging the varsity defense, and another running the opponent's pass patterns for the varsity secondary. We feel this affords a freshman a fine opportunity to learn to play the game against a better opponent.

TOO MANY times, if one plays in the same class, and never raises their sights to meet a better opponent, one never has an opportunity to improve his play. This, to us in the trade slang, merely makes a "man out of a boy" at an earlier age. We are certain that this training makes better freshman athletes for it develops them varsity opponents during their more rapidly to play the rugged sophomore year.

Since coming to Syracuse, we have always tried to assist our boys in any way possible and at the same time make them feel free to visit our office to discuss any problems which might confront them. We encourage our freshmen to keep us posted on all difficulties they might have, for we have always been as interested in their academic welfare as well as their athletic endeavors.

Possibly some of you interested readers might wonder many times why a boy who is outstanding on a freshman team must be relegated to a second and third team when he becomes a varsity member. Naturally, no one can give a boy a test to determine his failure to compete against the varsity competition. However, you must all know that a varsity team consists of three former freshman teams. The experience that is on the varsity sometimes is a little too over-whelming for an outstanding freshman to cope with when he becomes a sophomore.

For five years now I would like to add it has always been a pleasure to work with the freshman teams and in all phases of my work. I have been afforded complete cooperation from the boys on the freshman squads, the varsity coaching staff and the administrators on campus.

We have experienced some great victories and some sad defeats. But, over a period of years, I realize victory has offset defeat, and when the season is over, I immediately start looking forward to the next season to come.

Cornell Grid Team Leads Ivy League With Three Wins

Expected to be in top shape for Saturday's clash with Syracuse, Cornell's Big Red should provide their best performance of the season. The sophomore studded squad from Ithaca has improved with each contest and topped it off last week as their 27-13 victory over Columbia gave them first place in the Ivy league race.

Going into this weekend's game, the Big Red have chalked up three wins against two setbacks and one tie. Their league record shows two wins and a tie.

THE RETURN of Capt. Bill George at tackle will help solidify the right side of the line for Lefty James' squad in addition to providing a psychological aid. A 205-pound senior, George is a valuable two-way man.

Another of the Ithacan's sophomore phenoms, Stan Intihar, will probably fill one of the flanking spots. Intihar was injured his entire frosh year and saw no action for the yearlings but he has shown top ability in early games. His only handicap is his lack of experience.

Center is one of the strong spots of the Big Red front line with two valuable gridders rotating at the spot. Veterans Al Sebald and Dennis Murphy have been vieing for the opening spot all season and both are rated top pivotment.

TWO OTHER veterans, Stan Tsapis and Jim Van Buren will fill the guard slots. Tsapis is only 5 feet 7 inches tall but he weighs in at a hefty 197 pounds. Van Buren is a 6 foot 2 inch, 205 pounder.

Len Onisky is the other starter on the Cornell front line filling in opposite George at tackle. Another tackle who will see quite a bit of action rotating with George and Oniksey is senior Poe Fratt.

Formerly a defensive specialist, he had trouble adjusting to 60-minute football but reports are that he was beginning to find himself in recent games. He filled in while George was injured and now may find himself pushing one of the previous starters out of their position.

LEFTOVERS: Today is the last day that students will be able to get reduced price student tickets for the game . . . Priced at $1.80, the tickets can be procured by taking your ID card and an exchange coupon to the athletic office . . . Game times is 1:30 p.m. . . . Cornell has two games left after Saturday, Nov. 14 at Dartmouth and Thanksgiving day at Penn in Philadelphia . . . While Syracuse and Cornell are fighting for the lead in the Big Three title race, Colgate will have a comparatively easy test playing host to Bucknell.

Phi Delts Win

Last night's encounter at Archbold pool saw the Phi Delts edge Phi Psi 19-15. Trailing 15-12 entering their final event, the Phi Delts picked up seven points in the 200-yard relay to wrap up the meet. The winning relay squad consisted of Jim Sutton, Joe Martin, Bob Beatty and Jon Buzzard.

John McGill of Phi Psi was the night's big winner as he nailed down wins in the 50 yard breaststroke and the 50-yard backstroke. Jon Buzzard of Phi Delt took individual honors in the 50 yard freestyle event.

Frosh Gridders Invade Ithaca Saturday

Fancy Yancey

BRUCE YANCEY, recently converted from quarterback to halfback one TD and had another nullified by a clipping penalty in last week's has ocme through extremely well at his new position. Yancey scored game against Holy Cross.

Perkins Appears Set for Action; May Start at End Saturday

The football team stepped onto a cold Archbold turf yesterday and stepped through extensive signal drills. Practice will progressively lighten for the Orange as Cornell weekend nears.

Injured Ray Perkins seemed in good shape and is expected to start again at his old familiar right end post. Holding down the other flank: Herb Steigler, whose defensive play against Holy Cross has earned him another crack at the starting lineup.

Syracuse's other famous injured man: Bill Wetzel, doesn't seem to figure in plans for the Cornell game. Blond Bill trotted around the field, but didn't bother to wear pads.

One of the reasons for the extensive offensive drills was to give new right halfback Bruce Yancey a chance to learn more than fundamental plays from the unfamiliar position.

In the Lambert Trophy ratings released today, Syracuse found themselves two notches up—to sixth place. In front, Army, Penn, Penn State, Pitt and Navy, in that order. One point behind Syracuse: this week's opponent Cornell.

Joost Appointed As A's Manager

Eddie Joost, veteran shortstop of the Philadelphia Athletics, signed a one-year contract yesterday as player-manager of the A's for the 1954 season. He replaces Jimmy Dykes.

The 37 year-old infielder, who has already seen 13 years of major league service, thus becomes the third manager in the history of the Philadelphia club. Connie Mack managed the club from its beginning at the turn of the century until 1951 when Dykes took over.

Joost reportedly signed for about $25,000. He, Dykes, who will probably assume the role of general manager, and Earl Mack, vice president of the A's organization, will form an advisory committee to decide club rules, player transactions and other business matters.

Seek to Avenge Loss to Wyoming

By DAVE BENNETT

Syracuse's freshman football forces will be seeking their second victory of the season when they invade Ithaca Saturday morning for an important game with the Cornell frosh.

The Tangerines will be seeking to regain prestige lost in last Saturday's upset defeat at the hands of Wyoming Seminary. The underdog invaders from Kingston, Pa. surprised Coach Les Dye's yearling squad, 26-21.

FUMBLES and penalties were a major factor in the Syracuse reversal. An Orange fumble set up the winning Wyoming tally and a 15-yard, illegal use of the hands penalty, nullified what appeared to be a 65-yard frosh scoring play with seconds remaining in the contest.

The Syracuse gridders led 14-6 at the end of the first half. After falling behind in the opening period when the visitors scored on a blocked quick kick, the Dyemen struck quickly for two tallies.

With a new lineup in the game after the Wyoming touchdown, the Tangerines drove to their opponents' 25-yard line. Here, halfback Ron Tyler gained five yards, but fumbled and Warren Watrel, a yearling guard, picked the ball out of the air and moved unmolested into the end zone for a score. Jim Brown converted and Syracuse led, 7 to 6.

Bill Orange registered again when the Pennsylvanians fumbled on their 20. A John Pannucci to Jim Ridlon pass covered 12 yards again and the locals led 14 to 6. for the TD. Brown converted SYRACUSE SEEMED to sew up the game late in the third period. Leading only 14-13, quarterback Pannucci found end Bob Musgrave in the clear and the cubs tallied again on a 38-yard touchdown heave.

But the small, spunky Wyoming outfit refused to quit, countered twice in the final quarter and upset the favored Orangemen, who had beaten a strong Army Plebe 11 in their opening test.

Saturday, the frosh will clash with a Cornell team which is somewhat of an unkown quantity. The Little Red lost to Yale's first year men, 20-7 and dropped a close decision to the potent Colgate freshmen.

Following the Cornell encounter, one more game remains on the Tangerine slate, the annual clash with Colgate, one week from Friday on Hendricks field.

Cornell Tix

The deadline for tickets to the Cornell-Syracuse football game is 5 p.m. today. The exchange ticket plus $1.80 must be presented to obtain a ticket.

Osterhout Leads Harriers In Fifth Meet of Season

Yesterday's cold weather did not prevent Syracuse university's cross country team from engaging in a vigorous workout at Drumlins as they prepare for Saturday's triangular meet with Fordham and Iona at New York.

Captain Ray Osterhout's personal victory string will once more be in jeopardy. The Orange flash has won all four of the meets participated in by Syracuse this year.

Not much is known about the strength of either Fordham or Iona. Both teams have met weak opposition for the most part.

Iona's Captain, Jim Mahoney, ran the Van Cortland Park course in 27.51 in his first race of the season. Osterhout's time over the same course was 25.46.8.

The return to running form of junior Steve Armstrong will give the Hill runners added strength for Saturday's race. Armstrong has missed the last two races because of a severe cold.

If Gene Parker can continue to run as he did in last week's race against Army, the Syracuse harriers should be slight favorites to win on Saturday.

Stern. Education, also, contains a great deal of frustration, varying from choosing a major in college to whether or not to cut a class.

Problem solving of the frustration is of main importance, Dr. Stern indicated. He believed they are generally resolved in three ways: the person makes the decision at the earliest possible time; he goes to someone else for advice; or he puts off the problem as long as is possible.

"Carrying a problem to someone else is not a good solution," stated Prof. Stern. Each person must finally make the decision for himself, he said. We should not be told what to do, but should come to grips with the problems ourself.

The individuality of the problem and the individuality of each person does not allow for group decisions other than for advice, said Dr. Stern.

Next week's lecture will be "Parents and What to do with Them." The series is open to all students on campus.

College of Forestry To Sponsor Annual Park Conference

The second annual Park institute, sponsored by the State University of New York College of Forestry's department of landscape and recreational management, will be held at the college museum Thursday and Friday, Nov. 5 and 6.

Professional park and recreation area planners, managers, and superintendents from cities, villages, and county governments throughout the state will be here. They will gather for a series of six panel discussions and an equipment demonstration.

A. M. Anderson, executive secretary of the Niagara Frontier State Park commission will lead the discussion on the acquisition of funds for park purposes.

The institute will end Friday afternoon with a demonstration of equipment owned and operated by the Syracuse Department of Parks. William A. Barry, park commissioner, will direct the demonstration at Thornden park.

Student-Faculty Tea Scheduled for Today

Wilson Cottage Sponsor Of Weekly Event

Wilson cottage will sponsor the student-faculty tea from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. today in the Alumni lounge of the Women's building.

The weekly teas are sponsored by women's student government's social chairmen's assembly. Each week one living center sponsors these teas, according to Judy Perry, chairman of the social chairmen's assembly.

Previously sponsored by the dean of women's staff, the teas are held to further the relationship between students and faculty. Refreshments will be served. Dress is informal.

APPLICATIONS DUE

Applications for plenary chairmanship of the March 5-7 foreign policy conference are due by 5 p.m. Monday to Marcia Michelbacher, Chi Omega.

The conference will include panels on various aspects of our foreign policy and speeches by prominent national figures.

Penicillin Drugs Fail to Conquer Effects of Common Cold Virus

By DON BARNEY

"Penicillin? That's no better than Grandma Brown's cough syrup."

To the hundreds of Hill students who cannot find the time to go to bed and have thus been leaning on the "wonder" drug, penicillin, to tide them through the sniffles-sore throat siege, this bit of information may come as more than a surprise.

ACCORDING TO conclusions of a control study of 2,000 case histories by the student health service under the direction of Dr. G. Arnold Cronk, penicillin has yet to prove itself the conqueror of the common cold. Dr. Cronk recently completed the experiment in which 1,000 patients were treated by the old-fashioned process of rest, cough syrup and old standby drugs. An equal number of patients were given shots of penicillin in addition to the normal procedure.

In no case did the penicillin aid in curing the cold. In fact, in several cases toxic effects were produced which sometimes resulted in the patient's dishabilitation for an extra week.

Dr. Cronk explained that penicillin is only effective on certain bacteria such as pneumococcus and streptococcus that cause pneumonia. The common cold is the result of an attack by virus germs and, as in the case of measles, mumps, chickenpox and influenza, cannot be cured by medicines alone.

Dr. Cronk believes that the cure of the common cold lies in the patient himself. This theory is incorporated into the infirmary's treatment of the afflicted. During the virus' siege, there is a great need for a tremendous amount of energy. Because of the rigors of college life, the doctor finds that the only way this energy can be stored is by rest. Therefore the first and most important step in recovery is "to go to bed and stay there."

THE SECOND method that the infirmary employs is to relieve discomfort where it exists. This is accomplished by the addition of pain-killing drugs such as cordine and morphine.

Thus the question of whether penicillin is effective on the common cold, although officially up in the air, appears to be answerable in the negative.

Another ailment that is common among college students is mononucleosis. Simply stated by Webster, it is a condition characteristic by the presence of an excessive number of mononuclears in the circulatory system.

Mononuclears refers to one set of the two that make up the white blood cells. The other set contains many nuclears. Mononucleosis occurs when the former set becomes unnaturally prevalent. The cases of the disease at Syracuse university since the beginning of the student health service totals 1,500, more than that of any other Eastern college clinic.

DR. CRONK, who discovered a combatant for poison ivy in 1951, exploded several myths concerning the disease. Contraction of "mono" does not mean the loss of a semester's school work. Through complete cooperation with the health service, the ailment can be cured in five to seven days. It is then necessary to proceed at a sensible pace for a couple of weeks to avoid a relapse.

"Mono" is not necessarily a collegiate disease. Dr. Cronk suggested that anywhere that an aggregate group of active young people congregate the disease is apt to occur. Research is now being done on the problem with the thought of speedy rehabilitation being the most important factor.

Dr. Cronk has also recently had published a research paper on trenchmouth in which he discusses the importance of building the vitamin content as a successful and permanent cure of the disease.

'54 ON Faces Extinction; Needs 1000 Subscriptions

Thomas Beckett

Charlene Velon

It's ON today, or off.

As only 500 students have turned in subscription blanks so far, the 70 year old tradition may become only a memory.

At the board of publications meeting, Oct. 21, it was decided that unless 1,500 subscriptions were obtained by November 7, the 1954 Onondagan would not be published.

Charlene Velon, business manager of the yearbook told The Daily Orange yesterday, that the board had met again and had stood firm on its original decision.

All pledges and subscription blanks must be delivered to Pi Beta Phi, 210 Walnut pl., or the Chi Omega house, 1003 Walnut ave. They may also be brought to the Hellbox business office behind Yates castle.

Subscription blanks have been sent to all sororities, fraternities, and living centers. Yesterday, as an additional impetus, booths were set up on campus. The sororities accounted for 200 of the pledges turned in thus far. Living centers are next, with the least amount of subscriptions coming from fraternities.

In an effort to obtain subscriptions, Beta Sigma Rho fraternity is sponsoring the '54 Onondagan contest, with prizes totaling $40 donated by Marshall street merchants.

The prizes will be awarded to the three people who best complete the sentence "I Bought the 1954 ON Because . . ." in 25 words or less, and will be judged by a trio of faculty members including Vice-chancellor Finla Crawford, University Vice-president Frank Piskor, and Dean Noble.

Entry blanks are available today at the ON booths on the oval, or can be picked up from ON staff members or at the Hellbox. The contest is open only to students who make deposits of $3 on the '54 ON.

Those who have already purchased books can obtain a blank by showing their receipts to an ON representative. Providing the 1,500 total is met the contest will run until Nov. 23.

Beta Sig is offering prizes of $25, $10, and $5. Merchandise prizes include "Songs of Syracuse" record album from Olmsteads Record Shop; a case of Coca-Cola supplied by Jerry's Supermarket; a man's sweater, courtesy of Lund's Men Shop; and imported British Sasieni pipe from the Hill Smoke Shop.

Also dinner at the Cosmos resaurant; a haircut and a bottle of tonic from the University Barbers; a double wash, four rinses and fluff dry for 16 pounds of laundry at Maxwell's launderette; and five dollars worth of merchandise from the Varsity Camera Store.

Results of the subscription drive and of contest entries will be published in Tuesday's Daily Orange.

Women's and men's student government, and the senior council and assembly have announced their support of the drive.

Syracuse Gridders Visit Cornell Tomorrow

Student Gov't Conference Slated for Saranac Lake

Forty-seven government officials, members of the administration and faculty, and student leaders leave this morning for the fourth annual student government conference at Pine Brook camp, Saranac lake.

Theme of the three day meeting is "What Lies Ahead." Included will be discussions and analyses of seven major phases of student government, as well as an examination of issues vital to the student.

ASSOCIATE DEAN of Men Carleton Krathwohl will welcome the group to Pine Brook tomorrow afternoon.

Keynote address will be by Michael Sawyer of the citizenship department, who will discuss academic freedom, political parties and organization, and apathy.

Scheduled for Saturday are a talk on minor sports by Dean Frank Piskor, University vice-president and discussions of student discount service, reserved seating, student government court, dual student government, student representation and National Students association. Dean Krathwohl will outline the intramural insurance plan.

Highlight of tomorrow evening's session will be an address on "The Gifted Student" by Chancellor William P. Tolley.

DR. DWIGHT BECK of the Bible and religion department will lead vespers Sunday morning and consider the problem: "The student—Is he favoring a physical and intellectual philosophy at the cost of moral and spiritual?"

Dean of Women Marjorie Smith will talk on student social welfare later in the morning. A panel composed of Dean Smith, Miss Lucille Verhulst of the women's physical education department, women's student government President Mary Ann Dalton, men's student government President Stanley Leff, and James Carr, president of Associated Campus services, will discuss the recreational facilities of the Women's building.

Assistant Dean of Men Earle Clifford will conclude the conference with a summary and evaluation Sunday afternoon.

Ann Lines and David Krohn are co-chairmen of the conference. Assisting are Charlotte Easterbrook and Jerry Gerber, transportation; Marcia Irwin and Carol Leland, secretaries; Thomas Nellpowitz, room assignments; Dorianne Bright and Willard Schop, cleanup; Lois Clar and George Kepner, recreation.

Deans Piskor, Smith and Krathwohl are advisors.

Methodist Convo Slated for Saratoga

Group to Hear Talk On World Struggle

Dr. John Olson and Dr. H. Neil Richardson of the Bible department, will speak at the 1953 New York State Methodist Student Movement conference this weekend at Saratoga Springs.

Miss Edith Simester, head resident of Wilson cottage and former Methodist missionary to China and Brazil, will lead a discussion group on "The Life and Task in the Church around the World."

Dr. Richardson, who has spent the last year in Palestine doing archeological work, will speak at the Saturday evening banquet and show slides taken on his trip.

Dr. Olson will develop, in three talks the theme of the conference, which is "The Christian Student in the World Struggle."

Hill Methodist Chaplain Arthur Hopkinson and his wife will also attend. Mrs. Hopkinson is dean of the conference. Students who plan to attend are: Dorothy Hill, state MSF fund chairman; Margaret Hoar; Barrie Gray; Barbara Diehl; Paul Clark; Bart Green.

New Game Time Set for Frosh

The starting time of the Cornell-Syracuse freshman game has been moved from 12 to 11 a.m. tomorrow at Ithaca according to Arnie Burdick, Orange publicity director. Burdick also announced that 2,000 end-zone tickets at $1.80 for the varsity game will be available. A few $3.60 seats can also be purchased at the athletic ticket office today until 5 p.m.

Advertising Theme To Highlight March

'Singing' Commercials Due Saturday

An advertising theme will highlight the Syracuse band's performance at Cornell tomorrow, and Alta Burg, drum major, will twirl during the half time show.

Starting with a pyramid formation at the goal post the band will form a pyramid and play the Halo shampoo fanfare. Marching up the field in pyramid formation the band will play the "World Events March."

At the 50 yard line the men will from the letters RED and play "Give My Regards to Broadway."

The bandsmen will perform their famous "to the winds" drill where groups of four men go into intricate marching patterns and still come out right in formation. The music for this will be the Lava soap theme, ending with the four notes from Dragnet, signifying the mystery of how the band gets back in formation.

Eight ranks of 11 men will form a pinwheel and play Chiquita Banana with the bandsmen doing a dance step.

A TV set, a rectangle with a screen and two legs will then be formed while the band plays the Ajax cleanser tune.

A straight line, 100 men long, will form on the 50 yard line and march down the field playing the Gillette Blue Blade march.

Back on the goal line, the band will play the tune from Paramount's "Eyes and Ears of the World" newsreel.

In the pre-game festivities the band will march down the field playing "Down the Field" and meet the Cornell aggregation at the 50-yard line, where the two groups will make a shield and play the "Star Spangled Banner."

HERB STEIGLER and RAY PERKINS will be star ting for the Orange at end against Cornell tomorrow. Both Steigler and Perkins didn't start agains t Holy Cross last week. Steigler played second string but turned in a fine defensive performance. Perkin s was still nursing an injury he suffered in the Penn State game three weeks ago.

Orange Favored In Traditional Upstate Battle

It'll be a Big Red letter-day down on Schoellkopf field tomorrow afternoon at 1:30. The occasion: the 31st game in the Syracuse-Cornell grid rivalry, which dates back to 1891.

Syracuse, playing its fourth consecutive road game, is a seven point favorite to dump George (Lefty) James' Cornell team. The Orange will be forced to wear their orang jerseys for the second week in a row and this week, two different ends will start in them. On the left flank, by dint of his defensive play against Holy Cross, Herb Steigler. Returning, after a two-week absence, to the other side, Ray Perkins.

GUARDS SAM JOHNSON and co-captain Bob Fleck take up their posts on either side of center Ted Kukowski. "Cookie" will play his usual role of nuisance-linebacker against Cornell.

ABOUT 2,500 University students are expected to make the short 50-mile hop to Ithaca, to see the Orange try to even their road game record.

Syracuse, now tenth in the nation in rushing defense, faces a Cornell team which leads in the series 22-8.

Syracuse stands firm on their seven points. Cornell relies on option plays, i.e. pitchouts to snow under the ends and line plunges to keep the defense "honest". Orange defensive end play has been good and Syracuse has two efficient defensive halfbacks in Leberman and Yancey. If this slows up their pitchouts, Cornell has nothing left to do but try to get past Kukowski.

Much has been made about Bill DeGraff, his passing and Syracuse's pass defense has been adequate. Only one touchdown pass has been completed (but several near misses), and some of the better passers have had trouble, against the Orange.

WHAT IS THE FALLACY? A 40 per cent completion average against the Orange, but most of them have been short and easy.

Despite all this, the Big Red have an annoying habit of getting "up" for this one. If they are, and the pessimistic talk from their campus seems to indicate that, then all the statistics can be discarded.

Big Red Seeks Big Three Title

DeGraaf, Bedrossian Pace Red Offense

DeGraaf, Bedrossian and co., more commonly known as the Big Red of Cornell, go after their fourth win and the Upstate grid title tomorrow when they entertain Syracuse's Orangemen on Schoellkopf field.

The charges of Lefty James, current Ivy league-leaders, defeated Colgate in their season-opener and a victory tomorrow would assure the return of the Big Three championship "Far above Cayuga's waters." Syracuse's defending Eastern titlists rule a one-touchdown favorites.

SOPHOMORE BILL DeGraaf is the big man in James' modified split T offense. The 6-foot, 2, 195 pound quarterback has a series of four-way options and the backfield mates to make them click. He can call on halfbacks Dick Jackson, Russ Zechman and Dick Meade for outside speed and Guy Bedrossian, one o fthe East's better fullbacks, for power up the middle.

Bedrossian, 196-pound junior from Hartford, gave the Orange fits a year ago in Archbold stadium when Syracuse dashed to a 26-6 victory. He will again be counted o nto soften the big Orange line, which out-weighs the Red forward wall nearly seven pounds per man (209 to 202).

Speedy Jackson will start at one halfback slot with either soph Dick Meade or senior Russ Zechman at the other. Jackson dazzled televiewers two weeks ago with a

The new members will be initiated on Sunday, Dec. 13 at 2:45 p.m., in Room 102, Maxwell. Those able to attend should notify Dr. Nancy Cole, secretary.

Informal Rushing To Begin Today

Informal sorority rushing will take place between 2 and 5 p.m. on Friday at the coat room of the Women's building. This is the same place that girls picked up their bids during the formal rushing period.

Informal rushing is for girls who dropped rushing or did not take houses this semester, and are still interested in sororities. It also concerns those girls who have not previously rushed, and would like to. There will be a fee of $2 for girls who have not registered before.

The silence period for all those planning on inormal rushing will continue until 3 p.m., Sunday. This concerns only girls interested in houses which have informal rushing at this time. It does not include the other houses not conducting informal rushing. The silence period of these houses ended with the end of formal rushing.

The following houses will have an open house from 3 to 5 p.m. on Sunday: Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Theta Pi, Delta Zeta, Phi Mu and Pi Beta Phi.

Those houses which are rushing informally, but not having open houses are: Iota Alpha Pi, Kappa Delta, Sigma Delta Tau, Sigma Tau Delta and Theta Phi Alpha. Girls may come and go to these houses as they please.

Egyptian Visits Bus Ad College

Dr. Zaki Badaoui of Alexandria, Egypt was a visitor in Syracuse's College of Business Administration this week. Dr. Badaoui, an industrial relations counselor associated with 10 large Egyptian companies, was in Syracuse to visit the Carrier Corporation.

He is in the United States studying personnel management under the Smith-Mundt program. He is also interested in organizations working for friendship between the United States and the Middle East.

Dr. Badaoui had a conference with staff members of the College of Business Administration on personnel teaching methods and was a luncheon guest at the faculty club.

Sim's Faulty Pipe Causes False Alarm

Syracuse firemen were summoned to campus at 2 p.m. yesterday when steam escaping from a new valve outside Sims dining hall was thought to be smoke from a fire. Firemen wetted down the pipe.

'Martians' to Invade SU, Plan To Kidnap Rigolosi

By MARIA HEITZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Four people from Mars, in the form of Boar's Head members are scheduled to arrive on campus at noon today in an attempt to capture the newly elected mayor of Marshall st., Vince Rigolosi.

The entire chase will be taken on film to be included in a new show which Boar's Head plans to present shortly. The same people who gave Syracuse audiences "White Bucks and Tales" have put their heads together once more and come up with a new show.

THIS NEW show will feature music and lyrics by Lan O'Kun and Bill Angelos and is directed by Jerry Leider, faculty adviser to Boar's head.

Members of the cast are principally the same as for last spring's show, and students will have the opportunity to view the same kind of fast moving skits and hear tunes as catchy as were ever turned out on the Hill.

This is the same talent that will present a spring show, once a skit has been written. The drama department is sponsoring a contest with a prize of $100 to the student whose script is accepted. The revue which is being presented will also give those promising playwrights the chance to see the various talents that will go into his production.

The new show will not only be a revue but will give the audience a part also, along the "Hellzapoppin" lines. There's no telling what will happen once they enter the Drama building after signing a release that no one will be held responsible for what the audience may be subjected to during the show, all in fun though—of course!

LANNY O'KUN leads the Boar's Head chorus in one of the songs on which he and Bill Angelos collaborated as they rehearse for the new revue that will feature the same cast as "White Bucks and Tales."

The little drama which is scheduled to be enacted on Marshall street today, weather willing, will feature not only the "Rigger" but the camera of Prof. Lenscapp. The professor has perfected his Zimkoff lens, a combination of 3-D, cinerama, and cinemascope with dual color—black and white.

All hill students are urged to be near the vicinity so that they may also get into the act, and eventually see themselves on film.

Other bits to be included in the revue is a takeoff on the "Bicycle Thief", a dear diary bit concerning what Dr. Kinsey missed, and the 3-D film piece.

Krinsky to Speak At JSF Services

Dr. Fred Krinsky will talk on "A Little Jewish Concept of God" at JSF Sabbath Eve services at 7:15 p.m. today in Hendricks chapel.

The JSF choir will make its initial appearance of the year under the direction of Dr. Bernard Carp. Lloyd Dunsker will serve as cantor and Jack Most as student reader.

Other participants are Sherry Serib, Iota Alpha Pi and Bernard Levinson, Alpha Epsilon Pi. An Oneg Shabbot and discussion meeting will follow the service.

PARDON US!

Due to a printing mistake, it was reported erroneously in yesterday's Daily Orange that a concert by Ukrainian bandurist chorus will be at 3:15 p.m. today.

It will be held this evening at 8:15 p.m. in the Civic theater, S. Salina St.

An open letter

An open letter to the Administration, Panhel and the women's Inter-fraternity Conference:

Last Monday and Tuesday were days of chaos and tension for freshmen coeds, as well as any upperclass woman rushing.

In previous years, a girl who was not being bid to any sorority went to the Panhel office and received a card along with the coeds who were receiving invitations. She, however received a blank card. This spared her any possible embarrassment of being told that there was no bid for her.

The Interfraternity Conference, alumnae of each sorority, match the names of houses and rushees. Each year the procedure is gone over and improvements made.

This year the procedure included calling each rushee and telling her personally not to go to the Panhel office if there was no bid there for her. The move, as executed, was an experiment that failed.

The coeds who were called appreciated the gesture. They did not have to open an envelope with a blank card before the eyes of hundreds of other girls. Only their friends in the dorm would be on hand when they were told.

As helpful as this was for the coeds who were not bid ,the anxiety that built up for the other students during the two days of phone calls was shocking. There were few frosh women on campus who did not dread the ring of a phone and when it rang for them, did not inwardly tremble. It is no exaggeration to paint of picture of constantly rising tension in the majority of the frosh dorms Monday and Tuesday.

After speaking with the freshmen house presidents Wednesday, it was decided to urge you in this letter to amend the telephoning procedure to the following:

1. Phone the house at one time only, leaving with the house president the names of those girls not receiving bids.

2. Phone only during a specific time listed in the Panhel book. This could be a two-hour span during one evening.

This latter suggestion would probably mean that a special telephone committee would have to be set up in order that all the houses could be reached within the alloted time.

The house presidents agreed Wednesday that they should be the students to undertake telling the girls.

We feel that this procedure should seriously be considered by the Inter-fraternity conference when next it meets to review policy.

The scenes of Monday and Tuesday should never be allowed to occur again.

Zip team premiere

Something new has been coming on the scene and tomorrow is the day.

We know there is a game but along with the action on the field we will have a chance to watch something that is usually under the winter wraps of the gymnasium.

The inauguration of the Zip team is for one prime purpose: to entertain. It is an experiment that has never been carried to these lengths at a Syracuse football game.

The gymnasts of the Zip team, with their manager, have put three weeks of work (and play) into this presentation. With the cooperation of the Marching band and the cheerleaders, they have designed a mobile sketch with action to match that on the field.

We look forward to this particular premiere and wish luck to all on the gridiron tomorrow.

S.U. GRAD '49 ALIVE OR DEAD?

By ART SIEGEL
Daily Orange Managing Editon

Whether Don Dixon is alive or dead, in a cell or a grave, still remains a mystery in the files of the State department. Dixon is a Syracuse graduate and far east correspondent for International News Service. We prefer to use "is."

The former Syracusan and member of Alpha Epsilon Pi was captured in neutral waters near Hong Kong several months ago by the Chinese Communists.

He had been assigned to cover front line actions in Korea. Dixon was decorated for heroism as a civilian when he saved a soldier's life. Following that experience, the young journalist set out for a vacation in Hong Kong.

While on the British island, he and Richard Applegate, an NBC reporter, decided to enlist the assistance of a professional sailor to make a cruise around the island's area. They boarded the small sailing craft "Kert" and sailed for Macau.

About 10 miles west of Hong Kong, an armed Chinese Communist junk boarded the yacht and towed it to one of the islands, Lapsaurai. It was the second time the yacht had been captured. The first time an Englishman had been kept prisoner for 91 days after being taken in the same waters.

An observer of the Royal Navy reported the incident. No further information was ever obtained regarding the incident or the men.

The Consular services department advises us that steps have been taken publicly in the United Nations to obtain information from the Soviet delegation. The U. S. embassy in Moscow pressed for the release of the Americans.

British, American, and other free powers are seeking information in Hong Kong. But the diplomatic channels are blocked because the United States has no official representation in Communist China. A tight curtain of secrecy has been drawn about the case.

Thus, it remains one of the mysteries of a terrible three years in the Far East—and the results of that short pleasure trip may never be known.

At present, the status of Don Dixon—and his buddies—remains simply this: SCS 293.1111 Dixon, Donald M.-10-2153, State Department files.

Hoowwll!!

This noble organization, which each year sponsors National Cat Week (this is it), has incured enormous bills and owing to the increased price of such precious items as catnip and calves' liver, a double-drive has been instituted. A $31,000 cumulative debt must be covered in addition to the society's "modest" $25,000 budget for 1954.

To quote, "the society's diversified services and facilities now are strained far beyond capacity and the public is urgently appealed to for financial assistance." Checks may be forwarded to the group at New York 3.

Independent Politician Beats the Machine

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Columnist

Who said an independent candidate doesn't have a chance in an election?

Francis Procopio proved them wrong Wednesday. He bucked the political parties and won—won the presidency of the freshman class with real campaigning.

There weren't any fancy posters in front of fraternity houses, nor were there flashy printed buttons and ribbons on members of political parties lauding the merits of this Fulton High School graduate.

But there were guys and gals who decided that Fran was their man. Hand-lettered tags blossomed on his supporters proclaiming, "Vote for Fran." Small signs went up in front of living centers. Car paraders went out to impress the voters.

When election day finally came around, more than half of the voters placed their check for president before the name of Francis Procopio.

Tri-Orange, which last year won three out of the four frosh offices, was shut out in this one. The party did manage to salvage a spot on the executive council, with its secretarial candidate garnering the fifth highest number of votes in the election.

United Students party, which had so much success in last spring's campus elections, took two out of the four class offices and picked up the sixth spot on the exec council.

Only one of the four candidates who started out the campaign backed by Piety Hill Alliance — suspended as a political party nine days ago—was elected.

The other three former PHA candidates—two of them names on campus—failed to pull in as many votes among them as Procopio did by himself in winning the presidency.

Just what effect the election will have on PHA, only time will tell. The party, which was not allowed to back candidates in the election, will finish its period of suspension late in February—in plenty of time to make plans for the spring elections.

Fewer freshmen than expected voted in the election. Civil service officials—some of whom anticipated an almost complete turnout of eligible voters—blamed the low figure on the weather, which was cold and windy with occassional rain and snow. Too, some identification cards were tied up, being used to get Cornell football tickets.

Slightly less than 50 per cent of the 1,922 members of the class of 1957 took a few seconds out of the day to check ballots for the people who will govern them for the next seven months. It was a poor showing when compared to last year's 73 per cent turnout.

Good Connections ...electrically speaking
Electrically powered "wire wrap" tool (above) and compressed air tool (below) for making wrapped solderless connections.

GOOD CONNECTIONS are mighty important to us for, you see, we make more than a billion electrical connections each year. It takes that many to manufacture and install complex telephone equipment in the Bell System.

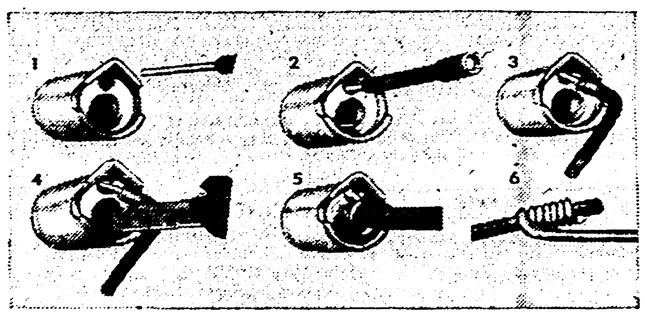
Like most really creative engineering jobs, the development of a tool to make solderless connections grew out of a problem. We had to find a way to connect our newly designed wire spring relay to other components in giant bays of switching equipment. This new relay—something of an engineering achievement itself—can have as many as 36 terminals in an area only 1-3/8" by 11/16". Obviously, the conventional method of hand-wrapping and soldering wires onto the terminals is extremely difficult in such a small area.

After more than five years of research and experimentation, the engineers came up with a pistol-like power tool capable of making mechanically sound solderless connections. Shown above are two types of "wire wrap" tools now used at Western Electric manufacturing locations. They literally shoot wire onto terminals . . . and do it surer, faster and less expensively than conventional methods using solder. That's not all. The new "wire wrap" tool keeps equipment free from solder splashes, wire clippings and reduces bent and distorted terminals. Electrically, the "wire wrap" tool gives a far better connection than can be made manually . . . the high pressure contacts are stronger, cleaner, more compact and more uniform.

In keeping with the Bell System policy of sharing technical know-how with all industry, Western Electric will make this tool commercially available to electrical manufacturing companies, such as radio, television and communications producers, through licensed tool manufacturers.

You're right If you think we're more than a little pleased with our accomplishment. And as we have been many times before, we're proud of the engineers in all fields—electronics, mechanical, electrical, metallurgical, chemical, industrial—who uphold our reputation for leadership in fundamental manufacturing techniques.



How a solderless connection is made: (1) Skinned wire approaches the small flared opening in the tool tip. (2) Wire is inserted in hole. (3) Wire is bent and anchored by means of notch in side of gun tip. (4) Gun tip is slipped over rectangular wire terminal. (5) Spindle of gun tip rotates to wrap wire around terminal. (6) Six wire wraps around terminal complete electrically sound joint without soldering.

Piety Harrier Vielbig Disabled for Season

By AL GEFEN

Daily Orange Junior Editor

News that Les Vielbig will be lost to the Piety cross-country team for the remainder of the season was officially announced yesterday. X-rays taken two days ago revealed Vielbig has a broken bone in his ankle.

Vielbig injured his ankle almost four weeks ago in the Colgate meet, but thought the injury to be only a severe sprain. As it turned out, he has been walking around all this time on the broken bone.

ALTHOUGH he has not competed in any meet since the one with the Raiders, his absence will be greatly felt in the IC4A's and the NCAA's. Prior to the season's opener, Coach Bob Grieve had counted on Vielbig gaining varsity experience this year in order to take up the slack needed to replace the graduating seniors on the squad.

The immediate concern to Grieve is tomorrow's triangular meet in New York city with Fordham and Iona. Since both these teams have faced competition from smaller schools, Grieve has emphasized that either squad could prove quite troublesome to the Orangemen.

The same boys who have made the previous trips will go to New York. Those who will run at Van Courtlandt park Saturday include Captain Ray Osterhout, Gene Parker, Ed Alger, Jack Hubbard, Don Fryer, Steve Armstrong, Tom Coulter, Frank Calzi and Jim George.

This race should serve as an ample tuneup for the IC4A meet, which will be held on the same course Nov. 6. Great hopes are still maintained that the times of Captain Ray Osterhout and company will improve more to enable the Syracuse hill-and-dalers to walk off with the IC4A crown.

Hill Soccer Squad After Third Victory, Opposes Colgate

By STAN ROSENFELD

Daily Orange Junior Editor

Coach Andy Coccari's Hill booters will be seeking their third successive win as they tangle with Colgate this afternoon at Hendricks Field. Starting time will be 2:30 p.m.

Syracuse will field the same array that came off with a 1-0 victory over Brockport last Tuesday afternoon. Coach Coccari is hoping for playing conditions that are of better caliber than those encountered at Brockport. The strong winds made long passing practically impossible, that day.

GUNNAR WIRTH, transformed attackman will again be in the goal for Syracuse. Wirth turned in a brilliant performance in shutting out Brockport and is improving with every game.

Capt. on Moller, Don Shupe and Bud Gormon will spearhead the defensive wall. Shupe, a newcomer to the team this year, has added new poise to the squad at his halfback post.

Joe Milliron and Nick Razos will be at the fullback slots. Milliron, a soph, has come off the bench in recent weeks to nail down a starting job. Razos, a veteran of intercollegiate competition, has tended to be a steadying influence to the newcomers and is an aggressive performer.

The all American offense of Sig Wirth and Billy Nelson will be aided by Bill Ayres, Vic Obershal and Duncan Robb. Nelson and Wirth are the leading point scorers on the team with the former having the edge with five goals.

COLGATE, WHILE not showing an impressive record so far this season is always up for the Syracuse game. The Red Raiders have a veteran array that has shown good flashes of form during the year.

The only common opponent that Syracuse and Colgate have faced is Cornell. Syracuse gained a 1-1 tie with the Redmen at Ithaca while Colgate dropped a 5-0 decision.

NET NOTES: The Piety booters will wind up their season next weekend as they face Cornell at home . . . Nelson, Wirth and Moller are all being considered for all-American nomination. Their performances in the Colgate and Cornell games should be decisive.

PROTEST ACCEPTED

Intramural director Milt Howard has announced that Tuesday night's intramural swimming meet between Phi Kappa Psi and Phi Delta Theta has been awarded to the Phi Psi's after a protest.

Phi Delt originally won the match, but a Phi Psi protest concerning an eligible player was accepted by the Intramural council. The protest defeat has eliminated Phi Delt from further competition.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

There's a legend which goes around Orange football circles each year about this time. A picture hanging in the athletic office tells part of the story, the final act of the legend, but the real story concerns the once-in-a-lifetime performance of a man who in the brief space of six minutes gained grid imortality.

The picture isn't unusual—just four football action shots of the type seen in every Sunday sports section. However, the simple caption, "Syracuse 19, Cornell 17," brings back a memory of one of the proudest moments in Orange grid annuals.

The time is October 15, 1938. The place, Archbold Stadium. And the man—Wilmeth Sidat-Singh, Orange right halfback who up until two years before had never been in a football uniform.

Wilmeth Sidat-Singh

Over 25,000 fans are watching the undefeated Cornellians maul an unimpressive Syracuse team 10-0. The clock shows 9 minutes left in the fourth quarter, when the Orange break out of their huddle at midfield.

It looks almost hopeless that Syracuse will get a drive started. The ball is snapped to Sidat-Singh who fades back, fires and hits a receiver 14 yards out for a first down. Another pass connects to the Big Red 19 and then with the crowd yelling for the first Syracuse score, the big halfback spots Harold "Babe" Ruth on the 15. Ruth leaps, grabs the pigskin and streaks the remaining yards for the touchdown.

Syracuse hopes are sunk immediately, however, as Brown of Cornell takes the kickoff and goes all the way, 94 yards, to up the Big Red lead 17-6. But with the ball on the Orange 31 and the clock ticking away the last few minutes, Sidat-Singh again weaves his passing magic.

He hits Ruth on the Cornell 27, a 42-yard pass, and then the same play befuddles the Big Red again when he throws to Ruth in the end zone. There's no stopping the fired-up Orange team with Sidat-Singh's deadly right arm acting as the motor. The handwriting is on the wall.

The ball is snapped. Ruth goes to right, Allen sneaks to the left. Sidat-Singh fakes to Ruth and then throws to Allen over the head of a Cornell defender. Allen clutches the ball on the Big Red five and stumbles into the end zone for the winning score.

Thus ended the most outstanding individual show in Orange football history. Sidat-Singh's six complete passes within six minutes handed the East's top 1938 team, Cornell, its only loss of the season—a Syracuse once-in-a-lifetime story.

Strongest spots on the Cornell line are the ends, where Bruce Brenner and Stan Intihar, a pair o sophs from Ohio, hold forth. Intihar is a 6 foot 4, 215 pound giant from Euclid while 6 foot 2, 192 pound Brenner hails from football-crazy Massilon.

THE MIDDLE of the Red forward wall was considerably weakened this week by the loss of tackles Joe Simon and Captain Bill George. Both are in the infirmary and will see little or no action tomorrow.

Joe Fratt, one of the Eastern football association's weekly unsung heroes for his performance against Columbia, has nailed down one tackle slot. Len Oniskey, 205 pound Philadelphian, will probably draw the other.

MEDICAL SPECIMEN

A classified advertisement that apeared in yesterday's Daily Orange was intended for some medical student interested in research of unborn fetuses. The specimen was left by a medical student who lived at the Phi Sigma Delta house this last summer. He failed to pay his room rent and some of the brothers are seeking to sell the specimen for research purposes and thus make up the defaulted rent.

Key Schedules Queen Deadline

Today is the final day for entries in the Colgate queen contest.

Sponsored by Orange Key, junior men's honorary, the annual contest will get under way with preliminary eliminations Tuesday.

Entries should be sent to the co-chairmen, Gilbert Katz at Tau Delta Phi, 747 Comstock ave., or Marven Wallen, Phi Epsilon Pi, 423 Euclid ave. Applications should include name, home and local address, living center or sorority, class and phone number.

LITERARY TEA SET

Pi Lambda Sigma, library honorary, will entertain Library School faculty and students at a tea to be held at 3:30 p.m. today, in the social room of the main library.

Groups Attend Talk On Administrators Of Public Schools

More than 150 school administrators, board of education members and representatives of citizens' groups, from nine counties attended the first ow two institutes on "The Concept of the Job of the Chief School Administrato," yesterday at Drumlins.

in the development of a new state wide project called the Cooperative Development of Public School Administrative in New York state, a research study financed by the state education department and other state and regional educational organizations.

Helping to improve the educational opportunities offered in every community by improving the administration in state schools is the main purpose of CDPSA.

Richard C. Lonsdale, associate professor of education and head of the school administration program at Syracuse university began the institute yesterday morning with an orientation, introduction and background of CDPSA.

Students Meet For Chesterfield

Eight Campus Merchandising Bureau, inc., representatives of three colleges met at Syracuse last week to discuss college programs in behalf of Chesterfield cigarettes. Students from Hamilton, Cornell and Syracuse attended. It was decided to continue awarding cartons of Chesterfields in student newspaper contests and in other campaigns, such as art and football contests. Theodore Clemens, division manager, conducted the informal meetings.

Reserved Seating Set for Colgate

Reserved seats for the Colgate football game Nov. 14 in Archbold stadium will be available in a class seniority basis starting Monday, David Krohn and Jean Dale, directors of the plan for student government, announced yesterday.

Seniors will be able to pick up ducats Monday, with juniors getting theirs Tuesday, sophomores Wednesday and freshmen Thursday. Block seating may be secured Friday.

Identification cards will be required for all but block seating at the special booth, open from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Trophy room of Archbold gymnasium.

Groups desiring block seats must present a letter Friday from the president of the organization specifying the number of tickets wanted.

Hop to Feature 'Pigskin Parade'

A pocket sized pigskin parade will highlight the annual Soph Hop's entertainment Saturday, Nov. 14, in Archbold gymnasium.

Based on the Hop's theme, "Krazy Kollege Kickoff," the entertainment will feature songs by Kenneth Luchs, who wrote last year's freshman weekend show and Sidney Kalcheim.

"FOOTBALL FEVER," a college pep song, and "Krazy Kollege Kickoff," featuring Ray Caldiero and his trumpet, are full production numbers. They utilize football players, cheerleaders, a chorus and the works. The "Krazy Kollege Kickoff" number is a takeoff on the bopsters approach to football games.

The Soph Hop entertainment will be Luchs' and Kalchiem's first collaboration, though both have written shows.

The dance is slated for 8:30 p.m. with Ken Fredericks' popular "Saltines" band playing. Tickets at $2 per couple will be sold in all houses and dorms through sophomore senate representatives. Any house needing tickets should contact Suzanne Taylor, Alpha Epsilon Phi.

A ballad, "Football's Rocking My Dreamboat," has been written for Barbara (Corky) Corcoran, and Kenneth Sparks and Harriet Erlich are singing the original "I've Never Known (A Girl Like You)."

The whole show is built around college football in the fall, and has a running continuity.

Any sophomores interested in being in the chorus for the two production numbers are urged to contact Kenneth Luchs or Sidney Kalcheim at the Tau Epsilon Phi house to arrange for a tryout time.

Modern Bizet Due At Lincoln Saturday

Oscar Hammerstein and Bizet will parade arm-in-arm across the Lincoln auditorium stage tomorrow when the Famous Artists series presents a full-scale production of "Carmen Jones".

The musical, a modern version of the immortal Bizet opera, recently completed a successful run on Broadway where it was warmly received as "superb, beautiful, enchanting, and thrilling" by New York critics.

"CARMEN JONES" stretches the well-known gypsy opera into the war years in the United States and transforms Mr. Bizet's gay folk into modern happy-talking Southerners. The new lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II blend with the master's music to lend an exciting twist to the honored work.

Starred in the Syracuse presentation will be Muriel Rahn who played 134 performances of "Carmen Jones" in New York following several appearances at where she at one time had the the Metropolitan Opera house top role in "Aida".

Mr. Hammerstein's version of "Carmen" is set in a parachute factory which replaces the traditional cigarette concern. Don Jose, the Sapnish corporal of the Dragons, becomes Corp. Joe, a frisky G.I.; Escamillo, the bull-fighter, becomes Husky Miller, a prize-fighter; and devoted Micadela emerges as Cindy Lou.

Special students tickets for the show are still available at the University Bookstore, priced at $1.50. There will also be a door sale. Curtain time for "Carmen Jones" is 8:15 p.m.

MSG Court to Hear Trial In Cornell Vandalism Case

Five University students will be tried by the men's student government court tomorrow for alleged vandalism committed on the Cornell campus.

The open trial is slated for 7 p.m. in 101 Maxwell, according to Arthur Maahs, defense counsel.

The case came to the attention of Associate Dean of Men Carlton L. Krathwohl last Tuesday, when a telephone call from Cornell university's dean of men informed him that at 3 a.m. that morning the Cornell security guard had apprehended the five Syracuse students on the Red campus.

The students allegedly had in their car a supply of paint and paint brushes.

On two of the streets within the campus limits large "S's" had been painted.

THE STUDENTS identified themselves by presenting their University identification cards.

Signed by Colgate and Syracuse representatives last week, the anti-vandalism pact, condemns all acts "which cause permanent or semi-permanent damage, disfigurement, mutilation, defacement or destruction of any of the properties of the two Universities."

From 1948 until this year Cornell was a member of the group signing the pact. However, this year, no Cornell representatives took part in the Cazenovia agreement.

Meanwhile, here on the Hill, another indication of inter-college visits was noted Friday, as a huge "CU Beat Syracuse" was painted on the road between Sims and Slocum. It could not be determined whether the "C" stood for Cornell or Colgate.

ON Gets Reprieve; Deadline Extended For Subscriptions

The Onondagan got a reprieve Friday, as deadline for subscriptions was extended.

According to Thomas Beckett, ON editor, and Charles Bernhardt, financial advisor, subscriptions will be accepted by Mrs. Mary Arnod, secretary to Bernhardt, in the Hellbox; Charlene Velon, business manager, Pi Beta Phi; or yearbook representatives in University living centers.

The original deadline had been set at 5 p.m. last Saturday; the board of publications had previously ordered that 1,500 subscriptions must be obtained before plans for a 1954 yearbook can be made.

Photographers from Chidnoff Studios, New York city, arrive on campus today to take senior pictures for the yearbook. Sittings, appointments for which were made at registration, will be held today through the rest of the week at 121 College pl.

Those who did not obtain sittings may register for appointments at the College pl. address.

Yearbooks may be ordered at the sittings, Beckett said.

No DO Slated For Wednesday

The Daily Orange will not be published Wednesday, Nov. 11. Cancellation of this day's issue will enable the DO staff to prepare for the special Colgate Weekend edition, which will be distributed Friday, Nov. 13.

All notices for Wednesday events must be called in to the Hellbox by 3:30 p.m. today to be included in tomorow's issue.

Grad Women Set Swimming Session

New Gym Reserved For Recreation

Graduate women will get into the swim with a special pool session from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. today in the Women's building. The pool is reserved for grad women each week at that time.

The small gym in the building will be available from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. today for basketball, volleyball and badminton.

Special "Grad Gatherings," informal evening sessions, are slated from 7:30 to 10 p.m. each Thursday in the Colonial room of Hendricks chapel.

All graduate students are invited to take part in programs, sponsored by the Graduate Commission under the chairmanship of Dorothy Smith.

Shakers Go on Sale Today As Students Herald Game

Orange shakers, heralding the approach of Colgate Weekend, go on sale in Hill fraternity and sorority houses today.

University living centers were canvassed last night in the annual sale, sponsored by Pi Lambda Phi fraternity.

Proceeds from sale of shakers, to be vended at ten cents each, will be contributed to the Campus Chest drive.

Gary Schwartz is chairman of this year's drive. The shakers will be used at Saturday's Colgate game, when the prize-winning cheer, utilizing the shakers, will be introduced. The contest for the winning cheer was sponsored by the Pi Lams.

Orange and blue balloons will mingle with the shakers in the crowded stadium Saturday. The class of 1955 will sell the balloons at ten cents each.

Fraternities or sororities wishing to purchase bundles of balloons may contact Dorothy Bronin, Delta Phi Epsilon. These orders must be picked up before game time at the Sigma Chi house.

The shakers and balloons are but two of a myriad of colorful articles which have been vended by Hill groups and classes to promote spirit. The class of 1954 sells bright yellow mums, while the '52 graduating class specialized in "wheel" hats, which they marketed among grid fans.

Council Will Hear Graduate Student

The subject of the Syracuse Peace Council's first seminar will be "The World Looks at America." The seminar is scheduled for 8 p.m., tomorrow in the director's room of the Syracuse Savings Bank.

Miss Lorna Seivright, a graduate student in the College of Medicine, will give Jamaica's viewpoint on America at the opening session. She has been a member of the "Panel of Americans," a student group presenting the views of various groups in the United States to promote better intergroup understanding.

Dr. Byron L. Fox, associate professor of socilology in the Maxwell Graduate School of Public Affairs, will lead the other sessions, which will be on successive Tuesday evenings through Dec. 1.

A registration fee of $1 will be payable at the first meeting to cover the entire series.

Other speakers will be William S. Andrews, a graduate of the Syracuse College of Law who recently returned from a year in the Netherlands; Prof. Roland E. Wolesley of the School of Journalism, who has been in India and Europe for 17 months; and Tin H'Too, a member of the University of Rangoon faculty in his native Burma and a Hill grad.

Law Review Prints Article by Brown

An article on the separation of church and state, by Professor Stuart G. Brown of the Maxwell School of Citizenship, will be published in the fall edition of the Syracuse Law Review.

Dr. Brown is chairman of the citizenship and American studies departments of the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. His books include "We Hold These Truths" and a study of Josiah Royce, the famed idealist.

Students May Get ID Cards, Tickets

Students who must replace lost ID cards or grid tickets must contact Elizabeth Brydon, 75-4191 or 75-5571 ex. 264, or Steven Reiss, 75-0037, by noon Thursday. No replacements will be made after this time.

Chapel Gets Jobs For Volunteers

Chapel social service has placed 65 men and women for the volunteer center. Coeds are working in their free time feeding babies and teaching swimming, cooking, and crafts. Men work with the USO, boys clubs, and other activities.

There are still openings for those interested in service to the community by calling Carrie Hussing or Pat Mosher at Chi Omega, 75-5771.

The first meeting of the group will be held at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Colonial room of Hendricks chapel. Refreshments will be served.

CIA Representative To Interview Today

Thomas Coffey of the Central Intelligence agency will interview seniors and graduate students for positions today and tomorrow.

Interested students should see Mrs. Stenger in room 212 in Maxwell. The CIA representative is recruiting students for the junior professional training program of the agency.

JMA EXAM

Algebra review sessions for the junior management assistant examination will be conducted by Prof. Paul Gilbert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, November 18, in 307 HL.

A Welcome From Tolley

Program to Stress Fire Prevention

"Play for Your Life," a presentation stressing the importance of fire prevention, will be given at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 12, in Maxwell auditorium.

K. Thomas Call has combined magic and instruction in a show sponsored by a national life insurance company, stressing a series of games that would enable members of a family to avoid death or injury should fire break out.

Attendance at the presentation has been urged by Prof. Theodore Denise, fraternity advisor, and Jack Buckle, director of men's counseling and residences.

Psych Honorary Slates Deadline

Junior psychology majors and graduate students interested in Psi Chi, national psychology honorary, are requested to submit applications at the psychology center, 123 College pl. by tomorrow. Students must have completed the general psychology course with a B average and have a 1.8 accumulative average.

DO FROSH

A Daily Orange freshman class is set for 4:15 p.m. today in 103 Castle. Arthur B. Siegel, managing editor, will address the group. All frosh must attend this class or Thursday's session.

Hundred months

One hundred months after a split second flash destroyed 70,000 human beings, a similar brilliance will wipe out this campus and the heart of the city it inhabits.

The twin of the puff of destruction that destroyed a fragile Japanese city will rise from a street corner on which sit two hopes for the world: a biological sciences building and homes for the future. And few hopes or people will survive . . . the reason being that in the outlying areas of the blast a pitiful number of people will have the skills to save those who have escaped the expanding wall of heat and death.

Terrior does not arise, of course, at the above sentences. The reader knows that the shock and heat wave expanding from the corner of College and University places is mythical and will be traced on a paper diagram and not in charred ruin.

Syracuse university has been chosen as the site for a mock atomic bomb attack on Nov. 19. For many students this will be the closest contact they will have with the civil defense program.

However, although students are exempt for a time from the actual fighting or waiting for the armed forces, they cannot plead exemption from their resonsibility of building a strong home-front.

This age has been termed that of the global war. By now it is apparent that any conflict will hit American soil for the first time in a century. We, the Americans, must resign ourselves, not to war, by any means, but to home-front defense in case of a war.

The reasons for the above are clear. The prime reason the allies won the last war was because they got to the opponents' home-front and destroyed it . . . the same strategy can be planned against us.

The facts have been stated. Now for the action that must follow. To learn about the civil defense program and the services which the citizen can join, we first refer you quickly to the list that follows:

Then for information we refer you to 4-3188 . . . that is the Onondagan Civil Defense headquarters.

Finally, we suggest that you rise in the night and stand on the cold street corner of College and University places at 4:10 a.m. on the 19th. Look at your watch, light a cigarette, count 60 and blink.

You are vapor . . . in theory. But the Civil defense action will not be. We suggest you join the ranks of the realists and prepare for the bomb that someday may come.

VARIED PAST OF PROCOPIO FROSH PREXY

In an exclusive interview given in Sims dining hall to Daily Orange reporters, Francis J. Procopio confided the events that led up to his election to the coveted office of Freshman Class president.

Fran was born and raised in Fulton, New York, where he passed the uneventful but happy years of his childhood. The youngest child in his family, he was, from the beginning he said, "a brat." During his years in Phillips Street public school, his interests covered a wide and varied range—from women to women.

Outside of this fascinating field, he took part in musical organizations and acrobatics; P. S. He was always on the bottom. Despite the fact that in three years of active membership Fran never passed tenderfoot, he spent much of his extra time with the Boy Scouts. Scholastically, Fran's marks were only mediocre, he pointed out, but by the time of his eighth grade graduation, he had progressed well enough to be voted salutatorian of his class.

Upon entering his freshman year at Fulton high school, Fran's ambition for future vocations were beginning to form. Aviation was his chosen field, but in September of his sophomore year, he was stricken with polio and upon the day he was scheduled to enter school, he entered the hospital.

For the next 10 months, he was confined to the Co-ed Ithaca Reconstruction Center, where he recuperated from his illness, and also learned that it was possible to be a sophomore in high school and still be bratty.

After his departure from Ithaca, Fran returned to Fulton high and began seriously hitting the books. Besides holding honor marks in his math major, he found opportunities to work in the public address and sports department.

In his senior year, Fran added to an already busy schedule, the activities of Student Council Representative, Senior Class Treasurer, Assembly master of ceremonies and commercial radio work on a local station. He still found time for hobbies such as photography, construction of jet models, table tennis, archery, and of course—women.

1953 brought Fran to Syracuse and "one of the finest schools of radio and TV in the country." When nominations opened for president of the Freshman class, Fran, forsaking his own ambition of working on MSG, was persuaded by his friends at Skytop M-3 to run on the independent ticket because he felt that "he could give the Frosh class the representation that was needed."

When asked about his feelings during the campaign, Fran, between mouthfuls of food, managed to gurgle out, "I love meeting people through a major activity such as this, and except for the lack of sleep, the campaign was one of my most wonderful experiences." But he also confessed that the day before election "I was a little nervous. Now that the election is over," he said, "I feel very good, but I wish the entire freshman class to know that my winning of this office is due mainly to the wonderful backing given me from various groups of freshmen on campus. Great credit goes to my campaign manager, Joe Easton."

During the interview Fran was consistently swamped by the congratulations of well-wishers and the sincere gratitude in his face and voice convinced all of his genuine appreciation of the honor accorded him by the Freshman class.

Africa Without Jungle

By ANDRA KADILIS
Daily Orange Columnist

West Africa, jungle, wild animals, huge reptiles, aggressive natives! I grabbed my pencil with the greatest excitement, all prepared to hear breath taking tales from Samuel Joseph Mantee, from Liberia, the part of world which has created hundreds of adventure stories, movies, and sleepless nights for boys.

"Tell me, how many times have you fought with lions, show me your scars!"

Then came the shock: Sam gently and calmly explained, that the only lion he had ever seen had been in the zoo in New York city. The same goes for the other exotic animals!

Sam is even a little disgusted as he says that most of stories about Africa are so very exaggerated and untrue. Especially Liberia, which is the only Negro republic, and has existed as such for 106 years is a quite civilized nation. Of course there are many things to be done, and many people to be taught to read, but everything is well on its way. In this matter the Americans are helping a great deal, also the official language of Liberia being English.

In Liberia you can find such extremes, as places with electricity, trains and other luxuries, and places, the more remote tribes, that live very primitively yet.

Sam is studying journalism and adult education. He got a scholarship from his government, and in this he was helped by an American missionary Norma Bloomquist, who is especially beloved by the people of the region of Liberia she works in.

Sam's purpose is to go back to Liberia after a year at Syracuse, and help educate the people. But an even greater purpose, that Sam has on his mind is to write about the customs, habits and beliefs of his people, so that, with these slowly giving way to the Western civilization now, they might be preserved in history.

Sam himself stems from the Basso tribe, which had once been known as a very war-like people, and had been proud of some great warriors. The names of the tribes still remain, but the tribes are now comparable to states in a union, with all the democratic ways and systems.

Some of the Liberians, that have not become Christians yet, have a vague idea of God, but they praise him through the spirits of their ancestors. War dances around fires are still done on feast days, and drums beaten, but you have to be born with the rythm in your blood to be able to really loose yourself in these dances, that are so enjoyed by the Liberians. Also Sam knows the rythms and can beat them for some of the dances.

Speaking of impressions, I wonder, what the Liberians now think of us after what Sam told me: The main food in Liberia is rice, and the vegetables they eat are always cooked. Sam, having tasted some of the salads here, wrote about this as a great wonder to his friend in Liberia. His friend very helpfully answered: "I will put a sign around my house—keep off grass—so that you will have plenty of food when you return home!"

Sam is very busy in his studies, and has not much time for fun, even though he likes sports very much, especially soccer, and he also likes to spend much time reading the biographies of well-known people, so hoping to learn more about U.S. and the American people.

And then, where and why should Sam bother to run, since he already has a wife and a son back home?

Two Styles Of Males

In case the new class of '57 has not already become aware that there are two distinct types of males in their midst, the "Etownian," of Elizabethtown College, has furnished these helpful descriptions:

PLAYBOY—seen wearing turtle-neck sweaters . . . usually playing a uke or waving a pennant . . . surrounded by admiring coeds . . thoughts far from books . . maybe even swallows a goldfish when there is nothing better to do . . . definitely "college bred"—(four-year loaf made out of dad's dough.)

GENIUS—One-sided individual with that one side leaning on a stack of books . . . uses $64 words for common terms just to confuse the poor average citizen . . . fountain of knowledge . . . always wears glasses—especially the thick, horn-rimmed type.

Out to the Diggings: Tall Deep & Fat Wide

By DICK CASE

Editorial Page Writer

That ragged finger of nothingness about a giraffe deep and a hippopotamus wide which has been pointing down from Machinery hall these past days has finally ended up, as of all things, a sewer.

This latest addition to the assorted holes and ditches which continue to dot the Syracuse campus is being dug by the Speech Excavating crews to provide a much-needed supplement to the Hill sewage system. This excavation has caused the appearance of craters of various depths in the area west of Lyman hall and the general deterrance of student traffic from the locale.

This pageant of flying soil and grunting steam shovels has aroused the interest of the usual amount of sidewalk superintendents. Among these is your curious reporter who happened to wander toward the holes one afternoon.

The ditch in question dips into about 20-feet of the good Syracuse earth and stretches from inches below to the drama headquarters to the great gates on University pl. At this point, brick by brick, a sewer is being constructed from the bottom up by a group of fellows whose existence is confined to gazing forever upward at the world.

The bricks are whisked down a clever wooden slide to the boys down under and they are rapidly wasped in place by flying hands. It will eventually rise to the crust of Syracuse and an appreciate man-hole cover will be plopped on.

And then there's that fascinating Insley steamshovel which tetters between life and destruction on the brink of our ditch. This jagged jaw of steel sweeps great hunks of earth, which perhaps have remained untouched since Hiawatha roamed these parts, and piles it neatly near the walls of Lyman.

If some strong-hearted men were to one day wander near the edge of these holes of Syracuse, they would most likely find a group of very stalwart men industriously making the dirt fly.

But if by chance, this idle glance revealed a few slanted-eye gents in kimonas, beware. For once, the boys have gone a bit too far.

Stone Settee for the Little Folks

By RUTHIE BARME

It seems the small fry will have the opportunity to get acquainted with SU legend and folklore long before they enter the portals of study. In fact, the little people have a stone bench made especially for them. Our bench by HL has a little sister (or is it brother?) behind Crouse College and the ironic part is the seclusion afforded the younger generation does not belong to the well-known and well-loved seat by HL.

After a long and tedious hike this reporter found the bench to be a beautiful miniature in marble, and not really hard to find at all. Although partially buried by the prefabs surrounding the gem, it serves very nice seclusion for those who want it.

Our bench, which is a memorial of and from the class of 1905, has quite a story behind it (or is it in front of it?). It seems the class of '05 started thinking about what to leave as a memorial during its senior year. All sorts of crazy suggestions come into light. Among these gems were a sidewalk with a plate telling the story of its donators. Other suggestions were a trophy room, a fountain, or the first panel of a fence that was someday to encircle the campus.

After considerable discussion, a sundial was finally decided upon. But this never came into reality. In fact, the very next year, the idea was discarded in favor of the sidewalk. But this also never materialized. The campus, it was said, was to be improved, and the sidewalk must wait till after the digging up of the campus. The sidewalk waited. It is still waiting.

In 1915 our bench appeared. No one knows just how the class decided, after such a long time had elapsed, but, suddenly, there it was. And at that time, there were no prefabs cluttering up the scenery. Instead, it was just a beautiful green landscape, appreciated especially when there were concerts at Crouse with very long intermissions. What happened to the green? Who gave birth to those hidious excuses for roofs and walls? And yet, even with these monsters surrounding the bench, it has lost none of its beauty or dignity.

The bench, though small in dimensions, has ample room for two people to sit comfortable and even three, if you don't mind being a bit crowded. The seat is 54 inches long, but only 12 inches from the ground, for those long-legged people who like to stretch their legs. The back of the bench is 29 inches high, while the width runs 60 inches with 18 inches from seat to top. The front of the back (if you know what I mean) has the inscription 1905 beautifully chisled. This dated slab serves as a reminder of that class of long ago, and at the same time makes for a very nice backrest.

If there are any midgets around campus, or if any younger brothers or sisters come to visit, here is the chance they have been waiting for, a bench just for their size!

Bomb to Fall On SU Street

By JACK REILLY

Syracuse university will be the site of an early-morning written A-bomb attack Thursday, Nov. 19, at the corners of College pl. and University pl.

Aproximately 300 University students will participate in the third annual training exercise program, which wil take place from November 19-21. Syracuse civil defense training officials have been given the written problem of the attack, they must prepare a written solution to the problem.

In the proposed plan a yellow alert would be received at 3:40 a.m. by the air raid warning center, indicating that the mock aircraft is headed toward northeast United States. A red alert would be sounded at 4 a.m. The general public then would supposedly seek shelter.

At 4:15 a.m., a single atomic bomb would be supposedly exploded at Ground Zero, the intersection of College and University pls.

From Ground Zero to three-quarters of a mile, total devastation of the area would result. All structures except heavy steel-reinforced buildings more than a half mile from Ground Zero would be destroyed.

In the area from three-quarters of a mile to one and a quarter miles, severe to heavy damage woul doccur. Almost all buildings would be damaged extensively.

From one and a quarter miles to two and a half miles, damage would be from severe to moderate and light. Fires would be scattered throughout the area, but would be starting to merge into major conflagrations.

About 4:20 a.m., the hostile bomber that attacked would be intercepted by jet fighters as it attempts to escape toward Lake Ontario. Midway between Fulton and Oswego, the aircraft would be shot down.

Local service chiefs and zone commanders, under Thomas P. Ballantyne, civil defense director for Onondaga county, will summarize their portion of the written solution to the above problem. The entire day will be given over to the presentations of the solutions of the problem, headed to the officials last June.

Individual service chiefs, together with their zone representatives, will meet with the state representative of that particular service on Nov. 20 to discuss in detail the solution and the plan of the operation. Friday afternoon will be taken up with a general conference at which state service heads will be asked for a summary critique pertaining to their particular services.

Friday evening, the control centers throughout the area will go through a demonstration. Control centers are stationed at John T. Roberts School, William Howard Taft school and John VanDuyn school, in Syracuse; Cherry Road school, in Westvale; and Holy Cross church, in DeWitt. There will be four field switchboards in each zone for land laid lines of communications to forward area.

Saturday morning a run-through of the various units involved in the attack will be observed by Director Huebner and his staff.

Civil defense classes were conducted for radiological personnel during the summer in preparation for the event. Dr. Benjamin P. Burtt, civil defense radiology chief and a professor on the Hill, instructed members in the locating and measuring the intensity of radioactive particles.

Seneca, Cayuga, Jefferson, Oneonta, Cortland and Oswego counties will be involved in the attack.

Last November 21, a similar test was conducted in downtown Syracuse with Clinton Square as Ground Zero.

The all-encompassing scope and power of the atomic bomb is a source of much fear and terror to most people. They worry and wonder about protection from this mighty blast.

If you should be in the center of such an atomic explosion as is proposed on paper for Syracuse, there would be no need to worry about any protection—you would be completely vaporized.

However, in case you are sufficiently out of the range of devastation, there are some rules which can very easily save a person from injury or even save his life.

If you should be in the open when the bomb hits, immediately fall to the ground, face down, next to a building wall, so you will be shielded from falling bricks and stones. Close your eyes and cover your face and neck with your arms.

If you are on the street, dodge into a doorway if it is not more than a step or two away. If there is no cover directly near you, drop to the street or gutter and turn away from the blast.

No one is safe from these atom attacks. "No matter how eficient our radar screen, no matter how good our defense may be, we can't visualize a situation where enemy bombers will not get through to some extent," states Mr. Daniel K. Edwards, assistant secretary of defense.

If you are in the house when one of these planes gets through, dive under a bed or table or drop behind a sofa to protect you from flying glass. Keep out of line with windows.

If you are driving a car, park at the curb as quickly as you can. Do not park where you will block a street or a corner.

"The fact is that the atomic bomb makes planned destruction easier," states James K. McElroy, engineer, national fire protection association. "The situation no longer exists where people can live in some isolated place and say they aren't in danger."

The immediate effect of the explosion will be over in a few seconds, but before you leave cover look out for falling wreckage. The greatest danger after the attack is from fires set by the heat of the explosion or resulting from broken gas and oil lines and short circuits.

"The people of this country must know that they are more likely to lose their home by fire after the attack than explosion during the attack," states Millard Colwell, of the Civil defense administration.

"The chances that any specific neighborhood would suffer a direct hit are small. But the bombing would start innumerable small fires. These small fires quickly would grow into one big fire unless put out at once."

Civil Defense authorities estimate that effective defense measures can save as many as 50% of the lives which might otherwise be lost in time of atomic disaster.

"There is no complete protection against an atomic air attack," according to former President of the United States Harry S. Truman. "However, the lives of many millions of people may depend on the development of a strong civil defense program to meet such an attack."

THIS HOUSE, placed 3,500 feet from the actual blast area, was in a state of total collapse after the explosion. Dummies planted in the cellar were buried under fallen rubble but otherwise unhurt. People would probably manage to survive in an ordinary basement shelter. This could be your home, a fraternity or a sorority house or your frame University living center. They'd all look the same after the bomb had blown its top in the blast area.

MANNEQUIN PLACED in lean-to shelter in the basement of a house at 7,500 feet from ground zero remains undamaged. Shelter is partially destroyed. A human in here would escape the blast unarmed. People in upper part of house would have been injured or killed.

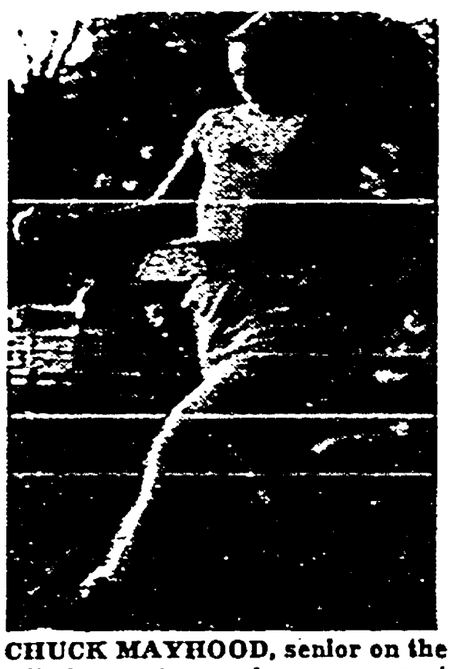
Syracuse Defeats Colgate In Home Soccer Tilt, 2-0

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Syracuse booters made it three straight last Friday afternoon when they beat an outclassed Colgate side 2-0 in the first home game of the season. The Saltines close the 1953 campaign against Renessalaer Polytechnical Institute this Friday.

Friday's contest was more one-sided than the score indicated. Although the Hill booters were only able to tally twice, they dominated play throughout the game and were never seriously challenged. After the first quarter, the only question to be resolved was the margin of the Orange win.



CHUCK MAYHOOD, senior on the Hill Soccer team who saw a great deal of action against Colgate last Friday is shown in a recent practice session.

FOR SYRACUSE, the win was their third in six outings. The Orange tied Cornell 1-1 in the season's opener and lost to Cortland in their only official loss of the season. Syracuse's other loss came at the hands of the Sampson flyers but the contest, not being an intercollegiate affair, doesn't go in the record books.

Cornell was the only common opponent of both teams and the comparative scores against the Big Red check with Friday's game. Syracuse and Cornell played to a 1-1 tie while the Red Raiders were thrashed 5-0 by Cornell.

Syracuse opened the scoring festivities in the first quarter when Bill Ayres split the twines on a shot from in front of the goal post. Bill Nelson was given an assist on the play.

Throughout the first half, the play was constantly centered around the Colgate goal, with the Red Raiders able to launch only infrequent and ineffective attacks.

THE DOMINANT NOTE in the half was struck by the fine Orange defense which almost completely bottled up the opposition's forward wall. Capt. Don Moller, Nick Rozos and Don Shupe who handled the halfback roles were the backbone of the strong Orange defensive line.

The play in the second half was a rehash of the first half's activity. Syracuse was peppering goalie Harold Merrick with shots from all angles but was unable to capitalize on any of the breaks until 11:30 of the third quarter when Ayres netted his second goal of the day with on the play.

Merrick was the outstanding player for the invading booters. Nelson again getting the assist The Red Raider goalie made 39 saves in the game, many of which were difficult ones.

COACH ANDY COCCARI fielded approximately the same lineup that triumphed 1-0 over Brockport last Wednesday with only a few minor changes being made.

Bud Gormon took over Milliron's old left fullback position, unable o capitalize on any of while Milliron started at the left halfback position, formerly tenanted by ormon. formerly tenanted by Gormon.

The injury to offensive linesmen Duncan Robb forced Coccari to go with Mike Newcomb at the inside right slot. Newcomb turned in an accreditable performance at that unfamiliar position.

Late in the third quarter, Coccari removed Wirth from the goal and put Obserschal in his place in an attempt to strengthen the Orange's attack. Although Wirth didn't score a goal, he did increase the pressure on the already harried Colgate goalie.

In Friday's game, Wirth turned in his best performance of the year at the goalie position. Although Colgate never put up a concentrated attack, Wirth was called upon to make several extremely difficult saves when a Colgate forward broke loose into scoring position every once in a while.

AXEL SPOTS—Next Friday's game against RPI will be the last intercollegiate contest for several Orange seniors. Nelson, Sig Wirth, Moller, and Chuck Mayhood are among the booters who will graduate this June.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

The man with the silvery-brown hair paced nervously along the sidelines looking at the team he had coached for 27 satisfying years. Syracuse soccer coach unfil this year, Art Horrocks was taking in every detail of the Orange win over Colgate.

Speaking in a rich Scottish burr, the old veteran started reminiscing about the 1936 Syracuse team—his greatest club. "That was a great year," he said porudly, "Our team scored 45 goals in 8 games for an undefeated season. They couldn't stop us.

"Only two teams tied us, Penn State and Springfield. I'll never orget that Penn State game. They had one of their great teams in '36. Their coach, Bill Jeffries, came over before it started and informed me that his team had only three goals scored on them in three years.

"I told him that we'd score at least that much. Well, the game came down to the last minute of the fourth quarter and we were leading, 4-3. Penn Sate was fighting mad not because they were losing but because of the goals we scored.

"The fella we had in goal, Jack Rogers, was a good goaler but a real clown. With one minute left, Penn State got a free kick from the center strip. I looked over at the goal and there was Rogers DOIN' A SOMERSAULT!

"Well, that Penn State fella kicked the ball right toward the goal, o course Rogers didn't stop it and the ball dribbled in to tie us, 4-4. I told Jeffries that under the rules there were supposed to be two five-minute overtimes, but he wouldn't play them.

His eyes twinkled as he talked about the past glory that was Syracuse. He told another tale of the '32 team which spotted Cortland State Teachers a 3-0 first period edge on a muddy field and then rolled over them, 12-3.

"Why, it got so that we'd have to take some of the boys out to keep the scoring down," said Horrocks. The veteran mentor hadpraise for the present squad under Coach Andy Cocerri. He feels that the best player on the field is not Bill Nelson or the Wirth brothers, though he says they are excellent players, but Captain Don Miller.

The player that appears to be his favorite, however, is Jack McEwen who was the bulwark of his 1931 undefeated team. "That fella made soccer here at Syracuse," stated Horrocks.

The half was drawing to a close and Horrocks' attention was intent on the field o fplay even while he was talking. He would interrupt his narration every so often with soft-spoken encouragement to the boys on the field.

"C'mon Bill . . . Trap it, that's the way . . . (With a nudge) Now watch this play, it should be a goal . . . Oh-h-h,, he just missed . . . We should win this game, 3-0. They won't score on us. Colgate doesn't have a thing."

The whistle blew to end the half and Referee Joe Weber, who was captain of the Orange booters in 1946, came across the windswept field.

He slapped Horrocks on the back with a booming, "Hello, pop. How does it look to see the game from the sidelines? Still the same old game?"

Harriers Prepare for Important Meets; IC4A, NCAA Engagements Scheduled

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

One week from today the annual running of the IC4A meet will be held in New York City's Van Courtlandt Park. As usual, Syracuse will enter the meet as one of the favorites to cop this, one of the two big cross-country meets of the season.

The Piety harriers have been pointing for this engagement with the other highly rated squads from strong Army team, the Pietymen schools which are members of the IC4A. And, as in previous years, the Orangemen will face opposition of the toughest caliber.

BUT THIS IS not the only tough meet facing the Syracuse hill-and-dalers. One week after the IC4A's, Nov. 23, the Hill runners will journey to East Lansing, Mich., for the NCAA meet.

Although the Saltine harriers have not gone nndefeated this campaign, they have only lost one meet—that a close duel at Cornell. Victorious over their other opponents, including a rate serious consideration as a pre-meet favorite.

One year ago, Syracuse's Ray Osterhout, captain of the present Hill team, finished second to Georgetown's Charlie Capozzoli in both the IC4A and the NCAA meets.

Now that Capozzol is no longer running in the collegiate ranks, Ray is given a good chance of finishing in front of the pack.

Former Piety Gymnast Cover Boy

Baba Just Missed Olympic Team; Will Try Again

By JOEL FEIDELMAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Three years ago, little Joel Baba was the outstanding member of the Syracuse university gymnastic team. Today, the same lad, standing just a few inches above five feet, is rapidly being acknowledged as one of the best gymnasts in the country, as shown by his picture on the cover of the cur- Strength and Health magazine.

The colored picture on the cover of the November issue shows Baba doing gyrations on the parallel bars. A story inside the magazine tells of the attempt Baba is making to become a member of the American team for an international gymnastic meet in Rome in 1954.

WHILE BABA has become one of the better all-around gymnasts in the country in the years since he left college, he also made quite a name for himself while at Syracuse. He has to his credit the university record for the most points in a league season, scoring 54 points in four league meets in 1950.

While at Syracuse, he competed in three events—the flying rings, parallel bars and tumbling, as well as the all-around event sectional meets. In his three years on the Orange 'varsity, Baba was high point scorer each year.

Three current Orange gymnasts, John Barkal, Milan Trnka and Ferdie Fournies will be trying to crack Baba's individual point record this winter when the aEstern Gymnastic League opens. Each is scheduled o work in three events, the same number that Baba worked in his record-making year.

Aside from trying to make the American squad for international meets, Baba has been quite busy since leaving Piety Hill. While studying for his Master's Degree at Temple university, Baba is working as assistant gym coach of the Owls. In 1952 Joel barely missed making the United States team in the Olympic games, losing a position by only a few points in the last day of a meet to determine the Olympic team composition.

JOEL BABA, former Hill gymnast pictured above as he appeared on the cover of Strength and Health magazine. Baba is the holder of the Syracuse university record for the most points scored in the all-around events. He narrowly missed a place on the '52 Olympic team.

Intra Grid Final Set for Wednesday

Intramural football reaches its culmination this week with the all-university championship contest scheduled for Wednesday night, and the fraternity and livingcenter-independent title tilts slated for Tuesday evening. The winners of tomorrow's games will meet for the all-university crown.

Tonight, Theta Chi, fraternity flight III champion meets Sigma Chi, the flight II titlist. The winner of this game will advance into the fraternity finals.

Raider Grid Series With Hill Close

When Syracuse and Colgate clash on the Archbold turf this Saturday it will mark the 54th meeting of the traditional Upstate rivals. The Red Raiders from Chenango valley won the initial battle in 1891, 22-16, and lead the series 31-17 with five tilts resulting in ties.

Ben Schwartzwalder's Orange won the last two contests, whitewashing the visitors 9-0 in 1951 and scoring 20-14 a year ago.

Syrcause Sailors Seek Second Win On Lake Cayuga

The Syracuse sailing team will seek to notch its second seasonal victory on Lake Cayuga this weekend in the Upper New York State championship, bi-annual regatta held between Cornell, Colgate, Syracuse, Hobart and RPI.

Racing is set to get underway at noon on Saturday and again at 10 on Sunday. If weather permits, twelve races will be sailed in all.

The teams finishing first and second in this regatta will automatically qualify for the Navy Fall Invitational, sailed at Annapolis the following weekend for the War Memorial Trophy. The Orange was runnerup to Cornell in last year's elimination.

Team captain Jack Cummings is slated to start as A division skipper while Jack Dickerson will probably handle the tiller in the B series. Mary Lyn Miller and Mary Jean Perry are the respective crews. Paul Frahm and Warren Witherstene, both capable helmsman, round out hte squad.

new tool for lightning-fast calculation

Resembling a Chinese abacus, this 12-inch electronic assembly operates at a speed of one million pulses a second. It is one of 274 similar electronic units that perform the computing and control functions of IBM's great new "701" Electronic Data Processing Machines.

These extraordinary machines are providing the nation's defense projects with the most flexible and productive computer ever manufactured in quantity.

In every field of business, IBM machines reduce the drudgery and increase the speed and accuracy of computing and accounting operations.

Soph Bureau Seeks Coeds To Date Men From Colgate

By POLLY REED

A call has been issued for Hill coeds who would like dates for Saturday's Soph Hop.

Nora Hutton and Carole Strothman, co-chairmen of the date bureau, have reported that several hundred Colgate men want dates, in addition to Hill males, but that not enough women had signed up.

THE BUREAU will be in operation all this week, and date applications will appear in the Daily Orange. Coeds may also register by calling Miss Hutton or Miss Strothman at 75-4191.

The date bureau worked successfully at last year's freshman weekend dance, but with the influx of Colgate men for the weekend there has been an overabundance of men and not enough women.

The soph hop, annual Colgate weekend dance, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in Archbold gymnasium. The theme of this year's dance is the "Krazy Kollege Kickoff."

An intermission show, written by Kenneth Luchs and Sidney Kalcheim, will be a review based on the "Krazy Kollege Kickoff" theme. Songs by the two sophomores will be sung by Kenneth Sparks, Harriet Erlich, Barbara (Corky) Corcoran, Fred Gresinger, and Ray Caldiero and his trumpet will be featured. Choreography is by Betty Rae Foster. The review is directed by Gilbert Katz, and Mari Jordan and Jane Werner are in charge of the whole entertainment program.

LATEST COLLEGE SURVEY SHOWS LUCKIES LEAD AGAIN

Last year a survey of leading colleges throughout the country showed that smokers in those colleges preferred Luckies to any other cigarette.

This year another nation-wide survey—based on thousands of actual student interviews, and representative of all students in regular colleges—shows that Luckies lead again over all brands, regular or king size...and by a wide margin! The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better.

Smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste, and the fact of the matter is Luckies taste better—for 2 reasons. L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. And Luckies are made better to taste better. So, Be Happy—Go Lucky!

Where's your jingle?

It's easier than you think to make $25 by writing a Lucky Strike jingle like those you see in this ad. Yes, we need jingles—and we pay $25 for every one we use! So send as many as you like to: Happy-Go-Lucky, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

Soph Hop Couples Invited to Tote Mugs To 'Kollege Kickoff'

Couples attending the soph hop Saturday are invited to bring along their mugs for refreshments, Jacqueline Claridge and Norman Churchill, co-chairmen of refreshments for the hop announced yesterday.

There will be a mug checking service provided free of charge for all who bring mugs. For those who don't, regular paper cups will be supplied at the refreshment bar. For that "Orange"-like atmosphere, the bar will be set up in one corner of the gym.

REFRESHMENTS WILL be in keeping with the "Krazy Kollege Kickoff" theme.

The annual dance is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in Archbold gymnasium. In keeping with tradition, the dance will be dressy and corsageless.

Tickets at $2 a couple will be sold through representatives in sophomore senate. Anyone needing extra tickets should contact Suzanne Taylor, Alpha Epsilon Phi. A cup will be presented to the house selling the most tickets to the soph hop.

Couples at the hop will dance on a huge gridiron between two goalposts at either end of the gym. Spectators in 3-D will cheer from one wall. Even the posters on Marshall st. and in campus buildings will be in 3-D.

A DATE BUREAU run by the sophs will match applications for the hop. Approximately 300 men from Colgate have asked for dates. Anyone wanting a date for the hop should contact Nora Hutton or Carole (Candy) Strothman at 75-4191.

Kenneth Luchs and Sidney Kalcheim have written an original review for the intermission entertainment. Mari Jordan and Jane Werner are in charge of entertainment, and Gilbert Katz is directing the show. Merle Sue Bank and Joseph Le Doux are over-all hop chairmen.

Turbi Blum and Leslie Rubin are co-chairmen of publicity. Sandra Kruge is in charge of posters; Lynn Cohen, flyers; Rujeanne Rubel, advertising; Jack Most, Colgate publicity; Robert Martindate, commercial; Herbert Portnoff, sound truck; Whitelaw (Whitey) Wilson, distribution and Polly Reed, newspaper publicity.

Eileen Brand and Joan Poppy are co-chairmen of programs, and Nancy Puleo and Helen O'Brien are in charge of checking.

Phi Sigs Report Theft of Trophies

Six trophies were taken from the Phi Sigma Delta house sometime Sunday night, according to Sanford Patel, chapter president.

Patel said he is uncertain whether the trophies were taken by Colgate students, by one of the fraternity's chapters at some other school or by burglars.

He added that the police have been informed of the loss to determine whether it was actually a theft or a fraternity or Colgate prank.

MSG Will Discuss Assembly Changes

Revised assembly rules will be discussed at a meeting of the men's student government assembly at 7:15 p.m. today in 204 HL.

A committee of Robert Garver, John Hennessey, Edwin Hochberg and Arthur Kinney has worked on the rule changes to create four assembly panels instead of six. They would be public relations and organizations, conduct and welfare, rules and elections and ways and means.

Also on the agenda are panel assignments, a discussion of President Stanley Leff's proposals for the year and a resolution on student apathy to be submitted by junior Roger Herz.

Zemel to Discuss Absorption Today

"The Static and Dynamical Character of Absorption I" will be discussed by Jay Zemel at the weekly meeting of the Solid State seminar, 1:15 p.m. today in 109 Steele hall.

At 4 p.m. Thursday in 106 Steele hall, Prof. David Feldman, University of Rochester, will speak on "The Present Status of the Theory of Nuclear Forces."

Dance Duo

JOAN TESNOW and CHARLES IRWIN, both of White Bucks and Tales fame, fry out a new dance step in preparation for this year's senior musical. The show will have words and music by William Angelos and Lanny O'Kun.

Brotherhood Service Scheduled for Friday

Plans have been completed for the sixth annual brotherhood service to be held in Hendricks chapel Friday night, co-chairmen Avis Yaffee and Jane Scheckells announced.

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist church in New York city and member of the University board of trustees, will preach the sermon at the Colgate weekend service.

THE SERVICE is jointly sponsored by Jewish Student fellowship and all Chapel organizations and will be held immediately following the pep rally.

Part of the traditional Jewish Sabbath Eve service, it will be lead by Rabbi Irwin Hyman chaplain to Jewish students on campus. He will be assisted by Cantor Lerner of Temple Adath Yeshurin, Syracuse, and the combined Chapel-JSF choirs, under the direction of Prof. Arthur Polster. Chapel chaplains will also participate.

"It is remarkable when students can set aside time in the midst of festivities to come and pray together in Chapel," Miss Yaffe said.

Henry Einhorn, president of JSF, called the service "a material demonstration of brotherhood," adding that it is "the symbol of the spirit prevailing on the Syracuse campus."

GROUPS DESIRING block seating for the all-University function may contact Mrs. Arlene Rothman, JSF counselor, University extension 496.

Assisting the co-chairmen are the following members of JSF and Chapel: Beverly Kaplan and Jane Williams, choir; Marjorie Lavine, speaker's bureau; Joseph Lauderstein, program; Mary Ann Lana and Marcia Morrison, secretarial.

Poster Registration Closes Tomorrow

Registration for entries in the Colgate poster contest closes at 5 p.m. tomorrow, Tau Sigma Delta, architecture and allied arts honorary and sponsor, announced yesterday.

A special desk will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the fourth floor of Slocum hall today and tomorrow to accept entries. A fee of $1.50 must accompany applications.

More than 90 houses are expected to enter the traditional poster affair. No general theme has been set this year, but all posters must bear the words "Beat Colgate."

Judging will be held between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Friday. Cups will be presented to winning houses by the Colgate weekend queen at the pep rally that night.

There will be four divisions — fraternity, sorority, large independent house and small independent house.

Collaboration between small men's houses and small women's cottages is permissable, with competition being in the large house division.

Syrcico Schedules Supper Tonight

Syrcico will sponsor a covered-dish supper at 6 p.m. today in the Women's lounge, Women's building, announced Carla Nye, general chairman.

All city women are invited to attend. They must bring their own silverware and a casserole, salad, cake or other kind of food.

Guard Will Hold Recruiting Drive

A special fall recruiting drive announced by the 249th Field Artillery Battalion begins November 11 and continues through December 15. During this time, young men may join the artillery units of the National Guard stationed in the East Genesee street armory.

Personal interviews will be given any Tuesday evening during this time to interested young men and their parents. Special campus interviews can be arranged by M-Sgt. Clarry at army ROTC headquarters.

College students and prospective college students can be members of the Guard can still participate in the ROTC program.

Draft deferments are still offered to new enlistees who join before they reach 18½ years of age.

College men who do not live near Syracuse can obtain information on guard units that they can join in their home town and still be eligible for the deferment. These deferments are permanent, and do not depend on maintaining certain grades. Advanced ROTC men are allowed to reveive both Guard pay for drills and ROTC subsistence.

WAER Will Air 'Hi-Fi' Program

WAER will present the second in a series of programs on "High Fidelity", from 8-9 p.m. on Thursday.

The series will attempt to show how high fidelity can be received on ordinary home FM sets. It will also show how to appreciate the various forms of "hi-fi."

Ski School Starts 12 Week Session, Class Instructions

The fifteenth annual Ski school will open a 12-week season Tuesday, Nov. 17.

Men and women students, faculty members, employees and their immediate families are eligible for instruction.

SKI SCHOOL students attend one two-hour class each week. Classes are held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons from 1:30 to 4 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

The first 1953-54 Ski school meetings are scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 17, 18 and 19, at the above times. Sessions will be held in room 315-6 of the Women's building; the first classes will be combined with registration.

Ski school fee is $6, payable in cash at registration. The only additional charge is $1.50 for ski lockers at the Lodge.

Afternoon classes include both credit and non-credit students. Credit students are not accepted in evening classes. Final marks will be given to credit students, who take a final written exam and receive a weekly grade for practical work.

WAA credit will be given to women students who do not enroll for academic credit if it is requested through the WAA Ski manager.

Regular outdoor classes are to be held on Hickory hill near the Ski lodge. If snow is unsuitable for skiing, classes will be driven to nearby skiing areas. Ski movies and ski theory instruction will be offered when weather keeps skiers indoors.

University busses leave for the Lodge from the main campus entrance at the east end of the quadrangle at 1:15 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Essential equipment includes skis, bindings, poles and boots. Suggestions as to proper clothing and equipment will be given during the indoor sessions.

FEATURES OF the ski season will be weekend trips to nearby ski resorts, sponsored by the Ski school.

Cross-country and ski-camping trips will be run for Ski club members. Open for new members, Ski club meets Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. in the Lodge.

Introducing a new method of progressive ski instruction, instructors of evening classes will offer specialized classes in advanced ski maneuvers such as the Christie and snowplow.

Positions on the Ski school teaching staff are still available and interested students are requested to contact the Ski lodge. Instructors meet from 4 to 5 p.m. on Wednesdays.

ART EXHIBITION

An exhibition of paintings of wildlife and outdoor sports from the Ford publications opens on Wednesday, Nov. 11 at the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts, will continue through the month of December. The museum is located on the corner of James and State sts. and is open daily from noon to 5:30 p.m. on Sundays from 2 to 5:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Five Syracusans to Receive Severe Official Reprimand

The five Syracuse university students who were to be tried tonight for alleged vandalism on the Cornell university campus will receive instead an official reprimand, Arthur Maahs, chief defense counsel, said yesterday.

Rudolph Johanns, prosecuting attorney, told Maahs that he has insufficient evidence to charge the five defendents specifically with vandalism. Maahs agreed and the reprimand was decided upon.

According to the defense counsel an official reprimand was chosen rather than a public trial because:

1. No one witnessed the five students painting S's on the Cornell campus streets. It was merely assumed that they did because paint and paint brushes were found in their car when they were stopped by the Cornell security guard while driving on the Cornell campus.

2. It is better to have room for a small degree of traditional rivalry and mutual kidding than to have an explosion of pent-up emotions resulting in permanent damage.

3. The paint found in the defendent's car was a water color which washes off easily If they painted the letters this could conceivably not be termed vandalism or even semi-permanent damage

Raymond Guenter, chief justice of men's student court, will officially reprimand the five tonight. It is felt that some official action is necessary if vandalism or suspect incidents are to be avoided In the uture.

The five students are alleged to have painted S's on the Cornell university campus at 3 a.m. last Tuesday. They were apprehended by Cornell campus police with paint and brushes in their car.

The vandalism charge was levied on the basis of the Cornell Syracuse-Colgate anti-vandalism pact which was signed in 1948. Vandalism is defined as all acts "which cause permanent or semi-permanent damage, disfigurement, mutilation, defacement or destruction of any properties of the Universities."

Blood Drive to Begin, 1,000 Pints Goal Set

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Give till it hurts! The semi-annual blood drive is here again.

Syracuse university students are being asked to donate 1,000 pints of blood in a drive scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday Nov. 18 in Archbold gymnasium. This is one of two drives to be held this year. The other is planned for spring, according to Red Cross co-chairmen Diane Johnson and Daniel Russell.

CAMPUS CHEST is giving full support to the drive and for the first time has recognized Red Cross on campus this year.

Volunteers from Campus Chest will serve coffee and toast to donors.

Anne MacKenzie, Red Cross trophy chairman, has announced that house members who give blood will collect points for their houses toward the award, which will be given in the spring.

Credit for corpuscle donation will be given on the basis of two points for each person who gives blood. Last year the Red Cross cup was captured by Alpha Chi Omega.

MEMBERS OF Beta Theta Pi, the College of Forestry and ROTC have pledged 100 per cent support of the drive. Other organizations, including Interfraternity Council, are expected to come through with a large percentage of donors.

Men and women under 21 are eligible to donate blood, but they must secure written permission from parents before they will be allowed to give. The minimum age for donors is 18.

No volunteer will qualify as a donor if he has had malaria or undulant fever in the past two years. Those who have had yellow jaundice or who presently have diabetes may not be donors.

A lapse of eight weeks is required between blood donations and anyone who has contributed within that time will not be allowed to donate next Wednesday.

PROSPECTIVE DONORS will be examined by a doctor from the city chapter of the Red Cross. The standard weight requirement is 110 pounds.

Doctors advise a meal three or four hours before the donation, but suggest that donors limit the types of food to fruits, fruit juices, bread, crackers, raw vegetables, honey and skimmed milk.

Fats such as cream, butter, ice

AIR SOCIETY RUSHING

Arnold Air Society, air force ROTC honorary, will hold a rushing session at 7:30 p.m. today in Machinery hall.

78 Coeds Vie For Colgate Queen Title

Seventy-five campus beauties will parade before five judges tonight in preliminary competition for the title of Colgate weekend queen under the sponsorship of Orange Key, junior men's honorary.

The first judging will get under way at 7 p.m. in Maxwell auditorium. The honorary has invited the public to attend.

ENTRANTS SHOULD arrive 6:30 p.m. today, Co-chairmen Gilbert Katz and Marven Wallen announced. The women should wear sweaters, skirts, loafers and socks tonight, they said.

The field will be cut to 25 women tonight. The queen and her court will be chosen from among these Thursday night and will be announced and presented at the pep rally Friday. Contestants in Thursday's judging will wear cocktail dresses and heels.

Marriage Lecture Slated for Today

Mrs. Catherine Chilman, of the home economics college, will speak on "What Comes First—Marriage or Career," at 4:15 p.m. today in 110 Maxwell.

The lecture, sponsored by the Social Hygiene committee of Chapel, will include a discussion of when to get a degree, marrying while in military service, and the demands of a career.

Mrs. Chilman has been teaching the marriage and the family course for the last five years and has served as a caseworker in family counseling. She received her masters degree in social work from the University of Chicago.

Colgate Pep Rally To Start Weekend

Ceremonies To Be Held On Hendricks Field

The traditional Colgate weekend pep rally will get under way at 6:30 p.m. Friday with the firing of the Alpha Tau Omega cannon and ringing of the Alpha Chi Rho bell.

The parade will travel the regular route—from Sims to College pl., to Euclid ave., Comstock ave. and University pl. It will continue down Walnut ave. to E. Adams st., and up Walnut pl., to Hendricks field where the traditional ceremonies will be held.

CHARLES STEIMKE, '16, will be present with his golden horseshoe and will lead students in a cheer. At the Syracuse-Colgate tilt he will throw the golden horseshoe over the goalpost for Robert McAllister, head cheerleader, to catch in his megaphone. If McAllister catches the horseshoe, tradition has it that Syracuse will win again.

The Colgate weekend queen and her court of five will be introduced by Gilbert Katz and Marvin Wallen, Colgate weekend co-chairmen.

Winners of the annual Colgate weekend poster contest will be announced by Tau Sigma Delta, architectural fraternity.

Dean Charles C. Noble will give his annual pre-game pep talk and Coach and Mrs. Ben Schwartzwalder and their daughters will be present.

Alta Burg, drum major, will twirl and the cheerleaders will be on hand.

Hill Urged to See 'Play for Your Life'

Student attendance at "Play for your Life," a presentation stressing the importance of fire prevention, was urged yesterday by four members of the dean of men's and women's staffs.

The show, which will be given at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Maxwell auditorium, features K. Thomas Call in a combination of magic and instruction. The presentation is sponsored by a national life insurance company.

Strongly urging all University students to attend were Prof. Theodorse Denise, fraternity advisor; Jack Buckle, director of men's counseling and residence; Miss Margaret Parker, University social director; and iMss Katherine Copeland, director of women's residence and organizations.

An important part o fthe program is a scale model house with which Call demonstrates how fire can trap and kill the unprepared person. He also stresses a series of games enabling members of a family to avoid death or injury if a fire should start.

USAF Cadet Team To Explain Program

An US air force aviation cadet procurement team will be in Maxwell foyer from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and tomorrow to explain the cadet program.

Single men between the ages of 19 and 26½ who have completed two years of college are eligible. The candidate must pass a physical and a personal interview.

The aviation cadet program offers pilot and aircraft observer training. The pilot training lasts 16 months; the aircraft observer, 14 months.

Graduates of the course receive 2nd lieutenant commissions in the air force reserve and will be allowed to enlist in the air force for two years. The normal minimum enlistment is four years.

Student Library Plan Announced

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A browsing and reading library to be operated on the honor system in the Women's building was announced at the fourth annual student government conference last weekend at Pine Brook camp, Upper Saranac Lake.

About 45 student government officials, administration and faculty members and student leaders attended the three--day meeting, considering student problem areas and discussing plans concerning them. Theme was "What Lies Ahead."

University Vice President Frank Piskor reported that a plan of student government presidents Mary Anne Dalton and Stanley Leff had been approved and books will be moved into the library room on the third floor of the Women's building immediately.

A general browsing room, with reference books, supplementary texts, magazines and general reading material will be included. A student library committee will control the room and be attached to the Library Associates Guuild.

Development of proposed recreational facilities in the building, particularly in the unused section of the basement, was discussed by a panel of Dean of Women Marjorie Smith, Social Director Margaret Parker, Miss Dalton, Leff, and James Carr, president of Associated Campus services.

Dean Piskor indicated that a ventilation system would have to be installed in the basement before student activities could be held there.

"Size and location of a snack bar is an unanswered question," Chancellor William P. Tolley added.

Michael Sawyer of the citizenship department keynoted the conference Friday night with an analysis of academic freedom and the problem of student apathy.

On the status of minor sports, Vice Chancellor Finla Crawford said that soccer and tennis now receive partial support from the University. The kind of support needed for minor sports and their relationship to the intramural program was considered.

Chancellor Tolley asked students to voice their opinions on a structure that could be used for indoor practice for sports as an alternative to the proposed large field house.

The Chancellor, speaking Saturday on "The Gifted Student," advocated development of some plan to "render greater service to the exceptional student." He called for suggestions from the students as to the program they felt necessary.

Marcia Michelbacher, chairman of National Students association, and Darwin Bolden, vice-chairman, heard government officials split on the place of the group on campus. Most of the students felt that Syracuse university was not benefiting by membership in NSA.

Dr. Dwight Bock of the Bible and religion department led vespers Sunday morning and the group questioned individual vs. organized religion.

In other discussions at the conference:

1. Associate Dean of Men Carleton Krathwohl said he felt "intramural insurance is not dead." More support of a voluntary plan was hoped for.

2. Miss Dalton and Leff outlined obstacles against joint student government and lauded close cooperation in many areas now.

3. Chief Justices Winona Brierly, women's student court, and Raymond Guenter, men's court, described the courts and considered a permanent arrangement.

4. Ways of better administration and understanding by the students of reserved seating were suggested.

5. Chief of Civil Service Stephen Reiss discussed expansion of student discount service in stores near campus.

Staff Will Accept Subscriptions Until December 15

By JOY YUNKER

The subscription drive to guarantee a 1954 Onondagan was a success and the book will be published.

According to Charlene Velon, business manager of the book, last minute subscriptions poured into the Chi Omega and Phi Beta Phi house to enable the required number to be reached.

THOMAS BECKETT, editor of the annual, and Miss Velon wish to express their thanks to the students who brought in subscriptions and money to assure publication of the yearbook.

Those students who wish to buy an ON may do so until Dec. 15, Beverly Barr, subscription manager announced today. All ON reps who have not turned in their subscriptions and money must report before 5 p.m. tomorrow to the Chi Omega house.

Ten houses sold over 20 books. They are: Kappa Kappa Gamma and Kappa Sigma who tied for first place. The other houses are Alpha Xi Delta, Chi Omega, Alpha Gamma Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Shaw 3B and Haven Hall.

Senior pictures will be taken beginning today at noon until 6 p.m. and from 9 a.m. till 6 p.m. for the next six weeks, at 121 College pl.

THOSE SENIORS not wishing to buy a yearbook will have to pay a $2 charge for the reprinting of the picture in the ON. This charge is being made to help reduce the cost of publication.

Those seniors who have not yet purchased a bok but still wish to, may make their payment for pictures in the form of the down payment on the bok itself. Those of the class of '54 who have bought a subscription will not have an additional charge as it was included in the price of the book.

The Onondagan first recognized its financial difficulties when the Administration announced that this year seniors would not have to purchase a yearbook in their graduation fees.

The drive which just ended was launched after the publications board announced that if 1500 subscriptions were secured before Nov. 7 the annual would be published.

Juniors to Sponsor Orange Breakfast

Bill Orange will be having breakfast at 9 a.m. this Saturday in Shaw Dining hall. All Syracusans, their families and friends are cordially invited to join him, according to Ann McKaig and Patricia Parker, co-chairmen of the event.

Carol Amacher, head of the entertainment committee, promises the meal will be a lot peppier than most university breakfasts. All that is known of the menu at the present is that includes a large glass of orange juice.

Tickets may be purchased from junior assembly reps or by contacting Miss Parker at 4-9225 or Miss McKaig at 76-3249.

Forestry Debators Elect Officers

George Kepner was chosen vice president; Walter Knalfuss, secretary-treasurer; Robert Forester, forestry club representative and alternate, Henry Parker.

Walter Knaulfuss and Sam Brown will support the affirmative side of the debate, "That the United States Should Adopt a Policy of Free Trade," at the club's meeting at 7:30 tonight in the lounge at aMrshall hall.

Sophs Will Sponsor Pep Megaphones

Megaphones will be introduced by the Sophomore class this Friday night at the Syracuse-Colgate pep rally, and sold to the student body.

The cheerleaders have endorsed the megaphones and plan to introduce a new cheer using them.

The megaphones are eight inches long and are made of orange felt. "Colgate Weekend, 1953" appears in blue lettering on the side.

Robert Frahm has been named sales manager by the Sophomore executive council.

'Traditional rivalry'

The case of the "Cornell watercolors" was handled to the best interests of all concerned last night when an official reprimand instead of a court trial was given to the Syracuse students who ventured to the Ithaca campus last week and left behind a temporary reminder of the Orange.

The prosecuting attorney of men's student government contacted the defense staff and informed them that there was insuufi-cient evidence to prosecute.

Watercolors, then, do not seem to come under the heading of causing "semi-permanent damage." The attorney also stated that a small degree of traditional rivalry is better than an outburst of emotion resulting in injury or harmful damage.

The signing of anti-vandalism pacts did not outlaw innocent rivalry harmless to students. Even the traditional haircuts have not been defined as acts of vandalism, providing it is done on the campuses concerned.

However, because these acts have not been outlawed by the governments, the students cannot disregard their responsibilities in the protection of their own health and that of others.

Abduction, roadblocking, chasing cars through the public highways, breaking automobile windows, stealing fraternity or campus property, permanent painting on that same property—student leaders have agreed that all these acts place either the individual or his property in danger.

It is from these things that Colgate and Syracuse students are asked to refrain. They are asked not to involve themselves in activity which might jeopardize their safety or that of others.

We are confident that each Syracuse student will abide by the terms of the anti-vandalism pact and not exceed the bounds of "traditional, harmless rivalry."

Crusade for cells

One thousand pints of blood are sought from Hill students by the local chapter of the American Red Cross.

Blood donations given next Wednesday will be used either by our armed forces or in civilian hospitals.

It will also be used to produce gamma globulin, vital in preventing polio epidemics. The serum is being administered presently in Dewitt.

The hectic life that students lead apparently doesn't affect their blood-giving abilities. The Red Cross seeks donations from students because of their youth and because they are relatively healthy.

Syracusans began donating more than three years ago when the Bloodmobile visited a Hill fraternity. The idea spread so fast that soon major campus buildings were required to handle the volume of students that offered blood.

But it's no mass production affair. Physicians and trained nurses ascertain that every donor is given individual attention, resulting in the absence of any discomfort. Refreshments are served following the donation.

The blood is regained by the body in approximately two weeks. Each donor is given a thorough exam to remove any doubt whether he is eligible to give.

This year the foresters and the engineers are beginning a competition to determine which group gives more. Panhell and IFC will participate and it is expected that ROTC will join in and break another record.

Very few of us have that spare coin to give when money donation time comes around.

But blood is more important than money and it cannot be artificially manufactured. We may be saving our own lives as well as those of our fellows.

How about it? One thousand pints of red American blood needed.

JAZZ COMES OF AGE A LA KENTON

By DICK CASE

Miss June Christy, the vocal side to the modern combination of Stan Kenton and co.

I doubt if there is a more refreshing combination in the elite of modern music than June Christy and Stan Kenton.

These two, as leader and one-time vocalist of the most fantastic and controversial band in the business, have lifted the emotions of jazz fans to the boiling point and sent a ripple along the line which could be felt from Millinocket, Maine to Mulberry, California, and back.

Their combined instrumentation and vocal talents have been to jazz what Joe McCarthy is to the Republicans and Goldilocks must have pushed jazz music beyond the silliness of the ragtime, boggie-have been to the three bears. They woggie age and left it panting on a bed of nails for sheer breath.

In short, Stan and June broke the ice and sent the chips flying where they might.

Stan Kenton became the proud papa of his gangling baby band back in 1941 when he talked his way into a four-month engagement at the Balboa ballroom in Southern California. This was one of the tiny buds which has since branched out into the tree known as "progressive jazz." And Stan started it rolling with a squeeling horn, a brassy beat and an unorthodox approach unheard of at that time for things musical.

Although the road has not been all fruits and flowers for Stan Kenton, he has weathered the opposition with sheer determination and an iron will. Today his orchestra is unchallenged for its particular brand of popularity.

When June Christy joined the Kenton organization in 1945, she was just Shirley Luster out of Decatur, Ill. with a big voice and an even bigger ambition to follow in the footsteps of Stan's former vocalist, Anita O'Day.

She encountered little difficulty on that count, though. June (who favors any music that "moves with feeling and a beat") fell directly in line with the Kenton style and projected herself and the band to greater rewards.

On Friday evening at the War Memorial auditorium, the happy musical courtship between Stan and June will be renewed with the presentation of the "festical of Modern American Jazz," of which they are the stars.

One of the most ambitious and exciting venutes ever attempted along the lines of a concert package, the festival brings to Central New York, in addition to Kenton and Christy, Dizzy Gillespie and his all stars, the Erroll Garner trio, Stan Getz's orchestra and Slim Gaillard.

A good, good evening for us all.

LAND OF THE 38TH

A Jump into Nowhere

By FRANK McGUIRE

"The first time I jumped from an airplane in combat was 35 miles north of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital." Don Holt grabbed another cookie and gave some details of his first combat jump with the 187th Regimental Combat team. "Some of the best officers and men I ever knew," as he puts it.

"We were supposed to rescue some UN prisoners from the North Korean Reds. This was in October of 1950 and the Chinese hadn't entered the war yet. After rescuing the prisoners, we were to trap the disorganized Reds and eliminate them from the war, one way or another."

"The prisoners were not rescued because the Reds massacred them when we landed.

"But we did cut off a lot of Korean Reds. After landing, nine of us were put on a hilltop to act as an observation post. We stayed there waiting for further orders and soon the regiment pulled out and left us there. We thought they were going to come back and get us but they had completely forgotten about us."

"We wandered around for two days, lost. Once we were hiding in a house and two hundred Communist guerrilas decided to cook dinner right outside. We sweated out the two or three hours that they hung around. When they left, we left and ran into some guys from outfit."

Don grabbed another coconut cookie and went on. "Later in the war, our outfit was at the battle of Wonju. There were so many dead Chinese around that we piled them up and used them for a windbreak to protect us from the wind which was accompanying a 30 degree below zero temperature. It sounds uncivilized, but it saved us from frostbite and from freezing so badly that we couldn't fight.

"My second combat jump was near the site of the truce talks at Munsan. It was March 23, 1951, Good Friday, and we were dropped behind 20 to 60 thousand Chinese and told to cut them off. Our casualties were heavy. A fouled up situation was produced when we jumped. Our outfit, the First Battalion, was to jump six milesfrom the rest of the regiment and fight our way to them. But the Colonel's plane developed engine trouble and turned back. The Colonel was the only one who knew that we were not to jump with the rest of the regiment.

"When we reached the DZ (Drop Zone), everybody jumped. The colonel had gone back to the airfield and gotten another plane. When he reached the place where he thought the battalion was, he jumped. But we were with the rest of the regiment, six miles away. So the colonel and his thirty-man party, including the chaplain and all the clerks were right in the middle of the Reds with no heavy weapons to ifght them.

"The only thing that saved them was our jet planes. The jets kept up a constant supporting fire so that the party could get back to us. When they got back, we found that not even one of them had so much as a sprained ankle."

Don elisted in February, 1950, and spent ten months in Korea. He was a corporal and handled a Browning Automatic rifle for "A" company in the First Battalion of the 187th Regimental Combat team.

He lives in Niagara Falls, New York is enrolled in Liberal Arts, and hopes to be a school teacher when he graduates.

LETTERARY COMMENT

FORESTERS: A BLOODY CHALLANGE

To: Syracuse Daily Orange
Letters To The Editor

In less than two weeks the bloodmobile of the American Red Cross will again visit the Syracuse University campus. Once again the foresters expect to prove their spirit is superior to all other colleges by contributing the greatest quantity, percentagewise, of their higher quality, healthier, redder, blood. Once again we extend our challenge to the engineers to try and top us. Do you "Slaves of the slide rule" have any spirit left?

We really hate to see men whose mental ability most nearly approaches ours fail so pitifully when it comes to spirit. Don't be afraid men. It really doesn't hurt and only takes half an hour of your precious time.

Already many foresters are eagerly reaching for their pledge cards. Will you men do the same in some good-natured, friendly, competition which will benefit our fellow men and both our student bodies?

Jim Brewer

Action on Dixon?

Syracusans and the U.S. State department may have news of Donald Dixon within the month. Dixon is the Syracuse grad who was captured by the Chinese Communists in neutral waters.

A copyrighted story in the Periscope column of Newsweek, Nov. 9, reads:

"Expect to read soon that American newsmen Don Dixon of INS and Dick Applegate of NBC, grabbed from a Hong Kong sailboat fifteen months ago, are to be given a 'public trial' probably in Shanghai. Good sources report that the Chinese Red are preparing 'confessions' involving germ warfare and gun running."

The fears of the families of the men, of their Syracuse buddies and the fears of the State department have been allayed—for the present. However, the Communists can use to their advantage the fact that they have two captured Americans.

Hope for the duo lies in immediate further action by the State department to prevent an unholy trial in a kangaroo court—somewhere in the Orient.

Emotions & Play

By JOHN JOHNSRUD
Daily Orange Columnist

Some children are quiet and scared of people. Some, on the other hand, are destructive and noisy. What causes this difference?

Mainly, they have different emotional makeup. One of the services of the Special Education Center is the diagnosis and treatment of children with extreme emotional disturbances.

Hospitals, doctors, schools, social agencies refer children with outward signs of emotional problems to the Center. They are first given a psychological evaluation by a diagnostic unit to determine the child's basic difficulties. The children usually range from three to ten years of age.

On the basis of this group's recommendations the staff decides whether they can aid the child without undue expenditure of time, effort and facilities. If so, the child will be given play-therapy.

Through play-therapy a child is helped to overcome his emotional difficulties by constructive activities. This is conducted in one of several playrooms located on the second floor of the building.

In this room everything is children size. Tables, counters and even the sink are built on smaller scale for the convenience of the child. Toy cars, paints, a sandbox and other materials of playing complete the equipment of the room.

The child has the run of the playroom under the supervision of a staff psychologist and can do what he wishes with the toys and materials provided. Thus the psychologist can help the child adjust to himself and the rest of the world.

One boy, however, had a strong destructive impulse. This was a means for him to gain attention and will be overcome when he sees that he can arouse interest towards himself in other ways. But until this is accomplished he will continue to werck the playroom equipment.

Everything including the kitchen sink . . . the little washbasin for the emotionally disturbed tots at the Special Ed building. The wastebasket is shown for scale, the receptacle being one foot high. Therefore the little washbowl can be seen as a scant two feet from the floor . . . the better to wash a paint-stained hand.

Nevertheless, play-therapy in itself is not enough. Usually the problem has to be approached in two ways for the cause or causes of the problem to be determined and remedied. Parental environment is often the direct cause of the disturbance. Therefore, the staff psychologist assigned to the case also advises the parents on the correct way to deal with the problem in the home.

Hill Harriers Drill For IC4A Meets

Coach Bob Grieve's Syracuse university harriers got right down to business yesterday with an intense workout in preparation for their Nov. 16 IC4A meet at Van Courtlandt Park in New York City.

Grieve wanted to give his runners a day off after their very impressive win against Fordham and Iona last weekend, but he realizes that it will take a lot of work to prepare for the IC4A's.

WITH SUCH powers in cross country circles as Pitt, Georgetown, Penn State and Michigan State entered in the race, Syracuse will be hard pressed to cop this important meet.

Also on the line next Monday will be Captain Ray Osterhout's individual string of victories. Osterhout crossed the finish line at Van Courtlandt Park in 25.25. It was the fastest time run on that course this season.

The Orange Captain has not been beaten in five dual and triangular meet races this year. Osterhout's time against Fordham and Iona Saturday is even more of an accomplishment when it is realized that the race was staged under very poor running conditions.

Osterhout has a chance to break Charlie Cappozoli's record in the IC4A's. The former Georgetown hill and daler once ran the race in 24.32. The Piety Captain's best time over the five mile course was 24.54.

IN LAST SATURDAY'S race, the Orange harriers captured eight of the first nine places. Only a fourth place finish by Jack Mahoney of Iona prevented Syracuse from sweeping the field.

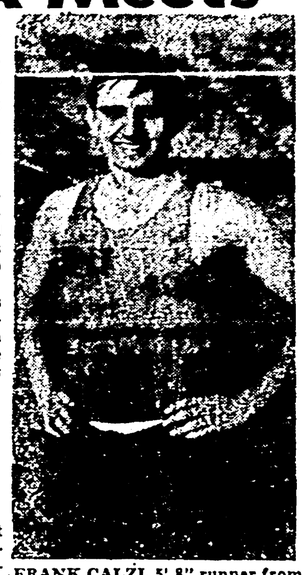
Grieve plans to run seven men in the IC4A meet. This means that one of the finishers in last week's race will serve as an alternate.

The Syracuse team will leave for New York City some time Sunday.

The order of finish:

1. Osterhout ---------- 25.25
2. Parker ---------- 26.23
3. Armstrong ---------- 26.46
4. Mahoney (Iona) ---------- 27.04
5. Alger ---------- 27.11
6. George ---------- 27.15
7. Calzi ---------- 27.19
8. Coulter ---------- 27.36
9. Fryer ---------- 27.49
10. Enfenio (Fordham) ---------- 27.58

Final score: Syracuse 17; Fordham 58; Iona 65.



FRANK CALZI, 5' 8" runner from Buffalo, N. Y., has been a steady performer for Coach Bob Grieve's cross-country squad this season.

Frosh Soccer Team Topped by Big Red

Cornell scored twice in the second quarter and three times in the final quarter to down a game, but outmanned yearling soccer squad 5-0 at Ithaca.

In their only previous outing this season, the frosh booters were defeated 5-1 by Colgate.

THE BIG RED started fast and dominated play throughout the game. When Harold Russell was injured for the Orange and couldn't continue in the second half, Syracuse was forced to play with only ten men.

One bright spot for Syracuse was the fine play of frosh goalie Frank Stille. The Tangerine goal tender made many brilliant saves in the brightest individual performance of the game.

Other frosh booters who showed promise in Saturday's fray are fullback Harold Lund and halfbacks Charles Wingerten, Donald Wall, and John Stillman. The quartet will give some of the varsity men a fight for strating positions next fall.

Russell, who was injured in the first quarter, also turned in a fine performance.

Theta Chi Gridders Defeat Sigma Chi

Victors Gain Finals In Greek Division

By BOB TATA

In a hard-fought, well-played game last night, Theta Chi downed Sigma Chi 32-12. This win enables Theta Chi to meet Phi Kappa Psi in the all-fraternity intramural football championship tonight.

Sigma Chi got off to a fast start when their hard-charging line blocked a Theta Chi punt. On the next play from scrimmage, Al Harding hit Orv Wambold for the first score of the game. Harding's pass for the extra point was knocked down.

A penalty gave Theta Chi a first down and started them on their march to [illegible]. Don Moller passed to [illegible]addenhagen for the touchdo[illegible] knotted the game, and then Moller put Theta Chi in front with a pass to Dick Dulude for the extra point. Moller ran for another TD as the half ended with Theta Chi leading 13-6.

Shortly after the start of the second half, the boys of Theta Chi began to roll. Moller tossed to Olin to widen the score to 19-6.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

The proverbial crying towel was wrung out yesterday at the weekly press luncheon as part of the usual Colgate-Syracuse tradition with Syracuse's Ben Schwartzwalder and Colgate's assistant coach, Frank "Red" O'Hora, spreading a few well-placed drops around the room

An unknowing observer probably wouldn't have realized that both coaches won their respective games last Saturday. As Bruce Sabine of WAGE cracked, "I've got a tremendous idea for a program. We could have a Coaches' Corner sponsored by Cannon Towels."

O'Hora, who has scouted the Orange for the Raiders, stated that he believes this current edition is the best Syracuse team he has seen in the last 20 years.

Ben countered with the point that he felt that Syracuse reached its seasonal "peak" against Cornell. "When you hit a peak," mused Ben, "the only way to go is down. Against Colgate, we won't have to go down too far. They'll be tough."

As usual, the Orange mentor is probably not too far from wrong. Colgate has not lost in its last four outings including a 7-all tie with a better-than-average Yale team. Sparked by Quarterback Dick Lalla, who has completed 46% of his passes plus accounting for 12 touchdowns, the Raiders will be rarin'.

One doesn't have to be a football expert to know that the men from Hamilton will be ready for this one. Colgate has a long record of coming up with that intangible spirit which can make a mediocre team into a great one. Of such things are upsets made.

It's interesting to note that Lalla and Pat Stark had about the same passing yardage last Saturday although the Colgate lad threw far less passes. Lalla completed 5 out of 9 to Stark's 19 for 27.

True that Both Ben and Red brought out the crying towel, but both had a reason. The only item upon which both could agree was that it would be a typical, high-spirited, tradition-filled Syracuse-Colgate game. No amplification of that statement need be made.

* * * * *

Many and varied were the stories coming out of Operation Snowstorm of last weekend, but none was more interesting than the two coaches who had to hitch-hike to get to a game. It seems that in the first place the two had to borrow a jeep to get to Colgate.

But this was no ordinary jeep. Evidently, it didn't run too well and the two had some trouble with it on the icy roads before the machine finally sputtered, coughed and then died 4 miles outside of Hamilton.

So while one coach stayed with the car, the other had to hitch-hike to Hamilton . . . The two coaches? Our own Rocco Pirro and Bill Eschenfelder who were sent to scout the Colgate-Bucknell game. The payoff came when Bill got the car towed away.

The men who towed it wouldn't accept money. Instead, they took three passes for Syracuse-Colgate. Guess coaches' currency isn't worth anything around this time of year.

Psi U, M-14 Move Ahead In Intra Swimming Playoffs

By ERNIE ETOLL

Psi Upsilon and Skytop M-14 stroked their way to victories last night with wins over Sigma Chi and Skytop M-5 by scores of 24-10 and 18-15. Leading scorer of the evening was Charlie Kibling who accounted for 8 of the losing M-5's points.

Psi U jumped to an early lead with Punky Owens and Joe Lopez gaining first and second place in the 50 yard freestyle race. Sigma Chi countered when Ernie Schwab and Orvie Wambold took the top two spots in the breaststroke to tie the score. But the Psi U's splashed to wins in the next two events to clinch the meet.

The other contest of the evening found a close battle until an undermanned M-5 team was forced to forfeit the relay race and 7 points.

PAT MEETING

Phi Alpha Tau, captains and managers honorary, will hold a meeting at the Phi Kappa Psi house on College place, tomorrow night at 7:30.

Lalla, Chandler Lead Maroon Grid Attack

Fresh from a snow-handicapped 19-12 victory over Bucknell in last Saturday's clash, the Colgate Red Raiders will be after their fourth win of the season this weekend at Archbold stadium. The Hamiltonians are undefeated in their last four games having beaten Dartmouth, Rutgers and Bucknell in addition to tieing highly-rated Yale.

Coach Hal Lahar's eleven should be in top shape for the 54th meeting of the two schools with no major injuries reported. Captain Gary Chandler, the star right halfback of the invaders missed the year's opening clashes with injuries but is back in top form.

CHANDLER, WHO has been switched from end is a big asset in the Raider's passing attack as one of quarterback Dick Lalla's main targets. Lalla rated one of the top passers in the East was one of the Raiders' stars in Saturday's victory flipping for two TDs. The Cortlander was also one of four men who played in all 60 minutes for the winners.

Lahar used a minimum of substitutions despite the freezing weather which is an indication that his squad's main defect is a lack of depth. In addition to Lalla, the other full time players were backs Walt Nestvogel and Frank Nardulli and guard Don Tomanek.

The Raiders have played two common opponents of the Orange and comparative scores rate highly in favor of Syracuse. Lahar's crew dropped a two touchdown decision to Holy Cross and were set back by three touchdowns by Cornell. In contrast, Syracuse defeated the Crusaders 21-0 and slid to their impressive 26-0 vanquishing of Cornell last Saturday.

Despite the difference of scores, the initial point spread rates the Pietymen as only seven point favorites. The odds are expected to rise as the week progresses, but will probably be fairly conservative due to the great rivalry engaged in the clash.

LEFTOVERS: Should Syracuse win Saturday, it would be the first time since 1922 that they have won three in a row from the Raiders . . . Another first since 1922 is that no member of the Saltines has ever been on a team that has lost to the Raiders . . . Last year's clash found Colgate putting up a surprisingly tough battle before falling, 20-14 . . . 1951 saw Syracuse fight to a 9-0 win in a mud battle . . . Ben Schwartzwalder has an impressive record against the Red Raiders with three wins and a single setback . . . Lahar is winless after his initial defeat in 1952 . . . Buck O'Neill former Syracuse head coach will be honored at halftime.

2000 HOMELESS...LINES DOWN.
URGENT...REPAIR QUICKLY.

Gale winds ripped through Alabama and Georgia last spring, destroying 500 homes, leaving 2000 homeless, killing and injuring 382.

Thousands of telephones were out of order—hundreds of poles damaged and destroyed. Communications had to be restored quickly. They were! Here's how:

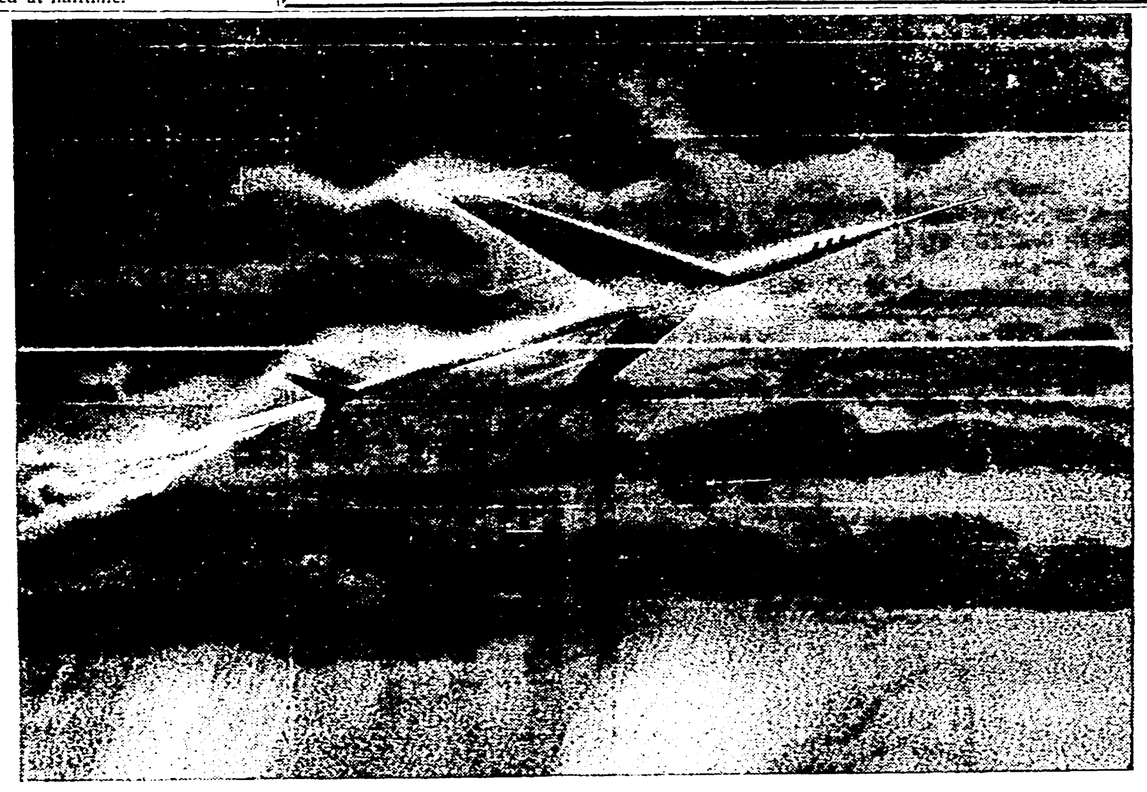
1. Engineering teams rushed to the stricken area. In hours, they determined material and men needed to restore service.
2. Based on these reports, equipment—as far off as Chicago and New York—began rolling toward the area.
3. Telephone crews arrived from as far away as Atlanta and Birmingham—engineering and accounting forces, construction, cable testing and repair teams.
4. Red Cross, hospital and other essential installations were rushed.
5. The public was informed of progress by daily newspaper and radio releases.

Result: in 3 days, Columbus, Georgia—which suffered 10 million dollars property damage—had half its out-of-order telephones working and Long Distance service nearly normal. In another 3 days substantially all service had been restored.

Planning and co-ordination among many telephone people with a variety of skills made this quick recovery possible. It illustrates vividly the teamwork typical of Bell System men and women.

There's room on this team for a wide range of college graduates—business and liberal arts, as well as engineering. Plan for your future by getting details now about job opportunities in the Bell System. Your Placement Officer has them.

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM



Do you want to get ahead in engineering?

Then—after you graduate—join a company that's expanding in fields where big engineering futures lie.

At Boeing you'll find plenty of room to get ahead in such projects-with-a-future as a major guided missile program . . . research in supersonic flight and nuclear-powered aircraft . . . America's first-announced jet transport . . . and the revolutionary B-47 and B-52 jet bombers.

You'll find Boeing a stable 37-year-old company, that has grown practically continuously. For example, Boeing now employs 6000 engineers in contrast to 3500 at the peak of World War II. And although Boeing is a large concern, it is so organized that each engineer is an individual who stands out—and progresses—in proportion to his ability.

Boeing is constantly alert to new techniques and materials—and approaches them without limitations. Extensive subcontracting and major procurement programs—directed and controlled by engineers—give you a varied experience and broad contacts with a cross section of American industry. No industry, in fact, matches aviation in offering such a wide range of experience, or breadth of application—from pure research to production design, all going on at once.

Boeing engineering activity is concentrated at Seattle in the Pacific Northwest, and Wichita in the Midwest. These communities offer a wide variety of recreational opportunities. Both are fresh, modern cities with fine residential and shopping districts, and schools of higher learning where you can study for advanced degrees.

There are openings in ALL branches of engineering (mechanical, civil, electrical, aeronautical, and related fields), for DESIGN, DEVELOPMENT, PRODUCTION, RESEARCH and TOOLING. Also for servomechanism and electronics designers and analysts, and physicists and mathematicians with advanced degrees.

Foreign Grad Views Philippine Elections

Elections today for president of the Philippine Islands are of interest to more than one Syracuse student. Mrs. Amador Buenasada, dean of women at the Philippine Normal school at Manilla and head resident at Nottingham cottage is among those students who will eagerly wait fo relection returns.

Personally in favor of incumbent Elpidio Quirino, the Liberal party candidate, Mrs Buenasada concedes that his rival, Ramon Magsaysay of the Nationalist party may very likely capture the presidency

MAGSAYSAY WAS former secretary of defense for the liberal party. He became a popular figure during his drive against the HUK guerriallas. He then resigned his post to become the leader of the opposition party

The Hill resident pointed out that his platform has been built for the farmers and laborers and he has charged that the social and agrarian reforms and health services have been neglected.

President Quirino has been citing improvements in the republic's budgetary position and foreign trade balances. According to Mrs. Buenasada, the iberal party has also been concerned with rehabilitation of the cities and building up production.

She believes "first things first" means this rehabilitation must come before the reforms reaches the farms.

THE DEAN of women ,now on the Hill studying personnel under several scholarships, indicated that Magasaysay was not the real leader of his party. In her opinion, the Nationalists are run by older former pro-Japanese. She declined to comment on the future of the country if the ex-defense secretary should win because she said she could tell who would actually be running the party.

The drastic effect of the war and the occupation forces are still influencing the political scene, she stated. "It will take a long time or the establishment of a truly democratic government system in the Philippines. Mrs Buenasada said. They had democracy for only four years before the war and since that time have been concerned with rehabilitation.

She does believe ,however, that by the educational process in her country and by leaders attending schools in other nations that the picure will change.

"Americans must be patient with the Philippines and sympathetic for the problems we are now facing and the changes we are constantly undergoing because of the war."

The University will provide special blood donor meals to all who plan to give next week.

All coed living centers have been given sign-up sheets for the drive. However, anyone who wishes to donate blood may do so by appearing any time between 9 and 4 in the men's gym on the day of the drive.

Extra permission slips for donors under 21 may be obtained from Diane Johnson at Alpha Chi Omega or from Mary Flavin, chairman of this drive.

Permission does not have to be written on special blanks, however. Parents should sign a note to the effect that their sons or daughters may donate.

Who is It?

IF YOU know who this man is, you may win 100 King-size Chesterfield cigarettes, awarded by Chesterfields on campus. Calls will be accepted from 2-5 p.m. only. The first person who correctly identifies the picture will win.

Anti-Jewish Charges In Medicine Dropped

Charges of anti-Jewish discrimination at State university college of Medicine at Syracuse university have been fully retracted by the American Jewish Congress, the State university board of trustees announced last Friday

William S. Carlson, president of State university of New York, said in a press conference in New York city Friday that the AJC commission on Law and Social Actions has declared itself completely satisfied that the college "operates under an entirely non-discriminatory admissions policy"

The original charge was based on an AJC study of Jewish winners of state scholarships in medicine who had applied for admission to medical schools in New York state.

When the charge was released, the trustee's committee on education requested a detailed and complete statement concerning the final disposition of the application of each scholarship winner who had sought admission to Syracuse university.

As a result of the report, the AJC accepted the board's findings that admission to the State University College of Medicine has been made without discrimination as to race, color, religion, creed or national origin.

SDT INITIATES

Recently initiated into Sigma Delta Tau sorority were Harriet Erlich, Shirlee Citrenbaum, Phyllis Krinovitz, Suzanne Beckhard and Gloria Jassie.

Chemistry Teacher Awarded Grant

The Atomic Energy commission has awarded Dr. Louis Gorden, professor of chemistry here, a $12,500 grant to continue his research on the separation of thorium and the rare earth elements.

This is a renewal of a grant first awarded to Dr. Gorden in 1951. Research assistants working with Dr. Gorden are Arthur Feibush, F. H. Firsching, Leonard Ginsburg and John Peterson.

Mystery Artist Identified During Yesterday's Contest

For a few precious minutes yesterday afternoon, near bedlam reigned in the Daily Orange offices as students jangled the Hellbox phones in answer to the page eight picture contest in the Monday tabloid.

The mystery artist pictured was pianist Erroll Garner who will be appearing with "The Festival of Modern American Jazz" at the War memorial on Friday evening. Twelve free ducats to the show were awarded to six fortunate students who captured the four Daily Orange phone line seconds after 2 p.m.

The six are Gerald Allinson, Robert Moore, Warren Nett, Stephen Friedburg, Chester Soling and Michael Flanagan.

They may pick up two tickets at the Syracuse Nationals ticket office on the ground floor of the State Tower building by presenting their student ID card anytime after noon today.

Over fifty calls were received by DO reporters in the space of about ten minutes.

Tickets Available For Dinner Dance

Tickets priced at $10 are still on sale for the annual St Thomas More formal student dance scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Nov. 21 at the Bellevue Country club.

Dick Kowell's orchestra will play at the corsageless affair, which is co-chairmanned by Patricia Fay and William Healy

Tickets may be purchased at St. Thomas More chapel or from committee members.

26 Women Will Compete For Colgate Queen Crown

Judges to Choose Queen, Court In HL Tonight

Semi-finalists in the Colgate queen contest were chosen Tuesday night from the 78 coeds who entered the competition.

The contest, sponsored by Orange Key, junior men's honorary, goes into its final stages at 8 p.m. today in 207 HL.

TWENTY-SIX girls will vie in the final formal judging before the winner is announced. One of the five finalists picked will then be chosen to reign as queen of Colgate weekend. The final winner will be announced at the pep rally, tomorrow night.

The 26 girls chosen as finalists tonight are:

Carol Amacher, Shaw dorm; Sally Ann Belt, Chi Omega; Patricia Burkhard, Gamma Phi Beta; Patricia Cain, Kappa Alpha Theta; Jean Crane, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Barbara Empsall, Alpha Delta Pi; Cele Fox, Iota Alpha Pi; Susan Haggerty, Peck II; Nancy Hoehle, Kappa Alpha Theta; Carol Hoffman, Sigma Kappa; Arlene Joseph, Shaw dorm; Mimi Leinwand, Sims I; Esther Luyster, Jewell cottage; Barbara McAndrews; Toni McClellan, Nottingham cottage; Nancy McHale, city student and Jane H. Miner, Alpha Gamma Delta.

FOR THE JUDGING tonight, the coeds are asked to wear cocktail dresses and heels.

Judges in tonight's competition will be Mrs. Floyd Schwartzwalder, wife of the Orange football coach; Darwin Bolden, president of Orange Key; Miss Margaret Parker, University social director; Theodore (Cookie) Kukowski of the football team, and Marvin Wallen, co-chairman of Colgate weekend. Acting as announcer for the event will be Gil Katz also co-chairman of the weekend.

Chapel Service Set To Follow Pep Rally

There is no more significant event to which we can point to on our campus than the annual brotherhood service," Chancellor William P. Tolley said yesterday.

"It symbolizes the successful effort begun six years ago, to bring about interfaith understanding and trust at a time when such understanding and trust is desparately needed," he explained.

THIS UNIQUE service, jointly sponsored by Jewish Student fellowship and Chapel, will be held at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow immediately following the Colgate pep rally.

"Our brotherhood service tomorrow is a practical demonstration of a beautiful theory on which many of us agree but only a minority will act," Dean Charles C. Noble of Hendricks chapel said.

"At Syracuse it is a tradition for us to live above all such barriers of custom and ecclesiasticism. Colgate game eve is a very appropriate time to celebrate out ellowship in the family of God," he continued.

"We do it again this year, as representatives of many faiths and nations, in gratitude for the democracy of our campus," he said.

DEAN NOBLE will introduce Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist church in New York city and member of the University board of trustees who will preach the sermon.

The noted radio commentator has spoken at the five previous services. A graduate of Ohio Wesleyan and Columbia universities, he has received honorary degree from eight other universities.

The combined Chapel-JSF choir, with nearly 200 voices, will sing the anthem at the service. They are lead by Prof. Arthur Poister.

Rabbi Irwi Hyman, chaplain to Jewish students, will conduct the traditional Jewish Sabbath Eve service and campus Methodist, Episcopal and Presbyterian chaplains wil lalso take part.

Avis Yaffe and Jane Scheckells, student co-chairmen for the service were chosen by JSF and the Protestant council.

Soph Dance Features College Theme In 3-D

By POLLY REED

Three decorations will transform Archbold gymnasium into a football stadium for the Soph Hop, 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

A huge gridiron will be formed by giant goal posts at opposite ends of the floor, and 3-D spectators will cheer the couples from one wall. Annette Manzella and Betty (BJ) Seligman are in charge of decorations.

ALL COEDS who attend the dance may receive a special 2 a.m. permission, according to Elizabeth Brydon, women's student government vice-president. The stub of the dance ticket must be attached to a pink special permission slip, which must be filled out in ink. There will be no city overnights issued Saturday.

"Collegiate" refreshments will be served by a bar in one corner of the gym. Couples have been invited to bring along their mugs for refreshments. A mug checking service will be provided by Jean (Jackie) Claridge and Norman Churchill, refreshments co-chairmen.

Traditionally, the dance will be dressy and corsageless.

Ken Frederick's Saltine Fourteen band will provide the mood music for dancing.

SOPHOMORE SENATE representatives are selling tickets at $2 per couple, but any house or individual which needs extra ducats should contact Suzanne Taylor, Alpha Epsilon Phi.

An innovation with the class of '56: a rotating cup will be awarded to the house which sells the most tickets to the soph hop.

The Colgate queen, which will be picked by junior men's honorary Orange Key, will be serenaded by Psi Upsilon, winner of last year's Interfraternity council sing. The queen will be serenaded from the steps of a house, part of the decorations for the hop.

A date bureau, similar to the bureau run by the class of '56 at the Freshman weekend dance, has been operated by Nora Hutton and Carole Strothman. Any Syracusan wanting a date for the "Krazy Kollege Kickoff" should contact Miss Strothman or Miss Hutton at 75-4191.

AN ORIGINAL sophomore-written, produced and acted show will be presented during the intermission. Kenneth Luchs and Sidney Kalcheim have written the review, and Gilbert Katz is directing it. The review is based on the theme of the dance, the "Krazy Kollege Kickoff," and is a story of college football in the fall.

Words of the title song, "Krazy Kollege Kickoff," are:

Krazy Kollege Kickoff
Dig that frantic band,
Catch that groovy majorette
Listen to the Orange cheering stand!
Krazy Kollege Kickoff
We're all gonna flip,
Watchin' the Orange on the move
Cheerin' for a team that's real hip.
When we yell "gone," we mean
Our team has "gone" across to score,
In be-bop talk the "living end"
Is the guy who's catchin' more.
Dig that solid scor- board,
Man, that score is cool,

Bowes to Take Oath of Office

Prof. Theodore Bowes, recently appointed U. S. attorney for the Northern District of New York will take the oath of office at 10 a.m. today in the Federal courthouse building. U. S. Federal district court Judge Brennan will administer the oath.

Bowes is teaching a full schedule this semester in the College of Law and will continue in a part time capacity next semester. He has taught in the College 17 years.

A Syracuse lawyer before joining the University faculty, he is at present also general counsel for the Institute for Industrial Research.

He was one of the first members of the Syracuse faculty to enter the armed forces at the beginning of world war II. He was commissioned a captain in the air force in January 1942 and rose to the rank of colonel by the time he left the service in 1946

During the war Bowes was awarded a Legion of Merit at a Pentagon ceremony. He served as chief procurement officer of the Material command at Wright field air force base in Dayton, Ohio.

Bowes and his wife have been active locally, living in Syracuse since 1931. Mrs. Bowes was a former assistant district attorney and is a member of the Board of Education at present.

Debate Team Opens Against LeMoyne In First Meet

Debators Will Argue Free Trade Policy With King's Point

The 1953 season opens for the Syracuse varsity debate team tonight and tomorrow with debates against Le Moyne and King's Point Merchant Marine academy. Starting time for today's Le Moyne debate is 7:30 p.m. in 415 HL.

The King's Point debate will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the alumni lounge of the Women's building. The debators will discuss the national debate topic which is, "Resolved: that the United States should adopt a policy of free trade."

Alex Strasser and Hal Vine will comprise the Orange's affirmative team against LeMoyne, while Rudolph Johanns and Kevin Wilson will uphold the negative side.

For Le Moyne, Daniel Donbrowski and Robert Small will defend the affirmative side while John Windhausen and Thomas Vitanza uphold the negative end of the case.

Tomorrow night Howard Osofsky and Marilyn Mawson will debate the negative side of the case against the Merchant Marine academy.

The Le Moyne and the Merchant Marine debates will be the forerunners of an extensive debate season that will see the Hill debaters make trips to the Vermont and Tuft's tournaments this term.

Guests are invited.

Miss Dalton Gives Pinebrook Review

Changed Meeting Time Announced by WSG

A Pinebrook review by President Mary Anne Dalton was presented at last night's women's student government meeting in the dance studio of the Women's building.

Miss Dalton reported on discussions of intramural insurance, student courts, academic freedom, reserved seating, student discount service and National Student association at the weekend student government conference.

COEDS WERE urged to usher during dedication ceremonies of the Women's building Sunday afternoon. Women are needed at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. for singing, ushering and conducting tours of the building.

All coeds who plan to assist at 2 p.m. Sunday are asked to attend a song rehearsal at 9 p.m. today in 205 Crouse. Song leader Anne Forrest requests that at least two representatives from each living center be present. The Women's Alma Mater will be presented at the ceremonies Sunday.

Freshmen women who will sing in the ceremony will meet at 5:15 p.m. tomorrow at the Delta Delta Delta house.

Three house presidents were elected to the WSG executive committee at last night's meeting. They are Martha Tallman, junior; Roberta Wagner, sophomore and Carol Wolfe, freshman.

The executive committee is responsible for planning WSG assembly meetings and consists of

Colgate Leads Syracuse In Rivalry Total of Week

Raiders Snatch Trophies, Mugs ATO Cannon Gone

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Colgate has taken the initiative in this, the 54th Colgate-Syracuse week.

A total of 32 trophies were taken from five Hill fraternity houses, the Alpha Tau Omega cannon is missing, three Syracuse students were scalped and the Orange campus sported splotches of reddish-pink paint in this traditional week.

Women's Student Government President Mary Anne Dalton and Men's Student Government Stanley Leff announced yesterday that cups and mugs reported missing earlier this week from Syracuse fraternities have been recovered by the Colgate university student senate and will be returned Saturday.

Among the 32 trophies was the University scholarship cup presented last year to Phi Sigma Delta. The fraternity noticed the cup and five others gone Monday morning and reported the loss to city police.

Trophies belonging to Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Chi, Delta Kappa Epsilon and Zeta Beta Tau are also in the hands of the Colgate senate.

ATO PRESIDENT George Kepner said last night that the houses' famed orange and blue cannon was taken early yesterday morning, probably by Colgate students.

Kepner reported that the treasured artillery piece—which dates back to Civil war days—was partially dismantled and hidden behind the furnace in the basement of the Comstock ave. house. Evidentally entry was made through an unlocked back door sometime between midnight and 8 a.m. he said.

The Saltine Warrior status on the Quad and the statue of Persephone in front of the Lowe Art center received paint from Colgaters Monday night as did several signs and walks on campus. The pressbox in Archbold stadium was smeared with enamel that night too, Leff reported.

A LETTER OF protest was sent to the administration at Colgate concerning the acts, which are in violation of the Colgate-Syracuse dent leaders Nov. 2 in Cazenovia. anti-vandalism pact signed by stu-

Chi Rho Takes Scalps Of Two Colgate Frosh

By JACK REILLY

The score stands 3-2 in favor of Colgate.

The annual Syracuse-Colgate rivalry, preceding the football game Saturday, has stepped off at a fast pace with scalpings both Monday and Tuesday nights.

As is the custom every year, the fraternity leaves their bell on their front sidewalk as a decoy. Two Colgate freshmen, James Goldmar, of New York city, and Charles Barrington of Manhasseit, L. I., were inspecting the bell with the intentions of taking the bell later.

AXP members dashed after the students and, upon finding they were Colgate members, returned them to the Chi Rho house where they shaved a Block S on each head.

After the clipping, the fraternity members decided to take pictures of the event. All the brothers of the house lined up in back of the scalped victims except the photographer. When one of the pictures was taken, Barrington closed his eyes. While the others were momentarily blinded with the light, Barrington dashed out of the house. However, the brothers soon caught the Colgate raider.

COLGATE MADE its claim Monday night.

Frank Nelson, Syracuse university freshman, was caught while hitchhiking in the University area about 12:30 a.m. Nelson inadvertantly accepted a ride with five Colgate students who carried out the traditional clipping was done in a Weyhaircutting in fine style. The mouth rd. home, on the South side of Syracuse. Then, the Bayside, L. I. youth was left to find his way home.

Sigma Nu William Clark was another victim of the Colgate raiders. Clark was caught on College pl. and taken to Colgate. After the scalping, he was left in Fayetteville in the early hours of the morning to make his way back.

Henry Hahn, a senior in Tau Delta Phi fraternity, was kidnapped Monday, taken to Hamilton and returned without having been shaven.

HAHN WAS picked up at 11:30 p.m. by the Colgate students and was taken to the Kappa Delta Rho house there.

The Syracuse senior, however, attempted to talk his captors out of the shaving. Although rather unbelievable, the plan succeeded.

Hahn refuses to reveal what he told his abductors—this he considers a trade secret. After convincing them that they should not shave his hair off, he was driven safely back to Syracuse.

This is the first known abduction of a Syracuse university student in 22 years where the student returned to campus without having his hair clipped.

William Angelos, Alpha Chi Rho was a near victim Monday when he was attacked by Colgate students at 7 p.m. near the Library. Angelos, however, managed to avoid his attackers and escaped with only a scratch.

Breakfast Will Spot Music By Caldiero

Tickets Available At 75 Cents

Music by Ray Caldiero will highlight the Bill Orange breakfast, to be held at 9 a.m. this Saturday in Shaw dining hall.

Dean Noble will deliver the invocation, and the Figi Four quartet is going to perform.

A LIMITED NUMBER of tickets is still available, at 75 cents each. These can be purchased from Barbara Witter at Shaw dorm, 4-3121, ext. 12 or Andrew Mercer at the DKE house, 72-2789. All ticket money must be returned to Miss Witter by Friday noon.

Orange Key, the junior men's honorary, and Delta Upsilon fraternity are supporting the breakfast and will attend in blocks. No tickets will be sold at the door, so all interested persons are requested to get their tickets today or tomorrow.

The event is sponsored by the junior class, and will be the second annual breakfast of this sort. The juniors took over after the senior class declined to be sponsors.

Waitresses representing each hill sorority and attired in blue and white with orange and blue ties will serve the food. Dress is casual, and entertainment head Carol Amacher promises "lots of fun for all."

Applied Science Slates Interviews

The College of Engineering interview schedule for next week has been released by Mrs. Ann O'Connell, placement secretary.

Tuesday, Nov. 17—Boeing Airplane co. will interview aeronautical, civil, electrical, and mechanical engineers, mathematicians and physicists.

Martians Abduct 'Rigger'

GERALD LEIDER, faculty advisor to Boar's Head and GILBERT KATZ, cameraman, explain proceedings to the Martians as they prepare for a final take of the 3-D movie. The "RIGGER", victim of kidnapping plot looks on. Staff Photo by Ozzie Keuker

"A war of two worlds" took place on Marshall st. last week when Vincent Rigolosi, the newly elected mayor of Marshall st. was abducted by four Martians. The plan was successfully carried off by four members of Boar's head, one of them Shirley Fenner, "Little Emmy," who acted as bait to trap the "Rigger."

The entire adventure was taken on film for a movie which Boar's head will present as part of their next musical revue. Shooting the short movie took approximately all afternoon and according to Gilbert Katz, cameraman for the occasion and publicity chairman for Boar's head, the movie will be 3-D.

SYRACUSE STUDENTS who happened to be in the vicinity at the time were used as extras for a scene in front of the Varsity restaurant where Rigolosi was standing prior to his capture. He was finally apprehended by the Martians next to the Special Education bldg. on Marshall st.

Civil Engineers Hold Field Day

A field trip in the afternoon followed by a meeting of the student chapter of the American Socciey of Civil Engineers in the evening was yesterday's schedule for the civil engineers on campus.

The junior and senior civil engineers visited the plant of the Smith and Caffrey Co., the steel fabricating firm which made the girders for the new law building. A. M. Cassel, production manager, conducted the engineers through the offices, drafting rooms and plant of the outfit. They followed the steel fabricating procedure from the filling of jobs through fabrication, delivering, and erection of the finished steel units.

In the evening at Drumlins, John Gilbert showed a sound color motion picture on the construction of a railroad in Labrador by airlift. There were no access roads to a new ore development so all material for the railroad had to be flown in.

JUNIOR REPS

Junior assembly representatives are requested to bring tickets and money for the Bill Orange breakfast to Barbara Witter, Shaw dorm by 5 p.m. today.

Students Needed For Mum Sales

Students are needed to help sell mums for the class of '54 on Saturday before the Syracuse-Colgate game according to Katherine Horan and Alan Gefen, co-chairmen of the sales.

Approximately 350 mums will go on sale in 10 booths around campus on Saturday morning. They will sell for one dollar each.

Anyone interested in selling the mums should contact Miss Horan at 4-4326 or Gefen at 4-9182.

Tohse persons who purchase the mums on Saturday are urged to buy from the Class of 1954 booths as several outside concessionaires are planning to sell them also.

MSF Will Meet In Prefab Sunday

The Mehodist Student fellowship will hold its regular Sunday meeting at 5:30 p.m., Nov. 15, in prefab 8 behind the Chapel.

Supper will be served at 5:30 p.m. All Methodist students are welcome. The evening's entertainment will be provided by Boyd Little, who plans to show some of his slides.

Foresters Host To Industrialists

A production and industrial relations conference, sponsored by the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, the New York State School of Forestry, and the Jamestown area furniture manufacturers, will be held today and tomorrow at the museum in the forestry school.

The meeting will include a speech from Andrew Barta, professor of production managements of the College of Business Administration at Syracuse, on the topic, "Meeting Competition for Labor."

Ralph O. Swalm, associate professor of the department of industrial engineering at Syracuse, will also speak on the topic "Common Fallacies in Machine Replacement Analysis."

Dean Hardy L. Shirley, of the New York State School of Forestry, will welcome the group at its opening meeting.

Senator vs. Pusey

Sen. Joseph McCarthy last week attacked the whole of Harvard university and charged by implication that Communist professors were being harbored there.

This is but one more example of the senator's sweeping accusations, generalizations and exaggerated denunciations that have become synonymous with his name.

That there is a "smelly mess" at the Massachusetts institution can be disregarded as unfounded and unverified accusation. McCarthy has offered but one name from the list of 3,000 faculty and administration who supposedly contribute to the situation he envisions.

It is not unlikely that among that large number some teacher in previous years could succumb to Communist teaching. But Harvard, as other institutions throughout the country, has been conducting its own housecleaning campaign.

If a teacher's actions are questioned, he should not be removed from his job until such time as the faculty and administration can investigate and either substantiate or discredit the charges.

Should he plead the fifth amendment he is within his constitutional rights and, therefore, should not be fired on these grounds alone. Nor should he be dismissed on grounds of past communist affiliation alone.

If there is evidence, however, that the teacher is at present participating in Communist activity, an investigating commitee, usually a faculty group, should present such report to the administration and recommend dismissal.

There is no room for a Communist on any college faculty. However, the institution has a right to protect members of its faculty from false accusation and unfounded charges. It will therefore assume a teacher innocent until proven guilty.

McCarthy, it seems, objects to an institution investigating its own members and refusing to fire them until accusations can be proved. Most likely, in his own mind, his charges would constitute sufficient grounds for dismissal.

We can be proud of the fact that the majority of American universities are not being pushed into adopting the "guilty until proven otherwise" attitude toward teachers who stand accused. While they realize the right of congressional committees to investigate Communist activity in the field of education, the majority do not approve of all the methods used by such investigators, and will guard their academic freedom by a self-policing policy when accusations are made.

We can also be proud that institutions are making the distinction between heresy and conspiracy, a distinction not usually made by Sen. McCarthy and his followers.

By thus jealously guarding their responsibility to protect academic freedom, universities will be able to rise above mere blanket condemnations. By thoroughly investigating all cases of alleged Communist activity, the colleges will never be damaged by the accusations of those who over-zealously see Communism in every area where disagreement is allowed and where statements are examined before being accepted.

'MOGAMBO,' ADVENTURE OR AMOUR?

By CHARLES SAMUELS

Daily Orange Movie Critic

An African Misadventure

Sam Zimbalist has made anhe has brought back a worth-while specimen. For, "Mogambo" is a film of no importance but it is a darn entertaining one.

Although "Mogambo" has trouble deciding whether it wants to be an African adventure or a love story set in Africa, it is a successful vehicle for two personalities. They are Ava Gardner and Clark Gable and the roles they have are tailored to their individual abilities.

Aside from the brilliant scenery, Miss Gardner is the film's chief virtue. This she is by playing a woman who holds hers in very little esteem. As an eccentric, loose-moraled playgirl, she displays the joy de vivre which so beautifully communicates itself to the audience. The sound of laughter runs through the theater and it is a very pleasant sound indeed. Miss Gardner is not only lovely; when directed by a man like John Ford, she can act.

Clark Gable has been essaying a portrait of virility for more years than he would probably care to recall. He is now the screen's mature lover. But Mr. Gable is not mature, he is old. The fact that he is several decades older than Miss Gardner does not make for a very creditable romance and Mr. Gable knows this. He therefore plays the role with his tongue firmly implanted in his cheek and thereby avoids all of the pitfalls of the script.

It is very much to their credit, that the stars make something out of "Mogambo" for they were given an impossible script to work with. It was corny, illogical and full of the cheap innuendo which other trek to Africa and this time Undoubtedly the Messrs. Ford and Gable and Miss Gardner were aware of the absurdities of the script and they determined to play it casually, without any attempt at seriousness. Not since "The African Queen" has a better combination of personalities been presented and the superiority that that film possessed was due to the greater value of the script. The irony of "Mogambo" is that Grace Kelly, the only actress who gives a real performance in the film, was completely ineffective, because she was out of harmony with the film as a whole.

This is definitely not for the sophisticate but if you do not take it seriously you will probably find it a very entertaining safari.

Jinx?

A note that tomorrow, the first day of the 54th Colgate weekend, is Friday, the 13th. While it may have brought drafty misfortune upstairs for a martyrlstic few, we hope none are too embittered to weather out the rally and the game.

ON THE SHELF

Fuzzy World of Adults

By MARY THOMAS LUINS

Daily Orange Book Review

THE PRODIGAL HEART by Susan Ertz, New York: Harper & Brothers, 1951.

The creator of Madame Claire has again given to the realm of fiction another work which commands an inexorable hold on the imagination.

A dramatic work with an unusual theme, The Prodigal Heart tells the story of beautiful and confused Medwin Blair, a 31-year-old nurse who fastidiously desired to keep her life neat and orderly.

The story is set in the railway station of a small English town outside London. Here Medwin meets an interesting young porter and a lonely old lady; with the two of them, she begins reminescing—about her clever father who had failed with his inventions; about her aunt Louise, whom she was going to visit . . . unmarried Louise who was so interruptedly enjoying a life of her own; about her sister, Charlotte, who loved an unfaithful husband; her wedding ring given to her by her husband who was now among the British war fatalities; their daughter, Sarah; and the adult responsibilities placed upon her as a child; and about the empty lives they all had known together.

But all these things would now be behind Medwin; she would not become submerged by flotsam of her own accumulating, as had become her sister, her aunt, and most of the people whom she had known. As a matter of fact, she would even leave nursing, for that, too, was a part of the dreaded past. It was with thoughts of the new life that Medwin was going to Aunt Louise's. If only Louise would leave her uneventful life and go to live with her aging parents, Medwin thought, then she herself could accept that attractive position as secretary to two old rich ladies in London. This would be like a transition from hell to heaven, she thought. It would bring her security, an isolated position in life, the peace she had longed for, and, above all, a place of her own in which to live.

The girl's appeal to Louise's sentimental emotions persuaded the old aunt to go back to Appledale and Medwin experiences the happiest moments of her life.

Life in the great house with the rich old ladies was as wonderful as Medwin had anticipated, but only for a short while. For, another thing that the girl was escaping was people. She had confronted so many social obstacles that personal involvement with any other human being was the last thing she wished for. A great net wove itself around her. The old ladies persistently became curious about her past; other people began to suspect that beneath Medwin's veneer of isolation and self-sufficiency was a lonely girl who needed desparately to be wanted; and, worst of all, Medwin found herself in love again, desparately and uncontrollably in love, and with the only man in the world whom she should have.

The end of the tale is probably more like Zola's Nana in philosophy than that of any novel of the past decade. The main conflict is never solved, little human progress is made by any character, and the story leaves one with sort of a sickening feeling. Not only is the happiness known here short-lived and infrequent, but it is never genuine.

The dramatic character of The Prodigal Heart is so pronounced that the novel could be transferred to the stage almost per se. The tale is completely absorbing; combining surprise, compassion and romance, it builds swiftly and surely to a climax, resulting in the most highly praised work Jane Ertz has produced.

AN EVENING AT THE THEATRE

Slow but Sure at Astor

By JOAN NADELHAFT

Daily Orange Drama Critic

For the first time this season, the Astor theater is presenting a play without the excuse that it is "only a stock production." And it shows.

"Home at Seven," this week's offering, is a smooth play, and adroitly acted by a fine cast. There are real stars in this drama. Not only Paul Muni, the lead, but several of the supporting players are famous names in their own right. As we said, it shows.

It was a delight to sit and watch a professional performance at the Astor for a change. Several times we have been sorry that such a fine theater, so ideally suited for professional drama should house some of the slapdash productions of past weeks.

However, the excellent acting, and smooth production do not overcome the slow script. The play is essentially one of conversation; action is limited to movements across the stage and back.

Dramas of this type can be very successful if the scripts are good enough to captivate the audience. Several dramas of this stature have been produced, and the recent successes of the Charles Laughton-produced readings prove the point. "Home at Seven" falls short of the mark, though.

The play is slow, for effect. Muni plays a man of deliberate actions and studied thoughts, which causes audience interest to flag. The first act is especially draggy, and Muni's excellence in the role of the bewildered man is unable to keep the tension up.

Conversational plays usually make themselves interesting by presenting some philosophy, funny or otherwise. This mystery doesn't. There is no message whatsoever, and the repetition of past actions and feelings gets tedious.

Muni's performance is absolutely sterling. He affects a stammer which increases when he gets excited or especially harrassed, and adds the crowning touch to a superb performance.

His stature as an actor can be demonstrated by one scene. Madeline Clive, as his wife, is happily babbling away, and he walks slowly across the stage with his head down, grasping his umbrella. He completely dominates the entire scene, although he doesn't say a word. It is the finest thing in the play.

Miss Clive is excellent in a limited part. She didn't have much to do, but what she did have, she did well.

Dennis Hoey, who has starred in such hits as "Jane Eyre," has a meaty part as a pleasant, sympathetic police inspector, and Betsy Palmer is a cute, "nice" pub owner. She is a breezy interlude in a dull sequence.

Claude Horton is another bright spot as a doctor, and Leslie Harris turns in a fine performance as a pompous friend.

In fact, the only criticism we have with the acting at all, is Hallliwell Hobbes, who blew a few lines. Otherwise, he was equally competent.

The standard cliche of the man who loses his memory the night someone is murdered, and then is wracked by the thought that he may have done it, has been done enough times not to need reviewing here.

Carnegie's Steel in Stone

The Road to Knowledge

By HELAINE BRAND

This is the third in an architectural series about campus buildings.

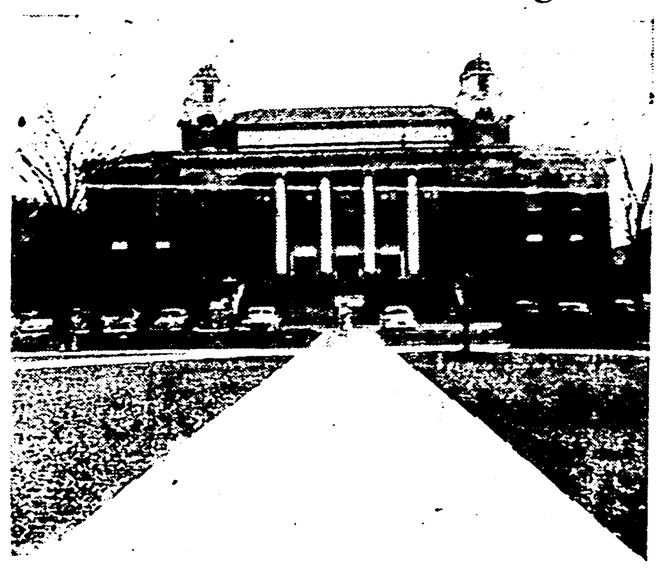
It's a long hard climb to the peak of knowledge. This is true in all societies and localities—Syracuse university being no exception. With one glance at the architectural layout of Syracuse buildings it is easily determined where its peak of knowledge may be found. Where else, but in front of the Carnegie General Library, are we confronted with the longest climb, with probably the greatest gain?

The library was the gift of Andrew Carnegie and construction of it began in 1905. Its architects, Revels and Hallenbeck, both of whom were faculty members of the School of Architecture, were influenced in their style by the Ecoles-des-Beaux-Arts, the leading architecture school in Europe. They choose for their style, therefore, the French Beaux-Arts, a form of Renaissance Architecture. Inspiration also came from the Columbia university main library, the masterpiece, of the at that time, prominent architects, McKim, Meade and White. Similarity to it can be seen in the portico and in the attic, the portion above the cornerstone.

Detail of the exterior and interior and the general floor planning conforms for the most part with the Beaux-Art architecture. The placing of the main rooms at the upper level, and direct approach to them by the outside monumental stairway is also a feature of this style and was greatly used for public buildings.

Chancellor Day, who was in office when the library was built, insisted that there be towers on all buildings during his epoch, and thus does the Carnegie Library conform to his wishes, towers being found on either side of the building.

Our library is a member of the Carnegie Library family tree, and has helped, along with her brothers and sisters, to bring prestige to her family name. Upon being built she was said to have been the best planned college library building in the country. Certainly this is enough to make her an honored member of the Carnegie family.



The main library that casts the slight reflection of a Roman basilica across a band of concrete. The basic lines of a huge center hall with aisles on either side are from the gathering centers of Rome. The pillars are still of Greek ancestry . . . and the towers are of Chancellor Day.

Couple of Sports

The carefree madcap life of owning a sports car has hit the academic level . . . and won national recognition in that distinguished field.

The last issue of the Saturday Evening Post carried an article on sports cars which included the following comment:

"The dean of the Syracuse university school of journalism was seen hurrying away from commencement ceremonies last June in his little black sports car."

Seems as if Dean Wesley C. Clark and his little MG have hit the headlines . . . or at least a waning paragraph.

New Age

These series of battle trenches that are preparing the campus for some sort of global war are an interesting combo of ancient man and modern machinery.

Yesterday we looked down to the bottom of one of the yawning pits where the bucket of a collosal steam shovel was resting. There, some 20 feet down, was one little man filling the huge bucket with dirt . . . small spadeful by small spadeful.

Art Movie Expands

For quite a while the Midtown theatre has been the only secluded rendevous where one could glimpse a good art or foreign film. We now are pleased to note that another theatre is joining the Midtown in the better grades of entertainment.

The Eckel, which for years has been the local guild house for ghouls and mechanical monsters, is instituting a policy of select imported and American films. Starting Tuesday, the Eckel will show "The Cruel Sea." This will be followed by Alec Guiness' "The Captain's Paradise," "Rome 11 o'clock," and "Fanfan the Tulip."

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Around the bend he came. Up the short hill and towards the small shack which designated the finish line. The gold and black jersey of West Point broke the tape. Dick Shea had won another race. Then another figure came around the hill and up to the shack. He was far behind the Army star but showed an amazing stride and all-around ability. Then the thin-bespectacled runner with the orange jersey shot past the shack capturing second place for Syracuse. It was early October 1951, out at Drumlins and the second finisher was an inexperienced sophomore cross-country man named Ray Osterhout.

That episode took place over two years ago. And a lot has happened to both of these runners since that brisk Saturday in 1951. Lt. Richard Shea, one of the finest runners ever produced in the East, was reported missing in action last summer in Korea. And that second fellow—well, he's still on the Hill, finishing his final year at Syracuse. But he's changed quite a bit since that first race.

They said that Ray Osterhout was a fair freshman runner. They said he would make the varsity but that was all. But they were all wrong in that last statement because Ray has become one of the all-time Syracuse greats on the cross-country trails and will probably move to higher ranking in the next few weeks.

Not since that defeat by Dick Shea in 1951 has Osterhout lost in dual meet competition. And in his soph year he helped Syracuse gain its greatest running triumph. That raw November day at East Lansing, Mich., Ray finished third in the NCAA's and led the Orange team to a very surprising upset victory and the national title. Coach Bob Grieve and Syracuse university saw a champion win for them that day and they haven't forgotten it.

Ray Osterhout

Oddly enough, the day Ray and the boys won, The Daily Orange didn't have a publication. This writer was covering cross-country and the best story of his college career was dropped down the drain. Still, to this day, we always get that needle about what a great story it would have been and why did the DO close up shop.

Well, Ray was on his way to greater fame. In his junior year he became a husband. And his most ardent fan out there on the cold hills of Drumlins was the Mrs., rooting her man home. Ray continued his winning ways pacing the field, way ahead of his competitors. Then the most exciting part of his collegiate career was unfolded just before last year's Army meet was approaching.

With Ray Jr. on the way and Mrs. Osterhout in the hospital, Ray refused to go to West Point until the family addition came. All the newspapers waited anxiously for the child's arrival. Would Ray make the race or wouldn't he? Then on Friday night, little Ray arrived and papa Osterhout left for the Point and another victory. Of course that one was for the kid.

A fellow from Villanova naced Cappazoll surprised everyone last year, including Ray, by winning the IC4A's. Osterhout was second and the Orange club didn't run in the money, either. At the Nationals, both did well but they couldn't retain the crown won the previous season.

But this is 1953 and the boys from Piety Hill with Ray at their head hope to change it all. Next Monday Ray will run in his final IC4A meet. We bet he remembers that first year when he finished third. And guess who won? That same Mr. Dick Shea whom by the way, Ray really thought a lot of. Yes, that was quite a while ago and, as we said before, things have really changed.

And so you look at this fellow Ray Osterhout as an individual. We have known Ray personally since that soph year. He's very quiet person and just about the most modest guy you will ever meet. But when it comes to running, don't bark up his trail. He's got an easy stride which slowly loses the remainder of the pack as the gruelling race moves on.

As a pupil, Coach Bob Grieve rates Ray right up their at the top of the class. He is always anxious to learn and help the other fellow any time he can. Besides that he has a great competitive spirit which is a must for any good athlete. When all are combined you have Ray Osterhout, a champion in the true sense of the word.

But it wouldn't be fitting that Ray be cited without those teammates he values so much. Being that type of guy, he wouldn't want us to forget Gene Parker, Frank Calzi, Steve Armstrong, Don Fryer and, last, but not least, our old buddy "Tremendous Tommy" Coulter. All of them have combined to produce a fine cross country club for Bill Orange..

With the IC's and NCAA's ahead, Ray and the boys have two final touches they want to fix before most of them leave this coming June. Not only for themselves, but for Bob Grieve, they'd like to bring home the bacon. And they can do it, too.

So there you have it: The story of a fellow named Ray, his buddies, his coach and the guy he never beat but greatly admired, Dick Shea. Up to the past three years Bob Grieve had always stated that the greatest runner he ever coached was former Hill two-miler and cross-countryman Dick Church. But we have a feeling that Bob may not be as positive of that choice as he was before Ray Osterhout came to Syracuse.

What do you say, Bob?

PAT Play Halted On One-Inch Line By New Champs

By DAVE BENNETT

One inch of playing field preserved the all-University intramural football championship for Theta Chi last night. The fraternity titleholders nipped GDI, the living center-independent champs, 19-18, in a thrilling finale to the Intra grid program on Hendricks field.

With Theta Chi leading, 19-12, and only two minutes remaining in the title contest, the independents pushed over a score. Frank Smith, GDI halfback, flipped a screen pass to quarterback Jack Jacobs but Gus Dine, Theta Chi defender, tagged the ball-carrier one scant inch from paydirt and a tie.

IT WAS AN even first half, with the teams leaving the field deadlocked at 12-12. The winners opened the scoring when quarterback Don Moller, an outstanding performer all evening for Theta Chi, fired a touchdown pass to end Ed Gozigian. The extra point attempt was no good and the fraternity kings led, 6-0.

The GDI's quickly retaliated, however, with Jacobs sweeping left end for 30 yards and a score two minutes after the opening tally.

Theta Chi moved into the lead again with four minutes remaining in the first half when Moller tallied from two yards out on a fake pass play. A Moller-to-Dine pass put the fraternity squad in scoring position.

The independents knotted the game moments later. With the ball on the 25, Jacobs tossed to Frank Skvorak on the opponents two-yard stripe. Then the smooth-passing play-caller of the GDI outfit flipped to Smith for the TD.

WHEN PLAY was resumed in the second half, neither team could muster the offensive punch it had exhibited in the first stanza. But with five minutes remaining, Theta Chi struck suddenly for what proved to be the winning score.

A fraternity drive brought the ball to the independent's 10. From there, Moller heaved to Dine for five. Then, on fourth down, the Theta Chi signal-caller hit end Don Buddenhagen for the touchdown. A Moller-to-Gozigian pass added the extra point.

With two minutes remaining, GDI tallied. Jacobs ran the kick-off back to the opposition 17. He then fired to Smith on the one-foot line. A Jacobs-to-Sig Sieber pass registered the third independent score and set the stage for the well-executed but futile point after touchdown attempt.

Tuesday night, Theta Chi and the GDI's earned the right to meet for the all-University title when they won their division crowns.

MOLLER LED the Theta Chi eleven to a closely contested 20-18 win over Phi Kappa Psi.

The Phi Psi's scored on the first play from scrimmage when Gayl Worstell ran 35 yards to paydirt. The winners took the lead minutes later, however, when Moller tossed to Gozigian for 25 yards and a tally. The extra point attempt was good and the score read Theta Chi 7, Phi Psi 6.

Each team scored once more in the first half with Theta Chi leading 14-12 at intermission. Moller's passing brilliance sewed up the win when he fired 30 yards to Gozigian for a marker early in the second half. A late Phi Psi rally fell short and Theta Chi entered the finals.

The GDI's won a close one, also, when they topped a rugged Skytop M-2 outfit, 20-18. Frank Smith scored twice and Jacobs once in the independents' victory. Doyle Roberts excelled in a losing cause for the Skytoppers.

THETA CHI'S Intra champions will meet the Utica college Intramural kingpins Saturday morning at 9:30 on Hendrick's field.

Freshmen Play Tomorrow

By DON HENRY

STEVE RINGO, stellar Tangerine lineman, will be leading the frosh defense against Colgate tomorrow from his line-backing position. The hard-hitting center hails from Phillipsburg, N. J.

The toughest test of the season faces Bill Orange's Tangerine gridders tomorrow when they take on the Little Red Raiders of Colgate at 2 p.m. on Hendricks field. The Tangerines will be out to better their 1-1 record at the expense of the rugged Colgate eleven.

Coach Les Dye will go with a slightly revamped lineup. Jim Ridlon and Jerry Cashman will start at the ends while Mike Minko and Jim Podraza will work the tackle slots. Podraza will be starting for the first time this year. He has been sidelined throughout most of the season with an ankle injury.

The Colgate outfit will be led by its sterling quarterback, Guy Martin. The Little Red Raiders boast a big, rugged line to give Martin plenty of protection.

Colgate started its season with a loss to Manlius, 19-0, but bounced back quickly by smashing Wyoming Seminary, 35-7. This same Wyoming team edged the Tangerines, 26-21. In their last game, the Raiders beat Cornell, 20-12.

Coach Dye is expecting a tight game, but will continue to use the majority of his bench during the contest. This is the last game of the year for the frosh gridders.

SINCE THERE are no programs printed for the frosh contests, the following list of players and number is printed for convenience of the fans:

Booters End Season Tomorrow With RPI

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Hill soccer squad ends the 1953 season Friday when it plays host to Renssalaer Polytechnic institute at 2:30 on Hendricks field

For Chuck Mayhood, Captain Don Moller, Bill Nelson and Sig Wirth, Friday's game will be the last in intercollegiate soccer competition.

MOLLER, NELSON and Wirth have been the backbone of the soccer team for the past two years and they will be especially missed by Coach Andy Coccari.

Although Moller hasn't won all-American ratings as Wirth and Nelson have, he has been rated the best player on the Orange team by former head soccer mentor, Art Horrocks.

Mayhood has been alternating with sophomore Joe Milliron at the fullback positions and his loss will further deplete the Orange's already thin reserve defensive line.

RPI will be the Orange's toughest foe. Last year, Syracuse defeated the Engineers 2-1 and this year's contest promises to be another close one.

COACH COCCARI will field the identical lineup that he started against Colgate last Friday. However, offensive ace Duncan Robb, who has been sidelined with a sprained ankle, will be ready for spot duty.

Gunnar Wirth will again start at the goal position. This will be the last game that the Wirth brothers will play together and will mark the end of the strongest brother combination in the history of Syracuse soccer. Before Wirth took over the goal slot this season, he and Sig Wirth combined to give Syracuse one of the most potent one-two punches in the East.

Rozos and Gormon will start at the fullback slots and Milliron, Moller and Shupe will hold down the halfback positions. Shupe has been a pleasant surprise for Coccari. Despite the fast that this is the first year he has played soccer, Shupe has turned out to be one of the mainstays of the defense

The Orange's forward wall will be composed of Nelson, Newcomb, Oberschall, Sig Wirth and Bill Ayres. Newcomb will again be starting for the injured Robb, who will see limited service.

ANOTHER PLEASANT surprise for Syracuse this year has been Ayres. He scored both goals against Colgate last week to lead the booters to a 2-0 triumph.

With Nelson and Wirth graduating this June, Ayres, Oberschall, Robb and Newcomb will be the nucleus on which Coccari will build his attack.

Friday's contest will be the first in which the Orange meets a team which plays its own style of ball. In its previous games, Syracuse has met opponents who play an aggressive, long-passing game.

RPI, like the Orange, plays a short-passing game with a premium on skillful ball handling and a minimum of rough tatics.

In preparation for this type of game, Coccari has been sending his charges through scrimmage sessions in an attempt to simulate plays which wll be encountered this Friday.

AXEL SPOTS—It was John Stallman who retired due to injuries after the first half of last Friday's frosh game against Cornell and not Harold Russel as was reported in Tuesday's Daily Orange. This has been the first year since pre-war days that Syracuse has had two soccer coaches. Marshall Johnson joined the staff this fall as assistant soccer mentor.

Gridders Rated High In National Statistics

Although Syracuse is fourth in the country in the latest NCAA rushing defense statistics, and seventh in total defense, emphasis in recent practice sessions has been placed on defensive tactics, and particularly a way to minimize Colgate's star passer, Dick Lalla.

The weekly NCAA statistics, released yesterday, did much to reinforce the idea that defensively at least, the 1953 Hill gridders stack up favorably with the year's best collegiate teams and also with former Orange teams.

COACH BEN Swartzwalder and his aides, however, are stressing pass defense for the annual Colgate tilt on Saturday. While Syracuse has had only one touchdown scored against it in the air this year, a toss by Elry Falkenstein of Illinois, it seems that most of the Colgate offense evolves around the sturdy right arm of Lalla.

Football forecasters, while favoring the Orange by two-to-three touchdowns, foresee an aerial dual between Lalla and Syracuse's Pat Stark, who shone in the Cornell victory last week by completing 19 of 27 passes in the most adverse weather.

In the same NCAA statistics, Stark is rated 13th in the country in forward passing, having completed 53 passes in 101 attempts for 756 yards and six touchdowns. Stark is also rated 19th in the country in total offense.

It is almost definite that blonde Bill Wetzel, injured in the first four minutes of the opening Temple encounter, will see action against the Maroon. While the junior linebucker probably will not start, Wetzel will be ready for spot fullback duty if needed.

SYRACUSE is hoping for an impressive victory over Colgate for more than the usual reason of victory over the long-time foe. An impressive victory could raise the Orange from its present fifth-place tie with Navy in the Lambert Trophy ratings for Eastern football supremacy.

Last year, the Syracuse Orange Bowl team captured the trophy, and a repeat performance this year would add to the gridiron prestige of the Orange. In the latest weekly rating, Syracuse trails Penn, Army, Penn State and Pitt in the fifth-place tie with Navy.

EXTRA POINTS—A victory over Colgate on Saturday would also give the Orange the mythical Upstate New York Big Three championship since Cornell was beaten by Syracuse last Saturday . . . Syracuse has scored in 44 of the 45 games played under Schwartzwalder, only Dartmouth in 1951 marring this record . . . Saturday's game will be the 54th chapter in the Colgate-Syracuse rivalry, the Maroon holding a 31-17 lead with five games winding up as ties . . . Buck O'Neill, Orange grid coach before world war II, will be honored at halftime with his inclusion into the recently formed National Football Hall of Fame.

Phi Psi Advances To Swim Finals

In he semi-finals of the Intra swim meets held in Archbold pool Tuesday night, Phi Kappa Psi ran away with the contest, beating Psi Upsilon 19-8. The Phi Psi's took a first in the 50-yard freestyle, breaststroke and backstroke to insure victory, and boost their record to six wins and one defeat.

Ted Bronczyk beat Punky Owens of Psi U in a closely fought race for five points in the 50 free. Whitey Wilson and John McGill placed one and two in the 50 yard breast stroke to give Phi Kappa Psi 8 more points. In the 50 back, John McGill, the high scorer of the night again came through coasting to a well deserved win and accounting for the last five points.

Colgate Fashions Defense To Meet Orange Attack

Coach Hal Lahar sent his Colgate charges primarily through defensive workouts yesterday in preparation for Saturday's clash with Syracuse at Archbold stadium. He has been working five linemen continually in practice sessions this week, preparing them to bulwark the center of the line against Orange power plays.

Offensively, most of the work has centered around the passing combo of quarterback Dick Lalla and end Pete Popovich. The duo has proved particularly effective in past games, combining for four touchdown passes in a like number of contests.

THE FIVE linemen getting all the work were center Walt Nestvogel, guards Dave Adams and Don Tomanek, and tackles Mike Morog and Jack Shaughnessy. This quintet will meet some rough competition Saturday as it will be outweighed by nine pounds per man by the Orange line.

Despite earlier reports to the contrary, Captain Gary Chandler will probably not be available to the Maroon for the 54th clash in the rivalry. A former end who has been switched to halfback, the star senior carries a "highly doubtful" status according to Lahar.

Two other gridders listed in this unavailable category are halfback Frank Speno and guard Tom Miller.

Despite the probable absence of both Chandler and Speno, the running spots should not be too troublesome for the Red Raiders since four of their backs have averaged at least five yards per carry.

Red Cross Expects to Top Hill Blood Donation Mark

Blood donations are expected to set a new Hill record Wednesdayday when the Red Cross seeks more than 1,000 pints at Syracuse university.

ROTC cadets will be awarded purple ribbons that will be authorized on their uniforms. These ribbons are similar to the combat ribbons worn by servicemen. The corps has pleged 10 per cent support.

IN ADDITION, for each contribution, the cadets will be authorized to wear the "drop of blood" Red Cross pin alongside the ribbon.

Campus Chest volunteers will assist in the collections, scheduled for 10 a. m.-4 p.m. in Archbold gym. They will serve refreshments to donors.

The College of Forestry and Beta Theta Pi fraternity have entered the record-setting race. Interfraternity council and the engineering students are also expected to tally with donations.

Credit for blood donations from Greeks will be given on the basis of two points for each donation. Last year a trophy was awarded to Alpha Chi Omega. Anne MacKenzie, trophy chairman, said this week that this year's award will be given in the spring to the house that has the greatest total number of points accumulated in this drive and the spring drive together.

STUDENTS over 18 years old are allowed to donate but persons under 21 years, must secure written consent from their parents.

A lapse of eight weeks is required between donations and no more than five donations may be given within one year.

Prospective donors will be examined by a physician prior to donating blood. A standard requirement is a minimum weight of 110 pounds.

A meal three or four hours before donating is advised but donors are warned to avoid fats. Fruits, juices, bread, crackers, honey, raw vegetables and skimmed milk are advised.

Speaker Discusses College Marriages At Hygiene Lecture

By LIZ GODDARD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A woman must agree that her husband's career comes first before she marries, Mrs. Catherine Chilman advised in the social hygiene lecture Tuesday.

"A wife can't have any career with a capital C, except marriage and motherhood," the home economics teacher told women contemplating marriage and a career. "That is inherent in the male-female relationship in our society."

TO ILLUSTRATE that there is no one formula to follow in deciding whether to marry while in college, Mrs. Chilman divided the group into four discussion sections. Each section listed the important considerations on each side of the question.

The financial problem was most frequently mentioned. "If you accept economic support from your parents," the caseworker and family counselor asked, "will they feel they can offer advice with the money?"

Emotional stability of both partners was high on the list. "A good marriage can add and contribute a great deal to emotional maturity," she encouraged.

Children, housing, the draft and scholastic standing were also mentioned as practical aspects of a collegiate marriage that must be considered.

"WHEN contemplating military service, you should ask yourself how well you can bear separation from your husband or wife," she urged.

If a woman expects to travel and perhaps complete her education on another campus, Mrs. Chilman suggested that she study what is in demand and what can easily be done of a part-time basis, such as teaching, nursing, stenography and dietetics.

"Statistics show that college is the greatest mating bureau," she said. "There is also social pressure, particularly in the senior year, to get married at college."

There is no reason why students cannot marry before they have graduated if they have carefully considered all the problems and implications and if their plans are securely made, the group concluded.

Lockwood Speaks To Class Today

George J. Lockwood, managing editor of the Daily Orange in 1952-53, will address the DO freshman class at 4:15 p.m. today in 103 Castle.

Lockwood is serving with the US Navy, working on the base newspaper at Bainbridge, Md.

All frosh who did not attend Monday's session must be present at today's meeting.

Soph Senate Elects Speaker Pro-tem

The sophomore senate last night elected Richard Vojvoda speaker pro-tem of the assembly and Carol Tucker, secretary.

The group also elected Kenneth Hallaby and Anthony Loiacono member-at-large of the screening board, which is composed of the chairman, chairman pro-tem, secretary and two members-at-large.

Vojvoda is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, Syracusan and Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity. Miss Tucker is a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority and the sophomore executive council.

James Hutton, class vice-president, and speaker of the senate, stressed the group's importance in class affairs. He told members, "At our senate meetings most of the class activity will be carried out. The duties of the representatives are not only to report to the groups whom you represent what goes on at these meetings, but also to find out from them just what they want done for the class or by the class.

GROUP MEETING WILL BE HELD AT 4:15 P.M.
NOVEMBER 16

Boeing has many positions open for graduating and graduate students. These opportunities are in all branches of engineering (AE, CE, EE, ME and related fields). Also needed are physicists and mathematicians with advanced degrees.

Fields of activity include DESIGN, RESEARCH, and PRODUCTION. Your choice of location: Seattle, Washington or Wichita, Kansas.

A group meeting, first day of campus visit, will precede personal interviews. Details of openings, nature of assignments, company projects, etc., will be explained. Married students are invited to bring their wives.

Come and learn about these excellent opportunities with an outstanding engineering organization—designers and builders of the B-47 and B-52 multi-jet bombers, America's first jet transport and the BOMARC F-99 pilotless aircraft project.

WHATDIDHESAY?

A very fastidious college senior decided to add a few colored shirts to his wardrobe. So one afternoon, he strolled down to the local shirt shop. "I'd like to see your smartest colored shirts," he said to the clerk.

The clerk laid several Van Heusen Vanahue Broadcloths on the counter. "These are our best sellers," he said. "They're tailored of fine, high-count broadcloth that's very smooth and luxurious. And you can take your pick of eight different collar styles—including Van Heusen's new short collars that are the rage of the college set."

"They sure look good to me," said the senior.

"Good? They're terrific!" replied the clerk. "Just look at that magic sewmanship—Van Heusen's finest. Why, even the buttons are top quality, genuine ocean pearl. And Vanahue Broadcloths come in every color of the rainbow—from soft, subtle shades to rich robust tones. What's more, they're only $3.95 apiece."

"Do you have henna color?", asked the young man.

"That's just what I got finished telling you," answered the clerk. "You can have henna color you want!"

COLGATE WEEKEND FESTIVITIES TO MARK 54TH GAME IN ORANGE-MAROON RIVALRY

Syracuse Daily Orange

Vol. 51, No. 36 | Syracuse, N. Y., Friday, November 13, 1953 | Twenty-Four Pages—5 Cents

Student Excitement Mounting; Alums Return to Hill

The threat of snow and the jinx of the Colgate Hoodoo have failed to dampen the spirit and enthusiasm of Syracuse university fans preparing for one of the gayest and most colorful Colgate weekends in history.

Excitement over the biggest athletic and social weekend of the year for Hill students and the annual Homecoming for alums has been mounting and will reach a climax at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow as a strong Syracuse football team faces Colgate in Archbold stadium.

The Orange goes into the bowl a 19 point favorite, but tradition promises to make it a close contest.

A FULL program of events has been scheduled for the Orange Key-sponsored weekend, starting with the freshman football game between Syracuse and Colgate at 2 p.m. on Hendricks field. The Orange soccer team meets Rensselaer Polytechnic institute there a half hour later.

Judging of the "Beat Colgate" posters will be completed at 4 p.m. A total of 95 houses have entered.

The traditional pre-game pep rally gets under way at 6:30 p.m. today from Sims. Cheerleaders will lead a parade through University area streets to Hendricks field.

CHARLES STEIMKE, 1916 cheerleader, will be on hand with his golden horseshoe. Dean Noble will be master of ceremonies.

Marven Wallen and Gilbert Katz of Orange Key will present the winner of the Colgate queen contest and her court. The 1953 regent will be crowned by Jane Gates of Sigma Kappa, last year's weekend beauty.

Winners of the poster contest will also be announced and cups awarded in fraternity, sorority, large independent and small independent house classifications.

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist church in New York, will preach at the sixth annual brotherhood service.

EARLY RISERS will attend the Bill Orange breakast at 9 a.m. tomorrow in Shaw dining hall. Sponsored by the junior class, the event will feature the Figi Four as entertainment.

The marching band has prepared a revised version of its Cornell show for halftime. The football queen will be presented to the estimated 38,000 fans in Archbold stadium as part of the intermission ceremonies. Frank (Buck) O'Neill will receive a

Colgate Grid Queen To Receive Crown At Tonight's Rally

The Queen of Colgate Weekend and her court were selected last evening in the annual competition sponsored by Orange Key, junior men's honorary.

The winner will be announced at the pep rally at 7:15 p.m. today on Hendrick's field. The other four coeds chosen will act as the queen's court.

The five girls were chosen from a bevy of 26 semi-finalists in the contest. They are: Carol Amacher, Shaw dorm; Susan Haggerty, Peck II; Mimi Leinwald, Sims I; Ann Reed, Gamma Phi Beta and Shirley Saari, KKG.

Judges for the competition were Mrs. Ben Schwartzwalder, wife of the Orange coach; Miss Margaret Parker, social director; Marven Wallen, co-chairman of the weekend; Ted Kukowski, center on the football team, and Darwin Bolden, president of Orange Key. Gil Katz, also co-chairman of Colgate Weekend, acted as MC for the event.

Among the prizes which the queen will receive are: gifts from the Town Shop, Lund's and Olmstead's; dinner for two at Lorenzo's and tickets to the Astor theater for the queen and her court and their escorts.

The traditional Colgate Weekend pep rally will open with a ring but not a bang at 6:30 p.m. tonight. The Alpha Chi Rho bell will announce the beginning of the pep rally but, unless the Alpha Tau Omega cannon is returned today, the parade will be forced to start without the traditional blast.

The parade will travel the regular route beginning at Sims, picking up houses on College pl., Comstock ave., and Walnut ave., and Walnut pl., ending at Hendricks field for the yearly festivities.

Soph 'Kickoff' Dance Will Feature Saltines

The highlight of Colgate weekend, the Soph Hop, will make its debut at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Archbold gymnasium. Students, alumni, parents, friends and oh yes, Colgate men, will attend the Hop, many coming before or after fraternity parties.

Upholding tradition, the Hop will be dressy and corsageless.

WOMEN ATTENDING the Hop may take a special 2 a.m. permission said Elizabeth Brydon, vice-president of women's student government. One half of the soph hop ticket must be attached to a special pink permission which must be filled out in ink. No city overnights will be issued by WSG for tomorrow night.

KEN FREDERICKS' Saltines band will provide music for the dancing and listening.

Tickets for the Hop are available from members of the sophomore senate, and anyone needing extra ducats should contact Suzanne Taylor, Alpha Epsilon Phi. Tickets will be sold at the door.

A rotating cup will be awarded to the house or living center which sells the most tickets.

THE "KRAZY Kollege Kickoff" will feature the serenade of the Colgate weekend queen during the intermission.

A college football review has been written by Kenneth Luchs and Sidney Kalcheim and will be directed by Gilbert Katz. It features original songs and dances, Ray Caldiero and his trumpet, and two production numbers with the chorus.

Collegiate refreshments will be served and couples have been invited to tote their mugs for the occasion. A bar in one corner of the floor will add that special "Orange" flavor. A mug checking service will be provided by the refreshment committee.

The gym will be transformed into a huge gridiron with goalposts at either end. Spectators in 3-D will cheer from one wall.

Band Will Present Advertising Theme

Alta Burg to Twirl At Half-Time

A revised edition of the Cornell half time show will be presented at the Syracuse-Colgate tilt tomorrow. The bandsmen will stage a repeat performance of their advertising theme show.

Starting with a pyramid formation at the goal post the band will form a pyramid and play the Halo shampoo fanfare. Marching up the field in pyramid formation the band will play the "World Events March."

At the 50 yard line the men will form the letters CU and play the Colgate "Fight" song, ("Brush your teeth with Colgate," etc.).

The bandsmen will perform their famous "to the winds" drill where groups of four men go into intricate marching patterns and still come out right in formation. The music for this will be the Lava soap theme, ending with the four notes from Dragnet, signifying the mystery of how the band gets back in formation.

Eight ranks of 11 men will form a pinwheel and play Chiquita Banana with the bandsmen doing a dance step.

A TV set, a rectangle with a screen and two legs will then be formed while the band plays the Ajax cleanser tune.

Hill Eleven 19-Point Choice Against Red Raiders

Central New York's greatest grid classic closes the book on another glorious chapter after the 54th renewal of the Colgate-Syracuse donnybrook in Archbold Stadium starting tomorrow at 1:30 p.m.

Although the Orangemen have been established as 19 point favorites in most quarters, memories of last year's 20-14 spine-tingler point the way which the game should go. The big individual contest of the Syracuse homecoming figures to be a passing duel between the Raiders' Dick Lalla and Syracuse's Pat Stark.

Stark, currently 13th in the nation for passing with a 52.5 completion percentage, has had the advantage of a better, more-seasoned forward wall all year. Both quarterbacks showed their worth during Saturday's Operation Snowstorm by accounting for 140 yards each in the air.

THE RAIDERS bring an even 3-win, 3-loss, 1-tie record into the game having gone through their last four games without a setback. Syracuse, who hasn't been scored upon since the Illinois squeaker, will be trying for its fifth victory against two losses and one tie.

The big question for the home team is how much Bullet Bill Wetzel, the Orangemen's driving fullback, will be able to play. Wetzel dresses for the first time since the Temple game when he injured his leg.

The junior fullback may be rested periodically with sophomore Don Laaksonen, who has done a man-size job filling in for him, spelling Wetzel. Rounding out the Orange backfield is Bruce out the Orange backfield are Bruce Yancey and Bob Leberman, turned halfback, showed brilliantly in the Cornell snow last week and should provide the extra punch in the Orange running attack. Leberman, the Syracuse scatback, is expected to again weave his running magic as the leading Orange ground gainer.

IN ADDITION to Lalla, the Colgate backfield includes John Williams at fullback plus Frank Nardulli and John Spalik at the halfs. Williams, a converted end from Cortland has provided the drive and speed for which Coach Hal Lahar has been searching. Thus

Judging of Posters Takes Place Today

Judging of the 95 Colgate poster entries will take place today between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., by Dean Noble, Sylvia Wycoff of the School of Art, and Bernard Hillenbrand of the City of Syracuse.

Their choices will be based on originality and the quality of execution of the poster. Each entry will bear the words, "Beat Colgate." No sound is to be used in connection with the poster or in the vicinity of the poster while judging is taking place.

The contest, sponsored by Tau Sigma Delta is divided into four divisions: Fraternities, sororities, large independent living centers and small independent living centers.

Colgate weekend queen will present prizes to the winning house tonight at the pep rally.

Service in Chapel Will Follow Rally

Christians and Jews will worship together in Hendricks Chapel immediately following the Colgate pep rally tonight.

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist Church in New York city, will preach the sermon at the sixth annual brotherhood service jointly sponsored by Chapel and Jewish Student fellowship.

RABBI IRWIN HYMAN, chaplain to Jewish students on campus, will lead the Sabbath Eve service. He will be assisted by Cantor Harold Lerner, of Temple Adath Yeshurun in Syracuse. This year more of the traditional Jewish prayers will be included.

Dean Charles C. Noble will introduce Dr. Sockman, who is a member of the University board of trustees and speaker on the NBC Radio Pulpit program.

Dr. Sockman was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan and has received honorary degrees from eight universities in addition to the doctor of philosophy degree he earned at Columbia university.

Rev. Arnold Nakajima, Presbyterian chaplain, will deliver the opening prayer. Rev. Arthur Hopkinson, jr. and Rev. Wesley Konrad, Methodist and Episcopal chaplains will also participate in this unique service.

THE ANTHEM WILL be sung by the combined Chapel-JSF choirs, with nearly 200 voices. They are led by Prof. Arthur Poister. Radio stations WAER and WSYR will broadcast the ceremonies.

Chancellor William P. Tolley termed the service a symbol of "the successful effort begun six years ago, to bring about interfaith understanding and trust at a time when such understanding and trust is desperately needed."

"It is only too easy in a period of tension to adopt the weapons of the enemy and thus fall prey of the evils we are combating," he said. "The solemn occasion this evening cannot fail to remind us again of the fundamental meaning of brotherhood—and freedom."

A reception in honor of Dr. Sockman will be held immediately after the service in the Colonial room of the Chapel.

Co-chairmen for the service who were chosen by JSF and Protestant Council are Avis Yaffe and Jane Sheckells. They were assisted by Beverly Kaplan and Jane Williams, choir; Marjorie Lavine, speakers bureau; Joseph Lauderstein, program; Mary Ann Lana and Marcia Morrison, secretarial; Harold Vikoren, ushers; Marion Campbell, publicity.

Women's Group Slates Meeting

"The History and Development of the University Building Program" will be discussed at a meeting of the "Our University" Group of the Women's club. Monday evening, Nov. 16, at eight p.m. in the lounge of the new Women's building. Professor N. A. Rotunno who is landscape architect will give this talk, using maps and charts to illustrate.

This will be the first meeting of the present season. Coffee and cookies will be served at the conclusion.

Taking Time Out

Formal Opening Set for Building

After 50 years of dreams, money-raising schemes, hard work and fulfillment, the Syracuse Women's building will officially become a part of the campus on Sunday.

The dedication of the Women's building is scheduled as a main event of this year's Colgate weekend. At 2:30 p.m. Sunday Miss Kathryn Sibley and Mrs. Huntington B. Crouse of the Board of Trustees will cut the ribbon to open what is expected to be a new era in women's life at this University.

A DEDICATION banquet will be held in the main gymnasium of the building immediately following the ribbon-cutting. Dean Marjorie C. Smith, acting as mistress of ceremonies, will introduce more than 70 honored guests. Women's student government president Mary Anne Dalton and Miss Lucille Verhulst of the physical education department will extend greetings.

Chancellor William P. Tolley will make the dedication address and pay tribute to Miss Sibley.

An informal reception in honor of Miss Sibley is scheduled for 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Alumnae lounge of the Women's building. Miss Sibley is the founder of physical education program for women at Syracuse and was instrumental in fund-raising drives for the construction of the building.

Open house with conducted tours will be held this evening following the Brotherhood service and from 9 a.m. to noon tomorrow.

YELLING AT THE DEAF

Somewhere There's Music

(Editor's Note: Although the notion has been creeping up for some time, the Daily Orange finally realized the other day that the college marching band business is undergoing some radical changes. Here is the report of one inquiring reporter who inquired into this innocent musical pastime.

A few years hence will most likely find the average Saturday afternoon sports enthusiast trotting off to the stadium to sit in on a marching and placard cheering exhibition with a few baton twirling stunts tossed in to liven the panorama.

In Syracuse around the year, 1964, the Orange populus could be found in the awesome new Irving ave. bowl and down on the field would be the Syracuse university marching band, 235 men and 12 girls, lead by a sextet of flashing batons and flying feet. They would, perhaps, run through a series of intricate field maneuvers designed to pry loose student eyeballs while blasting out an assortment of pop and classical selections.

This would be followed by some frilly placard cheering inspired by the present-day antics of Michigan State or UCLA or John Ringling North or Cinerama.

The pleasant afternoon would probably wind up with a large production number featuring the band, playing, the twirlers twirling and 30 or so chorus girls from the Copa doing the can-can on gold pedistals. And then, the students would return to their television sets and The Daily Orange drama critic would scurry to meet the first edition with his review of the thing.

I, for one, would revert to the days when music and stage shows were identical to other things down on the field and when mikes and fire and muted tones were considered unnecessary for the kindling of spirits. When the band sat in the stands and tooted. When 'Down, Down the Field" was a song, not a command.

And the guys who sold popcorn had a Buick-eight in every garage.

Saturday Story

The Festive Syracuse Campus
Nov. 14, 1953
6 p.m.

The Colgate team died this afternoon. They were a hardy bunch, residing in the healthy environs of Hamilton, New York.

They fought desperately for their very life and didn't give up the struggle until the final seconds ran out and the clock stopped. There was shocked silence on the south side of the field. The curse of "Hoodoo" had failed to ward off the Orange Spirit.

Doctors had predicted that any meeting of the two rivals might be fatal. Their worst fears were realized when they found the Maroon's temperature 19 degrees below that of the healthy Pietymen.

Colgate had to battle against superior elements. Their friends had come to lend vocal encouragement, but the Red Raiders could not rally against a matchless team.

As the funeral dirge was tolled by the Crouse chimes, Coach Hal Lahar wept profusely. Team members were shipped back to the sanctuary of Hamilton and silence of Shenago valley.

Colgate requests that flowers be omitted.

Bill Orange

Post script: This is the letter that may well be figuratively written on the Hill tomorrow.

But no matter what the final score may be, we shall never forget this week of friendly rivalry and traditional events.

Although the actual gridiron battle is the high point of the festivities, the week will long be remembered for the free haircuts, the house parties, dedication of the first building for women and a golden horseshoe thrown to a cheerleader.

There will be memories of Alta Burg, the "commercials" played by the band during halftime, a breakfast for two at Shaw dining hall and a myriad of multi-colored posters. The smile of the newly-crowned queen and the inspiration received at the annual brotherhood service will also be put into the pages of the '54 Onondagan.

It is for these activities as well as for the excitement of the football game that the alums come back to participate in Colgate weekend.

We extend a welcome to the returning Syracuse alumni. We hope their weekend will be as full and enjoyable as those of their undergraduate years, and that they will be able to relive the fun of past Colgates through renewed friendships.

Although there is an altered campus, the tradition continues unaltered in this 54th Orange-Maroon meeting.

We also would like to welcome the students and alumni of Colgate university. We urge them to participate in the weekend festivities, especially the soph hop.

Their continued interest in Colgate weekend assures the traditional bonds between the two schools.

However, while extending a warm welcome to Colgate, we cannot but remember and echo the words of Dean of Hendricks Chapel Charles C. Noble:

"Oh, Lord—If You won't help Syracuse, then for goodness sake, please don't help Colgate."

ROUGHING IT UP IN RUGBY

Here's an idea that coud merit some thought: how about a sport called Syracuse? Sound impossible? A school in England did it, why can't we?

Ever hear of Rugby? What do you think it is? A school? A town? A game of football? Right on all counts!

All seriousness aside, the game of Rugby actually got it's name from the Rugby public school in Rugby, England. Although it is essentially a game of football, it is almost unrecognizable by US standards. There is a great deal of kicking done in the course of the game, mainly because it came originally from soccer.

'Way back before the 19th century, both Edward II and Henry VI forbade the game on the penalty of death. But, even bearing this cross, the game still flourished. It was played in large areas, sometimes as much as a few miles separating the boundary lines. A great many players were involved when town played town, or parish played parish.

By 1800, the game had become very specialized in the schools. It was characterized by the prohibition of carrying the ball. It wasn't 'til the closing minutes of a tense tie game that the ball was run. At that time, William Webb Ellis (absent-minded football player) ran with the ball. This was as late as 1823.

Today, rugby consists of two different types, professional and college. Professional is only played in northern England. It seems the people from that part of the country, coming from the labor class, could not afford the expense it would take to travel to the games. In 1895 they did something about it by forming the Rugby League, which is all professional. Although the pros' game differs slightly from standard rugby, it is essentially the same sport as we know it.

In college rugby, each team sports 15 men, divided into eight forwards, two half-backs, four (get this difference) three quarter-backs, and one full-back. The game is played on a field the same size as ours, but the markings differ by having marker lines every quarter of the field instead of every 10 yards. Also, there is a five-yard marker along the side of the field, down the whole length.

One difference in rules says that the ball can only be passed to the man behind or level with the carrier. No forward passing is allowed.

Scores are built up on td's, known in rugby as a "Try", for three points; a conversion (same as ours) for two points; a penalty goal for three points; a drop goal for three points. (For a drop goal, the ball is kicked after it has hit the ground and is on the bounce, and is good when it goes over the goal-post bar.)

The time of a game of rugby runs 80 minutes, with the periods divided into two halves of 40 minutes each. The only reason for the division is the wearing power of the game. Any longer for any player, and he is as likely to completely drop from exhaustion as not.

Sound exciting? It is! Does anyone volunteer to think up some sort of exciting rules for some sort of exciting game that will bring glory to the name o' Syracuse? If so, contact someone.

SIGHTLESS SYRACUSE

Scrabble Spotlight

Scrabble Scramble: The spotlight of the weekend will focus on the world wizards tomorrow when this established game of intellects dominates the otherwise uneventful calendar. First movement time is set at 2 p.m. with all eight tables at full strength for the first time in many a week. The opponents now can boast the return of their ace who was recently sidelined by a recurrence of his brainwashing by his captors in the last war. The home team also has greeted the return of their four letter man who is now ranked sixth in Eastern ratings. The home team captured the laurels in these artings last year only to suffer an almost complete memory lapse in the southern post season matches. Both coaches in their pre-game press interviews were pessimistic insisting that their opponents could write the dictionary while they couldn't wade through a cross word puzzle.

Rascal's Reprimand: The recent case against five students charged with violating the anti-vandalism pact, has been dismissed in all but technical channels. The prosecution admitted no permanent damage had resulted since the boys used pencils in changing some of the letters used in last week's scrabble match The match must be replayed because the winners had come up with a full house, a seventy-eight point double value, an inside straight and a royal flush trump on a six letter parley.

Scrabble Scrimmage: Our informants who penetrated the closed drills of tomorrow's gladiators report that both teams have been well scouted. The junior varsity ran through the opponents moves and the varsity worked at plugging their third table five-letter weakness. The opponents had a light drill with Webster's while the home team concentrated on Roget and various encyclopedia. The hero who pulled a fifty-point value on the first table last week was practicing to beat his record. The defense of the opponents first table has been reported as planning a bock to make this move impossible.

All This and Alta: In addition to the traditional match, returning alumni and students alike will witness another drill by the 100 words and a sentence. And there just aren't words enough to describe the wonderful job which they did in between the snowflakes last week. While the contestants donned gloves and socks, the most twirling curling in the most cut down ski, suit this corner has ever seen, held the audience spellbound by twirling and competing in a non-official match at the same time. The final move of twirling three batons while scoring with XYLIC completely broke the opponent.

And now if you'll excuse us, we'd like to go rabbit hunting. Don't want to be caught without a rabbit's foot on Friday the 13th.

Hill Construction Work Continues

Engineering School First in Series Of Building Plans

Syracuse university is in the midst of the biggest building program in its history today with five buildings either in construction or slated to be started in the immediate future.

Latest chapter in the program are Engineering buildings one and two. Construction of the basement and sub-basement of building two, which will be located south of Machinery hall and west of Slocum hall, is scheduled for completion in May 1954.

THE REAR END of Machinery hall was removed several weeks ago to make room for the new structure, which will house mechanical, electrical and aeronautical engineering labs, the engineering library, administration offices, drafting rooms, and the Institute of Industrial Research.

Provision has been made for the future addition of four more floors and a southerly extension, at a cost of approximately $1 million. The green house will be dismantled during this phase of construction.

Engineering building one is slated for construction next, with bids for construction due in a few weeks. It will be a four-story structure housing chemical, civil, industrial and electrical engineering labs.

Completion of the two buildings will complete the return of the College of Engineering to the main campus from Thompson rd. and will be a major step in turning the east quadrangle into a science and engineering campus.

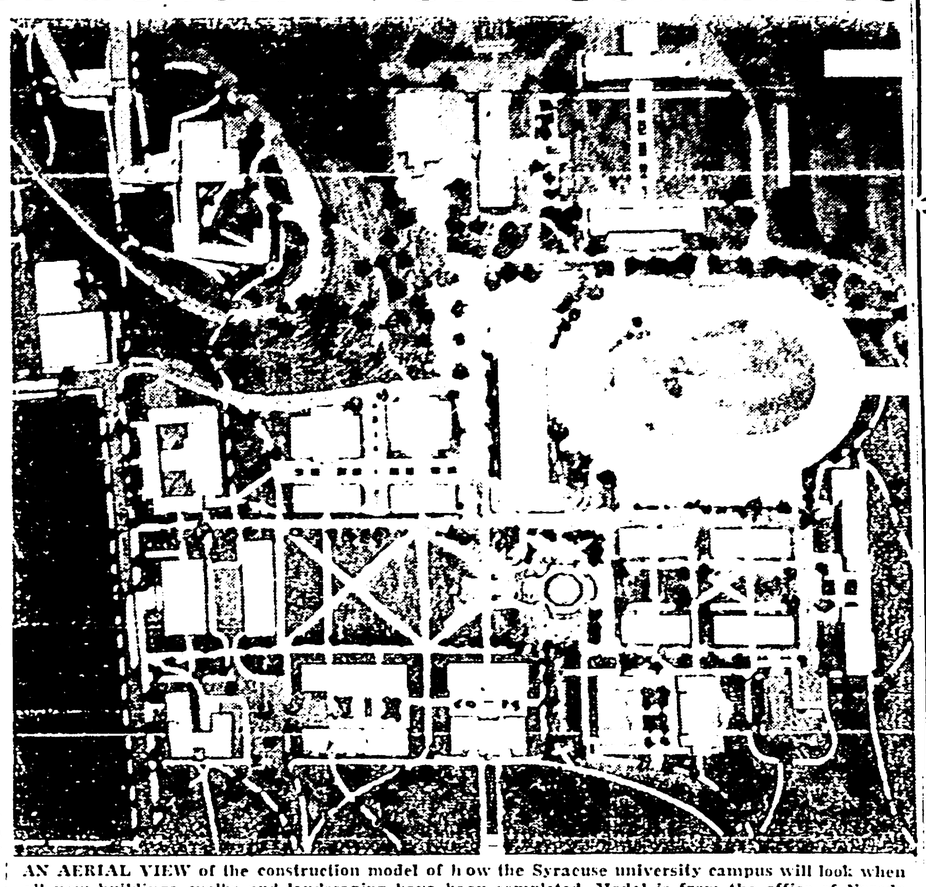
CONSTRUCTION OF a two-unit men's dormitory was started one year ago and will be completed by next fall. Watson hall, the main building, will be a four-story, U-shaped structure which will contain a dining hall as well as living quarters.

It will be located between University pl. and Waverly ave.; Walnut and Comstock aves. Marion hall is rising directly across Waverly ave. The dorms will house 665 men.

First in the development of a social science quadrangle, to be located west of Hendricks chapel, is the E. I. White hall, which will be the new home of the College of Law. The structure will be four stories high on the west side; three on the east.

It will house classrooms, faculty and administration offices, seminar rooms, a practice courtroom, reading rooms, lounges, and the law library.

Official dedication of the Women's building, (a three-story physical education plant for coeds and also a structure with many all University functions), will take place at 2 p.m. Sunday. Construction of the building climaxed a 40-year campaign for a replacement of the old Women's Gym, now temporarily housing the School of Journalism.



AN AERIAL VIEW of the construction model of how the Syracuse university campus will look when all new buildings, walks and landscaping have been completed. Model is from the office of Noreda A. Rotunno, University landscape architect.

Alumni Will Gather For Homecoming

Tomorrow when the crowds settle down in the stadium to watch the game, members of past classes will be present.

Colgate Weekend is always an unofficial homecoming weekend on the hill. Alumni House is sponsoring an open house today, where members of the various classes will gather and renew old acquaintances.

The Varsity club, which consists of all members of past Orange teams will hold its annual smoker tonight. Tomorrow the big event will be the game, after which Chancellor William P. Tolley '22 invites all the alums to the Soph hop.

Stadium Boasts Colorful History

The year is 1906. The 3,000 students of Syracuse university eagerly await a decision on which the prestige and influence of their school and football team will depend.

Will the administration approve the idea to construct a stadium?

ARCHITECTS AND builders babble about the terrible risk of erecting the first complete stadium in the United States.

"It will never be filled to capacity . . ."

"All those seats for a football game?"

These are a sample of the questions those concerned are dubiously asking.

But amidst all these skeptical people there is someone who understands the feeling of the students concerning the importance of a huge stadium; who does not feel the football team should continue to practice and play their games on the campus.

JOHN DUSTIN ARCHBOLD realizes that a stadium is an important part of a growing university. Finally, after much deliberation Archbold's proposal that the stadium be built in the natural basin in back of Steele hall is accepted. The philanthropist donates the funds.

The work is started. 200,000 cubic yards of earth are plowed; 1,000,000 feet of lumber are fitted together; 23,000 barrels of cement; 200,000 square feet of galvanized wire lath and 500,000 tons of steel are being used.

The year is now 1946 and Archbold stadium has been in constant use since completion. Now 5,000 permanent seats are being added to what people said in 190[illegible] "would never be filled to capacity."

A two-story glass-enclosed press box consisting of an upper deck with six radio booths, the Chancellor's box and two scouting booths is under construction.

The year is now 1953. Archbold stadium is ready for tomorrow's game.

Tolley to Discuss Academic Freedom

Chancellor William P. Tolley will amplify University policy on academic freedom in his annual report to the board of trustees today.

The semi-annual meeting of the board will be held in the Women's building. The boa[illegible] at its last May meeting, approved Dr. Tolley's statement on "academic freedom and tenure" in which he stated that academic freedom should not be interpreted as extending to "disciplined and obedient members of the Communist party."

Recognizing the right of congressional committees to investigate un-American activities in the field of education, he nevertheless warned that colleges "should be as jealous of our right to protect academic freedom as other agencies are to protect national security.

"We should be wary of delegating our responsibility for academic freedom to any other agency," he stated.

Members of the board will also hear reports from Hugh C. Gregg, vice-president and treasurer; Dean Frank P. Piskor, vice-president and dean of student services; Vice-Chancellor Finla G. Crawford and Comptroller Francis Wingate.

Three recently-elected trustees who are attending their first meeting, will be presented to the board. They are Joseph Lubin, George W. Lee and Robert W. Morey.

School of Music Schedules Recital

Miss Ruth Pinnell, voice instructor in the School of Music, will give a recital at 4 p.m., Sunday in Crouse auditorium. The recital, honoring the School of Speech and Drama, is one of a series sponsored by the University and the School of Music.

Emphasizing her program as light and sentimental, Miss Pinnell said it will include selections from Mozart; Poulenc, contemporary French; Joseph Marx and John Alden Carpenter. She will be accompanied by Kirk Ridge.

Juniors Sponsor Orange Breakfast

Bill Orange will breakfast at 9 a. m. tomorrow in Shaw to the music of Ray Caldiero and the singing of the Figi Four.

He will be served by blue and white clad waitresses representing each Hill sorority and will hear an invocation by Dean Charles Noble.

This is the second year Bill will be honored. The junior class, which is sponsoring the breakfast, is attempting to establish a tradition similar to the Strawberry breakfast held Spring weekend.

Tickets, priced at 75 cents, are still available, and can be purchased from Barbara Witter, Shaw dorm, 4-3121, ext. 12, or Andrew Merver, Delta Kappa Epsilon, 72-2789. All money must be turned in to Miss Witter by noon today as the Shaw dieticians must know the number of persons expected.

CONCERT PLANNED

Prof. Sidney Sukoenig will be the featured soloist and Prof. Murray Bernthal will conduct a special free concert of the Syracuse String Sinfonietta at 8:15 p. m. Sunday, Nov. 15 at the Most Holy Rosary church on Bellevue ave.

So Very, Very Big

AS HIGH AS the horse was this "Beat Colgate" poster by Sigma Phi Epsilon, publicizing the famous novel "The Naked and the Dead." Themes for posters usually show the works of different imaginations and talents.

Fantastic Imaginations Create Prize-winning Colgate Posters

The poster competition today under the sponsorship of Tau Sigma Delta, architecture and allied arts honorary fraternity, can trace its origin to the 1920's when large groups of students carried gaudy signs to the pep rallies and pajama parades before the Colgate game.

ONE OF the 'Colgate poster originals' is credited to Doc John Cunningham, a Syracuse supporter and pep rally speaker. He introduced poster displays on a large scale with a huge billboard at the pep rally staged in 1922.

The Poster boldly proclaimed "Welcome to the Kids from Chenango . . . We'll try to teach them the game." Following Doc Cunningham's lead, large posters began to appear all over the campus replacing to some extent the elaborate bunting that used to decorate the fronts of houses at Colgate time.

The popularity of these posters increased until 1932 when they were banned by the University because of the use of obscene language.

In 1934, ash cans appeared all over the campus with signs instructing the students to dump the remains of the Colgate team in them. In 1935, the Men's student senate supervised the contest and provided a ten dollar reward for the winners.

In 1945 Kappa Delta's "Put the Squeeze on Colgate" showing a Colgate player garbed in a girdle was awarded first prize.

Three winners cups were given the following year. One went to the best fraternity poster, another to the best in the sorority division and the third to the best independent.

SIGMA NU wrecked an army surplus glider on their front lawn and put the huge lettering "Kerrash" over them. Alpha Gamma Delta's miniature football field and IWA's Colgate player hanging over a goal post captured the other two cups.

The winners in 1947 were Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Delta Delta and Washington Arms. SAE's display was a huge Bill Orange pulling the Freedom train over Colgate.

In 1948 Omega cottage used the theme "Iron Curtain" as their winning theme. Kappa Sigma showed the team ready to carve into a Colgate turkey. Their title was "Starved for Victory." Pi Beta Phi used "Colgate Don't Make a Scent" as the topic to develop their poster.

In 1949, Sigma Alpha Epsilon went back to Egypt and had a huge poster which blared out, "Colgate Sphinx". Gamma Phi Beta and Peck I took the other two cups.

In 1951, Sigma Alpha Mu, Alpha Delta Pi, Winchell Hall and Chamberlain gained top honors. In 1952 Alpha Delta Pi won for the second straight year. Syracuse was shown kicking a Colgate player in the pants. The title was "Get the Point." Sigma Phi Epsilon theme, "Fools Rush In Where Angels Fear to Tread," showed the stadium dominated by a huge Syracuse player while small Colgate men rushed in between his legs. Independents Hall had the best poster for a large house and Genesee Cottage took the small house award.

'Student' Tolley Recalls Happy University Days

They were wild weekends when a Syracuse university undergraduate named Tolley celebrated the three days of near-hysteria which mark the Colgate invasion of Orangetown.

They were the days of trolleys in this upstate city and football fiends were the plague of the transit company at Colgate weekend time. Cables which normally linked the trolleys to overhead wires no longer linked anything, at least during the days of the Colgate clash.

CHANCELLOR WILLIAM P. Tolley, however, neglects to mention any personal participation in the cable-cutting capers which took place in the years following world war I.

Destruction-minded students often threw cans of kerosene into the pep rally bonfire, which occurs annually. Injury to enthusiasts was frequent, if not rampant, according to the former Hill student.

The Chancellor adds that steps are now taken to insure utmost safety to students during Colgate festivities. The Syracuse fire department closely covers each bonfire and adequate protection is supplied during other activities.

Chancellor Tolley recalls being snapped up as a last-minute substitute with a saxophone sextet to play at the Onondaga hotel. Knowing little more than nothing about the instrument, he told his fellow hornmen they'd better give him a quick lesson.

One of the other players pasted a diagram of the notes on the end of the sax to be played by Tolley and the erstwhile musician followed it. He recalls that the performance was not exactly a Carnegie hall presentation.

THE GAME ITSELF was not as colorful then as it is now, in the time of Dottie Grover, Alta Burg and Eunice Mellot. Cheerleaders lacked the female spark, and the marching band lacked precision.

Members of the band were "spirited—but not too well organized" as Chancellor Tolley puts it. In comparison, today's marchers are at least a 100 per cent improvement.

THE CANNON'S boom was not heard after Syracuse touchdowns. There was no ATO to pull the little monster onto the field. Coeds could not provide old stockings for ammunition. There was no nylon.

Band members followed a male drum major and there were no twirlers to compete with later fame garnered by Dottie.

Fraternity spirit was high and every Greek society, including sororities, welcomed back alumni with open houses on Colgate weekend.

Hotels and motels were not as numerous then and it was almost impossible for visitors to find rooms on the big weekend. Today many game attenders can drive to Syracuse for the game and return the same night without having to make hotel reservations.

AT THAT TIME, however, most of them were forced to stay overnight because of slower transportation conditions.

In his senior year, the team was coached by Chick Meehan and crushed Colgate 14-0 and also won games against Dartmouth, Brown and Maryland.

According to the chancellor, "One can never take a Colgate game for granted. Colgate always plays the best game of its season against Syracuse.

"Our boys will always have to play their best game to beat the men from Hamilton," he added.

Overall . . .

plaque signifying his election to the football Hall of Fame and the keg for the Colgate-Syracuse athletic supremacy will change hands.

ENTITLED "KRAZY Kollege Kickoff," the soph hop will have Ken Fredericks' Saltines furnishing the music.

The religious side of the weekend comes Sunday morning. Dean Noble will preach at the Chapel service at 10:50 a.m. The Rev. Gannon F. Ryan will celebrate Roman Catholic Masses at 9:30 and 11 a.m. in Crouse college auditorium.

The three million dollar Women's building will be officially dedicated at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Open house is planned for the ultra modern structure during the weekend.

On the Crouse concert program for Sunday is soprano Ruth Pinnell. Her recital starts at 4 p.m. in Crouse auditorium.

Kenton to Appear At War Memorial

The clean-shaven tones of six modern jazz artists and the full orchestra of Stan Kenton will fill the War Memorial auditorium with musical things bad and beautiful at 8:30 p.m. today, when the "Festival of Modern American Jazz arrives in Syracuse for a one-night stand.

Highlighting the two and a-half hours of progressive performance will be Stan Kenton and his group, blonde vocalist June Christy, the Erroll Garner trio, Dizzy Gillespie and his all-stars, Stan Getz's orchestra, Slim Gaillard's zany guitar and Candido, so-called "King of the Bongo Drum."

A Tribute To The SENIORS 1953

Seniors Play Finale

Orange livery will be worn for the last time at home by 14 Hill gridders during the annual Colgate encounter tomorrow. Nine of the seniors are first-stringers.

Leading the Orange attack for the last time against Colgate will be quarterback Pat Stark, who, in the twilight of his collegiate career, has suddenly emerged as one of the best passers in the country. Tomorrow will also be the last time that co-captain Bob Leberman will zig-zag over the Archbold turf on his way for important yards or a touchdown.

THE OTHER two backs in their last home game are Bruce Yancty, long a standout on pass defense and lately the regular right halfback, and sub halfback Bill Moll.

Completing his first and last year in Orange uniform will be center Ted Kukowski who will long be remembered as one of the best centers, particularly linebackers, in modern Orange history.

Playing for the last time along with "Cookie" on the Piety forward wall will be co-captain Bob Fleck, Sam Johnson, Les McClelland and Jim George . . . Their weight, experience, as well as ability, should be a big factor in tomorrow's game. Understudy tackle Tony Vergara, of the brother act, will also play for the last time at home tomorrow.

Completing the list of senior gridders are four ends: starter Herb Steigler and subs Neil Brenneman, Joe Dominik and the injured Dino Hadjis.

All 14 seniors, with the exception of Kukowski, have played four years of football on the Hill and hope to end their home collegiate careers in a blaze of glory.

Lalla's Sharp Passing Sparks Raider Attack

By MEL BAILEY
Colgate Maroon Sports Editor

Once again that unexplainable phenomenon called the "Hoodoo" spirit has hit the Colgate university campus. The surge in spirit has paralleled the recent showings of the Raider football team.

At the outset of the season the Maroon looked nothing like the first Hal Lahar-coached eleven which won six of nine games losing by only the scant margin of an overthrown fourth down end zone pass to Orange Bowl bound Syracuse. However, the tide has changed and with Dick Lalla running the club the Raiders have more than made up for their poor early season showing by evening the record at 3-3-1.

NOW IT'S THE psychological practice sessions in the afternoon and the freshmen guarding the local campus at night that have taken over from the coaches. As Lahar put it last year, "this one belongs to the boys" and not one of the ten seniors on the team has ever been on the winning side against a Syracuse eleven.

If there's anyone on the field this Saturday who could possibly take the game out of the physiological, it's Colgate's lanky, rifle-armed quarterback —Mr. Lalla. Colgate partisans are still looking for a T-quarterback who can fake and pass with the amazing deception and accuracy that has pin-pointed Lalla as the "best in the East". He's thrown for ten touchdowns and scored twice himself.

But lest we forget that Lalla is only one of eleven men on the field. There's Captain Gary Chandler, the guy who almost single-handedly turned the tide last November, who at this midweek writing is still on the doubtful list. The end turned halfback has been bothered all year by a bad knee.

There's Frank Nardulli, the sophomore sensation who has scored six touchdowns, there's fullback John Williams, a converted end but now the team's leading ground gainer. There's end Pete Popovich, a 60 minute player previously known for his defensive ability but who has caught four Lalla thrown touchdown passes in the last four games, and there's Don Tomanek, one of the finest linemen in the school's history.

All to this array the other starters—halfback Jack Spalik, end Mike Corbo, tackles Mike Morog and Jack Shaughnessy, guard Shelly Dow, and center Walt Nestvogel — the fine coaching staff, the past record against the Orange, the "Hoodoo" spirit, and you have the Colgate formula for pulling an upset.

An inspired Colgate Red Raider eleven put on one of its best performances of the season before succumbing 20-14 to the Orange Bowl bound Syracuse Orange in last year's 53rd renewal of the gridiron rivalry between the two schools.

Syracuse was forced to stave off a last-quarter rally by the Hamiltonians who scored one late TD and charged to the Orange seven-yard line before relinquishing the ball and losing the potential win-score.

ALL-EAST quarterback Pat Stark was held in check by the wrought-up visitors. The local star completed only two heaves out of 10 tries for a gain of only 19 yards. Syracuse's powerful running attack proved too much though as it chalked up 215 yards.

Despite his partial ineffectiveness, the Piety passer did make one of his aerials good for the initial score on a spectacular 13-yard play to Mark Hoffman.

Colgate in contrast relied primarily on their passing attack to move for yardage. Led by Jack Owens and Al Simmons, the Raiders threw the ball 12 times, completing seven for 197-yards and both scores.

Coach Hal Lahar's eleven first crashed the scoring column in the second stanza taking the lead, 7-6. Halfback Al Simmons took a handoff and then floated the ball into Capt. Gary Chandler's waiting arms, some 11-yards away. Ted Totten converted and the Laharmen had their only lead of the day.

SYRACUSE CAME back with a consistent 73-yard drive later in the period, capped by Stark's quarterback sneak for the marker. Jim George converted and the Saltines were ahead to stay.

All seemed in hand for the Pietymen in the third stanza when they scored their third and eventual winning touchdown. The Orange recovered a fumble on the 13 to set up the score and shortly after, Bill Wetzel plowed thru center for the final yard. George again converted for the Schwartzwalder's final point of the day.

Chandler was the hero on the final Raider TD also as he sped into the clear and raced 35 yards with a heave from Owens. Totten again racked up the PAT.

Soon after, Chandler was on the receiving end again as he and Al Simmons collaborated on a 55-yard aerial to advance to the seven. Syracuse's "strongest line in the East" bucked up at that spot though and held on as the Orange won their second in a row in the series.

ACTION LAST YEAR as end JOE SZOMBATHY observes a pass bouncing in the end zone. Pat Stark overthrew and SZOMBATHY could not get to the ball. Colgate again comes to Archbold with Dick Lalla and Pat Stark as competing passers.

More Sports?

For more sports turn to pages 14 and 15 of the tabloid. Stories about the rival coaches, Ben Schwartzwalder of Syracuse and Hal Lahar of Colgate, appear there.

Your Favorite?

What's your favorite Colgate weekend? We strolled up to Archbold gym and asked everyone in sight what their favorite one was. The answers:

LEW ANDREAS, Director of Athletics: You expect me to remember after 34 years I guess the best was when we beat them and I was on the team. It was back in 1920 and we won 14-7. We beat them the year before too, but I was only a scrub then.

JIM DECKER, Assistant Director of Athletics: The year we won for the first time in 14 years is the one I will always remember. We beat them 7-0. It was the wildest celebration I've seen in the City of Syracuse.

BEN SCHWARTZWALDER, Head coach: I guess my first year here was the one I will always remember. I know my worse one was the year they beat us 19-14. That was in 1950.

ARNIE BURDICK, Director of athletic publicity: In 1938 when I was a frosh on the Hill, I saw the Orange win 7-0. It was the first win against Colgate in 14 years. That night's celebration downtown and on campus was the greatest I have ever witnessed.

MILT HOWARD, Director of Intramurals: The one I recall best was back in 1942. There was at least a foot of snow on the tarpaulin and all the athletes came out in the morning to shovel the snow. Fur coats and ski suits were the uniform of the day.

CAROL PALUMB, football office secretary: My favorite game was the 9-0 one, two years ago. The game was very exciting and a guy named John Donati played a whale of a game at fullback.

BILL BELL, backfield coach: Any Colgate weekend game we win is my favorite. I've been here only three years but I know how important a victory against Colgate is to everyone.

LOIS BARNES, football office secretary: I think last year's game was my favorite because it was such a crucial game. It decided whether or not we would go to the Orange Bowl.

TED DAILEY, line coach: In 1950, when Syracuse university got a new coaching staff. We were the underdogs against Colgate but we beat them 35-7.

BILL ESCHENFELDER, assistant coach: I don't get to see very many of them as I'm usually out scouting. Our first year here, though, I saw the game. That was in 1950. We were underdogs but we handled them easily, 35-7.

ROY SIMMONS, assistant coach: After watching 34 Colgate games they all seem the same. Nothing can be taken for granted. In 1923 we were unbeaten, untied and unscored on and Colgate came up with a team that couldn't beat Central high, down here. They beat us 35-0. In 1912 we did the same to them. You just can't tell.

Traditional Rivalry Marked by Upsets

Orange Seeks Third Straight in Series

One of the nation's finest collegiate rivalries gets its annual outing tomorrow when the Maroon of Colgate and the Orange of Syracuse tangle in Archbold stadium.

About 35,000 fans are expected for the 54th chapter of Upstate New York's most historic football series which Colgate leads, 31-17.

The charges of Ben Schwartzwalder are favorites to record their third straight victory over the boys from Chenango valley. But, as any veteran of the gridiron wars will testify, you just can't figure these traditional games.

Syracuse has been able to score successive victories only three times since the series's inception in 1891. And only once has the Orange broken the third-year jinx, that in the midst of a five-game streak in the world war one era.

The Raiders, however, have strung together streaks of six and 10 victories in compiling their series' edge.

But the real story of this fiery rivalry, which has blazed uninterrupted since 1919 can be told in one word: upset.

Take, for example, Colgate's 19-6 victory in 1925, the only loss the Orange suffered that season. And then consider the Raiders' victories of 1931 and '35, again preventing undefeated seasons on Piety Hill.

Finally, there's the classic of 1923.

Mighty Bill Orange, proud possessor of an eight-game win skein, confidently awaited the "battle" with a mediocre Colgate eleven. After all, the boys from Mt. Olympus were not only unbeaten and untied, but unscored-upon as well. They were rated among the nation's powerhouses. A scout waited in the stands, a Rose Bowl bid in hand. Then the opening whistle and a thousand Orange dreams were shattered under the impact of Colgate's 16-7 victory.

Frosh Game

The Syracuse university freshman football team will meet the Colgate frosh at 2 p.m. today on Hendricks field. It will be the final game for the Piety Tangerines who have a 1-1 record.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

A Syracuse alumnus, bowed with the weight of over 70 years, tomorrow will walk slowly onto the field upon which he first trod over a half-century ago. The spring in his step won't be as light as it was in 1901, but Frank J. O'Neill's heart will be full of youth for this is his day.

Officially, the occasion is the presentation of football's Hall of Fame Award to the former Orange and Colgate coach. Unofficially, the ceremony will mark a small part of the tribute which Central New York fans wish to pay the man who was responsible for first placing the Syracuse football star high in the sky of national prominence.

Looking at the cold statistics, the record of his teams appears unbelievable. In his eight years of coaching at Syracuse and three at Colgate, he never had a team lose more games than it won.

His overall record at both Syracuse and Colgate was 70 wins, 27 losses and 8 ties for a .722 percentage. A friendly man, O'Neill's demand for perfection from his players more than paid off.

After graduating from Williams college in 1902, Buck pulled what could be considered the switch of the century as he graduated from Syracuse law school in '04 while acting as head coach at Colgate during the same period of time!

Many still remember with pride Buck's immortal teams of 1915 and 1919 at Syracuse which hauled the Orange out of the small college class. The record of the '15 club is especially impressive. Having only one loss and two ties in 12 games, the Orange roared through the East and Midwest like an unholy breeze.

A 40-yard field goal by Princeton pinned the only loss onto the O'Neillmen, with only 16 points and 16 first downs being registered against Syracuse the entire season. The highlight of a year of highlights was the 38-0 slaughter of a Colgate team who had come into the game unbeaten and unscored upon.

The perfectly-coached Orangemen rolled up 487 yards to the Raiders' 105. Incidentally, the game marked the apex of the playing career of another Orange coaching great, Chick Meehan.

Buck O'Neill's 1919 club also approached greatness by winning eight out of 11 against some of the country's top opposition. The game which made football history at Syracuse was the 24-3 upset win over Pop Warner's all-American studded Pittsburgh team.

O'Neill probably gave one of the shortest pre-game pep talks on record as recorded by E. H. Mackenzie, '21, who was manager of the team. "Boys, you are as good a football team as Pitt," urged O'Neill, "And I think personally you are better. Go out there and the first time you get the ball—show them!" They did.

Not only did Buck coach the Orange, but as many remember he was a successful mentor for Williams, Columbia and Colgate. While in Hamilton, he fashioned one of the earliest of the many great Raider teams in 1904.

Using the same coaching formula which in subsequent years proved so sound, O'Neill's club compiled a 8-win, 1-loss, 1-tie record. The tie, incidentally, was with Syracuse, 11-11.

It was probably while he was at Colgate that O'Neill nurtured a play which is now fundamental football for all teams. An innovation in the old days of power play, the then new idea earned Buck the title, "Father of Off-Tackle Play."

That briefly, is the Frank J. O'Neill story. Always exciting, always interesting and almost always successful. Today, they're honoring him as one of the early greats of football.

But when Buck steps onto the field tomorrow, it will not be himself alone who is honored but the whole glorious Syracuse-Colgate tradition of which he has been so integral a part. That's the only way Buck would want it.

IC4A's Next For Harriers

Piety Hill Runners Among Favorites

Coach Bob Grieve's cross-country team faces its toughest task of the season as it prepares for the IC4A run to be held on the five mile Van Cortlandt park course in New York this Monday.

With some of the better teams in Eastern Collegiate cross-country circles entered in the race, Syracuse must be in top form to cop team honors.

Since their dual meet loss to Cornell, the Piety harriers have shown steady improvement. Their victory against Iona and Fordham last weekend, was probably the best team effort of the season. Syracuse captured eight of the first nine places in this triangular meet.

Ray Osterhout, captain of the Orange team, is given a good chance to come away with individual honors in Monday's race. Osterhout is undefeated this season. He finished second to Charlie Capazolli of Georgetown in last year's IC4A's and Capazolli his since graduated.

Off their past performances, Gene Parker, Steve Armstrong, Ed Alger and Jim George should be among the early finishers in the big Eastern meet.

OTHER POSSIBLE Piety runners will probably include: Frank Calzi, and either Tom Coulter or Don Fryer. Only seven men can be entered by each school.

The IC4A varsity run is scheduled for Monday afternoon. A freshman race will be held in the morning.

Although Syracuse will not enter a frosh team, Bob Milner will represent the Orange in this race. He finished first in a freshman triangular meet against Cornell and Colgate last Friday.

The Hill runners will leave for New York on Sunday. It will be the third trip to the Big City for Grieve's team.

Pistons Down Nats In NBA, 78-74

Fort Wayne's surprising Zollner Pistons edged the Syracuse Nationals 78-74, last night on the victor's home court. The win was Fort Wayne's fifth of the year against two setbacks.

Syracuse plays Boston tomorrow night at the Hub city before returning Sunday night to the War Memorial to tangle with Milwaukee.

O'Neill to Receive Honor at Halftime

Ex Coach Appointed To Grid Hall of Fame

A man who has spent many of his years around Syracuse and Colgate universities will be the center of attraction at halftime tomorrow in the 54th renewal of the gridiron rivalry between the two schools. Frank J. (Buck) O'Neill is the man who will receive one of his greatest honors tomorrow.

O'Neill former head coach for both the Orange and the Red Raiders will be presented with a plaque symbolic of his recent election to the National Football Hall of Fame at New Brunswick, N. J.

THE SEPTAGENARIAN coached for eight years between 1906 and 1919 leading his charges to an impressive overall record of 52 victories, 19 defeats and six ties. He also spent his early days as football mentor at Colgate, Columbia and Williams.

The former coach and star athlete will receive his award from Syracuse's Director of Athletics, Lew Andreas, who formerly played end on an O'Neill coached grid squad. There will also be two duplicate plaques, one to be placed in the Syracuse Trophy Room and another to be hung in the Hall of Fame headquarters which will be constructed at Rutgers university.

Success for O'Neill was won after a hard fight and has been coined by some as an "Horatio Alger" story. Born in Manlius, the future football great entered St. John's Military School (now Manlius School) where he participated in and coached football.

After prep school, he matriculated at Williams College where he was elected captain of both the track and football squads. He graduated from Williams in 1902 and then began his first contact with Piety Hill, receiving a law degree in 1904.

Football . . .

far has averaged 6.2 yards per carry.

In Nardulli and Spalik, the men from Hamilton have two halfbacks who are capable of staying in any competition. It was Spalik who starred in last year's game after being a replacement for the first part of 1952.

The Raiders will definitely be weaker in the backfield due to the absence of Gary Chandler, Colgate's star halfback and captain, who aggravated an old injury in the Rutgers game two weeks ago.

Two starting guards, Tom Miller and Dick Woolbert are also expected to see only limited action, because of ailments. Making up for them, however, is a Colgate line which is the equal of the Orange in weight.

With Walter Nestvogel acting as anchor man in the center of the line, the Raider forward wall had its most shining hour when it held a vaunted Yale team to a single touchdown to gain a 7-7 moral victory.

Opposing them is the Syracuse bulwark led by all-American possibilities Bob Fleck at guard and Ted Kukowski at center. Fleck was named last week as one of the Orangemen's "unsung heroes" by the Eastern College conference.

Opposite them will be top-notch tackler Pete Popvich and speedy Mike Corbo. It was Popovich who Orange fans may remember turned in a sparkling job at tackle in last year's classic.

The Orange will be out to upend the Raiders for the third straight time, a feat which hasn't been done since the five consecutive victories between 1917-22.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

It happens once every four years, but brother that final Colgate game is just about the worst and happiest moments in a guy's college career. He sits back in Archbold stadium and his head begins to move in circles. Sure there is a ball game going on but he's really not that interested in it. The "poor little mixed up college kid" is beginning to grow up. At least that's what is supposed to happen.

So you sit back and begin to reminisce. What has made these four Colgate weekends click in your memories? On the field they're ready to kick off but that's minor compared to your problems. You're going out in the world next year with a big college diploma ready to feast or famine. But you may get a break because your Uncle, Sam that is, is going to give you a steady position for awhile. Nice guy, huh!

But then those memories begin to take forms in your mind. Remember the first weekend at Syracuse. The posters, Miss Grover and her magic batons, the big attack on Skytop which we waited for all night and never came off, the ride to Hamilton and back. They were new and different experiences for a young frosh Then came the ballgame and it was a beauty.

You can see Bernie Custis back there set to pass or run in his majestic manner. Uncle Ben was just beginning to build then but there still isn't anyone around like Custis. The Orange trailed by two touchdowns with about three minutes to go. Bernie got the Hillmen going with one score and then Syracuse picked up a Raider fumble with less than a minute to go. On the next play he hit Ed Yaple on the five yard line but the pass was dropped. And so did the ballgame and your heart.

Then the years began to move by quickly. Being on campus was much different then up in "God's country" by Skytop. The soph and junior sessions flew by. And on each Colgate weekend you could see the change affecting you. The posters were the same, the batons Miss Grover twirled were still there, the men from Hamilton were still giving free brushcuts, but the football team was changing. And so were you.

Names like Stark, Fleck, Yancey, McClelland were making headlines. And Colgate knew it too. Because the Orange were building towards the top of Eastern football. They beat the Raiders for the past two years which is quite miraculous considering the rivalry between the two schools. But that's Colgate weekend for you. The daffiest, screwiest, greatest time of your college career. That's probably why we are all sulking today.

But there is another side of Colgate you admire. And that's the true Colgate side. You look over there at 1,300 lads from Hamilton and admire the enthusiasm and spirit they possess in outshouting, screaming and doing everything possible to quiet the rest of the stadium. And brother they sure do.

So there they are; three and one makes four. Four Colgates gone before it even started. The games almost over now. But those memories. They'll never be forgotten. You see, it's something that no other person but a college senior can feel or understand.

About the game itself. Well, we really didn't have to worry about it. The Orange romped to victory. And tonight the sun will set a flaming orange no matter what the weatherman predicts. Because this is Colgate Weekend.

Wirth Declared Ineligible; Booters' Chances Dwindle

The loss of Siggy Wirth, Syracuse's candidate for All-American honors through ineligibility struck a severe blow to the chances of Coach Andy Coccari's charges in today's encounter with RPI at Hendricks field at 2:30 p.m.

According to ECAA rules, no player can play for a team other than his college, either amateur or professional until his graduation.

THE MATTER came to the attention of Orange athletic officials in a letter received from the athletic director of RPI late yesterday afternoon. Reportedly the Engineer director saw the Orange forward play for Utica while checking to see if two of his players were there.

Today's match figured to be the roughest of the season for the Pietymen even with Wirth in there. The Engineers combine scientific soccer with aggressiveness. Another opponent who played the same type of ball as RPI was Cornell. That game ended in a 1-1 double overtime tie.

Coccari will go with the same line-up that started against Colgate last Friday. For the first time in a long while, however, the booters will be at full strength for the game. Offensive star Duncan Robb, who missed last week's game on account of a sprained ankle, will be available for spot duty if needed.

Gunnar Wirth will try and make up for his brother's loss on the offense with some more stellar net-minding. Wirth, newcomer to the goal position has racked up two successive shutouts over Union and Colgate.

AXEL SPOTS: Syracuse will be seeking its fourth win in intercollegiate competition this afternoon. Their previous wins have been over Union, Colgate, Brockport State.

Veteran Pugilists To Greet Simmons When Boxing Starts

Two eastern champs, two runner-ups and a former champ will be among the pugilists to greet Coach Roy Simmons when the veteran boxing coach calls the first practice on Monday, Nov. 30.

An eight meet schedule has been arranged for the mittmen including the Easterns and the NCAA's at Chicago. There is also a possibility that some of the fighters will attend the Dixie Tournament and the Mountain Tournament later in the year.

LEADING THE returning stars from last year will be defending champs John Granger and Vince Rigolosi. Art Nelson who won the 132-pound crown two years ago will also be back hoping to elude any weight problems like those which disqualified him in the championships last year.

Two veterans who went all the way to the finals before elimination will also be swinging away again in the persons of Larry O'Sullivan and Bruce Yancey.

Of Colgate Weekend

This page is in tribute to the men and women who have worked and worried, missed classes and left homework undone, to prepare for one of the biggest and best of Colgate weekends.

For every major event concerning the weekend there is a chairman or co-chairmen who have their fingers crossed that things will turn out "all right".

OVERALL CO-CHAIRMEN

Gilbert Katz, '55, drama major, and a member of Tau Delta Phi fraternity. Hailing from the Bronx, Gil is publicity director of Boar's Head and WAER.

Marven Wallen, '55, pre-med and zoology major. Home town is Wildwood, N. J. and he is a member of Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity. Legislative commissioner of MSG, Marv is also a member of Alpha Phi Omega, service honorary, Orange Key and Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-med honorary. Last year he was active on committees for Winter weekend and the campus blood drive.

COLGATE EDITION EDITOR

Flip Sirota, '54, American Studies and Journalism. A member of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalism honorary, she comes from the Bronx. Editor of the women's page, Coeds' Corner, and an associate editor on the Daily Orange, she is a member of the Mademoiselle magazine college board and vice-president of her house.

COLGATE EDITION ASSISTANT EDITOR

Ed Hardy, '55, American Studies and Journalism. A junior editor on the Daily Orange he covers men's student government, politics and National Student's assoc. for the paper. Hailing from Pelham Manor, N. Y., Ed is a member of Orange Key and puublicity chairman of Colgate weekend for them. He is also publicity co-chairman for the St. Thomas More chapel.

COLGATE EDITION SPORTS EDITOR

Lee Kiklier, '55, Business Administration and a junior sports editor on the Daily Orange. Hailing from Kingston, Penna., he attended Scranton high school. Last year he was intramurals director for the DO and this year covers football and directed Fan's Forum, which showed sports pictures to the students.

CO-CHAIRMEN BILL ORANGE BREAKFAST

Patricia Parker, '55, Home Economic and Interior Design major, and a pledge of Alpha Gamma Delta.. A transfer last year from Miami university, Oxford, Ohio, her home city is Washington, D. C. Patricia is a member of the Art Student's assoc., a representative to the Junior Assembly and secretary of her house.

Ann McKaig, '55, major in Home Economics and Merchandising and a member of Sigma Kappa sorority. A resident of Binghamton, she is in Campus Chest and is a junior assembly rep.

CO-CHAIRMEN SOPH HOP

Merle Sue Bank, '56, president of Shaw Section 4C and member of Alpha Epsilon Phi. Hailing from Baltimore, Md. she is active in the women's student government assembly and on the Goon Squad.

Joseph LeDoux, '56, member of Zeta Psi. Joe lists the Goon squad, Boar's Head, Soph Senate and WAER among his activities. He's from Camillus.

PRESIDENT ORANGE KEY

Darwin Bolden, '55, American Studies. From Niagara Falls, he is vice-chairman of National Students association, on the student court and in charge of tapping new Orange Key members tomorrow night.

WEEKEND CLEANUP HEAD

George Kepner, '54, General Forestry. Listing West Sand Lake as his hometown, George is special projects commissioner for men's student government and active at St. Thomas More chapel. He's vice president of Scabbard and Blade and Alpha Tau Omega president.

CO-CHAIRMAN PEP RALLY

Lois Cohn, '55, Liberal Arts. A member of Alpha Epsilon Phi, this Rochesterite is in Traditions commission, Lambda Sigma Sigma, on the junior exec council and a junior guide.

Samuel Shawhan, '55, Business Administration. President of the junior class, Sam hails from Lexington, Ky., is in Orange Key, Traditions commission, and a member of Sigma Chi.

CHAIRMAN PLACARD CHEERING

Irene Purdy, '54, Home Economics, Interior Design. From Canandaigua, she is a member of Theta Phi Alpha and a senior guide, secretary of Traditions commission, co-chairman of Spring weekend and president of Eta Pi Upsilon.

CO-CHAIRMEN MUM SALES

Katherine Horan, '54, Home Economics. Senior class representative in Vogue's Prix de Paris contest, Kay comes from Elizabeth, N. J. Her activities include junior assembly, spring weekend, senior assembly and St. Thomas More. She is in Theta Phi Alpha.

A College Weekend and How It Began...

By FLIP SIROTA

Once upon a time, back in 1891 to be exact, on what used to be the old oval behind HL, two football teams were matched against each other for the first time.

There was nothing at this initial game to evidence that it would become an annual event, gathering traditions and growing enthusiasm with the passing of each decade.

From just a football game between the maroon team from Hamilton and the Syracuse boys, a game no more important than any other on the year's schedule, evolved a classic example of that peculiar phenomenon described as traditional college rivalry.

Maybe there was some unexplainable gravitational attraction that drew the Colgate and Syracuse teams together; then discovering a mutual repulsion blew them apart. At any rate, the two schools are destined to be from here to eternity—at odds.

It took about ten years for the rivalry spirit to become infused in the student body. By 1903 the annual clash was looked forward to expectantly. The "knights of the gridiron" were all set to sling the mud around, and preferably at, the Colgate team.

By the evidence of student spirit back in those by-gone days it can be seen that a big college weekend, as this impending one in 1953, was in the making. The night prior to the game a mass student meeting was scheduled to spark enthusiasm and rehearse songs and cheers.

One custom popular at the start of the century was the annual Salt Rush. This was a traditional campus rivalry between the Sophomores and the lowly, and in those days they were the lowly Frosh.

At the top of the hill where Crouse college now stands the mighty second-yearmen erected their battle station and hoisted up their flag. It was the sorry task of the Freshmen to storm the hill, at the risk of being showered with salt, and capture the post.

This custom, as records show, was peculiarly Syracuse's". The roughness evidenced may be likened to the recently banned water fight or scalping and undoubtedly when the Salt Rush was stopped a few years later it was for similar reasons.

Enthusiasm for the annual football game was fermenting. Pep songs were popular. A typical one went like this:

Oh, we're jolly Syracuse boys
You can tell us by our noise
For we're never in for anything that's "tame".
Come join us in our song
Come help the thing along
For we'll show you that we're always in the game.

The great day dawned for the game on the Old Oval in 1903 and the Syracuse student body turned out sporting orange ribbons and the upperclassmen carried orange canes.

All the enthusiasm was to no avail for Colgate won. But, according to alumni who were there, that sad event—considered by many the greatest tragedy of the year—was brought about by a muddy field, superior weight on the Colgate team, and questionable decisions. Unbiased reports, all.

About this time in this growth of college rivalry the football team began to hold secret practices before the Colgate game. The coach would issue intriguing statements and student hopes would soar. But, though earlier that year Syracuse had beaten Manhattan college 144-0 when it came to Colgate—the victor of the year before again took home the spoils.

In 1907 construction of Archbold stadium began. At that time it was the only ampitheater of its kind owned by a university.

The varsity team was just short of a ton in compiled weights 1,996. And about this time the idea that was to someday materialize

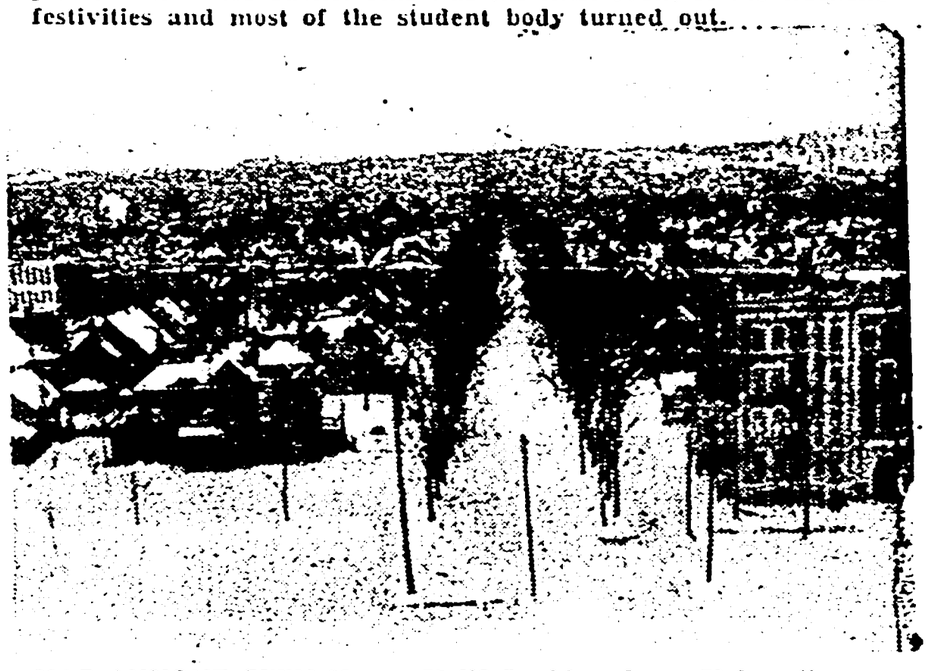
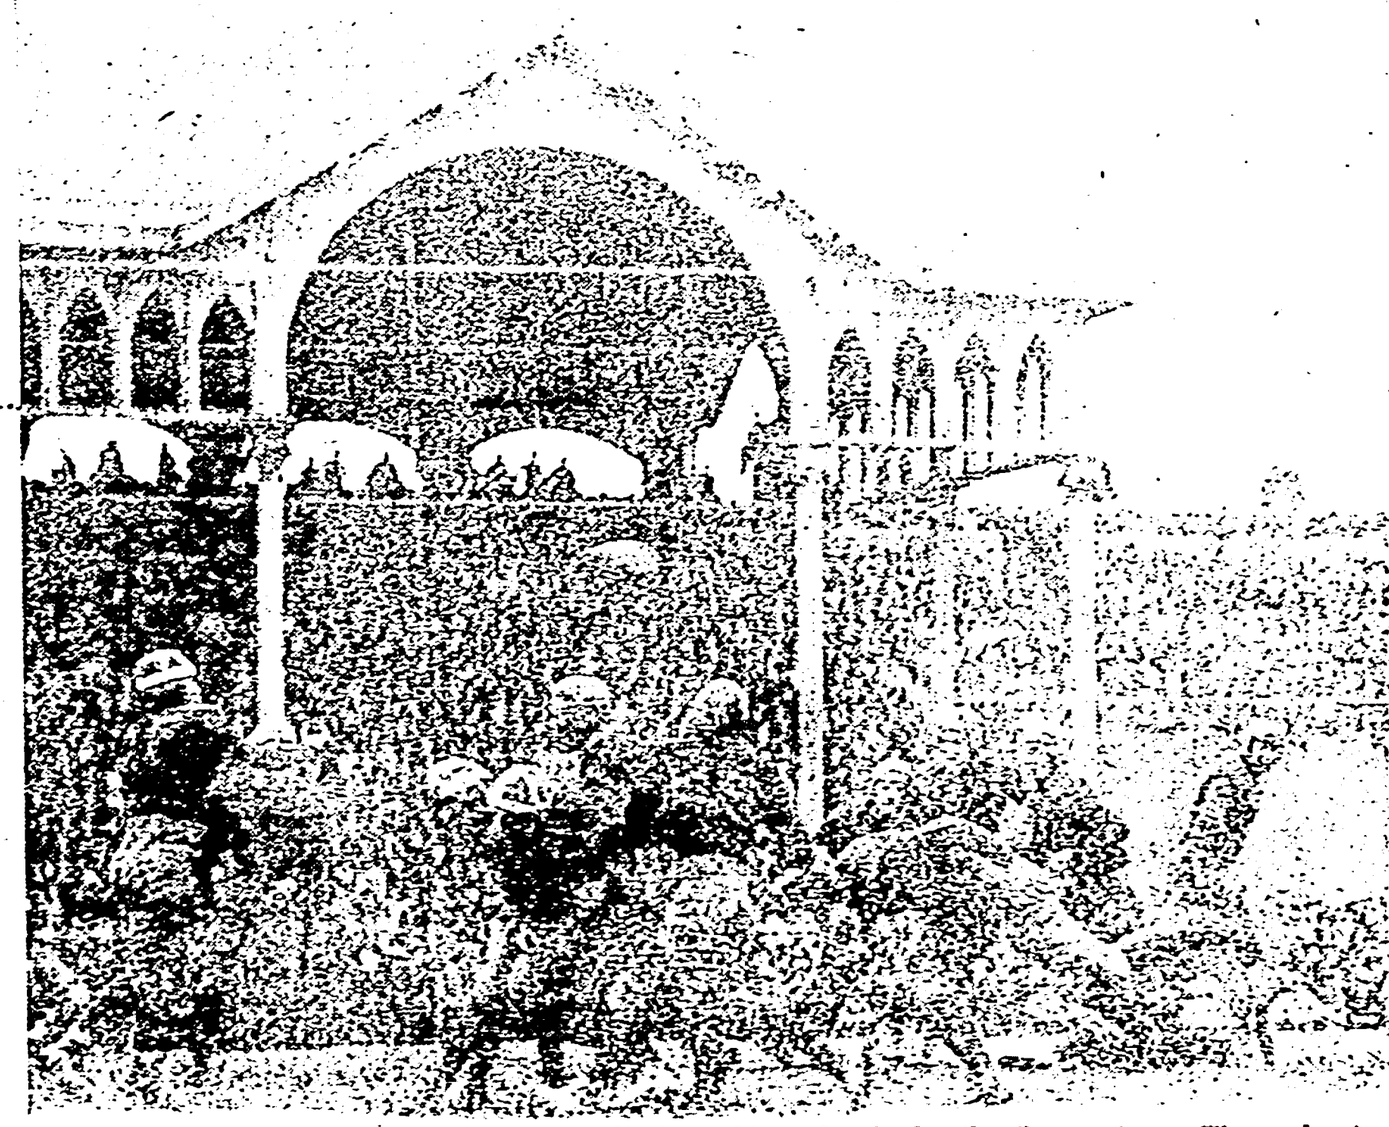
PRETTY COEDS OF the early years of the century posing in front of their house before leaving for the football game which was then played in October.

"PASS THE MUSTARD please." The scene is a Sunday afternoon picnic near Yates Castle. This was the final event of the weekend festivities and most of the student body turned out.



HAS ANYONE SEEN Haven Hall? Looking down University ave. from HL there is an empty lot where Haven stands today. Winchell Hall is across the street.

STUDYING IN THEIR room before classes are two Winchell Hall coeds. Note the knee-length stockings held up by round garters and the "serviceable" shoes.



A CLEVERLY MASKED forward pass results in a 30-yard gain for the Orange team. The early stadium had an ugly canopy where the press box stands today and the Chancellor's box was under the huge structure.

CHARGE 'EM MEN, rang the cry of the Frosh team leader inspiring his boys to capture Crouse hill and the Soph fortress. Only difficulty was the flour ammunition used by the fort defenders to shower on the desperate chargers.

How It Grew...

READYING THE GOAL posts for the big game the workmen try to plant them tightly into the earth so they won't be stolen by Colgate men.

into the scalping tradition was born, in the form of a rather quaint song:

Onondaga, Son of Vale,
Tog on your moleskins
Jog on, keep to the trail
Hot pace, pale face
No heart, look pale
Pow-wow and scalps tonight.

This the Saltine students sang as a tom-tom chant.

In 1908 Syracuse was meeting Colgate for the 13 time, and they had lost so many times it seemed as if the Hoodoo jinx was real. Undaunted, the Syracuse students proclaimed that "It will be the 13th game and the 13th day of the month that the game was to be played and it takes 13 letters to spell D-E-F-E-A-T C-O-L-G-A-T-E. Everyone believed in the omen but the enemy. They won.

In 1910 the Crouse chimes rang out "Bill Orange". But the Colgate jinx seemed to be still going strong for they won again.

In 1914 there was call for rejoicing. Did Colgate win? No. Well then, did Syracuse win? No. Well then, what? They played to a tie.

Pep rallies and parades downtown were now considered the popular way to spend the night before the game. One Friday night the sun set orange in the western sky and thus another tradition connected with Colgate weekend was born.

Weekend dates were 'real cheap' in the days just before the first world war. A restaurant on S. Salina served roast prime ribs of beef for 30c, turkey and sirloin roast for 20c.

1914 was a great game for the Orange won 38-0. Perhaps this victory came about because of the new tradition of throwing a golden horseshoe over the goal post before the game.

Mum sales were begun about this time too. The stadium looked a riot of color with every coed sporting a big flower on her coat.

Frosh were required to come to pep rallies wearing their night shirts and carrying lanterns. No pajamas were allowed. Snake dances downtown provided the local citizenry with lots of amusement and ROTC of yesterday was called the Student Army Training Corp. Olive green uniforms were common campus sights.

Burning of an effigy of a Colgate football player was now part of festivities surrounding the weekend events. When the games were over it became a custom to ring the chimes in Crouse if Syracuse won or to ring cow bells if Colgate triumphed.

It was considered prim and proper for all football players of both teams to attend a tea dance the Sunday after the game.

A constant annoyance to the weekend festivities was the rotten weather that seemed to remain over Syracuse just at this time. In 1925, for example, there were no clear days from Nov. 22 to Feb. 9.

Toward the close of the roaring twenties one of the foremost activities connected with Colgate weekend began. Various living centers on campus began making huge posters which carried the uniform theme of what a beating Colgate would take.

One little poster scene had an outside prop. An ROTC cannon was leveled at a maroon-jersied figure whose extremities and head

were detached from its body. The accompanying sign proclaimed "Colgate, Shot to Hell."

1931 saw the revival of the Saltine warrior that had been gathering dust tradition-wise for a good many years. A charming ditty was popular then and could hold true today:

'Twas the night before Colgate
And all through the house
Not a sound could be heard
Not even a mouse
Every man and his pals
Had gone on a souse.

By 1933 the weather was becoming a serious business. Since 1891 when Syracuse began to meet Colgate on the gridiron only three games had been played in clear weather. In 1933 it took days for students and workmen to shovel the stadium clear from snow in time for the game. Hot soapstones, pillows and fur coats were all needed to survive the weather.

Tau Sigma Delta, architectural honorary began to sponsor the "Beat Colgate" poster contest in 1941. And Alpha Phi Omega, service honorary continued their good record of campus clean-up before Sunday chapel.

The next year the now-popular Vic dances were instituted. The marching band was performing tricky formations during the half-time ceremonies at the Colgate-Syracuse game.

Though the football game was discontinued during the years of the second world war the Soph Hop continued. About 1944 the tradition of selecting a queen to reign over the weekend was begun when the most attractive girl at the Soph dance was named the "Gem of the Treasure Chest".

The Alpha Chi Rho bell, used to sound the warning when Red Raiders were spotted on the campus, was now brought onto the football field and rung after every important play. A few years later the cannon of Alpha Tau Omega was brought on field to be shot off after every touchdown.

The Brotherhood service on Friday night was started in 1948 with Dr. Ralph Sockman always being the guest speaker.

College loyalty is a peculiar characteristic. It is not a respect for buildings on campus, favorite profs, or extra-curricular activities, important as these things may be.

College loyalty is an undefinable feeling that rises in the heart of every student and every returning alum when he or she looks forward to or recalls those traditions and rituals which add up to a big college event—a college weekend.

Colgate weekend down through the years has grown and grown and is inextricably a part of college days. It is one of the reasons why a senior feels nostalgic at their last Colgate spree; why unknowing Frosh look forward expectantly and why alums get that longing to return.

From 1891 to 1953 and forward to eternity there will always be a weekend in November when the Syracuse air will reverberate with joyous and hopeful crys of "Beat Colgate".

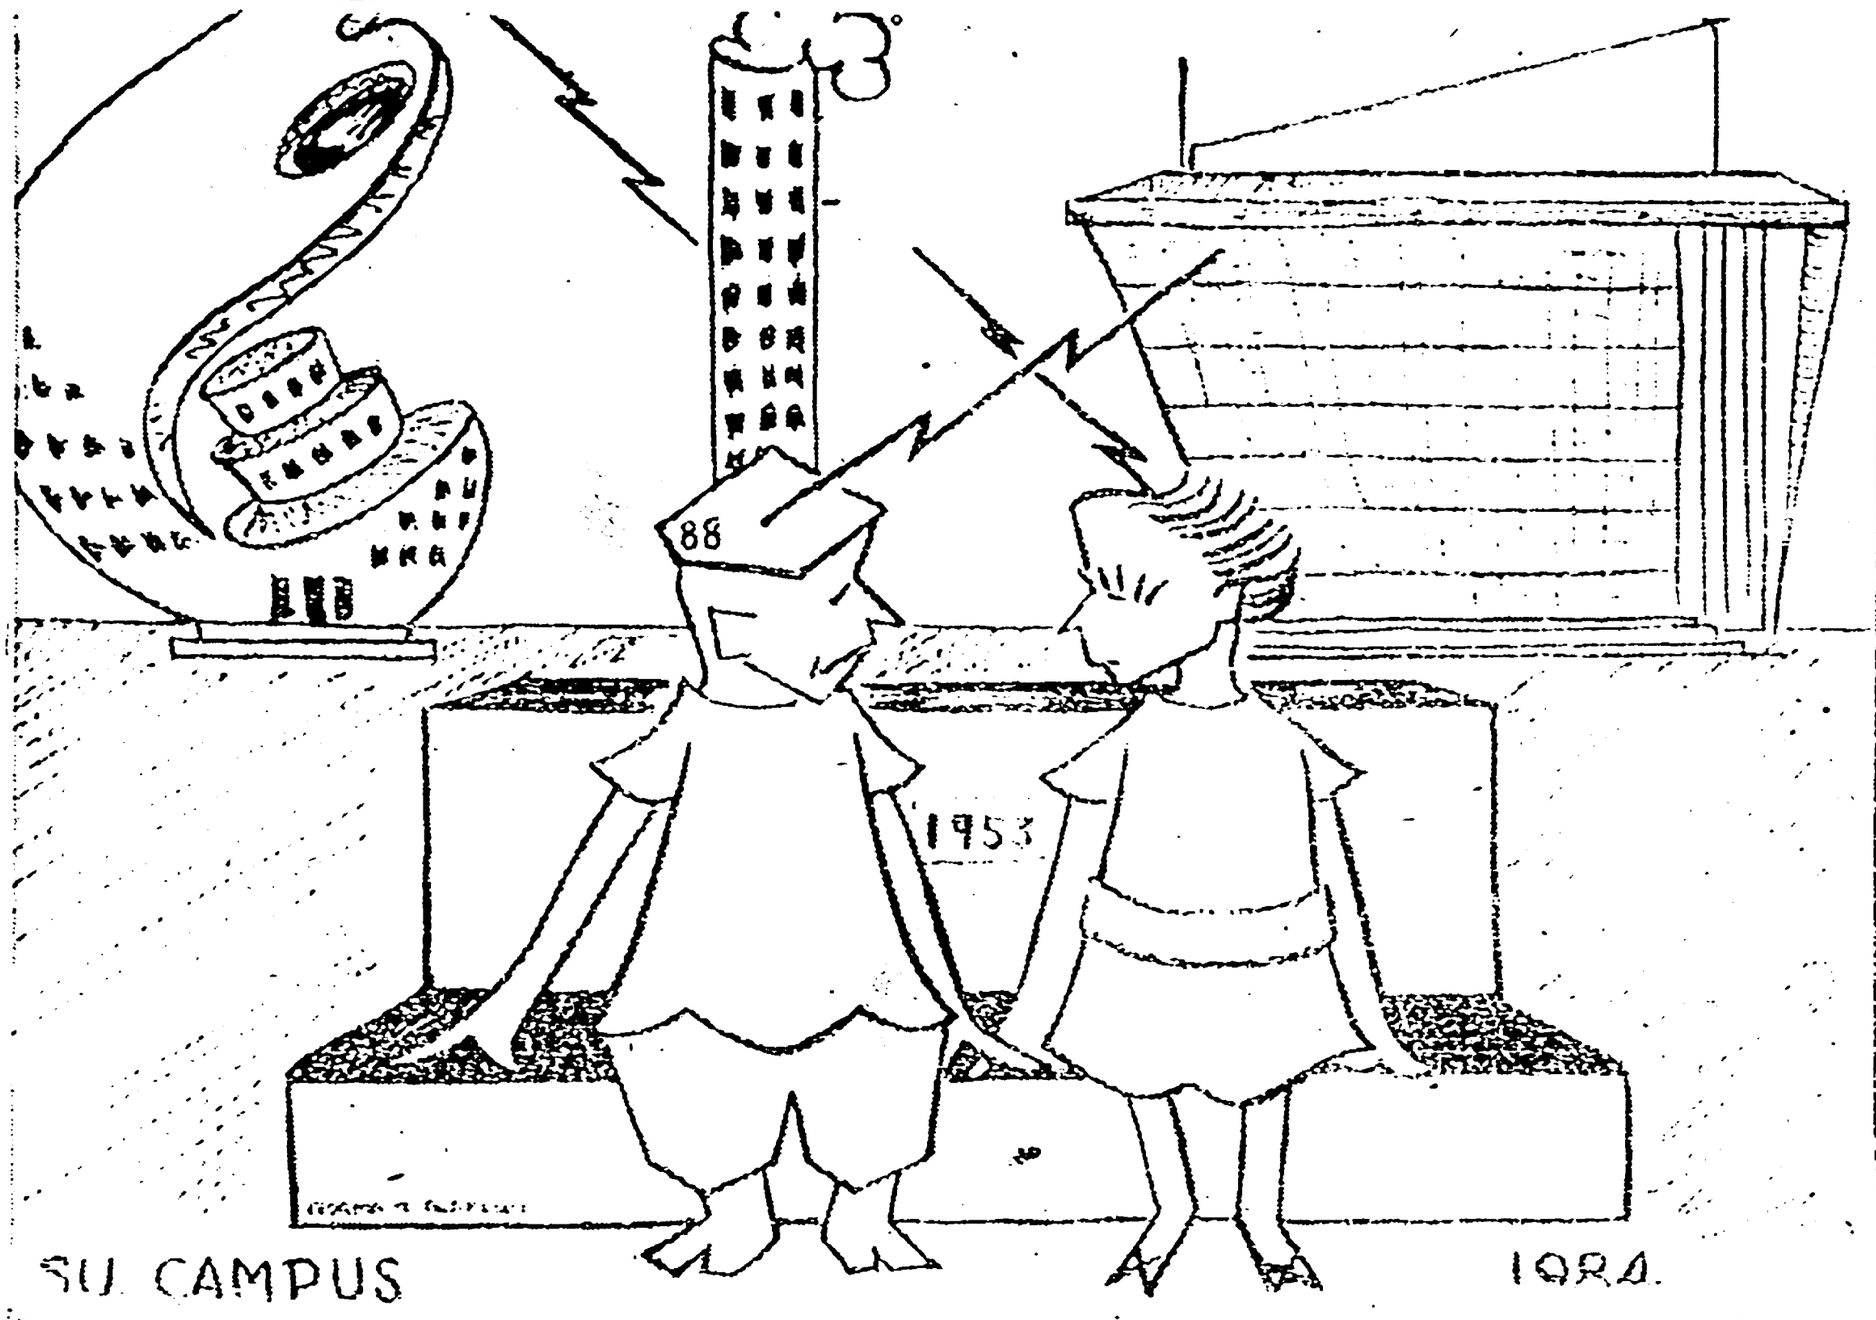
LOOK KIDS, NO hair on this unlucky victim of a Colgate scalping spree. The bald boy doesn't look too happy over the prospect of wearing a hat indoors for weeks to come but his companions are obviously enjoying his plight.

NASTY WEATHER HAS always been in attendance at Orange-Maroon games. Since the football rivalry started in 1891 about ten games have been played in clear weather.

"SHOULD WE PILE it higher?" seems to be the question these wood-piling experts are asking. Syracusan on top of the heap surveys his hard-working team as they get ready for one of the oldest of the weekend traditions, a pre-game pep rally.

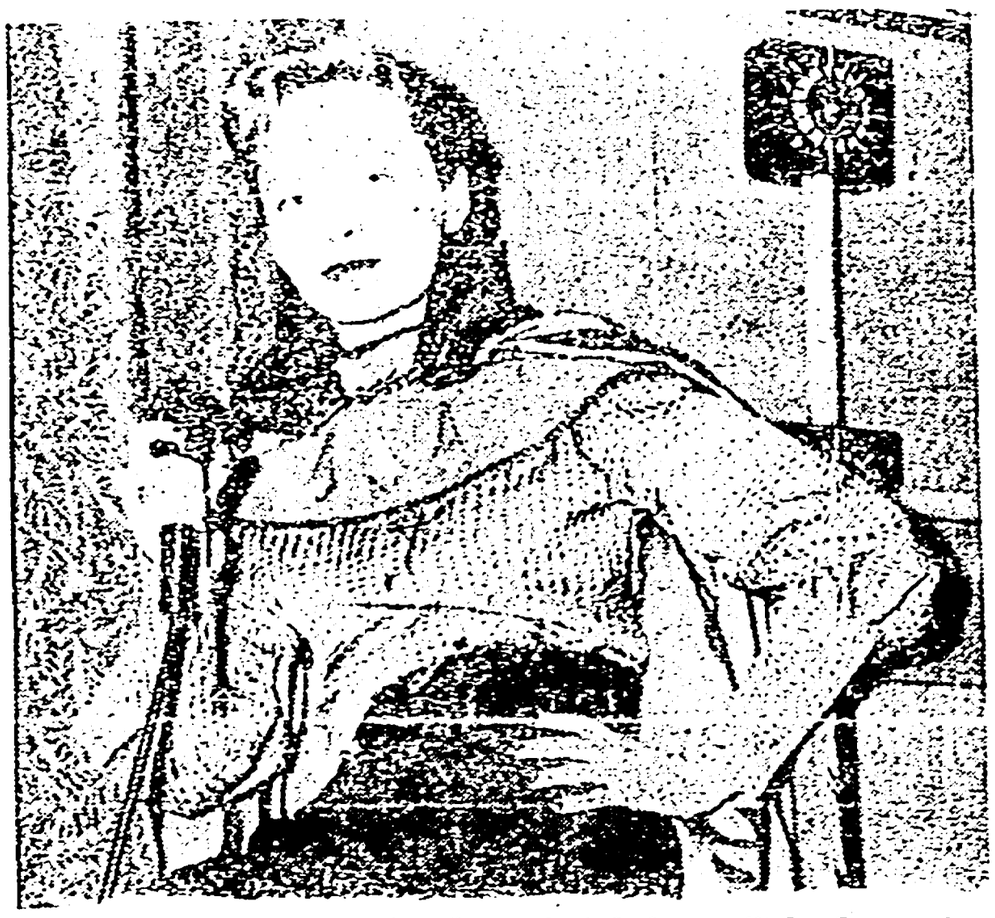
Colgate Time in 1984



SCIENCE-FICTION becomes reality as the Syracuse campus is no longer the Old Oval or the New Quad. It's become the Modern Semiquadrangular octagon. Here, amidst the grass that's always green—it's artificial—and the steamheated sidewalks, is Syracuse university of the future—Syracuse 1984. Every building has an atomic-powered elevator and every coed wears Bermuda space suits for Colgate Weekend. There's a new subject too: Television 201 for the kiddies, taught by Prof. Thomas Corbett, head of the Interplanetary School of Space Education.

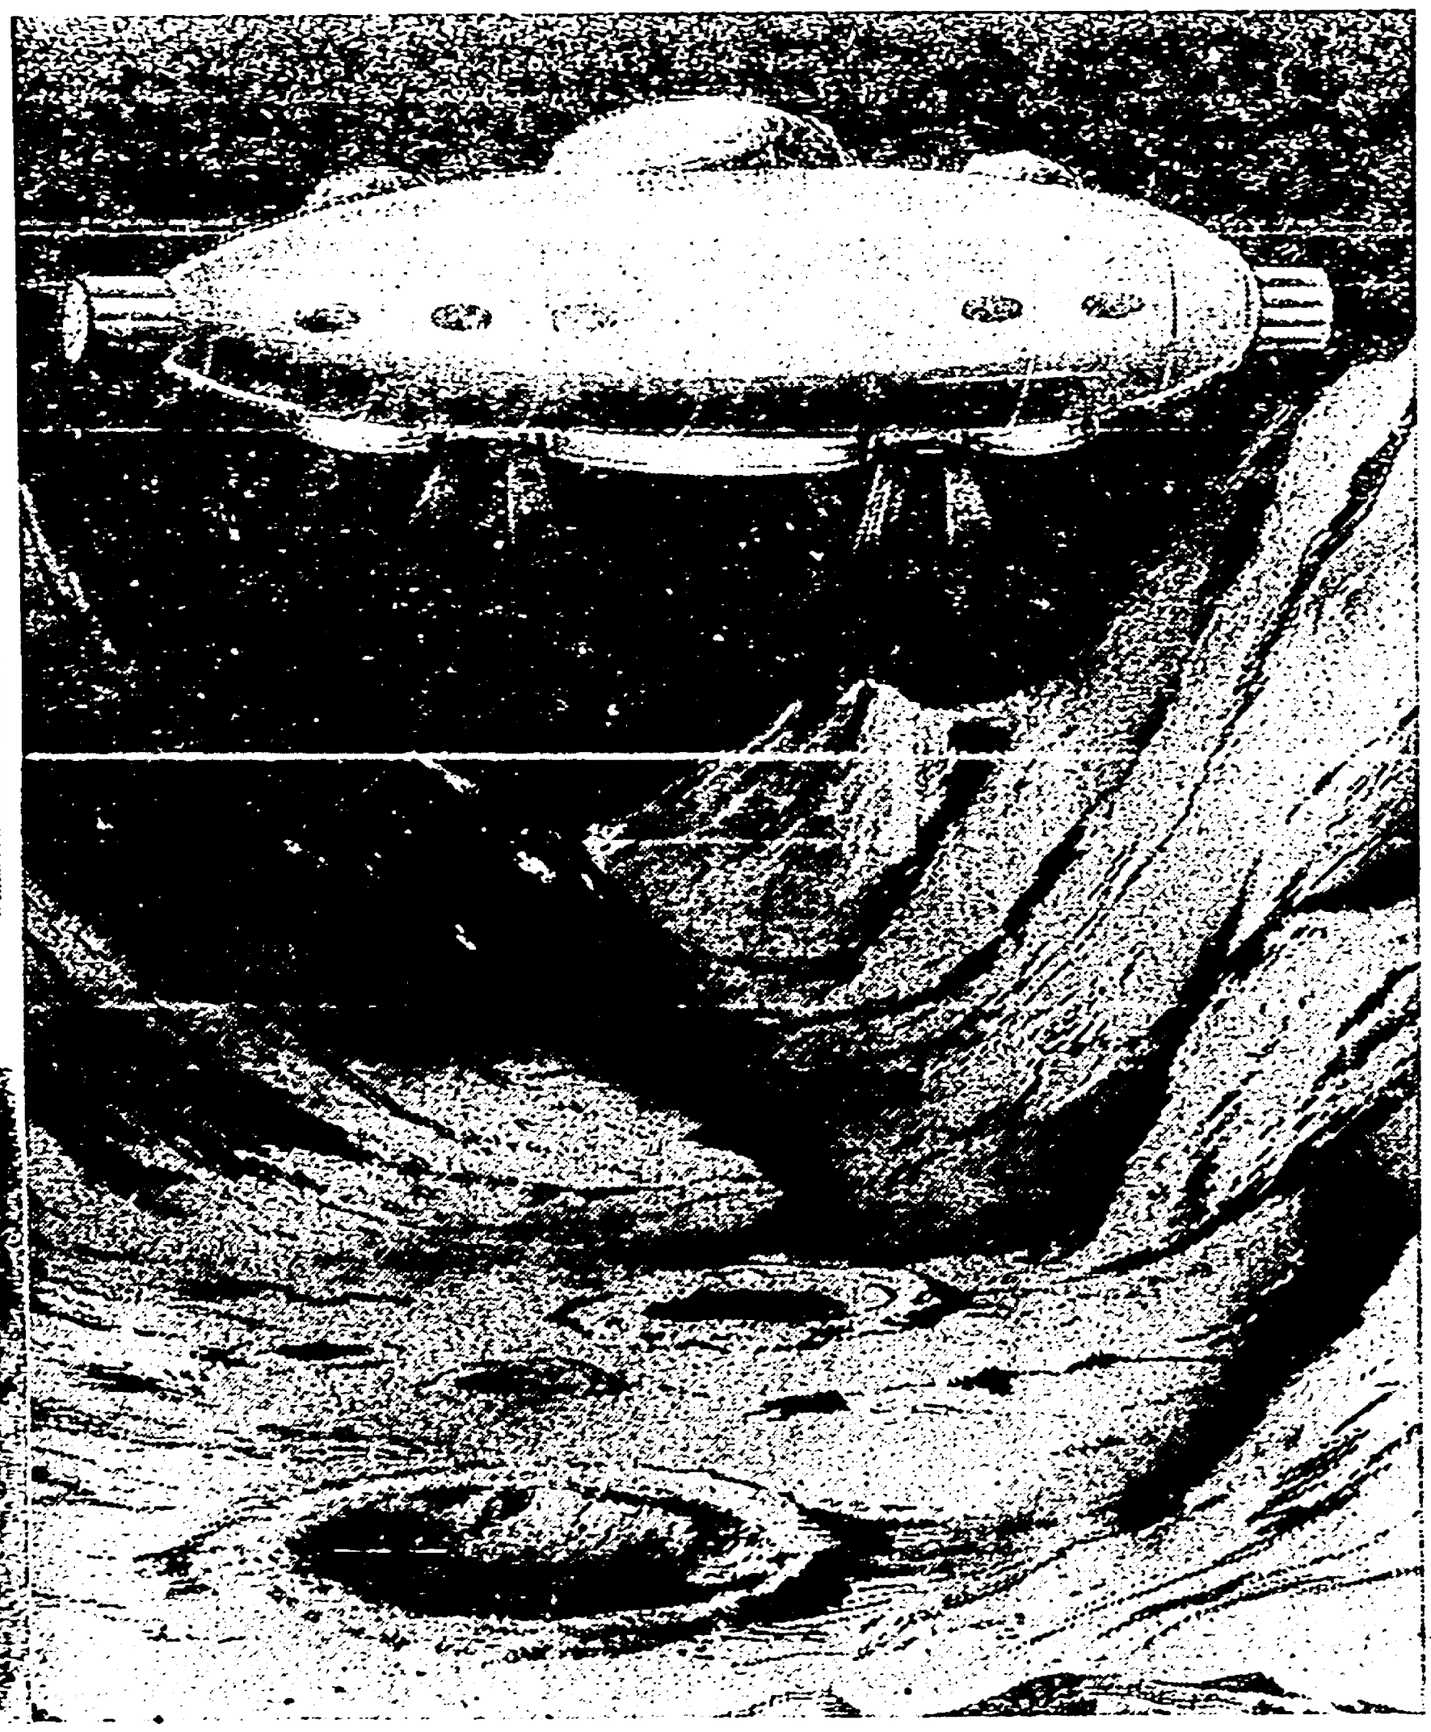
Who's He?

THIS, DEAR READER is nothing worse than a crazy mixed-up college robot—1981 style, as he looks the morning after a pre-Colgate Weekend celebration.



. . . . AND I promise that if I am elected there will be five-cent rocket ship transportation to every dorm. I am supported by Fraternities, Liberals AND Split Hairs (FLASH) party. Cast your vote for a campus government that will really go up in space.

"NOW COACH, NOW?" asks the third string quarterback. But the coach is too intent on his dreams of a prospective bid for the annual Space Bowl classic. Signal board in front of him sends electric impulses to players on the field and directs them how to move.



FORMERLY THE site of the Hall of Languages. The Walnut space bus tours the area showing Colgate Weekend homecomers the site of the new underground classrooms. Erosion has steepened the sides of the "Hill." However, escalators are being installed to hoist students up to Thornden park in the background.

"YOU GUYS hammed up the whole first half. This isn't your teacher speaking. This is TOM SCHWARTZWALDER. We're only leading by 54 points. You know the score I'm aiming for: 61-6. Now get out there and play 'guts' ball."

'54 Alums Visit Campus

By ART SIEGEL

Colgate Weekend 1984 is homecoming weekend for more than 1,000 members of the Class of 1954, a group that had been termed part of the apathetic era, but which now comes back in force.

The changes on the Syracuse campus will amaze the generation of 30 years ago. The Quadrangle, once the Oval, will be dedicated as the hexagonal obloid at ceremonies today on campus.

All students have been warned not to crowd the Skytop subways during the evening hours. Revelers are requested to exercise caution in using the slippery escalator on the Marshall st. hill. Buildings and Grounds has worked all night putting sand on the steps.

Since the bygone days of 1953, steamheated pipes under the sidewalks prevent ice from accumulating. Natural grass has been replaced by an artificial species that can't be uprooted not matter how many students traverse the lawns.

But in Archbold gym, the scene is one that has been familiar to football fans since the olden days of the Atomic age. The boys are drilling hard for the big test tomorrow. A bombshell was received this morning in the form of a rumor that Avatus Stone, jr., is surprise first string quarterback for Colgate. But Syracuse is favored by 48 points.

Famed among the alums who return this week is Larry O'Sullivan, former campus politician now a Washington lobbyist. Also returning is Vincent Rigolosi, recently elected mayor of Market st. in Philadelphia. Rigolosi will pin a fig leaf on the helmet of each member of the team as his contribution to the weekend and the start of a new tradition.

Tomorrow night's Soph hop will feature the music of Guy Rocket and his Royal Jets. Archbold gym will be decorated like a ballroom of the Gay Fifties. Movies will be shown of Syracuse before the advent of the campus rocket service and the open air double-decker classrooms.

It is significant that '54 alums return to see red brick where once stood the Hall of Languages, affectionately known as HL. There is a student recreation building and the new library houses more than four million volumes.

Most of the University's dreams have come true. Much remains to be done, but the apathetic era has ended forever. Political parties mind their p's and q's and more than 150 candidates vie for spots in the MSG assembly. There is an ON every year.

But there's one thing that Syracuse never did. It never did beat Alabama.

Matter of fact, it hasn't played them.

Not since that hot Miami day in 1953 when our blood ran cold.

ILLEGAL CAMPAIGNING on Marshall st. these days is met with swift action by SUPER-SERVICE men of MSG. Sitting at their televiewers in Pre-fab 30, the government men have discarded the ancient white bucks in favor of 1984 galoshes, which they will sport at tomorrow's game

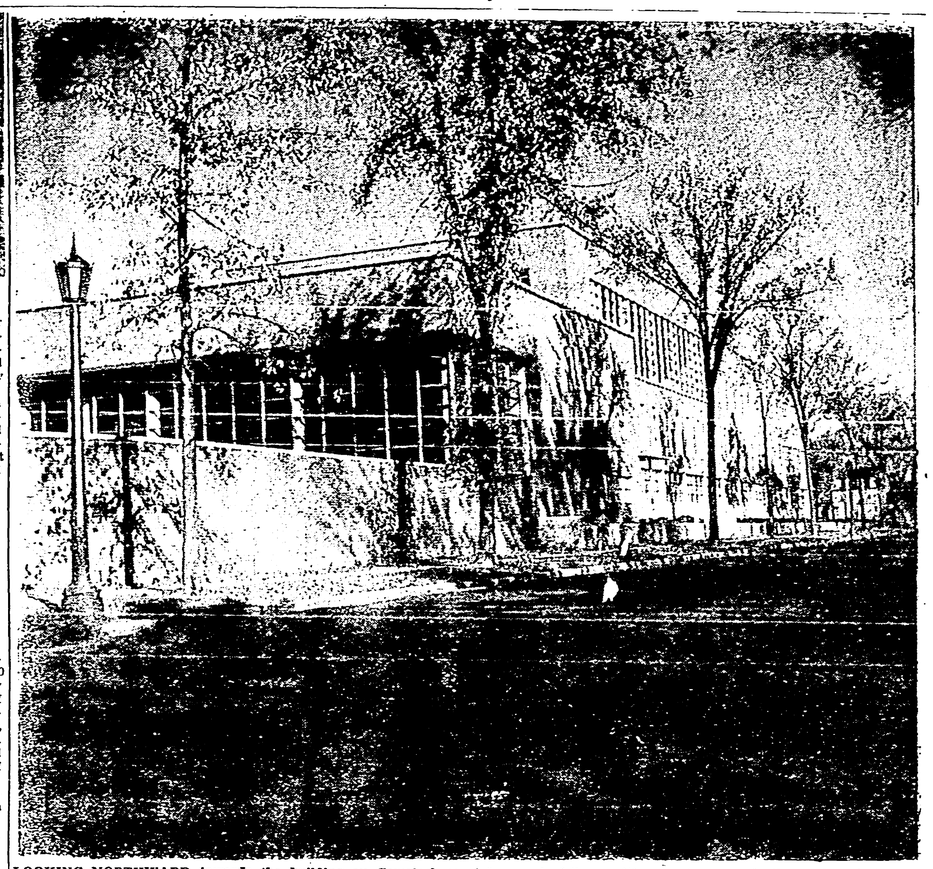
Dr. Katherine Sibley, founder of the physical education department at Syracuse will see the culmination of 50 years of devoted work, Sunday, when the new Women's building is dedicated.

Dr. Sibley joined the faculty in 1903. As a women's gym instructor she taught track and field sports in a lot behind Yates Castle and field hockey in a vacant area near what was then called the Edward Smith school.

After working continuously for it, Miss Sibley was appointed the first director of the department of physical education following its establishment in 1918. At that time there were no majors in the field, but since then graduates of the school have spread its name throughout the United States and have extended its reputation abroad, as far as Japan.

Miss Sibley was awarded a Doctor of Laws in the spring of 1950 after serving Syracuse university for five decades. While head of her department, Dr. Sibley undertook graduate work at Wellesley, NYU and Stanford and also spent three years studying specialized anatomy in the SU College of Medicine

Her textbook, "Elementary Human Anatomy" has become a standard reference in American universities where courses in physical education are offered. In recognition of her outstanding contributions to the University, Syracuse's College of education recently selected her to give the annual Richard J. Street lecture.



LOOKING NORTHWARD towards the building on Comstock ave. The outside of the new gym is designed in the spirit of the other new structures, with the idea of making a modern brick, stone and glassy campus with gradual eliminating o the polyglot buildings and replacement of them with new structures in the modern feeling. The Women's building is the third of the new era, followed by Joe and Emily Lowe Art center, Shaw dormitory and Sims Dining hall. The Law building will continue the trend.

Since the girls moved into the men's old gym they have been wishing for a new, modern gym with facilities to accommodate all the women's students wishing to take physical education.

And with Sunday's dedication of the new women's building on Comstock ave., the girls will be presented with a gym with facilities that reach far beyond all their wildest dreams.

Among the physical educational facilities which the building offers are two large gymnasiums and a recreation room for fencing, golf, indoor tennis practice and folk dances.

The building also includes a large dance hall with a huge mirror, a ballet rail and a stage. Behind the stage is a make-up room.

The new gym is equipped with a rest room with six beds, a photography room for posture pictures, a body mechanics unit which includes a doctor's room, laundry service for gym suits and hair washing facilities.

The physical education department gives out special privilege cards for those who desire one for three dollars a semester. These privileges include a costume appropriate to their activity, storage locker, and the hair-washing facilities.

Women students taking physical education pay five dollars a semester for privilege cards. This includes a clean bathing suit whenever they want it, a storage locker, hair-washing facilities, towel and soap

The women's building houses two lounges, in addition. The alumni lounge is located on the second floor and also can be used for meetings. There are kitchen facilities nearby. The third floor city women's lounge also can be used for meetings and has kitchen facilities at one end.

Women student government and Panhellenic offices also are located in the building. There is ample meeting space and classroom space, also. The third floor has a large library with very modern facilities.

The physical education offices are housed in 201 to 204 on the second floor. These offices include the physical education suite and instructors' offices.

In addition to the swimming pool, locker rooms and body mechanics unit, the first floor also houses a general information booth. It is operated by Miss Shattuck and Mrs. Franz, receptionists, and Mrs. Margaret Bonisteel, University's assistant director.

The building also has offices for the of women and her staff. These offices are lo to the right of the first floor lobby.

The second and third floor gyms also used for dances and other University soci tions.

The third floor gym, body mechanics u the pool are all under the direction of the ; education department. However, all other f in the building are under the direction Margaret Parker, the University's social di

The first gymnasium on campus was l in 1876 in an old tool shed where Chapel stands. The women had half of the basem

The original plans for the enlargement building included a first floor which cons a directors room and "two large parlors" gym floor 60 x 50. Above the ladder on the s floor was a "running galley," which incide was condemned several years ago, to the ri which was another so-called "large" room.

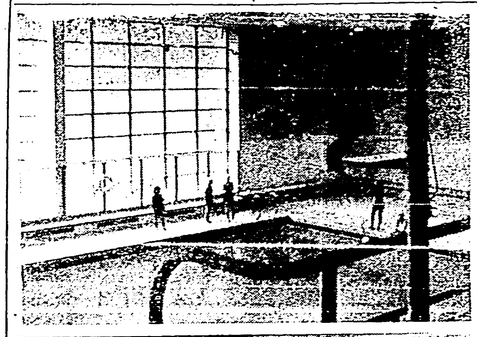
Included in the original plans were drawin bowling alleys and a swimming pool. The was built to the extreme capacity of 15 feet s but was later torn down. The bowling alleys materialized.

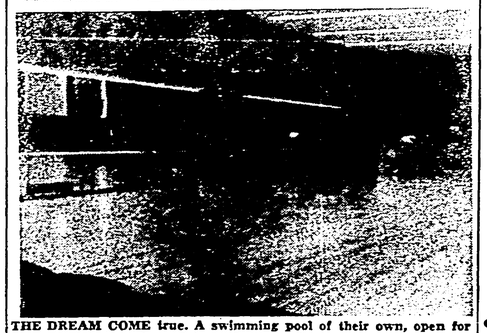
After the men moved into Archbold gym women took over the building completely. It later moved to its present site between Arch gym and Steele hall.

This lack of facilities became the laughing among students so the women campaigned new gym. The old building was gloomy an conducive to an interest in sports. In addit the limited variety of sports, especially in the ter, the girls had to go downtown to the Y.W for swimming classes.

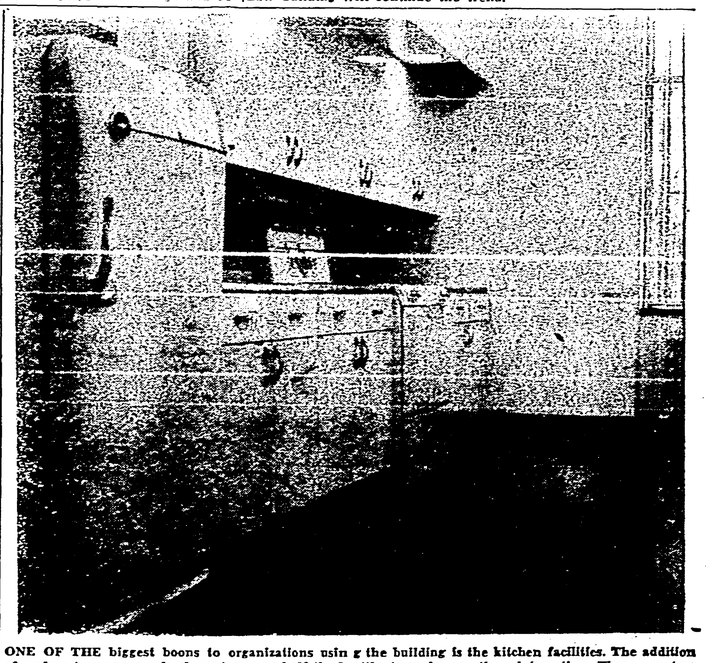
The small, gloomy old gym certainly is shadowed by the new, modern women's bu The pool which the women so badly wan 75 x 25 feet long with the depth ranging fro feet to fourteen feet. It also has a balcony leads from the second floor and an obser room on the main floor.

These new facilities certainly have proved selves to be far beyond the dreams of any students. Those who have had to use the old however, still look dreamy-eyed at the str as the journalists move in.

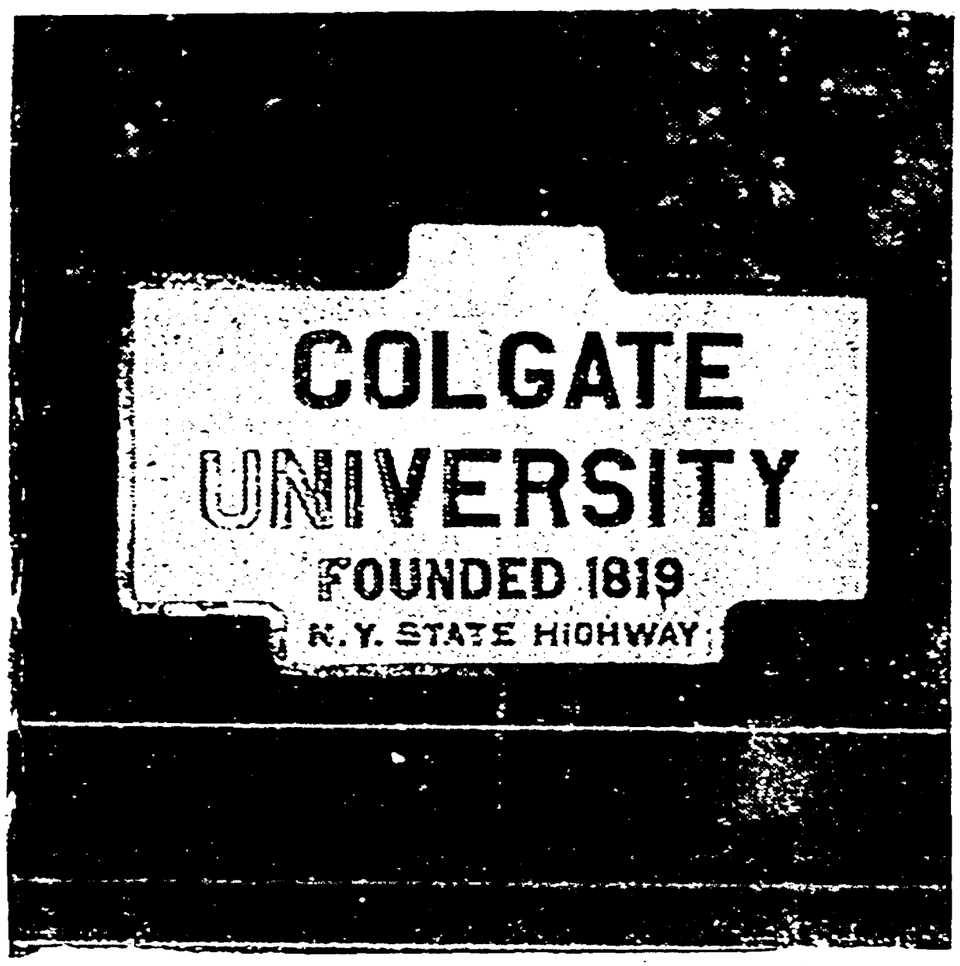




THE DREAM COME true. A swimming pool of their own, open for phys ed classes, water safety, and open splash parties. BALLET AND MODERN dance hold their own. The full-length mirror and rail are for practice. Social dances are given here, too.



ONE OF THE biggest boons to organizations using the building is the kitchen facilities. The addition of a place to prepare refreshments means half the battle to make meetings interesting. There are two kitchens in the building for public use, one by the Alumni lounge on the second floor and the other at one end of the City Women's lounge, third floor. Both kitchens are completely equipped.



GREETING US AS we entered the village of Hamilton where Colgate is located was this sign showing the spot on the map where the Red Raiders are kept all year until turned loose to try and jinx the Orange team.

IMPORTANT STOP WAS the Colgate stadium where we hoped to catch a glimpse of the opposing team in action, but no such luck. It has long been a custom of both schools to hold secret practices before the annual game.

A PEACEFUL PICTURE of the Colgate chapel. Standing in the center of the campus, it has among notable events in its history the time Supreme Court Justice Charles Evans Hughes, as a student, was expelled from the University for driving his jalopy through the front portals.

By FLIP SIROTA

A little afternoon on Sunday last week a car with a Syracuse university sticker drove into the village of Hamilton and headed for the campus of Colgate university.

Down the street lined with the thirteen fraternity houses which will never be increased (Colgate considers 13 its lucky number for it was founded by 13 men with 13 dollars and today has 1,300 students) drove the car with the Syracuse sticker carrying five Hill stud- - come to call on Colgate and tour the campus.

...ore the modernistic Phi Kappa Tau house the car stopped and the Syracuse contingent got out and they approached the front door, ran their fingers through their hair as if for the last time, and rang the bell.

In the visiting party were Ed Haley, assistant editor of the Colgate edition, Liz Goddard, junior editor on the paper, erstwhile Lee Jones, our photographer, Dorris Poley, who's car got us to Hamilton and myself.

At the Phi Tau house we were given a royal welcome, which only increased our trepidation and wonder if we were re-enacting the scene of "step into my parlor said the spider to the fly."

However, nothing dire happened then. In fact, we were invited to stay for luncheon which we readily accepted and this decision was not regretted since the menu was steak, hot rolls and chocolate sundae. Of course, we did think unpleasing thoughts about "Last Suppers" but this didn't harm our appetites.

After dinner the Syracuse party, accompanied by three of the members of the Colgate paper, the Colgate Maroon, started on a tour of campus. Our guide were Jerrfy Weigler, managing editor of the paper, Arnie Hodas, featured editor and Ed Mallory, Hoodoo (special Colgate weekend) edition editor.

In the offices of the Maroon the Syracuse group went right to work burrowing into the files of the paper in hopes of coming up with some top-secret information.

While we were being carried away by the excitement of feeling like spies for the F.B.I. our photographer Lee decided now was the time to take a picture. Setting his camera he focused it and then urgently called out Liz Goddard's name. Probably guilty feelings were deep in Liz Goddard's conscience for she jerked up from her burrowings and turned around with a scared and startled air. (Note photograph on next page.)

Back to the cars and then over a bumpy, back road we went to get to one of the queerest sights on the Colgate campus, a huge boulder given to the University by the Colgate Palmolive-Peet co., when they cleared land for their new factory. We perched Dorris atop the rock for a picture and even the Colgate men agreed that it was the prettiest sight they had seen in a long time.

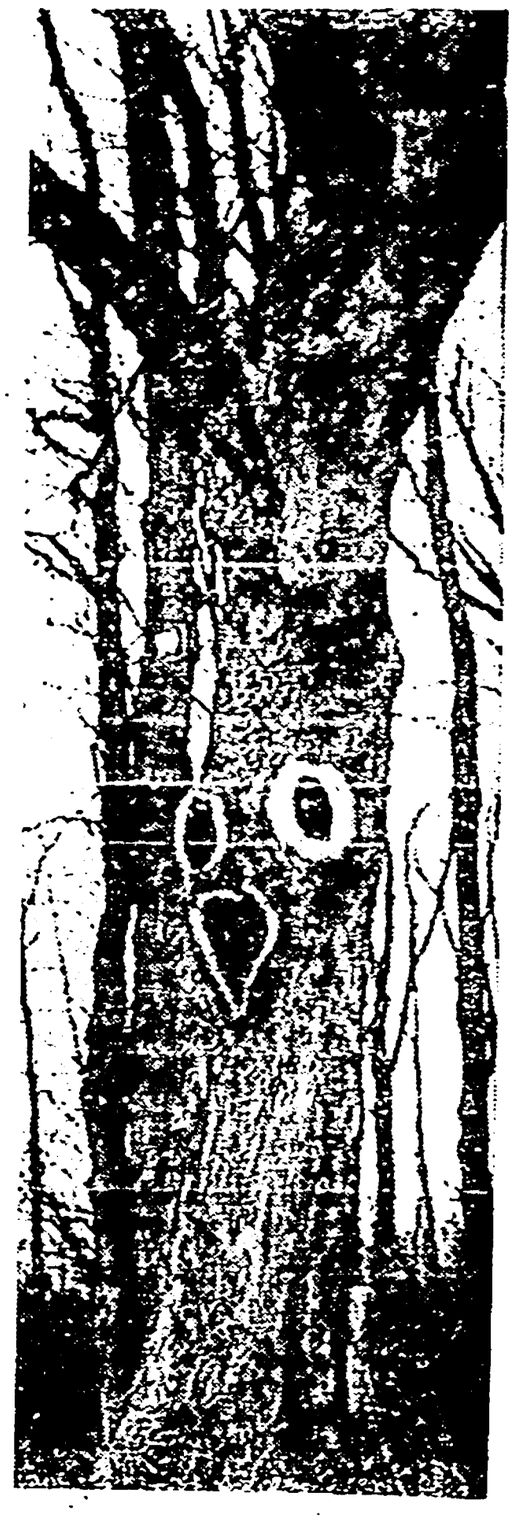
Next stop was Colgate's Cemetery Heights—same purpose as Thornden park (if Colgate has girls we repeat again).

Standing grotesquely at the edge of the woods, a gnarled tree had blackened eyes and mouth and looked as haunted as anything Charles Adams ever dreamed up.

We also discovered a charming bench overlooking the peaceful gravestone view and while our backs were turned two of our party (ain't telling who) made use of it.

But by this time the sun was beginning to set. There was some disagreement over whether it was an orange or a maroon sunset, but still we parted friends.

However, nice as Colgate might have been, the five of us who went calling that day still have one feverent desire in our hearts and that is—BEAT COGATE.



EEK, A HAUNTED tree. Yep, this ghostly sight holds an honored spot on the Colgate campus for this is the HOODOO tree chant and jinx which becomes inspiration of the menacing, important every year about this time. Colgate rooters also have an accompanying chant.

THE TABLES HAVE just been cleared after Sunday dinner and the massive freshmen dining hall in the student union is strangely quiet after all the talk and laughter of an hour ago. All first yearmen at Colgate are required to eat in this dining hall.

Colgate Campus

Ooh, La La!

ONE OF OUR coeds, DORRIS (Dopo) POLEY, gives Colgate a taste of something it doesn't have, namely collegiate glamour. She is perched atop a huge boulder, one of the queer sights on the Hoodoo campus.

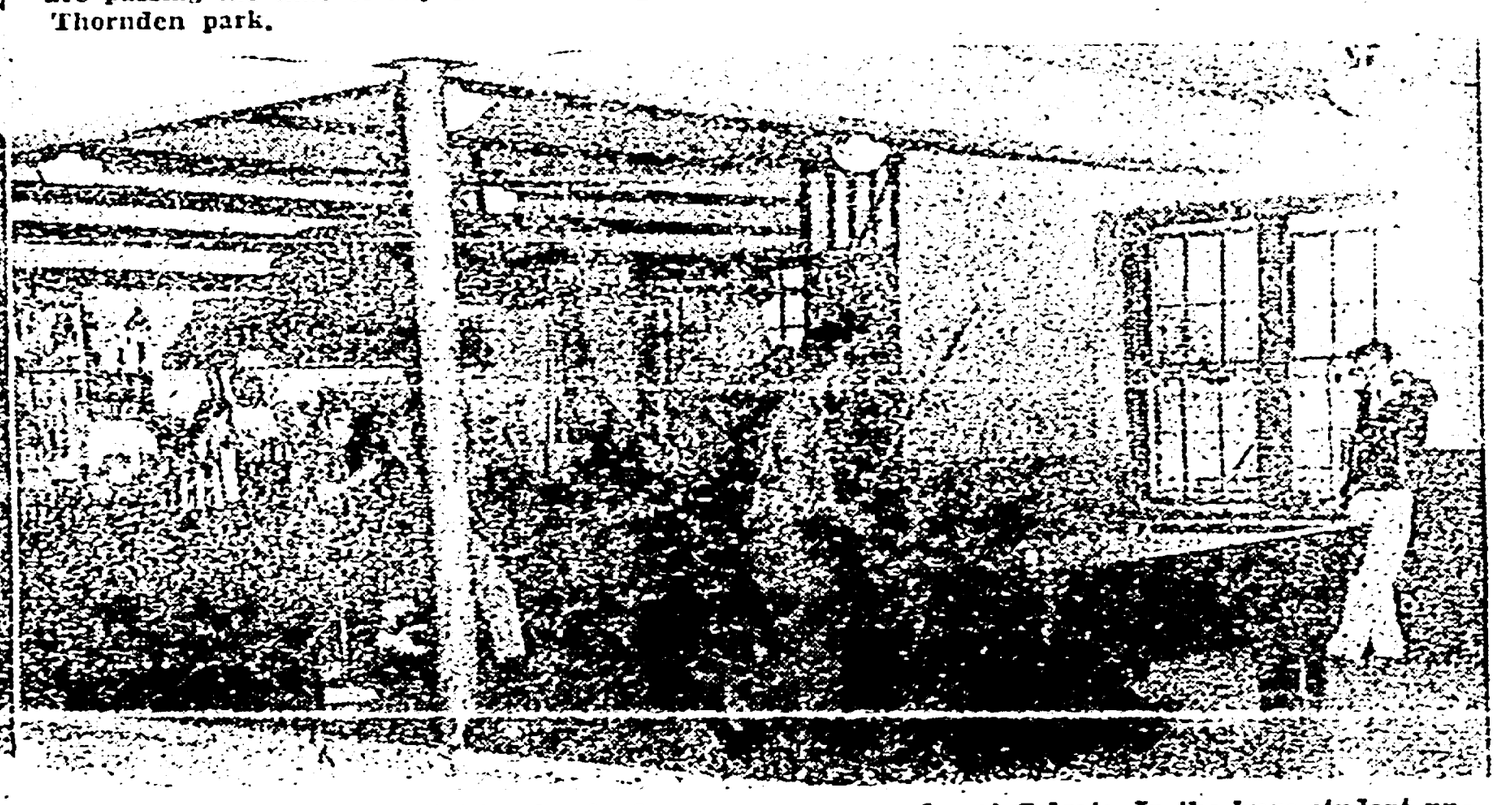
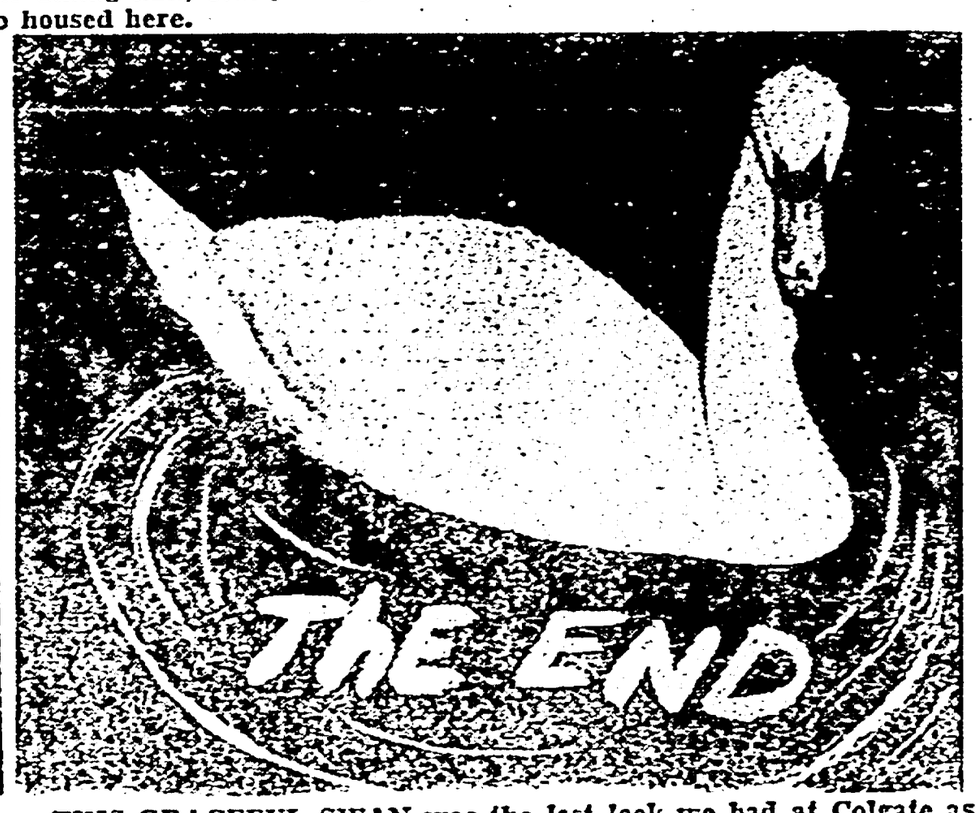
TIME OUT FOR two during our tour of the campus. The bench on which the unidentified couple are passing the time of day overlooks Colgate's Cemetery Heights which corresponds to Syracuse's Thornden park.

"OH, MY GOSH!" exclaims one of our gang caught in the act of rifling through the secret Colgate files. Object of search was to discover how strong the Hoodoo jinx may be this year, seeing that the weekend starts on Friday the thirteenth.



EXTRA-CURRICULAR activities for freshmen are very popular at Colgate. In the huge student union the first yearmen have their dining hall, study lounges and snack bar. Many student activities and organization offices are also housed here.

WALKING ACROSS THE campus golf course toward the observatory, Syracuse visitors learn that golf is one of the required physical education courses. The observatory, (which could serve the same purpose as Syracuse's water tower is, unfortunately, used exclusively for astronomy.



THIS GRACEFUL SWAN was the last look we had at Colgate as we drove away. A flock of these birds live on Taylor lake in the heart of the Maroon campus.

Two Views On Colgate

By SENIOR JAN CARO

It's a long, long time from freshman to sophomore, and the days grow short when you reach your last undergraduate Colgate Weekend.

Until then you move around in a maze of classes and coffee cups; but the cannon's booming over a frenzied stadium mob makes you sit up and take notice that it's practically over, that the four years of being part of Syracuse university are practically at an end.

And the events that make up Colgate Weekend typify your college years and remind you of what you've done and what you should have done and what you hope to do.

You watch the campus prepare for Colgate. The freshmen eagerly await their first big college affair, the sophs plan feverishly for their Hop, the juniors pretend indifference—but spend hours deciding on their dates and the seniors begin to get nostalgic and see themselves in every group of Homecoming alumni

You go to sleep at the usual hour Thursday night, a far cry from your freshman year when the whole cottage stayed up 'til dawn, too excited to sleep. You warily look out of the window as you awake Friday morning; you remember the half-snow, half-rain that dampened the 1951 Colgate clash but failed to keep the Orangemen from riding rampant over the Red Raiders.

The window's intact this time; when you were a frosh the night-long vigil was livened up by a gang of Maroon men, who tossed bricks through the window pane into your room. But that was in the days before anti-vandalism pacts.

The street is strangely noisy for an early-morning hour; hands and hammers work incessantly as sleepy-eyed coeds and haggard fraternity men get their posters up in time for the contest judging. Some are funny, some are beautifully constructed, some are just different, but they're all emphatic in expressing the common Syracuse sentiment: BEAT COLGATE!

Classes are somehow smaller than usual today; professors make sarcastic comments about people who start celebrating early and everyone laughs politely—and keeps watching the clock.

It's "TGICF" this weekend, as Syracusans offer their mute thanks for Colgate Friday—and storm the Orange. The booths and tables are mobbed by early afternoon and late-comers perch on tables or settle themselves comfortably on the dance floo

Recent graduates stop in to see "the boys" and tell about the Army or the new job, while alums from 'way back' self-consciously stop in and quickly leave, appalled by the noise and the Orange that "isn't quite the same." Memories are subdued by passing years.

And with the last drink to the girl who "likes to do the hula-la," everyone suddenly remembers that it's dinner time. And Esther finds herself alone with myriads of empty glasses.

Then the rally's over; embers barely glow as the crowd deserts the bleachers. The exhuberant groups of students become more quiet as they make their way to Hendricks chapel for the event that has become synonomous with Colgate Weekend, the annual Brotherhood service.

You sit among other casually dressed people listening to Dean Noble and the guest speaker and think about brotherhood and the general bull-session topic of tolerance. And you think about the evolution of your ideas and those of your friends in connection with people of different races and religions.

You listen to the quiet words of a benediction and realize that the main thing you've learned in a college is not a particular course of technology but rather a process of learning. You've studied people and not subjects; you've studied thought and not facts. And you may not have won a Phi Beta Kappa key, but you've taken the first step in a life-long education.

There's a tremor of excitement around the dorm Saturday morning, and you hurry to beat the lunch crowd down to Marshall st. The stadium is the usual scene; bright pompoms and orange shakers are highlights in the solid mass of exuberant humanity. There's the marching band in their Miami uniforms and the thrilling manipulations of Miss Alta Burg with the greatest baton-twirling display any stadium has ever seen.

And you're excited and happy because it's Colgate and those are the emotions that normally accompany that day. You eat your normal allotment of hot dogs and chew nervously on peanuts and cheer yourself hoarse.

But you can't help feeling a little sad; from now on you'll be just a politely received guest, looking around for people you know, sitting in special alum sections—not really part of these "crazy college kids."

But there's no time to think of that now; the ball's on the line of scrimmage! So you let out a hearty "Go, Orange!" and signal the little man to toss you another hot dog.

By FROSH GEORGE MEEK

As a frosh who has never seen a Colgate weekend I find it hard to imagine what it will be like, and what I will be like after it is all over. Regardless of the outcome I think it will be a dazing experience.

The most important thing I feel all freshmen should remember for the weekend is to always travel in groups. This should lessen the danger of getting trampled or mauled at the pep rally. Safety in numbers should also help avoid some drafty heads in the cool Syracuse weather.

The individual can be pushed along by the group, thus eliminating the confusion of worrying about where to go. Also, when one is hemmed in by a mob, it is harder to fall down if tried or tipsy.

If the posters for the elections are any clue, the amateur artists will really run riot for the Colgate poster contest. The houses with quality as a criteria have probably been working since the last Colgate weekend to develop ideas for their masterpieces.

The houses which need painting or repairing will probably use quantity as a basis, and make posters big enough to cover up the entire front of the house from the vision of prying alums

The pep rally should be noisy and hectic. The rallies so far this year have been pretty wild. Thus I figure Colgate must be ten times so.

I pity the poor old local denizens who will create a market for earplugs because of the cheering, horns, and firecracker "bangs." The torches will add color, and I suppose they could be handily used as defense weapons against Colgate maurauders. The large wooden handles on some of the banners could also be effectively wielded in that capacity.

The klaxon horn that was used at the previous rallies certainly can make a lot of noise. I hope it can play a prominent part in the parade. The marching band, Alta Burg, and the cheerleaders should be livening things up even more than usual.

The scalpings of Colgate weekend are something I'm concerned about. I don't want to have to wear hats indoors for weeks and weeks afterwards.

Losing the hair is bad enough, but think how messy it would be if the vandals didn't do a careful job.

I have been warned to steer clear of any suspicious looking strangers offering me rides or free beers. I've heard about some new anti-scalping law, but does this apply to Colgate?

I understand there will be a big breakfast in Sims on Saturday morning. The fact that we're getting charged extra for it may mean that the food will be better than usual. Sounds like a good idea, for we'll probably need one solid meal during the weekend to keep us going.

The game itself will be quite a spectacle no matter who wins (of course it will be Syracuse.) The capacity of the stadium has been increased by putting up more green bleachers from which it is doubtful that anything much can be seen. Of course, there's always the scoreboard to tell you what's going on.

It should be interesting to watch some upperclassmen who I have overheard talking about bringing "jugs". If they drink too much they might not find their way out of the stadium in all the confusion, and it will get mighty cold sleeping overnight on those stone seats!

And wait until those Colgate fans see Alta Burg twirl! Three batons at once could come in handy if any of the Colgate men start getting fresh. The band should be pretty good too; I hope they can hold onto their hats

The alumni from the past century should be on hand cheering as loudly and as lustily as the freshmen. Some of the more elderly ones will probably show amazing spirit for their ages.

Maybe placard cheering and cheering in general will have improved to the point where it is outstanding, but by gametime, the fans may be too hoarse from the pep rally to yell, and the placard cheerers may be too tired to lift up their cards.

The weekend will still be going strong after the game is over, with the Soph Hop and countless parties. I suppose the fraternities will be packed to the doors with vigorous celebrators, who will generally come out worse than they went in. Maybe some of the houses will be so full that I will be able to stagger in unnoticed.

I'll probably enjoy the antics of the upperclassmen and alums in the streets afterwards, and if I should be in the same condition, I won't really care.

When the whole weekend is over and I, as a newcomer at the business am still recovering, I hope that I can say that my first Colgate weekend was a lot of fun, even though I may have lost my hair, money, and—By the way, what day is this?

Evolution of the Marching Band

By POLLY REED

Syracuse university's marching band has progressed a long way from its first performance 52 years ago.

Drum major Alta Barg and lovely Eunice Mallott lead the band now, in dashing contrast to 1901 when an ex-army major strutted with the first few bandsmen.

The supervisor of music in Syracuse public schools was director of the University marching band then. A far cry from our School of Music band department and Dr. Harwood Simmons. Subsidies were unheard of in those days, an annual benefit concert in the spring was the only means of support.

Things were rather uncertain then. The Daily Orange of 1903 said that Manager Bateman will "probably have his men on the platform to give out selections during the intermission" of a 1903 pep rally.

In 1903 the university band was led by the law college. The medics had a frosh band to lead them from the School of Medicine to the football field, and the engineers had a "zobo" band leading them.

Even the architects got in on the act with a band to lead them on to the gridiron.

Must have been mighty confusing with all those bands going at once.

In 1906 three bands held the spotlight in Hendricks field. The law college, engineers, and medics all had their bands and

Before the Colgate game in those relatively ancient times the band was driven around town in a tally-ho drawn by six white horses. The uniforms then were dark blue coats and trousers with shoulder boards and orange trimmings. An ex-sergeant, who had become a fine arts student, ran the band through all its drills in straight military style.

Transportation was leisurely then, as the band went to Cornell by barge canal. The ensemble lived only a few years, and died when Chancellor Roscoe Day decided a band was not a necessity.

The group was reborn when students discovered that Cornell had a band which was a lively factor in their celebrations. If Cornell can maintain a band, Syracuse and its College of Fine Arts can do better, students argued. Chancellor Day was stumped, and the students won their band.

The old band had left a few instruments and uniforms lying around, and after a campaign to raise money, a 24-piece aggregation was launched.

Rehearsals every week put the band in sufficient shape to play at the 1907 track and baseball events. The first out of town trip was to a Syracuse-Carlisle track meet at Elmira. That year for the first time the now-familiar "Bill Orange" was played at a Colgate game.

By 1919 the ROTC band had

joined the show to provide a 32 member set for University functions. The one distracting element was that the musicians wore World War I uniforms.

In 1924 jazz invaded the campus and penetrated even to the band. Men that year sported white duck trousers with jackets to match, four-in-hand ties and hats with upturned brims.

When Alta leads the 100 men down the field tomorrow it will represent the culmination of 52 years of trial and error in the history of the marching band. They've progressed from a few men with instruments to a trim and smart uniformed group and a drum major and twirler.

Ben Boosts Grid Sport

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse university football has been on the upswing in the past several seasons. One of the biggest reasons for improvement on the gridiron is the work of Head Coach Floyd "Ben" Schwartzwalder, who is in his fifth year at that capacity on the Hill.

Ben's football history goes back to his undergraduate days at West Virginia university. At the Mountaineer school he played center for Greasey Neale's eleven. Even though he only weighed 152 pounds, he was one of the scrappiest linemen on the squad.

After his graduation in 1933, he earned his master's degree and tutored scholastic gridders in such towns as Sisterville, Weston and Parkersburg, West Virginia. In 1941, before enlisting in the paratroops, Ben coached the famed McKinley high school of Canton, Ohio.

After a very distinguished service record, Schwartzie was appointed head coach at Muhlenberg. In three years at the Pennsylvania school Ben led his squad to a 25 and 5 record. The highlight of his tenure there was the victory of his 1946 team over St. Bonaventure in the Tobacco Bowl.

Upon coming to Syracuse, he switched the Orange style of offense from the single wing to an unbalanced winged-T. By splitting his ends, Ben allows his attack more room to move around in.

His initial move was to shift Bernie Custis, a tailback under Baysinger's single wing regime, to quarterback. In this way Schwartzie could utilize Custis' passing to best advantage under the T formation.

The Orange forward wall in Schwartzwalder's early years at Syracuse was bulwarked by tackle Bill Lupo and center Leon Cohen. At first Ben experienced difficulty in producing a winning football team. But his policy was to pay off in the not-too-distant future.

The only losing season for Schwartzie on the Hill was his first, 1949, when his team won four while dropping five. The following season the squad broke even in ten games. In 1951 the Pietymen brought home a five and four record.

One year ago, Ben guided the Saltine eleven to its best season in 21 years. Only losses, to Bolling Field Air Force base, by a single point, and to Michigan State, the nation's number one aggregation, marred the Orange record as Syracuse rolled to seven victories in nine games and an Orange Bowl bid.

Alabama was chosen to face the Hillmen at Miami and the Southern school proved too powerful for Ben Schwartzwalder's boys as they soundly defeated the Orange 61-6.

Since Schwartzwalder took over in 1949, his teams have only been defeated by Colgate once. That game took place in 1950 and the Red Raiders narrowly nosed out the Piety eleven 19-14.

PREDECESSORS FAILED

Schwartzwalder's three predecessors: Ossie Solem, Bibbie Munn and Ribs Baysinger were unable to produce winning seasons. After one season, Coach Ben proueded a 5-5 record and has never had a loting season since.

SHIFTS FILLED OPENINGS

Sixteen gridders left Coach Ben Schwartzwalder at the end of last season. His biggest problem was one of replacing ends and guards. Monster Bob Fleck moved from tackle to guard and back Ray Perkins was shifted to right end.

Youngster Hal Lahar Directs Colgate's Grid

By STAN ROSENFELD, Daily Orange Junior Editor

Hal Lahar, head football coach at Colgate has been contacted with football either in a playing or coaching capacity for the past 22 years. That's mighty long for a man of 35, who could easily pass as a collegian.

Lahar was born and raised in Durant, Oklahoma. He captained the Oklahoma City Central high school eleven, and was voted all-City, all-Conference and all-State guard.

From high school, he moved to the University of Oklahoma. At the Sooner institution which is quite known for its aggressive, winning football, Lahar broke into the starting line-up in his sophomore year. In his junior year, he took part in the 1938 Orange Bowl against Tennessee. The senior year for Lahar was his most memorable as he was elected captain of the Oklahoma squad and went on to play in the East-West Shrine game.

Hal Lahar

Receiving a bid from the Chicago Bears, Lahar played one season for the pro-gridders. The Bears that year compiled a 19-1 record and won the World championship for the year 1941.

The war interrupted his professional career and found him working for the Douglas Aircraft company as a supervisor of parts supply. Shortly thereafter he was commissioned as a lieutenant in the U. S. Naval reserve. Sixteen months of his service were spent in New Caledonia.

With the end of the war, Lahar returned to the pro-football gridiron, this time as captain of the Buffalo Bills. In his third and final year with the now defunct Bills, he led them to the Eastern division title and a close loss to the Cleveland Browns for the championship. The year 1948 marked the end of his short but very successful career as a player.

Lahar entered into the coaching profession the next year as assistant coach at the University of Arkansas. The following two years found him in similar coaching capacities at the Universities of Pittsburgh and W. Virginia.

Colgate's 1952 football varsity presented quite a problem to Coach Lahar as it would have to any other coach.

His seasonal record was an amazing 6-3, with the only losses being one touchdown decisions to Holy Cross, Syracuse and Harvard.

This year, Colgate has won three, lost three and had one tie going into the traditional Syracuse game. An overall record of nine won, six lost and one tie. Not bad for a rookie coach.

Football isn't the only sport in the coach's life. He swings a potent golf club, a sport he took up while in high school. Last year he qualified for the New York State Amateur Golf tournament.

Blood Donors Deadline For Sign-ups Extended

Deadline for blood donations has been extended to 5 p.m. Wednesday, it was announced today. The signup sheets should be turned in to the women's student government office or Theta Phi Alpha, 756 Comstock ave.

A quota of 1,000 pints has been set as this year's goal in a blood drive which will be conducted in two sessions. The first is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 18 at the Men's gym.

FOR THE first time since Syracuse university has participated in blood donor drives, members of the faculty and administration are urged to participate. Those who wish to give blood will be allowed time off in which to go to the Archbold gym for the donation.

Special blood donor meals will be served in University dining halls for those who plan to give. Donors should refrain from eating all foods containing fats and eggs.

They are urged to eat fruits, fruit juices, bread, crackers, raw vegetables, honey and skimmed milk. Doctors advise a meal three to four hours prior to the donation.

Students must be over 18 to be eligible for blood donation. Those under 21 must have written permission from parents before they will be allowed to give blood.

PERMISSION BLANKS may be secured from Diane Johnson, Alpha Chi Omega, or Mary Flavin, Theta Phi Alpha.

It is not necessary, however, to use a special permission application. Written consent of the parent is sufficient.

No volunteer will qualify as a blood donor if he has had malaria or undulant fever in the past two years or if he has ever had yellow jaundice or if he at present is afflicted with diabetes.

Marine Corps Rep To Interview Coeds

Lt. John McLamore of the Women's Marine corps will be in Syracuse Thursday and Friday, Nov. 19 and 20 to interview University women interested in entering the leatherneck service.

Coeds who wish to see Lt. McLamore may contact her in the placement office of the dean of women's office.

College graduates are eligible to become officers in the Women's Marine corps. The next training class for officers will begin Jan. 28, 1954 at Quantico, Va. where all selected applicants will undergo training in a program designed to produce graduates who can assume responsibility as commissioned officers.

Women Marine officers are assigned a variety of job classifications, some of which can be of value in civilian life.

Classifications include such fields as administration, aerology, communications, intelligence, food service, finance and machine accounting.

Other jobs a woman Marine officer might receive are mapping, special service, supply and public information. A limited number are now assigned to duty with Marine Corps Fleet Marine Force units in Europe and Hawaii.

Magazine Features Elephant Articles

Somehow or other an awful lot of elephants have sneaked into the November Syracusan. Coming there is an article by Martha Gilbert, managing editor, titled "Wanted: One Elephant," and a short story by Joel Westerman, called "Smarter Than People? Sometimes."

Besides elephants, the Syracusan gives a resume of the weekend just past, "That Colgate Tradition," a picture story. And they have ushered up some of the better Syracusan cartoons of years past, in a feature entitled "Past Tense," with gags by Brad Anderson, Don Peterson and others.

"Kin", by Allen Peck and a sports story, "Fugitive from Platoon Football," by Bob Grogan complete the fiction, and "Wings Over Syracuse," an article on Air Force ROTC on campus by Art Siegel, DO managing editor and Major Robert Woods, Public Information officer of AFROTC, plus a poem, "From This Window" by Laurie Totten round out the issue.

IC4A Team Title Won by Spartans

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Michigan State repeated as team champion and Boston university's Johnny Kelley won the individual title as the annual IC4A cross-country run was staged on New York city's Van Cortlandt park course yesterday afternoon.

The Spartans from East Lansing, Michigan, showed again the team depth necessary to beat the East's finest squads. They nosed out Pittsburgh and Penn State to capture team laurels for the second consecutive year.

SYRACUSE finished in fourth place, directly behind Penn State, but they came no where near the top three teams when the team scores were finally totaled up. The Orangemen garnered 139 points, 51 more than the third place Nittany Lions.

One year ago, the Spartans placed four men out of the first ten finishers and scored an easy victory over the other schools. This year, however, they were pressed considerably more, but still came off with team honors.

The individual winner, Johnny Kelley of BU, surprised the experts by his victory over the rest of the pack. The pre-meet favorite, John Joe Barry of Villanova, crossed the finish line second, but was 50 yards in back of Kelley when the latter broke the tape.

Kelley's winning time of 24:51.7 was no where near the record time of 24:30.1, set last year by Georgetown's great runner, Charlie Capozzoli, but it did beat the mark of Ray Osterhout, the Saltine's top runner, who came in second with a time of 24:54.

OSTERHOUT WAS somewhat of a disappointment to Coach Bob Grieve of the Piety harriers, but he did manage to cop fourth place behind Penn State's Bob Hollen. Osterhout was the only Orange runner to finish among the top ten harriers.

Other locally known hill-and-dalers to gain notable places in the meet include Lamont Smith

342 Men Pledged In Formal Rushing

A total of 342 men were pledged by Hill fraternities as a result of this semester's formal rushing, according to partial figures released by the Interfraternity Council this week.

The figures also indicate that at the close of formal rushing, total fraternity membership stood at 1,472 for the 34 Greek houses.

While reports have not been received from all the houses, the pledging was led by Alpha Chi Rho, with 21 new pledges; Sigma Alpha Mu with 19; Phi Kappa Psi with 17; Tau Delta Phi with 16; and Delta Upsilon, Kappa Sigma and Sigma Phi Epsilon, all with 12.

The total of new pledges took a jump of 60 over last year's first semester rushing. Also showing a gain over last year is the precentage of men who filed preference cards and were finally pledged. Of 364 men who filed preference cards, only 22 did not pledge a house.

Largest houses on the Hill, according to the IFC figures, are Phi Epsilon Pi, 70 members; Phi Kappa Psi, 65; Phi Delta Theta, 63; Alpha Epsilon Pi, 60; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 59; and Beta Theta Pi, 58.

Winter Carnival Heads Selected

Nine working committee chairmen for the 22nd Winter Weekend Feb. 12-14, have been announced by general co-chairmen Irene Purdy and Pete Rose. Applications are still being accepted for chairmanship of the intramural skating contest by either of the general chairmen.

Chosen on basis of interest, past experiences during winter weekends and other weekend committee ideas, the working committee heads include: Robert Lefko and Don Cadwalder, publicity; Joel Rosenbaum and Sally Soper, skiing; William Levine and Lois Cohn, stokingfoot dance; Robert Curran, snow sculpture; Leslie Rubin, button sale; Michael Schafer, queens contest; Sam Brown, and Deborah Torello, weekend programs; Phyllis Krinovitz, ice pageant; and Dale Wageman, secretary.

First meeting of the Weekend committees will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Theta Phi Alpha.

Any students interested in working on the committees are asked to contact either Miss Purdy at 4-9331 or Rose at 4-6068.

Funeral Services Held For Hill Coed

Miss Andrews Killed In Crash Friday

Services for Carrie Lou Andrews, home economics senior, who was killed in an automobile crash near Windsor, Vt., Friday night, were held at the Greenleaf Funeral home yesterday. The Rev. Robert Zoerheide, pastor of May Memorial church, officiated. Burial was in Oakwood cemetery.

Miss Andrews, 21, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George B. Andrews of 613 Clarendon st., Syracuse, and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, was killed when the car in which she and three companions were riding and a truck filled with Christmas trees collided on US route 5.

INJURED IN the accident was another Syracuse university coed, Miss Anne Larson, 19, of Kappa Kappa Gamma: and two Cornell university students, Herman Bakkan, Jr., 20, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Joseph M. Michalowitz, 20, of Windsor, Vt. The four were en route to Hanover, N. H. for the Cornell-Dartmouth football game, police said.

Miss Larson was taken to a Springfield, Vt. hospital where her condition remains critical. She is a junior in the College of Fine Arts and a resident of Metuchen, N. J.

The two Cornell students were treated at the hospital for minor injuries.

Police identified the driver of the truck as Roland Labine, 22, of Littleton, N. H. He and his two passengers escaped with minor injuries.

A member of May Memorial Unitarian church, Miss Andrews was a figure skating star and was known in sports circles in the city and Central New York. She was co-chairman of the ice pageant committee for Winter weekend last February and skated in the show. She attended Putney school in Vermont and Nottingham High school, Syracuse.

Music Honorary Announces Tea

Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music fraternity, will hold a tea for all freshman and transfer music students at 4:15 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 18 in the Founders' room of Maxwell, according to Sally Alger, president of Sigma Alpha Iota.

Hall of Fame

Ceremonies Dedicate Building for Women

A 50-year dream came true Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Huntington Crouse cut the ribbon and Miss Katherine Sibley unlocked the door on the west court of the $3,000,000 Women's building.

The ceremonies began at 2:30 p.m. outside the building. Chancellor William P. Tolley began the ceremonies by introducing the 100 girl chorus who sang the "Women's Alma Mater" under the direction of Ann Forrest.

DR. TOLLEY then introduced Francis Byrne, contractor of the building, who handed four gold keys to the building to Lorimer Rich, architect of the building. Rich then gave the keys to Albert B. Merrill, president of the University's Board of Trustees.

Merrill presented the keys to Miss Marjorie C. Smith, dean of women; Miss Lucille H. Verhulst, director of physical education for women; Miss Katherine Sibley, retired director of women's physical education; and Mrs. Huntington B. Crouse, a member of the Board of Trustees. Both Miss Sibley and Mrs. Crouse were leaders in the drive to raise funds for the construction of the Women's building.

Following the invocation by Reverend Leon M. Adkin of the University Methodist Church, greetings were extended by Miss Mary Anne Dalton, president of women's student government, on behalf of the students; Miss Lucille H. Verhulst on behalf of the faculty; Mrs. Gertrude S. Brooks, member of the Board of Trustees, on behalf of the trustees; and Dean M. Eunice Hilton of the College of Home Economics, on behalf of the administration.

Miss Sibley spoke on the background of the building and described the deplorable situation of the physical education department for women when she first came to Syracuse 50 years ago. She then traced the history of the fund raising projects which have been held in that half century.

FOLLOWING HER speech, Miss Sibley was presented with a portrait of herself by Mrs. Charles McPhail, president of Gamma Phi Beta. The inscription read: "Katherine Sibley, Professor and Director of the Department of Physical Education for Women, Syracuse University, presented with the highest esteem from her sorority,

Senior Assembly Needs Secretaries

ON Calls for Help In Taking Pictures

Workers are badly needed to act as typists for the Onondagan, Barbara Faust, picture editor, announced at a senior assembly meeting recently.

Pictures are being taken this week and the week after Thanksgiving, but not during Thanksgiving week, Miss Faust told the assembly. Students are needed to type activities cards for the photographer.

Anyone interested should contact Miss Faust at 4-1059 or sign up at 221 College pl. at 5-6 p.m.

Pictures are being taken from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and at 1-6 p.m. Anyone who has not signed up then must be given new hours. Several persons have been signed up for 12 to 1 p.m. and at 6-7 p.m. Those persons must contact Miss Faust for new assignments.

Joan Abbott also spoke to the group concerning a trip to Europe via the Scandinavian Travel service. Anyone interested may contact her at 75-2155 for further information.

It was suggested that the senior class sponsor an informal outing consisting of sleigh riding, dancing to records, and refreshments during January or February. A committee under the chairmanship of Tess Oesterreicher was appointed.

The next meeting of the group will be held Dec. 2.

PARKING SPACE

A parking lot with space for 175 cars has been completed on the steps of Mt. Olympus.

It is hoped that the lot, which is being made available for student cars, will relieve the campus parking situation.

Archaeologist Will Speak

Dr. Neil H. Richardson will speak on "The Importance of Archeology for the Humanities" in the opening lecture of the Humanities series at 4:15 p.m. on Thursday in Maxwell auditorium.

Dr. Richardson of the University's department of Bible and Religion, spent the academic year of 1952-53 on leave as a Fellow of the American Schools of Oriental Research in the Kingdom of Jordan.

HE WAS in charge of a crew digging around Old Testament Jericho. The finds of this expedition included the first semi-circular defense tower, seven skulls, 15 tombs dating back to 3,000 B.C, and a mud brick structure built about 5,000 B.C.

The lecture Thursday will describe the methods of Near East archeology and then show specifically how the humanities benefitted from the work of archeologists.

Dr. Richardson, who has taught Old Testament and Hebrew on the Hill since 1945, received his Ph.D at Boston university in 1951.

AN INFORMAL discussion period, in which pictures of archaeological work will be featured, will be held at 8 p.m. at the Faculty club in Haven hall, for both students and faculty members.

OPENING THE University's annual service of Humanities lectures, DR. H. NEIL RICHARDSON will discuss the importance of archaeology in the humanities field Thursday.

Trustees' Decision: Will Retain Gelbart

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Syracuse university Board of Trustees voted Friday to retain Dr. Abe Gelbart, associate professor of mathematics, on the University faculty.

HE TESTIFIED under oath that he was not now a Communist. He had previously stated to the Committee counsel and at an informal Committee session that he was not and had never been a Communist.

He stated that his refusal to testify under oath as to whether he had ever been a Communist was due to a fear that his denial, which would have conflicted with testimony of three Massachusetts Institute of Technology professors, would have subjected him and his family to the prolonged and expensive hardship of legal prosecution.

Chancellor William P. Tolley tied in Syracuse university's policy on academic freedom with the Gelbart case.

"There is no room on the Syracuse faculty for members of the Communist Party," he said, noting that "scholars are not expected to think alike, for where everyone thinks the same thoughts, no one thinks at all."

THERE MUST be many schools of opinion and a great diversity of points of view within a university if it is to have a vigorous intellectual life, he said. Ideas are the main business of a university; independent thinking is its stock in trade.

Dr. Tolley said that "Independent thinking grows strong only on a diet of free inquiry."

Because of this atmosphere of freedom in American colleges and universities, the Chancellor said, it is not surprising "that some Communist party members and fellow travelers wormed their way into academic life in the twenties, thirties, and early forties."

The small influence Communism has had on American higher education is really surprising in view of the tremendous amounts of money spent in this country on Communist propaganda and the highly disciplined character of the Communist Party organization, he said.

"PROF. GELBART is the first member of our Syracuse faculty who has been summoned before a committee investigating un-American activity," Dr. Tolley said. "He appeared before the Velde committee on May 28, 1953."

At an informal hearing of the Committee he declared that he is not now and has never been a Communist. Appearing at a formal hearing later, however, he invoked the protection of the Fifth Amendment when questioned about his past.

"It is significant to note that there is no charge that Prof. Gelbart is now a Communist," the Chancellor said. "The question is not whether he is now a Communist, but whether he was a Communist when he was a graduate student several years ago."

He admits that he attended public meetings at which Communists spoke and that he conversed and associated with Communist Party members.

HE HAS stated that he sought the protection of the Fifth Amendment with respect to questions about past activities "to avoid any future indictment on the charge of perjury in which the cards would be stacked against him by three witnesses who had been active Communists," Dr. Tolley stated.

Shortly after the Velde Committee hearing, Dr. Eric Faigle, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, was asked by the administration to conduct an investigation of Prof. Gelbart. Dean Faigle was assisted by ten members of the Liberal Arts exec-

Increase in University Enrollment Predicted

Chancellor William P. Tolley predicted increases in University enrollment for the next two years at the Board of Trustees meeting last Friday.

Current estimates of college enrollments, Dr. Tolley said, have been based on the estimated number of people of college age. "With this as the only yardstick," he noted, "college enrollments should have declined this fall and the decrease was expected to continue throughout 1954."

HE STATED that the effect of economic conditions on the percentage of high school students going on to college had been ignored. "The high level of business prosperity we now enjoy is beginning to increase the percentage of youth attending college," he said.

Hugh C. Gregg, University vice president and treasurer, reported that total expenditures for the past fiscal year, which ended June 30, 1953 was $12,994,866.

Scholarship aid to 2,272 undergraduate and graduate students totalled $472,899. The Institute of Industrial Research realized an income of $1,917,758.

More than $4,736,000 was expended on ten new buildings during the fiscal year. This brought the total amount invested in buildings and equipment since the beginning of the building and development program four years ago to $11,985,296.

VICE PRESIDENT and Dean of Student Services Frank P. Piskor reported on financial aids available and problems connected therewith.

He said that the study is in process to learn more about scholarships, loans and grants-in-aid, and relationships between them.

Prof. Noreda A. Rotunno reported on University growth from the first building, HL, to the current building program. He showed with charts the periods of development, stressing that not until Chancellor Tolley came to Syracuse was there any attention given to an overall plan for the campus.

Grid Victory, Weather Combine for Weekend

Beautiful weather, traditional events, a dedication, dance and parties topped off with a 34-18 gridiron victory over Colgate—all added up to a perfect Colgate weekend, 1953.

More than 2,500 spirited Syracuse fans climaxed a parade through University area streets with a pep rally on Hendricks field Friday night.

PRETTY CAROL Amacher, Warren, Pa., sophomore, was introduced to the crowd as Colgate weekend queen. She was crowned by weekend Co-chairmen Gilbert Katz and Marven Wallen. Miss Amacher, a resident of Shaw dormitory, was selected from a field of 78 contestants in the Orange Key-sponsored contest. Runnersup who were in the queen's court were Susan Haggerty, Mimi Lienwald, Ann Reed and Shirley Saari.

The queen presented cups to the winners of the annual Colgate poster contest sponsored by Tau Sigma Delta, architecture and allied arts honorary.

Taking first place in the fraternity division was Alpha Chi Rho, with its "Rolling Along" poster of a Syracuse man on a bicycle. Delta Gamma garnered top honors for sororities with a colorful barbershop declaring "Saltine Warrior will trim Colgate to size."

Winchell hall won the large independent house crown with a knight on a horse and the Syracuse Men's Co-op took the small house prize for its portrayal of the Syracusan Indian maiden beating a Colgate rug.

THE MARCHING band was also on hand, with twirler Alta Burg expertly maneuvering two flaming batons.

Queen Carol touched a match to an effigy of a Colgate player to end the evening. The figure was made by Delta Delta Delta sorority and carried by Phi Gamma Delta members onto the field in a casket mounted on the Alpha Tau Omega cannon carriage.

Hendricks chapel was filled to capacity after the rally for the sixth annual Brotherhood service sponsored by Jewish Student fellowship. Dr. Ralph Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist church in New York, was preacher.

About 250 early-risers Saturday enjoyed the Bill Orange breakast sponsored by the junior class. The Figi Four and Ray Caldiero supplied entertainment.

VETERAN FOOTBALL Coach Frank J. (Buck) O'Neill was honored at halftime ceremonies before 37,000 fans in Archbold stadium. Chancellor William P. Tolley, Vice Chancellor Crawford and Director of Athletics Lewis P. Andreas announced that the former Syracuse and Colgate mentor's name will be placed in the National Football Hall of Fame at Rutgers university.

Business Schools Require Grad Test

The Educational Testing service recently announced that an admission test for graduate study in business will be administered for the first time during February and May of the year 1954.

At the present time nine divisions of universities will require candidates for admission to take this test. The applicant is advised to inquire at the school of his choice as to whether and when it wishes him to take the admission test. Since many business schools and divisions select their entering classes in the spring preceding their entrance, candidates for admission to the 1954 classes are advised to offer the February test, if possible.

The examination is not designed to test any specific knowledge in academic subjects. Norman undergraduate training should provide sufficient general knowledge as to enable the student to answer these questions.

Institutions requiring this test are the business schools or divisions connected with the following universities: Columbia university, Harvard university, Northwestern university, Rutgers university, Seton Hall university, University of Chicago, University of Michigan, University of Pennsylvania, Washington university (St. Louis).

Andrews Opens Seminars Today

William S. Andrews, winner of a Fulbright scholarship to The Netherlands last year, will describe Europe's view of America in the second of the seminar series being conducted by the Syracuse Peace council today at 8 p.m. in the Director's room of the Syracuse Savings bank.

Andrews, a graduate of Yale and Syracuse university, has traveled widely throughout Europe while studying international law.

Dr. Byron L. Fox, associate professor of sociology is in general charge of the series. The seminar will be concluded with talks on India and Burma.

AEPi Dedicates Memorial Room

The brothers of AEPi held a memorial service Saturday night at the chapter house to dedicate their newly constructed Ray Fine room to the memory of the former intercollegiate boxing champion. Ray, one of the founders of the chapter, was killed in an automobile accident in Germany while attending the 1952 Olympics.

Funds for the room were donated by the Fine family.

Dorsey Brothers Appear at Hotel

A portion of that fabulous era when "swing was the thing" will be relived at the Persian Terrace of Hotel Syracuse through Saturday of this week with the appear ance of the revitalized orchestra of Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey.

The brothers who split their well known band partnership several years ago to go separate ways, joined forces once again early last summer and since that time, have enjoyed a happy success on the road.

Billed as "that sentimental gentleman, Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra featuring Jimmy Dorsey," the combination made its debut on the Jackie Gleason show earlier this year.

Music by the Dorseys will be at dinner and supper from 7 p.m. each evening.

In Memoriam

An energetic sports enthusiast . . . a lively personality with an undercurrent of serious dedication to the task at hand . . . a well-liked, fun-loving, wholesome Syracusan . . . a model of the peppy unsophisticated coed . . .

These are the memories that will be cherished by the friends of Carrie Lou Andrews. Her name was known beyond the confines of the Hill campus, as she was a familiar figure in skating and skiing circles in central New York. A member of a skating family, she could not help but join the tradition by becoming a figure skating star. She will also be remembered as co-chairman of the campus Winter Carnival ice pageant last year.

We join the legion of Hill students who attended her services yesterday in mourning the passing of this active senior coed. On behalf of the student body we should like to express our sincere sympathy to her family, relatives and many friends.

Policy in action

"There is no room on the Syracuse faculty for a member of the Communist party."

Chancellor William P. Tolley told the University Board of Trustees last week that we must oppose the Communist party because it is a party of conspiracy and treason. He said that we cannot defend it on the same grounds that we would defend dissent or heresy.

Dr. Tolley, noting the dangers of a group that has become nothing more than the agent of a State "with designs against our country," said the University will not knowingly employ a Communist Party member and will release immediately any person who is such a member.

He wisely noted the differences in the climate of political opinion in the days when many of the present college professors were students searching for ideals to which they could cling.

We may not always be convinced that an actual change in ideas has really taken place in those persons who were once Communists, Dr. Tolley said. Nevertheless, we must develop something like a "statute of limitations" so that men are not persecuted and prosecuted for errors of their youth and for misguided idealism, he stated.

This paper believes that those persons who would deny an educated man the right to realize his past errors and the fallacies in a belief like Communism are important menaces with whom we must cope.

He noted that there should certainly be no summary dismissal of a person who invokes his Constitutional rights—in particular the Fifth Amendment—when testifying on political activities.

To this paper, each case should be treated individually by the university that employs the person whose political affiliations are in question.

Dr. Abe Gelbart, Syracuse university math professor, was questioned last May by the House Un-American Activities committee. He declared under oath that he is not now a member of the Communist party. When asked whether he was ever a member, he invoked the Fifth Amendment.

There is no charge that Dr. Gelbart is now a Communist.

After a hearing by a University faculty committee and assent by the Board of Trustees, he has been retained on the faculty.

In accordance with the philosophy stressed by the Chancellor and the trustees, Gelbart, having no present Communist affiliation, has been retained.

His case was treated in a fair manner by all parties concerned. Dr. Tolley did not suggest blanket approval of invoking the Fifth Amendment. However, there can conversely be no general condemnation of the use of the amendment, if all cases can be handled by the individual university on an individual basis.

Hoppin' Maroon Jive; Notes on Colgate Game

By HOMER

(Blew a few inches of dust off our desk last night and found the following notes on the margins of a dog-eared copy of "Hoyle." Our man had vanished through a newly punched hole in the wall.)

Great party. Emptied my mug and peered around for date . . .gone, where the hell was everyone? Grabbed blanket, poked head through a window, wicked gash over left eye. People carrying blankets away from Thornden area, strange . . . Wandered disconsolately to Archbold. Finally found seat . . . behind solid post . . . ooops, was my date. Suddenly kickoff, people yelling like mad, fellow in front of me particularly hopped up . . . had rammed my SU pennant down his neck, obviously Colgate man. Orange-clad man on field running, good idea . . . took off down sideline shouting for lateral, fool ignored me, he was sacked. Ran into cannon, I was sacked . . . wicked gash over right eye. Scrambled back to stands, grabbed nearest program to check player's number, figured he was an E-flat playing Tuba. Tremendous racket started up . . . guy with trumpet tooting and everybody yelled "Charge" in left ear . . . yelled "Retreat" back and was slammed for five bars. Pulled the cork out of my Coke bottle, fumes blacked out entire brass section, hopped it for the field. Long pass floating down sideline, man in ill-looking maroon shirt diving for it, I dove for it . . . bells ringing all over the place . . . tremendous clang-clang in the ears; found myself under the ChiRho bell, clapper denting lead-lined beany . . . wicked gash over left ear. Cleared vision to find field full of sport jackets and green-looking brass section. Wiggly lass with chrome-plated swagger stick lurching around . . . crew looked depleated so ran out on field. Collided with good neighbor, Bop . . . did a fast Charleston, fellow in tweed jacket joined us, great; fellow in blazer fell in, great; man in blue uniform with brass buttons hove too . . . beat it. Bunch of bruisers in orange helmets chased me back into stands . . . began yelling for Syracuse, suddenly clobbered from behind, was on the Colgate side, wicked gash over right ear. Yelled "hoodoo" and cut across field. Play started, quarterback spun and handed me the ball. Would have knifed through tackle but switchblade was broke. Lateralled to halfback and threw mighty block . . . took halfback right out of the game. Took me right out of the game . . . water boy approaching with bucket, line coach with towel, Ben with open hand: buddies, I thought. Suddenly cannon went off . . . wondered why since no touchdown. Found bucket bent over head, mouth wadded with towel and hand laying me too, wicked gash over nose. Woke up in Colgate dressing room . . . think my school spirit is flagging.

By BOP

It's not the pale moon that excites me. Nor Lena Horne who delights me. Oh, no.

It's just the absolute frivolity and gaiety and nonsense and complete experience of extreme nervousness which comes from sitting around with a lot of squares.

And when the afternoon in question would be the nuttiest of all frantic days, Colgate bacchanalia; well, Dad, things can be hotter than Dizzy's horn. Sho--bee-doo.

There we were; out of cigarettes. Holding hands, eating hot dogs and suddenly down, down on the field, the cats commenced.

Up in the stands, general chaos was evident among the 35,000 or so jacks and jills who were making it with the contest. Life upon the wicked stage is sheer emptiness compared with us hipsters.

She's only five foot two with two eyes of blue but she's my girl and I luve her. So when things began to get quiet in our slab of stadium, my girl suggested we make with some home brew which was being consumed by the gentlemen next.

Well, we, me and my girl, went for several ounces. There're not making the stuff as strong this year. Much later, me and my girl, felt the stuff was going to our heads like a kicker in a julip or two.

Taking five, me and my girl hopped down onto the gridiron turf during the half-time stunt to let fly with our latest Charleston routine. And hod-bodkins, if we didn't meet with Homer who was stomping on the soil in a fit of bubbley splendor.

Suddenly he was gone.

Back in the home chairs, I began to dig that the fellas on the field weren't the only ones making passes. The jack next was trying to break up that old gang of mine, me and my girl. He was pulling a Gary Cooper, a Monty Clift, and a Tony Curtis and doing quite well, at that.

Dad, I did the least. My girl would have none of my complaints and began to slam the "Blacksmith Blues" on my uppermost. And the boy next door, joined in. Smash, bam, al a-ka-a-zam! I got a kick out of them.

Hours later, I swirled out of nowhere to find the boys of XXX peering down upon my sad remains and commenting, "Dad, you've flipped, you've swung, you've bopped, but now we fear you've really flopped."

There I was. The most uncrazy weekendless cat on campus. No girl, no feeling, no future.

Again. It's not the pale moon that excites me.

Oh, no.

LAND OF THE 38TH

Ducking UN Bullets

By FRANK McGUIRE

"I think I was shot at by the UN more often than by the Communists in Korea." Unlikely as this sounds, Jim Stevens swears it's true. Jim is a sophomore and lists several incidents to back up his claim, to wit: "One night near Joe Stalin hill, one of our patrols was shot up prettily badly and I took a stretcher out to them. But I got flustered and forgot two things, my white coveralls and my rifle."

"When the patrol saw me without coveralls, they thought I was a gook and decided to shoot first and ask questions later. Before they had a chance to start shooting, we got proper identification and saved our necks."

While dressing for a date, he went on with the story: "Near Kumwha, we were on a ten-man patrol and I was supposed to keep in contact with the main force by a sound phone. I kept contact all night and had no trouble with identification. When we returned to the lines about three o'clock in the morning, they wouldn't let us in because they thought we were Chinese. Who did they think they'd been talking to all night? So we stayed out in no man's land until after daybreak, then they let us in."

"Even my forestry education was used by the outfit I was with. When they found out I was a forestry student, I was put in charge of cutting down trees for bunkers. We cut down one tree and when it fell, a mine exploded. The tree had been wired as a booby trap by UN forces. That put a quick stop to my forestry career in Korea."

Jim Stevens is still in forestry and no longer worries about exploding mines when he cuts down a tree. Jim entered the Army from his home town of Hamburg, N. Y. in August, 1951. While in Korea he served with the 224th Infantry Regiment of the 40th division.

'Playing for Keeps'

Excerpts from sermon preached by Charles C. Noble in Hendricks Chapel on Colgate Weekend Sunday, November 15, 1953.)

Noting the driving spirit with which the men on both teams tackled and ran last Saturday, a friend of mine said: "Those boys are playing for keeps." How indispensible that spirit of passionate commitment is!

The price of achievement has always been unreserved devotion to a cause. Men who wage war know what it means to be expendable. Those who seek the fruits of peace should be no less expendable. To win anything worthwhile, from a football game to a pretty girl, requires an all-out effort.

Dr. Luccock of Yale university tells the story about a young man in Pittsburgh who was in love with a young woman who lived on the outskirts of the city. To court the girl, the young man had to take a Toonerville-type trolley car out and back. Every night for a year this fellow called on his girl. At the end of that time he thought that he had made his point and proposed. She turned him down, whereupon he inquired in great bewilderment: "For 365 nights I have climbed into this wretched trolley car and rattled out here to the end of the line to make love to you and now you turned me down. Why?"

She replied: "But not once in all that time did you ever miss the last car home!"

Successful living requires abandon.

If a man says that he is not responsible for the world's future, he is, by that very indifference, helping the world down the hill into Hell.

He is guilty of contributory negligence. If a man says he has no moral code, no faith and no sense of values, he is thereby revealing himself before the world as a malingerer and as a millstone about the neck of society.

At every point life faces us with moral choices. By failing to maintain our integrity when our appetites clash with our ideals, we become hypocrites. There is nothing more abhorrent to decent people than a "phoney."

The main question is: Are we willing to gamble on ultimates; to risk something for higher causes which involve faith? Just what is your aim in life anyway, happiness or helpfulness? Is it inner ease and security which you seek to be had for the investment of $3.85 in a know-how book, or are you willing personally to invest in the destiny of your day and to share in its agony as well as its aspirations?

As Chaplain Kennedy in the First World War said, "Only a passion can conquer a passion."

We need to move through matters of fact to matters of faith. These are matters of fact that brotherhood is a good thing, that honesty is the best policy, and that love, properly implemented, can conquer hate. The question is: Is there anything in the universe which sustains these ideals and which stands eternally on their side?

We are thrown, like the three men in the ancient story, into the fiery furnace of our day.

We are challenged now to go all out for our faith that man is more than an animal, that the things which are unseen will abide long after the things which are seen perish, that the basic nature of the universe sustains righteousness, truth and love, and that they who do the will of God shall abide forever.

LETTERARY COMMENT

FOOD FOR STOMACH AND MIND

(Editor's note: The following letter was written by a senior in Journalism-Adult education. These are his observations after attending many of the meetings of International students on the Hill. Mentee is from Liberia, West Africa.)

To the Editor of the Daily Orange:

Foreign students come to a world-famous school like the Syracuse university for advantages they cannot get if they study in some small colleges in the United States. One of the advantages is to meet other foreign students and get first hand knowledge of what is being done in other parts of the world towards the building of a future better world.

It has been the custom of people in charge of foreign students affairs to give us delicious coffee, cookies and sweet music that often caused some fellows to dance their heels off whenever we meet for socials. While thanking them for taking care of our stomachs, and general happiness in this manner, I do not believe that the dance of the stomach is the only thing that matters, though the latter is very important as well.

I therefore would suggest that our minds be also fed at these socials. This can be done by including in the foreign students' social activities speeches by foreign as well as American students who would volunteer to talk with us for 25 to 30 minutes.

Wouldn't this help us all to straighten out stray ends of our knowledge of other countries? I believe this plan, besides the excellent class room lectures, would give our minds some food for thought.

THE DU PONT DIGEST

The characteristics of a super-pressure pump, designed by Du Pont engineers and made in Du Pont shops, are studied by Ralph C. Grubb, B.S.M.E., Tennessee '51, and Paul D. Kohl, B.S.M.E., Purdue '46.

Design
AND DEVELOPMENT

Call for Knowledge, Ingenuity, Teamwork

Making new products in large amounts, devising new processes, and improving old ones—such problems are the job of Design and Development. An example was the development of a large-scale process for making "Orlon" acrylic fiber starting from small laboratory samples of polyacrylonitrile.

Quantity production of polymer was only a beginning. A whole set of new and unusual problems arose in spinning the fiber, because polyacrylonitrile decomposes before it melts, and it dissolves only in high-boiling solvents.

A team of Du Pont technical men—chemical and mechanical engineers, instrumentation specialists, metallurgists, and materials handling experts undertook to find a solution. Here are a few of the problems they met:

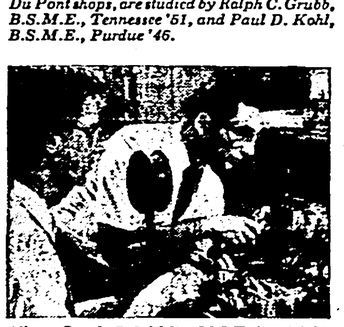
1. Solve problems in heat transfer and fluid flow arising from the fact that the spinning solution must be blanketed with inert gas to prevent fire hazards.

2. Design a system for controlling the temperature of the viscous spinning solution within ±0.5°F. at hundreds of points in the plant.

3. Design new mechanisms for winding yarn at high speed without any deviation in yarn tension.

4. Design air conditioning and ventilating systems to remove fumes from specific spots, but still allow easy access to all areas.

Among Du Pont's many research and engineering activities, Design and Development jobs provide great opportunity for the knowledge, ingenuity, and teamwork capacities of men in a great variety of technical fields.



Albert Rand, B.S.M.E., M.I.T. '50 (right) develops controls for chemical equipment.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

It has been said that a man is without honor in his own home town and it seems that the old cliche applies perfectly to the Syracuse Flash, Pat Stark. The former Vocational High star has been mentioned prominently for all-East honors, but in the Salt City a less-appreciative attitude prevails.

The post-game comment Saturday was about the sterling performances by center Ted Kukowski, guard Bob Fleck and end Herb Steigler, all of whom admittedly played fine ball. But hardly anyone said anything about Stark, who followed up previous games by completing 10 out of 16 passes for 169 yards.

Pat Stark is one of those players who consistently shows well game after game. Only when he doesn't come up to his usual standards, such as in the Boston U tie, is there any comment.

The Colgate game served as a clincher for several out-of-town observers, however, who feel that Pat, together with Kukowski, would be excellent material for the East in its annual charity battle against the West all-Stars.

Pat's week-in, week-out, top-notch play has been already statistically proven. He stood 13th in the nation in percentage of pass completions with a 52.2 average last week, which was upped a few more points against Colgate.

It's evident that if Pat played for an out-of-town school, he might be given more recognition. With so many Orange stars, it seems that one light has gone partially unnoticed.

* * * * * *

The Orangemen's final opponent, Villanova, is a study in contrasts. On paper, as scout Ted Dailey said yesterday, the Wildcats appear to be "the greatest ball club in the East." On the field, they just can't get started.

With a line which averages 220 pounds and a team three deep at almost every position, it could be expected that Villanova would be among the leaders. Instead, the Wildcats have shown flashes of their potential greatness, but sport only a disappointing two-win and six-loss record.

As assistant Wildcat Coach Alex Bell has stated, "We don't know ourselves what's wrong." The Syracuse game, scheduled in late August, was ballyhood in early season as the game which could possibly decide the Lambert Trophy winner. Now it's just another football game.

The one thing which the Orange will have to watch is that the home team might convert its latent potential into reality on its semi-final game of the year. With such men as Gene Filipski, who is as good on defense as he is at offensive halfback, the Wildcats could explode.

Although most observers are predicting an Orange win, we'll venture to say that the game could well be the toughest on the Syracuse slate. The Wildcats may come up with their Sunday punch in the next-to-last round.

Orange Gridders Prepare for Finale

END HERB STEIGLER snares a pass from Pat Stark for the third Orange touchdown in Saturday's 34-18 victory over Colgate. JACK OWENS (21) and TED VURBEFF (49) of the Raiders attempt to block the aerial while Syracusan RAY PERKINS (88) closes in.

It's a successful season! The criteria for this—beating Colgate, has been accomplished and the Orangemen are now working for the game with Villanova in Philadelphia this weekend. After a rough Colgate game, Head Coach Ben Schwartzwalder rested his varsity players to restore their strength which will be needed to run against the heavier Wildcats.

The biggest name on the mythical injury list is Bob Leberman. Hustlin' Bob suffered a broken nose in the Raider game, but, hidden behind a mask, he will probably take the field against Villanova.

UNCLE BEN is wary of a letdown, as he was against Colgate. The Colgate game was a slight falling off from the Cornell game but almost any game would have been.

Last Saturday, blessed with perfect weather for a football game, Syracuse made the most of it. Colgate started fast. Throughout the first quarter, Colgate quarterback Dick Lalla "optioned" all over the field and finally stepped into the end zone himself.

Pat Stark was standing in the end zone for a Syracuse score nine plays and 49 yards after the ensuing kick-off. McClelland kicked-off after the TD and Colgate, led by Lalla, came pitching-out down the field again. It wasn't until end Ray Perkins intercepted a Lalla pass on the two-yard line, four plays before the first quarter ended, that either team was stalled.

On the third play of the second quarter, Lalla was running around in his own backfield trying to avoid Sam Johnson. Lalla turned, stumbled and wrenched his knee in the fall. After Lalla came limping off, the "Battle of Quarterbacks" was over. Colgate scored once more but Jack Owens, Lalla's replacement, wasn't up to the starter's performance.

SYRACUSE'S ENTRY in the "battle", Pat Stark, then threw to Bruce Yancey and Herb Steigler for second quarter TD's.

In the third quarter, Pat dusted off the old end-around play, which had been shelved since the Penn State game, and fed Perkins into the end zone 29 yards away. After Owens threw to Corbo for another Colgate score, Stark sent Sam Alexander into the end zone for Syracuse's last, orunding out the final score at 34-18.

FROSH LOSE

Fumbles, penalties and a rugged Colgate frosh football squad combined to end the Syracuse yearling gridders' season on a sour note Friday afternoon as the Maroon cubs pinned a decisive 27-6 defeat on the Tangerines before 1,500 homecoming fans at Hendricks field.

Booters End Season With Win Over RPI

Coach Andy Coccari's soccer forces wound up a successful campaign last Friday afternoon with a 2-1 win over a rugged RPI team. This victory brought the booters' final seasonal record to four wins, one loss and a tie in intercollegiate competition.

Vic Oberschal's goal at 8:35 of the opening period, on an assist from Don Shupe, gave the Hillmen a lead that they never relinquished. Syracuse dominated the play during the opening period but the Engineers' goalie proved too tough for further scoring.

WITH LESS than nine minutes remaining in the half, Billy Nelson converted a penalty shot from close in. This was Nelson's seventh goal of the season to give him team scoring honors.

RPI's play picked up considerably in the second half. Only the fine play of Gunnar Wirth in the nets prevented a score for the visitors.

Wirth's string of 11 successive scoreless periods was broken with but two minutes gone in the final period. Jamie Pomerjal drove a bullet into the nets from close-in to give the Engineers' their only score.

The game was the roughest played by the booters this season. Both teams were on the verge of fisticuffs many times during the tilt. Fine officiating and cooler heads prevented this situation, however.

Hill Sailors Last In Mid-Atlantics

Syracuse university's sailing team wound up the year's intercollegiate competition with a last place finish in the Middle Atlantic championships held over the weekend at Annapolis, Maryland.

Competing against the top teams in the East, Syracuse was outclassed by such powers as Navy, George Washington and Princeton. The Midshipmen copped individual and team honors.

Representing the Orange sailors were Captain Jack Cummings, Mary Lynn Miller, Mary Jean Perry and Dick Hollander.

of Penn State, who captured the fifth spot; Harold Snyder from Alfred, who came in sixth; NYU's George King, who crossed the finish line in seventh place; and James Byrnes and Don Townsend of St. John's who finished ninth and tenth, respectively.

Bob Littenier of Georgetown won the three-mile frosh race in 14:43.2. He, too, had little trouble in garnering the victory by easy outdistancing his rivals in the early going and cosating across the finish line well ahead of the other freshman runners. This race was held in the morning.

Aexander Brechenridge of Villanova, an exchange student from Scotland, was second in the frosh meet. Maryland won the freshman team title with 56 points. Pitt also garnered second spot in this meet with 74 points.

The complete team scores:

Michigan State 82, Pittsburgh 84, Penn State 88, Syracuse 139, Cornell 147, Army 222, Manhattan 223, St. John's 241, Georgetown 277, New York University 289, Yale 309, Harvard 316, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia 333, Massachusetts 336, MIT 341, Maine 400, Pennsylvania 418, Columbia 452, Rutgers 465, Rhode Island 492, Fordham 549, Princeton 608.

The order of finish for the first 10 varsity runners:

1. John Kelly, BU,	24:51.7
2. John Joe Barry, Vill.	24:58
3. Bob Hollen, Penn State	24:59
4. Ray Osterhout, Syracuse	25:18
5. Lamont Smith, P.S.	25:18
6. Harold Snyder, Alfred	25:26
7. George King, NYU	25.28
8. Ed Shea, Northwestern	25:39
9. Jim Byrnes, St. John's	25:42
10. Don Townsend, St. John's	25:45

Phi Psi Swimmers Trounce Betas, 21-6

McGill Leads Winners To Playoff Victory

By BOB NEWMARK

The swimming team from Phi Kappa Psi progressed a step further in the Intramural playoffs yesterday by trouncing the mermen of Beta Theta Pi, 21-6, in the Archbold pool.

John McGill, consistent winner all season long, led the Phi Psi's by scoring first in both the breaststroke and the backstroke. Ted Bronoczyk started things off for the winners with a first place in the 50-yard freestyle. John Polck finished second, the only time a Beta placed higher than third in the meet.

Whitey Wilson and Ed Rooney took second places in the breaststroke and backstroke, respectively, to score second to McGill.

Phi Psi clinched the meet after three of the four scheduled events had been run off and the final event, the 200-yard freestyle relay, was canceled.

Fritz Loosli, Swiss Skiing Expert, Will Speak to SUSKI Tomorrow

Fritz Loosli, Swiss born ski pro and first exponent of the French Parallel technique in North America, will speak and show movies at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday Nov. 18 at the Ski lodge. The public is invited to the Ski Club-sponsored program.

Loosli, head of the Chateau Frontenac's Ski Hawk school in Quebec for the past 14 years, will run three full-color movies. Two films include shots of skiing in and around Quebec and the Canadian Rockies, Loosli will narrate the third film based on the French Parallel technique of skiing.

A SKIIER since the age of 3, Loosli taught skiing at St. Moritz and to the Swiss army before transferring interests to Canada in 1926. In 1936, the pro helped develop skiing at Blue Mountain, famous Ontario skiing territory.

After mentoring ski activities fo rthe Toronto Ski club from 1937 to 1939, Loosli organized the Ski Hawk school at Chateau Frontenac, a Canadian Pacific hotel. The director's teaching staff consists of a chief instructor and four assistants.

French Parallel technique was initiated in America by Loosli in 1939, soon after he became associated with Chateau Frontenac. A campaign urging the adoption of the technique was waged for 12 years. When the French Ski team raced in the U. S. A. and Canada in 1949 Loosli was presented a medal from French officials for his promotion of French methods.

Since the war, Loosli has been touring Eastern states each fall to lecture and display colored films of his technique. he expert spends ski-filled summers designing and supervising production of new laminated skis at Peterborough, Ontario.

FRITZ LOOSLI, Swiss-born skiing expert, will address the Syracuse university Ski club tomorrow. He will speak and show movies on skiing in Quebec.

Chancellor Tolley gave the main dedication address. In his talk he praised the new building as being the finest building for women that has ever been built.

Tolley noted that this dedication meant a greater equality for women. There should be nothing in a University curriculum that should be open to men and not to women. He said that there are 66 per cent men and 33 per cent women here. In this kind of atmosphere a woman has a better chance both academically and socially.

Following the dedication, guided tours of the building were conducted and guests were given a chance to see the various departments in full operation

Czech-born Virtuoso Will Present Concert

Rudolph Firkusny, Czech-born piano virtuoso, will present the third concert of the current Famous Artists series Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in Lincoln auditorium. The concert will be dedicated as the Syracuse Steinway Centennial celebration.

The Syracuse presentation is part of the nation-wide observance by Steinway and Cons, the world-reknowned piano manufacturers, which has included a multi-artist concert at Carnegie Hall two weeks ago.

FOLLOWING THE concert, the Clark Music co. will hold a reception in the Cavalier room of Hotel Syracuse honoring Firkusny and Henry Z. Steinway, second eldest son of Theodore E. Steinway, president of the company. The younger Steinway, factory manager of the firm, will be in Syracuse as guest of honor at the occasion.

Firkusny, called "one of the foremost keyboard virtuosos of his generation," enjoys the distinction of almost annual appearances with leading symphonies. This season, for the fourth straight year, he will be soloist with the New York Philharmonic symphony, and the Chicago and St. Louis orchestras.

Last season, within a month's time, he was soloist at Carnegie hall in five concerts with the New York Philharmonic and the visiting Boston and Philadelphia groups.

The artist's 100th anniversary concert will feature such works as "Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue" by Bach, "Sonata in C, Op. 53", Beethoven; "Ballade in F Minor" and "Scherzo in B-1 flat minor" by Chopin, and two Czech dances and "Smetana Polka."

Erikson Presents Talk on Sweden To Catholic Men

Gus Erikson, head crew coach at Syracuse university, was guest speaker at the annual St. Thomas More Holy Name society meeting Wednesday night at the St. Thomas More chapel.

Erikson's visit to Sweden last summer was the subject of a short talk, and colored slides were shown. While working with Swedish crews during his stay, Erikson was able to go behind the Iron Curtain, and some of his experiences there were mentioned in his talk.

Robert Curran, president of the Holy Name society, outlined the work of the organization and committee chairmen gave reports of the civic, religious and social work being carried on by the group this year. The eleven committees of the Society all play an integral role in the overall operation of the Catholic program at the University.

St. Thomas More chapel has an enrollment of more than 2,100 Catholic students, of which nearly 1,400 are men.

utive committee and two other faculty members.

Members of the committee made several trips to acquire additional information about Prof. Gelbart. Faculty members were invited to appear before the committee and Prof. Gelbart testified at great length.

The faculty committee, in its report to the Chancellor and executive committee of the Board of Trustees, while censuring Dr. Gelbart for making use of the Fifth Amendment, voted unanimously that he not be deprived of his position.

THE TRUSTEE'S executive committee, also regretting use of the Fifth Amendment, voted unanimously that he should, on the basis of evidence presented, be retained on the faculty.

The Board as a whole approved the actions and recommendations of the two committees Friday afternoon.

Dr. Tolley stated Friday that "Dr. Gelbart is an unusually able mathematician. He is a specialist in analysis who has made significant contributions in mathematical research. His conduct on and off campus has been exemplary."

Prof. Gelbart had been called before the House committee as a result of testimony by three members of the M.I.T. faculty who stated that they believed he might have been a Communist some 13 or 14 years ago while a graduate student at M.I.T.

They testified that they had seen him at what were alleged to have been Communist cell meetings, but admitted that they had never heard him voice a Communist word, carry a card, make contributions, or pay dues.

Goal for Blood Drive Fixed at 1,000 Pints

Today is the deadline for signups for blood donations. All sheets must be turned in to the women's student government office or the Theta Phi Alpha house by 5 p.m.

Blood will be taken today for the first time. Donors are requested to report to the men's gym between 10 and 4 p.m. The University will serve special meals in the dining halls to those giving blood. Foods containing fats and eggs should not be eaten by the donors.

Campus Chest is giving the drive full support in its effort to achieve their goal of 1,000 pints. Last year's quota of 500 pints was topped by 20.

Students over 18 may give blood; however, those under 21 must have written parental consent. Members of the faculty and administration are also urged to participate.

One hundred and seventy-five College of Forestry Students have registered to give blood. As of this afternoon, 140 forcsters had given 120 pints. This is the seventh time the foresters have had such a drive; this year's campaign is headed by forestry seniors James Craine and William Fessel.

Over-all chairman of the drive is Mary Flavin. She is assisted by Daniel Russell and Diane Johnson.

Robert Beattie is in charge of the Interfraternity Council, while Robert Lathum is head of the independent men. Hostesses are under the direction of Anne MacKenzie, who is also chairman of the trophy to be awarded to the house donating the most blood.

Students to Confer With Navy Reps

Cadet Flight Training Leads to Commission

Representatives of the Navy's pilot training program will be on campus tomorrow to speak to all students interested in flying for that branch of the armed forces.

A special information booth will be set up in Slocum and Maxwell to explain details of the program.

The Naval Aviation Cadet training program is opened to single men, 18 to 25 years old, who have had at least 60 semester hours of college work completed. Twenty-twenty vision and ability to pass a physical and aptitude test are also required.

Accepted candidates will be flown to Pensacola, Fla., where they will undergo 18 months of flight training. Upon completion of their training, they are commissioned ensigns and can be assigned to continue specialized training or be assigned to Fleet Operating Units.

Lt. Wally McNabb will be among the representatives who will explain the program. He is especially interested in interviewing seniors with the necessary quallfications.

Hygiene Lecture Features ROTC

A panel discussion on "Military Service and You" will be held at 4 p.m. today in the Colonial room of the Chapel in connection with the mental hygiene lecture series.

Colonel Robert P. Halloran of AFROTC will discuss the problem of joining ROTC or taking a chance on the draft. Mrs. Jane Glassman, of the Home Economics college, will debate the topic of when to get married. Earl W. Clifford, assistant dean of men, will discuss "Is It Possible to Avoid Military Service?"

This is the fourth scheduled lecture in the newly-formed series. Beverly Darrow and Everett Gertner are co-chairmen of the new committee.

Law Scholarships Available at Penn

Students entering the University of Pennsylvania Law School next fall are eligible for any one of 30 scholarships.

The grants are mostly full tuition wiht some worth half tuition. Additional scholarships carry an extra $1000 plus full tuition.

The awards will be made on the basis of scholastic promise and financial need. The geographic area in which the applicant resides will also be a factor.

Applications must be filled out prior to June 1, 1954. Students wishing more information should contact Earle W. Clifford in the Dean of Men's office.

Deadline for reservations for

WOODCHOPPERS' BALL

The annual Woodchoppers ball will be held from 7-12 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 21, in Bray hall.

Dungarees and old clothes will be worn at the ball.

Forestry Trustees Announce Plans, Report Expansion

Expansion in short courses for men in industry and for forest officers of experience was reported by Dean Hardy L. Shirley, of the State University of New York College of Forestry to the college's board of trustees at its fall meeting, Saturday, Nov. 14.

A total of 12 short courses and institutes have been planned by the college for 1953-54.

The Board approved the appointment of two new faculty members at the meeting. Henry W. Schramm was named instructor in the department of forest extension, and Edward von Ohlson was appointed as technical assistant in the department of forest economics.

Schramm, who will be editor of the college publications, is a Syracuse university graduate. He served as reporter for the Syracuse Post-Standard and the Binghamton press. He was also public and employees' relations administrator for the Ozalid Division of the General Aniline and Film corporation.

Von Ohlsen, a college of forestry graduate in 1951, did surveying, timber cruising, and timber buying for the D. B. Frampton co. in Ohio up to the time of his appointment here.

Attending the board meeting were executive dean of the State University professional schools Reuben Frodin; Supreme Court judge Francis McCurn, president of the board; Commissioner of Education Lewis A. Wilson, and Chancellor of Syracuse university William P. Tolley.

NY State Jobs Open To Grads, Seniors

Graduates and seniors who will have their degrees by next June may qualify for some 250 professional and technical positions in engineering, physics, chemistry and many other fields in the New York state government service.

About 30 public administration internships are open to those who will have a bachelor's degree plus appropriate graduate study of work experience.

All those interested can qualify for the jobs through the Civil Service department's seventh annual college series of examinations. Deadline for the filing of applications for the tests is Dec. 11.

Examinations for about 210 accounting and auditing positions, and for employment interviewer jobs, are open to persons who qualify through either college training or work experience. More than 200 of the jobs, in the fields of engineering or architecture, librfary science and public administration internships are open nation-wide to all citizens.

Those who do not have the specialized courses required for most of the jobs may compete for administration or some library jobs, or for a place on a general list. Annual salaries total well over one and a half million dollars.

This series has been held every year since 1948. According to Mr. Conway, these examinations have brought about 1,300 men and women in to career jobs with the state. Details concerning the examinations may be obtained from the placement office or by writing the Department of Civil Service, State Office Building, Albany, N. Y.

Labor Bargaining Topic of Lecture

Labor vs. Management in Collective Bargaining will be the topic under discussion at 4:30 today, in 110 Maxwell in the Human Understanding lecture.

Taking labor's side in the talk, will be Vincent Sullivan, president of the CIO Steelworkers union in Syracuse. C. J. Ciciarelli, Industrial Relations director of the Manufacturers Association of New York will discuss the question for management. Alfred H. Cope of the citizenship department will preside as moderator.

ROTC Sponsors Hill Rifle Teams For Men, Women

Inter-University Meets Slated After Holiday; Practice Planned

Syracuse marksmen are invited to join two newly formed all-University rifle teams, one for men and one for women, according to Lt. Col. G. R. Stevens of the Hill ROTC program. Practice will start today at the range in the men's gym.

Although the teams are being organized by ROTC, any University male or coed is eligible to participate in the program. Since it is an authorized University sport, letters and numerals will be awarded for active participation.

Rifles and ammunition are available for the practice sessions, which will be held Monday through Friday from 3 to 5 p.m., and Monday, Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m., in the range at the Men's gym, under the direction of Master Sgt. Ollie B. Atchison of Army ROTC, and Tech Sgt. Frank Sinclair of Air Force ROTC.

Postal meets, in which the competing teams shoot on their own ranges and mail the certified targets, are planned with about six universities. The first postal competition will take place soon after Thanksgiving.

Shoulder-to-shoulder meets, in which the competitors shoot on the same range, will probably be scheduled with Colgate, Cornell, and the University of Rochester. Definite dates have not been set.

Included in the new men's team will be the best marksmen from the Army and Air Force rifle teams, as well as Hill men not in ROTC.

The ROTC teams will also compete separately in military meets, including national matches as the National Intercollegiate match and the William Randolph Hearst match.

The William Randolph Hearst match was copped by the Syracuse ROTC team in 1947.

Syracusan on Sale, Hits Stands Today

The Indian Maiden is due to hit the campus again this morning as the November issue of the Syracusan goes on sale. And the issue promises to be a good one, with more cartoons, more pictures, and more jokes than last month, according to the editors.

And the stories and articles are good, too. We heard that the Syracusan Editor-in-Chief was going to go out and buy a copy himself this time. With themes varying from Thanksgiving through to a survey of the elephant population of Syracuse university, he says he won't be able to put it down.

Who knows, maybe he's telling the truth for once!

Research Grants Applications Due

Applications for undergraduate research grants in social science are available to juniors, who may conduct research during the summer under the guidance of faculty supervisors.

Information and application blanks may be obtained from Social Science Research Council, 726 Jackson pl., N. W., Washington 6, D. C. Applications are due Jan. 4, 1954.

Welcoming Committee

EXTENDING GREETINGS on the occasion of the dedication of the Women's Building last Sunday, Dean of Women MARJORIE C. SMITH, Miss LUCILLE H. VERHULST, Miss KATHERINE SIBLEY, Mrs. GERTRUDE S. BROOKS and Mrs. HUNTINGTON CROUSE, participated in the ceremony.

Social Hygienist Says Romance Can't Last

You cannot expect romance to continue on the courtship basis after marriage, Mrs. Jane Glassman warned at the social hygiene lecture yesterday.

The teacher of family living and child development spoke of the need for understanding the motivations of each partner.

"THE SENSE OF pursuit in courtship comes from the primary sexual element in men. This drive is satisfied in marriage," she explained.

"A woman's sexualized element is much more general and such things as tenderness and small attentions are indicative of love to her," Mrs. Glassman said.

She stressed the importance of understanding and accepting these basic differences.

Terming much of what is associated with romance as "fantasy", Mrs. Glassman said that "in our society there is too much emphasis on the sensual romantic ideal in courtship."

"MARRIAGE TODAY puts emphasis on having the partners' deepest needs met," she explained. "You expect a closeness and the ability to reveal yourself completely, still being accepted and understood."

Speaking of the maturity needed to begin a marriage, she told the group that "you have to have the feeling of self worth before you can love someone else."

"We may want one kind of ithng in our mate consciously and unconsciously look for something else," she said. "To reconcile these takes real maturity and often years of marriage."

"Don't expect marriage to change either of you," she cautioned. "Marriage is just a continuation of what you've always been. You take your problems with you."

THE NEXT and final lecture of this series sponsored by the social hygiene committee of Chapel will be held Tuesday, December 8, chairman Patricia Miller announced. At that time a doctor will talk on the biological aspects of marriage.

Syracuse Records Now at Bookstore

Album Features Hill Songs for $3.25

"Syracuse Sings", a record album of and by Syracusans is again available on campus.

John Beach, president of Tau Theta Upsilon, senior men's honorary and sponsors of the record bums are available in Olmsted's, album, said yesterday that the al-University Bookstore and at the Phi Gamma Delta house, 732 Comstock ave.

A-Bomb to Blast Campus Saturday

GROUND ZERO for the Civil Defense A-bomb test here Saturday morning, this sunny scene will be the site of the mock explosion. Students will leave classes and all events will be scheduled to simulate those of a real A-bomb raid.

Shortly after 9 a.m. Saturday the campus will spring into action. The Civil Defense Atom bomb test will be underway.

The campus and vicinity has been divided into 19 zones. Each zone will have a faculty warden and one or two student wardens to direct the activity.

The warning signal will sound while classes are in session. Students on campus should take shelter as soon as possible.

Student wardens will compile damage and casualty reports and send them to the deputy in charge of their zone. These will be combined and the University sector report sent to the sector executive officer.

Each of the 19 zones contains about 200 student residents. The Air Force Technological Institute personnel at Collendale will supervise their own area.

A Civil Defense representative will be assigned to each house in every zone. They will distribue information about the attack to residents of the house. In case of damage or casualty the representative must report it to the student warden of that zone.

Fraternity presidents, head residents of living centers and sorority housemothers of the houses designated as zone headquarters will serve as student wardens. Head officers of houses not designated as zone headquarters will be the CD representatives.

Of the 160 Civil Defense personnel in the University area taking part in last year's test only five failed to report.

A manual for CD personnel has been issued and a training program set up. Distaster squads, fire fighting units and volunteers to be used as rescue squads have been added to the organization.

All Civil Defense personnel should remain at their stations until the all clear signal is given.

Goal Posts Cause Minor Injuries

Two football fans were treated at University hospital Saturday afternoon for minor injuries suffered when the cross bar on a goal post at Archbold stadium came down at the end of the Syracuse-Colgate game.

James Cramer, 12, of 1004 W. Almond st. suffered a scratch on his ear and Timothy Lundy, 1, a Colgate university student, suffered a small cut on the back of his neck.

Hill Pledges to Undertake Work Project Saturday

Approximately 350 Hill pledges will participate in a mass work detail this Saturday.

These pledges will be working in the first of what may be a semi-annual inter-fraternity project. The Interfraternity Council Social Action committee, working through the Volunteer center in the city, will send them to 16 different organizations which have requested the help, and they will receive an estimated 6,000 work hours.

HOWARD OSOFSKY, chairman of the IFC Social Action Committee.

The work detail will be divided into two sections. The morning section, working from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., will assist in the civil defense test blast, which will take place at the corner of University and College pl.

Work with CD will include acting as casualties, demonstrators, ambulance workers and other related posts.

Groups receiving the benefits of the work in the afternoon are the American Red Cross, the Association for Mentally Retarded Children, Catholic Youth Organization, the Child and Family service, Crouse Irving hospital, Hillbrook Detention home.

Also the House of Providence orphanage, the Jewish Home for the Aged, St. Joseph's hospital, the Syracuse Day nursery, the Syracuse dispensary, the Syracuse Home association, Young Women's Christian association, United Service organization and the Visiting Nurse association.

Pledges working at these places will be doing cleaning-up work as a whole, but other duties will be performed, such as repair work, filing and working with mailing lists and garden work.

All those working in the morning should report to the Sigma Alpha Mu house at 9:15 a.m., and those working in the afternoon should be in front of Hendricks chapel at 12:40 p.m. Pledges are required to attend the work details and brothers may attend if they wish.

This help-work system is the first one initiated at Syracuse, and the Social Action committee hopes that it will develop into a semi-annual project occurring every fall and spring. Last year the fraternities worked through IFC on help projects but only with limited work details.

The IFC Social Action committee has received nation-wide publicity several times in recent years, the most recent being a story in the September issue of The Ladies Home Journal. The committee, headed by Howard Osofsky, consists of Bertram Polishook, Peter Turner, Charles Moore, Frederick Fisher, Aaron Miller and George Taback.

This is the third year of the committee's existance.

Lincoln Auditorium Scheduled as Site Of Roma Concert

One of the world's most outstanding chamber music ensembles comes to Syracuse Monday, as the Civic Morning Musicals, inc., presents the Virtuosi di Roma, under the direction of Renato Fasano.

The concert is slated for 8:30 p.m. in Lincoln auditorium.

Each of the 14 musicians who make up the ensemble is a virtuoso in his own right; the chamber orchestra will present a repetoire of the finest of chamber music literature, gathered from all countries. Music of the early Italian period, including that of Marcello and the Scarlattis, will be featured, along with the group's specialty, the concerti of Vivaldi.

The ensemble consists of six violins, two 'cellos, a contrabass, a flute and a piano, all of which are used as necessitated by the particular music.

Maestro Fasano is the youngest director of an Italian national conservatory, in his capacity as head of the Pierluigi da Palestrina. He is internationally known as a conductor, pianist and director and has acted as head of the National Academy of St. Cecilia in Rome.

The group made its United States debut in the fall of 1950, when Arturo Toscanini termed it "the greatest instrumental ensemble of this age."

Tickets priced at $2, $2.50 and $3 are available at Civic Morning Musicals, inc., 504 Clark Music building.

Student Directories On Sale Now for $1

Copies of the 1953-54 Syracuse university student directory were put on sale yesterday in the Registrar's office, Administration building. The price of the directory, which will be available indefinitely, is $1 a copy.

The cover of the directory, which is of slightly different setup than last year's, was designed by Professor Laurance Siegfried, chairman of the graphic arts department of the School of Journalism. The front section of the directory has also been changed.

Corrections in listings should be reported to Mrs. Robert Sickels as soon as possible in room 203, Administration building. Suggestions will be welcomed.

Mrs. Sickels has also announced that next year a different type of card which will be more easily filled out will be used for directory registration.

The directory was printed by the Orange publishing company.

SKI SCHOOL

Ski School sessions opened yesterday for men and women students, faculty members, employees and their immediate families.

Introductory classes will be held Wednesday and Thursday afternoons from 1:30 to 4 p.m. and Thursday evening from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Classes will meet in room 315-6 of the Women's building.

Canadian Subway Talk Scheduled

Duncan to Address Student Engineers

W. E. P. Duncan, general manager of the Toronto Transportation Commission, will be the guest of the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers this Friday.

He will address the organization at 8 p.m. Friday in the Alumni Lounge of the Women's building. His talk will be concerned with "Canada's First Subway" and he will show a color motion picture on the planning and construction of a new Toronto subway.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, Duncan received his batchelor of science degree at Glasgow university. He is a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada and the Professional Engineering Association of Ontario.

Duncan has held positions as engineer of construction and location of steam railways with the Canadian railroads.

He is also active in many organizations connected with Canadian transit and transportation associations.

Francis T. Sendker, president of the student chapter of the ASCE, made the arrangements for Duncan's visit to the campus.

Zeta Phi Eta Pledges Nine

The new pledges of Zeta Phi Eta, professional speech arts fraternity, are Dorothy Blanchard, Cynthia Faigle, Mildred Getzoff, Helen Hurdus, Millicent McIntyre, Jo Ann Reed, Barbara Stefany, Suzanne Taylor and Francesca Trantum.

Requirements for membership are a 2.0 average in speech subjects, above average grades in liberal arts courses, and superior standing in a field connected with the School of Speech and Dramatic Arts.

Zeta Phi Eta is in charge of the annual Christmas Pageant which will be held on December 13 in Hendricks Chapel.

Life Supply of Oil Offered for Essay

The Association of Petroleum Re-refiners is offering $250 and a lifetime supply of re-refined motor oil for the best essay on "Conservation of Oil for National Defense."

All undergraduate students are eligible to enter. Papers must be a minimum of 2000 words.

Additional prizes totaling over $250 are also offered.

Colgate Students Hear Dr. Brown

Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown was guest lecturer at Colgate university yesterday morning.

The chairman of the Maxwell citizenship and American Studies departments spoke on the idealism of Josiah Royce and the pragmatism of William James.

Dr. Brown is the author of a two-volume work on Josiah Royce.

Kharas Will Speak At Pre-law Meeting

Dean Ralph E. Kharas of the College of Law will be the featured speaker at the Initial meeting of Kings Bench, pre-law society.

The meeting is scheduled for today at 8 p.m. in the Founders room, Maxwell. The dean will speak on "How to Get in the Law School of Your Choice."

Earle Ketcham, professor of Political Science, will present a brief survey of the history and purpose of Kings Bench.

Also on the agenda is election of officers.

ASPA Essay Contest Slated

The American Society for Public Administration will award a $100 prize to the best 3,000 to 6,000 word essay on an administrative subject written by a student member of the organization.

Four copies of the essay with a separate sheet, which should include the author's name, address, and title of the essay must be submitted by Jan. 1, 1954. All four of the copies must be sent to: Secretary of Treasury, American Society for Public Administration, 1313 E. 60th st., Chicago 37, Ill.

Former Hill Prof Will Get Trophy

Dr. Leslie A. Bryan, director of the Institute of Aviation, University of Illniois, and former member of the Syracuse university faculty, will receive this year's Frank G. Brewer Trophy, America's highest award in the field of air youth education and training.

The decision, made b ythe National Aeronautical association, was unanimous in praise for the many contributions which Dr. Bryan has made to the development of aviation education in the United States.

Breaking a theory

Approximately 350 fraternity pledges will this Saturday take another step toward improving "town-gown" relationships.

They will attempt to disprove the theories of those Syracuse citizens who still classify all college men in that familiar "nonchalant, know-it-all" stereotype.

By offering 1,000 work hours to hospitals, orphanages and homes for retarded children and the aged, Interfraternity council has drawn upon some of its almost unlimited potential for community service.

The social action committee of IFC was started three years ago, but confined itself to small projects during its formative days. Last year, by taking part in the civil defense program, blood drives and social service projects, Syracuse IFC became known in other parts of the nation. A prominent national magazine even related its activities.

This year the Council voted to ask every pledge from each fraternity to help on one large pledge project. In cooperation with the Syracuse Volunteer center, organizations were found that could use the help of the Hill males for one day.

It is significant to note that when the IFC first began its attempts at social work, the city associations were somewhat reluctant to use the services of any college group. However, the situation soon reversed itself, as the fraternity members proved that they could take over social work of this type.

We commend the members of IFC for their continuing effort to improve the reputation of local fraternity men, fraternity men in general and the total picture of college students, while at the same time offering needed community services.

Editor-in-Chief

No teaparties

In a letter to this paper yesterday a fallacy in American hopitality was discreetly pointed out. One of the International students on the Hill has commented on what has become a trademark of western hospitality, the tea-party.

This is not an action-packed affair of the Boston variety. From the penthouses of New York to the parlors of the midwest, we of the United States have thrived on the light but mostly meaningless chit-chat of our own little worlds.

In his letter, this visiting student found this lacking for his and his comrades education. It is an accepted idea that education is not confined to the classroom. Our visitor from Africa has indicated that even informal discussions can bring out a lot in the way of foreign and American viewpoints.

The continental or Asian, practically through definition, is a serious fellow. This is not meant in the dull sense. But those here, particularly, are looking for insight into other minds that when this insight is taken back to their own countries, it will aid them in helping the thinking and actions of their countrymen.

For this reason, this paper wishes that those who direct the meetings of international students would add a little directional depth. We far from advocate one ponderous lecture after another. Sociability, as such, is an admired trait.

But we wish the primary purpose of our guests to be uppermost in the minds of our hosts. Bits of the world are here to learn in every situation.

AT THE FLICKERS

$$$ TRIUNE HUNTING A MILLIONAIRE

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

A Cinemascopic View of Sex

One of these days Hollywood is going to make a film that treats sex intelligently. This is not the day and "How to Marry a Millionaire" is not the revolutionary film. For years Hollywood has treated sex as a subject to be discussed behind firmly locked doors. Or else, it has handled it so coyly, with such sachirrine sweetness, that it has given more than one member of the audience intellectual diabetes. "How to Marry a Millionaire" is of the cotton candy variety and possesses just about as much substance.

The little trigle concerns itself with the machinations of three golddiggers in the big city. This plot is one of the older relics of pulp fiction and what little life was left in the old warhorse, was completely buried by the witless script. If filmed conventionally, "How to Marry a Millionaire" would have worn thin around the edges; in Cinemascope, it is positively pourous. If filmed conventionally, it would have been dull; in Cinemascope it is 3½ times as dull.

Laureen Bacall, Betty Grable and Marilyn Monroe are the young ladies, each of whom works with one of the film's only three comic ideas. Every conceivable ounce of humor is squeezed out of the proceedings 5 minutes after they begin. We begin wishing that the next door Miss Monroe bump into will be iron-clad; we wish that Miss Grable would turn into an Elk's convention and we wish that Miss Bacall would marry the poor slob and let us all go home.

The ladies can be commended for doing what they were supposed to. Miss Bacall gives the stock part of the wise-cracking dame, a stock treatment; Miss Grable exhibits her legs to advantage and Miss Monroe exhibits her advantages in a portrait of sex not notable for its subtlety.

Such fine actors as David Wayne, Cameron Mitchell and William Powell are hopelessly enmeshed in the proceedings and they all demonstrate their obvious distaste.

It is difficult to conceive of a script more witless or inane than this one. To make matters worse, the beautiful scenery that Cinemascope captures shows up quite blurred most of the time. So much money spent on such little returns. The film could easily have been dispensed with, without causing too much damage to the American cultural scene.

The bill also includes a wonderful Walt Disney cartoon entitled "Whisle, Plunk, and Boom". The film's excellence stems from Mr. Disney's shameless swipping of U.P.A.'s superb technique.

Birds in the Wilderness

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Columnist

Concrete suggestion for action:

Activities channeling.

Various and sundry greek houses on the Hill have activities chairman. Such officers are in charge of projects, often social service, and seeing that each and every pledge and brother or sister are doing something at least supposedly useful with their time.

And the independents sit like birds in the wilderness.

We guess that many would like to go out and join a group either to learn or accomplish something, or perhaps just have some fun out of life.

But walk into a strange organization without letters of credence to be presented; formal recognition; and other technical diplomacy traditions? Nay, voice many, we're scared.

'Tis like walking into the lion's den to the frightened.

There are individuals who just don't have the willpower to go to a meeting without knowing who'll be there, and without having the initiative to find out where, when, and why.

SO: We propose:

A system of activities channeling to help unaffiliated students get into the swing of things. Not just frosh, but the hierarchy of campus civilization, too. Ever notice how dead a lot of seniors are?

Seems to us that we could blast a lot of this current indifference with such a program. If the uninformed could be enlightened as to the 5 W's and an H, there's be no mystery.

Clyde would drift into the Outing club; Hepzibah into the WSG secretariat. To each his own, but at least there'd be an "own."

How do we go about getting such a service? Our student governments could do it. Perhaps a demand must be heard. Ye, the commoners, are about due to tell your government something.

The current silence is hurting our ears.

Two Gateways to Knowledge

By RUTH BARME

San Francisco may have her Golden Gate, but she sure has nothing on old SU. In fact, if anything, it's the other way around. While San Francisco has only one "Gate," our illustrious campus sports two of them; one at the road entrance to campus at the head of Walnut pl., the other at the steps entrance to campus at University ave.

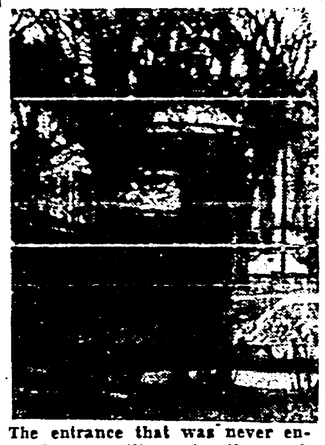
The latest edition in the way of gates, as gates go, (Walnut pl.) was given by the class of 1940. The highest pillars stand 14 feet, one on each side and the adjoining pillars work down in tiers.

The gate has been styled in Georgian architecture to match Hendricks chapel, Maxwell school of citizenship and the College of Medicine. It is also interesting to note that the gate resembles one of the newest additions to campus, the Joe and Emily Lowe Art center, which "resides" so nearby. The gate was to be the first step in constructing a fence which would someday encircle the entire campus. We have the gate, but are still waiting for the fence.

There is also an air of mystery around these pillars leading to knowledge. According to the original plan, two bronze plaques, one bearing the University seal, the other the class gift plate, were to be placed on the leading pillars. After careful scrutiny, it was found that these plaques aren't. This is a definite slight to the class of '40, for they certainly deserve some recognition for this memorial, which is theirs.

The topmost of the highest is peaked with what at first glance look like bird cages. But upon further investigation, they are found to be light cages, for the purpose of guiding the cars through at night.

A ghost's study in ice . . . a late-evening photograph of the steps to HL. The effect was made by placing the camera across the street with the shutter open and walking across the street with a flash and firing away.
Staff Photo by Pete Preston



The entrance that was never entered . . . until construction work began in front of Machinery hall, these pillars were only an exit from campus. Now a service road, the original street will be twisted around to serve the new engineering building.

The earlier gate, which is well known to all who have classes in HL, was not meant to be a gate at all. Some of the original suggestions for a memorial from the class of '16 were: a chiming clock in HL or Lyman, cement walks around campus (at that time cinder paths were tread upon), more trees and shrubs around campus, or statues of the first chancellors.

The suggestion that got the most attention was that of recasting the Crouse Chimes for the reason that: ". . . the criticism which is so frequently heard is due not only to the incompetent ringing, but also to the fact that they are cut out of tune and need recasting." (No offense meant to the Dekes.) The Chimes still "need recasting."

That is as far as the history of the gate goes, but we do have this concrete remembrance of the class of 1916. To remind us of the donators, there is a plaque which says "Presented by Class of 1916." Clusters of lights adorn the top of the two main pillars, with a four-leaf clover surrounding a central larger bulb.

Let San Francisco have her gate, "cause, thanks to the classes of '16 and '40, we have our share.

HEARING AIDS

Jazzy but Fuzzy

By DICK CASE
Daily Orange Columnist

A frilly bit of musical nostalgia was virtually clouded over last Friday evening when a temperamental guw named "mike" showed up with laryngitis and threw a block on the "Festival of Modern American Jazz" which sent performers sprawling all over the War Memorial stage.

The program, sponsored by Syracuse Nationals Shows, met with mild approval from an uninspired audience of some 3,000 whose audial perspective of the festival was distorted by a faulty public address system. The microphones, and their amplification counterparts, went bad early in the program and for the rest of the evening, rendered all but the most powerful tones fuzzy and generally snapped, crackled and popped vocal and instrumental attempts.

This, of course, is an unexcusable blunder on the part of the auditorium bosses whose job it is to handle such difficulties. It's a shame to have high-priced talent nearly ruined by disagreeable little "mike".

The modern swinging sounds of Stan Kenton's crew started things off with two selections from their brassy book and slipped back now and again to flavor the line-up with their distinctive oval-shaped notes.

In the solo line, Stan Getz's contribution to the festivities fell a bit short of expected. Stan left the audience and this reviewer generalyy cold. Erroll Garner and his trio were superb, as usual, but again they failed to arouse much enthusiasm from the sleepy crowd.

It was Dizzy Gillespie's screaming bop horn and funnery which finally got a rise out of the audience toward the end of the program.

Ah, but poor June. That cute little blonde bundle of song, June Christy, was perhaps the worst affected by the mike trouble. Back with the Kenton orchestra after a three year absence, June choose a program of her more recent recorded tunes.

June is an attractive and accomplished in-person performer but her struggle with the audio portion of the festival left a bad impression on Syracuse ears.

For the most part, "The Festival of Modern Jazz" ran a little below par for the course. There were, perhaps, too many goodies to be spread over the alloted and all the performers came out on the short end of material.

Stan Kenton indicated before the show that he would like to continue a package similar to the festival on a year-to-year basis. If so, I hope that frightened "mikes" and slight audience reaction will not keep him from returning to Syracuse with the show again and again.

At last report, the mighty War-Memorial was still rocking.

Sound the Alarm!

"Crash, bang, ouch, oooh! Sound like someone's being murdered? Actually it's only 7:30 "target practice with the alarm clocks."

Alarm clocks usually come in all shapes and sizes to coincide with personality, temper and aim. For the "timid ones" who just can't stand the tick of a clock in the room, is the nice, noiseless electric clock that has an alarm like a dainty buzz-saw." For the "rugged individualist" who needs the sound of a clock ticking, we have the usual regular clock, which ticks away every minute, comparable to the sound of a bass drum.

Most students feel the need of alarm clocks mostly as a sense of security; its main purpose to remind them of those "eight o'clocks." However, it's just human nature or instinct to first shut-off the alarm, and then throw it anywhere, as long as it's out of reach. By now trash cans, desk drawers, and alley ways are well supplied with these "aggravating alarm clocks."

Before you use them for target practice remember as Jerry Lewis might say, "You can look at them, listen to them, but don't touch them! ! !"

?? Shopping Days to Christmas

Glancing up at the calendar we find there are 36 more shopping days until Christmas. But with a thought or two on how they go things don't seem too rosy.

Figure five days are out for Thanksgiving . . . who spends their time doing anything constructive during a break from the academic grind? That leaves 31. Might as well say the same thing for Christmas which deletes another six. That leaves 25.

Sunday is a day of rest, (and stores are closed, at that), so three more days drop out. That leaves 22. Saturdays are a long awaited day of late snooz and early partying so another three are shot. That leaves 19. Well, with 20 more school days one can figure half of those go to classes. That leaves nine. Then four of those days usually go to labs so that leaves five.

We figure if the presents are bought we've got to allow two days for wrapping and mailing. This leaves us with three. Blazes, we can't get it all done in three days. So we're just going to quit and make a New Year's resolution to at least get going on this mathematics early in September next year.

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

Apologies, Challenges

By MILT SHEFTER

After slightly clouding up our sights last week, it feels good to have them back in alignment. Naturally, the main focus was on Colgate weekend and we set our sights . . .

On Sims 4: With due apologies to Chickie, Jane, and the rest of the gals who were so worried about the poor little freshman trembling like a leaf last Tuesday night when he was captured by Colgate outside your window, we must confess to a few facts. The maroon convertible which abducted him belonged to his roommate; his abductors were fraternity brothers; he was an upperclassman, not a freshman; and he was not trembling, just shivering from the cold. In short, the abductee was us, and we couldn't help feeling a little touched when you said that it was almost like losing a little brother.

On Roadblocks: We happened to be there when one of the many roadblocks on Comstock ave. trapped a suspicious white Chevie. After the army of frosh poured out of their various concealments and challenged the occupants, the driver got out and confronted the leader. This poor gentleman didn't realize that he was talking to one Bruce Yancey, stellar halfback and slightly annoyed. Southern Sam Shawhan, Jr. Class prexie, introduced the two, and the scalping passed by.

* * *

On : A big Wha' Hoppened to the gents in charge of the traffic light at College and University. The zip team which made elaborate preparations for the snowfest at Cornell have probably been zippered up until next year. And a final querie to the administrators about why the band isn't going to Villanova. Seems they deserve a trip just like last year's tooters.

On Us: And now if you'll excuse us, we have to clean out our closet. Don't want any alums hibernating right through to next year's game.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

It was quiet in the athletic office the other afternoon. Jim Decker, the assistant director of athletics was working away on some notes for the Villanova trip. His secretary was working hard on the typewriter and Arnie Burdick, the SU publicity man was on the phone talking with the press. It was a typical day at the home of Syracuse athletics. Things were going on as usual.

The tall fellow broke the silence in Decker's office when he made the statement that he had seen an advertisement in Life magazine for a free trip to the Orange bowl. Everyone in the office chuckled a little and got back to work.

A couple of minutes later in walked Coach Bill Eschenfelder. After talking with Decker for a moment Esch came up with another classical remark which got the room laughing again. "You know after last Saturday's game my kids were asking me if we were going to the 'Gator Bowl. Some joke, huh?"

It was quite a joke and we laughed too. And then we got to thinking about a year ago when things like that weren't jokes but near reality. Yes, one year ago things were looking much different for Bill Orange. The Fordham game was coming up and the telephone wires were beginning to hum with questions which only a committee of five men in Miami could possibly answer. A difference of 365 days can make quite a difference.

One year ago the same Jim Decker was at the phone constantly giving the same answer. "No we haven't heard anything yet." "I'm sorry but Mr. Andreas and I cannot make any statement." The following statement. They did answer statement. hey did answer the questions because Syracuse university was in the Orange Bowl.

JIM DECKER

How quickly time flew after that. Thanksgiving, then back to school and finally Christmas. The trip to Miami was a "beaut" and the vacation one of the finest. So was New Year's eve. But that's as far as it went. We sat in the press box that New Year's day and watched the game. We met Red Barber of CBS; we met all the leading sports writers in the east and south; and we met Alabama. The latter we'll never forget.

But all that was one year ago. That was a beaten Orange club which strolled into the clubhouse after the 61 to 6 shellacking. That was a disappointed team which returned to Syracuse that cold night in January hoping to slip away from the airport without anyone noticing them. But that also was a happy club which got those big lumps in the throat when a crowd of 500 met them as they landed. They had lost, but it was good to be home.

Then more time flew by and September rolled around again. The New York papers hinted that the Orange might not recover from their Miami disaster. They said the mental hazards might prove fatal to their hopes for a successful season. But in the end they were absolutely wrong. This we saw against Holy Cross. This we found out against Colgate, Temple and Fordham. And this we even saw with Boston University and Penn State. No, Bill Orange wasn't dead yet.

The team was alive with more talent than even the Lambert Trophy winners had. Pat Stark, who got spilled time and time again in Miami returned to his finest form. Bobby Leberman and Bruce Yancey turned into a couple of the East's best halfbacks. Les McClelland and Bob Fleck were unbeatable on the line. And Ted Kukowski? He was like Clark Kent turning into Superman overnight. Just a few of the reasons why Syracuse is so fine on the gridiron today.

It's strange that one year a team is better than the previous one and they don't get half the recognition. No, Syracuse probably won't win the Lambert Trophy again. And a bow lbid can't even be thought of. But this is the finest team that Ben Schwartzwalder has ever coached. And that's for sure.

The office is still quiet. It's almost time to pack up and leave for supper. The Villanova trip is set. It's this team's finale for the year and for most of them at Syracuse. They have played good, hard, clean typically Syracuse ball. Sure guys like Lefty James squawk, but they hate the Yanks too.

But still stranger things have happened. They might call it a "Bill Stern ending" or something like that. But before we left the other day someone happened to make the statement that the New York Daily Mirror said that Syracuse would probably be second to Army in this week's Lambert ratings. But that probably is just a deam from somewhere out in left field.

A Syracuse win Saturday would bring to an end a brilliant year in the eyes of all Syracuse followers. The Orange Bowl jinx has finally been destroyed. And by the way who does Army play in its last game? "Anchors Aweigh" could become quite a popular song around here.

They could call it irony.

Wetzel Ready at Fullback; Syracuse Rates in Passing

With good weather yesterday and Villanova's Wildcats coming up, Head Coach Ben Schwartzwalder ran his varsity through heavy contact drills. Except for Bob Leberman's broken nose there are no serious injuries on the Orange squad, so they all participated in the session.

End Dino Hadjis and fullback Bill Wetzel, who were long sufferers this season saw action. Wetzel, who appeared slightly in the Colgate game last week, is preparing to take on more of the fullback burden from Don Laaksonen. Laaksonen has been improving in his role as Wetzel's chief substitute. he duties will be about evenly split, but the starting assignment is still in doubt between the two.

BILL WETZEL who saw some action in the Colgate game is preparing to assume more of the fullback chores this week.

IN A game that saw Syracuse receivers finally helping their passer, Syracuse moved up in the national statistics for forward passing. he Orange now reside in ninth place after being 13th a week ago.

The National Collegiate Athletic bureau rates teams according to the average yeards per game passing. Syracuse's percentage of completions however, ranks fourth among the nation's leaders.

The Orange's 51 per cent is headed only by Utah, Stanford and Dartmouth. In eight games, Syracuse has completed 77 out of 151 for nine touchdowns and an 138.5 average per game.

Former Syracuse opponents Fordham and Penn State rank eight and 15th respectively.

WHEN THE Orange travel to Philadelphia they will run into their 101st gridiron opponent. This will be the first game in the series for both teams.

This summer, when the game was booked it loomed as a possible Lambert Trophy play-off. Syracuse lost their chance for the trophy when Penn State flashed to a last minute win. Villanova, though, never even left the ground in their quest for the prize.

Exactly what it is that has the Wildcats anchored to the ground has been a mystery to their fans. Villanova returned many lettermen and has a heavy line. Their biggest asset: all-American halfback Gene Filipski.

Villanova seems to have fallen victim to the same disease that has stricken so many winning streaks this fall—one platoon football.

Intra Notice

There will be an organization meeting for all winter intramural sports at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Trophy Room in Archbold gymnasium. Any team wishing to enter basketball, ping pong, handball, volleyball or skiing must send a representative.

Forum to Show Colgate Movies

Fans' Forum will begin 15 minutes early this week at 7:15 in Maxwell auditorium. The movies of the Colgate-Syracuse game are in such popular demand that they are not allowed to rest in one spot for too long a time.

After their showing at Fans' Forum, the films are scheduled for another showing in another part of town at 9 p.m. ine Coach Rocco Pirro will show the film and narrate at the proceedings.

Many fans are looking forward to seeing the play of the Orange. Pirro will be able to give behind-the-scenes details of plays that any spectator would miss. The movies are taken from the press box on the 50-yard line, thus they afford a better view of the game than most students had.

Faltering Wildcats Present Problem To Coach Raimo

Villanova's disappointing Wildcats, winners of but two games this season, will provide the opposition for Syracuse when the Orangemen invade Philadelphia Saturday. The Mainliners have defeated only Boston college and Xavier in eight tilts.

Despite their poor record, compiled against tough opposition, the Philadelphians have fine potential and are always dangerous. Their losses have been to Georgia, Texas, Wake Forest, Detroit, Kentucky and Boston university.

JUST WHERE the Mainliners' weakness lies has become one of the puzzles of the current season. Head Coach Art Raimo and other football observers are in a dither as to why the 'Cats, who notched a 7-1-1 record last year, haven't been able to get rolling.

Raimo, in his third season at the Villanova reins, has 20 lettermen and a host of good sophs available.

Leading the returnees are Captain Joe Faragalli and Gene Filipski. Faragalli, a rugged 235-pound tackle, is an experienced two-way performer while halfback Filipski ranked among the nation's best in 1952.

Filipski, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound senior, has slipped a bit from his 1952 form when he averaged 6.4 yards per carry and was named Look magazine all-American. He still ranks among the top runners in the East, however.

ANOTHER 180-pound senior, Ben Addiego, runs wild from the right halfback slot to give the 'Cats one of the best one-two ground punches in college football.

The forward wall is among the biggest in the nation, averaging nearly 220 pounds per man.

Line mainstays, in addition to Faragalli, are 230-pounders Joe Leichtweis and Pete Carrieri and 215-pound Ray Rigney.

Phi Kappa Psi Secures Intra Swimming Title

By HANK GREENWALD

Phi Kappa Psi captured the intramural swimming championship last night by virtue of a 12-12 win over an outnumbered but not outclassed squad from Skytop M-14.

The fraternity men almost won by forfeit when it appeared dubious that the boys from M-14 could produce enough men to start the meet. However, once the proceedings were underway it became obvious that this contest would be no pushover for Phi Sig.

THE EVENING'S first event, the 50-yard freestyle, produced a story in itself. Minutes prior to the start of the race, Don Checko of M-14 appeared on the scene. Checko's tardiness attributed to the fact that the slender freshman had just completed 2½ hours of basketball practice.

After he disposed of his opposition in what was believed to be an intramural record of 25.5 seconds, Checko had the pool observers wondering whether or not he had gone out for the wrong sport. His win gave M-14 a short-lived advantage.

Phi Psi recovered quickly from its opening setback to jump back into contention. Whitey Wilson added a first place finish in the breaststroke to Phi Psi's second and third place earlier finishes to give the winners a 9-8 lead. Ken Gersch placed runner-up to Wilson in the breaststroke event.

John McGill, a steady seasonal performer, added another point to the fraternity men's lead as he took down top honors in the backstroke competition. At the conclusion of this race the score stood 14-12 with Phi Psi holding the upper hand.

THIS SET the stage for the 200-yard relay, the final event on the card. The Intramural swimming championship hinged on the final event of the final meet of the season. True to form this race was also a thriller.

John McGill started the winners off to an early lead as he stroked his way to an advantage in the first 50 yards. This however, was quickly dissapated as Don Checko overcame the Phi Psi margin and secured a lead for M-14. Despite Checko's efforts, the Skytoppers could not hold on and Don Schoell and Ted Bronczyk captured the lead and the championship for Phi Psi.

ONE AND 1/11TH PLATOON

In Villanova's last game of last year, halfback Charlie Bruno had broken into the clear and was racing for the Boston university goal line. All went fine until one player leaped from the Terrier bench and tackled Bruno before he scored. The officials allowed a touchdown. The i

Hill Harriers Face NCAA Test Next In East Lansing

Returning from their IC4A meet in New York City, the Syracuse university cross country team held an hour-long practice yesterday at Drumlins.

Next Monday is the "big one" in cross country circles. It's the NCAA's which will be held at Michigan State in East Lansing, and Syracuse is entered.

Coach Bob Grieve was not too disappointed with the showing of his team in the IC4A's. He feels that a couple of breaks in the run could have meant a first or second place finish for the Piety harriers.

He also singled out senior Frank Calzi and soph Jim George for their fine showing in the race. Calzi's time was his best this year.

Seven men will make the trip to East Lansing which means that someone will be left home. Grieve plans to stage a four-mile time trial this Thursday. How the boys do in this race may determine who will make the trip.

Pretty Girls, Golden Horseshoes, Bands and Alums

LOOKING EVERY moment the coed queen, CAROL AMACHER throws a smile to some of her friends seated in the stands. It was a great day for Miss Amacher. Syracuse has some mighty pretty coeds. See what we mean?

HEADS BARED, players and spectators alike rise for the Star Spangled Banner. The National Anthem is traditionally played by bands of both schools. The song over, it's kickoff time and play begins.

'Mlle' Representative Will Speak at Tea

Miss Alice Mencher, a representative of the College Board of Mademoiselle magazine, will be guest of honor at a tea at 4 p.m. today in the Alumni lounge of the new Women's building.

All coeds who are interested in phases of publication concerning editorial, design, fashion illustration or advertising related to the women's world are urged to attend the tea and meet Miss Mencher who will speak to the group at 4:30 p.m.

Girls on the Hill who are members of the College Board and will be official hostesses are: Millicent Auerbach, Dorothy Burman, Louise Cahan, Deborah Hirsh, Flip Sirota and Barbara Suchy.

Miss Mencher will explain the rules for the College Board contest which is open to all undergraduate women.

Before the tea, Miss Mencher will lunch with coeds active in campus organizations. Mary Ann Dalton, Arlene Lambert, Flip Sirota, Patricia Rhoden and Deborah Bray will meet the Mademoiselle representative.

BARRISTER'S BALL

The annual Barrister's Ball, sponsored by the Student Bar association, will be held Saturday, Dec. 5, at Tom Downing's Cold Spring Inn.

The semi-formal dance will feature the music of Johnny Cross' orchestra and the Russ Seager trio.

Henry D. Blumberg is general chairman of the affair.

JOHN B. NOLTE, Purdue University, asks:

"What is G.E.'s Manufacturing Training Program?"

The Manufacturing Training Program at General Electric is a program of basic training for manufacturing leadership, including planned rotational work assignments and related classroom study for outstanding young men who are interested in a career in manufacturing. It was organized to meet the increased demand for effective manufacturing leadership and technical "know how," in line with the expansion and development of the Company's operations by developing trained men to fill future key positions in the organization.

Who is eligible for this program?

In general, the Program is open to college graduates with degrees in engineering and science, and a limited number of business administration and liberal arts graduates. We are looking for outstanding young men with sound educational backgrounds, well-balanced personalities, demonstrated thinking abilities, and having the potential to develop toward top level responsibility in key assignments.

How long is the program?

The normal length of the Program is three years. However, some individuals may be able to complete their training in a shorter period because of previous knowledge or experience in manufacturing work.

What type of work assignments are made?

Work assignments are provided in all phases of manufacturing and related functions so that each man will acquire knowledge of manufacturing engineering, including manufacturing methods and techniques, shop operation, production control, personnel administration, labor relations, engineering activities, sales and manufacturing co-ordination, and general business administration.

In addition to job assignments, classroom courses cover such subjects as Company organization, manufacturing operations, labor and personnel relations, business administration, law and relationships between manufacturing and other functions of the business. Progress on the job and in classroom work is carefully observed and reviewed periodically with each man to assist him in his career.

What happens after training is completed?

After completing the training program, graduates are placed in operating departments and divisions throughout the Company in positions where leadership and initiative are needed. All placements are made in relation to the aptitudes, abilities, and interests of the graduates.

At General Electric, manufacturing operations involve the administration and supervision of activities of more than 100,000 men and women in more than 100 plants, who are involved in the making of some 200,000 different products.

The wide scope of these activities, the great variety of products, and the diversity of manufacturing activities offer limitless opportunities and exciting challenges to college graduates today.

Manufacturing training is a foundation for leadership—and an opportunity to build a satisfying, rewarding career in one of America's most important industries.

If you are a graduate engineer, or a graduate with definite technical inclinations that include an interest in the career possibilities in manufacturing, see your college placement director for the date of the next visit of the General Electric representative on your campus. Meanwhile, for further information on opportunities with General Electric write to College Editor, Dept. 2-123, General Electric Company, Schenectady 5, New York.

Blood Donors Turned Away Because of Facilities Shortage

Student Response To Drive Tops Expected Goal

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

About 100 Syracusans will not be wearing red symbols of blood donation today.

It is not that they are unpatriotic. They were prepared to give blood in yesterday's drive at Archbold gymnasium but were turned away for lack of facilities and personnel.

RESPONSE IN the fall blood donor drive was beyond expectation as students flocked to the men's gym between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. yesterday.

Figures will not be complete until today, according to Campus Red Cross Co-chairman Dan Russell. However, he estimated last night that 160 pints had been collected in the drive.

The actual quota for this fall's drive was 125 pints. Incorrect information previously given to the Daily Orange included a statement that the quota was 1,000 pints.

Russell commended forestry students, who participated in a drive Tuesday. The foresters handled all details themselves and gave 120 pints of corpuscles.

YESTERDAY'S all-university drive was one of two which are conducted annually on Syracuse campus. The second is scheduled for Spring, 1954.

Although blood will not be collected on campus again until the spring drive, those students who wish to give before then may make appointments between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at Red Cross headquarters in the city.

Headquarters are located at 749 S. Warren st. next to Central High school.

A letter from Charles A. Chappell, blood donor recruitment chairman of the Syracuse Red Cross chapter, yesterday praised University men and women for their donations.

ADDRESSED TO the students of Syracuse university, the letter said:

"On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week you produced a remarkable record by contributing blood through the Red Cross blood program during our bloodmobile visit to the New York State College of Forestry.

"I want to take this opportunity to personally thank all students who donated blood during the two-day operation and to tell them how proud I am of their participation in this vital life-saving program.

"Despite the fact that an armistice has been declared in Korea, there has been no decrease in the need for blood and through the medium of this letter I want to express my deepest appreciation to you for a splendid accomplishment.

"IT IS TYPICAL of the successes which Syracuse university men and women have accomplished while participating in any community endeavor . . ."

Overall chairman of the drive was Mary Flavin. She was assisted by Red Cross Co-chairmen Russell and Diane Johnson.

In a statement to The Daily Orange yesterday Russell said, "We are sorry so many people had to be turned away. Since ROTC decided to give credit for blood donations, we were flooded with applicants."

Wisconsin Chairman To Address ASPA

Professor Edwin E. Witte, chairman of the economics department at the University of Wisconsin, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the American Society for public Administration, tonight at 8 p.m. in the Chapter's Founder's room of Maxwell.

Prof. Witte, currently visiting lecturer in economics at Cornell university's School of Industrial and Labor Relations will speak on "Issues in Social Security."

A member of the U. S. Atomic Energy Relations panel since 1949, Prof. Witte is a former member of the President's advisory committee on social security and was on the President's committee on administrative management.

He is the author of "Government and Labor Disputes," "The Future of Labor Legislation" and numerous articles on industrial relations, social insurance and labor laws and legislation.

Total Number Males In Housing Released

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Male students living in University, fraternity and private housing for the fall semester total 2,748, Jack C. Buckle, director of men's counseling and residence, told The Daily Orange yesterday.

Men in University living centers number 1,448; fraternities are housing 720; and 580 are living in approved private housing, he said.

There are 66 proctors and resident advisors, Buckle said, with 24 in Skytop dorms, 12 in Collendale, and 30 on campus.

THE BALANCE of male students are married, graduate students, city students, or living with relatives, he said. The figures do not include university college or College of Law students.

All single male freshmen, including veterans, must live in University housing and eat in a University dining hall for one year. Single male upperclassmen may live in dorms, approved housing or fraternities. Only members and pledges may live in fraternities.

Author Will Speak On Future Peace

John M. Swomley, Jr., will talk on "The Outlook for Peace" at 4:15 p. m. tomorrow in the Chapel lounge. The open meeting is sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

Acting national secretary of FOR, he is a member of the American Friends Service subcommittee on labor and on the international FOR's East-West committee.

Last summer he toured Spain and Germany and has traveled extensively in Europe and the Middle East, going abroad the past four years to study social conditions and tensions.

The speaker was formerly vice president of the National Council of Methodist Youth and is a minister of the Methodist church.

Dean Clark Forms Three-Man Team For Religious News

Wolseley, Root, Laubach Will Head Program In Graduate Study

Dean Wesley C. Clark of the School of Journalism has announced that a three-man team has been formed to carry on the school's pioneering graduate work in religious journalism: This program will be related to the magazine department.

Chairman of the team is Roland E. Wolseley, who recently returned from establishing a journalism department in an Indian university. He is the author of a book on church interpretation and has directed the religious journalism program from its founding in 1949.

ROBERT ROOT, associate professor who took charge of the religious journalism program in Professor Wolseley's absence, will now head the department. Professor Root has written for many church magazines and was formerly correspondent at Geneva, Switzerland for the World Council of Churches.

Third team member is Robert S. Laubach, who received his master's degree in the religious journalism sequence here last year. He has worked on literacy teams in Asia and Africa, and now teaches a course in preparing materials for adults who are learning to read.

The sequence aims to train the young people to work on church magazines, with religious publicity offices, and on literacy teams abroad. Graduates already have important posts with church organizations in this country and in Switzerland, India and the Philippines.

Students in this course have cooperated in a weekly religious news broadcast over WSYR for the Syracuse Council of Churches and have taught reading classes for illiterates at the Dunbar center and at an agricultural migrants' camp near Fulton, in cooperation wit hthe New York State Council of Churches.

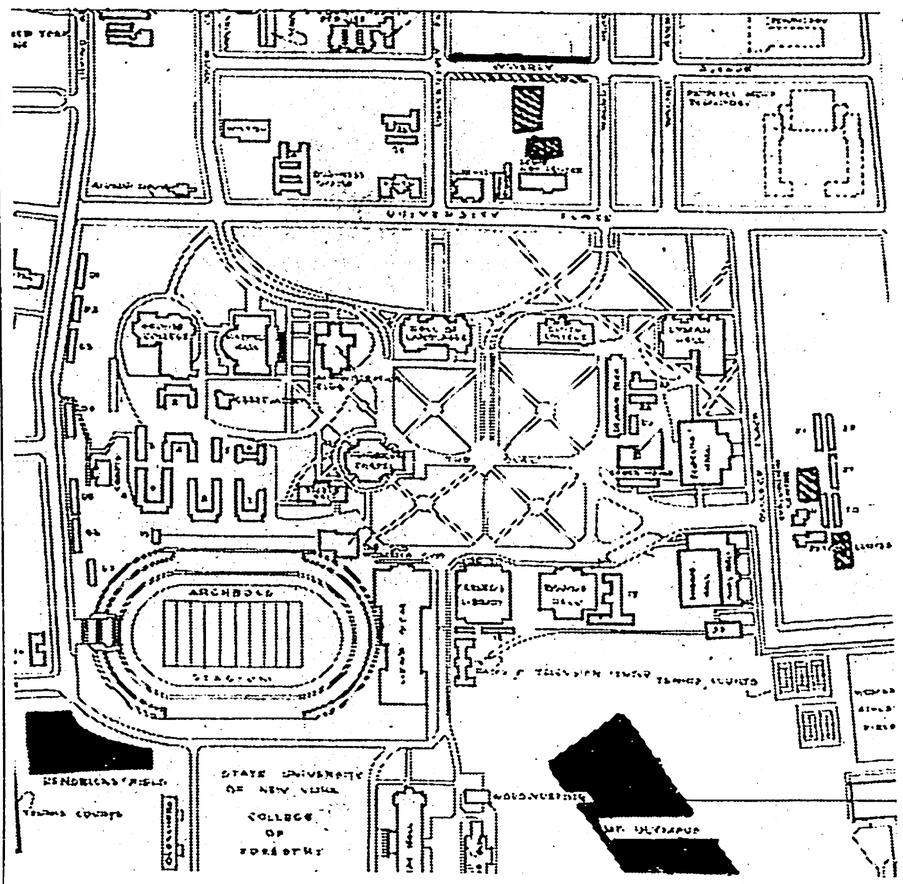
Kowell Will Play At St. More Dance

Dick Kowell's orchestra will play at the annual St. Thomas More formal dinner dance Saturday night at the Bellevue Country club.

A prize waltz contest is planned as a special feature of the affair, which is co-chairmanned by Patricia Fay and Clifford Way. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Chairmen of the dinner dance sub-committees are William Healy and Elizabeth Hueber, arrangements; Mary Kearney and Anthony Ponturiero, reservations and Carmela Curreri and Edward Hardy, publicity.

New Stairway to Mt. Olympus Top To Facilitate Student Car Parking



SITES OF student parking on campus are shown on the above map. The blacked-out areas are those used for student parking. The striped areas are reserved for faculty and staff. Also shown is Mt. Olympus, exclusively for students, with parking available for 200 cars.

New Parking Area Provides Room For 200 Vehicles

By JACK REILLY

A new stairway has been built at Mt. Olympus to facilitate parking at this all-student area, according to the Custodian & Security office.

The steps lead down from Mt. Olympus behind Sims and Bowne hall, providing a more direct route to the campus. Only 18 cars at the maximum have ever used this parking area, according to the Custodian office. Space is available for 200 cars.

PARKING BETWEEN Sims and Slocum hall at night is a troublesome feature, the office declares. Bus companies are finding it exceedingly difficult to service Collendale and Skytop with cars parked on both sides of the entranceway.

Another site of parking violations, states the Custodial office, is the road leading from Walnut pl. north of Smith. This section is reserved for construction workers and trucks servicing Slocum cafeteria and bake shop.

Latest parking figures show 1,386 cars registered at the University. This is an increase from last year, mainly due to the greater effort to enforce parking regulations, states the office.

With the exception of Mt. Olympus, St. Thomas More is the only section not being filled to its capacity of 125 cars. The rest of the areas are filled during the day.

WAVERLY AVE. has a total capacity of 100 cars. The rear of Lowe building and the rear of the Bookstore have capacities of 20 and 15, respectively. Hendricks field can hold 75; the rear of 123 College pl., 15, and the psychology building, 10.

Mt. Olympus is reserved for student parking only, while Hendricks field is used for student, faculty, and staff parking. No parking is allowed, however, on the lawn or drives of the Forestry school.

The rear of 123 College pl. is faculty only, while the rear of the psychology building is by special permits.

Waverly ave., north side, and the property adjacent to the St. Thomas More chapel are used for students, faculty and employees. Waverly ave., south side, is for faculty only.

THE REAR of the Lowe building and the rear of the special education building are reserved for the faculty and the staff of each group. The rear of the Bookstore is used by buildings and grounds employees only.

Any car parked on University property must have properly issued stickers, which must be firmly placed on the inside of the left-hand window of the automobile. These stickers can be obtained at 907 S. Crouse ave.

A-Bomb Hit Slated In Test On Saturday

The Civil Defense atom bomb test in Syracuse will be carried out in two sections today and tomorrow. A written solution to the bombing at the corner of College pl. and University pl. will be worked out. This theoretic bomb will be dropped at 4:15 a.m. today and will involve CD headquarters personnel only.

At 9:05 a.m. Saturday, all of Onondaga county and the six counties surrounding it will be alerted. This alert will last for approximately 15 minutes. After 9:20 a.m. only the area bounded by Euclid ave., Comstock ave., Cumberland ave., and E. Fayette st. will be alerted.

In this area a mock atom bomb attack will be carried out. Actual attack conditions such as debris and casualities will be simulated. This alert will continue until 12:30 p.m.

Panel Group Debates Armed Services Topic

A student can find no possible way to avoid military service indefinitely, decided the panel on the topic "Military Service and You," at the mental hygiene lecture in the Colonial room of the Chapel yesterday.

Military service will probably reach all students within six years after high school graduation, stated Earle Clifford, assistant dean of men. Mrs. Jane Glassman, of the Home Economics department, and Col. George Stevens, of Army ROTC, comprised the rest of the panel.

COMMISSIONS IN ROTC will be harder to receive, nowadays, stated Clifford. It is almost impossible to predict though, what will be the outcome in the next few years.

Students have the opportunity to receive deferments from the Marine Corps Platoon Leaders Class program, stated the panel.

The Marine Corps PLC does not enter into campus activities, they stated. The only requirement is two six-week periods of summer camp during the college years. Dean Clifford declared a person receives a deferment for this as he does in ROTC.

Deferments may also be obtained by scoring 70 or above on the College Qualification tests, or by remaining in the required percentage of the individual class. These, however, are not mandatory for the draft boards, stated Clifford. They are merely practices that they follow. Variations could exist in various draft boards.

"IF YOU MEET either standard of deferment, however, the chances of getting the deferment are good," he declared.

The panel pointed out another way in which students can gain college credit while in service. Syracuse university allows three ways of obtaining credit.

A student could take a correspondence program with the United States Armed Forces Institute and receive approximately 6-8 hours of transfer credits. He could also attend classes at a campus near base or, finally, have a university send instructors to the base, as is done in the case of Maryland.

Deadline Tomorrow For Speech Entries

Tomorrow is the deadline for registration of entries in the White Memorial contest. The $75 award was established in 1916 by Forace and Ernest Ingersol White "as a tribute of affection and gratitude" to the memory of their father, Horace Keep White.

All first or second semester seniors enrolled in any University school or college who will receive their baccalaureate degrees before August 1954 are eligible to enter. Speeches may be given on any topic the contestant deems vital. They should be approximately 10 minutes in length and outlined, but not memorized.

Speeches should be registered with Mrs. Kline in 412 HL today or Friday between 1 and 2:30 p.m. or with Mrs. Disinger in 416 HL. Outlines are due on Monday at 1 p.m. in 416 HL. Twelve contestants will be selected at the quarter-finals December 1 at 7:30 p.m in 415 HL. The semi-finals will be held December 3 and the finals December 10, when the winner will be chosen.

Boar's Head Seeks Script For Show

The competition which the Drama department is sponsoring for a campus-wide musical playrighting contest is still underway according to Jerry Leider, faculty member.

To date, ten scripts for the senior spring musical have been received. The contest got underway two weeks ago. All entries must be in by December 11. The drama department has offered a prize of $100 to the author of the winning script.

All entries must be typewritten, double spaced and must be produced at the University to be eligible for the prize. Decisions of the Drama department will be final.

CPA Will Address Cost Accountants

Vincent D. Meyer, CPA, will address the November meeting of the Syracuse chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants, tonight at the Hotel Syracuse.

Meyer received his BS degree in accounting from Syracuse university, where he was a member of the accounting honorary fraternity, Beta Alpha Psi.

At present, he is manager of the systems department of Price Waterhouse & Co., New York city.

Meyer's topic will be "Application of Various Types of Office Machinery for Industrial Uses." Horace J. Landry, CPA, director of programs for the group, will introduce the speaker.

Ski School Slates Classes Today

Classes in skiing will be held today at 1:30 and 7 p.m. The classes will be in 305 Women's building and members should bring the six dollar registration fee. Those students who are taking skiing for credit must attend the afternoon class. Coeds who attend the meeting should wear slacks and low heels.

WAER to Predict Campus Weather

WAER is predicting the weather. According to Gilbert Katz, station publicity director, starting Friday noon, different colored flags denoting the weather will be flown from the light tower on the eastern side of the quadrangle.

Yesternoon afternoon Richard Markson of the publicity staff climbed the tower to erect a six foot extension from which the flags will be flown.

WAER has been working out the details of the plan for the past two months. Final preparations will be completed today.

Bird Will Entertain Grads at Dinner

Dr. George L. Bird, director of the Graduate division of the School of Journalism, will entertain graduate students enrolled in the school at their tenth annual fall dinner party this Saturday at his home, 305 Elm st., Fayetteville.

The group consists of 45 students from the United States and 11 foreign countries. Included in the group are missionaries, literacy workers and teachers, many of whom are studying here under Fulbright grants.

Foreign countries represented this year are India, Pakistan, the Philippines, Liberia, Korea, Uganda, Burma, Canada, Puerto Rico China and Japan.

DO Colgate Issues Carried by Air

Colgate weekend editions of The Daily Orange were distributed last weekend on aircraft of American Airlines bound from New York to Syracuse. This was the first time in the history of the paper that copies had been distributed aloft.

Richard Hoffman, assistant sales manager of the DO, originated the idea. Consulting with Business Manager Robert Goldstein, Hoffman called American Airlines, which immediately contacted their Newark office.

THE GO-AHEAD signal came shortly after, and 300 copies of the paper were flown to New York Friday morning. They were redistributed on all flights from New York to Syracuse on Friday and Saturday.

The stewardess on each flight was requested to announce that the Colgate edition was available to interested parties. Apparently many of the passengers were interested, for many alums commented on the service when they arrived in Syracuse.

Copies were also distributed at stations throughout the city, including the New York Central station, the terminal at Hancock field, Hotel Syracuse and the Hotel Onondaga.

GOLDSTEIN SAID that a limited number of Colgate weekend editions are still available for students who would like to take them home or send them to friends or alumni. They may be obtained at the Hellbox.

The special Colgate Weekend edition was edited by Flip Sirota, assisted by Ed Hardy. Lee Kiklier was in charge of the sports section. The issue included a tabloid section, with picture spreads devoted to the Colgate campus and the Women's building, the dedication of which was included in the weekend festivities. Pictures of chairmen of weekend events were also published.

THEY GOT to Syracuse early last weekend—by way of The Daily Orange's Colgate edition. Three hundred copies of the paper were sent to New York and distributed on American Airlines flights from New York enroute to Syracuse—another DO first. Many alums later told of their surprise and delight at receiving the paper while still airborne. Courtesy of American Airlines

Hilltop solution

Help has at last arrived for the student with a car.

One of the continuing major problem areas at Syracuse has been the parking facilities (or lack of them) allotted student drivers. Three lots had previously been open to them: behind the St. Thomas More house, behind the Sigma Phi Epsilon house and near Hendricks field.

For the amount of students who do or would like to drive to the campus, the three parking places had seemed insufficient.

Now, however, the Administration has wisely developed a new parking area for the student—the top of Mt. Olympus. There is room for a maximum of 200 cars.

But the major advantage of the lot which was completed this week is a stairway which will drop the driver not a mile from campus, but rather, right behind Sims.

Not only is there now adequate space for student cars but in a location far closer to campus buildings then two of the other lots.

It was reported to the Daily Orange yesterday that between 20-40 parking violation tickets are handed out daily. Three-time violators must report to the dean of men's office besides paying the fines imposed. A fourth offense means suspension of all parking privileges and disciplinary action by the Student Court.

As long as adequate student facilities are now available, it can be hoped Syracusans will take advantage of the opportunity and that the number of tickets will be reduced.

Two other parking problems remain to be solved. Only the cooperation of students and faculty will eliminate these, however.

The driveway between Sims and Slocum is sometimes blocked in the evening with parked cars, creating a safety and fire hazard. This situation is also causing some ill will among rerouted bus drivers.

This could be very easily solved by parking on campus in the space provided.

The other problem concerns parking on the driveway north of Smith. This space was given to construction and service crews and the additional cars are only adding to the congestion.

We hope that students and faculty can cooperate in solving these problems which, unsolved, mean headaches and tickets for all parties concerned.

Love in a quandry

We read with delight a headline on the front page of this paper yesterday. It headed a story on a social hygiene lecture and put forth the provocative statement that "romance can't last."

We slipped pretty quickly into the article and were jarred to the quick conclusion that the headline writer had been a little overzealous in his condemnation of the charming, impractical side of love.

Lapsing a bit, we tried to figure what the lecturer had really said about "romance on a courtship basis not continuing on after marriage." We were not quite sure what the standardized code for "courtship basis" was, but this paper can go on record as saying that it 'tain't necessarily so.

The hygiene speaker rather pictured life after marriage as one of cool evaluation of us and our partner's failings and then trying to devise a system to avert civil war. Rather puts one out to think that might be it. Think of it . . . days at the drawing board pouring over plans, a concentrated campaign to wipe out the old phobias that made us such a lovable beast at fraternity parties . . . making allowances for your partners impractical financial delvings that made her the belle of the Marshall st. shops.

Then after years of bone-crushing compromise and stature-whittling, you both suddenly find that nobody has a trait to their name and you can't stand each other's insufferably dull presence. Of course love on a romantic basis has been blasted to tiny smithers by then. And we figure the cause for it all is this strategic married life.

We'll stick to a buss, a bambino and a buck in the bank . . . a college education wasn't devised for a scientific approach to love.

Red Peek-a-boo

By HUGH O. MUIR
Editorial Director

Every day in every way our thinking gets cloudier and cloudier. The headlines on commie hunting have almost attained the rabid following equal to that of such famous anti-subversives as Joe Palooka and Dick Tracy.

Of particular interest to a college environed person is the series on what to do to get the Reds and Pinks out of American universities . . . that is if we want to get them out . . . that is if we can find one in the first place.

Two rather clear-cut and diametric arguments are (1) to have the individual institutions police themselves and have the decision of what to do with subversives found and (2) to have a group on a national level draw up a code for dismissal to be followed by all educational institutions.

Before lines are drawn and we start picking sides, it would be well to point out the fallacies in both arguments.

Argument 1: From John Locke to John Stuart Mill, the individual reigned supreme in theory and practice, at least did so in comparison to previous ages. Although the complexities of the present interlocked world have reduced this supremacy of the individual somewhat, the tradition remains with such institutions as the Press and education.

From this it is natural that each college would demand the right to choose its own faculty and stand in judgment of it. However, the range of the liberalness of thought in American colleges is great.

This diversity is the loophole for the communist indoctrinator. While some college in the east may allow broad interpretations of exactly what the limits of its professors' beliefs may be, these same interpretations could easily be enough to reject a man for employment in the midwest.

It seems ludicrous to have teachers banned in one area yet allowed in another. It is inevitable that these differences will arise. The actual purpose of argument is therefore defeated.

Argument 2: The centralization of authority that has grown over the past century has produced much national control over policies. This has happened because of a necessity for conformity to run the vast pieces of today's civilization.

From this it is natural that a demand would arise for a national board to choose a policy in conformance with national security that would limit teacher employment throughout the United States on a like basis.

Here, unfortunately, another loophole develops. National boards have long been held in suspect. It is extremely difficult to find men whose minds are capable of approaching such a ticklish question as this . . . and their decision could easily be but another narrow consensus. How would they be picked? The danger here is obviously that many who are credible teachers would be sacked.

So here are some of the dangers; the solution lies in a re-education of the minds of the American citizen. He must be made to realize that communist influence hasn't a chance if the basis for democracy is instilled deeply enough in the citizen's mind. Then worry for the problem would not arise and education could return to the old practice of presenting knowledge for all who wished it.

After the Blast...

By FRANK McGUIRE

(Editor's note: The following is written as a hypothesis of the results of the atom bomb blast scheduled for tomorrow by Civil Defense officials in this area.)

It seems impossible that such a large university could have disappeared so quickly and completely. The area we have checked today has been cleared by Civil Defense officials and members of the press are allowed to inspect the former site of Syracuse university.

There are still no accurate reports of the casualties and when the reports are complete, they will be all that remains to represent the majority of students at Syracuse university. Most of the living centers, sororities and fraternity houses connected with the University were wtihin the three quarter mile area that was completely destroyed by the blast, which, as you know, hit University and College Place at 4:15 a.m. Thursday.

All University buildings have completely disappeared, with the exception of a small section of the College of Forestry which was sheltered by Mount Olympus. Most of the other buildings within the three quarter area were also wiped out. Some small structures behind hills escaped complete destruction, but are burned out and are beyond repair or salvage.

Living centers at Collendale were wiped out and those at Skytop were damaged so badly as to be absolutely useless for any purpose. Steel and concrete structures at these same locations withstood the blast better, being heavily damaged and burned out, but still standing. The Ski lodge was totally destroyed and only the stone foundation left to testify that it had ever been there.

Most of the city's hospitals were totally destroyed, with the lower sections of the Veterans hospital being protected by Crouse hill.

Other buildings up to one and one-quarter miles from the blast site were very heavily damaged and large fires completed the job that the initial blast had not done.

The Civil Defense plan to funnel the flames from numerous fires into Lake Onondaga, have been carried out. Fire equipment was so arranged that the flames could spread in only one direction and that resulted in most fires being checked by the waters of the lake.

It was a significant factor in the surprise raid that most people completely ignored the alert signal, thinking it was a test. This resited in a great number of serious casualties that could easily have escaped with minor injuries. Officials predicted that alerts would not be ignored in the future.

Missing The Point

College life has its ups and downs but the frustration is strained to the breaking point when it literally happens on vacation.

Two coeds from the mid-west traveled by bicycle in Europe last summer. They had parted for a day and planned to meet at the top of a near-by hill. One arrived early and passed the time by coasting down the hill and walking back up.

Hours passed . . . her friend did not show. Suddenly, at one of her returns to the top of the incline, she met her companion . . . who had been doing the same thing up

THE 'MET' KNOCKIN' ON OUR DOOR

The Metropolitan Opera company has come a-knocking at the door of Syracuse's cultural merry-go-round, asking, in fact even pleading, to be let in.

Last week, Mr. Bill Stark, director of the War Memorial auditorium, revealed that he had been approached by officials of the Met regarding two open days in the company's 1954 road schedule which might be available for booking at the local auditorium.

Might.

Whether or not the Manhattan group would send one of its traveling shows up to Syracuse hinged on the availability of a local sponsor for the performance. According to Stark, "in this great city some organization or a combination of several would be willing to accept sponsorship of this outstanding presentation."

He noted that the dates would not be held long for Syracuse and time was 'a wastin'.

The program proposed for this city includes three operas: "Faust", "La Traviata" and "Lucia Di Lammermoor," May 21 and 22, 1954.

Following Stark's announcement early last week, six local organizations indicated that they would be interested in discussing sponsorship and hundreds of post cards and letters were received by the Memorial director assuring support for the Met.

Although a surprising measure of support was called in by the Met's plea, up until last night no definite move had been made to schedule the opera company for a Syracuse appearance. Perhaps the gears are now grinding undetected by the home folks.

It is rather doubtful, according to the record books that the Metropolitan road company has ever played the Salt City in its 70-year history. There have been a host of operas, "Madame Butterfly," "La Traviata," "Carmen", "Faust," and a host of groups: the San Carlo, New York Grand Opera, New American, Philadelphia; but never the Met.

Now that Mr. Bing's men have waltzed into Central New York with open arms and great, bounding wishes to present their culture locally, we should reply with nothing less than open pocketbooks.

In Syracuse, opera of any sort is as scarce as bottled fencepost starch.

Freedom From Fear

Wearing white robes and carrying lighted candles, a group of college students convened on their campus recently to burn an effigy of Senator Joseph McCarthy. They denounced what they called "the terror tactics" used in his investigations.

The students were safe, though, from a McCarthy investigation or reprisal. They were Canadians, undergraduates at the University of Toronto.

'No Political Themes'

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN

"Dry as a tomb, your coloured lids
Shall not be latched while magic glides
Sage on the earth and sky;
There shall be corals in your beds,
There shall be serpents in your tides,
Till all our sea-faiths die."

We were one part of a sardined Hendricks chapel sanctuary. The occasion: a humanities lecture. The time: April, 1953. The speaker: Dylan Thomas.

The Welsh poet strode across the altar to a microphone he scarcely needed. In a voice "as booming and resourceful as a cathedral organ" he spoke in verse of Americans and ladies' clubs and young boys in the orchard.

Dylan Thomas is dead. His voice remains on two records he cut. His lines of genius survive him in the few volumes published during his lifetime.

Thirteen days after celebrating his 39th birthday, as if by some jinx, the renowned poet of the 20th century went to his tomb.

There were no political themes for him. His poems were "written for the love of man in praise of God" and he'd be "a damn fool if they weren't." He wrote of birth and death, pain and joy, living and loving.

In our literature classes we read "Fern Hill," the verse story of his boyhood, and "The force that through the green fuse drives the flower drives by green age . . ."

After becoming a poet's equivalent of an overnight success in 1933 with the publication of his first volume of verses, Dylan married and became the father of three children—two sons and a daughter.

His voice was familiar to American lecture audiences; he had toured the United States speaking to college students and other groups. He died in New York last week after having given readings at City College of New York and two readings of a new play for voices, "Under Milkwood."

He came here to discuss plans for an opera with composer Igro Stravinsky at the musician's California home. They had taked over the plot and expected to develop it at their next meeting.

This was the man who had been to American four times within the past three years and on one trip had satisfied his desires to meet Chaplain and Sandburg and insult a rich industralist. He modestly said that college students know poetry better than he, that they ask brilliant questions.

Dylan Thomas was the author of several volumes of verse. His latest was published this year and entitled "The Collected Poems of Dylan Thomas, 1934-1953."

Sudden Reversal

One of our profs had just returned the mid-term test and was collecting the "A" exam papers for her file. She called out a girl's name and there was silence.

A male voice from the side said "Well, I've got it . . . I had become sort of attached to it." Realizing her mistake, the prof turned and picked up his paper from the desk. "Oh," she said, "I see why."

His real exam mark plumetted toward the nether regions.

AT THE FLICKERS

CULTURE TOUGH TO INSTALL

To those of us who are sick and tired of seeing films aimed at an intellectual level not far above that of the anthropoid apes, the announcement that the Eckel was going to show select foreign films, came as sort of a divine promise.

Troube reared its head. The Eckel did not open on schedule. The Eckel's delay in entering the fold of "art" houses, was due to its problem in installing its new panoramic screen.

The screen (17 feet, 10 inches high by 30 feet wide) was cut too large for the Eckel's proscenium arch, necessitating an adjustment in that arch. The theater's new policy may be artistically high-flown but it cannot operate with anything as mundane as a conventional screen. "The Cruel Sea" was thwarted by a cruel screen.

As we watched the tired, ill-tempered men grapple with the massive screen several questions presented themselves: Was it all worth it? Would panoramic projection really enhance the artistry of the fine lineup announced by the Eckel? It would take prophetic vision to answer these questions accurately; since our crystal ball is out being washed, we can only answer on the basis of past experience.

In the past months we have seen Cinemascope, panoramic screening 3-D and more processes for filming than there are basic plots (according to Aristotle). It's pretty clear that we still haven't seen the end of this constant swarm of cinematic innovations. But we still haven't seen an effective use of them.

Cinemascope captures beautiful scenery with the effectiveness of its broad panoramic scope. But this scenery is often blurred and when Cinemascope goes indoors it destroys intimacy and seriously harms dramatic intensity. The panoramic screen (a sort of baby Cinemascope) has the same virtues but often at the expense of the legs and heads of the performers. Three-D, having been used with complete lack of discretion, has demonstrated itself little more than a sensational novelty. "Cinerama" cannot honestly be evaluated since it is not a full-length drama.

This column would not like to go on record as desiring a maintainance of the status quo. It simply wishes that the producers would use greater discretion in their employment of the various processes. A new innovation does not justify itself solely on the basis of its newness. It must also be constructive.

The Eckel opened belately last night. We wish it our heartiest congratulations in its attempt to give the people of Syracuse something different in entertainment and hope the screen behaves.

Fans' Forum to Feature Colgate Game Tonight

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

It seems that only yesterday Ben Schwartzwalder's charges whipped an outclassed Temple team in the season's grid opener. But a glance at the calendar is proof enough that the winter sports season is not only knocking but literally crashing into the athletic spotlight.

A week from Saturday, while everyone else is home for Thanksgiving vacation, the Syracuse basketball squad pries off the lid against Ithaca college. There may not be too many on hand to see the game, but the word is that this year's squad is loaded.

Mel Besdin

With the nucleus of '52's top-notch frosh squad on hand, and only Frank Reddout plus Bill Manikas missing from last year's squad, it should be a good year. Some feel that within the next two seasons, the Orange could rate for national prominence.

The first task on hand, however, is a slight matter of a 20-game slate against the top hoop powers of the East. Barring injuries, Marc Guley's boys should have no trouble in bettering the disappointing 7-win, 13-loss of a winter ago.

Veterans returnees include Capt. Mel Besdin, the tall play-maker Dave Klein, pepper-pot Bill Nelson, a good all-around competitor in Ron Kilpatrick and a fellow who was responsible for several of the few Orange wins in '52, unheralded Skip Thaw.

Coming up from the freshman club which lost only a one-point decision in 13 outings, are Manny (Boob) Breland, Gus Castellini, Walt Scott and Ron Gillespie. All of them will be scrapping for the coveted five starting posts.

It would not be surprising to see a revised lineup including several of the sophs in the starting five. One thing is certain. No one is assured of starting. There's going to be a lot of talent sitting on the Orange bench this winter.

* * * * *

The remainder of the snowy-season sports picture doesn't begin until January with the exception of swimming and most likely gymnastics. The mermen entertain some of the best in swimming at the Niagara AAU meet here in mid-December.

For the first time in many years, Ted Webster's splashers boast an adequate schedule of nine meets. It's too bad that the swim coach won't have a team to go with the schedule. You don't lose guys like Tom Schaefer, George Miscko, Charlie Kohnken and co. without feeling the pinch.

The sophomores reportedly boast several good men but as usual most of them are at least a year away in the experience league. The swimsters should be able to hold their own but it probably won't be like the past clubs which posted the vast majority of meets on the winning side of the slate.

Gymnastics coach Paul Romeo, on the other hand, has all from the 1952's championship-caliber squad returning. His one big problem will be in gaining second and third places in some of the events because of a lack of team depth.

Although the official schedule begins in February, it is almost certain that the squad will invade the South as they did last year. Romeo has a tentative slate against Duke, North Carolina and Florida State for mid-December.

All that the team is waiting for is the okay from the athletic department which should be forthcoming very soon. Paul plans to take down a team of his top five men instead of the usual squad of 12.

The boys will leave the last week of school before Christmas and drive all the way down to Florida and back before the holidays. Just don't have another Miami massacre, Paul.

Powerful Wildcats Host Piety Gridders

One of the biggest disappointments of the present grid season, Villianova's Wildcats, will provide the final opposition of the 1953 season for Ben Schwartzwalder's Syracusans Saturday at Philadelphia. After being touted as one of the best in the East in preseason forecasts, the Pennsylvanians have compiled a dismal record with only two wins in eight appearances.

When first scheduled, late this summer, the Villanova-Syracuse clash was conceded as the possible deciding game for the Lambert Trophy championship. As it stands now, the contest holds no such importance with Villanova and the Orangemen completely out of the running.

VILLANOVA'S FAILURE has been unexplainable so far since the squad shapes up much as last year's team which lost only one game in a nine-game schedule. All-American candidate Gene Filipski, a refugee from West Point, is still around and running in good form.

The Main Liners forward wall is composed almost entirely of veterans and is one of the biggest in the country, averaging almost 220-pounds per man. In addition, there is an abundance of depth throughout the squad.

Nevertheless, Coach Art Raimo has been unable to put together a winning combination and even the club's two victorious outings were not impressive. They beat a weak Boston College eleven 15-7 and edged little known Xavier 21-14.

Two players who have been the biggest disappointment on Raimo's team are guard Bob Volonino and halfback Ben Addiego. Volonino, another transfer from West Point was mentioned as a possible all-American candidate but so far he has not lived up to his press clippings.

THE RUGGED senior encountered trouble playing both ways, having formerly been a defensive specialist and has been relegated to the second-string behind senior Tom Fitzpatrick. The fleet Addiego was injured in the opening game against Georgia and couldn't win his spot back from Ralph Cecerri when he got back in shape.

Despite their difficulties, the Wildcats may prove rough competition for the Orangemen Saturday. Their potential is still present and they'll be out to salvage something from a dismal season.

The Filipski-led offense has been strong all season even in defeat and with some defensive help, they might have enough left to spring a surprise.

LEFTOVERS: Advance reports indicate a crowd of about 15,000 . . . After a slow start, ticket sales have picked up in the last few days . . . Villanova will be playing under a new name for the first time Saturday . . . The school's name was changed from Villanova college to Villanova university only yesterday.

Hill Harriers Drill For NCAA Meet

Coach Bob Grieve's hill-and-dalers are continuing workouts in preparation for the NCAA cross-country meet next Monday at East Lansing, Michigan.

The team will drill on the Drumlins course for the remainder of the week in the hope of ironing out several weaknesses which were revealed in the Orangemen's running in the IC4A meet this past Monday.

GRIEVE ANNOUNCED that he was not totally disappointed with his boys', efforts in the IC4A meet, but still envisions improvement next week at East Lansing. He feels that with several days of extensive work, he may have his boys ready to be among the top contenders for the team title.

Grieve and the rest of the team were enthused about the improved showing of Frank Caizi in the IC4A meet. Caizi, who had failed to distinguish himself in the earlier meets, came through with his best time of the season, a tremendous improvement over his earlier efforts.

The team also has high hopes that Jim George and Ed Alger will come through with their best showings of the year. There is definitely room for improvement from both of these promising young sophomore harriers.

Although Ray Osterhout failed to win the IC4A meet, he nevertheless was to be singled out for his fine attempt. Staging a neck-and-neck duel with John Joe Barry of Villanova, Ray tired in the last mile, but still managed to hang on and capture fourth place.

GENE PARKER, Steve Armstrong and Tom Coulter, the other Syracuse entrants, all came up with admirable showings and should be ready to prove themselves in the NCAA's.

Grieve expects that Michigan State, Pittsburgh and Penn State should once again give the Orangemen strong competition in the Nationals. These three teams finished one, two, three, respectively in the IC4A race.

Other teams which figure to dominate the NCAA race are the midwestern powers, Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan and the ever-powerful University of Kansas team.

One factor which may play an important part in the final outcome of the competition is that the race will only be of a four mile duration. In contrast, the IC 4A meet was a five mile run.

After completing the week of workouts on the home course, the Grievemen will leave by train for East Lansing Saturday evening and will return by pullman Monday evening following the running of the meet.

Tau Delta Phi Wins In Bowling Match

By SOL BECKER

With bowling well underway, Tau Delta Phi defeated Phi Delta Theta in the feature match last night. The first game was very close, but Tau Delta Phi, sparked by Curly Adler and Daniel Present, went on to win three straight games.

Beta Theta Pi came through in a highly contested match, beating Zeta Beta Tau in two out of three games. Phi Gamma Delta also took their match taking two out of three from Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Two teams in the freshman loop were active last night. Skytop M-4 took three games from M-2. They now have a record of three wins and no losses. In the other scheduled match, Skytop M-7 forfeited to M-5.

The high single of the night was 233, bowled by Bob Heydet of Beta Theta Pi.

SPLASHING SPREE

The swimming team holds another of its weekly splash parties tomorrow night in the new pool of the Men's gym starting at 7:30 p.m. All students are cordially invited. Admission is fifty cents.

Inside Intras

By DAVE BENNETT

University intramural football champion Theta Chi's thrilling 7-6 victory over Alpha Phi Delta, Utica College intra king, culminated almost two months of spirited intra grid play on Saturday morning at Hendricks field.

The Theta Chi squad spotted their opponents a one touchdown lead when the Uticans tallied on the opening kickoff.

But with quarterback Don Moller passing and running well, the Syracusans scored the equalizer in the third period. A Moller TD sprint tied the game. The contest was won when a Moller to Ed Gozigian pass registered the point after touchdown.

Theta Chi's nip-and-tuck victory almost duplicated its 20-19 decision over the G. D. I. squad in the all-university finale.

With football over and swimming just concluded with Phi Psi's 19-12 win over M-14 in the championship match, the intra spotlight focuses on bowling.

Intramural Director Milt Howard reports that the fraternities taking part in the bowling program are doing well, only one house having forfeited.

But the independent-living center participants have let down, with eight teams having forfeited. This caused a reorganization of the independent-living center flights; two are now in operation instead of three.

Individually, Deke Phil Young still has recorded the highest total of any of the intra keglers. Young rolled a 243 single game and a 566 total during the first week of competition in the recently completed Women's Building alleys.

INTRA BITS: There is an important intramural managers meeting tonight at 7:30 in the trophy room of Archbold gym. This is an organizational meeting for all winter sports and any team wishing to enter basketball, handball, ping pong, volleyball or skiing must send a representative.

Pi Chi To Defend Greek Sailing Title

The second annual inter-fraternity sailing regatta will be held on Lake Onondaga this Saturday, as Greek seamen seek to capture the Lund's Sport Shop Trophy. Race time is set for 1:30 p.m. with twice as many races being sailed as the numbers of fraternities competing.

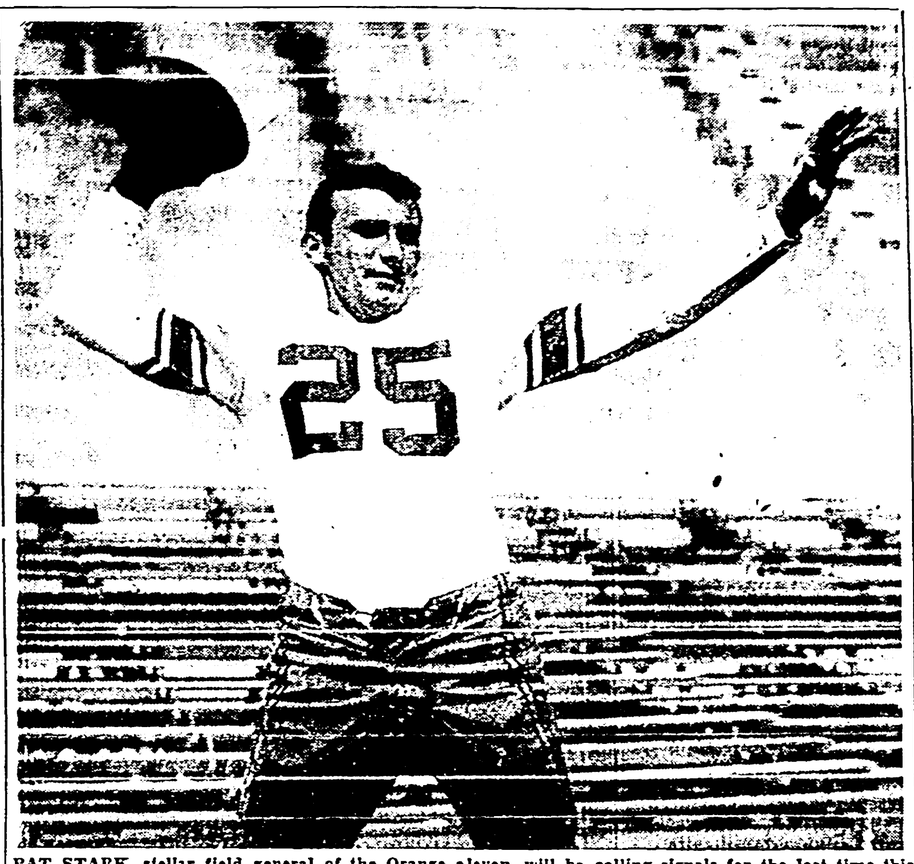
With the deadline for entrants ending at midnight last night, those houses filed in by 5 p.m. included Pi Alpha Chi, Phi Kappa Psi, Delta Upsilon, Delta Tau Delta and Phi Gamma Delta. Late entrants may contact Peter Latham at Delta Tau Delta.

Gordon Bentley, alumnus of the Syracuse university Yacht club, which is sponsoring the regatta, will serve as chairman of the race committee.

Pi Alpha Chi won the trophy last year by two points, following a first day, four-way tie for the lead. Pulling a first in the final race of the Sunday "playoff," Pi Chi broke a deadlock with the Delts, who notched second place.

The fraternities will do their racing in the University Yacht club's fleet of ten Tech dinghies which are moored on a float off the Onondaga Yacht club. Triangular courses will probably run about a mile in length, with a run, reach, and beat included.

Intramural athletic director Milt Howard has indicated that next year's regatta will undoubtedly be included in the regular intramural schedule. The spirit and success of last spring's inaugural points to continued enthusiasm on the part of Hill fraternities.



PAT STARK, stellar field general of the Orange eleven, will be calling signals for the last time this Saturday, when the Hilmen meet Villanova in the season's finale. Stark's great defensive play and accurate passing arm will be counted on once again to lead the way to another Syracuse victory.

Gridmen Drop in Lambert Rating Despite Decisive Colgate Victory

While Uncle Ben Schwartzwalder ran his team through their paces last night, the Lambert Trophy committee sent a shocker by mail. It was learned yesterday that after Syracuse's 16 point win over Colgate, they dropped from a fifth-place tie to sixth.

An even bigger surprise: Navy who was supposed to beat Columbia by 20 points and finally won by 6, moved from the fifth place tie to third. Army captured first place, Penn dropped to second and Pitt and Penn State round out the first five.

VILLANOVA, Syracuse's opponent this weekend, dropped out of the first ten for the first time this season. All this despite the fact that they have only beaten one Eastern opponent.

Syracuse's quarterback Pat Stark found himself thrust in the midst of the national statistics. In statistics released yesterday, Stark ranks 13th in the nation in total offense. The total offense ratings are ranked according to total yardage gained. Other familiar names in the total offense ratings: J. C. Caroline of Illinois, fifth and Tony Rados of Penn State, 19th.

Since Stark received mention in the total offense bracket, it is only logical that he be included in forward passing offense. He is. Stark is 11th in the nation in forward passing offense. Places are awarded on the basis of the number of completions.

DESPITE ALL these fine statistics the fact remains: Syracuse has a football game this Saturday. Their Philadelphia opponent presents a strange problem to the Orange coaching staff.

Villanova has a fine team, on paper. On the field the Wildcats don't seem to click. At the end of last season it seemed as if the Wildcats had the makings of a good team. They had an all-American halfback—Gene Filipski. They had a big line—220 pound average.

Villanova started the year with two tough games, and according to the dopesters, if they came through these in good shape they would be the man-killers of the East coast.

The next week against Texas, Villanova wilted in the hot weather but weren't completely disgraced by the Longhorns.

It seems that the heavy Wildcat line plays good ball at the beginning of every game. Then the weariness sets in and all of Filipski's runs and all of Filipski's tackles can't piece the Villanova Wildcats together again.

FROSH SCRIBES

A meeting of the freshman sports staff will be held at 4:15 p.m. today in Yates Castle. It is important that all frosh sports writers attend, as a new policy will be formulated for the winter sports schedule.

Movies of the Colgate-Syracuse game will be shown tonight in Maxwell auditorium, starting promptly at 7:15. Line Coach Rocco Pirro will narrate.

The movies have to be run early this week due to the heavy demand. The Daily Orange was just able to squeeze the films in. They are scheduled for another showing in another part of town at 9 p.m.

COACH PIRRO will show the films and narrate the game as it progresses. When Rocky shows the films of Colgate, he will point out some mistakes of the Colgate team. This will be an odd situation, for Pirro and Colgate Coach Hal Lahar were co-captains for the Buffalo Bills in the old American Football conference.

Pirro is a native of Syracuse and played his college ball for Catholic university. After his graduation in 1940 he signed with the Pittsburgh Steelers and played blocking back with them until he entered the service.

After his service stint, Rocky went to the Buffalo Bills and there teamed with the other guard and co-captain Hal Lahar. He later coached the Baltimore Colts and the Montreal Alouettes.

Rocky just joined the Orange staff last year.

THE SIZE of the crowd attending the Fans' Forum tonight will determine whether or not a Fans' Forum will be held after the Villanova game. If the movies of the Villanova game are to be held, it will have to be the Tuesday following the game.

Coach Pirro will be able to tell a few words about the Villanova Wildcats as he scouted them in their last game.

Many of the students who watched the Colgate game did not have as good a view of the game as the camera did. Fans will want to see many of the fine catches that boosted Pat Stark high into the ratings.

The fine line play that once again elected Ted Kukowski as "unsung lineman of the week" will be reviewed.

ANY MOVIES that will be shown next week, will have to be shown at some other site than Maxwell auditorium. If there are enough fans who wish to see them, it might be possible for The Daily Orange to arrange the showing of the Cornell game.

Clinical Psychology Department Transfers Services to Infirmary

By AL BARTKEVICIUS

Dr. G. Arnold Cronk of the Student Health service announced today the coordination of services of the Clinical Psychology department with the Student Health service.

Starting this week, and continuing from now on, Dr. Joseph Masling and Edward Levin will be available at their Student Infirmary offices to work in cooperation with the Infirmary staff in training students.

SERVICES OF the two men can be acquired by appointment when joint physical and mental treatment of a student is needed. This student service has been transferred from its former offices on College pl., and situated in two offices at 111 Waverly ave.

The offices have been renovated for the psychological counseling purpose, with soundproofing and specially chosen pastel wall colors.

Community counseling services are still in their old offices at the Psychological Research center on College pl.

This conjunction of the services has been made to get better cooperation and results between the department of Health and the department of Psychology. Plans were to provide this special treatment at the beginning of this school year, but circumstances prevented this.

"YOU JUST can't dis-associate physical treatment from mental treatment successfully, and in trying to do so we have failed miserably in the past," said Dr. Cronk.

The combination of the two types of treatment, mental and physical, should give a greater deal of success in treating the students, he continued.

Dr. Robert Pace is the director of the Psychological Research center.

DR. G. ARNOLD CRONK, Student Health service, has announced that the service is being coordinated with the Clinical psychology department.

Males to Take Deferment Exam

More than 440 men will take the selective service college qualification test today in Archbold gym.

The three hour exam provides evidence for local draft boards when considering a student for deferment from military service. Undergraduates must score a 70 or better in order to be eligible for deferment on the basis of the exam. Graduates must score 75 or above.

The test will be considered along with class standing for academic deferment. To be eligible for the test students must be selective service registrants, and must be pursuing a full time college course. Students who have previously taken the test may not take it again.

The test will be comprised mainly of English and math questions. For that reason it is better for the student to take the test as early as possible before he has begun to specialize.

The tests are administered by the Educational Testing service of Princeton, N. J. This will be tenth test of this type that has been given.

All the tests are of equivalent difficulty and therefore students taking the test can be graded on the same basis.

Another test will be administered early next year. Eligible students failing to take this test are urged to attend the coming one.

Housing . . .

in dormitories usually rises at the end of the fall semester when students vacate private homes and fraternities and new students are admitted.

Each semester a routine check of residences is made after rosters have been received from fraternities, resident advisors, and householders.

All changes of address must be reported to Buckle at his office in the dean of men's office in the Administration bldg.

Students living in non-approved housing are then required to move to authorized residences, with the exception of a few cases in which students live with relatives or work for subsistence.

Guest Concert Artist Will Play in Series

Firkusny to Perform On Lincoln Stage

The third feature of Famous Artists' current musical series will be presented at 8:15 p.m. today on the Lincoln auditorium stage with a concert by internationally celebrated pianist, Rudolf Firkusny.

The Firkusny concert will serve as Syracuse's contribution to the 100th anniversary celebration of Steinway and sons, noted piano manufacturing firm. Henry Z. Steinway, second eldest son of Theodore E. Steinway, president of the company, will be guest of honor at the concert.

FOLLOWING THE program, the Clark Music co. will sponsor a reception in the Cavalier room of Hotel Syracuse, honoring Firkusny and Steinway.

Firkusny's Syracuse program will include "Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue", Bach; "Sonata in C, Op. 53", Beethoven; "Ballade in F Minor", Chopin; "Nocturne", Chopin; and "Pictures at an Exhibition", Moussorgsky. He will dedicate one of his numbers as a tribute to the house of Steinway.

Special student tickets for the Firkusny concert priced at $1.50 will be available today at the University bookstore.

Instructor to Speak On Letter Writing

Worried about that letter of application to an employer after graduation?

Miss Dorothea Chandler, chairman of the secretarial science department and business English teacher, will speak on "How to Write Letters of Application" to all liberal arts and business administration seniors at 2:30 p.m. today in 117 Lyman.

Many applicants are troubled by the resume of past experience requested by some firms. Miss Chandler will outline the proper method of constructing such a resume.

She will also talk on common faults in letters of application and what a company looks for in application letters.

Like The Real Thing

Protestants Plan Meditation Day

"Quiet Day," sponsored by the Protestant council of Chapel, will be held from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Saturday at the Presbyterian church in Marcellus.

The day will consist of a series of mediations led by Rev. William H. Cole, rector of All Saints Episcopal church of Syracuse.

A major portion of time will be reserved for individual reading, walking and thinking. Evening prayer and hymns, followed by a fellowship supper will close the program.

A library of inspirational books will be made available but a student may bring books of his own choosing. A nominal fee will be charged for supper and luncheon.

The day was planned "to give students an opportunity to step out of the world for a day in order to see both God and the world in a better perspective."

All interested students should register with Miss Arsine Schmavovian, Presbyterian counselor, between 11:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. in the Chapel.

Air Cadets To Vie In Plane Contest

Competition Ends Dec. 1; Models Include Jets

Air Force ROTC cadets are competing in an unusual contest this semester. More than 150 of them have entered model planes in a contest for the prize of riding in a T-33 jet trainer fighter.

Sponsored by the Air Force department on the Hill the contest is being conducted by Major James Finlayson, USAF, the freshman AFROTC instructor.

The models already include a wide variety of craft ranging from the multi-engined B-29 bombers to sleek, shiny F-86 sabrejets.

The T-33 jet rides are being donated by Col. Robert Israel, US AF commander of the 32nd Air division, Hancock field. The judges for the contest, which closes December 1, are Samuel Kalin and Edward Rizzo, contest directors of the Academy of Model Aeronautics, Washington, D. C.

A quick-witted college student decided to add a new sport shirt to his wardrobe. Although broke, he was unconcerned. He walked into the local sportswear shop and said, "Let me see your smartest checked sport shirts."

The clerk showed him several Van Heusen FIELDWOOD CHECK Sport Shirts. "These are the finest I've got," he beamed. "The fabric is 55% wool and 45% rayon—for kitten's-ear softness and long, long wear. They can be laundered in lukewarm water. And you can choose from a wide selection of small and medium-size checks...and only $7.95 apiece."

"Just what I was looking for," said the student. "I'll take this one with the medium-size checks."

The clerk wrapped the shirt and handed it to him. "That will be $7.95," he said.

"On second thought, I'll take that one with the small checks," said the student.

The obliging clerk unwrapped the first shirt, wrapped the second one and handed it to the student, who turned to leave. "Just a minute," cried the clerk. "You forgot to pay for it."

"I gave you the other shirt for it," answered the youth.

"But you didn't pay for the other shirt," continued the clerk.

"Naturally! I didn't buy that one!"

Women Corps Reps Visit Campus Today For Interviews

Officers representing three branches of the women's services will be on campus today, according to Miss Dorothy Osborne, vocational counselor and director of placement for women.

The officers representing the navy, the women's medical specialist corps and the Women's Army corps will be available to January graduates for orientation and interviews.

The women, Lt. Commander Frances Mitchell, Major Felix Clark and Captain Elizabeth Crockett, will conduct a panel discussion with Miss Osborn this morning and will be available for interviews the rest of the day.

Under current military regulations women are permitted to become officers in the various services upon the receipt of a college degree. They receive the same pay as the men together with professional job training.

Interested women may call at the placement office, ext. 411 for interviews after 10:30 a.m. After today information will be available from Captain Syivester of the Army ROTC staff at 75-8979 or ext. 462.

WAER Will Play "Hi-Fi" Music

"Evening with Music", written and produced by Wallace Bradley, will be aired at 8 p.m. today over station WAER.

Third in a series of hi-fidelity programs, the WAER offerings stress the comparison of ordinary quality with hi-fi.

Downtown record and hi-fidelity stores will contribute to the program.

Orange Faces Villanova in Last 1953 Tilt

Students Top Quota, Give 379 Blood Pints

A total of 379 pints of blood were collected in the semi-annual blood drive this week, according to Dan Russell, co-chairman of the campus Red Cross board.

Russell said yesterday that 244 persons "went through" in the main campus drive. here were 22 rejects, so that 222 pints were collected. About 100 person were turned away because of time considerations.

Foresters donated a total of 157 pints. Signups totaled 169 persons but five were rejected and seven didn't show up.

Russell said that no breakdown of figures was available except for the foresters, concerning the donations of other groups included in the main campus figures. Many ROTC cadets donated, he said, and some of those that were turned away have made appointments to donate downtown. They will receive credit for donating, even though they did not give on campus.

He stated that groups participating in the drive included forestry club cabinet, Campus Chest, Alpha Phi Omega and ROTC honoraries.

Members of the campus board are needed, Russell added. Those interested may contact him at the Delta Tau Delta or Diane Johnson at Alpha Chi Omega.

The Syracuse university semi-annual blood drives were begun in 1950 when the Bloodmobile visited several Hill fraternities. Since then the University students have continually set records with their donations.

Donations are used by our armed forces and in civilian hospitals. Some blood is processed into plasma an dsome used in "whole" form.

Gamma globulin, useful in preventing paralysis in polio, is also obtained fro mthe blood fractions of the blood donated in Red Cross drives.

DO Stops Printing Until December

Monday's Daily Orange will be the final issue until Dec. 1. All news must be turned in by 3:30 today to assure publication in Monday's edition. Campus notices should be phoned to the afternoon editor, 75-5196.

Cheerleaders Saved By Gift from WAA

Functioning Board Votes $50 for Cheer Squad

Saturday's football fans in Philadelphia will be cheering under the direction of Syracuse cheerleaders, whose financial failure was solved Wednesday night.

At a WAA meeting in the Women's building Wednesday night, members of the functioning board voted to give $50 to the Syracuse cheerleading squad to guarantee cheerleaders at the Villanova-Syracuse contest.

Officers of WAA and managers of various sports also conferred with Miss Lucille H. Verhulst to outline a sports program which, if passed, will provide for more intercollegiate competition for women.

The proposed program will be taken by two Syracuse delegates to the Athletic Federation of College Women conference in Cortland on Dec. 5. Representing Syracuse at the convention will be Virginia Sheldrick, president of WAA and Mary Ann Lynd, program chairman.

At the December meeting of the New York state AFCW, Syracuse delegates will ask for a committee to study and formulate rules under which intercollegiate competition for women may be originated.

Mellow Music Makers

THAT SENTIMENTAL GENTLEMAN OF SWING, TOMMY DORSEY, greets his saxophonist brother, JIMMY, prior to stepping on the bandstand in the Persian Terrace, Hotel Syracuse. Playing a week's engagement at the local room, the Dorsey brothers share the same billing after several years with separate organizations.

Phi Psi Beats Betas In Intramural Series

Phi Kappa Psi was first in the fall fraternity program, according to unofficial figures announced at this week's Interfraternity Council meeting.

Phi Psi was closely followed in the standings by Beta Theta Pi. The top five houses according to the point system are Phi Kappa Psi, 62; Beta Theta Pi, 56; Sigma Chi, 47; Psi Upsilon, 46; and Phi Delta Theta, 44.

THE FRATERNITY football championship was won by Theta Chi, swimming by Phi Psi and cross-country by Beta Theta Pi.

The individual fraternity houses will have a role in this weekend's civil defense test, Jack C. Buckle, assistant counselor of Men's Housing and Residence said at the IFC meeting.

Several houses will be zone headquarters during the test drill. The second house officer of each house will be a civil defense representative and the president of each house acting as zone headquarters will be an acting CD report to the warden of their warden. The representatives will zone, who will then send the reports on to Buckle.

Student Bar Group Plans Tactics Meet

The student bar association of the Syracuse law school will hold a "Trial Tactics" conference on Monday, Nov. 23. The meeting will take place in the Colonial room of Hendricks chapel at 7 p.m. Chairman of the arrangements is J. Sanford Heim.

In preparation for a student court which will be held in the spring, the law school will show a movie called "Case in Point." This movie was prepared by the Harvard law school to help first year pre-law students with briefs and arguments that can be presented before the moot court.

The student bar association plans to hold three showings of the film. The first showing will be on Dec. 1 at 3 p.m. Interested students are urged to contact Prof. Hugo Green for additional information.

Jewish Services Plan Love Story

"Rachel and Jacob, a love story" will be the subject of Dr. Fred Krinsky of the Maxwell school at the Jewish Student fellowship services at 7:15 p.m. Friday in the Chapel.

JSF members taking part in the services include M. Robert Hecht, student leader; Lloyd Dunsker, student cantor; and Barry Gipstein and Wendy Mezz, readers. Candles will be lit by Marilyn Rosenthal.

Attending in groups will be Phi Sigma Sigma, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Beta Sigma Rho and Zeta Beta Tau.

Dansing classes will be conducted by Jewish student fellowship from 5-6 p.m. Sunday a Temple Concord, Madison and University aves. The classes will precede the JSF Sunday evening dinner.

The only charge is 65 cents for those persons who stay for dinner.

Psych Honorary Selects Pledges

Psi Chi, psychology honorary, has pledged 13 students. Among those pledged are Ruth Whitney, Alan Bernstein, Ruthellen Rosenfeld, Sandra Elster, Arlene Swertfeger, and Audrey Taksen.

Joan Nadelhaft, Phyllis Williams, Lila Brown, Myra Slavin, Charlotte Matleck, Fred Nauzle and Rita Frankill were also pledged.

Officers of the group are: Ruby Danz, president; Cecile Fox, recording secretary; Charles Klaif, corresponding secretary; Ann Saulen, treasurer.

Beta Sigma Rho's Onondagan Contest Deadline Monday

Only four more days remain in Beta Sigma Rho's '54 Onondagan contest. The deadline for all entries is Monday, November 23 at noon.

Cash prizes of $25, $10 and $5 to the three winners who best complete the sentence "I bought the 1954 Onondagan because . . ." in 25 words or less. Judges will include three faculty members. They are Vice-Chancellor Finla Crawford, Dean of Students Frank Piskor and Dean Charles Noble. Student judges are D.O. editor-in-chief Arlene Lambert and ON editor Thomas Beckett.

The ON contest was started by the Beta Sigs to help encourage sales of the yearbook. Entry blanks are available only to those students who have made a down payment on the ON. They may be obtained from ON salesmen on campus and at the Beta Sig house.

Entries will be judged on originality, neatness and clearness. The entry may be in the form of a jingle such as the following:

"In twenty years when our papoose
Is toting books at Syracuse,
This ON will prove what time conceals—
That Ma and Pa were also wheels."

In addition to the $40 in cash prizes, Marshall st. merchants are offering merchandise prizes to other winners in the contest.

These include a "Songs of Syracuse" record album from Olmsted's Record shop; a case of Coca-Cola supplied by Jerry's Supermarket; a man's sweater, courtesy of Lund's Men's shop and imported British Sasieni pipe fro mthe Hill Smoke shop.

Also dinner at the Cosom restaurant; a haircut and a bottle of tonic from the University Barbers; a double wash, four rinses and fluff dry for 16 pounds of laundry at Maxwell's launderette and five dollars worth of merchandise from the Varsity Camera store.

All entries must be delivered to Beta Sigma Rho fraternity 736 Comstock ave. by noon on Monday.

St. Louis School Offers Law Aid

Three year law scholarships at the Washington University School of Law are available for men and women who will have completed requirements for a baccalaureate degree from an approved college or university by Sept., 1954.

National law scholarships of up to $1,500 per year are given to students showing promise of becoming distinguished lawyers and exercising outstanding moral leadership in their communities. These awards are subject only to the maintenance of superior records by the recipients.

Christian Peper Memorial scholarships for full tuition, which is now $600, will be given to men and women who show promise of outstanding careers as lawyers and public leaders. These, too, are subject only to the maintenance of superior records.

Henry Semple Ames scholarships of half tuition, which is now $300, will be awarded on the same basis and subject to the same condition.

All applicants must take the Law school admission test. Applications must be in by March 31, 1954. They may be requested from the Office of the Dean, School of Law, Washington university, St. Louis 5, Missouri.

Graduates Plan 'Informal Night'

Graduate students have an evening of varied activities planned for "Informal Night," to be held from 8 to 12 p.m. tomorrow in the Women's building.

Under the sponsorship of the Gradate Commission, the affair will include dancing, bowling, bridge and card games.

A 25-cent fee will be charged for refreshments. All graduate students are invited to attend.

LUND OPEN HOUSE

Lund cottage, 911 South Crouse ave., will hold its first open house of the semester from 8:30 to 12:30 p.m. today. All freshmen men are invited.

SENIOR JIM GEORGE will be among the fourteen seniors playing their last game for the Orange against Villanova. George is an outside tackle but sometimes moves to defensive left end. He also handles most of the Orange kicking chores.

Three Gridders Earn Blue-Gray Tilt Bids

By KEN LENT
Daily Orange Sports Editor

Two Syracuse backfield men and three linemen reportedly will play in two of the nation's all-star football games, The Daily Orange learned yesterday. Halfback Bob Leberman, guard Bob Fleck and tackle Les McClelland have definitely received bids to play in the annual Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Alabama.

Quarterback Pat Stark and center Ted (Cookie) Kukowski will be on the Eastern squad when they meet the West in San Francisco later this month, according to the Herald-Journal. This announcement, however, is not yet official.

Leberman, who is the leading Orange ground-gainer this year, said that the nominees for the Blue-Gray contest obtained their invitations from the game committee about two weeks ago.

The selection of three and probably five men for such post-season tilts marks the greatest number ever represented by Syracuse university in an all-star clash. The Blue-Gray battle marks the 15th game in a series which began in 1939.

The South has won the last four games including last year's 28-7

Villanova Makes University Status

Villanova university will be playing its first football game in history tomorrow afternoon when they play host to Syracuse.

Wednesday the title of the Philadelphia school was changed from college to university and tomorrow will be the first appearance of a Villanova athletic squad under the new nomenclature.

A men's school with a full-time enrollment of 800 students, Villanova was founded in 1842 by the Augustinian Fathers of the Catholic church. It begun classes in the fall of 1843.

Villanova offers courses in six fields to its students. These in-commerce, finance and engineering. The school is situated on the former Bel Air estate, six miles from Philadelphia.

Producers Decide To Close Astor

The Astor Theater will close its doors after the last performance of the current play, producers James Russo and Michael Ellis announced yesterday.

The current season of plays was an attempt to make Syracuse a pre-Broadway tryout town. "Home at Seven," the present offering, is the first pre-Broadway play produced in Syracuse in 24 years.

The season lasted for seven productions, including such former hits as "Born Yesterday," "The Man Who Came to inner," and "Mr. Roberts."

Russo cited small audiences as the reason for their decision to close.

Vacation Housing Reservations Due

Male students wishing to make arrangements for housing during Thanksgiving vacation should contact Jack C. Buckle, director of men's counseling and residence, in the Dean of Men's office until 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Rates include $4 for the entire period Wednesday through Sunday, or a charge of $1.50 per night.

WAER Will Begin Weather Signals

The steel light tower on campus will be sporting red, yellow, and green flags beginning today as radio station WAER inaugurates a new campus tradition. Ceremonies will be held at 2 p.m. this afternoon.

As a public service to the students, the publicity staff of the station will hoist the flags as an indication of the coming weather.

A red flag will denote bad weather for the following day while a yellow flag indicates a change in the weather for the coming day. A green flag heralds the coming of nice weather. The flags will normally be changed at noon. A flag flying before noon indicates weather for that afternoon while one flying after that time shows the weather for the coming day.

Gil Katz, publicity director, and Gerry Kahlert and Richard Markson, both members of the publicity staff, are in charge of the flag raising and changing.

RABBI IRWIN HYMAN

Rabbi Irwin Hyman, chaplain to the Jewish students on campus, will visit the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house Sunday, Nov. 22, for dinner,

Syracuse Favored By 14 Points At Philadelphia

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Syracuse university football team left this morning to present their annual show before the big city alumni and at the same time, tighten the lid on the 1953 grid season. Syracuse is being called a 14 point favorite to dump the enigma that is the Villanova Wildcats. The game is on prodigious Franklin field in Philadelphia.

Uncle Ben Schwartzwelder packed his 35 boys onto a 9 a.m. airliner and will operate out of the Hotel Warwick while in Philadelphia.

FOURTEEN SENIORS will suit up for their last game in the familiar white jerseys of Syracuse. Co-captains Bob Fleck and Bob Leberman will make the decisions for the Orange on the field.

Philly fans will get a look at the fifth team in the nation in in rushing defense. In statistics released yesterday Syracuse found themselves down one place after giving Colgate 144 yards rushing last week.

With the ratings compiled on the basis of yards given up rushing per game, the Orange have allowed only 825 yards in eight games for a 103.1 average.

Syracuse's lineup has received no drastic alterations.

RIGHT END job goes to Ray Perkins who will shift as usual, to the left end on defense.

Jim George plays outside tackle and will be booting the extra points. George sometimes plays defensive left end when the going gets rough.

Les McClelland inside tackle, has been trying his foot at kickoffs of late and will probably assume that same chore.

Co-captain Bob Fleck plays the guard post both ways. An all-American last year, the Monster has had his name mentioned for a few this year.

TED KUKOWSKI, who lost a year of eligibility in transit from the Naval academy, will be playing his last game for Syracuse. In the space of one short year, Ted has become extremely popular with the Syracuse fans. Cookie has turned in some of the finest linebacking ever seen on the Hill.

Dependable senior Sam Jackson guards Kukowski on the left side. Johnson's play all year has been so consistent as to border on monotony.

Senior Herb Steigler, who recently has budded into a defensive star will start on the weak side end.

Quarterback will be Pat Stark. Pat, after a slow start, has been recently mentioned for all-East honors. Stark will see more duty as Dick Steiner, the man who usually spells Stark, suffered a leg injury in practice.

BRUCE YANCEY will probably start, but due to a leg injury has not seen much practice this week. Yancey, once a quarterback, has

ON Queen Contest Set for December

The ON queen contest to select the year book queen will be held 7 p.m., Dec. 10 in Maxwell auditorium. The queen will be selected by a prominent personality in the entertainment field.

Five finalists will be selected by the judges. The girls will be photographed and their pictures will be entered for final selection.

There is no limit to the number of girls a house may enter. Each entry must be accompanied by $1. The application deadline is Saturday, Dec. 5. Entries may be given to Dorothy Bronin at the Delta Phi Epsilon house or Harold Steinberg at the Phi Epsilon Pi house.

Foresters' Dance Set for Saturday

Who said blue jeans weren't in style?

The annual "Woodchoppers' Brawl," sponsored by the junior class of the College of Forestry will be held Saturday and those blue pants are the forester's uniform of the night.

Festivities get underway at 8 p.m. with round and square dancing in the rotunda of Bray hall. Blue jeaned and plaid shirted couples will take part in a log-sawing contest, according to Edward Morse, chairman.

Tickets for the "Woodchopper's Brawl" are $1.80 per couple and cider and doughnuts will be served,

Coffee for Goons Scheduled Sunday

A coffee for members of the Goon squad will be held at the Kappa Alpha Theta house Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. The coffee is to be attended by the Goon squadders at the following times: 2-2:30 p.m.—Aison to Bucko; 2:30-3 p.m.—Burkhardt to Forester; 3-3:30 p.m.—Fredrickson to Jager—3:30-4 p.m.—Jordan to Moore; 4-4:30 p.m.—Morgan to Seligman; 4:30-5 p.m.—Shester to Zahniser.

On the applications to be submitted by the Goon squadders to the Traditions commission, their name, address, telephone number and college must be included. The following information is also necessary:

1. College activities, past and present.
2. Committees worked on.
3. Breakdown and total number of hours (not including Goon squad dance.)
4. What abilities do you have that are beneficial to Traditions commission? (good ideas, organizational abilities, leadership, art ability, personality, quietness, etc).
5. What ideas do you have that next year's Goon squadders can use? (dorm parties, blind dates for Frosh, etc).
6. What ideas or criticisms do you have that would perfect Orientation week, pep rallies and placard cheering?

Collegiate Week Set for Burmuda

College week in Bermuda will be from April 15 to April 21, 1954. Pan-American world airways has arranged for a special DC-6B flight from Idlewild airport New York, April 15.

All colleges will participate in special parties, entertainment and sports activities during the week.

John H. Graham and Marcia MacDonald of the Graham Travel Company, New Haven, Conn., visited the campus this week in connection with the excursion.

St. Thomas More Sponsors Drive

The missions committee of St. Thomas More house is sponsoring a Thanksgiving clothing drive in cooperation with the war relief service of the National Catholic Welfare conference, Joan DeBenedetto, chairman, has announced.

Clothing should be brought to 112 Walnut pl. before Wednesday afternoon. The articles will be sent to Korea.

Richardson Speaks In Maxwell Series

Dr. H. Neil Richardson, of the deartment of bible and religion, addressed 250 persons yesterday in Maxwell auditorium in the first of a series of seven Humanities lectures.

Dr. Richardson, recently returned from a six-month leave as supervisor of an archeological expedition in Palestine, spoke on "The Importance of Archeology in the Humanities."

First elaborating on the methods of archeology, he continued to show how archeology has contributed to knowledge in history, language, literature, fine arts and religion.

The foremost problem archeologists face is "where to dig," Dr. Richardson asserted. Te said that in the Near East large mounds of earth, called "tells", are indications of buried ruins.

Large expeditions, including men who do everything from surveying to shipping, first survey and mark out sites to be excavated. Then native crews dig the side of the tell by hand, a little at a time.

Tagging, coding, packing and shipping the finds is followed by publication of the results.

Dr. Richardson pointed out that unless we study the histories of our predecessors, we also will not survive the perils of time.

Job Opportunities Cited By NY State Civil Service

The New York state Department of Civil Service placement office now has details on 500 permanent job openings with annual salaries totaling well over one and a half million dollars, for which applications must be in by Dec. 11.

The jobs are in 15 occupational fields in New York state government service, with agencies at various locations throughout the state.

COLLEGE SENIORS, graduates and experienced accountants or employment interviewers can qualify for jobs through the seventh annual college series of examinations, which are open for filing of applications until the December 11 deadline.

The state Civil Service department has held the college series every year since 1948. J. Edward Conway, State Civil Service commission president, said these examination have brought about 1,300 young men and women into career jobs with New York state. The posts are entrance level jobs in a modern civil service career system which fills top administrative posts through promotions of its employees.

University graduates and seniors who will receive their degrees next February or June may qualify for some 250 professional and technical positions in the fields of engineering or architecture, biology, chemistry, mathematics, economics, statistics, library science, law, psychology, journalism, physics and administration.

About 30 public administration internships are open to those who will have a bachelor's degree plus appropriate graduate study or work experience. More than 200 of the jobs in the fields of engineering or architecture, library science and public administration internships, are open nationally to all qualified U. S. citizens.

Examinations for 210 accounting and auditing positions, and for employment interviewer jobs, are open to persons who qualify through either college training or work experience.

Those who do not have the specialized course required for most of the jobs may compete for administration or some library jobs, or for a place on a general list.

Details concerning the examination may be obtained from the placement office or by writing the Department of Civil Service, State Office building, Albany, N. Y.

Dixie censorship

The hazy picture of discrimination in the South flashed into sharp focus last week when a student newspaper in the state of Georgia was threatened with the loss of university subsidy if it continued to print editorials opposing segregation.

The Red and Black, 60-year-old student newspaper at the University of Georgia, has been taken to task for writing on the race issue at the University. A member of the state Board of Regents has warned the editors that the regents would cut off state funds unless the paper ceased its stand on segregation.

This is not only deplorable as a flagrant infringement of freedom of the press morally, but it presents the educational minds of that state in an early 19th century setting. The race issue in the South is obviously one of inheritance. The Southern mind has not been able to make the radical change from habits ingrained for 300 years. But the main issue here is not the racial one.

The question is: should any paper be threatened with silence merely because it tackles a ticklish question? Is this paper to believe that the editorial policy of the Red and Black will lead to riots and other public disorders? If this is so, Georgia is pictured in an apprehensive state of turmoil.

The state of Georgia is afraid . . . afraid to be linked in any way, it seems, with a move toward the inevitable; the eventual elemination of racial lines. This may take a decade or a century . . . but it is apparent that this or any other reform will never take place if the public is not informed. And the Press is one of the key mediums of this information.

Sympathy is due for the Red and Black, but an even more sympathetic note is extended to the Regents in Georgia. Their thoughts are trapped in antiquity.

Blood confusion

Syracuse students donated 379 pints of blood for the Red Cross Wednesday. It is unfortunate that the remaining 100 students who wished to donate could not be accommodated.

The blame for such a situation can not be thrown on any one person or organization. Even the students who signed up are in some small measure responsible.

Students on the campus have never answered the call in any huge proportions. The Red Cross organization, therefore, believing that this year would be no exception, planned for only a one-day drive.

Students gave no indication of their interest in the campaign until the last few days. When forms were sent to the women's residences, only one slip was returned on the day assigned. The committee, therefore, did not know the amount of potential donors until Tuesday.

The Red Cross downtown is not prepared to handle 400 donors in one day. No other times could be found for its return to campus since the organization has a daily schedule booked months in advance.

The only help that could be given the students turned away was the fact that the local office accepts donations on Tuesdays and Thursdays by appointment. The whole transaction takes but one half hour and a phone call.

It is to the credit of the three remaining members of the Hill Red Cross unit that they were able to organize and assemble the large number of students. A larger staff could hardly have done better.

The next blood drive will be conducted on the Hill in spring. We urge that, if possible, more than one day be given the drive, and that students turn in their sign-ups before the last day so that the drive can be thoroughly organized.

Further response in the spring should be a credit to college students and the University.

FIRKUSNY'S FIERY TONES FILL STAGE

By DICK CASE

Editorial Page Writer

The two strong hands of Rudolf Firkusny swept the emotions of a large audience gathered in Lincoln auditorium last night to an exciting crescendo and rewarded Syracuse music devotees with an evening of brilliant keyboard magic.

The concert, sponsored by the Famous Artists series, featured a varied program of light to heavy works dedicated to the 100th anniversary celebration of Steinway and company.

Firkusny, a Czech refugee, fires his piano with a resounding spirit and a thorough passion which most likely stems from the brash heritage of his native land. He is accomplished on the lighter, softer tones but the delicate touch can turn to the more resounding chords with equal skill.

The concert opened with Firkusny's rich interpretation of Bach's "Chromaic Fantasy and Fugue" and "Sonata in C, Op. 53" by Beethoven which served to showcase the artist's mastery of the great, thundering as well as the soft passages. The second segment featured three Chopin pieces, the familiar "Ballade", "Nocturne" and "Scherzo, No. 2."

Firkusny's most appealing moment of the evening came with the performance of Moussorgsky's vivid musical fairy tales, "Pictures at an Exhibition." The lanky virtuoso lent a picturesque counterpart to the composer's varied tones and warmed the audience who supposed they saw the old castle, the unhatched chickens, the market place and the hut of Baba-Yaga flitting from the master's keyboard.

The Steinway company was richly rewarded by the fine performance of Rudolf Firkusny but I suspect that it was the Syracuse audience which benefited the most with an evening of music they are unlikely to forget very soon.

No Problems Solved

By PEARL BERNSTEIN

Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown of Maxwell said yesterday that every thoughtful citizen must regret that the controversy over Harry Dexter White, or any other similar case that may arise, is taking place at all.

He fears that the whole matter will not only set Americans bitterly against one another, but the United States prestige in the world will also be lowered.

The Maxwell professor said, "Calling attention to controversy over handling of the internal Communist problem by the Truman administration will not solve either the farm, industrial, defense or foreign relations problems of the Eisenhower administration."

He went on, "I deeply regret the introduction of J. Edgar Hoover's name into the controversy, and feel his appearance before the Senate committee as a subordinate of the Attorney General rendered his testimony highly improper."

Nothing new of any kind has come out of the controversy, Dr. Brown believes. Truman said the first report of White's possible role as a Communist spy came to his attention in Feb. 1946. This does not contradict Hoover's stand that he sent two prior statements to the White House.

"The President does not personally receive all White House messages. Many are handled by the staff. And remember that this occurred before the cold war began and at a time when Russia was still our ally."

There is a sharp discrepancy between Hoover's testimony this week and what he said before the Senate Appropriations committee in Feb. 1950, Dr. Brown pointed out. The FBI director said then, "It is better to know who these people (Communists) are, and what they are doing, and to immobilize their efforts, than it is to expose them publicly and then go through the tireless efforts of identifying their successors . . ."

Dr. Brown concluded: "I am confident that the American people will share with President Eisenhower the belief that disloyalty on the part of ex-President Truman is unthinkable and that the controversy over Communism in the Truman administration will have passed by the next election."

IN THE HALLWAY

Academic Barbarians

By ED HARDY

Daily Orange Columnist

Although Colgate week is a thing of the past for 1953, it's not to early to look over the rivalry situation and take steps for 1954—steps that would outlaw completely vvandalism and harm to persons and property—including scalping.

The anti-vandalism pact between Colgate and Syracuse contains many loopholes—too many, in fact.

Originally signed in 1948 as a three-way agreement between Colgate, Cornell and Syracuse, it has been renewed each year by Colgate and Syracuse. It condemns vandalism as a false means of developing and encouraging school spirit and rivalry.

"Such acts are threats to the lives and property of participants as well as non-participants and present an undesirable picture of college students and college life to the general public," the agreement states.

Yet all the thought behind these statements go down the drain when the pact permits "the enforcement of traditions . . . within the legal limits of the village of Hamilton and the environs of the Syracuse university campus."

Representatives of Syracuse's student government are the first to see the dangers of the so-called outlets of tradition. But their hands are tied when they try to work out anything acceptable to Colgate.

It seems that the young men from Hamilton are cooped p in their little campus most of the from Hamilton are cooped up in year and the week before the Syrcuse game, with nothing better to do, they come to Syracuse to literally paint the campus red. And they come to play Indian and headhunter.

Not to say that some (but not many) Syracusans go to Colgate for the same reasons. But they soon find out that it's like walking into a death trap there. Erect a roadblock here—get thrown in jail. In Hamilton, they set 'em up and the cops look the other way. Evidentally everyone there is for "bigger and better detrimental traditions" as a means to release pent up emotions.

Little do they realize the dangers involved. Or the lives that someday may be taken by over-spirited students. This year, as in many of the past, several persons were injured in roadblock skirmishes. Luckily, nothing serious. But, someday . . .

It's time to evaluate. Are we intellectual college students or barbarians?

SILKS AND FREEDOM IN PAKISTAN

By ANDRA KADILIS

Editorial Staff Writer

Here we have to note that Hafeez Malik does not really come from India itself, but from Pakistan, which became an independent country in 1947, after the division of India. This division occured mainly on religious bases, with the Moslems demanding a piece of land for themselves, and the Hindus remaining in India.

Oh, I know, that just by mentioning the word Moslem and Pakistan, it might arouse the imaginations of so many people. They would see huge castles with the most exotic parks and hundreds of mysterious women promenading around the cool fountains, in light veils.

And then the prince appearing in "silks and satins" and looking over his harem. But all this, besides being an image of the past has nothing to do with the Moslem religion. It is said in the holy book: "O, ye Moslems, if you think it is necessary to marry more than one wife, you can, provided you are confident, that you can dispense justice and treat them equally."

In Hafeez's opinion, since it is completely imposible for a human being to look at two different people exactly in the same way, these princes have acted against the Moslem religion.

But now going back to reality, and talking about Hafeez I must admit, that I was greatly surprised at the perfect English that he speaks, having been in U. S. only for three months. Hafeez's home town is Lahoe and his native language Urdu, having only the script in common with Arabic. "In the center of Lahoe," says Hafeez, "is the most beautiful park, with marble walls and statues, all kinds of roses (even black) and a large pool with fountains, around which on feast days candles are lit in pigeon nests."

Hafeez has traveled a great deal, and of all the countries prefers Italy, because of its great culture, wine and gaiety. Hafeez has enjoyed his travels a great deal, except for his stomach, which for a while had been qite upset from all the different foods he had tasted in the different parts of the world. But if someone would go to Pakistan, Hafeez advises them to order such delicacies as pulliobiryami, kababs and tikkas (!?)

Of the Americans in general, Hafeez has an impression as being mostly business people, compared to the deep religious people of his country. He has also been very impressed by the high standard of civilization here, whereas, in his country eight million people live in a territory comparable to the states of Texas and Oklahoma, and where so many people still live in great poverty.

We keep thinking of Metropolitan New York and its eight million.

'A Lonely Death

If bells are tolling for the Astor somewhere in Syracuse, they are undoubtedly little ones. Because the town simply isn't interested.

And the lack of any enthusiasm snapped the all-too-slender shoestring with which Messrs. Russo and Ellis attempted to bring a theater here.

Now the excuses start. Hints that the choice of stars was loose, and that they were "a little subversive" are mingled with the theater's agonized cries that "after all, what can you expect out in the hinterlands?"

We have commented before on the quality of the plays presented, and are not evaluating here, but assuredly, the public will not patronize a theater where shows of little interest are presented.

Except for this week's production, the plays have been good comedies, with stars who proved good drawing attractions, namely Gypsy Rose Lee. Admittedly, the productions were not the best, but after all, they were "only stock" and some went into production with just two rehearsals behind them.

But burlesque or Britain, the town did not patronize the theater. Most of the audience was composed of the Hill cluster, faculty and students, and the relatively small group of professionals who work in the city.

Syracuse has not had a pre-Broadway season for 24 years, and the claim has been advanced that audiences must be trained to "appreciate the finer things." Why so? Does anyone claim that the plays presented here in the past were high-toned?

It may come as a surprise to know that when the original productions were presented on Broadway, the audiences were not all college students and professionals. There just aren't enough of them in New York to have kept these plays running for two years apiece.

So, now Syracusans, both the townspeople and the collegians, will not get the chance to "become educated" . . . that is, unless some other producer, one with a thicker shoestring, cares to turn pedagogue.

Gene Filipski Leads Win-Starved Villanova Against Orangemen

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Villanova's Wildcats will be out to regain some of their lost prestige tomorrow afternoon as they play host to Syracuse at Philadelphia's Franklin Field. A victory over one of the best squads in the east would salvage something from an otherwise disastrous season for Art Raimo's boys.

Rated a two to three touchdown underdog, the Mainliners will be after their third victory of the year against six setbacks. In their last outing, the Pennsylvanian's fell before Boston university, 33-19.

STRONG OFFENSIVELY and weak defensively in previous performances, the Villanovans will be led by triple-threat halfback Gene Filipski. Switched from quarterback, the former West Point star is a valuable man in the home squad's varied attack. Considered all-American potential, Filipski is definitely one of the best passers in the east.

The signal-calling spot has been taken over by a dark-horse candidate, Charley McGuckin. Not even listed on the pre-season roster, McGuckin came out for practice just before the opening game and quickly worked himself into a starting slot. He proves a perfect balance to Filipski in the backfield with both men able to pass accurately.

Speedster Ralph Cecerri will fill the other halfback spot. Rated behind Ben Addiego in pre-season estimates, the veteran moved into a starting spot when Addiego was injured and no one has been able to dislodge him since.

Although no longer on the starting squad, Addiego is back in shape now and can prove a breakaway threat anytime he is in the clash.

LETTERMAN John Helm will be the only junior in the Wildcats otherwise all-senior backfield. He will be at fullback, taking care of the plunging duties.

Six foot five inch Don McComb and six foot two inch Roy Kershaw will provide two big targets at end for Filipski's and McGuckin's aerials. Kershaw is a senior letterman while Kershaw is the only sophomore on the starting eleven.

Capt. Joe Faragelli and Joe Leichtweis will be at the opening tackle slots while Tom Fitzpatrick and Pete Carrieri will open at the guards. One big name absentee from the opening line spot is another former Army star, Bob Volonino.

Rated along with Filipski as pre-season candidates for all-American honors, the 205-pound senior has had trouble adjusting to the single-platoon system formerly having played only on defense.

NELSON MARSHALL, a 200-pound senior, will open at the center of the line rounding out the starting eleven.

Raimo's squad will be in the best physical shape of the season for tomorrow's contest. All the injured men are ready to go in the squad's second from last game of the season.

Strong in depth, the Mainliners can be expected to use an abundance of substitutions in the contest. Raimo has been switching his material around at random in an effort to find a winning combo and some of his most highly-rated men may be responsible for providing an extremely strong bench.

About 15,000 fans will view the game from gigantic Franklin field. This will be a sad contrast to the nearly 60,000 fans who viewed the Wildcats opening encounter with Georgia but the disappointing performance of the Philadelphians has taken much of the glitter from the game.

Grid . . .

been looking at the other end of passes in the past three games and is already one of the top pass receivers on the Orange squad. Little Lyle Carlson will be the first man called on to give Yancey a rest.

The fullback spot offers another question mark. Don Laaksonen has been starting most of the campaign. The return of blond Bill Wetzel, however, might change the picture. The amount of time Wetzel puts in rests solely on the condition of his ankle.

Rounding out the backfield and playing his last game is co-captain Bob Leberman. Leberman at left halfback has been the workhorse of the Orange backfield ever since the loss of Wetzel. His natural speed gave him a good foundation for defense and Bob has turned in some hard football on both offense and defense.

Leberman, whose dashing, darting steps resemble a water bug is probably one of the best all-around backs in the East.

VILLANOVA HAS a fine halfback: Gene Filipski. Filipski, caught cribbing at Army, was named all-American last year playing for Villanova. The Wildcats puzzling stuttering this year, is in no way responsible to Filipski.

Filipski's defensive play, not much mentioned, is very capable. Add this to the fact that he was one of the nation's leading rushers last year and you have a fine football player.

Thus a running duel is expected between what might be called the best pair of one-platoon halfbacks in the East.

All-Stars . . .

victory over the North. The East-West game, held for the benefit of the Shriner's hospitals all over the country, is the grand-daddy of the all-star games.

Starting in 1925, the series has been one of the most exciting of the bowl games. The East has won the last two contests of which the 1953 tilt was a squeaker, 21-20.

The five Syracuse men, except for Kukowski, will be playing in their second post-season game. Fleck and McClelland, the bulwark of the Orange line, both hail from Pennsylvania.

Stark currently stands 12th this week in pass completions throughout the nation. Kukowski, the transfer from the Naval academy, has been the anchorman of the Orange line on offense while acting as linebacker on defense.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

With the race for post-season awards and all-star honors now well along its merry way, the Syracuse Orange appear to be closing in on its share of the lucrative offers.

Now that Bob Leberman, Les McClelland and Bob Fleck have received bids for the Blue-Gray donnybrook, Hill fans can look towards others who will be seen on foreign gridirons in an all-star capacity.

Rumors have been circulating that both Fleck and Ted Kukowski are due for additional honors from national media.

Right now, decisions are mostly in the speculative stage. With more all-Americans these days, it's hard to tell what rumors are true and what isn't. Syracusans will just have to wait, see and hope.

* * * * *

Villanova's chief drum-beater, athletic director Bud Dudley, managed to toss a bombshell this week by announcing that several Eastern schools, including Syracuse, had been approached concerning a possible Eastern conference.

"Buff" Donelli

Like Kleenex, this idea keeps popping up. For over ten years, the Eastern conference dream has been advocated. Nothing constructive has been done, however, since the schools themselves just can't get together.

Several colleges, notably Villanova, Fordham and Boston U, among others, have come out heavily in favor of the idea. BU's coach, Buff Donelli, for instance, was quoted as saying that his school was "extremely interested."

The purpose of the proposed move, as seen by Dudley, is as a "salvation for the gate receipts problem." It's appropriate that this view is taken since, after trying everything from a fashion show to free tickets for $10 worth of groceries, Villanova attendance has slipped faster than the Titanic did to the bottom.

The main "bug-a-boo" is the matter of scheduling. Dudley and his cohorts feel that a workable schedule could be set up in time for the 1955 season. The fact is that many schools have their tentative bookings for that year set already.

Plans for a conference can't be made on the spur of the moment, but have to be thought out carefully well in advance. If the proposal is a serious one, a committee of the possible league members should be formed to study the problem.

To do that all Eastern schools would have to cooperate fully with one another. It's a challenge many of the colleges probably will be reluctant to accept.

Soccer Coach Coccari Faces Rebuilding Job

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

While no one can accurately foretell the results of next year's soccer season, one thing is sure: Coach Andy Coccari will have a mighty big rebuilding job on his hands.

The loss via graduation of Bill Nelson, Sig Wirth, Capt. Don Moller and Chuck Mayhood leaves Coccari minus his top three starters.

Nelson, Moller and Wirth were the main reason for the Orange's 4-1-1 record in intercollegiate competition this season. Last year's 5-1 won and lost record was another result of their labors.

Both Nelson and Wirth won all-American honors last year and both would be eligible for more honors this year hadn't Wirth been declared ineligible before the last game of the year due to his participating in an amateur soccer match.

Although he never won all-America nhonors, Capt. Moller has been described by Art Horrocks as the "best player on the present squad." Horrocks was the head soccer coach at Syracuse for 26 years.

One of the most overlooked players on the squad the past two seasons has been Mayhood. The stocky senior has alternated with Joe Milliron at the starting fullback positions this year. However, it was not as a starter that Mayhood has been most valuable.

When one extigency or another arose requiring a seasoned veteran, Coach Coccari called on Mayhood and Coccari never regretted his move.

AXEL SPOTS—Nelson and Wirth played on the 1950 soccer squad. In 1951, for the first time since the innovation of the game on the campus, there was no soccer team. For this reason, both were eligible for competition this fall.

Nats, Royals Win Close Contests

Upstate New York's two professional basketball teams came up with hard fought victories in the first pro court doubleheader of the season last night at the War Memorial.

Syracuse's Nats nipped the Fort Wayne Zollner-Pistons in the evening's featured game, 79-76.

At halftime, the Nationals enjoyed a comfortable, 39-20 lead. The Pistons rallied in the last stanza but couldn't catch the locals who enjoyed their finest shooting spree of the season in the initial half.

In the opening contest, the Rochester Royals outscored the Milwaukee Hawks, 79 to 69.

In last night's intramural bowling contests, Pi Kappa Alpha trounced Omega Pi Alpha and Alpha Epsilon Pi blanked Tau Epsilon Phi, by 9-0 scores, Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Chi outpointed Zeta Psi and Phi Kappa Psi, 6-3 respectively and Delta Upsilon whipped Acacia, 7-2.

The other scheduled match of the night found Sigma Alpha Epsilon winning by forfeit over Sigma Alpha Mu.

HIGHEST TEAM total of the night, 2129 pins was racked up by AEPi, 470 of this belonging to Dick Gellman. Norm Heyman recorded the single game high for the winners, 172.

Pi Kappa Alpha's 1996 proved too much for Omega Pi Alpha's 1696 in the other shutout of the evening.

High score of the competition went to Delta Tau Delta's Jack Thoden who knocked down 527 of his squad's 1948 total. Thoden's big contribution was 213 in the second game. Zeta Psi, due to Dick Brouwer's 164 in the final game, registered the single game high of 724 and salvaged three points.

Phi Kappa Psi also garnered three points in the last contest against Sigma Chi, downing 715 of the wooden sticks. Bob Kunne led the comeback with a 172 effort.

Forensic Society To Hit Vermont

Four members of the varsity debate team will represent Syracuse university at the Vermont International debate tournament in Burlington today and tomorrow.

Alex Strasser and Hal Devine for the affirmative and Rudy Johanns and Kevin Wilson representing the negative will join 244 debaters from 38 schools to debate the national topic, Resolved: That the United States should adopt a policy of free trade. The tournament is the first major debate contest of the year.

The team opened the debate season at Le Moyne college last Wednesday with a practice debate for the Vermont competition.

The next varsity debate tournament will be at Tufts college in Boston. Howard Osofsky, team president and Marilyn Mawson, vice president will join Strasser and Vine to form the competing team.

Accompanying the team to Vermont, will be Dr. J. Edward McEvoy, debate coach, who will act as a debate judge for other teams during the five rounds of the tournament.

SU Music Head To Attend Meet

Dr. Alexander Capurso, director of the School of Music of Syracuse's College of Fine Arts, will attend the tweny-ninth meeting of the National Association of Schools of Music Nov. 27, 28 and 29. The meeting will be held at the Palmer house in Chicago. Over two hundred music educators will be present.

The Syracuse university School of Music is a charter member of the National association. The National Committee on accrediting has given the association the responsibility for the approval of music education standards on a national basis.

The program for the meeting will include a symposium on literature and music, a forum on opera workshops and a discussion on the economic problems of the symphony orchestra. All delegates will be guests at a concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra on Friday, Nov. 27.

ST. THOMAS MORE

Members of the Hendricks chapel board were guests of the executive council of St. Thomas More chapel at an open house Wednesday evening.

Eastern Diplomats To Speak Today

Two diplomats from Egypt and Pakistan will be guest speakers at the meeting of the Islamic Cultural organization at 7:30 tnight in Maxwell auditorium.

Hon. Bahgat El-Tawil, first secretary of the Egyptian embassy in Washington, and Coy Rahat S. Chatari, staff member of the Pakistan delegation to the United Nations, will arrive here tomorrow.

Hafeez Malik, president of the new Moslem group at the University, will introduce the speakers. A reception will be given in honor of Mr. El-Tawil and Col. Chatari in the Colonial room of Hendricks chapel following their talks.

Tonight's meeting is a celebration of the birthday of the Arabian prophet Mohammed, founder of the Mohammedan religion. The speakers will discuss the life of the prophet and present day Islam.

The organization includes members from Egypt, Pakistan, Irag, Jordan, Syria, Lebonan, Palestine, Saudi-Arabia, Iran, and Turkey.

Students Invited To Discuss Views

All students are invited to a discussion on "What Should be the Relationship of the American Jewish Community Toward Israel?" at Temple Concord, at 8:30 p.m., Nov. 24.

The panel will be moderated by Dr. Fred Krinsky. It will consist of: Dr. Irvin Franklin, who will take the American Zionist viewpoint; Amos Krausz, who will take Israel's viewpoint; and Robert Stolz, who will take the American Jewish Committee's viewpoint.

Refreshments will follow general discussion.

CD Head Requests Blast Precautions

All students are requested to take immediate cover when the siren sounds for the mock atom blast at 9:05 a.m. tomorrow. Those who are inside should remain there.

According to local Civil Defense Chairman T. Wilson Schiller, the area will be under raid conditions from 9:05 to 9:20 a.m. After the all clear sounds, students may resme outside activities.

IFC Work Details Slated Tomorrow

Plebe pledges will begin their mass work detail at 8:45 a.m. tomorrow, according to Chairman Howard Osofsky of the Interfraternity Council Social Action committee.

The work, provided through the Syracuse Volunteer center, will aid 16 different organizations which have requested help. About 350 Hill fraternity pledges will participate.

Two work details are scheduled for tomorrow's program, which may begin a semi-annual interfraternity project. Those assigned to the morning detail, which ends at 12:30 p.m. will assist in the civil defense test blast planned to occur at the corner of University and College pl.

Groups receiving benefits of afternoon work include the Amercian Red Cross, Catholic Youth Orangization and Crouse Irving hospital.

Magazine Accepts Nine in Contest

Nine Syracuse niversity senior women are contestants in the 19th annual Prix de Paris contest sponsored by Vogue magazine.

Vogue conducts the contest throughout the United States for senior college and university women. It consists mainly of writing assignments.

The two major winners receive a position for one year in Vogue's Paris office and a six-month job in the New York office respectively.

Representing Syracuse are Mrs. Janet Blaich, Mary Anne Dalton, Sandra Eakin, Miriam Heller, Kay Horan, Mary Lou Knapp, Nancy Long, Marilyn Rockino and Barbara Suchy.

Panel's New Name Will Save Identity

To avoid confusion in a double identity case, the former public relations panel of women's student government civil service has changed its name to communications panel.

The name of the civil service organization was the same as that of a WSG assembly panel, chairmaned by Dorianne Bright. Chairman of the communications panel is Constance Pierson.

The civil service group is re-sponsible for promoting news of WSG events and announcements.

Good Connections ...electrically speaking

Electrically powered "wire wrap" tool (above) and compressed air tool (below) for making wrapped solderless connections.

GOOD CONNECTIONS are mighty important to us for, you see, we make more than a billion electrical connections each year. It takes that many to manufacture and install complex telephone equipment in the Bell System.

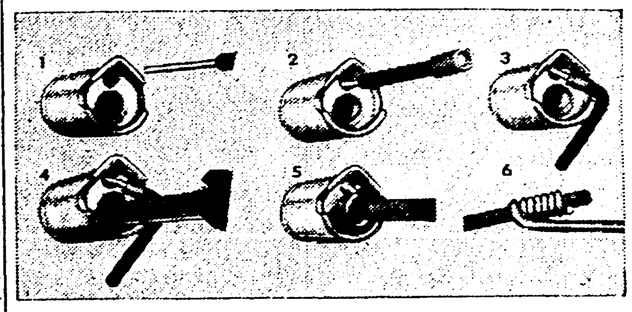
Like most really creative engineering jobs, the development of a tool to make solderless connections grew out of a problem. We had to find a way to connect our newly designed wire spring relay to other components in giant bays of switching equipment. This new relay—something of an engineering achievement itself—can have as many as 36 terminals in an area only 1-3/8" by 11/16". Obviously, the conventional method of hand-wrapping and soldering wires onto the terminals is extremely difficult in such a small area.

After more than five years of research and experimentation, the engineers came up with a pistol-like power tool capable of making mechanically sound solderless connections. Shown above are two types of "wire wrap" tools now used at Western Electric manufacturing locations. They literally shoot wire onto terminals . . . and do it surer, faster and less expensively than conventional methods using solder. That's not all. The new "wire wrap" tool keeps equipment free from solder splashes, wire clippings and reduces bent and distorted terminals. Electrically, the "wire wrap" tool gives a far better connection than can be made manually . . . the high pressure contacts are stronger, cleaner, more compact and more uniform.

In keeping with the Bell System policy of sharing technical know-how with all industry, Western Electric will make this tool commercially available to electrical manufacturing companies, such as radio, television and communications producers, through licensed tool manufacturers.

You're right if you think we're more than a little pleased with our accomplishment. And as we have been many times before, we're proud of the engineers in all fields—electronics, mechanical, electrical, metallurgical, chemical, industrial—who uphold our reputation for leadership in fundamental manufacturing techniques.



How a solderless connection is made: (1) Skinned wire approaches the small flared opening in the tool tip. (2) Wire is inserted in hole. (3) Wire is bent and anchored by means of notch in side of gun tip. (4) Gun tip is slipped over rectangular wire terminal. (5) Spindle of gun tip rotates to wrap wire around terminal. (6) Six wire wraps around terminal complete electrically sound joint without soldering.

STEVE ARMSTRONG, Hill junior, will be among the entrants in the NCAA meet this morning at East Lansing, Mich. Steve was a steady performer all season for Coach Bob Grieve.

Syracuse Harriers Run In NCAA Meet Today

One of the most wide-open races for the team title in the history of National Collegiate Athletic association cross-country competition is expected in the 15th annual meet to be run off this morning on the Michigan State four-mile course.

Syracuse will be well represented as a team composed of Captain Ray Osterhout, Gene Parker, Steve Armstrong, Frank Calzi, Jim George, Ed Alger and Tom Coulter. They will try desperately to bring the team title back to the Salt City.

BUT THE Orange harriers definitely have their work cut out for them. Among the highly rated competing schools are Kansas, Indiana, Pittsburgh, Michigan, Penn State, Georgetown, Miami, Wisconsin and Michigan State, team titlist in the IC4A meet ran last week in New York.

The leading contenders for the individual title include Wes Santee, Kansas' outstanding distance star and Big Seven harrier champion; Rich Ferguson, Big Ten champion from Iowa; John Kelley, the IC4A champ from Boston University; John Joe Barry, standout competitor from Villanova; Ray Osterhout, Syracuse's likeable captain; and Kikou Moryia, from Wheaton.

The list doesn't stop there. Other outstanding performers include Tom Monfore, of Wisconson; Robert Hollen, of Penn State; Francis Zellers, of Indiana; Robert Soth, of Drake; and John Ross and Ron Wallingford, of Michigan.

Michigan State, the defending champions, can offer the highly-rated trio of Lyle Garbe, John Cook, and Ron Barr. Garbe led the Spartans to the IC4A crown with an 11th place finish, while Cook was the third place qualifier in the Big Ten meet.

ALL THE above-named performers, in addition to all the other entrants, will be striving to better the previous best four-mile

WAA Competitions Begin After Holiday

Practices and preambles over, WAA basketball, bowling and swimming squads will start tournament competition following Thanksgiving vacation.

Approximately 50 frosh, independent and sorority houses will vie for basketball honors. Initial games are scheduled for the week of Dec. 7, according to basketball manager Barbara Bucko.

Bowling director Janet Brenneman plans to introduce tournament play during the week of Dec. 7. Operating on a handicap basis, 32 teams will compete in four leagues.

WAA lower house representatives will receive basketball and bowling rules sheets and schedules at the lower house meeting scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 3.

Open alleys will be available the week of Nov. 30, Monday through Thursday, 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Twenty-five swimming squads will introduce the competitive swimming program, first of its kind on the Hill. Mary Lou Ponsell, competitive swimming manager, will notify those teams scheduled to swim the week of Nov. 30.

Thanksgiving Time For Hill Students Begins Wednesday

NY Central Schedules Special Train Run For Vacation

Students will leave campus by car, train, bus and plane Wednesday at noon as the University officially closes for the annual Thanksgiving holidays. Classes will resume Monday morning, Nov. 30.

As usual the double cut rule will be in effect for 48 hours before and after the vacation.

Thus two cuts instead of one will be given out starting at noon today for every absense.

The New York Central railroad has announced an "Orange Special" train to New York city leaving Syracuse at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday. Reduced round trip student tickets priced at $15.01 will be on sale from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow at the University treasurer's office, building 24.

The Orange Special will have dining car service, the railroad said. Student tickets will also be honored on the 12:52 p.m. train.

Stops are scheduled at Schenectady, Albany, Harmon and Grand Central station, New York.

Return trip must be made before midnight Sunday, according to the NYCRR. Special trains will leave Grand Central at 2:10 and 3:55 p.m. Sunday.

Alpha Phi Omega's travel bureau will sign up riders and drivers for the trip home in the lobby of the Women's building today.

Christmas vacation this year starts at noon Saturday, Dec. 19 and lasts until 8 a.m. Monday, Jan. 4.

Saturday, Jan. 16 is the last day of classes for the semester. Final examinations will be given from Monday, Jan. 18 to Friday, Jan. 29.

The commencement ceremony, originally scheduled for Jan. 31, was cancelled last month because of the decrease of January graduates.

Registration for second semester will be held Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 4-6. Classes will start Monday, Feb. 8.

Honorary Takes Four Women

Four women were pledged to Lambda Sigma Sigma, junior women's honorary at a surprise breakfast Saturday morning at the home of Dean M. Eunice Hilton of the College of Home Economics.

Women tapped were Eileen Chamberlain, Jacquelyn Jarrett, Patricia Mosher and Jo-Ann Swalm.

The four were chosen on the basis of scholarship and outstanding participation in at least one major and one minor extra-curricular activity in their sophomore and freshman years. A minimum cumulative average of 1.6 is required for membership in Lambda Sig.

The new group brings the organization to 13. Other members who were pledged last spring, are Elizabeth Bowman, Dorianne Bright, Jean Brydon, Lois Clark, Lois Cohn, Charlotte Easterbrook, Ann Higbee, Marilyn Murtha and Beverly Roach. Miss Clark is president.

PUBLICATION DATE

The next issue of The Daily Orange will be published Tuesday, Dec. 1. News and notices for that issue should be phoned to the afternoon editor, 75-5195, no later than 3:30 p.m.

Keating to Speak At Cit 1A Lecture

Representative Kenneth B. Keating, New York state republican in the House of Representatives, will address citizenship 1A students at 11 a.m. and 2:45 p.m. tomorrow in Hendricks Chapel.

Hailing from Rochester, Congressman Keating will discuss "Improving Congressional Committee Investigations."

REPRESENTATIVE KEATING, who has worked on the improvement of Congressional investigating procedures by protecting the rights of witnesses before committees, was graduated from Harvard Law School in 1923.

The congressman received his baccalaureate degree from the University of Rochester in 1919.

Elected to the House of Representatives in the 80th Congress, Rep. Keating is now serving his fourth term in office.

Serving in World Wars 1 and 2, the congressman received three battle honors and was commissioned a Brigadier General in 1948 by the U. S. Army.

REP. KEATING is a member of the law firm Harris, Beach, Keating, Wilcox and Dale and is also the director of a bank in Rochester.

In the House, the Republican congressman is a member of the Judiciary committee.

This is his first appearance on the campus of Syracuse university.

ON Changes Picture Dates

No pictures will be taken this week for the 1954 yearbook, Charlene Velon, business manager has announced. Those students originally scheduled for pictures today and tomorrow should sign up for different dates after Thanksgiving.

Griesinger Program Starts Fourth Year

WAER Show Rates Longest Run

A new record will be set at WAER next week when the Fred Griesinger Show begins its fourth year on the campus radio station. The show, scheduled for 6:45 p.m., Wednesday, will set the record for the longest run of an entertainment show on WAER.

The feature of the program will be a lyrical arrangement of Frank Loesser's "The King's Clothes" from Hans Christian Andersen, arranged by Richard Ballantine. Included in the show's agenda is an arrangement of "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor", by Irving Berlin and the opener, "Another Openin', Another Show" from Cole Porter's "Kiss Me Kate."

ON HAND TO HELP Griesinger celebrate will be guest stars Frank Lewis, Jane Williams, Audrey Hazlett and Raymond Caldiero, Edward Rasch is the producer of the 15-minute show.

Scheduled for Monday by the station in the 6:45 p.m. spot is a program entitled "High on a Hilltop" featuring music by outstanding members of Sigma Alpha Iota, women's music honorary. The co-producers are Elliot Spiro and William Lape.

WAER'S music director, Gwen Mahle, has programmed Tchaikowsky's Fifth Symphony for the "Musical Heritage" show Monday from 4:05 to 5:30 p.m.

Ray Irwin of the School of Speech and Dramatic Arts will read poems of Edith Sitwell, famous English poetess on the "Ebb and Flow" program, 7 p.m., Thursday, November 26. Recorded background music by William Walton will be featured, and the show will be produced by Harriet Kushner.

Kharas Lectures To Pre-law Group

Ralph E. Kharas', dean of the college of law, topic was "How to get in the law school of your choice" at the first meeting of King's Bench, pre-law society, Wednesday night.

Dean Kharas advised the group to apply early in the year preceeding their planned entrance to law school and mentioned important qualifications, including a good working knowledge of English and the ability to reason. He also offered to consult with any student contemplating the study of law.

Thomas Goins, Jr., was elected Lord Chief Justice of King's Bench. Other officers chosen were Theodore Bissal, assistant Chief Justice; Robert Fairbanks, Exchequer; and Henry Einhorn, keeper of the Roles.

Earle Ketcham, professor of political science and advisor of the society, briefly explained the society's primary purpose of helping in the "vocational guidance" of those interested in studying law. The group is open to all students interested in this field.

Dr. Nelson Studies Chapel Programs

Dr. William Stuart Nelson, dean of Howard university, will spend next week on campus studying the Chapel and its organizations.

While he is here he will speak at an open meeting sponsored by the Human Relations Council on next Tuesday. He will teach several sociology classes and visit Skeptics corner and Chapel house reps.

Radio talks over WAER and a downtown station have been scheduled. He will also be the guest of the Syracuse Peace council on Monday night.

Dean Nelson received his bachelors and doctors degrees from Howard university and attended Union Theological seminary the Sorbonne and the universities of Berlin and Marburg in Germany.

He was president of Shaw university, Raleigh, N. C. and of Dillard university in New Orleans. In 1940 he returned to Howard as dean of the school of religion and in 1948 was appointed dean of the University.

He is a member of the American Friends Service committee, the Religious Education association, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the National Council of Religion in Higher Education.

Editor of The Journal of Religious Thought, he is the author of several books on race relations and world understanding.

Capurso to Attend Music Conference

Dr. Alexander Capurso, director of Syracuse university's School of Music, will attend the 29th annual meeting of the National association of Schools of Music in Chicago next week.

More than 200 leading music educators will attend sessions at the Palmer house on November 27, 28 and 29.

The Daily Orange is proud to give another exclusive to Syracuse students. Pictured on pages four and five of today's issue is a simplified version of the '52-'53 University budget, compiled by DO staff members from University reports.

This is the first time that the DO has reproduced such figures in order to explain to the students exactly where their money goes, and how the University is run.

It is interesting to note that the construction of new buildings does not come from the current operating expenses or student tuition but from another fund which appears only under total University assets.

It is also interesting to realize that tuition only accounts for 48 per cent of the entire income. Faculty salary, books for the library and upkeep of Lyman museum take but a little more than one-third of all expenses.

We urge every student to carefully examine the charts and pictures in order to better understand where his money is going and how much of it is eventually returned.

Existence and faith

And so it is Thanksgiving again. The crisp days that are a part of the national holiday are not part of our picture, but the spirit depends not on the vagaries of the weather.

This is the 333rd time that late November has come since the little Massachusetts colony thanked God for its existence and its faith. That tiny symbolic day has been buffetted, forgotten and strengthened in the intervening centuries.

A century and a half after the first Thanksgiving, the colony had become a nation and Washington made the first national proclamation. Then silence. States spasmodically proclaimed days of thanks. Finally Lincoln, the Puritan from Illinois, established the fourth Thursday in November as National Thanksgiving day.

For 75 years Lincoln's proclamation stood. But by 1939 the nation had grown into a great business power and Roosevelt, a touch of royalty from New York, changed the day to the third Thursday in November. And why? . . . to help business by making the shopping period between Thanksgiving and Christmas longer.

But one does not change tradition through proclamation and in 1941 Congress made Thanksgiving permanent at the last Thursday of the month.

That Thursday is nearly here. Our thanks, too, are for our existence and our faith . . . a moment of rest in our march, like the Puritans, to help shape the world.

Hot Time in Ole' Tepee; Notes on Thanksgiving

(Editor's note: While prying loose a few boards around Hellbox the other night, custodian Frank Locke discovered a manuscript buried deep in a rotting knothole. The script, written in sour cream on the back of a soft-cover edition of "Pilgrim's Progress," gave the following version of our first Thanksgiving.)

By HOMER

Big blast tonight, guests coming from all over . . . have a great yen for meat. Grab ole' muzzle loader and flee outside, take to the woods looking for good side of beef, maybe venison, can't stand turkey. Feel silly as blazes in tight knickers but can't fight style. Trudge for miles . . . no sign of game, can't walk another step . . . huge bear crashing out of underbrush, life in the old legs yet. Suddenly realize I have gun; grab pouch, fill up muzzle, drop in shot, turn, pull trigger . . . blast two chlorophyl tablets, an aspirin, three cold pills and half a dozen marbles down bear's throat. (Short on shot.) Bear green, powder, tobacco smoke drifting back from muzzle, (short on powder), I'm green. Spot feathers ahead, blood turns chill, fear mounting, take firm grip on gun, ready to shoot . . . feathers move . . . thank god, it's an Indian, can't stand turkey. Drop into stream to cover tracks from Indian, damn near drown, stream 10 feet deep . . . flail may way to other side. Tight knickers shrinking . . . Puritan racket fine but can't stand uniform. See deer approaching through brush, good venison . . . check antler points: nine! Ram muzzle with rest of University Mixture 79, drop in last bromo tablet and two buttons cut off knickers . . . take careful aim and blast. Check antler points: six . . . best shot I've had all year. Bonk green looking deer over head, start back for stockade with prize. Party starting as I arrive . . . Indians grabbing meat, fruit, sizzle water, assorted scalps . . . gay time being had by bald men in corner. Main meal finally starts; heaping plates of meat passing down table, hungry bunch, platter reaches me . . . white and dark meat, ugh, can't stand turkey. Settle for Irish stew . . . gloppy stuff. Kill taste with fizzle water . . . waistcoat too tight, loosen knee buckles, more fizzle water. Enough of this Puritan stuff, grab feather, cut fast war dance on table with hep Indian, Bop . . . crazy fellow. Grab another feather, loud squawk, terrific flapping of wings and pecking about head . . . can't stand turkey. Johnny Alden casting stern looks around, blasted brass. Grab bow and arrow, aim . . . give him the shaft. Party simmering down before desert . . . decide on a quick dip as am flung off dock . . . spurt water as I come up for air, six harpoons nearrowly miss ear, sounded. Dripped back to festivities at last round of desert: pickled fowl meat . . . can't stand turkey. Decide to mix own desert: fizzle water, cranberries, fizzle water, venison bits, bear meat, fizzle water, potatoes, left knee buckle, blonde scalp, fizzle water. Stir with ole' muzzle loader . . . now sawed off shot gun. Have deep swing . . . take off like big bird . . . flying high 'till collide with flock of turkeys . . . falling, falling . . . can't stand . . .

Massachusetts Bay—1620—"By the shores of Gitche-Gumee, by the shining big-sea waters; stood the wigwam of Powhatan, first trombonist for the Salem Scalpers."

We getting lopsided smoke signals from the Vermont hills. Me thinkum something real nutty brewing. Some small progressive group which records for the Puritan label is reported to be answering a heap big lot of requests for "When the Saints Come Marching In."

Seems some sort of invasion from without is in sight.

Much later me digum what is up. The Pilgrims have made it our shores and have begun to pull a "Home Sweet Home" bit in the land of the free and the home of the Boston Braves.

Me gettum drandruff up. Who are these squares? What's their game? Are they for real?

Several moons later, me gettum free passes for squaw and me to be with a large-sized session at the Pilgrim's place. It some sort of feed. For Salvation Army or red feather drive. Me wonder if squaw would fall in with such jumping.

She strictly a Guy Lombardo fan.

We finally take off in direction of Pilgrim settlement.

Four days by canoe, two days by motor scooter, six minutes by yellow cab. Take canoe.

Arriving quicker than Lionel Hampton's disk of "Flying Home", we pitched folding wigwam outside the the place and the very next day, the feed commenced.

Was big happy time. Me thinkum Pilgrims is jolly folks. Real swinging session of goodies. Roasted turkey bird, sliced pickles, pickled roots, chocolate-covered doughnuts, and a mysterious bubbling water called "Johnny Walkers" drink.

Make me giggle.

There at session were Big John Alden, who dropped gravy on my new wampum and his date, Priscilla.

Also were fellow named Homer. Passed me celery once. Thinkum he make strange marks on paper for trade. Cool cat.

Me know this Pilgrim feed is finest in many years for red man. We get tummy aches and need bromo seltzer stuff. Like palefaced jacks. Me heart runneth over and beats at 45 instead of 33⅓. Me bopped.

Thinkum me call this day Thanksgiving.

BLANK STARE FROM FACE OF SLOCUM

By HOWARD VanKIRK

The scaffolding came off the face of Slocum hall last Wednesday and try as we might, we could find no lettering that stated that this was SLOCUM HALL.

Being of a curious bent, we wondered why. First we contacted Norman Pearl, the young sculptor who was doing the work on Slocum's face. He told us that on Friday, Nov. 13, he had finished cleaning the face in preparation for the final lettering. He expected to begin the lettering Monday. Monday he was informed that the job was off.

Next we talked to Hugh Gregg, University treasurer. Seems the University was renting the scaffolding by the day. The job had taken a month and a half longer than had been expected, due to irregularities on depth of the original lettering and unexpected hardness of the stone. The administration felt that the rental of the scaffolding was costing too much. Also, the compressor that was used belonged to the building and grounds department, and was needed elsewhere.

Pearl assured us that he would have completed the lettering by last Friday. However, the Administration felt that the job would have taken longer. So the scaffolding came down on Wednesday, by which time Pearl stated that he could have had half of the work done, and the compressor was dragged away. Slocum's face remains innocent of any lettering.

It would seem that the building that houses Business Administration, Home Economics, Education and Architecture will, outwardly at least, remain anonymous for some tim eto come.

Final Obit On Astor

Since publication on Friday, The Daily Orange has received more information pertaining to the demise of the Astor theater's current play series.

During the summer, when the male star of "Born Yesterday" was announced, a letter on American Legion stationery, was circulated citing the actor's record as disclosed by a congressional committee. While stating he could refute the charges of "un-Americanism" the star withdrew, not wishing to make a big thing of it.

The Astor management also stated Friday that an anonymous letter has been circulated around a few weeks ago in Syracuse urging people not to see "Bell, Book and Candle," which ran for a week, because of objections to the leading lady's political purity.

In addition, producer James Russo says, a "telephone campaign" had been conducted for the same purpose. The net effect of both of these, was to darken the theater, he added.

Since the circulation of the American Legion letter did not appear to affect the attendance at earlier plays, we can only assume that this later "denunciation campaign" did the job.

If the "dripping pen" managed to end this theatrical venture, we feel this supports our comments of last week that the people of the area need some training in order to keep a year-round theater here. If the "campaign" had no effect, then the same still holds. Defense rests.

Thou Shalt Not, Frosh

Lend an ear, freshmen. These four commandments, drawn up by the University of California might aid you on the rough road to becoming a "suave" upper classman:

No high school paraphernalia will be tolerated and thou shalt not bluster ostentatiously about childhood achievements.

Thou shalt not pose as a "Big Man On Campus".

Thou shalt learn that saddles, levies and such do not constitute the proper full dress and should be worn only to brawls.

Thou shalt live in the most reverential awe and undiluted admiration of the superiors, the all powerful . . . class of '54.

Canadians Go Underground

Partial view of Toronto subway construction

By JOHN JOHNSRUD
Editorial Staff Writer

The benefit of a street that relieves the congested traffic of four or five streets is quite evident. A subway or underground rapid transit systym does just this, according to W. E. P. Duncan, general manager of the Toronto Transportation Commission.

Addressing members of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Duncan told the story of the Commissions fight for adequate mass movement of people in the continent's most congested city. The only solution to the problem was a $50,000,000 subway—the first subway in Canada.

Construction of a modern underground transit system is not the same as building a tunnel under a river or through a mountain. To do the latter a tunneling technique is used. A subway, on the other hand, is built by digging from the surface. In Toronto, as was the case with the other major subway systems, a single block at a time is excavated, braced with steel girders, and covered over so that traffic may flow normally while work is continued underground.

The first successful subway in the world was built in London in 1886. Its deep circular tube, made by tunneling, became the prototype for other lines. Engineers in Budapest, viewing the success of the London subway, built one of their own but created a new method involving the use of a flat ceiling so that the tunnel could be nearer the street level and would be therefore more convenient.

New York city, although starting later than other major cities, swiftly passed all the others and has at present over 270 miles of subway trackage.

Philadelphia, Boston, and Chicago, London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, Madrid, Buenos Aires, and now Toronto have subway systems. Montreal is thinking of the possibilities of an underground transit system but the $150 million price tag indicates that Toronto's is not only the first Canadian subway but will be the only one in Canada for quite a while.

THEY WENT TO COLLEGE by Ernest Havemann and Patricia Salter West, New York: Harcourt, Brace & Company; Price: $4.00.

If you're thinking of leaving college, then don't, for a few hours with this book of facts will erveal your possible loss of $100,000!

They Went to College is a creatively written report based upon statistics collected by Time magazine in 1947. Classifying 9,000 living American graduates as The Greasy Grinds, the BMOC's, The Students Who Just Sat There and The All-Arounds, it gives a detailed commentary on what has happened to all of them and why.

By and large, the study concludes, college graduates are enjoying an amazing financial security. Half of them are over thirty, and half are under; and few of the former half are job holders.

Of the male graduates, even The Students Who Just Sat There are shown to have fared better as a group than the average worker. They never attained those positions of highest prestige enjoyed by their better reputed colleagues, but as clerical, semi-skilled and unskilled workers, the former "drags" report a medium income of $4,200 annually (nearly twice the national medium). According to occupation, the remaining alumni are professionals, business executives, business professionals and rank-and-file businessmen. With annual incomes ranging from $2,800 to $12,000, these men who went to college are obviously the tax bureau's best customers.

They Went to College could be rated in this review as a work of far more value had it been released nearer to the time that the survey was made, for the America of '47 and the America of '52 are greatly different, even when this comparison is limited to the college campus. Its greatness comes in it's being the world's only complete work on the life and thoughts of the American college graduate, and in its unlimited value to any future study of the graduate in the present.

Two Sides to 'Guilty' Reds

By ART SIEGEL
Managing Editor

Significant in the fight for the freedom and dignity of man is that the entire democratic word has joined the fight against the conspiracy of Communism. Belief in an economic philosophy of the last century has turned part of the world into a political tyranny.

There is a facet of this of what we call Communism that has been ignored by most newspapers and magazines these days.

It concerns those persons who were once "fellow travelers" with the Communists—those persons who joined them in the 20's and the 30's. Some joined the Communist party proper, others signed up for organizations considered subversive today.

However illogical and ridiculous Marx' theories were, they were made even moreso when put into practice by Lenin and then Stalin. Stalin completely departed from Marxist teachings and thus illustrated that the original theory was impractical, illogical and undesirable—that the Dictatorship would be everlasting under any regime attending Communism.

Thus, under Stalin, hoodwinking the bunch of philosophers who believed in distributing equality by the unit, the USSR became a threat to the free world.

The souls who joined the cause in those days considered that they were enlisting in an idealistic group that would make the world a better place in which to live. They were sincere men, some of them. Those that were sincere were misguided and were to be taken in, never realizing it then.

Thus it was that many college students, perhaps frustrated because of economic conditions in the last two decades, or perhaps curiosity, hitched their wagons to these men preaching a better life.

Today we investigate two types of men. We have the college prof who would never seek to overthrow anything. He wanted no part of Russia: he, through what we might call "curiosity," wanted to investigate any theory that promised a better life, no matter how foolish the promises were. A prototype is the person who succumbed because of his personal misfortunes.

When he found out the truth about Marxism, and about Stalinism—the practical result of Marxism—he felt sorry and ashamed. So he quit the organizations, as his political temper and that of the times changed.

Then we have the true Communist—and the Stalinist. These are the dangerous men. They are the ones who will sign any loyalty act. They will purge themselves and kill and cheat to accomplish their goals.

They will continue to advocate the overthrow of the free world. They are obsessed with the tyranny and bloodiness of the dictatorships under which 865 million persons today live.

Both of these types—the scholar, and the savage who believes that the destruction of our way of life is inevitable but has to be given a shove, are now termed Communists.

The intellects who we mentioned above should not be persecuted and prosecuted, insulted and purged. To do that would be to abort democracy.

It is the present-day Communist, the man who through innuendoes and indirections preaches the belief—who should be investigated.

There is no place on a college faculty for a Communist. But, as the Chancellor pointed out, we must distinguish between the Communist past and the Communist present.

"HOW GOES IT?" dials New York—and a building in Illinois answers

Shell Oil Co. wanted a small brick building in Illinois to be able to teletype automatically to a dispatcher in Radio City—more than 800 miles away. The building in Dennison, Ill., is one of four pumping stations on an important oil line. For efficiency, all these stations were to be controlled from New York. Bell System engineers were asked to help.

Now the New York dispatcher operates these stations by using an ordinary telephone dial. By dialing a number, he can make a pumping station automatically report back its meter readings by teletype! He also dials numbers to open and shut valves, start and stop pumps, and summon an attendant. It's done through Bell System facilities.

These remote-control installations represent salesmanship, research and engineering skill on the part of many Bell System people. That's the reason there are rewarding opportunities in many lines for college people in the telephone company. Why not check soon with your Placement Officer on your chances to start with the Bell System after graduation?

Hugh Gregg, vice-president and treasurer of the u versity recently compiled a new type of financial rep for the year ending June 30, 1953.

This is the first simplified financial statement ever m

the University.

The University has a current budget for the year whi is separate from university assets.

Assets included (see above chart) are: the Endown

students since this is where tuition money is involved.

According to the report, the total income for '5 amounted to $12,996,772.35. Total expense amounted $12, 806.03 leaving a balance of $1,906.32. This difference is under the title of related and auxiliary activities, each individual item may run at a deficit while others may break even.

Dormitories have been operating with a small deficit for the past number of years. This is because of the added expense for the upkeep of smaller houses. Since the cottages are older, maintenance costs are higher. The answer to this problem will come when the building program has been completed and larger units will replace the present ones.

Food service has been operating at an overall profit. Revenues from this service then go to the general income of the university to be used in overall operating expenses.

Included in expenditures was the awarding of scholarships. The sum of $437,738.23 was awarded to 2,231 undergraduate students, while 41 graduate students received a total of $35,160.98 in scholarships and fellowships.

While the university has not operated at a loss for the past number of years the balance for last year was only $1,906.32.

According to Francis A. Wingate, comptroller, "an important fact to remember is that the university is an integrated operation. Our prime responsibility is to see that we live within our means and spend the funds at hand wisely."

The total assets of the University (middle chart) include the fund for building and development.

The year-end saw ten new buildings on campus in various stages of construction. The value of these totals $4,736,425. Most of the money for the development of these buildings came from the special building and development fund. The total amount invested in buildings and equipment since the development of the program four years ago, is $11,985,296.04. Funds appropriated for new buildings do not come from student fees or tuition, since they are derived from the gifts and the income of special investments.

CURRENT OPERATING EXPENSES

Auxiliary Activities	$ 4,912,110
Instruction, Library, Faculty, Welfare	$ 4,873,125
Maintenance	$ 1,078,585
Administration	$ 805,690
Student Welfare	$ 662,745

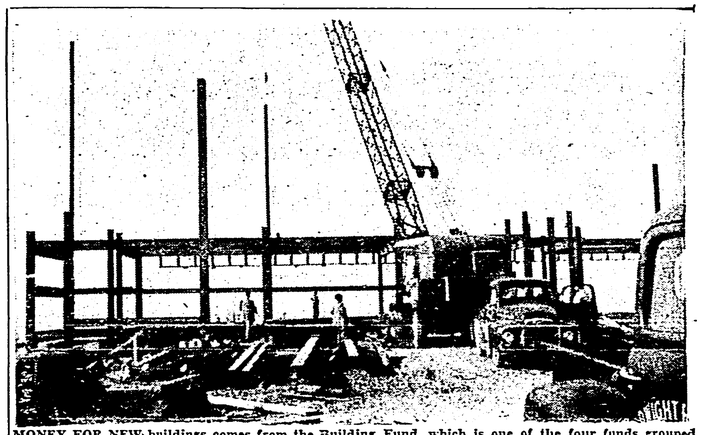
Credit for '52-'53	$ 2,000
Grand Total	$12,997,000

Figures are approximate.



MONEY FOR NEW buildings comes from the Building Fund, which is one of the four funds grouped in University Assets. Ten new structures have been built on campus since the program was started four years ago. They include dormitories and instruction buildings. Some of the new structures are paid for from other sources. Staff Photo by Ozzie Keuker

"THE HOLE" which has caused so many students to speak vehemently while they picked their way around it, or tried to cross the narrow planks spanning it, is budgeted under Maintenance, which accounted for 8.3% of the Current Operating Expenses for 1952-53. The trench has been dug for pipes for the new engineering building. Staff Photo by Ozzie Keuker

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

By the time this column hits the streets the 1953 football season at Syracuse university will be over. Those moleskins and helmets will become athletic custodian Al Zaks' friends once more and another season will be part of the past. Sixteen seniors will have played their final game for Bill Orange. And to one of these departing sixteen this column is dedicated.

You have to admit that there have been quite a few Syracuse gridders mentioned for all this and all that over the past few days. Bobby Fleck, Ted Kukowski, Pat Stark, Les McClelland and Bob Leberman have all been asked to participate in post season contests. And it looks like some of the boys may be in for some more surprises later on.

Today we are taking time out to talk about a fellow who has been the most consistent of all Hill gridders this year. Once in a while he has gotten the headlines in the Sunday papers but his actual value to the team has never been really publicized. That, of course, is Bob Leberman.

Bob Leberman is not only a leader on the field but also when out of football uniform. On the ROTC drill days it's Major Leberman, the same guy who takes the handoff from Stark on Saturdays and heads through right tackle. The same guy who week in and week out has relped put Syracuse on the national football map. For the last three years he has done this with the utmost of success.

Bob Leberman

It's too bad the average fan can't look into the statistics up in Arnie Burdick's office. There he would find the name of Leberman way up their on top in practically every category in which his name is listed. That's why Bob is such a valuable asset to the team. He can either catch the pass, hit the opposing defensive man, run the ends, shoot between the guards or move back into safety to receive the kick. Enough said?

And when it comes to the books Bob is no slouch. He has a fine scholastic average and is a member of many of the leading honoraries on campus. And besides all this he has time to work on his ROTC duties which do take up a lot of his time.

The past two seasons have seen a great improvement in the all-around play of galloping Mr. Leberman. Moving into the starting halfback position last year Bob proved to be one of the outstanding runners in central New York state. His amazing galloping stride reminds many fans of a stallion running through the fields. Ask enemy defenders, they'll remember him for a long time.

He was one of the main reasons why the Orange suddenly vaulted into the lead for the Lambert Trophy honors and certainly why they captured it. This season has been his finest on the Hill. Flashing speed and aggressiveness in every contest he has played, the Hamburg, N. Y., senior slowly turned into Syracuse's leading ground weapon after Bill Wetzel hurt his knee.

A lot of things have been written about this year's Orange eleven Some call it the greatest club we have ever had. Others say it is the team that should be going to a bowl. Although they didn't mean to do it, many writers have just slipped over the name of Bob Leberman when praising the club. It's too bad because he is a fine ball player and competitor.

And don't kid yourself, we're really going to miss Major Bob. No matter who is out there at that left halfback slot next fall, it's going to be quite different from the stands. When the quarterback leans down for the snap and hands it to his left half, that sudden gallop around the end or off the tackle towards paydirt will have completely disappeared. They're going to be mighty big shoes to fill next fall. And we doubt if they fill them.

Yes, they're going to miss Bob Leberman quite a bit.

HOOP CLINIC

A basketball clinic for referees will be held Monday, Nov. 30 at 7:30 p.m. with Mr. Bronstein in charge. Anyone interested in officiating or who desires to hear the speaker, should sign up with Mr. Robert Bell in the Physical Education office in Archbold gym.

Starters Uncertain For Piety Frosh Against Ithaca

By DAVE BENNETT

Syracuse's frosh basketball team will open its 1953-54 season Saturday when the Tangerine hoopsters entertain the Ithaca college yearlings in a preliminary to the Orange varsity's seasonal lid-lifter against Ithaca.

This year's edition of Coach Andy Mogish's first-year court squad had a rugged precedent set for it by last year's sensational aggregation which compiled an 11-1 record against the East's finest frosh fives.

ONLY CORNELL was able to pin a defeat on the rampaging Orange cubs and that loss was avenged in a resounding 100-85 trouncing of the Little Red later in the season.

With only two weeks of practice under their belts, candidates for the frosh squad are still battling for starting positions.

Also competing for berths on the yearling team, which now numbers 17 men, are brothers of two of Syracuse's top courtsters in recent years.

LOU STARK is the younger brother of Pat Stark, Orange grid quarterback and basketball performer. Phil Manikas is Billy Manikas's brother. The older Manikas did not play last year because of a leg injury.

Following the Ithaca encounter, the frosh go against the Sampson AFB JV five Wednesday, Dec. 9 and the Niagara freshmen a week later on Dec. 16 at Niagara.

Scanning the Intramural Scene

By AL GEFEN, Daily Orange Intramural Director

(This is the first of a series of articles designed to develop a better understanding of the Syracuse university Intramural athletic program. This column will appear periodically in The Daily Orange.)

With the change in seasons now in operation, only bowling is still functioning. The bowling season began three weeks ago and, already, most of the competing teams have bowled three matches apiece.

Phi Epsilon Pi leads Flight I in the Fraternity division with two victories and no setbacks. Four teams, Phi Kappa Tau, Kappa Sigma, Alpha Chi Rho and Alpha Tau Omega are in a flat-footed tie for second place with one win and one loss. Theta Chi brings up the rear, having lost two matches.

Four teams are tied for the lead in Flight II. They are Zeta Beta Tau, Tau Delta Phi, Phi Gamma Delta and Beta Theta Pi; each squad has won two while losing one. Delta Kappa Epsilon follows with one win and two losses, while Phi Delta Theta has yet to win after dropping three.

Alpha Epsilon Pi, undefeated in three matches, leads Flight III. Pi Kappa Alpha has won two matches and Psi Upsilon has broken even in its two times out. Omega Pi Alpha is last in this flight, being winless in three starts.

Delta Upsilon is the only undefeated team in Flight IV, winning two matches. Tied for second with a one and one record are Zeta Psi, Phi Kappa Psi, Acacia, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Chi. Sigma Alpha Mu has not won in two starts.

In the Independent Division, Skytop M-4 has won its three matches in Flight I. Skytop M-2, with a two and one record, Skytop M-5, even after two matches, and Skytop M-7 and M-8, winless in two starts, trail M-4 in the standings.

time in an NCAA meet of 19:52.3, posted by Rhode Island State's Bob Black, in 1948.

Charlie Cappozzoli, last year's winner from Georgetown, has graduated, so a new individual title-holder is certain to be crowned. That, however, is about the only thing definite prior to the race.

On past performances, Michigan State certainly rates the role of favorite. The Spartans of Coach Karl Schademan won the Big Ten championship this year for the third straight time and nailed down honors in the IC4A meet for the second consecutive year.

Michigan State already has won the team title four times, more than any other team. The Spartans' victories came in 1939, 1948, 1949, and 1952.

INDIANA WON the first team title in 1938 while Greg Rice, of Notre Dame, was the initial individual victor. The Hoosiers also copped the crown in 1940 and shared the title with Penn State in 1942. The Nittany Lions was the undisputed champion in 1947 and 1948.

Orange Hoop Hopes High

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Possessed with the most evenly balanced club in his four years head basketball coach on the Hill, Marc Guley still is undecided ut who will be in the starting lineup when the Orange hoopsters n their season as hosts to Ithaca Saturday night.

Only one man will be missing from last year's team as the 1953- edition of Syracuse's basketball inaugurates its twenty-game sche- e. The one missing member is nk Reddout, the 6 foot 5 inch ter who is now scoring his nts for the professional Ro- ster Royals.

SKIP THAW, one of the holdovers from last year's Orange hoop squad, is expected to lead the Piety lads this year with his famed jump shots. Also known for his driving and ball handling abilities, Thaw can be an exceptional scorer.

THE DEPARTURE of the high- ing center will provide a hole the Saltine lineup as his height d rebounding ability will be lly missed. Reddout was lead- g scorer on last year's squad ith 337 points, nearly 17 per ame.

A pre-season summation of the squad shows it to have more speed and depth than any of Guley's previous squads but lacking in both experience and height. Dave Kline is the big man of the team at 6:5 but it's not even definite that he will be in the starting five.

After Kline, the next biggest nen are sophomore Ron Gillespie nd junior Ron Kilpatrick at 6:3. Gillespie is just one of the five ophomores up from last year's rosh quintet who are making de- ermined bids for starting spots.

Boob Breland, Gus Castellani, Walt Scott and Lou Cegala are he other fighting spohomores, all f whom are given a chance to nswer the opening call.

THESE BOYS combined to make last year's yearling five one of the most successful in Syracuse history as they swept through a 13-game schedule with only a single-point defeat at the hands of Cornell marring their record. They came back later in the year to easily whip the Little Red.

Only missing man from that trong frosh squad is 6:6 Ron Anderson who is no longer in school. His absence will be felt since Guley was counting on his eight to make up for the gap eft by Reddout's departure.

Capt. Mel Besdin and Billy Nelon are the only two seniors rated s possibilities in the opening uintet. Besdin, a two-year veter- n is shown for his outstanding hooting ability which placed him s second high scorer on last year's am with 280 points, exactly 14 er game.

Nelson who is also well known or his soccer ability was a sur- ise addition to the 1952-53 squad nd came through with some parkling performances. Although ot a high-scorer, the little back- ourt star showed some brilliant efensive play and set up many askets.

ONE OTHER last year man ho may see some action is Bob ager who is out for the squad for he first time. The 6:2 senior has layed a lot of amateur ball round the city and was voted yracuse's outstanding amateur layer last season.

Two talented junior backcourt stars from last season's combo will again be around as the Saltines try to better their 7-13 record. Skip Thaw and Jack Larned are both speedsters who an dribble and drive with the best of them. Thaw played in every game last year and potted 140 points.

Guley has had his boys working ut since Nov. 1. The Pietymen layed host to LeMoyne in a rimmage last week but neither uad was far enough advanced in orkouts to show any real power.

The Orange mentor feels the uad is one of his most question- ble ones and may not be able tell how they'll succeed until id-season. With every position ide open, fans can look for a uffling around of material in e Ithaca and early-season con- sts.

One advantage over last year is e schedule. The opponents are st as strong but Syracuse will ave twelve home games with ly eight arranged on the road.

Lambert Trophy Neglects Two Eastern Powerhouses

Exactly one year ago, Syracuse was vying with Navy and Villanova for the coveted Lambert Trophy, symbolic of Eastern gridiron supremecy. As the record books will show, the Orange finally captured the trophy, and a bid to the Orange Bowl also, with a 26-13 victory over Fordham in the finale of the season.

One year later, a better Orange team than the 1952 trophy winners has probably no chance of regaining the trophy.

Another team about in the same situatoin as the Hillmen are the Quakers of Pennsylvania. The only way Penn could take the Lambert Trophy is by routing Cornell on Thursday while Army and Navy playing each other on Saturday would have to show nothing.

It seems quite unlikely that Penn will show so much against Cornell that their past reversals against Army and Navy should be discounted. And it is even mor unlikely to imagine Army and the Midshipmen engaging in a listless battle.

LATEST COLLEGE SURVEY SHOWS LUCKIES LEAD AGAIN

Last year a survey of leading colleges throughout the country showed that smokers in those colleges preferred Luckies to any other cigarette.

This year another nation-wide survey—based on thousands of actual student interviews, and representative of all students in regular colleges—shows that Luckies lead again over all brands, regular or king size...and by a wide margin! The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better.

Smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste, and the fact of the matter is Luckies taste better—for 2 reasons. L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. And Luckies are made better to taste better. So, Be Happy—Go Lucky!.

Islamic Cultural Group Hears Foreign Diplomats

Two diplomats from Egypt and Pakistan were the guests of the Islamic Cultural association in a celebration of the birthday of the prophet Mohammed on Friday.

Speaking on the life of the prophet, Hon. Bahgat El-Tawil, first secretary of the Egyptian embassy in Washington, told the group in the life of Mohammed was being an educator."

HE EXPLAINED that God's first revelation to the prophet was to read, and he traced this influence in his teachings. "The ink of the scholar is more precious than the blood of the martyr . . . Seek ye learning from the cradle to the grave," he quoted from the Koran.

The Egyptian stressed the simplicity of the man and his life. "He insisted on reason as the basis for conviction and on thinking as the power to find and know the Creator," he said.

Col. Rahat S. Chatari, staff member of the Pakistan delegation to the United Nations, addressed the group on "Islam in Pakistan."

He told of the events leading to the partition of India and explained the reasons leading to the drafting of an Islamic constitution for Pakistan.

"ISLAM IS democratic to the core and so in our life and constitution," he said, pointing out that there is no compulsion in matters of faith and no discrimination on the basis of race or color.

The speakers were introduced by Dr. George B. Cressey of the geography department and Hafeez Malik, president of the association.

Virtuosi di Roma Concert Tonight

Civic Morning Musicals will present the Virtuosi di Roma chamber music ensemble at 8:30 p.m. today in Lincoln auditorium.

The ensemble consisting of six violins, two cellos, a contrabass, a flute and a piano, is under the direction of Renato Fasano.

He is the youngest director of an Italian national conservatory in his capacity as head of the Pierlyigi da Palestrina. Maestro Fasano is internationally known as a conductor, pianist and director and has acted as head of the National Acaedmy of St. Cecilia in Rome.

Arturo Toscanini termed it "the greatest instrumental ensemble of this age," when the group made its United States debut in the fall of 1950.

Tickets priced at $2, $2.50 and $3 are available at Civic Morning Musicals, inc., 504 Clark Music building.

WAA Will Handle Blazer Questions

Coeds with questions concerning Syracuse blazers recently received are requested to report to the WAA Board Room from 1 to 2 p.m. or 4 to 5 p.m. any day of the week. The Board Room is located on the third floor of the Women's Building.

Those unable to report to the Board Room may call Joan Janecek, chairman of the blazer sale, at 4-3121, ext. 11.

Girls, who are being billed individually, must pay their bills by Dec. 20.

Rites Conducted For Former Dean

Services for Miss Jean Marie Richards, first dean of women at Syracuse university, who died Thursday at her Syracuse home after a long illness, were held Saturday in St. Paul's Episcopal church. Burial was in Oakwood cemetery.

Bearers were Chancellor William P. Tolley, John R. Tuttle, Burch MacMorran, Julian Edgcomb, Harris S. Rush, and Donald Mawhinney.

Dean of women from 1909 to 1924, Miss Richards supervised the university's first attempt at self government for women students. She joined the faculty in 1895 as an instructor in the English department and gained full professorship in 1903.

She was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal church. There are no survivors.

Wilson Fellowships Open to Seniors

Exceptional senior students in the humanities and social sciences will have an opportunity to start their graduate work under Woodrow Wilson fellowships it was revealed Friday by Dr. Mary H. Marshall, professor of English.

The fellowships, which pay about $1250 plus tuition for one year, will be awarded to students "of marked intellectual ability and character" who are nominated by faculty members, Dr. Marshall said.

Nominations must be in by Dec. 1 and final selection will be made late in January. Students will not be allowed to apply directly for the fellowships but are urged to get in touch with the professor who knows their work best.

Folders describing the program in detail are in the hands of chairmen of departments in the humanities, social sciences and liberal arts; in Maxwell placement office and in Dr. Marshall's office, 106 Hall of Languages.

Men coming out of the armed services will also be considered for the awards, 125 of which will be made throughout the nation, Dr. Marshall said.

The program is being handled by the Association of Graduate Schools with the help of the Carnegie Corporation and the General Education Board.

Seminar on Tours Planned Tomorrow

Students interested in "those far-away places" are invited to a Scandinavian traveling agency seminar at 4 p.m., tomorrow, at the Delta Gamma house, 901 Walnut ave.

Arne Sorenson, well-known Danish writer and educator, and Miss Karen Jorgenson will discuss summer student tour plans of the agency. The Scandinavian tour program includes visits to England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Holland and Denmark. Features of the trip will be a visit to San Marino, smallest country in the world, panel discussions in Denmark, and the Salzburg festival.

Students may travel to Europe by steamship, student boat or plane. European history lectures are a highlight of student boat trips.

Sorensen and Miss Jorgensen will explain the agency study tour to Scandinavia to interested students.

Those interested in attending the seminar are requested to call Blair Carlson, Joan Abbott or Barbara Suchy at 75-2155.

When the Winter Comes....

AS THE SUN sinks in the west and our boat sinks in the east, we bid a reluctant farewell to lovely Kalapana black sand beach—temperature 80 degrees—and sail from Hawaii. Now, as we settle back for a cool but refreshing Syracuse winter, ready to hibernate over a cup of coffee on Marshall st., we dream about Hawaii. We watch the pic- tures of everyone throwing pennies at the natives. Alas, if we did that here the pennies would be lost in the snow. Photo Courtesy of M/Sgt. C. F. Cleary

Pair of Syracuse Gridders Receive National Awards

By JOEL FEIDELMAN

Although Syracuse university, as a football team, did not receive any sectional honors this year in contrast with the 1952 Piety Hill gridders, two mainstays of the current Orange squad, Ted Kukowski and Bob Fleck, have forged a nationwide reputation for themselves unexcelled in recent Syracuse grid history.

Mythical post-season, all-star teams from the major press services, national magazines and coaching associations have been released only recently, and Kukowski and Fleck have already been named to six teams each with many more mythical teams still to be heard from.

PROBABLY THE greatest honor was the selection of the 243-lb. Fleck as a starting guard on the Collier's all-American team, the first time in about 20 years that an Orange gridder has achieved such national prominence.

Fleck established himself as one of the outstanding guards in the country by also being placed on the International News Service all-American first team. This was Fleck's second year on INS's all-American first team.

Not to be outdone, Ted Kukowski, in his first year in Orange livery, was named to the Paramount newsreel and Focus magazine all-American teams.

As for sectional honors, Fleck and Tenacious Ted swept the field. Both gained starting positions on the New York Daily News all-Eastern team. Both also made the INS and United Press all-Eastern first teams.

KUKOWSKI ALSO WAS named on the Associated Press all-Eastern starting team in his center position while Fleck gained a second-string slot. This gave Ted the hat trick—a position on all three press association teams, plus a starting berth on the Daily News all-star lineup.

With the Helmes institute, Look magazine and United Press all-American teams still to be heard from, plus the all-opponent teams of Temple, Illinois, Fordham, BU, Villanova, etc., there is a strong chance that Messers. Fleck and Kukowski will gain many more honors.

Already Kukowski, along with

Weather Prediction Goes Wrong Again

Weatherman Forecasts Snow for Today

Whatever happened to that prediction of above average temperatures for thirty days?

That stuff you see outside is it.

It seems when the Weather man says "above average," he means an average of all the temperatures for a set period. Though some of these temperatures may be way below normal, and some above, the average is above the normal for that period.

The weatherman also said snow. It's supposed to be lying around as you read this. If it isn't, it's not our fault. All we know is what we hear from the weatherman.

Tomorrow, it'll be clear and cold. Then Thursday — ah, Thursday. It will be six degrees warmer! But there's a fly in every ointment. It's gonna rain too.

After Thursday, it's anybody's guess what's gonna happen. As unofficial predictors, we say there'll be ice on Marshall st., ashes on the Library steps, and freezing rain. Then, too, there will be cold days followed by snow, followed by skiers.

From then on, until the middle of the month, it will be approximately five degrees above normal. This probably won't benefit us, though. To us, it will seem like just plain old December. And you know what that means in Syracuse.

But really, no one cares. Who thinks about the weather, when there are so many parties to go to?—J.N.

Engineering Bids To Open Tomorrow, Smith Announces

Bids for construction of engineering building one, to be located south of Smith hall, will be opened at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in 111 Maxwell, F. Gordon Smith, university vice president and executive secretary, announced yesterday.

Building one, the main engineering center for the immediate future, will be a four-story structure housing chemical, civil, industrial and electrical engineering laboratories.

BIDS WILL be received for the following classifications: general construction, plumbing, heating and ventilation, and electrical work.

Four contracts totalling $424,457 were awarded last October for the construction of the basement and sub-basement of engineering building two, which will be located south of Machinery hall and west of Slocum.

A small part of the rear of Machinery hall has been removed and excavation has started for the building. Completion is expected by late May 1954.

Overall planning for the campus has the present quad as devoted primarily to science and engineering. A new quad, west of the Chapel, will be a humanities quad, and will be bounded on the west by the new E. I. White College of Law building.

Completion of the two engineering buildings will be the final step in the return of the college from Thompson rd., its home for several years until September, 1952.

Look Magazine Lauds Dr. Laubach

Look magazine has featured Dr. Frank C. Laubach, Congregationalist preacher and missionary, in its current "Look Applauds" page.

Dr. Laubach, father of Robert S. Laubach, instructor of journalism on the Hill, has devoted 20 years providing the means by which 60 million illiterates in the farthermost parts of the world have learned to read and write.

Teaching with phonetic picture-charts, the doctor has found the masses pathetically eager to learn. Because of the need for books, he has started a project for the preparation of elementary readers in 10 Indian languages.

Dr. Laubach, working under the auspices of the Committee on World Literacy and Christian Literature of the National Council of Churches of Christ in America, plans to teach 200 languages and dialects to the more than a billion remaining illiterates.

BURMESE TALK

"How America Looks to Burmese People" will be the topic of a report by Tin H'too, a Burmese studying at Syracuse university. His talk will be given at 8:00 p.m. December 1 in the director's room of the Syracuse Savings bank building before the seminar studying the way American policies appear to other countries.

New Library Supplies Books for Browsing

The student browsing library, chairmanned by Vice-president in charge of student services Frank Piskor, will open at 1 p.m. today.

Starting schedule for the library, authorized and put into action by the policy committee of the Women's building, will be from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Additional hours will be added during the semester.

THE LIBRARY will work on the honor system but will act only as a browsing, study and reference library. Books will not be permitted to leave the library. All available there are also available to loan at the main library or one of its branches.

The library is staffed by Hill students, many of whom are city women. Any students who would like to work at the library are requested to sign up at the library or contact Barbara Bushnell, 72-7728, or James F. Carr, 4-0678.

Currently there are approximately 1,000 books in the library, comprised of American and English literature. Other fields represented include recent Onondagans, reference books, periodicals and newspapers.

Although the library is not directly connected with any other organization on campus or the main library, it will work closely with Dean Wharton Miller, director of the University's libraries, and Miss Fern Allen, director of branch libraries, who will advise the group.

THE WOMEN'S physical education library, under the direction of Grace M. Rockwood, will also be located in the library and will have special hours for physical education majors. This portion of the library will not be open to the general student body.

Approximately 300 of the books located in the library now are gifts of the defunct Student Union and Associated Campus Services. Over 500 more are gifts from the main library. The brary to capacity during the group plans on expanding the li- year.

They hope to add collect newspapers, humor magazines, scholarship information and reference shelves for each of the major departments of the University.

Personnel and policy are under the guidance of Miss Bushnell while procurement and promotion are under Carr.

ON Extends Date For Senior Photos

Coeds Should Wear White Blouses

Seniors will have an additional week to have their pictures taken for the Onondagan. The photographer will be on campus till Dec. 4 and from Dec. 13-18 for those who have not made an appointment.

It will not be necessary to have a sitting appointment during the extra week. Those seniors who are interested should go to the audio-visual center 121 College pl. as soon as possible, Dorothy Burman, senior editor, announced.

As in the past the photographer will be at the center from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 a.m. to 6 p.m. Coeds are requested to wear white blouses while men are requested to wear suits.

A representative from Chidnoff studios will be at the audio visual center Dec. 7-18 to take orders for the pictures to be printed in the yearbook.

Seniors are requested to bring their proofs in as soon as they receive them. Orders will be taken for pictures to be printed other than the one to be used in the ON. The representative will be at the center from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

MSG MEETING

The men's student government assembly is expected to take action tonight on a bill sponsored by junior assemblyman Roger J. Herz to set up a committee on apathy research.

Reps to Discuss Israeli Problem, Korean Atrocities

Representatives from nine colleges and universities in New York State will arrive in Syracuse Friday, Dec. 11 to participate in the annual model security council of central New York.

Acting as delegates from nations represented in the present security council of the United Nations, the visiting students will meet with Syracuse university students in Maxwell auditorium for a two-day session.

THE SESSIONS will include a welcoming address, discussion of the Arab-Israel problem, discussion of atrocity charges against communist China and North Korea and employment of alleged subversives in the UN secretariat.

Guest speaker this year will be Francis Carpenter of the Associated Press. Carpenter has covered the UN for the press service since the inception of the international organization. His subject is "Behind the Scenes at the Security Council."

Attending the session will be four delegates and one faculty member from each college. All meetings of the model security council are open to the public and it is expected that a large number of foreign students at Syracuse university will be on hand to provide information and opinions.

Ethel Falkin, president of the UN club here, will act as secretary general of the model group, and Susan Jakl will be assistant secretary general.

REPRESENTING THE five permanent members of the security council will be delegates from Hamilton college as United States representative; St. Lawrence university, Great Britain; Harper college, Russia; Cornell university, France; and Utica college, China.

Other colleges sending delegates, and nations represented, are Colgate university, Pakistan; Elmira college, Chile; Skidmore college, Greece; and the University of Rochester, Lebanon.

Syracuse university delegates will act as representatives of Denmark. Each year the model security council is held at Syracuse. This university was the first educational institution to hold a model League of Nations 27 years ago.

For this year's session Nancy Whittier will be in charge of the secretariat. Marcia Damieki will handle publicity; Ruby Danz, reception for delegates; Richard Scott, parliamentarian and Roma Yellon, housing.

JSF to Observe Holiday Week

The Jewish Student Fellowship is planning a special program in observance of the eight-day Channukah festival, which will begin at sundown today.

In keeping with the traditional Jewish custom of lighting the Channukah candles, a large electric menorah, which resembles a candlebra, will be placed on the Chapel stairs and will be lighted each evening at sundown. This practice wil continue throughout the holiday. George Bruckmann will chant the blessing of the Channukah candles each night at 5 p.m. in the Chapel Colonial room.

A special program has also been planned for this Friday night's Sabbath Eve services. Several Israeli students on campus will participate in the ceremony.

As part of the holiday celebration, the Jewish Student Fellowship will hold a supper-dance at Temple Concord this Sunday night. Traditional Channukah dishes will be served at the dinner. Other features of the evening will include music by Dick Kowell's band and a program of entertainment. Tickets may be purchased at the JSF desk in Chapel or from members of the JSF executive council or social committee.

For those students or houses who wish to celebrate Channukah, menorahs and candles may be purchased at the JSF desk in Chapel.

Membership Rule Changed by IFC

The National Interfraternity council has adopted a resolution giving each national social fraternity complete control over its membership qualifications.

This resolution, passed last weekend at the National Interfraternity Council conference, does not give the local chapter houses the right to set their own rules on admissions. The local chapters must still work through their national organizations.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY was represented at the conference by Fritz Briggs and Richard Remnitz, president and secretary of the Syracuse Interfraternity council.

Briggs headed a panel discussion which took up the problems of rushing.

Dr. Carl R. Woodward, president of the University of Rhode Island, proposed that national social groups cut down on bars based on religious and racial differences. NATIONAL IFC—2222 -- ---- --

"The principle of selective membership" in choosing new members is all right, he said, but it would be wise "to remove restrictions of membership that stem from racial origin or religious affiliation."

SUPPORTING DR. Woodward was Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, president of Ohio Wesleyan university and director of the Office of Defense Mobilization.

Opponents of this proposal argued that prejudices would prevent a feeling of brotherhood with certain minority members and this feeling is essential in a fraternity.

IF to Sponsor Guessing Contest

Pretty good at guessing? Start right in then, because a right estimate might net you $2,000.

IF magazine is sponsoring a national science fiction contest with $2,000 for the winners. The gimmick is to prophesy what life on this planet will be like 100 years from now.

Say it all in 10,000 words and send your manuscripts to College Science Fiction Contest, IF Magazine, Kingston, N. Y., before midnight May 15, 1954.

First prize is $1,000 and only undergraduates in colleges in the US and Canada are eligible.

Air Force Cadet Cited at Drill

Cadet Lt. Colonel Charles E. Eager was awarded the 1953 Convair Cadet Award of Merit recently at drill exercises by Col. Robert P. Halloran, USAF, professor of air science and tactics at Syracuse university.

The award is one of two annual tokens of recognition to Air Force ROTC cadets in each of the 186 AFROTC detachments throughout the nation. Their urose is to give recognition to outstanding cadets and instill a greater interest in air power and air-crew training.

ager is a senior enrolled in the State university of New York College of Forestry where he is majoring in wood technology. Upon being commissioned, he will enter the Air Force pilot school. He is on the cadet wing staff and is serving as material officer.

Eager holds a commercial pilot's license and serves as operations officer of the Canastota Squadron of the Civil Air Patrol. He has been flying for four years.

Last spring Eager received an AFROTC award of merit and was named outstanding cadet of his unit at McGuire AFB summer camp this year.

Committee Posts Open for Sno-Ball

Applications for sub-chairmanships of Sno-Ball committees for Winter Carnival weekend must be turned in by 6 p.m. Thursday to Cynthia Satow, at Kappa Kappa Gamma, 743 Comstock ave., or to Norman Murphy at Alpha Chi Rho, 131 College pl.

Chairmanships are open for publicity, tickets, programs, arrangements, decorations, entertainment and refreshments.

All juniors may apply for the available posts. Those who applied for overall chairman of the Sno-ball need not submit additional applications, but should indicate on which committee they wish to work.

Applications should include the name, address, phone, activties, experience and suggestions.

Krasner Ensemble To Present Concert

KRASNER CONCERT cypW4 --

The Louis Krasner Chamber Music Ensemble will present a concert in the ballroom of Hotel Syracuse at 8:30 p.m., Thursday. A concert forum will precede the concert that afternoon at 3 p.m. at the hotel.

The Krasner Ensemble has performed for four years in Syracuse, and due to a development of interest in chamber music, gave a series of four weekly concerts last summer at the request of Syracuse university. In addition, the String Quartet has given a series of concerts in the public schools every year.

The program will be made up of a string Haydn quartet, a Schubert Octet for two violins, viola, cello, clarinet, bassoon and French horn, and a duo for violin and piano by Roger Sessions. In the duo, the composer will be at the piano with Mr. Krasner as violinist.

Additional performers are Orrienne Galimir, violin; Claude Bortel, viola; Alfred Ozolins, cello; Stuart Sankey, string bass; Richard Hahn, clarinet; Roger Pugsley, bassoon and Bernard Mott, French horn.

Mr. Roger Sessions will speak at the forum on "Contemporary Music in Public Education." The program will also include music, discussion, questions and a panel of musicians and educators representing various parts of New York state, Norman L. Rice, dean of the Syracuse University School of Art, will be moderator.

Traditions to Hold Interviews Tonight

Interviews for traditions commission applicants will be held tonight, tomorrow and Thursday nights. Applicants will be interviewed as follows:

Tonight: Ayars to Fairbanks at Delta Delta Delta.

Tomorrow: Forester to Muller at Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Thursday: Plate to Wohl at Alpha Phi.

All interviews will be held from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Goons who cannot attend the interview meetings at the designated time are to appear Thursday evening at Alpha Phi or notify Sandy Eakin at 76-2187 or Stuart Parker, 75-4418.

Pole Loses Pride

Until further notice, Syracuse university will have no "fair weather," as far as WAER is concerned, that is.

It seems that some light-fingered sort has made off with the WAER's green "fair-weather" flag which up until Friday afternoon, floated unmolested from the light tower on the east quadrangle.

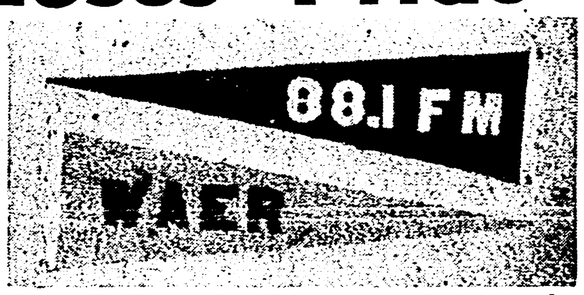
ACCORDING TO radio station promotion manager Gilbert Katz, the flag was hoisted on the tower at 2 p.m. Friday Nov. 20 and when the committee returned to lower it at 6 p.m., it was gone.

The flag, valued at $15, was part of a new program inaugurated by the campus station to provide colorful daily weather forecasts for the Hill population. Three banners, indicating the various phases of the elements, were to be flown over campus each day.

Nov. 20 was the first day of the new scheme.

Katz stated that he reported the er.

theft to University police and the Building and Grounds department, but up until last night, had received no information on the missing banner. "All indications seem that it was taken by Syracuse students," he added.



ALL WE WANT is the flag! WAER's "fair weather" flag has been stolen from atop the east quadrangle light tower. The green banner with white lettering was part of a program by the station to forecast the daily weather each day on campus. Staff Photo by Ozzie Kruker

GREEN WITH "WAER" and "88.1 FM" in white lettering, the "fair-weather" flag was attached to the top of the tower with a pulley rope and wire. The thief had merely to yank the pulley to secure his prize, according to the publicity chief.

"The flag obviously can be of no use to anyone except WAER," Katz stated. "and the service will have to be discontinued if it is not returned. We hoe that whoever took the flag will return it when they realize this," he continued.

Thus, the mystery prevails. It appears that Syracusans, for the present, will have to retreat to a finger in the air or a head out the window to see what Mr. Keller has provided in the way of weath-

WSG Establishes TTK Class Hours

Cass times for Through the Keyhole coeds were permanently set for the remainder of the semester yesterday by Ann Lines, associate civil service chief of women's student government.

Three classes are scheduled for Tuesday. Two at 4:15 p.m. will be held in rooms 207 and 221 of Maxwell. The third is set for 5 p.m. in 221 Maxwell.

All other classes will be held in Maxwell. Classes at 4:15 p.m. Wednesday are scheduled in 207, 221 and 204. The 5 p.m. class will be in room 221.

One class will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in room 221 and the 4:15 class on Friday will also be in that room.

About 350 coeds have signed up for this year's program since fall, according to Miss Lines. This figure is almost 100 over last year's group.

Education Students Will Meet Today

All seniors and graduate students in the school of education who are interested in securing teaching positions for next year will meet with Miss Lina Stedman of the Educational Placement Bureau at 4:15 p.m. today in Room 117, Lyman Hall.

Application forms for bureau registration will be distributed and student function in the placement bureau will be discussed at the meeting.

The three R's

College newspapers have many ideals for which they strive.

Edited by students and printed for students, they must be sensitive to the needs of all segments of that student population.

As a clearing-house of information, gripes or praise, they must assure all readers that their opinions will be heard. Engineer or liberal artist, freshman or senior, Greek or independent—all must have an equal opportunity to present news and beliefs.

College papers reach out and gather the varying opinions, interpret them for other students, and champion certain causes which they feel would be in the best interest of the student body. They must be able to place these crises and events in proper perspective, without prejudice.

Thus is a paper RESPONSIVE.

The students who manage a college paper are responsible to many: to the students, to print a paper which adequately serves their needs in terms of news, interpretation, evaluation and opinion; to the Administration, to present an accurate account of student and University sentiment, and to use funds wisely; to themselves, to print a paper in which as journalists they can well take pride.

Thus is a paper RESPONSIBLE.

To get the new takes effort. To get behind the news, takes effort and ingenuity. The little-known facts or the "new slant" many times makes a story or a page easier and more enjoyable to read.

Thus is a paper RESOURCEFUL.

These are the three R's which are among the ideals of the Daily Orange. So that they will serve as reminders for the ideals for which we strive, they will be placed in the masthead at the top of this page for the remainder of the year.

But not outplayed

To some fans, Syracuse's 5-win, 3-loss, 1-tie record for the last season was a disappointment after '52's Lambert Trophy champions.

But let's look beyond the scorebooks.

There's a saying that bad breaks come in threes. It was three such breaks which prevented the Orangemen from having their first undefeated team in Syracuse history.

A blocked punt at Penn State, a last-quarter touchdown at Illinois and a missed extra-point pass play against Villanova was all that prevented the 1953 Piety squad from being placed among some of the East's greatest teams.

That this was one of the top Orange teams of all-time is confirmed by the national honors which were heaped upon five Syracuse players.

Bob Fleck is the first Syracuse All-American since Jim (Big Six) Steen made the United Press all-star selections in 1938 and the first two-time All-American (he made the INS team last year) since Vic Hanson turned the trick back in the 1920's.

Ted Kukowski also landed in the All-American ratings.

Fleck, Kuowski, along with Pat Stark, will be going to the East-West battle on Jan. 2. Les McClelland and Bob Leberman will don the uniforms of the North in its annual filibuster against the South.

If Syracuse didn't have one of the East's top teams in the scorebooks, it certainly had some of its top individual stars.

Orange fans have cause to be proud of their '53 team. The spirited Syracuse gridders may have been outscored, but they were never outplayed

AT THE FLICKERS

MR. GUINESS IN DOUBLE DELIGHT

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

Guiness and Commuting Bigamy

Get out the boats boys! Grab yourselves a wife in every port, and have yourselves a whale of a time. Alec Guiness is indulging in this delicious feat of immorality in his latest effort "The Captain's Paradise". And if his example holds true for you, you should spend the rest of your life in a state of complete ecstasy. But even if you are too moral, too dateless or just plain unventuresome you cannot help but find Mr. Guiness's little sojourn into the land of bigamy quite the finest comedy of his career.

"The Captain's Paradise" is the happiest script that Mr. Guiness has ever been blessed with and he not only makes the most of it; he makes it pure comic genius. The Captain's escapades are sufficiently close to the truth to be believable and sufficiently far from it to be uproarious. This, perhaps, is the secret of Mr. Guiness's particular genius. His specialty is a portrayal of that average epitome of English mediocrity, the larceny in whose soul is plainly visible before the film is too far advanced on its merry way.

This film is quite outrageous and quite hilarious. Mr. Guiness plays a sort of commuting bigamist who has a wife to cook for him and a wife to cook him. As the former, Celia Johnson is a miracle of sweetness and domesticity. Miss Johnson is an actress of extraordinary skill. She wins the audience's sympathy with the slightest widening of her trusting eyes and when she pulls one of the film's many delightful surprises the result is wonderfully funny. Yvonne De Carlo plays the more primitive spouse and is, if anything, more successful than primitive. Miss De Carlo is a hot tamale that has hidden for many years abundant comic talents.

Mr. Guiness is Mr. Guiness. He is a comedian to match a Chaplin or a Keaton and if by some monstrous negligence you have failed to see him in the past, do so now. He may very well be the greatest farceur in the world today. He is certainly the master of civilized farce.

Mixed Emotions On Dragon Debut

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page JWriter

A mild sort of a jolt was forthcoming over the weekend when that illustrious thespian and noted baritone, Mr. Oliver J. Dragon, turned up in, of all places, New York's Town Hall for a recital.

This is the very same Oliver J. Dragon who performed solo with the Boston Pops orchestra and has been cavorting about our television screens since the blasted gadget came into existence.

Up until several months ago, these wobbley folks had restricted their activity to an NBC-TV broadcast called "Kukla, Fran and Ollie". This show, an industry pioneer, featured the puppetry of a shy, crewcut lad named Burr Tillstrom.

As a point of information, Oliver J. Dragon, or "Ollie" as he is usually known, is a red-haired, single-toothed, dragon sort of dummy with a boisterous, showy nature and a penetrating baritone presence. He, and the other dolls on the show, owe their voices and movements to the trick vocal chords and talented hands of Tillstrom.

Of late, Oliver indicated that his tones were getting too big for Chicago television and so the zip into Town Hall.

I sincerely hope that this is the first and final fling for Mr. Dragon and friends. It is a slightly frightening experience to find a dragon in Town Hall, a cloth one at that, and when the dragon in question has no claim to fame, save an "extended sneeze," he should have certainly stayed at home.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Worrrd from Scotland

68 Portickhill Road
Glasgow 1, Scotland
November 8, 1953

Dear Arlene,

Greetings from bonny Scotland! I haven't developed a burr as yet, but am on the way to becoming a thrifty Scots housewife.

I am enclosing a clipping from the local paper which I though might interest you and perhaps provide a story for The Daily Orange. It is interesting to note that students in London get involved with the police as well as the sons of Bill Orange. I'm sorry I can't give you a complete background on Guy Fawkes. All I know is that he and his cohorts attempted to blow up the houses of parliament on November 5 in the early days of English history. The day is celebrated here with bonfires and fireworks by the children (and students it would seem).

I can imagine that the campus is buzzing with activity as usual. What has happened to the School of Journalism and where is the DO holding forth these days? Even from this distance, I'm constantly reminded of what is probably happening at that time on the Hill. I was too closely associated with it for too long to lose interest this quickly.

It seems odd not to be attending football games on these crisp November Saturday afternoons. I have seen a bit of rugby, which is quite different from our football, but I'm afraid I don't as yet understand exactly what goes on although I try to pretend, of course, that it all makes sense. This summer, I became quite a cricket fan while the English teams were playing the Australian teams in a series of matches. We saw them in a match at Leeds while we were touring in England and Wales in July and I followed them the rest of the time on the radio (oops! I mean the wireless).

Please remember me to Hugh Muir, Renee and the other members of your staff. My best wishes to you for the best year ever at The Daily Orange.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth M. Dunbar

(Alias our University social director, Miss Broad, who served us until last May when she married a Scot and left the Orange of Syracuse for the Tartan land of Scotland.)

Riot!

GUY FAWKES RIOT: 115 HELD

Student Rag Gets Out of Hand

FIREWORKS HURLED IN DOWNING ST.

One hundred and fifteen people, mostly students, were arrested in London last night when a Guy Fawkes rag developed into a running struggle with heavily reinforced police. At its height, a crowd of 10,000 people filled Parliament Square.

The students said they were "taking revenge" because police had banned their customary Guy Fawkes Night rag.

(Schedule exerpts as follows) 7:15, a rocket went up in Piccadily Circus. And at the signal hundreds of screaming students rushed (the statue of) Eros, throwing fireworks as they ran. 7:45, Nine students were arrested and marched off to a Black Maria, (paddy wagon). The students reformed, marched to Whitehall and met a barrier of police.

8:30, hundreds of other students marching from St. Paul's have failed to break through police barriers . . . fists flew and two dozen students were arrested. Students who staged an assault failed to get through the gates to the Houses of Parliament where 348 years ago Guy Fawkes, too, was foiled. Attempts to reach Buckingham Palace were abandoned.

10:30, at Cannon Row police station, they were still sorting out those arrested. 12:15, In Piccadilly, where five hours before, that signal had rocketed up, 50 policemen stood around and yawned. There wasn't a student in sight.

Fuzzy 'Mike' Reason

To clear up a point of guilt, we revert to an article which appeared on this page on Nov. 18 concerning the Festival of Modern American Jazz performance in the War Memorial auditorium.

It seems that we were at fault in blaming Memorial brass for the faulty public address system which ruined a large part of the music on the program.

Re a letter from Mr. Bill Stark, executive director of the auditorium, "I would like to state that we have the finest microphones available . . . and if show people would allow us to use them as we know how to get the best results, we would have no difficulty."

According to Mr. Stark, on the night of the Jazz festival, the mikes were knocked over by the curtain as it closed and the sensitive ribbons were broken. He points out that the Memorial sound technician is "perhaps the best qualified man in this part of the country."

He also stated "I think you can see from the above that our organization and our staff are blamed many times unjustifiably for things that occur here."

Excuse, please.

LAND OF THE 38TH

Under an A-Blast

By FRANK McGUIRE
Editorial Page Writer

Keeping company with an Atom bomb in the middle of a desert is no job for the faint-hearted. John Macura (SU '57), agrees with this, but nevertheless he volunteered to act as one of many guinea pigs at an A-bomb test in May, 1952.

John described his reaction to the bomb in an interview the other day. Carefully skipping classified details, he spoke of the test as if it were no more important than a trip to the drugstore.

"About 9:30 a.m.," he recalls, "a plane flew over the target site and dropped the bomb from 20,000 feet altitude. The bomb went off a few hundred feet above the ground zero spot, about two miles from our position." (Editor's note: This is the closest that American troops have been to an A-bomb blast). Members of the Eighth Marine Regiment were in foxholes and had orders to stay put until the light from the blast had faded. Then they were to charge toward ground zero. This was easier said than done.

John continued: "When the bomb went off, I was in my foxhole with my head down and my eyes closed. When the light hit us, it was so bright that I could actually see the ground right through my eyelids. It was as though I was looking at a neon light with my eyes open."

"When the light died out, I climbed out of the hole and started toward Ground Zero as they had told us to do. After running only twenty feet, I was suddenly knocked flat on my back along with the rest of the troops. The officers had neglected to tell us about the powerful shock wave that follows the explosion. They wanted to check the psychological reaction of troops in this situation. Then came the sound of the explosion—like a clap of thunder magnified a thousand times.

"After the initial surprise, we all got up and kept going until the Atomic Energy Commission stopped us because of radiation. After the radiation had passed the danger point, we were allowed to inspect the spot of the explosion. Having already seen the new equipment that was in the target area the previous day, I was interested to see what had happened to it."

After lighting a cigarette and thinking a few moments, he went on to describe the scene: "A forty five ton Patton tank had been completely vaporized. There was absolutely nothing left of it. Other vehicles were melted and twisted in all shapes. Most of the equipment was driven into the ground as if a giant pile driver had hit it. The desert floor is almost as hard as rock, but many pieces of equipment were driven out of sight into the ground."

"Some dummies had been put in foxholes of various depths. Some foxholes were a foot deep, others were much deeper, but it was surprising to see that in many cases, six inches of earth made the difference in whether a dummy was destroyed or only slightly damaged." (This is a good point to remember).

"The cloud itself is really beautiful. A lot of colors are in it and it has the quality of making you want to reach out and touch it. It's hard to believe that this cloud is the result of so much destruction. The cloud rises straight up to about 80,000 feet, then seems to keel over and take on the characteristics of an ordinary cloud."

"There was a terrific amount of secrecy about the operation. We were told to speak to no one about it, no matter who they were. An Army general asked a corporal in my outfit what he thought about the bomb. The corporal refused to tell him, and the general walked away satisfied."

The freshman served with the First Marine Division when that unit was trapped by the Chinese surprise attack in December, 1951 at Chosin Reservoir.

John enlisted in the Marine corps in 1949 from his home town of Granville, New York. He will be 22 years old in March and is presently enrolled in the College of Forestry.

Fair Weather Souvenir Quite Foul

Souvenir hunters have recently made an idiocy of their ancient and honored profession.

As noted on the front page of today's Daily Orange, someone has "borrowed" the "fair weather" flag belonging to WAER. One regrets our radio station's misfortune, but one also gets a feeling of sheepishness in attending a university where such kindergarten tricks are pulled.

The facts are simple. Saturday, Nov. 21, was to be a fair day. Up went the green flag at 2 Friday afternoon. When the WAER man returned at 6 to take the flag down it was gone. Simple . . . and the "borrower" was simple too.

The three flags cost $15 apiece. There are two left: Red for bad weather and yellow for changing weather. Aside from the losing of a service to the University, WAER has lost $15.

The "borrower" has no use for the flag. It is green with WAER on one side and its frequency, 88.1 FM on the other side.

We have no use for the "borrower."

Correction On Story Of Budget

In reference to the Special Budget issue of the Daily Orange on Monday, Nov. 23, the following corrections have been brought to light by the University Business office.

Also in an item on the left hand side of the page mentioned "infirmary profit." This was intended to be "infirmary income" which is correct.

Any business students who may have had indigestion over these points during vacation may now rest. One's tuition is back in the right column.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

In the hue and cry which followed Bob Fleck's well-deserved nomination to Collier's all-American squad plus Ted (Cookie) Kukowski's selection to the Paramount Newsreel team, the opening of the Orange basketball campaign against Ithaca almost went unnoticed.

A sparse gathering saw the birth of a team which could be back into the national hoop spotlight within the next three years. Marc Guley's star-studded sophomores saw considerable action as the Orange coach kept them in for a good part of the first half.

One of them, Lou Cegala from Buffalo, showed especially well as his set shots connected five times. Manny (Boob) Breland poured eight points through in his first varsity effort and the rest of Guley's yearlings did a creditable job when Breland, Walt Scott, Ron Gillespie and Gus Castellini teamed with veteran Dave Kline for several minutes.

Lou Cegala

The holdovers from last year's varsity did their expected good job with Ron Kilpatrick, a Rochester boy who has the potential to lead the club in scoring, getting off to a fast 22-point start. Capt. Mel Besdin, Dick Larned and Kline all played their usual steady games.

Guley was pleased with the team's offensive play but says that a lot of work will have to be done on defense. That job coupled with giving game experience to the sophs are the two big problems of the year.

The Orange have the material. But it's going to take a lot of work to whip them into a really top-notch club. Rome wasn't built in a day and basketball teams aren't made overnight.

Newspapers are notorious for their typographical errors and we received one in the mail yesterday which should be a classic. Chuck Churchill, '52, sent us the Portland Sunday-Telegram account of the Syracuse-Colgate game.

The article told the entire story of the Orangemen's 34-18 win over the Raiders and then concluded its praising of some of the Syracuse individual stars with this gem, "(Pat) Stark made more than his share of timely tickles."

College wrestling will have select referees with good mathematical sense if the new ruling passed by the Wrestling Coaches association is vigorously enforced.

Now, one point will be given to the wrestler who successfully pins one of his opponents shoulders and, get this, the other within 45 degrees of the mat. The sale of protractors might rise sharply because of this new ruling.

They also plan to award a "predicament point" if both shoulders are within four inches of the mat. The release we saw failed to state who was in the predicament, the wrestler or the referee.

ORANGE SLICES: Ken Davidson, known in the sports world as "Mr. Badminton," will give an exhibition here in the Women's gym on Tuesday, Dec. 8 at 8 p.m. . . . The gymnastics team is waiting for the Liberal Arts college okay for the projected Southern trip later this month.

Rochester Democrat-Chronicle did a nice piece on their two local boys, Ron Kilpatrick and Walt Scott, of the Syracuse basketball squad . . . Sampson's Chuck Steveskey, who will be seen here a week from tonight was held to 14 points in the Sabres 90-86 loss to Andrews AFB.

Hill Swimmers Inaugurate Season Dec. 12

By STAN ROSENFELD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Provided with his best and toughest dual meet schedule in recent years, Coach Ted Webster's mermen are preparing for their opening competition on Dec. 12 in the Niagara AAU meet at Archbold pool.

While the Niagara splash affair is for individuals and no team standings are kept, Syracuse will have several entrants in the numerous events. Coach Webster will have a better line on his own team's strength after it faces some of the rugged competition in this meet.

THE ORANGE has eight returning veterans from last year's teams, including Captain Bob Curran. The other lettermen are Ed Lesko, Ed Gozigan, Bob Downing, Bob Beaumont, Doug Dodge, Kev Wilson and Len Kissel.

Steady improvement by juniors Wilson and Kissel and senior Gozigan has somewhat taken up the slack caused by the departure of George Micho, Bill Gillard and Bruce Campbell through graduation. Gozigan was third string dver last year and his promotion to the top spot has given him extra confidence in practice.

Coming up from last year's freshman team is Walt Patterson. Patterson was the shining light on a rather poor frosh aggregation and is counted on heavily in the varsity's plan.

Dick Liddle, a junior who has not previously competed in collegiate competition, has shown good form in practice. His specialty is the freestyle.

FIVE OF the eight opponents faced this year will be at home. Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Cornell are the road engagements. At home, Columbia, Williams, Fordham, Colgate and Dartmouth provide the opposition.

Highlighting the campaign will be the National Collegiate Athletic association championships to be held there the week of March 25. The best swimmers and teams in the country compete in this annual event.

Of the eight teams faced this season, only Columbia, Williams and Dartmouth are newcomers. This is the first time in 30 years that Syracuse has taken on Williams. The New England "Middle Three" school has been known in recent years for its strong swim teams.

1953-54 Swimming Schedule

Dec. 12, Niagara AAU, Archbold pool; Jan. 6, Columbia, Archbold pool; Jan. 16, Williams, Archbold pool; Feb. 6, Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh; Feb. 13, Buffalo, Buffalo; Feb. 19, Fordham, Archbold pool; Feb. 27, Colgate Archbold pool; March 6, Cornell, Ithaca; March 25, 26, 27, NCAA, Archbold pool.

BOB CURRAN senior and captain of the 1953-54 swimming team which begins its season in Archbold gym on Dec. 12.

Yearling Hoopsters Beat Ithaca, 79-56

Clark Scores 18 Points In Season Opener

Bill Orange's frosh basketball squad opened the 1953-54 campaign with an impressive 79-56 trouncing over the Ithaca College first-year men Saturday in Archbold gym.

The Tangerines had trouble only in the first quarter as the visitors held an 18-14 bulge at the termination of the initial period. The yearlings pulled away to a 37-25 margin at intermission and then coasted to victory in the second half.

Lanky Gary Clark, a 6-ft.-4 forward, displayed rebounding ability while copping the individual scoring honors for Syracuse with 18 points. Vince Cohen and Jim Snyder were runners-up for Coach Andy Mogish's aggregation with 16 and 11 respectively.

SWIM TOURNEYS

The 1953 Eastern Intercollegiate swimming championships will be held in iPttsburgh while the National tourney is scheduled for Archbold pool.

Canisius Next for Cagers

Coach Marc Guley will be trying to iron the kinks out of the Syracuse basketball defense this week as he sends his charges through practice sessions in preparation for the opening road game against Canisius, Saturday. The hoopmen will be after their second straight win after last weekend's 88-68 vanquishing of Ithaca.

As expected, Guley shifted his men around greatly in the opening victory, trying to find the best combination. Twelve hoopsters saw action with 10 hitting the scoring column. Ron Kilpatrick was high with 22 markers while Dave Kline, Lou Cegala and Mel Besdin all hit double figures.

KLINE, TALLEST man on the squad at 6-ft.-5, meshed 14 points as did Capt. Besdin, who saw limited action. Cegala was the most impressive of the Orange sophomore aggregation with 13 points and a fine defensive performance.

Handicapped by the absence of veteran backcourt-man Skip Thaw, the Pietymen were hard pressed in first-half competition, needing a late rally to gain a five-point halftime margin, 40-35. Thaw, who was in an auto accident last Sunday, has just been released from the infirmary but probably won't be ready for action Saturday.

Still uncertain what his best combination is, Guley started the quintet of Kilpatrick, Kline, Besdin, Walt Scott and Jack Larned against the Ithacans. Saturday's combination against the Golden Griffins may find a complete revamping as the Orange mentor continues to search for the top five.

Offensively the Orange looked in mid-season form, hitting on 33 of 80 shots from the field and 22 of 35 from the free throw line. Defensively, the story was different as the visitors were open for several free shots. Grover Jones was particularly effective, sinking 22 markers for Ithaca.

Other high Saltine scorers were Larned and Manny (Boob) Breland with eight apiece.

Canisius opened its season last Thursday with an easy win over little estern Ontario but lost to Dayton, 79-63, on Saturday.

Intra Basketball Schedules Four Opening Night Frays

The intramural basketball season will officially open tonight with a total of four games slated. Many teams will not play this week, because the bleachers in the main gym allow only one court to be in use at a time.

Since the varsity and frosh basketball teams will be using the small gym most of the time throughout the season, few games can be played in the course of a week. For this reason, the season will probably run longer than in the past few years.

BASKETBALL ACTION will continue with eight games carded for tomorrow night, four on Thursday and another quartet of contests to be staged on the Archbold hardcourt Friday.

Competition in intramural bowling will also be resumed tonight with six matches scheduled. Other matches are planned for Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Tonight's basketball:

6:15 Tau Delta Phi vs. Phi Delta Theta
7:00 Beta Theta Pi vs. Sigma Alpha Mu
7:45 Zeta Beta Tau vs. Sigma Alpha Epsilon
8:30 Psi Upsilon vs. Alpha Epsilon Pi

Tonight's bowling:

6:15 Alleys 1-2, Cleveland A vs. Nathan Miller; 3-4, Washington 4-5 vs. Collendale A-3; 5-6, Skytop M-14 vs. Army Comptrollers.
8:15 Alleys 1-2, Alpha Tau Omega vs. Phi Epsilon Phi; 3-4, Theta Chi vs. Alpha Chi Rho; 5-6, Phi Kappa Tau vs. Kappa Sigma.

Weekend Games Decide Bowl Bids

Last Saturday's games were decisive in selecting bowl game opponents. When Alabama defeated Auburn 10-7, that gave them the nod to face Rice, the Southwest conference champs in the Cotton Bowl; Oklahoma, Big Seven champs faces the first winner of the new Atlantic Coast conference, Maryland in the Orange Bowl.

In the Rose Bowl, Michigan State, co-champions of the Big Ten take on UCLA of the Pacific Coast.

In the Sugar bowl which has no conference tie-ups, Georgia Tech plays West Virginia.

Moral Support?

Bob Fleck, Syracuse's mammouth lineman, has earned many football honors in his three years on Piety hill. Included among these were International News Service all-East and all-American the past two seasons and Colliers' magazine 1953 all-American.

But the strangest of all occured a year ago when the 243 pound senior was selected for the Holy Cross all-opponent team. The catch: Fleck was injured against Cornell two weeks previous and didn't even dress for the Crusader tilt.

Grid . . .

Pat Stark and Fleck, has accepted an invitation to play in the East-West game on New Year's day, while Bob Leberman and Les McClelland have been selected to play in the Blue-Gray classic over Christmas vacation in Montgomery, Ala. Fleck was previously listed to play in the Blue-Gray game but has since received a bid to play in the East-West game.

It should be mentioned in passing that Stark, Leberman and McClelland, along with Bruce Yancey and Ray Perkins, achieved additional honors by their honorable mention selection to the AP all-Eastern team.

Although the Orange finished this season with a disappointing 5-3-1 record in its nine outings, individual performances in the 1953 season are unexcelled in Orange grid annals, and speak quite well of the brand of football played on Piety Hill in 1953.

HOME IS WHERE THE BUCK IS

OR . . . Who did you say is a boy's best friend?

Once there was a sophomore whose father had a bad habit of saying "No". Vehemently. Particularly about money. Ask him the Big Question and his jowls would turn a fetching shade of vermilion.

So Junior, his need needled by three days of living on liverwurst sandwiches, cast about for a New Approach. Found it, too. Right at the Western Union office. He just sat down and worked out a wire to Negative Polarity Pappy. A brisk flute wheeze . . . to wit: "Must have twenty dollars immediately. Urgent. Please flash by telegraphic money order." Results? Our sophomore was caressing the cash within two hours.

What's Junior's major? Psychology, of course.

It's darned good psychology to wire home at other times than just when you need help and comfort. For holiday greetings — Mother's Day—good news about grades—things that would make Home Happier. Try it next time. Just head for your local Western Union office.

LATEST COLLEGE SURVEY SHOWS LUCKIES LEAD AGAIN

Last year a survey of leading colleges throughout the country showed that smokers in those colleges preferred Luckies to any other cigarette.

This year another nation-wide survey—based on thousands of actual student interviews, and representative of all students in regular colleges—shows that Luckies lead again over all brands, regular or king size...and by a wide margin! The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better.

Smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste, and the fact of the matter is Luckies taste better—for 2 reasons. L.S./M.F.T. —Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. And Luckies are made better to taste better. So, Be Happy—Go Lucky!

Luckies give you finer smokes,
So buy 'em by the carton—
And if you haven't tried 'em yet,
It's time you got a-startin'!

Dr. William Nelson to Talk On 'World of Tension'

Dr. William Stuart Nelson, dean of Howard university, will speak on "You and a World of Tensions" at 7:30 p.m. today in the Chapel Colonial room.

The talk is sponsored by the Human Relations Council of Chapel and will be open to all students. Dean Nelson will be on campus all week to study the Chapel programs.

THE SPONSORING group is composed of six Chapel board committees. They are Social Hygiene, Mental Hygiene, Fellowship of Reconciliation, World Relations, Human Understanding and Skeptics Corner.

During his visit the Dean will teach sociology classes and talk at various group meetings. This will be the only all-campus talk.

Tomorrow he will attend a meeting of Skeptics Corner and speak at a Faculty club forum. He will be guest of honor at a tea with Chapel House reps on Thursday.

Dean Nelson will also be heard on the Chapel radio program on WAER at 5:15 p.m. today. Yesterday he addressed the Syracuse Peace council downtown.

A GRADUATE of Howard and Yale universities, he attended Union Theological seminary in New York city and the Sorbonne and the universities of Berlin and Marburg in Germany.

He was president of Shaw university in Raleigh, N. C., and Dillard university in New Orleans before going to Howard in 1940 as dean of the School of Religion. In 1948 he was named dean of the university.

Dean Nelson is the author of several books and magazine articles on race relations and world problems. He edits the Journal of Religious Thought.

He is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, American Friends Service committee, National Council of Religion in Higher Education and the Religious Education association.

Series to Feature De Paur Chorus

The spirited tone of male voices extraordinary will fill Lincoln auditorium at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow when the Famous Artists series presents the noted de Paur infantry chorus.

Presented as the fourth event of Famous Artists' current series, the choral ensemble will present a varied program of songs of World War 2 music of Latin America, Negro, secular and religious melodies.

THE CHORUS, conducted by Captain Leonard de Paur, was the first important musical attraction to spring from World War II. The group was organized in 1942 by men of the 372nd Infantry stationed at Fort Dix, N. J. A succession of appearances to stimulate war bond sales led to the Army setting the chorus up as a morale unit to entertain other troops and, during the next three years, the organization sang for American armed forces all over the world.

Captain de Paur, one of the theater's most brilliant conductors before the war, was placed in charge of the group and his leadership fused them into a choral unit noted for its electric precision, instinctive blending of voices and sure control of dynamics that sets it apart from similar contingents.

Special student tickets for the Famous Artists concert will be available today and tomorrow at the University Bookstore.

Sauter-Finegan To Play Thursday

The "musically-daring" music of the Sauter-Finegan orchestra will be introduced to Central New York devotees on Thursday, Dec. 19, in a special two-hour concert at the New William Nottingham high school.

Booked as an "extra" by the Famous Artist series, the Sauter-Finegan aggregation will present a program of music which has been described by disc jockeys as "the greatest thing on wax in years."

For over a decade Eddie Sauter and Bill Finegan have shaped the music played by more than a dozen topflight orchestras. They were the principal behind-the-scenes molders of such leaders as Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw, Woody Herman, Red Norvo, Tommy Dorsey, Ray McKinley and Glenn Miller.

Selected by many trade publications and disc jockeys as the nation's outstanding musical organization, the Sauter-Finegan lineup includes trumpets, trombones, saxes, a flute, piccolo, oboe, drums, harp, tuba, xylophone, chimes, triangle, celeste, glockenspiel and thunder drums.

Tickets for the Sauter-Finegan concert are available at the Famous Artists box office in the Clark Music building.

Pan-Hell Mourns Death of Student

Syracuse University's Panhellenic council recently passed a resolution expressing sympathy "for the untimely death of Carrie Lou Andrews, senior in the college of Home Economics, on Friday, November 13, 1953."

Copies were sent to the local chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma, and the parents of Miss Andrews. The resolution expressed "deepest sympathy in the taking of this life, from the campus, and from the privilege of Greek affiliation."

PHYSICS SEMINAR

Allen Janis, graduate fellow in physics, will speak on "Hall Effect in Ferromagnetic Materials" at 1:15 p.m. in 109 Steele hall.

International Tours Open to Students

Many college students throughout the United States now have the opportunity to do something they have always wanted—travel abroad inexpensively, and actually live with a family in the country of their choice.

Full details on the program may be had by contacting Joanne Schuman at the AEPhi house, 751 Comstock ave.

The international tours are sponsored by Experiment in International Living, an organization located in Putney, Vt.

The groups, consisting of about ten students each, may travel to any one of 30 countries in Europe, Asia, South America or Australia. The program is designed to improve students' knowledge of language and international culture.

Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown To Discuss Communism At SDA Convo Tomorrow

Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown will discuss "Communism and the Issues Before the country" in an address at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in 302 Maxwell.

The chairman of the American studies and citizenship departments will be main speaker at an organization meeting of Students for Democratic Action.

DR. STUART GERRY BROWN will discuss "Communism and the Issues Before the Country" at an SDA meeting today.

DR. BROWN will comment on the current case involving the late Harry Dexter White, accusations against the Truman administration by Attorney-General Herbert Brownell, Jr., and rebuttals from former President Harry S. Truman.

All interested students are urged to attend the meeting. SDA is the student branch of Americans for Democratic Action, it works autonomously with the adult group in formulating ADA policy.

On the local level, the Syracuse campus group has aided in campaigns on crucial social issues and for liberal political candidates. These included a letter-writing campaign against the McCarran act and canvassing in last year's Presidential election.

SDA participated in the sponsorship of the mock Republican convention in 1952 and is one of eight groups planning the American foreign policy conference, to take place on campus in March.

Students interested in joining the organization who cannot attend tomorrow night's meeting may contact Janet Caro, Shaw dorm, or Raymond Guenter, Omega Pi Alpha.

Carnival Workers Schedule Meeting At 9 p.m. Tomorrow

The 1954 Winter Carnival committee will meet at 9 p.m. tomorrow at Sigma Delta Tau, according to Co-chairmen Janet Caro and Peter Rose. All committee chairmen are urged to attend.

Students interested in working on Carnival committees are urged to contact the respective chairmen.

Lois Cohn, Shaw dorm and William Levine, Phi Epsilon Pi, are in charge of the Stockingfoot dance, while Cynthia Satow, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Norman Murphy, Alpha Chi Rho, have been appointed by the junior class executive council to head Sno-Ball arrangements.

Sally Soper, Delta Delta Delta, and Joel Rosenbaum, Zeta Beta Tau, are co-chairmen of skiing events, while Phyllis Krinovitz will handle ice pageant arrangements.

Barbara Witter, Shaw, and Martin Wexler, Tau Delta Phi, are in charge of speed skating events, with Robert Curran, Sigma Chi, chairman of the annual snow sculpture contest.

Robert Lefko, Delta Tau Delta, and Donald Cadwallader, Phi Delta Theta, head the publicity committee, with Deborah Torello, 4-0091, and Samuel Braun, Phi Gamma Delta, in charge of programs.

Michael Schaffer, ZBT, will handle the queen contest, with Leslie Rubin, Shaw, in charge of button sales and Dale Van Wageman, Shaw, acting as secretary to the committee.

Associate Editors Appointed to ON

Misses Bray, Foust To Assist Beckett

Associate editors have been named for the 1954 Onondagan. Deborah Bray and Barbara Foust will assist Thomas Beckett, editor in chief, with the editorial work of the book.

Miss Bray was formally managing editor of the annual and will continue to act in that capacity in addition to her position as associate editor.

Before becoming associate editor, Miss Foust was senior editor of the ON. Dorothy Burman has been named senior editor to fill the vacancy.

The decision to appoint associate editors was made to relieve Beckett of some of the strain of publishing the annual.

Production of the book was assured when the Onondagan subscription drive held in November was successful. This will make the 71st year the annual has been published.

Hill Physicists To Hear Brillouin

Prof. Leon Brillouin, French mathematical physicist, will address the Syracuse university physics colloquim at 4 p.m. Thursday in 106 Steele hall.

Prof. Brillouin, who is connected with the Watson Research Laboratories in New York, will speak on "The Negative Entropy Principle of Information."

National Fraternity Seeks Injunction

National fraternity Sigma Tau Gamma is seeking a court injunction to restrain the State University of New York from enforcing a ban on national fraternities and sororities on its campuses.

Earl Webb, national president of Sigma Tau Gamma, filed a petition in federal district court on Wednesday for an injunction, on the ground the State University's ban was "unconstitutional, discriminatory and capricious."

The petition also stated that the university allowed the organizations no opportunity to be heard before it announced the ban last Oct. 8.

Pres. William S. Carlson of the State University and 12 trustees were named as defendants in the action.

Metropolitan Opera Scheduled for May

Three Performances Set For War Memorial

Spurred by the support of six local organizations and the backing of uncounted individual Syracusans, negotiations continue this week to bring the Metropolitan Opera to this city for three performances in May 1954.

Following a meeting last week of backers of the project, William B. Stark, director of the War Memorial auditorium who had been approached by the Met regarding sponsorship, indicated that there is sufficient support to insure a visit by the noted opera group. He stated that negotiations will continue with Met representatives to establish a definite booking.

Among the organizations which expressed a desire to sponsor the company are the Junior League, Famous Artists series, Civic Morning Musicals, Mrs. E. W. Van Wormer of the Syracuse Herald-Journal, the Corinthian Club, Clark Music co. and the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce.

"Faust," "La Traviata," "Lucia i Lammermoor" and "La Boheme" are the operas being considered for local presentation. The Syracuse appearance would be included in the regular spring otur of the Metropolitan on May 21-22. A representative of the opera stated that it expects $60,000 minimum for three performances

Pulitzer Pianist Will Give Recital

Pulitzer prize winner Ernst Bacon, pianist and composer, will give a recital in Crouse auditorium Sunday at 4 p.m. He will be assisted by the Madrigal singers and Donald Wittig, baritone.

Bacon has composed two symphonies and is now working on a third for the Louisville Symphony orchestra. In addition, he has written numerous works for piano, orchestra and voice.

Included in the program will be "Variations" in A major by Mozart, Brahms' "Rhapsody" in B minor, and Schubert's "Impromptu."

Government Exam Slated for Dec. 8

A junior government management assistant's examination open to any 1954 graduate will be given after Dec. 8 to students of New York and New Jersey interested in management positions of federal agencies.

Full information on the examination and application blanks are available in 212 Maxwell.

PAT MEETING

Pi Alpha Tau, captains and managers honorary, will meet tonight at 7:30 at the Phi Kappa Psi house. There will be an election of officers,

'Home Ec Holiday' Slates Carnival Fete

A carnival, complete with a wheel of fortune, a dart game, and ring toss, will comprise the theme of the fourth annual "Home Ec Holiday" presented by the students and faculty of the Home Economics college.

Scheduled for 7 p.m. tomorrow in the dance studio of the Women's building, the actual festivities will be preceded by the honoring of two outstanding students in the college.

J. H. McCain, a representative of the Borden company of New York city ,will make a cash award of $300 to the home economics junior with the highest average. The recipient must have taken two courses in foods and nutrition.

The Borden award was first made at Syracuse in April, 1945. Last year's winner was Claire Church with an average of 2.75.

The Emily Gere Coon award of $50 will be made to the freshman woman student who meets the standards to be set by Dean M. Eunice Hilton and members of the faculty.

Emily Gere Coon was a member of the first graduating class of the College of Home Economics. She was a member of the faculty from 1927 to 1929. The award was made possible after her death by her husband, Harold J. Coon.

FACULTY MEMBERS in charge of the holiday are Miss Lois Simon, Mrs. Catherine Chilman, Mrs. Irene Chang and Miss Jean Carlson.

The students will present a variety show with Patricia Turner as master of ceremonies and faculty will present a skit entitled "Grimm Goulash."

Sequences of the college will sponsor booths as follows: Clothing and Textiles, fishing game; Family Living and Child Development, ring toss; Merchandising mice derby; Foods, Nutrition and Foods Technology, dice game.

Also, Housing Equipment and Management, door prize; Institution Administration, surprise package game; Interior Planning, dart game.

Juniors Appointed To WSG Vacancies

Court, Junior Officer Replacements Made

Two junior women have been appointed to fill vacancies which occurred early this year in the women's student government organization.

Elaine Greenberg was appointed junior officer and chairman of the academics panel of women's student government last week. She succeeds Mary Elizabeth Hazard, who has left Syracuse university because of illness.

Appointed justice of women's student court and the joint court was Betsy Wright, who fills the opening left by Marilyn Murtha, when Miss Murtha assumed duties as junior officer.

A 19-year-old junior in Liberal Arts and secondary education, Miss Greenberg is president of Sigma Tau Delta sorority, and a junior guide. In a statement to The Daily Orange yesterday she said she will probably resign her position as elections commissioner. WSG officers may not be affiliated in any way with campus politics.

Miss Wright, a student in the School of Education, is house manager of Delta Gamma sorority, chairman of the speakers' bureau in the foreign student guide program and a member of the Westminster Fellowship executive council.

She is on first cabinet of Chapel board and chairman of the international students group. She is also a member of the Women's Athletic association swimming instructors club.

No Construction Date Set For Med School Extension Of Science Laboratories

Although state officials keep promising construction of the proposed basic science laboratories, no definite date has been set for the expansion at State University College of Medicine, stated William S. Carlson, University president.

Speaking to the faculty members of the medical group at a dinner at the Hotel Onondaga, Carlson reported that "we are doing everything possible in more ways than one, to make this building an actuality of the very near future."

MEANWHILE, he pointed out, steps have been taken to provide improved or temporary facilities in the present basic science building, in Memorial and Good Shephard hospitals, in two remodeled dwellings and in the Syracuse dispensary.

President Carlson cited increased operating budgets for the college from $146,548 ten years ago to $1,460,000 in current years. "Obviously," he added, "the trend is upward, and there is no reason to suppose that there will be any sharp leveling off until the full stature of the college has been achieved."

Further strengthening of the medical faculty is planned for the 1953-54 budget year, with even great expansion awaiting completion of new facilities, Dr. Carlson revealed.

In noting that "the staffing pattern is now at approximately midpoint toward the goals estblished for 1960, when all the enlarged facilities should be available," Dr. Carlson said that the leadership of Dean William R. Willard was an important factor in the growth.

ENLARGEMENT OF student bodies at the two colleges operated by the State university "have given the people of New York state the equivalent of a new medical college and a more adequate operating level in both colleges," Dr. Carlson said. The student increase in Syracuse has been from 56 in 1948-49 to 76 in each class this year. Between 1956 and 1960, he added, there will be 100 students per class.

Possibilities for the future, he said, are programs in associated health professions such as physical therapy, occupational and recreational therapy, social work, medical administration and optometry.

Dr. Carlson's talk was at his third meeting of the day. He also attended a luncheon of the college alumni at the Corinthian club and a meeting of the faculty's executive committee.

Ski School Classes Begin This Week At Ski Lodge

Ski School students are to report to classes this week with equipment, according to Mrs. Barbara Wadsworth, director of Ski School. Classes meet at the Ski Lodge on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday afternoon from 1:30 to 4 p.m., or Tuesday or Thursday evening from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Ski School busses leave the campus greenhouse at 1:15 p.m. for afternoon classes and 7 p.m. for evening sessions.

Students who neglected to register for Ski School may still do so this week by calling the Ski Lodge, 76-8228, and making the necessary arrangements. Anyone connected with Syracuse university or University college is eligible to join Ski School. Those interested in learning to ski or perfect a specific skiing maneuver are urged to register now in order to ensure an adequate number of instructors.

Ski equipment is available on a rental basis from either the Ski Lodge or local sporting goods merchants who are again co-operating with Ski school in making available to the students good equipment at moderate prices.

Freshman women wishing to join Ski School and unable to register in afternoon classes may, after registering for a Tuesday or Thursday evening class, receive a blanket permission. Names of frosh women will be sent to WSG from Ski school after completion of registration.

Bob Friedman, a graduate student on the Hill, will be back as assistant director to Mrs. Wadsworth. Instructors include Bruce Odza, Peter Rose, Margaret Hake, Richard Harvey, Rix Waack, Joel Rosenbaum and several apprentice teachers.

German Diplomat Will Speak Today

Frau Hanna Kiep, women's affairs secretary of the German Diplomatic mission, will speak at 8 p.m. today in the Colonial room of Chapel.

Ranking German woman diplomat in the United States, she will talk on Germany today and its hopes for the future. The address is sponsored by the International Students, World Relations and Human Relations committees of Chapel.

Mrs. Kiep's husband was former consul general in New York city. After his recall in 1939 he became a leader in the German resistance movement.

Symphonic Band To Open Meeting

State Music Teachers To Hear Selections

Syracuse university's 75 piece symphonic band will open the annual convention of New York state music teachers with a concert at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow in the Syracuse hotel.

A varied program of modern and classical selections has been planned to welcome the delegates to the three-day convention, according to Harwood Simmons, band director.

The program will open with "Fantasia for Band", by Rolland, and "La Boutique Fantasque" by Rossini-Respighi. Jack Iannotta will be the featured trombone soloist in the Rimsky-Korsakov selection, "Concerto for Trombone."

Leroy Anderson's "A Christmas Festival" will provide a medley of tunes in keeping with the season. Other selections include "Bear Dance" by Bartok, "Song of Our Country" by Villa Lobos, "Chorale and Folk Tune" by Chesnokov, and "Nell Gwyn Suite", a collection of German melodies.

The symphonic band, which rehearses on Tuesday nights, has as officers Ken Fredericks, graduate assistant; Ray Austin, president; and Pete Manikas, student leader.

Boar's Head Slates Theatrical Reading

Boar's Head will present a comedy, "Alcestis in the Underworld" at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Drama building. No admission fee will be charged.

Written and directed by Prof. Ray Irwin of the School of Speech, the play is an adaptation of the Greek legend of Alcestis, the faithful wife who volunteered to die for her husband and is rescued from death by Hercules.

Sue Taylor will play the role of Alcestis, with Sidney Kalcheim as her husband, Admetos; Dan Leary as Death and Matt Seidman as Hercules.

The play will be presented as a group theatrical reading.

On the same program, Miss Rosemary Sinnett, instructor in the School of Speech, and Irwin will present the "Facade" suite, a group of poems by Edith Sitwell set to music by William Walton.

The performance will be repeated Dec. 13.

Syracuse-in-Asia Opens Annual Sale

Syracuse-in-Asia will open its annual Christmas sale of oriental goods at 10 a.m. today in the basement hall of Hendricks chapel. The sale will continue daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. through December 12.

Proceeds will help support Tom Gill, Syracuse-in-Thailand representative, who is now teaching at Chulalongkorn university in Bangkok, Thailand.

Elaine Davis, 1953 Syracuse graduate and past president of the organization, returned to Japan this summer and shopped in Yokahama for articles for the sale. They have been on display in the trophy case of the Chapel lounge.

The committee also received goods from China, India and Thailand. Among the articles for sale will be jewelry, linen, chinaware, lacquer ware, bamboo mats, jade, Japanese prints, brocade and scarves of Indian silk.

A pre-sale alumni reception was held last night in the Founders room of Maxwell for all past members of Syracuse-in-Asia.

Remodeling Done In MSG Offices

Men's student government offices in building 30 were remodeled during Thanksgiving vacation to provide increased working space for government officials.

Walls between two rooms at the southern end of the building were removed. A stairway was built at the rear exit of the prefab, giving MSG a private entrance.

IFC Help Week Project Amasses 1200 Work Hours

UP GOES a light fixture as two Hill fraternity pledges participate in the first interfraternity help week. Nearly 500 men including 90 brothers, showed up before Thanksgiving to donate a total of more than 1,200 man-hours of work in community organizations.

Civil Defense Test, City Organizations Aided by Greeks

More than 1,200 work-hours were put in just before Thanksgiving vacation on the first inter-fraternity mass help week.

Expecting a total of 330 people to take part in this affair, fraternity officials reported that 485 fraternity men showed up. Of these 390 were pledges, and 95, brothers.

Comments from all organizations receiving the benefits of the work, were complimentary.

Howard Osofsky, chairman of the Interfraternity council Social Action committee, said that "we are so pleased with the results that we will definitely conduct this affair two times a year, once in the fall and once in the spring."

The help-work detail was split into two sections. The morning section worked in conjunction with the civil defense atom bomb test and the afternoon section worked with various organizations in the city.

According to Osofsky, civil defense officials stated that the "IFC workers did a wonderful job in the morning."

According to Osofsky, civil defense officials stated that the "IFC workers did a wonderful job in the morning detail." Other groups stated that the work detail has proved to be a noteworthy contribution to community service, and that they were totally unprepared for the cooperation from the fellows.

PAINTING A bench at the Catholic Youth organization, Hill fraternity pledges and brothers begin the first of the IFC help weeks. Howard Osofsky, chairman of the IFC social action committee, said the program will be conducted bi-annually. The pledges received compliments from all organizations for which they worked. Staff Photos by Ozzie Keuker

THE VOLUNTEER center, which aided the IFC in this detail, said that "never has such praise been given to any agency working through the Center."

The Child and Family service received the most help, 200 work-hours. Groups receiving 75 hours were the Association for Mentally Retarded Children, the House of Providence Orphanage, and Crouse Irving hospital.

Working with Osofsky on the committee are Bertram Polishook, Peter Turner, Charles Moore, Frederick Fisher, Aaron Miller and George Taback.

Groups receiving the work include the American Red Cross, Catholic Youth organization, Hillbrook Detention home, the Jewish Home for the Aged, St. Joseph's hospital and the Syracuse dispensary.

ALSO THE Syracuse Home association, Young Women's Christian association, United Service organization and the Visiting Nurse association.

Dogging the state

Sloth has held its honored position in history as one of the seven deadly sins. Its modern counterpart is red tape and its confining ravelings have just about exasperated us completely.

That sturdy, lumbering but myopic creation, the state, has displaced the School of Journalism yet these three months, has set the medical college officials on the edge of their seats in endless anticipation, and has dispatched excuses for these delays at clumsy regularity.

Last spring, the University was informed by New York state officials that plans to expand the state medical college had reached the construction stage. Accordingly, the School of Journalism abandoned its Castle and took up residence in the renovated remains of the Old women's gym. Medical college officials envisioned room in the near future for expanded work.

But such has not come to pass.

The most recent excuse from the state was "a revision of architectural plans." It strikes us a bid oddly that a $5 million program is so ill-conceived that suddenly a revision is needed half a year after the job was to begin.

At any rate, with the return to school this fall the journalism students tentatively took up classes in the Castle again. And the executives had moved to the gym. Separation of powers, a fine American tradition, was never meant for this extreme.

And at the medical school? We quote from a speech that was given to the faculty members there: "Steps have been taken to provide improved or temporary facilities in the present basic science building . . . (and) in two remodeled dwellings . . ."

Now there is no argument that temporary or tentative facilities are certainly better than none. We also agree that every detail of the medical college expansion should be perfect before it is put through.

But we also agree that such unsure and deviating actions that have typified this project so far makes us more than puzzled. They make us mad.

The exam answer

The final examination schedule is not yet out. Nor is there any indication that it will be published within the next week.

When professors start talking in terms of "less than five more school weeks to finals," students usually perk their ears, make resolutions concerning the little-used texts and made a dash for the exam schedule.

The tentative schedule was published by the registrar's office in September along with the schedule of courses. This listing gives the exam dates of important individual courses which are open to a great number of students, such as citizenship 1a or poli sci 2a. A number of smaller courses are also listed separately.

The bulk of the examination dates, however, can be found listed by the days and hours when the classes usually meet.

But these latter dates are only tentative, and while the majority can be depended upon, some exam dates will be changed. There are also some courses which cannot be placed into the day-hour category.

Students plan many of their activities by the exam schedule. There is an emphasis on study in one course in which the test comes early or where a conflict occurs. The order of study also depends on the final schedule.

Plans for visiting [illegible]nds, going home and obtaining reservations are other considerations of the students when figuring their personal schedule.

If teachers who contemplate changing exam times would make their requests known to the registrar's office at an earlier date, there should be little reason why the listing cannot be published immediately after Thanksgiving.

We urge that those in charge of the schedule make an effort to start planning the list earlier in the semester, thus eliminating one of the sources of persistent student complaint.

HOWARD U. DEAN:

JIM CROWISM A NATIONAL SPECTACLE

By POLLY REED

Dr. William Stuart Nelson, dean of Howard university, said yesterday that segregation has placed the United States under severe criticism abroad.

"Foreign peoples tend to think of segregation as a national phenomenon," said Dr. Nelson, "especially since Jim Crowism is found in Washington, D. C., the capital and symbolic heart of the nation."

In the event that the Supreme court decides against segregation in Southern schools and states declare their educational systems private, Dr. Nelson believes that such an action by states would be tested by the people to the Supreme court.

Dr. Nelson attended Howard and Yale universities, and Union theological seminary in New York city. He also studied at the Sorbonne and the Universities of Berlin and Marburg in Germany, and the University of Paris in France.

Dean Nelson returned recently from a month's tour of countries along the Mediterranean sea.

"Dissention between Israel and the Arab states stems primarily from present difficulties, not past differences," said Dr. Nelson. The state of Israel was created to take care of the large number of Jewish refugees, and now the Arab states are afraid Israel will want to expand her boundaries to admit more immigrants."

"Concessions by both sides is the only means of resolving the difficulties," Dr. Nelson declared. "However, contributions in good will, good offices, and money by the rest of mankind will aid these two countries in living peacefully with each other."

He listed the placement of nine hundred thousand refugees in the two countries and the irrigation problems as the two sorest spots in the countries' relations.

When queried on his views of a lasting world peace, Dr. Nelson replied that "We cannot satisfy all the peoples of the world; but the minimums of food, clothing, and shelter should be available to all. Every man should also possess freedom from want, freedom from domination, either economic or politic, freedom from contempt by one group toward another, and freedom from the fear that any one of these things may take place in relation to a particular group.

"We need a strong union of nations in the world today. The UN is our best hope at the moment."

Literary Break For Abstainers From 6 to 10

We now acknowledge and no longer hold any doubts that America is indeed the land of opportunity. Where else is one afforded the opportunity to write on the evils of drink for a six to ten year old level. This golden chance is now afforded to budding writers by the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Fie on Hopalong, and a plague to Space Cadet. The daughters of Carrie Nation have decided that what America's toddlers want to hear is prohibition and its golden message.

The ladies even offer an angle on how to approach this happy subject. "Animals are total abstainers" they point out; why not humans. From the smallest and to the biggest mammoth, Mother Nature is on the wagon. The only exception, alas, is a man.

Perhaps your muse is not atune to the pre-adolescent ear. Never fear, the girls have something else. A new theory that "he who doesn't drink does get ahead." A sort of "Cocktail Party" in reverse.

If all this just doesn't set off that creative spark you may tell why "it's smarter not to drink" or "how one drink can ruin a career." The ladies will even allow humor. Of course it has to be the dry type.

So, throw away your bottles whether 4/5 or pints. But before you do rip off the label, turn it over and send your entry to the WCTU.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Hoax on Daily Orange

The Student Publications
Colgate University
Hamilton, N. Y.

Miss Elizabeth Goddard,
Daily Orange Staff
Dear Liz:

Must appoligize for not answering sooner but the pressure of academic obligation is intense—especially in the life or death case of about-to-flunk-out managing editors.

Thank you very much for the rapid arrival of material on events etc., some of which we used in Hoodoo Issue which you have no doubt seen.

Thought you might be interested in the enclosed from last Wednesday's MAROON. I might explain that a "jerk" is a hoax or fabrication pulled either on groups or individuals. Its primary aim is to make the incredibility of the story mount as the wondering victim swallows more and more of your bait.

The success of the jerk (J. Q.) is measured by how much the gullible one believes before he realized he is being victimized. It is, I think, the most potent force in turning naive young frosh from innocent credulity into hardened upperclass cynicism. Perhaps it is the major difference between our students and those of Syracuse and other clean-cut American colleges where the Word is still held in its ancient sacredness.

Hope Flip and the rest of the crew won't hate us too much for we really did enjoy your visit. The whole thing was entirely spontaneous and unrehearsed (accounting for the discrepencies in our stories on the tour) and was brought about by your confidential disclosure at dinner that you wanted to pan us and were sure we wouldn't mind helping you.

Now that clip week is done, we would be more than happy to see you down again for any social functions or interviews that you might like to take in. Regards to all. Even to Arlene Lambert who said, "Syracuse students just don't care about Syracuse-Colgate week any more . . . ." We shaved about 28 of the more apathetic ones.

Sincerely,
Jerry Welgler,
Managing Editor,

An Anarchy

The ironic thing about overpermissiveness in rearing children is the fact that we don't set up a similar complete freedom of action as an ideal for ourselves; we don't advocate anarchy as our way of life. We defend speed limits and other restrictions of law, and would feel insecure without them.

'JERKING' THE GULLIBLE ORANGE

In the true "J-O" tradition, three MAROON representatives led a group of Syracuse "Daily Orange" reporters on a "guided tour" of the campus several weeks ago.

The tour, which was sparked by a great deal of imagination from the guides, led to a fantastic story in the Syracuse "Daily Orange" in which some hitherto unknown Colgate traditions were brought to light. Feeling that all was fair in love, war and Syracuse Week, the MAROON staffers found a tradition wrapped around practically every bush and pebble on the campus.

Our Cemetery Heights suddenly blossomed into a lover's lane, a knarled tree became the "Hoodoo Tree," and some boulder that has been lying around here since the last glacation has become a gift "to the University by the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company, when they cleared land for their new factory."

The "Daily Orange" played up this "Jerk" in a two-page spread, complete with twelve pictures of our tradition-steeped campus on Friday, Nov. 13, 1953, the day before the big game.

[Additional research on the part of the Daily Orange has disclosed that the freshman dorms, previously reported as "built by students and faculty who hauled the stones from a nearby quarry" were actually constructed by professional masons.

There are 14, not 13, fraternities on the campus. The brothers of the TKE house were incensed by this oversight.

The Daily Orange also reported erroneously that "Supreme Court Justice Charles Evans Hughes, as a student, was expelled from the University for driving his jalopy through the front portals of the Chapel." (We trust the Supreme Court will not include this issue with its current discrimination cases.)]

VACATION FROM A VACATION

By MILT SHEFTER
Daily Orange Columnist

It was the Saturday before vacation and all thru the house, not cation and all thru the house, not a creature was stirring, not even any alums left over from Colgate. And being rather bored with it all, we decided to take a fast glance down on Marshall st. before closing the books for Thanksgiving. All of a sudden, two gents crossed in front of us wearing long white socks and brrrrrrr—bermudas—in November yet. It was then we knew we needed a vacation. We didn't mind not seeing the WAER flag when we knew it should have been there because the D.O. said it would; we didn't mind the absence of those pretty lights on the yellow sticks at College and University aves.; but boys in brrr bermudas in November was just too much. And so the long journey.

The ride home wasn't too much. Three boys and one girl. She insisted on sitting in the front seat so we slept in the back. No sense wasting time on a one night stand. Went to a dance and saw high school friends. Still have sore back. We don't think they were that glad to see us. Next day was Turkey Time so we settled down to third degree with members of the clan we hadn't seen for several years (through definite fault of our own.) Yes, we like school, nice place—good teachers—swell food—marks . . . uh . . . nice place—good teachers—swell food.

Then we went to a reception, supposedly for just a few close friends and former buddies. Yeah, everyone including an alum left from Colgate was there. The hostess had to keep close tabs on herself so she could change the look of amazement and question to a smile. And speaking of the hostess, don't you just love peope who insist on shoving food at you when you're trying to make out, er, hold an intelligent conversation with a new gal. We wouldn't mind it so much if the stuff was substantial but the size of those o-r-d-e-r-v-s was athetic. First time we ever saw a sandwich that you could swallow with a deep breath.

And so we came back to be greeted by left over homework, make-ups and deficiency post cards. And now if you'll excuse us, we're going to try to take a little nap. We need a vacation from our vacation.

BACK TO THE SALT MINES

Can't Happen Here?

By ROGER HERZ
Daily Orange Columnist

We're all going to Hell.

Getting there fast, too. The unseasonable Fahrenheit isn't the only indication.

Take a sharply-focused look at the world around, brother, and you'll start getting scared. It can't happened here, we assumed, and went back to the sports page.

But it did happen and it is happening.

The word of the day is emotion, not logic. Opinion today is usually dogmatic, fanatic and unswerving. Logic has become a dirty word.

It can't happen here.

The narrative of our federal government and interested individuals of the past two weeks emphasizes cause for fright and alarm.

We've had speeches, charges, answers and counter-charges by presidents, past, present and perhaps future in these few days.

In response to such news, many individuals have formed an opinion. Too many, of course, have not formed an opinion, and have adopted someone else's thoughts, be they "safe" or no.

And those who did form their own outlook?

To an astounding extent, we believe emotion was the deciding factor. In too many cases hysteria is the judge.

Individuals adopting the views of their communities. Imitation of neighbors and self-appointed deities.

It can't happen here.

So here we are in descent to Hell. We're kicking the bucket politically, spiritually, morally.

There is an urgent need to conquer fear and think our own thoughts. We need guts to stand for what we sincerely believe, what ever it may be, as long as we arrived at it by logic.

The time has come to wake up. We live in a period of dangers and can no longer afford to laugh them off. Original thought can save us.

Countrymen, the thread supporting our sword of Damocles is wearing thin.

The Show Is On Ice

The "greatest show on ice" opened Monday at the War Memorial auditorium in a flurry of the Seven Dwarfs and orange blossoms.

The 1954 edition of "Ice Capades" skated onto the Memorial rink to debut a six-day run in the Salt City. It will continue through Saturday evening with matinees on that day and Sunday afternoon.

Featured in John H. Harris's latest winter carnival are 10 "new" production numbers including "Diamond Jubilee of Light", "Gobs and Gals", "Doggie in the Window", "Orange Blossoms" and a version of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs".

"Ice Capades" stars Donna Atwood and Bobby Specht.

HUGHES Cooperative Fellowship Program for

MASTER OF SCIENCE DEGREES

Purpose — The Hughes Cooperative Fellowship Program has been established to enable outstanding graduates to pursue work for the Master of Science degree while employed in industry and making significant contributions to important military projects.

Eligibility — Eligible for consideration are students who will receive the B.S. degree during the coming year and members of the Armed Services being honorably separated and holding B.S. degrees. In either case the field of the B.S. degree must be:
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
PHYSICS, OR MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
The awards will be made to applicants who have evidenced outstanding ability and some degree of creativeness. They must also possess traits enabling them to work well with others.

Citizenship — Applicants must be United States citizens for whom appropriate security clearance can be obtained, as their work in the Hughes Laboratories may be related to National Defense projects.

Universities — Applicants must be able to meet the requirements for admission to graduate standing at the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California.

Program — Participants will be employed at Hughes full time in the summer and 25 hours a week during the university year while pursuing half-time graduate work.

Salaries — Recipients will earn five-eighths of a normal salary each year. This salary will be determined by the individual's qualifications and experience, and will reflect current salary practices in the electronics industry. Salary growth will be on the same basis as for full-time members of the scientific-engineering staff. Recipients will also be eligible for health, accident and life insurance benefits, as well as other privileges accruing to full-time staff members.

Sponsorship — Tuition, admission fee, and required books at either the University of California at Los Angeles or the University of Southern California, covering the number of units required to earn an M.S. degree, will be provided.

Travel Expenses — For those residing outside the Southern California area, actual travel and moving expenses to this area will be allowed up to 10 percent of the full starting annual salary.

Number of Awards — If a sufficient number of qualified candidates present themselves, as many as 100 Fellowships will be awarded each year.

Selection of Candidates — Candidates will be selected by the Committee for Graduate Study of Hughes Research and Development Laboratories.

Application Procedure — Application forms should be obtained immediately. Completed applications must be accompanied by detailed college transcripts.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

The class of '51 paid them back in full last Saturday before millions of football fans all over the nation. No, it wasn't a graduating class from here in Syracuse, but from the United States Military Academy. There is nothing in the field of athletics more exciting then to watch a champion coming off the canvas and return to the status he deserves. That's exactly what the Cadets did last Saturday against Navy.

It was the start of a new era at the Point. One which Earl Blaik hopes will last for many more years to come. It was tough for the Army coach to take those two years ago when his whole football team, was dismissed from the academy for "supposed" cribbing. It was even rougher getting knocked around with a bunch of inexperienced plebes and sophs doing most of your playing. But Earl Blaik took it all with "a grain of salt." He knew things would be brighter in the future. And they were.

As we watched the well-oiled Army grid machine run the Middies into the turf, we began to remember about six or seven years back when the Cadets were the toast of the nation with their unbeatable clubs. That's when Earl Blaik was on top of the heap; a place he finally returned to this past weekend.

Tom Coulter

They say that a college columnist is supposed to stick to his own school's athletics and forget national sports, but today we just had to tip this hat to the valiant West Pointers. Guys like slick handling quarterback Pete Vann, halfbacks like Tom Bell and Dick Ubel, and the rest of that fine team deserve all the praise in the world for their brilliant effort over the sailor boys. They were either frosh, sophs or still in high school when the scandal broke. Saturday they got back for some guys they never knew but whom many felt got a "raw deal."

And say how about a little praise for Earl Blaik. Sure Frank Leahy did a great job with the Irish but in this corner Blaik did a much better one compared with the material he had. The Cadets were underrated all throughout the year. They'll get the Lambert Trophy but also deserve national rating which they probably won't receive. But next year, they'll all be back to set the gridiron world on fire once more. Congratulations Earl Blaik. In our opinion you are college football's "Coach of the Year."

In closing this note on Army we would like to pass on a little bit of irony which we had the pleasure of watching later on in the evening after the Army-Navy game was over. At twelve o'clock they replayed an old movie on television that evening. It was called "The Spirit of West Point." The story of Blanchard and Davis in full. It represented the end of an old era and the start of a new one for the Black Knights.

• • • • •

Last Wednesday morning we were down on Marshall st. getting rid of some laundry when we ran into an old friend of ours, Tom Coulter. The usually happy grin of smiling Tom was gone and in its place was a look of sadness. The following is the conversation which took place.

"Hi, Ed, have a good vacation. Best of luck for the rest of the year. I've been drafted and have to leave next week." I stood there wide-eyed not knowing what to say. "Sorry to hear about it Tom. It's really been a pleasure. Good luck kid." Tom hopped into his car and was off down the street.

Tommy Coulter was not one of the great Syracuse athletes. He never set many records and did remarkable things but he was one of the many reasons why sports here on the Hill have been so successful over recent years. It's been him and guys of his caliber in athletics who have helped Bill Orange reach the ladder of all-around success in the many different sports represented here.

Tommy was a boxer and a cross-country man. He also was Doc Hugo's number one assistant during the football season. You remember, the guy with the checked cap who ran out on the field during timeouts. That was Tommy Coulter always trying to help out whether playing or watching from the sidelines.

And did he have a sense of humor. Ask any athlete who the funniest guy around was and they'll say this same Tom Coulter. Last summer he emceed the show before the professional football game for Cerebral Palsy here in Syracuse. Everytime we bumped into him he'd have a laugh sent our way. No there aren't many guys with his fine sense of humor around these days. Bob Grieve and Roy Simmons must surely know that.

Tommy's home now, getting ready to start visiting with Uncle Sam. He slipped away from Syracuse pretty quietly not as we all would expect of him. Maybe he was a pretty modest guy all the time. We sure are going to miss the bespectacled guy whom we classified as "Bill Orange's Jerry Lewis." Yeah, we're really going to miss the kid.

Opponent Team Selected

Caroline Among 4 Illinois Players Picked on Squad

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Illinois' mighty Illini placed four players on the 1953 Syracuse all-opponent team. In a vote of the Orange players, the Big Ten co-champs placed three linemen and their all-American back, J. C. Caroline.

The linemen of Illinois are Herb Borman, center; Bob Lenzini, tackle, and John (Rocky) Ryan, end. Cornell and Holy Cross each contributed two players to the team.

HOLY CROSS has guard Tony Parisi and end Hank Lemire. Cornell's tackle Len Oniskey and fullback Guy Bedrossian represent the Big Red.

The remaining three players hail from different schools. They are: guard John Pappas from Boston university, quarterback Tony Rados from Penn State and halfback Gene Filipski from Villanova.

Syracuse, which was among the nation's leaders in rushing defense, selected a line that was light and fast. The line averages 198 pounds compared to the 209 line average that Syracuse fielded most of the year. The backs on the team, however, are heavy comparatively. They weigh in at 187 and pull the team average down to only 194.

In their selection, Syracuse managed to pluck three captains. Ryan, from Tolono, Ill., captained the Illini team this season. The other end, Hank Lemire, from Franklin, N. H., was the Holy Cross captain while Tony Rados was co-captain of Penn State.

EIGHT SENIORS comprised the majority of the squad. A pair of juniors are also represented. Youngest on the team, class-wise, is Illinois's Columbia, S. C., "Tornado" Caroline.

Six of the all-opponets come from the three teams that beat the Orange: Illinois, Penn State, and Villanova. From the first three teams they played, the Orangemen found only one worthy of selection, Pappas of Boston. Pappas was the tragedy of the season, passing away the morning following the Boston game here in Syracuse.

Syracuse seems to have chosen all the backs that it managed to stop. Quarterback Rados had a poor first half against the Orange and only through the help of pitchouts was he able to retain some prestige.

Caroline suffered his poorest day of the season trying to rush against Syracuse, yet the team thought his defensive play and the constant threat he represented earned him a spot on the all-opponent eleven. His selection was made before the many all-Americans were announced.

CORNELL'S BEDROSSIAN had a poor offensive showing on snow-covered Schoellkopf field, as did his teammates. Syracuse found him to be a capable line-backer, however.

The last back, Villanova's Gene Filipski, wasn't stopped, he just didn't run much. Syracuse, as a team, had a high respect for Filipski and his defensive showing but was puzzled as to the small number of times Gene was called on offensively.

J. C. CAROLINE was one of four players from Illinois to make the '53 Syracuse university all-opponent team, selected by the Orange players. The Illini scatback also was selected on several all-American teams.

Phi Kappa Psi Captures First Intra Sailing Regatta

Phi Kappa Psi, with Jack Cummings skippering and Frank Smith crewing, captured the second annual inter-fraternity sailing regatta Saturday on Lake Onondaga as ten houses vied for the Lund's Sport Shop trophy. Defending titlist Pi Alpha Chi finished second while Delta Tau Delta notched third.

Cummings steered his dinghy across the finish line first in two of the four races sailed on the rain splattered triangular course. Relatively light winds prevailed out of the south and the Phi Psi helmsmen made his biggest gains on the initial leg, a beat to windward.

Bob Latham, skippering for the Delts, got his house off to an early lead by winning the first race but lost out to Cummings in the second. Pi Alpha Chi, with Jack Dickerson, tied the Delts for second place by winning the third match but Cummings won the fourth to win going away.

The final standings:
1. Phi Kappa Psi (Cummings) 37; 2. Pi Alpha Chi (Dickerson) 30; 3. Delta Tau Delta (Latham) 26; 4. Kappa Sigma (Witherstene) 24; 5. Phi Gamma Delta (Cook) 23; 6. Phi Delta Theta (Stoneback) 21; 7. Alpha Tau Omega (Wenz) 15; 8. Beta Theta Pi (Lewis) 13; 9. Theta Chi (Butterfield) 12; 10. Delta Upsilon (Seymour, Danis) 9.

Betas, Tau Delts Win First Games In Intra Hoop Play

By BILL DAY

The basketball intramural schedule got under way last night with the Greeks playing three games in the men's gym.

Beta Theta Pi started the evening with a 28-18 romp over the Sigma Alpha Mu five. The Beta house took an early lead over the Sammies in the opening minutes of the first half, and easily held it until the final gun. The Beta's fast break plus the sharp shooting of Smith, which accounted for eight points of the quintet's tally, proved to be a little more than Sigma Alpha Mu could handle. Kline led the losers with a total of six tallies.

TAU DELTA PHI was overcome by Phi Delta Theta in the second game by the narrow margin of three points in a 26-23 thriller. The game was a close one right up til the final minutes of the last half, with the lead seesawing between the contestants.

The Phi Delts were finally able to worm their way into a small lead, and successfully froze the ball in the final minutes to rack up a win. Newl led the winners with a grand total of eight points, while Baron was high for the Tau Delta Phi house with eleven points to his credit.

The Zeta Beta Tau-Sigma Alpha Epsilon contest was postponed until a later date, so the Psi Upsilon-Alpha Epsilon Pi game was moved up in time, with the AEPi five maneuvering a 28-23 win from the Psi U. team.

This game was also close in the first half as the winners were only able to gain a one point 15-14 lead at half-time.

However, in the second half the winning five put on a burst of set-shooting which gave them a five point margin which they were able to maintain to the end of the game. Jerry led the winners with an evening high of fourteen points, while the efforts of Al Plate put forth a total of six for the losers.

Intra Bowling Scores

Scores last night in the early league were: Nathan Miller defeated Grover Cleveland, 3-0. Washington Arms 4-5 won over Grover Cleveland 2-1. Skytop M-14 bowed to the Army Controllers 1-2.

In the later league Phi Epsilon Pi defeated Alpha Tau Omega 2-1. Kappa Sigma won over Phi Kappa Tau 3-0, and Theta Chi downed Alpha Chi Rho Chi downed Alpha Chi Rho 3-0.

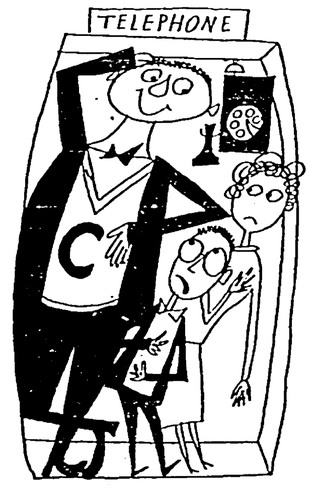
Three's a Crowd!



A very disheveled junior was brought before the dean for fighting.

"Why were you fighting?" asked the dean.

"Well, I was in a telephone booth talking to my girl friend," he explained. "I had just finished telling her about my handsome new Van Heusen Worsted Jersey Sport Shirts. I told her how warm, comfortable and light they are. I told her that thanks to the revolutionary new process, called "Hellerized," they are completely washable."

"Yes," said the Dean.

"Then I told her that the knit fabric felt like fine cashmere," continued the youngster. "I told her about all the handsome new colors I picked out, and that they cost only $o.oo apiece. And I was just about to tell her that I loved her, when a senior suddenly wanted to use the telephone. He opened the door, grabbed me by the neck, and threw me out of the booth!"

"Then you got angry?" asked the dean.

"Yes, but I really got mad when he grabbed my gal and threw her out too!"

Basic Tension Causes Lack of Freedom

DR. WILLIAM STUART NELSON, dean of Howard university in Washington, D. C., spoke last night on "You and a World of Tensions." He is spending this week on campus, studying the organization and program of Hendricks Chapel.

No one is going to be able to escape the fruitage of the tensions around us, Dr. William Stuart Nelson, dean of Howard university said last night.

In a talk on "You and a World of Tensions" which was sponsored by the Human Relations council of Chapel, the visiting dean told students to try to get a view of the causes of these tensions and to place the focus on them in relation to the individual.

Absence in the world of freedom from domination and the desire for freedom was listed as the first basic cause of world tension by Dr. Nelson.

"There are still great areas of the world and millions of people dominated by people of other parts of the world," he pointed out. "Freedom from political domination is not sufficient," he added. "Nations must also be free from economic domination."

A second cause of tension is the absence of freedom from contempt in the world, he said. "The amount of contempt visited on the dispossessed, illiterate and downtrodden people of the world is accompanied by an enormous amount of resentment," he explained.

Lack of freedom from want, including shortages of food, clothing and shelter and leading to shortened life expectancies was listed as the third contributor to tension.

Citing the Arab-Israeli relationship, Dr. Nelson termed the absence of freedom from fear as the fourth basic cause of tension.

"We need to understand that all of these causes are back of the Communist appeal," he said.

"Each of us must see the problem of tensions in perspective," he urged. "Look at the causes and then make up your mind what you as an individual can do about it."

"When you can look at the news and say 'Let ME see', then you will be an independent human entity, a real you in the presence of these tensions," he concluded.

Infantry Ensemble To Present Concert At Lincoln Tonight

Rousing melodies of World War II and delicate Negro spirituals will highlight the varied selections presented by the de Paur infantry chorus in a concert at 8:15 p.m. today in Lincoln auditorium.

The de Paur ensemble, directed by Captain Leonard de Paur, will appear as the fourth event of the Famous Artists series 1953-54 concert series.

COMPRISING 36 male voices, the chorus ranks as one of the top groups on the concert stage today with over 3,000 appearances listed to its credit. In addition to military songs and Negro spirituals, the de Paur men will draw from the music of Latin America, songs of faith and folk tunes during the evening.

Included in the five-part program will be "These are the Times" by Herbert Haufrecht, a Trinidad calypso "Money is King" by Patterson-de Paur, "Lilli Marlene", a battle song; the Negro spiritual "Nobody Knows De Trouble I See", arranged by de Paur; and "Credo", Liturgie de St. Jean Chrysostome, Po Opus 29, which will be sung in Russian.

The de paur chorus was originated in 1942 by men of the 372nd infantry stationed at Fort Dix, N. J. and came to prominence through a series of appearances to stimulate war bond sales. The Army later set up the group as a morale unit to entertain other troops. For the next three years, under the direction of Captain de Paur, the contingent sang for American forces all over the world.

Captain de Paur was one of the theater's most brilliant conductors before the war.

REVIEWING THE de Paur chorus, Olin Downes of the New York Times said "One of the best trained choral ensemble now before the public . . . a fine body of voices, beautifully balanced and controlled . . . technique and musicianship."

The infantry chorus records for Columbia Masterworks.

Special student tickets, priced at $1.50, will be available today at the University bookstore. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

Hark! The Herald Angels Sing

CHRISTMAS SEASON is approaching and Zeta Phi Eta, speech arts honorary, is preparing to present its annual Christmas pageant. The production never alters from year to year. It was written by A. E. Johnson, nationally famed poet and English professor on the Hill and will be produced in the Chapel Dec. 13. Shown above is last year's production Staff Photo by John, Fred and Ozzie

Fraternity Sponsors Decoration Contest

All entries for the annual Christmas decoration contest sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha, are to be in by December 8.

Entrance fee for the contest is $1, which goes to the Syracuse Christmas home bureau. Applications from Greek and Independent houses should be turned in at the Chapel board room from 2-5 p.m. daily.

Decorations must be in a serious vein and in good taste. Lights, sound and snow sculpture are permitted. Posters and moving parts are not to be used. All decorations must be up by 7 p.m. December 11.

Trophies will be presented to the winners by Dean Charles C. Noble at the tree lighting ceremonies in Sims hall at 8:30 p.m. on Dec. 11. The trophies are on display at Stadium Cleaners.

Anglicans Schedule Weekend Meeting

The fall conference sponsored by the college work commission of the Episcopal diocese of central New York will be held this weekend at Grace Church in Cortland.

Proceedings will begin Friday evening and continue until mid-afternoon on Saturday, led by Rev. Robert R. Spears, jr., rector of St. Peter's church in Auburn.

Rev. Spears is also director of the senior high youth commission and conference board, and is on the Diocesan Music commission.

Registration blanks for the conference are available in the Episcopal office of Chapel. The fee is $3.

Speech Honorary Plans Annual Yule Pageant

Zeta Phi Eta is planning for the presentation of its annual Christmas pageant.

The group, which is a national speech arts society for women, will present the same show as in the past two years because of popular demand.

IT WAS WRITTEN by A. E. Johnson, well known poet and Hill English instructor. The production has played to capacity crowds in both previous presentations.

This year's pageant will be held at 7:15 p.m. on Dec. 13 in the Chapel. Music will be supplied by Prof Polster directing the Chapel choir. All interested students are asked to sign up for parts from 2-5 p.m. in the Chapel on Nov. 30, Dec. 1 and 2.

The director of the pageant is Winona Young; Marlene Muller is coordinator, and publicity by Gwen Mahle. Lois Lachnicht is in charge of programs, and Marjorie Austrian, properties.

403rd Trains Men For US, UN Armies

Students can now take course work in their major subject and get paid for it by joining the 403rd Military Government company.

The 403rd, an organized army reserve unit in Syracuse, is training its men to govern any territory that American or United Nations war. The unit must have specialists whose skill can be immediately utilized in engineering, press and radio, education and many other areas.

Interested parties can get additional information by calling Lawrence Myers of the radio-television faculty at extension 437.

Goldman to Speak At Hygiene Lecture

Dr. Nathan Goldman of the sociology department will be guest speaker at the mental hygiene lecture series at 4 p.m. today in the Colonial room of Chapel.

Dr. Goldman, former research director at the Psychiatric Institute of Pittsburgh, will speak on "Roles in Campus Living."

The former psychology instructor will discuss anxieties in conflicting roles, and mental illness precipitated by these roles.

Co-chairmen Beverly Darrow and Everett Gertner have asked all interested students who have suggestions for future topics to place them in the Human Relations box in the Chapel Board room.

Design Students Chosen by Institute

Three Syracuse university students have been admitted to the Industrial Designer's Institute, a national organization for the promotion and practice of design in industry.

The three students, Mary Agnes Egan, '54; Joseph Banas, '54; and Robert Metzner, '55, have been appointed to serve on the qualifications committee for student membership.

A conference on design and education has been tentatively scheduled for March 25, 1954 at Syracuse.

Schultze Cottage Hears Mushtav

Dr. Gulam Ahmad Mushtav, of Sringar, Kashmir, spoke to Schultze cottage recently, on "Education in India." Dr. Mushtar is the president of the teachers training college and has a MA degree in philosophy, education and psychology.

He discussed the methods of education, the progress India has made, and the customs found in the Indian schools.

This talk was the first in a series Schultze is sponsoring before house meeting on Sunday, to learn more about customs and education in foreign lands.

$588,000 Bid Submitted For Engineering Building

By TOM LONG

Bids on the construction of engineering building one, to be located south of Smith hall, were opened and read yesterday. The four-story structure will house the chemical, civil, industrial and electrical engineering laboratories.

Ten bids ranging from the $739,999 high of Heuber bros. to the $588,000 offer of the Detor construction co. were received in the general construction classification.

E. J. Rappoli co. submitted a bid to complete construction in 250 days. The Dygert Construction co.'s 420 day bid was the longest.

Bids were given on nine alternate plans such as omitting the tile floors and cork insulation. These bids will have an effect on the awarding of the contract.

Base bids for plumbing were divided into two sections. Thomas E. O'Brien co. submitted the lowest base bid A of $59,371 and the lowest base bid B, $7,264. Only four bids were received for the plumbing contract.

Of the six heating and ventilating bids Ryan Plumbing and Heating co's offer of $83,921 was the lowest in section A. The low bid of $20,700 in section B was submitted by Edward Joy co.

Bec Electric co. had the lowest offer in both sections of the electrical bids, $78,000 and $11,000 respectively. Five companies submitted bids in this division.

Otis Elevator co. offered to install the elevators at a cost of $15,962 which was the lowest bid. Other bids were received from Haughton Elevator co. and Westinghouse Electric corp.

Harry King of King and King who designed the engineering building read the bids. Attending were F. Gordon Smith, University vice president and executive secretary; Ralph A. Galbraith, Dean of the Engineering college; Clark D. Ahlberg, assistant dean, and Carl Woese of Robson and Woese, the consulting engineers.

Vice president Smith announced that the contracts would probably be awarded within the next few days.

Six Members Named To Frosh Exec Council

By MIKE BRAUN

The freshman executive council is now complete, stated frosh president Francis Procopio last night. The appointment of six new frosh bring the total membership to 12.

The six were chosen by the officers of the class from 56 applications received. They will join Barbara Solomon and Donald Fulsom on the council.

CLASS VICE-president Arlene Plotkin, Secretary Daphine Burke, Treasurer Norman Butterfield are also on the council.

Those chosen are: Donald Weinberger, Tau Delta Phi, business administration; Samuel E. Dautch, M-5, business administration; Leonard A. Dippold, Alpha Tau Omega, business administration.

Also Frederick G. Sliter, M-8, business administration; Warren L. Kimble, Lambda Chi Alpha, Fine Arts and Robert J. Newmark, M-12, Liberal Arts.

Past experience and ideas for the class were criteria for selection.

The completed council will pass on all matters pertaining to the frosh class and will formulate plans for freshman weekend.

PROCOPIO ADDED that the first meeting of the freshman assembly will take place next week. All sororities and fraternity pledge classes, and all living centers should elect a representative at their house meeting. If a student is pledging a house, he may not be elected from his freshman dorm.

According to the Class Governing act, each fraternity and sorority is entitled to one representative.

Haven hall and Washington Arms are entitled to five representatives apiece. Skytop dormitories may elect four representatives. Collendale and Sims dorms are entitled to three representatives.

Wilson cottage is allowed three representatives, while Butler, French, Geneva, Haft, Mace, Marshall, Phillips, Richards, University and Schultze cottages are entitled to two. Those cottages allowed one representative include Heffron, Lund, Nottingham, Ostrom, Parker, Smalley, Sperry, Ten Eyck, Thornden, Walker, Woodworth and Wilbur.

The first meeting of the executive council and the assembly will be announced in The Daily Orange.

Brown to Discuss Nation's Problem

"Communism and the Issues Before the Country" is the topic to be presented by Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown at an organizational meeting of Students for Democratic Action at 7:30 p.m. today in 302 Maxwell.

Dr. Brown, chairman of the Maxwell citizenship and American studies departments, will discuss the current case involving the late Harry Dexter White, alleged spy.

ALL INTERESTED students and faculty members are invited to attend the session.

Tonight's speaker is a native of Buffalo, N. Y., and was graduated from Amherst college, later receiving his doctorate at Princeton university.

He joined the faculty of the University of Wisconsin as an English instructor in 1937 and in 1940 became associate professor of English at Grinnell college. After serving with the army in the field of specialized training, Dr. Brown came to Syracuse in 1947.

HE IS the author of "Excerpts from our Intellectual World;" "Let's Look at the Record," written with S. C. Sufrin, A. W. Swinyard and F. M. Gaylord; and "The Social Philosophy of Josiah Royce," a two-volume work published in 1950.

Dr. Brown has edited numerous books, including "We Hold These Truths" and "Great Issues."

Foreign Movies Start Saturday

An International film series will be presented in the Dance studio of the Women's building beginning Saturday.

Sponsored by the Young Adult Congress of the Jewish Community Center, the series gives students an opportunity to see some old outstanding foreign film productions.

The series, which runs through Feb. 6, includes movies from the United States and other countries. One of the selections is "Father Sergius" which was released in Russia just before the famous October revolution.

In addition to the main feature, a special short documentary film will be shown at each session.

Series tickets may be obtained for $2.50 at the Jewish Community Center, 223 E. Genesee st. Anyone wishing to sell tickets should see Ben Rothstein at the center or call 12-3348.

Dates for Photos Extended by ON

Seniors will have an additional two days this week to have their Onondagan pictures taken. The photographer will be on campus today and tomorrow, 121 College pl.

Seniors will not be required to have a sitting appointment to come during this extra time. The photographer will be at the center from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 a.m. to 6 p.m. Coeds are requested to wear white blouses while men are requested to wear suits.

A representative from Chidnoff studios will be at the audio-visual center beginning Monday to take orders for the pictures. Seniors may bring in their proofs at that time.

Dr. Goldman Talks On Campus Living In Lecture Series

Sociologist Discusses Adjustment Problems In College Career

The student entering his freshman year in college faces different problems from high school and must adjust to this new role, Dr. Nathan Goldman said at the mental hygiene lecture yesterday in Hendricks chapel.

Speaking on "Roles in Campus Living," Dr. Goldman asserted that the student must choose his electives, clothing, dates, fraternity or sorority, and political association among many others.

DEFINING role-playing as "certain definitions to specific sites," the sociology professor said that "the familiar persons to whom the student looked to previously for guidance and directions are not there."

The student must face the problem alone. "If this situation is not controlled, it may result in a disorder of personality. You might get a situation of unrulelessness."

Dr. Goldman cited the case of a 23-year-old girl who was caught in a conflict situation. Her mother still thought of her as her young daughter. At home she acted as a child. At work she was expected to act as an adult.

"In our modern society, we have very few fixed norms, so that it is difficult to associate oneself with a particular situation in these conflicts," asserted the former psychology instructor.

PROF. GOLDMAN declared that a student generally receives informal answers to his problems, but that these answers are not obtained at first. "It is always amazing to me that so few of the students break down, since they have so many situations to face."

The former research director said that a student must cope with an entirely different situation in college.

"In high school, the student established himself in certain roles as leader. Upon entering college, he is at the bottom of the pile," he remarked. "He doesn't know how to behave. Fortunately there are various counseling groups who can direct him in his new roles."

A student is learning through fraternities and sororities how to define certain situations, stated Dr. Goldman.

"I LOOK upon education as more than just the accumulation of a lot of knowledge. These are necessary as a basis. However, I think also education involves learning definitions which we might apply to situations later in life."

"How to Win Friends and Influence Deans will be discussed at 4 p.m. in the Colonial room of the Chapel.

Geography Prof Speaks Overseas

John H. Thompson, assistant professor of geography at Syracuse university, is lecturing in geography under a Fulbright grant at Kobe university, Kobe-shi, Japan, for this academic year, the state department has announced.

The award is made under the provisions of the Fulbright act. It is one of approximately 375 grants for lecturing and research abroad included in the program for the academic year 1953-54.

WSG Approves Registration Bill; Politics Act Reintroduced to MSG

Ex-Student Nabbed On Robbery Charges

A former Syracuse university student was picked up by police Tuesday night in connection with thefts from two Hill fraternity houses.

The youth, identified by police as William H. Collins, 20, 243 Hamilton st., Albany, pleaded not guilty to charges of second degree grand larceny when arraigned before Judge William Bamerick in Police court yesterday morning.

HE WAS released under $1,000 bail and ordered to appear in court on Dec. 23.

Collins was listed in last year's University directory as a freshman from Schenectady in the College of Business Administration.

Deputy Police Chief Fred C. Arnold said Collins is connected with the theft of a safe containing about $500 in cash and checks from Phi Kappa Tau early in September and two cameras from Theta Chi in August.

He is also accused of three other robberies—two in Syracuse and one in Schenectady.

POLICE PICKED up the former student at 11:20 p.m. Tuesday at Euclid and Comstock ave. after impounding his car, which was parked all day in the University section.

Several rifles, a revolver, ammunition, three suitcases, a camera and binoculars were reportedly in the car when it was seized.

Police said that they had recovered all of the stolen goods from the robberies except one camera. A rifle allegedly taken from a sporting goods store was traded to another Hill student for a revolver, police claim.

They also reported that Collins had cashed one of the checks from the Phi Kappa Tau safe. He had another check with him, according to police.

Collins had lived at the Phi Kappa Tau house during the summer. He told members of the fraternity that he was attending summer school.

Field Rep to Speak To Catholic Club

Discrimination Legislation Subject of Talk

William F. Walsh, field representative of the New York state Commission Against Discrimination, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Catholic Graduate Students club at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday at St. Thomas More chapel.

Walsh, who has held his present post for seven years, will take up the subject, "Can Discrimination be Eliminated Through Legislation?"

A native Syracusan, he was graduated from St. Bonaventure university and studied at Catholic university and the University of Buffalo. He did graduate work in sociology at Syracuse university.

Walsh first became acquainted with minority group problems while serving as welfare officer for the Onondaga Indian reservation. During world war II he was training officer for the first Negro basic training squadron in the air force.

Later he was assigned to the air inspector's section, where he was responsible for enforcement of the air forces' non-segregation policy.

The state field representative was assistant area director of the State Department of Social Welfare before assuming his present duties which encompass 21 counties.

Plans Announced For European Tours

A cooperative international summer school and tour of Europe has been announced by the College of Puget Sound and a Scandinavian church.

Four weeks will be spent on the campus of the Union school of the Methodist church in Scandinavia at Gothenburg, Sweden, and an optional number of weeks in travel-study.

MORE INFORMATION is available from Earle W. Clifford, assistant dean of men, in the Administration building.

Tours are open to all students of United States and Canada. Prices of tours include trans-Atlantic and land transportation, basic accommodations, food, lodging, tickets, program expenses and incidental charges.

National Students association is also sponsoring a program of summer tours in Europe.

Tour participants will leave New York in middle or late June 1954 and return about Sept. 10. Exact dates and fees will be announced later.

More information on NSA tours can be obtained from Dan Bavalack, international chairman of Syracuse NSA at 4-9398 or 110 Walnut Pl.

World Champion To Show Badminton

Kenneth Davidson, world renowned badminton star, and coach of the United States International Thomas Cup team, will demonstrate badminton techniques and tactics from 8 to 9 p.m., Tuesday in the Women's building.

The demonstration-clinic session, sponsored by women's athletic association and the physical education majors' club, is open to anyone connected with Syracuse university or University college.

FORMER Captain of the Scottish International Badminton team and captain of the famous Strollers team which toured Europe, Davidson holds British, European American shuttlecook titles.

After coming to this country in 1935, Davidson turned professional in 1936 to accept theatrical bookings.

Star of three movies, sports commentator on radio and TV and author, Davidson has assisted the American Badminton association since its formation in 1936.

Davidson's exhibitions and lectures have attracted audiences totaling over fifteen million.

A resolution requiring all student organizations to register with men's and women's student governments each fall was passed by house presidents last night at the WSG assembly meeting.

The resolution will go into effect as a rule if it is approved by MSG at the next meeting of that organization.

Introduced last night by organizations panel chairman Lois Clark, the resolution would make it mandatory for every organization, with the exception of fraternities and sororities, on campus to submit a copy of its constitution, annual budget, officers, notification of officer changes and national affiliation status at the beginning of each fall semester.

If the resolution becomes law, organizations will be granted a set period of time, not yet specified, in which to register with student governments before the beginning of this year's spring semester. In the future all registration will be in the fall.

WSG president Mary Anne Dalton pointed out that this change will benefit everyone in the University since, for the first time in history, a complete list of campus organizations will be available for students and administration.

In the past, student governments have been empowered to recognize new organizations and approve their constitutions.

However, there has been no means of securing a complete list of the campus groups. With the passing of the new legislation, student government would be enabled to publish a list at the beginning of each year for those interested in obtaining one.

Patricia Mosher, chairman of the student welfare panel, introduced a resolution to discourage coed smoking on campus and on city streets, especially in the downtown area.

Miss Mosher explained that there have been several recent complaints of this by city residents and that the measure was introduced in the interest of better public relations between city and university. The resolution was passed.

House presidents also voted to amend two sections of the procedural code of the WSG assembly. Added to Section 3 of the code was the official recognition that any woman student enrolled in the University may be a member of a WSG panel if she so chooses, without a vote.

The second amendment grants the speaker of the assembly the power to appoint a parliamentarian from the members of the assembly.

Speaker Patricia Fay announced that a program sponsored by WSG over station WAER at 10 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6 will be concerned with National Students' association, its functions and its importance on campus.

Seven Major NYC Papers Outsold By Daily Orange

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Syracuse Daily Orange now has a greater circulation than the combined circulation of The New York Herald Tribune, the New York Times, The Daily News, the Daily Mirror, the World-Telegram and Sun, the New York Post and the Journal-American.

This newspaper now carries more advertising lineage than all of the above. These four pages hold more news coverage than the above seven competitors.

The Daily Orange is the biggest daily newspaper in Syracuse. In width, anyway. This newspaper has columns measuring two inches or 12 picas. The Herald Journal and Post-Standard columns are only 11.6 picas wide.

Eleven point six picas do not equal 11 and six-tenths picas. Eleven point six picas equal 11 and a half picas. There are 12 points to a pica. There are six picas to an inch. There are 72 points in an inch.

Advertising is measured in agate lines. There are 14 agate lines to the inch. Agate type is 5½ points thick. Fourteen lines of agate type equal 77 points. There are 72 points to the inch.

The Daily Orange is published at the Orange Publishing company. The engravings in this newspaper are made on a Fairchild 65 Scan-a-graver. This newspaper makes its own engravings. Our photo-engravers are not out on strike.

This is just one of the featrues which is attracting new readers to The Syracuse Daily Orange each day.

The controversial campus political parties act, tabled last spring, was reintroduced into the men's student government assembly Tuesday night and referred to the organization's rules and elections panel.

The proposed measure, which would regulate political parties, caused bitter debate in the assembly last March when it was originally brought up. An open split developed between Greek and independent factions over a clause that would restrict endorsement of a candidate to only one party.

ALSO PRESENTED to the MSG legislature Tuesday was a bill that would require all student organizations, with the exception of social fraternities and sororities, to register with student government.

In other action the student apathy bill sponsored by Roger J. Herz was approved by an 18-2 vote after an amendment by Robert Garver.

The conduct and welfare panel of the assembly will carry an investigation and research of the apathy problem on campus. The proposed bill had asked for the formation of a special assembly committee to look into apathy.

Speaker of the Assembly Edwin Hochberg announced a series of short lectures during meetings as a training course for assemblymen. Patricia Fay, speaker of the women's student government assembly, commenced the program with an outline of WSG's structure and told about the WSG legislating body.

FUTURE LECTURES will take up parliamentary procedure, committee investigations, forms of bills and resolutions, jurisdiction and accomplishments of MSG, and the assembly's relationship to other phases of student government.

Chairmen of the four panels were announced. They are Roger Herz, conduct and welfare; Robert Garver, organizations, rules and athletics; Richard Sutter, ways and means; Richard Koelling, athletics and public relations.

John DePalma has been named secretary of the assembly.

Silver Star Award Ceremonies Slated

The Silver Star medal has been posthumously awarded to Master Sergeant Andrew C. Gavurnik for gallantry in action during the Korean fighting. The award is the nation's third highest decoration for heorism against the armed enemy.

The ceremony will be held at 12:30 p.m. today in room 301 Machinery hall. Lt. Colonel George R. Stevens, Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Syracuse university, and a veteran of the Korean fighting will present the award to Gavurnik's father, George Gavurnik of Skaneateles. Army ROTC cadets will participate in the service.

Gavurnik had been a member of the Army since 1940 and during World War II served in the European theatre. He returned to Europe in 1947 for another overseas tour of duty. He is survived by seven brothers, two of whom are presently serving in Korea, and two sisters.

Dr. Shaw Elected To Health Council

Dr. John H. Shaw of the department of athletics and physical education was elected to serve a five year term on the governing council of the American Public Health Association.

Dr. Shaw replaced Dr. William Hughes of Temple university, representing the school health division of the association.

He is also one of the 28 contributing authors of "School Health Service", a book to be used as text in teacher training institutions and also in checking public school health standards. It was written from the report of the joint committees in health problems in education of the National Education association and the American Medical association.

Journalism Prof Speaks Tomorrow

Professor Roland Wolseley of the journalism school will speak on "Impressions of India" at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Founders room of Maxwell. The talk is sponsored by the India Students association. All students are invited to attend.

Nine ROTC Cadets Given Awards

Nine Air Force ROTC students have been designated distinguished military students here in the Hill detachment, according to Maj. Robert E. Wood, public information officer.

The students are John J. Forgette, this year's cadet colonel; John J. Duddy III; Charles E. Eager; John N. Gordon; Richard M. Hollander; Frederick T. Hopmeier; Deane F. Lavender; Robert W. Leberman, and Joseph E. Petkash.

WOOD OUTLINED the requirements for the award. Students must have completed the first three years of AFROTC with an academic standing among the upper one-third of the cadets enrolled therein.

They must also have accumulative academic standings among the upper one-third of their academic majors or an accumulative average of at least 2.0. High moral character and definite aptitude for service in the Air Force are also required.

Distinguished military students must have excelled by demonstration of leadership, particularly by participation in recognized extra-curricular activities, Wood added.

Browse awhile

Approximately 1,000 books are now available for students in the new browsing library of the Women's building. The venture, not affiliated with any organization or with the main library system, is conducted on the honor system.

Along the shelves, in the modern room, are volumes that can probably suit every taste.

Although none of the books may be taken out of the library, copies for loan are available in the main library.

There is but one credo in honor systems: that we respect the trust that has been placed in us. The success of any such program depends on that.

Books will not be hidden under loose coats, interesting pages will not be clipped for further reference and we think others will appreciate it if we doodle only on paper that is ours.

Approximately 300 of the books are gifts of the former Student Union; 500 are gifts from the main library. The library staff hopes to collect newspapers, humor magazines, scholarship information and reference shelves for each of the major departments of the University.

At present the shelves contain American and English lit, reference books, periodicals, newspapers and recent Onondagans.

The honor system has been tossed around in academic air for many years. It is new at Syracuse. This is one of our first major experiments with the idea. The browsing library program is similiar to those at Cornell and other schools.

If it succeeds, conceivably the idea could spread to the main library, to exams and to student loan funds.

Let's hope it works.

On their way

Many of the problems which have been vexing students this year were placed before their government representatives recently.

When the legislative members of men's and women's student government assembled this week, they were faced with the situation of what to do with the problems of reserved seating, Student Union facilities, intramural insurance, campus political parties and student apathy.

Placed in panels in the form of resolutions, bills and investigations, student government can now proceed to the examination of each problem and the finding of an adequate solution to those that can be so solved.

Now is the time for all students who have ideas, opinions or gripes on these subjects to make them known to their representatives and to The Daily Orange, so that this paper, too, may reflect varied student opinions.

Coeds who wish to complain about the lack of Union facilities or men who feel that reserved seating should be revised now have the opportunity to take action which may directly affect the final decisions.

The female has only to speak to her house president who will then report to the chairman of the panel studying the problem. Men should find a representative from their class and express their attitudes to him, so that he, too, can convey student opinion to the panel workers.

Student government can assuredly have one of its most productive years in recent history, if student opinion is heard and the majority of the bills acted upon before the end of spring.

Both legislative groups have gotten off to good starts. They have begun to act as coordinated bodies while individual members have shown an interest which forcasts much productivity.

It is our hope that the remainder of the year will be as impressive and that the apathy under investigation does not become a part of the investigators during the course of the year.

Decline & Fall in Georgia

The Civil War II

By HUGH O. MUIR
Editorial Director

The politicians and intelligentsia have had blows again and rarely before have the politicians so completely vanquished themselves.

The battlefield was Georgia: the antagonists were the editors of the University of Georgia weekly and a particular editor politician from Augusta, the weapon was the printed word: the victor was the mind of youth.

"The Red and Black" ran a series of editorials condemning the segregation practices of the university and particularly lanced at Governor Talmadge for his attacks on cases against segregation in the South. (These very cases are now before the Supreme Court.)

Eighteen days after the publication of the editorials early in November a certain Roy Harris, longtime Talmadge supporter, editor, and one of the state's foremost political powers made his rebuttal.

What he had to say was most enlightening, or perhaps confirming, for it revealed the Southern politician in all his stupidity. To quote:

"The students involved are a little handful of sissy misguided squirts. Every time I see one of these little sissy boys hanging around some college, the more I think every one of them ought to be made to play football.

With no disparagement to the honored place of sport in education, it is safe to say that anyone who considers the football player as the sole end product of four years at college obviously has no rightful place in the forming of people's opinions.

Unfortunately, this man is doing just this through his irresponsible writing.

However, these immature and unlettered comments are paled by the absolutely frightening statement which Harris then made. His article went on to say:

"But the time has come to clean out all of these institutions of all Communist influences and the crazy idea of mixing and mingling of the races which was sponsored in the country by the Communist party."

The statement is absolutely laughable, we warrant even by a Communist with a sense of humor. But the condemnation is also fearful in its implications. It infers that anything that may be propounded by the Communist theory is to be banned from our culture. Whether equality of races is Communistic or not is unimportant. The point is that this man, representing the political South, opposes one of the foundations of democracy.

Fortunately, this man decides policy only for his narrow circle. The Supreme Court will make the final analysis for our stage in the evolution of democracy.

Well, so much for a curt dismissal of Harris. The reaction of the student editors deserves a black-edged sympathy note from the nation. Harris' childish name-calling came as a "shock" to them. They have expressed themselves as being "pained and bewildered."

Technically, of course, the student editors are advocating breaking the law. That is the tragedy. The editors were threatened by the Regents that their subsidy from the university would be cut off if they continued to write at variance with state segregation laws. Harris is a board member.

The facts have been presented, and we hope not ripped out of context. This rebattling of the Civil war of the South against the Federal government is far from over.

The actions of the Supreme Court and the opinions of the people on the question of segregation can either be a directive to the future or a surrender to the past.

But keep the little politicians out of it.

Boost for Culture

Culture Rides Again

That most bedraggled of all commodities, culture, has gotten another boost. First the Eckel announced a new policy of presenting "art" films. Now the Young Adults Council of the Jewish Community Center has arranged a sponsorship of a Museum of Modern Art film series. The series consists of showings of important experimental films and established screen classics.

It is valuable for the layman interested in the exotic and the artistic. For anyone interested in the eveolution of the motion picture or the drama, in general, it is definitely a case of manna from heaven.

The screenings will begin this Saturday at 8:15 p.m. and will be held on subsequent Saturdays through the month of January. They will be shown in the dance stutdio of the Women's building. Tickets are priced at $2.50 for the entire series and may be purchased at The Corner store, University book shop, Le Vine's art center and Meltzer's sandwich shop.

The initial offering is Fritz Lang's great psychological thriller "M". This film made in Germany in 1931 introduced Petre Lorre as a psycopathic killer. It is notable as the greatest cinematic study of criminal perversion and is a sort of grand dame in the thriller category.

Subsequent offerings will include Jean Epstein's expressionistic rendition of Poe's "The Fall Of The House Of Usher", O'Neill's "Anna Christie" with Greta Garbo, and many other distinctive films. Culture is being offered at a nominal price. Bite boys! For Culture is a thing of great fragility and little availability. It's time for Syracusans to shake themselves out of what ever states of apathy or lethargy they seem to be in and support this exciting program.

Sillier Life To Come

If I had my life to live over, I would try to make more mistakes. I would relax. I would be sillier than I have been this trip. I know of very few things I would take seriously. I would be less hygienic. I would go to more places. I would climb more mountains and swim more rivers. I would eat more ice cream and less bran.

LETTERARY COMMENT

SUBVERSIVE CHARGES & SONG RIOT

To the Editor:

An article in The Daily Orange in November, concerning the Astor's closing, minimized the importance of any "subversive charges;" I think that Syracuse could pay a bit more attention to the nature of these charges, and their source, particularly since one of the producers—Mr. James Russo—has mentioned them as the main reason for the closing.

Mr. Russo refers to a letter received by him from Mr. John Dungley, chairman of the American Legion's un-American activities group in Onondaga county. This letter charges that a prominent actor engaged by the Astor theater for their production of "Born Yesterday" has a "record" with a congressional investigation committee, and therefore should be fired; the assumption is that if the Astor does not do as the American Legion wishes, dire consequences will result. The actor in question resigned rather than make an issue of the proceedings, although—according to Mr. Russo—he could have proven the charges false. (The American Legion—via Mr. Dungley*—did not allow the actor to present his case before the Legion's board.)

The question here is what authority the American Legion (or for that matter any private organization who receive the "call") has in directing other organizations to hire or fire or do this or do that. In this case, whether one believes that the charges were a main reason for the Astor's demise, or not the power of such private organizations to define their own brand of Americanism (or conformity) and enforce their definitions should should concern to Syracus- ?rsto be of concern to Syracusans.

Off-key

December 2, 1953

An Open Letter to the Student Body:

We like serenades. We think that above all typical of college spirit.t they are touching, tender, and There is nothing we would rather have than a serenade. However, when a serenade is presented by a group of inebriated fraters, accompanied by horns, whistles and whatever other noisemakers they can dig up and is presented in the vicinity of 2 a.m. we think that college spirit is being overdone.

For the past few nights, or rather early mornings, after a full day of classes and tedious hours of studying, we have been rudely awakended and kept in that state by the raucous, off-key selections rendered by the above-mentioned offenders.

This is really a disturbance of the peace, and if it happened anywhere but on a college campus, the offenders would be penalized. We suggest that Student Government investigate what is really an annoying situation and eliminate it.

Sincerely,
Two Irritated Coeds

Liquor Loops Us All

By JOAN NADELHAFT
Editorial Page Writer

We're all potential drunkards, through and through.

The heavy drinker and the novice are affected equally by alcohol, although the habitual drinker doesn't show it.

The Yale University Center of Alcoholic Studies tests on alcohol as it affects the body show that alcohol has almost the same physiological effect on everyone.

The professors have also exploded many of the folk tales which go the rounds about the effects of mixing drinks, heavy drinking and chronic alcoholism.

For example, mixing drinks, according to the Yale profs doesn't make you any drunker—you have simply drunk that much more.

Additionally, drinking will not harm body tissues, because even in alcoholic stupor, the level of alcohol in the body is not enough to irritate tissues. True, they say, drinking straight liquor will cause "whiskey throat" because the alcohol irritates the membranes. They advocate soda with scotch.

Tolerance to liquor does not rise with prolonged use; you simply get your "sea legs," and seem to have a decreased effect. Physiologally, the effect is no less.

And sobering up with coffee, cold showers or tomato juice is no good. The hangover goes away when it's ready, not before. Alcohol evaporates from the body at a certain rate, and nothing now known to science will hasten it. That "ah-h-h, that's much better" feeling you get from home remedies is just from waking up. You're still just as drunk, but the nerves are not as depressed.

Beer is absorbed by the body slower than liquor, since it has food value, and food slows the rate of absorption. Therefore, one cocktail on an empty stomach has more kick than if you had just eaten.

Habitual drinking can be harmful because it lowers appetite and leads to malnutrition. A small amount of alcohol increases the appetite, though, and reduces tension. Moderate drinking is not harmful—and besides, it's fun.

Frailty, Thy Name is

The idea in Mexico is that when women are foolish enough to make themselves independent nobody will look after them any more, and it is nicer to be looked after. No matter how brave the Mexican girl is, (and I have seen one snatch off her shoe and go after a rattlesnake with it), she will melt down into feminine frailty the minute a pair of pants appear on the horizon. It is considered sound common sense, nothing more.

AN EVENING OUT

PRECISION IN de PAUR CHORUS

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

With a sweep of dynamic musicianship and a burst of rousing spirit, the de Paur infantry chorus descended upon the Lincoln auditorium stage last night with a varied program of choral selections.

Under the scrutiny of Captain Leonard de Paur, the ensemble offered the goodly Famous Artists' audience a variously-colorful array of folk tunes, military chants, spirituals and songs of faith.

Captain de Paur has injected a masterful sort of choral genius into his 35 stalwart voices resulting in a group which can be singled out not only for its healthy male sounds but also for a careful delicate percision and depth. This amazing control deviated only slightly through the evening and then only when the tenors soared too high.

The men of the de Paur are acutely balanced with a pleasing proportion of deep to light voices. And like a master artist, de Paur has flushed his canvas with a neat blend ranging from a deep, vibrating basso to a near-soprano tenor.

The evening experienced a rather sluggish start with four selections including "These Are The Times" and "Nightingales". The multi-toned "Tiger's Ghost" outlined the group's sensitivity and startling ability with the softer chords.

Perhaps the most interesting grouping was found in the Latin American folk song and calypso melodies arranged by the good Captain. The swift counterpoint and orchestra-like sounds held considerable ground here.

The Negro spirituals and songs from World War II proved equally compatible with the ways of the de Paur chorus with Loesser's "Roger Young" and "Soon Ah Will Be Done" standing bright.

The evening was closed by a series of "songs of faith" including the Yiddish "A Dudule" and "Credo" which was performed in Russian.

Aside from their excellence of voice, the de Paur chorus exhibited considerable precision following each number and at the finale when they bowed in stiff military fashion like puppets on a wire.

For the most part, I can think of nothing at the moment which touches a band of rousing male voices for sheer delight. There was hardly a squeeker in the lot.

A group like Captain de Paur's approaches the warming qualities of a good cup of tea.

An All-American Story

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Three little boys were sitting on the wooden bleachers that run around the bottom of Archbold stadium. On the field the Syracuse university football team, in their white practice jerseys with ridiculously high green numerals, was preparing for its weekend game with Villanova.

A good looking end, weary from a scrimmage, walked by, unwrapping the tape that encased the cast on his wrist.

"HEY!" They demanded, "which one's Fleck?"

"You mean Hadjis?" he smiled.

"Nah, Fleck," they were insistent.

"He's over there. The bald one. No. 45."

WITH THAT the kids scampered off the bleachers to seek out Bob Fleck. What they found was a big (6 ft.-2, 243-pounds) blonde, round-faced, sort of amiable looking monster. He was joking with the other linemen as they walked through a dummy practice against Villanova plays.

To most of the Syracuse campus, Bob is the huge, chubby football player who recently made Colliers' all-American team, selected by 527 coaches, throughout the country. To the team, Fleck is the good hole to run and the guy who squawks in the huddle when someone isn't blocking. To the football coaches, Fleck is the quick running guard who pulls fast, blocks hard and makes the end sweeps go. In short, Fleck is that good football player.

Bob hails from Coatesville, Pa., which, like most Pennsylvanian towns, is a fanatic football town. The high schools start practice in mid-August, hold summer camps and all the trimmings that go to make the powerhouses of that region.

One day, about nine years ago, the head coach of Coatesville high school had just returned from his 10-day summer football camp. He saw a big kid in his class and kept him after to ask him why he did not come out for football. Bob, then a wee 220, was talked into it and in his sophomore year made first string. The coach? Ted Dailey, currently Syracuse's line coach.

AFTER GRADUATING from Coatesville high, Fleck was taken on the usual tour that sought-after Pennsylvania high school players make: a plane trip to the South to watch a big game.

Coach Dailey took Fleck aside and convinced Bob that he should go to prep school, thus affording him a bigger choice of schools later on. The coach was going to take a trip; would Bob like to go along? Fleck came up to Syracuse to enroll in Manlius. Dailey came up to be interviewed for a new coaching job—at Syracuse university. Both got their jobs.

After one year at Manlius, Bob Fleck could take his choice: Army, Pitt, Penn. He elected to stay with Dailey—thus, Syracuse university.

Fleck first hit the sportswriters' fancy as a sophomore because of his enormous size (then 6 ft.-2, 258 pounds). When they saw him play they were surprised at his forward speed. It was Fleck that everyone was going to watch as a junior.

A TACKLE on the offensive team, Fleck played "30-minute ball," i. e., one-half of two platoon. In some tight spots, Fleck filled in on the defense. He started out with a good season and in the fourth game against Cornell was called on to spell one of the defensive players.

Cornell was driving toward the goal line and had a first down just outside the ten. On the second play, Fleck made the tackle and a Cornell man fell across the back of his legs. Bob got up and took his place along the line. The next two plays Fleck wasn't involved in. Cornell was halted on the six. The offensive platoon came in and Bob started to run off. He missed a step, stumbled and almost fell to the ground. He made it to the sidelines, but didn't see action the rest of the day.

The delayed injury put his left foot in a cast that kept him out of the Michigan State and Holy Cross games. Only an open week before the Penn State contest enabled Fleck to make that game.

The upset of Penn State paved the way for the Lambert Trophy and a subsequent bid to the Orange Bowl. International News Service named Bob to its first string all-American, the only one he made. His all-East honors, however, rolled in.

This year, Head Coach Ben Schwartzwalder needed a fast-pulling guard. He gave Bob orders to trim down over the summer. Fleck weighed in at 243 and was fast enough to compete with any guard in the East.

THE TEAM began slowly, as did Fleck. Pre-season publicity overshadowed these performances until Bob started turning in consistent play. The big one for this year's Syracuse team was against Illinois. The reason? The Illini were ripe for an upset and Syracuse had to redeem itself in the eyes of the nation's television viewers.

The Orangemen entered the game with a good mental attitude. They soon backed that up with some hard football playing. Illinois line coach Burt Ingwersen said, "Without a doubt, Fleck is the best lineman we played all season."

A Syracuse coach ventured the opinion, "If Illinois would have run straight plays instead of their razzle-dazzle, they might have done better."

The reason the razzle-dazzle failed? Fleck put on a powerful exhibition of submarining all afternoon and the reversing backs merely stumbled over him, usually for a loss.

EVEN BEFORE the season ended Fleck received a letter from Colliers' magazine. He had been named all-American, and any advance publicity would allow them to forfeit the honor. They couldn't stop word-of-mouth however, and when Colliers' photographers interrupted Bob's American History class to take pictures, it was soon all over the campus.

Then the awards came pouring in: INS's all-American, and first-string all-East on Colliers, United Press, INS, the New York Daily News and the Chicago Tribune's all-players poll.

These weren't the only offers. Notes soon came from the Philadelphia Eagles, the New York Giants and the Green Bay Packers. Ted Dailey was musing that the Eagles play only 30 miles from Coatesville and a lot of the home town folks would go to see Bob.

COATESVILLE FANS probably best remember Fleck in his senior year appearance against traditional-enemy Bethlehem high. Coatesville and Bethlehem were both unbeaten, but Bethlehem was the lop-sided favorite. Fleck and co. beat Bethlehem 13-0. Bethlehem had a star player on the field too. He was Steve Meilinger, now of Kentucky and Bob's all-American teammate on the Collier's eleven.

Fleck's last scheduled collegiate game is the East-West all-Star game in Kezar stadium Jan. 2. If his Syracuse performance is a criteria, Bob will be an all-Star.

TITANIC BOB FLECK, towheaded guard from Coatesville, Pa., has been named to the INS and Colliers' all-American football teams. FLECK will be playing his last game of collegiate competition Jan. 2, when the East meets the West in the annual Shrine game.

Cleveland, Kappa Sig Win Intra Hoop Tilts

—Old Gym—

By JEFF WENIG

In the first of the intramural basketball contests held last night in the men's old gym, and the fastest moving game of the evening, Grover Cleveland romped over Skytop M-1 40-24.

Ron Howard and Randy Stauf-M-1, but were no match for the M-1 but were no match for the fast breaking combination of Kirk Hinkley, with 9 points, Mike Goldman with 10, and the high scorer of the game Don Mills, who netted 13.

AT THE half, Cleveland A was in front by 15, 26-11, and by staying on the offensive and tallying 14 more times, gained their impressive victory.

The second game, a complete reversal of the high scoring first one, saw Levi Morton battle Skytop M-6 to gain a 13-6 win. Nick Grzymkoviski was the deciding factor in the contest by coming across with 3 points in each half to push Levi Morton ahead.

High scorer of the night, Paul Ripp, with excellent shooting from the field and foul line, tallied 18 points to lead Irving D/1-3 to a 37-20 victory over Skytop M-10. Don Reid and Dick Day scored 11 times each to pace the losers.

Both teams netted 10 times in the last half of the game but the seven point, first period lead, proved too hard to overcome.

In the last event of the evening Skytop M-4 ran away from Men's Co-op 32-11. Bob Ainsley who played only during the first half, put in 14 easy points before retiring.

SPLASH PARTY

The swimming team will sponsor an all-University splash party Friday from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the Orange pool. A 50 cents admission will be charged for this, the final splash party until Jan. 18.

—New Gym—

By DON HENRY

Three easy wins and one uphill victory featured last night's intramural play in the new gym at Archbold. Kappa Sigma, Phi Kappa Tau, Theta Chi and Zeta Psi claimed victories in this, the first week of basketball action.

The Kappa Sigs opened the four game slate with a 46-18 romp over Tau Epsilon Phi. The game started in a nip-and-tuck fashion with the score standing 8-8 midway through the first period.

THE WINNERS cut loose at that point, however, and rolled to a 23-11 half-time margin. Herb Galen paced Kappa Sigma with 21 points. Will Shore tossed in 8 for TEP.

Zeta Psi had to overcome a 14-10 intermission deficit to gain their win over Alpha Tau Omega. ATO's height gave them the initial margin, but the aggressiveness of the Zetes, with Bob Street accounting for 10 markers, paved the way to a 28-23 win.

Theta Chi's Bill Sprague, with 13 points and a host of rebounds, paced his team to a 33-18 victory over the Pi Lams. Jerry Bartisch and Dick Zeusner hit for half a dozen points each to lead the losers.

Phi Kappa Tau pulled away from Delta Tau Delta in the second half of the final fray of the evening to garner a 30-20 nod. Norm Resager and Howie Lamal scored enough points between themselves to outnumber the Delts' total. Bob Jordan was high for the losers with 9.

Intra Schedule

Tonight's intramural basketball schedule:

6:15 Phi Gamma Delta vs. Beta Sigma Rho
7:00 Skytop M-9 vs. Washington Arms 4-5
7:45 Skytop M-2 vs. Cleveland B
8:30 Skytop M-3 vs. Alfred Smith

Tonight's intra bowling slate:

6:15 Alleys 1-2, Alpha Epsilon Pi vs. Pi Kappa Alpha; 3-4, Psi Upsilon vs. Tau Epsilon Phi; 5-6, Skytop M-7 vs. Skytop M-8.
8:15 Alleys 1-2, Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Sigma Chi; 3-4, Delta Tau Delta vs. Delta Upsilon; 5-6, Acacia vs. Phi Kappa Psi.

Hill Defense Poses Main Hoop Problem Before Griffin Tilt

Graduation-Riddled Canisius Battles Orange Saturday

With only two days remaining before Saturday's road opener against Canisius, Syracuse continues stressing defense in basketball workouts. It's still not known who will be in the starting fire for the Orangemen as Coach Marc Guley continues searching for his best combination.

The Orange will probably be favored Saturday night after their somewhat impressive 88-68 whipping of Ithaca college in the season's opener. Canisius also won its opener in easy fashion against Western Ontario but dropped a decision to towering Dayton last Saturday night.

COACH JOE Curran, in his first year as hoop mentor for the Golden Griffins, will be counting on Captain Jim Young to lead the way. Young, the only returning starter from last year's five will fill one of the backcourt slots.

Graduation and other difficulties have hit Curran badly in his initial season. Star center Larry O'Connor, forward Don Foreman and guard Tony Gregory have all graduated.

The big blow came early in September, however, when four other players who figured prominently in this year's plans failed to return to school. Pete Vann, the other 1952-53 starter, entered the army while three other hoopsters decided not to return to school.

Included in this trio were two-year veteran Jim O'Brien and two stars of last year's frosh contingent, John McLaughlin and John Lynch.

WITH THESE changes in plans, Curran has had to switch consistently to come up with his starting five. The return of Jerry Stockman from the armed forces has helped somewhat. A squad member three seasons ago, the 6-ft.-6 pivotman will take over for departed O'Connor.

A former Syracusan, Jerry Large, has also shown well and will hold down one of the guard spots. Large, who played varsity ball for the Orange two years ago when frosh were eligible, transferred to Canisius where he sat out a year of ineligibility last year. He has shown well in performances to date, scoring 18 points against Dayton.

Senior Don Dunn, junior Bob Adams and John Zatorski, another returning serviceman, have been alternating at forwards in the Griffs' opening games.

Dunn and Zatorski each stand 6-ft.-3 and are fine rebounders. Adams, 6-ft.-4, was impressive against Dayton as he netted 13 points.

For Syracuse, veteran playmaker Skip Thaw will again be missing after his auto accident of a week and a half ago.

LEFTOVERS: The Syracuse-Canisius clash will be the nightcap of a Buffalo Memorial auditorium doubleheader . . . Niagara and Fordham, two future Piety opponents, meet in the lidlifter . . . The Piety-Golden Griffin contest will be the first of the year in contention for the Allie Seelback Memorial trophy . . . The trophy, awarded annually, is emblematic of basketball supremacy in Upstate New York . . . Joe Curran, former Penn State cager, replaces five-year veteran Joe Niland as head mentor.

Veteran Gym Team Awaits Planned Trip Through South

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editors

The 1953-54 Gymnastic season will open Dec. 14 with an all-veteran squad swinging into action. Since no one was lost to the team via last June's graduation, Syracuse should offer strong competition to the seven rival squads on the Piety schedule.

A southern tour, climaxing with a date with Florida State, will probably kick off the gymnastic slate. Only academic approval, which is considered just a formality, has delayed the definite announcement of the proposed trip.

IF PRESENT plans hold up, Coach Paul Romeo and five of his gymnastic stalwarts will leave on Saturday, Dec. 12 by auto toward the warm climate of the South. The Hillmen will face the University of North Carolina Tarheels on the first leg of the trip in Chapel Hill Dec. 14.

The following day the Pietymen will oppose Duke at Durham, North Carolina. Both North Carolina and Duke have young up-and-coming squads led by several promising sophomores. The Tarheels are rated slightly stronger than the Blue Devils of Duke, but Syracuse has a good chance to sweep both meets.

The big date will be that with Florida State, 1953 National AAU champs. The Florida team is a perennially potent team which should give the Orangemen quite a fight for their money.

Coach Romeo expects to take a squad consisting of Co-captains John Barkal and Ferdie Fournies, Milan Trnka, Corky Sebbo and Dan Traficante or Bill Lee. All the aforementioned with the exception of Lee competed in the Nationals held here last spring.

SEBBO, Eastern and National tumbling champion, was undefeated in collegiate competition last year. Corky will compete in the tumbling and rope climb events and the trampoline, if the latter event is staged at North Carolina.

Barkal, Syracuse's leading all-around performer, will see action in the side horse, high bar, parallel bar and tumbling events. John placed second in the all around in the Eastern's at Army last year and eighth in the same event in the NCAA's.

His record also includes a fourth place in the side horse and a seventh place finish in the high bar at the Easterns and a third place in the side horse in the NCAA's last season.

The other Orange co-captain, Ferdie Fournies, will participate in the side horse, rope climb, and the flying rings. Ferdie also compiled an enviable record a year ago.

FOURNIES PLACED eighth in the side horse competition and sixth in the rope climb in the 1953 Easterns. In the NCAA's he finished in a fifth place tie in the rope climb and sixth in the flying rings.

Trnka, a junior on the squad, placed fourth in the all-around, eighth in the parallel bars, and sixth in the high bar in the Easterns. In the latter event he finished ninth in the NCAA's. Trnka will see action in the side horse, high bar, parallel bars, flying rings and tumbling events.

Traficante will compete in the side horse, flying rings, parallel bars and rope climb, if he makes the southern trip. Dan, a junior, placed fifth in the sidehorse competition in the NCAA meet.

Lee, the alternate for the proposed venture into the South, participates in the flying rings, parallel bars and tumbling events. Billy may come into his own this season especially as a tumbler.

This Southern tour should serve as an ideal tuneup for later meets in the Eastern league, of which Syracuse is a member team. Several of the other teams in this league open their seasons early, and the Piety gymnasts must get in ample shape for competition against league teams.

The schedule:

Dec. 14, N. Carolina, away.
Dec. 15, Duke, away.
Dec. 17, Florida State, away.
Feb. 6, Penn State, away.
Feb. 13, Temple, home.
Feb. 20, Navy, home.
March 6, Army, away.
March 12, Eastern's at Temple.

Zebes, Phi Delts Score in Bowling

M-2, Betas Also Bowl to Victory

By BOB TATA

The pins were flying last night in the intramural bowling league. In the four matches held, Beta Theta Pi, Skytop M-2, Zeta Beta Tau and Phi Delta Theta were the winners.

The tightest battle of the evening, between Skytop M-2 and Skytop M-5, ended with M-2 holding a slim 5-4 margin. This contest was highlighted by Dick Pittman's rolling of the night's high single, 208.

Another interesting encounter was the Tau Delt-Beta Theta Pi match. Although the final score was 7-2 in favor of the Betas, the boys of Tau Delt gave them many an anxious moment.

Late in the third game, Charlie Williams, Lou Grossman, Danny Present, and Curly Adler began to hit. It took a little extra effort for the Betas' big guns, the Heydit brothers, to ice the game and match for the victors.

United Press Nominates Stark, Kukowski to All-Eastern Eleven

Additional all-East honors were received by Orange stalwarts Pat Stark, Ted Kukowski and Bob Fleck, it was learned yesterday. Stark and Kukowski were named to the United Press Eastern squad while Kukowski and Fleck got bids from the Chicago Tribune team.

Placed on the UP ballot by board of eastern sports writers and coaches, Stark and Kukowski's selections marked the only school to place two men on the team besides Army who garnered three positions.

The Chicago Tribune poll, unique in that it is picked by the players, solicited all of the major eastern schools for its selections, Syracuse was the only squad to place two men on the first team.

Fleck also took second team honors in the UP poll while Stark made the runnerups in the newspaper bids. Orange halfback Bob Leberman received honorable mention from the United Press.

Concerning Stark, the UP had this to say, "He was an excellent ball-handler and field general in Syracuse's T-attack." It was the second straight year that Pat had made the first team for United Press.

Others included on both all-East clubs was Gene Filipski, Villanova's outstanding back who helped to upset Syracuse and Bob Mischak, from Army who was described by many coaches as the "best all-around end in the East."

Jack Shanafelt, a tackle from Pennsylvania, Dick Polak, Yale's outstanding guard and Dick Clashy, Harvard's triple-threat halfback also made both squads.

Grads Commissioned in USNR

Eighteen holders of bachelor's degrees from Syracuse university were recently commissioned ensigns in the United States Naval reserve after graduation from the Navy's Officer Candidate school at Newport, R. I.

One Syracuse university graduate and holder of a master's degree in business administration has successfully completed an eight week indoctrination course and has been commissioned an ensign with a group of officers who are members of the Naval Reserve's Medical Service corps, Supply corps and Civil Engineering corps.

HE IS Bruce G. Mitchell, who received the MBA degree this June and was awarded a bachelor of science degree in 1951.

Of the group of 18, nine were awarded bachelor of arts degrees from this university. They are Alan J. Hartnick of Brooklyn, Leonard MiLano of Bronx, Lewis A. Rhodes of Jamaica, L. I., James N. Pincus of Buffalo, Morton Hirschklau of Passaic, N. J., Crosby Nash of Roslyn Heights, Donald E. Peterson of Easton, Pa., John A. Barnaba of Syracuse and Albert B. Lauderbaugh of Washington, Pa.

Seven winners of bachelor of science degrees were commissioned Friday, Nov. 13. They include David G. Anderson of Mottville, N. Y., Robert W. Frevert of Waterbury, Conn., Richard D. Douglas of Syracuse, Carl Roberts of West Hartford, Conn., Bernard J. Galvin of Rochester, Walter Jarck of Catskill, John E. Gersbach of Shortsville, N. Y., and Herbert D. Hammett Jr. of Williston Park, L. I.

Ronald Corn, who holds a bachelor of industrial design degree from this university, was also commissioned with the group.

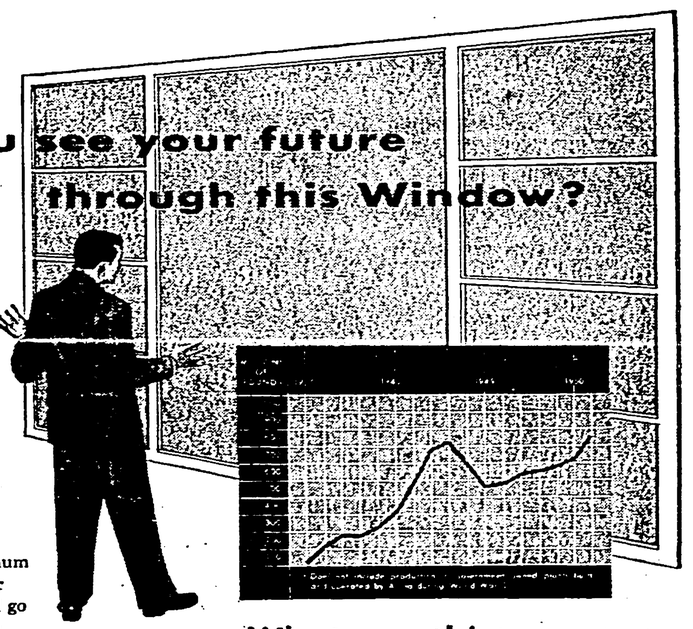
Can you see your future through this Window?


This is an aluminum window, one of four million that will go into buildings in 1953. Twenty years ago, it was just an idea in the mind of an Alcoa development engineer. Ten years ago, only a few thousand were made annually.
Now, production is increasing at the rate of over half a million a year. This is just one of a torrent of new uses for aluminum which means that Alcoa must continue to expand. Consider the opportunities for you if you choose to grow with us.
What can this mean as a career for you?
This is a production chart : : : shows the millions of pounds of aluminum produced by Alcoa each year between 1935 and 1951. Good men did good work to create this record. You can work with these same men, learn from them and qualify yourself for continually developing opportunities. And that production curve—is still rising, we're still expanding, and opportunities for young men joining us now are almost limitless.
Ever-expanding Alcoa needs engineers, metallurgists, and technically minded "laymen" for production, research and sales positions. If you graduate soon, if you want to be with a dynamic company that's "going places," get in touch with us. Benefits are many, stability is a matter of proud record, opportunities are unlimited.

Fair Weather Flag Returned to WAER; Mystery Solved

Anonymous Student Accepts Responsibility; Writes Letter

WAER's flag dilemma, it would seem, has been dissolved.

According to a letter received by Gilbert Katz, publicity director of the campus station, (see letter, page 2), an anonymous student is responsible for the disappearance of WAER's "fair weather" flag. The green and white banner disappeared from the east quadrangle light tower on Friday evening, Nov. 20, sometime between 2 and 6 p.m.

The unidentified writer informed Katz that "the description of the flag fits perfectly a flag I have. However this flag was found floating at 12 midnight that evening, so it can't possibly be the one you want."

In the spirit of good will, the student promised to return the missing article.

HANK GOBETZ will be one of the three returning lettermen for Joe McDaniel's wrestlers. Gobetz will probably wrestle at 167 pounds.

The letter followed an article in Tuesday's edition of The Daily Orange announcing that the flag had vanished. Valued at $15, the banner was part of a program inaugurated by WAER to forecast the weather each day on campus by means of three colored flags.

IN REPLY to the note, Katz, on behalf of the station, stated that "we can take a joke as well as the next person" but that "we await the return of the flag eagerly."

Katz added that WAER will discontinue the service until the flag is returned. He requested the anonymous writer to return the flag "as soon as possible."

The weather flags have not been flown since Nov. 20.

Boar's Head Slates One Act Comedy

Program to Include Group of Poems

Boar's Head will present a group reading of "Alcestis in the Underworld," this Sunday at 4 p.m. according to Sid Kalsheim. Special recognition goes to the fact that Boar's Head is one of the first college drama clubs to perform group readings.

Featured in the cast will be Sue Taylor in the role of Alcestis, Sidney Kalsheim as her husband, Dan Leary as Death and Matt Seidman as Hercules.

The one act comedy, presented in conjugation with Boar's Head, was written and directed by Prof. Ray Irwin of the School of Speech. It centers around a Greek legend in which a faithful wife who volunteered to die for her husband is rescued from her fate by Hercules.

Another highlight of the program will be a presentation of the "Facade" suite by Miss Rosemary Sinnett, instructor in the School of Speech and Prof. Irwin. The suite consists of poems by Edith Sitwell set to music by William Walton.

Admission is free, and a repeat performance is scheduled for Dec. 13.

Siegfried Praises NY Newspaperman

Professor Laurance B. Siegfried, chairman of the Graphic Arts department in the School of Journalism acted as toastmaster at a testimonial dinner at the Hotel Statler in New York city. The dinner was givein for Paul A. Bennett on Dec. 3.

Mr. Bennett for 30 years has run the typographical department of the Linotype News.

The dinner was attended by most of the leading figures in typography in New York city Among those at the head table were Alfred Knoph the publisher, and Fred Melcher, editor of Publisher's Weekly.

Lecturer to Speak On Segregation

Mrs. Mirian Perry Yankauer, former assistant counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will speak at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Hopps Memorial church, 707 S. McBride st.

The guest lecturer will discuss the school segregation cases that are to be reargued in the United States Supreme court on Monday.

Keyboard Classics

Chairmen Appointed For Greek Weekend

Robert Goldstein

James Messina

James Messina and Robert Goldstein have been appointed co-chairmen of Interfraternity council weekend, April 2-4, according to Frederick (Fritz) Briggs, IFC president.

The two chairmen requested yesterday that all persons interested in committee chairmanships contact Messina, 105 College pl., 4-9052.

CHAIRMANSHIPS include overall Friday night chairman, literature, decorations, banquet, Saturday night entertainment and also refreshments chairmen.

Applicants should include local address, phone number, previous experience in planning such affairs and include ideas for the 1954 weekend.

Friday evening open house will be held April 2. All University students will be invited, and a jazz combo will entertain the gathering.

Saturday night, April 3, the annual IFC formal will be held with a "name" band supplying said. The Chancellor's cup will be awarded to the fraternity showing the outstanding all-around achievement. The University Scholarship cup and the IFC Sing cup will also be presented at the affair.

A DIVING exhibition, similar to that held last year, will be conducted during intermission.

The annual IFC banquet will be held preceding the ball. IFC officers, weekend chairmen and all guests will attend the affair in the Hotel Syracuse.

Goldstein and Messina announced yesterday that Arthur Siegel has been appointed publicity chairman for the weekend.

Goldstein is a member of Alpha Epsilon Pi and a Marines veteran. He was chairman of last year's IFC banquet and is business manager of The Daily Orange. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Psi, business men's professional honorary.

Messina is former president of Kappa Sigma and was previously co-chairman of IFC weekend. He had two years on the varsity grid squad but had to give it up after being stricken with polio. His other activities include chairman of the fraternty divison of Campus Chest.

Celebrated Pianist To Present Recital

Ernst Bacon Schedules Program of Classics

Ernst Bacon, pianist and composer, will give a recital Sunday in Crouse auditorium at 4 p.m.

Pulitzer prize winner and holder of two Guggenheim fellowships, Bacon has toured as pianist and lecturer under the auspices of the Association of American colleges.

Bacon has composed two symphonies, "Ford's Theatre" and "From These States." He also wrote the opera "A Tree on the Plains" and numerous works for piano, orchestra and voice.

The first part of the program will include Variations in A major by Mozart, Schubert's Impromptu in C minor and moment musical in F minor.

Also included will be Brahm's Rhapsody in B minor and Stabat Mater by Pergolesi, which will be done by soloists Lorraine Smorol, Victoria Gorcoff and Margaret Lynch.

Bacon will next present the Sonata Appassionata by Beethoven. The program will close with five songs from "Quiet Airs" sung by Donald Ross Wittig, baritone and directed by Bacon.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

The next presentation in the series will be given Dec. 14, when Frank Hakanson will direct the University chorus in a Christmas concert.

Forestry College Prints Yule Book

Prof. Floyd E. Carlson of the State University of New York College of Forestry has prepared a 3-page booklet, "The Story of Your Christmas Tree," which explains the symbolisms of the tree at Christmas and describes its various parts in detail.

"The Story of Your Christmas Tree" may be obtained without charge by writing to the Extension Department, State University of New York College of Forestry, Syracuse 10, New York.

Home Ec Students Receive Awards For Achievement

Martha Smith, Ann Lines Cited by Harold Coon, Borden Co. Foundation

Martha Ann Smith and Ann Lines received the Emily Gere Coon Award and the Borden Award, respectively, last night preceding the Home Economics carnival.

Miss Smith, a sophomore major in Home Economics Education, received the first Emily Gere Coon award of $50 on the basis of character, loyalty, service to the University and scholarship. Her name will be placed on a plaque in the college.

SHE ACHIEVED a 2.06 average in her freshman year, and was president of her living center. Miss Smith is affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

The award, given for achievement in the freshman year, was made possible by Harold J. Coon, assistant superintendent of Syracuse schools and husband of the late Emily Gere Coon. Mrs. Coon was a member of the first graduating class from the Home Economics college. She was a faculty member from 1927 to 1929.

Miss Lines, also majoring in Home Economics education, received the Borden award of $300 with an over-all average of 2.57. She is a senior officer in Women's Student government, and is in charge of the Through the Keyhole training program.

She is a member of Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorable, and Omicron Nu, Home Economics honorary, and is affiliated with Alpha Phi sorority.

MISS LINES received a certificate of recognition, and her name will be placed on a plaque.

The Borden Award has been awarded since 1945 to the student in Home Economics who had the highest scholastic average at the end of her junior year. She must have taken at least two courses in foods and nutrition.

Syracuse is one of 33 colleges to which the Borden Company foundation gives an award for scholarship.

Last year's recipient of the Borden award was Claire Church, who was vice-president of WSG, president of Omicron Nu, and a member of Eta Pi Upsilon.

Grads May Apply For Wilson Grant

Prospective graduate students, who are interested in the Woodrow Wilson fellowships, which provide a full year of graduate study in any graduate school in the United States or Canada, should consult a member of the faculty now.

The fellowships can only be awarded on the basis of nomination by a faculty member. They are given to students who have maojred in the Humanities or social sciences.

Graduate programs can be secured in 211 Maxwell or in 106 HL.

The Association of Graduate Schools sponsors these fellowships with the aid of the Carnegie Corporation and the Central Education board.

Orange Invades Buffalo; Face Canisius Tomorrow

JIMMY YOUNG, Canisius captain and guard, will lead the Golden Griffins against Syracuse tomorrow night in Buffalo's Memorial auditorium. The 5 ft.-11 Philadelphian is a good driver and possesses a fine set shot.

Niagara Clashes Against Fordham In Opening Tilt

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Marc Guley and his speedy Orangemen face their first major test of the young cage season tomorrow when they tackle Canisius in the second game of a Buffalo Memorial auditorium doubleheader.

Niagara and Fordham, a pair of future Piety opponents, open the evening's activity at 8 p.m. with the nightcap scheduled for 9:30 p.m.

COACH GULEY will probably start the quintet that rolled over Ithaca in the second half of last Saturday's opener: Ronnie Kilpatrick and Captain Mel Besdin at forwards, Dave Kline at center, Jack Larned and Lou (Happy) Cegala in the backcourt. Either Walt Scott or Manny (Boob) Breland may break into the starting lineup, however.

Kilpatrick gave every indication in the opener that he has reached the stardom predicted for him when he came to Piety Hill two seasons ago. The former Madison High school (Rochester) star dumped in 22 points and did a fine job rebounding. He will again play the pivot against the Griffins.

Besdin and Kline, the Saltine frontcourt-men, split 28 points Saturday and will again be counted on for a good share of the scoring and rebounding.

Smallest man on the squad at 5 ft.-8, Cegala will be starting his first varsity contest in what to him, is a homecoming event. An all-Buffalo selection two years ago at Lafayette high school, Hap earned his starting chance with a 13-point performance in the Ithaca tilt.

LARNED, ALTHOUGH only a junior, has two years of varsity experience and will act as the steadying influence on the sophomore starter, whether it be Cegala, Scott or Breland.

Joe Curran, Canisius coach, is in his first year as head mentor after leading the Griffin frosh for two seasons. The former Penn State hoop captain has installed a fast-breaking attack built around his speedy guards and a pair of returned servicemen.

Captain Jimmy Young, a 5 ft.-11 senior from Philadelphia, and former Syracuse Jerry Large draw the backcourt assignments. Veterans Jerry Stockman and John Zatorski furnish most of the Griffs' rebounding strength while either senior Don Dunn or junior Bob Adams gets the other starting position.

Young, only returnee from last year's starting quintet, is the playmaker of the Golden Griffins. He is also a good driver and possesses a fine set shot.

ONE OF the stars of Syracuse's junior varsity two years ago when

Exec Council Named For '54 Campus Chest

Co-chairmen JoAnn Swalm and Stuart Parker have announced the members of the executive council for the 1954 Campus Chest committee. This council will act as the governing group for the overall Campus Chest membership of 16 committees.

Included in the council are Carol Terpening, executive secretary; Jon Bjornson, treasurer; Diane Hirchhorn and Stuart Smith, promotions; Millicent Auerbach and Robert Lefko, publicity; and Jane Arnold and Bernard Bregman, speaker's bureau. Miss Swalm and Parker will act as directors of the group.

Students are needed to work on the various committees in planning and executing the Campus Chest drive. Scheduled to begin Feb. 22, the campaigning will last for one week and is the only fund soliciting oragnization on campus. Proceeds will be distributed among eight charity organizations.

The chairman have announced the theme for this year's drive will be "Now It The Time." Present plans are to have a song written depicting this theme and distributed throughout campus.

Conservation Film Catalogue Printed

A new Forest conservation film catalog has been published by the department of forest extension at the State University of New York College of Forestry.

Films are available for loan to educational institutions and organizations in New York state without charge. Copies of the catalog including details of films loans may be obtained by writing the Department of Forest Extension, State University of New York College of Forestry, Syracuse 10, N. Y.

The catalog lists twenty-six 16 mm. motion pictures, fourteen 2x2 colored slide sets, and four 35 mm. film strips on such topics as forest conservation, forestry vocation, soil and water conservation and wildlife.

They are not intended for commercial use or for home entertainment. The films will be available without charge.

Brown: Voters to Reject McCarthy

By JANET CARO
Daily Orange Executive Editor

Americans will repudiate McCarthyism ultimately, once made aware of the issue involved, Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown predicted last night.

Speaking to a meeting of Students for Democratic Action, the chairman of Maxwell's citizenship and American studies departments said that when people realize that it is their freedoms which are under attack from his fear-mongering; they will overwhelmingly decide against it.

"PEOPLE WHO think differently on many questions still can get together on supreme issues," he said. "The issue of McCarthyism involves Americans' individual liberties and civil rights and the effect that the preservation of these liberties has on the rest of the world."

Tracing the evolution of today's climate of opinion, Dr. Brown said that fear-mongers have transferred the actual danger of Soviet Communism to an internal situation which is not really dangerous, throwing a scare into the American public for advancement of their own purposes.

He commented that if McCarthyism has taen over the Administration, it is because when the senator from Wisconsin made his first accusations in 1950, the Republicans did not denounce him; because as he grew more effective, they did not disown him; and because in the 1952 election they advised Eisenhower support McCarthy and urge his re-election.

"And now they cannot throw him out," the speaker said. "If they tried, McCarthy, confident of his own following, would call them all 'unpatriotic, disloyal and treacherous men who belong with the Truman-Acheson crowd.'"

McCARTHY HAS offered a challenge to the American people, Brown said, in stating that McCarthyism will be a major issue in 1954. It is the duty of people who realize that McCarthyism is to convince others.

Commenting on the current Harry Dexter White case, Brown called Attorney-General Brownell's accusations against former President Truman "a clear-cut and outrageous violation of the responsibility of a government executive."

He termed Brownell's statement "unprecedented" in that it called an individual guilty of treason al-

'Self educated man is a thing of the past;' New income tax bill may aid in college expenses

Priceless gift

The light touch of Mozart . . . the soothing melodic theme of a Brahms rhapsody . . . Beethoven's familiar "Appasionata" . . . choral music by the Madrigal Singers . . . these are the cultural gifts which will be offered Sunday afternoon in Crouse auditorium.

The featured performer of the admission-free concert will be Prof. Ernst Bacon, Pulitzer award winner from the School of Music. The winner of two Guggenheim fellowships, the pianist-composer will play four numbers and direct the singers in two others, including one of his own composition.

Dr. Bacon has been associated with the University for more than seven years and has been an active composer during this time. He has completed two symphonies and is currently working on a third on commission from the Louisville Symphony orchestra.

His work has been acclaimed not only in this country but in other nations as well. The New York Times called him a "composer who has the rare ability to write simply and melodiously, while at the same time imbuing his music with subtleties of harmony which make it up-to-date and unusually intriguing." The New York Herald-Tribune hailed him as one of America's best composers.

The personnel of the School of Music are individually among the foremost musicians in the country. The director himself has gained national prominence for his work in music therapy.

Although the faculty thus consists of names familiar in their fields, it is rare indeed when Crouse auditorium is filled near capacity for the concerts which feature these men.

The concerts themselves are part of the public service a University should render the community. Students are a part of that community.

Why not prove Sunday that a man does not necessarily have to be without honor in his own country?

Deductible tax

Congress may soon consider a new bill, to be introduced by Sen. Burnet R. Maybank, that would lighten the tax burden for parents of college students, and indirectly, for te students themselves. This proposal would classify educational expenses in the same category as business or medical expenses for purposes of tax deductions.

The only information so far does not make it clear whether the plan would include only tuition or all college expenses. It said only that the money would be deductible in cases where expenditures exceed five per cent of the parents' income.

No doubt there is merit in such a proposal. However, we do not consider that the deductions should be extended to anything beyond tuition. Much as we dislike to admit it, an extension might excessively discriminate in favor of the well-to-do parent or against those persons who do not attend college.

Even more merit is inherent in the proposal that has been kicked around for years by various organizations and by a few legislators. It would allow students to earn more money annually without being taxed and would allow their parents to continue to claim them as "dependents."

At present, if a student earns more than $600 per year, he must pay personal income tax and his parents can no longer claim him as a deduction.

This second proposal, while dependent strictly on the initiative of the student, would not heavily burden the finances of the nation and certainly could not be termed "unfair discrimination" in favor of college students.

Education is no longer a luxury. In most fields it has become a necessity. There is no reason that it should be taxed as a luxury. Either of the two proposals mentioned will take it from the luxury category.

These measures could reconcile the high costs of education in a manner that would be fair to all parties concerned—which, in addition to the student, include the taxpayers.

'Ink in My Veins'

By ANDRA KADILIS

Ghanshym J. Advani is already quite popular in Syracuse with his articles in The Post-Standard, which are mainly on India and the United States. Whether what he writes are his true opinions is another question, and that's why it would be interesting to find out more about Ghanshym or Eddie for short (where this nickname really comes from is yet a mystery).

One thing about Eddie is sure though, it is very doubtful whether he will ever reach Nirvana (the Hindu Paradise). If people do a lot of good deeds and live according to the Hindu religion, their souls after death are born always into a higher being till finally they reach Nirvana. But in the other case, their souls descend to some lower living thing. One of the strictest rules in the religion is, that you can not eat beef, since the cows are sacred. As for Eddie, he is so excited about hamburgers, that he eats them anyway. But there still is one salvation for him, and that is, as soon as he returns to India or his home town Bombei, to take a dip in the Ganges river, so that all his sins could be washed away. Ganges as you know is the Hindu sacred river, which is said to descend from the head of Kumbh Mela the Hindu God. And so once a year, all Hindus wash themselves in this sacred river.

Eddie has already a B.A. in law which he studied in India, but "because of the great urge for writing and mixing in other people's business," Eddie is now majoring in journalism and political science. "I really have been born with printer's ink in my veins," says Eddie.

Eddie is working for the largest newspaper in India, through which he has met most of the world's important people. Right now Eddie is the president of the graduate press club. As a real journalist Eddie "feels at home no where, and out of place everywhere."

What impresses Eddie most about the U.S. is the equality of the people and the true democracy, whereas in his country there are great extremes of poverty and richness. Also the cast system still exists even though officially it has been abolished. There are also no more maharajahs with white elephants and the conditions are being improved lately with the help of the United States.

Eddie is very pleased with the English language with which he can travel all over the U. S. In India he thinks it very tiresome to use his hands all the time, speaking with people from other states, since there exists 20 big languages and some smaller ones.

Our journalist sounds very unidealistic, as he advises all foreign students to use the American dating system which is so liberal compared to his own country, where marriages are still arranged by the parents. He thinks that this is the best way to find out more about the United States.

Eddie admires greatly the realistic approach to life of Americans, where in India many people are too concerned about their lives in the other world to make their living better in this world.

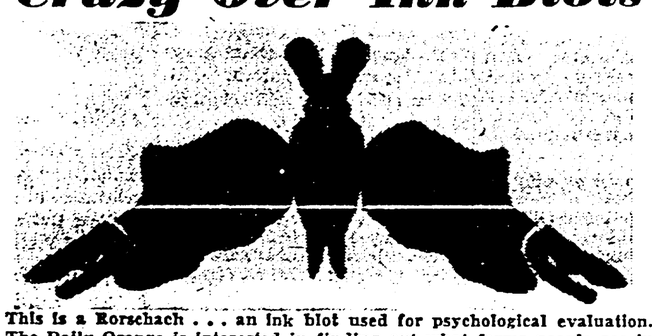
Crazy Over Ink Blots



This is a Rorschach . . . an ink blot used for psychological evaluation. The Daily Orange is interested in finding out what forms people see in this ink blot. Turn the page sideways or upside-down, but which ever way you hold it let us know what your interpretations of it are.

By JOHN JOHNSRUD

Do you think you're crazy? Or do you think a friend of your's is? One way to determine mental balance is to take Rorschach or ink blot test.

In this test a person's reactions to a series of abstract forms is used to indicate personality and mental characteristics.

Some people would identify a certain blot of ink as a dismembered body while another would see in the same form a serene landscape. Both these responses, together with other factors brought to light by the answers, form a picture of each subject's personality.

A Rorschach may be looked at in many ways. It may be viewed as a whole or as individual sections each being independently interpreted. It may be seen as either a static or a moving form. It may have animal characteristics or a human interpretation. The color and shadings of the blot may also influence the recation of the subject.

Attempts at evasions of standard responses, unusual answers, of greater or smaller extent, and other deviations form an established norm in interpretation all indicate aberrations in personality.

The campus Phychological Research Center in connection with its other psychological services gives these ink blots tests to evaluate some of its cases.

Hermann Rorschach, orginator of this method of psychological evaluation, was born in Zurich in 1884, and later decided to take up the study of medicine. After working in several asylums and sanatoriums he became physician in a Swiss psyciatric clinic where he first evolved his new evaluation technique.

However unbalanced or maladjusted you may be, just don't flip and go crazy over ink blots.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Marching Band Blast

Wasted

To the editor:

The following letter is the swansong of a four-year veteran of the Syracuse university Marching Band.

Two or more nights a week through four football seasons I have marched in rain, snow, nice and lousy weather—for what? The only tangible reward was a ruined musical instrument (my own) and a few colds.

The new uniforms were really something terrific. Of course, each member had to buy his own tie, hat and shoes. This typifies University attitude toward the band.

We did go down to the Orange Bowl and it was a great trip. I am grateful that the city of Syracuse was interested enough to take up a collection to finance the band's trip and literally force the University officials to finally give in.

But this year was really the greatest. The band had improved greatly, thanks to Kenny, who has done a great job. Of course, that meant nothing to the money spenders. At the beginning of the year we were given a choice of going to Illinois or Villanova. The members of the band chose Villanova and were certainly cheated. Our trip this year consisted of a 50-mile jaunt to Cornell. Because the weather made driving slow, the University officials must have considered this our long trip.

We were not served any food on that trip, either. The University should include a lunch in the budget at the Cornell games. Cold hotdogs were served by the vendors in the stands for those that couldn't bring their own.

Then came Colgate. Our last appearance of the year found band members receiving cheese sandwiches as rewards for their year's service. This must have been to impress the alumni and visitors.

I advise all those interested in playing in the band to consider the above-mentioned facts. Outside of the joy of playing, you'll get nothing as a reward for your services. You even have to pay for the extra hours to receive school credit.

In closing, this is a note to the officials who control the finances of the band. It will never be a Michigan caliber outfit (they even offer full scholarships there) until you decide to open your dusty wallets and offer something to a band member besides the "glory of old Syracuse."

A disgusted band member

WAER

(Editor's note: Following an article printed in Tuesday's Daily Orange regarding the disappearance of WAER'S weather flag, Gil Katz, publicity director of the campus station, received the letter reprinted below.)

Dec. 2

"Dear Mr. Katz,

I read an article in today's DO which said a green weather flag was borrowed Fri., the 21st, between 2 and 6 p.m. The description fits perfectly a flag I have. However, this flag was found floating at twelve that night, so it can't possibly be the one you want. It might be substituted for the missing one if you would like it. You better advise the publicity man to come a little earlier, though, I would hate to see this one go the same way.

Fear not, fair sir, we will not let fellow Syracusans go without the weather forecasts. Someone might get wet in the unexpected showers.

As far as the flag's being of use to anyone I might say it is. A little color always does the heart good. (a Christmas color at that.)

The bitter article on the inside page was not part of your work, I hope. I realize the junior lovelorn editors have to try serious writing now and then too. We should get along beautifully. I, with no use for them and they, with no use for news subjects.

Enough has been said about this little banner. Now let's all get back to important matters and take a mature attitude towards the harmless frolics.

I will not sign my name because you would not know who I am anyway. So this may be placed in the files of "cowardly anonymous letters."

P.S. If you really paid $15 for that, you got took."

(editor's note: the following is WAER'S reply to the anonymous note.)

"We at WAER can take a joke as well as the next person, but it is difficult for an educational radio station working under professional conditions to arbor any great delight over such a childish feat.

We await the return of the flag eagerly so as to be able to continue our service to the University area."

Tax College Fees?

By ED HARDY
Editorial Page Writer

A proposal which should interest budget-wary students was picked out of the mail box by student government officials this week.

Senator Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina is expected to appear before the Senate finance committee when Congress reconvenes in January to ask for an amendment to the federal income tax law. The change would include educational expenses in the same category as medical expenses, which are now detuctable in the amount they exceed five per cent of total income.

The student council at the University of Louisville is supporting Maybank's plan and even suggests that a flat deduction might be feasible.

Louisville students have sent letters to their senators and representatives in Washington asking for backing of such a bill and now the Kentucky university is trying to enlist student governments in other schools across the nation to do the same.

Louisville students point out that it is extremely hard in these days with the high cost of living for a man with average income to pay for a college education for even one child while trying to meet ordinary living expenses. "The present (income tax) rates have almost made the self-educated man a thing of the past, or at least he is rapidly becoming extinct."

The student council even goes so far as to say that "Not only would this (plan) relieve some of the unwarranted financial strain of obtaining an education, but we feel strongly that it would also raise the educational standards of the country in a manner which would take second place only to the recent GI bill of rights.

It must be admitted that what they say is true. It often takes a bit of sacrifice for a family to scrape up the money to send a son or daughter—or even both—to college. Tuition rates keep going up with no promise of a ceiling.

If a student works to earn money for tuition, he often makes more than the $600 tax-free amount. Then he pays taxes and his parents lose him as a deduction. The proposed change would help this.

Only tuition, however, should be deductable, for there can be no accurate control on various other expenses connected with an education, such as books, room and board.

It might be worth while for student government at Syracuse university to look into the ideas of the Louisville council and take suitable action.

ART FOR ART'S SAKE OR MESSAGE

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

In Art, a controversy has long been ranging between those who Art for Art's sake and those who prefer Art wit a "message". Either perference is largely a matter of taste, but it is the rare work that can fulfill both functions. "Rome, 11 O'Clock," now at the Eckel, is such a wok.

The Italian import concerns itself with a catastrophe which took place in Rome in 1952, when a staircase holding 300 women collapsed. The women, most of whom were badly injured, were gathered in answer to an ad for a typist's position.

The script, the result of several writers, presents a broad tapestry of human suffering threaded by a series of moving personal vignettes. The treatment is that of a massive canvas, the components of which, have been handled with consummate skill.

The film has its flaw. As is the case in all high tragedies, it skirts dangerously around the edge of bombast. Although the scene in which the catastrophe takes place is tremendously powerful, it is dishearteningly strident. In an attempt to present a graphic picture of the catastrophe, it comes close to screeching itself into a state of absurdity. If only the women suffered more inaudibly! But these flaws can not obscure its exceptional artistry.

The amazing thing about "Rome, 11 O'Clock" is that it changes from a melodrama, to a sociological tract for our times, with all the subtlety characteristic of fine craftsmanship. For the latter part of the film is concerned with the attempts of the police to fix responsibility for the disaster. The whole horror of mal-functioning society is thereby revealed. Provocative, moving, disturbing; the film can not help but impress you.

Nor, does its value rest only in the writing. It is acted by an extraordinarily beautiful group of women, with perception and power. Outstanding in the superb cast is Lea Padovani, in a trenchant portrayal of a prostitute and Lucia Bose, who give an exquisitely fragile portrait of a sensitive young society girl. Guissepe De Santis has turned out a great film. His directing is a wonderful example of the perfect mating of craft and talent.

A trip to the Eckel will be richly worth your while. We heartily urge you to see "Rome, 11 O'Clock."

Correction

In the DO of December 2, it was said in a story entitled "Liquor Loops Us All" that the Yale study advised the use of scotch and soda for "whiskey throat." Actually, the Yale study does not advocate the use of scotch and soda for whiskey throat. They just say that excessive drinking of straight whiskey causes it. If a person drinks highballs or similar drinks, he will not get the husky voice associated with the heavy drinker.

Symposium Offers International Views Of Modern Writing

Conservative Literature Discussed, Reviewed In Many Languages

By POLLY REED

"Symposium provides a badly needed outlet for scholarship in the modern foreign languages and literatures," said Dr. Winthrop H. Rice, business manager of Symposium. "Its broad program makes it an accessible means of publication for much material which would not fit into the more restricted scheme of most periodicals."

Symposium was launched in 1946 by the romance languages department with University support. It is managed by a local executive board of editors with the aid of an international board of associate editors.

The periodical pools the talents and knowledge of literature experts all over the world in attempting to give a better insight into the reading of literature.

ON THE editorial board at Syracuse are professors Anna Balakian; Edwin H. Cady; Albert J. George; Frederic J. Kramer; G. Norman Laidlaw; Dean W. McPheeters, review editor; Albert D. Menut; Antonio Pace, chairman; Winthrop H. Rice; Homero Seris, and Adolph D. Weinberger.

Associate editors come from colleges all over the United States, South America and Europe. Symposium distribution covers 30 foreign countries, in addition to the Americas. A Moscow library even had a subscription for three years, but it was abruptly cancelled in 1949.

Publication is a labor of love, carried on over and above normal academic duties.

Differing points of view in literature are presented as much as is possible. Symposium studies te scientific nature of language, and the culture of which the literature is a part.

TWO ISSUES a year are produced, usually appearig in May and November. Symposium is the only literary journal printed in non-letterpress. Articles are printed by an IBM typewriter, then photographed on a zinc plate and run off on a press.

Throughout the world the issues are well thumbed by scholars in all the humanities who keep up with modern research. Symposium is acknowledged to be one of the foremost journals devoted to modern foreign languages and literatures. Wherever men of letters are found, Syracuse university's name and colors are also found in the form of Symposium.

Symposium is, needless to say, excellent advertising for Syracuse university. It has contributed to the reputation of the University nationally and internationally.

Contest Candidates

SELECTED TO compete in the annual White Contest are, left to right, DONALD MEGNIN, MARILYN MAWSON, ROSEMARY GRAHAM and RUDY JOHANNS. The winner will receive a $75 award.

Four seniors have been selected to compete for the $75 award to be presented to the winner of the 39th annual White Contest.

The contestants are: Miss Marilyn Mawson, a speech major who spoke on "We're Here—Now What?"; Donald Megnin, enrolled in liberal arts, who titled his talk "Insignificant—But"; Miss Rosemary Graham, a home economics major who discussed "World Federalism"; and Rudolph Johanns, enrolled in economics who spoke on "Free Trade".

The contest finals will be held on Dec. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in Maxwell auditorium. The Syracuse contestants will compete with two students from Utica College for the award. Eric Faigle, dean of the college of liberal arts, will be the chairman. The contest was established in 1916 by Horace and Ernest Ingersol White "as a tribute of affection and gratitude to the memory of" their father, Horace Keep White.

Sweetheart Contest Slated by Sigma Chi

Group Will Name Winner At Ball in January

Sigma Chi fraternity has announced plans for the annual sweetheart contest. Applications have already been distributed to all women's living centers, according to Walt Simendinger, social chairman.

The applications for queen will be picked up Dec. 7 and individuals will be asked to coffee at the Sigma Chi house between Dec. 8 and 11.

All houses on campus are asked to send one coed to represent them in the contest. Last year's winner was Shirley Fenner, a senior in drama.

ON Sets Deadline For Subscriptions

Deadline for purchasing the 1954 Onondagan is Dec. 15. The books can be purchased from Beverly Barr at the Chi Omega house or at the audio-visual center.

The order for the number of annuals to be published will be sent to the printer on that date and no additional books will be ordered.

Miss Barr requests that all ON house reps turn in their subscription blanks to her by 5 p.m. today. All blanks, whether used or not, and subscription money should be turned in.

Prohibition Repealed 20 Years Tomorrow

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Tomorrow is the 20th anniversary of the end of the noble experiment.

On Dec. 5, 1933, at 3:32 mountain standard time, 5:32 eastern standard time, the prohibition of alcoholic beverages as a national policy was ended.

The action came as Utah, the last of the 36 states, furnished by vote of its convention the constitutional majority for ratification of the 21st amendment.

With the repeal of prohibition came the death of the Volstead act, which for more than a decade had held legal drinks in the United States to less than .5 per cent of alcohol. The enforcement of the act had cost more than 150 lives and billions in money.

Earlier the same day Pennsylvania had ratified as the 34th state and Ohio as the 35th.

The Daily Orange of Dec. 5, which displayed the NRA eagle at the top left of page one, quoted several comments of the University administration in addition to reporting the news.

Dean Karl C. Leebrick of Liberal Arts stated that "the economic importance of repeal is negligible" and that "we cannot drink our way back to prosperity."

Dean Paul Shipman of the College of Law came out strongly in favor of repeal, adding his belief that "some benefit will be derived by taxation if we all put our shoulders to the wheel."

Finla G. Crawford, now vice-chancellor of the University, said "I have nothing to say."

The men's student senate went into session less than two hours after repeal and adopted a statement asking for assistance to the state in regard to the new state control regulations.

The senate urged each student "to regulate his personal conduct in a manner he believes is befitting the situation, and that at all times the honor of the University as well as his own personal integrity remain impeachable."

Perhaps a "special to the New York Times" from Annapolis, Md. "Wet legislators here will patriotically support legal liquor. The State House bootlegger received formal notice today to discontinue his trade.

"While his services were cut off eight hours before post-prohibition stuff could be bought, the bootlegger thought the legislators had obtained a sufficient reserve to carry them through until evening and legal liquor."

Geary of Cornell To Talk on Alaska

Entomologist Will Speak To Zoology Society

Major John M. Geary of the Entomology department at Cornell, will address the Forest Zoology Society on the topic, "Alaska—Some aspects of Biological Research," at 8 p.m. today in room 222 Marshall.

Geary has been active in the Army and Air-force for eleven years. During this time he has participated in early DDT research, the first Einiwetok A-bomb tests, and Biological research for the Arctic-Aero-Medical Laboratory in Alaska.

At present Maj. Geary is completing work on his Ph.D. in Entomology, at Cornell. He also holds degrees from the University of North Carolina, Columbia, and North Carolina State.

Forum to Appraise Russian Conditions

Discussion Sponsored By Maxwell, Bus Ad

For the first time on the Syracuse campus, a forum on social and economic life in Russia will be conducted. Entitled "An Appraisal of Russian Social and Economic Life," The program will be held from 9 to 11:40 a.m., Thursday, Dec. 17, in Hendricks chapel.

The forum is sponsored by the College of Business Administration and the Maxwell Graduate School. The idea originated with the Student-Faculty Conference of the Business Administration school.

Speakers will be Dr. Wladyslaw Kulski, Major General William O. Reeder, Dr. Theo Suranyi-Ungar, and Dr. Harry Schwartz.

Their topics will be, respectively "The Soviet Up-Bringing of One-minded Citizens," "The Russian Military etoPnltiafa Military Potential", "Setting for US-USSR Relations," and "The Russian Economic Potential."

Following the speeches, discussion will be led by Hans Brandes, a student in the Maxwell Graduate School, and Salvatore Di Palma, a foreign trade student in Business Administration.

Questions may then be addresed to the speakers from the floor.

The forum is open to all students. 9, 10 and 11 o'clock classes for Business Administration students will be dismissed on that day.

Foreign Guides Plan Yule Party

International committee of chapel, Foreign students committee of St. Thomas More house and foreign student guides have invited students from other countries and American students to attend a Christmas party from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the University Ski lodge.

This is the second large social function planned by the foreign students this year. Entertainment and refreshments will be provided for those who attend.

Transportation will be by Skytop buses which leave from Sims hall on College pl.

Hill Cadets Take Part In Posthumous Award

LT. COL. GEORGE R. STEVENS III, professor of military science presents a posthumous Silver Star medal to GEORGE GAVURNIK for his son, M/Sgt. Andrew Gavurnik.

Lt. Col. George R. Stevens III, Professor of Military Science and Tactics, yesterday presented the Silver Star Medal to George Gavurnik of Skaneateles. The medal was awarded posthumously to Gavurnik's son M/Sgt. Andrew Gavurnik for gallantry in action in Korea.

Thirteen Army ROTC Cadets of the Syracuse unit took part in the ceremony. Ten members of the permanent party also participated.

Capt. Allan T. Sylvester of the local unit read the citation which accompanied the decoration. Capt. Sylvester had served with Sgt. Gavurnik in L Company, 6th Infantry Regiment in Berlin, Germany during 1950-51.

At that time Sgt. Gavurnik was the section leader in the weapons platoon. He had served in the Army since 1940.

In part the citation states that "during the early morning hours of 16 May 1953 Sgt. Gavurnik, with complete disregard for his own safety, set out and advanced through open and exposed trenches to a forward observer bunker located within close proximity of the enemy.

Arriving at his destination, he encountered heavy concentrations of enemy mortar and artillery fire. Nevertheless, he remained at his position relaying vital information to his men until mortally wounded.

His aggressiveness and courageous actions contributed materially to repulsing the enemy attack. Sgt. Gavurnik's outstanding gallantry and devotion to duty reflect great credit upon himself and the military service."

Grappling Team's Success Rests With Three Returning Lettermen

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The loss of six grapplers from last year's starting squad has left wrestling coach Joe McDaniel with only three returning lettermen on whom to build his 1953-54 team.

Provided with one of the best and toughest dual meet schedules in recent years, McDaniel will nevertheless have to rely heavily on sophomores up from last year's frosh squad.

BOB BURY and Dick Beyer will be missed most from the grapplers '53 squad. Hobbled by injuries through most of last season, Bury was still able to compile a favorable won and lost record.

The loss of Beyer leaves McDaniel with a big hole in the heavyweight division. One of the better wrestlers in the East, he will be hard to replace.

The other matmen from last year's squad who will be missed are Enzo Marinelli, Bob Hillman, Bob Campbell and Lee Martin.

Marinelli, whose younger brother Ronald is now a frosh wrestler, held the starting spot at the 177-pound level and was tough to beat when right.

SYRACUSE'S HOPES for the new year rest mainly on the board shoulders of co-Captain Ed Rooney. The well-built junior, although bothered by injuries, won all his dual meet bouts last year.

In his freshman year, Rooney was runner up in the Eastern's and National's at the 157 pound slot. This will be his third year of varsity competition. In 1951, freshmen were allowed to compete in varsity sports.

One of the candidates for the 137 pound slot is co-captain Charles DeBellis. A runner-up in last year's Eastern's, DeBellis is counted on to give strength to the Orange's lower weight.

The other returning letterman is Hank Gobetz. Gobetz was undefeated in five dual meets last season in the 167-pound class. With the departure of Martin, Gobetz will probably take over the regular spot.

JIM ROSE, Henry Bianowitz, Tom King and George Finck are four sophomores who are in the running for starting berths.

Rose went undefeated in dual meet competition last season. In his senior year in high school, he placed second in the National AAU's. Rose will be wrestling in the 123-pound class.

Candidate for the 130 pound starting slot is Bianowitz, while

Tom King will be vieing with Capt. DeBellis for the starting position at 137-pounds.

TWO OTHER upper classmen who are in the running for starting berths are Tom McDougal and Henry Dinkelmeyer. McDougal wrestles at te 167-pounds, wile Dinkelmeyer weighs in at 177-pounds.

Two years ago, McDougal won a letter at the 147 pound slot and in his senior year in high school, he won the National Junior AAU championship at 147-pounds.

This will be Dinkelmeyer's fourth year on the squad and he will undoubtedly see plenty of action. While McDaniel hasn't definitely made up his mind, he'll probably start at the 177-pound slot.

This will be one of the Orange's toughest schedules. Among dual meet opponents are Penn State, Michigan, Cornell and Lehigh.

PENN STATE is the defending National collegiate and Eastern champion. With most of their veterans from last year returning, the Nittany Lions figure to be just as tough this year.

Michigan is the defending Big Ten champion while Cornell was runner-up in last year's Easterns and third in the Nationals. Both squads have many veterans returning and are given good chances of improving last year's records.

Two other perennially strong teams are Franklin & Marshall and Lehigh. Syracuse lost to Lehigh in a close match last year, while two years ago, the Orange came out on top.

AXEL SPOTS—Enzo Marinelli and Dick Beyer are assisting Coach McDaniel with the frosh squad . . . This is the Orange's best schedule since pre-war days!

AAU Run Closes Harrier Season; Hillmen Second

Five Seniors Conclude College Careers With Winning Record

By BOB GROGAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse university closed its '53 cross country season with a second place finish in the National Senior AAU 10,000 meter run at Delaware Park, Buffalo, last weekend.

The meet was won by the New York Athletic Club, led by Fred Wilt who set a course record with his 31.17.6 time. Ray Osterhout was the first Piety harrier to cross the finish line. He finished fifth.

COACH BOB GRIEVE'S team thus ended the season with a record of four victories in five dual and triangular meets, a fourth place finish in the IC4A run, a third place finish in the NCAA's and a second in the AAU's.

Five seniors ended their intercollegiate careers with last weekend's race. Departing will be Frank Calzi, Tom Coulter, Don Fryer, Gene Parker and Osterhout. These runners formed the nucleus of this season's team.

Osterhout was the top Syracuse finisher in each of the races the Orangemen participated in this year. He was undefeated in dual and triangular meet competition and established a new course record in the Cornell meet at Ithaca.

Syracuse lost to Cornell for their only dual loss of the year. Piety harriers avenged this defeat in the IC4A race at Van Cortland Park in New York City, however, by finishing a notch ahead of the Big Red.

INCLUDED AMONG the Orange victims over the past campaign were: Colgate and Army in dual meets, and Navy, St. John's, Fordham and Iona in triangular runs.

The illness of junior Steve Armstrong just before the Cornell run was a definite factor in the Orange loss. Although he insisted on running, Armstrong was not able to perform up to his capabilities.

Les Vielbig, a promising sophomore, was also injured early in the season and was lost to Grieve for all three national collegiate races. His presence in the meets could have resulted in higher finishes for Syracuse in these events.

Grieve has a big rebuilding job on his hands for next season. He has fine competitors in Armstrong, Vielbig, Jim George and Ed Alger. Coming up from the freshman team will be Bob Milner, who is highly regarded by the Orange coach.

MILNER FINISHED first in frosh races against both Colgate and Cornell. He was also Grieve's only entry in the IC4A freshman meet.

The biggest problem which Grieve faces is finding a successor to Osterhout. Runners like the Orange captain are few and far between. There appears to be no one on the present Piety squad capable of replacing him.

DU Edges Delts for Third Victory, SAE Wins in Intramural Bowling

By EV MURCH

Last night's intramural action saw one 5-4 thriller, two 7-2 trouncings and three 9-0 whitewash jobs. Delta Upsilon continued to be one of the top teams, rolling to its third straight victory at the expense of Delta Tau Delta. SAE racked up one of the top games of the year by toppling 748 pins in their first set against Sigma Chi.

Sigma Chi came close to the SAE total by tallying a 745 in the second game but its effort fell short and a close 5-4 decision was lost. Ed Dalton was the big gun for SAE with a triple of 495.

Jenkins got high single and high for the night in the first game, smashing out a torrid 206. Ben Ernst was high man for Sigma Chi as he hit the pins for a very good 479.

Delta Upsilon took all but two points in their victory over Delta Tau Delta, losing their shutout due to a bad start in the first game. Jack Thkoden bowled another excellent triple, but his high of 536 wasn't enough to hold back the men of DU, who continued undefeated. Jack Chamberlain came out of the contest as top man for DU with 404.

Skytop M-8 broke into the win column for the first time as they downed M-7 in one of the lowest scoring contest of the season. Jerary Cohen led M-8 to their 7-2 victory with a 423.

Of the three shutouts the Psi U-Tau Epsilon Phi contest was the only outstanding match in that Psi U picked up high score for the evening's activity, belting the wooden sticks for an excellent 2101. Clyde Owens was top wrecker for the rampaging Psi U., contributing 480 pins to the attack.

In the other scheduled contests AEPi blanked Pi Kappa Alpha and Phi Kappa Psi did likewise to Acacia.

Phi Gam Wins 70-17, Frosh Brown Nets 50

By CHICK GYSEL

Bill Brown, stellar freshman athlete, set a new scoring record for the intramural basketball last night as he led Phi Gamma Delta to a rout of Beta Sigma Rho, 70-17. Brown poured in 50 points, 33 in the second half for his mark.

In the other contests, Skytop M-9 nipped Washington Arms 4 and 5, 24-22; Skytop M-2 over Grover Cleveland B, 43-39; and Alfred E. Smith trounced Skytop M-3, 38-21.

Brown was the whole show in the Phi Gam victory. Payoff man on the smooth working Phi Gam fast break, Brown scored nine baskets on layups. However, he utilized an amazing jump shot for 13 more hoops. In all he hit for 22 out of 24 field goal attempts against the hapless Beta Sigs. Brown contributed a fine floor game and was a powerhouse under the boards also.

A blond haired six-footer, Brown is the starting fullback for the Frosh grid team, in addition to his basketball prowess.

In the best all-around game of the evening, Skytop M-2 used a well balanced offense to defeat Grover Cleveland, 43-39. Doyle Roberts and jump shooting Ed Cheney were the outstanding players on the floor. Cheney, equipped with a deadly left hand and Roberts tossed in 12 and nine points respectively, to lead the winning team.

Paul Moran with 11 and Bob Kniffen's nine were high for the losers.

The thriller of the night was provided by Skytop M-9 and Washington Arms 4 and 5. Though leading throughout, Skytop was never more than four points ahead. At halftime they led 15-13. Stan Majoreski's 10 counters and John Yancey's rebounding were instrumental in Skytop's victory. It was Majoreski's final basket that proved to be the winning margin in the last minute of play.

For Washington Arms, Dave John was high man with eight. However, the "big man" of the Arms was Joel Karpay, whose floor generalship and playmaking made the Arms a constant threat.

In the finale, Alfred E. Smith possessed too many guns for Skytop M-3 to win by 17 points. The Smith boys outran, out-rebounded and of course outscored the inexperienced freshmen. Bob Conklin played an outstanding game in all departments and led in point-making with 12 markers. Al Edelman, a workhorse all evening, hit for eight for Smith. Top man for the M-3 aggregation was Don Ferguson who netted 7 points.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

At least two Syracuse teams will invade the South this year hoping to bring back a few Rebel scalps. Paul Romeo's gymnasts received the University's okay to leave a weak from tomorrow. They take on North Carolina, Duke and Florida State who are considered among the cream of Southern gymnastic aristocracy.

The Orange lacrosse squad also travels to the land of the Confederacy this spring. Lehigh and Maryland are two opponents already on the schedule with Coach Roy Simmons hoping to meet at least two more.

The world of sport is a hard, money-wise business. In no field is this more evident than those long, cross-country trips. It's hard on the coaches and hard on the boys but neither would trade the chance to "go on tour" for anything.

Syracuse, not being the richest endowed college, can provide the minimum for traveling, lodging and meals but that's about all. Both the gymnasts and the stickmen will travel by auto.

That means long, tiring hours after which it's hard to come up to usual standards. The finances dictate that the teams play their matches as soon as possible and get home. For instance, the Romeomen will be meeting their three opponents within four days.

With a tight schedule and long hours, one might wonder why the boys would bother traveling all that distance just for a few games with better-rested teams. It comes under the old cliche heading named "spirit."

* * * * *

Marc Guley's five basketeers should have their first real test tonight gaainst an unheralded Canisius quintet who were edged by top-ranked Dayton. Marc stated earlier this week that it's going to be a while before the team gets to playing a full forty minutes of the best basketball.

Right now he's working to get a starting combination which will integrate the veterans with the sophs. The NYU game in New York's basketball mecca, Madison Square Garden, doesn't help matters either.

This game, generally considered to be one of the big ones of the year for the Orange, comes too early in the sason for Syracuse to make the showing which is expected of them during the second half of the schedule.

The fact that Syracuse students will probably see their team in action only once, against Sampson AFB this Wednesday, is also a deterrant. The Guleymen play two home games during the Christmas holidays. It's a lot different to be playing to a packed house than to a select group of a few students, townspeople and ushers.

HOLLYWOOD FLASH: All Orange fans should go to the movies this week to see all-American Ted Kukowski on Paramount Newsreel's team. The show is playing at both the Paramount and RKO Keith's downtown.

ILLINOIS COMMENT: When asked by sportscaster Bill Stern last night if mighty Wisconsin was the toughest team Illini star J. C. Caroline had faced this year, the Look all-American answered, "No, Syracuse."

MEMO TO MARC: The NCAA's official Basketball Guide names Niagara as one of the "up-and-coming" teams in the East. The Purple Eagles, who meet Syracuse in a home-and-home series, were named as "sure-fire tournament material."

'He backs up the line'

All-American Ted Kukowski

By LEE KIKLIER

It was a biting cold day early last May and Hendricks field was dotted with the Syracuse university football team observing the ritual of spring practice. The "Whites" were scrimmaging the "Orange" in their second intra-squad game in two days.

Coach Ted Dailey, in charge of the "White" team, was huddled in his blue parka to keep out the wind. He turned, faced the bench (actually a row of players standing) and snapped: "Let's get Teddy out of there now; he's been in there all day." After Dailey made his choice, the sub ran in.

A STOCKY figure in a white jersey with a green 103 leisurely walked off the field, smilingly unwinding adhesive tape that surrounded a sprained wrist. He walked in short, choppy crisp steps and seemed to have just spent the time of his life. It that's so, then Theodore Thomas Kukowski has been spending the time of his life every Saturday of this year.

On any given Saturday, Ted could be found dirtying up his No. 59 by leaping into holes on any side of the line on one play and on the next, knocking down passes deep downfield. In short: he backs up the line.

At the end of last year, Syracuse fans were bemoaning the loss of Jim Ringo, a fine offensive center who was graduating to play for the Green Bay Packers. As Head Coach Ben Schwartzwalder once put it: "I use to go to bed every night and say a little prayer for a center."

His little prayer was answered when he received a letter one day from Clifton, New Jersey. It was from Joe Menegus who had played ball for Ben when he was a coach at Muhlenberg. Joe had run into a football player that was currently out of school and looking for a degree. He played football for Navy, was a good football player and an average student. Would Ben be interested?

SEVERAL DAYS later a letter trickled out from the football office in Archbold gym. Then the letters began to rush back and forth in rapid succession.

No, his marks weren't bad, he failed only one course (electricity) and the rest of his marks were good. He was demerited out because he grew tired of the strict routine.

Yes, he played center for Navy and played his best game in the Army game.

Yes, he would like to attend Syracuse.

AND FINALLY: his application.

He was accepted and came up for spring practice. He had to replace a center that earned himself a good reputation. Kukowski soon showed himself to be a rugged steady performer. The one feature that fascinated the coaches: he was seemingly tireless, like a monotonous metronome.

Ted stayed at summer school to help chew up the eligibility semesters. During the summer he arranged a show for the children of the Elmcrest cerebral palsy clinic as part of their "play-day." By inviting the well-known professional sports figures of Syracuse and Syracuse university to attend, Ted made the show a success.

The football season started, so did Kukowski.

HIS BIGGEST and most appreciative audience was not the press, but the fans who saw him play—and the opposition.

Because his class has graduated, Ted has already been named in the pro football draft. One Syracuse coach ventured: "Kukowski would be the best man to make out in pro ball. The pros look for that quick crash and good lateral movement to follow the play. Kukowski has it."

The New York Giants have the draft rights on Ted. He has a two-year stint in the service first.

Exciting Plays Color Grid Year

An injured star fullback . . . a sensational discovery at center . . . an 82-yard run from a buck lateral formation . . . a modified sleeper play . . . a blocked punt for a touchdown . . . dropped touchdown passes . . . . a knee deep snow fall . . . an all-American. All this happened to one football team in one season. It should sound familiar for it was Syracuse's 1953 season.

After a pre-season scrimmage with Army, the Orange prepared for its first game with Temple.

TEMPLE

The first game was an impressive show of scoring. Syracuse started slow, scored in every period and came up with a 42-0 win. New right halfback Lyle Carlson at 155 pounds tallied twice. The biggest legacy from the Temple game: an early injury to fullback Bill Wetzel that left Syracuse with reduced effectiveness for a time.

BOSTON

The next week, against Boston, the Orange line gave a sluggish showing and walked off the field losing 14-0 at halftime. Syracuse came back onto the field and slapped one across. Then Bruce Yancey running from a handoff on a buck lateral play chugged his way to the end zone 82 yards away. Syracuse had tied it up and was heading for another score.

Then, down near Boston's goal line, Syracuse was stopped from a first down by the mere turn of the ball. The game ended soon after, and Syracuse had its first mar on the record.

FORDHAM

In the next game against Fordham, Syracuse began with a good first half, while Fordham's air might—Roger Franz and Vinnie Drake—tried to throw to ends that suffered from "dropsie." In the second half Fordham scored and then theratened near the Syracuse goal. On the defense, quarterback Pat Stark asked the legality of a modified play. The ref agreed and Stark flipped a long sideline pass to Art Troilo. That pulled Syracuse out of a hole, gave them a touchdown and eventually the winning margin in a 20-13 game.

PENN STATE

A four-game road trip was inaugurated the next week down in Penn State. This game was actually the pivot of the whole season. Penn State was looking for revenge of last year's upset.

Syracuse's line contained quarterback Tony Rados for the first half and Bob Leberman, pitted, against State's speedy Lenny Moore was coming out on top.

With a 14-0 halftime lead, Syracuse looked a cinch to win. No one thought that this game, with Syracuse holding such a commanding lead both statistically and score-wise, would be a repeat of the dreadful half and half games that had dogged the Orange all year.

Tony Rados started pitching out to Moore, started calling his sequences better and the Nittany Lions started to roll. State had two touchdowns and a 14-14 tie. Near the end of the game the Orange had a punt situation. A State man broke through, blocked the punt, an aide came to scoop it up and behind a bevy of blockers made his way to the goal. With only minutes left Syracuse had nothing but a desparate chance.

The Penn State loss was an unrecoverable blow. It eliminated Syracuse from the Lambert Trophy and dropped their rating because this was Syracuse's first tough test and it was a failure.

ILLINOIS

Illinois supplied a reprieve for the Orange. In front of a national television audience Syracuse had a chance for an upset, despite the fact that first string end Ray Perkins was out.

Illinois had their fabled running backs—J. C. Caroline and Mickey Bates—shackled and were stretched to the limit to defeat Syracuse 20-13. On the Illinois version of the "T" Ray Eliot uses the fullback primarily for a blocking back. But blocking back Stan Wallace dashed through the line only twice. Each dash was worfh six points.

HOLY CROSS

Uncle Ben now had a paradox: a steadily improving team that had lost its last two games. The tough part of the season was past. Ben had one more surprise—a new right halfback in Bruce Yancey.

Syracuse, after a stuttering start blanked Holy Cross 21-0 with a splurge in the last half.

CORNELL

Weather was on hand to play a part in the Cornell game, but Syracuse seemingly oblivious of the knee-deep snow, shut out the Cornell team 26-0. Pat Stark compiled a phenomenal passing average early in the game but had it sink somewhat, near the end.

COLGATE

Arch-rival Colgate provided a few anxious, early moments but no blood, little toil and sweat in a 34-18 win. Bruce Yancey established himself as a pass catching threat with some fancy contorted catches. Ted Kukowski showed up brilliantly in this game, as he did all season and Colgate coach Hal Lahar paid his deep respect by calling him "the difference" in the game.

VILLANOVA

A favored Syracuse Orange tromped to Philadelphia. In a game where both opponents had nothing at stake except records, Syracuse was upset by the slim margin of a point, 14-13.

Returning to Ben for his annual rebuilding task in the way of ends are Ray Perkins, a fast versatile end, as he was back two seasons ago. Pete Schwert who filled in capably this year and came along surprisingly fast as a sophomore.

Paul Kernaklian is the lone returning tackle of any experience. Gaps left by Jim George and Les McClelland will be hard to fill. Both guards are leaving. All-American Bob Fleck and dependable Sam Johnson. Only Cal Smith who subbed for the slightly injured Johnson is the dependable returnee. Depending on where Ben wants to put him, handy man Paul Slick knows the plays for three line positions and might be the center next year.

Backs will be some trouble. Bill Wetzel, depending on his luck with injuries, will return to threaten from fullback. Don Laaksonen who developed into a fine fullback in the heat of battle, will be around to spell Bill.

Biggest vaccum in the backfield will be the hole left by Pat Stark. Quarterback is a chief cog in the Schwartzwalder gear and to find a passer and faker of Stark's ability will take some deep digging. On-again-off-again quarterback Ed Albright might take the job. Mickey Rich who showed well against Villanova and Dick Steiner are the other two in the race.

Now that the season is over, Coach Ben Schwartzwalder can look on a team that was perhaps better than last year's Lambert Trophy winners and Orange Bowlers, but with no honors to prove it.

Orange Invades Canisius . . .

frosh were eligible for varsity competition, Large will be making his first start against his former teammates.

Large played fine ball for the Griffins in their first two games, averaging 13.5 including an 18-point performance against Dayton last Saturday, to nail down the other guard post.

Six-foot-six Stockman returned from service this fall and waltzed into the center position left open by the graduation of high-scoring Larry O'Connor. He is a good rebounder and has netted 24 points in two games. Coach Curran has stated however, that he will switch to a double-pivot if Stockman fails to carry the offensive load.

Zatorski, at 6 ft.-3, is a strong board-man and adequate scorer. Adams and Dunn are both around the 6 ft.-4 mark but the former appears to have the edge off his 13-point effort against Dayton.

TOP GRIFFIN reserves are Pete Irwin and Frank Corcoran. Senior Irwin is a three-year veteran while Corcoran was one of the stars of last year's frosh team. Frank tallied 17 points in the opener against Western Ontario but has been hampered since by an injury.

Both Canisius and Syracuse will be seeking their second victory of the campaign in tomorrow's battle. The Buffalonians trampled Western Ontario, 78-36, in their opener but dropped a 79-63 decision to powerful Dayton. The Orange won its only contest, an 88-68 triumph over Ithaca.

Canisius' loss to Dayton was not as one-sided as the final score might indicate. The winners led by only eight points after three quarters of play, but pulled away in the final two minutes when of victories over Canisius to four an all-court press.

The probable sarting lineups:

SYRACUSE	Pos.	CANISIUS
Kilpatrick	LF	Zatorski
Besdin	RF	Adams
Kline	C	Stockman
Larned	LG	Large
Cegala	RG	Young

SUBSTITUTIONS

Syracuse: Breland, Castellini, Gillespie, Jaskot, Murrock, Nelson, Sager, Scott.

Canisius: Brown, Co Dunn, Flynn, Irwin, Kelly, zak.

Bedrossian Leads Big Red Gridders

Guy Bedrossian, a member of the Syracuse all-opponent team, has been elected captain of next year's Cornell football squad. The all-Ivy league fullback is a two-yea rveteran fo rthe Big Red and has consistently been one of their high scorers.

A 5 foot 11 inch, 196 pounder, the stocky captain hails from Hartford, Conn.

Cornell has also announced that Syracusan's Pat Stark and Bob Fleck have been named members of their all-opponent squad for 1953. Stark was also named captain of the squad.

Hill Students Present Model Talk

By LIZ GODDARD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A team of five Syracuse students gave a model demonstration on Panel of Americans, inc. at a luncheon yesterday at the Savoy Plaza Hotel in New York city.

Panel of Americans, a national organization only recently incorporated, sends out teams of students to speak to service, church and school organizations on their beliefs and attitudes concerning America.

EACH PANEL consists of a moderator plus a Protestant, Catholic, Jew, Negro, and second generation American student. The panel organized here last year was so successful that it was chosen to serve as a model at this meeting of professional, educational and clerical group leaders.

The Syracuse panel includes Satoru Tsufura, John Snead, Lynda Pollack, Frank Della-Posta and Vernon Lee. It is moderated by Mrs. Frank Cole of the college of home economics. Dean Charles C. Noble and Kenneth Bartlett, University vice-president, also accompanied the group to New York.

The Syracuse team was invited to speak at the luncheon by Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia university.

The five students also were heard on the Barry Gray radio show over WMCA on Wednesday night. They will be the guests of Mary Margaret McBride on her WABC radio program at 1 p.m. today.

THE PANEL of Americans' movement was organized on the University of California campus and soon spread throughout the country.

Its purpose is to counteract prejudices and discrimination based on racial, religious, national or ethnic group membership, creating interest in the problem in local community groups.

Yesterday's meeting was held primarily to interest community leaders in the work of the organization. The Syracuse panel gave a demonstration of the type of program offered.

Each of the students on a panel gives a brief talk on his beliefs about America, how it has affected him personally and as a member of his racial or religious group. The speeches are followed by a moderated discussion period with audience participation.

In the past, several panels have been organized on the campus, to speak before PTA groups, civic clubs, churches and other interested organizations in this area.

Brown Address . . .

though he had never been convicted.

Brownell accused Truman of promoting White when he was "known to be a spy," although a letter to Truman from FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover stated that he had "no evidence on which White could be convicted and that the FBI could not obtain such evidence."

BROWN ALSO criticized the attorney-general for stating that he could prove his charges against Truman by means of secret evidence and then releasing part of the evidence. This violation of the sanctity of FBI material "compounded Brownell's irresponsible action," the speaker declared.

Commenting on Hoover's part on the controversy, Brown noted contraditions in the FBI head's opinions. In recent testimony Hoover said that Truman's action in retaining White "hindered rather than helped" FBI work on the case.

However in 1950, Brown pointed out, Hoover testified that in counterespionage work, studying the suspect and his contacts is more helpful than arrest and public exposure. For this reason Truman presumably decided to retain White.

"However, Brownell had no right to call career personnel like Hoover to support him in a purely political debate," Brown said.

Paper to List Greek Pledges

Because IFC and Panhel are not issuing complete pledge lists this semester, The Daily Orange will publish lists submitted by individual houses.

Names of pledges should be typewritten and delivered in person to the afternoon editor in the editorial offices no later than 3:30 p.m. Dec. 9. Telephoned names will not be accepted.

Lists should include the complete names because nicknames will not be published.

The Daily Orange will publish the complete roster of Greek pledges as received from the houses as soon as space permits after Dec. 9.

NURSING GRADS

Graduates of the Syracuse university School of Nursing topped the list of all those taking their state licensing examinations between July 1, 1952 and June 30, 1953.

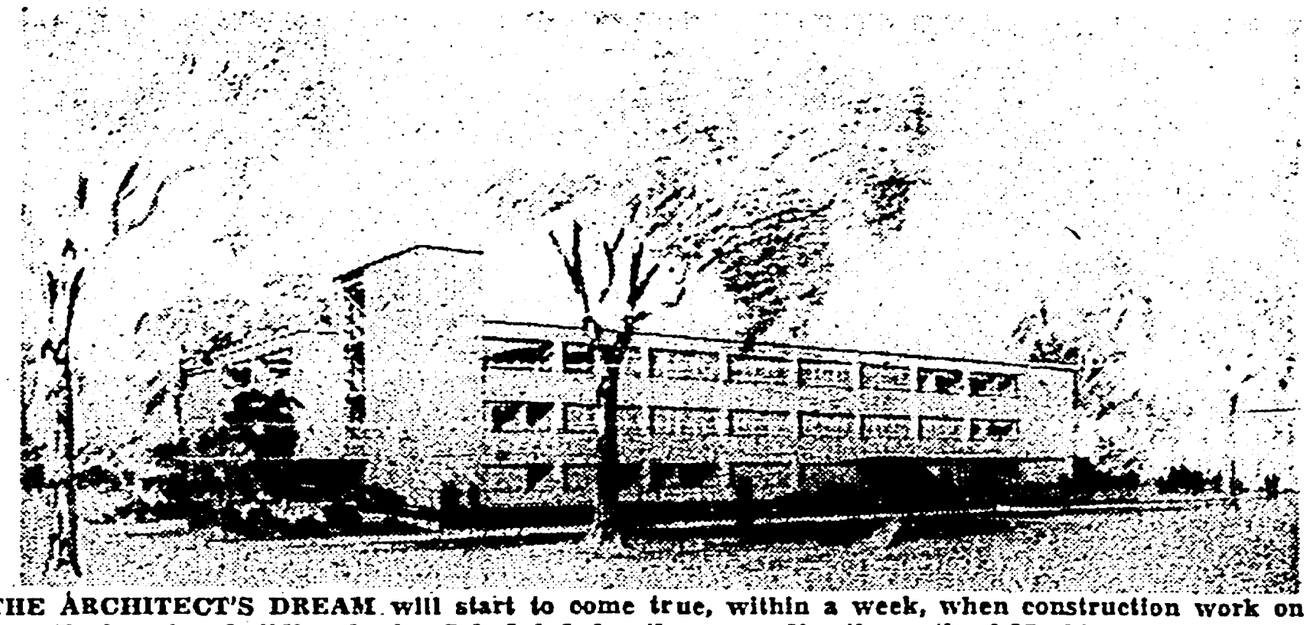
Construction Begins Within Week On First New Engineering Building



THE ARCHITECT'S DREAM will start to come true, within a week, when construction work on the new Engineering building begin. Scheduled for the space directly south of Machinery hall, the building is in harmony with the modern design of the other new campus structures. Quite a far cry from the buildings at Thompson Road, the former Engineering school site. Photo Courtesy of Post-Standard

Detor Co. Receives General Contract For Low Base Bid

Construction on Engineering building one will begin within a week, according to F. Gordon Smith, University vice-president and executive secretary.

Contracts totalling $857,662 have been awarded to five firms for the construction of the building, he announced Friday.

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION contract for $580,161 went to the Detor Construction co., which submitted the low base bid at Wednesday's public bid opening in Maxwell.

The Thomas E. O'Brien co., inc. of New York received the plumbing contract for $66,635. The electric work will be done by Bec Electric co. for $89,000, and the heating and ventilation by Ryan Plumbing and Heating co. for $105,904.

An elevator will be installed by Otis Elevators at a cost of $15,962.

The building will be approximately 200 feet long and 69 feet wide, and will house all laboratories for chemical engineering and part of the civil, electrical and industrial engineering laboratories.

IN KEEPING with the current University architectural design, the structure will have red brick facing with limestone trim. It will be built of "flat-plate" reinforced concrete.

The main entrance, on the south side facing the quad, will have a flagstone terrace and canopy. There will be a similar terrace at the west entrance.

Located in the building will be the production laboratory of industrial engineering, materials testing lab of civil engineering, fluid mechanics lab, and the soils lab.

On the first floor will be the $500,000 network analyzer, which is being built for the college by General Electric. It will be installed in a glass-enclosed, air-conditioned room off the main foyer.

ALSO LOCATED on floor one will be a civil engineering lab, the heart research project lab of electrical engineering, and civil and industrial engineering offices.

The second floor will have one industrial, one electrical, and two chemical engineering labs. Electrical engineering offices will also be located there.

The third floor will have chemical engineering labs and offices.

Designed for flexibility, the structure will have movable metal partitions so that rearrangement of space can be effected with a minimum of effort. A self-leveling automatic elevator will handle both freight and passengers.

$64,000 has been allocated for site improvement, a high pressure boiler for laboratory and teaching purposes, and other contingencies.

Campus Graduation For Student Nurses Slated for Dec. 12

Dean Edith Smith To Award Pins At Ceremony

Graduation ceremonies for 39 seniors in the School of Nursing will be held at 8 p.m. this Saturday in Hendricks chapel.

Edith H. Smith, dean of the School of Nursing, will present school pins to the new nurses, who will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in nursing. Vice-Chancellor Finla G. Crawford will preside at the exercises and Chancellor William P. Tolley will speak briefly to the graduates.

THE MAIN ADDRESS will be given by Dr. Edward Stainbrook, professor and chairman of the department of psychiatry at the State university of New York College of Medicine.

A member of the faculty since August, Dr. Stainbrook was previously affiliated with the Yale university School of Medicine. He is a graduate of Allegheny college, and received his M.D. and Ph.D. degrees from Duke university. His internship was served at Bellevue hospital in New York, and he was assistant resident in the Payne Whitney Psychiatric clinic of New York hospital.

Graduates include Jennie L. Baner, Vera J. Bell, Joy L. Delfosse, Janet L. Grant, Wilma S. Kelley, Betty S. Loester, Barbara G. Medland, Joanne F. Moore, Joan C. Mt. Pleasant, Patricia A. Stauffer, Carol Z. Steere, Grace E. Supple, Jean Sweeney.

Also, Jane A. Smith, Stella A. Sierzega, Joan L. Dawson, Marjorie A. Conway, Mary G. Fegley, Lois O. Friss, Carolyn R. Henwood, Constance A. Potter, Nancy O. Mires, Barbara J. Wheat, Jeannette A. Bray, Jean H. Zahradka, Shirley D. Stratton, Janet I. Reynolds, Lois J. Sayles.

Also, Muriel E. Sallberg, Frances J. O'Connor, Ruth J. Lawrence, Mary C. Duddleston, Ardyth R. Tallman, Winifred A. Merz, Pauline R. Feibush, Alice C. Bancroft, Yun-Yuan Sung, Marjorie R. Young, and Mary Jane Shearer.

Shipments Of Jewelry To Arrive for Asia Sale

New shipments of jewelry from Thailand and East India will arrive in time for today's Syracuse-in-Asia Christmas sale.

The annual sale of goods from the East will continue for the rest of this week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the basement hall of Hendricks chapel.

ALL OF THE group's Niello jewelry (black enamel on silver) from Thailand was sold out on Thursday but additional bracelets, earrings, cufflinks and tie clips will go on sale this morning. More East Indian turquois earrings have also been ordered.

More than $700 was grossed in the first three days of the sale. Thursday was the heaviest day with $400 worth of business transacted. The organization must clear the $800 invested in merchandise before they make a profit.

All proceeds go to the support of Thomas Gill, Syracuse-in-Thailand representative, who is now teaching at Chulalongkorn university in Bangkok, Thailand.

Goods were received from China, India, Thailand and Japan. Among the articles for sale are jewelry, linen, chinaware, bamboo mats, carved figures, jade, Japanese prints, brocade, ash trays jasmine tea, and scarves of Indian silk.

Foreign Students Address J-Group

Lecturers Describe Various Countries

Enoch E. K. Mulira, a foreign student from Uganda, gave the Journalism school's news discussion group a background of his country at a recent meeting.

Mulira explained how the king of Buganda, a province of Uganda, was deposed by the British government recently. He also gave the group a background of his people, his government, and his government's cultural background.

Samuel Mentee, a foreign student from Liberia, also gave a background of his country and its government.

These weekly news discussions are held at 4:15 p.m., Thursdays in the School of Journalism. They are open to all students, graduates and faculty members.

Each week a student conducts the discussion about the week's current events. This week's moderator was Margaret Hake, a senior in the School of Journalism.

Countries represented at the last meeting included Uganda, Liberia, India, China, the Phillipines and the United States.

Seniors May Seek University Grants

Grant-in-aid applications from students who will be last-term seniors next semester are now being accepted in the office of the dean of men, Frank P. Piskor, University vice-president and dean of student services, announced yesterday. Both men and women are eligible.

Piskor said that in recent years the administration has restricted February grants to last-semester seniors because of the limited funds available. Application forms are available in the dean of men's office.

These awards are made from an accumulation of funds previously assigned but not used because of withdrawal from school, graduation, or other reasons.

Sophomores and juniors may apply for the regular grants-in-aid awards after the Easter vacation. Such awards will be made for the academic year 1954-55.

Mum Sales Earn Profit for Seniors

The class of 1954 made a profit of $128.95 on the chrysanthemum sales at the Colgate game, according to a report given by Alan Gefen at a recent senior assembly meeting.

The sales were a complete success, according to Gefen, co-chairman of the sales. His co-chairman was Katherine Horan.

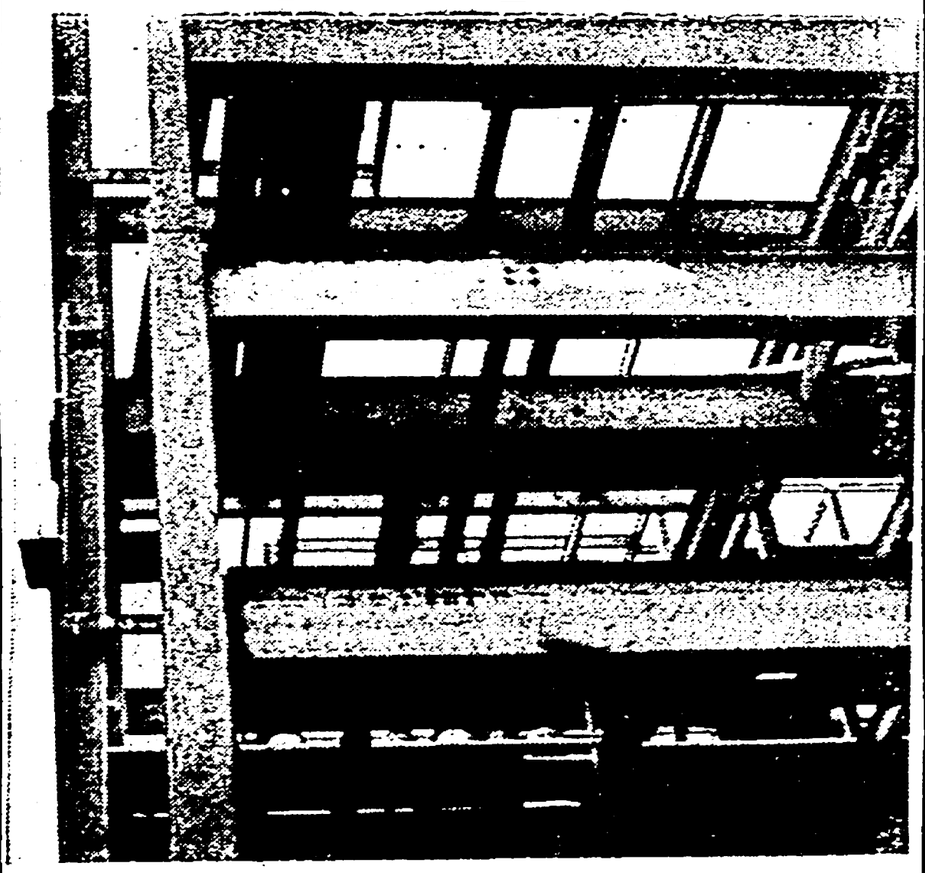
The group discussed plans for a winter party next week at either the Ski lodge or at Drumlins. The profits would go to the treasury of the class of 1954.

The next executive council meeting will be held at 4 p.m. today in Alpha Xi Delta, according to John Beach, president of the senior class. Prof. Robert Miller of the law school will discuss the possibilities of establishing a chapter on campus of Phi Kappa Phi, a scholastic honorary.

Groups Slate Talk By Mrs. Yankauer

Mrs. Mirian P. Yankauer will speak before the Young Democrats, SDA and NAACP. She will talk today in room 111, Maxwell, at 3:45 p.m. about current cases of racial segregation that are coming before the Supreme court.

High Skylight



EVIDENCE OF THE speedy progress on the new Law school building can be seen in the geometric pattern of steel girders that has risen in recent days. All classes in the area have been afforded audible evidence by the "metallic woodpeckers" working on the building. Daily Orange Photo by Fred and John

American aid

Three hundred and thirty-four students from other countries are currently enrolled at Syracuse. So that the American student on the campus will not be unaware of the problems facing these international students, pages four and five are today devoted to that subject.

The impressions that the foreign students have of the University will reach far into their native countries. Sometimes, their memories of America in general reflect the attitudes formed at the college they attended.

Three organizations on the Hill are specifically set up to aid the foreign students: the International Students committee of Chapel, the St. Thomas More foreign student committee and the women's student government foreign guide program.

However, it is obvious that these three organizations alone cannot serve the entire needs of all the foreign students. More cooperation from American students and faculty is necessary to make them feel more a part of the American scene.

A major problem currently affecting the foreign student is the lack of recreational and lounging facilities, once offered by the Student Union. Statistics prove that this group used the services frequently, and that they, as well as the American students, feel that these facilities should soon be replaced.

Women's student government and the Administration might also investigate the possibility of giving the foreign students' guide program more than $30 per year on which to operate.

The male foreign student is at a relative disadvantage since there is no comparable program for him. Solutions to personal problems must be sought from the administration rather than American students, who, in most cases, would be eager to help.

Men's student government might well consider this problem during the coming year. Could not some organization be formed which would give each male foreign student an American as a counselor and, most important, as a friend?

Another suggestion that might aid in solving some of the difficulties of the visitors is the formation of a student committee to arrive on campus before registration to assist the international students. Perhaps this could be handled by the coordinating council which Dean of Student Services Frank Piskor is now planning.

However, all the organizations and programs will be useless if each individual American student does not assume his responsibility in welcoming the foreign student onto the campus and into his friendship.

REPORT ON BEHAVIOR OF MT. GOATS

One of the world's foremost authorities on the sexual behavior of the mountain goat, Dr. Sigmund C. Hotchkiss of I.C.U., discloses in his forthcoming book "Heidi," that the Swiss mountain goat differs greatly, or somewhat, from the Swiss ewe.

Once an expert on Norwegian artichoke wasps, the Doctor, suspecting that science knew less about sex life than about wasp life, switched to his present field. Interested readers everywhere acknowledge his 1948 best seller, SEXUAL BEhAVIOR IN THE SWISS MOUNTAIN GOAT.

Hotchkiss and his staff have found strong evidence against ancient beliefs about sexual differences between the male and female mountain goat. After thoroughly questioning 5,940 Republicans he found that she-goats enjoy as much grass as he-goats, chew their cuds as quickly, and that the degree of frigidity in ewes is far less than most psychiatrists and Swiss yodelers believe.

In challenging the long held theory that there is a difference in chemical make up of the two Hotchkiss assures that both the male and female goat have an equal quantity of cells composed of hydrogen, oxygen, iodine, phosphorous, Boston and Summerville. These findings come from the use of the great Schwanzelben Test.

In comparing behavioral standards the 1948 report reveals that one half the married he-goats interviewed had reported extra-curricular activities with ewes other than their wives, whereas only one-fourth of the wives had had such activities and almost half of these had restricted that experience to one goat.

In a survey of 5,300 male goats it was found that most males reach their peak at the age of 17 or 18 and slide steadily downhill from then on.

The female's desire during her incubation period is less than a male's at the same age but her appetite steadily increases by the use of poundex. This fact has led to the greatest tragedy of mountain goat civilization . . . the male has often lost some of his interest in his mate while she is just warming up.

These are some of the more startling findings from Dr. Hotchkiss' new report. Medicine men and witch doctors will point out that his oversimplification of sex will lead to the morale decay of Mountain goats but the author defends his study with this statement from his forthcoming book: "Male and female goats are much milder."

Every Gal a Queen With Multitudes In the Multitudes

Huey Long's slogan of "Every man a king" seems to have been amended a few years back to include the fair sex and make every woman a queen. Starting with maple syrup time and continuing into the mistletoe season, we are now faced with a succession of Misses Chestnut Blight, Corn Borer, and Turnip Green.

It's only a matter of time until every tenth child in the United States can claim peerage as direct descendants of Miss Baldwin Apple of 1953, of Miss Hybid of 1955. Men will no longer by known as Mr. Smith of Mr. Jones. Instead, people will point them out as "the husband of the girl who was queen of the sauerkraut festival in 1958".

There is only one dark spot for the future—they're using queens too quickly. It's a poor growing season when a town can't find something for which to name a queen, but a southern town was forced to pick a young thing of fifteen to reign over the likker stills. They had to cancel her reception when her mother declared she was too young to be out at night.

Top TV of 1953

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

It's that time again.

The snows have come, the Christmas cactus is in bloom and once again a variously distinguished assortment of folks across the country begin making with the television awards.

The first, and perhaps most reliable of these, was made known last week by the Sylvania Electric co., sponsors of the Television Awards for 1953. The judges, numbering 16 prominent professional men, selected the most deserving individual or show in the various categories and also added a few barbed comments as to the state of affairs in the land of television.

Among the judges was Dean Kenneth Bartlett of the Syracuse university radio-TV center and dean of public relations on campus.

The Sylvania prizes went something like this. Best news series—Edward R. Murrow's "Person to Person". Best discussion program—"American Forum of the Air." Best educational program—"Ding Dong School", daytime kiddy show, and "Shakespare on TV," a local show carried by KNXT in Los Angeles, which was deemed worthy of nationwide viewing.

Mary Martin took a prize for her pantomime fashion satire on the Ford Anniversary broadcast. The ABC network, British Broadcasting company and Canadian Broadcasting corporation were noted for displaying "dignity and taste in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion" in the presentation of films of the coronation.

Outstanding Variety performer—Donald O'Connor. Best comedy series—"Make Room for Daddy" with Danny Thomas. Outstanding panel show—"What's My Line."

Summing up their views on the over-all content of the TV season past, the Sylvania judges pointed out that "mediocrity is still the chief characteristic of too many programs and too many of them try to be all things to all men."

Also "in dealing with science, medicine, the arts and social problems of the day, a lack of imagination of presentation is apparent."

Perhaps the most significant award made by the Sylvania folks, as far as this writer is concerned, at least, was in the drama section.

Rod Steiger, a gangling, fresh-faced lad of amazing ability, was named the outstanding television actor of the year. This was based on his stirring performance in Paddy Chayefsky's "Marty" on the Philco playhouse this past summer. Mr. Chayefsky also won an award for the best script of the year.

It is highly significant that Steiger and Chayefsky should be recognized for their excellent contributions to televison drama. As actor and author in a number of fine shows this past season, their efforts were one of a few thing of note in an otherwise shabby year.

WAKE ME FOR MY 9 O'CLOCK ...BUT EASY

Ho---.---Hum ! ! ! !

Everyone wants it, yet can't seem to get enough of it. We are content when we're in the process of it, yet grumble when we're disturbed. We only need about six hours of it, yet would welcome twice as much time. What is this valued phenomena? It's just plain SLEEP. Strange as it may seem one is rarely sleepy at night and can really "live it up with a great exhuberance." They live by the line of, "it's never late till twelve, and then it's early." Daytime, the supposed wide awake time of life, is usually the sleepy stage for most collegians. "Why sleep at night, when I can sleep in classes?" is a familiar motto.

Age affects sleep as can be assumed since growing children fight it, while middle aged adults and college goers welcome it. The majority of college students not only advocate sleep, but need at least 6 to 8 hours daily. True sleep is the state of really being oblivious to the surrounding atmosphere, whereas, in semi-true sleep, one is conscious of noises, whispers, or whatever taking place around him at the time.

A final note to us sleepy symphathizers—It's fine to really sleep; that is at night. Good luck in the battle of the closing eyelids ! ! !—Myra Epstein

Library Entombment

By R. JACQUES HERZ

We realize that it's our business, too, as to how others fare in their studying. A responsibility lies with us to let them now that we're in back of them.

If you were ever a student in the library's hallowed halls of learning (actually it is more or less a big room), you'd cry nay, shriek for the encouraging murmur of guys talking to gals, gals agreeing to coffee at 10 (p.m. today—style rule).

The Daily Orange has received several reports (one through campus mail, two threatening letters left under the Hellbox door) which indicate a growing problem.

Vicious rumors have been making the rounds that no longer do campus leaders stand on the study desks in the library yelling "Go, Go!"

We propose a multi-point program to combat serious and growing situation.

1. A winking, blinking neon sign in front of the library, announcing the week's guest stars would attract attention. Many students don't realize that this library quiet exists as a threat to western civilization.

2. Awards for the most books taken out in one week. These could be obtained locally. Suggested are a quart of rarified air from the top of Mount Olympus, one pound of soil from the law school excavation, Chancellor Tolley.

3. Prizes to those reading the "Book of the Week." This book will be selected each week by the director of the library, and a key word will be placed on a page not less than 442 or more than 258 pages from the frontispiece.

4. A juke box or dance band in one corner of the main reading room for those who want to take a 5-minute break. A date bureau could operate in conjunction with this.

Repent ye sinners, ye who have forsaken that good old library spirit. Let us not have the grey dankness of conservatism. roar roar roar roar roar.

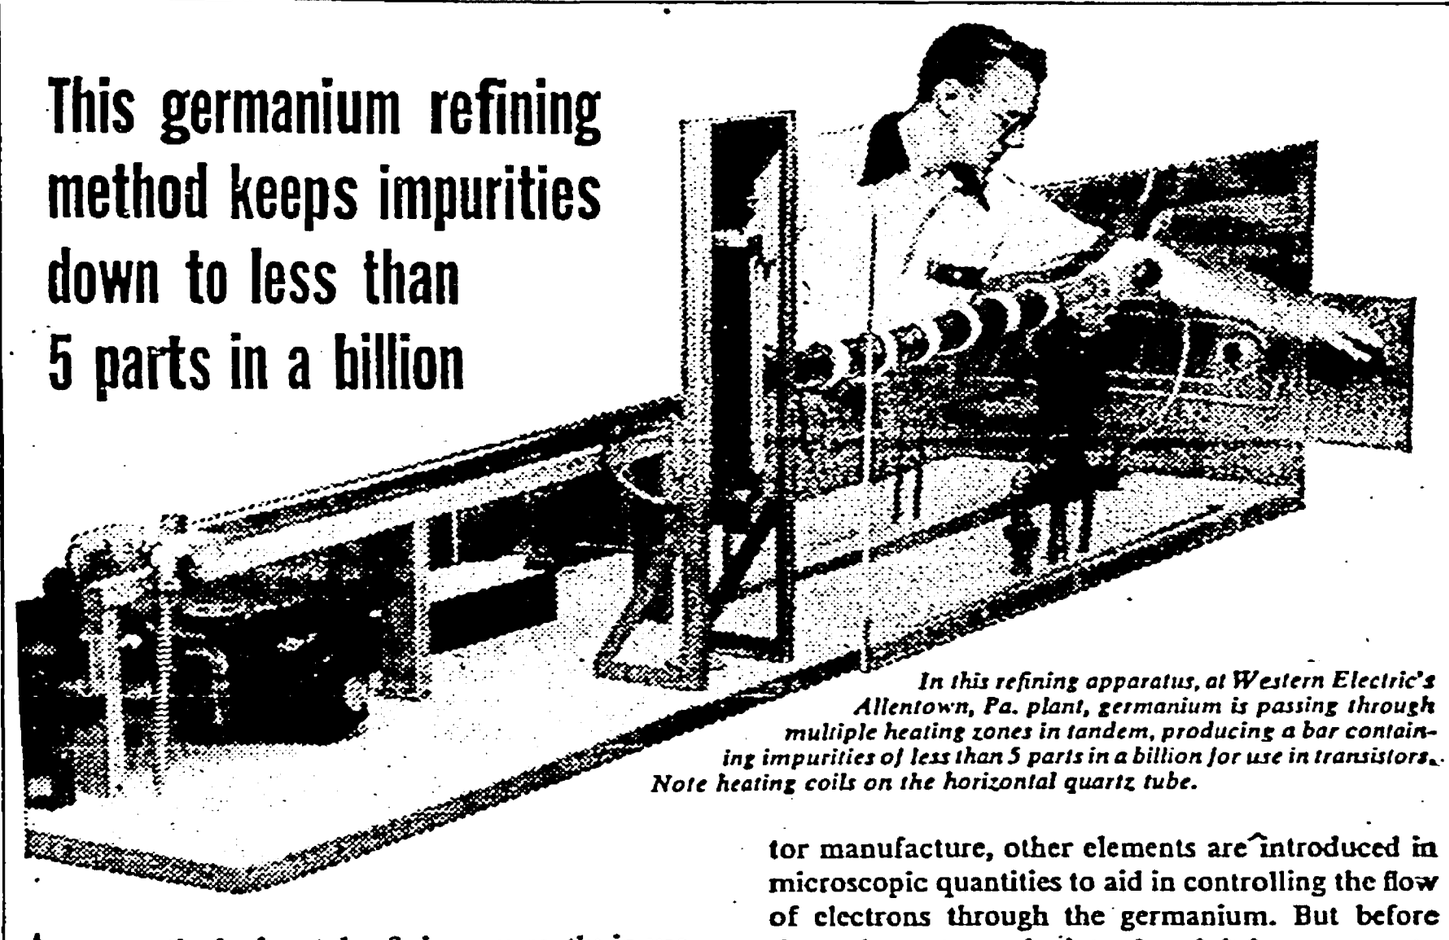
This germanium refining method keeps impurities down to less than 5 parts in a billion



In this refining apparatus, at Western Electric's Allentown, Pa. plant, germanium is passing through multiple heating zones in tandem, producing a bar containing impurities of less than 5 parts in a billion for use in transistors. Note heating coils on the horizontal quartz tube.

A new method of metal refining, currently in use at the Western Electric plant at Allentown, results in the production of germanium that is better than 99.9999995% pure — the highest degree of purity ever attained in a manufactured product.

The need for germanium of such exceptional purity came about when research by Bell Telephone Laboratories in the field of semi-conductors led to the development of transistors, which are manufactured by Western Electric.

The transistor is a tiny crystal device which can amplify and oscillate. It reduces space requirements and power consumption to a minimum.

Germanium crystals of the size required in transistors do not occur in nature; they are artificially grown at Western Electric. At this stage in transistor manufacture, other elements are introduced in microscopic quantities to aid in controlling the flow of electrons through the germanium. But before these elements can be introduced, it is necessary to start with germanium of exceptional purity, so that the impurities will not interfere with the elements that are deliberately added.

So Bell Telephone Laboratories devised an entirely new method of purification, known as zone refining, which was developed to a high-production stage by Western Electric engineers.

In zone refining a bar of germanium is passed through a heat zone so that a molten section traverses the length of the bar carrying the impurities with it and leaving behind a solidified section of higher purity. By the use of multiple heating zones in tandem, a number of molten sections traverse the bar. Each reduces the impurity content thus producing a bar which contains impurities in the amount of less than five parts per billion.

Because of the importance of the transistor in electronics, the zone refining process—like so many other Western Electric developments—has been made available to companies licensed by Western Electric to manufacture transistors.

This is one more example of creative engineering by Western Electric men. Engineers of all skills—mechanical, electrical, chemical, industrial, metallurgical, and civil—are needed to help us show the way in fundamental manufacturing techniques.

Various forms which germanium takes before being used in transistors are shown in this photo. Bar at top is an ingot of germanium after reduction from germanium dioxide. Next is shown the germanium ingot after the zone refining process used by Western Electric. Below the ingots are shown 3 germanium crystals grown by machine, 6 slices cut from these crystals, and several hundred germanium wafers ready for assembly into transistors.

Foreign Students Comment on Campus Programs

Lack of Student Union Facilities, Housing, Registration Problems Trouble Visitors Too

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN

TOP—Vice-president Frank Piskor in his position as Dean of Student Services aids in the counseling of the campus' 324 foreign students. He is now forming a coordinating council to help these students with representatives from faculty, administration and students.

* * *

CENTER—The Rev. Arnold Nakajima, Presbyterian chaplain for Syracuse university, was born in Japan. He also serves as advisor to the Chapel International Students committee.

* * *

BOTTOM—Touche! East meets West in a friendly fencing bout; one of the daily scenes of comradeship which exists on the campus between the representatives of America and the other countries.

MEMBERS OF THE INTERNATIONAL Students' committee of Hendricks chapel board. This is one of three organizations set up on campus to aid the foreign student population.

Over mountains and oceans, across swamps, deserts and jung they came.

From most of the focal points of the earth, and a few not focal, journeyed men and women seeking an education here and greater understanding of the people who live here.

On Syracuse university campus, in comparison with the larg student population, the foreign students are few. People from othe nations officially listed as students here number 334, according t figures released Oct. 8 by the office of the vice-chancellor.

However, impressions of America will be formed by these st dents largely through contacts made in Syracuse. If they find t Americans are interesting and interested in them, courteous, he ful, friendly and intelligent, their countrymen will be duly inform of these qualties.

Friendships formed between foreign students and Americ can be rewarding to both, not only in terms of human interest, l for valuable exchange of information and customs.

Three for Friendship

The object of three groups on the campus is to promote friend ship among Americans and foreign students. Two are organize under the auspices of religious bodies while the other is sponsore by women's student government.

A committee consisting of members of the Holy Name society the Blessed Virgin Mary sodality of St. Thomas More chapel mal it possible for foreign students to help plan social activities a meetings.

Under the chairmanship of Paul Hawkins and Janet Jordan, t foreign student committee is responsible for planning receptions social activities for Catholic foreign students on campus. Accord to Miss Jordan, this committee provides a good opporunity for mi ling of foreign and American students, since many American s dents also work in the group.

The second group organized in connection with a religious se up is the International Students committee of Hendricks chap board.

Although a few improvements could be made, the latter org ization is probably the most successful of the three as far as progr and participation by foreign students is concerned. Members are limited by religion and programs are planned to include intellect as well as social activities.

International Students meet for two hours once each week. first hour of each meeting is devoted to speakers, panels and cussions.

No Brain Stimulus?

A previous complaint by one foreign student published The Daily Orange and stating that this group provides no intelle tual stimulus was refuted by one committee member recently. T latter said that the student could not have participated in the pr gram. He added, "I think he would find more to the program he attended the meetings. We do have serious discussions."

One problem of the International Students' body is the abse of a large number of Americans in the program. The expand group also needs more space and money to carry on activities m effectively.

The foreign student guide group of WSG places emphasis friendships between individuals. In an ideal condition each g would be assigned to one foreign coed to help with problems form at least one American contact for the foreign student.

However, it is impossible for the guide group to estimate the spring how many foreign students will enroll in the fall. The fore at present a group of 45 coeds is guiding 60 to 70 foreign students.

Budget trouble is a hindrance to this group, too. Out of a $110 budget allotted by WSG to all guides, foreign student guides receive $30. The members find that this is barely sufficient to carry on a diversified program which includes social activities, vacation arrangements, publicity, arrangements for foreign students to speak to various groups and hospitality.

Foreign students have voiced complaints that they need more help at registration. It is difficult for the guides to provide this service since they have no way of knowing beforehand the number and names of the foreign students who will register.

The Student Union in the past had been used extensively by those from other lands. An additional reason for the existence of Student Union facilities is supplied by the fact that 12 to 14 per cent of all people who used the Union's facilities last year were foreign students

Many of them found in the Union a place to hear and learn to speak the colloquial brand of English spoken in America. Others became proficient bunny hoppers by attending dance classes there. One of the few groups which utilized the browsing and lending libraries of the Union consisted of foreign students.

After the abolition of the Student Union, President James Carr was approached by person after person from abroad, who said, "Where are we going to go this year? What are we going to do?"

Academic Provisions

Foreign students are here for study, too. This, the prime reason that most students travel to this country from other nations, is being well handled by the administration and faculty. This is the opinion of University Vice President Frank P. Piskor, who is in the process of assuming responsibility for foreign students here.

University Vice President Frank P. Piskor, who is in the process of assuming responsibility for foreign students here.

Piskor calls the University's provision for legal advice and aid adequate and he adds that the academic program also is sufficient.

As with American students, there is complaint and praise among foreign students when academic courses come into the conversation. Members of a group spending time here to survey education techniques told the Daily Orange they like their schedule of traveling to see American pedagogy in actual practice.

The basis of much objection in academics is the University policy of required courses. Many foreign students feel they should not be forced to attend classes where the material taught will be of negligible value to them upon return to their native countries.

For instance a course entitled Law of Communications, is a requirement for a degree from the School of Journalism. Since this course deals with United States law, some foreign students feel they should not have to register for it.

Although most instructors have been understanding about the language problem of the foreign student, some of them fail to realize that the foreign student needs much more time to complete reading assignments than the average American student. The foreign student also finds it difficult to understand class lectures because of the language barrier and sometimes because he lacks background knowledge in the subject.

Coordinating Council

Piskor and other members of the administration are at present in the process of setting up a coordinating council to take care of the various academic, social and technical problems of foreign students.

The council will consist of representatives of administration, faculty and students already working in the area. It will reflect the interests of these groups as concerned with foreign students.

Previously, complaints have been offered that existing groups are too uncoordinated to do a maximum amount of good. To this, Piskor replied that the council would be in a position to serengthen everyone's role in situation or assignment.

In the office of Vice-chancellor Finla G. Crawford, Miss Dorothy Rivers said that immigration information and visas are very technical subjects.

She supported an earlier statement by Piskor that the "legal side (of visa information) is too complicated to rely on a changing population to handle." This was in reply to a query on the possibility of guides supplying the foreign students with visa information.

Housng has come in for disapproval by a few foreign students. Some of them recorded extreme disappointment at "the drab living quarters" assigned to them. One student commented that it was a poor way to discover that American streets are not paved with gold."

Friendship in Cottages

Like Americans, many of the foreign students have come to overlook this problem which vexes the University. One Indian coed found a happy experience, despite disappointing living quarters. Warm friendship and exchange of ideas and customs in a cottage society of nine foreign students and 11 Americans gave this girl a year's life she will remember always.

In an essay presented to housing director Miss Kathryn Copeland, the Indian student wrote:"Some Sunday afternoons, the American girls teach the foreign students to square-dance; in turn the South American girls show them the waltz or the tango. Some evenings the girls from Japan and India entertain with oriental dancing, their long, flowing 'kimono' and 'sari' trailing under the soft glow of shade lamps of the Sibley lounge.

"Common kitchen is our big denominator. Apart from cooking together and cooking different kinds of dishes everyday, the girls linger over the dining table for a coffee-hour chat, singing, talking, discussing—sometimes late into the nights.

"Thus we go on, day after day, happy to be together, happy to have this rare experience and happy in the thought that we are enriching our personalities."

TOP—For the past two years students from German colleges, as guests of the State department, have visited Syracuse university. Studying mainly the extra-curricular program on campus, they were given the opportunity of living for six months with Americans in fraternity and sorority houses and university living centers. The picture above shows campus leaders welcoming the 1952 group. STELLA MENDELOWSKI, president of HPA and HOWARD HULL Campus Leaders' co-chairman, greet the visitors from overseas.

TOP CENTER—Foreign students' guide program is a part of women's student government. Junior and senior students each receive the name of a coed whom they will individually help and guide throughout the year. EDNA REYNOLDS, MARJORIE AUSTRIAN, and EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN help plan a forthcoming guide party for the visitors. While this organization aids the coeds, there is no comparable group to assist the male foreign student.

* * *

LOWER CENTER—"A rare experiment in group living with rich and rewarding experiences." This has been the opinion of most of the international students who have lived for a year in one of the cottages housing both foreign and American students. Here a Chinese coed and a student from India listen to a radio in Sibley cottage, a truly "international home."

Wirth, Gorman Named Captains

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Gunnar Wirth and Bud Gorman, two Orange booters who contributed much to Syracuse's fine 4-1-1 soccer record, have been named co-Captains for the 1953 season.

Wirth and Gorman replace Capt. Don Moller, who will graduate this June along with Bill Nelson, Sig Wirth and Chuck Mayhood. Both Wirth and Gorman are juniors and next year will be their third on the Orange varsity.

With the loss of Nelson, Sig Wirth, Moller and Mayhood, Gormon and Wirth will form the nucleus around which Coccari will build his team.

Last year, Gormon played just about every post on the team with the exception of the goal slot. Towards the end of the season, Art Horrocks, who was then completing his 26th year as head soccer mentor, switched Gorman to halfback and he held down that position for the remainder of the season.

Gunnar Wirth is a natural forward. When goalie Ted Panos failed to show up for practice last season, Coach Horrock started Wirth at the goal position.

When the Orange needed goals badly, Horrocks switched Wirth out of the goal position and up to the forward wall where he combined with his brother Sig to give Syracuse the strongest one-two punch in the East. In such exigencies, Orv Wambold took over the goal keeping chores.

Despite the fact that he spent most of the time in 1952 at the goal slot, Wirth still was one of the higher scorers for Syracuse.

This year, Coccari, the new soccer coach, started Wirth at the goal slot. Except for occasions which were few and far in between, Wirth remained at the goal position.

In placing Wirth in the goal position, Coccari was drastically cutting down his offensive, strength, which on paper, he could hardly afford to do. Were it not for the stellar play of the Orange's defensive line led by Capt. Don Moller and co-Capt. elect Gorman, Syracuse would not have compiled a winning record.

In one of the last games of the 1952 season against Brockport at Hendrick's field something occurred which undoubtedly influenced Coccari's decision to strengthen the goal position at the expense of the forward wall.

BUD GORMAN was recently elected co-captain of the Syracuse soccer team. Gorman was a halfback on Coach Andy Coccari's defense wall this fall.

With sophomore Orv Wambold tending the nets, Brockport got off to a quick 4-0 lead which they held at halftime. At this point in the game, Coach Horrock put Wirth in the goal position. Wirth then held Brockport scoreless for two periods of regulation play and two overtime periods. By this time Syracuse had evened the score and with a few minutes left in the final overtime period, Syracuse tallied again to win one of the most exciting games played on Hendrick's field.

While Coccari was not coach at the time of last year's Brockport game, he did see the game and this undoubtedly influenced his decision to put Wirth in the goal position.

As in lacrosse and hockey, the soccer goalie is the most important member of the team. A strong team with a weak goalie can not get very far against good competition. For this reason, Coccari was willing to weaken his forward wall in order to be able to plug the goal spot. Except for Panos, who played for Syracuse in 1950, Syracuse has never had a strong goalie in the past two decades.

Coach Coccari will be forced to make some changes in next year's line-up, especially since he will lose his No. 1 and No. 2 top scorers with the graduation of Wirth and Nelson. One thing is sure however: Brud Gorman will be at one of the starting defensive positions and Wirth will be either at the goalie slot or on the forward wall.

AXEL SPOTS—Next season will be the first since 1950 when only one Wirth will be playing on the soccer team. In 1951 there was no soccer team.

Hill Booters Gain Second Successive Winning Campaign

Sig Wirth, Nelson, Spark Syracuse For Third Year

When there was no varsity soccer team in 1951, many skeptics thought soccer was through on the hill. The 1953 record of the Orange booters shows how wrong those skeptics were.

Compiling a 4-1-1 record in intercollegiate competition, the Orange booters had their best season in the last two decades, with the exception of last year when they had a 5-1 record.

THE ORANGE'S fine record was achieved with a combination of old and new blood. Like last year, the Wirth brothers, Bill Nelson and Don Moller were the spark plugs of the Orange team. The new blood was furnished by Andy Coccari, who replaced Art Horrock as soccer mentor.

The season didn't start out too promising as Syracuse was only able to squeeze out a 1-1 tie from a strong Cornell team. The next intercollegiate contest saw the Orange lose to Cortland state teachers college.

After the Cortland defeat, Syracuse started on tthe comeback trail by beating Union college 1-0. As in previous games, the fine play of the Orange's defensive line turned out to be the winning margin.

FOLLOWING THE victory over Union, the Saltine booters beat Brockport State teacher's college for the second straight year to successfully end their road trip.

Syracuse then continued on its winning ways by beating Colgate 2-0 on Hendrick's field in a continuation of their traditional rivalry.

The last game of the season for Syracuse wa salso the biggest test for the Saltines. The Hillmen were to face RPI at Hendrick's field. The Engineers traditionally boast strong soccer aggregations and this year was no exception.

When the Orange came victoriously off the field on the top end of a 2-1 margin, Syracuse fans knew soccer had made its comeback.

MOST OF THE 1953 squad will be returning next year. In addition, coach Coccari will have a few promising sophomores from this year's freshman team to work with.

One of the most promising sophomores is frosh goalie Joe Stille. Stille never played soccer before he came to Syracuse but his play has not lent evidence to this point.

Should Stille be able to take over the goal position, Gunnar Wirth would be free for exclusive offensive duty. With the graduation of Sig Wirth and Nelson, Syracuse will lose its two top scorers so the younger Wirth's addition to the forward wall would be welcomed by Coach Coccari.

No one can accurately foretell how many wins Syracuse will be able to cop next season. Regardless of next year's results, however, Syracuse soccer has finally climbed out of the depths it fell to in 1951.

THE DU PONT DIGEST

Production Supervision

Requires Knowledge of Materials, Machines, and Men

Wm W. Kinsley, M.S. in M.E., Penn. State 1949 (left), production supervisor in Du Pont textile fiber plant, is introduced to new operator by foreman.

Keeping production rolling in a modern industrial plant is a job that appeals to men trained in many branches of science and engineering. If you are looking for opportunities in this field, you won't have to look far at Du Pont, where more than 1,500 members of the technical staff are engaged in production supervision.

To qualify, a man must be able to understand both the mechanical and chemical phases of production. In addition, he should be a good planner and, above all, have a knack for working with others.

Production supervisors are responsible for care of plant facilities, supply of raw materials, supervision of operation and maintenance, cost and shipment of finished products, as well as personnel relations, training and safety.

Since Du Pont makes over 1,200 products and product lines, it can offer many opportunities in a wide variety of operations to men interested in production supervision. In Du Pont's Organic Chemicals Department, for example, most technical men start in plant development groups, where they gain a background in both the technical and economic aspects of manufacture. Those with interests and abilities in production may then transfer to that field to acquire further, and more detailed, experience. Advancement leads to jobs as Building Supervisor, Senior and Chief Supervisors, and Superintendent.

The responsibilities of these supervisory levels vary, depending upon the men, the operation, and the products.

For example, in manufacturing dyes, up to 50 different operations may be carried out. Production and maintenance must be carefully planned and scheduled so that all needs for finished product are met. Temperature, pressure, and quality of reactants must be carefully controlled to insure that each batch of dye will match previous batches exactly.

In making each color, from 6 to 10 different unit processes may be called upon. And, in the course of time, all the unit operations known to chemical engineering come into play. Obviously, production supervisors have excellent opportunities to use and expand their technical knowledge and ingenuity. Equally important, they can acquire background and varied experience that prepare them for advancement to responsible positions in management and administration.

Tough Competition Faces Deke Quintet

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Intramural Director

With the Intramural basketball season only a week old, many of the teams have yet to compete in their first game. Delta Kappa Epsilon, last year's fraternity champion, will be one of the last teams to open, meeting Kappa Sigma.

Although the Dekes lost to Grover Cleveland, 40-38, in an overtime game list winter for the all-University championship.

THIS SEASON, the Grover Cleveland house has been divided into two separate teams with both an A and B team representing that dorm. Since the inhabitants of Grover Cleveland are generally there on a yearly basis, a complete change in personnel might be expected.

The Dekes have virtually the same team back from last year. The only graduate in 1953 was Tom Sawyer, first string outfielder on Coach Ted Kleinhans' baseball nine.

Phil Young, baseball catcher and outfielder and Bob Tucker should get the starting nod for the defending fraternity champions at the forward posts. John Bush, one of the top Deke scorers last year, will once again open at center. These three boys give the Dekes plenty of height which can prove effective in controlling the boards.

Ted Kukowski, Syracuse nationally-acclaimed football center, who was named to last year's fraternity all-star team and Mickey Kyff, powerful right-handed pitcher of the varsity baseball nine, should man the guard posts once again this season.

NOT ONLY will the Dekes present a rugged starting five, but they have several outstanding reserves who should see plenty of action this year. Brud Gorman probably could be designated as the sixth man. Others who should be of considerable assistance to the Dekes this year are Vince Vergara, Bill McGarvey, Chuck Baldwin, Dave Hoffmire, Larry Sutherland and Tom Norcia.

But the Dekes shouldn't have an easy time of it in their own flight. They will have to contend with such teams as Kappa Sigma, their opening opponent, Sigma Alpha Mu and Tau Epsilon Phi.

Bill Brown deserves acclaim for his 50 point performance Thursday night in the Phi Gam-Beta Sigma Rho game. The undermanned Beta Sigs, who never stopped trying, were completely outclassed by a team which would not be nearly as strong, if they did not have the services of Brown.

Brown, a freshman from Yorktown Heights, resides in Collendale A-8, an athletic dorm. Since his dorm has no team, he is allowed to play with his fraternity under the new rule passed this year by the Intramural Athletic Council.

IT IS unique that Brown is only a freshman. The record that he set Thursday night should stand for quite some time. Bill, however, may break it himself. The Phi Gams play in a supposedly weak flight; so if they oppose any other weak teams, their sensational star may have a chance to break his own record.

Bill, first-string fullback on this year's freshman football squad, played varsity football, basketball and baseball at his high school before entering Syracuse. It is remarkable that the Phi Gam shooting sensation hit on 22 of 24 attempts from the field, most of these being of the jump shot variety.

Maybe Marc Guley should watch the next Phi Gam game. It might be wise for him to try to induce Brown to go out for the Syracuse freshman team. It's possible that Bill Brown could be one of the stars of the future for Bill Orange basketball, if he decided to go out.

BILL BROWN scored 50 points against Beta Sigma Rho in intramural action last Thursday night.

Cleveland Revival Spurs NFL Teams

Graham's Passing Leads Undefeated Browns

The 1953 professional football season has been highlighted by the runaway success of the Cleveland Browns. After seeming to be on the decline for the past two seasons, the rejuvenated Bruins, led by the pitching of Otto Graham, and the hard running of Ken Jagade, have compiled a spotless record to date.

During the last few years Marion Motley, the big fullback in Coach Paul Brown's T attack, has slowed down. Therefore, the Browns' pet play, the mouse trap, was backfiring and Mr. Graham was spending many an autumn Sunday afternoon in a horizontal position.

This year Ken Jagade has made the Bruin fans forget the Motley of the post war years and has been a major factor in the climb of the Cleveland club to its present perch atop of the heap in the National Football league.

Orange Placed Eighth In Last Lambert Rating

Three of Syracuse university's eight eastern football opponents edged the Orange in the final Lambert Trophy rating of the season. Penn State topped the list of Piety Hill foes as they tied for third place with Navy.

The Nittany Lions, who beat Syracuse by one touchdown, were followed in the standings by Holy Cross. The Crusaders, whom the Orange whitewashed, 21-0, tied Pitt for fifth place. Villanova's Wildcats, on the strength of their victory over the Orange, were awarded a seventh place position.

BEN SCHWARTZWALDER'S boys finished one point behind the Philadelphia outfit in eighth place. Boston university, who tied the Orange, 14-14 in the early part of the season, were a close ninth.

Fordham, whom Syracuse beat by one touchdown and Cornell, who were swamped by the Piety eleven, 26-0, finished eleventh and twelfth respectively. Colgate was listed at 18 and Temple was rated twenty-fifth out of the 30 eastern teams that were tallied.

A balloting of the coaches this week will determine the winner of the Lambert Trophy. Army, who lead in this week's final ratings is considered the best bet to capture the trophy.

Last year Syracuse captured the coveted trophy, symbolic of Eastern football supremecy. Their losses to Penn State and Villanova and a tie with Boston university eliminated the Orangemen from contention this year.

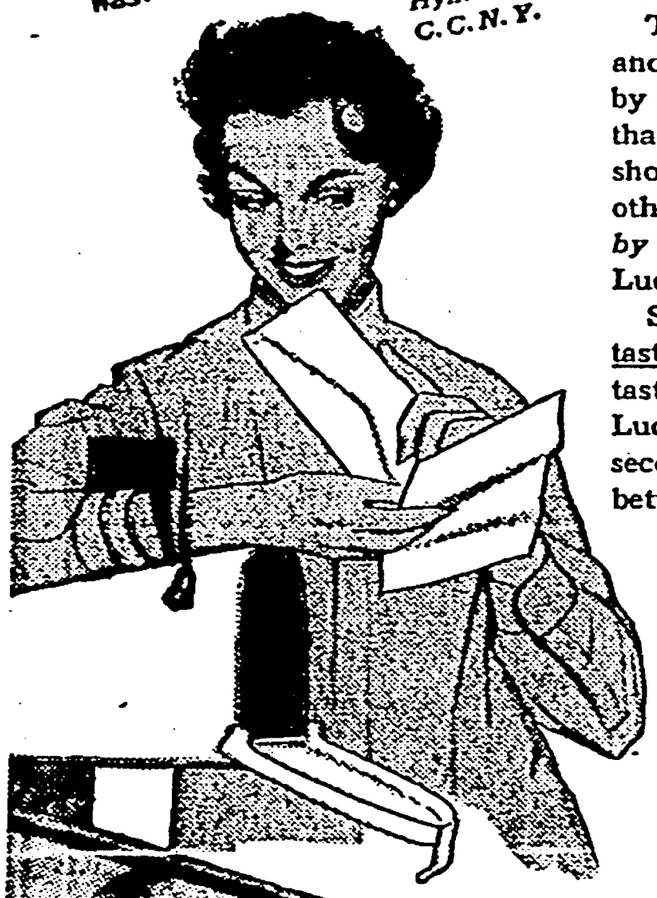
LATEST COLLEGE SURVEY SHOWS LUCKIES LEAD AGAIN

She hoped that he'd propose by mail,
And when she got his letter,
All he wrote upon the note
Was: "Luckies taste much better!"

Hyman Levy
C.C.N.Y.



Last year a survey of leading colleges throughout the country showed that smokers in those colleges preferred Luckies to any other cigarette.

This year another far more extensive and comprehensive survey—supervised by college professors and based on more than 31,000 actual student interviews—shows that Luckies lead again over all other brands, regular or king size... and by a wide margin! The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better.

Smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste, and the fact of the matter is Luckies taste better—first, because L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. And second, Luckies are made better to taste better. So, Be Happy—Go Lucky!

And really spread good cheer,
Give all your friends that smoother smoke—
Give Lucky Strike this year.

Civil Service Group Announces Exams For Applicants

An annual series of examinations for civil service has been announced by the New York state department of civil service, according to Prof. Howard Miller of political science.

Recruitment is for a wide variety of positions in the state career service, including professional and technical assistant, accounting assistant, and public administration intern.

Complete information and application blanks are available in 212 Maxwell.

The professional and technical assistant examination will recruit from the following specialties: engineering or architecture, biology, chemistry, physics, economics, administration, mathematics, statistics, psychology, journalism, law, and library science.

Seniors who have not majored in these specialties may take the examination by applying for the General list or the library assistant list. Those applying must have been legal residents of New York state since last Jan. 16.

The written test will be given in Syracuse.

Medical Honorary To Sponsor Convo

"How to Get Into Medical School" will be the subject of a convocation Thursday, sponsored by Alpha Epsilon Delta, national medical honorary.

Dean Edwin Smith of the College of Liberal Arts will speak on pre-medical education. Medical schools will be discussed by Dr. David Johnson, dean of the New York State School of Medicine. The convo will be concluded with Dr. Leon Berman of Syracuse speaking on the medical profession.

All medical and pre-medical students are invited. For further information contact David Prager, 75-7734.

DATE BUREAU

Dates for the Shaw dormitory annual formal, "Mistletoe Magic," this Friday in the Shaw dining hall will be arranged by a specially set up date bureau. Head of the committee is Rita Davidowitz.

Hill Tour

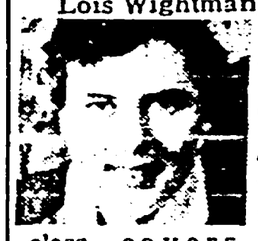
By Fred and John

(Editor's note: This is the first in a new series of columns by Fred Tyminski and John Price. The two reporters are assigned to ask questions of current interest to Syracusans. We are printing their pictures so you can recognize them if they ask you for your opinion in their "Hill Tour.")

QUESTION: In which subject did you most dread taking midyear exams?

Edward Thoden, a frosh student in liberal arts, told the reporters about the nemesis of all freshmen: "English, because it is a very large and intricate subject."

Lois Wightman, another frosh, who is enrolled in the College of Fine Arts, echoed the cry by answering: "English la, because I do not think our class covers the material enough."



A liberal arts sophomore, Clifford Labarge, also is afraid of English. His course, however, is English 90. He dreads it "because 18th Century literature is very hard to contemplate. It is actually a survey of American literature."

A new subject was introduced in the interviews. Elizabeth Anne Warner, liberal arts soph, said that history was the most difficult. "It was the only one I had to take," she added.

(Editor's note: Although there can be no statistical weight attached to a survey which does not cover the whole campus and is not conducted by statistical measurement techniques, Tyminski and Price, in their many interviews, report that English—Mr. Shakespeare's meat—can often be cod liver oil to the student.)

Religious Scholarships Raised

The value of scholarships awarded to the children of clergymen has been raised from $150 a year to $350 according to an announcement by Chancellor William P. Tolley. Applications for scholarships should be sent to the dean of admissions.

Sons or daughters of clergymen who are now active in the church or synagogue of their faith are eligible to apply. They must be studying for their first undergraduate degree and must maintain a 1.5 average while holding the scholarship.

Traditionally, the school had given aid to the dependents of Methodist ministers since the Methodist Episcopal church of New York founded the university in 1870. But in 1943 the policy was broadened to include all Protestant denominations and the Jewish faith. Children of priests of the Protestant Episcopal and the Greek and Russian Orthodox churches are also included in the plan.

He'd probably pay more for his cigarettes if it weren't for advertising. The cigarette manufacturers use advertising as their lowest cost way to get across news and information about their products. On the average, advertising for a pack of cigarettes amounts to less than ½¢.

Selling goods this way makes mass production possible—which means lower production costs, lower selling costs, lower prices.

UN Model Security Council Will Open Session Friday

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The security council will be in action Friday.

On a model basis, with representatives drawn from the campuses of 11 universities and colleges in the state, the security council session will begin with registration at 1 p.m. Friday in Maxwell auditorium.

EACH YEAR Syracuse university plays host to students from other campuses who attend as delegates from France, Russia, Great Britain, United States and China and other nations currently represented on the actual security council of the United Nations.

After the League of Nations was organized, this campus was the first to see a model League of Nations session 27 years ago.

Francis Carpenter, who will be guest speaker Friday evening, has announced he will tell delegates and others attending the open session what happens "behind the scenes at the Security Council." Carpenter has covered the United Nations for the Associated Press during the past several years.

Vice chancellor Finla G. Crawford will give the welcoming address Friday afternoon to students from Colgate, Cornell, Elmira, Utica college, Skidmore, Hamilton, St. Lawrence, Harper college, Rochester and the delegates from the hill.

FOUR DELEGATES and a faculty advisor from each university or college will constitute the official representatives participating in the model security council. However, all sessions are open and students are urged to attend as many as possible.

First on the agenda of business will be a discussion of the Arab-Israel question Friday evening.

At 9 a.m. Saturday, the model council will deal with the atrocity charges against Communist China and North Korea. The final session, beginning at 1:30 p.m. Saturday will concern secretariat employment in the light of the findings of the advisory committee and administrative tribunal.

Students from Syracuse university acting as official delegates will represent Denmark.

THE REMAINING four nations presently represented on the Security Council are Pakistan, Chile, Greece and Lebanon. They will be represented here by delegates from Colgate university, Elmira college, Skidmore college and the University of Rochester respectively.

Representing the permanent members of the Security Council will be Cornell, acting for France; Utica college, China; Hamilton college, United States; St. Lawrence university, Great Britain; and Harper college, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Traditions Selects Twenty Members

Twenty new Traditions commission members were announced last night by Al Anderson, Traditions president.

They include Samuel Braun, William Burkhart, Raymon Caldiero, Norman Churchill, Park Connors, George Kibby, Theodore Krawitz, Jack Most, Allen Plate, and Whitelaw Whitey) Wilson.

Also, Deborah Byrnes, Winifred Bogardus, Janet Brenneman, Patricia Cain, Barbara Cooper, Sheila Hicks, Mari Jordan, Sheila McGrath, Joan Poppe and Leslie Rubin.

The 20 were chosen from 145 Goon Squadders, 65 of whom applied for Traditions commission. They were selected on the basis of their work during Orientation week, their applications and interviews, and leadership ability.

They will be co-chairmen of next year's Orientation committees, and will participate in high school leader's weekend in February.

Westminster Sells Xmas Decorations

Members of Westminster fellowship are selling groups of metal bells tied with ribbon for Christmas decorations this week.

The decorations were made at a project party of the group in Chapel Saturday afternoon and may be bought from fellowship members in the Presbyterian counselor's office in Chapel.

The purpose of the sale is to finance two delegates to a convention which will be held on the campus of the University of Illinois in July.

Nancy Shaver is chairman of the sale, with Miss Arzine Schmavonian and Rev. Arnold Nakajima advising the group.

Variety Music Group Sets City Appearance

The new Sauter-Finegan orchestra, which is slated to appear in a concert at the William Nottingham high school on Thursday, Dec. 10, is well prepared to pull most anything the score might call for out of their brimming musical hats.

Sound is a serious thing to Ed Sauter and Bill Finegan whose band, unlkie the average aggregation, numbers 25 pieces including five saxes, a flute, English horn, bass clarinet and a variety of percussion instruments. All contribute to the acute "new sounds" produced by S-F and heard on such best selling RCA-Victor recordings as "Midnight Sleighride," "Nina Never Knew", and "Doodletown Fifers," and "Tho Moon is Blue."

ACCLAIMED AS one of the "most exciting" organizations in the field today, the Sauter-Finegan crew has called in the plaudits of the nation's top music critics.

According to George T. Simon of Metronome magazine, "So far as I'm concerned their records are the greatest things to come along in years."

Leonard Feather of Downbeat says "With more original ideas like those of Sauter-Finegan, perhaps the bands will really come back to the place of eminence now monopolized by the singers."

Top arrangers before they decided to form their own band in 1951, Sauter and Finegan have contributed their talent to the success of such bands as Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller, Benny Goodman and Ray McKinley.

Tickets for the concert, priced at $3, $2.40 and $1.80 are currently on sale at the Famous Artists series box office in the Clark Music building. The performance, scheduled to commence at 8:30 p.m. will probably last two hours.

Rep Will Speak To Catholic Club

William F. Walsh, field representative of the New York state commission Against Discrimination will discuss "Can Discrimination be Eliminated Through Legislation?" at a meeting of the Catholic Graduate Students club at 8:30 p.m. today at St. Thomas More chapel.

Walsh has been local field representative for seven years. His jurisdiction encompasses 21 counties throughout Central and Northern New York.

He was assistant area director of the State Department of Social Welfare before assuming his present duties. During world war II he was training officer for the first Negro basic training squadron in the air force and later was responsible for enforcement of the air forces' non-segregation policy under the air inspectors section.

Three Appointed To Exec Council

Three new members will sit on the executive council of St. Thomas More chapel at its next meeting Jan. 10.

Shirley Lemax and Mary Lou Steigerwald are newly appointed executive assistants of the Blessed Virgin Mary sodality. William O'Brien was named as an executive assistant of the Holy Name society.

TEAM PARTY

The 1953 Syracuse football team was honored at a party at 8:30 p.m. yesterday at the Clover club.

Stockingfoot Dance Heads Announced

Lois Cohn and William Levine, co-chairman of the Stockingfoot Dance have announced the committee chairmen for the affair. A meeting for the chairman will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow at Alpha Epsilon Phi.

The committee chairmen are Jerry Berger and Joan Poppe, tickets; Elizabeth (Betsy) Thomas and Tom Nelipowitz, arrangements; Carol Agnello and Geannine Mendenhall, decorations; Arlene (Turby) Blum and Jack Most, publicity; Audrey Hazlett and Gwen Mahle, entertainment; and Eileen Brand, Scrapbook.

Scheduled for Friday Feb. 12, the annual dance will again be held at Drumlins as one of the opening affairs of Winter Carnival Weekend.

MASSES TODAY

Roman Catholics will commemorate the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary with holy day Masses at 7 a.m. and 12 noon today in Crouse college auditorium. The Rev. Gannon F. Ryan, Roman Catholic chaplain, will be celebrant.

Hosie to Speak To Powers Club

Rev. Laurence T. Hosie, executive secretary of the council of churches of Syracuse and Onondaga county, will speak to Powers club at 7:30 p.m. today at Dean Noble's home, 815 Ostrom ave.

After the talk on "Religion as a Vocation," an organizational meeting of the club will be held at 8:15 p.m. to elect co-chairmen, appoint committees and plan a program.

The club is open to all persons seriously contemplating religion as a full time vocation. This includes ministers, rabbis, religious educators, missionaries, social workers, religious journalists and nurses working in church hospitals.

Ford Foundation Offers Fellowships To Grad Students

Company to Award Grants for Study In Foreign Areas

Ford Foundations recently announced that it is offering scholarships and fellowships to young Americans who wish to begin or continue studies on the Soviet or East European areas during the academic year 1954-1955.

The Foundation expects to make awards of three types: Graduate area training scholarships; predoctoral area research training fellowships and post-doctoral area research-training fellowships.

APPLICATIONS should be submitted by February 15, 1954 in order to be considered. Awards will be announced by May 15. Application forms and further information about the program may be obtained from: The Ford Foundation (Overseas Training and Research) 575 Madison Avenue, New York 22, New York.

Graduate area training scholarships are offered to grad students combining their advanced training in a profession, field, or discipline unit. integrated study of the Soviet or East European area. They are available for the first, second, or third year of study in such programs to persons not over 30.

Area research-training fellowships are available at the advanced pre-doctoral or early post-doctoral level. Scholars whose graduate training in their profession or discipline is already finished, and who wish to use the Fellowship awards only for integrated study of the Soviet or East European area are also invited to supply. For pre-doctoral candidates the age limit is 35, for post-doctoral candidates, 40.

This program is intended to help meet the urgent need for larger numbers of American men and women with deeper nowledge of the cultures, current problems, institutions and history of peoples and governments of these critical areas.

Awards will be made only to citizens of the United States and aliens permanently residing in the United States who intend to become citizens.

Junior Class Picks Dance Committees

Workers Needed For Sno-Ball

Co-chairmen of the various committees for the annual Sno-Ball were selected last week by the junior class executive council.

Committee heads will meet at 8 p.m. today in room 306, Women's building.

Joanne Sherman and Mary Todd will head decorations; Elaine Kieballa and James Baird, tickets; Kay Pierson and Harold Steinberg, publicity; Marilyn Nelson and Gail Dudkin, entertainment; Carol Ahlberg and Andrew Mercer, invitations and programs; Debrah Moskow and Lorraine Chanatry, refreshments; Ann McKaig and Gabriel Fusco, arrangements.

Veda Higger was named financial secretary of the traditionally junior-sponsored Winter Weekend formal.

All juniors interested in working on any of the committees are urged by over-all co-chairmen Norman Murphy and Cynthia Satow to contact the respective committee heads.

LECTURE PLANNED

Sidney Teitler, graduate in physics at Syracuse university, will address the solid state seminar today at 1:15 p.m. in 109 Steele Hall on "Recent Dynamic Calculations of the Specific Heat of Solids".

WAER to Present Show For Christmas Seal Drive

Med School Dean Will Resign Jan. 1

Dr. Wiggins to Take Post on Council

Dr. Walter S. Wiggins, assistant dean in charge of graduate and postgraduate medicine at State University College of Medicine, has resigned effective Jan. 1.

Dr. Wiggins will accept a position as associate secretary for the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals of the American medical association in Chicago. No successor has been named to his post yet.

As director of the graduate program, Dr. Wiggins has worked with hospitals and college faculty on programs for interns and residents. As director of the postgraduate program, he has surveyed educational needs of physicians in the area and has developed a program to meet some of these needs.

Dr. Wiggins was appointed instructor in medicine at the College of Medicine in Syracuse in June, 1947. In 1948, he was promoted to assistant professor in medicine and was named assistant dean in 1952.

In 1948, he was also made coordinator of the cancer teaching program and director of the tumor clinic at the college.

BILL ANGELOS and LANNY O'KUN will spark the WAER Christmas Seal show. Bill and Lanny, who wrote the music for last year's hit, "White Bucks and Tales," are shown here getting wound up with an original tune, "Sidledee," a ditty that in two years has become a campus stand-by.

Station Plans Hour Program For Dec. 15

By DICK CASE

Radio station WAER, campus musical talent and Christmas seal campaign will join hands on Tuesday, Dec. 15, for a gigantic Yule production in Hendrick's chapel.

Titled "Christmas U.S.A.," the hour-long original show will feature a cast of over 65 and will be guided by the combined talents of the entire WAER station staff under the direction of program director Nancy Hoehle, who is supervising the entire production.

THE CAMPUS station's largest presentation to date, "Christmas U.S.A." will be broadcast over WAER from 8-9 p.m. on Dec. 15. The show will be open to all students on campus the only admission will be a voluntary contribution to the Christmas seal fund of American Tuberculosis association.

The show is being produced, directed and written by Harlan (Lanny) O'Kun, William Angelos and Donald Kaufman. O'Kun and Angelos, who will provide a package of new songs for the production, will be remembered as the songwriting team behind last Spring's "White Bucks and Tales". Among the team's best known efforts are "Walking With Him," "My Sweet," "Dingleman Song," "Ah, My Dear" and "My Love For You."

Kaufman, prominent Boar's Head worker, will provide the scripted narrative. The presentation is described by the producers as a narrative show with a Christmas setting and theme. All music, comedy and drama will be flavored with the Yuletide color.

One of the outstanding numbers will be an adaptation of O. Henry's "Gift of the Magi" which has been produced on WAER's "Tell Us A Story" with great success.

BILLED AS featured vocalists are Jane Williams and Fred Griesinger, who were spotlighted in the recent productiton of "White Bucks and Tales." Both are veterans of the campus musical scene.

Newcomer Greta Wolfe, singer and dancer, will also be starred. Miss Wolfe was understudy in the road company of "Brigadoon" and featured in Olsen and Johnson's "Skating Vanities" prior to her studies at Syracuse.

The combined 50-voice choir of Gamma Phi Beta sorority and Alpha Chi Rho fraternity will add to the musical portion. Composers O'Kun and Angelos will also perform.

Ransom Place, special events director of WAER, will act as producer on behalf of the station and announcer for the broadcast. He will coordinate, along with the program director, the largest "live" show ever undertaken by the FM outlet. More technical equipment will be utilized than on any previous occasion.

WILLARD LAPE will act as narrator of the production and Wallace Bradley, chief engineer, will supervise the technical aspects of the airing. Promotion director Gilbert Katz is handling publicity.

According to the producers, "Christmas U.S.A." is one of the most ambitious presentations ever attempted on campus. All money collected at the performance will be presented to the Onondaga County Health association for the current Christmas seal drive.

A special dress rehearsal will be presented at the Veterans' hospital on Sunday, Dec. 13.

Sophomores to Apply For Study in France

Application for admission to the junior year in France is open to all responsible sophomores and must be submitted on blanks obtained from Edwin Smith, assistant dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

The blanks must be submitted to the dean of the applicant's college at the end of this semester, or not later than March 15.

APPLICANTS MUST be recommended by the chairmen of their major department, the chairmen of the French department, and the dean of their college.

A candidate must have had at least two years of pre-college French and two years of college French. He must fulfill this requirement by June.

The student is requested to study French this year and take a course in French literature. He must be a student of excellent character and seriousness of purpose, with a general academic average of C plus and a French average of B.

Several scholarships are available, but will be awarded only to students who demonstrate financial need and whose record is excellent. Special scholarship forms have been prepared and should be submitted to the Director of the Junior Year in France, together with the application for membership.

Office to Record Extra Activities

Students are able to have a record of extra-curricular activity in their personal folder in the dean of men's office through use of a special form filled out by the leader of the particular activity.

The procedure is voluntary for each activity and for each student. A blank for each student's activity may be obtained from the dean of men's office.

It is then filled out and returned to the office by the chief officer of the activity. All reports are confidential.

Students are rated on participation, effort and attendance.

The report provides the dean of men's office with a valuable record of a student's non-academic activities and enables the office to answer many queries from potential employers.

Alpha Kappa Psi Sets Fall Banquet

The annual fall banquet of Alpha Kappa Psi, business men's professional fraternity will be held at 7 p.m. Friday evening at Tubbard's. James D. Hefferman, vice-president of the Lincoln National bank will be the guest speaker.

All members are requested to attend. If they have not already signed the banquet list, they should contact Dan Banera, chairman of the affair.

European Nations Offer Many Awards

Students not receiving Fulbright grants still have a chance for study in foreign countries. The Institute of International Education has announced 102 awards available to graduates.

Graduates with Bachelor degrees from American universities are eligible to compete.

France, Germany, Switzerland, Sweden, Denmark, Netherlands, and Italy are offering the fellowships and scholarships to candidates who meet specific requirements.

Those applying for the German, Swiss, French or Italian awards should have a good command of the foreign language used where he wishes to study.

No foreign language requirements have been set up for the Netherland, Sweden or Denmark grants. However, applicants that do not have a working knowledge of one of these languages should indicate that they will take intensive study in that language before accepting the grant.

The first applications are due Feb. 1, 1954. Students wishing further information should contact Earle W. Clifford in the Dean of Men's office.

Christmas Tea Planned by Club

Syracuse women's club will hold its annual Christmas tea, in the new Women's building Thursday, at 2:30 p.m.

Headlining the program for the afternoon will be Ernst Bacon, pianist, composer and member of the University's faculty. He will be assisted by the Madrigal singers, who will give an arangement of the "Stabat Mater" by Pergolesi. The soloists are Lorraine Smorol, Victoria Gorcoff and Margaret Lynch.

Mr. Bacon will play "Prelude" in C Minor by Bach, "Variations" in A Major by Mozart, "Impromptu" in F Minor, "Moment Musicale" in F Minor by Shubert, "Rhapsody" in B Minor and "Capriccio" in B Minor by Brahms.

Mrs. Newell W. Rossman heads the committee in charge of the affair.

Presiding at the tea table will be Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith, Mrs. Alexander Capurso, Miss Lucille H. Verhulst and Mrs. Harold B. Lines.

Architect Expert To Talk at Maxwell

"To Live and to Build" will be the topic of an illustrated lecture at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Maxwell auditorium by William Dudok, a Dutch architect.

Admission to the lecture is free of charge, but tickets are required They are available in the School of Architecture office in Slocum hall.

Mr. Dudok arrived in the United States for a lecture tour of leading architectural colleges under the sponsorships of the American Institute of Architects.

A leader in his profession for over 30 years, he has gained international fame as a pioneer in the modern architectural movement, and has maintained an extensive private practice as an architect and town planner.

Card stacking

Joe McCarthy has "stacked the cards" in the current controversy regarding the Administration foreign policy as opposed to what McCarthy thinks our foreign policy should be.

A few days ago the senator told a nation-wide television audience that all (and only) persons who agreed with him regarding his recent statements on so-called "blood trade" should telegraph the White House.

As of Sunday, the White House had reported 7,846 telegrams and a backlog of 2 to 4,000. They said the wires ran about 2 to 1 in support of the senator. Yesterday a total of 17,629 wires with a 1,700 backlog was reported. A breakdown was not yet available.

The whole affair began with the Truman speech on the White case. McCarthy demand he answer Truman, and since then nearly everyone who is anyone on Capital Hill has joined the fracas.

Last week Secretary of State John Foster Dulles answered McCarthy with presidential support as he defended our foreign policy.

The secretary said that just because we send dollar aid to foreign nations, we cannot control their trade and demand that they do not trade with Communist China. He was referring to McCartthy's claim that aid should not be given to nations (such as England) that trade with the Communists.

Yesterday McCarthy bowed to press criticism and requested that citizens send in telegrams telling the other side of the story.

It seemed, though, that the junior senator had already done a lot of damage in getting statistics from the large proportion who have already written in favor of his stand.

But then, he had requested that only those who agree with him write.

We are asking that all persons who have an opinion in this controversy, whether for the Administrattion or for the senator, write the White House today.

Let's keep this on the up-and-up by pushing those pencils.

Bridge out

Today The Daily Orange received a letter from the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament Committee. It stated that the 1954 contest was beginning soon and that Syracuse had been invited to participate.

Last year the Student Union sponsored the tournament which found the Hill group receiving honorable mention in the regional play-offs.

However, it is very unlikely that a bridge tourney can be conducted on campus this year. A bridge club on longer exists because there is no Student Union organization which encourages the formation of such a body.

Whereas last year's players had the necessary facilities to participate, a 1954 group would have to find a room where such a tournament could be held.

The only bright spot on the bridge fans' horizons is the fact that Dr. Robert Lett, an authorized official, has stated that he would umpire such a tourney if a sponsoring organization could be found. Therefore, any student or group who can gather 16 bridge-lovers may have the honor of representing Syracuse in the tournament.

We realize that this is not a situation of earthquaking proportions, this possible abandonment of a bridge tournament. But it is one more program which cannot materialize because of the lack of Student Union facilities.

The complaints of foreign students were recently added to the skyscraping mountain of queries on such facilities.

There is still no informal lounge space on the campus, no television or ping-pong. Friday night dances have not been resumed, nor has the instruction in dancing.

The needs of those students not affiliated with any social organization are not being adequately met on the Syracuse campus. How long must they wait?

'CHRISTMAS IN A HURRY'

Yuletide 'On the Double'

By CHARLES C. NOBLE
Dean of Hendricks Chapel

One of our favorite modern words describes Christmas exactly; it was and is "sensational." There was a sense of urgency about the birth of Christ according to the earliest stories. In fact, according to Luke, when the shepherds heard the news they "came in haste" to Bethlehem.

That is the way we would have done it. When anything exciting or sensational happens, we also come "on the double. To be sure, the original freshness and excitement of Christmas has been dampened somewhat by modern sophistication and commercial exploitation. Does anyone believe in Santa anymore?

Last week the Saturday Evening Post described a small boy who visited Santa in a large New York department store. Said Santa Clause, "Ho, ho, ho, little man, and what do you want for Christmas?" The little boy replied, "A reciprocating cyclotron with syncro-mesh transmission and dual-flow ventilation. "Ho, ho, ho," said Santa Claus, setting the little boy down hard. "Next child." It seems a far cry from some of these simple things to the great crises of life: nevertheless, there is an urgency about all our big moments. Birth, love and death come to all people with an irresistible urgency. Our Christmas songs can be sung in the same spirit, "O Come, All Ye Faithful" in haste!

The sense of urgency, however can be overdone. Our ulcer-ridden generation proves it. Balance is necessary in dealing with the crises of life. We have not only to put out the fires in our town, but to educate people in fire preventions. We must route out subversions in our country but we must also maintain a long range education in the true meanings of democracy. A sense of urgency gets its best results in the midst of a sense of serenity and eternity.

Christmas reminds us that there are certain actions which can not be delayed. Parents and others who have contributed so much to our lives, should receive recognition now, and not on some indefinite day in the future. One is reminded of the old Vermonter who said, "When I think of all my wife has meant to me over the years, sometimes it is all I can to do keep from telling her so."

There comes a time in every student's life when he can no longer put off his life choices, whether in regard to his vocation, his faith or his life parter. Occasionally, we wake up to some shameful condition in our personal lives. When that happens, procrastination is fatal; we had better make a new start on the instant. Christmas reminds us that there is a potential Christ in the manger of every person's life. Christmas helps us open our soul's windows on the side of eternity.

AT THE FLICKERS

Museum Piece With Vitality

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

For a museum piece, "M" has more vitality than many films of a greater contemporaniety. This archetype of modern day thrillers still retains its ability to command and excite the overflow audience which appeared. As a chase thriller with psychological overtones, "M" emerges a film of great power and restraint.

Fritz Lang directed this film in 1931 before Hitchcock or Reed. His efforts, even to audiences sophisticated by 22 intervening years, is notable for its excellence in creating and maintaining tension. The director's hand is everywhere visible and controls the film with skill.

As a film, "M" is particularly extroardinary as a visual entity. Mr. Lang has dominated a capacity for pictorial composition that a painter might well envy. A circle of playing children, a lonely staircase, a grotesque window display all became integral parts of the buildup of tension.

It is in the deloineation of the psycopathic killer that the film is unsuccessful. In a cleverly balanced film where the main character is not given a chance to really act until the film is nearly over, the actor must firmly establish his character at the outset. This Peter Lorre does not do. He gives a super-charged, 8 cylinder performance of psychosis, complete with widening eyes, taut fingers and vocal pyrotechniques. It is a valid portrait of general psychosis but its lack of specificity makes it curiously ineffective. The question of what exactly is ailing Dr. Lorre is not clearly met and the doubt it raises in the audience's mind diverts attention from the film's mounting tension. This is however a minor flaw, only worth mention in that it does hamper the film. "M" is still a thriller.

'TO SPEAK OF MANY THINGS'

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

"The time was come to talk with many things."

"Le's Dance", Les Brown's orch., Coral LP—Les and his wholesome swinging lads are working on eight standards in this new LP and what results is just short of an excellent rating. Combining a driving beat and a pocketful of masterful arrangements, Brown's reknowns should propel a large number of dancing feet and happy hands with this one. Included are "Perfidio", "Lullaby in Rhythm", "Cherokee", and "Brown's Little Jug".

"Let There Be Love", Joni James, M-G-M LP—Up until now I have felt little emotion for the assorted wailings of Joni James. Things are different now. This new package presents a fresh, unhampered Joni with a touching treatment of eight love evergreens . . . definitely her stuff. Included are "The Nearness of You", "My Romance", "Love Is Here to Stay", and "You're Nearer".

The last is a fine Rodgers and Hart melody which M-G-M has dug up from somewhere. Larry Hart's poetitc lyrics, "nearer than the ivy to the wall is, nearer than the winter to tthe fall is," give Joni plenty to bite into. She does, and quite adequately at that.

"Stranger in Paradise", "Why Does It Have to be Me?", Tony Bennett—"Stranger" should be one of the big tunes of the year and I can't see any reason why not. Tony's treatment is his best in some time and this record looks like the big one. The tune is from the recently-opened musical "Kismet" with pleasant new lyrics by Robert Wright and George Forrest set to Borodin's "Prince Igor" theme . . . real fine. Gordon McRae has a good waxing of this, too. The flip is totally uninspiring.

"Baubles, Bangles and Beads", "Love You So", Peggy Lee—the first is more "Kismet" music, carefully handled by the Lee gal. Peggy has been turning out some superb things for the Decca company of late and this is not the exception. The tune is a whipped-cream, Cinderella item and Peg gives it a ride. "Love You So" is not from the show but perhaps that is just as well. Quiet, appealing love ballad ready-made for Peg. A fine but unidentified orchestra supplies capable background.

"Smoke Rings", "Deep Purple", Earl Bostic—another once-over of two standards by Mr. Bostic's squealing, dirty-toned horn. Not much to say. If you like this sort of thing, this is IT by all means.

"Santa Baby", "Under the Bridges of Paris", Eartha Kitt with Henri Rene's orch.—Christmas should be so sexy! "Santa" will probably turn up as one of the big Yule tunes and with Eartha's purring caresses, how can it miss? Seems she would have the old guy leave a "duplex and checks" in her stocking. "Bridges" is a cute Parisian melody with a fascinating mixture of French to English lyrics by Miss Kitt displaying her usual femme-fatal charms on such things. Her voice spunds more like an enchanted steam-boat whistle every day.

Side Cars—The new Warner music, "Calamity Jane", falls pretty flat but it does give Doris Day two fetching little novelty tunes to work with . . . "The Deadwood Stage" and "Just Blew in from the Windy City" . . . how about "South of the Border" by Frank Sinatra and Billy May . . . Helen O'Connell's new platter of "Six Buzzard Feathers" is one of the best novelties on the market . . . Andre Kostelanetz's latest Columbia LP has some exciting moments. Titled "Old Black Magic".

'Aura of an Institution'

By FRANK McGUIRE
Editorial Page Writer

After a visit to the unfinished shell of Watson hall, we are convinced that no matter how modern the design or comfortable the furnishings, it is hard to shake off the feeling of an institution. There are the long corridors with seemingly countless doors, community showers, large dining rooms, and all the other earmarks of regimented living. However, there should be a prize for the man who could design a large dormitory that didn't have the aura of an institution.

The future excellence of Watson hall is apparent even though the building is unfinished. Patterned along the same lines as Shaw dormitory, whose residents object to the reference to an institution, this fireproof structure will undoubtedly be one of the more popular living centers on campus.

Designed by Lorimer Rich and Associates, of Brooklyn, Watson hall is four stories of modern architecture consisting of two wings. The two residential wings are connected by a section housing what will be the lounge and dining room, but now is only a floorless shell that resembles a center city garage in size and appearance.

The lounge will be located above the dining room, yet both rooms will be on street level. Sloping ground has made the lounge on a level with University place and the dining room on a level with Waverly ave. Shown in the photo is a view of the concave face of the lounge as seen from the third floor. The familiar bank of windows looks out on a landscaped area between the two residential wings.

Interior decorating, now nonexistent, will have the modern trend and two large windows will shed plenty of light on brain-racked students. Cinder block walls and concrete floors, which is all the building consists of presently, will serve to muffle the revelry of celebrants and night owls.

Progress within the structure is in various stages, with some interior walls still incomplete and little plastering or painting started as yet. All community shower rooms are complete and feature tile construction.

Built at a cost estimated at $2,750,000, the dormitory will house 665 students.

Recognizing the fact that it is difficult to design large housing facilities without building an institution, Watson hall, when complete, should prove that it can be done. We've been assured by residents of Shaw dormitory that decorating makes a big difference in the atmosphere.

But right now, Watson hall has all the requirements of an institution.

665 Footstools

A Light in The Void

(To fill the void left by the absence of newspapers in the big city, the New York Herald Tribune made a valiant stab at publishing yesterday. It was limited to eight pages, it had no advertising, and it tried to appeal to all those New Yorkers who do not read Il Progresso Americano or La Presna.)

Headline:

McCarthy Denies Staging Contest With Ike.

News behind the news:

Departing from his usual style, Senator Joe made the understatement of the year. He said that in a popularity contest Ike would win twenty to one.

Mystically, somebody down at the Trib placed a picture of a performing seal on page 2.

McCarthy, seals, and John Crosby, it was nice having the Trib back. Why we even can't wait to read Westbrook again.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Countrymen 'in Hell'

Dear Countryman Herz:

We are writing in Hell.

Years ago, we were happy young lads, carefree and gay. We thought, but we were not sure, that the only safe opinions were the opinions that were "safe." We thought but we were not (sure) that we need guts to stand for what we sincerely believed but we did not want opinions because they are dogmatic, fanatic and unswerving. We thought that presidents were past, present and future (but we weren't sure); and (to repeat) opinion was dogmatic, fanatic and unswerving. We stood at the Crossroads: which way? . . . Right? . . . Left? . . . Down? We asked you, Countryman Herz; you said "VENTURE NO OPINIONS, OPINIONS are dogmatic, fanatic and unswerving.

And so here we are. In hell.

EASTERN RAILROADS

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

The sun was slowly setting behind Hendricks field, one crisp fall afternoon, late last year, as Syracuse's Eastern-champs-to-be completed another intensive practice. By the Irving ave. goal posts, two uniformed figures methodically threw a football back and forth.

The main squad finished its practice, took the usual lap around the field, and went into the dressing room. The two looked up as their teammates passed, and then continued to throw the ball until it was too dark to see any longer.

The lonely duo were then unknown transfers Vinnie Vergara and Ted Kukowski. They were ineligible for 1952 competition having played the year before for Army and Navy respectively.

Vince Vergara

Both were keeping in shape during the layoff, however, and making sure that their marks also would be in good shape for the following year. While Syracuse swept through a successful season, they held extra points, shagged kicks and generally made themselves as useful as possible in the practice sessions.

The name of Vergara had been heard of before because Vinnie's two brothers, Tony and Al, were on the team now. Little had been heard of Kukowski except that he had played center for the Middies and was reported to be a pretty fair competitor.

That was last fall. Both returned to college this fall, (Ted also was in summer school) having completed the one-year residence rule the NCAA requires of transfers.

This year, it was different. Unfortunately, a rash of injuries kept Vinnie out for most of the season. Orange opponents, however, saw a lot of Ted—more than they wanted.

* * * * *

The final Lambert Trophy ratings released-Thanksgiving week were a surprise for more than one reason. The Orangemen's eighth place position, of course, was not indicative of the team's play, although looking at the cold record (5-3-1) the committee cannot be blamed for its decision.

The real jolt came when one looked into the fifth position and found Holy Cross. The Crusaders, who certainly didn't have one of their best squads, were not only shut out by Syracuse, but also upset by Boston College (rated 10) and Brown (rated 19).

With the Trophy ratings indicative of the relative standings of the teams in the East, a decision like this does reflect upon the entire selection. Holy Cross with only an average record in fifth spot doesn't speak well of the caliber of the rest of the East.

* * * * *

Colgate and Cornell both served notice that they are ready, by opening their respective basketball seasons this weekend with impressive wins. Colgate, which will be defending the Big Three title, is rumored to have some internal trouble.

Reportedly, some of the Raider players are not getting along too well with their coach. Strained relations between those two elements never make for championship teams.

* * * * *

Two newcomers on Coach Roy Simmons' boxing club, may provide some interesting moments in the coming fistic season. Ted (Cookie) Kukowski is trying out as is John Pauldine, a sophomore returnee.

The interesting fact about Pauldine is that he fought for the freshmen three years ago before going into the service. John, along with the rest of the team, put on the gloves for the first time last week.

BU Coaches Omit Fleck After Players Pick Him On Team

Boston university's dual all opponent team—one by the players and one by the coaches—mentioned a total of five Syracuse gridders. All-American Bob Fleck failed to make the coaches' team after the players had elected him to their all-opponent team.

The coaches and players found themselves in agreement on only two Orangemen. Both center Ted Kukowski and halfback Bob Leberman made both teams. Fleck rounded out the trio of Syracusans that the players picked.

The coaching staff didn't see it that way. Along with Leberman and Kukowski they added tackles Les McClelland and end Ray Perkins.

Both players and coaches agreed on three men who made the Syracuse all-opponent team. Hank Lemire of Holy Cross, Tony Rados of Penn State and Gene Filipski of Villanova were the Syracuse-all opponents who made the team.

Several players that the Orange played, but didn't see fit to put on the player's all-opponent team, made the Terrier team: End Jim Garrity of Penn State, and tackle Joe Faragalli of Villanova.

The coaches also made a few choices that Syracuse didn't: tackle Rosey Grier of Penn State, guard Pete Carriere of Villanova and guard Ed Crodonick of Temple rounded out that list.

LOOP LEADER

Wally Habel, Syracuse student who plays professional baseball with Schenectady in the Eastern league, led second baseman in that loop with a fielding average of .981. Habel hopes to play with the Syracuse Chiefs this coming campaign.

JACK LARNED played an outstanding defensive game against Canisius last Saturday as he held the usually high scoring Gerry Large to only one point. LARNED also contributed 11 points to the Piety offense.

Cleveland A, M-10, Win in Hoop Action

By BOB TATA

A wide point spread was the order of the night in last evening's intramural basketball games. No less than five out of the eight winners held an advantage of more than 20 points at the final whistle.

In the first game of the night, Grover Cleveland A overwhelmed Skytop M-6 by a score of 53-9. The upperclassmen outshined their freshman rivals in every respect. A fast break, coupled with nice shooting, on the part of Don Mills and R. Talerico, were the deciding factors.

M-10 GOT off to a slow start in the first half and then finished in grand style, trouncing Levi Morton, 53-23. Dick Day and Oz Winters stole the ball time and again for the Skytopers. Winters, with a fine display of shooting from the outside as well as in close, led the winners by dunking 28 points.

The Skytop M-9-Grover Cleveland B game was the thriller of the night, M-9 held a 12-7 lead at halftime and widened it in the opening minutes of the second half, only to see their advantage slip away. With the score 23-13 in favor of M-9, Grover Cleveland made five quick hoops, tying the game. The stage was set for Hobbs of Cleveland to toss in the winning two-pointer with twenty seconds remaining.

In other games, Skytop M-5 was beaten by the Irving ave. (Celtics), 44-13; M-2 overcame Men's Co-op by a score of 35-6; M-4 downed Washington Arms 4-5 by a count of 35-15; Skytop M-8 defeated Benjamin O'Dell, 54-21; and Washington Arms 2-3 edged Skytop M-7, 17-13.

Hoopster Unlikely To See Action In Sampson Tilt

Syracuse's basketball fortunes received what might be a devastating blow yesterday when pivotman Ronnie Kilpatrick, the team's leading scorer, suffered an ankle injury during practice drills in Archbold gym.

The extent of Kilpatrick's injury, diagnosed as an ankle sprain, is not known as yet, but it is unlikely he will see action Wednesday when the Sampson Sabres visit Piety Hill. If he is sidelined, one of three sophs, Walt Scott, Ron Gillespie or Manny Breland, will probably move into the starting lineup.

SAMPSON, WHICH defeated the Orange, 72-70, a year ago, again boasts a strong quintet. John Abrahams has paced the flyers to three victories in five starts, scoring at a 25 point-per-game clip.

Chuck Stevesky, former Syracuse cager who scored 25 points against the Orange last season, and Indiana's Jack Brown are again among the Sampson stars.

A first-quarter spurt and fine defensive play enabled the Orangemen to notch their second victory of the season last Saturday when they defeated Canisius, 61-52, in Buffalo. Fordham defeated Niagara, 77-59, in the first game of the doubleheader, a battle of future Syracuse opponents.

Kilpatrick and Dave Kline led an early surge as the Orange rolled up a 19-7 advantage at the quarter. Canisius cut the deficit to six points at halftime and drew within four at the three-quarter mark as Kline and Kilpatrick sat out most of the third period with four personal fouls.

SYRACUSE REGAINED control in the final chapter, however, as the big men returned to supply the necessary rebounding.

All the Orange starters hit double figures with Kilpatrick's 14 points showing the way. Captain Mel Besdin and Kline each contributed 13 while Jack Larned added 11 and Lou Cegala 10.

Coach Marc Guley had special praise for the fine defensive performances turned by Besdin and Larned. Larned held Jerry Large, former Orange hoopster and Canisius' leading scorer, to a single point while Besdin stopped various Griff forwards during the contest.

Canisius will pay a visit to Archbold gym later in the season, meeting the Saltines on Feb. 17.

Wrestlers Work Out

Coach Joe McDaniel's wrestlers went through another brisk workout yesterday in preparation for the longest and roughest wrestling season since pre-war days.

As of yet, McDaniel hasn't decided on his starting lineup. Co-capt. Ed Rooney is the only grappler sure of a starting post.

Rooney, who was undefeated in dual meet competition last season, will probably wrestle at the 167 pound slot although there is a possibility that he might wrestle in a heavier division.

Co-Capt. Charles DeBellis and Henry Gobetz, the only other returning lettermen, are contenders for the 137 and 167 pound slots respectively.

Tangerine Hoopsters Prep For Sampson JV Encounter

Coach Andy Mogish put his frosh cagers through a strenuous practice session yesterday in preparation for tomorrow night's contest against the Sampson AFB jay-vee five.

The Tangerine hoopsters will be looking for their second straight victory of the young campaign when they tangle with the Airmen in the preliminary game to the Orange-Sampson varsity tilt.

Two weeks ago, the yearlings opened the season with an impressive 79-53 victory over the rangy Ithaca college squad. Gary Clark, a 6 ft.-4 forward, led the Syracuse scoring in the opener with 18 points. Vince Cohen, although not a member of the starting aggregation, bucketed 16 and Jim Snyder had 11.

The Orange yearlings had little trouble against Ithaca after the first period. Syracuse, leading by only four points after the initial stanza, raced to a 12 point, 37-25 margin at the half and then coasted to victory. At one point in the fourth quarter, the Tangerines led by 38 points.

Following the Sampson game, the Mogishmen will take to the road to meet the Niagara frosh on December 16 at Niagara.

Card stacking

Joe McCarthy has "stacked the cards" in the current controversy regarding the Administration foreign policy as opposed to what McCarthy thinks our foreign policy should be.

A few days ago the senator told a nationwide television audience that all (and only) persons who agreed with him regarding his recent statements on so-called "blood trade" should telegraph the White House.

As of Sunday, the White House had reported 7,846 telegrams and a backlog of 2 to 4,000. They said the wires ran about 2 to 1 in support of the senator. Yesterday a total of 17,629 wires with a 1,700 backlog was reported. A breakdown was not yet available.

The whole affair began with the Truman speech on the White case. McCarthy demand he answer Truman, and since then nearly everyone who is anyone on Capital Hill has joined the fracas.

Last week Secretary of State John Foster Dulles answered McCarthy with presidential support as he defended our foreign policy.

The secretary said that just because we send dollar aid to foreign nations, we cannot control their trade and demand that they do not trade with Communist China. He was referring to McCartthy's claim that aid should not be given to nations (such as England) that trade with the Communists.

Yesterday McCarthy bowed to press criticism and requested that citizens send in telegrams telling the other side of the story.

It seemed, though, that the junior senator had already done a lot of damage in getting statistics from the large proportion who have already written in favor of his stand.

But then, he had requested that only those who agree with him write.

We are asking that all persons who have an opinion in this controversy, whether for the Administrattion or for the senator, write the White House today.

Let's keep this on the up-and-up by pushing those pencils.

Bridge out

Today The Daily Orange received a letter from the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament Committee. It stated that the 1954 contest was beginning soon and that Syracuse had been invited to participate.

Last year the Student Union sponsored the tournament which found the Hill group receiving honorable mention in the regional play-offs.

However, it is very unlikely that a bridge tourney can be conducted on campus this year. A bridge club on longer exists because there is no Student Union organization which encourages the formation of such a body.

Whereas last year's players had the necessary facilities to participate, a 1954 group would have to find a room where such a tournament could be held.

The only bright spot on the bridge fans' horizons is the fact that Dr. Robert Lett, an authorized official, has stated that he would umpire such a tourney if a sponsoring organization could be found. Therefore, any student or group who can gather 16 bridge-lovers may have the honor of representing Syracuse in the tournament.

We realize that this is not a situation of earthquaking proportions, this possible abandonment of a bridge tournament. But it is one more program which cannot materialize because of the lack of Student Union facilities.

The complaints of foreign students were recently added to the skyscraping mountain of queries on such facilities.

There is still no informal lounge space on the campus, no television or ping-pong. Friday night dances have not been resumed, nor has the instruction in dancing.

The needs of those students not affiliated with any social organization are not being adequately met on the Syracuse campus. How long must they wait?

'CHRISTMAS IN A HURRY'

Yuletide 'On the Double'

By CHARLES C. NOBLE
Dean of Hendricks Chapel

One of our favorite modern words describes Christmas exactly; it was and is "sensational." There was a sense of urgency about the birth of Christ according to the earliest stories. In fact, according to Luke, when the shepherds heard the news they "came in haste" to Bethlehem.

That is the way we would have done it. When anything exciting or sensational happens, we also come "on the double. To be sure, the original freshness and excitement of Christmas has been dampened somewhat by modern sophistication and commercial exploitation. Does anyone believe in Santa anymore?

Last week the Saturday Evening Post described a small boy who visited Santa in a large New York department store. Said Santa Clause, "Ho, ho, ho, little man, and what do you want for Christmas?" The little boy replied, "A reciprocating cyclotron with syncro-mesh transmission and dual-flow ventilation. "Ho, ho, ho," said Santa Claus, setting the little boy down hard. "Next child." It seems a far cry from some of these simple things to the great crises of life: nevertheless, there is an urgency about all our big moments. Birth, love and death come to all people with an irresistible urgency. Our Christmas songs can be sung in the same spirit, "O Come, All Ye Faithful" in haste!

The sense of urgency, however can be overdone. Our ulcer-ridden generation proves it. Balance is necessary in dealing with the crises of life. We have not only to put out the fires in our town, but to educate people in fire preventions. We must route out subversions in our country but we must also maintain a long range education in the true meanings of democracy. A sense of urgency gets its best results in the midst of a sense of serenity and eternity.

Christmas reminds us that there are certain actions which can not be delayed. Parents and others who have contributed so much to our lives, should receive recognition now, and not on some indefinite day in the future. One is reminded of the old Vermonter who said, "When I think of all my wife has meant to me over the years, sometimes it is all I can to do keep from telling her so."

There comes a time in every student's life when he can no longer put off his life choices, whether in regard to his vocation, his faith or his life parter. Occasionally, we wake up to some shameful condition in our personal lives. When that happens, procrastination is fatal; we had better make a new start on the instant. Christmas reminds us that there is a potential Christ in the manger of every person's life. Christmas helps us open our soul's windows on the side of eternity.

AT THE FLICKERS

Museum Piece With Vitality

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

For a museum piece, "M" has more vitality than many films of a greater contemporaniety. This archetype of modern day thrillers still retains its ability to command and excite the overflow audience which appeared. As a chase thriller with psychological overtones, "M" emerges a film of great power and restraint.

Fritz Lang directed this film in 1931 before Hitchcock or Reed. His efforts, even to audiences sophisticated by 22 intervening years, is notable for its excellence in creating and maintaining tension. The director's hand is everywhere visible and controls the film with skill.

As a film, "M" is particularly extroardinary as a visual entity. Mr. Lang has dominated a capacity for pictorial composition that a painter might well envy. A circle of playing children, a lonely staircase, a grotesque window display all became integral parts of the buildup of tension.

It is in the deloineation of the psycopathic killer that the film is unsuccessful. In a cleverly balanced film where the main character is not given a chance to really act until the film is nearly over, the actor must firmly establish his character at the outset. This Peter Lorre does not do. He gives a super-charged, 8 cylinder performance of psychosis, complete with widening eyes, taut fingers and vocal pyrotechniques. It is a valid portrait of general psychosis but its lack of specificity makes it curiously ineffective. The question of what exactly is ailing Dr. Lorre is not clearly met and the doubt it raises in the audience's mind diverts attention from the film's mounting tension. This is however a minor flaw, only worth mention in that it does hamper the film. "M" is still a thriller.

'TO SPEAK OF MANY THINGS'

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

"The time was come to talk with many things."

"Le's Dance", Les Brown's orch., Coral LP—Les and his wholesome swinging lads are working on elght standards in this new LP and what results is just short of an excellent rating. Combining a driving beat and a pocketful of masterful arrangements, Brown's reknowns should propel a large number of dancing feet and happy hands with this one. Included are "Perfidio", "Lullaby in Rhythm", "Cherokee", and "Brown's Little Jug".

"Let There Be Love", Joni James, M-G-M LP—Up until now I have felt little emotion for the assorted wailings of Joni James. Things are different now. This new package presents a fresh, unhampered Joni with a touching treatment of eight love evergreens . . . definitely her stuff. Included are "The Nearness of You", "My Romance", "Love Is Here to Stay", and "You're Nearer".

The last is a fine Rodgers and Hart melody which M-G-M has dug up from somewhere. Larry Hart's poetite lyrics, "nearer than the ivy to the wall is, nearer than the winter to tthe fall is," give Joni plenty to bite into. She does, and quite adequately at that.

"Stranger in Paradise", "Why Does It Have to be Me?", Tony Bennett—"Stranger" should be one of the big tunes of the year and I can't see any reason why not. Tony's treatment is his best in some time and this record looks like the big one. The tune is from the recently-opened musical "Kismet" with pleasant new lyrics by Robert Wright and George Forrest set to Borodin's "Prince Igor" theme . . . real fine. Gordon McRae has a good waxing of this, too. The flip is totally uninspiring.

"Baubles, Bangles and Beads", "Love You So", Peggy Lee—the first is more "Kismet" music, carefully handled by the Lee gal. Peggy has been turning out some superb things for the Decca company of late and this is not the exception. The tune is a whipped-cream, Cinderella item and Peg gives it a ride. "Love You So" is not from the show but perhaps that is just as well. Quiet, appealing love ballad ready-made for Peg. A fine but unidentified orchestra supplies capable background.

"Smoke Rings", "Deep Purple", Earl Bostic—another once-over of two standards by Mr. Bostic's squealing, dirty-toned horn. Not much to say. If you like this sort of thing, this is IT by all means.

"Santa Baby", "Under the Bridges of Paris", Eartha Kitt with Henri Rene's orch.—Christmas should be so sexy! "Santa" will probably turn up as one of the big Yule tunes and with Eartha's purring caresses, how can it miss? Seems she would have the old guy leave a "duplex and checks" in her stocking. "Bridges" is a cute Parisian melody with a fascinating mixture of French to English lyrics by Miss Kitt displaying her usual femme-fatal charms on such things. Her voice spunds more like an enchanted steam-boat whistle every day.

Side Cars—The new Warner music, "Calamity Jane", falls pretty flat but it does give Doris Day two fetching little novelty tunes to work with . . . "The Deadwood Stage" and "Just Blew in from the Windy City" . . . how about "South of the Border" by Frank Sinatra and Billy May . . . Helen O'Connell's new platter of "Six Buzzard Feathers" is one of the best novelties on the market . . . Andre Kostelanetz's latest Columbia LP has some exciting moments. Titled "Old Black Magic".

'Aura of an Institution'

By FRANK McGUIRE
Editorial Page Writer

After a visit to the unfinished shell of Watson hall, we are convinced that no matter how modern the design or comfortable the furnishings, it is hard to shake off the feeling of an institution. There are the long corridors with seemingly countless doors, community showers, large dining rooms, and all the other earmarks of regimented living. However, there should be a prize for the man who could design a large dormitory that didn't have the aura of an institution.

The future excellence of Watson hall is apparent even though the building is unfinished. Patterned along the same lines as Shaw dormitory, whose residents object to the reference to an institution, this fireproof structure will undoubtedly be one of the more popular living centers on campus.

Designed by Lorimer Rich and Associates, of Brooklyn, Watson hall is four stories of modern architecture consisting of two wings. The two residential wings are connected by a section housing what will be the lounge and dining room, but now is only a floorless shell that resembles a center city garage in size and appearance.

The lounge will be located above the dining room, yet both rooms will be on street level. Sloping ground has made the lounge on a level with University place and the dining room on a level with Waverly ave. Shown in the photo is a view of the concave face of the lounge as seen from the third floor. The familiar bank of windows looks out on a landscaped area between the two residential wings.

Interior decorating, now nonexistent, will have the modern trend and two large windows will shed plenty of light on brain-racked students. Cinder block walls and concrete floors, which is all the building consists of presently, will serve to muffle the revelry of celebrants and night owls.

Progress within the structure is in various stages, with some interior walls still incomplete and little plastering or painting started as yet. All community shower rooms are complete and feature tile construction.

Built at a cost estimated at $2,750,000, the dormitory will house 665 students.

Recognizing the fact that it is difficult to design large housing facilities without building an institution, Watson hall, when complete, should prove that it can be done. We've been assured by residents of Shaw dormitory that decorating makes a big difference in the atmosphere.

But right now, Watson hall has all the requirements of an institution.

665 Footstools

A Light in The Void

(To fill the void left by the absence of newspapers in the big city, the New York Herald Tribune made a valiant stab at publishing yesterday. It was limited to eight pages, it had no advertising, and it tried to appeal to all those New Yorkers who do not read Il Progresso Americano or La Presna.)

Headline:

McCarthy Denies Staging Contest With Ike.

News behind the news:

Departing from his usual style, Senator Joe made the understatement of the year. He said that in a popularity contest Ike would win twenty to one.

Mystically, somebody down at the Trib placed a picture of a performing seal on page 2.

McCarthy, seals, and John Crosby, it was nice having the Trib back. Why we even can't wait to read Westbrook again.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Countrymen 'in Hell'

Dear Countryman Herz:

We are writing in Hell.

Years ago, we were happy young lads, carefree and gay. We thought, but we were not sure, that the only safe opinions were the opinions that were "safe." We thought but we were not (sure) that we need guts to stand for what we sincerely believed but we did not want opinions because they are dogmatic, fanatic and unswerving. We thought that presidents were past, present and future (but we weren't sure); and (to repeat) opinion was dogmatic, fanatic and unswerving. We stood at the Crossroads: which way? . . . Right? . . . Left? . . . Down? We asked you, Countryman Herz; you said "VENTURE NO OPINIONS, OPINIONS are dogmatic, fanatic and unswerving.

And so here we are. In hell.

EASTERN RAILROADS

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

The sun was slowly setting behind Hendricks field, one crisp fall afternoon, late last year, as Syracuse's Eastern-champs-to-be completed another intensive practice. By the Irving ave. goal posts, two uniformed figures methodically threw a football back and forth.

The main squad finished its practice, took the usual lap around the field, and went into the dressing room. The two looked up as their teammates passed, and then continued to throw the ball until it was too dark to see any longer.

The lonely duo were then unknown transfers Vinnie Vergara and Ted Kukowski. They were ineligible for 1952 competition having played the year before for Army and Navy respectively.

Vince Vergara

Both were keeping in shape during the layoff, however, and making sure that their marks also would be in good shape for the following year. While Syracuse swept through a successful season, they held extra points, shagged kicks and generally made themselves as useful as possible in the practice sessions.

The name of Vergara had been heard of before because Vinnie's two brothers, Tony and Al, were on the team now. Little had been heard of Kukowski except that ae had played center for the Middies and was reported to be a pretty fair competitor.

That was last fall. Both returned to college this fall, (Ted also was in summer school) having completed the one-year residence rule the NCAA requires of transfers.

This year, it was different. Unfortunately, a rash of injuries kept Vinnie out for most of the season. Orange opponents, however, saw a lot of Ted—more than they wanted.

* * * * *

The final Lambert Trophy ratings released-Thanksgiving week were a surprise for more than one reason. The Orangemen's eighth place position, of course, was not indicative of the team's play, although looking at the cold record (5-3-1) the committee cannot be blamed for its decision.

The real jolt came when one looked into the fifth position and found Holy Cross. The Crusaders, who certainly didn't have one of their best squads, were not only shut out by Syracuse, but also upset by Boston College (rated 10) and Brown (rated 19).

With the Trophy ratings indicative of the relative standings of the teams in the East, a decision like this does reflect upon the entire selection. Holy Cross with only an average record in fifth spot doesn't speak well of the caliber of the rest of the East.

* * * * *

Colgate and Cornell both served notice that they are ready, by opening their respective basketball seasons this weekend with impressive wins. Colgate, which will be defending the Big Three title, is rumored to have some internal trouble.

Reportedly, some of the Raider players are not getting along too well with their coach. Strained relations between those two elements never make for championship teams.

* * * * *

Two newcomers on Coach Roy Simmons' boxing club, may provide some interesting moments in the coming fistic season. Ted (Cookie) Kukowski is trying out as is John Pauldine, a sophomore returnee.

The interesting fact about Pauldine is that he fought for the freshmen three years ago before going into the service. John, along with the rest of the team, put on the gloves for the first time last week.

Tangerine Hoopsters Prep For Sampson JV Encounter

Coach Andy Mogish put his frosh cagers through a strenuous practice session yesterday in preparation for tomorrow night's contest against the Sampson AFB jay-vee five.

The Tangerine hoopsters will be looking for their second straight victory of the young campaign when they tangle with the Airmen in the preliminary game to the Orange-Sampson varsity tilt.

Two weeks ago, the yearlings opened the season with an impressive 79-53 victory over the rangy Ithaca college squad. Gary Clark, a 6 ft.-4 forward, led the Syracuse scoring in the opener with 18 points. Vince Cohen, although not a member of the starting aggregation, bucketed 16 and Jim Snyder had 11.

The Orange yearlings had little trouble against Ithaca after the first period. Syracuse, leading by only four points after the initial stanza, raced to a 12 point, 37-25 margin at the half and then coasted to victory. At one point in the fourth quarter, the Tangerines led by 38 points.

Following the Sampson game, the Mogishmen will take to the road to meet the Niagara frosh on December 16 at Niagara.

BU Coaches Omit Fleck After Players Pick Him On Team

Boston university's dual all opponent team—one by the players and one by the coaches—mentioned a total of five Syracuse gridders. All-American Bob Fleck failed to make the coaches' team after the players had elected him to their all-opponent team.

The coaches and players found themselves in agreement on only two Orangemen. Both center Ted Kukowski and halfback Bob Leberman made both teams. Fleck rounded out the trio of Syracusans that the players picked.

The coaching staff didn't see it that way. Along with Leberman and Kukowski they added tackles Les McClelland and end Ray Perkins.

Both players and coaches agreed on three men who made the Syracuse all-opponent team. Hank Lemire of Holy Cross, Tony Rados of Penn State and Gene Filipski of Villanova were the Syracuse-all opponents who made the team.

Several players that the Orange played, but didn't see fit to put on the player's all-opponent team, made the Terrier team: End Jim Garrity of Penn State, and tackle Joe Faragalli of Villanova.

The coaches also made a few choices that Syracuse didn't: tackle Rosey Grier of Penn State, guard Pete Carriere of Villanova and guard Ed Crodonick of Temple rounded out that list.

Sport Tix

Tickets for all Syracuse winter sport events are now on sale in the athletic office. Ticket manager Harold Michaels has requested students to purchase ducats for games in advance to avoid congestion the day of the event. Student tickets priced at 10 cents can be purchased by showing an ID card.

-Intra Schedule-

Basketball: 6:15, Aces vs. Deacons; 7:00, Bearcats vs. Livingston; 7:45, Bureaucrats vs. City Men; 8:30, Delta Tau Delta vs. Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Bowling: 6:15, Skytop M-5 vs. Skytop M-8; Skytop M-4 vs. Skytop M-7; Skytop M-14 vs. Collendale A-3.

8:15, Phi Kappa Tau vs. Theta Chi; Kappa Sigma vs. Alpha Tau Omega; Alpha Chi Rho vs. Phi Epsilon Pi.

LOOP LEADER

Wally Habel, Syracuse student who plays professional baseball with Schenectady in the Eastern league, led second baseman in that loop with a fielding average of .981. Habel hopes to play with the Syracuse Chiefs this coming campaign.

JACK LARNED played an outstanding defensive game against Canisius last Saturday as he held the usually high scoring Gerry Large to only one point. LARNED also contributed 11 points to the Piety offense.

Hoopster Unlikely To See Action In Sampson Tilt

Syracuse's basketball fortunes received what might be a devastating blow yesterday when pivotman Ronnie Kilpatrick, the team's leading scorer, suffered an ankle injury during practice drills in Archbold gym.

The extent of Kilpatrick's injury, diagnosed as an ankle sprain, is not known as yet, but it is unlikely he will see action Wednesday when the Sampson Sabres visit Piety Hill. If he is sidelined, one of three sophs, Walt Scott, Ron Gillespie or Manny Breland, will probably move into the starting lineup.

SAMPSON, WHICH defeated the Orange, 72-70, a year ago, again boasts a strong quintet. John Abrahams has paced the flyers to three victories in five starts, scoring at a 25 point-per-game clip.

Chuck Stevesky, former Syracuse cager who scored 25 points against the Orange last season, and Indiana's Jack Brown are again among the Sampson stars.

A first-quarter spurt and fine defensive play enabled the Orangemen to notch their second victory of the season last Saturday when they defeated Canisius, 61-52, in Buffalo. Fordham defeated Niagara, 77-59, in the first game of the doubleheader, a battle of future Syracuse opponents.

Kilpatrick and Dave Kline led an early surge as the Orange rolled up a 19-7 advantage at the quarter. Canisius cut the deficit to six points at halftime and drew within four at the three-quarter mark as Kline and Kilpatrick sat out most of the third period with four personal fouls.

SYRACUSE REGAINED control in the final chapter, however, as the big men returned to supply the necessary rebounding.

All the Orange starters hit double figures with Kilpatrick's 14 points showing the way. Captain Mel Besdin and Kline each contributed 13 while Jack Larned added 11 and Lou Cegala 10.

Coach Marc Guley had special praise for the fine defensive performances turned by Besdin and Larned. Larned held Jerry Large, former Orange hoopster and Canisius' leading scorer, to a single point while Besdin stopped various Griff forwards during the contest.

Canisius will pay a visit to Archbold gym later in the season, meeting the Saltines on Feb. 17.

Cleveland A, M-10, Win in Hoop Action

By BOB TATA

A wide point spread was the order of the night in last evening's intramural basketball games. No less than five out of the eight winners held an advantage of more than 20 points at the final whistle.

In the first game of the night, Grover Cleveland A overwhelmed Skytop M-6 by a score of 53-9. The upperclassmen outshined their freshman rivals in every respect. A fast break, coupled with nice shooting, on the part of Don Mills and R. Talerico, were the deciding factors.

M-10 GOT off to a slow start in the first half and then finished in grand style, trouncing Levi Morton, 53-23. Dick Day and Oz Winters stole the ball time and again for the Skytopers. Winters, with a fine display of shooting from the outside as well as in close, led the winners by dunking 28 points.

The Skytop M-9 - Grover Cleveland B game was the thriller of the night, M-9 held a 12-7 lead at halftime and widened it in the opening minutes of the second half, only to see their advantage slip away. With the score 23-13 in favor of M-9, Grover Cleveland made five quick hoops, tying the game. The stage was set for Hobbs of Cleveland to toss in the winning two-pointer with twenty seconds remaining.

In other games, Skytop M-5 was beaten by the Irving ave. (Celtics), 44-13; M-2 overcame Men's Co-op by a score of 35-6; M-4 downed Washington Arms 4-5 by a count of 35-15; Skytop M-8 defeated Benjamin O'Dell, 54-21; and Washington Arms 2-3 edged Skytop M-7, 17-13.

Wrestlers Work Out

Coach Joe McDaniel's wrestlers went through another brisk workout yesterday in preparation for the longest and roughest wrestling season since pre-war days.

As of yet, McDaniel hasn't decided on his starting lineup. Co-capt. Ed Rooney is the only grappler sure of a starting post.

Rooney, who was undefeated in dual meet competition last season, will probably wrestle at the 167 pound slot although there is a possibility that he might wrestle in a heavier division.

Co-Capt. Charles DeBellis and Henry Gobetz, the only other returning lettermen, are contenders for the 137 and 167 pound slots respectively.

ECKEL STARTS TOMORROW

Editor Will Discuss 'Freedom of Press'

James Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, will speak to citizenship students on "Freedom of the Press" at 11 a.m. and 2:45 p.m. today in Marshall auditorium, announced Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown, head of the citizenship department.

The guest lecturer, who has been with the Washington Post since 1947, recently attracted nationwide attention for his censure of Senator McCarthy's investigation of James Wechsley, editor of the New York Post.

BEFORE BECOMING the managing editor of the Post, Wiggins was assistant to the publisher of the New York Times.

From 1922 until 1946 Wiggins served on the editorial staffs of the Rock County Star, the Luverne Star and the Dispatch Press in St. Paul.

Wiggins was born in Luverne, Minnesota and was educated there. He married the former Mabel E. Preston in 1923.

During world war II, the managing editor served as an air combat intelligence officer in the Mediterranean theater. Wiggins was commissioned a major in 1944.

A MEMBER OF Sigma Delta Chi, Wiggins is also affiliated with the Masons clubs and the National Press Association.

The lecture is open to the entire student body and all faculty members.

University Chorus To Present Concert

University chorus will present the "Magnificat" by Carl Philip Emanuel Bach at its annual Christmas concert at 8:30 p.m. next Monday, in Crouse auditorium.

Frank Hakanson will direct the chorus, and Arthur Poister will accompany the group on the organ. The concert will be the chorus' 85th in 42 seasons.

Featured soloists for the production will be Louise Orlando, soprano; Margaret Lynch, contralto; Robert Johnston, tenor; and Frederick Griesinger, baritone.

Admission is free to all of the Crouse college concerts.

May Show Needs Campus Talent

Are you talented? Do you sing, dance or act? Have you some spare time? Here's your chance to take part in the annual May show, sponsored by the Percy Hughes school.

Charles "Bud" Mitchell, who is heading the show committee is looking for University talent to use in the show which will be held on the first Friday of May.

Mitchell would like to see many Syracusans take part, especially freshmen. All interested can call Mitchell at 75-7500 or see him at 411 University ave.

EXCHANGE DINNER

Panhellenic association will hold its exchange dinner at 5:30 p.m. today. Each sorority will send seven girls.

Yacht Club School Schedules Sign-Ups For Class Program

Guest speakers, movies and actual sailing experience will supplement the winter program of the Syracuse university yacht club shore school, according to Ann McKenzie, Rear Commodore of the club.

The official opening of the shore school will be this Thursday night at 7 p.m. in 204 H.L. Anyone who hasn't signed up for the learn-to-sail course is urged to contact Miss McKenzie.

The opening session will cover general sailing nomenclature, including all terms which might puzzle the common landlubber. Len Montague, a summer sailing instructor at the Henderson Harbor yacht club, will do the lecturing.

Other main topics to be covered in the shore school include the names and parts of boats, standing and running rigging, theory, trim of sail, maneuvering, and finally, a review of the entire course. Swimming tests will be given to shore school members at a splash party prior to the commencement of sailing on Lake Onondaga.

Launching of the club's ten dinghies is schedule for mid-March following a complete overhauling over the winter. Groups of ten or more members have been assigned to work on the boats, each group responsible for two boats. Captains head the program under the club's fleet captain, Art Arnold.

Band Will Travel To Utica College

The University pep band will travel to Utica college as the guests of Oneonta State Teachers college and Utica college on Saturday. The band has been invited to play at the Oneonta-Utica basketball game.

Utica college is chartering a Greyhound bus to carry the 25 members of the pep band to Utica.

Alta Burg, University drum majorette, has also been invited to perform during half time at the game and will twirl her fire batons routine.

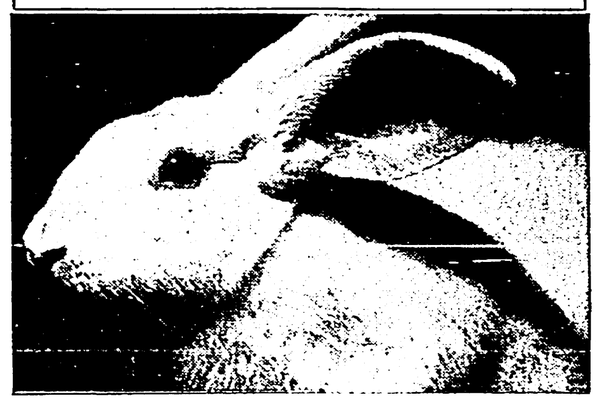
J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test


Here's a sad cotton tale: poor Paul was in a stew about his hare until his paw wrote: "I ear you got a bun on because your girl left you. Now, lettuce look at the bre'r facts. To get in on the bunny huggin', smart rabbits foot it down to any toilet goods counter for Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's biggest-selling hare tonic. So fuzz thing tomorrow, invest 29¢ in a bottle or handy tube. Contains soothing Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. Grooms the hare. Relieves annoying dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Sheedy tried Wildroot Cream-Oil and now he's a jump ahead of every Tom, Dick and Harvey. So what're you waiting fur? Get Wildroot Cream-Oil today, and ask for Wildroot at your barber's. You're bound to like it!

For long-range opportunities, it's hard to beat the jet aircraft field. If you want to get into this exciting branch of engineering after you graduate, get in at the head of the parade—at Boeing.

Through the fighter-fast B-47 six-jet bomber, and the giant new eight-jet B-52, Boeing has acquired more experience designing, flying and building multi-jet aircraft than any other company, either here or abroad. In addition, Boeing is the first American company to announce its entry into the jet transport field.

Engineering graduates will find in the aviation industry an unusually wide range of experience, and great breadth of application—from pure research to production design, all going on at once. Boeing is constantly alert to new techniques and materials, and approaches them without limitations. Extensive subcontracting and major procurement programs, all directed and controlled by engineers, afford varied experience and broad contacts and relationships.

Aircraft development is such an integral part of our national life that young graduates can enter it with full expectation of a rewarding, long-term career. Boeing, now in its 37th year of operation, employs more engineers today than even at the peak of World War II. Its projects include guided missiles, research on supersonic flight and nuclear power for aircraft.

Boeing engineering activity is concentrated at Seattle in the Pacific Northwest, and Wichita in the Midwest. These communities offer a wide variety of recreational opportunities. Both are fresh, modern cities with fine residential sections and shopping districts, and schools of higher learning where engineers can study for advanced degrees.

There are openings in ALL branches of engineering (mechanical, civil, electrical, aeronautical, and related fields), for DESIGN, DEVELOPMENT, PRODUCTION, RESEARCH and TOOLING. Also for servomechanism and electronics designers and analysts, and physicists and mathematicians with advanced degrees.

Dean of the Hellbox

IT WILL BE different for MR. and MRS. FRANK LOCKE to become accustomed to a new home after living more than 11 years in Yates Castle. But the Lockes are pretty great persons and will probably succeed. Here, Frank, with pipe and slippers, sits in an easy chair at the new Locke residence, 613 Irving avenue. Staff Photo by Ozzie Keuker

Chancellor Emeritus of the Castle

Lockes Vacate Castle Home As Yates Destruction Looms

By ARTHUR SIEGEL
Managing Editor

Yates Castle's king and queen vacated the old building Monday.

For Mr. and Mrs. Frank Locke leaving the castle meant the end of 11 and one-half years of being the guiding force of the "castle kids."

Yates castle will soon be razed to make way for a wing of the med school. The Lockes had to give up their small apartment in the front of the building. Frank will continue to be custodian of the School of Journalism, but the new journalism building on campus cannot provide a permanent residence for the couple. The couple will live on Irving ave.

Now only the Hellbox remains populated, waiting for the death knell that is certain to come.

Though the Castle is now only a small dot amidst towers of red brick, for the Locker there will always be memories of the antique structure—of the monotonous "song" of the Fairchild machine late at night in the basement.

There will always be the mirrored halls clacking with the sounds of typewriters; and that midnight knock that told Frank a frostbitten frosh DO staffer needed the keys to the Hellbox to find a story that was left behind. Frank would scowl on these cold night. But he always opened the door.

He's the "night dean of men" to Dean Clark. And he's Chancellor of the Castle, Dean of the Hellbox and Keeper of the Keys to the rest of Syracuse journalists.

He's the one who showed us the secret staircase in the Castle; and the trick with the hall mirrors. He's the first person the alums want to see; and the last one to whom they say so-long.

Frank corrects mistakes in our stories, tells us where we left things and where everyone is. He has always had an honorary editor's card in his wallet and honorary membership cards in Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism honorary.

He sports a DO sweat shirt and DO and SDX keys. He gives the "Frank Locke trophy" to the team that excels in athletics each year—the teams being sports and edit.

Francis Locke came to the United States from a small village near Bristol, England in 1911. In his boyhood he had worked on a farm and his desire to see the world had led him to construction jobs in France.

When Frank came to America, he didn't realize that he would not return to the British Isles. He still has a trace of a dialect. He came to Onondaga county and worked in a steel mill and on other jobs until the depression. He also went back on a farm for awhile.

After the depression, Frank worked for a member of the University board of trustees, driving a car and taking care of a garden.

In 1942, working at the Hotel Onondaga, he took a job with the University and lived in the Castle until last Monday.

Biggest regret around campus last spring was that Frank would be living far away from the new castle—that is, if any other building could ever take the place of the castle. Everyone has his "good old days" and for Frank those days ended on Monday.

But—and sometimes we think unfortunately—all things must make way for progress and-or red brick. Frank Locke said yesterday, "I hate to leave the Hellbox; everyone's been nice."

Frank will still attend all the student publications parties and the Chancellor will continue to know him as well as he does any other member of the University family.

As for the Hellbox, we won't be down here much longer either. But while we are, Frank, anytime you want to visit us, just call the DO. You know the number better than we do—and we mean it.

Delegates Selected To Security Council

Four Syracusans have been named by the campus United Nations club to represent the University this weekend as Denmark delegates to the model security council.

The students—Robert Newman, Stephen Ebbin, Sydell Gorlick and Rosemary Caviolo—will take an active part in discussions of topics to be brought up in this year's session of the model council.

WITH REPRESENTATIVES of nine other universities and colleges in the state acting as delegates from nations which are currently members of the Security Council, the agenda of the model group will begin with registration from 1 to 2 p.m. Friday in Maxwell auditorium.

A welcoming speech by Vice-Chancellor Finla G. Crawford and the first session of the model council will begin at 2 p.m. The representative from China (Utica college) is scheduled to preside at this session, when Lebanon (represented by the University of Rochester) will introduce the Arab-Israel question for discussion.

Following the first session a reception will be held for delegates at 4:30 p.m. in the Founders' room of Maxwell.

Guest speaker for this year is Associated Press reporter Francis Carpenter, who has covered UN proceedings for several years. Scheduled to be introduced by Dean Wesley C. Clark of the School of Journalism at 8:15 p.m. Friday, Carpenter will speak on "Behind the Scenes at the Security Council."

Wolseley to Speak At Buck Hill Falls

The story of Syracuse University's unique religious journalism program will be told tomorrow night before the Assembly of the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of Churches meeting at Buck Hill Falls, Pa.

This account will be part of a presentation by Prof. Roland E. Wolseley, chairman of the magazine practice department of the School of Journalism. This religious journalism program has been under his department's direction since started in 1949 by Dean Emeritus M. Lyle Spencer.

Included also will be a report on the department of journalism at Hislop college, Nagpur university, Nagpur, India. Both the Syracuse and Nagpur programs offer courses in literacy journalism. These are the only universities training students in such work. Professor Wolseley will give this report because he served as first head of the Nagpur department while in India last year.

Forum Scheduled To Appraise Russian Economic System

Noted Authorities Will Air Views In Chapel

The forum on Russian Social and economic life, scheduled for 9 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 17, in Hendricks chapel, will have as guest speakers four noted authorities on economics.

Dr. Theo Suranyi-Unger, professor of economics, will speak on "Setting for US-USSR Relations." Born in Budapest, Hungary, he is the holder of the following degrees: Doctor of Law and Political Science fro mthe University of Graz, Austria; Doctor of Philosophy from Pazmany university, Hungary; and Doctor Oeconomia Publicae, Palatin Joseph university, Hungary.

DR. SURANYI-UNGER, is a member of the Hungarian Academy of Science, member and former director of the Hungarian Economic society, member and former vice-president of the Hungarian Statisitcal society and a member of the American Economic association.

Noted books by him include 'Philosophy of Economics," "Enterprise and Government Planning," and "Comparative Economic Systems."

Dr. Wladyslaw Kulski, professor of international relations, will speak on "The Soviet Up-bringing of One-minded Cittizens."

Born in Warsaw, Poland, Dr. Kulski served with the Polish Foreign office from 1928 to 1945. His latest position with the office was Minister Plenipotentiary in London.

HE RECEIVED his Master of Law degree from Warsaw university, and a State Doctor of Law degree from the Paris university School of Law. He taught at the University of Alabama before coming to Syracuse in 1951.

Dr. Kulski is a member of the American Association of University Professors, the American Political Science Association, and the American Society of International Law.

Maj. Gen. William O. Reeder, consultant in the Army Comptrolership Program, conducted jointly by the Maxwell School of Citizenship the College of Business Administration, will discuss "The Russian Military Potential."

Maj. Gen. Reeder was born in Pittsburgh and graduated from the U. S. Military Academy.

WHILE IN military service, he traveled through France, India, China, Burma, and Ceylon. He retired from the army in January of this year.

The fourth speaker is Dr. Harry Schwartz, who will speak on "The Russian Economic Potential." Dr. Schwartz is an assistant professor in economics, specializing in Russian economics. He received his B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia university.

He was formerly with the Office of Strategic Services and the State Department's USSR division. While with the OSS, he directed research on the economy of the Soviet Union.

Goal Set for Campus Chest Drive; Campaign Scheduled for February

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A goal of $7,500 has been set by Campus Chest for the 1954 drive, scheduled from Feb. 22 through Feb. 26, according to co-chairmen Jo-Anne Swalm and Stuart Parker. At the same time, it was announced that money collected in the drive will be distributed among eight organizations.

This year's goal is the same as last year when the drive fell below its quota, collecting $5,600.

THIS YEAR, Campus Chest is emphasizing the services offered students by the campaign. Each organization receiving donations either directly or indirectly benefits students in the U.S. and other countries.

Two organizations will receive 45 per cent of the donations. One is the Student Emergency Loan Fund administered by Chapel, which loans up to $30 for a 30-day period. The fund is open to all regular and foreign students at Syracuse.

The other campus organization receiving aid from Campus Chest is Syracuse-in-Asia, a group which annually sends a Syracuse student to Thailand to study. The majority of the student's expenses and tuition are derived from the Campus Chest collections.

Some organizations which receive funds from the drive gain all their income from various campus chests. The World University Service fund encourages future students throughout the world in planning facilities needed for education.

AN ORGANIZATION to give individual counselling service to Negro students throughout the country is the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro students. It also gives partial scholarship aid to some Negro students.

Helping support needy students throughout the United States with supplies and counseling is the American Friends Service committee. This group emphasizes helping each other instead of charity.

A definite project to aid the building of a Liberal Arts university in Japan is one of the aims of Campus Chest. The emphasis of this program is to aid development of future leaders in Japan.

Red Cross and the Community Chest both have their own drives but will also receive contributions from Campus Chest since so many students gain aid from these organizations. Both have relinquished their right to a campaign at the University so Campus Chest would be the only fund-raising drive during the year.

SYRACUSE CAMPUS Chest will also be striving to regain the Orange Key-Maroon Key Trophy presented annually to the school which collects the most money by the junior men's honoraries at the two schools. Last year, Colgate won the award by collecting $6,900. Their goal was $6,600.

Theme for this year's Syracuse Campus Chest will be "Now is the Time." Plans are

Campus Cagers Play Host To Sampson Sabres Tonight

Plagued by the absence of Ron Kilpatrick, the squad's high scorer, Coach Marc Guley will send his Syracuse hoopsters after their third straight win tonight when they play host to the Sampson Air Force base Sabres at Archbold gym. Game time is 8:30 p.m.

X-rays were taken of Kilpatrick's injured ankle yesterday and although the results were negative, the star hook shot artist will definitely not be ready for action tonight. It is also doubtful whether he will be ready for the NYU game Saturday.

KILPATRICK'S ABSENCE will particularly hinder the Pietymen under the boards where his 6 feet 4 inches have been effective on rebounds. With Sampson possessing a tall squad, the height difference may hold down the Orange offense.

Skip Thaw, who has been missing from the Syracuse lineup in the two opening games, may be available for limited action but he definitely won't be in the starting lineup. The veteran backcourt man is recuperating from injuries received in an auto accident.

Guley is undecided about who will fill in for Kilpatrick but the nod will probably go to sophomore Ron Gillespie. Standing 6 ft.-2, Gillespie will have a big opening to fill. Kilpatrick has been the Orange high scorer in both games, averaging 18 markers.

The rest of the Syracuse lineup will probably be the same as that which opened in the Canisius victory last Saturday. Dave Kline will jump center and be counted on for the bulk of the rebounding work. Junior Jack Larned and sophomore Lou Cegala will fill the backcourt spots while Captain Mel Besdin will be at forward with Gillespie.

CEGALA, the surprising sophomore, has been effective in early
(See CAGERS, page 3)

BIG DAVE KLINE, 6 ft.-5 center from Frederick, Md., will be counted on for a major share of the rebounding when Syracuse entertains the Sampson Sabres tonight in Archbold gym. He has been the Orange's best board-man this season while averaging 13.5 points per game.

Hotchkiss to Give Final Hygiene Talk

Dr. William P. Hotchkiss, professor of history at Syracuse, will be the final lecturer of the term in the mental hygiene series at 4 p.m. today in the Colonial room of the Chapel.

Dr. Hotchkiss will speak on "How to Win Friends and Influence Deans."

Co-chairmen Beverly Darrow and Everett Gertner thank all who supported them this first term and would like to have any suggestions for future topics.

Suggestions will be accepted from anyone, whether a series attendant or not.

Freedom of the Press Cited as Fundamental

By LIZ GODDARD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Freedom of the press is the foundation of all other freedoms, James Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, told students in a citizenship lecture yesterday.

He included in this freedom the right to know and the right to print without fear of punitive reprisal.

Tracing the history of the right of access to legislative proceedings, the editor said that "legislative power has emigrated from the chambers of the body to its committee meetings."

Speaking of "the struggle to gain access to committees" on state and federal levels, he noted that the Senate Foreign Relations committee of the 82nd Congress held 251 meetings, 188 of which were closed to the public.

"In a democracy," he told the students, "citizens by electing representatives do not surrender their responsibilities and legislative power."

"The courts are being closed the length and breadth of this land," Wiggins warned, terming New York one of the most restrictive states regarding cases involving immoralitty of juveniles.

"The result is that the American people as a whole are ignorant of the problems and unable to remedy them," he said.

"Due to the changing structure of our federal government," he explained, "functions have emigrated from the judicial to the executive without taking with them the safeguards that originally accompanied them."

"In the last eight years there has been a decline in the number of press conferences at the Cabinet level," he said. "The press conference is a great help and gives a counter part of the system of cross-questioning provided by the parliamentary system."

He noted improved relations with the Post Office, Agriculture and military establishments which are releasing more vital information to the public.

Wiggins, who recently attracted nationwide attention for his censure of Senator McCarthy's investigation of James Wechsler, editor of the New York Post, referred to the "veritable outbreak of legislative reprisal since the early 30s."

"This was climaxed last May by an attempt to punish the editor of the New York Post for utterances a committee found offensive," he declared.

He cited "great positive gains" in freedom from reprisal for libel and for contempt of court. "The greater danger lies in reprisal by administrative agencies," he warned, referring to the fate of La Prensa.

International Group To Discuss India

Aspects of Indian life will be discussed by a panel of four at 8 p.m. today in the Colonial room of Chapel, under the sponsorship of the International Students committee.

Parry Dholakia, lawyer and student of journalism, will lead the discussion. He will speak on the present political set-up of India.

Christmas Seal Sale Begins Here Today

Christmas seals will go on sale starting today from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. The booth will be set up in the lobby of H.L.

Volunteers from Alpha Omicron Pi will man the booth each day, through next Tuesday. Those who have received Christmas seals in the mail will have the opportunity to pay for them at this time.

MONEY OBTAINED through the sale of Christmas seals is the Onondaga Health asosciation's main source of income to support its work for better health in the community. Demonstration projects, such as x-raying freshmen students, were started but later taken over by the medical service.

Films on tuberculosis, mental hygiene, heart, and social hygiene are purchased from Christmas seal money and loaned on request to interested groups. Free chest x-ray service has been made available at towns in Onondaga county as well as at the New York state Fair.

The Christmas seal is especially delightful this year. It shows a child in a green stocking cap, muffler and red mittens singing from a book of Carols. It is reminiscent of the old English custom of children singing Carols at the door. Traditionally a few pennies were distributed to each child. The child on the Christmas seal asks for money to support the Tuberculosis prevention and control activities of the Tuberculosis Association.

'Special' to Depart Dec. 19

The New York Central railroad will offer special round-trip tickets to New York for students over Christmas vacation. The train will leave Syracuse on Saturday Dec. 19.

Tickets may be purchased at the Bursar's office from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday, December 18 18 for $15.01. These tickets will be honored on the advance section of train 90, the Chicagon, only.

The train will carry ample coach equipment and dining car service will be available. Two coaches will be operated through to Boston.

The Orange Special will leave Syracuse at 12:30 p.m. and arrive in New York at 6:15 p.m. Stops along the way include Utica at 1:25 p.m., Schenectady at 2:45 p.m. Albany at 3:10, Poughkeepsie at 4:35 p.m., and Harmon at 5:25 p.m.

Train 41, the Knickerbocker, will leave New York city at 2:15 p.m. and train 15, the Ohio State Limited at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 3.

ORATORIO

The Christmas portions of Handel's most successful and best-known oratorio will be presented as a feature of the regular evening service at the First Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, December 13th.

"Who's got Saturday classes?"

Extra Shipment Set For Sale at Chapel

The Syracuse-in-Asia sale will receive a new supply of Niello jewelry this morning, including a wide variety of earrings, bracelets, tie clips and cufflinks.

The sale, which is held daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the basement hall of Chapel, is held to support Tom Gill, Syracuse-in-Thailand representative, now teaching at Chulalongkorn university in Bangkok, Thailand.

There are still articles other than jewelry left for sale. Students who have reserved purchases should pick them up by noon tomorrow, Patricia Green, chairman of the sale, announced.

Grads to Celebrate Santa Claus Time

Christmas will be in the air for graduate students, as the Graduate Commission presents a gala Yuletime party from 8 to 12 p.m. Saturday at the Ski lodge.

Dick Martin and his orchestra will provide music for dancing. All graduate students are urged to attend.

Highlighting the decorations will be a mitten tree. Those attending are asked to bring a pair of mittens to be sent to Korean children.

Busses will leave for the lodge from Sims four every half hour after 7:30 p.m.

'Orange Limited'

To put it in the vernacular: SOMEONE HAS GOOFED!

The "Orange Special," the money-saving train delight of all New York, Boston and vicinity students, will leave Syracuse on Saturday, Dec. 19 at 12:30 p.m.

This means that less than 10 per cent of the students will be able to take advantage of the $6.73 reduction when going home for Christmas vacation!

True, school does not officially close until noon Saturday, but there are so few Saturday classes that campus will be almost deserted before then.

This paper's major concern is not in determining whether an official of the New York Central or an individual in the Administration is responsible for the poor scheduling. The fact remains that someone must take the initiative and attempt to change the date.

We trust that the railroad, after observing the Friday afternoon rush last Christmas in an identical situation, is not merely capitalizing on the students.

To purposely ask 90 per cent of the eastbound students to pay $21.74 on Friday when they could be purchasing the $15.01 ticket would be grossly unfair.

If the Administration in any way suggested the scheduling, we urge that they reexamine their position. Is it logical that 90 per cent of those traveling east must pay the extra expenses because there is a possibility that a Friday "Orange Special" might influence some Saturday students to cut class?

It is our opinion that those students who wish to cut will do so, regardless of the fact that it may cost $6.74 more.

However, it is not these "cutters" for whom we plead the lower rates, but for the many, many students whose classes end Friday and who have a legitimate right to return then.

Their "Orange Special" is "The Limited."

Hoop Premiere

Marc Guley's warriors will play their first and only "student home game" this month tonight against a top-notch Sampson Sabre quintet.

Because of a strange quirk of the schedule, this will be the only game at which Orange students can see their team in action before school convenes again in January.

Two "home games," featuring Yale and Princeton, are to be played this month. Unfortunately, they both come during the Christmas holidays when the vast majority of students are home for the holidays.

Hill students have a chance tonight to see the nucleus of the still undefeated team which may bring Syracuse back into national prominence in the next few years.

Starring for the Sabres is a former Orangeman, Chuck Stevesky, who was here in the former Golden Days. He played both with Syracuse's National Invitation team of 1950 and the Campus Tourney winners of 1951.

It was he who helped edge the Orange last year, 72-70, by scoring 25 points on a team which became the Air Force champions.

Ever since Syracuse basketball has returned to the Hill, attendance has not always been the best. Tonight, students will have a chance to prove that Hill hoop spirit isn't as bad as some say.

Bill and Betty Orange will be doing themselves a favor by showing up at Archbold by 8:30 p.m. The Syracuse hoopsters won't disappoint them with their performance.

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

GREEN FOR CHRISTMAS; RAT RACE

By MILT SHEFTER

Yawn, ho hum, gee that was a good nap. Wonder what's new. Guess we'll take a little stroll around and see what's up. Traffic lights? Well, they're not up yet. And Christmas is only two weeks away. Guess we're not going to have red and green lights at College and University to celebrate the Yuletide season. And my oh my will you look at that? Maybe we slept longer than we intended to. Green grass on the quad. Isn't that nice. Green grass in December. And whom does the credit go to for that innovation? Last year it was trees in the middle of the paths. The first gal who saw the grass screamed so loud, she cracked the glass on the bulletin board outside the chapel. Just goes to show how broken up you can get when things don't stay in their natural, un-crazy, unmixed up order.

* * * *

To modify a trite expression, "all that twirls is not happy all-around." Using our twirling curling, Miss Alta Burg as an example, we can prove that the case of Saturday's Sweetheart and Monday's Morose is an actuality. To most onlookers, the grass was greener on Alta's side as she cut a gay figure on the autumn turf. Little known were the hours of drill and planning meetings. And now that the season's over—to lie and relax awhile—oh, no, not this gal! Being the proud possession of a proud University, and rightly so, she is put on display almost every weekend at various schools and organizations.

* * * *

One of the most interesting things to set your sights on, is the daily rat race at the rear entrances of HL. Although there are two doors at each entrance, only one is opened—usually out— and then the battle begins. The two lines going in opposite directions through the same single doorway makes about as much progress as a crusading journalist asking for traffic lights.

* * * *

And now if you'll excuse us, we are going to join the long line at the infirmary to see our psychologist. When things get this confusing, maybe it's better to stay in bed.

Violence is Out of Date

The Eleven Days

By HUGH O. MUIR
Editorial Director

Today, suddenly, the newspaper strike is gone as swiftly as it came and the twentieth century's ghost of violence past has returned to the textbooks.

For 11 days newspaper men took up the hue and cry about "irresponsible newspaper unions" and "violation of free press guaranty." There was condemnation of men from every level who were involved in any way with the strike. The bugaboos of Taft-Hartley reared and peered at the squabble.

But students grumbled at the receiving end and went around in a fog reading about local accidents and club meetings in the Post Standard. To most of us, perhaps, the strike idea was an inconvenient one at most.

But there is more.

There is a principle involved that supposedly went out with the national application of the "inherent rights of man" and since someone figured out the theory of democratic government.

Now we are closer to home . . . and on a broader principle worth bothering with.

And the principle itself? The fear of violence.

Violence.

The strike is a weapon of violence and has been the power of the working man for a century. Anarchists were the midwives of the birth of the strike at the rise of the industrial revolution. The French Syndicalists of the mid-18th century spawned the strike as their chief weapon to give the workers power over the conditions in which they worked or lived. They were the forerunners of the labor organization of today on the continent.

During this difficult time when violence was changing the political as well as the sociological face of Europe and the United States, the strike was the only way the working man could make himself heard.

In parts of the world where modern civilization has established itself, where the rational mind has superceded the club and torch, the use of violence in many forms has been abandoned.

Many, that is, but the strike.

Unions have claimed that the strike is the only means by which the employee can protect himself from the economic power of the employer. They have excused this use of violence under the guise that it helps the worker in furthering his place in society.

Is this really true? Or has this form of violence outlived its value like all the others? Can rational and intelligent thought deal with man's relationship to man in labor as it has in government and society?

Although it is true that reasoning has not completely dominated man in government and society at least there is no recognized form of violence which can be used to cope with them.

But two arguments that rise in favor of a strike:

1. If a strike is a major one then many will gain. Great issues at stake will warrant this form of pressure to bring about the greatest good for the greatest number.

On the contrary, a major strike in this age affects far more people adversely than any who may gain. It is apparent that a real major issue could be settled with a rational approach to the problem.

2. If the strike is over a minor issue, then few would be harmed and it could be excused. Small demands that may be overlooked could be brought to light with the action of a strike.

But this is basing a stand on the amount of harm a strike could do rather than its positive accomplishments. Also it excuses violence to make a mountain out of a molehill.

The thing that employees and employers alike must realize is that the time no longer calls for nor stands for an action that hurts so many of the innocent and so few of the guilty. The time has come to realize the employer-employee relations will never progress while this archiac method of forcing issues is used.

The age of violence in democratic society has passed.

AT THE FLICKERS

VERBOSE, FRENCH AND ANTI-RED

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

"The Little World of Don Camillo" has sufficient warmth and humanity for two films. It also has sufficient material and this unfortunate ambivalence causes it to dissipate much of its effect. It gives the unhappy impression of a man astride two horses at the same time.

The film is a modern fable dealing with a priest's attempt to cope with his villagers when they perversely elect a Communist regime. It makes a valiant attempt to deal with an inherently serious subject with sunny warmth and good humor. But leave us face it; it just ain't humorous: Its topical and tropical. By so mismating subject and treatment this Italian-French film misfires. For the treatment is French and light as a souffle while the subject is Italian and heavy as Lasagna. The result is quite indigestible.

If the film is not wholy satisfactory, the acting is. Fernandel gives a marvelously winning performance as a priest whose humanity far exceeds his righteousness and Gina Cervi matches it with a clever and richly comic performance as the Communist mayor. Monsieur Fernandel is undoubtedly a great comedian. We have been fortunate enough this past week to have an example of the kind of English comedy's handiwork on exhibition. M. Fernandel is close to the best that France has to offer and as was the case with Mr. Guiness, is well worth seeing.

Another marvelous performance is turned in by Sylvie. Madame Sylvie may be best remembered for her remarkable performance in "Under the Paris Skies." She is equally good here.

Julien Duvivier is responsible for both the script and the direction of "The Little World of Don Camillo" and it is characteristic of the film that he should deserve simultaneous praise and condemnation. In his former role he has done a splendid job. He has staged the picture with an eye to its physical excitement as well as its own particular kind of humor. It is as a writer that he has failed.

"The Little World of Don Camillo" is in truth little. To be successful it had to be handled with great delicacy or it becomes absurd. The conflict between Communism and Democracy is big and M. Duvivier rightfully believed that it deserved serious realistic treatment. He therefore set about to write in such a variety of styles as to make it positively unclassifiable. As a result of the apparent confusion in the mind of M. Duvivier the little world has cracked and if humor remains it is only due to the superb acting.

BACK TO THE SALT MINES

'The Only Thing to Fear'

By ROGER J. HERZ

"I'm afraid I don't understand," said the man on the street, the student in eco class, and the femme discussing politics.

Why the hell be afraid?

We should thank the Lord above that we're intelligent enough to realize when and if we don't understand.

So many don't understand and think they do.

Thought: there is no crime in not holding the supreme intelligence. It appears that none of us mortals do, though some delude themselves.

You've seen them. They may be you. The type (generally, we're not setting up stereotypes) that always sagely nods yes when asked if he has heard of or knows . . .

This then is one fear common today. This is a reasonably simple one to alleviate.

If the individuals concerned spend a relatively small amount of time in discovering the events, philosophy and culture in the world about, understanding and knowledge may combine to bring light to the mental dark.

The materials for such? The newspapers, books, people, ideas in this society and others; the eyes and ears.

Next we come to the fear of other people's fear. We suggest that there exists today a fear of thinking.

One reason: it isn't easy to think for yourself. It takes energy, sometimes physical, always mental. It leaves the individual feeling uncomfortable sometimes. Often he is left with a twinge of social conscience.

The world is changing. It's shrinking with better transportation. Meteor dust adds one inch to its diameter annually. Nations, change, leadership change, hemlines change.

Thus too must one's opinions be in a constant state of evaluation. Perhaps a need for change will be found, perhaps not, but at least stagnation of the cerebellum will have been averted.

Dreams with a Musical Touch

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

There is something about the dark, fleeting quality of a dream which inspires the creative mind toward beauty. There is an elustive counterpart of the fantasy that dwells within a mind at sleep which sparks a touch of near-genius in the pen of composers, poets and the other men who live by the word, or the sound.

Last month a middle-aged man from Missouri named Gordon Jenkins presented the recording industry with a new child. It was a child of musical fantasy. It was a product of vivid imagination colored by experience.

The slip cover for "Seven Dreams"

It was a unique new recording titled "Seven Dreams."

In 1946, Jenkins composed and supervised "Manhattan Towers", a piece of musical narrative which has become a milestone in the field of recorded music since that time. "Seven Dreams" is his latest effort in that line.

It is difficult to describe completely the scope of "Seven Dreams." It is a symphonic scenario, a modern cantata, and a musical fantasy. It is a bright combination of story and song, of comedy and drama.

In composing the narrative and music for this album, Jenkins employed a series of seven distinct dream experiences. Singer Bill Lee provides the narration and is the main male voice in the musical selecttions. He is ably assisted by Laurie Carroll, the Ralph Brewster Singers and the Jenkins Orchestra.

The first dream, "The Professor", is a happy dream. Depicting a college class seeking to escape from the everyday routines, the adventure takes the students on a flying excursion through space aided by some wonderfully bright words and music.

The second, "The Conductor," is a dream of motion and provides a light sequence of railroad experiences as seen by the dreamer. "The Caretaker," dream number three, is a somber, deeply sympathetic epic concerning a man who literally lives among the dead.

The most successful combination of music and the spoken word is the fourth selection, "The Cocktail Party" or, as Jenkins describes it "society's alcoholic refuge for the insecure. "This realistic and satirical piece is beautifully written and performed as the narrator, in an escape from the dull surroundings, remembers his high school sweetheart, Mary, and enjoys a moving musical reverie.

The rippling imagination of the Jenkins staff spills over into "Pink Houseboat" and "The Nightmare," the fifth and sixth dreams.

The final sequence, "Girl on the Rock," is a highly sensitive dream of love with some tasteful moments by the Jenkins strings and the voices of Lee and Miss Carroll.

Each individual dream is rather abruptly interrupted by a clanging alarm clock bell and a chorus of voices which whine, "wake-up, brush your teeth, wash your face, comb your hair . . . " At the very end of the recording, a purring female voice concedes "this time let it ring" and the whole thing comes to a thundering conclusion.

For pure entertainment value, "Seven Dreams" goes a mile beyond its predecessor, "Manhattan Towers," in depth and over-all quality. Its basic quality, I suspect, lies in tthe fact that it is very real.

Faith in a Hectic Day

The University of California had this consoling selection pertaining to our day and age:

THE SCIENTIST'S SONG

Science is my shepherd, my needs are few.
It maketh me lie down on foam rubber mattresses,
It sitteth me in front of the TV set,
It restoreth my health.
It leadeth me in the paths of comfort for my own sake.
Yea, though I drive in my new Packard convertible,
I will fear no collisions, for Prudential is with me.
The test-tube and the cyclotron experiment for me.
It preparest a banquet before me in the presence of my Automatic Electtric Range,
It anointest my head with Charles Antell, my wardrobe overfloweth.
Surely comfort and ease shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in my solar-heated ranch house forever.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Basketball returns to Syracuse university this evening with one of Bill Orange's finest hoop alumni, Chuck Stevesky, paying another visit in role of the opponent, a position in which he has become very successful in the past year. He's the same likeable guy who use to toss them through the hoop for Marc Guley two years ago. Sure, he's the same fellow but his playing has changed quite a lot since then. In fact, there is no stopping him these days. Syracuse found that out last year.

But, you ask, why is this guy so different than the many other players who used to travel up and down the hardwoods for Syracuse over the past seasons? Look at Ed Miller! He dropped in 32 points the other evening for Baltimore in the NBA. Last season he was one of the brightest rookies to hit the pro basketball league. And what about Tom Jockle on the Quantico Marine five; or Jack Kiley, or even our own "Bullet Bill" Gabor? Those fellows have all been successful after leaving the Hill.

The story of Chuck Stevesky is a very interesting one. It's as though it were taken from the pages about Frank Merriwell and replanted into one of Sampson Air Base's leading basketball player. When Chuck was here on the Hill, he was an average ball player. At that time Syracuse was at the height of success in the world of basketball. During his stay at the Hill institution the basketball teams were invited to participate in both the National Invitation tournament in New York and the Bradley Campus tourney at Peoria, Ill.

Chuck never really got the chance to blossom out. Sure, he was the guy with the uncanny hook shot they use to use every once in a while. Yes, he was a good player but surely not of the caliber of Miller, Kiley, Dick Supronowicz, Stan Swanson or Tom Huggins. That's probably what the average hoop fan thought as he watched the Orangemen mow down the opposition year after year when Chuck was a member of the team.

Then, near the end of his career, they finally began to use him and he probably played one of his finest games in his senior year, at West Point, as Syracuse rode to victory on a brilliant display of shooting with his famed pet hook. Then came graduation and a fling with Uncle Sam. But that was only the beginning of a new and exciting career for Chuck.

At Sampson he finally began to get a chance to see lots of action. No longer was he a member of the "bench brigade" as he had been at Syracuse. In the air force he was given that all-important starting assignment and slowly developed into one of the service's brightest stars. It was strange to see an average college ball player make a complete turnabout into a top-notch performer. But, that is exactly what Chuck Stevesky did.

Last year his brilliant playing led the Sabres to the finals of the Interservice World championships. Pro coaches from all over the NBA are anxiously awaiting the moment when he will be out of service so they may sign him up for a contract.

But why is this guy so different than when he left the Hill? How can a ball player change so much over night? That probably is a question that only Chuck himself can answer. Personally, we feel that he had this talent all the time he was on the Hill. And, combining this with that big chance to play regularly, he finally hit his peak.

Undoubtedly the main factor in his change is that important hookshot which will be seen in action this evening. Chuck has one of the most phenomenal hooks in the basketball world. All the players agree that it is practically impossible to stop once he sets it into action. And his accuracy is probably the most amazing part the guy hardly ever misses. If you don't believe me, then come around this evening and see it for yourself.

Syracuse goes into this evening's contest with two straight victories. It seems thus far, to be a well-balanced unit; something it lacked last season. The loss of Ron Kilpatrick will hurt but that may be the least of Marc Guley's worries because a fellow named Stevesky, who used to play for the Orange mentor, is his main problem right now. And there is no one the former Hill hoopster would love to beat then his alma mater.

* * * * *

We have not had the pelasure of seeing the Orange five in action this season. From what we have read, Syracuse may be in the process of producing another player of the Billy Manikas type this year. We are, of course, referring to little Lou Cegala, who seems to have given the Hillmen that needed spark towards victory in both of their contests.

Lou's floorwork has been slightly brilliant and his scoring ability, which is a necessity for a mall man has also been on the fine side. We hope the little guy can keep it up because the Orange could certainly use that sparkplug of the type that he has shown himself to be thus far. The kid has lots of the zip and fire that produces a winner.

Cagers Play Host . . .

games, scoring 13 and 10 points respectively in addition to starring on defense. All the starters hit for double figures in the Canisius victory as the squad displayed a well-balanced attack.

Sampson will be led by former Syracuse ace Chuck Stevesky and John Abraham. Stevesky, a hook shot expert, was a thorn in the Orange back last year as he registered 25 points in Sampson's 72-70 victory. He was a member of Marc Guley's first squad on the Hill, the quintet that was National Campus tournament champs in 1951.

Abraham, a set-shooting star from Westminster, Pa., college, has been the Sabres' leading scorer in five games to date, averaging 22 points. The six-footer hit the hoops for 10 points in last year's Syracuse game.

Ted Burzenski, 6 ft.-6, from St. Michael's (Vt.) college, will open at center while Indiana's Jack Brown and Kentucky's George Cooke will fill the other two positions.

BURZENSKI IS the only starter who wasn't in last season's clash while the only absentee from the 1952-53 starting squad is guard Jack Allen. Cooke has moved up to the starting quintet replacing Bill Garnes, second tallest man on the squad at 6 ft.-5.

One of the top substitutes for the Airmen is Art Hage, 5 ft.-11 guard from Hamline college. He is the shortest man on the entire roster.

Sampson has registered three wins in five engagements so far this season, whipping Camp Kilmer and semi-pro squads from Bath and Seneca Falls. Setbacks were handed them by the Quantico Marines and Andrews Air Force base. Former National Basketball association scoring champion Paul Arizin scored 37 points in Quantico's 99-88 victory.

Syracuse's sophomore contingent of Cegala, Gillespie, Boob Breland, Walt Scott and Gus Castellini will probably see a lot of action against the Sabres. Guley is continuing his search for the best combination on what he considers his most evenly balanced squad.

THIS WILL be the last game most students will be able to see until the Christmas vacation. The next two hoop contests are on the road and the Orangemen don't return to Archbold gym until Christmas vacation when they encounter Yale and Princeton.

Tonight's probable starting lineups:

SAMPSON		SYRACUSE
20 Brown	F	Gillespie 32
21 Stevesky	F	Besdin 44
27 Burzenski	C	Kline 30

Yesterday's Intra Bowling Results

By SOL BECKER

Decisive victories seemed to be the order of the evening in Intramural bowling last night in the Women's building. Collendale A-3 coasted to an easy 9-0 victory over Skytop M-14. Frank Petrosky was the pace maker for the boys from Collendale.

Phi Epsilon Pi continued on its unbeaten way by trouncing Alpha Chi Rho, 9-0. Bob Stein, with a high game of 191, led Phi Ep to victory.

Theta Chi edged Phi Kappa Tau in the closest match of the night, 5-4. Paul Slick and Ed Gozigan were the top point-getters for the victors.

Other scores include Alpha Tau Omega over Kappa Sigma, 5-4, Skytop M-5 over Skytop M-8, 8-1 and Skytop M-4 over Skytop M-1 via the forfeit route.

Freshman Hoopsters Entertain Sampson Tonight

Seek Second Win Against Airmen In Night's Opener

By DAVE BENNETT

Syracuse's frosh hoopsters go after their second victory of the season tonight at 6:30 when they entertain the rugged Sampson Jayvee cagers in Archbold gymnasium. The Orange varsity clashes with the Sampson varsity in the second game of the double bill.

The Tangerines will attempt to duplicate last year's close victory over the Sabre jayvees in tonight's contest. Coach Andy Mogish's men nipped the visitors, 72-67, with a last-half flurry in the 1952 encounter.

GARY CLARK, Jim Roper, Jim Snyder, Vinny Albanese and Vince Cohen make up the tentative starting lineup for the yearlings tonight. Cohen did not start in the opener against Ithaca, but his high-scoring, 16-point performance as a substitute has earned him a berth on the first five.

Roper, 6 ft.-5, comes from Cambell, Ohio and will jump center for the Mogishmen. Clark who netted 18 in the victory over Ithaca, stands 6 ft.-4 and is a native of Frewsburg, N. Y.

Snyder also is 6 ft.-4 and hails from Olean, N. Y. Cohen comes from Brooklyn, while Albanese, who'll be the "little man" on the starting squad, is a native of Newark, N. J.

Clark and Cohen led the Tangerines' scoring in the opener but Roper and Snyder, with eight and 11 points respectively, helped out. Albanese had four markers in the first game but played a fine floor game. Lou Stark, with six and Don Checho, with eight, also tallied for the yearlings against Ithaca in Syracuse's 79-53 win.

THE SAMPSON quintet is somewhat of an unkown quantity. Last year's Airmen quintet pushed the steller frosh of '52 to the limit however, and the Orange cubs are looking for a close contest.

Five frosh saw reserve action against Ithaca: Checho, Cohen, Harry Bubnack, Jim Brown and Neil Wilcox. They all figure to see service tonight.

Checho is a Rochester native, Bubnack is a local boy from East Syracuse while Brown, the frosh football star, comes from Manhasset, Long Island.

Following the Sampson test, the Tangerines have a week layoff before accompanying the varsity hoopsters to Niagara on Dec. 16 for a game with the usually tough Eagle frosh.

WAER to Broadcast Tonight's Hoop Tilt

Radio Station WAER will broadcast tonight's varsity basketball game against Sampson direct from Archbold gym, starting at 8:20 p.m. Don Decker and Ken Gilchrist will be at the mike.

The campus station, located at 88.1 on the FM dial, has scheduled broadcasts of all future home games.

Replacement Ron

RON GILLESPIE, 6 ft.-2 sophomore from Waterford, draws a big assignment tonight against Sampson. He will probably replace injured Ron Kilpatrick in the pivot against the tall and talented Sabres. Gillespie averaged eight points per game last year as a frosh.

Six Upstate Colleges Enter Niagara Swim

Six upstate New York colleges and universities will enter swimmers in the Niagara AAU's slated for this Saturday in the Syracuse university's Orange pool.

Approximately 70 individuals will compete in the events, which will be held Saturday afternoon and evening. The finals will be presented at 8 p.m. with a $1 admission being charged.

THE AFTERNOON trial heats will be open to the public. Both the 220 and the 50-yd. medleys will be televised over station WSYR-TV at 3:15.

Schools which are sending individuals to the AAU's include: Cornell, Colgate, Syracuse, Cortland, Niagara and the University of Buffalo. Larry Zangerle, who will compete in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events, is unattached. No team scores are kept in this meet.

Ten members of Coach Ted Webster's swim team will take part in the meet. Cornell will be represented by 25 men—the most entered by any of the six schools.

This will be the third consecutive year that the AAU swim races wil ltake place in the Orange pool. Several of the defending champions from last season will be back to defend their titles.

Syracuse opens its dual-meet season Jan. 6 when the Columbia mermen invade the local pool.

Frosh Scribes

A meeting of the freshman sports staff of The Daily Orange will be held tomorrow at 4:15 p.m. in the Castle. It is important that every member of the frosh sports staff attend. Winter beats will be discussed.

Deacons, Bearcats, Sig Ep Winners

City Men, Bureacats Play Hoop Tie

Intramural basketball action continued last night in the Men's old gym but was curtailed in the new one due to varsity practice.

The first game of the evening matched the Bearcats and Livingston, both independent teams. The Bearcats scored 17 points in the first half and 10 in the second. Livingston, playing good ball to keep up, scored 14 and 10 to make the final score 27-24.

STAN MOSS of the victors, and Ev Aldridge of Livingston, tallied nine each to gain scoring honors.

The second game found one of last year's outstanding teams making a strong start in this campaign. The Deacons, who last year lost out in the Independent-Living Center finals to Grover Cleveland, romped over the Aces, 49-19. While Paul Stevens of the Aces scored nine times, he was no match for the Deacons' fast-breaking combination of John Gordon, with 14 tallies, and Pete Bratt, who netted 12.

In a thrilling ball game, the Bureacats put on a last-minute array of baskets to tie the City Men, 17-17. This is the first tie game of the Intramural season. It is only in championship or playoff games that a tie is carried into overtime.

At the end of the half the score was 10-9, Bureacats, but the City Men tallied an extra point to give them the tie. Vin Moore netted 11 times to give him high scoring honors.

THE FINAL game of the night was a fast-moving but low scoring affair in which Sigma Phi Epsilon beat Delta Tau Delta, 21-8.

The contest was marked by numerous fouls and the ball was stolen quite often by both sides. Jim Wheaton swished through 14 points to account for most of the Sig Ep scoring.

Versatility Key to Success For Freshman Swimmers

By JEFF WENIG

Although the frosh swim team is composed of few members, Coach Ted Webster is optimistic as to the results of this year's schedule because of the versatility of many of the swimmers.

The mermen open their season against Albany academy, at Albany, Jan. 9, and follow through with two meets on Feb. 19. In the afternoon they will take on Wyoming Seminary house and in the evening meet Academy high school from Erie, Pa. Then on Feb. 27, at home, and March 6, away, they will swim against Colgate and Cornell respectively. A tentative meet against Manlius has also been scheduled.

THE OPENER against Albany will be a rough one and out to avenge last year's defeat, the swimmers' training has been stepped up. Albany boasts an all-American high school diver, Tom Pitklewicz, but Webster will match Dave Stoll, graduate of Marshall high school in Rochester and also an all-American against him. The majority of the aquamen's points this season are expected to result from the excellent diving of Stoll, the other probable starter, Chuck Kibling.

Graham Vanderveer, another all-American high school swimmer, John McGil and Jon Buzzard, are the versatile swimmers the team will look to for the entire season, and for extra points in the coming Albany event.

Other outstanding swimmers and expected important scorers are Dave Dickes, Fred Snyder and Jim Suddaby.

This coming Saturday, Dec. 12, the Niagara AAU, will hold its annual swimming meet at Archbold pool. Coach Webster has placed both divers, Kibling and Stoll ,and swimmers McGil, Buzzard and Vanderveer in the contest to vie for individual honors.

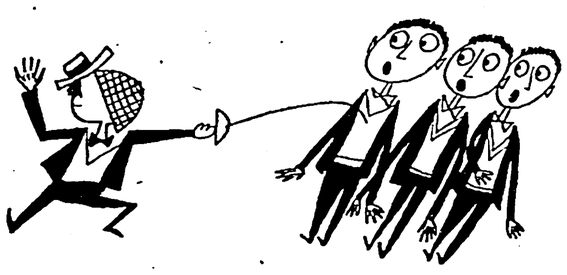
Curses, Foiled Again!



Charlie Chump was a scrawny Junior who never had any claim to fame on campus. Then, one day, it became known that he had become manager of the Fencing Team. Immediately he was surrounded by a group of incredulous students.

"How come you're managing the Fencing Team?", asked one of them.

"Well, it's this way," replied Charlie. "Last week I went down town and got a couple of Van Heusen VANDUROY Sport Shirts... for only $7.95 apiece. When I put on one of my rugged corduroy beauties, I looked so handsome that I was immediately surrounded by all the beautiful co-eds!"

"Is that a fact," murmured one of his classmates.

"But then, all their boyfriends gathered 'round and said, 'Charlie, what would you do if we beat you up?' So I looked 'em right in the eye and said, 'I'll manage a defense!' "

"Gee, what happened?" asked a wide-eyed Freshman.

"Just then Angelo, coach of the Fencing Team, walked by. He said, 'You managa de fence. Atsa good, da teamsa need a manager!' "

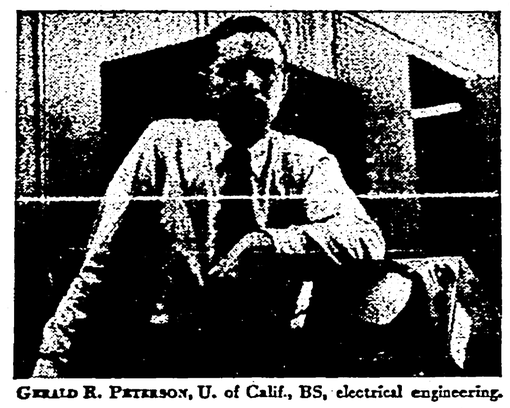
WE ASKED THESE RECENT COLLEGE GRADUATES:

"WHY DID YOU JOIN GENERAL ELECTRIC?"

"When I graduated from college I didn't have a definite idea of what field of engineering I wanted to go into. I joined General Electric because I felt that G.E.'s engineering training program offered the best opportunity to move about freely in an organization whose activities include almost every branch of engineering. In this way I found the particular specialty for which I was best suited and most interested.

"This has proved to be the case. In one year I have had assignments encompassing many fields of engineering activities, and I have been given every opportunity to meet and work with experienced engineers in numerous engineering fields.

"On the basis of the experience thus acquired, I have been able to make an intelligent choice of the particular field of engineering for which my talents, interests, and abilities are best suited."



GERALD R. PETERSON, U. of Calif., BS, electrical engineering.

"I joined General Electric because of the many opportunities I found available for building a successful career. In my chosen field, manufacturing, a development program gives each individual the opportunity to advance his own abilities and talents under experienced guidance. Work assignments, classroom instruction, and discussion periods give every opportunity for career development. Also, an opportunity for specialization is offered through working assignments in all major divisions of manufacturing.

"Through assignments in these areas a logical decision can be made on final job placement. To me this seems extremely valuable in putting the right man and the right job together, and thereby greatly enhancing the possibility for success."

DAVID J. DILLON, U. of Ill., BS, management.

These are but two of the many reasons why hundreds of college graduates come with General Electric each year. These men are part of the large group of young people who are getting ahead fast—in an industry where there is broader scope for your ability . . . where your future is not chained . . . where you work in an atmosphere of vigorous, progressive thinking.

If you are interested in building a career with General Electric see your college placement director for the next visit of the G-E representative on your campus. Meanwhile, for further information on opportunities with G.E. write to College Editor, Dept. 2-123, General Electric Co., Schenectady 5, N. Y.

Old Engineering College From the Air

Civil Engineers Use 3-D, Too, Learn Technique in Classes

By JOHN JOHNSRUD

Downtown movie theatres are not the only places in town using pictures in three dimensions. Owners of 3-D cameras are not the only people on campus able to see three dimensional pictures. The students of civil engineering have a course using this technique. The course is called photogrammetry.

On the third floor of the Men's gymnasium is located a photogrammetry laboratory in which is taught the interpretation of aerial photographs for map making.

AS IN other processes employing the 3-D principle, photogrammetry makes use of overlapping pictures. At regular intervals, aerial photographs of the features and terrain of the ground are taken. The interval of time between two photographs is just enough to give two views of any point on the ground from a slightly different angle, when viewed or projected correctly, these photos give the illusion of depth.

By simulating the position occupied by the airplane when the airphoto was taken, an exact picture of the land forms in relief can be seen. A special machine, the multiplex, consisting of several projectors lined up in a row, represents the flight path of the airplane. In each projector is a slide made from an air photo. Adjustments on the projectors enable the operator to tilt and swing the individual unit to correct for any distortion caused by deviation from the established flight path.

Alternate red and green filters in the projectors and the use of red and green lenses in viewing give a three dimensional picture of the ground which can then be translated into many types of maps.

All of the projectors are focused on a single plane. A small table with a tiny dot of light in the center is placed in this plane. By moving the table, the plane can be made to follow any outline or form in the photograph. A pencil on the bottom of the table traces the line on paper placed under the table. This dot may be moved up or down to follow elevation changes in tthe projected three dimensional photo.

OTHER MACHINES in the laboratory do a similar job in much the same way as the multiplex, but are less easy to use. Another piece of equipment is a machine which does surveying from photographs taken in the field.

At 6:30 p.m. this evening at Drumlins the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will hold a meeting. R. J. Sparling will give an illustrated talk on the subject of photogrammetry. Sparling, a graduate of Syracuse university, is assistant manager of the Defense Output department at Bausch and Lomb and president of the central New York section of the American Society of Photogrammetry.

Campus Chest . . .

Miss Swalm and Parker have announced that three new members have been added to the Campus Chest committee. Sandra Stroller will act as co-chairman of the sorority drive. William Connelley as co-chairman of the fraternity drive and George Kibbee is in charge of the independent men's solicitations.

Members of the executive council are Diane Hirshhorn and Stuart Smith, promotions; Millicent Auerbach and Robert Lefko, publicity; Jane Arnold and Bernard Bregman, speakers' bureau; Jon Bjornson, treasurer and Carol Terpening, executive secretary.

OTHER COMMITTEE chairmen are Elizabeth Wright, sorority division; Joan Brownell and Marilyn Day, independent women; Chester Gino, independent men; Diane Johnson and Samuel Braun, city division; John Hennessey, fraternity division; Ann McKaig and Will Shore, faculty gifts.

Also Carol Krupkin and Rosemary Ferris, special gifts; Margo Baum and Robert McAllister, feather day; Tess Oesterreicher, brochures and Jean Jackson, Syracuse-in-Asia. The members of the secretariat are Mary Lagerbaum, Jacqueline Claridge and Ethel Brachin.

Next meeting of Campus Chest will be tomorrow at 7:15 p.m. in room 303 of the Women's building.

Scabbard andBlade To Meet Tonight

Scabbard and Blade, military honorary, will meet at 7:30 tonight, 301 Machinery hall.

The group has announced the following pledges: Burton L. Rich, James E. Roach, Fred R. Priore, Robert S. Zadicoff, Nial J. Hadden, Robert Carpenter, John Hennessey, William See, Gerald Shira, and Peter T. Manicas.

Also, Jerome Farnsworth, Bill Connolly, James Franklin, Nick Gryzynkoski, Philip E. Halton, Robert H. Tucker, Gerald A. Kaplan, and Sam Stornelli.

Who Are They?

CHANCELLOR WILLIAM P. TOLLEY is shown above with two of Syracuse university's best friends. If you can identify these two persons and the occasion on which this picture was taken, you can win a full carton—20 packs—of king-size Chesterfield cigarettes, awarded by Chesterfields on campus. Only phone calls to 75-5197 from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. will be accepted.

Christmas Contest Deadline Extended To Noon, Dec. 11

Entry deadlines for the annual Christmas decorations contest, sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha, have been extended until noon, December 11.

Joseph Schuler, chairman of the contest, announced today that entries will be taken in the Chapel Board room daily from 2 to 5 p.m. or at the Lambda Chi house, 309 Walnut ave. The entrance fee is one dollar.

ALL PROCEEDS will be donated to the Syracuse Home bureau. The bureau distributes food baskets to needy families over the holidays.

Decorations should be in a serious holiday theme presented with simplicity and good taste. Lights, sound, snow sculptures and painted windows are permissable. However, posters and moving decorations should not be used.

Judging will begin at 5 p.m., December 11.

Two rotating trophies will be presented to the winners, one for the sororiy-fraternity division and one for independent living centers.

Dean Charles Noble will present the awards at the tree lighting ceremony at 8:30 p.m., Dec. 11 at Sim shall.

Last year's winners were Phi Mu, with painted glass windows, and Fairfield cottage, with decorations based on the theme "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

Originally the contest was initiated to promote Christmas spirit. Now it has expanded to include charity benefits.

Chairman Joseph Schuler has also announced the judges for the contest. They are: Earl Clifford, assistant dean of men; Father Gannon Ryan of the St. Thomas More chapel and Prof. George VanderSluis, of the College of Fine Arts.

ADPi to Sponsor Christmas Fair

Alpha Delta Pi sorority will conduct a fair in the chapter house from 2-5 p.m. and from 7:30-10 p.m. today.

Knick-knacks, baked goods, Christmas decorations and "white elephants" will be sold. Proceeds will go into the chapter building fund.

SDA Business Convo Scheduled Tomorrow

Students for Democratic Action will hold a business meeting at 7:15 p.m. tomorrow in 101 HL.

All old members and those students interested in joining SDA are urged to attend.

SDA IS A politically conscious organization dedicated to the attainment of liberal legislation and the election of liberal candidates.

SDA is a bi-partisan group which endorses both Republicans and Democrats. Among the founders of ADA were Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, formerly a Republican and now an independent; Rep. Jacob Javits, Republican Congressman from New York city; Reinhold Niebuhr, prominent American philosopher; and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

On a local level, the SDA chapter has engaged in letter-writing campaigns against the McCarran act and in canvassing drives during local and national elections.

National projects in which the Syracuse chapter will participate include "Operation Brotherhood," aimed at eliminating discriminatory clauses from the charters of all campus organizations, and a labor education program, planned to acquaint students with the origins and purposes of the union movement.

STUDENTS WHO cannot attend tomorrow's meeting but wish to join the group may call Janet Caro, Shaw, 4-3121 ex. 12.

SDA IS A politically conscious organization dedicated to the attainment of liberal legislation and the election of liberal candidates. It works autonomously with Americans for Democratic Action, the adult group.

Applications Due In Dean's Office

Last term seniors seeking grant-in-aid should submit applications before Jan. 4.

Women should hand in their blanks to Ruth Haddock, assistant dean of women, in the Dean of Women's office. Men may submit their applications to Earle W. Clifford in the Dean of Men's office.

Projectless WSO Loses Recognition

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Women's Service organization became an unrecognized group on campus last night after a vote by women's student government assembly.

After an investigation by the organizations panel of WSG, Chairman Lois Clark reported at last night's meeting that the two-year-old service organization had not had "enough projects to find themselves worthy of being on campus this year."

REASONS GIVEN for the motion to rescind WSG recognition of the group were its lack of projects and services conflicting with those performed by other campus organizations.

The motion to technically disband WSO came as a surprise to at least one member of the organization, who told the assembly that none of the members ever knew there was a possibility of losing government recognition.

She added that candidates had been chosen last spring to run for offices in September elections. This, to her, was an indication that the organization was expected to continue activities after members returned to campus.

Miss Clark stated the organization had held no meetings since this fall and quoted this as an additional reason for her suggestion to disband WSO.

THIS DOES not mean that the Women's Service organization is barred in the future from holding meetings. Speaker Patricia Fay explained that the vote against WSO indicated the assembly feels the group at present does not merit official recognition.

However, she urged members of WSO to strengthen their constitution for possible recognition in the future.

Miss Clark assured WSO members that her panel is willing to offer many suggestions to improve the service body and to try to help it gain recognition once more.

Following the disbandment action, WSG Vice president Elizabeth Brydon announced that coeds attending the College of Medicine formal Wednesday, Dec. 16 will be allowed to take special 2 o'clock permissions for the affair.

Popular Team Sets Syracuse Premiere

'Musical Sounds' Highlight Concert

The Sauter-Finegan orchestra will premier their basketfull of new musical sounds to a Central New York audience today at 8:30 p.m. in the new William Nottingham high school auditorium.

The two-hour concert, presented under the auspices of the Famous Artists series, will highlight the startling new attack on modern music executed by Ed Sauter and Bill Finegan. The Nottingham auditorium, located on Meadowbrook dr. just off Genesee st., is part of Syracuse's new multi-million dollar high school.

RCA VICTOR recording artists, the Sauter-Finegan organization is one of the newest groups to enter the band business. They are currently fulfilling a series of personal dance and concert dates which began last May at Frank Dailey's "Meadowbrook" in New Jersey. At that time, the team was hailed as leaders of "one of the most musically-daring aggregations in the history of bands."

"The Moon Is Blue," "Foggy Day," "Nina Never Knew," "Midnight Sleighride," "Honey Jump" and "Coco Bongo" are numbered among the most popular S-F Victor recordings.

For over a decade, Ed Sauter and Bill Finegan have shaped the music played by more than a dozen top flight orchestras. They were the principal behind-the-scenes molders of some of swingdom's greatest proponents.

Sauter was responsible for most of Benny Goodman's famous arrangements and also wrote for Artie Shaw, Woody Herman, Red Norvo and Ray McKinley. Finegan prepared musical scores for Tommy Dorsey and the well-known Glenn Miller orchestra.

SELECTED THIS year by trade publications and disk jockeys as the nation's outstanding musical organization, the Sauter-Finegan line-up . . . unique for a dance band . . . includes trumpets, trombones, saxes, flute, piccolo, oboe, English horn, recorders, bass, drums, harp, tuba and a percussion section which includes thunder drums, triangle, celeste, tympani, and a glockenshpiel.

Honorary Will Give Christmas Pageant

Angelic influences are being felt on the campus as rehearsals and preparations for the annual Christmas pageant draw to a close.

Awesome white angels and costumes from ancient lands are beginning to wander down the aisles of Chapel. Zeta Phi Eta, women's speech honorary, will again present the Christmas pageant.

The pageant, written by A. E. Johnson, well-known poet and English instructor, will be the same show that has been presented for the last two years because of popular demand. The production has played to capacity in the two previous years.

It will be given at 7:15 p.m. this Sunday, in the Chapel. Prof Poister, conducting the Chapel choir, will provide the music.

Winona Young is director of the pageant. Heads of other committees are Marlene Muller, coordinator; Gwen Mahle, publicity; Lois Lachnicht, programs; Marjorie Austrian, properties; Tess Oesterricher, signups; Judy Deichler, lighting; and Nancy Heohle, invitations.

Society Initiates 16 New Members

Sigma Iota Epsilon, national management honorary society, initiated 16 new members Wednesday at Drumlins.

Guest speakers were William K. Phipps, associate director of placement and Tore Tjersland, assistant instructor.

Robert Bergett, Oliver Murphy, Harold Romer, John Sebesta, and Alfred Wild, former members of the society, conducted the initiation ceremony.

WAER Flag Returned By Innocent Student

WAER's "fair weather" flag has come home, dragging its bunting behind it.

According to Gilbert Katz, publicity director of the campus station, the green and white banner was returned to him yesterday morning by Gus Joseph, co-owner of the Savoy restaurant. The flag was brought to Gus by an anonymous student who stated that he had found the missing banner lying under the east quadrangle light tower.

"I DID NOT steal the flag, though," the student reportedly stated.

The student who returned the flag realized that the station was looking for the stolen article and brought it to the Savoy because he knew Katz had breakfast there. according to Joseph.

The flag, missing since Nov. 20, was part of a program inaugurated by WAER to predict the weather each day on campus. It was taken from the light pole on the first day of the new plan and has been missing ever since.

Katz received an anonymous letter last week indicating that a siudent had found the missing banner flying on the tower on the night of the supposed theft and took it home for safekeeping. He promised to return it to the station.

IT IS PRESUMED by the publicity director that this person was responsible for the re-appearance of the weather signpost.

Katz also revealed that the weather predicting program will be reinstated on Monday, Dec. 14 and will continue until further notice.

Former Hill Professor, Hugh Irwin, Succumbs

Hugh L. Irwin, a former professor of Syracuse university, and a veteran Syracuse newspaperman, died at his home Tuesday.

Irwin became associated with the University in 1939, when he began teaching advertising introduction to journalism courses and sophomore newswriting classes.

HE ESTABLISHED the Julia Irwin Loan fund at the School of Journalism in honor of his mother, when she died about five years ago.

Former Dean M. Lyle Spencer described Irwin as a "brilliant newspaperman and one of the most brilliant teachers" at the school.

Irwin began his journalistic career in 1917, joining the staff of the Watertown Times as a reporter. He was born and educated in Watertown.

He rose to assistant city editor before joining the Post-Standard in 1923. He was a reporter and later an assistant to the city editor Irwin remained with the Post-Standard with the advertising staff until his death.

HE REPORTED to work Tuesday morning, but left for home at noon feeling ill. Some of his fellow workers went to his home in the afternoon and found him dead.

Irwin was a member of Alpha Delta Sigma fraternity. He was an editor of the Medical Bulletin, a correspondent to the New York Herald Tribune, a member of the Elks club and the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce.

Visiting Speaker To Lecture on Art

Professor Sussanne K. Langer will speak on "The Meaning of 'Significance' in Art" in the second lecture of the Humanities series, at 4:15 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium.

Mrs. Lenger, noted philosopher and author, has chosen a topic of special interest to art, English and philosophy students, but the lecture is open to the public.

The lecturer studied at the University of Vienna and Radcliffe college, and is well versed in semantics, logic and aesthetics. She has taught as a professor or guest professor at Wellesley, Smith, University of Delaware, NYU, Columbia, Northwestern, University of Washington and Radcliffe.

Mrs. Langer is the author of "The Practice of Philosophy," "An Introduction to Symbolic Logic," "Philosophy in a New Key" and "Feeling and Form."

As a follow-up for her lecture, she will be available for questions and answers at an informal discussion session at 8 p.m. in the Faculty club, 910 University ave., at the side of Haven hall.

Both students and faculty are welcome at the evening session.

Pep Band to Play At Utica Game

Syracuse university's pep band has been invited to Utica college Saturday to play at the Oneonta State Teachers college-Utica college basketball game. Utica is paying for Greyhound bus service to transport the 25 piece aggregation.

The pep band plays at Syracuse basketball games during the year, under the direction of student leader Peter Manicas.

Alta Burg, drum major, has also been invited to perform at the basketball game. She will twirl her fire batons rountine.

The first opportunity for Hill fans to hear the pep band was Wednesday at the Syracuse-Sampson AFB tilt.

Four Seniors to Vie At Maxwell Today In White Contest

Students To Compete In Speech Finals For $75 Award

Four seniors will compete in the finals of the annual White contest to be held at 7:30 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium. An award of $75 will be given to the winner.

Eric Faigle, dean of Liberal Arts will preside as chairman of the contest. Other judges are Dr. J. Calvin Callaghan, chairman of the department of Public Address in the school of Speech and Dramatic Art; Dr. J. Edward McEvoy, instructor in the department of Public Address of the school of Speech and Dramatic Art; and Mr. George Miller, department of Speech of Utica college. Mildred Getzoff will act as time keeper.

THE COMPETING Syracuse students are Miss Marilyn Mawson, a speech major; Donald Megnin, enrolled in liberal arts; Miss Rosemary Grahm, a home economics major; and Rudolph Johanns, enrolled in economics. They will compete against two students from Utica college, Carl Del Buono, and Juris Draguns.

Miss Mawson's topic is entitled, "We're Here — Now What?," "Insignificant—But" is the title of Megnin's speech. Miss Graham will discuss "World Federalism" and Johanns will explain the problem of "Free Trade." Del Buono and Draguns will speak on "Monkey's In a Cage" and "International Mediators" respectively.

This is the 39th contest to be held. It was established in 1916 by Horace and Ernest Ingersol White to encourage interest in public speaking and self expression. The contest was left "as a tribute of affection and gratitude to the memory of "Horace Keep White, their father.

Coeds to Compete In Annual Contest

Sixty-six coeds have entered the annual Sigma Chi "sweetheart" contest, according to Walt Simendinger, social chairman.

During the week the contestants will be invited to a coffee held in the fraternity house. Friday evening, Dec, 11, 20 semi-finalists will be selected to compete for the queen title. The contestants chosen will be notified as to the date on which they will be invited to the house for dinner the following week.

By Jan. 6, five finalists will be in the running for the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" title. From this group the new sweetheart will be chosen and serenaded the following evening.

The new sweetheart will be feted at a dinner which the house will give Jan. 8. The following evening will find her reigning at the Sweetheart ball, held at the Carriage house of the Corinthian foundation. Music will be provided by Dick Martin and his orchestra.

Piety Beats Sabres, 90-80 As Castellini Tops Scorers

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Spearheaded by surprise starter Gus Castellini, Dave Kline and Capt. Mel Besdin, Syracuse's hoopsters romped to their third straight victory last night, whipping the Sampson Air Force base Sabres, 90-80 at Archbold gym.

Castellini, filling in for injured Ron Kilpatrick, amazed a crowd of 756 with a 28 point output, including 12 of 16 shots from the field. It was an outstanding performance for the local set shot artist who had seen limited action in previous contests and had failed to take a shot.

KLINE PLAYED an outstanding board game for the Orange grabbing 19 rebounds and adding 22 points. He hit on 10 of 18 shots from the floor for a high 55%. Besdin added 18 markers as the entire squad showed superior marksmanship sinking 36 of 82 shots for 44%.

Sampson's scoring was evenly divided with five men registering for double figures. George Cooke led the way with 18 points followed closely by former Syracusan Chuck Stevesky who meshed 16. George Abraham added another 15.

Syracuse gained a decisive 46-37 halftime margin and pulled further ahead in the third period, leading by 18 points at one time, 60-42. The Sabres came fast in the latter part of the third stanza and opening of the final quarter coming within five points of the Orangemen, 67-62. The home quintet then put on the pressure and pulled ahead.

Sampson opened the scoring as Cooke meshed a two-pointer but Kline retaliated with a push shot to tie the score. Sabre center Ted Burzenski made good on a free throw but when Castellini made his first hoop of the night, the Pietymen pulled out ahead for good.

KLINE AND Castellini led the opening attack with the big center netting 10 first quarter markers and 13 in the initial half. Castellini connected on six of seven attempts in the opening half for 12 points.

Sampson outscored Guley's men in the third stanza with their late outburst. Syracuse started fast netting seven baskets while the airmen were able to dent the cords for only a single basket and three charity attempts.

The airmen retaliated with three quick fielders before Castellini added another basket and Boob

Dr. Hotchkiss Lectures On Teaching Humor

Students, professors and deans were humorously discussed by William B. Hotchkiss, professor of history, at the final lecture in the mental hygiene series yesterday in Chapel.

Speaking on "How to Win Friends and Influence Deans," Prof. Hotchkiss listed some faults that he had found in students in his class.

"WE ALWAYS have the Time Hog," he said, "the student who takes up the time o fthe rest of the students in class by some form or another.

The history instructor mentioned the heckling questioner. "One type of this student is the one who thinks he or she is being cute. The other is the student who asks questions by starting from nothing mentally."

Prof. Hotchkiss also remarked about the "weeping willows" who generally appear at mid-terms, and those students who have influence and try to "high-pressure" the instructors.

"We next have the brain thieves," he stated. "There are those who cheat on exams. I do not know anything that makes the professor madder than this. The chislers and book thieves are also found in this type."

DEANS, ASSERTED Professor Hotchkiss, are caught between the faculty and the students. Deans are being "worn away," he humorously mentioned. "As a result they don't like campus cutups."

"In my years, I have met many different types of professors—from the gentle to the fierce," he declared.

The Hill instructor mentioned one professor on a campus who assigned four times as much work as was necessary fo rthe course.

He also cited the case of some instructors who take attendance every day and some who mark students when they come in late.

This was the final lecture of the first term. The second semester slate has not yet been prepared.

Sophs Net $500 On Annual Hop

The class of 1956 made a profit of approximately $500 on the Soph Hop, class vice-president James Hutton announced to the class senate last night.

The orange and blue megaphones sold by the class throughout the weekend earned a profit of approximately $40.

Hutton also announced that the class, through the executive council, will donate a half page ad to the "On," and will contribute sanctuary flowers to Chapel and Crouse.

Merle Sue Bank and Joe LeDoux, co-chairmen of the dance, issued the following statement, through Hutton, to the senate: "We wish to thank the entire sophomore class for their ticket selling, word of mouth publicity, and overwhelming enthusiasm and spirit in making a successful social and financial venture of the Soph Hop."

SDA Sets Discussion On Chapter Projects

Interested Students Invited to Attend

Projects for the local chapter will be discussed at a business meeting of Students for Democratic Action, slated for 7:30 p.m. today in 101 HL.

All old members, and students interested in joining the group are urged to attend tonight's meeting.

SDA is a bi-partisan, politically interested group. It works with the adult organization, Americans for Democratic Action, in carrying on public education programs towards the enactment of liberal legislation.

National SDA programs include campus drives for elimination of discriminatory clauses from organizations' charters and dissemination of information on the labor movement. With the reconvening of Congress in January, SDA leaders will be called upon to testify before committees investigating problems and planning legislation in various fields.

Local projects have included letter-writing campaigns to Congressmen urging support or rejection of various bills and canvassing drives for local candidates.

ON Queen Finalists Election Tonight

Eddie Fisher, popular recording artist, will make the final selection of the 1954 ON Queen from photographs of the five finalists who will be chosen tonight in Maxwell aud.

Contestants are requested to wear sweaters and skirts, and to be at Maxwell at 6:45 p.m. The contest is scheduled to get underway at 7 p.m.

Judges for the Syracuse contest will be Thomas Beckett, editor of the Onondagan, Mrs. Murray Bernthal, fashion commentator; Miss Faith Hoffman, Flah's advertising department; and Charles Bernhardt, advisor to the Onondagan.

Prizes for the queen include an album from Olmsted's, a hairset from Fred the Hairstylist and a pass to RKO Keith's.

The pictures will be taken by the Meg Hale studios and sent to Fisher who will judge them by mail.

Paper's Phones Ring For Hour in Contest Of Lowe Identity

Rollin Smith, 701 Walnut ave. will be awarded one carton of Chesterfield cigarettes by Chesterfield on campus.

THE TELEPHONE, one of several at the Hellbox, was taken off the hook at 1:55 p.m. At exactly 2 p.m. by the DO clock it was placed back on the hook and it rang immediately. It kept on ringing for an hour. Staff members took turns sitting by the phone and answering it for ten calls.

They started out answering "Good afternoon, Daily Orange," went to "Daily Orange," then "Hello, DO," and at 2:45 began answering the phone by saying "I'm sorry, the contest has closed, you're the 60th person to call."

The forty-first call turned out to be Santa Claus.

The phone rang and a staffer answered. The caller told him, in a deep bass, that he wanted to identify the people in the photo. When the caller was told that 40 calls had preceeded him, he said he understood that anyone calling between 2-3 p.m. won a prize.

HE WAS TOLD this was incorrect. Obviously irate, the caller asked the staff member's name. He was told and was asked his name. In a state of high dudgeon he replied, "Santa Claus," and hung up.

The actual photo was taken last year the day before the dedication of the Art center, but if Joe and Emily Lowe were correctly identified by the callers, staff members accepted the dedication of the building as the event in the picture.

Joe Lowe, who financed the Art center, was the originator of popsicles.

UN Reporter Will Talk In Maxwell

A veteran reporter who has "watched the Korean story unfold from its earliest stages to the present" will speak to delegates and those attending the evening meeting of the model Security Council in Maxwell auditorium tomorrow.

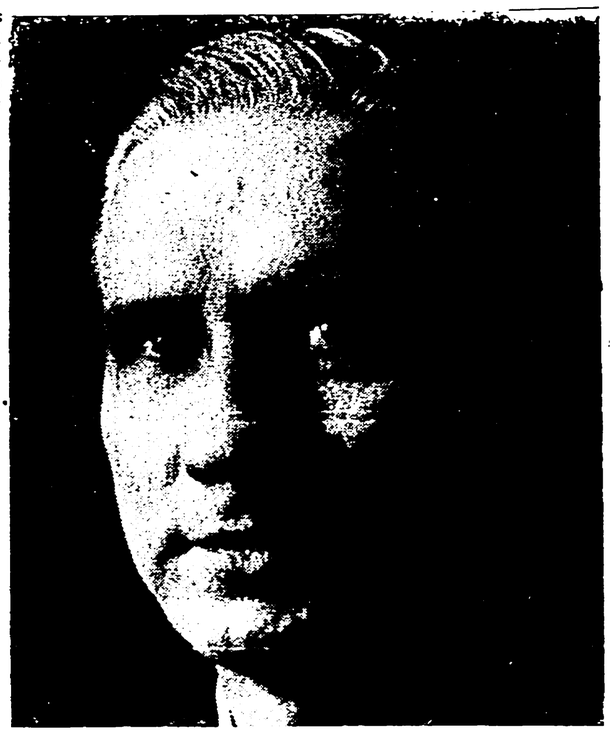
Francis W. Carpenter, who has covered United Nations events since the organization began sessions in New York on March 25, 1946, will talk to representatives of 11 universities and colleges in the state at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow. His subject: Behind the Scenes in the Security Council.

THE MODEL council begins with registration of four representatives and a faculty advisor from each of the 10 schools participating in this year's session. Scheduled from 1-2 p.m. tomorrow in Maxwell auditorium, the registration will be followed by the opening session of the council.

Student delegates representing the 10 current member nations of the Security Council will discuss the Arab-Israel question following a welcoming speech by Vice Chancellor Finla G. Crawford at 2 p.m.

The guest speaker for this year's model council has been a newspaper man since 1928, when he joined the staff of The Atlanta Georgian after graduation from Emory university, Atlanta.

Carpenter's journalism career began before he received his bachelor's degree. He was editor of The Emory Wheel, a college weekly published at Emory.



FRANCIS W. CARPENTER, Associated Press reporter and political analyst, will address delegates from 11 universities and colleges attending the annual model Security Council session here. He has covered the United Nations since March, 1946.

AFTER A YEAR on the Atlanta paper he went to the Associated Press office there and has been with the news service since then, with a break in 1943 to become a first lieutenant in the Army. As an AP reporter he has worked in Atlanta, Boston and New York.

International politics is the special field of Carpenter. Much of his interest is in political background. He is an analyst in that he tries to tell why something happened as well as report the actual event.

Every general Assembly of the UN has been covered by Carpenter, including two sessions held in Paris, and he has been present at most of the historical moments of the UN. He was in the press box of the Security Council chamber at Lake Success June 25, 1950 when the Security Council called on the North Koreans to halt aggression against South Korea.

The native Tennesseean served as president of the United States Correspondents association during 1952-53. Except for the year as president, Carpenter has been secretary of the organization since 1949. The association consists of correspondents of all nationalities regularly assigned to cover the United Nations.

Nothing--'Special'

There is no definite change to report on the problem of the "Orange Special." The train is still scheduled to leave on Saturday, Dec. 19.

This is the day after 90 per cent of the students will have left campus.

It now seems that the railroad officials in setting the date, felt they were complying with University policy. This policy, evidently formed some years ago, indicated that Syracuse did not wish to advocate that students cut classes by offering special rates on early trains.

We agree that this is a meaningful philosophy when vacations fall in the middle of the week. Certainly if a vacation were to start on Wednesday, it would not be logical to have a special "cut-rate" train leaving on Tuesday.

And we also agree that several years ago when there were many Saturday classes, this policy was valid for the weekend.

However, the class schedule has changed. The train schedule should do likewise.

When so many students will, in effect, be penalized for leaving when they have the right to do so, it proves that the ruling is archaic.

To many students $6.73 extra represents a fairly large sum. Because of this, we urge the Administration to seek the schedule change from the railroad officials.

Because this question affects academics, it is possible that the University deans helped formulate the original policy. This body will not meet until next month.

We, therefore, ask the Chancellor and other University officials to consider this a special case and take immediate action before it becomes too late to change the schedule.

The deans should be asked to re-evaluate and plan a permanent policy at their next meeting.

Meanwhile, the students await the final decision.

Editor-in-Chief

Who's on the list?

Despite the multi-paged University catalogue, the three rather distinct "majors" that college students apply themselves to are Social Life, Academics and Extra-Curricular Activities. Various forms of recognition are given to all, but the University has now extended another official credence to the major in Extra-Curriculars.

The ECA student has been of a caste of his own. He has been singled out not necessarily by his accomplishments but by his constant hustle from appointment to appointment. The multitudes of meetings that dot bulletin boards and peeper rooms are the little feudal states in the society of the extra-curricular world.

The University's present action has been to establish an official record of the ECA major in his personal folder in the Dean's office. This labor, the fruits of which are sometimes rather nebulous, will be part of the record that will be available for employers, other colleges and people interested in the student's activities.

Heretofore, the only accolade for the hardest working has been a sense of accomplishment and a key or two. Now there is an opportunity for this part of the record to be applied to life after the harrying hallowed walls.

Frequently the question is raised by the non ECA majors just what the value of all the work done outside of the class record or date book is for. The new action by the University in part answers this. The many values of learning to work for, with and over people are apparent in the world outside.

The only danger arising from this practice is that mere members of an organization will show up equally well with the workers of an organization. Participation has in the past been nine-tenths of the law.

We trust that the heads of the various activities will consider well before they put on record for the world at large the mark of "well done."

It's Not Violence

By ART SIEGEL
Managing Editor

We cannot condemn strikes as vehemently as was done on this page yesterday: "The strike is a weapon of violence."

The writer has referred to strikes with words such as "club" and "torch" and, as noted, above "violence."

There is no question that the fierce strikes of half-crazed men are not desirable—nor were they desirable 100 years ago.

But the fact that some strikers are highlighted by mob hysteria and physical violence does not destroy the case for the use of a refusal to work as a legitimate collective bargaining tool.

The writer has drawn an unfair generalization. He has used to illustrate his points a case in which there was absolutely no violence—the recent photoengravers' walkout in New York city.

Although that strike deprived the city of news for more than a week, there were no cases of "violence" reported. The photoengravers' union used its constitutional rights to get higher wages. There had not been a strike by the photoengravers for more than 30 years.

A strike, true, is not the ideal means for labor and management to settle their squabbles. Rather, a mutual consideration of demands and needs on the part of both sides is desirable.

But such things take time. While we are in the process of strengthening labor boards to reconcile labor disputes around a conference table, we must let labor exercise its own free enterprise rights by refusing to work.

Certainly politicians have never truly realized the value of creating impartial labor boards that could handle cases quickly, fairly and with authority. When they do realize it, strikes will be unnecessary. But strikes must never be outlawed.

In vital production areas and in times of national defense, naturally our constitutional rights must be bridged for the sake of the national emergency. And in these times, strikes are, I must agree, unwholesome representations of American employees and their unions.

A strike often hurts the employees more than its helps them, the newspaper strike, the steel strikes and others. Yet the strike and the threat of strike must be inherent in our way of life if the employee, in a weaker bargaining position than management, is to be protected.

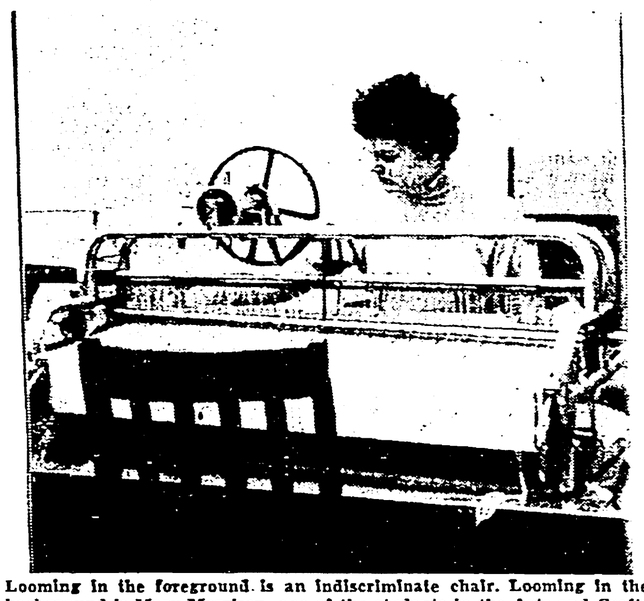
The strike will, I think, someday die of itself, when political parties and unions realize the value of mediation and cooperation, rather than mere toleration.

No one can put the finger of blame on either labor or on management. In both the areas the really serious strikes are the ones that are pressed by either or both groups, in an effort to prove which is stronger.

I should think that the writer also meant mental violence in his use of the term "violence."

And although in many strikes both mental and physical violence is included, I cannot concur with the generalization made yesterday.

Hall Going to Pottery



Looming in the foreground is an indiscriminate chair. Looming in the background is Mary Morrison, one of the students in the Arts and Crafts center now located in Wilson hall. Yep, there are even classes to learn the facts about the "warp" and the "woof" . . . or terms similar to that.

By MARY JEAN PERRY

Students of arts and crafts have their classes in a new location this year. The rooms that were the Student Union in Wilson cottage have been transfored into a studio for hand-made articles.

Huge electric ovens, benches, shelves and looms adorn the rooms in place of coke and candy machines and lounges. The past scene of quiet relaxation is now one of breathtaking action.

Rows and rows of pottery wait shelves for the electric ovens. Each one is a different size and shape—some small and delicate, others large and strong. Striking designs and color schemes decorate some pieces. Other artists rely on simplicity in design and a major color for the beauty of their work.

The pottery is molded completely by hand, in most instances, but some is made with the help of machines. Machine-made work is, of course, more perfect than hand-made.

The old recreation room of the Student Union is now a workshop for metal craft, weaving and occasional leather work.

Bright colored fabrics take form on looms. Artists perfect enamel and copper jewelry at counters along the walls.

One of the looms is a huge wooden structure so complex it seems to defy the possibility of use. It is 125 years old and students make rugs and heavy fabrics on it. Some small wooden looms look relatively easy to work. The majority are metal hand skill looms on the market for only a few years. These modern methods still look complicated.

Visiting the arts and crafts building presents an insight into the skill, imagination and time put into hand-made articles. It is an education in itself to watch the process and the artists at work.

There is one caution, however, beware of getting the "bug." How can you resist dabbing your fingers into pottery clay, hammering out copper and transforming thread into sheets of fascinating fabric?

HUMAN RIGHTS DAY

EDITORS ARE HUMAN LIKEWISE

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN

Today marks the commemoration of a feast day in the church of civilization. Dec. 10, 1953—Human Rights Day.

In Syracuse this commemoration comes at an appropriate time. Delegates from ten colleges and universities in New York state will begin a two-day session of a model Security Council.

In Athens, Ga. this commemoration also comes at an appropriate time. A week ago two editors of the Georgia university student newspaper resigned their positions in protest of a stand taken by the university which defies a basic right, of Americans particularly, outlined in a document adopted in the United States soon after 1789.

The editor-in-chief and the managing editor of The Red and Black vacated their posts last Monday after the University put into effect a plan calling for all "controversial" material to be submitted to a faculty-student committee for clearance before publication.

From John Peter Zenger to Walt Lundy and Bill Shipp (Red and Black editors) the word "censorship" has left a leaden taste in the mouths of writers and readers.

Makers of United States law have declared the unconstitutionality of "prior restraint and censorship" to publications.

Yet, in Athens, because university administrators carry the big pocketbook, they apparently interpret the law to exclude them. Perhaps their finances to define Perhaps their finances are able to define and control "controversial" material.

The last straw case for the Georgia university brass was publication in The Red and Black of an editorial favoring admission of Negroes to Georgia colleges and criticizing the state's stand on segregation.

There is little doubt but that this was "controversial" material. Negro admission to higher institutions of learning has recently been a hotly contested issue in other states, too. A few states have deemed it their privilege to disregard this Human Right established by federal lawmakers.

Lundy and Shipp quit their jobs because a newspaper "cannot endure attack and insult on its policies from any and all quarters without being able to defend its position."

This writer maintains that if colleges prepare a number of people to apply practices of citizenship in actuality, the institutions themselves should not adopt practices contrary to this citizenship.

Correction

In yesterday's article entitled "The Eleven Days" on error was printed concerning a date. The French Syndicalists, forerunners of modern labor parties in Europe, began their work during the middle of the 19th century rather than the 18th as stated in the article. To be more precise, the movement began in the 1830's.

FINAL FOOTBALL NOTE

The mark of a true football coach, it has been said by a man famous in the trade, is the ability of looking like he is leading a band when he is being run out of town.

Sauter-Finegan Broadway to Nottingham

The by-product of over 20 years in the field of dance bands and a mile-long expanse of creative work in the world of modern music will be debuted before local devotees this evening at 8:30 p.m. in the new Nottingham auditorium by the orchestra of Ed Sauter and Bill Finegan.

Praised by the nation's leading men of music as one of the "most amazing" groups in the history of dance bands, the Sauter-Finegan organization defies all convention in their approach to music. The group applies a fresh sound, exenuated by a driving beat and a delicate swing outline, to standard dance music and melodies of their own composition.

The crew is known primarily in this area through their RCA Victor recordings.

Sauter and Finegan acted as arrangers for such notable musical organizations as Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Artie Shaw, Ray McKinley and Charlie Barnet. Individually, they are accomplished musicians on several instruments.

The orchestra which Syracusans will witness this evening was born in an RCA Victor recording studio just off Broadway in 1951 when the two experienced arrangers merged their talents into their own band. Its rise since then has been just short of phenomenal.

The special two-hour concert will feature a number of the Sauter-Finegan creative and popular interpretations.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

"The sophs are coming into their own" is the way Marc Guley put it following Syracuse's rough-and-tumble victory over Sampson last night. There were mistakes of course. But the important sign to the coach is that his team is definitely improving each game.

That the win was a team effort, there is no doubt. Dave Kline's passing was outstanding, both Kline and Mel Besdin's rebounding sure and Gus Castellini's shooting deadly.

Incidentally, in scoring his 28 points, Gus had streaks of five and four consecutive baskets cashed in at two different times.

The Orange, however, still need a lot of practice. They tired noticeably in the later part of the third quarter. Foul shooting was off. Defense against a fast break, as pointed out by Guley, was spotty. Essentially a young team, they threw the ball away on several occasions.

But the potential is definitely there. One play early in the fourth quarter stands out which gave the Orange a badly needed basket. With the score 67-62, Manny Breland stole the ball and on a fast break whipped it to Kline who flipped to Lou Cegala.

Cegala cashed in the layup for two points which put Syracuse out of reach the rest of the way. NYU is going to have its hands full this Saturday.

Last night's game against the Sampson AFB Sabres was the only "exhibition" game on the Syracuse university schedule. The word in quotations is presented through the courtesy of basketball's monguls, the NCAA.

Last year, college basketball's governing body passed a ruling stating that the only "official" games would be those played by four-year schools. Like the infield fly rule in baseball the newest basketball decision came about because of an unorthodox situation.

The situation's name is Bevo Francis, Rio Grande sensation. In '52, playing a schedule composed of service teams and a' junior colleges for the most part, Francis startled the sports world by averaging over 50 points in 32 games.

Bob Fleck

The NCAA felt, and rightly so, that since the record has not been compiled against four-year competition, it was not valid. This year, Bevo, playing against more intense opposition such as Villanova, has "cooled down" to about a 40-point percentage.

Because of this one player, the

Frosh Top Sampson JV's, 84-58

By DAVE BENNETT

Syracuse's frosh hoopsters, leading from start to finish, rolled to a surprisingly easy 84-58 victory over the Sampson Jayvee five in the first game of alst night's twin bill in Archbold gymnasium.

High-jumping Vince Cohen led the Tangerine scoring with 17 points, 13 o fthem in the first half. Jim Snyder, the Mogishmen's 6 ft.-4 forward had 16 markers and 6 ft.-5 center Jim Roper collected 13.

AFTER A compartively close first half, the yearlings exploded for 27 points in the third quarter to ice the verdict. Syracuse led by only six points with less than a minute to play in the second period, but a late scoring splurge gave them a healthy lead going into the second half.

The rangy Orange cubs had no trouble at all in the latter portion of the game and Coach Andy Mogish was able to insert substitutes freely in the final period.

The yearlings jumped to an early lead in the first quarter. They lead by a 7-2 count after three minutes of play and extended the margin to 13-6 at the end of the quarter.

Sampson pulled to within four points of the Mogishmen when Chuck Johnson bucketed three foul points at the outset of the second stanza. But the cubs pulled back to a seven point advantage at the halfway mark of the period.

With less than a minute to play in the half, Cohen tallied on a jump shot from under the basket, Snyder flipped in a 25 foot one-hander and Lou Stark registered on a driving layup to give the Tangerines a comfortable 32-18 advantage at intermission.

NEIL WILCOX, Vinnie Albanese, Roper and Cohen combined to widen the Orange margin in the third period as the Sabre squad could not seem to get going. Syracuse led 59-34 at the end of the quarter and maintained their margin in the final stanza.

Albanese, the smallest man on the frosh squad, had seven points and played an outstanding floor game. Substitute Wilcox netted eight and Don Checho had six. Gary Clark, the yearling's high scorer in the opener against Ithaca, played only the first half and had five points.

Len Wascilewski tallied 17 and pivotman Nick Johnson 14 for the losers.

Gymnasts Face Top-Rated Teams on Southland Tour

Two seniors, a like number of juniors and a second-semester sophomore will leave this Saturday for the Southland. These five gymnasts will embark on a week-long trip which will send them into action against the National AAU champion and two of the South's stellar gymnastic aggregations.

John Barkal and Ferdie Fournies, co-captains of the team, are the Hill seniors who will make the trip. Other members of the travelling squad include Milan Trnka, Corky Sebbo and Dan Traficante.

THIS WILL be the second such trip for the above group, with the exception of Traficante. The team also travelled South to meet Duke and Florida State last December.

The University of North Carolina will be the first stop for the Orangemen. This will mark the first time a Piety gymnastic team has entered into competition with the Tarheels.

The North Carolinians boast a young, well-balanced team and should offer Syracuse sufficient opposition to make the meet a highly interesting one. This meet will be staged Monday, Dec. 14.

The following day the Hillmen do battle with the Duke Blue Devils. Another top-notch meet is in prospect for the Syracuse gymnastic quintet.

Breland contributed a one-pointer. Cooke and Castellini exchanged hoops and then the Sabres rallied with seven straight counters on two baskets by Cooke, one by Burzenski and a free throw by Abraham.

Larned sunk a charity heave but Abraham pushed in a one-hander as the quarter ended with Syracuse holding only a 65-58 lead.

AFTER SAMPSON pulled within five points to start the last stanza, Syracuse added 13 while Sampson was hitting for only five and the Orange again had a decisive lead, 82-67.

Consistent fouling marred the last minutes of play as the airmen tried to gain possession of the ball. Walt Scott's last second fielder ended the scoring for the night, after Sampson's Bill Garnes had netted two quick hoops to tighten the score.

Well-Known Reindeer Tells All

NORTH POLE, ARCTIC. Looking very dapper for an 18-point buck with chalked muzzle and matching white tail assembly, Dasher, famous front-running reindeer for the S. Claus Parcel Service, stated today:

1. Conditions on the northern tundra are pretty much the same as ever. No-o, TV hadn't affected the grazing habits of the middle-class herds.
2. That despite reports to the contrary, you don't ever thoroughly adjust to sub-zero weather, regardless of the warm esteem people hold you in.
3. Rumors of a reindeer strike for Christmas Eve are unfounded. Somebody's got a termite in his antler.

When asked about the most popular Christmas gift down through the years he replied without hesitation: "Menswear by Manhattan. I've helped haul Mr. Claus's sled, roe and buck, nigh unto forever . . . so I ought to know . . . nothing makes a man happier than shirts, sportshirts, ties, pajamas, beachwear or underwear labeled Manhattan. Don't know whether it's the live style that makes a man look and feel so good, whether it's the traditional tailoring detail, or the array of fabrics, patterns and colors that are all so unmistakeably quality. I'll admit one thing. I've kind of wished sometimes that Manhattan would make deerwear."

Carolers Cheer Shut-ins

A group of Crouse college music students will try to make Christmas a little merrier for many hospitalized persons by singing Christmas carols for them Tuesday night.

The carolers will visit the Psychiatric City hospital and the Veterans hospital, and if time permits will sing in front of Chancellor William P. Tolley's house.

About 75 students are expected to participate in the event. Following the singing they will hold a party in Crouse college.

A rehearsal for the caroling will be held at 10:00 a.m. today, taking the place of the usual Thursday morning student recital. Bob Roberts will direct the group, and Lorraine Smorol is the chairman of caroling.

Tuesday will mark the first time that music students have organized to sing carols at hospitals.

Chorus To Sing "Messiah" At Baptist Church Sunday

Christmas portions of Handel's "Messiah," one of his most successful and best-known oratorios will be featured at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday in the First Baptist church for their regular evening service.

John T. Clough, minister of music at the First Baptist church will conduct a 100-voiced chorus. George Oplinger, organist, and Gladys Eldrett Bush, pianist, will supply the accompaniment. Both past presidents of the Syracuse chapter of the Guild of Organists, they are well-known musicians.

FOUR SOLOISTS have been selected for the production. Margaret Foote Mann, soprano, is the soloist at the First Presbyterian church and the Temple of Concord. She is also a member of the Board of Civic Morning Musicals. As contralto is Alice Westcott, soloist of the First Baptist Acappella choir. She is a graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Toronto.

Tenor, Conrad Hess has served as soloist in Syracuse churches including the University chorus, the Leiderkranz Male chorus, the shrine Chanters and other religious organizations. William O. Morris will carry the baritone part He has appeared as soloist for many music events in Central New York. He is the present soloist at the First Presbyterian church.

Composed in the amazing time of 24 days in 1741, "The Messiah" was first performed for a charitable concert in Dublin, Ireland on April 13, 1742. Handel conducted the performance in person. Since then, "The Messiah" has been performed and enjoyed in all parts of the world. It is one of the most worshipful and sublime spiritual experiences of the Church year.

Security Council Will Air Touchy Arab-Israel Issue

Students attending Syracuse university from Arabia and Israel are expected to aid model Security Council delegates in deliberations on the Arab-Israel question in the first session of the group at 2 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium.

The session will begin after registration of the official delegates from ten colleges in the state and a welcoming speech by Vice chancellor Finla G. Crawford. Registration is slated from 1 to 2 p.m.

EVERY NATION currently serving on the United Nations Security Council will be represented by four delegates and a faculty advisor from each university or college participating in the model council.

All sessions, with the exception of a Founders Room reception for delegates only, are open to the public and admission free.

At 8:15 p.m. today guest speaker Francis W. Carpenter of the Associated Press will address the council on "Behind the Scenes at the Security Council."

Carpenter has covered United Nations affairs as a reporter and analyst for the AP since general assembly sessions were housed in New York in 1946. He was also present at two general assemblies held in Paris, including the third, the Human Rights assembly.

TWO SESSIONS of the model council are scheduled for Saturday. At the first, beginning at 9 a.m., delegates will discuss atrocity charges against Communist China and North Korea.

Secretariat employment in the light of findings of the advisory committee and the administrative tribunal will be the subject of the third session, which opens at 1:30 p.m.

Secretary general Ethel Falkin, who is president of the Hill United Nations club, will open this year's model Security Council and introduce representatives.

Syracuse university sponsored the first model council, and each subsequent session has been held here. The University also sponsored the original model League of Nations here in 1927.

NATIONS REPRESENTED this weekend are the five permanent Security Council members — France, China, United Kingdom, United States and Union of Soviet Socialist Republics—and the 1953 members — Denmark, Pakistan, Chile, Greece and Lebanon.

Syracuse chairmen of committees for the session are Miss Falkin; Susan Jakl, assistant secretary general; Nancy Whittier, secretariat; Marcie Damiecki, publicity; Ruby Danz, reception; and Roma Yellon, housing.

Peterfreund, Denise Write Ethics Book

"Great Traditions in Ethics," a new philosophy book intended for student use, has been written by two Syracuse university faculty members and a former faculty member.

The authors are Theodore C. Denise, instructor in philosophy; Sheldon P. Peterfreund, assistant professor of philosophy; and Ethel M. Albert, former instructor in philosophy at Syracuse and now research constulant at the Institute of Social Relations, Harvard university.

The book includes short biographies of outstanding philosophers and statements of their contributions to ethics. Technical terms have been defined and quoted material broken up into small sections so that beginning students will be able to understand it more easily.

The book, in mimeographed form, has already been used for two years in the authors' classes.

Christmas Party Given by Grads

The Graduate commission will present a Christmas party at 8-12 p.m. tomorrow at the Ski lodge.

All graduate students are urged to attend an ddance to the music of Dick Martin and his orchestra.

Anyone attending is requested to donate a pair of mittens to be sent to Korea.

Buses will leave for the Lodge from Sims 4 every half hour after 7:30 p.m.

New Rates Fixed For Coed Rooms

Room rental for all women living centers, except Sims, will be increased from 25 to 75 cents a week for the 1954-55 academic year, Vice-President Frank P. Piskor, announced yesterday.

The new room rates will go into effect July 1. Dean Piskor pointed out, however, that current board rates of $440 per year will continue unchanged for the next year.

THE NEW rental schedule is as follows: Robert Shaw, $10 per week or a total of $320 per year; Haven, Winchell and Lima, $8.75 per week or a total of $280 per year; frame houses, $7 per week or a total of $244 per year; and co-ops, $5.50 per week or a total of $176 per year.

The room rent for Sims will remain at its present figure of $8.75 per week or a total of $280 per year.

Piskor explained that the reason for increasing rentals is to bring revenue into line with current operating expenses.

"Last year the University incurred a deficit of $19,231 in its campus dormitory operation," Dr. Piskor added. "It is hoped that the new rent schedule, along with the discontinuance of furnishing blankets, will enable the University to stabilize expenditure and income and provide a systematic and improved schedule for redecoration and maintenance in the residence program."

APPROXIMATELY 52 per cent of the women students are now living in frame houses, 22 per cent in Shaw, 13 per cent in Haven, Winchell and Lima, and 13 per cent in Sims.

Since basic adjustments in the rental rates for men's living centers was made last year, no changes are anticipated for the 1954-55 academic year, with the exception of minor rate adjustments for Washington Arms, Flick apartments and Marshall apartments.

MSG, WSG Heads Speak to Trainees

Mary Anne Dalton, president of women's student government, and Stephen Reiss, chief of civil service of men's student government, were guest speakers Wednesday night at the final regular session of the Future Student Leaders training program of MSG.

More than 100 men in the course will take the final examination in the six-week program next Wednesday.

Miss Dalton outlined the structure of the women's governing body on campus and explained its relationship to MSG.

Reiss, speaking on "Qualities of Leadership," told the potential wheels of the future that "a leader must be one who gets things done in the right way." He explained that the FSL program is designed "to train you to become aware of the campus community, develop a sense of responsibility, participate in the community and overcome apathy."

School of Nursing To Conduct Convo

Tolley Will Present Pins to Grads

Vice-Chancellor Finla G. Crawford will preside at the Syracuse university School of Nursing senior convocation today at 8 p.m. in Hendricks chapel.

Chancellor William P. Tolley will speak before the presentation of the school pins, which will be given to the 39 graduates by Dean Edith H. Smith of the School of Nursing.

Janet L. Grant ,president of the graduating class will greet the audience. Other officers of the class are Nancy C. Mires, vice-president; Ardyth R. Tallman, secretary and Constance A. Potter, treasurer.

The Arria Huntington award of $50 will be presented to the outstanding graduate by Mrs. Frederick N. Marty, president of the auxiliary of the University Hospital of the Good Shephard.

Dr. Edward Stainbrook, professor and chairman of the department of psychiatry at the State University of New York College of Medicine, will speak on "Society Personality and Disease."

The Rev. Dr. Roy T. Henwood, district superintendent of the Oneonta District in the Methodist church, will ask the invocation.

Betas Would Ban Discrimination

Nine New England chapters of Beta Theta Pi have voted to ask the elimination on the national level of what they called racial and religious discrimination in pledging candidates.

The Syracuse chapter of Beta Theta Pi reported that it had not heard anything about the action and did not want to comment on it.

The resolution was passed near the close of a two-day convention of Beta Theta Pi fraternity at Williams college. It was attended by delegates from Williams, Amherst, Bowdoin, Brown, Dartmouth,mouth, Maine, MIT, Wesleyan and Yale.

The Williams college chapter of Phi Delta Theta is still under suspension for "contravention of the national chapter" in pledging a Jewish student.

Dramatic Society's Playwrite Contest Will Close Today

Naming of Winning Script In Boar's Head Search Expected in Week

The playwriting contest, which Boar's Head has been sponsoring in an attempt to find a script for the spring Senior musical show, ends today.

According to Jerry Leider, faculty advisor to the Hill drama group numerous manuscripts have been received up to date. The Drama department has offered a prize of $100 to the author of the winning script.

The contest has been in effect for approximately six weeks. An announcement of the winning author or authors is expected within the next week.

The success of last spring's show, "White Bucks and Tales" has brought many inquiries and requests for a similar type of production. Most of the talent which Syracuse residents and students saw in "White Bucks" is back on the Hill this year. Lanny O'Kun and Bill Angelos who collaborated on the words and music for the show will again provide the lyrical accompaniment for this year's production.

The Senior musical produced by Boar's Head is an all-student endeavor, and one of the four major productions which the drama group presents each year.

Retailing Career Conference Slated

Department store opportunities for college graduates will be the subject of a collegiate career perference scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 29 by Woodward and Lothrop of Washington, D. C.

Senior college students in the Washington area will receive special invitations and programs for the affair, which will include brunch, a forum, explanations by store personnel and tours of the departments and the city.

Executives of the store are interested in showing seniors and graduate students also, the opportunities available both in retailing and at Woodward and Lothrop. The conference is designed to give and over-all view of retailing operations as well as the significance of retailing and its integration in modern economy.

Majors in liberal arts, business administration, home economics and retailing are some of the college people who may find interesting opportunities in the Washington store.

Asia Sale Ends Today in Chapel

Today is the last day of the Syracuse-in-Asia Christmas sale which is being held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the basement hall of the Chapel.

It is held to aid in the support of Tom Gill, Syracuse-in-Thailand representative teaching at Chulalongkorn university in Bangkok, Thailand.

Students who have reserved articles are requested to pick them up today, Patricia Green, chairman of the sale, announced.

Dean Noble to Light Tree Yule Program Scheduled

By DICK CASE

An impressive Yuletide theme, sparked by 15 new songs and 12 story segments, will be spotlighted in the full-scale production, "Christmas U.S.A.," scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 15 in Hendricks chapel.

Utilizing over a cast of 65 musical and dramatic performers, the show will be presented for the benefit of the annual Christmas seal drive of the Tuberculosis association. Radio station WAER will broadcast the production "live" from Chapel in the largest such presentation ever attempted by the campus outlet.

THE HOUR-LONG holiday feature is being produced, directed and written by Harlan (Lanny) O'Kun, William Angelos and Donald Kaufman. Nancy Hoehle, program director of WAER, is supervising the entire production which will utilize the combined talents of the radio staff.

"Christmas U.S.A." will be open to the entire campus and there will be no admission charge except a contribution to the Christmas seal fund which is strictly voluntary. According to the producers, "the show is open to everyone and they may contribute if they wish. But let's fill the Chapel."

Based on a holiday mood, the production is described as "a musical narrative with a Christmas setting and theme". All music, comedy and drama will be in line with the central idea. O'Kun and Angelos, the gifted campus songwriting team, have provided 15 new tunes including "Christmas in the Air", "Sleighride", "Why Pretend" and "Mister, Buy My Christmas Tree."

The main narrative concerns a man walking through town and his observations of the Christmas preparations. A chorus, consisting of the combined voices of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority and Alpha Chi Rho fraternity, will provide choral interpretations and Willard Lape will act as narrator of the scripted material.

BILLED AS featured singers in "Christmas U.S.A." are Jane Williams, Greta Wolfe, Lorraine Smorol, Lorraine Peters, Louise Orlando and Frederick Griesinger.

One of the top numbers will be an adaptation of O. Henry's "Gift of the Magi" which has been broadcast by WAER with great success in recent years.

Ransom Place, WAER special events director, will act as producer on behalf of the station and announcer for the broadcast. He will coordinate, along with the program director, the mammoth technical aspects of the airing.

Wallace Bradley, chief engineer, will supervise technical portions of the Christmas fantasy. James Fellows is in charge of ushering and finance. Six WAER sophomore and junior staff members will act as ushers.

BLOCK SEATING for fraternities and sororities may be arranged through Gilbert Katz, promotion director of the station.

By ELIZABETH GODDARD

Christmas will be officially welcomed on the campus when Dean Charles C. Noble lights the all-University tree Sunday night.

The annual ceremony which is scheduled for 6:45 p.m. Sunday, will mark the start of Christmas activities on the Hill. It will be followed by the announcement of the Lambda Chi Alpha Christmas decorations contest winners, the Zeta Phi Eta pageant and choir caroling.

JAMES F. CARR, co-chairman of Chapel House reps and president of Associated Student services, is coordinating chairman of Sunday evening's events.

Dean Noble will light the 25 foot evergreen at the foot of the Chapel steps while a choir sings carols and Christmas hymns.

Members of the Outing club, headed by Barbara Wood, will erect and decorate the tree which will remain standing until after the holiday vacation.

Winners of the Lambda Chi Alpha Christmas decorations contest will be announced by the Chapel dean. They will be awarded gold trophies which have been on display on Marshall st. this week.

DEADLINE FOR entries in the contest is noon today. Applications accompanied by a $1 fee, should be submitted in the Chapel board room or at the Lambda Chi Alpha house, 309 Walnut ave., chairman Joseph Schuler announced. Posters and moving decorations are not permitted.

Judging the entries will be Earl Clifford, assistant dean of men, Father Gannon Ryan of St. Thomas More house, and Prof. George Vandersluis of the College of Fine Arts.

Proceeds of the contest will go to the Syracuse Home bureau which provides food baskets to needy families over the holidays.

Winners o flast year's contest were Phi Mu, with painted glass windows and Fairfield cottage, using the theme "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing."

THE CONTEST was originally started to spur campus Christmas spirit but developed into a benefit for charity.

The annual Christmas pageant presented by Zeta Phi Eta, women's speech honorary, will follow the tree-lighting ceremonies at 7:15 p.m.

Directed by Winona Young, the show will be the same as those presented the last two years. It was written by A. E. Johnson, well-known poet and Syracuse English professor and is repeated by popular demand.

The 150-voice Chapel choir, directed by Prof. Arthur Poister, will also participate in the pageant.

WORKING WITH Miss Young are Marlene Muller, coordination; Gwen Mahle, publicity; Lois Lachmicht, programs; Marjorie Austrian, properties; Tess Oesterreicher, sign-ups; Judy Daichler, lighting, Nancy Heolhle, invitations.

The Chapel choir will lead students in caroling at 8:15 p. m. at the close of the pageant. They will tour the campus area.

MORIS UBANS and WILLIAM KAGLER set up trees in the Chapel lobby. The all-University Christmas tree, 25 feet tall, will be erected in front of the building and lit in ceremonies preceding the annual pageant on Sunday.

1957 Class Assembly Holds Initial Meeting

By MICHAEL BRAUN

The first meeting of the Assembly of the class of 1957 took place last night. Class Vice-president Arlene Plotkin presided.

President Francis Procopio addressing the meeting stated that "Student apathy is the major problem affecting Syracuse today. It is up to the freshman of 1953 to set the pace for future freshman classes.

"THIS CAN BE accomplished" stated Procopio, "by formulating and carrying out worthwhile ideas. The assembly as the representatives of the class must take the lead."

Procopio also cited cooperation between Greek houses and independent dorms as a major factor in the success of the assembly. To illustrate the responsibilities of the members he explained the Class Governing Act.

George E. Allen, M-9, Liberal Arts, was elected by the assembly to fill the vacant independent freshman position in the mens student government assembly.

To serve as liason between the freshman class and the mens student government the assembly appointed George M. Winston, M-7, School of Speech and Drama. He will represent the class on any matter sent to MSG.

JOSEPH L. EASTON, M-3, School of Liberal Arts, was elected speaker pro tem of the Assembly. He will chair the meeting in the absence of Miss Plotkin. He also serves as chairman of the steering committee which makes committee appointments.

Jeffery Wenig, M-8, School of Liberal Arts, and Leonard Dippold, Syracuse, Business Administration, were elected to serve with Miss Plotkin and Easton on the Steering Committee.

Elizabeth Blackwell, Haven hall, School of Fine Arts, was elected secretary of the Assembly. She will serve with class secretary Daphine Burke in keeping minutes of all frosh class assembly meetings.

Miss Plotkin also introduced the members of the Executive Council to the assembly. They are class treasurer Norman Butterfield, Donald Fulsom, Barbara Solomon, Warren Kimble, Leonard Dippold, Robert Newmark, Fred Sliter, Sanford Dautch and Donald Weinberger.

A permanent committee to inform all assembly members of meetings was formed. It includes Patricia A. Goldie and Dorris B. Lemp of Syracuse, and Norman Haddad, M-9.

The meeting was attended by representatives of all freshmen living centers, and sorority and fraternity pledge classes.

Jewish Students Will Hear Noble

Dean of Hendricks chapel Charles C. Noble will speak at 7:15 p.m. today at Jewish Sabbath eve services in the Chapel sanctuary. The title of his talk will be "That's for Sure."

Joan Rose, Haven hall and Gerald Gelula, Zeta Beta Tau, will participate. Lita Addison of Phi Sigma Sigma sorority will say the blessing over the candles.

Jack Most will be student leader, and Stan Goldsmith will act as student cantor. The Jewish Student fellowship choir will participate.

St. Thomas More To Fete Orphans

About 70 orphans from the House of Providence will find the Christmas star of happiness shining a little brighter Sunday when they are feted at a holiday party by the executive council of St. Thomas More chapel.

Members of the exec council will act as parents to the children at the affair, which is scheduled from 3:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The orphans, ranging in age from six to 10 years, will participate in games and Christmas carols and will be entertained by a magician. Exec council members have also arranged a special skit to be presented to the children.

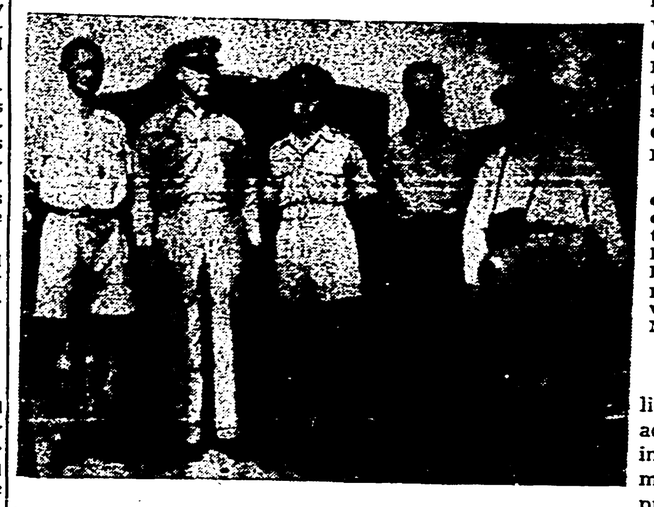
Highlight of the party will be the appearance of Santa Claus. The jolly gentleman will greet the children and hand out gifts from his North Pole workshop.

Foreign Students Invited to Supper

Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship will be host to the international students of Syracuse university at 5:30 p.m. tomorrow for a buffet supper in the alumnae room of Kai Women's building.

The affair will include several vocal and instrumental arrangements. All foreign students are invited

Greek Student Tells Strange Tale



DEMERTRIOS KOUSOULAS, center, with members of the Balkan Command (UNSCOB). Next to Kousoulas, is GEN. JAMES VAN FLEET. The picture was taken at Vitzi, Macedonia, in August of 1949, during the final Greek battle with the Communists.

(Ed. note—Dimitrios Kousoulas is a student in Syracuse university's Maxwell School of Citizenship. A Fullbright Fellow removed from his country two years ago, he has told the story of communist actions in Greece in a recent book, The Price of Freedom.

Chancellor William P. Tolley, expressing approval of the book, commented that it "told a story that has largely been overlooked by the writers of war history. It is a tribute to the people of Greece for the way in which they have fought Facism, Nazism, and Communism."

By MARY T. LUINS

The Price of Freedom, published last month by the Syracuse university press, is an inside and impartial story of modern Greece's struggle to preserve her independence.

It is "inside" in that it reveals the deeper causes behind the ancient country's participations in world affairs and contains vital international documents that have never before been published. It is "impartial" in that it divorces itself from the nationalistic attitude and devotes equitable discussion to every country involved with Greece in world affairs. It is a book of invaluable worth to America today, because it vividly describes all the totalitarian methods of infiltration and conquest embodied in Nazism of yesterday and Communism of today.

ALTHOUGH THE student-author writes with the objectivity of an outsider, the events of his story are very much the events of his own life. When the Germans made their spectacular air assault on the Greek island of Crete in 1941, Kousoulas was there; when a non-partisan underground was organized, the author joined the movement; and after the liberation, among those taken prisoner by Red guerrillas during the December 1944 revolution was Dimitrios Kousoulas.

An interview with the dynamic writer revealed that had the Scobie-ELAS Commans truce been signed one day later in 1945, The Price of Freedom would have never been written. Dimitrios Kousoulas would be dead. In a sort of

Are you in the ON?

'Allo seniors. Been mugged lately? We mean in the photog sense, of course.

This impression has been hammered in by the fact that 600 out of 1305 prospective graduating seniors have had their pictures taken for the yearbook.

In percentages this is 46%. In percentages this is somewhat disheartening. Well, the time for remedying this situation is running short. Next Friday, Dec. 18, is the LAST day for this sort of thing.

There maybe those blank individuals, of course, who will appear as much in the centennial-class ON. There are also those just plain forgetful ones who will join those ranks.

However, the success of this operation has a second phase. Of those who HAD their picture taken, the returns are also meager. One hundred out of 600 have returned the proofs. In percentages this is 16.6%. In percentages this is mighty disheartening.

There has been much whooping and hollering in recent years about ON's coming out decades after its supposed year of publication. Quips are made about unpublished ON's being willed to next of kin in old age.

Well, one of the causes for this sort of thing is the lack of positive action on the part of seniors to get their faces scrubbed for the photographer.

Such a problem getting pictures . . . when such an easy remedy for it lies in the hands of those who would do most of the whooping and hollering for an ON in the spring.

Search out that "birdie" and flash him a smile. Time on exposure is running out.

Weekend culture

There have always been groups on campus which have deplored the so-called lack of a cultural diet in the Hill. They have spent hours concerned with the fact that all Syracusans are not able to devote more time to this necessity of life.

These people base their statements on two factors: one, that cultural offerings are not readily available to all; and two, that even if they were, today's student would lack the initiative to pull himself away from his bridge hand to attend.

This weekend, Syracuse university is fortunate in being able to dispose of the first problem as it sponsors the model Security Council sessions.

Open to the general public, these meetings will provide a stimulus for political thinking as representatives of 11 colleges enact typical meetings of the United Nations group.

The highlight of the weekend will be tonight's talk by Associated Press reporter Francis Carpenter, a man who has covered the UN since its inception in 1946. His topic will be "Behind the Scenes in the Security Council."

A reporter who has been with the international organization for more than seven years will be able to interpret much of the inside politics, agreements and compromises which must take place outside of the conference room.

A further education in diplomacy is promised by the open sessions. The conflict between Israel and the Arab block will be discussed at the first meeting while atrocity charges will head Saturday's schedule.

We welcome this opportunity to gain more insight into the workings of such a prominent body and hope that the second factor of the non-cultural diet, student disinterest, will be proven a myth.

Music Piping Hot, Mon

A skirl of pipes and a "Hoot, mon" or two, and we have Emery Forth, veteran bagpipe major of Syracuse and vicinity, who is currently undertaking the training of Hill students in the intricacies of the pipes.

By HOWARD VANKIRK

"Laddies and lassies, if y'd like to learrrn the playin' o' the Heeland Bagpipe all ye need do is turrn oop at 101 HL o' a brrae brrich Wednesday nicht, at 8 o'clock, and Misterrr Forrth will be morre than pleased to instrrruct ye in the intrrracacies o' the instrrrument."

One day early this fall Susan Atwood, LA sophomore, was wandering around Thornden when she heard the skirl of a bagpipe. She'd always been interested in the pipes, so she decided to investigate. She discovered Emery Forth, a veteran pipe major, who was piping away at a great rate.

The upshot of the ensuing conversation was that Forth, who is an ophthelmic optician by profession, would be glad to donate an evening a week to teaching anybody on the Hill who might be interested in learning to play the pipes.

The lessons have been going on since some time in October, with four steady pupils. They are Miss Atwood, Earnest Frank, Barry Colassard and Thomas Luche. The three gentlemen are Forestry juniors.

The equipment necessary to begin learning the pipes are a practice chanter and an instruction book. The chanter looks and is operated somewhat like a German flute. Forth says that a conscientious learner, who will practice one-half hour a day on the chanter will be able to play a piece in three months' time. After this initial training period, tunes come easier to the beginner.

Forth says that a popular contention that a person has to grow up with the pipes to be able to play them properly is not true. He didn't begin until he was 20, and during his piping career he has belonged to the Clan Douglas, serving as their official piper for a number of years.

A word about the bagpipe itself. It consists of four basic elements, the mouthpiece, the bag, the chanter and the drones. The mouthpiece is used to fill the bag with air. The bag, usually of elk hide and covered with the clan tartan, is a resorvoir of air that is usually carried under the right arm of the player and squeezed to force the air through the chanter and the drones.

The chanter is the keyboard of the pipe. It is with this that the player plays his tunes. The drones are three ebony pipes, two tenor and one bass, which give the pipes their underlying tones.

The scale of the chanter is nonchromatic, no sharps and flats, and all Highland pipes are in the key of G. They are all of one volume, and can get pretty noisy when a group of them assemble and cut loose.

There is a certain amount of controversy concerning the history of the bagpipe and its introduction to Scotland. One theory has it that the pipes were introduced by the Norse sailors. Another states that the Romans brought them when they invaded the British Isles during Caesar's time and left them when they went home.

The Irish insist that they invented the pipes as their national instrument, but when they realized that the Scotch were bigger windbags than the Irish, an Irish ship gathered all the pipes up and took them as a gift to Scotland. Being of mongrel Dutch ancestry, we won't take sides in the controversy.

The pipes became a court instrument in Scotland in the 13th century and have been identified with the Scots since. The best known is the Great Higland Bagpipe, though a smaller pipe is found among the lowland Scots. Despite the Irish contention that they shipped all their pipes to Scotland, there is an Irish pipe today. It is smaller and softer in tone than the Great Highland pipe. The Italians also have a form of pipe which they call the Cornamusa.

Ancient Rome definitely had a bagpipe. It was called the Tibius utriculoris, and was a favorite of Nero. Can it be that Nero bagpiped while Rome burned?

Checking Spooning

The time honored art of "spooning" as our ancestry called it, is receiving legislative notice at the University of Houston. The dormitory council there recently issued the following regulations:

"1. Area outside of "D" and "E" for goodnight kisses only.

"2. Cullen boulevard, side of "D" dorm recommended.

"3. Cars in dorm parking lot only if we can see your heads showing over the car seat.

"All other areas are taboo. Don't go about wrecking the necking by using the taboo areas."

The suggestion here is that someone keep their eyes on the "we" doing the checking.

IN THE HALLWAY

Game Ahead for MSG

By ED HARDY

After a rather belated start the men's student government assembly has finally started to move along.

Only one thing has come out of panel so far though, and even that was torn to pieces once it hit the floor so as to destroy the original idea behind it. The bill was designed to set up a special committee to investigate causes of student apathy and recommend a program for alleviation of this growing condition.

The six-panel assembly was reduced to four panels this year to increase efficiency. A total of four bills and 11 investigations are currently in the panels.

They are the following:

Conduct and welfare: student apathy, reserved seating, advisory council and pre-registration.

Ways and means: Abrogation bill, Women's building student facilities, student activities' budget bill.

Athletic and public relations: minor sports, intramural insurance, full health insurance.

Rules and elections: United World Federalists constitution, National Students association, permanent joint student court, campus political parties bill and licensing of campus organizations bill.

Some of these investigations may sound a bit strange to many readers, but many of them will emerge from student government in the form of direct action which will benefit all students.

Most of them, however, have come out of the executive and administrative levels of men's student government—not from the legislative level, which is supposed to reflect the opinions of the male student body.

Practically all of the bills and investigations, too, are "left-overs"—remnants of last year or changes in attempted programs.

We might suggest that members of the assembly get out and talk to their constituents to find out what they'd like to see brought up in the assembly. And then the 27 legislators will be able to make a fuller contribution to the student body which they represent.

LETTERARY COMMENT

CROUSE & A CROWDED COLUMNIST

Pleasure

December 9, 1953

Dear Editor,

May I pat you on the back for the good job you did on Ernst Bacon's recital. As a result of your publicity, Crouse, for once, was filled, and I heard many students say this was their first time to attend—that they knew nothing of our concerts—so a large "Thank You"—for music in general.

As you know, about five of us here have national and international reputations. We do these Crouse concerts as a cultural contribution for the enlightenment and pleasure of the students—and it is a joy when we can look about and see the place full.

Thanks again,

Sincerely,
Harvey Smith-Spencer

Mislead?

To the Editor:

Many of us have been misled. We believed Mr. Herz was writing a humor column. He seems to be writing editorials. We must answer him appropriately, of course, always aware that we may be falling victim to a wit much subtler than our own.

We agree with much that he has said, that is, if we have correctly interpreted the misplaced paragraphs. The trouble is that he has said too much which no one could disagree with, too much which means nothing. "We must have the courage to stand for what we believe" is a fine statement, but ineffectual, unless we say WHAT we believe. Are you for or against McCarthyism, countryman H.? Say something, please say something.

Secondly we submit that the major problem today is not fear of other people's fear. It is fear BECAUSE of other people's fear. There is a great difference. Our concern should not be that the emotion of another does not harm us. For if we are self-reliant we can resist it. We need only take care we do not catch the same disease.

Speaking of diseases, there seems to be one prevalent today among typewriter prophets, called "other-fellow-itis." Our hero shows many of the symptoms. He emotionally attacks emotion and illogically attacks the lack of logic. He attacks delusions of understanding in others while implying that HE knows they do not understand.

We say this only by way of friendly counsel, realizing that evils cannot be remedied by indulging in them.

IT'S A GIRL!

Electricity and Sauter

By DICK CASE
Editorial-Page Writer

To say that there was electricity on the stage of the Nottingham auditorium last night is a mild sort of understatement.

There was, in fact, a live wire stretched across the broad expanse and the high voltage sounds of Sauter-Finegan danced merrily across for some two hours.

The large, unorthodox Victor recording band presented a concert of amazingly acute proportions under the auspices of Famous Artists. A small but warm audience filled the beautiful new eastside auditorium and compensated for its sparceness with genuine admiration.

The orchestra sported only one of its two chiefs due to the absence of Bill Finegan who was called to California on a personal matter. Shy, witty Eddie Sauter conducted and footnoted capably.

This Sauter-Finegan orchestra strives for the reverence of sound. Utilizing every trick and instru the place with a country acre of musical hiccups. The band was alternately delicate and brassy, swinging and sweet. The arrangements overflowed. Humor prevailed.

The evening was touched off by the well-known S-F "Doodletown Fifers" which was followed by a tasty version of "Rain," "Honey Jump," an up-beat piece, highlighted the band's great swinging potential; replete with kazoos.

It is unnecessary to say that those who ventured to Nottingham last night were thoroughly entertained and that those who were elsewhere missed a heap of living.

We are confused at this point as to just exactly what the community wants.

A few weeks ago, the Astor Theater closed because of lack of support from the paying customers. Or, more accurately, because of lack of paying customers. The Midtown Theater is running toward the edge of nonexistence for the same reason.

All right, people say, culture doesn't go over in this town. Give them pops and they'll come. A nice comforting dream to wrap sagging box office receipts in, but it just ain't so.

The William Nottingham Auditorium seats 1200 people, and it was little more than half full last night. More than half the center section was empty. And the feature attraction was the band which has gotten more publicity since the sudden fame of Billy May a couple of years back.

We're not sure whether it was the location of the auditorium or the general disinterest in the community which caused the difficulty. We hope we're wrong in our opinion.

No More Tin Cans

Kit Carsons Now Practice At University Rifle Range

By GEORGE MEEK

Shooting tin cans off fences is a thing of the past for about 35 Syracuse marksmen, who now make use of the fully equipped rifle range under the Men's gym.

The range is open from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for the use of Army and Air Force ROTC cadets, and members of the university rifle team. Master Sgt. Ollie B. Atchison of the Army ROTC corps supervises range activity.

THE HAVEN for Kit Carsons may be reached by entering the main door of the Men's gym, going down the stairway to the right, and continuing down the hallway.

The regulation 50-foot range is soundproofed, to prevent complaints from other university athletic departments. Space is provided for four targets, but as a general rule, only three students fire at a time because of the narrowness of the room. The targets are sent to the far end of the range and returned by a pulley system, which is operated from behind the firing line.

An observer can call out the results of each shot from a desk with mounted binoculars.

Fifteen rifles are maintained for the use of the various teams. All of them are the Springfield .22 type. There is no need for persons to be in front of the firing line at any time, and this has been a great factor in maintaining range safety. There have been no accidents in the two years that the range has been in operation.

THE GOVERNMENT supplies ammunition for the Air Force and Army rifle teams, but university students not in the military program have to supply their own ammunition. This has discouraged many men for competing for berths on the university team. The army team alone uses about 2,000 rounds of ammunition a week.

An agreement is pending whereby the university will supply ammunition for non-ROTC students. If this goes through, many more marksmen may be attracted to the range.

The Army and Air Force teams will be trimmed to 15 men on each team, because only 10 can compete in a meet. Those men who do not make the regular teams will continue to fire, and if they sufficiently improve, they may steal positions away from the team members.

The Army ROTC team will compete for the William Randolph Hearst trophy today. Five cadets will fire in the meet, which was won by Syracuse in 1947.

FRESHMAN CADETS, though not on the rifle team, are visiting the range during their regular class periods this week. In addition to the actual firing they are working on sighting, aiming positions, and use of the strap.

The university team will be composed of the best men from the military teams, as well as other proficient students. Some coeds have expressed an interest in the team, but most of them have lacked the ammunition to begin firing. Of the girls he has seen, Sgt. Atchison says that some have real potentialities.

The rifle team is an official Syracuse sport, and letters will be awarded team members. No schedule for the team has been drawn up yet because of the problem of lack of ammunition.

Benches are provided just inside the entrance to the range room for the convenience of those waiting to shoot, and according to Sgt. Atchison, the benches are usually full because the range is taking about as many marksmen as it can. He points out that this should not discourage university students with their own ammunition from coming down, because the hours that the range is open can be extended if necessary.

If you like to shoot, why not drop down to the range and start firing—you may be good enough for a place on the rifle team!

MASTER SERGEANT OLLIE B. ATCHISON gives some coaching hints to an ROTC cadet regarding his firing position. The ROTC rifle teams practice daily on the range under the Men's gym.

Winners Announced In Oratory Contest

Juris Draguns, a Utica college psychology major, and Donald Megnin, a senior in liberal arts at Syracuse, took double honors last night in the 39th annual White oratorical contest in Maxwell.

Marilyn Mawson, a senior in the school of speech, and Rudolph Johanns, a senior enrolled in economics, were awarded second and third places, respectively.

SPEAKING ON "International Mediators," Draguns asserted that people are similar throughout the world. "There is altogether too much emphasis on the difference of people," he said.

Citing the many foreign students on various campuses, Draguns declared that these students report to their countries all the good in the United States, which far outweighs the evil.

Donald Megnin, speaking on the feeling of insignificance, told each individual to ask himself these questions: "Do I give myself enough credit?" Do I realize that what I do with my life helps to determine what happens in the rest of the world?"

We should not minimize our own lives, Megnin suggested. "It is the significance of the little people like you and me who rule the world."

JUDGES FOR the contest were Dr. J. Calvin Callaghan, chairman of the department of Public Address of the School of Speech and Dramatic Art at Syracuse university; Dr. J. Edward McEvoy, department of Public Address at Syracuse; and George Miller, department of speech at Utica college.

Dr. Eric H. Faigle, dean of the School of Speech and Dramatic Art, was chairman of the event. Pledges of Zeta Phi Eta, professional speech sorority, ushered.

These is the first time in seven years that co-winners have been announced in the contest. The prize was established in 1916 by Horace and Ernest Ingersol White "as a tribute of affection and gratitude to the memory of their father, Horace Keep White."

Christmas Tree . . .

picking up other groups along the way.

Robert Roberts, co-chairman of the choir, will plan the route the singers will take.

The University tree was erected near Sims dining hall in past years, but due to the construction of the quad it will be more centrally located in front of the Chapel this year. The lighting ceremonies, previously scheduled for tonight, wil lbe held Sunday in order to coordinate campus Christmas activities.

Hill Reps Attend Regional Meeting On College Unions

Three representatives from Syracuse attended the annual regional conference of the association of college unions last weekend at Brubacher hall at the New York State college for Teachers in Albany.

The official representatives included Miss Margaret Parker, social director of the Union; Mary Anne Dalton, president of women's student government; and Stanley Leff, president of men's student government. James Carr, president of last years' Student Union, also attended.

The representatives met with representatives from Student Unions in New York state and near-by Canadian provinces to discuss problems which were similar to the colleges.

Although Syracuse has no Student Union, the group has many problems in common with other colleges which do have them.

The Syracuse delegation attended mainly, however, to get ideas on how to build a program of general campus activities into the Women's building program.

So far the facilities in the Women's building have had to be scheduled in advance in order that organizations might use them. However, the delegation discussed with the other Unions the possibilities of building a program for general utilization of the campus Many of the functions it would take up were included in the Student Union last year.

Five Finalists Picked In ON Queen Rivalry

Five finalists for the ON Queen contest were selected last night in the Hall of Languages by a board of four judges.

The girls, whose pictures will be sent to TV and recording star Eddie Fisher for final selection as ON queen are Gloria Schren, Iota Alpha Pi; Ellen Reece, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Barbara Goldman, Alpha Epsilon Phi; Gwen Mann, Delta Gamma; and Barbara Feidelman, Sigma Delta Tau.

THE FINALISTS will be photographed by Meg Hale studios. The pictures will be sent to the young singer for final selection and returned by mail to the contest committee with the final selection of the 1954 ON queen.

The judges for last night's contest were Thomas Beckett, editor of the Onondagan; Mrs. Murray Bernthal, fashion commentator; Miss Faith Hoffman, Flah's advertising department; and Charles Bernhardt, advisor to the Onondagan.

Harold Steinburg was master of ceremonies for the contest in which 58 girls competed for the 1954 title. The coeds wore sweaters and skirts for the finalist competition.

The prizes to be awarded to the winner include an album from Olmsted's, a hairset by Fred the Hairstylist, and a pass to RKO Keith's.

Choosing of an ON queen has become an annual event on the Syracuse campus. The Queen for the 1953 Onondagan was selected by Perry Como, radio and TV singing star.

Protestant Service Planned by Council

Program to Feature Christmas Story

A Protestant Christmas service, open to the entire campus, will be held at 4:15 today in the Colonial room of the Chapel.

The service, centered around the Christmas story according to Luke will include carols and hymns. It is planned by the Protestant council, chaired by Edward Snyder and Anne Forrest.

Rev. W. Wesley Konrad will participate with three students assisting. They are Edwin Potter, Carolyn Ober and Arthur Kinney.

Musical selection will be provided by Glen Smail and the Inter-varsity quartet will sing a hymn.

Planning the service for the council are Betsy Fairchild and Barbara Breck. Arsine Schmavonian, Father Konrad and Marilyn Pfleuger are the staff advisors.

The service will be interdenominational in character and is open to any students wishing to attend.

CHOIR ON WSYR

Tape-recorded Christmas selections by the Hendricks Chapel choir are currently being played at 6 and 9 a.m. as "Hymns of the Day" on radio station WSYR.

Work Measuring Convo Scheduled

The Work Measurement conference goes into its third annual convention Monday and Tuesday at the Hotel Syracuse.

The conference, jointly sponsored by the central New York Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management, the Syracuse Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineering, and the Industrial Engineering department of Syracuse university. The conference has as its theme this year, "Fundamental Motion Time Values."

The purpose of the meetings are to evaluate fundamental motion-time values as a technique of methods analyses, an aid in training both machine operators and methods analysts, and a means of establishing preproduction standards for use in estimating and scheduling.

U of Pa. Players To Present Comedy

The Mask and Wig club of the University of Pennsylvania will present a musical comedy, "The Golden Fleece," at 8:15 p.m. today at the RKO Keith's theater.

An all-male cast of 75 will present the musical as part of their 66th annual concert tour. With more emphasis placed on the music than the plot, the final touches were added by professionals.

The story is laid on San Fransico during the "Gay Nineties" and tells the meeting of the Barbary Coast and Nob Hill.

PHI BETA KAPPA

The Kappa chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at Syracuse university will meet at 3 p.m., Sunday in the Maxwell founder's room. There will be a brief meeting followed by the initiation of candidates and a tea in their honor.

Weighty Potatoes Proved Superior By Cornell Tests

If your potatoes have high specific gravity readings, they're bound to taste good—boiled, fried, baked or mashed.

A neighboring institution—Cornell—has been testing potatoes at the university, far above Cayuga's waters. They have concluded that potatoes can be tested and the ones that pass the rigid physical can be guaranteed.

THE PROJECT has culminated in a three-week reaction test here in Syracuse. Eleven Syracuse stores are participating. The question: would housewives pay a few cents extra for guaranteed potatoes?

Dr. Ora Smith of Cornell, spent 10 years dunking potatoes in salt solutions. Those which sink are headed for the ovens. They have heavy specific gravities and are ideal baking potatoes. Those that remain floating calmly along on the surface are good for frying, boiling and for scalloped potatoes.

To judge the Syracusans' reactions to tested spuds idea, Prof. M. P. Rasmussen is coming to Syracuse from Cornell to see what the housewives think.

An investment of $7,500 is back of the project. The money was spent for equipment to sort, wash, dry and pack the potatoes. A specific gravity machine built at Cornell is also in operation there.

THE TEST potatoes come from a Waterville potato farm.

Prof. Rasmussen claims that earlier tests have indicated that the customers like their new potatoes as much as the potatoes like their salt baths.

Mitten Tree Begun By Young Friends

Young Friends fellowship has started a mitten tree to collect winter clothing for the needy children of Europe.

The tree will be in the Chapel lounge all this week. Students are asked to contribute wool mittens, scarves, socks and caps to be hung on the tree.

Popular Disc Show Celebrates Birthday

Titled "Your Saturday Matinee," the hour show features the smooth mood music of artists including George Shearing, Percy Faith, Hugo Winterhalter, Eddie Fisher, Frank Chacksfield, and Montovanni.

Aired from 4-5 p.m., the show reserves a 15 minute feature spot each Saturday for an artist or group of artists. Tomorrow's feature spot will be taken over by Montovani and Cole. Theme of "Your Saturday Matinee" is "That's All" done by Aqua Viva.

Martindale, a radio and TV major, has been a newscaster and sports announcer in addition to running his own show. He has announced all the high school football games in Syracuse this year.

The sophomore attended a radio-TV school in his hometown, Buffalo.

Stevens Awards ROTC Medals

Corps members receiving the award were: John F. Holzwarth, John F. Riley, George S. Kepner, Donald M. Rorke, Harold D. Ratcliffe, Jr., Peter B. Seevers and James A. Buffington.

Distinguished military students are appointed from ROTC students who have competed the first year of the advanced course with the concurrence of the chancellor.

To be eligible for this award, the student must achieve high grades in military subjects, possess outstanding leadership qualities, high moral character and a definite aptitude for military service.

Candidates must stand in the upper half of their class and demonstrate leadership abilities by participation in campus activities.

Only those cadets receiving the award are eligible for regular army commissions. However, winning the medal does not oblige the cadet to do this.

Choir Will Carol To Local Shut-ins

The Hendricks Chapel choir will visit five hospitals in the university area to sing Christmas carols next Thursday evening.

The 100 choir members who will be carolling will be acting in accordance with a ten-year-old tradition, of bringing Christmas cheer to the shut-ins.

Students will visit Crouse-Irving, Good Shephard and Memorial hospitals, and the infirmary on Waverly ave. This year for the first time the Veterans Administration hospital will be visited.

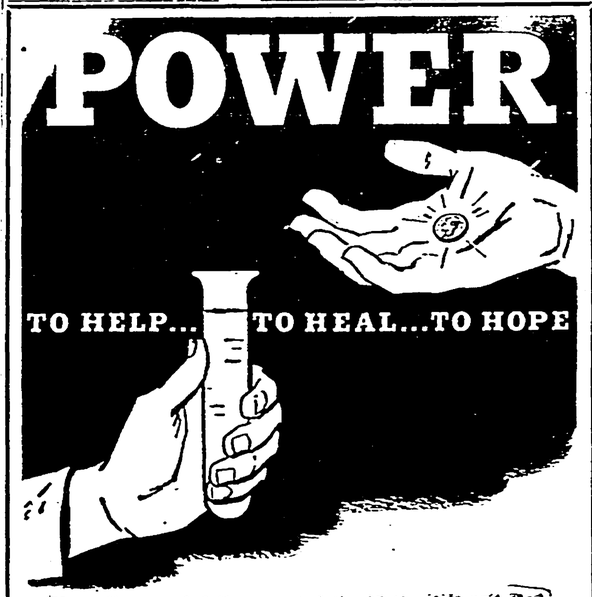
POWER



Your dimes and dollars created the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—you make up its army of 80 million supporters and two million volunteers.

In 16 years, a powerful force for good has grown from a mere handful of men and women. Its power is yours.

The National Foundation has created the most extensive voluntary research program ever leveled at a single disease. It sustains a program of patient aid in which no polio victim goes without the best available care for lack of funds. It trains thousands of hospital and health workers.

And it will take more in '54 to keep this program rolling—because victory looms over the horizon. Show your faith in the organization you have made—

Are you in the ON?

'Allo seniors. Been mugged lately? We mean in the photog sense, of course.

This impression has been hammered in by the fact that 600 out of 1305 prospective graduating seniors have had their pictures taken for the yearbook.

In percentages this is 46%. In percentages this is somewhat disheartening. Well, the time for remedying this situation is running short. Next Friday, Dec. 18, is the LAST day for this sort of thing.

There maybe those blank individuals, of course, who will appear as much in the centennial-class ON. There are also those just plain forgetful ones who will join those ranks.

However, the success of this operation has a second phase. Of those who HAD their picture taken, the returns are also meager. One hundred out of 600 have returned the proofs. In percentages this is 16.6%. In percentages this is mighty disheartening.

There has been much whooping and hollering in recent years about ON's coming out decades after its supposed year of publication. Quips are made about unpublished ON's being willed to next of kin in old age.

Well, one of the causes for this sort of thing is the lack of positive action on the part of seniors to get their faces scrubbed for the photographer.

Such a problem getting pictures . . . when such an easy remedy for it lies in the hands of those who would do most of the whooping and hollering for an ON in the spring.

Search out that "birdie" and flash him a smile. Time on exposure is running out.

Weekend culture

There have always been groups on campus which have deplored the so-called lack of a cultural diet in the Hill. They have spent hours concerned with the fact that all Syracusans are not able to devote more time to this necessity of life.

These people base their statements on two factors: one, that cultural offerings are not readily available to all; and two, that even if they were, today's student would lack the initiative to pull himself away from his bridge hand to attend.

This weekend, Syracuse university is fortunate in being able to dispose of the first problem as it sponsors the model Security Council sessions.

Open to the general public, these meetings will provide a stimulus for political thinking as representatives of 11 colleges enact typical meetings of the United Nations group.

The highlight of the weekend will be tonight's talk by Associated Press reporter Francis Carpenter, a man who has covered the UN since its inception in 1946. His topic will be "Behind the Scenes in the Security Council."

A reporter who has been with the international organization for more than seven years will be able to interpret much of the inside politics, agreements and compromises which must take place outside of the conference room.

A further education in diplomacy is promised by the open sessions. The conflict between Israel and the Arab block will be discussed at the first meeting while atrocity charges will head Saturday's schedule.

We welcome this opportunity to gain more insight into the workings of such a prominent body and hope that the second factor of the non-cultural diet, student disinterest, will be proven a myth.

Music Piping Hot, Mon

A skirl of pipes and a "Hoot, mon" or two, and we have Emery Forth, veteran bagpipe major of Syracuse and vicinity, who is currently undertaking the training of Hill students in the intricacies of the pipes.

By HOWARD VANKIRK

"Laddies and lassies, if y'd like to learrrn the playin' o' the Heeland Bagpipe all ye need do is turrn oop at 101 HL o' a brrae brrich Wednesday nicht, at 8 o'clock, and Misterrr Forrth will be morre than pleased to instrrruct ye in the intrrracacies o' the instrrrument."

One day early this fall Susan Atwood, LA sophomore, was wandering around Thornden when she heard the skirl of a bagpipe. She'd always been interested in the pipes, so she decided to investigate. She discovered Emery Forth, a veteran pipe major, who was piping away at a great rate.

The upshot of the ensuing conversation was that Forth, who is an ophthelmic optician by profession, would be glad to donate an evening a week to teaching anybody on the Hill who might be interested in learning to play the pipes.

The lessons have been going on since some time in October, with four steady pupils. They are Miss Atwood, Earnest Frank, Barry Colassard and Thomas Luche. The three gentlemen are Forestry juniors.

The equipment necessary to begin learning the pipes are a practice chanter and an instruction book. The chanter looks and is operated somewhat like a German flute. Forth says that a conscientious learner, who will practice one-half hour a day on the chanter will be able to play a piece in three months' time. After this initial training period, tunes come easier to the beginner.

Forth says that a popular contention that a person has to grow up with the pipes to be able to play them properly is not true. He didn't begin until he was 20, and during his piping career he has belonged to the Clan Douglas, serving as their official piper for a number of years.

A word about the bagpipe itself. It consists of four basic elements, the mouthpiece, the bag, the chanter and the drones. The mouthpiece is used to fill the bag with air. The bag, usually of elk hide and covered with the clan tartan, is a resorvoir of air that is usually carried under the right arm of the player and squeezed to force the air through the chanter and the drones.

The chanter is the keyboard of the pipe. It is with this that the player plays his tunes. The drones are three ebony pipes, two tenor and one bass, which give the pipes their underlying tones.

The scale of the chanter is nonchromatic, no sharps and flats, and all Highland pipes are in the key of G. They are all of one volume, and can get pretty noisy when a group of them assemble and cut loose.

There is a certain amount of controversy concerning the history of the bagpipe and its introduction to Scotland. One theory has it that the pipes were introduced by the Norse sailors. Another states that the Romans brought them when they invaded the British Isles during Caesar's time and left them when they went home.

The Irish insist that they invented the pipes as their national instrument, but when they realized that the Scotch were bigger windbags than the Irish, an Irish ship gathered all the pipes up and took them as a gift to Scotland. Being of mongrel Dutch ancestry, we won't take sides in the controversy.

The pipes became a court instrument in Scotland in the 13th century and have been identified with the Scots since. The best known is the Great Higland Bagpipe, though a smaller pipe is found among the lowland Scots. Despite the Irish contention that they shipped all their pipes to Scotland, there is an Irish pipe today. It is smaller and softer in tone than the Great Highland pipe. The Italians also have a form of pipe which they call the Cornamusa.

Ancient Rome definitely had a bagpipe. It was called the Tibius utriculoris, and was a favorite of Nero. Can it be that Nero bagpiped while Rome burned?

Checking Spooning

The time honored art of "spooning" as our ancestry called it, is receiving legislative notice at the University of Houston. The dormitory council there recently issued the following regulations:

"1. Area outside of "D" and "E" for goodnight kisses only.

"2. Cullen boulevard, side of "D" dorm recommended.

"3. Cars in dorm parking lot only if we can see your heads showing over the car seat.

"All other areas are taboo. Don't go about wrecking the necking by using the taboo areas."

The suggestion here is that someone keep their eyes on the "we" doing the checking.

Game Ahead for MSG

By ED HARDY

After a rather belated start the men's student government assembly has finally started to move along.

Only one thing has come out of panel so far though, and even that was torn to pieces once it hit the floor so as to destroy the original idea behind it. The bill was designed to set up a special committee to investigate causes of student apathy and recommend a program for alleviation of this growing condition.

The six-panel assembly was reduced to four panels this year to increase efficiency. A total of four bills and 11 investigations are currently in the panels.

They are the following:

Conduct and welfare: student apathy, reserved seating, advisory council and pre-registration.

Ways and means: Abrogation bill, Women's building student facilities, student activities' budget bill.

Athletic and public relations: minor sports, intramural insurance, full health insurance.

Rules and elections: United World Federalists constitution, National Students association, permanent joint student court, campus political parties bill and licensing of campus organizations bill.

Some of these investigations may sound a bit strange to many readers, but many of them will emerge from student government in the form of direct action which will benefit all students.

Most of them, however, have come out of the executive and administrative levels of men's student government—not from the legislative level, which is supposed to reflect the opinions of the male student body.

Practically all of the bills and investigations, too, are "left-overs"—remnants of last year or changes in attempted programs.

We might suggest that members of the assembly get out and talk to their constituents to find out what they'd like to see brought up in the assembly. And then the 27 legislators will be able to make a fuller contribution to the student body which they represent.

LETTERARY COMMENT

CROUSE & A CROWDED COLUMNIST

Pleasure

December 9, 1953

Dear Editor,

May I pat you on the back for the good job you did on Ernst Bacon's recital. As a result of your publicity, Crouse, for once, was filled, and I heard many students say this was their first time to attend—that they knew nothing of our concerts—so a large "Thank You"—for music in general.

As you know, about five of us here have national and international reputations. We do these Crouse concerts as a cultural contribution for the enlightenment and pleasure of the students—and it is a joy when we can look about and see the place full.

Thanks again,

Sincerely,
Harvey Smith-Spencer

Mislead?

To the Editor:

Many of us have been misled. We believed Mr. Herz was writing a humor column. He seems to be writing editorials. We must answer him appropriately, of course, always aware that we may be falling victim to a wit much subtler than our own.

We agree with much that he has said, that is, if we have correctly interpreted the misplaced paragraphs. The trouble is that he has said too much which no one could disagree with, too much which means nothing. "We must have the courage to stand for what we believe" is a fine statement, but ineffectual, unless we say WHAT we believe. Are you for or against McCarthyism, countryman H.? Say something, please say something.

Secondly we submit that the major problem today is not fear of other people's fear. It is fear BECAUSE of other people's fear. There is a great difference. Our concern should not be that the emotion of another does not harm us. For if we are self-reliant we can resist it. We need only take care we do not catch the same disease.

Speaking of diseases, there seems to be one prevalent today among typewriter prophets, called "other-fellow-itis." Our hero shows many of the symptoms. He emotionally attacks emotion and illogically attacks the lack of logic. He attacks delusions of understanding in others while implying that HE knows they do not understand.

We say this only by way of friendly counsel, realizing that evils cannot be remedied by indulging in them.

Electricity and Sauter

By DICK CASE
Editorial-Page Writer

To say that there was electricity on the stage of the Nottingham auditorium last night is a mild sort of understatement.

There was, in fact, a live wire stretched across the broad expanse and the high voltage sounds of Sauter-Finegan danced merrily across for some two hours.

The large, unorthodox Victor recording band presented a concert of amazingly acute proportions under the auspices of Famous Artists. A small but warm audience filled the beautiful new eastside auditorium and compensated for its sparceness with genuine admiration.

The orchestra sported only one of its two chiefs due to the absence of Bill Finegan who was called to California on a personal matter. Shy, witty Eddie Sauter conducted and footnoted capably.

This Sauter-Finegan orchestra strives for the reverence of sound. Utilizing every trick and instru the place with a country acre of musical hiccups. The band was alternately delicate and brassy, swinging and sweet. The arrangements overflowed. Humor prevailed.

The evening was touched off by the well-known S-F "Doodletown Fifers" which was followed by a tasty version of "Rain," "Honey Jump," an up-beat piece, highlighted the band's great swinging potential; replete with kazoos.

It is unnecessary to say that those who ventured to Nottingham last night were thoroughly entertained and that those who were elsewhere missed a heap of living.

We are confused at this point as to just exactly what the community wants.

A few weeks ago, the Astor Theater closed because of lack of support from the paying customers. Or, more accurately, because of lack of paying customers. The Midtown Theater is running toward the edge of nonexistence for the same reason.

All right, people say, culture doesn't go over in this town. Give them pops and they'll come. A nice comforting dream to wrap sagging box office receipts in, but it just ain't so.

The William Nottingham Auditorium seats 1200 people, and it was little more than half full last night. More than half the center section was empty. And the feature attraction was the band which has gotten more publicity since the sudden fame of Billy May a couple of years back.

We're not sure whether it was the location of the auditorium or the general disinterest in the community which caused the difficulty. We hope we're wrong in our opinion.

Kit Carsons Now Practice At University Rifle Range

By GEORGE MEEK

Shooting tin cans off fences is a thing of the past for about 35 Syracuse marksmen, who now make use of the fully equipped rifle range under the Men's gym.

The range is open from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for the use of Army and Air Force ROTC cadets, and members of the university rifle team. Master Sgt. Ollie B. Atchison of the Army ROTC corps supervises range activity.

THE HAVEN for Kit Carsons may be reached by entering the main door of the Men's gym, going down the stairway to the right, and continuing down the hallway.

The regulation 50-foot range is soundproofed, to prevent complaints from other university athletic departments. Space is provided for four targets, but as a general rule, only three students fire at a time because of the narrowness of the room. The targets are sent to the far end of the range and returned by a pulley system, which is operated from behind the firing line.

An observer can call out the results of each shot from a desk with mounted binoculars.

Fifteen rifles are maintained for the use of the various teams. All of them are the Springfield .22 type. There is no need for persons to be in front of the firing line at any time, and this has been a great factor in maintaining range safety. There have been no accidents in the two years that the range has been in operation.

THE GOVERNMENT supplies ammunition for the Air Force and Army rifle teams, but university students not in the military program have to supply their own ammunition. This has discouraged many men for competing for berths on the university team. The army team alone uses about 2,000 rounds of ammunition a week.

An agreement is pending whereby the university will supply ammunition for non-ROTC students. If this goes through, many more marksmen may be attracted to the range.

The Army and Air Force teams will be trimmed to 15 men on each team, because only 10 can compete in a meet. Those men who do not make the regular teams will continue to fire, and if they sufficiently improve, they may steal positions away from the team members.

The Army ROTC team will compete for the William Randolph Hearst trophy today. Five cadets will fire in the meet, which was won by Syracuse in 1947.

FRESHMAN CADETS, though not on the rifle team, are visiting the range during their regular class periods this week. In addition to the actual firing they are working on sighting, aiming positions, and use of the strap.

The university team will be composed of the best men from the military teams, as well as other proficient students. Some coeds have expressed an interest in the team, but most of them have lacked the ammunition to begin firing. Of the girls he has seen, Sgt. Atchison says that some have real potentialities.

The rifle team is an official Syracuse sport, and letters will be awarded team members. No schedule for the team has been drawn up yet because of the problem of lack of ammunition.

Benches are provided just inside the entrance to the range room for the convenience of those waiting to shoot, and according to Sgt. Atchison, the benches are usually full because the range is taking about as many marksmen as it can. He points out that this should not discourage university students with their own ammunition from coming down, because the hours that the range is open can be extended if necessary.

If you like to shoot, why not drop down to the range and start firing—you may be good enough for a place on the rifle team!

MASTER SERGEANT OLLIE B. ATCHISON gives some coaching hints to an ROTC cadet regarding his firing position. The ROTC rifle teams practice daily on the range under the Men's gym.

Winners Announced In Oratory Contest

Juris Draguns, a Utica college psychology major, and Donald Megnin, a senior in liberal arts at Syracuse, took double honors last night in the 39th annual White oratorical contest in Maxwell.

Marilyn Mawson, a senior in the school of speech, and Rudolph Johanns, a senior enrolled in economics, were awarded second and third places, respectively.

SPEAKING ON "International Mediators," Draguns asserted that people are similar throughout the world. "There is altogether too much emphasis on the difference of people," he said.

Citing the many foreign students on various campuses, Draguns declared that these students report to their countries all the good in the United States, which far outweighs the evil.

Donald Megnin, speaking on the feeling of insignificance, told each individual to ask himself these questions: "Do I give myself enough credit?" Do I realize that what I do with my life helps to determine what happens in the rest of the world?"

We should not minimize our own lives, Megnin suggested. "It is the significance of the little people like you and me who rule the world."

JUDGES FOR the contest were Dr. J. Calvin Callaghan, chairman of the department of Public Address of the School of Speech and Dramatic Art at Syracuse university; Dr. J. Edward McEvoy, department of Public Address at Syracuse; and George Miller, department of speech at Utica college.

Dr. Eric H. Faigle, dean of the School of Speech and Dramatic Art, was chairman of the event. Pledges of Zeta Phi Eta, professional speech sorority, ushered.

These is the first time in seven years that co-winners have been announced in the contest. The prize was established in 1916 by Horace and Ernest Ingersol White "as a tribute of affection and gratitude to the memory of their father, Horace Keep White."

Christmas Tree . . .

picking up other groups along the way.

Robert Roberts, co-chairman of the choir, will plan the route the singers will take.

The University tree was erected near Sims dining hall in past years, but due to the construction of the quad it will be more centrally located in front of the Chapel this year. The lighting ceremonies, previously scheduled for tonight, wil lbe held Sunday in order to coordinate campus Christmas activities.

Hill Reps Attend Regional Meeting On College Unions

Three representatives from Syracuse attended the annual regional conference of the association of college unions last weekend at Brubacher hall at the New York State college for Teachers in Albany.

The official representatives included Miss Margaret Parker, social director of the Union; Mary Anne Dalton, president of women's student government; and Stanley Leff, president of men's student government. James Carr, president of last years' Student Union, also attended.

The representatives met with representatives from Student Unions in New York state and near-by Canadian provinces to discuss problems which were similar to the colleges.

Although Syracuse has no Student Union, the group has many problems in common with other colleges which do have them.

The Syracuse delegation attended mainly, however, to get ideas on how to build a program of general campus activities into the Women's building program.

So far the facilities in the Women's building have had to be scheduled in advance in order that organizations might use them. However, the delegation discussed with the other Unions the possibilities of building a program for general utilization of the campus Many of the functions it would take up were included in the Student Union last year.

Five Finalists Picked In ON Queen Rivalry

Five finalists for the ON Queen contest were selected last night in the Hall of Languages by a board of four judges.

The girls, whose pictures will be sent to TV and recording star Eddie Fisher for final selection as ON queen are Gloria Schren, Iota Alpha Pi; Ellen Reece, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Barbara Goldman, Alpha Epsilon Phi; Gwen Mann, Delta Gamma; and Barbara Feidelman, Sigma Delta Tau.

THE FINALISTS will be photographed by Meg Hale studios. The pictures will be sent to the young singer for final selection and returned by mail to the contest committee with the final selection of the 1954 ON queen.

The judges for last night's contest were Thomas Beckett, editor of the Onondagan; Mrs. Murray Bernthal, fashion commentator; Miss Faith Hoffman, Flah's advertising department; and Charles Bernhardt, advisor to the Onondagan.

Harold Steinburg was master of ceremonies for the contest in which 58 girls competed for the 1954 title. The coeds wore sweaters and skirts for the finalist competition.

The prizes to be awarded to the winner include an album from Olmsted's, a hairset by Fred the Hairstylist, and a pass to RKO Keith's.

Choosing of an ON queen has become an annual event on the Syracuse campus. The Queen for the 1953 Onondagan was selected by Perry Como, radio and TV singing star.

Protestant Service Planned by Council

Program to Feature Christmas Story

A Protestant Christmas service, open to the entire campus, will be held at 4:15 today in the Colonial room of the Chapel.

The service, centered around the Christmas story according to Luke will include carols and hymns. It is planned by the Protestant council, chaired by Edward Snyder and Anne Forrest.

Rev. W. Wesley Konrad will participate with three students assisting. They are Edwin Potter, Carolyn Ober and Arthur Kinney.

Musical selection will be provided by Glen Smail and the Inter-varsity quartet will sing a hymn.

Planning the service for the council are Betsy Fairchild and Barbara Breck. Arsine Schmavonian, Father Konrad and Marilyn Pfleuger are the staff advisors.

The service will be interdenominational in character and is open to any students wishing to attend.

CHOIR ON WSYR

Tape-recorded Christmas selections by the Hendricks Chapel choir are currently being played at 6 and 9 a.m. as "Hymns of the Day" on radio station WSYR.

Work Measuring Convo Scheduled

The Work Measurement conference goes into its third annual convention Monday and Tuesday at the Hotel Syracuse.

The conference, jointly sponsored by the central New York Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management, the Syracuse Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineering, and the Industrial Engineering department of Syracuse university. The conference has as its theme this year, "Fundamental Motion Time Values."

The purpose of the meetings are to evaluate fundamental motion-time values as a technique of methods analyses, an aid in training both machine operators and methods analysts, and a means of establishing preproduction standards for use in estimating and scheduling.

U of Pa. Players To Present Comedy

The Mask and Wig club of the University of Pennsylvania will present a musical comedy, "The Golden Fleece," at 8:15 p.m. today at the RKO Keith's theater.

An all-male cast of 75 will present the musical as part of their 66th annual concert tour. With more emphasis placed on the music than the plot, the final touches were added by professionals.

The story is laid on San Fransico during the "Gay Nineties" and tells the meeting of the Barbary Coast and Nob Hill.

PHI BETA KAPPA

The Kappa chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at Syracuse university will meet at 3 p.m., Sunday in the Maxwell founder's room. There will be a brief meeting followed by the initiation of candidates and a tea in their honor.

Weighty Potatoes Proved Superior By Cornell Tests

If your potatoes have high specific gravity readings, they're bound to taste good—boiled, fried, baked or mashed.

A neighboring institution—Cornell—has been testing potatoes at the university, far above Cayuga's waters. They have concluded that potatoes can be tested and the ones that pass the rigid physical can be guaranteed.

THE PROJECT has culminated in a three-week reaction test here in Syracuse. Eleven Syracuse stores are participating. The question: would housewives pay a few cents extra for guaranteed potatoes?

Dr. Ora Smith of Cornell, spent 10 years dunking potatoes in salt solutions. Those which sink are headed for the ovens. They have heavy specific gravities and are ideal baking potatoes. Those that remain floating calmly along on the surface are good for frying, boiling and for scalloped potatoes.

To judge the Syracusans' reactions to tested spuds idea, Prof. M. P. Rasmussen is coming to Syracuse from Cornell to see what the housewives think.

An investment of $7,500 is back of the project. The money was spent for equipment to sort, wash, dry and pack the potatoes. A specific gravity machine built at Cornell is also in operation there.

THE TEST potatoes come from a Waterville potato farm.

Prof. Rasmussen claims that earlier tests have indicated that the customers like their new potatoes as much as the potatoes like their salt baths.

Mitten Tree Begun By Young Friends

Young Friends fellowship has started a mitten tree to collect winter clothing for the needy children of Europe.

The tree will be in the Chapel lounge all this week. Students are asked to contribute wool mittens, scarves, socks and caps to be hung on the tree.

Popular Disc Show Celebrates Birthday

Titled "Your Saturday Matinee," the hour show features the smooth mood music of artists including George Shearing, Percy Faith, Hugo Winterhalter, Eddie Fisher, Frank Chacksfield, and Montovanni.

Aired from 4-5 p.m., the show reserves a 15 minute feature spot each Saturday for an artist or group of artists. Tomorrow's feature spot will be taken over by Montovani and Cole. Theme of "Your Saturday Matinee" is "That's All" done by Aqua Viva.

Martindale, a radio and TV major, has been a newscaster and sports announcer in addition to running his own show. He has announced all the high school football games in Syracuse this year.

The sophomore attended a radio-TV school in his hometown, Buffalo.

Stevens Awards ROTC Medals

Corps members receiving the award were: John F. Holzwarth, John F. Riley, George S. Kepner, Donald M. Rorke, Harold D. Ratcliffe, Jr., Peter B. Seevers and James A. Buffington.

Distinguished military students are appointed from ROTC students who have competed the first year of the advanced course with the concurrence of the chancellor.

To be eligible for this award, the student must achieve high grades in military subjects, possess outstanding leadership qualities, high moral character and a definite aptitude for military service.

Candidates must stand in the upper half of their class and demonstrate leadership abilities by participation in campus activities.

Only those cadets receiving the award are eligible for regular army commissions. However, winning the medal does not oblige the cadet to do this.

Choir Will Carol To Local Shut-ins

The Hendricks Chapel choir will visit five hospitals in the university area to sing Christmas carols next Thursday evening.

The 100 choir members who will be carolling will be acting in accordance with a ten-year-old tradition, of bringing Christmas cheer to the shut-ins.

Students will visit Crouse-Irving, Good Shephard and Memorial hospitals, and the infirmary on Waverly ave. This year for the first time the Veterans Administration hospital will be visited.

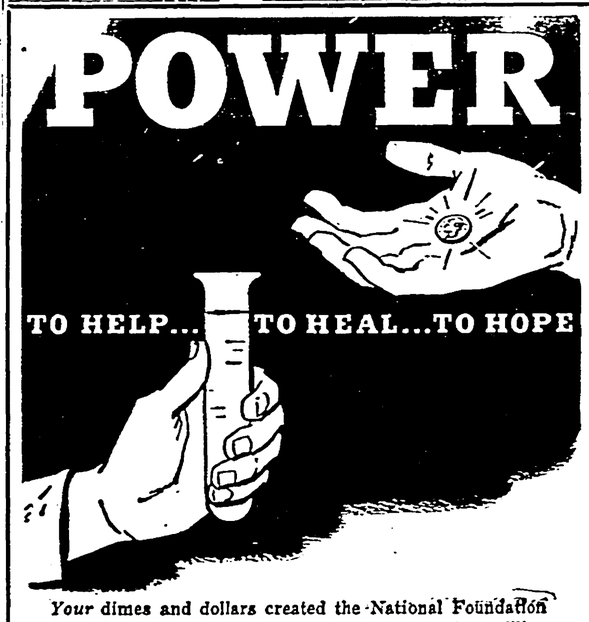
POWER



Your dimes and dollars created the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—you make up its army of 80 million supporters and two million volunteers.

In 16 years, a powerful force for good has grown from a mere handful of men and women. Its power is yours.

The National Foundation has created the most extensive voluntary research program ever leveled at a single disease. It sustains a program of patient aid in which no polio victim goes without the best available care for lack of funds. It trains thousands of hospital and health workers.

The greatest swimming extravaganza since the Aquashow, Niagara District's AAU championship meet, splashes off at 3 p.m. for what should be a thrill-packed, six-hour show.

It's appropriate that the title mentions the name of Niagara for it was the Purple Eagles who took six out of nine possible firsts last year. Double winner Ed Kinecke, blue-ribbon winner in both the 50 and 100-yard freestyle, is back to defend his titles.

He'll probably get much of his competition from Larry Zangerle, formerly of the University of Buffalo, swimming tomorrow unattached. These two are just a sample of the star-studded cast which has been lined up.

An interesting sidelight is that neither Syracuse, Colgate or Cornell participants will be swimming under their college colors. The reason is that although the AAU sanctions freshmen competing against upperclassmen, the NCAA does not.

Since all three schools are swimming first year men it will be the Syracuse Swimming club, Colgate Dolphins and Ithaca Swimming club competing just to keep it nice and legal.

Congratulations are in order to Ted Webster and the rest of the Orange athletic department for the time and effort spent in making sure that the spectacle runs smoothly. It's not the easiest task in the world setting up provisions for 70 men.

A tip to the fans: take in the afternoon prelims (which are free of charge) as well as the night-time finals. The pre-final heats figure to provide some of the meet's most spine-tingling races.

The big one's down in the Garden tomorrow night and it will be this game more than any other which should establish whether or not Marc Guley's scrappers are going anywhere this season.

Last year's New York trip was disastrous for Guley's Guys. They dropped a heart-breaker to St. John's in overtime after having beaten Rochester a few nights before. Three straight were lost after that before the Orange could win again.

This year's Syracuse team has more hustle, but judging from the Sampson battle, sophomore nervousness is still evident. Marc Guley's biggest battle may be combatting a New York city disease known as "Garden Jitters."

The advantage of this team, however, is that it is improving with every game. With usually two sophs on the floor at all times, Guley's youngsters rapidly are gaining in experience—enough possibly to upend a veteran NYU quintet.

NYU reportedly didn't look too impressive in its opening wins over two "breathers." The trouble is Violet Coach Howard Cann always manages to scrape up a better-than-fair ball club. 'Nuff said.

Orange Travel to New York to Face NYU In Madison Square Garden Engagement

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's unbeaten cagers pay their annual visit to Madison Square Garden tomorrow to battle New York university in the nightcap of a collegiate doubleheader. Siena and Iona clash in the opener.

The Violets of Howard Cann were established as three-point favorites early this week but that margin will likely be reduced by game-time following Syracuse's fine showing against Sampson Wednesday.

ORANGE COACH Marc Guley will probably go with the same lineup that turned back Sampson, 90-80, unless injured pivotman Ronnie Kilpatrick returns to the opening array.

Capt. Mel Besdin will start at one of the forwards with Dave Kline at center and Jack Larned and Gus Castellini in the backcourt. If Kilpatrick is not ready for full-time service, one of the soph brigade, Lou Cegala, Manny Breland, Walt Scott and Ron Gillespie, will probably draw the fifth spot.

NYU, winner of two straight, will be meeting its first major opponent of the season. The Violets defeated New York Maritime academy, 78-59, and American university, 83-68, in warm-ups for their initial Garden appearance.

Big man in the New Yorkers' offense is 6 ft.-6 Boris Nachamkin. The 210-pound Brooklynite scored 437 points last year for an NYU single-season record, leaving him just 357 points shy of Sid Tanenbaum's university career mark set four seasons ago. His 21.8 average also placed him high among the nation's leaders.

COACH CANN, in his 31st season on University Heights, recently opined that Nachamkin possesses more ability than did Dolph Schayes, star of the professional Syracuse Nationals, while at NYU.

Capt. Ted Elsberg, 6 ft.-1 forward, provides a big share of the Violet rebounding strength and is also a good scorer from the pivot. The other frontcourt operative is Joe Scarpinato, a 6 ft.-2 junior. Both are products of Brooklyn's Erasmus high.

One of the finest outside shots in the East, Hal Weitz has just about established permanent claim to a guard slot. The 6 ft. set shot artist, also from Erasmus, has shown improvement as a driver, making him even more dangerous.

The other guard will probably be Dom DeBonis, a 5 ft.-11 junior and brother of former NYU star, Joe DeBonis. Herb Bernstein, who played freshman ball at Southern Methodist two years ago, is another possible backcourt starter.

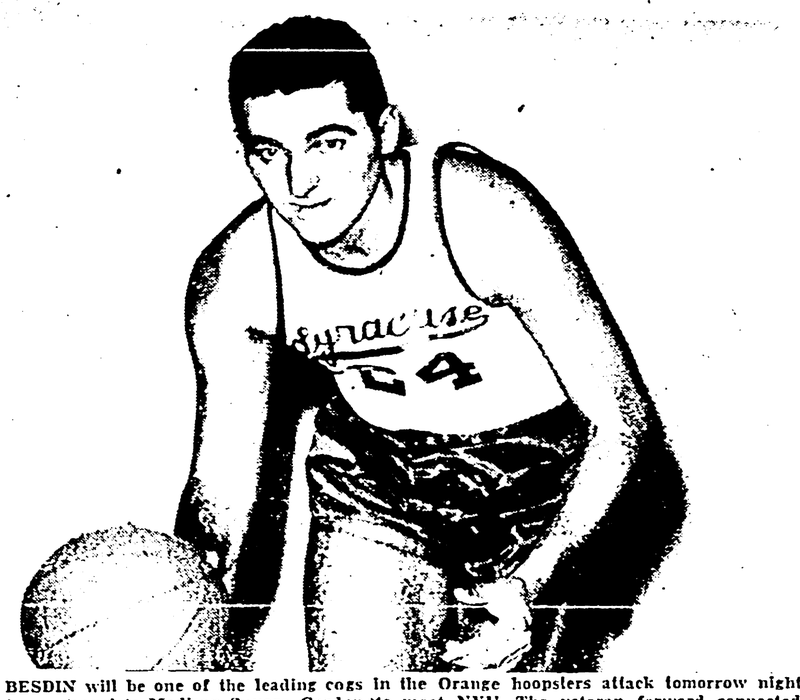
TOP VIOLET reserves are sophs Irwin Lowenthal, and Ed Kramer. Both are 6 ft.-3 and good rebounders but lack experience.

Cann stated earlier in the year that he might abandon the fast-break style of attack he has used for many seasons due to the inexperience of his present squad. The Violets gave no indication of this in their two victories, however, and a racehorse contest appears in store for Garden patrons tomorrow.

NYU leads the series with Syracuse, nine games to seven, including a 95-78 victory two seasons ago. The Orange dropped a 97-84 overtime decision to St. John's last year in its yearly visit to the Gotham palace.

Tomorrow's probable starting lineups:

SYRACUSE		NYU
Kilpatrick	F	Scarpinato
Besdin	F	Elsberg
Kline	C	Nachamkin
Larned	G	Weitz
Castellini	G	DeBonis



CAPT. MEL BESDIN will be one of the leading cogs in the Orange hoopsters attack tomorrow night when the Pietymen travel to Madison Square Garden to meet NYU. The veteran forward connected for 18 points Wednesday night as Coach Marc Guley's quintet romped to their third straight victory, 90-80 over Sampson.

Tall '57 Hoopster Typifies Frosh Squad's Background

By HANK GREENWALD

Opposing big men may find it surprising to see Vinnie Cohen's face glaring at them from the opposite side of the basket, almost near the top of the rim. It is not unusual for the Brooklyn native to reach these heights when in the process of snaring a rebound.

Captain of the Boy's high school basketball team last season, Cohen led his squad to the city championship. The Boy's high quint compiled a 19-1 record en route to the crown.

COHEN'S ABILITIES are numerous. In addition to his jumping talents, Vinnie possesses a sharp eye, a potent jump shot and a huge stride which enables him to outdrive enemy defenders.

Although measuring only 6 ft. 1 in., not too tall as rebounders go, Cohen can easily outjump anyone on the freshman team. The 17-year-old Brooklynite attributes his jumping feats to a drill often used at his high school.

A piece of rope was twirled around at a rapid pace. The players would jump over the rope and each time it came around the rope rose higher and higher off the ground. This in turn would force the players to jump higher or get hit by the rope.

While at Boy's high in his junior year, Cohen performed with Hugo Green, then captain of the squad and now starring with the nationally ranked Duquense outfit. Vinnie claims he learned a great deal playing with Green and also benefited from the teachings of his former coach Mickey Fisher.

AS IS the case with most college freshmen, Cohen has found ketball to the college caliber a gigantic one. The boy from Dodgerthe change from high school bastown feels he has improved as a ballplayer and gives much of the credit for his improvement to freshman coach Andy Mogish. "Mr. Mogish has taught me things about basketball I never knew existed," stated Cohen in an interview.

Vinnie has gained valuable experience the past two summers playing ball at Kutscher's country club in the Catskill mountains. Here he played with such talented performers as Green, Frank Reddout, former Orange great, Jim Tucker, Duquesne's all-American, Ray Felix, Baltimore Bullet's cager, Junius Kellogg, ex-Manhattan star and Henry Booker, formerly of New York university.

Not getting his fill of basketball during the week, the high-jumping freshman journeyed to New York City's Riis Beach to play some more. At the beach, Cohen came in contact with other cage stars, among whom were Walt Dukes, Ed Warner and Charlie Hoxie.

Army, Yale Games Set for Television

Hill students, though home for the Christmas vacation, can still see the Orange basketball team in action. ABC-TV announced today that it will air collegiate hoop contests this winter and two of the games carried will involve Pietycagaers.

The Syracuse-Yale game on December 19 will be the second in the series of 14 contests the network plans to air. The Eli five will invade Archbold gymnasium for an afternoon tilt beginning at 2:30.

Also scheduled for telecasting is the Syracuse-Army game on February 6. Coach Mark Guley's five will journey to West Point to play the Kaydets that afternoon.

Impressive Scores Highlight Bowling

Betas Score 2,221 In Win Over Dekes

By EV MURCH

Big news in intramural bowling last night was the unusually high score run up by Beta Theta Pi in their 7-2 win over Delta Kappa Epsilon. Their 2,221 was one of the highest team totals of the year.

Let by Dick Heydet's 482, the men of Beta Theta Pi compiled single string totals of 801, 693, and 727, 801 being the single high for the season. However, the Dekes were not completely trampled and managed to pull out two points with a 727 effort in the second game.

IN OTHER games, Phi Kappa Psi and Psi Upsilon shut out Delta Tau Delta and Pi Kappa Alpha respectively, Zeta Psi outdid Delta Upsilon 7 to 2 and SAE did the same to Acacia. The other contest was forfeited to Alpha Epsilon Pi by Omega Pi Alpha.

Delta Upsilon dropped their first match of the season to a hot Zeta Psi team, who racked the pins for 2,109. Jim Johnson headed the barrage with a good 452. Ed Thompson piled up a 488 and Jack Chamberlaine 477 for DU but their slumping teammates let them down.

Another tremendous bit of bowling was done by Phi Kappa Psi in their romp over Delta Tau Delta. The scoring was very evenly distributed and every man on the team rolled over 420. High man in the fun was Bob Majewski with 443. Jack Thoden continued to lead the Delts but slumped off to 436.

Good bowling seemed to be the style in last night's contests and Psi Upsilon kept in step with an excellent 2,155 over Pi Kappa Alpha. A high second string total of 778 was Psi U's big contribution.

PHIL PHELPS was Psi U's main weapon exploding with the evening's high single of 183 and also grabbing high triple with 517. The best Pi Kappa Alpha could toss in was 418 by Bob Johnson.

Niagara AAU Meet Set for Tomorrow

70 Mermen Enter Competition For Coveted District Titles

By BOB GROGAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Swimming makes its 1953 debut in the Orange pool tomorrow when, for the third consecutive year, the Niagara AAU championships will be held there at 3 p.m. (trials) and 8 p.m. (finals).

Individuals from six upstate New York schools will take part in the meet at which no team scores are kept. Approximately 70 swimmers from Cornell, Colgate, Niagara, Syracuse, Cortland and Buffalo will compete in the nine scheduled events.

THE TRIAL heats, for which there is no admission charge, will be teelvised locally over WSYR-TV starting at 3:15 p.m. A $1 admission will be charged for the Saturday evening finals.

Eighteen swimmers from Syracuse are scheduled to compete but a few of the boys may be withdrawn before starting time.

In the 300-yard medley relays, Bill Orange has two teams entered under the name of the Syracuse Swimming club. Bob Downing, Ed Lesko and Bob Beaumont are the starters in Club A, while two freshmen, John McGill and Jon Buzzard and soph Walt Patterson will race as Club B.

Syracuse finished second to Niagara last season and this year's race promises to be just as close since both teams have practically the same personnel.

PHIL WARE of Niagara is the defending champion in the 220-yd. freestyle. His time of 2:14.6 set two years ago, established the Orange pool record. Syracuse entries include freshman Graham Vanderveer and juniors Doug Dodge and Dick Liddle.

Ware also holds the Orange pool AAU record in the 440-yd. swim but he will not compete in that event this year.

In the 50-yd. freestyle, Ed Kineke of Niagara is back to defend the title he won last season with the record-breaking time of 33.5. Twenty-five swimmers are entered in this event including Dave Lewis, Len Kissel, Ed Tosen, Dave Diekes and Buzzard of Syracuse.

Another defending champion, Roy Swanson of Ithaca, is returning to swim in the 150-yd. individual medleys. Jim Sulton and Kevin Wilson are the two Orange entries.

NO TRIALS will be held in the one meter diving event which is scheduled to take place Saturday evening immediately following the 150-yd. race.

All divers are required to do a half twist but their other seven dives will be optional. Former Syracusan Bill "Pappy" Gillard won the event last year.

This year's Orange entries include: Chris Blaydon, Dave Slol, Charles Kiblen and Ed Gozigian.

The 100-yard free style should be very close with Beaumont and Patterson of Syracuse given good chances of copping the title. Their main competition should come from Jim Peabody and Ware of Niagara.

IN THE 200-yard backstroke, Bill Orange's entries should also do well. Freshman John McGill and senior Bob Downing must be regarded as co-favorites in the race because of their fine times in the race because of their fine times in thi sparticular event.

Letterman Ed Lesko and Jon Buzzard provide Syracuse with a potent one-two punch in the 200-yd. breaststroke race in which only seven men are entered. Bob Auron is another possible Orange competitor in this event.

The 440-yard freestyle appears to be anybody's race with Pietyman Vanderveer given a strong chance to win the individual title.

Other Syracuse university mermen entered in this race are Doug Dodge, Dick Liddle and Kevin Wilson. Bill Branch of Cortland and Larry Caldwell of Ithaca are two boys to watch in this event.

THE FINAL event of the Niagara AAU's will be the 400-yard freestyle relays. The Syracuse foursome of Beaumont, Patterson, Kissel and Lewis should get its main opposition from Niagara.

Included in the Niagara quartet will be Kineke, Braasch, Ware and Peabody. Other entries are Cortland, Colgate and Cornell which will be planning to swim two separate groups.

The finalists in all events except the 50-yard freestyle will be selected on the basis of their times in the trial heats. In the 50-yard race, finalists are chosen by their finish in the preliminary heats.

REFEREE FOR the Niagara AAU's will be Dave Williams of Cornell.

Coach Ted Webster's boys are not scheduled for any intercollegiate meets until after the Christmas holidays. However, Webster plans to have the team members cut their vacations short a few days to get ready for the rugged slate which comes up following the holidays.

SWIM SHORTS: Columbia will be the first dual meet opponent of Bill Orange, coming here Jan. 6. The Lions will have two meets under their belts when they face Syracuse . . . Ted Bronczyk, a steady performer on last season's Piety swim team, has started to work out after being sidelined with an attack of sinus . . . Fans who witnessed last year's AAU swim here hope that the public address system is in better working order this Saturday. Several people complained they could not hear who won the various events, let alone the times. However, the meet officials have had a whole year to devise ways of eliminating any shortcomings which cropped up last year.

BOB DOWNING and ED LESKO will compete for Coach Ted Webster's mermen in tomorrow's Niagara AAU meet. The big swimming event will be held for the third consecutive year at Syracuse's Archbold gymnasium pool. Swimmers from six upstate New York schools will compete in the meet.

Five Hill Gridders On All-Opponent

Syracuse gridders dominated Colgate's 1953 all-opponent football team. The 23 man Red Raider squad selected five Orangemen as their toughest opponents this season. The Pietymen whipped Colgate, 34-18 in a late season contest.

The Maroon all-opponent 11 is actually made up of 12 men, the Colgate varsity not being able to choose the best fullback they faced all year and selecting both Guy Bedrossian of Cornell and Yale's Phil Mathias.

The Raiders picked Ray Perkins at left end, Ted Kukowski at center, Les McClelland at right tackle, Pat Stark at quarterback and Bob Leberman at left halfback.

All-around speed and a powerful scoring punch characterize the squad, with the line averaging only 197 pounds and a backfield spearheaded by Harvard halfback Dick Clasby's running ability and Stark's passing proficiency.

Clasby was the only unanimous choice in the voting but Kukowski polled all but one vote.

Colgate posted a 3-4-2 record this year. Coach Hal Lahar's team defeated Bucknell, Dartmouth and Rutgers and lost to Cornell, Holy Cross, Harvard and the Orange.

The Red Raiders battled on two ties. The Maroon and Yale played to a 7-7 deadlock in an early season contest and Colgate fought a scorless duel with Brown in the final game of the year for both teams.

Gymnasts Invade South Next Week

Paul Romeo's five-man gymnastic squad leaves for their Southern tour tomorrow morning. Headed by John Barkal and Corky Sebbo, the matmen will meet three opponents within four days next week.

Monday evening they meet No. Carolina ,travel to Duke for a Tuesday afternoon encounter and finish up against a top-notch Florida State contingent on Thursday.

Grapplers at Ithaca For Practice Contest

By DON HENRY

Coach Joe McDaniel's varsity grapplers will journey to Ithaca at 1 p.m. today to take on the Ithaca college Bombers in a pre-season practice match. The Orangemen will be traveling without two of their top wrestlers.

It was learned yesterday that Tom McDougal, counted on to compete in the 147-pound division for the Orange, has left school because of his draft status.

THE OTHER man lost to the team, although not indefinitely, is co-Capt. Chuck DeBellis. DeBellis, who could have filled in for McDougal or wrestled at his accustomed 137-pound slot, will see no action until February because of a broken wrist suffered this week.

CHARLIE DINKLEMEYER will wrestle at 177 pounds when the Orange grapplers meet the Ithaca college matmen in a practice match Saturday.

To replace the more experienced grapplers, McDaniel has Tom King at 137 and Pedro Gonzales at 147. Both men are sophomores who wrestled on last year's frosh squad.

One of the two returning lettermen who will make the trip tomorrow is co-Capt. Ed Rooney. Rooney will be counted on to come through in his usual fine form in the 157-pound position.

The other letter-winner of last year is Hank Gobetz. Gobetz will be grappling at the 167-pound slot, the same division in which he was undefeated in five dual meets last year.

The only senior in the line-up at present is Charlie Dinkelmeyer. "Din" will be starting at the 177-pound position against the Clyde Cole-coached Ithacans.

Army Wins Trophy; Orangemen Fifth

Penn, Penn State And Cornell Outrank Hill

The Lambert Trophy committee awarded the Lambert trophy in their final results of the season. The final standings of the committee were supplemented by a poll of Eastern sports writers and radio and television sportscasters as they gave Army 36 out of 40 first place votes. Both Penn and Penn State split the other four first place votes.

On a 10-5-2 basis for first, second and third place respectively, the standings appear a little unbelievable. Behind Army came Penn, Penn State, Cornell, then Syracuse, Navy, Yale and Harvard.

In games among the first five: Army beat Penn, Penn beat Penn State, Penn State beat Syracuse. The games that muddled the standings: Cornell's tie with Penn and its loss to Syracuse.

SYRACUSE'S POOR showing came in the balloting for second place. Penn got 13 second place votes; Penn State, 10, Cornell 5, Army 4 and Syracuse 3. Yale and Navy each drew one. This gave Cornell a 10 point margin over the Orange.

For third place, Penn State received 9 votes, Penn 7, Syracuse 7, Navy 5, Cornell 3, Harvard 2 and Yale one.

Thus the Army amassed 380 points to Penn's 99 points in second place. Penn State pulled 88, Cornell 31, Syracuse 29, Navy 15, Yale 7 and Harvard 4.

Army lost to only Northwestern and tied Tulane while rolling over Furman, Dartmouth, Duke, Columbia, North Carolina State, Penn and Navy.

Phi Delts Victorious; Tau Delts Edge AXP

By PAUL RIPP

Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Alpha Sigma Phi and Tau Delta Phi rang up victories in intramural basketball contests last night on the Archbold court.

Phi Delt displayed a strong team effort and completely outclassed Tau Epsilon Phi, 55-11.

SPURRED BY excellent passing and shooting, the Phi Delts grabbed a 25-2 lead at halftime. With their fast break working to perfection and every man hitting the scoring column, the winners coasted the rest of the way to an easy victory.

Spearheading the Phi Delt attack were Sig Sieber, John Kerr and Nick Coyne who meshed 13, 9 and 7 points repectively.

A strong second half rally that netted 23 points enabled Phi Gamma Delta to overcome an early Phi Kappa Tau lead and resulted in a 38-20 victory for the Phi Gams.

The big story in this match was the second half shooting of Bill Brown and Jim Myers which was responsible for the evaporation of the 16-15 half time lead enjoyed by Phi Tau.

Brown, who scored 50 points last week to break an intramural scoring record, chipped in with 18 this week. Myers who netted several crucial hook shots, collected 14 markers, 10 of them in the second half. Bob Pugsley led the losers with eight.

Alpha Sigma Phi notched a 35-22 win over Pi Alpha Chi in a dull, slow moving affair. The contest was marked by an overabundance of fouls and the erratic play of both teams. Al Festa flipped in 15 points for the victors, while Bob Miller had 7 for Pi Alpha Chi.

In the nightcap Tau Delta Phi emerged victorious over Alpha Chi Rho, 24-15. This game featured spirited defensive play on both sides. The Tau Delts iced the match with a flurry of buckets at the start of the second half. Marty Barron and Chuck Williams tallied seven markers each to pace the Tau Delts. Paul Keunster led the losers with four.

There is no intra hoop action slated for next week. The intra cagers return to the basketball wars during the week of Jan. 4.

Playoffs among the flight champs will run through early March.

Syracuse Second In Ground Defense

Figures released yesterday by the NCAA confirm the fact that Syracuse was a tough football team to gain against on the ground during the 1953 season.

Final tabulations place the Orange number two in the nation in rushing defense. Only Maryland, the country's top 11 in the post season polls, finished ahead of Ben Schwartzwalder's squad in the ground defense department.

The Orangemen allowed opponents and average of only 102.2 yards per game on the ground. Champion Maryland gave up 89.9 yards per game rushing.

Syracuse finished fifth in the yards allowed per running play category. The Pietymen gave up 2.80 yards per play while Maryland, which finished first in this department also, yielded 2.32 yards for each running play.

Good Art Abstract, Says Dr. Langer At Second Humanity Talk Yesterday

Dr. Sucanne K. Langer, noted philosopher and artist, declared that "all good art is abstract" in the second lecture of the Humanities series yesterday.

Maxwell auditorium was crawded to capacity with more than 300 persons who listened to Dr. Langer as she spoke on "The Meaning of 'Significance' in Art."

THE SPEAKER defended her contention that all good art is abstract by saying "The function of art is the symbolic expression of an artist's knowledge of his emotions." Since these emotions are themselves very complex, it takes complex symbols to represent the artist's knowledge of them. Dr. Langer asserted that all good art must therefore be abstract, organic, and vital.

DR. SUSANNE B. LANGER, philosopher-artist, who spoke on the significance of art in yesterday's Humanities lecture. More than 300 persons heard her speech.

Opening the lecture with the question, "What is significance in art," Dr. Langer stated that significant form was equivalent to expressive form. She continued by further defining expression, and dividing it into two types, self expression and symbolic expression.

The artist-philosopher also explained the value of myths and dreams. She declared that dreams are "above all formed ideas and symbols." They articulate something which can't be physically expressed or is not ready to be expressed.

Dr. Langer claimed that art expresses a felt thought, felt personality and felt emotion.

YESTERDAY EVENING the speaker was available for a question and answer session at an informal discussion at the Faculty club, 910 University av. Students and faculty attended.

Dr. Langer graduated from the University of Vienna and Radcliffe college. She has taught as a professor or guest professor at Wellesley, Smith, University of Delaware, NYU, Columbia, Northwestern, University of Washington and Radcliffe.

The lecturer has written several books on philosophy, including "The Practice of Philosophy," "An Introduction to Symbolic Logic," "Philosophy in a New Key" and "Feeling and Form."

J. V. Langmead Casserly will speak on "Interpretation of Irreligion" in the next Humanities lecture.

Church Publicity Topic of Speech By Prof. Root

Associate Professor Robert Root, head of religious journalism at the School of Journalism, will discuss problems of church publicity at Colgate-Rochester Divinity school Monday in Rochester.

Root, a former public relations staff member of the World Council of Churches, will speak about "A Common Protestant Approach to Public Relations." The sessions, which are under the auspices of the New York State Council of Churches, will last for two days.

Students wishing to buy Christmas seals may do so at a booth in the lobby of HL. Volunteers will man the booths from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. until next Tuesday.

Aviation Director To Receive Trophy

Dr. Leslie A. Bryan, director of the Institute of Aviation, University of Illinois and former member of the Syracuse faculty for 23 years has been selected recipient of the Frank A. Brewer Trophy.

Emblematic of America's highest award in the field of air youth education and training, the trophy will be presented on December 17 by President Eisenhower at the annual Wright Memorial Day dinner.

Since 1924 Dr. Bryan has written many books, articles and monographs about the development of aviation education in the U.S. As director of the Institute of Aviation at the University of Illinois he has developed a new program which has supervised the training of more than 7,000 students without a single injury.

as an interpreter. In an effort to escape, carrying valuable Red documents, he was apprehended and thrown into a dingy 4 ft. by 10 ft. cell to await his execution.

Asked about his outlook on life at the moment, Kousoulas said with his usual coolness, "Oh, I had just taken things for granted." To illustrate this, he told of a guerrilla who came to his cell to trade an old blanket with his own (of capitalistic quality.) "Why don't you wait until after my execution to get the blanket?" Kousoulas asked him. "I don't know if I'll be there," was the nonchalant reply. The writer admitted that he had not very well familiarized himself with execution procedures, but that he had a notion that they habitually took place at dawn.

ON THE MORNING of execution, he awoke to find the sun already risen, and was surprised when the prison surgeon came and released him. He was told to await trial under normal conditions, but the Guerrilla court was discontinued, and Koulouslas was released permanently.

Kousloulas' attitude toward the present conflict between democracy and communism is one of understanding. He has written the true story of the experiences of his country under communist tactics, and believes that they never basically change.

The young author's view of America is quite different from that of most European students studying here. When asked about his return to Greece, he replied: "Of course, I will go back, but actually I like it here."

He likes our education system because it offers a student a variety of subjects; our political system because of its stability, and because of the basic agreement between the two political parties. He cites as an example the recent peaceful shange of federal administrations.

Chorus to Present Bach's 'Magnificat'

Four Soloists Starred In Second Program

The University chorus will present "The Magnificat," second in concert series, by Carl Philip Emanuel Bach, at 8:30 p.m., Monday in Crouse auditorium.

The presentation will mark the 85th for the chorus in 42 sessions. Frank Hakanson will direct the group and Arthur Poister will be the organ accompanist.

Four soloists will be featured: Louise Orlando, soprano; Margaret Lynch, contralto; Robert Johnston, tenor; and Frederick Griesinger, baritone. Marian Gelbaumn and David Nascimbim were rehearsal conductors.

The student directors are Robert Johnston, Paul Ochsner and Carl Stout.

Bach wrote "The Magnificat" when an official court composer for Frederick the Great of Prussia. There are two existing versions: one in the Berlin State library and one found by Henry Drinker in 1930. The University chorus will use the Drinker version.

Boar's Head to Give 'Alcestis' Comedy For Second Time

Boar's head will present a second reading of a comedy, "Alcestis in the Underworld" at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Drama building.

The play which is an adaptation of the Greek legend of Alcestis played a capacity audience last week. Professor Ray Irwin of the School of Speech, wrote and directed the production.

Sue Taylor will play the role of Alcestis, with Sidney Kalscheim as her husband, Admetos; Lan Leary as Death and Matt Seidman as Hercules.

This is one of the first attempts of a college group to present a group theatrical reading.

On the same program, Rosemary Sinnett, instructor in the School of Speech, and Ray Irwin will present the "Facade Suite," a group of poems by Edith Sitwell set to music by William Walton.

Admission for the afternoon's entertainment is free and students are urged to attend.

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH"

Portions of Handel's "Messiah," one of the most popular oratorios, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the First Baptist church.

A 100-voiced chorus, under the direction of John Clough, minister, will perform. Four soloists have been selected for the production. They are: Margaret Mann, Alice Westcott, Conrad Hess and William Morris.

Carpenter Gives Reporter's Views on UN

AP Man Recaptures Informal Mood

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

"If Russians only knew that all they have to do to break up the western alliance is to show a little sweetness and consideration. I don't see why they don't do it."

This was one of several remarks and anecdotes about United Nations representatives from the land of the Volga made by Associated Press reporter Francis W. Carpenter, who spoke Friday evening in Maxwell auditorium at a gathering of collegiate delegates here for a weekend session of a model Security Council.

CARPENTER TOLD the assemblage many Americans seem deluded into believing the Soviets are relenting in their policy of non-cooperation when Vishinsky and his staff show friendliness. The reporter maintains this is untrue. The Russians understand only strength.

This, he said, formed the fundamentals of their reply to Pres. Eisenhower's recent speech which concerned atomic strength to a great extent. The speech precipitated an immediate reply from Russian quarters.

Carpenter called 70-year-old Andre Vishinsky the best showman in the United Nations and said he "would have run Barnum a close race" if the circus man were still living.

"Vishinsky knows when to turn on the charm and when to turn it off to create the best advantage for himself," the newsman added.

THE SOVIET delegate has even been observed in tears by men in the press box at Lake Success. Carpenter told of the UN custom for delegates to rise briefly whenever announcement is made of the death of a nation's leader.

According to custom the assembly rose after its members were informed of Stalin's demise. Following this, Vishinsky gave tribute to Stalin. Reporters watching through spyglasses observed tears in the eyes of the man who has stubbornly obstructed many proceedings in the Security Council.

The Communist line gets crossed sometimes. To illustrate, Carpenter told of a monthly banquet attended by Security Council delegates and their wives.

At one such banquet a delegate proposed a toast which was unfavorable to Czechoslovak representative Zoren's policy. Everyone stood for the toast but Zoren. Mrs. Zoren, who had been sitting with her back to her husband, rose also.

THE AP reporter referred to bright lights installed in the assembly room for photographers to snap pictures with flashes. To ease the strain of light many delegates wear dark glasses to sessions. Sometimes a delegate takes advantage of the eye protection to snooze during deliberations.

This was the case at one session when Vishinsky addressed fighting remarks to a delegate who never stirred to repudiate them.

An inside story on the election of Security Council Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold was related by Carpenter. At the time of election it was impossible for any of the well-known candidates to win because of stalemate over a number of controversial issues.

A member of the French delegation remembered that Hammarskjold had done good work on a certain UN committee and that the Swede had done well in an administrative position for his own country. The French representative nominated Hammarskjold for secretary general.

"SECURITY COUNCIL members realized that only a neutral, unknown Swede could be elected,

Model Council Fails To Agree on Action

Delegates Discuss Jordan-Israel Fate

Model Security Council deliberations failed to result in positive action regarding resolutions proposed Friday afternoon at the first session to end the dispute between Jordan and Israel.

Representatives from nine of the 11 current member nations of the Security Council were present at the Maxwell auditorium session. Delegates from France and Colombia (represented by Cornell university and Hobart college respectively) were unable to be present.

Vice Chancellor Finla G. Crawford, in his welcoming speech, said that the balance of power during his lifetime has shifted from Europe to the West.

He indicated that the number of students coming here from other countries is steadily increasing. Along this line he concluded, "We have responsibility to increase the number of schools interested in international affairs on an extracurricular basis.

Following Dr. Crawford's speech, Security Council action began with a resolution by the delegate from Lebanon incited by an Israeli attack on a town in Jordan.

The Lebanese delegate stated this was an act of aggression in violation of the truce agreement between the two nations.

In the resolution he called for (1) Israel to be condemned for massacre in the Jordan town, (2) Israel to be asked to proceed with a trial of all individuals responsible for the attack, (3) Israel to make restitution for the destruction incurred and (4) Israel to refrain from such action in the

'Special' Train Reduction Now Available For Friday

Alumni Will Present Orange Bowl Movie

The Orange Bowl comes to Syracuse university THIS year.

Memories of last year, when Syracuse went to the Orange Bowl, will be recalled Wednesday and Thursday when this newspaper sponsors the showing of a 30-minute color film, "Orange Bowl Highlights."

SECURED BY THE Syracuse university Alumni association, the sound movie will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in 111 Maxwell and at the same time Thursday in Maxwell auditorium.

Arthur Gabriel, assistant field secretary of the Alum group, will be on hand Wednesday night to introduce the first public campus showing of the picture.

All the splendor, color and pageantry of the ten-day Orange Bowl week of a year ago were captured on this professional production, which was made under the sanction of the Orange Bowl committee.

Many Syracusans will be able to recall the happiest and best Christmas vacation they ever spent—a week in Miami with a New Year's day dampened only by the humiliating 61-6 drubbing at the hands of the University of Alabama.

FOR FRESHMEN and newcomers the showing will give them a chance to see the gaiety and festivities of Miami at Orange Bowl color.

The film will show the Orange gridders relaxing at the Miami pool, the international junior tennis tournament and the Coral Gables junior Orange Bowl parade for children, the King Jamboree parade, a dazzling miles-long caravan of floats and bands has been recorded as well as the lavish between-halves show at the game.

Glimpses of lovely Marion Ettie, University of Miami coed who reigned as Orange Bowl queen, Syracuse queen Jane Gates and the Hill band introducing its new uniforms, will also flash through Maxwell Wednesday and Thursday.

Lower Prices Still Probable For Saturday

The pocketbooks of New York area students were virtually given added revenue yesterday when it was announced that the "Orange Special" will now leave Syracuse on Friday, Dec. 18 at 12:30 p.m.

The student whose classes keep him beyond this hour may take advantage of other special rates as outlined below.

OFFICIALS OF the Administration and the New York Central Railroad discussed the problem Friday and agreed to the schedule change.

Students wishing to take advantage of the $15.01 round-trip coach fare on Friday must purchase their ticket from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Bursar's office on Thursday.

These tickets will be honored on the advance section of the Chicagoan.

Students wishing to leave on a 12:30 p.m. Saturday train should assemble in the Bursar's office from 3 to 4 p.m. Thursday. If 25 students are able to purchase tickets at that time, the special $15.01 fare will be retained.

A THIRD plan is possible for students in groups of three. Round trip fare for three students leaving and returning together to New York is $16.33.

This offer applies to any train as long as the passengers ride for at least 100 miles. This would be especially valuable for students who have Friday afternoon classes but who do not wish to remain until Saturday noon.

Trains leaving New York on Sunday are the Knickerbocker at 2:15 p.m. and the Ohio State Limited at 4 p.m.

The entire problem came to light last Wednesday when it was announced that the "Orange Special" was leaving on Saturday at 12:30 p.m. The Daily Orange pointed out that this would benefit less than 10 per cent of the students, since the others would have left on Friday, paying the full fare.

Chorus Plans Program Featuring Yule Music

"The Magnificat," song of the Blessed Virgin Mary, will be presented by the University chorus tonight at 8:30 p.m. in Crouse auditorium. Frank Hakanson will direct this second in the concert series written by Carl Philip Emanuel Bach. Arthur Poister will be organi accompanist. This presentation marks the 85th for the chorus in 42 years.

Robert Johnston, Paul Ochsner and Carl Stout will act as student directors, and four soloists will be featured: Louise Orlandok, soprano; Margaret Lynch, contralto; Robert Johnston, tenor; and Frederick Griesinger, baritone. Marilyn Gelbaumn and David Nascimbim were rehearsal directors.

Carl Bach was born in Weimar, Germany, in 1714 and educated at the Leipzig Thomaschule and the University of Frankfort. He is said to have given early promise of becoming a fine clavier player and technician. Because of his excellent work with this, he is regarded as the father of modern pianoforte playing.

It was while Bach was serving as court composer for Frederick the Great of Prussia that he composed this Magnificat for the private library of the king. One of the two existing works is in the Berlin Library; the other, said to have been lost in the early nineteenth century was discovered in Florence, Italy in 1930 by Henry Drinker of Philadelphia. The chorus will present the latter version tonight.

The Magnificat was first heard in America in 1936. Its text, excepting the Doxology, is far older than the Christian era.

Juniors Schedule Water Tryouts

Tryouts for the junior watershow will be held from 4:30-5:30 p.m. tomorow and at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Any coeds who are not in the water ballet, and all junior women who would like to participate should pick up swim cards in room 202 of the Women's Building.

Orators First Class

Facilities Opened For Coeds' Rest

Room 137 of the Body Mechanics unit in the Women's building has four beds for the use of women students who wish facilities for rest during the day. Use of the room is restricted to complete rest, with studying, reading or visiting prohibited.

Open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, the room will be under indirect supervision. Full co-operation of all users is requested, as lack of cooperation may cause the forfeit of privileges.

Regulations concerning use of the room will be posted.

When circumstances make it necessary to close the unit, notification will be posted on the door

'Special' thanks

It was a pleasure to announce on page one today that the "Orange Special" would now run on Friday instead of Saturday.

The quick schedule change proved once more that the student voice can be heard clearly in the far corners of the Administration building.

The problem of the $6.73 difference between normal and special train rates was first revealed in Wednesday's issue of The Daily Orange. It was stated at that time that less than 10 per cent of the east-bound students would be able to take advantage of the reduced price.

Since approximately 90 per cent of the students did not have Saturday classes, they would have been penalized by leaving after their last class on Friday and paying the full fare.

When this was brought to the attention of the Administration, officials indicated that they would examine the problem and see if a change should be made.

By Friday, the representatives of the New York Central and Syracuse had agreed that the reduced price should be available for a Friday train.

Even the minority did not lose its chance to get to the City on less than $21.74. Two other cut-rate plans are available "to him who waits."

Any group of three students traveling more than 100 miles and going and returning together is entitled to a special reduced rate. Traveling with three friends, the student can make use of a 25 per cent reduction and pay only $16.33. Tickets are obtainable at the Bursar's office.

For those students who specifically want to leave on Saturday: stop in at the railroad office from 3 to 4 p.m. Thursday. If at least 25 people take similar action, special tickets can still be purchased for the $15.01.

There is now a program to suit almost every student residing near Gotham. However, now that the University has granted this request, the students must shoulder more responsibility in not cutting those Saturday classes.

The original policy of the University was such that the "school did not want to be on record" as encouraging cuts by offering early low-cost train facilities.

If there are wholesale absences Saturday, teachers and faculty will probably ask for a reinstatement of the older rule.

Therefore, while the student is examining his course schedule, and his billfold, we urge that he also remember his responsibility as a student.

Anyway, many thanks to those who obviously have faith in student integrity.

DEFEATING THE FIFTH AMENDMENT?

By POLLY REED

Representative Kenneth B. Keating's new bill which would limit the power of the Fifth amendment.

Rep. Keating, (R., N. Y.), explained his bill in a speech given before citizenship and political science students last week. As he explained it, anyone testifying before a Congressional committee would not be able to retreat behind the cover of the "Fifth amendment.

Instead, he would be "forced" to testify before the committee, but nothing he said would be used as evidence against him in a court trial. The purpose of the bill is to gather testimony useful to committees in their investigations.

As we see it, however, this bill would defeat the very purpose for which it would be established. Anyone who suspected the Federal Bureau of Investigation had evidence against him could rush to a Congressional committee and testify, exonerating himself. If the FBI's evidence were the same as the testimony, it would be worthless, as testimony cannot be used against a witness in a court trial.

If a group of persons were engaged in espionage and one member were required to testify, he could blame himself for everything the ring had been involved in. He could not be prosecuted, and the others could carry on their operations because one man had implicated himself for their activities. If the FBI believed the witness, it would not be likely to continue investigating to uncover espionage because one man had implicated himself for it, and he could possibly lead the Congressmen to believe he was the only person involved.

The Rochestarian also said the "public wants entertainment not dull dry work." If so, we think this is unfortunate. The public should hire Milton Berle and send him to Congress, if it wants entertainers in Washington.

Instead, the public should be educated to the fact that Congressmen are in Washington on business, and not to put on a three ring circus for TV viewers. Many Congressional committees are apparently functioning as entertainment for the constituents and to keep the Congressman's name before the public, instead of fact-finding organs of the government.

The Walls Crawl with It

"New moon over my shoulder . . ." A view of Lyman but those are trees blocking the view not the screen of ivy that has been crawling its way up the walls for over three decades.

By RUTH BARME

"How we love the halls of ivy, that surround us here today."

So go the first lines of that well-loved song that typifies so well the beautiful tradition that surrounds every college campus. Syracuse university is no exception. And, to carry on this legend of greenery, classes of the past have left their markers to grow upon the sides of our building.

In fact, three times the group gathered; three times the little hole was dug; three times the baby plant was planted.

Such was the beginning of the life span of three ivy memorials.

The ivy precedent was begun by the class of 1873, when, at the northwest corner of HL, a ceremony was held to plant the vine. At the same time, the inscription "1873" was carved in the stone of the building. Unfortunately, the ivy died not long afterward and never was replaced.

1881 brought about a repeat performance of the ceremony. That class also planted a vine of ivy, this time on the east side of HL. The inscription "1881" was also cut into the stone at that time.

The third ivy planting took place in 1915. This time the class in question saw to it that the other building were not slighted, and each building on campus at that time got a new suit of clothes, via green ivy. The class of '15 also left money for the care of its presentation.

HL is certainly one of the best dressed buildings on campus, with a good coating of the green stuff to keep it warm. In fact, after breaking her back counting, your reporter found that there are around 50 plants on the building, taking or leaving one or two.

The climate in which we are living (?) seems to be one of the best for the Boston ivy, which would naturally be used. In order for one plant to reach the top of the building, it would have to strain upward, as is the habit of ivy, for about 25 years. There is no special life span for this plant, which is a hearty one. And our ivy will survive weather conditions that may reach as low as 35 degrees below zero. (In Syracuse, anything is possible.)

English ivy, which is noted for its beautiful color, is not used as frequently as the Boston for several reasons: it would take 50 to 100 years to reach the top of a building the height of HL. Also, it is much more delicate than the other.

Just as a note of interest, one plant of ivy can be as widespread as 25 feet or, is left without pruning, that one plant may take all the glory by itself. In the space of 50 years, it might find itself covering one entire wall of HL without any outside help.

Ivy carries out a tradition which is sacred to any university, and synonomous with the same. And, thanks to the classes of 1873, 1881 and 1915, the tradition is carried on.

"How we love the halls of ivy that surround us here today . . ."

Escape from Ft. Bravo A 'Superb' Western

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

"HIGH NOON", MAKE WAY

The Western has been to the producer what bread has been to the dietitian and through overuse, has become quite stale. Once in a great while, however, some director genius turns it into cake. Even rarer is the case of its coming out well-iced. Last year "High Noon" did. This year "Escape from Fort Bravo," playing at the Loew's State, has turned the trick.

The opening section of the film and the pat ending are right out of the files. But somewhere in the middle is a long action sequence that may very well be one of the greatest ever filmed. Initially, "Fort Bravo" has to do with spying and Indians during the Civil war but the exposition of its plot is original, skillful and exciting. Later on it gets its principals out on the desert under Indian attack and it is then that "Fort Bravo" becomes a truely remarkable film.

Indian attack scenes will be filmed many more times but no one will ever be able to do it as well as the director, John Sturgess. The attack scene here is a synthesis of menace and the barren vastness of the desert. It is a sort of culmination of all that has preceded it in cinema history, and all that will ever follow. No one will find it relaxing, for it achieves a level of tension seldom encountered in modern American film making.

Everyone connected with the film has surpassed himself and the demands of the form. The acting is uniformly excellent. John Forsythe is admirable as a Southern captain and William Demerast etches the finest characterization of his career, one that could net him an "Oscar."

But it is Eleanor Parker and William Holden who do the extraordinary jobs. Miss Parker appears here as beautiful as anyone has the right to be and she matches her physical beauty by the honesty and beauty of her acting. Mr. Holden proves conclusively that he is one of the most brilliant leading men. An actor of extraordinary versatility, he can always be depended upon to do a fine job. This performance is the best, the most moving he has given since his role in "Sunset Boulevard."

Frank Fenton's script is witty and adult in a manner or a Western and John Sturgess' direction is wonderfully resourceful.

"Escape From Fort Bravo" is not sufficiently profound or fresh to be great but it is sufficiently so to be superb.

CHRISTMAS STORY

J. W. Drix & Christmas

CHAPTER I

"Christmas is here again and so what." Such were the sentiments expressed by Mrs. J. Wollington Drix against the happy holiday. Mrs. Drix was alas, waging a one woman war against Christmas.

It wasn't as if she lacked for anything. God knows her husband J. Woolington (who also served as family pet and occasional doormat) provided her with the best.

What other wife could boast mink bedspreads, gold faucets, and chlorophyl in every toothpaste tube.

Still she was miserable (both in disposition and personality).

One day just before Christmas, Mrs. D. was reclining on her breath of spring chaise lounge smoking her filtered cigarette through her filtered cigarette holder, and thinking about the approaching holiday.

Suddenly, as she started to inhale, the ceiling began to shake, the roof began to crumble, and her pet parakeet Sam began to tremble in his gilded cage.

"Mercy Maude," said Mrs. D. "What was that?"

'A New Beginning'

Leaves drop and float to the ground.
The end; or is it a beginning?
The seed leaves its bed and takes wing.
The end; or perhaps a beginning?
Heartbeats cease, the body dies.
The end; or is it a beginning?

Questions plague the mind.
An answer!
But no!
Only a new beginning.

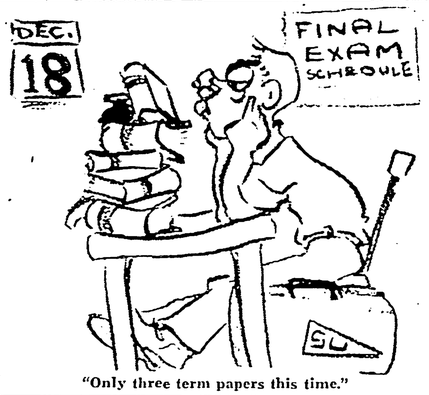
It's Christmastide Again...



"Only three term papers this time."

And We Can't Wait

(Note: In the spirit of frivolity, The Daily Orange offers an excerpt from the personal diary of any anonymous student as he approaches Christmas holiday with a song in his heart and an open wallet.)

December 14—Something there is that does not love me.

Something there is that makes me rise at the break of dawn over the Syracuse horizon and sends me off in quest of the higher things . . . of books and knowledge and all things bad and beautiful.

Wish I weren't here. Wish I were in the South Pacific on Bali Hai or having an enchanted evening on the beach at Green Lake. I would seek the peace and solitude of some bristling metropolis where I was only a name, a number and where homework meant cleaning out the hall closet.

I look to the vacation with happy glee. When days and nights will lay before me on the calendar like stuffed papers . . . full of spice and without bitter pill. Christmas comes but once a year . . . God Bless America for it.

This morning was a morning like all mornings; filled with the events which turn my skin to parchment, my bones to rubber, my blood to halo shampoo. I made some excuse to the boys and went to class. I had come to miss the bliss of 40 or so happy faces and the clear, crisp sensation that comes from being wrasseled through the golden gates of Slocum. My heart was ungarbled.

Before me loomed the finals. Back in my room, a pile of books caressed the ceiling, a stack of notes for fourteen back term papers was juggled breathlessly on my study desk . . . deficiency postcards were stacked neatly in front of the television set.

But I hold no fear.

I will cast aside the chains that an education has forged upon me and will laugh at the world.

This afternoon I wandered along the avenues. I thought lovely thoughts of days in New York and a Cuban holiday among the boys. There shall be no night.

Syracuse is a spot on the map. I have never heard of it.

Tonight I went to the Orange. Got light.

Everyone was feeling the need, like I, to become out of it.

Who cares for books and things. Who cares for 8 o'clocks and silly-willys. Or for tea parties or quiet afternoons in the library.

Not us.

when I got home, the shift key on my typewriter won't work damn finger kept slipping. damn music in my ears. could not finish my diary.

YOU'RE RIGHT, it isn't Marshall st., but it illustrates what we mean. Most Syracuse residents have never heard of Good Fairy Week, but their expressions seem to indicate they have the same grim determination as the campus "godmothers." Christmas shopping seems t worst in people, as they shove to be first course, it never gets done early. Staff Photo by Ozzie

And the Rush Start

The store owners have been gleefully counting off the shopping days to Christmas (it's nine now), and still we've done little about it. We were lamenting this fact over a cup of coffee the other day and set out to remedy the situation.

Repelled by the thought of crowds and downtown buses, we decided to try Marshall street, campus center of finance laundry, coffee and beer.

Did we mention crowds? There was a line by every cash register and students three deep in front of every counter.

Thinking we'd begin on a small scale first, we started looking for Good Fairy gifts. Naturally we wanted to find the most clever, original and inexpensive items to leave for our fairy god child. It seemed as though each of the 4,000 women living on campus was searching for the same thing.

There were practical gifts like soap, tissues and food and later more fanciful presents like toys, decorations and lollypops. Some of the stores are unloading their Halloween stock, putting itching and sneezing powders back on display. This is Christmas spirit?

Waiting on line by the cash register we shifted from foot to foot and ahemed loudly, clutching our final selections—a gilt angel, an ink eraser, the N. Y. Times and a wooden clown that has a whistle and a ring to cat

And We Go Home

(Sound of telephone number being dialed)

Hello, Mabel? Just heard from Bob. Do you think you could find room for—No? Well, I can't blame you, after what his friends did to your place last year.—But I DID apologize. What more could I do? —Well! I never heard—But—But —Please My oldest son! And never mind about Tuesday's bridge date. I won't be able to make it.

(Sound of telephone number being dialed)

Hello, Suzanne? How are you? —That's fine—Good. Say, can you find room for some guests of mine? —You can? That's fine—Oh, just some friends of Bob—Oh? You just remembered your great aunt's brother-in-law is coming in? For the whole holiday? And you can't POSSIBLY break it? Well, I'm sorry, I think you would have enjoyed having them for a few days —Oh, you did have them in last year.—Well, I'm sure they didn't MEAN to break your picture window. After all, anyone might have done the same thing.—Oh? YOUR friends don't go around throwing beer bottles?—I won't say anything, but I remember that last party of yours—Yes DEFINITELY, good-bye.

(Sound of telephone number being dialed)

Hello, Mrs. Quamby, how are you today? I just called to ask you to tea next Tuesday—You'd like to come? Well, that's fine. And how is all your family? You have two sons in college don't you? — Are they bringing any friends home with them?—Since they're not coming home, do you think you could possibly make room for some of Bob's friends?—My dear Mrs. Quamby, please! Such language—That's quite alright, I won't expect you next Tuesday. I understand. Good-bye.

(Sound of telephone number being dialed)

Aunt Alicia, hello, I know it's been ages since I phoned, but, you see—Oh? You won't? Well good-bye.

Still hoping for peace on earth.

DEAN NOBLE rings in the joyous season, as he tells the students that they shouldn't be so blase as to think Christmas has no meaning for them. The chimes may not always be in tune, but you can still recognize the old carols.

And Dean Noble Speaks

Suppose a space ship, presumably a "flying saucer," landed in Syracuse during the Christmas holidays! What on earth (pardon it!) would the occupants think? Observe the passing scene through their eyes and ears: two legged creatures cutting down perfectly good trees, carting them inside and covering them with all kinds of sparkling devices; fat, bewhiskered men in red clothes picking up little two-legged creatures and whispering fat promises in fat little ears; big machines (printing presses to you) turning out billions of brightly colored cards to weigh down thousands of grey-clad figures who stagger from house to house with bundles of them; lights shining everywhere, in houses on the streets, AND in places called churches.

Well, Mr. Spaceman, what would you make of this? Would you think the whole thing silly? If you knew the word, would you call it "phoney," hypocritical, merely sentimental? Or would you see the heart of it, the bubbling generosity breaking the ice of the frostiest soul, the renewal of morale amidst the shortest days of the year, homing instinct reestablishing the family circle before a glowing hearth, the hushed expectancy of little children?

Would you see, strange sir, the infinite meaning of the manger, the mystical identification of our families with the Holy Family, the piercing of our dark skies by the poetry of our angels, the Magi making a blessed pilgrimage of our own prosaic days, the shepherds restoring simplicity to our sophisticated souls, the Child, Jesus, touching our jaded lives with new nobility?

Of course, he would not SEE all these things, but if he stayed long enough he would FEEL them. Who doesn't? Even professors become mellow at Christmas time. No wonder we pour out our money for the needy families of our town. No one can honestly exalt the Christ child and refuse food to hungry little ones.

"We Three Kings of Orient Are." Aren't we all at Christmas? "O Little Town of Bethlehem, How Still We See Thee Lie." And every hometown in the world draws us to our families from the campus with the same nostalgic magnetism. "O Come All Ye Faithful!" We lift our hearts as well as our voices to the high loyalties of our better moments, and the shrine of the manger becomes the altar of noblest devotion.

—Dean Charles Noble

AS THE BIG FRIDAY approaches, classes and the library get emptier, and Marshall st. gets fuller, er, more crowded. The coffee and the doughnut reign supreme, and the voice of the waitress is heard throughout the restaurant, "What'll it be?" That noble college institution, the all-day coffee break comes into its own during the last week of school. Staff Photo by Ozzie Keuker

WAA Winter Sports Program Commences

By JODY CRONAU

The WAA winter sports program opened last Monday as basketball and bowling squads vied for honors in league play. Forty-four basketball teams and 25 bowling groups will compete for Hill championships.

Basketball teams, under the leadership of Manager Barbara Bucko, are divided into frosh and upperclass divisions. Championship cups will be awarded to winners of both divisions.

IN UPPERCLASS basketball competition Monday evening, Shaw 3C-E squeaked past Alpha Xi Delta 21-20 in overtime play. Evelyn Liskovsky poured in 16 points for Shaw. High scorer for Alpha Xi Delta was Genie Haaf, who netted 12 points.

Peck II squelched Hurst-Mott-Reed 21-20 in another overtime contest. Christian Davie pushed in 11 counters for the losers.

Runners-up in 1952-53 basketball competition, Theta Phi Alpha romped to a 33-11 victory over Phi Sigma Sigma. Theta Phi's Marilyn Gobeli and Francine Harbach netted 13 and 12 points respectively.

Shaw 3B whipped Genesee Cottage 19-7, as Anne Tullar hit for 10 points.

IN TUESDAY evening league play, Pi Phi rolled to an 18-9 victory over Sigma Kappa. Kappa Kappa Gamma, Thursday evening league contestants, exploded for 48 points to defeat Chi Omega 48-10. Kappa forwards Jane Blanchard and Connie Davis each tallied 14 counters.

Delta Gamma, led by Joan Janecek, who bucketed 10 points, trounced Delta Delta 21-7. Charles Cottage and Kappa Alpha Theta won their contests, as Beebe and Hyde-Powers forfeited.

In Tuesday afternoon freshman league play, Sims III outscored Lund 34-20. Libby Harner, Sims captain, led scoring efforts with 21 points. Alma Macomber, Lund, tossed in 16 counters for the losers. Ostrom defeated Hafts 12-9, and Haven hall garnered a 28-13 win over Geneva.

Bowling squads, under the direction of Manager Janet Brenneman, compete in Monday and Thursday afternoon league games.

MONDAY LEAGUE victors were Alpha Xi Delta, Phillips and Parker. Alpha Xi won by forfeit from Haven Hall, while Phillips and Parker scored decisive victories over Sigma Kappa and Kappa Kappa Gamma. Sigma Kappa's Marilyn Nelson rolled 130, the afternoon's high single.

In the Tuesday league, Nottingham, Hurst and Alpha Omicron Pi took kegling honors. Two tight contests were recorded, as Nottingham edged Schultze by a one-pin margin, and Hurst chalked up a five-pin margin over Delta Gamma.

Taking bowling bows in the Wednesday league were Sims II, Alpha Gamma Delta and Heffron. Sims II took Charles despite Lynn Byer's high single of 149. Fairfield lost to Alpha Gamma Delta; Richards forfeited to Heffron.

In the Thursday league, Alpha Delta Pi, last year's kegling champs, won by forfeit from Alpha Phi, Tri-Delt outscored Alpha Gamma Delta and Winchell trounced Thornden. High single of 141 was recorded by Carolyn Jamieson, Tri-Delt.

WAA swimming competition is scheduled to start this week, according to swim manager Mary Lou Ponsell.

Sigma Chi, Phi Ep, Theta Chi Triumph In Intra Action

By ERNIE ETOLL

Theta Chi, Phi Epsilon Pi, and Sigma Chi scored impressive victories Friday night over Psi Upsilon, Alpha Epsilon Pi, and Lambda Chi Alpha. The other game of the evening between Delta Kappa Epsilon and Kappa Sigma was postponed.

Led by Bill Sprague who tallied 17 markers and Don Moller with 12 points, Theta Chi handily won over Psi Epsilon 35-18. For Psi Upsilon Don Shupe with 9 points was high.

IN THE second game of the evening, Phi Epsilon Pi nipped Alpha Epsilon Pi, 19-16. At halftime the score was deadlocked at 11-all.

Led by Larry Goldfein and Al Neff who had 8 and 5 points respectively, the Phi Eps pulled away in the second half. Bill Jerry with four spectacular shots and 8 points was high for Alpha Epsilon Pi.

George McGlynn and Orvie Wambold paced Sigma Chi to an easy win over Lambda Chi Alpha 39-24. The score at halftime was 20-15 in favor of Sigma Chi only.

McGlynn and Wambold shared scoring honors in that half. With McGlynn paving the attack, Sigma Chi pulled out to a lead which was never endangered.

NET NOTES: Bill Sprague of Theta Chi and Al Watrel of Lambda Chi Alpha shared scoring honors for the evening.

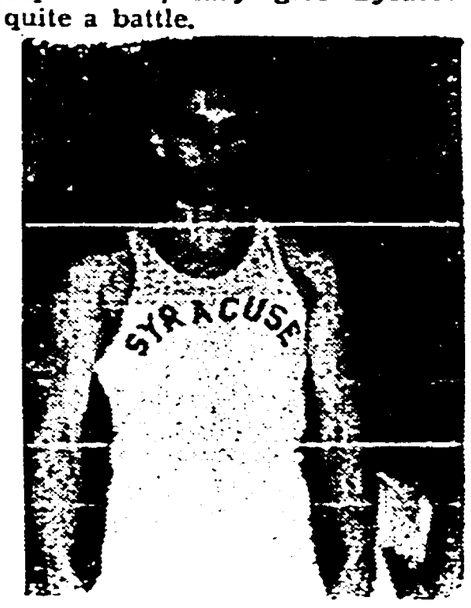
Gym Team Faces Tarheels Tonight

Syracuse's gymnastic team embarked on its longest trip of the season Saturday night, beginning its 1953-54 season. This trip will take the Orangemen to the University of North Carolina, Duke and Florida State.

The North Carolina meet at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, Monday will be the first for the spirited Piety gymnasts. The Tarheel team, composed mainly of untried sophomores, may give Syracuse quite a battle.



MILAN TRNKA, one of Coach Paul Romeo's gymnasts who will compete in the all-around event at North Carolina this Monday.

WITH THIS factor in mind, Coach Paul Romeo is contemplating no easy time of it at Chapel Hill. Chuck Hartley, ace rope climber who won that event at the Southern Intercollegiate gymnastic league championship two years ago at Florida State university, should offer a stiff test for the Orange participants in the rope climb.

Chuck Goodin, a senior, will probably spark the Tarheels in the side horse. After two years of competition with such leading powers as Florida State and the University of Florida, Goodin should be well prepared for the Hillmen invasion.

The Saltine gymnasts left Syracuse Saturday evening. Among the travelling party were Coach Paul Romeo, co-captains John Barkal and Ferdie Fournies, Milan Trnka, Corky Sebbo, and Dan Traficante. The squad expects to arrive in Chapel Hill sometime this morning after an extensive weekend journey by car.

The team will stop overnight Sunday somewhere along the way. A morning arrival at North Carolina will allow the team to rest sufficiently for the meet with the Tarheels which will begin at 8 tumbling champion, Barkal, Fournies and Trnka will see action in the tumbling competition. These Syracuse participants should bring back several points to the Orange score.

Sebbo was undefeated last season in tumbling. He defeated Bob Sullivan of Illinois in a hairline finish in last year's nationals. If he's in shape, and he and the rest of the team have been working out for quite some time now, Corky will be tough to top.

Barkal did not compete in the tumbling competition in many meets last year. But he has been drilling quite extensively on his tumbling this year and he too may stage a fine finish.

Trnka, who participates in many events like Barkal, is not expected to walk away with honors in this event either, but he too might add to the Saltine scoring in the tumbling competition.

BARKAL, TRNKA and Traficante will compete in the side horse event for the Hill gymnasts. All three Syracusans have seen extensive service in this event in the past and, therefore should fare quite well for themselves and their team.

Ferdie Fournies and Trnka will attempt the rope climb for the Orangemen. Ferdie placed fifth in the Nationals in this event last year with a 3.8 seconds time. Trnka has always given a good account of himself in the rope climb and could press Fournies for honors, provided no North Carolinian passes the Piety duo. Sebbo also will enter this event.

Dan Traficante, Barkal and Trnka will represent Syracuse in the parallel bars. This trio will supply the Pietymen with men of unusually high caliber on the parallel bars. All three exhibited their proficiency a year ago. If one of this group fell off in the event last year one or both of the others made up for it in meet after meet.

The Hillmen will throw Fournies and Trnka into the flying rings competition. Fournies excelled on the rings a year ago and may show some improvement.

BARKAL WILL represent the Saltine gymnasts in the high bar, along with the usually proficient Trnka. The latter placed sixth in the Easterns in this event last March.

From Chapel Hill Syracuse will travel to Durham to meet the Duke Blue Devils tomorrow afternoon. On Thursday evening the Orangemen will wind up their schedule against southern teams with a meet scheduled against Florida State, the National AAU champion, at 8:15 p.m.

Schedules Benefit Mat, Swim Teams

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

This winter's sports schedule refutes the old saying: "all good things come in threes." While the swimming and wrestling teams boost their longest and toughest schedules in the past decade, the Orange fencers have the shortest schedule since fencing was elevated to varsity status in 1949.

The mermen will compete in eight dual meets this year in addition to the National Swimming Championships which will be held at the Archbold tank sometime in March.

LAST YEAR, the Orange mermen only had a six dual meet schedule.

Like the swimsters, the Syracuse wrestlers have their best schedule in the past decade and a half.

Next week, a few of Coach Joe McDaniel's charges will journey to Pennsylvania to compete in the Wilkes tournament, which is somewhat similar to the Niagara AAU swimming championships.

Following the Wilkes trip, the Orange grapplers open their home schedule with a match against Cortland State Teacher's college.

After Cortland, the grapplers have seven more dual meets scheduled in addition to the Eastern Wrestling Championships which will be held on March 12 and 13.

UNFORTUNATELY for wrestling coach McDaniels and swimming mentor Webster, the lengthy schedules come at a time when both squads are short of experienced men due to graduation losses.

Coach Webster is having a hard time trying to replace George Mishko and Charlie Kohnken while McDaniels is no better off, having lost six of last year's starters including Enzio Marrinelli, Bob Bury and Dick Beyer.

JOE McDANIEL, whose Piety grapplers met Ithaca last Friday afternoon in a pre-season practice meet.

One sport which hasn't fared too well as far as winter schedules are concerned is fencing. The Piety D'artagnans have only six dual meets slated, as compared to 13 in 1951.

All this goes again to show that "all good things don't come in three." If you believe otherwise, drop down to the fencing room and catch an earful.

Can the Eagles fly high again?

Niagara university's Purple Eagles, Syracuse opponents Wednesday evening, are in the midst of the most strenuous campaign in their court history. Whether they can duplicate their fine record and National Invitation tourney performance of a year ago is one of the big questions of the 1953-54 season.

ALWAYS A crowd-pleasing quintet with their fast-break and jump shot attack, the Eagles nearly stole the show in last year's NIT. They upset Brigham Young university, 82-76, in an overtime thriller, then fought down to the final whistle before dropping a 79-74 battle to powerful Seton Hall. The Setonians won the title but the Eagles won the cheers—they were the darlings of the Garden fans.

Niagara won the Allie Seelback Memorial trophy, emblematic of Upstate basketball supremacy, on its way to the NIT. It marked the first time in history that a team other than the "Big Three" of Syracuse, Cornell and Colgate had won the award.

Last year's record of 22 wins and six losses was of the Horatio Alger variety following the disastrous 1952-53 season when the Purple could win but six of 28 contests.

Now the lads from Monteagle ridge have embarked on a 24-game schedule that includes such national powers as Duquesne, LaSalle, St. John's, Holy Cross, Fordham, Georgetown, Siena, Canisius, St. Bonaventure, Colgate, Toledo, New York university, Arizona and, of course, Syracuse. They will also participate in the Holiday Festival tournament later this month in New York.

NIAGARA'S STARTING five of Capt. Larry Costello, Charlie Hoxie, Ed Flemming, Baltico (Bo) Erias and Jim McConnell is in its third season as a unit. But, if experience is the team's strength, then lack of depth is its weakness.

Failure of the reserves when the starters rested or fouled out was the cause of many Eagle defeats last season. Coach John (Taps) Gallagher, in his 20th season at the Cataract city school, hopes to come up with a stronger bench this year.

Chief additions to the Purple squad are a pair of former New York city all-high selections, Tommy Hemans and John Donohue. A 6 ft.-5, 18-year old from Benjamin Franklin high, Hemans was the big man on last year's Niagara frosh. He is a good scorer and aggressive off the boards.

Donohue, a graduate of Cardinal Hayes high, has a quick set shot and will probably be used to spell Capt. Costello.

COSTELLO, FROM nearby Minoa, not only led his teammates in scoring the past two campaigns, but established a Western New York single-season record last year with a 510-point performance. His 18.2 average placed him 59th among the nation's scorers.

Larry was named to the NIT all-star team last spring after scoring 25 points against Brigham Young and 21 against Seton Hall. He also received honorable mention on the United Press all-American and was named to seven all-opponent teams, including that of Syracuse. The 6 ft. senior is a hot prospect for national honors again this season.

One of the highlights of the '53 season occurred Feb. 21 in Albany when the Eagles outlasted Siena, 88-81, in a 70-minute, six-overtime thriller, the longest collegiate contest of all time.

The first overtime period began with the score deadlocked at 54-54. Playing cautiously, both teams notched seven points in the period for a 61-61 tie. Each scored two points in the second overtime, seven in the third and again two in the fourth extra session. The teams split eight points in the fifth period to run the score to 76-all.

COSTELLO BROKE the game wide open in the record-breaking sixth overtime, however, with three jump shots and the Eagles rolled up 12 points for the marathon victory.

Scanning the Intramural Scene

By AL GEFEN

In case you're wondering how teams are placed in the various flights in the intramural system, you might be interested to know that a team's record for the previous year in that sport is the prime factor in determining this placement procedure.

Taking basketball as an example, the teams in the fraternity division which won their respective flights a year ago, with the exception of Sigma Alpha Mu, were placed in Flight I this season. Delta Kappa Epsilon, fraternity champion of a year ago, Phi Delta Theta, Tau Epsilon Phi, Tau Delta Phi, Kappa Sigma and Alpha Chi Rho presently make up Flight I.

THE SECOND Flight consists of Sammie and five other quintets which came in second in their respective flights a year ago.

The remaining flights work much the same until Flight VI contains teams which finished last in their divisions in intramural hoop the previous year.

The independent division which is divided into flights containing living centers and other independent teams is worked much the same way. The only drawback here is that very rarely do these living center and independent teams have squads with player personnel who competed with these same houses the year before.

THIS SYSTEM is used with all sports wherever possible. In sports such as pingpong, handball and other such minor athletic events where many teams enter a team one year, but not the next and so on it is difficult to make use of such a system.

Then too, many of the above named sports use the double elimination process. This gives a team which loses one game or match a chance to remain in the running for the championship. The latter system cannot be operated in basketball, football, and softball for lack of time and facilities.

In view of the many difficult problems facing the intramural heads in setting up and maintaining our intramural program at Syracuse university, we believe that they are doing a marvelous job in promoting intramural sports for the students. We dip our hats to Milt Howard and his assistants in the intramural office.

Due to the approaching Christmas vacation, there will be no action in intramural basketball this week. A full slate will be carded, however, for the week school resumes.

THE INITIAL round of intramural bowling concludes with this week's matches. A limited number of such matches will be staged. The second round begins directly after the Christmas vacation.

The winners of each flight of both rounds will meet each other for flight championship determination. These flight champions will then engage in an elimination playoff series to determine the all-University bowling crown winner.

INTRA BITS: Competition in intra handball, ping pong, and skiing will commence shortly after the Christmas layoff . . . Johnny Dellas, star hoopster with the all-University champions Senecans a couple of years back, is still competing in the backcourt sport. Johnny is doing very well for himself in the City Recreation league.

and Hammarskjold became secretary general."

Carpenter praised Hammerskjold, declaring the Swede is "making a good record." He has eliminated the former Trygve Lie policy of a private elevator and wants to meet and know everyone connected with the UN.

In a more serious vein, Carpenter said the Security Council move in sending troops to Korea justified its existence as never before.

The North Korean invasion of South Korea came at a time when Jakob Malik was on strike against the Council. An immediate meeting was called to decide policy. Without Malik's veto to delay proceedings, the Council voted to oppose this aggression with force.

A MEMBER of the audience criticized the UN for failing to alleviate war conditions in Indo China and asked Carpenter if he considered the organization successful.

Carpenter replied that France insists the Indo China affair is a domestic issue and does not want the UN there.

On the question of UN success he said, "They said they would stop aggression in Korea and they have done that." He added that the UN is better than the League of Nations in that the League failed to go into Manchuria at the crucial time.

If this had been done perhaps Japanese aggression and ultimate war with the United States would have been avoided. The League never showed that it could fight.

CARPENTER congratulated the UN on preventing war. This was true in Palestine, Indoneisa and Kashmir. "It is true that we lost people in Korea, but I have the feeling that if we hadn't gone into Korea we would be fighting in our own back yards."

future or be punished by the United Nations.

In answer to the Lebanon resolution, Mrs. Ellisheva Shohat, the delegate from Israel, told council members that in the establishment of the Israel state, her country had always been disturbed by Arab fighting, shooting and murdering.

Mrs. Shohat defended the Israeli action on the basis that the attack was merely in revenge for other disturbances by the Arab nation.

Voting on the resolutions concluded Friday's session.

Hill to Take 'Alpine Holiday' for Carnival

It's Christmas, USA, on Campus Tonight

A QUINTET OF the cast and crew of "Christmas, U.S.A.," full-scale holiday production to be presented in Chapel at 8 p.m., today, make with the words and music in a last minute rehearsal. Shown are DON KAUFMAN and BILL ANGELOS, co-producers and bassist DON ROSSMAN. Songstress LORRAINE PETERS and producer LANNY O'KUN are at the keyboard.

"CHRISTMAS, U.S.A." co-producer DON KAUFMAN points out a script change to narrator WILLARD LAPE. WAER producer RANSOM PLACE adds a comment. The one-hour long Yule fantasy will be broadcast by WAER today at 8 p.m. All money collected at the performance will go to the Christmas seal drive.

Festive WAER Radio Production In Chapel Will Benefit Seal Drive

A holiday combination of story and song will fill Hendricks chapel at 8 p.m. today when selections of Syracuse's best musical and dramatic talent joins in the production of "Christmas, U.S.A."

Presented for the benefit of the current Christmas seal campaign, the hour-long Yule show will be broadcast live by radio station WAER. It is open to the entire campus.

"CHRISTMAS, U.S.A." will feature the combined efforts of a cast of over 65 including the 50-voice chorus of Gamma Phi Beta sorority and Alpha Chi Rho fraternity. The entire WAER staff, under the supervision of program director Nancy Hoehle, will pool their talents in the largest such production ever undertaken by the campus station.

The producers emphasize that everyone is welcome to attend the holiday presentation. Representatives of the Christmas seal drive will collect contributions at the door on a strictly voluntary basis.

According to WAER promotion director Gilbert Katz, "No one is obligated to contribute but regardless, let's fill the Chapel."

The show is being produced, directed and written by Harlan (Lanny) O'Kun, William Angelos and Donald Kaufman. O'Kun and Angelos, who will provide 15 new songs for the fantasy, can be recalled as the song writing team behind "White Bucks and Tales." Among the new tunes are "Christmas in the Air," "Sleighride," "Why Pretend" and "Mister, Buy My Christmas Tree."

KAUFMAN PROVIDED the written narration which will be read by Willard Lape.

Featuring 12 story segments sprinkled with melody, "Christmas, U.S.A." is described as a narrative presented with a Christmas setting and theme. It concerns a man walking through town and his observation of the Yule season. All music, comedy and drama will be flavored in keeping with the holiday mood.

One of the top numbers will be an adaptation of "Gift of the Magi" by O. Henry which has been presented several times by WAER with original music by O'Kun and Angelos. The chorus will provide musical narrative.

Billed as featured vocalists for the production are Jane Williams, Louise Orlando, Lorraine Peters, Lorraine Smorol, Frederick Griesinger and Kenneth Sparks. Greta Wolfe, a newcomer on campus will also be spotlighted. Miss Wolfe was an understudy in the road company of "Brigadoon" and was featured in "Skating Vanities" prior to coming to Syracuse.

RANSOM PLACE, special events director of the station, will act as producer on behalf of station WAER and announcer for the broadcast (8-9 p.m., 88.1 mc.). He will assist in the coordination of the largest "live" show ever presented by the FM outlet. More technical equipment will be utilized than on any previous occasion. Special loud speakers have been installed in Chapel for the benefit of the audience.

Wallace Bradley, WAER's chief engineer, will supervise the technical aspects of the airing and James Fellows heads seating and finance. Six sophomore

Panel of Americans Meets Tomorrow

Group Plans Discussion In Maxwell Auditorium

Syracuse university will be given an opportunity to hear the senior team of Panel of Americans at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Maxwell aud.

The team of five students and a mederator went to New York city last week to give a demonstration to a meeting of national leaders.

MEMBERS OF the panel will talk on what America means to them and how the group they represent is affected by conditions in America.

This panel will include Tatoru Tsufura, John Snead, Lynda Pollack, Frank DellaPosta and Vernon Lee. Mrs. Frank Cole of the College of Home Economics will moderate.

Each panel consists of a moderator plus a Protestant, Catholic, Jew, Negro and second generation American student. The panel, organized here last year, was so successful that it was chosen to serve as a model at the national meeting of Panel of Americans, inc.

The Syracuse team was invited by Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia university.

THE ORGANIZATION sends out such panels to speak to service, church and school groups on their beliefs and attitudes concerning America. A discussion period is included in the program.

Its purpose is to counteract prejudices and discrimination based on racial, religious, national or ethnic group membership, creating interest in the problem in local community groups.

Rev. Arnold Nakajima and Miss Elizabeth Evans are advisors to the panel.

Wood in Ground Heralds Building

With the pounding of wood into the ground and the setting up of a table for the blueprints, construction of engineering building one got under way Friday south of Smith.

Building completion has tentatively been set for September, '54.

Contracts totalling $857,662 were awarded to five firms ten days ago.

The building will be approximately 200 feet long and 69 feet wide, and will house all laboratories for chemical engineering and part of the civil, electrical and industrial engineering labs.

The structure will be built of "flat-plate" reinforced concrete and will follow the current University architectural design, with red brick trim and limestone facing.

Two's Available For Med Formal

Girls who attend the medical college formal tomorrow night may take special 2 o'clock permissions for the dance by filling out one of their pink slips and leaving it on the proctor's desk of their house.

Vacation Housing Registration Set

Students who wish to remain in University living centers during Christmas vacation should register today with Miss Kathryn Copeland in the dean of women's office or with Jack C. Buckle in the dean of men's office.

Charge for any student staying the entire period will be $12. A $6 fee will be collected from those who plan to stay for one week. The price for any part of a week is $1.50 per night.

Linen will also be furnished for these prices.

Hamilton Names Mystery Picture

The Daily Orange telephones failed to jingle as often as in Wednesday's contest, but the latest "Who Is It?" picture produced a winner immediately once again.

Byron B. Hamilton of 400 Cherry rd. called the Hellbox at exactly 2 p.m. Friday and identified the picture on page 6 of The Daily Orange as Carl Staplin of Kappa Sigma.

Students, Faculty Will Carol Tonight

Crouse Group to Visit Four Area Hospitals

The Crouse Carolers, students and faculty of Crouse college, will sing Christmas carols tonight to the four hospitals in the University area.

For the first time the new Veterans hospital will be included in the caroling. Chancellor Tolley will also be serenaded.

SPONSORED BY the Student Advisory council to Dr. Capurso, director of the School of Music, the sing will conclude at 10 p.m. Carolers will then return to Crouse for a party.

The Student Advisory council, organized last spring, has become well known in Crouse for its unusual activity.

Last May the council members wrote long-hand letters to every music student admitted to Syracuse. These letters of welcome answered their questions concerning vocations, curriculum, faculty and distinguishing features of the School of Music.

According to Dr. Capurso, the group was organized to "bring student opinion closer to him and encourage student leadership."

"THE COUNCIL serves as a sounding board to reflect student opinion."

Each week two undergraduates, one graduate student and a faculty member are guests at the meeting of the regular 11 members.

Members are chosen from the most outstanding students both musically and academically. Miss Ann Forrest is president.

Security Council Defeats Proposals, Concludes Sessions

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

With every resolution vote on a negative basis, delegates to the weekend model Security Council concluded the session at 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Representatives from 11 colleges and universities left Maxwell auditorium after defeating three resolutions to investigate atrocity charges against Communist China and North Korea and proposals concerning secretarial employment in the light of recent findings of the advisory committee and administrative tribunal.
