THE COUNCIL passed a United States amendment to a Russian resolution concerning data on personnel submitted to the International Civil Service board.

The delegate representing France (Cornell university) arrived Friday evening and was present for both Saturday sessions. At the final conclaves all delegates were present but Colombia, which was to have been represented by Hobart college.

After the opening of the morning session the delegate from Chile proposed a resolution that a commission to investigate atrocities be postponed until the end of peace deliberations in Korea.

The South American nation also proposed that the commission, when formed, consist of representatives from Brazil, Czechoslovakia, India, Poland and Sweden. Chile later changed its proposal to substitute Greece for Brazil.

UNITED STATES delegates proposed that the secretary general appoint "a truly impartial commission which would be above reproach" to investigate the charges.

These two resolutions and a third by Pakistan were defeated in a 15-minute voting session following proposals and discussion. The Pakistan resolution called for an impartial investigating group within a commission consisting of India,

St. Thomas More Fetes 71 Children

Seventy-one children from the House of Providence found the Christmas season a little merrier Sunday when they were feted at a holiday party by the executive council of St. Thomas More chapel.

Members of the exec council acted as parents to the youngsters, who ranged in age from five to 10 years.

Dr. C. C. Hoffman of Syracuse mystified the children with magic tricks. Games and Christmas carols were also on the program. Members of the executive council presented an original skit entitled "Under the Christmas Tree" in which toys became animated and put on a show.

Highlight of the party was the appearance of Santa Claus. Accompanied by Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer, the jolly gentleman handed out gifts from his North Pole workshop for each child.

PETER ROSE and JANET CARO, seniors in sociology and American Studies-Journalism, respectively, will act as over-all co-chairmen of "Alpine Holiday," Syracuse university's 22nd Winter Carnival weekend, slated for Feb. 12-14, 1954. Photos by John Johnsrud

Panel of Economists To Appraise Russia

Social and economic life in Russia will be appraised by four noted economists at 9 a.m. Thursday in Hendricks chapel at a forum jointly sponsored by the College of Business Administration and Maxwell School of Citizenship.

The group will attempt to show the differences between life in a democracy and life under a totalitarian government. The session is open to all students. 9, 10 and 11 o'clock classes will be dismissed for students enrolled in Business Administration.

DR. WLADYSLAW Kulski, a former Polish minister plenipotentiary in London, will speak on "The Soviet Upbringing of One-Minded Citizens."

Maj. Gen. William O. Reeder, former member of the army logistics department, will discuss "The Russian Military Potential."

Dr. Harry Schwartz, who is at present on leave from the University as Soviet affairs writer for the New York Times, will view "The Russian Economic Potential".

Dr. Theo Suranyi-Unger, author and economist, will speak on "The Setting for U.S.-U.S.S.R. Relations."

MORRIS E. HURLEY, acting dean of the College of Business Administration, and Carl B. Rye, associate dean of Maxwell School of Citizenship, will make the opening remarks.

Discussion following the talks will be led by Hans Brandes of Maxwell and Salvatore DiPalma of Business Ad. Questions from the floor will then be answered.

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional commerce fraternity, will be in charge of ushering, while Sigma Iota Epsilon, national management honorary society, will take care of stamping blanks to be presented by business ad students.

Construction Slated For Reserve Center

University Leases Land To US Government

The $400,000 army reserve training center to be constructed on Syracuse university property at E. Colvin st. and Lancaster ave. will not be used by the University, it was indicated yesterday.

Mayor Thomas Corcoran considered at public hearing a law which would allow the city to lease to the federal government for 50 years at the cost of $1 a year about four-tenths of an acre of city-owned land at the corner.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY has already leased three and one-half acres of property at the northwest site of the intersection south of Lew Carr field at Collendale.

A 300 by 80-foot one-story modern structure will be erected on the site by the First Army for use as a training center. The building will not be a drill hall but will contain classrooms, demonstrations and storage rooms and an auditorium designed for visual aids.

The property that is being sought from the city would be used for a parking area to hold about 100 cars.

According to Major F. M. Scott, army real estate and facilities officer of the New York Military district, the site was selected from among six possibilities. This one was found best because the University was willing to lease the property for 50 years at $1 per year.

THE BUILDING would be known as a 1,000 man training center, and would be used five nights a week to train reserves, Maj. Scott stated. About 150 men would use it a night.

Maj. Scott reported that even if the land is not obtained from the city, the army is committed to build the training center and will proceed on the University property, with the University providing parking facilities.

Friday Deadline For Buying ON's

Deadline for subscriptions to the '54 ON has been set for noon Friday, according to Beverly Barr. No subscriptions will be accepted after Friday, and no extra books will be ordered, said Miss Barr.

All subscriptions must be returned to the old Audio-visual center, 121 College pl. or to Barr at Chi Omega, 1003 Walnut ave.

CHILDREN'S PARTY

Children from the Elmcrest Children's Center were guests of the Kappa Delta sorority yesterday at a Christmas party.

Miss Caro, Rose Head 22nd Event Set for February

Syracuse university will take an "Alpine Holiday," as the campus celebrates its 22nd Winter Carnival weekend Feb. 12-14, 1954.

Janet Caro and Peter Rose, seniors in American-Studies-Journalism and sociology, respectively, are overall co-chairmen of the annual event, which takes its theme from the European countries which are centers for winter-sports enthusiasts.

THE WEEKEND will be dedicated to Fay Welch, professor emeritus in the College of Forestry and one of the original founders of Winter Carnival weekend at Syracuse.

"Frozen Fables" will be depicted by the campus houses entering snow sculpures in the traditional contest. The sculptures will portray European folklore and legend, ranging from figures in native costumes to characters from the stories of European writers including the tales of Grimm and Hans Christian Anderson.

Trophies will be awarded to the best entries in fraternity, sorority, independent men's and independent women's divisions.

Joanne LaFaro, Theta Phi Alpha, is chairman of the snow sculpture contest. Judging will take place at noon Friday, Feb. 12.

ICE EXPERTS will take to "Silver Skates" for the speed skating events, scheduled for Friday on the Thornden park rink. Individual races and relay contests are planned by Barbara Witter, Shaw, and Martin Wexler, Tau Delta Phi, co-chairmen of the events.

More than 50 skaters will present Swiss folk dances and a waltz spectacle number when "White Boots and Blades," the annual ice pageant, is presented Friday evening on the rink at the Drumlins country club. Solo and comedy numbers will also be presented. Phyllis Krinovitz is chairman of the pageant.

Special feature of the ice pageant will be the presentation of the Winter Carnival empress, who will reign over the "Alpine Holiday" events. Chairman of the selection committee is Michael Schaffer, Zeta Beta Tau.

Alpine enthusiasts, dressed in sports clothes and minus shoes, will retreat to a cosy chalet, alias Drumlins, for the traditional Stockingfoot dance, which will follow the ice pageant. The informal affair will be highlighted by a contest to select the most unusual footgear. Group singing and informal entertainment will be featured during the evening's program.

Intramural and intercollegiate skiing races and a jump contest will be included in the weekend's sports event, with competitors from Eastern colleges competing.

The Carrie Lou Andrews memorial trophy will be awarded to the Syracuse skier rating highest in the jump. Miss Andrews, co-chairman of last year's ice pageant and

Movie on Missions Set for Tomorrow

A film, "A Day in the Life of the Medical Mission Sisters," will be shown at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at St. Thomas More chapel under the sponsorships of the chapel's missions committees.

Robert Wing of Syracuse, father of two nuns in the medical missions service overseas, will be guest speaker and will discuss the work of the missions.

All interested students are invited to attend the meeting in the St. Thomas More lounge.

The committee also urges students to donate used postage stamps to aid the missions work.

Continuous Showing Of Movie Planned

Two films on "College Week in Bermuda" will be shown continuously from 7 to 10 p.m. today in 117 Lyman.

Students may come to see the films at any time during this period, according to Sandra Eaken and Samuel Shawhan, campus representatives.

Marcia Donaldson of the Graham travel agency, which plans the special Bermuda week, will be on hand to answer questions.

All students are urged to attend.

Chapel Ceremony Ushers in Holiday Season

Christmas was welcomed to Syracuse university Sunday night.

As he gave the signal to light the all-University Christmas tree in front of the Chapel, Dean Charles C. Noble spoke of its ability "to say what cannot be said at this season."

Standing on the steps near the tree, Joseph Schuler of Lambda Chi Alpha, awarded trophies for the fraternity's decoration contest.

First prize in the Greek division went to Beta Theta Pi for its window and tree decorations. Delta Tau Delta and Alpha Chi Rho received honorable mention.

The annual pageant followed, featuring members of Zeta Phi Eta, women's speech honorary, and the Chapel choir.

A group of more than 100 carolers left the Chapel after the pageant to make a singing tour of the campus. They ended the evening with a coffee at the Lambda Chi Alpha house sponsored by Chapel House reps.

MORE THAN 300 students attended the annual Smorgasbord in the Chapel Sunday. Here guests of Lutheran Student fellowship sit in the Colonial room, enjoying the meal. The group later attended the University tree lighting ceremony and pageant.

STUDENTS MAKE the rounds of three heavily laden tables at the annual smorgasbord, held by the Lutheran Student fellowship Sunday night in Hendricks chapel. The food was prepared by the members of the group, advised by Miss Marilyn Pfleuger.

Self-preservation

At least one—and no doubt more—student has become irate over recent thefts that have occurred on University property and in frarternity and sorority houses.

Annually the University receives many reports concerning missing money, disappearing raincoats and books that were left in Slocum but cannot be found.

The recent reports of theft in fraternities, although some of them were solved, makes us think that maybe we're not all as honest as good college students should be.

All of us have heard lectures on honesty. We're no longer interested in the moral considerations involved.

So we'll forget that side of it and look at the more practical aspect of the matter.

Perhaps one day a would-be bandit who fancies the suede jacket hanging from a hook in Slocum will get caught. It's improbable, but if it does happen, the kid will just think of how he could have bought a coat—one that would fit him and one that might not get him thrown out of school.

If we can't preach morals, then we'll preach self-preservation. If everybody watches his own coat, there will be no need to swipe someone else's. And everyone will be warm for the winter ahead.

As for money, Chapel loan service is always willing to come through if you need a textbook, transportation money or a new overcoat.

But to those persons who would stoop to petty larceny, we would caution that they are wasting their time on this small change and still taking a lot of risk.

Why not quit school and try for the big time?

Christmas on stage

University students will today receive another opportunity to prove to the citizens of Syracuse and Onondaga county that collegians think of others besides themselves.

Tonight the Hill's interpretation of "Christmas U.S.A." comes to life on the Hendricks chapel stage. The donations received at the door will not go to a campus activity or organization, however, but to the Onondaga county Health association for the current Christmas seal campaign.

It is these funds that will be given to the fight against tuberculosis. There is no set fee for the performance tonight. The only monetary limit will be the one placed by the individual student.

The entire holiday treat will run for one hour during which time WAER will capture the musical for those unable to attend. This program is the largest "live" presentation ever attempted by the Hill radio station.

Approximately 100 students have contributed their singing, staging and technical talents during the last month to make this show a success. The team of O'Kun and Angelos contributed 15 songs while Don Kaufman provided a 12 scene narrative.

The members of Gamma Phi Beta sorority will join the Alpha Chi Rho's in providing the choral interpretations. One of the highlights of the show will be an adaptation of O. Henry's "Gift of the Magi," an unforgettable contribution to Christmas literature.

If there should be a repeat on yesterday's weather, it is possible that a few of the less hardy individuals will refuse to brave the storm.

However, we urge all students to take to heart the motto of the Post Office Department: Neither snow nor rain . . . stays these couriers from their appointed (date).

Principle for Syracuse poster contests: Should originality be a prime criterion in judging of a winner?

Art vs. Imagination

By HUGH O. MUIR

Prize winning Alpha Chi Rho version

The facts of the problem are as follows: Alpha Chi Rho fraternity had winning designs in both the Cornell and Colgate poster contests this year. A few weeks ago a publication titled "Graphis" attained rather wide circulation on campus as it was required reading for certain art students. In this magazine were discovered posters identical in illustration to the winning designs of Alpha Chi Rho. It was then apparent that the fraternity's posters were original neither in idea nor art work but merely had been adapted for collegiate use. "Graphis" is a publication that presents outstanding designs in advertising from all over the world.

The argument immediately arising is that many of the posters each year are obvious "steals" from well-known artists or cartoonists. If these are allowed, why draw the line on any other copy?

There are two answers to this. One: an "obvious steal" is just that, obvious. Judges can consider this among other factors in judging. A second answer is that an "obvious steal" can just as easily be used by any other organization since both have easy access to the source.

From the fact that a poster that was based on a plagerized idea has never won, a just conclusion is that the judges have, through an unwritten rule, demanded originality as a prime factor.

Obviously not. Actual art work through the years has usually been the determining factor within two or more postors of the same caliber otherwise. And here again arises another argument against the use of borrowed ideas. Frequently the original good idea is accompanied with good art work. And copying is the easiest form of producing art there is.

The third question: Just what are the ethics of using an idea not one's own?

This brings up the basic purpose for a Colgate or Cornell poster contest in the first place. If it is purely to entertain, then obviously the best presentation is desired and one would not particularly care who thought up the idea or design. But the very fact that a CONTEST exists as such takes it to another level. The contest is to show the best from each organization because the prize is presented to that organization. And in competition, no one wants to compete against a "ringer."

That a rule is needed against such a practice seems apparent. True, it is a rule that would be hard to enforce legally, but morally it would set the direction and tone for all poster contests.

For the organization involved, the present issue is unfortunate. But for the principle involved, it is good to have the problem cleared up. We trust that future poster contestants will profit from this slip of the paint brush.

LETTERARY COMMENT

'Taken for Suckers'

To the Editor:

Wake up! I think its about time the student body as a whole stopped being taken for suckers. In recent weeks there has been an epidemic, systemized or not, of stolen clothing and other valuables on campus. Most of us as students have a hard enough time keeping ourselves warm this winter, without clothing someone else whom we don't know.

I figure I got off fairly easily, since I only lost a new jacket and pen and pencil set, stolen right off the rack in downstairs Slocum at noon on Thursday. The thief was good enough to drop my car keys, anyway. I understand a fellow lost his topcoat last week.

At any rate, unless your wallet is weighting you down, don't leave yourself wide open to a free ticket to the Polar Bear club.

Bill Robbins, '54

P.S. My coat is a dark blue surjacket with a gray sfripe on each sleeve. I have positive identification of it.

AT THE FLICKERS

Rush, Rush, but Where?

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

Some "grass" and a "city"

Last Saturday night an especially responsive audience witnessed the second program in the Museum of Modern Art film series at the Women's building.

The first film shown was an American documentary made in 1939, entitled "the City." Beginning with the inscription "Our cities grow more complex and less livable," it proceeded to demonstrate this fact graphically. This it most definitely did. The camera swings down a slum street, searches the faces of its children; sad and barren faces, and the horror of modern life is revealed. Or it takes you through the lunchtime activities of office workers, and we see a race of automatons. Rush, rush—but where?

Then it presents a picture of a well-planned modern city and asks if we have the courage to build it. This was 1939. It is now 1953 and that city is still a dream.

The film's commentary had tendency to declaim itself into a state of absurdity but Morris Carnovsky's forceful reading of it and Aaron Copland's clever background music helped it over the hump.

The second film, "Grass," was a photographic record of the migration of the Baktyari tribe, in Asia, toward new grazing land. Merian C. Cooper, Ernest Scoedsak and Marguerite Harrison, who photographed the adventure in 1925, were the first foreigners ever to witness it.

One can imagine our grandmothers and fathers being so thrilled by this film back in 1925, that they could scarcely finish their popcorn. But today the titles which accompany the film are so hysterically niave and in appropriate that the effect of the life and death struggle of man against nature came out resembling a sort of satire on travalogues and the participants in the struggle have to play second fiddle to some pitiable goats.

In olden days on Christmas eve
You always brought toys to me.
I was thankful for what I got,
It didn't mtter if it wasn't a lot.

There's something else you can bring to me.
Now don't get me wrong, I liked the toys,

CHRISTMAS STORY

Bold About Christmas

Chapter II

As you remember from yesterday (or if you have just mastered the mother tongue today), this is the story so far. We left Mrs. Drix in her luxurious home among crumbling walls, screaming parakeets and various and sundry interruptions.

Amid all this noise, our hero, Mr. Drix, returns to his castle from him job (punching holes in IBM cards). He had been planning all day to surprise his wife by bringing home a tree and some decorations.

He was so loaded down with Christmas cheer that he did not notice the holacast that was turning his happy home into a madhouse.

Suddenly, as suddenly as it had started the noise stopped. The walls stopped crumbling, the roof stopped shaking, and, yea, even Sam the parakeet ceased trembling.

"And what, if I may so bold," (she was always bold, but it being the holiday season she thought that it would be nice to ask permission for something that she was accustomed to do anyway), "are those."

"Decorations for our Christmas tree," said her loving spouse.

"Our what?"

"Our tree!"

At this moment the packages that Mr. D. had been carrying burst open, and a strange bit of tinsel fell on the floor.

"Mercy Maude," said Mrs. D., "What was that?"

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS:

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL . . .

By JAN CARO and ART SIEGEL

Each year around this time we dust off the Rudolph records and prepare for two—count them—weeks of bliss during which we can get run down enough to have to recuperate back at school.

Each year someone on the Daily Orange gathers together his thoughts and thinks of all the acquaintances he has made during the year and the friends that he has made.

Again this year, and reluctantly, because it's the last one we two will be writing together, we list some of the presents that we would give—if we had the money, the ability and the right to give them. We certainly do have the desire.

Chancellor Tolley needs a new orange-and-blue tie to celebrate his 11th year as our greatest Chancellor. For Dean Piskor, a 36-hour-day; Jack Buckle, a room refund, Steve Reiss, some more keys to wear.

Syracuse Gymnasts Beat North Carolina

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

A commentary upon the Niagara AAU swimming championships held in the Orange pool last Saturday would be: The participants were there, the excitement was there, but the spectators were not.

Only a little over 100 people showed up to view a meet which included the best from the Central New York splash world. Perhaps it was because of all the formals that night or just pre-Christmas disinterest, but it's too bad that after all the hard work Ted Webster and the athletic department did, that more fans didn't show.

Aside from the attendance aspect, the spectacle went off smoothly. The surprise of the evening was Syracuse frosh Jon Buzzard's win in the breaststroke over teammate Ed Lesko.

As Webster put it, Buzzard held the lead up until the home stretch and then "took off like Grant took Richmond."

The rest of the Orange squad performed just about as Webster expected although he said, "I didn't think the two medley relay teams would win by as much as they did."

An interesting sidelight occured when Phil Ware, Niagara university star, was not entered in one of his specialties, the 440-yard freestyle. The error came when Ware's entry blank was incorrectly made out by Niagara.

Instead, the Purple Eagle swimmery was placed in the 100, an event in which he failed to qualify. It was a bad day all around for him as Ware was nosed out of first place in the finals for the 220. Some days you just can't win.

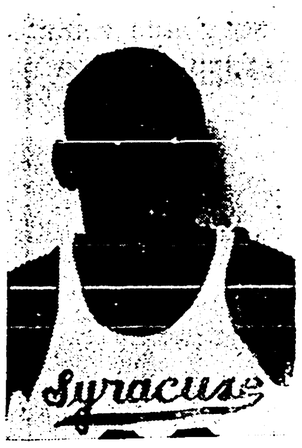
Kline and Larned were the scoring stars, but the Orange coach felt that Breland played as good an all-around game as anybody. The Syracuse soph scored 11 points and played an excellent game on defense.

Surprisingly enough, Syracuse had the edge in speed, but it threw the ball away too many times. Twice within the final three minutes, the Orange took a 1-point ead, but Violet star Boris Nachamkin took it back both times with his deadly jump shot.



"Boob" Breland

The Orange were especially weak on rebounds with the entire team being consistently outjumped. Incidentally, it was NYU's sixth straight win over Syracuse and the fourth consecutive loss for the Orange in Madison Square Garden.

There must be something to the fabled Garden jinx.

Pat Stark, who will be playing in the East-West classic on Jan. 2, is to be interviewed by sportscaster Harry Wismer tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. over the Mutual network.

Unfortunately, it doesn't look like WNDR, the Mutual outlet in Syracuse, will carry the show. The program, "Wonderful City," was taken off the Syracuse radiowaves last month.

The show will feature the work of the Shrine hospital and their relation to the game. The Shriners, who promote the East-West game each year, run the hospitals for underprivileged sick children.

Each year, the players from both teams visit the kids. Stark knows what it is to stay in bed for weeks and months on end himself. Pat had one of childhood's most terrifying diseases, polio, at the age of 12.

ORANGE SLICES: The Orange swimmers will have another excellent schedule in 1954-55 to follow this year's nine-game slate . . . Undefeated Fordham, a future Syracuse foe, topped Princeton, another opponent-to-be, 74-61 with Ram star Ed Conlin netting 25 points to bring him four-game total to 121 . . . Quotable quotes: "If we don't win, it will be because of a lack of depth"—gymnastics coach Paul Romeo concerning the present Southern swing.

Senior Bowl Picks Fleck For Contest

Syracuse tackle Bob Fleck was among six players signed to play in the Senior Bowl. The fifth annual game will be played down in Alabama, Jan. 9.

AN EXTRA player will be added to the South squad because there are more South players who are playing in Bowl games on Jan. 1 and the extra man will allow for injuries.

Two Maryland players were signed along with Fleck on the North squad. Back Ralph Felton and guard Bob Morgan signed from the Terrapins. Harland Carl, Wisconsin halfback, rounds out the four players given to the North to balance out the squads.

Zete Bratowski, Georgia's quarterback, was signed to the South squad along with Mack Franklin, an end from Tennessee.

This is the only bowl game in the nation where the players get a cut of the gate receipts. Every player on the winning team is guaranteed $500 while the losers settle for $100 less.

THIS, IN the technical sense, makes the players professionals. After the game they can no longer participate in any collegiate athletics.

The game is held at such a late date to give as many boys as possible a chance to play. The Senior Bowl association invites several pro scouts to watch this game to get a lead on talent.

This group makes the last players to be signed for the game. Both squads are now complete.

Fourth Win Goal As Orange Faces Niagara on Road

Coach Marc Guley's Orange hoopsters will be trying to get back on the winning track Wednesday night when they travel to Niagara Falls to face the powerful Niagara Eagles. The Pietymen will be after their fourth win of the young season against a single defeat suffered in Saturday's battle with NYU, 78-73.

Erratic play proved the downfall for the Syracusans in their initial setback as they were unable to hold a five point second-half lead. Boris Nachamkin, 6 ft.-6 veteran was the main obstacle to the Orange, scoring 27 points while Jack Larned and Dave Kline matched 17 counters for the losers scoring honors.

SYRACUSE'S SCORING was evenly divided again with four men hitting for double figures. In addition to Kline and Larned, Ron Kilpatrick and Boob Breland each potted 11 markers.

In Niagara, Guley's five will be facing one of the strongest obstacles on their schedule. The Purple Eagles compiled an impressive 22-6 record during the 1952-53 campaign and were invited to the National Invitational tournament, where they advanced to the quarter-finals before falling before powerful Seton Hall.

Packed with veterans, the upstaters have raced to four early wins this season against a single defeat at the hands of Fordham. Top victory for the Eagles was Saturday's 74-66 decision over highly-rated LaSalle college.

Early season scoring leader for the Niagarans has been Capt. Larry Costello, a 5 ft.-11 guard who has been averaging near the 20-point mark. Other top scorers are seniors Ed Fleming and Charlie Hoxie both of whom have been hitting for double figures consistently.

BO ERIAS, a 6 ft.-3 jumping jack had some trouble in early contests but showed he was getting back his shooting eye in the last two performances.

Only non-senior on the starting quintet for coach Taps Gallagher will be 6 ft. forward Jim McConnell ,who has moved up to the starting five replacing the only departee Johnny McMahon.

LEFTOVERS: A frosh clash between Syracuse and Niagara will precede the varsity encounter . . . Niagara, winner of the Allie Seelbach (Upstate New York) title last season will be playing its first contest towards regaining the title . . . Syracuse won its first clash in the competition by vanquishing Canisius . . . Taps Gallagher is in his 20th season with the Purple Eagles . . . His overall record is 287 victories against 152 defeats. . . . Hoxie was one of the national leaders in field goal percentages last season sinking over 50 per cent of his shots . . . Niagara will compete in the annual Holiday Basketball festival in Madison Square Garden during Christmas vacation . . . Their opening competition will be St. Johns . . . Syracuse holds a 22-7 lead in the overall series between the two schools . . . 1952-53 saw the teams splitting a home and home series with the Guleymen winning at Archbold Gym.

Piety Mermen Cop Two Titles in AAU

Syracuse university swimmers won two titles in the Niagara AAU's, held last Saturday in the Orange pool. Cornell's mermen won six of the ten titles in this meet at which no team scores were kept.

BUZZARD WAS the only Orange individual winner as he won the 200-yard breaststroke with a time of 2:31.6. His major competition came from teammate Lesko who wound up second in this race.

Patterson's bid for a win in the 100-yard freestyle was thwarted by Don Braasch of Niagara who managed to win despite a strong finish by the Pitely merman, Beaumont had a third in this event.

Cornell's Pete Wolf captured the 200-yard backstroke but McGill's fine form made a close race of it. The Orange yearling took second place while Downing finished in fourth position.

The only defending champion to reach the finals, Phil Ware of Niagara, was beaten by Bill Branch of Colgate in the 220-yard freestyle as the latter came from behind in the final lap.

LARRY CALDWELL of Cornell shared individual honors with Branch as each took a first and second place.

Cornell's "B" team broke the pool record in the final event of the evening, the 400-yard freestyle relay.

The foursome of Roy Swanson, Dick Herbert, Ralph Delaplane and Robinson Ord covered the distance in 3:37 to cut one second off the record set by the Ithacans two years ago.

Fresh from a 51-44 victory over the University of North Carolina Tarheels, the Syracuse university gymnastic squad will journey to Durham, North Carolina, to meet the Duke Blue Devils on the second leg of their present Southern tour.

Out of the total six events conducted at North Carolina last night, the Pietymen won five out of six places.

JOHN BARKAL, who won the parallel bar event, was individual high scorer for the visiting Orange team with 16 points.

Ferdie Fournies captured first place finishes in both the flying rings and the rope climb competitions. Milan Trnka took first on the high bar and Corky Sebbo, who was individual high scorer of the evening with 286 points in the tumbling event, copped the laurels in that competition.

Gordon Hudson of the University of North Carolina was high scorer for his team with 15 points. He gained top honors among participants in the side horse event.

A year ago, the Orangemen defeated Duke, 39-25, in a dual meet. Barkal took first place in the parallel bars. Blair Mathies, who placed second in that event will be back to rival Barkal once again for top honors in the parallel bars.

ART DeBEUOISE, winner of the side horse competition in last year's dual meet with Syracuse, will enter the competition for the Bluedevils in this event. Richard Jones and Mac McKinney are the other Duke lettermen who will participate in the side horse event.

The boys from Durham are quite strong in the flying rings event. Mathies and Captain Jack Evans, second and fourth place finishers in the meet with the Pietymen last year, will represent the Bluedevils in today's meet in the rings.

Pete Tolleson and Art DeBeuoise are the leading men for Duke in the high bar. Syracuse will counter with Barkal and Trnka in this event, which figures to be a highly interesting one to watch.

Corky Sebbo should have little difficulty in capturing top honors in tumbling. His only opposition among the lettermen from the southern school is expected to be Bob Prothero, who didn't fare too well against the Hillmen a year ago.

SYRACUSE'S Ferdie Fournies recorded the fastest time ever attained in a southern gymnastic meet a year ago with 3.7 mark in the rope climb. He will be out to crack this time today.

Gymnastics is a relatively new sport at Duke, and few teams in that area furnish teams. For that reason gymnastics teams in the South, excluding Florida State, are comparatively weak. Duke, however, is in the process of building a strong squad and may give the Pietymen some trouble in today's meet.

The Bluedevils, led by Coach Ray Sorenson, who is in his second year at the North Carolina school, will meet Army, Navy, North Carolina, Georgia Tech, and Florida State in addition to Syracuse. Duke won two dual meets and a triangular meet, while dropping four dual meets the preceding campaign.

Phys Ed Majors To Sponsor Convo

A men's physical education convocation will be held from 7:30-9:30 tonight in the lounge of the Men's gym.

The convocation is open to all Syracuse university male students and is free. Refreshments will be served.

How silent is the night?
Watching the serenity of Christmas skies we are conscious of deep silence. Yet the stars are talking to us all the while—talking in radio waves that are full of meaning to scientists probing the depths of space.
The important discovery that some stars produce radio waves was made by a Bell Laboratories scientist while exploring atmospheric disturbances which might interfere with transoceanic telephone service. His discovery marked the birth of the fast-growing science of radio astronomy. It is telling us of mysterious lightless stars that broadcast radio waves, and it promises exciting revelations about vast regions of space concealed by clouds of cosmic dust.
And so from the probings and skills of Bell System scientists and engineers has come another tool to help man understand better the universe in which he lives. These men are a proud team—members of a still larger team engaged in research, engineering and administration and working on telephone problems in all parts of the country. We would like you to consider joining them.
There are employment opportunities with the companies that provide telephone service, with Western Electric, and with the Bell Laboratories. We need young men for the leaders in tomorrow's Bell Telephone System. Check today with your Placement Officer for details.

Orange Bowl Special

MIAMI CHOO-CHOO, the "Orange Bowl special," wends its way along Biscayne blvd. in the colorful King Jamboree parade on New Year's eve last year. Beauties wave welcome to Syracuse and Alabama rooters along the way.

Paper Will Sponsor Orange Bowl Movie

Pictorial memories of the 1953 Orange Bowl week will be available to the entire campus at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in 111 Maxwell and at the same time Thursday in Maxwell auditorium.

Secured by the Syracuse university Alumni association, the professional production has captured all the color and pageantry of this annual event which Syracuse participated in last year.

Arthur Gabriel, assistant field secretary of the Alum group, will be on hand tomorrow night to introduce the film.

Included will be glimpses of the football game between Syracuse and Alabama, the half-time pageant, King Jamboree parade, junior tennis tournament, junior Orange Bowl parade, and queens Marion Ettie of Miami and Jane Gates of Syracuse.

United Nations . . .

Czecholslovakia, Poland, Sweden and Greece.

During Saturday's session, Russia introduced a resolution that the credentials of China were not acceptable to the council. This was defeated.

Other resolutions defeated at this session were: Denmark's resolution to have secretariat employees answer only to the Secretary-General, who can dismiss personnel, provided that his country presents documentary evidence to the secretary-general; China's amendment to staff regulations, which stated that staff members shall not engage in any political activity outside of the scope of their duties, other than voting. China also proposed that staff members give assurance of continued loyalty to their legal national government.

FOLLOWING THE official session, a critique of this year's Security Council was presented by Marion Jackson, who served as president of the United Nations club there last year. Miss Jackson is now working with the American Association for the United Nations in New York.

In Friday's session, which considered the Jordan-Israel question, charges were made by a Jordan delegate that an Israeli attack on a Jordan town was not merely an isolated occurrence. The delegate continued that since February 1952 the Israeli have provoked over 400 such incidents.

Resolutions to remedy the situation were proposed by Lebanon, Chile and jointly by Denmark and Pakistan. All three were debeated.

WSO Plans Meeting For Reorganization

Constitution, Activities Planned by Group

Members of the now defunct Women's Service organization will meet tonight in an attempt to form a new group which will bring a proctoring service back to campus.

The free proctoring service for women's living centers was formerly run by Independent Students' association, which was disbanded last year.

Scheduled for 7 p.m. today at Sigma Kappa, the meeting has been called by former WSO president Judith Clark. Everyone interested in beginning a new organization is urged to attend.

MISS CLARK has announced that she will propose a constitution for the new group and plans will be made for future activities.

WSO was disbanded last Wednesday evening when members of women's student government assembly voted against recognizing the service organization.

Organizations panel chairman Lois Clark explained that she had drawn up a resolution to disband WSO because of its lack of projects, an unsuitable constitution and failure to hold meetings since September.

Miss Clark told The Daily Orange she had not called meetings this fall because she had been told WSO might be dropped from WSG recognition and that it was illegal to meet under these circumstances.

ACCORDING TO Patricia Donovan, former vice president in charge of service, charges that WSO had no projects were false. "There is absolutely nothing wrong about (our) service records," she said.

Block seating for fraternities, sororities and other groups may be arranged by contacting Gilbert Katz at WAER.

According to the producers, "Christmas, U.S.A." is one of the most ambitious presentations ever attempted on this campus. "We hope to make this an annual affair and we need the support of the entire student body to really pack the Chapel," they stated.

The annual Christmas seal drive, which will benefit from the efforts of campus thespians and broadcasters, is supervised locally by the Onondaga Health association.

MSG Debates, Puts Resolution in Panel; Two Others Passed

Men's student government assembly last night sent the organizations registration resolution into panel after floor debate over secret parts of organization constitutions.

The resolution would require the filing by each campus group with student government of name, address, officers, advisor, purpose, national affiliation, membership total and requirements, services, and meeting information. Constitution and budget would also be submitted under the resolution.

WOMEN' STUDENT government has already passed the resolution. It is sponsored in MSG by Robert Garver.

The assembly passed two resolutions backing the textbook lending library and Friday night mixer dances. The resolution on the textbook library recognizes that there is present danger of the library being lost, and recommends that the library be continued and adequate facilities be provided for such services.

The assembly went on record in the second resolution as stating that a definite need exists for Friday night mixers. It empowered the conduct and welfare panel "to investigate the possibility of sponsorship of such affairs by some campus organization."

In the event that such sponsorship cannot be obtained, the executive shall "temporarily enter into the sponsorship of such dances." Both resolutions were sponsored by junior assemblyman Roger J. Herz.

Earlier, the assembly had heard a talk on parliamentary procedure by Benjamin Wechsler, graduate student in political science, in which he noted that present procedure in MSG will probably form a precedent for future years since the assembly organization was changed by assembly action and referendum last year.

Forum Speakers

Noted Economists Will Give Appraisal of Russian Ways

By GRACE FRARY

Dr. Theo Suranyi-Unger, Dr. Harry Schwartz, Dr. Wladyslaw Kulski, and Maj. Gen. William O. Reader, will give "An Appraisal of Russian Social and Economic Life" at 9 a.m. tomorrow in Hendricks chapel.

Dr. Suranyi-Unger, noted author and economist, will discuss "The Setting for U.S.-U.S.S.R. Relations." He will speak on the basic economic problem between western private economy and Russian collective economic planning.

IN WESTERN society, a laborer works for a wage, while the businessman strives to protect his profits. In Communistic countries, the worker strives for prestige and the award of a medal. The value of workmanship is stressed.

The two theories overlap, however, in that the free enterprise system places some emphasis on prestige, while the Soviet has recently begun to stress to some degree the value of the ruble.

Dr. Harry Schwartz, at present on leave from the University as Soviet affairs writer for the New York Times, will discuss "The Russian Economic Potential." He plans to base his speech around the fact that the Soviet military economic potential is now at its highest point in history.

Dr. Schwartz will point out, however, that this progress has been made at the expense of Soviet consumers, living upder illfed, ill-clothed, and ill-housed conditions.

DR. KULSKI, former Polish minister plenipotentiary in London, will talk on "The Soviet Upbringing of One-Minded Citizens."

It is stated in the charter of the Communist party that the organization is a militant union of one-minded Communists. Dr. Kulski will point out that "one-minded" in the Soviet sense is linked with a small, self-appointed group of professional politicians.

A rigid code of behavior is set up for Soviet school children. Not only are they trained to denounce any non-conformist teacher, but they are drilled in strict personal habits.

Maj. Gen. Reeder, former member of the army logistics department, will view "The Russian Military Potential."

MAJ. GEN. Reeder will compare the Army, Navy and Air Force of the Soviet Union to those service branches of the United States. He will also discuss the threat of the atomic bomb and submarine warfare.

The forum is open to all students. 9, 10 and 11 o'clock classes will be dismissed for all business administration students.

Pre-law Honorary To Hold Meeting

King's Bench, pre-law society, will holds its second meeting of the year at 8 p.m. today at the Phi Gamma Delta house.

The amount of dues will be set and collected. Members of the second year class in the College of Law will present a court assembly in cooperation with the Student Bar Association of the Law college.

President Thomas Goins will preside at the meeting. Other officers recently elected are Ted Missal, vice president; Robert Fairbanks, treasurer and Henry Einhorn, secretary.

MED FORMAL

Girls who attend the medical college formal tonight may take special 2 o'clock permissions for dance by leaving one of their pink slips on the proctor's desk.

Debaters Discuss Free Trade Topic

The Syracuse debate team discussed the topic: "Should the U.S. adopt a policy of free trade" at LeMoyne last Saturday.

Upholding the affirmative side were Camillo McCarthy and Rudy Johann, and arguing on the negative side were Max Baratz and Douglass Ingalls.

The teams, who were accompanied by the coach, Dr. J. Edward McEvoy, won three out of four debates Saturday.

Ski Club Schedules Trip to Lake Placid

Final plans for a week's trip to Whiteface Mt. near Lake Placid will be completed at the Ski club meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in the Ski lodge.

Hill skiers will leave campus by Dec. 26 for the trip. Those who are not able to attend the meeting and are interested may contact John Pilger, 8-1784.

Panel of Americans Born During Years Of Racial Prejudice

Syracuse Panel Addressed New York Meeting As Model Team

By POLLY REED

In the war year of 1942 when southern California was seething with racial and religious tensions, inter-group conflicts culminated in the eruption between Mexican youth and servicemen in the famous "zoot suit" riots.

In the midst of this conflict, students from UCLA who believed that people should work together for their common good formed the first Panel of Americans. The students in the panel, one Catholic, one Protestant and one Jew, a Negro and a second generation American, talked to Californian civic groups, PTA's and anyone who invited them to speak.

The Panel of Americans will be presented at 8 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium.

THE STUDENTS did not plead for tolerance, nor did they give a sob story, but told their personal experiences with prejudice. They told their beliefs concerning brotherhood.

They were so successful that a short 11 years later, 16 colleges all over the country have similar panels striving toward better human relations on their campus and in their city.

Syracuse university's Panel of Americans, including Vernon Lee, a white American Protestant; Lynda Pollack, a Jew; Satoru Tsufura, a Nisei student, son of a Buddhist priest; Frank Della Posta, Catholic; and John Snead, a Negro, was the first Panel to be invited to appear before a New York city audience.

With moderator Mrs. Frank Cole, an instructor in the College of Home Economics, they presented their panel to a cross section of Americans at the Savoy Plaza in New York.

THE PANEL of Americans turned out to be more than "another program." People who came skeptically went away convinced that there was a chance for true brotherhood, and that chance lay with young people like Syracuse university's Panel of Americans.

Syracuse graduate Dorothy Thompson was completely captivated by the Panel presentation, and is now advocating a wider presentation through TV. The president of Temple university, and administrative representatives of Columbia and Boston universities were present.

The Panel appeared on Barry Gray's radio show for 45 minutes, and Mary Margaret McBride gave the panel half her show time to present their ideas. After the show with Miss McBride the panel members walked into the street where they were stopped by part of the audience with the plea that they "stay another day" and present the Panel to a housing settlement to help ease tension there.

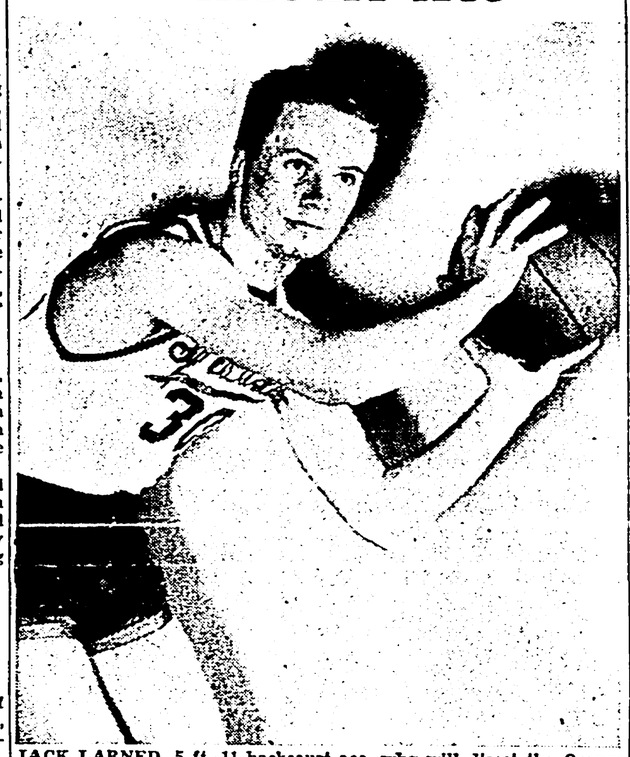
By bringing problems out and throwing light on the nature of prejudice, panelists do much to ease tensions. Differences are appreciated, rather than feared. These students prove that color and religion do not stand in the way of human friendship.

THE PANELISTS from all over the country have prevented scores of misunderstandings and perhaps violence . . . reactions at the Savoy Plaza hotel show that.

If the Panel of Americans have a motto, it is probably that they will "agree to disagree agreeably" . . . through understanding each other's differences and appreciating that these differences are no barrier to human friendship.

Daily Orange to Sponsor Showing Of Bowl Picture

Backcourt Ace



JACK LARNED, 5 ft.-11 backcourt ace, who will direct the Orange attack against Niagara tonight in Niagara Falls. The junior from Schenectady scored 17 points in last Saturday's loss to New York university.

"Orange Bowl Highlights," a 30-minute color film on last year's Bowl week in Miami, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. today in 111 Maxwell under the sponsorship of The Daily Orange.

The sound movie will be repeated at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Maxwell auditorium. Both showings are free.

SECURED BY the Syracuse university Alumni association, the film was produced by a professional motion picture concern and sanctioned by the official Orange Bowl committee.

All the splendor and pageantry of the South's biggest sporting event are recaptured in rich color. It'll be all the gaiety and festivities all over again.

The film will include brief highlights of the 61-6 New Year's day victory by the University of Alabama over Syracuse in the Orange Bowl. The half-time pageant—duplicated in few other places—is on the film, as are glimpses of college beauties Marion Ettie, Orange Bowl queen, and Jane Gates, Syracuse football queen.

THE MOVIE will also show the Orange gridders relaxing at a Miami pool, the international junior tennis tournament and the junior Orange Bowl parade at Coral Gables.

The lavish, miles-long King Jamboree parade on New Year's eve, rates full attention by the film. The caravan of floats and bands traveled along jam-packed Biscayne blvd. and, like the game pageant, had many rooters up North breathless at its beauty and elaborateness.

Powerful Eagles Host To Piety Cagers Today

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Syracuse basketball team seeks the first big step toward recapture of the Upstate cage title and Allie Seelbach trophy tonight when it visits Niagara's Purple Eagles in Niagara Student center. The high-flying Eagles won the award last year on their way to the National Invitation tourney.

Niagara apparently reached its 1952-53 stride last Saturday when it bowled over aSalle, 74-66, for its fourth win against a single defeat. Latest ratings place the Cataract city five 18th in the nation.

THE PURPLE will be led by all-American candidate Larry Costello, a native of near-by Minoa. Capt. Larry has gathered 78 points in four contests this season for a 17.8 average after missing the Niagara opener due to an ankle injury.

A year ago, Costello sompiled an 18.3 average and was named to the NIT all-star team and several other honor quintets.

Ed Fleming, the human jumping back from Pittsburgh, will open at his familiar center slot. The 6 ft.-2 junior, in his third season as a varsity regular, leads the Eagle scorers with 85 points in five starts.

Senior Baltico (Bo) Erias and junior Charlie Hoxie start at the forwards for the once-beaten Purple. Both are slightly over the 6 ft.-3 mark and hail from metropolitan New York city.

HOXIE, who usually plays the pivot, ranked among the nation's leaders in field goal percentages last year by sinking over 50 per cent of his shots. He has averaged 16 points per game this season. Erias, hampered in early season by an injury, netted 13 against LaSalle and appears to be back in top shape.

Coach John (Taps) Gallagher will probably name Jim McConnell, a 6 ft. junior from Belleville, N. J. to the fifth spot. McConnell opened in the Eagles' five tilts to date but junior Hubie Brown showed well against LaSalle and is pressing for a starting role.

Capt. Mel Besdin, Jack Larned and Dave Kline are definite starters for the Orange. Ronnie Kilpatrick will open in the pivot if his ankle, injured nine days ago in practice, does not cause trouble. Coach Marc Guley has indicated that one of the soph brigade, probably Manny Breland or Gus Castellini, will be the fifth starter.

THE GAME, 33rd in the series which Syracuse leads, 24-8, will be televised to Western New York fans by station WBEN-TV, Buffalo.

The probably varsity lineups:

SYRACUSE		NIAGARA
Kilpatrick	F	Hoxie
Besdin	F	Erias
Kline	C	Fleming
Larned	G	Costello
Breland	G	McConnell

Frosh teams of the two schools meet in a preliminary encounter.

Hill City Students Slate 'Platter Party'

A "platter party" for city students is planned for 8-12 p.m. on Friday in the dance studio of the Women's building. Delores Hytron of city guides and Jay Allen of city men's organization head the dance.

They will be assisted by Jane Green, arrangements; Marilyn Hickok, music; Gayle Kepner, entertainment; and Janet Lemp and John Sales, refreshments.

Special entertainment held every hour on the hour will feature skits, dance routines, comic routines, magic acts and surprise entertainment. Square dancing and mixer games are also planned.

Signups have been held for two weeks and 75 students are expected.

City guides, a program comparable to campus guides, but for orientation of city students, is headed by Marilyn Mawson, as an organization of WSG. Members are juniors and seniors who have successively completed TTK sophomore training program. City men's organization runs the city men's lounge on Waverly ave., the meeting place and "home" of city men.

Irwin to Present Yule Recitations

Prof. Ramon L. Irwin will present Christmas readings at an Advent service at 7 p.m. today in the Chapel.

The second such service of the season, it will include the singing of Christmas carols and hymns. The program is organized by the Worship committee of Chapel.

Last Wednesday Dean Charles C. Noble spoke on "Saying What Cannot be Said."

Harmon to Speak At ASPA Session

Commissioner of Public Works Frank F. Harmon will speak to the Syracuse chapter of the American Society for Public Administration at 8 p.m. today in the Founder's room of Maxwell.

Harmon, experienced in the field of business management, will speak on "The Common-Sense Approach to Public Management."

Problems involved in administering public departments will be covered, according to Hardy L. Shirley, president of the Syracuse chapter.

NSA Will Conduct Travel Convocation

A travel convocation will be held at 7 p.m. today in 204 HL to provide information to any students interested National Students' association services.

NSA, for its sixth consecutive year, is sponsoring a low cost, nonprofit, and professionally administered summer travel program, states aniel Bavolack, Syracuse NSA travel director.

Among this year's features are tours which include Yugoslavia, and programs to suit the art, music, sociology or political science student as well as the person interested in a more general plan.

Except for the round-the-world trip, prices range from $850 for a two and a half-month tour to $500. These include all transportation, lodging, and food expenses.

This year, $5 commission will be paid to Student Government for each student from Syracuse who uses the service.

Other prices and services arranged by NSA may be obtained from Bavolack at 110 Walnut pl., 4-9389.

'Syracusan' Sets Student Present

"On Sale Wednesday."

Watch for these words—they may mean a two-dollar bill.

As a Christmas gift to the student body, the Syracusan has announced that students finding the words "On Sale Wednesday" stamped on a certain inside page of the Syracusan, on sale throughout campus today, can redeem each for a two-dollar bill at the Hellbox between 3 and 5 p.m. Thursday.

There will be five of these "lucky issues" in circulation.

The December issue is a bonus in itself in that it is a record-breaking size, 36 pages. Mal Foster, Syracusan editor, expressed the hope "that the new large size will become a permanent Syracusan feature."

"Behind the Indian Maiden," a picture story describing the workings of the Syracusan, will be one of the feature articles. The two fiction stories are "Night Ride," and "The Other Story".

This is the first year that a Christmas contest has been held.

DEAN SMITH

Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith and her staff will entertain at a Christmas Carol from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. today in the Alumni lounge of the Women's building.

Campus leaders, house presidents, house social chairmen, class officers, MSG and WSG officers, Traditions commission members and members and foreign students have been invited to the annual affair.

McCarthy's Investigations Involve Campus Teachers

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Two Syracuse university professors and a former University College student this week became involved in Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's investigations of alleged espionage at Griffiss air force base in Rome.

Wilbur R. LePage, professor of electrical engineering, has been subpoenaed to testify before the Senate permanent investigations subcommitee this afternoon in New York.

IT IS BELIEVED that LePage has been summoned before the subcommittee because he teaches a graduate course in engineering at the air base as part of Syracuse university's extension program.

Among his students has been Martin Levine, formerly of Brooklyn, who is said by McCarthy to be one of 12 employes at the air force base suspended for security and loyalty reasons.

Levine in a written statement Saturday said that he was notified Nov. 23 by the air force that he had been suspended from his job as project engineer in the Griffiss radar and electronics laboratory. Levine said that among the charges listed by the air froce in the notice of suspension was the reading aloud to friends of the book, "Communist Doctrine and the Free World."

The book, written by Dr. Marguerite J. Fisher, associate professor of political science at Syracuse university, was used in a course Levine took last year from Dr. Fisher at University college. It is an anti-Communist text attacking the myths of Communist dogma and pointing out the Red appeal to hatred and violence, according to Dr. Fisher in the book.

DR. LePAGE said yesterday that he had no idea why he is being called to testify other than the fact that he had insruced Levine and might know other persons under investigation.

"I have no Communist affiliations," Dr. LePage stated. He added that he has never been accused of being a Communist or Communist sympathizer.

Levine said that he had been taking a course in circuit theory from Dr. LePage this fall, but dropped it when he was suspended.

The suspended employee denied ever being a Communist. He will also appear before the Senate investigations group today.

DR. FISHER'S textbook, used in her courses in modern political theory, was published by the Syracuse university Press last year. It received favorable reviews from leading educational and professional journals as a scholarly work designed to assist students to understand the consequences of the Communist philosophy.

The author said in her introduction that the book was intended to "bring together essential materials from Communist writings in an effort to explain many of the inconsistencies in the Soviet doctrine."

Just who loses?

This year's ON will be running pictures of a select few of the graduating class. These distinguished individuals will peer from the pages of the yearbook for years to come . . . peering, probably, at the 600-odd seniors who never got around to having their pictures taken.

The joker of this, of course, is that it didn't cost that select few one cent extra to have the privilege of appearing. Yearbooks cost the same whether there are photos of the entire class or just the boys from Ruben Fenton.

The problem is simple. Of the 1300 graduating seniors, a maximum of 700 have had their pictures taken as of this minute. The photographer can handle 70 people a day . . . he has had the limited company recently of some 35 a day.

Got that? . . . Friday, Dec. 18.

Just to accommodate those who have finally come around, extra hours have been fitted in between now and the deadline. Today and tomorrow night from 7 to 9 p.m., the man with the birdie will be waiting at 121 College pl.

Well, this ceaseless harrangue could go on and on. We will close with this thought:

Just who loses by not having their picture in the ON?

Miami in Syracuse

A graphic study in modern history will be shown in Maxwell tonight and tomorrow when the Daily Orange sponsored "Orange Bowl Highlights" is presented for the campus.

It was at this time last year when Hill students were making a last check of their Florida-bound clothing and wondering whether they should bring one or two bathing suits to the Atlantic shores.

Few of the fortunate Syracusans to wend their way to gala Miami will ever forget the pageantry and breathtaking beauty that was theirs last New Years.

The very trip itself—to the heart of the south-land—was an experience many students may taste but once. Certainly the gay, enthusiastic atmosphere will never be duplicated.

And who can forget the lavish between halves spectacle with Queen Marion Ettie perched atop a 40-foot flamingo float surrounded by myriads of moving colors.

These are the moments that will be recaptured on the Maxwell screen. For those who missed the whirlwind, for the freshmen who have but heard tales of the excitement, for those who would like to recall the thrills—the Daily Orange, in conjunction with the Alumni association, will present the 30-minute colored film for two showings.

Make your plans to see it now. They're reserving the best seat in the house just for you.

AN EVENING OUT

TUNES, CAST 'DASH' YULE SHOW

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

There was Christmas in the air around Hendrick's Chapel last night generated by a bright showcase of campus talent and gilted by a fresh basket of music from Syracuse's Tin Pan Alley.

The occasion was an hour-long presentation of "Christmas U.S.A.," a strawberry shortcake Yule production, broadcast by WAER and presented for the benefit of Christmas seals. A small crowd did not bring the evening to its expected capacity but things proceeded quite without a hitch and the Seals' till became $112 richer.

"Christmas U.S.A." was little tale dashed with humor and the dramatic complimented by an excellent touch of music. The show was written, produced and directed by Lanny O'Kun, Bill Angelos, and Don Kaufman. Randy Place produced on behalf of WAER and handled the announcing.

A word must be added here for Mr. Willard Lape who served as the narrator of "Christmas." Mr. Lape not only has a better-than-average radio presence but in addition possesses a Mel Blanc quality which lends itself to multiplicity of voice. Good entertainment.

The putty which held the whole production together was the new music by Lanny O'Kun and Bill Angelos. Once again, the lads have sailed through famously. The show's theme, "Christmas in the Air," was the team's best contribution. The tuney mailman song, "One More Door," also scored.

The excellent voices of Louise Orlando, Jane Williams, Lorraine Peters, Lorraine Smorol, Greta Wolfe, Ken Sparks, Fred Griesinger, Bobby Hosid (a younger addition) and the backgrounds of the combined Gamma Phi Beta-Alpha Chi Rho chorus gave the tunes a merry spin.

I rather doubt, however, if this sort of thing is good stage fare. The fact that it is a broadcast limits its visual possibilities somewhat.

But the folks in the Chapel last night who came with two good ears and those on the other end of the radio line were amply rewarded.

CHRISTMAS STORY

Slamming The Door

Chapter III

(Christmas is fast approaching, and if you can tear yourself away from your mad, mad, holiday plans we will coptinue with the drivel that you have been avidly sopping up for the last two days.)

"Just the decorations for our tree, that is if you want a tree, they will be the decorations for it," answered Mr. D.

"Bah, why should we have a tree or any of that Yuletide stuff. Mere ameusements for an infantile public. Complete wastes of time . . . ."

Not wishing to interrupt his beloved wifes though pattern Mr. D. took a short nap. He woke up just in time to hear her denouncing, "A Visit From St. Nicholas" as propaganda.

"Dear," he finally said, "what was that noise I heard as I entered the house?"

"I don't know poopsy, (she always called him this when she didn't feel like saying Spot, Rover or hey you).

Just then the bell rang.

"Don't stand there driveling," Mrs. D. said, "answer it. And if it is any of those ridiculous carolers slam the door in their emaciated faces."

Poopsy answered the door and returned with a few envelopes.

"Well, why are you standing there? Open your grimy little paw and let me see what you are hiding."

The envelopes turned out to be holiday greetings. Not from friends (for the Drixes did not have them), but from the finance company, the electric company, and the milkman.

While his wife emulated a whirling deverish, poopsy went over and turned on the TV set.

A strange sound eminated from the monster.

"Mery Maude," said Mrs. D. "What was that?"

From Whence the Tree?

By LEE KIKLIER

Ed. note: all names, dates, statistics and opinions of the author are factual.

Christmas trees in front of Hendrick's chapel, Christmas tree limbs on Philips cottage. Christmas trees to the right of us, Christmas trees to the left of us, and not a cent for tribute (or however it goes). In the words of that legendary hero: "Bah! Humbug!"

To make matters more confused eight out of ten American families will gather around the evil symbols to decorate, commemorate, dedicate and celebrate their Christmas.

Whence did this woodsy habit come from? We did some thorough research and, much as we suspected, no one will definitely take the blame.

The early Romans we talked to blamed it on the early Egyptians, said that they used trees and boughs to celebrate their winter solstice. Green palms in he Egyptian home meant: "life triumphant over death."

The early Egyptians, of course, take no part of it. Claim that the Romans used them to celebrate the feast of Saturn. The Druids said that the early Scandinavians used fir trees to pay homage. The early Scandinavians said that, to the Druids evergreen springs meant eternal life. This went on and on: to the Norsemen, it was suppose to symbolize the revival of the sun god Balder; to Americans, the phrase: "peace on earth—good will toward men."

About the only person we could pin down was Martin Luther. Luther was out taking a walk and when he came in out of the cold he tried to show his family the scenery he saw. He got a table-sized evergreen tree and put some candles on it (he just came in from outside and wanted to get warm). It's even hard to blame Luther, though, for a description of a Christmas tree in Strasbough almost a century later doesn't vene mention lights of any sort.

In 1700, though, all of Germany soon acquired he practice. Until then, the people in the Rhine river district had kept it pretty much to themselves.

Just to show how much of a scheme this whole thing is, do you know how it was brought to America? By the most un-American means we know. Foreign troops (Hessian soldiers hired by the British to battle the American Revolution) brought it to this country.

Shakespeare & Diet

"To Eat or Not to Eat"

To eat or not to eat: that is the question: Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer the pangs and torment of outrageous dieting, or to take arms against a sea of starvation, and by opposing, eat, eat!

To eat, to diet;—to eat, perchance to gain weight; ay, there's the rub This above all: to thine own diet be true, and it must follow, as the hunger the starvation, Thou canst not then be too stout for any man!

Ting-a-ling!! Oh! there's the dingleman. Something is surely rotten in the state of willpower! I hear fate beckoning; Get thee to the dingleman! And I soon find myself engulfed by a sea of wagging tongues and moving tonsils, as I make my request: "Make the hamburger I pray you as I ordered it from you; drippingly with ketchup on the roll; but if you put onion on it, as many of you dinglemen do, you had as best not fulfill the order.

Nor do not fill the air too much with the smell thus: But grease the grill gently, for in the very air, atmosphere, and I may say the anticipation of hunger, you must acquire and beget a style for cooking hamburgers that will give satisfaction."

After much business on my part, I receive a most delicious hamburger, and then bid adieu to the dingleman with the befitting salutation: "Dingleman, thy ting-a-ling is diet-breaking."

LOOK FOR A WONDERFUL WORLD

By MILT SHEFTER

Chinese Holiday: Although our New Year's is about two weeks away, fraternity parties celebrating the Chinese addition have been highly prevalent on the hill. One house on Euclid admired the idea when presented by a house on Comstock and use it for their theme. They also used the same name to decorate the house front —"Drag-On Inn." The Comstock boys were slightly annoyed and retrieved the material form of their idea (the sign) which now rests in their halls. An eye for an eye?

Christmas doings: All around the Yule Tide spirit is taking effect. No red and green lights at University and College—maybe next year. Down at the Hellbox things are spruced up. Brother Herz has stopped his apathy elevator halfway down instead of all the way; Brother Samuels found some movies he liked; Brother Myer has cleaned up his muck and is now the proud possessor of a sand pit; Frank Locke hasn't changed—he has Chris Cringle's disposition all year around. So all in all, it looks like Christmas is really in the air, and it's a nice feeling too.

We were pleased to learn of the addition of a new pica to Hugh O. Muir's family column. Little Linda will probably teeth on Papa's feature page so herein lies a Chrismas wish to her:

Here's hoping that your innocent eyes never bleed open into the apathy and falseness that surrounds us today. Here's hoping that your entire life will be filled with the joy and goodness which unfortunately becomes prevalent only during this holiday season. Here's hoping that you'll always have the gift of giving for giving itself, and the soured spirit of commercialism doesn't leave its stain on you. Here's hoping that you'll enjoy your Chrismases in a world of peace, happiness, health, prosperity, good will, understanding, reverence, and devotion. And most of all little Linda, here's hoping you'll always be surrounded by the love which your parents are giving you now. It can be a nice and wonderful world if you look for it.

And now if you'll excuse us, we've learned that our feminine companion on the last trip home has promised to sit with us this time.

Oh yes, a wish to you too. Here's hoping you have the nice sort of Christmas and the fulfillment of a New Year that we asked for Little Linda. It can be a nice world if YOU look for it.

Appetite Appeal Tasters Survey Hill Dining Halls

Discovered: Some Irrelevant But Amusing Food Dilemmas

By FLIP SIROTA
Coed's Corner Editor

A few charming dilemmas have been brought to light as a result of the Appetite Appeal Survey.

Though these provoking situations will probably never inspire sociological or psychological investigations, they are presented herewith as food for thought for the next time some professor launches forth on a tedious dissertation.

BEGINNING LOGICALLY with the first meal of the day which is breakfast, unless one sleeps through morning classes and begins the day with origin-uncertain vegetable soup, the first question is:

Whether or not those snap, crackly and popping dry cereals really provide the mouthful that causes pep and vitality to course through one's veins? Does it give that "Get up and Go Feeling" and the desire, if not the ability, to conquer the world?

Appetite Appeals Tasters in each dining hall decided, for the good of scientific experimentation, to taste the hot cereal, cocoa wheat. Following this they all answered the question "Do you have that Get up and Go Feeling?" in the negative. Can it be deduced from this that the cause of their just-plain-blah feeling was the absence of those floating spheres, triangles, or unshapely crumbs, sugared or not?

Some descriptions of the hot cereal, as gathered from the Tasters' survey sheet were: pinkish, grayish and tan with tones of orchid, plus lumps, at Sims; cocoa brown with skim, aha, no lumps, at Shaw; faded beige with hints of tattle-tale gray, and all one big lump, at Winchell; reddish-brown, medium-size lumps, at Washington Arms.

DELVING FURTHER, with a spoon, into the matter, it was discovered that when the spoon was scooped down the center of the bowl the concoction was so thick that—as the Lord parteth the waters—so the cereal stayed on either side of the bowl and never ran together the entire meal.

All Tasters got through breakfast and through morning classes and presented themselves at their respective dining halls ready for the mid-day meal—which is still called the mid-day meal even though some eat it about 11:30 and others can't summon the desire until 1:25.

First question on the sheet marked "lunch" was: "Isn't this fun? Subversive comments will be censored." Therefore, on this query there is nothing to report.

Cottage cheese and green pepper ring salad, as one imagines it, looks refreshing. As one sees it on one's plate at lunch it looked and we quote: "lettuce not crisp but drooping" on all salads, "unrefreshing look" on three salads, "Wellllll" on one, and "sort of faded" on another. Pepper rings looked like pepper rings except in Sims. Who ever heard of paprika looking like a green pepper?

NOW FOR THE assignment of the day—trace origin of the dining halls' vegetable soup. Upon investigation it seemed that something from every meal of every day that week popped up in some spoon-ful during eating.

In one spoon floated what looked like Tuesday's dinner, chow mein. Another spoon brought to light the vegetables from Monday's dinner and Tuesday's lunch. Only meals not evident in the soup were breakfasts—unless someone spotted a lone crouton (little squares of toasted bread—French style) riding the boullion waves.

Then came fruit cup. This dessert may be classified in the same category as vegetable soup, only in the fruit family (we hope). Remember the apples and grapes for lunch the day before? Recall seeing oranges at breakfast? But, aha-aha, here's an interesting bit of discovery: at Sims, Shaw and Washington Arms there were peaches and pears down among the grapes and apples.

This brings to light the question—Is there a conspiracy against Winchell? No peaches or pears there. Hmmmmm. Must investigate the matter further.

AT BEVERAGE ordering time we recalled Arthur Godfrey's eulogy that tea is brisk, picks you up and lets you down gently (not with a bump as some things we know). Did any of our Tasters drink tea? Mit lemon? Nein.

Finally the clock came around to supper time and the first thing to greet the Tasters was tossed (rather wildly) salad—with onions. Great dilemma—what do your dates think of your eating those little potent curls.

One just said "they smell." (How logical, dearie). Another said her dates don't mind, a third claimed "they like it" (come again?). One gave us a telephone number and suggested we call and find out. From the man's point of view, down Washington Arms way, came the hearty opinion that "they can take it."

Dilemma of the ending day concerned the main course for dinner. How can the dining hall claim to be serving spaghetti and meatballs when, and this is the gist of the controversy, the meatballs were not round at all, and everyone knows that a ball cannot be a ball unless it is round; and so, a meatball cannot very well be a meatba . . . . oh well, you understand.

NONE OF THE meat served was of any uniform shape so that we cannot help the dining hall out of this dilemma, much as we would like to. We would like to say it was spaghetti and some specific meat shape for dinner Thursday. Regretfully we are forced to say it was spaghetti and meatlumps, which certainly isn't too appealing in any way.

Recall earlier in this article we alluded that there were inklings of a conspiracy against Winchell? Remember the peaches and pears that were not there?

Did Shaw have nuts? Yes, even though only sprinkled crumbs. Did Washington Arms and Sims have nuts? Yes. Did Winchell have nuts? Aha—they did not.

THE FACTS stand, the evidence is in. Confess other dining halls—have you been serving chow mein, Salisbury, or bone chops with pork every time those in Winchell have?

We end this little dissertation with some advice on the consistency of vanilla pudding. It should not be lumpy, that's for meatlumps. It should not be creamy, for that would spoil us. It should be interestingly bumpy, and served less often.

As we said at the start—all these dilemmas are food for thought—bite-size snacks for when there is nothing better to do.

Coed's Corner
FLIP SIROTA
EDITOR

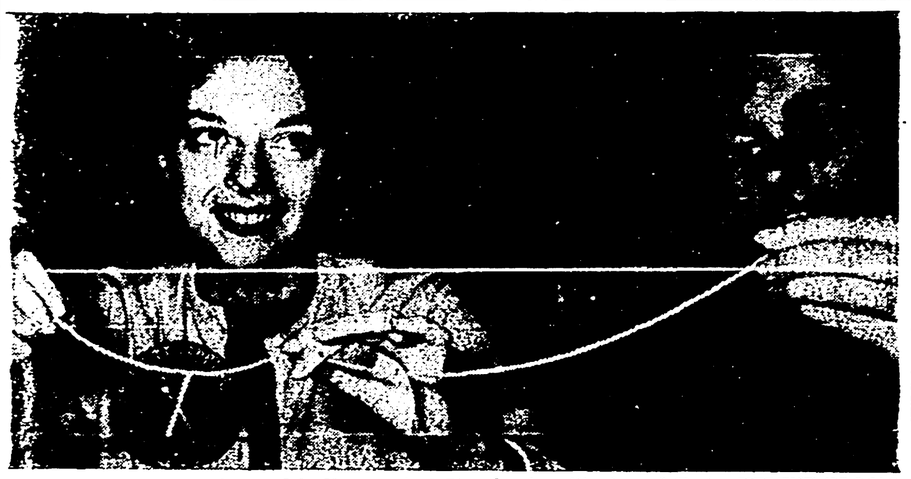
TEMPERATURE OF THIS milk is exactly 50 degrees. Recorded at Washington Arms by GEORGE MEEK this reading shows milk cooler than room temperature.

"WHAT'S HE WRITING down now?" seems to be the question asked by interested onlookers as MEEK records his findings on official Appetite Appeal survey sheet.



AN ELONGATED SPAGHETTI is discovered at Sims by Appetite Appeal Taster HELENE BLOOM. Helping to hold up this "random strand" is unidentified coed who also eats in that dining hall. Helene said she would prefer service at dinner.

Team Discovers Problem Areas After Day's Measuring, Tasting

By LIZ GODDARD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Students will always gripe about food.

That's why the Appetite Appeal Tasters set out to discover what facts were behind these gripes and make constructive generalizations concerning dining hall service.

A TASTER was selected for each of the four dining halls. Their job was to taste everything on the menu last Thursday, Dec. 10, answering all questions on a check list prepared by Coeds' Corner editors.

Each received a kit containing identification badges, rulers, thermometers, pieces of string (to measure circumference), pencils and sealed envelopes containing the menu and questions for each meal.

Students eating in University dining halls like to feel that the fare they are offered is the same as that served in the other three meal centers. That this is not true was immediately evident from the survey.

SIMS SERVED cottage cheese salad sprinkled with paprika for lunch while Shaw, Washington Arms and Winchell served a green pepper ring (average diameter—two inches). Washington Arms was the only dining hall to offer grapefruit juice for breakfast.

Vanilla pudding that was plain in Winchell was topped with nut crumbs in Shaw and whole nuts in Washington Arms. Salad, fruit cup and vegetable soup ingredients were widely varied, although all agreed the soup was watery and overly-seasoned.

Students objected generally to over-seasoned food. They pointed out that it is far easier to add salt and pepper when desired than to eat food that is too salty or hot for their taste.

The absence of condiments from the tables, long a complaint of student government investigators, was of little consequence to the surveyers. For breakfast at Shaw, however, no salt was provided for the hard-boiled eggs.

SEDIMENTATION IN liquids is an adverse factor to appetite appeal. Two to three inches was reported in the morning orange juice. Sedimentation seemed unavoidable in the French dressing which was termed oily in all cases.

Trays, particularly at breakfast, were a bone of contention. Either damp or dripping and often dirty, they are an unpleasant welcome upon arising. George Meek, Washington Arms Taster, mentioned the habit of the dining hall personnel "of putting scraps and trash paper on the trays of late eaters while they are still eating to save trips to the trash can."

Dirty and wet water glasses were another problem area. Glasses were generally described as "streaked." At Sims there were lipstick marks on one and at Winchell, food was stuck to the rim.

Meek praised the continually fresh bread served in his dining hall, noting the practice of keeping it covered with damp towels.

SURPRISINGLY ENOUGH, size appears uniform in all dining halls. Meat balls were five inches in circumference everywhere except at Washington Arms where the figure was four and three-quarters inches.

Temperature is always an important feature. Cold toast is the biggest and most frequently-voiced gripe. "The butter just lies there in lumps," was the complaint.

Cereal temperature ranged from 80 degrees at Winchell to 125 degrees at Washington Arms. Soup was coolest at Shaw (104) and hottest at Winchell (136).

COFFEE WENT from a low of 104 at Shaw to a high of 140 at Washington Arms. Milk was coldest at Winchell (42) and warmest at Sims (61).

The psychological effects of various color combinations were also investigated.

The red of the spaghetti and the orange of the carrots at dinner evoked sharp comments. The more esthetic Taster at Sims said the two clashed; Flip Sirota found the meal "rather flashy"; Suzanne Cohen termed it "very good" and Meek thought it definitely colorful and quite attractive.

All the dining halls are painted yellow, and while this did not affect the team one way or another, all chose green as the color they thought would be most conducive to appetite appeal.

NO GENERAL conclusion could be made concerning the most appealing color for dishes. Blue, flowered, white and white with green were all suggested.

The only Taster to prefer service to cafeteria-style meals was Helene Bloom for Sims, which is a cafeteria dining hall. Two of those in the majority had eaten in Sims in past years and based their preference for cafeteria meals on experience with both methods.

Dining hall personnel were cooperative and willing to help with the survey in most cases. Due to a misunderstanding about the photographer, who came to take pictures, Meek was temporarily ejected from Washington Arms at noon but later allowed to return.

About Smoking

We're launching a new crusade. Read on, coeds, it might concern you.

The cold weather might have made it impracticable to continue the crusade against Bermuda shorts; but it won't have any culminating effects on the one here being launched against the situation of coeds smoking while walking on campus or in the Marshall st. area.

FOR ILLUSTRATIVE purposes let's create a scene that could take place on the Hill at any time, any day.

A visitor to the University for the first time stops a coed on campus and asks directions to a certain building.

Happy to help the stranger, the coed indicates the direction of the building with a sweep of her arm and, through the smoky haze of her cigarette, watches the stranger walk off that way.

She probably feels proud of being courteous and a fine example of a Syracuse coed. Thinking these pleasing thoughts, and puffing sporadically on her cigarette, she continues to class.

BUT IS this really the impression the visitor carried off after his first but brief encounter with the coed?

Sure the visitor was impressed but, we'll bet that last A in finals we were saving for when the going got really tough, that his impression was anything but good.

Accustomed to the manners and habits of communities that exist outside the orbit of life on the Hill, of which it seems most of this campus is strangely unaware, the visitor probably never thought two seconds about the courteousness of the coed, so shocked and disgusted was he to see a young lady smoking in the street.

THE PREVAILING idea in society of the type of women that smoke in the streets or walks with a cigarette dangling from her lips is not the type to be found on the Syracuse campus or that Syracuse coeds would care to be associated with. Why then, the question seems, do they go about imitating such practices?

Cigarette smoking can be a graceful and complimentary habit for a woman—in the proper circumstance and situation. The proper circumstance and situation is not when hurrying across campus between classes, shirt-tails flapping in the wind.

Though many coeds seems unaware of it, campus life is the testing-ground for community life which they wil lenter as full-fledged members after graduation.

The habits and manners which make up their personality today will be the same habits and manners on which basis people will judge them when they start down the long road of getting along in the world today.

By Juli...

From left to right: your low cut pastel dress can become a smart outfit for more varied occasions by adding a high neck, long-sleeve wool jersey. Black preferred.

Opportunities For Coeds After College

A marked increase has been noted in the number of requests for secretarial and clerical positions. Girls are coming to realize that the field is limited for advertising and newspaper beginners.

EMPLOYMENT outlets in the past few years to want more girl college graduates are science and mathematics. Students who majored in chemistry, biology, zoology and physiology have little trouble in finding good positions. Research laboratories and hospitals have many openings.

Engineering is another field steadily employing more girls. Accounting or statistics majors are wanted for such jobs. Market research and government jobs also have openings.

Acquiring practical skills before graduation can mean the difference between a job with a future and an average one. For those coeds planning to teach a knowledge of art, music and science is helpful.

Girls planning to go into the high school teaching field should learn some practical business skills such as business education and home economics.

IMPORTANCE OF vocational planning cannot be emphasized enough for those not planning to enter graduate schools, according to the Hunter College Placement bureau.

Miss Dorothy Osborn, of the Syracuse Dean of Women's office, is placement director on the Hill. Coeds interested in obtaining jobs after graduation should make an interview with her.

Orange Gymnasts Defeat Blue Devils

Special to The Daily Orange

DURHAM, N. C., Dec. 15—Syracuse university's gymnastic team rolled to its second successive victory on its current southern trip by defeating Duke here today, 52-38.

The Orangemen swept to first place finishes in all of the six events staged. John Barkal continued to be the leading points-producer for the Pietymen, garnering a total of 21 points and three first place victories.

Barkal, who won the parallel bar event at North Carolina Monday, once again led the field in the competition in that event. Yesterday at Duke, he also copped top honors in the high bar and side horse. John accomplished what might be considered the outoutstanding feat of the day.

CORKY SEBBO continued his unbeaten ways in the tumbling event. At Durham he scored 281 points as compared with 286 points against the Tarheels the day before. Once again Sebbo's production gained him the distinction of accomplishing the high individual score of the day.

Ferdie Fournies also gained two first places for the Saltine gymnasts. His wins were accounted for in the flying rings and rope climb events. This also marked the second successive day that he won these events.

Although Duke failed to land a first place finish, it made the competition interesting by gaining many second and third places in the meet. The leading scorer for the Blue Devils was Bill Mathies with 10 points.

The Hillmen now will experience a day off while travelling to Tallahassee, Fla. There they will meet the Florida State Seminoles, National AAU champs. The Piety gymnasts are afforded little chance of copping this meet, but promise to press the Seminoles for every point.

COACH HARTLEY Price of the National AAU champions has assembled an outstanding array of gymnasts, many of whom are widely known throughout gymnastic circles in this country and around the globe.

Among his leading competitors are Co-captains Pat Signorelli and Don Holder, Jack Miles, Alan Marcus and Dick Gutting. Holder was a member of the United States Olympic team while only a sophomore in 1952.

The meet, which will be staged at 8:15 p.m., will be the third and concluding event for the Orange on its current southern swing. Coach Paul Romeo and his squad will then return home, starting the long hike this weekend.

LACROSSE MEETING

There will be a meeting of all varsity lacrosse players at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the trophy room of Archbold gymnasium. Discussion will center on the spring Southern trip.

Grapplers Prep For Wilkes Meet

Coach Joe McDaniel ran his varsity and frosh grapplers through a grueling workout yesterday in an attempt to round the matmen into top condition before the holiday lay-off.

Some of McDaniel's performers will be competing in a holiday tournaments at Wilkes college in Pa. on Dec. 28 ahd 29. The tourney is open to both frosh and varsity wrestlers. Individual and team trophies are awarded.

Last year 187 wrestlers representing 57 different colleges and prep schools were entered in the tourney. It has not been determined as yet how many Orange grapplers will be making the trip.

Tangerine Hoopsters At Niagara Tonight

By DAVE BENNETT

Syracuse's high-scoring frosh cagers go after their third consecutive victory of the young season tonight when they meet the Niagara yearlings in the Niagara Student center. A preliminary to the Eagle-Orange varsity affair, the game is the first road test of the campaign for the Tangerines.

Coach Andy Mogish will probably start the same five that opened against Sampson last week. Big Jim Roper, 6 ft.-5, will jump center with Gary Clark and Jim Snyder, both 6 ft.-4. Vince Cohen and little Vinnie Albanese rounding out the first squad.

COHEN LED the cub scorers in the Sampson vitcory. Springlegged Vince collected 17 points, 13 of them in the first half. Snyder and Roper were also in double figures with 16 and 13 points respectively.

Clark, who committed four personals, played only the first half against the airmen and scored five points. Albanese had seven and played an exceptional floor game.

Little is known about the Niagara squad. Last year, the steller Orange cubs won both games from the Eagles but were extended to a two-point, 73-71, margin in the road game.

Panel to Discuss Russian Economy

Russian social and economic life will be discussed today in Hendricks Chapel by four men well noted in the field of economics.

Commencing at 9 o'clock and ending at 11:40, the forum, entitled "An Appraisal of Russian Social and Economic Life," is open to all students.

"The Soviet Up-Bringing of One-Minded Citizens" will be viewed by Dr. Wladyslaw Kulski, former Polish minister pelnipotentiary in London. Dr. Kulski will show how the Communists carry out their theory of "one-mindedness" to the extent of setting up a code of behavior for school children, by having them denounce all non-conformist teachers.

Maj. Gen. William O. Reeder will speak on "The Russian Military Potential." Gen. Reeder, a former member of the army logistics department, will compare the Russian and United States Army, Navy, and Air Force while discussing the atomic bomb threat and submarine warfare.

Dr. Harry Schwartz will come from New York City to discuss "The Russian Economic Potential." Schwartz is at present on leave from the University as New York Times writer on Soviet affairs.

He will discuss the significance of the fact that Russia is now at her highest peak in history in both the economic and military fields.

Schwartz will point out that these achievements have been made hower, at the expense of the Soviet consumers, who are ill-fed ill-clothed and ill-housed.

Dr. Theo Suranyi-Unger, noted author and economist, will speak on "The Setting for U.S.-U.S.S.R. Relations". The difference between western private economy and Russian collective planning will be discussed by Dr. Suranyi-Unger who feels that a discussion of these differences by the Big Four conference in January may help to settle world conditions.

University Invited To Christmas Party

American Folk Singer To Provide Frolic

An invitation has been extended to the entire campus to attend a Christmas party from 4 to 5:30 p.m. today in the Chapel Colonial room and lounge.

Frank Warner, noted American folk singer, will be the guest of honor and provide the entertainment.

PRESIDENT OF the New York Folklore society and general secretary of the Nassau Suffolk YMCA, he has for many years been a collector and interpreter of American folk music.

During the last few years he has appeared before scores of colleges, schools, clubs and other organizations. He has had extensive experience with radio, including a six-week series of programs on television and has appeared in concerts at Town Hall and Carnegie Hall in New York city.

Warner has collected folk songs by traveling across the country with a guitar, recording machine and camera as a vagabond song trader. He sings these songs today in the manner in which they were sung to him and has the ability to reproduce the quality, manner and characteristics of the singers who gave them to him.

While a student at Duke university he joined the college glee club, becoming in turn soloist, manager, president and student director of that organization.

WARNER RECORDED for Elektra records a collection of American folk songs and ballads including "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands," "The Days of Forty-Nine" and "The Battle of Bull Run."

The New York Herald Tribune termed it "a paragon of its type" and the Boston Sunday Globe wrote "This record includes some of the most engaging songs ever heard, sung with a big voice and a winning manner."

The party was originally planned as a Chapel project but the committee decided to give all students the opportunity to hear this folk singer. Refreshments will be served during the afternoon.

Campus Invited To Christmas Party

The annual university Christmas open house will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in ten university campus and city college buildings, Bill Ehling director of University news bureau announced.

This open house is for all the students, faculty and administration on campus. Coffee, cookies and doughnuts will be served as refreshments.

The ten buildings include, Crouse, Maxwell, the main Library, Lowe Art Center, School of Nursing, Gray Hall, College of Medicine, College of Law, Hall of Languages, in the afternoon.

In the evening, it will be held at the University College in downtown Syracuse.

Board Approves School of Nursing

The Boards of Review of the National Nursing Accrediting Service has approved the School of Nursing, Miss Edith H. Smith, Dean of Women recently announced.

Under this rating, graduates of the four and a half year program are now fully prepared to accept beginning public health nurse positions without further preparation.

This rating came as a result of a two-year study and revision of the School of Nursing curriculum by the faculty.

ON's Available At Audio Center

The 1953 Onondagans have arrived on campus. They will be available and should be picked up today or tomorrow at the Audio-Visual center, 121 College pl. from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The final payment is due at this time.

The '53 graduate students on campus should also pick up their books at the center. ON's will be mailed to the students no longer on campus.

MILITARY QUIZ

The Scabbard and Blade pledge test will be given at 7:30 p.m. today in Room 313, Machinery hall. Attendance is compulsory.

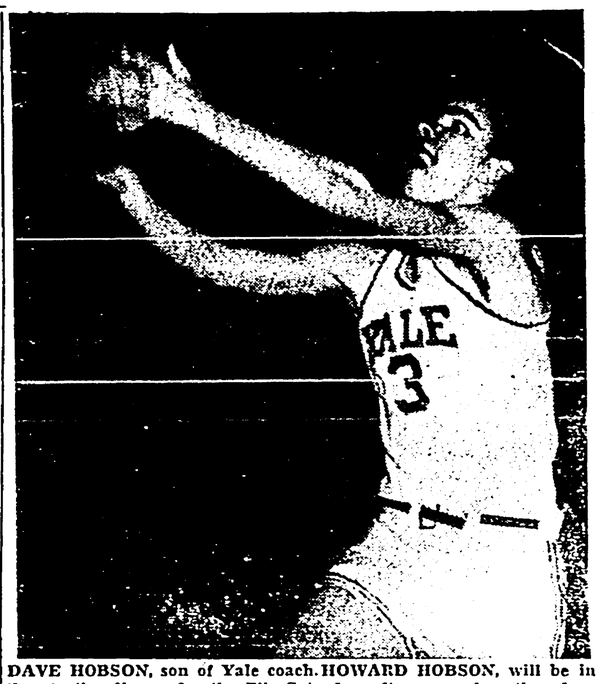
Foreign Schools Offer Fellowships

Fifteen European and South American countries have announced the opportunity for continued study in foreign schools. The Institute of International Education is offering fellowships, assistantships and scholarships to enable students to participate in this program. Several countries included in the plan are England, France, Germany, Brazil, Ceylon and Cuba.

Candidates must be U.S. citizens and must show proof of a good academic record and capacity for independent study. Good health, character, personality, adaptability and ability to speak and read the language of the country in which they wish to study are also required.

These grants are all for the academic year 1954-55. However, the University of Vienna and four British and Scottish university are offering several partial grants toward tuition and maintenance for their 1954 summer school sessions.

The earliest application deadline is January 1, 1954 for Ceylon and Brazil. Closing dates of other competitions are in February, March, April and May. Further information on all the awards may be obtained from Earle W. Clifford in the Dean of Men's office.



DAVE HOBSON, son of Yale coach HOWARD HOBSON, will be in the starting lineup for the Elis Saturday afternoon when they face the Orange basketeers in a nationally televised contest at Archbold gym. It will be the first national show originating from campus.

Niagara Five Trounce Piety Cagers, 90-62

NIAGARA UNIVERSITY, Dec. 16—Niagara's Purple Eagles opened defense of their Upstate cage championship and the Allie Seelbach trophy with a convincing 90-62 trouncing of Syracuse here tonight. The Eagles hit a torrid 49 per cent of their shots to run their season record to five victories in six starts. Niagara led, 46-27 at halftime.

Charlie Hoxie, a 6 ft.-3 forward from New York city, paced the Purple attack with 21 points while Capt. Larry Costello added 17. Ronnie Kilpatrick netted 19 for Syracuse.

Niagara's Ed Fleming and Baltico (Bo) Erias controlled the boards throughout as the Eagles took charge in the opening minutes and were never headed.

Marshall st. Snow Heralds Christmas

Christmas season—that extra special time of year, became a typical one yesterday as Jack Frost blanketed the campus with some winter's white stuff.

Until now, the weather had been that balmy sort that suddenly becomes a torrent, and no sooner wo you don your overcoat but you think you're back on the sands of Hawaii.

Downtown and on Marshall st., the crowds become bigger and the festive air is everywhere. "Good Fairy Week" has been a gigantic success here on the Hill and coeds have rushed around all week to find eclairs to hang from strings, toy clowns and plush dogs with whistles inside.

It's great, too, to see smiles on some persons for the first time all year. Seems like everyone likes Christmas.

The sophisticated get the opportunity to become less sophisticated without having to apologize, the turkey stuffing cravers get the chance to go wild, and most important, those who believe in brotherhood see it all around them—even if it's only for a few short days each year.

There's an old saying, to paraphrase, that you cannot really keep Christmas unless you have love in your heart for everyone, a desire to do the most for all you know, and the feeling that God is watching over mankind. If you have these things, you can keep Christmas. If you can keep Christmas, then why not keep it all the other days of the year?

On Christmas Day, we'll hear Handel's "Messiah" over the airwaves.

Till then, the streets will ring with the voice of a famous American crooner. The song expresses the thoughts of all of the Daily Orange:

"May your days be merry and bright,
And may all your Christmases be white."

ABC To Cover Afternoon Clash From Archbold

A local first will take place Saturday afternoon when the Syracuse - Yale basketball game will be nationally telecast directly from Archbold Gym. The game scheduled for 2:30 p.m. will be carried nationally by the American Broadcasting co.

Camera and engineering crews from the University's radio and TV workshop will televise the contest with the producer-director and the announcer being from the ABC studios in New York. Gene Finnegan, top ABC sportscaster will do the play-by-play description.

THE GAME will be carried locally on WSYR-TV (Channel 3), the National Broadcasting co. outlet in Syracuse, while University students in the New York area will be able to view the clash on WABC-TV, Channel 7.

Three cameras are scheduled to cover the game with two for the action and one for color shots. The director will be located in the third floor women's lounge.

This telecast will be the second in a 13-game series of afternoon games to be carried by ABC. The initial game was last Saturday when Yale appeared against Navy. Syracuse will also make another appearance during the series meeting Army at West Point on Feb. 6.

This will be the third time a Piety sport squad will appear on a national TV show. The first appearance was Jan. 1 when the Orange bowl game was covered and the second was early this fall when the Syracuse-Illinois tilt was carried.

SYRACUSE'S HOOPSTERS have appeared on two local TV casts this season. Last Saturday, the NYU game was carried in New York city and last night's Niagara battle was seen in the Buffalo area.

Saturday's battle will be the 12th Orange-Bulldog clash with the hosts holding a 9-2 series edge. The Eli, lacking in experience and height, have recorded two wins against four setbacks in early season compe-

Bowl Film Shown Tonight

Your last chance to see the film, "Orange Bowl Highlights" will be at 7:30 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium. Admission is free.

Secured by the Syracuse Alumni university association, the film was made by a professional company under the sanction of the Orange Bowl committee.

The film includes brief highlights of the 61-6 Alabama victory over Syracuse university last New Year's day and also many of the colorful events in the week-long program leading up to the game in Miami.

University Gives Students Special Mid-Year Holiday

Campus Chest to Sell Student Personalities

Administrative and student leaders will add another title to their collections, Feb. 22 when they become waiters for a night. Diane Hirshhorn and Stuart Smith, co-chairman of promotions for Campus Chest have announced that top campus personalities will be auctioned off as waiters for a night with all proceeds going to the Campus Chest drive.

Football Coach Floyd Schwartzwalder, assistant Deans of Men Earle W. Clifford and Jack Carleton have already joined the group of future waiters, along with other top names.

The co-chairmen have announced the auctioning will take place at the Campus Chest pep rally, Feb. 20 as one of the promotional functions for the drive. Fraternities, sororities and living centers will all have a chance to bid for their waiters.

Included are tentative plans a donkey basketball game in which top campus personalities will try their hoop skill while riding a donkey. A benefit performance of a Boar's Head production will be given to promote the drive. A Campus Chest innovation is the king and queen contest open to anyone. The winners will be announced at the pep rally. A 10 cent donation to the drive will give you a vote.

This year's theme is "Now is the Time." Anyone interested in writing songs are requested to contact Miss Hirshhorn, Iota Alpha Pi, or Smith at Tau Epsilon Phi.

An award in addition to the regular trophy for the house giving the most money will be given. The prize will be a mantle clock for the house with the largest donation per person.

THE MANTLE clock will replace the thermometer as symbol of the drive's quota. One hand will show the quota and the other, the progress of the drive. All donation boxes will be shaped like clocks.

Co-chairmen of the overall Campus Chest drive, scheduled to begin Feb. 22, are JoAnne Swalm and Stuart Parker. Anyone interested in working on promotions for the drive are requested to contact Miss Hirshhorn or Smith.

DO Will Publish Next Paper Jan. 6

All persons requesting publication of notices or coverage of campus events for the Jan. 6 issue must contact the paper before 3:30 p.m., Jan. 5.

Panel Discusses Culture, Religion

Emphasizes Unity Without Sameness

The Panel of Americans, "experts on themselves," told a spellbound audience last night that "we must agree to disagree agreeably. Uniformity is not necessary for unity."

The Maxwell auditorium audience heard moderator Mrs. Frank Cole say that "difference does not mean inferiority." She introduced Frank Della Posta, a Catholic, who told of his background and what brotherhood meant to him.

Della Posta first explained his name, "of the post office," adding that an ancestor of his was postmaster general of Italy. "I was brought up in what might be called a foreign neighborhood, but actually it wasn't," he said. "We were all alike, until we grew up and discovered that some were Poles, some Italians, some Irish, some Greek."

Equality was learned in school, according to Della Posta, while at home parents taught that this was not always true, even in America.

"In school we learned about the American way of life, that Americans like pizza, Lanza, and La Rosa. But then we learned that Capone, and Luciano were not respected. These were alums of ours, but we were no more proud of them than any one else."

Della Posta explained that the Catholic Church teaches one can be a good Catholic and a good citizen. He pointed out that his religion taught that the Son of man died for all men, so don't we owe respect to all men too? Catholicism to him is a "moral explanation of democratic government."

Satoru Tsufura, whose parents were born in Japan, called himself a "hyphenated American."

"I've been associated with people for 25 years," he explained. "I learned two schools of thought. One is cautious and disciplined, which my parents taught me, and one is free and diversified, which

Senator Apologizes To SU Professor

Special to The Daily Orange

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—Sen. Joseph McCarthy apologized to Syracuse university Prof. Wilbur R. LePage today and told him he was not the man sought in connection with an investigation of espionage at Griffiss Air Base, Rome.

The electrical engineering professor drove to New York in answer to a subpoena by the Wisconsin senator's Senate Permanent subcommittee.

After only 15 minutes of questioning by the group, beginning at 4 p.m., the professor was allowed to return to Syracuse.

Halfway through the interrogation, the senator turned to one of his associates and declared "This appears to be a case of mistaken identity."

The Senator then asked the professor if he had ever been or was now a Communist. Dr. LePage answered "No."

No reference was made to Martin Levine, former project engineer at the Rome Air Base who was suspended recently. Levine had said he was taking a course in engineering from the professor at University college.

The Senator said he will investigate how the mistake was made.

J-SCHOOL APPLICATIONS

Applications for admission to the School of Journalism are now available for those students who will have completed their sophomore year at the end of the present semester.

NewspaperAdvisor Resigns Hill Post

Charles Bernhardt, financial advisor to student publications and instructor in the School of Journalism, has resigned his post and will join the faculty of the Rochester Institute of Technology, beginning Feb. 1.

He will be succeeded by Prof. Francis O'Brien, a member of the advertising staff since 1948. O'Brien will also replace Bernhardt as executive secretary of the Advertising Managers Bureau.

The advertising professor is a graduate of CCNY and was advertising manager for Prentice-Hall inc. He also served as a major in the Air Force during world war II.

Dorms Will Close For Four Days After Last Exam

University Vice-president Frank P. Piskor said yesterday that the cancellation of mid-year commencement exercises was the important factor in reverting to this prewar vacation policy.

THE MIDYEAR hiatus begins officially at 2 p.m., Jan. 30, and ends Feb. 4 at 8:30 a.m., the first day of registration. Registration lasts until Feb. 6 and classes begin Feb. 8.

Many students, whose exams are over early usually take a vacation until registration starts. This year both vacations can run concurrently if the individuals' exam schedules permit.

University dormitories will be closed from 2 p.m. on Jan. 30 until Feb. 2, Piskor said.

Dining halls will remain open through Jan. 30 lunch and will reopen for breakfast on Feb. 4.

EXAMINATIONS begin Jan. 18 and end Jan. 29. The last day of social activities is Jan. 11.

Coeds must vacate their living centers no later than 24 hours following their last exams, a regulation similar to the one prescribed previously for the exam week of the spring semester.

Originally commencement had been scheduled for Jan. 31. No events were scheduled for the four-day period that has now been designated as a holiday.

SPRING finals run from May 24-June 4, and spring commencement will be held June 7.

'Special' Tickets Go On Sale Today

Students desiring to purchase tickets on tomorrow's "Orange Special," must appear in the Bursar's office at the New York Central railroad between 10:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. today to pick up their tickets.

The train will leave Syracuse at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow. Returning trains leave New York on Sunday, Jan. 3 at 2:15 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Students who wish to leave on the 12:30 p.m. Saturday train should assemble in the Bursar's office between 3 and 4 p.m. today. If 25 students appear, they will also be able to obtain tickets for the special rate of $15.01, the same as the rate for the "Orange Special."

Another plan offered by the railroad is a 25 percent reduction for students traveling in groups of three, leaving and returning on the same train to any location over 100 miles. Their tickets when purchased together in the Bursar's office to New York will cost $16.33.

'Chalet' Needs Holiday Staff

Managers of the Chalet, resort hotel located at Lake Placid, are seeking two or three college girls for waitress work during the holidays from about Dec. 23 to Jan. 3.

Lodging, meals and uniforms are supplied to waitresses. In addition to the usually weekly wages the management states that girls are generally well tipped by the guests.

GRANTS-IN-AID

Last term seniors wishing grants-in-aid must file applications by Jan. 4, 1954.

Merry Christmas, and to all goodby

Merry Christmas

Because this is the final Daily Orange of 1953 and to keep with time-honored tradition, we take this space to wish the campus a "Merry Christmas."

But it seems insufficient, somehow, to convey in these words, the feelings we hope the vacationing Syracuse student will have in his heart over the holiday season.

We hope that the Yuletide will bring more than just a "merry or happy" time, but that friendship, consideration, love and even prayer will not be forgotten.

Some people devote much time deploring the commercialization of Christmas. Yet it is sometimes these very people who refuse to recognize the possibility that it is only as commercialized as the individual lets it be.

The true spirit of the Christ-child, the hope He brought, the love He inspired, and the peace He promised can still be contained, in some degree, in the individual heart.

And the striving for these virtues and ideals need not be confined to one religion or nationality. The message of hope, love and peace is a universal to which all men may listen and respond.

The traditions of Christmas: tinsel, mistletoe, brightly wrapped gifts, bulging stockings, the angel on the top of the tree and the Gospel according to St. Luke all have their stories to tell. As long as there are those who will listen, they will sound anew each December.

Yet the true message of the Christmas season is not one that should be confined to one month or one day. Would that it last throughout the year.

Editor-in-Chief

Merry but safe

It was but one month ago that the campus was saddened by the sudden passing of a well-known senior as she was on her way to attend a New England football game.

What was to have been a short vacation ended as a tragedy.

Another vacation period is now approaching. Again it is time for students to take to the crowded highways and head home for a pleasant holiday.

But it's up to the "man behind the wheel" to make the journey safe and to ensure a Yuletide season free from tragedy. The lives and futures of many students depend upon the precautions and safety measures exercised during those few hours from and back to the campus.

Snow and sleet can cover highways with a thin, dangerous sheet of ice. Thus can weather change driving conditions. It is one of the most important factors to be taken into account for maximum safety in winter driving.

Last year's total number of deaths due to motor vehicle accidents in New York state was 2,073. This number represents, of course, 2,073 unnecessary deaths. More thoughtfulness in driving would have substantially reduced this number.

Nearly two thousand people have been killed already this year, with the holiday traffic toll expected to top those of the previous years and give 1953 an infamous amount of highway deaths.

All of the editorials that have been, are and will be written, may not have any effect in persuading some motorists to observe rules of safety. Only a costly and hard-won lesson will teach these drivers the benefits and advantages of safe motoring.

Let's hope Syracusans are not among this group.

Poster Rules to Change

Dec. 15, 1953

To: Stanley Dodds
Tau Sigma Delta

As a member of the jury for the Colgate Poster contest, I feel that I must call to your attention an embarassing circumstance. Dean Noble, also a member of the jury, and I are now aware that the poster to which we awarded first prize in the fraternity division was a direct copy (see the 1953 Graphic Annual). It was our belief that one of the purposes of the contest was to stimulate originality and creative imagination, and if this is so, we most certainly would not have knowlingly made the award to a poster that was not original.

I regret the necessity for bringing this matter to your attention, but feel that in fairness to all participants it is the proper thing to do.

Sylvia S. Wyckoff,
Assist. to Director,
School of Art

C.C: Dean Noble

(Editor's Note: The following is a statement from Tau Sigma Delta, architecture honorary which sponsors the Colgate poster contest, on the issue which has been raised concerning originality.)

In setting originality of theme and quality of execution as the basis of judgment of the Colgate poster, the Poster committee of Tau Sigma Delta hoped to give credit to the people who had spent considerable time, thought and effort in planning and painting their posters. Originality and high quality of execution, however, were not mandatory and all the winners kept to the rules.

Obviously the judges cannot be expected to recognize this poster as an original and that as a copy, and in an endeavor to illumninate the moral problem that his risen, Tau Sigma Delta will in the near future publish a revised list of Colgate Poster contest rules.

Pep Band Feted at Utica

(Editor's note: At the first basketball game of the season for Utica college between UC and Oneonta State teachers college the Syracuse Pep band played. It was invited down, all expenses paid and was honored there at a banquet given for the teams and the band. The following is a letter of appreciation.)

Dec. 13, 1953

Mr. Ray Austin
President, Marching Band:

Frank Gruenewald called me up early today and told me he had written a letter to the ORANGE expressing appreciation for the tremendous boost you and Pete and Alta gave our Weekend.

But of course I want to include my five cents. I'm speaking now as an alumna (of almost a year) of Utica college and not in my official capacity in the PR office of the college. I hope you are able to convey my appreciation to the members of the Pep band. They put on a terrific show and it meant a great deal to all of us to have them come down for our game.

Although we are one of the colleges of the University, we are 50 miles from the main campus. And in the past that has proved to be a big hindrance in promoting student relations between Utica and Syracuse.

But I think you and the band members have helped a great deal in narrowing down the distance. Believe it or not I am having trouble in explaining myself, but I know how I feel inside.

I've been around here long enough to regard almost anything with a certain amount of calmness. It's just routine. But I actually caught the fever of excitement here this past weekend and not only covered all events but participated in them and enjoyed them as well. The enthusiasm was catching.

I certainly hope that you come to Utica college again, real soon. I know I'm not just speaking for myself but for all of us here.

Thanks again Ray. I only wish that I could thank each band member personally, but I'll have to ask you to do that for me.

Sincerely,
Gertrude M. Pierce '53

(The band will be on the air Saturday when the Orange Varsity plays Yale here.)

'CAROL' GOES BOP

SCROOGE GETS IN THE GROOVE

By BOP

Charley was dead, to begin with. There was no doubt whatever about that.

His long, firm form making it on the floor served as mute evidence that he was done for this bit. He was the swingingest but now he's the wingingest, ya know . . . out of this world.

But old Scrooge was still with it. Old Ebenezer Scrooge. Man, this cat was as tight as Gene Krupa's set of skins. He had it but he refused to give it. And never, ever did he have any of the boys over to his place for a session.

He was the least . . . the beast.

• • • •

When the folks came around to collect for the Christmas charities or when the young cats made it by with a few happy holiday tunes, old Scrooge would only be heard to reply: "Bah, how uncool."

• • • •

Now when Eb had taken five for some ribs and finally beat the bush to his door, he felt the lowest. After slipping down 14 Tums and a half-gallon of bepto-bismo, he made it between the lily whites and passed swiftly into the land where dreams are made.

The Melachrino strings did background.

Eb found himself at Eddie Condon's for the most in the way of Dixieland. Charley was there. Homer was there. So was Gordon Jenkins and to the old lad's surprise, Jenkie was playing with all ten fingers. Eb flipped. He picked up the old tenor sax which he hadn't blown in several stanzas and got with the beat.

Just when things were really jumping, a ghostly specter in the form of Guy Lombardo appeared. "Ebenezer," cried the Guy, "do you dig this? Dad, this is without it. Hop down to the Roosevelt grill and you'll really hear some solid stuff."

This was too much even for old Scrooge and he promptly awakened and roared down to the corner for a short one.

It was heaven.

But down in Hell during the next dream, it was somewhat different. The very warm cats stood around the fire and burned old Goodman, Dorsey and Miller sides and even Gillespie LP's. The fumes were sheer ruin. Old Scrooge tried to stop them but to no avail. They only threw on more and chanted, "We all squares . . ."

He woke up screaming. "This cannot be," he moaned, "I must be merry at all costs." And so it was.

It was always said of old Scrooge that he knew how to keep Christmas well if any man alive possessed the knowledge. May that truly be said of all of us.

And so as Tiny Tim (a drummer with a small progressive group) observed, "If you can't sing it, swing it."

The ★ in the East

By JOHN JOHNSRUD

"Lo, the star, which they saw in the east came and stood over where the young child was."

This is the time of the year when people wonder about the fabled star which hovered over the town of Bethlehem. Was there really a bright star in the sky? What do the scientists say?

Astronomers have come up with four possible answers to the sudden appearance of a illuminated body in the heavens.

When two planets pass close to each other, their images as seen from earth come together and form a single brighter body. This is a rare occurrence, happening but once in 800 years, but it happened three times in the year 7 B.C., which has been established as the year of the birth of Christ.

It might have been Halley's Comet which caused the light in the sky. Its 75 year cycle shows that it would have appeared in 11 B.C., only a bit too early to be the famed star. A shooting star or meteor might also be the answer to the mystery.

Nova or periodic star might be the solution to the problem. Dead stoic occasionally makes unpredictable and short-lived explosions which are seen as sudden flare-ups which might be viewed as the birth of a new star.

However, each of these theories has one serious drawback. A celestial event of such magnitudes would have excited many people and received much attention but there is no mention of any such occurrences outside of the Bible.

It could not be any of the well-known heavenly bodies, such as Venus, Sirius, or the other bright stars. They are too well known by people to have been mistaken for a new star. Nevertheless, these stars are in the minds of many people when they think of the Star of Bethlehem.

Less Than 30 Years...

By ROGER J. HERZ

One more day to vacation, (for 90 per cent. To the other 10 percent—regrets).

Then we go to the station.

Once there shall we be content to sit in our rocking chairs and crochet ourselves to death? As does the babe in arms and the Civil war vet, we're getting older. And ready to assume some responsibility for this world of ours.

Social conscience, some call it.

From the abstract to the concrete:

Shall it be party-party, wine, women and "I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus" alone, or shall we go on to things bigger and better?

Whether the student be of voting age or no, it is our firm belief that he has a great deal to say about his government. There are possibilities of action in and out of political parties. Hearings are held on proposed bills, to which we, the citizens, are free to go, and present our thoughts.

The next two weeks can be more than just a respite from University life. It can be a contact with life.

As year's end approaches, we sit here with slightly grim smiles on our faces, bid farewell to 1953 and wish all a merry ground hog day.

And remember kiddies, when the crowds cheer and the 3 changes to a 4, it may be less than 30 years to 1984.

CHRISTMAS STORY

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS MERCY MAUD

Chapter IV

(In another week it will be Christmas. Carolers will be caroling. Bells will be ringing, and all will be good cheer for the season of the jolly holly and the merry berry will be upon us. But in the home of the Drixes life goes on as usual until————)

The voices drone on from the combination television set, bed, and cocktail mixer, that the Drixes are so proud of.

Mrs. Drix had by this time changed into her Christmas dress (two sprigs of holly and a tree decoration) and was settled dreamily by the set.

"Hark! The season of Christmas is upon us."

Maybe it was the season. Maybe it was the angelic voices on the television. Maybe it was the obedient way that Poopsy was sitting in the corner and knitting. Maybe it was the eight martinis that Mrs. D. had drunk. Anyway she started to think and then slowly to talk.

"You know poopsy," she said, "maybe Christmas is all right after all. Think of all the children in the world who are made glad by it. Think of all the poor, poor, families that are helped."

Poopsy dropped a stitch in his knitting.

"No really dear, all these years I haven't seen the real meaning of Christmas. Now I begin to realize all the things that it has always meant to me." From now on I'm going to be the first to send cards. By the way, Merry Christmas, Poopsy."

"Mercy Maude," said Mr. D. "What was that?"

The End

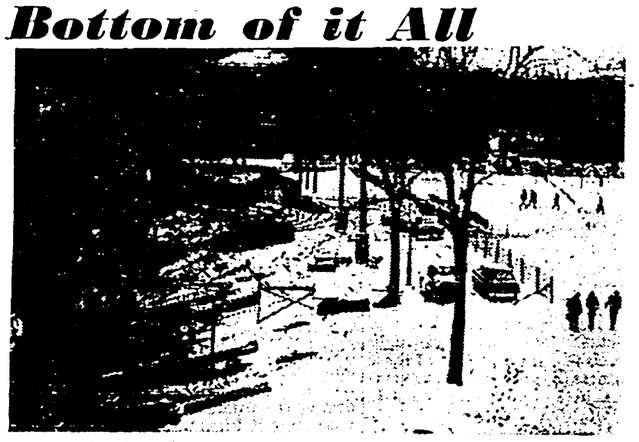
At the Bottom of it All



Snow and debris . . . The bare ground center and the area hidden by the trees will be replaced with the new engineering building in the coming year. The displaced prefab in the background will give way to the modern structure in brick and concrete trim.

We slid, slipped and skidded down the bank behind Slocum hall the other day to see what all the commotion was about. It seems that the boys are building a puzzle palace, slide-rule castle or College of Engineering, if you prefer.

At first glance, it may seem as though the boys are building in the wrong direction, but this is only a foundation that assures the dean of a place to throw flunking freshmen. Our engineers would look pretty silly if their own building collapsed about their heads for lack of a good foundation.

Parts of the basement wall are now being formed, with completion of the entire building expected in May, 1954. Facing the Quadrangle, the four story building will house the Chemical, Industrial, civil, and electrical engineering laboratories. Designed in the usual university style, the structure will be of red brick with limestone trim.

Temporarily covered with snow, the site is well fenced off from sidewalk superintendents and what the fences don't protect, the mud does. Workmen are presently pouring some of the concrete for the basement walls, while at the same time digging even further into the ground to house functions such as boiler rooms and other miscellaneous items.

What appears to be a series of good sized fishing poles jutting from the ground are actually steel rods used in the reinforcing of concrete pilings, or columns. Workmen are being somewhat hampered by the nasty weather of past days.

Designed for flexibility, the college has arranged for movable steel partitions which will enable rooms to be rearranged to suit future requirements. The $500,000 network analyzer, which is being built for the university by General Electric, will be housed on the first floor of the college.

The Coach Says:

-Ted Webster-

Last Saturday, the Niagara AAU swimming meet was held at Syracuse for the third consecutive time. The meet was a success and I was rather pleased with our team's showing.

The AAU's have taken great strides in the past few years. The entries were greater this year than ever before and will probably be even greater next year. In fact we might even have to scratch some of the events or start preliminaries in the morning instead of the afternoon, if the entry lists grow any longer.

It takes a while for the word to get around concerning an event such as the AAU's, but I think that this year's meet proves that the public and the competing squads have had a pickup in interest and we should continue to have successful meets.

Syracuse did as well as could be expected. We didn't bring the team to a peak for the AAU's because it is very early in the season and we have a strenuous schedule ahead of us.

We face Williams, Colgate, Columbia, Fordham and Dartmouth at home in dual meets. This is a good representative schedule and it should have spectator interest. It is the best schedule we have had in the past few years.

This year's team will probably post the poorest record Syracuse has had since '39. This is because of a heavy schedule of rugged opponents and rather poor freshman teams in the last two years. I look for an improvement, however, in this year's frosh squad.

The season will wind up, of course, with the NCAA event on March 25, 26 and 27. Almost all other sports have had their national tourneys held here at Syracuse, but swimming will have the biggest event. Work is already underway for the meet.

It will be a seven-session affair starting on Thursday evening. Friday and Saturday will have three sessions apiece, in the morning, the afternoon and in the evening.

Contrary to general thinking, there will be finals every evening. Qualifying rounds will be held in the morning and afternoon.

Last year there were 49 teams in the NCAA's, but we look for more this time. Syracuse is ideally suited for the event, not being a true eastern school, such as Yale, and not being in the midwest either. Because of our fine location, we expect 50 or more teams this year with 200 individuals competing.

The only drawback to our pool is that it is rather short on seating space, having only about half the capacity of comparable pools. Our seats, however, are better than most pools, with the sight line such that you can see all over the pool from any seat.

So we're looking ahead to a big season in swimming, one that will offer spectators a good dual meet schedule topped by the biggest event in collegiate swimming, the NCAA's.

Two Lettermen to Lead Syracuse Swordsmen

By ALEX STRASSER and BOB TATA

With only two lettermen returning from the 1953 squad, Fencing Coach Benjamin Burtt will be forced to build his squad around sophomores from the 1952-53 freshman team.

Captain John Goldstein and sabre veteran Al Peck will fence in the number one epee and saber slots. The other starting epee and saber positions have not been filled as yet.

Wong and Schop will contend for the second and third saber slots. Last year, Schop was the No. 4 foiler while Wong was the No. 1 saberman on the freshman squad.

Marcullo appears as the only candidate sure as a starter at foil. The field is wide open for the other two foil spots.

Last season, Goldstein won over 70% of his matches, and at one time in his freshman year, he won twelve straight.

WITH THE graduation of Captain Bill Robinson, Peck is the only returning starter to the saber section. Peck finished third behind Robinson and Goldstein in individual won and lost percentages last year, winning over 60% of his duels.

This year's fencing schedule is the shortest since the elevation of fencing to varsity status in 1949. Only six meets are scheduled in contrast to last year when the Orange D'Artagnans competed in 11 matches.

In 1951, Syracuse competed in 13 matches.

Among the six scheduled matches is the North Atlantic Intercollegiate Fencing classic. For the first time in two years the NAIFL classic will not be held at Syracuse. It will be staged at Buffalo.

A possibility remains, however, that another meet with Rochester Institute of Technology will be arranged.

Phys Ed Convo Held In Trophy Room

Coaches salaries have almost doubled what they were 10 years ago said Lewis P. Andreas, men's physical education director, at a convo held Tuesday night in the trophy room of the Men's gym.

The convocation was held to interest men in the physical education program at the University. It was sponsored by Phi Epsilon Kappa, men's phys ed honorary, in conjunction with the athletic department.

ANDREAS EXPLAINED that a coach's job is no longer the low paying position it used to be. He also stressed the need for phys ed teachers because of the huge increase in high school enrollment.

Roy Simmons, boxing, lacrosse and assistant football coach, noted that although salaries are increasing, the personal satisfaction gained from coaching is a much greater asset.

John Shaw, chairman of teacher training, outlined the six major fields in the physical education program. The general phys ed course allows a graduate to teach another subject such as mathematics or history in addition to his coaching duties.

Other fields available to phys ed majors at Syracuse include health, recreation, pre-physical therapy, recreation education, and a combination health and phys ed course.

Gymnasts to Close Tour

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse university's undefeated gymnastic team, victors for the second consecutive time Tuesday, will return to action tonight against the rugged Florida State Seminoles at Tallahassee, Fla. The meet will begin at 8:15 p.m.

In Florida State, Syracuse will be meeting one of the nation's perenial leaders. Gymnastics is considered one of the school's major sports, and it is not unusual when large crowds see the Seminoles in action.

AS IN PAST years, Florida State will field a potent aggregation. Seven lettermen have returned to the southern school, forming an excellent nucleus for Coach Hartley Price.

Price is beginning his fourth campaign as coach of the Seminoles. His brilliant record includes victories in the 1951 and 1952 NCAA meets, 1952 and 1953 AAU titlists, Florida AAU championships for the past three seasons, Georgia AAU and Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastics league titles for the last three campaigns.

Price can look to impressive seasons for many years to come. He has gathered together several of the leading gymnasts in the country and molded them into probably the greatest group of gymnasts in the United States.

Co-captain Don Holder, a member of the United States Olympic team in 1952 and winner of last year's NCAA club event, will lead the Seminoles.

HOLDER'S BRIGHT career includes victories in side horse competition in the 1952 and 1953 Southern Intercollegiate league championships, and the 1953 Florida AAU and Georgia AAU meets. He also holds victories in the all-around, calisthenics, and parallel bar events in the 1953 Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastic league championships.

Another returnee is Jack Miles who specializes in flying rings. Miles has won victories in that event in the 1951 Southern AAU's, 1952 and 1953 Florida AAU's and 1952 Southern Intercollegiates. In 1951 he was rated an all-American in that event.

Co-captain Pat Signorelli was Southern AAU titlist in the side horse in 1951. He also scored in the 1952 Southern Intercollegiates in the parallel bars and in 1953 in calisthenics.

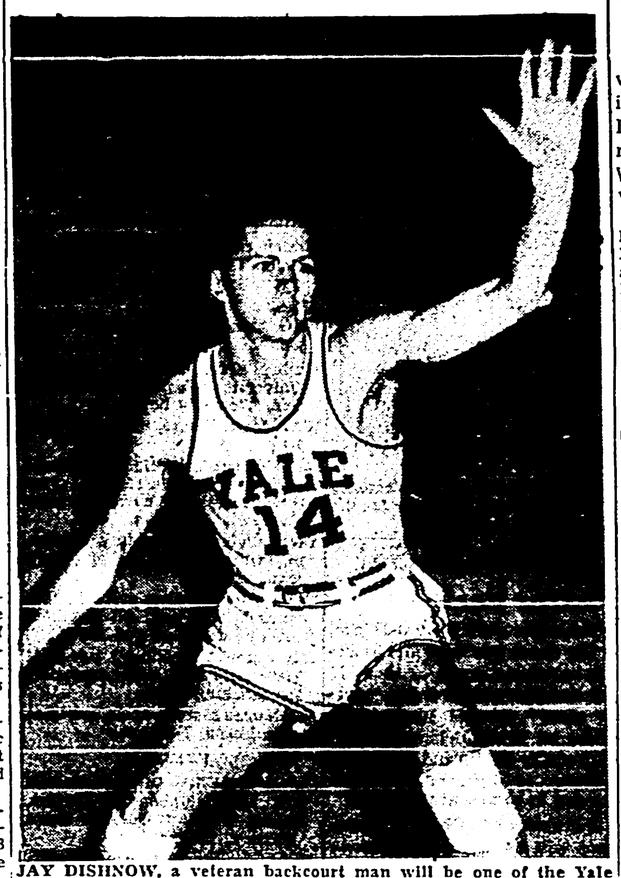
To back up this impressive list of performers Coach Hartley Price has lettermen Dick Gutting, tumbling and trampoline performer, Ben Wallace, Larry Weston, and Al Ruda. Other members of the squad are Gene Abrahamson, Bob Martin, Bill Koslow, Jim Fadigan, Jim Tanaka, and Kent Heberling.

AMONG POST-graduates now attending Florida State are Gene Rabbitt, former Syracuse side horse champion who captured many National AAU, NCAA, Eastern and Eastern AAU titles here.

Other post-graduates include the Regna brothers, Joe and Carmine, Jack Sharp and Al Juris. This group will probably participate in the meet, but their scores will not count in the final team results.

With all this strength facing them, the Saltine gymnasts are afforded little chance to cop the meet. It will, however, give the Orangemen an excellent opportunity to compete against probably the greatest group of collegiate gymnasts.

On Guard!



JAY DISHNOW, a veteran backcourt man will be one of the Yale spearheads as the Eli hoopsters go after their third win of the season Saturday afternoon against Marc Guley's Orangemen. The game will be seen nationally on ABC television starting at 2:30 p.m.

The televised Navy encounter saw the Middies leading throughout the game in winning- 90-82. Star Bulldog in that game and in previous games was Capt. Spencer Schnaitter who netted 22 points.

The only returning regular, Schnaitter is a 6 ft.-3 forward. Pairing with Schnaitter at forward will be senior Frank Demack, a two-year letterman standing 6 ft.-4.

Six ft.-5 MARK Yellin will open at the center spot for the Elis and is counted on to do the bulk of the board work. A fast man for his size, Yellin is especially dangerous with his hook shot.

Probable starting guards for the visitors will be junior Dave Hobson and junior Jay Dishnow. Hobson, son of the Bulldog's coach Howard Hobson, is a star defensive player and shotmaker. Six-foot Dishnow saw limited action in the 1952-53 season.

Although inexperienced in college competition, the New Englanders gained added experience during the summer when the squad made a nine-game "good-will" tour of South America.

Coach Marc Guley will probably start Ron Kilpatrick, Dave Kline, Jack Larned, Mel Besdin and either Manny Breland or Gus Castellini from his sophomore contingent. Kilpatrick should be in top shape for the game after limping through the last few contests with an ankle injury.

Eight Syracuse Grapplers to Vie In Wilkes College Tournament

By DON HENRY

Four freshman and four varsity wrestlers will be making a trip to Pennsylvania, Dec. 27 to compete in the annual Christmas Holiday Open Wrestling tournament at Wilkes college in Wilkes-Barre.

THE WILKES college-sponsored tournament awards trophies to first and second place winners in each weight division, a first place team trophy and a runner-up team trophy, and an outstanding wrestler award.

The weight divisions are classified differently in the holiday invitational tourney than they are in regular competition with 115, 191 and unlimited classes being added to the customary 123, 130, 137, 147, 157, 167 and 177 divisions.

The varsity grapplers' power will be concentrated in the middle and light-heavyweight divisions. Tom King will be entered in the 137-pound class. Hank Gobetz and Henry Dinkelmeyer will be grappling in the 167 and 177 pound classes, respectively.

The other varsity grappler will be Co-captain Ed Rooney. The 157-pound scrapper will be gunning for the individual trophy that he barely missed winning last year. Rooney had gained the finals, and was ahead of his opponent Frank Bettucci of Cornell, when he had to withdraw from the match because of an ankle injury.

SINCE THERE is no line drawn between varsity and frosh wrestlers, Hill yearling Clark will be entered in the 115-pound class, Marenelli in the 147 class, Boosman at 157 and Smith at 167.

The preliminary matches will be held Monday, Dec. 28 at 7 p.m. The semi-finals will be conducted the next afternoon at 2 o'clock and the finals will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Three Cage Tilts Set For Vacation Period

Syracuse's varsity hoopsters will play three games during the Christmas vacation, one in Archbold gymnasium and two on the road. Princeton visits the local arena Dec. 31 while the Saltines travel to Cornell and Rochester for other contests.

The initial holiday encounter is the meeting with Cornell at Barton hall, Ithaca on Dec. 30. The Big Red, pre-season favorite to capture Ivy league honors, is led by Capt. Lee Morton, 6 ft.-3 forward.

Coach Roynor Green has two other returning veterans, guard Dave Bradfield and forward Jack Sheehy, to throw against the Orange. A pair of excellent sophomores, 6 ft.-5 Ray Zelek and little Chuck Rolles, will probably be the other starters in the 54th battle between the Central New York rivals.

Princeton, which invades Piety Hill the following night, is of unknown quality. The Tigers dropped their only start, a 74-61 loss to powerful Fordham. Best of the Orange and Black cagers appears to be Don Haabstad, high-scoring forward.

Coach Marc Guley's quintet closes its holiday action Jan. 2 when it journeys to Rochester The Yellow Jackets are paced by 6 ft.-5 Jim Armstrong and 6 ft-2 Nelson Hoffman. Joe Texter, Hank Cwalina and Dick Wood are the other probable starters.

Syracuse will also travel to Penn State Jan. 6 before returning to the Salt City for a tilt with Pittsburgh on Jan. 9.

my grammar school in California taught me."

Sat, as he is called, explained that he never thought of himself or anyone else as "different" until world war II when friends began to avoid him. Then a 7:30 p.m. curfew for Japanese was established in Sat's community.

"When the government started to uproot us from our homes there was only emotional indignation and the question Why?"

Sat spent two years in a "relocation center" then through the heroism of the Nisei troops in France the Japanese-Americans were allowed to resume a normal life.

"Through this personal experience I have come to believe that the greatest product we have to sell is people, all kinds of people," concluded Sat.

Lynda Pollock, a Jew, came from a homogenous background never really knowing anyone but Jews. "I wa staught that there is one God, the father of all, and since there is only one God, all men are brothers. Therefore, one should never hurt another," said Miss Pollack.

When she came to Syracuse she was afraid things would be different. Her roommate was a Methodist from a small town in Pennsylvania. When they got to know each other, the two girls discovered that they had much more in common than they had different.

"I even went to Chapel and got a handbook on Methodism so my roommate would have more ammunition," Miss Pollack laughed. "The story we heard next day was that a Jewish girl brought a Methodist into Chapel."

"A Rabbi once said, 'The righteous of all nations shall have a place in heaven.' Do they have that place in the world?" Miss Pollack asked.

John Snead, a Negro spoke of his father's prejudice toward the white people. "I could not bring white friends home unless my mother, an Algonquin Indian, practically stood guard at the door," he said.

City Students Set 'Platter Party'

A program of special entertainment will be given at the three intermissions, one each hour. They will feature skits, dance and comic routines, magic acts and other special surprises. Mixer games and square dancing are also on the program for the night.

Dean Paul H. Appleby of the Maxwell graduate school flew to India last Sunday, where he will serve for three months as consultant on public administration problems.

The Ford Foundation is sending Dean Appleby at the request of the government of India, and the personal request of Prime Minister JaJwaharlal Nehru.

DEAN APPLEBY will confer with various ministers and officials in Indian national government and state governments, about ways of developing their administrative systems.

Less than a year ago Dean Appleby returned from a six-months Indian tour, also made under the auspices of the Ford Foundation. He issued a 30,000 word appraisal of India's administrative competence and methods of operation.

On his first trip he traveled 10,000 miles in India, interviewing persons in ten of the 26 Indian states. This trip, accompanied by his wife, he will also travel extensively.

Dean Appleby came to Syracuse seven years ago, after 14 years of work with the national government, in the department of agriculture and as assistant director of the U.S. bureau of the budget.

HIS EXPERIENCE in the U.S. government brought him into contact with 50 foreign governments. He attended and chaired international conferences and completed international agreements.

He served on President Roosevelt's postwar policy committee, and was the American member of the commission that organized the United Nations Food and Agriculture organization.

The dean has worked on similar foreign assignments, including one in Britain studying food production during the last war.

PAUL H. APPLEBY of the Maxwell graduate school left Sunday for India at the request of the government there.

Air Force Stresses Manpower Need; Enlistees Wanted

Manpower problems in the Air Force were stressed yesterday in an announcement by Lt. Gen. Emmett (Rosy) O'Donnell yesterday. He said that the service faces "grave problems" in maintaing itself through volunteers, but added that the air force hopes to expand and meet manpower goals without using the draft.

The draft has previously been used to obtain members of the marine corps in addition to the army men called to service. He said the draft would be used to obtain air force members only as a last resort.

THE GENERAL said the draft could not be used because the air force needs four-year men. Draftees are required to serve from 21 to 24 months at present.

He said that the air force, requiring technically trained men, cannot effectively use "two-year" men.

He mentioned the Korean truce and the "new look" policy of the armed services as one of the reasons that it has been difficult to maintain the air force through volunteers.

Another hamstring in air force personnel operations has been the shortage of pilots. The Army-Navy-Air Force Journal, a semi-official publication, reported last week that if there is not a late upward trend the February quota for trainees will not be met.

GEN. O'DONNELL said that his optimism on meeting manpower goals "May be sparked by a little wishful thinking." He said the air force will attempt to encourage a high re-enlistment rate among four-year men. The air force spends about $14,000 to train each airman. Approximately 180,000 four-year enlistments are due to expire in the coming year.

He said that if the plan to encourage re-enlistments is successful, the government would save $2.5 billion. Re-enlistment bonuses from $160 to $360 are offered.

The air force is set to expand to 1 million men by 1957 under the "new look" that emphasizes airpower and deemphasizes ground power.

It was on the heel of this "new

Faculty Members Attend Convention

Speech Meeting Held In New York

Eight faculty members of Syracuse university's school of speech and dramatic art attended the convention of the Speech Association of America and related societies Dec. 28-30, in the Statler hotel, New York.

Those attending were Dr. Eric H. Faigle, dean of the School of Speech and Dramatic Art; Dr. J. Calvin Callaghan, chairman of the public address department; Dr. Raymond L. Irwin, chairman of the interpretation department; and Dr. Agnes I. Allardyce, dual professor of speech and education.

No Decision Made On Fraternity Case

Greeks File Petition; Declare Ban Illegal

A federal judge yesterday reserved decision on a petition for dismissal of a suit questioning constitutionality of the State University order banishing national social fraternities and sororities from university campuses.

Judge James I. Foley of Federal District Court gave the university and Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity 25 days in which to file briefs.

Earl Webb, president of the national fraternity, filed a petition seeking an injunction prohibiting enforcement of the university ban. It states that the order violates the 14th amendment to the Federal Constitution. The Amendment provides that no states shall abridge the privileges of any citizen of the United States and guarantees citizens against loss of property without due process of law.

Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity has chapters at 45 colleges and universities, including the New York state teachers' colleges at Buffalo, Cortland, Oswego, Oneonta and New Paltz.

J-School Selected For Business Club

Syracuse university School of Journalism has been selected as one of six institutions in the United States for membership in the Associated Business Publications, Dean Wesley C. Clark was notified recently.

This organization consists of several hundred of the principal trade, technical and industrial publications of the nation, and is headed by William K. Beard Jr., formerly vice-president of McGraw-Hill publishing company.

Purpose of the invitation to Syracuse is to increase the cooperation between the schools of journalism and the business publications, such as encouragement of research by the schools and making information about the publications more readily available.

The five other schools of journalism invited are those at the Universities of Minnesota, Northwestern, Montana state, Wisconsin, and Missouri.

Contest Slated to Pick Empress for Weekend

Empress for a Weekend will be the title of the winner of this year's Winter Weekend beauty contest. Designed to replace the former queen contests, the competition is open to all coeds on campus.

Chairman Michael Schaffer has announced that organizations are urged to submit entrants. There is no limit on the number of entrants an organization may enter.

THE EMPRESS will be crowned at the Ice Pageant which opens the Feb. 12-14 weekend. She will reign at all the affairs of the weekend and be re-crowned at the Sno-ball dance on Saturday night.

Applications for the contest which can be found in The Daily Orange must be submitted along with the $1.00 entrance fee to Michael Schaffer, Zeta Beta Tau, by 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Judging will be done Wednesday, Jan. 13 from 7-10 p.m. in Maxwell auditorium. At that time, the winner will be selected although the announcement will not be aired until Friday, Feb. 12. The winner will receive her first notification in that day's edition of The Daily Orange.

The five finalists will be announced the night of the judging. They will be interviewed on various local radio and television shows in addition to having their pictures in the downtown papers. Last year's queen was Virginia Amram, Sigma Delta Tau.

THE EMPRESS and members of the court will be presented with gifts from various local merchants.

Cagers to Oppose Penn State Five

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Coach Marc Guley's hoop squad will leave by plane this morning for tonight's game with Penn State's Nittany Lions at State College, Pa. Seeking their seventh victory against three setbacks, the Pietymen will probably be slight underdogs in the opener of a home-and-home series.

Guley is expected to open with the same five hoopsters who saw action in the Rochester victory Saturday night. Ron Kilpatrick will be at center while sophs Ron Gillespie and Manny Breland will open at forward. Rounding out the starting lineup will be veteran backcourt men Capt. Mel Besdin and Jack Larned.

Leading the hosts' attack will be two year veterans Jesse Arnelle and Capt. Jack Sherry. Arnelle, rated the "greatest scoring threat" in Penn State history will prove a problem for the Orangemen under the boards. He stands 6 ft.-5.

Sherry, a 6 ft.-1 guard is the floor general for the Lions and a top scorer. He rated second in scoring behind Arnelle last year with 248 points, nearly 11 counters per contest.

Two other starters from last year's quintet who are back are guard Ron Weidenhammer and forward Ed Haag. Rounding out the starting quintet will probably be sophomore, Rudy Marisa, a 6 ft.-4 forward, who starred on last year's yearling aggregation. A tough man under the boards, he has a good one-hand shot.

SYRACUSAN DAVE Kline will make the trip but is expected to see only limited action. The Orange's best rebounder, his absence due to an elbow injury, will hurt Syracuse under the boards.

Rated one of the best squads in Penn State history, the Lions specialize in an air-tight zone defense which will prove a test to the Orange outside shooters.

In earlier clashes, the Lions romped over Washington-Jefferson and American U. while falling before powerful North Carolina State and Penn.

International Group Honors Dean Hurley

Acting Dean Morris E. Hurley of the College of Business Administration has been elected to honorary membership in the International Mark Twain society, an organization inspired by the writings of Samuel L. Clemens to honor the world's literautres.

Hurley's selection by the board of directors was announced by Cyril Clemens, president of the society, from society headquarters in St. Louis. Hurley has been selected for this honor because of his recent literary accomplishment "Elements of Business Administration."

In 1948, Arnold W. Johnson, former chairman of the University's accounting department, was similarly honored by this society for his writings in the business administration field.

DO Business Staff Meets Tomorrow

All members of The Daily Orange business staff must report to the Hellbox at 4 p.m. tomorrow for a business staff meeting. Plans and assignments for the spring semester will be discussed, according to Robert Goldstein, business manager of the paper.

At Last We See the Light

By MICHAEL BRAUN

Driving along Walnut Sunday night, amid suitcases, Christmas cards, and all sorts of cheer we were taken aback by a strange sight at the corner of University pl. It wasn't that it was really strange. It was more like impossible.

Syracuse university, our beloved alma mater, after untold eons of pleading and cajoling the Syracuse traffic department had finally obtained traffic lights. Not just one, mind you, but two, spanking new, yellow boxed lights.

MONDAY MORNING we called the traffic bureau. After talking to a young lady who wanted to know how much our ticket amounted to, we were connected to a Mr. Kavanaugh (with a K, please) who turned out to be the one with all the facts.

Just before the vacation, the city fathers in a burst of holiday generosity gave the department $2,500, for the project. So while we were all at home celebrating, Mr. Kavanaugh and his crew were busy on University pl. constructing.

"The lights are the newest type, complete with blinkers, and manually-operated controls for pedestrians," said Mr. K. "We're not

Engineers May Benefit From Recent Grant

By ROGER HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Chancellor William P. Tolley, in welcoming a gift of $100,000 to Syracuse university from the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, said recently that the gift might be used in connection with the expansion of the College of Engineering on campus.

"It would provide substantial help in establishing and equipping engineering laboratories needed for the training of future engineers and stimulating significant industrial research," he said. Final decision on its application will be reached in talks with the company.

THE GIFT was given to the University in honor of Frank W. Abrams, chairman of its board of trustees who retired on Jan. 1 of this year. Abrams is an alumnus of Syracuse, class of 1912, and is vice-chairman of the University's board of trustees.

President of Standard Oil Eugene Holman announced the award last month at a meeting of more than 200 employees, noting Mr. Abrams' interest in education and in particular, of interest in Syracuse university, his alma mater."

The Chancellor said, "We are extremely grateful for the generous gift and especially proud that this gift was given in honor of Frank W. Abrams.

"Mr. Abrams has given freely of his time, energy and leadership since 1948 as national chairman of Syracuse university's building and development program and has successfully spearheaded the $15 million fund drive which is now approaching its goal," he said.

DR. TOLLEY noted that Abrams has given his attention not only to Syracuse, but to education in general. "He is a leader among business men in encouraging industry to participate in the support of higher education and private institutions of learning," he said.

Abrams received his civil engineering degree in 1912 from what was then called the College of Applied Science (it's now the College of Engineering). He didn't wait for the

Coed Living Centers To Close for Vacation

Miss Kathryn Copeland, director of women's housing, will explain the closing of women's living centers during a five-day mid-semester vacation at a special session of the women's student government assembly at 7 p.m. today in the dance studio of the Women's building.

Scheduled to follow final exams, the vacation will run from Saturday, Jan. 30 to Wednesday, Feb. 3. At tonight's meeting Miss Copeland will explain to house presidents the reason for closing the dorms and cottages.

ALTHOUGH MOST living centers will have locked doors for the five-day period, a few will be kept open for the benefit of those who wish to remain at the University. These will be announced later this week.

Following Miss Copeland's explanation, Speaker Patricia Fay will call for discussion from the floor. No WSG action will be taken to request that living centers remain open this year or in the future, unless overwhelming sentiment should be raised against the closing.

The meeting was originally scheduled because some coeds had indicated surprise at the move.

According to University Vice President Frank P. Piskor, men's living centers will also be closed during the mid-semester vacation. He stated that no students had voiced protest of this action.

PROF PRESENTS PAPER

Thursday the fraternity will serenade the queen at 8 p.m. at the living center she is representing.

Shirley Ann Fenner and the new sweetheart will be feted at a dinner in their honor Friday. The queen and her court will reign at the annual Sweetheart ball, Saturday, at the Carriage house of the Corinthian club.

AEPi Burglarized During Vacation

Milton Shefter and Gerhard Zimmt, both sophomores, told police that a typewriter valued at $102 and a phonograph worth $95 were taken. Shefter said that all the rooms on the second floor of the house had been entered.

Patrolman Edward Kincella reported that entry to the house apparently had been made by breaking glass in a side door.

The 1,600 volume textbook lending library will be liquidated because the University has been unable to find suitable space to house it.

A special committee chaired by Miss Fern Allen, head of the University's branch libraries, was appointed by Vice President Frank P. Piskor, to investigate the problem of continuation or liquidation of the library.

THE COMMITTEE, including Dean Carlton Krathwohl, Dr. Wilbur Haseman, Mary Ann Dalton, James F. Carr and Alice Camp, investigated the possibility of housing the library somewhere on campus.

Locations such as the fifth floor of HL, basements of Reid and Lima cottages, the Women's building, prefabs, the newly acquired Herzog house, the Castle and the Chapel were considered.

Because these buildings were unavailable or unsuitable and due to the rapid depreciation of the value of texts, the committee recommended the immediate disposal of the library.

Dean Piskor has appointed a committee comprised of Miss Allen, Dr. Haseman, Miss Camp and Carr to supervise the liquidation.

ORIGINALLY A Student union service, the library was incorporated into Associated Campus services when that organization was formed after the dissolution of the union.

The collection was moved from storage into the library in the Women's building so that it could function at the beginning of the fall semester. During the three weeks the library was located there it lost many current texthooks because the room was also used for other purposes.

The volumes will be sold through several outlets wit happroximately 700 current second semester texts going on sale in the Student Coop Book mart.

All texts that will not be used on campus next semester will be offered for sale to Barnes and Noble and other second hand book buyers. Other books, such as anthologies, classics and novels, which the committee feels students might like to add to their personal libraries will go on sale at a future date.

STUDENTS WHO currently have texts on loan from the library will have first chance to purchase these books if they desire.

More than 120 of the library's books have already been given to the student browsing library in the Women's building. Most of these were course reference books, special gifts and the Peter Hoffman and Stuart Stevens memorial books.

In the last annual report of the Student union, the library was valued at $4,051.72 and since then several hundred books have been added.

"It is expected that we will receive under $1,000 by selling the texts at this time," Carr, president of Associated Campus services, said.

THE MONEY will probably go into a limited scholarship fund with a clause to release a certain portion of the principal when it is possible to reinstate the library on campus.

The library was organized in April 1948 and first put into operation that fall. Unsold books from the Book Mart and the University's lost and found department made up the library's first collection.

The average number of current texts in the library has been around 400, but last year it grew to over 1,600 with the solicitation of books from faculty and students and added gifts from the Book Mart.

Cornell Teachers To Speak Here

Two Cornell university faculty members will be guests of the Syracuse university physics department this week.

Prof. Tomboulian will speak on "Ultra-violet radiation from the Synchroton" at 4 p.m., Thursday in 106 Steele hall.

In memoriam

The friends of Harriet Herman, saddened by her death Sunday, will long remember the young coed's enthusiasm, her eagerness and talent in the field of dramatics and radio. To her parents and relatives, the Daily Orange, on behalf of the student body, expresses its sympathy.

No room to live

One of the most important functions of the Student Union will soon join its predecessors in temporary oblivion, for it was announced during the vacation that the textbook lending library would be forced to liquidate.

This is an unfortunate fate for the 5-year-old friend of hundreds of Hill students. It is the more unfortunate because the reason was that no adequate space could be found for it.

However, when it first became known last year that the Student Union was in its last days, the Administration implied that the lending library, as well as other Union service functions vital to the students would be continued.

No one will probably be able to ascertain the monetary value of the lending library. With the ever-increasing fees and skyrocketing costs of books, it is obvious that the library meant necessary savings for many.

It is now too late to save the present library. Our only hope is that at some future time when Union social facilities will be centralized, someone will remember the days when hundreds of dollars were saved annually at a non-profit student lending library—a library which died because there was no room for it to live.

Editor-in-Chief

A fine idea

Women's student government assembly meets in special session tonight to discuss the closing of women's living centers for the mid-year holiday set for Jan. 30-Feb. 4.

Although no protests were lodged officially against the closing, WSG thought the session may be an ideal opportunity to hear any protests, discuss condemnation or commendation of the housing plan.

The University is providing rental quarters in several women's dorms for those coeds who want to spend the hiatus in Syracuse.

Apparently everyone wants the vacation.

But because it was made possible only recently, through the elimination of January commencement, it appears that some students originally felt they were not informed in time.

It also appears that some coeds, budget conscious, feel they have neither the funds to pay for lodgings during the vacation week nor the funds to make the trip home.

Any action taken at tonight's meeting will probably be effective only for those coeds who might like to stay here during future mid-year vacations, arrangements for this year having been almost completed.

It is unfortunate that the vacation was not announced earlier so that any changes desired by the students might have influenced this year's housing policy.

However, a vacation just after exams seems to be the thing that most students scream for each year.

It is doubtful whether gripes will be forthcoming.

Top Films of Past Year

By CHARLES SAMUELS

Daily Orange Movie Critic

It's ten best time. The time has come for all movie critics from the New York Times to the Syracuse Daily Orange to get out their typewriters and prepare a list of the 10 best movies of the year. This is the first year that we have had the opportunity to prepare such a list and we would like to take this opportunity to thank those readers who have helped us to reach this point. Now we plunge into the inevitably dangerous task.

1953 was notable only for a series of technical gimmicks, none of which did anything substantial for the cause of cinematic art. The trend toward making adult dramas received a noticeable setback this year, with only one original drama of any merit being presented. The list included all English language pictures. Any films of merit which might have been neglected here may be due to the fact that this non-pro reviewer may have missed them. We would however like to state at the outset that two films "Shane" and "Stalag 17" were purposely neglected. In your reviewer's minority opinion both these films were highly overrated.

1. The Bandwagon (M.G.M.) This superlative musical was intended as a piece of pure entertainment and was exactly that. Its success in fulfilling its objective earns it a front-rank position in the year's crop of films. The pace was fast, the script was witty and tuneful and America's fame in the musical comedy field was reaffirmed.

2. The Beggar's Opera (Oliver-Wilcox-British) This movie version of John Gay's rowdy satire was brilliantly conceived. A whole period of history leapt to beautiful life and a rowsing time greeted the patrons.

3. Roman Holiday (Paramount) A notably charming romp, deftly directed and superbly acted. America has never distinguished itself in the field of light romance but this film was as good as any of the French efforts.

4. Julius Caesar (M.G.M.) This more than usually successful filming of Shakespeare had a tendency to take its dignity too seriously. However, it was the best production of a Shakespearean play since Olivier's "Hamlet".

5. Crash of Silence (The Story of Mandy) (Balcon-British) A scrupulously honest, wonderfully understated and powerful story of the rehabilitation of a deaf child. The English talent for quiet drama was responsible for the success of this film.

6. The Captain's Paradise (Kimmins-British) Another Guiness romp, this one with a surprise ending that was the absolute pinnicle of comedy.

7. From Here to Eternity (Columbia) The only American drama of any note had a tendency to fall apart but Fred Zinnemann's tense direction and some fine acting kept it from disintegrating.

8. Escape From Fort Bravo (M.G.M.) This clever Western may technically be out of the running (it has not opened in N. Y. yet) but it is nevertheless a fine example of its genre.

9. Kiss Me Kate (M.G.M.) Another fine musical from M.G.M.

10. The Importance of Being Earnest (J. Arthur Rank) A slightly pedestrian but excellently acted version of Oscar Wilde's great farce.

Four foreign films deserve mention. It is the sad truth, sad for the U. S., that any one of them was better than the 10 best American films.

They were: Justice is Done (French); Rome, 11 O'clock (Italian); Two Cents Worth of Hope (Italian); Fan Fan the Tulip (French); There it is. Appre mois le'deluge.

1954 Comes Up: Now a Time For Evaluation

By ROGER J. HERZ

Life is just a bowl of cherries.
Yeah. Full of pits.
Just how profound is profundity?
Introspection is the word.
The editorials said to be optimistic. That 1953 may have been a turning point. End of a phase of a cold war. Let us pray.
1954 comes up. Closer to the future and further from the past.
A time for evaluation.
There's a growing awakening.
A spreading death, too.
Sleep. Indifference.
Some noted that the four freedoms had been or were in danger of being replaced by the four fears.
The Russians declared Santa Claus to be evil and a capitalistic bearer of deathly atomic ray guns.
Robin Hood was accused of being a Communist.
And the cigarette manufacturers started an investigation into a possible connection that they hoped didn't exist between cigarette smoking and lung cancer.
A year of variety. And now: a time for evaluation.
Necessity for evaluation internationally, within blocs of nations, nationally, statewise, countywise, citywise and personally.
Necessity for evaluation spiritually, morally, professionally, politically.
This needn't mean a living in the past. But figurative eyes in the back of the head might help.
Might help the individual to better realization of his social responsibility. No man an island unto himself.
The college student can be effective politically, for instance. We don't think it's a question of a sudden maturity upon graduation or at the fatal moment one comes of voting age.

TOP MUSIC OF 1953 WITH NOTES

1953 Awards and Dischords

A little over 365 days ago I sat at this typewriter and wondered just what had taken place of note in the music and entertainment business during the past year. It turned out to be a down right tussle.

Today the same thoughts are fliting about as the old warrior goes at it once again. It's still an up-hill climb. But in 1953, as in no other year in some time, there was to be found a staggering lot of things to shout about as well as the usual number of sour pickles.

This year past, in addition to a number of notable front page news events, saw an earnest attempt to push the dance band business to its former glory and the up-swing of instrumental music. It also saw an amazing splatter of good music from Hollywood and the stablizing of a few worthy musical forms in television. It has been not an altogether brilliant 365 but nevertheless the picture happily escaped dullness.

Best Popular Recordings of the Year—"The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," Tommy Dorsey's orch.; "Nina Never Knew" and "The Moon Is Blue," Sauter-Finegan orch.; "I've Got The World On A String," Frank Sinatra; "I've Got You Under My Skin," Peggy Lee; and "Ebb Tide," Frank Chacksfield's orch. The Biggest—"Song From Moulin Rouge" by Percy Faith and Felica Sanders; and "Vaya Con Dios," Les Paul and Mary Ford.

Classical Favors — "Fountains and/or Pines of Rome," Arturo Toscanini.

'53 Surprises—Eartha Kitt, Jazzbo Collins, Norman Brooks, Ralph Marterie and Bob Manning.

Radio—"Frankly Speaking" with Frank Sinatra, ABC's "Piano Playhouse," and as always, the disk jockeys who try. Special TV Notes—Ray Bolger's amazing "Where's Raymond" show, the return of Dave Garroway to evening video, Harry Belafonte's appearance on "Toast of the Town," and the guest star segments on the "Jackie Gleason show."

Top Movie Scores—Frank Loesser's fantastic "Hans Christian Anderson" score, "Bandwagon" music by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, "The Story of Three Loves," "Terry's Theme," and "Julie" from "Take the High Ground."

An Outstanding Contribution To Music in 1953—The development of high-fidelity phonographs and recordings.

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

It's a Small World

By MILT SHEFTER

Small world dept.: After a short but lucrative visit to the old homestead, we embarked for the soothing quiet of New York City. Although this is a city of fair size, Times Square proved to really be the Crossroads of the world. While meandering along we were hailed by a larger number of S.U.'ers than we usually encounter on the quad. And to top it off, the natives were mostly outnumbered by the "tourists." Many were seen in line at the various eateries. Not too much different than Sims, huh?

* * *

New Year's Eve: Yeah, that was nice too. We had a great time, they tell us. We had a slight case of stomach trouble they tell us, too. At one party we mixed Vodka punch with 100% Bonded and it made us see Red. The next afternoon, we went to an egg nog party. After this they served dinner which included beer, pickles and chocolate cake among other things. Bromo anyone?

* * *

Surprise Div.: Upon our return, we were notified we had uninvited visitors who helped themselves to our typewriter among other things. The radio policeman was filling out his report when our roommate decided to play his phonograph. This wasn't too bad except for his selection of music. The boy in blue choked on his question as the all too familiar strains of Dragnet filled the room. From now on, he can do his disc-jockeying at the West Genesee St. pokey.

* * *

And to rub more salt in the wound, he asked us for our names —middle included. That was all right until he came to Jerry, a Brazilian from Rio de Janeiro, with a German name. His name—and try this for Scrabble points—Gerhard Gunther Otto Zimmt. Our boy in blue blinked, muttered something about why he gets all the screwey ones, and continued on with his questioning.

* * *

Renovation and Innovation Dept.: Santa paid an early visit to College and University and presented us with our new lights we wanted so badly. They're even in coordination and have walking aids for pedestrians. Will wonders never cease? And the battle is on in the new cavity behind Smith. The giant with the jaw will have its mouth full trying to dig more dirt than snow. Dig it—it's cool!

* * *

And now if you'll excuse us, we must hop down to the book store. Seems we bought a few wrong texts in September.

STORY OF A SHAGGY DOG LARGE SIZE

What to do when that monster, Andy, comes visiting? We looked up from the ever-present textbook the other day and saw the biggest St. Bernard in creation standing in the doorway. How he got there no one knows, or admits. Methinks one of our more playful fellow students introduced him to our door. He entered the room (that dog doesn't just walk in—he enters) and assumed his favorite position—prone.

He flopped down in the center of the floor and when the building stopped vibrating, we saw that this would never do. He was an obstacle to all traffic, even aircraft.

Our more daring roommate grabbed him by the neck and tried to talk him into moving just a little bit. Andy glared at him and the conversation stopped. The resourceful roommate hit upon a plan. Placing his foot on the south end of Andy's posterior, he pushed. Andy slid. The roommate pushed more. Andy slid further. Soon the obstacle was completely out in the hall. But our green rug was still under him. That's what he'd been sliding on. A problem. How to get the rug out from under the esteemed Mr. Andrew. Throw a cat in front of him? A choice piece of steak? Punch him in the eye? Buy some blasting powder?

Forsooth! He moved! That's what we like—cooperation. He walked out the door and we retrieved the rug. Last thing we noticed was Andy getting on the bus for a ride back to campus. Merry Christmas, Andy, call again.

Strength & Dignity in Style

"Croatian Rhapsody," by Ivan Mestrovic, reveals the artist's accustomed style with strength and dignity. This carving, completed in 1947, was purchased by Syracuse university in September, 1953. It is now on display on the second floor of the Women's building.

This statue has been exhibited in Toronto and elsewhere in Canada. As the title suggests, this figure symbolizes the artist's memory of his native Yugoslavia.

As an artist, Mestrovic developes his sculptural concepts with "insight and rare technical skill." As a teacher, he places great emphasis on "individual development free from the constraint of dogma and formula."

According to Professor Mestrovic, "Everyone shall be sincere with himself and the world, find his own best medium, realize his own capacity, do what he must do."

Professor Mestrovic has recently completed a 28-ft. figure for the new addition to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota. The School of Art exhibited a model of this piece at its faculty exhibition last October.

Marxism Equals War

What is Communism?

Most simply, it is a militant and semi-military faith, engaged in a war, now open, now concealed, against all others. The outcome of this war will probably decide what the next phase of human life will look like.

In the past, civilized men have lived by a double standard, varying in degree with place and time. There was a traditional morality of peace, according to which it is wrong and unlawful to steal what does not belong to you, to lie under oath, to plot against the state and to murder your friends or even people you do not like. And there was a traditional morality of war, according to which practically anything goes.

What Communism has done is make the morality of war its permanent single standard, by which it always lives and acts. Such an evil thing has never before happened on such a scale in human history.

—Whittaker Chambers, condensed from Look.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Memories of an event-filled Syracuse sports' vacation . . . Cookie Kukowski and Bob Fleck's praise-worthy line play in the East-West classic . . . Pat Stark's eleventh hour jaw injury . . . Outstanding wrestler award winner Ed Rooney at the Lehigh tournament . . . Bob Leberman and Les McClelland in the Blue-Gray clash . . . Ron Gillespie's eye-catching performance in the hoopsters' three vacation wins . . . Dave Kline's broken wrist . . . the gymnasts successful Southern jaunt and a nationwide teevee appearance in the Yale basketball win.

It was a lot different from last year at this time when Syracuse fans with upturned collars dodged parents, friends, relatives, etc., because of a Southern disaster.

This year almost everything went right. Even the alumni made news as former Orange star Carl Karilivacz snatched a last ditch Cleveland Brown pass for Detroit to clinch the Lions' second straight pro football championship.

The most unfortunate occurrence was that Stark finished his brilliant college career the same way he began it—on a hospital bed. Three years ago the Vocational star broke his leg in the opening minutes of the Templa game. His jaw was broken in the closing minutes of the East-West exhibition.

PAT STARK

Praise is in order for Paul Romeo's gymnasts who walloped Duke and North Carolina and then were edged out by the Yankees of gymnastics, Florida State. What makes the victories all the more amazing is that they were accomplished with the bare minimum of personnel, five men.

We were disappointed that the Orangemen's video victory over Yale two weeks ago was not shown in New York city. The ABC-TV network coverage of the game covered 32 cities, but for some unknown reason the Big City did not carry the game.

Of course, everyone watched the East-West game and especially the three Syracusans. It was disappointing that Pat didn't see more action at quarterback but the play of Kukowski and Fleck was commented upon over the air more than once.

In fact, the television announcer stated after Cookie had successively broken up a West pass threat, "I certainly hope Kukowski's family is looking in. That boy is really playing a game out on the field today and his folks can be really proud of him."

A piece such as this would not be complete without a mention of the showing that Rooney and Co. made in the Lehigh tournament. Not only did the Syracuse co-captain cop "outstanding wrestler" honors, but the Orangemen finished third in team competition.

It looks as if Joe McDaniel has turned out another top notch wrestling team. It would be well worth while if Orange fans went to see his boys open the grunt-and-groan season this Saturday afternoon here against Cortland State Teachers.

The new year also marks a mile stone for one of Syracuse's best known coaches, Ted Webster. His splashers pry the lid off his Silver Anniversary season as the Orangemen's swim coach tonight.

Here's wishing you another 25 years of the best, Ted.

Orange Mermen Open Season Against Columbia

Webster Starts 25th Year; Splash-off Tonight

By STAN ROSENFELD

Coach Ted Webster commences his 25th year of coaching swimming at Syracuse university tonight when his mermen take on the Columbia Lions in a dual meet at Orange pool. Splash-off time will be at 8:30 p.m.

Columbia comes into this encounter with two previous meets under their belts. They lost both decisions to Brown and Dartmouth. Dartmouth, a future Orange opponent is one of the powers of the Ivy League.

TICKETS FOR TONIGHT'S SWIMMING DUAL MEET BETWEEN COLUMBIA AND SYRACUSE CAN BE OBTAINED TODAY AT THE ARCHBOLD GYM TICKET OFFICE LOCATED IN THE TROPHY ROOM. ADMISSION PRICE TO STUDENTS WITH ID CARDS WILL BE 40 CENTS. GENERAL ADMISSION TO OTHERS IS $1.20.

Despite a four won, eight lost record last year and their two opening losses this year, the Lions boast a strong squad that can surprise on any given night. Coach Edward T. Kennedy now in his 43rd year at the New York institution can always be counted on to field a strong and interesting team.

Coach Webster has one of his best schedules in years, but his team is not as strong as it has been in recent times. Capt. Bob Curran, a powerful breast-stroker with two years varsity experience is counted on heavily in the Orange plans.

Bob Downing and Ed Lesko after both having good years last year are again counted on to bring the Pietymen points. Downing is a back-stroker and Lesko is a breast-stroker.

Ed Gozigan is the only returning diver from last year's team. Gozigan was second string behind Bill "Pappy" Gillard in the splashers last campaign. His improvement this year has been a pleasant surprise to Orange supporters.

The diving event at all of the Orange dual meets this year with the exception of one is at one meter. The exception is at the new Cornell swimming pool where the board is three meters high.

Piety Basketeers Win 3 of 4 Games Over Vacation

Syracuse's basketball fortunes encountered both good and bad moments during Christmas vacation activity. Victors in three of four clashes, the squad according to coach Marc Guley "has shown marked improvement."

Nevertheless, the loss of Dave Kline and Skip Thaw due to injuries, possibly for the rest of the season, has placed the squad at a low physical ebb. Kline who broke his left wrist on a driving shot in the Cornell game may be able to see limited action. He is right-handed and uses a one hand shot primarily.

THAW INJURED his knee in the pre-vacation Niagara clash and further investigation sidelined him for remaining games. The injury was a recurrence of an injury suffered in an automobile accident in November.

Spirited play by Ron Gillespie was responsible for much of the Saltines success in their vacation battles. The 6 ft.-2 inch sophomore has turned into the most reliable second year man on the team according to Guley.

The three Orange victories were recorded at the expense of Yale, Cornell and Rochester while Princeton was the only quintet to vanquish the Pietymen.

Syracuse's clash with Yale, which was nationally televised on a 32-station network saw the Orange leading all the way in their 81-67 victory. Capt. Mel Besdin led the scorers against the Elis zone defense with a 26 point outburst while Ron Kilpatrick added 17.

PLAYING AT Cornell on Dec. 30, the Guleymen scored an overtime upset over the highly-rated Ivy Leaguers, 81-77. Kline playing the last part of the game despite his bad wrist netted 14 points behind high-scorer Ron Kilpatrick with 19 and Ron Gillespie who potted 16. Gillespie's three-pointer in the last minute sent the game into overtime.

New Year's Eve proved a black night for Syracuse as underrated Princeton upset the hometowners 80-77. Kilpatrick again led the Orange attack meshing 21 counters.

1954's first start was a success for the Guleymen as they rolled to an easy 80-69 win over Rochester last Saturday night. Kilpatrick and Besdin hooped 22 points apiece in leading the winner's attack.

Grid Statistics Released; Orangemen Rank High

With just a few straggling bowl games left to play, college football signed off for the 1953 season and left an impressive list of statistics behind.

In figures released by the National Collegiate Athletic bureau only two Syracuse university players made any mark. Quarterback Pat Stark, who suffered a fractured jaw in the East-West game last Saturday, and Jim George, Syracuse's extra-point kicker were the pair mentioned.

SYRACUSE, AS A team, however, gathered many honors due mostly to a strong line. Some of the strong line, i. e., all-American Bob Fleck, all-East Ted Kukowski and tackle Les McClelland participated in holiday games.

Fleck started at tackle in the East-West game and played with the starting aggregation in the modified system. Kukowski was second line-backer and he called defensive signals. McClelland played most of the Blue-Gray game at offensive tackle and halfback Captain Bob Leberman scored six points for the Blue in a 40-20 losing effort.

Pat Stark, at the end of the season, found himself 13th in the nation in total offense. Ranked according to total yards gained, Stark with 1,082 yards gained was third among major Eastern college players.

In forward passing, Stark was 12th in the nation, rated according to the number of completions with 73. Percentagewise, Stark's 51.3 per cent of his completions was also 12th in the nation. His percentage was fourth in the East and his completions ranked him third.

JIM GEORGE was 24th in the nation for individual point-after-touchdown (according to the number kicked) with 15 out of 21 for a 71.4 per cent.

Because Stark ranked high, Syracuse rated high in total offense. Syracuse was 21st in the nation and fourth in the East with 314.9 average yards-per-game.

In forward passing offense, Syracuse was sixth in the nation and third in the East with 146.7 yards per game.

The big line showed the difference when Syracuse was ranked fifth in the nation in total defense with 196.6 yards given per game. In the East, Syracuse was second only to Yale by 1.7 yards per game.

SYRACUSE'S RUSHING defense was second in the nation with 102.2 yards per game. Since Syracuse was topped by only Maryland, they were the best in the East, edging out Holy Cross in a year-long duel.

Syracuse was 15th in the nation in kickoff returns with a 20.2 average. They were topped by only Colgate in the East.

Owls Drop Orange From Football Slate

The athletic office has announced that Temple university has asked to be replaced on the Syracuse football schedule for 1954. The Orange will try to find a replacement for the Oct. 9 date over the weekend when Athletic director Lew Andreas and football coach Ben Schwartzwalder will be in Cincinnati for the NCAA meetings.

WAA Sports

By JODY CRONAU

Postponements and forfeits filled the WAA sports schedule as pre-vacation fever hit the campus the week of Dec. 14. In Monday league basketball Peck II defeated Shaw 3B 24-16, as Nancy Boerner, Peck, scored 12 points.

Hurst-Mott-Reid squelched Genesee 20-7, and Theta Phi Alpha outscored Shaw 3C-E 28-12. Theta Phi's Marilyn Gobeli netted 11 points. Genie Haaf, Alpha Xi Delta, with 16 points, led Alpha Xi to a 31-14 victory over Phi Sigma Sigma.

IN THE Tuesday league, winners as the result of forfeits were Alpha Omicron Pi, Ten Eyck, Walker, Wilbur-Woodworth and Brewster. Sigma Delta Tau forfeited to Gamma Phi Beta in Wednesday league play.

Sims III captain Libby Harner pushed in 25 markers to head scoring efforts as Sims defeated Nottingham 39-20. Charles cottage and Hafts won forfeit tilts.

In bowling, Alpha Xi Delta and Parker dropped tilts to Sigma Kappa and Phillips. Haven won by forfeit from Kappa Kappa Gamma. The Monday afternoon high single of 131 was rolled by Marilyn Nelson, Sigma Kappa.

Kappa Delta and Nottingham were Tuesday league victors over Alpha Omicron Pi and Mace. Hurst forfeited to Smalley. Nan Hollenbeck, Nottingham, chalked up a score of 126.

In the Thursday league, Alpha Gamma Delta tripped up Alpha Delta Pi, as they captured their second contest in two days. Thornden defeated Alpha Phi. High scorer of the day was Dorris Lemp, Alpha Gamma Delta, with 128.

Syracuse Matmen Swing into Action

Rooney Wins Trophy In Wilkes Tourney

BESIDES PLACING first in the 167 pound division, Rooney received the trophy for the outstanding wrestler in the tournament. Rooney pinned three of his opponents and won his other two matches by decisions.

Among the opponents Rooney pinned was Joe Solomon of Pittsburgh, who defeated Rooney in the National Intercollegiate wrestling championships last year.

The weight division at the Wilkes tournament were classified differently than they are in regular competition with 115 and 191 and unlimited classes being added to the customary 123, 130, 137, 147, 157, 167 and 177 divisions.

Other Orange grapplers who competed in the tournament were Tom King and Hank Gobetz of the varsity squad, and Don Clark, Ron Marinelli, Jaap Boosman and Bob Smith of the frosh team.

THIS SATURDAY, the Orange wrestlers open the 1954 season against Cortland State Teachers college. The Tangerine grapplers will meet the Cornell frosh team before the varsity meet.

Coach Joe McDaniel hasn't yet decided yet on his starting lineup. If co-Captain Charles Debellis' wrist healed satisfactorily over the vacation, he will probably start at the 137 pound slot.

AXEL SPOTS—Saturday's varsity wrestling match will be televised . . . Following Saturday's match against Cortland, the Orange matmen will meet the Temple Owls in the second home meet of the season on January 16th.

SPORTS SCRIBES

The initial meeting for the freshman members of the sports staff will take place tomorrow at 4:15 p.m. in the Castle. It is essential that all members attend, as a short test will be given on the material presented before the vacation.

Betas, Phi Delts, Alfred Smith Capture Intra Hoop Victories

By HANK GREENWALD and JEFF WENIG

Intra hoop action last night in the men's old and new gyms saw victories for the Sammies, Phi Delts, Grover Cleveland B, Rockets, Deacons, Betas, Alfred Smith and Lambda Chi Alpha.

Rolling up a sizeable lead in the first half of play in the new gym, the Deacons coasted to a 43-19 win over the Bearcats. The winners soared to a 16-5 halftime advantage and from that point scored at will in the second half. Gunner Wirth topped the scoring with 11 points.

THE BIGGEST rout of the evening took place in Alfred Smith's 59-20 blasting of Skytop M-7. The point-parade was led by Bob Conklin with 32 markers and Gene DeMarco with 12.

Herb Steigler's 15 tallies were the dominating factor in the Beta's win over SAE, 29-10. The winners threw up a strong defense which aided in limiting the losers to a mere 10 tallies.

In one of the night's closing affairs, Lambda Chi Alpha edged Kappa Phi Delta, 24-18. Two last-minute buckets by Paul Ulmachneider iced the contest for the victors. Bill Schu notched eight points for Lambda Chi Alpha, but yielded scoring honors to the losers' Don Cleveland who garnered nine.

Action continued in the old gym with its outstanding highlights. In the first game of the evening Zeta Psi was beaten by Sigma Alpha Mu 26-12. Led by Kline and Osofsky with 7 points each, the Sammies netted 13 tallies in each half to earn their victory.

THE SECOND game found the Rockets beating the City Men 26-20. De Vries of the losers was the high scorer of that one with 11 points.

Leading 38 to 16 at the half, Cleveland B rolled on to a win over Men's co-op by the score of 54-16, not having a tally scored against them in the second period. Paced by Bauldauff with 8, Moran with 12 and Hobbs, high scorer of the night with 22, Cleveland B outplayed and outmaneuvered Men's Co-op.

In the final game of the evening, and the closest one of the night Phi Delta Theta fought with Delta Kappa Epsilon to gain a 29-26 [illegible] Phi Delt lead at halftime, [illegible] although pitted in the second period by five points, they were far enough ahead to win. High scorer for the final game was Tyler who netted eight points.

Phi Ep, Phi Tau Win in Bowling

By SOL BECKER

Last night, intramural bowling resumed with six matches staged. There was keen competition and at least two teams showed that the New Years "spirits" weren't too much for them.

Phi Epsilon Pi and Kappa Sigma bowled one of the finest matches seen since the season started. Although the Phi Ep keglers won, 7-2, they were tested to the limit. Both teams had the pins flying right and left, but when the dust cleared the Phi Eps were the winners.

Shapiro of Phi Ep rolled high single of 240 and high triple of 566. His efforts, needless to say, were the big difference in the match.

In other matches, Skytop M-4 maintained its winning streak with a 9-0 win over Skytop M-8. M-4 lost the first game of the season, but has not been beaten since.

look" and a decrease in the air force budget that caused the discharge of 15,000 air force officers, most of whom were in ground or non-critical categories.

THE MEASURE came as a blow to 13,000 Air Force ROTC men who were set to enter the service as ground officers. The air force since has hedged, however, and it appears that the air force cadets may be commissioned as originally planned.

No additional information regarding the status of ground officers was made available yesterday. Final decisions will probably not be made until Congress discusses the manpower situation.

The air force has since added four wings to its total authorized strength.

The air force requires 10,000 recruits monthly.

At present, under operation "Native Son," foreign civilians are being hired to perform some of the non-critical duties previously assigned to airmen.

Grad Student Lauds American Scholars

"It seems that there's much more student participation in college course work in the United States than in Brazil," says Dardano de A. Lima, a graduate student in the botany department of the State University of New York College of Forestry.

"Classes here are not at all a one-sided affair. The student adds to the discussion and is often asked to give class reports on his work," he says.

Formerly an instructor in botany at the Escola Superior de Agricultura in Recife, Brazil, de A. Lima received an Institute of International Education scholarship and will receive a Master's degree in June from the forestry college.

The South American is married and has three daughters. His avid interest in his profession is evidenced by the girls' names, Myrcia, Rubia, and Silene, names of classes of plants in Brazil.

Syracuse Girl Dies In Highway Crash

Christmas vacation ended in tragedy Sunday when Harriet P. Herman, 18, sophomore in the School of Speech, was killed in a crash on route 20, three miles west of Cherry Valley.

Calvin Saravia, 25, a graduate student from Atlantic City, N. J., is in serious condition in Bassett hospital, Cooperstown. In good condition at the same hospital is the driver of the car, Suzanne Kleiner, 18, a sophomore in the College of Business Administration.

LOIS S. BALLEN, 18, of Atlantic City, N. J., and Mario Izzo, of Rome, driver of the other car, escaped injury. Miss Ballen continued on to Syracuse for classes.

Miss Herman, of North Bergen, N. J., was a member of Boar's Head, staff of The Syracusan and WAER. She was majoring in drama.

The staff of WAER is contributing money which will be given to either the heart or cancer funds in memory of Harriet Herman. At WAER Miss Herman was an assistant producer.

State police said the students' car skidded on an icy road on the crest of a hill.

MISS HERMAN, who lived in Shaw, is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Herman, and a sister, Bettina, 19.

Miss Kleiner also lives in Shaw and Saravis lives in Marshall dormitory. Miss Ballen, active in JSF, WAER, and Campus Chest, lives in the Sigma Delta Tau house.

HARRIET HERMAN, sophomore in the School of Speech, was killed Sunday in a crash on route 20 near Cherry Valley.

quite finished yet, but when we are, it will be the most modern stop light in Syracuse."

The description sounded so enticing that we decided to investigate first hand. We approached the marvel from the rear (College pl). A small group of students was gathered around a yellow pole with a button on it. Above the button a sign proclaimed "To cross street, push button."

A LAD WEARING a varsity football jacket was attempting to show them how it worked. "You just push this button," he said, "and the light turns red, enabling one to cross the thoroughfare. Elementary." Then he pushed the button. Nothing happened. The manual control must have been the unfinished work that Mr. Kavanaugh spoke of.

Meanwhile out in the street the drivers seemed to be experiencing some difficulty with the thing. It seems that the blinking of the light when it is red on University pl., makes them uncertain when to continue their journey.

Crossing the street we walked over to the pole which stands at the corner of University and Walnut. This pole sported a control box in addition to the button. A girl in a camel hair coat was pressing this button. It didn't work either

Passing the other pole with button, on the opposite side of Walnut, we continued down University pl. Hurrying down the street behind us was the girl in a camel hair coat, with her scarf flying as she ran. She was singing "It's a Great Day." Maybe the buttons had worked.

Doom of Castle Sealed; April 1 Ouster Set

Lions Edge Piety With 77-63 Win

By KEN LENT
Daily Orange Sports Editor

STATE COLLEGE, PA., Jan. 6—A combination of phenominal foul shooting and board control by Penn State's Nittany Lions proved too much for the Syracuse Orangemen as the visitors went down to a 77-63 loss here tonight. It was the fourth loss against six wins for the Guleymen.

Although the Pietymen outscored the Lions from the field 25-22, an unbelievable 82.5% foul shooting average (33 out of 40 attempts) won the game for the home forces.

RON KILPATRICK, who scored eight points in last night's 77-63 loss to Penn State.

FEATURING AN all-court press with their usual zone defense, the Lions, led by legendary Jesse Arnelle who topped scoring honors with 21, romped to a 33-19 halftime lead. By snatching 44 rebounds to the Orangemen's 18, Penn State was able to keep control of the ball almost the entire evening.

Only once, at the beginning of the fourth period, did Marc Guley's warriors threaten. A set and a steal-layup by Hill high scorer Walt Scott plus Manny Breland and Mel Besdin's layups cut the Nittany margin to 53-51.

But a fouling spree enabled the winners to net five straight free throws to clinch the issue.

WITH THE Penn State all-court press preventing a high scoring quarter, Arnelle and Mel Besdin traded baskets to give Syracuse a 6-3 edge before an Arnelle jump shot and Haag's foul throw knotted the count with 5 minutes left in the period.

The Lion zone defense continued to baffle Syracuse in the second period until Kilpatrick finally hit on a jump shot from the side with seven minutes left in the half to cut the Lion margin to 23-12. It had been eight minutes since the Orange had scored last from the field.

A combination of the Penn State zone defense and spinning Syracuse shots which refused to go in continued to plague the Guleymen. Only Besdin's foul throw spelled a six-point Nittany splurge before Castellini's set with less than three minutes left broke the ice, 29-15.

TWO MORE field goals by Castallini in the dying seconds of the first half matched Charlie Christianson's two-pointer and Marisa's two free throws to bring the Guleymen to within 14 points of their hosts, 33-19.

Ed Hagg continued to be a thorn in the side of the Guleymen in the third quarter as he sizzled for 10 points. Penn State maintained their 14-point edge until the middle of the period when back-to-back field goals by Scott and Breland cut the Lion margin to 40-30.

Play was even for the rest of the quarter. In the fourth period, Scott's set and steal highlighted Orange early surge which saw them cut the Lion lead to two points. Then came Penn State's five successful free throws for the game.

Conference Studies Strength, Weakness Of Soviet Union

Deans Hurley, Bye Act as Chairmen At Forum on USSR

Sponsored jointly by the College of Business Administration and the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, the session pointed out the strenghts and weaknesses of the Soviet Union.

PARTICIPATING were Dr. Theo Suranyi-Unger, professor of economics; Dr. Wladyslaw Kulski, professor of political science; Dr. Harry Schwartz, professor of economics on leave and New York Times writer on Soviet affairs; and Maj. Gen. William O. Reeder, USA retired, consultant to the army comptrollership school at Syracuse university.

Chairmen were Morris E. Hurley, acting dean of the College of Business Administration; and Carl R. Bye, dean of the Graduate school and associate dean of the Maxwell school.

Dr. Suranyi-Unger, discussing "The Setting for US-USSR Relations," said that any Big Four meeting will be confronted with the fact "that public opinion in the Soviet Union, as well as in the west, is still concerned with emphasizing the differences and disharmonies rather than coordination and cooperation."

The noted author pointed out that the conference will have to examine the precarious state of present international economic relations.

IN PLACE of interregional trade in the past five years, there have developed two almost isolated spheres of economic activity, Dr. Suranyi-Unger stated. "One of the fundamental questions facing any Big Four conference is whether such an economic devision can be continued without intensifying world tension and without turning present political conflict into an extremely bitter

House Prexies Query Coed Dorms' Closing

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Many coed house presidents voiced complaints last night at the announced closing of living centers for a four-day vacation following final examinations.

Miss Kathryn Copeland, women's housing director, gave reasons for the closing of men's and women's living centers, briefed house presidents on the history of semester vacations and answered questions at the special meeting of women's student government assembly called for that purpose.

Miss Copeland said that she would welcome petitions from individual living centers stating the number of coeds who have to stay and their reasons. This would be helpful in formulating policy, she added. Several petitions have already been received, and more are expected.

LIVING CENTERS will close at 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 30 and reopen at 3 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 3 for the vacation, according to the custom during holiday seasons. However, each student will be required to leave his living center within 24 hours following his last exam. Sororities are expected to follow this policy.

Miss Copeland announced that personal consideration will be given to those students who request permission to remain in the living centers during the four-day period. She said she is most concerned over those who are working here and feel they must remain because of commitments to employers and those who have a special need such as a personal or parental difficulty.

She stated she will recommend to the dean of woman's staff that those who have permission to remain do so without extra expense.

All dining halls will be closed during the period following exams. The staff will necide next Wednesday which dorms will be left open for students who must remain here. A meeting of the dean of men's staff will also be held for the same reason.

DECISIONS WILL be made partially on the basis of results gathered from a survey to be conducted in women's houses this week by the house presidents. The prexies will report number of coeds housed in each living center, those affected adversely by the ruling for financial or other reasons and the general feeling of each group toward the semester vacation.

At last night's meeting a number of house presidents complained that announcement of the vacation came too late for many coeds to make financial plans to go home and that many wish to stay in the dorms for other reasons.

Miss Copeland stated that the necessity to clear vacation plans through University channels delayed announcement until the day before the Christmas vacation. If the semester vacation is permanently established it will become part of the University calendar in the future and there will be no further difficulty on that score.

University officials indicate that a vacation of this sort, absent from the University calendar since before world war 2, will be of great academic benefit to the students. It will give academic offices time for tabulation of grades to aid advisors during registration and to facilitate notfication of students who are not qualified to

The applications forms must be submitted as early as possible after the end of the first semester, and not later than April 15.

Any student, if accepted, agrees to the supervision and guidance of the resident director of the Junior Year in Munich.

Some scholarship assistance is available for students with an outstanding record who show financial need. Applications for scholarships must be submitted together with the application for admission to the program, in accordance with the instructions which will be supplied upon request.

State Legislature Slates Final Date

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Groundbreaking for the $5.4 million addition to the basic sciences building of the State university College of Medicine at Syracuse has now been set for April 1, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey reported to the State legislature yesterday.

Syracuse university immediately announced that it will vacate Yates castle and Prefab 32 by that date to make way for one of the three new wings to the med college.

WILLIAM S. CARLSON, president of the State university, said that he expected the Department of Public Works to advertise for construction bids late this month.

It was hoped that bids could have been sought earlier, but according to Carlson, "the department is so overworked it has not been able to complete specifications. But it does not change the target date of April 1 for groundbreaking.

"I have written to the chancellor of Syracuse university that if there are no further delays we will want to take over the Yates castle property on that date. In reply Chancellor Tolley graciously acceded to our requests."

The Castle and adjoining property was sold to the State last year for the medical college addition after a year and a half of negotiations between the University and State officials.

FORMERLY HOUSING the School of Journalism, Yates Castle is now being used for a small number o fclasses by the University. Prefab 32, the Hellbox, located behind the Castle, is still being used by the Daily Orange, Syracusan and the student publications office.

The Daily Orange is expected to move to Prefab 7 on campus by April 1. The Syracusan will also get new offices at 123 College pl. 6

The School of Journalism vacated the Castle last JJune and moved to the women's old gym on campus.

Opened in 1852 by Augustus Longstreet, the Castle passed into the hands of Alonzo Yates in 1867 and soon became the center of lavish social affairs. When the Yates' fortunes went, the Castle was deserted, leaving tales of ghosts and the like.

AFTER USE as a private school at the turn o fthe century, the building was taken over by Syracuse university for its teachers college. In 1934 the School of Journalism moved in.

Bacon Music Played In Carnegie Hall

New York Premier Features Satire

The premier of Ernst Bacon's musical fables, held at Carnegie Hall in late December, marked the introduction of a new form of contemporary music. Bacon is a well known member of the Syracuse university School of Music faculty.

His satirical fables are similiar to the "Peter and the Wolf" children's stories. However, a satirical slant toward the adult world sets them apart.

THE PREMIER was part of a Robert Shaw Christmas Festival Concert featuring famous soloists. His orchestra furnished the music for the fables. According to Bacon, narrator Edward Everett Horton did a "perfectly beautiful job." Horton was a special guest on the program.

Bacon has written a collection of 70 musical stories over a six-year period. Five of these were selected fo rthe Carnegie Hall performance. He collaborated with John Edmunds on the words o fthese five.

Plans are underway to record the sophisticated fables and to produce movie cartoons along the Thurber line.

Bacon, originally from the "Windy City," has composed symphonies, cantatas, chamber music, piano, violin and cello pieces and over 200 songs. At present he is Composer-in-Residence and Professor of Piano and Composition on the Hill.

He has given numerous piano concerts here and abroad and has been guest conductor of well-known American orchestras.

Second Payment Due for '54 ON

Second payment on the 1954 Onondagan is due this week, Charlene Velon, business manager announced yesterday.

Those students who paid $3 as a deposit, must pay $3 this week and the final $2 in April. Students should bring their ON stub with the money to the Hellbox, behind Yates Castle, today or tomorrow from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. an 1:30-5 p.m.

Empress Elections Set for January 13

The Empress will preside over all events of the Feb. 12-14 weekend. The winner will be selected on Wednesday, Jan. 13, but will not be announced until Feb. 12 when her name and picture will appear in The Daily Orange.

Two coronations are in store for the Empress. She will be crowned first at the Ice pageant which will open the weekend, and again at the Saturday night Snoball.

Any coed is eligible for the beauty contest, and there is no limit on the number of applicants any organization may enter.

The entry blank, which appears in The Daily Orange, must be submitted to Michael Schaffer, Zeta Beta Tau, by 6 a.m. Tuesday Jan. 12, along iwth the $1 entrance fee.

Chapel to Welcome Air Force Group

The party will be held from 7:30 to 11 p.m. Tuesday in the Chapel.

Planning the affair are committees from the Air Force dormitories at Collendale as well as the Chapel Public Relations and Service committees.

Each sorority and independent women's living center has been invited to send representatives. This is the first time that an all-University function has been planned for this group.

Boar's Head Plans Comedy

Boar's head is now rehearsing for the first production of the year. The play which will be presented in the early part of next semester marks the drama honorary's 50th year.

"Lysistrata," a well known Greek comedy was written by Aristophanes and deals with the problem of putting an end to war. The ancients faced the same problems common today but resorted to a solution other than the UN.

IN THE PLAY, the women of Greece band together and come up with what they hope to be the effective solution. They refuse to sleep with their husbands unless the war is stopped. The scheme is a successful one and peace, both domestic and foreign, is restored.

Professor Sawyer Falk, head of the drama department, will direct the production. John Jay Moore who planned the sets last year for the "Tempest" and "White Bucks" will revamp the stage to suit the

Now is the time?

"University officials stated yesterday that temporary quarters will be assigned for the School of Journalism and student publications by April 1, 1953, for occupancy in September. This is because the Castle will come down in June."

This paragraph may have a vaguely familiar ring. It is quoted from the Daily Orange of Jan. 13 of last year. It was a prophecy that just might come true a year late.

The story quoted from above was on the proposed medical school expansion that has lain dormant these 359 days since publication of the article. Now we start the operation again.

Again the date April 1 plays a part. Now it is the day when the first stone of the Castle comes down . . . theoretically.

The Daily Orange certainly is not opposed to this mark of progress for the Syracuse university campus. But it is opposed to the continual delays that have confused the operations of students closely concerned.

Classes are still held in the Castle, and the Daily Orange and the Syracusan still publish from the Hellbox. Last year at this time the student publications and the School of Journalism were told to move. We all got set to move. We did not move.

Now, entrenched for another year we are suddenly told to vacate. We hope that Governor Dewey's report on medical school expansion to the state legislature yesterday was definite and will be followed. We also hope that the vagueness that has been linked with placing of classes and publications has come to an end.

We trust this is not just an April Fool's joke.

Special thanks

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey acted as a generous Santa Claus over the vacation as it donated $100,000 to the University.

Chancellor William Tolley indicated that the funds would be given to the engineering college for laboratories or expansion of the physical plant.

This paper has urged several times that industry become more aware of its social responsibility. It is a hopeful sign to see another of the major companies doing just that.

The financial plight of many colleges and universities in the country is becoming more acute yearly. The days of large endowments and private gifts are receding into memory.

This is the reason why an increasing number of schools are searching for some group to fill that void. And outside of the government, who is there besides private industry, able to command the needed capital for large college donations?

It has always been a bewildering fact that many industries spend billions on material resources and yet fail to recognize any duty to assist in the development of potential human resources.

Immense budgets are set up for research and development. But the men who could eventually do the research and assist in the development are sometimes forgotten.

It seems fitting therefore, to express public thanks on behalf of the students, to the Standard Oil Company and to alumnus Frank Abrams, retiring chairman of its board of directors, in whose honor the money was given.

The gift was more than a tribute to one man, however. It may also be considered a tribute to the familiar "worth of college education," and in a small way to the foresight of the donors.

AN EVENING IN

BY FILM OUT OF TV: MR. BING

By DICK CASE

Editorial Page Writer

There was hardly a dry eye in Seattle, Hollywood or Toot Shor's last Sunday evening when show business' most illustrious stay-at-home took one long last look at his living room and plunged with wings aloft into television.

And for something short of 30 minutes, a strangely familiar baritone and a slightly balding head were to be found along that vast coaxial network which binds the TV sets of a nation to the Columbia Broadcasting System. It seems that Mr. Bing Crosby, via film, had arrived in television.

"The Bing Crosy Show" turned out to be little more than the crooner's radio show at which a TV camera was allowed to kibitz. There was a meager attempt to stagger into one of TV's staggering production vehicles but for the most part, Bing stood before a curtain and got off a few corny gags, lolled around the piano and gassed a bit with the guest stars.

The show, presented on film because the producers feel that a better result is achieved through this method.

Whether or not this was good, is of course, a matter of taste. I personally find a film program somewhat of an escape for a performer. Many offerings, especially the variety opuses, lose much of their zest when placed on film. If "Bing Crosby Show" was any indication of CBS's ability in the film department, there is a good acre room for improvement. 'Twas not so good.

There were those who searched, mostly in vain, for a basic theme to the broadcast. Our living room, for one, found an adhesive strangely absent.

The guest stars, Jack Benny and wiggely dancer Sherri North, were dragged through an uninspiring segment of script which tended to poison everything that followed. They might have been dropped into the production with less of a resounding thump.

The main emphasis was, of course, on the singing side of Crosby and he got in four tunes including "Changing Partners," I Love Paris," and "It Had to be You."

I, for one, will look forward to a goodly serving of this sort of Crosby on the sight and sound medium. It can only be hoped that everyone whose cortexes jive for the Crosby appearances will sit down one evening in the near future and stir up something more substantial in the way of a vehicle.

Mr. Bing's initial dive into regular television, while not totally astray, was pretty much of a weakling offering. Might we suggest something in the way of Geritol or Fred Coe as the proper stimulant.

No One is Better

If I were an influential statesman I should advocate a conference of all the great powers to consider this one thing: the destruction to be expected in a new world war. No one at the conference would be allowed to suggest that one side was better than the other, or more likely to achiece victory. The sole business of the conference would be to draw up a statement of the sufferings to be expected among all the belligerents.

Such a conference might generate on each side a belief that, since the other is aware of the inevitable evils of a world war, it is not likely to achieve victory. The sole compelled to. If once this belief existed on both sides, a general relaxation of tension would become much easier.

Castle Will Never Die

By ROGER J. HERZ

Editorial Page Writer

We can hear the bands playing now.

The Castle will never die.

Dammit. Never.

We'll barracade ourselves in the beautiful old building, that's what we'll do. We'll arm ourselves with a year's supply of copy paper and Pepsi's and barracade ourselves in the old Dean's office. They'll never get us alive.

We won't let the ghost of Renwick's young English bride down. We won't let them touch a stone of the Castle's old grey head.

Murderers. That's what they are. But we'll be faithful. The Castle will never die.

We'll plant mines around the beautiful old building, and give the safe paths only to her friends. Maybe we can stock weapons and die with our boots on.

Maybe we could work out a trade. Sell them a prefab in Skytop and tell them that was the Castle. Maybe they wouldn't know the difference.

The cynics scoff that they won't have to tear the Castle down; that they'll just have to lean on one of the walls. It isn't true. She'd survive a direct hit by an oxygen bomb. She's got guts.

Here's a building that weathered the elements for years as center of Syracuse society, gathering atmosphere for eventual home of the greatest school for the greatest profession at the greatest University.

And they want to kill her. The murderers.

We'll be smarter than they are. We have truth and righteousness on our side. We'll be courageous.

They stop production on an airplane or a skyscraper when a bird sits on her nest or a cat has kittens—maybe we can stall them off long enough to allow an army of indignant people to effect our release and the Castle's salvation.

We're strong. We have an inner strength. We'll outlast them. We won't fire even when we see the whites of their eyes; this Castle isn't a Castle of war. It's a stronghold of truth and knowledge.

The Hellbox is going, too. Just in the prime of life. To be executed vaingloriously. Like murdering a child. Not even old enough to vote, but she's been doomed.

We'll march through the streets with smoking, flaming torches and inform the people. Maybe we can start clubs throughout the nation—"Santa Barbarans for the pardon of Yates Castle," for instance.

Perhaps we're being too emotional. Maybe they're reasonable. They'll talk logically. Maybe the state won't go agains the wishes of its slaves. Perhaps they could build the damned med school wing on the other side of the building.

Don't get us wrong. We love medicine. But we always figured it was constructive; not destructive. And they want to take our love from us.

Sooner would we tear a mother from her children, a swan from her cygnets, a superliner from her tugs, than the Castle from her adopted—those she loves and taught the profession. Pardon while we wipe the tears from our cheeks.

They won't get away from it. We'll put up signs—"Doctor, go home." We'll get an immovable wall from the Physics department. An irresistible force from Engineering.

We look about the beloved Hellbox walls and think "Maybe at least they'll let us tear it down," but we push this out of our mind and shed another tear because we know that even before 1984 comes another death.

The Frank Locke trophy, a noble but empty bottle of beer will soon be banished from above its niche—hanging by a frayed string above the sports desk.

No logic behind it. We don't see them tearing down, Maxwell. They're still upbuilding the new Engineering buildings; not downtearing them.

We passed the Saltine Warrior yesterday. The tears fell from his eyes and froze on the ground, a white and pure covering of a dirty and sinful world that causes the destruction of poor, defenseless, noble citizens of the world.

But we won't take it lying down. No sir. We'll take our ribbonless typewriters and the junior editor's trophy (a piece of a goalpost awarded for the worst story of the week) and barracade ourselves in the Castle.

The Castle will never die.

Lest We Forget?

'Historical Hysterics'

Those Rebels just won't forget.

The monument to General Robert E. Lee is being fixed up in New Orleans. The sign at the work site, however, raised considerable complaint and had to be re-worded.

The new sign reads "rebuilding."

Formerly it said "reconstruction."

LETTERARY COMMENT

Critic Criticizing; No Homes

Le Deluge

To the Editor:

Mr. Samuels—billed as "Movie Critic"—in his past three reviews has shown himself to be nothing more than a confused little man whose idea of good movie entertainment centers around Indian charges in the "Fort Bravo" epic. His two excursions in the art theater world missed the point so completely that we can only dismiss him—in the words of A. A. Milne—as a "bear of little brain at all."

First Mr. Samuels directed his considered attention to "The Little World of Don Camillo," and "Don Camillo" came off second best; it appears that it was neither funny nor dramatic enough—in fact the two themes were always at cross purposes with each other. (Incidentally he notes that the film ought to have been more staunchly anti-Communist!) Our critic first mistakes the directors purpose as having been either stark tragedy or sidesplitting comedy; for the first purpose, comedy would not serve, and for the second, why should there be anything serious in it? In sum, what the Brooks Atkinson of central New York has failed to see is that in showing a Catholic priest and a Communist mayor sparring with each other for the loyalties of their townspeople, there is a genuine element of comedy—and a human element of similarity—between them—no matter how serious or how vital the subjects of their duelling are.

Second comes Grass, and for this Mr. S. is at his vituperative best: ". . . the effect of the life and death struggle of men against nature came out resembling a sort of satire on travelogues . . ."—this because the titles were so naive! From this comes a criterion of immeasurable value in judging the worth of a silent film today—the quality of its titles! The title becomes—obviously—the punch line to scenes showing thousands of nomads tramping across deserts, through raging drivers, and up 12,000 foot mountains in their efforts to reach new pasture land; they are the signals for us to laugh as heartly as we can. It is quite comforting to know that even in this sophisticated age we still have those earthy critics who can point out the uproarious humor to be found in the "life and death struggles" of these people—aided and abetted by the many "naive" titles.

Bob Newman '56

Human

To Mr. Bob Newman:

Being a human being (I hope you will concede me this distinction) I find it difficult to maintain complete calm in the face of your devastating condemnation. However my gratification in your interested and alert reading of my reviews and my sincere interest in criticism should help me achieve some measure of objectivity and I will try to consider all of your comments.

Critics invariably arouse the ire of those readers who disagree with them. However, it is imperative that in evaluating the work of a critic one takes into consideration the presentation and logical sequence of the opinions and not the opinions themselves. In all honesty, I feel that you have neglected to do this.

My appreciation of "Escape from Fort Bravo" was an appreciation of a cinema which achieved great excellence within the limitations of a usually poor form. I did not maintain that "The Little World of Don Camillo" was insufficiently anti-Communist and I would be pleased if you told me what let you to believe that I did. I merely maintained that at this particular point in history the theme of the film and its treatment were sadly out of whack.

As for, "Grass"; I felt it my duty to point out what appeared to me a serious detriment to the film's excellence. I realize that my brief answers are insufficient to satisfy you and I cordially invite you to write to me personally if you so desire.

Charles Samuels '57

Smoky

Dear Mr. Samuels,

Readers of the Daily Orange editorial page are generally adjusted to the pedantry in continual evidence, however, your asinine choice of this year's best films shines from that page like a smoky lantern: Moments after being lighted its own incomplete combustion obscures its feeble gleam, and one can hardly distinguish it in the deepening gloom of sophomoric profundity.

That you name "The Band Wagon" as the best of the year is unbelievable. Are you blind? Or deaf? Do you pray nightly to the god Astaire? Infatuated with Charisse?

The balance of your choices reflect an approach that can best be defined as Roger Herzian. Quite comic. If in the future you are going to review films for us, please, stay awake till the last reel, and please stay sober till after you write your review.

Better still, watch Roger more closely. You have the beginnings of sufficient talent to carry on his good works.

Best of all, resign your job.

Disgustedly yours,
Joel Westerman '54

Grubby

January 5, 1953

Dear Mr. Samuels:

You must forgive me. I wasn't fortunate enough to be born in New York City. I'm from dirty, grubby, uncultured Scranton, Pennsylvania; thus I'm not able to enjoy "Cinerama" or "Julius Caeser". One picture I was able to see, however, was "Escape From Fort Bravo," and I agree with you that it was a "clever western."

I was also relieved to find that you found it in your heart to let it be on your list, even though it doesn't "technically" qualify because: "it has not opened in NY yet." I guess a movie can't be counted as being produced until the fabulous New York audience gets a squint at it.

The movie has played in Syracuse, in Scranton and in almost every city in the nation, but I guess it isn't officially a movie. It'll have to wait til next year.

"The Bandwagon" was such an enjoyable picture that I tired of it as soon as the second stint began (you may remember: Creaky Fred in a penny arcade). I spent my time during this "pure entertainment" counting the number of times an extra walked through the arcade. (She walked through 21 times, sometimes with sailors, other times with girls giving the distinct impression that she was suppose to be a different person.)

If MGM had spent the money they wasted on publicity for this picture on their thoroughly enchanting "Lili" they . . . well it doesn't matter. The New York Times said it was: "the best musical of the past 20 years," so I guess it was.

How could a movie (e.g., "From Here to Eternity"), with good acting, good music, good story, good direction, etc., come to the verge of disintegration? You'll have to explain, as I said, I'm from Scranton, and not very bright.

Lee Kiklier '55

Eviction

To the Editor of the Daily Orange:

Being a graduate student and a part-time instructor, I often am not too interested in the gripes of students toward their university. However, six or seven girls whom I know have recently been saying in no uncertain terms how they feel about the recent decision of the University in "forcing' students to leave the dormitories for three or more days between finals and registration later this month.

This means inconvenience, loss of time, and loss of money too many of these girls. They did not plan in their budgets for an extra trip home so soon after Christmas recess, and on the average, fifty or sixty dollars apiece will measure their loss in transportation, change of plans and the like. I assume no refund will be given from their room and board. It would be all right if one or two large dorms would remain open to house those who would prefer to stay here. Even hotels will be reseorted to in some cases, it being cheaper to stay at a hotel for three nights than to go home to Chicago or St. Louis and return.

To the University, of course, this means clear profit. Unmentioned in the room and board contract for the year, this forced eviction means no food need be served, nor personnel retained, for some three days. Believe it or not, this mounts up into quite a sum of parsimony.

A few more weekends like that and tuition should be lowered, rather than raised.

While trying to remain neutral in this business, I would like to point out that this is another example of the poor public relations Syracuse engages in at times. Rightly or wrongly, several girls feel they have been treated poorly, and two emphatically stated the "Syracuse's Alumni Fund will never get a cent from me." Unable to strike back in any other way, they are just adding to the bitter feelings several of them have formulated about the administration, especially regarding its supposed cheapness.

Let us hope the University comes out with some positive statement of explanation about this move soon.

Sincerely,
"Concerned"

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Perhaps you readers out there haven't heard this story as yet so we'll just turn the clock back a little to the night of Dec. 31. It was cold in Syracuse but the Orange was hot (not the team but the restaurant). The clock showed that it was 11:30. The kid with the crew cut at the bar sipped down the remaining beer from his glass and left through the door onto Crouse ave. Outside the brisk air hit him straight in the face with a pleasant awakening. Just a half hour and it would be a new year, he thought.

As he turned the corner of Marshall st. he noticed a good looking old man coming his way. The elderly gentleman suddenly slipped and fell on the pavement. The kid was at his side immediately and helped him to his feet. The man thanked him and was on his way. As the kid started towards his destination he noticed a slip of paper in the gutter which had fallen from the man's pocket. He picked it up and started to give it back to its owner but the old man was nowhere in sight.

The kid started to read but suddenly glanced towards his watch to check the time. It was a quarter to twelve and he wanted to get to his destination before midnight. But his eyes caught the heading of the paper and he started to read aloud to the empty streets what it said.

"A note to Mr. Bill Orange for the year 1954. Mr. Orange this little note has in it your future in the next 365 days. I'd advise you to check it over quite carefully because it may be quite a help to you and your many sons. The following is a synopsis of the coming year:

JANUARY—Syracuse comes to life on the basketball court. Besdin, Kilpatrick and sophs lead Hillmen to victories over Pitt, Cornell and Fordham. Hill hopes for post season tourney rise to new heights. Boxers and wrestlers finish workouts, ready for opening meets. Rigormortis sets in. Two weeks of exams.

FEBRUARY—Doc Hugo and Al Zak, along with the assistance of a Mr. Simmons help boxers to victory in their first meet of the year. Swimmers and matmen gain initial wins. Fencers fence. Just the facts. Orange continue to set the hoop world on fire moving towards the big post season games. Besdin scores 50 against Colgate as Hillmen romp to victory.

MARCH—Boxers again cop Easterns and matmen show signs of finally moving into the top ring in Eastern circles. Gymnastics face Bronx Zoo in first home contest and win. Swimmers defeat Florence Chadwick in two day marathon. Fencers still fencing. Hoopsters defeat Duquesne in finals of NIT in Madison Square Garden. Also cop NCAA tourney and are acclaimed the wonder team of the century. Boxers defeat Marciano with help from Zak and Hugo. Spring practice doesn't start because there isn't any. Right Joe. Right Frank. Right Mam.

APRIL—All sorts of practice starts.

MAY—Baseballers end season unbeaten in one game. Rain cancelled the rest. Lacrossers move to national standing by defeating the Apaches and Navajos on their western trip. Crewmen sink in Cornell race. Chancellor Tolley and Dean Clark of the Journalism school lead Hill tennis men to national recognition. Both called for duty on the Davis cup team.

SEPTEMBER—Ben and the boys get set for the season. Unheralded Hillmen win opener and lose five places in the Lambert ratings. Some sort of a new rule which prohibits past winners of the trophy from capturing their openers. Bob Grieve dons shorts to lead his men in practice. With Ray Osterhout gone he decides to get a little work in case he is needed. Soccermen and fencers work out together.

OCTOBER—Orange go undefeated in five games but still lose in Lambert ratings. Some more new rules. Grieve gets Hugo and Zak to run for him and his boys go unbeaten. Soccermen defeat fencers in scrimmage.

NOVEMBER—Colgate bests Syracuse and the Hillmen win Lambert trophy coming from 18th place in last week to do it. Ben called coach of the year and Orange selected over Illinois who they defeated to go to the Rose Bowl. Fencers celebrate. Nothing in particular. Just celebrating. Runners win IC4A, NCAA and WPA titles. Zak and Hugo don't finish except in last victory.

DECEMBER—Hoopsters open season with three straight wins over newly scheduled Kentucky, Indiana and Hofstra. Play in Sugar Bowl tourney and beat Alabama in the finals. Revennge is finally attained. Fencers set for winter workouts. Frank and Joe join the team with the facts for a successful campaign. Mam couldn't make it. 1954 bows out."

There was no signature on the piece of paper. The kid stuck it into his pocket and started down the street. It was five to twelve and he had an importannt appointment.

Well, that's the story. Sounds a little phony in places but you just can't tell about things like that. Anyway a belated Happy New Year to you. And brother, those are the facts.

Frosh Show Promise In Boxing Workouts

Several members of the Orange freshman boxing team have shown future varsity potential in the daily sparring matches with their "big brothers" on the varsity.

Middleweight Bob Rigolosi, brother of the Hill boxing co-captain Vince, has looked mighty good to coach Roy Simmons and other observers, as have lightweight Tony Cipriano, Stan Marks who never fought before he came to Syracuse and 165-pounder Nick Georgiade.

If these plebes keep up the hard work, love of the sport and enthusiasm, they in a few years will be garnering the varsity headlines that messers. Rigger Rigolosi, John Granger and the Syracuse boxing team are now making.

Hill Boxers List Six-Match Card

Six dual matches, the Eastern Intercollegiate meet and the NCAA annual meet are listed for the 1954 Syracuse university boxing team. The fistic squad is the last of the winter sports to open its season, making its debut on January 16 at Maryland.

The complete schedule is:

January 16—Maryland (away).
February 6—Army (home).
Feb. 13—Penn State (away).
Feb. 20—Virginia (away).
Feb. 26—Wisconsin (home).
March 6—CCNY (home).

The Orange boxers will travel to Virginia for the second time this season to participate in the Eastern Intercollegiates on March 12 and 13 at Charlottesville. Following that will be the NCAA meet at Chicago at the end of March.

Piety Swimmers Lose Opener, 43-41

Veteran Hill Boxing Team Starts Intensive Practice

By JOEL FEIDELMAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Co-Captains John Granger and Vince Rigolosi are leading a veteran Syracuse university boxing team through extensive practice sessions in preparation for an ambitious six-meet dual schedule and the defense of the Eastern Intercollegiate boxing championship.

The first meet is next Saturday, January 16, against the Maryland mittmen at College Park, Maryland. Though coach Roy Simmons has a veteran aggregation, the early date of the opening meet has caused weight and lineup complications in the Orange fistic camp.

THE LINEUP against the Southerners will be somewhat makeshift since several footballers haven't rounded into boxing shape, and a few lettermen from last year have either put on, or lost, sufficient weight to box in a different weight class this year.

Both Granger and Rigolosi, Eastern champs last spring, will undoubtedly engage in the Terp meet. Rigger will probably be in the 165-pound class, while Granger will fight at either the 132 or 139-pound class.

The other lettermen from last year are Art Nelson, Larry O'Sullivan, footballers Bruce Yancey and Sam Alexander. Aside from Alexander who filled in for the injured Bill Miller at the tail end of last year, the lettermen form a talented and experienced neucleus for a championship team.

Simmons' troubles are that the power on the squad is bunched in the lower weights. Nelson, Granger and soph Jerry Jaffee, who has shown much potential in practice, all weigh between 130 and 140 pounds. If they keep this weight, not all three will be able to box against Maryland.

AT THE PRESENT time these three plus veteran O'Sullivan are vieing for the three weight classes —132-pound, 139-pound and 147-pound. The weight element will be the determining factor in the final selection for the Terp meet.

Alexander is a leading candidate for the 155-pound class, while Rigolisi will probably box against Maryland at the 165-pound class. Yancey is another problem Simmons has to contend with. After a tiring football season in which he starred for the Orange, Simmie told him to take a few weeks off, and he is now afraid that Bruce won't be in shape for next Saturday.

If Yancey isn't in shape, then Simmons will have to make alterations in his lineup. Rigolosi could be moved up to the 175-pound class, or a heavyweight could possibly be moved down. Whatever happens, Simmie has problems.

Aside from Jaffee, several other newcomers have been impressive in the practice sparring. Soph Frank Guelli has looked very good at the 125-pound class, while John Pauldine is vieing with Alexander for the top slot at 155-pounds. Pauldine boxed for the Orange several years ago, then went into the service from which he was recently discharged.

For the past five years, the Orange have been Eastern champs, and Simmons is hoping to repeat the feat this year also. Maryland will be a rough opening match, for the Terps lost only two boxers from their team that last year tied Syracuse 4-4, and later lost to the Piety fighters, 5-3.

SKI TEAM

Coach Ben Bucko has announced that there will be a meeting of all ski candidates tonight at 7:30 in the Ski lodge.

LETTERMAN BRUCE YANCEY will probably not box against Maryland next Saturday in the opening meet of the season. After a long and successful football season, the versatile Yancey was given a rest by fistic coach ROY SIMMONS, and Simmons now feels that Bruce won't be in shape for the Terrapin meet.

Orange Matmen Prepare For Initial Meet Saturday

By DON HENRY

Coach Joe McDaniel ran his varsity wrestling squad through team tryouts yesterday in an effort to sharpen the grapplers' condition, and also to determine starters at four of the positions for this Saturday's season opener against Cortland State.

McDaniel has definite starters at the 123, 137, 167 and 177 pound positions. Jim Rose will open the meet at the 123-pound spot. Rose will be meeting one of the visiting Teachers' best men when he faces experienced Wade Cummings.

The other definite starters are co-Captain Ed Rooney at 167 and Hank Gobetz at 177. Rooney will be meeting the only other returning Cortland letter winner, Dick Lee.

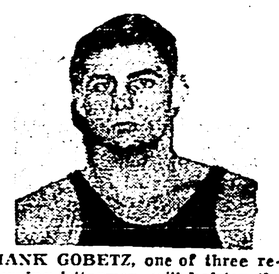
The remain positions depend on yesterday's workout. John Husband and Ed Weisz, a pair of sophomores, are the contenders for the 130-pound post. Husband is also a dash man and broad jumper for the track squad in the spring season.

The 147-pound Orange representative depends on the conditions of co-Captain Charley DeBellis' injured wrist. If DeBellis is able, he will go at the middleweight position. If not, sophomore Tom King will be wearing the Orange colors.

IN THE next weight division 157, either Pedro Gonzales or Garland Harris will face another of Cortland's better grapplers. The Teachers have Buddy Mahoney back from the service to fill that position.

Who wrestles in the heavyweight position also depends on the condition of an injured Orange grappler. Henry Dinkelmeyer, who ordinarily would go at the top-weight spot, suffered an injury over the holidays in the Wilkes tourney competition.

If Dink cannot wrestle, sophomore George Finck will take over the chores for the Orange matmen. In this case, "chores" means just that, for the opposition's heavy is 6' 5", 260-pound freshman, John Beecher.



HANK GOBETZ, one of three returning lettermen, will bolster the Piety wrestling hopes Saturday in the 177-pound class when the Orange grapplers open the season at Cortland State Teachers College.

The Cortland grappers are greatly improved over last year, when McDaniel's crew beat them, 26-6. With the addition of Mahoney and another returning war veteran, Sam Carrio, a 130-pounder, plus five freshmen groaners, Coach Dave Miller's charges should provide some solid competition.

COACH MCDANIEL is counting on last year's fine freshman wrestlers to fill the holes caused by the loss of five of last year's lettermen. Among these were Bob Bury and Dick Beyer.

Bury, a 137-pounder and Beyer, a heavyweight, were both top-flight wrestlers in the East. Another letterman lost via graduation is Enzio Marinelli, who grappled at the 177-pound position. Beyer and Marinelli are presently assisting McDaniel in his coaching duties.

Last Event Gives Columbia Victory At Orange Pool

By BOB GROGAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Columbia university's twice-beaten mermen spoiled Bill Orange's first night home meet in its history by winning the final event of the evening, the 440-yard relay, to capture a close 43-31 decision.

The Lion quartet of John Timony, Jon Mirsky, Pete Martin and Dave Orrik won the big race by three yards. Both Martin and Orrik pulled away to leads after Dave Lewis and Bob Downing had kept Syracuse in the contest during the first eight laps.

ACTUALLY, THE turning point in the meet was the 440-yard free style when Fred Giese of Columbia edged out Doug Dodge of the Orange for second place. This difference of two points would have resulted in an Orange victory since Columbia would have gotten two less points for a third place finish.

Syracuse took the lead in the eighth event of the meet, the breaststroke, when Ed Lesko and Captain Bob Curran finished one-two. Curran closed a six-yard gap in the final lap of the race to take second place away from Al Sacknoff.

The Piety mermen led at this point 35-33 and increased their lead to 41-36 when Kev Wilson copped the 440-free style with a time of 5:35.5.

Lesko, Downing and Len Kissell got Syracuse off to a fast start by winning the first race, the medley relays in 3:08.5. However, Columbia scored 14 points in the next two races to only four for Coach Ted Webster's boys.

GIESE WON the 220-yard free style for the Lions in 2:31.6 while Martin's time of 24.4 was good enough to take a first in the 50. Best Syracuse could garner was a second by Bob Beaumont in the 50 and a third by Dodge in the 220.

In the individual medley, the Orange fared better. Wilson took an early lead in the breaststroke and was never headed while his teammate, Jim Sutton placed second. The winning time was 1.43.2.

The terrific Lion duo of Martin and Orrik picked up eight more points in the 100-yard free style. Orrik's winning time was 54:5.

DOWNING HAD no trouble taking the 200-yard backstroke but the battle for second place was a close race between Gus Stukey of Columbia and Sutton. Stukey beat the Orange swimmer by a fraction of a second but came nowhere near Downing's time of 2:34.3.

Wilson was the only competitor to win more than one event. He placed first in both the individual medley and the 440-yard free style.

YACHT CLUB

The Yacht club has changed its regular meeting time from 7:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Thursday, Commodore Jack Dickerson announced today. The change is in preparation for the club's revised program.

Both sailing team and shore school classes will be held before the regular meeting. All qualified skippers are invited to attend the team class if they are interested in racing tactics and rules.

AXP Tops Kappa Sig In Intra Hoop Action

By BOB TATA

The schedule of intramural basketball games was launched by a major upset last evening. Highly regarded Kappa Sigma lost a close decision to a determined Alpha Chi Rho team. In the remaining contests, Zeta Beta Tau, Phi Epsilon Pi, Sigma Chi, and Acacia all won rather sloppy ballgames.

The tightest and by far the best played game of the night saw Alpha Chi Rho nip the Kappa Sigs, 31-29. Berrenger and Whitting of the winners, with 14 and 11 tallies respectively, kept their team ahead all evening. Galen of Kappa Sig contributed 17 points to a losing cause.

PHI EPSILON PI defeated a hapless Pi Lambda Phi club by the wide margin of 56-22. The Phi Eps held a 14-point halftime lead and then opened up in the second half to completely swamp the Pi Lams. A loose Phi Lam defense throughout the game was the main reason why the Phi Eps were able to run up such a high score.

Wasserman of the winners was left unguarded time and again as he drove through to rack up a total of 21 markers. Zausner with 10 points on some nice left-handed shots and Schwartz with 8 points on a variety of hoops, were the only effective scorers in the Pi Lam attack.

Orv Wambold led a fighting Sigma Chi aggregation to a 40-18 romp over Pi Alpha Chi. Wambold, a star in intramural football, put on a nice exhibition of passing and shooting that was too much for Pi Chi to cope with. He not only dunked 11 tallies, but also tossed some beautiful behind-the-back passes that led to scores.

Butler scored 14 of Phi Chi's 18 points but his effort was in vain as he could get no help from the rest of the team. Sigma Chi's height, speed and all-around ability made the task of winning just that much easier.

IN THE FINAL battle of the night, a strong Delta Upsilon squad downed a stubborn Acacia team 36-20. The tight DU zone defense and some effective shooting were the deciding factors.

Johnson, the rangy DU center, paced his team in the scoring department with 7 field goals and 3 foul shots. Wattrel of Acacia dropped in 8 points to keep his team in the running. Acacia's hustle and determination played a major role in keeping the point spread down.

Frosh Hoop Squad Preps for Weekend

Syracuse's frosh basketball team renewed practice sessions this week after a holiday season layoff. The undefeated Tangerines go after their fourth victory Saturday night when they meet the rugged General Electric five in the first game of a double-header in Archbold gymasium. The Orange varsity tangles with Pitt in the second contest.

The Niagara contest was the first road game of the campaign for Syracuse. Vinnie Cohn, with 26, and Gary Clark, who tallied 21, led the Orange cubs scoring in the decisive victory.

The remaining games on the frosh schedule are: General Electric, Sat., Jan. 9 at home; Cornell, Wed., Jan. 13 at home; Wyoming Seminary, Sat., Jan. 16 at home.

Air ROTC Reduced By 15,000 Cadets In US Colleges

Brig. Gen. M. K. Deichelmann, commander of the Air Force ROTC, announced that more than 125,000 men have enrolled in this year's ROTC program at 207 colleges and universities.

This year, because national policy reduced Air Force strength, only 8,000 of the 17,000 graduating seniors will receive commissions.

From this number 4,000 commissioned seniors will enter pilot training; 2,700 will take aerial observer training; 1,000 will enter technical and scientific fields and 800 will be veterans.

The remaining 7,000 seniors will receive certificates of completion.

A new policy announced by the defense department permits the graduates to enlist as Airmen Third Class for a special tour of duty lasting two years. He is then eligible for a commission in the reserves.

economic struggle—a struggle which carries with it the threat of armed conflict."

"The ideas formulated by the Communist party and the methods of inculcating them shape the minds of the Soviet population," according to Dr. Kulski. He spoke on "The Soviet Upbringing of One-minded Citizens."

He gave illustrations of the Soviet theory and said that leaders in Russia apparently believe men "are prone to become unhappy when they are faced with the heavy responsibility entailed in free will. The party leaders have been willing to relieve their subjects of that worry and to assure their 'happiness' by taking away their right to free decision and free thought."

On "The Russian Economic Potential," Dr. Schwartz reported that Soviet military-economic potential is at the highest point of its history at the present time.

FORESEEING A continual growth of this potential, the Times writer placed the rapid progress of Soviet capabilities in this field only at the expense of Soviet consumers who have been ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-housed, for the most part, ever since the beginning of the five year program in 1928.

The post-Stalin Malenkov regime has recognized this and has announced extensive plans for increasing output of food and consumer goods, Dr. Schwartz said.

"The key question is whether the Soviet people will be content with the relatively limited improvement now promised them, or whether they will demand more which would force far greater economic changes than are now contemplated," he concluded.

The Soviet military potential was weighed by Maj. Gen. Reeder, who backgrounded the USSR in wartime and told of its present military build-up.

"THE SOVIET Army is a professional army whose leadership and generalship in the last war and whose performance as coaches in Korea give us little reason to claim any great superiority in leadership. In training the question is debatable."

The Russian army is expected to maintain great numerical superiority. "As it moves forward it will conquer territory that can be used most effectively by the Russian army and air force to weaken the opposition facing their army," he said.

Yet Maj-Gen. Reeder sees hope because of a dwindling oil supply in the USSR, vulnerable supply lines to conquered areas and most of all—"the yearning for liberty which seems to persist in human beings under even the most adverse conditions."

Campus Library Given Rare Books

Three private collections of rare books an dfirst editions were donated to the University library by members of the Board of Trustees of the University's Library associates recently.

The gifts include first editions of Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain), Edward FitzGerald, and numerous volumes on book collecting.

IN THE FitzGerald gift is a first edition of the "Rubaiyat," one of the most highly prized of 19th century publications. Originally copies of this volume sold for two cents, but at the turn of the century the value soared to hundreds of dollars.

Nearly all the volumes contain manuscript notes and letters by Clemens himself. Seven original letters signed by Clemens are included in the collection.

Adrian VaVn Sinderen, New York corporation executive, and the donor of the first editions of Mark Twain, is a prolific writer himself. He has written eighteen books, two of which were published by the Syracuse university press.

GEORGE ARENTS, president emeritus of the University's board of trustees, contributed several volumes about book collecting, bibliographies of certain writers and books about famous printers and histories of American libraries.

Most famous of Arents' previous donations were the collected first editions of Stephen Crane. He has also given hundreds of general books, representative of fine printing and binding.

These collections, which are on display in the library lobby, are open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 7-10 p.m. on weekdays and from 2-5:30 p.m. on Sundays. The display will continue through January.

In 1953, another far more extensive and comprehensive survey—supervised by college professors and based on more than 31,000 actual student interviews—once again proved Luckies' overwhelming popularity. Thornhill Band Will Play At Annual Sno-Ball Fete

Claude Thornhill, his piano and orchestra, will provide the music for this year's Sno-Ball, the junior-sponsored semi-formal, held the Saturday of Winter Weekend.

The dance will be held in the large gym of the Women's building, and will be the first University formal to use those facilities.

IN KEEPING with the weekend "Alpine Holiday" theme, the gym will be decorated in the manner of an "Empress Waltz" as suggested by the famous waltz music of Johann Strauss. To continue the continental flavor, this year's winter queen will be titled "Empress" and will be crowned at the dance.

Corsages will be optional at the Feb. 13 fete, and tickets costing $3.50 a couple will go on sale during registration week.

The Sno-Ball is traditionally held the Saturday of Winter Weekend, and if present conditions continue, it may have to be retitled the "Snowed In" Ball.

The dance highlights the events of one of the big campus weekends, and in past years has been among the more colorful all-University functions. Coeds attending the Sno-Ball may take special 2 permissions.

CYNTHIA SATOW and Norman Murphy are overall co-chairmen of the dance. Other chairmen are: Joanne Sherman and Mary Todd, decorations; Elaine Kieballa and James Baird, tickets; Kay Pierson and Harold Steinberg, publicity; Marilyn Nelson and Gail Dudkin, entertainment; Carol Ahlberg and Andrew Mercer, invitations and program, and Marice (Candy) Gutowitz, poster publicity.

All studennts are invited to attend the fete, which, though sponsored by the junior class is actually an all-University prom similar to the Spring Weekend senior prom in purpose.

Murphy and Miss Satow urge all juniors interested in working on any of these committees to contact the respective chairmen promptly.

CYNTHIA SATOW AND NORMAN MURPHY have been named co-chairmen of the annual Sno-Ball dance by the junior class executive council. The semi-formal affair will be held Feb. 13 Saturday of Winter Weekend.

Police Fear Bullets Taken by Children

Cartridges Gone From Law School Site

Seventy-five highly explosive cartridges were taken from the Law college construction site over the New Year's weekend, Syracuse police have announced.

The deadly bullets, used in rivet guns, are feared to be in the hands of children or others unaware of their danger. Detectives said that death or serious injury might result if the cartridges were detonated.

John E. Carter, Jr., of Taylor Heating Contractors, working on the new law college at the western end of campus overlooking Irving ave., reported that nearly a box full of the cartridges was discovered missing from a tool chest on the site. A lock had been broken.

The charges are used to drive three-inch steel studs into concrete and are capable of forcing the studs into quarter-inch steel plate.

Police said that if fired from a .38 caliber gun, which they fit, the cartridges would blow the gun to shreds. There are 13 grains of powder in the cartridges, while gun bullets contain only three grains.

The construction bullets explode upward and outward in a wide area instead of forward, detectives added.

The cartridges were in a paper carton marked "Drive It Power" and each cartridge is stamped "Tool" and "WAA."

Several black studs were also taken, Carter said. They have a sharp point at one end and about an inch groove at the other.

Women who plan to do graduate study may apply for the Grace LeGendre fellowship.

The fellowship is available for advanced training for graduate women. Applications and further information on the fellowship may be obtained from Miss Ruth Haddock in the Dean of Women's office.

Theologian Casserley To Speak on Irreligion

Dr. J. V. Langmead Casserley, sociologist, philosopher and Episcopal clergyman, will discuss "The Interpretation of Irreligion" at the third humanities lecture at 4:15 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 14, in Maxwell auditorium.

Dr. Casserley, brought up in the anti-Christian tradition of English rationnalism, became a convert to the Church of England in early manhood. He studied at the London School of Economics, and Kings college, London. Now well-known in academic circles, he is professor of theology at General Theological seminary in New York city.

Among the speaker's works published in America are: "The Christian in Philosophy," "No Faith of My Own," "Morals and Man in the Social Sciences," and "Man's Pain and God's Goodness."

The chairman of the humanities series, Dr. J. F. Olson, asserts that "Dr. Casserley's uniquely broad academic background and depth of learning commend him to the entire academic community at Syracuse."

Dr. Olson urges that those planning to attend Dr. Casserley's lecture be there early, because the overflow crowds at the first two lectures forced the late comers to sit on the floor.

The noted theologian will be available for questions and informal discussion, at 8 p.m. the same day at the Faculty club on the Haven hall ground floor.

Wisconsin Faculty Grants Freedoms

The freedom of University of Wisconsin students to join groups of their own choosing and to invite off-campus speakers to address them has been upheld by a faculty group.

The group approved the report of a student-teacher committee appointed to study the problem after campus speeches by two editors of the New York Daily Worker aroused state-wide protests.

McCarthy Speaks On LePage Question

First official comment by Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R.-Wis.) on questioning by his Senate investigations committee of Syracuse university Prof. Wilbur R. LePage, Dec. 16 came this week.

McCarthy told reporters that LePage was "a friendly witness, but he had no information that would interest us: I have no information that he was a communist of any kind or subversive."

Prof. LePage reported after questioning that the senator had apologized to him that day because he had apparently been erroneously subpoenaed.

Piety Cagers Tangle With Pitt Hoopsters Tomorrow

CLARENCE "DUTCH" BURCH
Pitt Guard

DAVE DUESSEL
Pitt Center

CLARENCE (DUTCH) BURCH and DAVE DUESSEL, two probable Pittsburgh starters when the Panthers invade Archbold gym tomorrow evening. Burch is the captain and leading scorer of the Pitt five while Duessel, a 6 foot-5 junior, is one of the visitors' best rebounders.

By LOWELL TOENNIESSIEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's cagers launch the second half of the 1953-54 season tomorrow night when they entertain the Pitt Panthers in Archbold gym. The Orange frosh meet General Electric in the opener at 6:30 p.m.

Coach Marc Guley's quintet will be shooting for its seventh win against four losses while Pittsburgh seeks to break a six-game losing streak. The Panthers lost their opener to Michigan before recording their only win of the campaign, a 66-64 victory over Bradley. Losses to Duquesne, Geneva, (Pa), Michigan State, Columbia, Princeton and Ohio State followed.

THE STEEL city five has a new coach for the first time since 1922. Bob Timmons, a Pitt graduate, succeeded Dr. H. C. Carlson as head coach when the latter resigned after 31 years at the helm.

Timmons did not play basketball while at Pitt but he was a regular end on the 1933 football team. He coached both sports in Ohio high schools before taking over at Indiana Teachers college in 1939. The war interrupted Timmons' coaching career with a four-year Navy hitch but he returned to his Alma Mater in 1947 as an assistant football coach.

The new hoop mentor will probably start Dick Deitrick and Ed Pavlick and the forwards with Dave Duessel at center and Capt. Clarence (Dutch) Burch and soph Joe Fenwick in backcourt. Burch and Deitrick are the only returning starters from last year's team which won 12 and lost 11.

Deitrick, who is also an end on the football team, supplies much of the Pitt rebounding. The rugged 6 foot-3 senior missed part of the cage campaign when he played in the Blue-Gray grid contest at Montgomery, Ala., over the holidays.

A SIX-FOOTER from Oil city, Burch is a good floorman and the leading Panther scorer. Fenwick is also 6 foot and a good playmaker.

Tallest of the Panthers at 6 foot-5, Duessel is counted on for rebounding strength while Pavlick, a 6 foot-3 junior, is second to Burch in point-making.

Attempting to get back on the victory trail following Wednesday's loss to Penn State, the Orange will probably go with Capt. Mel Besdin, Ron Gillespie, Ronnie Kilpatrick, Jack Larned and Walt Scott.

SCOTT APPARENTLY earned a starting role when he threw in 12 points against State's zone defense. Pittsburgh is also expected to use the zone placing much of the scoring burden on outside shooters such as Besdin, Scott and Lou Cegala.

Injured center Dave Kline is not likely to see much service but the return to action of 6 foot-5 Lou Beverly and 6 foot-3 Connie Zimnick during the vacation period has helped ease the height problem.

The probable varsity lineups:

Farm Expert Lashes Into Government High Parity Policy

By JOANNE STERN

Dr. Butler, addressing a meeting of the Young Republican Club of Syracuse university, stated that the 60 per cent to 90 per cent subsidies for basic commodities should be removed because it is "too costly and is immoral to ask one segment of the population to pay for the losses of another."

HE REPORTED that by in large the sentiments of three leading farm organizations, these being the National Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Farmer's Cooperative, are against high parities and rigid controls.

That "politics have been thrown right smack into the middle of the economics of agriculture" was proven by the recent wheat referendum. Dr. Butler disclosed the fact that out of the 167,000 farmers in New York State, only 12,000 were eligible to vote because in order to qualify you had to own 15 acres of wheat.

Out of the 12,000 only 3,000 voted. The result was 49 per cent against retention of high parities and 51 per cent for them. This led the public to believe that all of the 167,000 New York farmers wanted high parities.

Commenting on the recent "cattle caravan" that descended on the capital to ask for parity for the cattle producers, Dr. Butler said that only three out of the 33 cattle states actually wanted said subsidies.

THE DOCTOR, who is a fellow of the American Institute for the Advancement of Science and farm counsellor for the Aviation Corporation of America, stated that a man is termed a farmer and is eligible for subsidy if he has three acres and produces $300 worth of crops. The doctor declared that this was not fair to our real producing farmers.

Fifteen per cent of the population are farmers. Of this only ten per cent are actual producers. Therefore, the doctor asserted, it is wrong to carry along the other third. He feels that they should be allowed to fall by the wayside and be absorbed by industry.

He suggested that if we must have such a program, why not have one for the producing farmers and one for the non-producers.

Dr. Butler feels that we should have a policy which would make it impossible for a farmer to go broke because of drought, flood, hail, etc., but would not give him the incentive to over produce because he is guaranteed a fair return.

Also present at the meeting was Dr. John C. Huttar, father of Philip Huttar who is president of the club, who is connected with the Grange League Federation. Dr. Huttar made some comments which infer that he is in agreement with Dr. Butler.

President Wants Lower Legal Age

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

As part of a program to "advance the security, prosperity and well-being o fthe American people," President Dwight D. Eisenhower yesterday asked Congress to propose a Constitutional amendment that would allow 18-year-olds to vote.

In a 7,000 word state of the union message to a joint session of the senate and house, the President covered every aspect of domestic and foreign affairs and urged promotion of three broad principles: protection of the freedom of the American people, maintenance of a strong and growing economy and concernmnent with the human problems of the individual citizen.

THIS PROMOTION can be accomplished by use of "that precious intangible, the initiative," said Mr. Eisenhower. He credited his adminstration with winning that initiative durng the past year.

Promising to promote lasting peace, the President asserted that "We shall not be agressors. but we and our Allies have and will maintain a massive capability to strike back."

In asking Congress to lower the voting age, the chief executive declared: "For years our citizens between the ages of 18 and 21 have, in time of peril, been summoned to fight for America. They should participate in the political process that produces this fateful summons.

Major points of President Eisenhower's message were:

1. Persons convicted of conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the government by force should lose their citizenship.

2. REDUCTION OF government spending next year by about $5 billion to bring the budget closer to balance.

3. Improvement of the "basically sound" Taft-Hartley labor-management law. Specific proposals on the subject will be offered to Congress Monday.

4. Federal aid to state to build necessary schools.

5. Transition to a new farm program based on flexible instead of rigid high price supports. There would be protection to farmers against abrupt drops in support levels.

6. HE IS confident that the transition from wartime to peacetime economy can be completed "without any serious interruption in our economic growth." The administration plans easier credit policies, tax revisions, more international trade, public works and other measures.

7. Statehood for Hawaii.

8. A four cent first class mail rate and increases in other rates to get the post office out of the red.

9. Maintennance of preparedness "to advance the cause of freedom on foreign fronts." Economic aid to Europe can be cut, but military and technical aid to backward countries "must be continued." Okinawa will be retained, the United Nations supported and a mutual defense pact with Korea backed.

10. HOPE OF "constructive Soviet reaction" to the atomic energy proposals set forth at the UN by the US "to make possible a new start toward an era of peace."

11. Authority from Congress to share atomic secrets of tac-

New Junior Officer Appointment Made

Robert Baliba, a junior in fine arts education, has been appointed to assume duties as a junior officer in women's student government.

Members of the WSG assembly last night approved the appointment by President Mary Anne Dalton. Miss Baliba will take over chairmanship of the academics panel. She succeeds Elaine Greenberg who resigned the position on doctor's advice.

The new junior officer has been active in class government and on weekend committees. She is a junior guide and representative to junior assembly. A member of Alpha Epsilon Phi, she is treasurer of that sorority.

With the appointment of Miss Baliba the work of the academics panel is expected to progress more rapidly. During this semester a number of resignations hampered smooth working of the panel.

Before Christmas Turbi Blum, who was asked to chair the panel temporarily, announced that a tentative program had been set up. The panel is working on the University advisory system, the honor system and the gifted student problem.

There's Snow Tomorrow?

By MICHAEL BRAUN

Brother, it's cold outside. And snowing. And slippery. Pretty miserable all around. Everyone is down in the proverbial dumps. Their personalities, yea, their very souls have slowly turned to ice.

Conversation is at a standstill. Everyone and his brother (or sister depending on individual problems and complexes) is concentrating on keeping warm. The watchword of the day is "collars up."

OFFICIALDOM IS at a standstill. Usually we call up the weather bureau and the folks down there are just chock full of pertinent information. Not today. A call to 54-1021, their telephone number, brought no answer.

"Could it be that they are shirking their moral responsibility to the community at large?" we thought. It was our civic duty to call the operator, who in turn with one of the devices known only to the employees of the Bell Telephone company, called the bureau.

Never had the voice on the other end answered so timidly. "Tell me sir," we said, with all the wide eyed innocence that we could muster at the moment, "how much snow fell on Syracuse?" There was a slight pause.

"Oh not much" said he. "How much" said we. "Only 6 inches. That's not a lot you understand. Why in 1912 in the same period of time, 8½ inches fell."

WE MULLED that over in our minds for a while. What after all was 6 inches of snow, when our forefathers had to slosh around in 8, pardon, 8½ inches of the horrible stuff. We weren't so bad after all.

We started to ask him if he had heard about anything unusual concerning the weather. To no avail. He had in the words of one of our most illustrious citizens, "faded away."

As we hung up, the operator said "ain't it awful this here weather. Snow, snow, snow. It's really cold. Personally I like the spring." We thanked her for her opinion and hung up.

We got up from the phone, put on our coat and walked outside. Rather we slid. Up by the stone bench on the campus (which now looked like a mound of snow), a group of children complete with sleds, skis and other paraphenalia were playing.

ONE OF them offered us a ride in his quaint way. "Say mister, you can have a ride on the sled if you give us a push." he said. So push we did until the little hellions were skimming along the snow.

They obviously had no intentions of giving us a ride, so we headed back to the Hellbox, which at least was warm. As we entered the phone rang. "More gloom," we thought. "More people dispairing the weather and the general atmosphere."

"Campus Notice for tomorrow," the voice said. "The Ski club outing has been cancelled because of snow."

Vacation blues?

It would not take a very astute observer on the Syracuse campus to venture the opinion that some of the students are upset over the closing of University living centers during the recently announced mid-year vacation period—the complaints, petitions and letters circulating would offer substantial proof.

The students who are protesting the move might be classed in three main groups: (1) those who work, (2) those who for financial reasons can not afford a trip home, and (3) those who are inconvenienced by the somewhat unexpected announcement.

For those in the first and second group the University is providing houses in which to stay; these will be announced next week.

The major complaint here is that if past policy is not changed, those staying will have to pay to remain. This should not be, at least during this first year of change.

Because the announcement was not revealed until immediately before vacation, there are many students who had not sufficient warning in which to obtain additional finances.

The Daily Orange, requests, therefore, that those students who, because of legitimate financial difficulties, must remain, be allowed to do so without additional housing charges.

For those in group three, it is unfortunate that they were not told sooner. However, students have long been seeking this vacation. Indeed, most Syracusans have found time in past years to get home between their last exam and registration. Some of the living centers have even had to close.

Many universities in the country have mid-year vacations. Syracuse did also before the war and no one complained. It was just that everyone knew it was coming and planned accordingly.

From this year on, the University has promised that it will have all vacations scheduled and announced well in advance.

One of the major reasons why the dorms had to be closed was because of the possibility of theft. With few students in the majority of houses, the professional burglar would have a field-day.

As a last soothing word to those who have been inconvenienced: take a look at that calendar—Easter is not until April 18!

Editor-in-Chief

Are you cockeyed?

Are you a cockeyed optimist?

A cockeyed optimist, as we're using the term, is not the same as it was to Mary Martin.

The cockeyed optimist is the guy who waits until the last minute to do everything, always certain that people wait for him to do it.

Such is the case with the 1954 Syracuse graduate who is going to wait until June 4 to call up a hotel for graduation weekend.

Several Syracuse hotels reported yesterday an unusually large number of reservations for graduation weekend (June 4 to 7) although many rooms are still available.

Most Syracusans planning to take the commencement walk this June should plan to reserve rooms for the weekend as soon as possible.

In addition to hotels, there are many tourist homes and some motor courts available. Names of these can be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce, or from the classified section of the telephone directory.

The parents of the cockeyed optimist—who was too lazy to call up a hotel—will probably commute from a hotel in Utica during the weekend.

AT THE FLICKERS

Spoof that is a Joy

By CHARLES SAMUELS

Daily Orange Movie Critic

Fan, Fan,—Fun, Fun

Every once in awhile a film comes along which is not only first rate entertainment, but a first rate display of artfullness. "Fan, Fan the Tulip" falls into this blessed category. It is a spoof that is at once a joy for the spirit and a work of art for those who like their films well done on both sides.

Thank God, foreign film makers do not labor under the archaic censorship laws with which the American film makers are beset! For, they can treat sex with great frankness and candor or with great wit and raciness. This film has chosen the latter course and an hillarious course it is too.

Fan, Fan is a devilishly impudent rouge, a satirical exaggeration of the type of role which was the forte of Douglas Fairbanks. His pranks with the ladies, his outrageous heroism, his imbecilic wisdom; all these things are a joy to behold. This is a part to relish and Gerard Phillipe gives it the full Gaellic Treatment.

He is aided in parodying war and the swashbuckling war sagas by Gina Lollobrigida, a young woman of extraordinary anatomical advantages. Miss Lollobrigida is a glamour girl, but unlike many of her American counterparts, she can act. Her performance as Fan-Fan's gypsy love is a masterpiece of sex, subtlety and satire. Miss Monroe take note.

The peculiar power and excellence that foreign films generally enjoy over the American product stems from their greater concern with the things in life that are true and rich in meaning. They are not content to entertain. They instruct as only art, which is a perceptive distillation of life, can instruct. This French film is an outstanding example of such great discernment.

"Fan, Fan" is an out and out farce, designed to entertain. On the other hand it is no hollow charade. Beneath its robust surface, lies a biting satire on the folly of war. Such a scene, as the one in which the opposing generals can not fight because they have pre-arranged the battle and missed their cues, is hillarious. It is also meaningful.

This film is no "Gulliver." But like that superb satire it masks its trenchant comments with a cloud of comic brilliance. By so doing it not only provides a thoroughly enjoyable evening in the theater; it provides a thought-provoking one.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Up With the Dorms; Down With Samuels

Eviction

Dear Editor:

I agree wholeheartedly with the letter in today's paper regarding the enforced eviction of students from their dorms following finals this month. As for myself, all I can do is hope to find some place near school where I can stay at little expense, because I cannot afford to go home for this unexpected holiday the Administration sprang on us such a short time ago.

You see, I am an independent student, and live in University housing, and am to be thrown out like everyone else living in dormitories. Since I am dependent on my earnings (I work at two part-time jobs during the winter, and, of course, work summers) to stay in school, and the railway fare home that I am forced to spend by the University would support me at school for at least two or three weeks, my finances are shot by the Administration's unwarranted action. An increase in tuition each year since 1951 is hard enough, but at least notice was given a little in advance, and there appeared to be reason for it. For this there is none, as far as I see.

So all I can do is ask around among my friends, and hope that I can find a place to stay on campus, or else find another job so I can hope to make up the amount of money the Administration will cost me by enforcing my eviction with that of all other persons living in dormitories.

Storm

January 7, 1954

Dear Editor,

Recognizing the fact that, whenever anyone selects his "best ten" list, there is bound to be a storm of protests and criticisms, we would like to add our humble comments and observations about Mr. Samuels' top films of the past year.

In the first place, he states that the new technical methods did nothing substantial for the movie world. True, the 3-D novelty has worn off, but can Mr. Samuels overlook the huge box office returns from both 3-D and the newest improvement, Cinemascope, and seriously say that these methods have done nothing for cinema?

In his top ten, Mr. Samuels has listed three British films which I am sure the average movie goer has never even heard of, much less seen. He refuses to grant that "Shane" and "Stalag 17" were great pictures because he believes they were highly overrated. Is this any substantial reason for refusing to recognize the pictures for what they really were—great productions?

We wonder whether or not Mr. Samuels ever heard of, or saw a motion picture by the name of "The Robe?" He offers as his excuse for not listing some good pictures the fact that he might not have seen them. I am sure that he must have had some time in the six weeks that it played here to go downtown and see "The Robe." Surely this was a better all around movie than "The Captain's Paradise" (no offense to any Guiness fans). We also wonder why there was no mention of "Martin Luther" which certainly was greater than any of the three English films.

And just another little comment. This probably wasn't Mr. Samuels' fault, but the French expression at the end of the article could have at least been spelled correctly.

Very truly yours,

Bob Vivian

Wuz Great!

Dear Mr. Charles Samuels:

Geez, I read your column and I think you wuz great! I don't understand what these guys mean when they say you are wrong about all them pitchers what you reviewed. Me and all the guys down at the gas works think you was wright and that they was wronge, so I hope this will make you forget all about what they wrote you in today's paper.

Like I say, me and the boys liked Bandwagon an awful lot, because for one thing you didn't have to think about it, you didn't have to watch it, and it didn't matter too much if you came in the middle of it, because it was all the same all the way thru: real good. Fred Astaire is a good dancer, as good as Rudolph Valentino any day. Just you keep up the good work and me and the boys will read your reviews every time, but don't use very big words because they are hard for us to unnerstand.

An admirer,

Reinhardt H. Dockstedder

A Credit

To the editor of the Daily Orange:

I should like to put in a defensive word for your movie critic, Charles Samuels. After reading the letters printed in today's paper, I feel it necessary to put a little weight on the other side of the balance.

I have read most of the articles that Mr. Samuels has written for your paper and I think he is one of the more literate of your writers. He is observant and expressive and although, perhaps a trifle pendantic, at least he does not turn out the drivil I have read at times elsewhere in the paper.

I consider his articles a definite credit to the editorial page and I hope the present slings and arrows do not deter him from writing.

Sincerely yours,

John Tilden

THEY STARTED OUT EVEN AT GRADUATION:
Why is one doing better now?

You may not see it in their outward appearances — but there's a big difference between these young men. One has held three jobs in the five years since graduation. He's still looking for a job that offers him a lifetime career. The other has been with a Bell Telephone Company during that time. He's on his way up!

Seventy-five per cent of college men hired by the Bell Companies since World War II are still with these telephone companies after five years! Here's why:

Telephone Work Is Interesting—You may train to supervise forces engaged in constructing, installing or maintaining telephone facilities; or to manage groups of people handling customer contact, accounting or statistical work. You may work on engineering problems or be engaged in planning or other important staff activities, such as personnel relations, public relations, or revenue studies.

You Grow with a Growing Business—The Bell System is one of the fastest growing businesses in the world. Since the end of World War II, it has spent about nine billion dollars for new construction. The past five years have seen the introduction of network TV transmission, dialing of Long Distance calls and the development of the remarkable transistor. And the next five years will bring many more changes. In addition, each year the number of college people hired is related to estimates of the number of future management positions to be available.

No matter what your military status, it's worth inquiring about Bell System employment opportunities. Your Placement Officer has the details. See him soon. And be sure to talk to our employment representatives when they visit the campus. The time to plan your future is now!

Soph-Studded Orange Wrestlers Open Season Against Cortland

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Ready! Wrestle!

These are the words that will reverbrate through Archbold gymnasium this Saturday when the Orange grapplers open the 1954 home season against Cortland. Starting time is 2:30.

A freshman meet against the Cornell yearlings will precede the varsity event. The frosh meet will start at 1 p.m.

THE LOSS of six lettermen from last year's starting squad has left coach McDaniels with only three returning lettermen on whom to build his 1954 squad.

The matmen who will be missed most by McDaniel are Dick Beyer, Bob Bury, Enzo Marinelli and Lee Martin. Bob Hillman and Bob Campbell are the two other lettermen who didn't return this year.

Syracuse's hopes for Saturday rest mainly on the broad shoulders of co-Capt. Ed Rooney. Rooney was runner-up in both the Easterns and National Intercollegiate Wrestling championships in his freshman year.

HAMPERED BY a bad knee last year, Rooney still managed to place third in the Eastern's and Nationals while also winning all his dual meet battles.

COACH JOE MCDANIEL will be starting his eighth season at the helm of the Orange wrestlers tomorrow afternoon when the matmen inaugurate their season against Cortland.

Another Wilkes-Barre participant who is being heavily counted on by McDaniel is Charles Dinkelmeyer. The rangy senior will start at the 177-pound slot if he has recovered from injuries suffered at the Wilkes tournament.

Co-Capt. Charles Debellis is the other question mark for the Orange grapplers. DeBellis injured his wrist early in the year and might not be able to wrestle Saturday. Should DeBellis' wrist not be sufficiently healed by Saturday, Tom King will handle the 147 pound chores.

The other starting positions will be manned by sophomores. Jim Rose, who was undefeated as a freshman, will wrestle at the 123-pound slot, followed by Ed Weisz, 130-pounds and Hank Bianowitz, 137-pounds.

Cortland will present a team greatly improved over last year's squad which bowed to the Orange, 26-6. Two returning lettermen and two wrestlers back from the service spark the Teachers.

Wade Cummings at 123-pounds and Nick Lee at the 167-pound slot are the two returning lettermen. Both gave the Orange trouble last year and with one more year of experience under their belts, they should be even tougher this year.

The two returning servicemen who figure to give the Saltines trouble are Sam Carrio at 130-pounds and Buddy Mahoney at 157. Upon the showing of these four men, the outcome for Cortland will rest.

Frosh Basketeers Meet GE Quintet

Undefeated Five Seeks Fourth Victory

By DAVE BENNETT

Coach Andy Mogish's frosh basketeers go after their fourth victory of the season Saturday when they meet the always tough General Electric quintet in a 6:30 p.m. prelim to the Syracuse-Pitt game.

The Tangerines will face a stiff test in the GE five, which is made up of former college hoopsters. The Electronics Park squad will be making its first of two appearances against the yearlings in Archbold gymnasium this year, the two teams also slated to play on February 10.

THE VACATION layoff has hurt the frosh, according to Coach Mogish. The team's shooting is off as well as its playmaking precision.

But the Tangerines will have to improve if they wish to remain undefeated. Following the General Electric encounter, the powerful Cornell frosh invade Archbold to test the yearlings on Wednesday, Jan. 13.

The Wyoming Seminary quint is also scheduled before the Cubs take an exam period layoff. The Pennsylvanians play here on Saturday, Jan. 16 in a prelim to the varsity-Fordham game.

The lineup for tomorrow's contest is undecided. Many members of the team are beginning to show up better in practice sessions and may break into the first five.

SWIM SPLASH PARTY

The Syracuse university swim team will sponsor an all-university splash party in the Orange pool from 7:30-10:00 p.m. this evening. Admission is 50 cents and the event will be the last one until next semester.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Rumors have been flying faster than a jet plane at the annual Collegiate conference in Cincinnati this week—whispers which could vitally affect Syracuse university's football future.

A United Press story released late Wednesday stated that four schools, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Syracuse, are rumored to have formed a new Eastern athletic conference.

The idea of a confederation of Eastern teams is not recent. Like a Mexican jumping bean, it has been periodically popping up with monotonous regularity for years.

This time, however, there might be something to the whispers. A spokesman from the Orange athletic department stated that in view of the new Ivy league decision to approve a round-robin Ivy schedule for 1956, an Eastern confederation is closer to reality now than at any previous time in history.

The primary reason given was that with each Ivy league club forced to play a seven-game schedule, other Eastern football teams would find it "practically impossible" to book Yale, Harvard, Cornell, etc. For a school such as Colgate who had five Ivy foes on the slate in '53, the decision poses a problem.

There are a lot of reasons why a school like Syracuse would be benefited by a loose yet strong league association. But if the league is set up on a round-robin basis like the Ivy plan, the disadvantages overshadow the possible advantages.

Some feel that because a team's schedule is automatically mapped out, thus eliminating a lot of athletic department headaches, the resulting effect is good.

Against this thought are two opposing ideas. First, the strong clubs may be forced to schedule the weaker teams of the league. Such "weak sisters" mean lower attendance, lower revenue and possibly lower interest. No spectator likes to see what he thinks will be a slaughter.

Second, with the Ivy round-robin proposal, little variety can be obtained. This is the main reason why Pennsylvania, who has been playing lucrative intersectional opponents, has reportedly opposed the new Ivy league setup.

It has also been said that a league school can present a stronger argument on controversial subjects such as television, spring practice, bowl games, etc., with the backing of the conference behind it.

A league setup may also take away the initiative of a school to make its own important decisions pertaining to athletics. This has been illustrated by teams such as Maryland, formerly of the Southern conference, who was prevented from accepting bowl bids because of a conference ruling.

There are, of course, other pros and cons concerning an Eastern league. We prefer to withhold personal judgment on a possible league. One thing is certain. No one would like to see a strong athletic power such as Syracuse tied down with meaningless iron-clad rules which might oppose Orange athletic policy.

Theta Chi Tops AEPi In Intra Hoop Play

By EV MURCH

Theta Chi staved off a last half rally by AEPi with a last minute upsurge and won the highlight of last night's intramural action going away, 29-20. The win was the third straight without a defeat for Theta Chi.

Although AEPi's Bill Jerry was high man in the contest with 10 points, Theta Chi's three man scoring punch of Ed Gozigan, Bill Sprague and Don Moller proved too much.

IN THE one independent contest of the evening, Skytop M-1 took a 33-30 squeaker from Skytop M-5. M-1 seemed to have the game sewed up until the last few minutes when M-5, led by Frank Veccioni went wild and almost pulled the game out of the fire. Time ran out though and M-1 led by Stauffer's 12 points had a win.

The most one-sided contest of the night and perhaps of the year took place as Sigma Phi Epsilon steamrolled over Beta Sigma Rho, 48-6. Scoring but two points in the first half, the Beta Sigs could do nothing against the high scorers of Sig Ep, who had three men in double figures.

Bob Trees highlighted the onslaught with 18 markers gathering high honors for the night. Tom Filiatreau threw in 11 and Joe Dominick chipped in with 10.

Pi Kappa Alpha took a low scoring affair from Sigma Nu, 18-13. Frank Demetrowitz and Dave Brogi of PiKA were high with 8 and 7 respectively.

Swordsmen Open Season Tomorrow

The clash of blades will again be heard in the Archbold gym tomorrow when the Piety fencers open their season against the swordsmen of St. Lawrence. Starting time is 2:15 p.m.

Leading the attack for the locals will be Capt. John Goldstein, one of the top bladesmen in upper New York State. Starting his third year for Syracuse, Goldstein has to protect the North Atlantic epee championship, which he won last year.

Supporting Goldstein in the epee will be two year man Joe Gresser and Ed Wang, starting his first year. On the sabre it will be letterman Al Peck, a senior, Willard Schof and Abe Gilman, two men in their second year of the sport.

Thompson Given Fulbright Award

John H. Thompson, associate professor of geography at Syracuse university, has been awarded a Fulbright grant to teach in Japan, according to Eric H. Faigle, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

Professor Thompson is leaving for Japan the end of this month, and will remain there 10 months, during which he will lecture in geography at Kobe university in Kobe. He expects to return to Syracuse for the spring term next year.

The Fulbright grants are awarded by the Department of State for the exchange of educational personnel. Professor Thompson is one of 20 professors being sent to Japan this year by Fulbright grants.

After receiving his Ph.D. in geography from the University of Washington in Seattle, Professor Thompson came to the Syracuse faculty in 1949. He has also taught at the University of Nevada and the University of Washington.

Sauter-Finegan Orchestra
AMERICA'S NEWEST, MOST COLORFUL DANCE BAND

Eddie Sauter and Bill Finegan, leaders of America's most excitingly-different dance band, met in 1939 as struggling young arrangers. Ed had studied trumpet and drum at college, worked up to arranging for "name" bands; Bill had studied in Paris, won a spot with Tommy Dorsey. After 13 years of pooling new ideas, they formed their own band. It clicked!

Staff Will Consider Special Coed Pleas To Stay on Campus

Miss Copeland Reports Receiving Requests Of Many Students

Members of the dean of women's staff will consider individual coed requests to remain in University living centers during the forthcoming semester vacation at a meeting scheduled for Wednesday morning.

Miss Kathryn Copeland of the housing office told The Daily Orange Friday that a large number of pleas have been brought to her by women students who feel it is necessary for them to stay here during the four-day period.

Each of the requests will be given consideration, she said. If a student adequately demonstrates a need to stay, permission will probably be granted.

At a meeting of women's student government assembly last week, house presidents aired objections coeds might voice at the announcement of dorm closings.

Financial complaints were most common. House presidents anticipated protests that residents are unable to afford a second, unannounced, trip home within three weeks of Christmas vacation.

Miss Copeland indicated she will recommend that no extra fee be charged of those who are granted permission to remain. Decision of the deans and directors on this question will be announced later in the week.

Campus Chest Chairmen To Start Colgate Rivalry

JoAnne Swalm and Stuart Parker, co-chairmen of Syracuse's Campus Chest, will be at Colgate Tuesday when the Hamilton school begins its Campus Chest drive. Colgate will be striving to retain the Orange Key-Maroon Key trophy which it won in last year's competition with Syracuse.

Parker will present last year's trophy to Colgate's chairman William Delaney, at a pep rally beginning the drive. Miss Swalm will give an opening address.

COLGATE HAS again set its goal for the drive at $6,600. Last year the school went over its goal, collecting $6,900, while Syracuse fell under its $7,500 goal with a collection of $5,900.

The Hamilton school's drive will extend for one week while Syracuse's drive, beginning Feb. 22, will continue through March 3. Both campaigns are the only legal fund-soliciting drives on the respective campuses.

Seven charity organizations will benefit from collections at Colgate. These include the American Negro Scholarship fund, Foreign Student fund, Heart fund, Cancer fund, Hamilton Community Chest, Hamilton Community hospital and Red Cross.

Each student at Colgate is requested to give $5 and generally the fee is added to their living center bill. In past years, the average donation has always exceeded the requested sum, reaching nearly $8 per person in some years. Last year's average donation was over $6.

IN CONTRAST to Syracuse where Campus Chest is an independently sponsored organization, Colgate's drive is sponsored by Maroon Key, the junior men's honorary.

Keynote opening affair for the Syracuse drive will be a pep rally Saturday, Feb. 20. Highlight of the affair will be the auctioning of campus personalities to work as waiters on the opening day of the drive at various fraternities, sororities and living centers.

Judges Announced For Empress Contest

Miss Peg Cram of the Syracuse Herald-Journal, university social director Miss Margaret Parker and Mrs. Mary Verbeck, fashion consultant of the Addis co., have been named judges for the Winter Weekend empress contest. The judging will be held Wednesday, Jan. 13 in Maxwell auditorium.

Replacing the queen of Winter Weekend in the past years, the empress will reign over all the affairs of the weekend. She will be crowned at the Ice Pageant on Friday, Feb. 12 and recrowned at the Sno-ball dance the following night.

THE EMPRESS will be selected Wednesday but the decision will not be announced until the Friday, Feb. 12 edition of the Daily Orange. Five finalists will be announced immediately, however.

Empress committee chairman Michael Schaffer has announced that contestants will be rated on a basis of nine points: three for attractiveness in winter outdoor costumes, three for beauty and three for poise and personality. All entrants are required to wear ski pants and either a ski jacket or sweater. Ski boots, mittens and other winter apparel are optional.

Applications for the empress contest, found in the Daily Orange, must be submitted to Schaffer by 6 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 12 along with the $1 entrance fee.

Each sorority and living center is urged to submit at least one entrant, while there is no limit on the number of applications from one house. Fraternities and men's living centers are also urged to back candidates.

WILLIAM ANGELOS will act as master of ceremonies for the judging which is scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m. While the judges are selecting the finalists, the Fiji Four, composed of Stuart Parker, Deane Brink, Phil Huttar and Dennis Kless, will entertain.

The queen and the other finalists will all receive prizes from local merchants. They will also appear on local radio and TV shows and their pictures will appear in the local papers.

Affairs scheduled for the Feb. 12-14 weekend include snow sculpture judging, speed skating, an ice pageant and the Stocking foot dance on Friday, skiing and the Sno-ball dance on Saturday and additional skiing on Sunday. An addition to the weekend will be a brotherhood service sponsored by the Jewish Student fellowship on Saturday morning.

Weekend programs and buttons will go on sale during registration. A booster page will be included in the program naming Winter Carnival patrons. Anyone can have his name included by giving 25 cents to any committee chairman.

THE TOP ranking Syracuse jumper in the skiing events will receive the new Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial Ski Jump trophy, named after the former Winter Carnival committee chairman who was killed in an automobile accident last fall. It will be the first ski jump trophy ever named after a female.

The weekend will be dedicated to Fay Welch of the Forestry

'She's the Sweetheart'

Song Contest Set For Campus Chest

All enterprising song writers on the Syracuse campus will get a chance to display their talent in the Campus Chest song writing contest. Promotions committee chairmen Diane Hirshhorn and Stuart Smith have announced that applications are open for a song to keynote the drive.

Originality of both the lyrics and music for the song is required. All submittances must be handed to Miss Hirshhorn, Iota Alpha Pi, or Smith, Tau Epsilon Phi by Friday, Feb. 12.

The winning selection will be used throughout the drive and the composer will be given due credit.

"Now Is The Time" has been suggested as a title of the song, but the chairmen stressed that any title fitting the drive is acceptable.

Back to work

The strike is over.

The time to relax and do little is past. The occasion arises wherein we must go back to work.

This train of thought arose when we glanced at the calendar and noticed that it was exactly one month since the newspaper strike in New York city ended.

With another glance at the calendar we noticed it was exactly one week until final examinations began. Things began to click and we thought that we, too, must get back to work.

Where have we been? one may ask. We don't rightly remember . . . the time has fled by us so fast. School started late this year . . . and a few of our midterms were early . . . and late. We had a long vacation and it took a while to get back with the academic world.

The world may have passed us by . . . but it is the teachers who must pass us on. Truly, we must get back to work.

A scrappy year

Congress and various state legislatures went into session this week. Every forecast made predicts this will be a scrappy year in both Washington and at least in the local state capitol.

In Washington, the honeymoon is over. President Eisenhower's job is to see whether he can steer his program successfully through a closely split Congress, and by so doing strengthen Republican prestige for the '54 elections.

The Democrats are ready to come out fighting. Still angry over some aspects of foreign policy and the handling of the Harry Dexter White case, they will probe every weak spot in the Administration hoping to find the opening for a Democratic-controlled Congress. Discussion over foreign affairs, tariffs, trade with Red China, lowered voting age, tax changes, farm policy and Taft-Hartley revision point to a tough session ahead.

Before '54 is over, many students at Syracuse will be called upon to vote at the polls to express their opinion.

The obvious, but many times forgotten, course is to start to read, listen and discuss the issues as early as possible and not wait until the last week in October to wonder what all the shouting is about.

HITTING THE BOUNDY SEA

Once upon a time in the land of "Italy Bop Shu Luu" lived a gone dad named Chris. Now this kat was the koolest as his threads included a pair of skins (pegged the most), a "Mr. B" shirt, and to close the deal, his "D.A." hung down to his waist.

Now Chris had had eyes to make the scene to discover the U. S. of Amerlca but his bread situation was the lowest, so getting the light bulb he agitates the asphalt to the local castle to dig his ex-chick, Izzy. When he laid his glims on the quail, he flipped his wig, for she came on like Monroe sporting a black strapless and cutting upon some juice. After his DA curles back to normal, he spoke:

"Dig, Izzy! I got the mostest road maps laid out to disçover the U. S. but my gold standard is the lowest. You dig? I mean, like, its the leastes to say the mostest. Even if I did goof, we could use the sails for weekend sightseeing tours."

With this the queen came on with, "I dig you the most, Chris, but Kingie would be hacked if I laid the bread for you, (The king was the squarest for he only dug Guy Lombardo records) but you go make the scene to "Easy Eddie the Finance Man" and he'll hit you with all kinds of sugar."

Forthwith, he received the gold and then "beat the dust" to the lot of "Honest Sylvester the Used Ship Dealer," and bout the craxiest "sets of sails" ever. They were convertibles and had all the nutty accessories.

After they quit the local scene they went many days "gigging" on the islands but soonly the sails were put into high and finally they cruised into New York Harbor. "Cool Sid" the first mate, after digging the Statue of Liberty, gave out with, "Man! Dig that crazy Ronson!" And with that, the crew all gave out with the national anthem of bop—"How High the Moon" in E flat. On the shore a gig was in full swing. George Shearing was blowing in the palm trees and even Illinois Jaquet entered with a chorus of "Flying Home." After a week, the gig faded with Stan Kenton making a one night stand and giving out with a few bars of "After the Ball Was Over." The boys were all flipped and beat to no end and even Chris' D.A. hung a little to one side.

Just as they were about to pull a ghost, they signed for a return engagement and then proceeded to make the home scene.

Chris, still fliping, came out with, "Man! It's the most! Swininest! Moviest! Nuttiest! Absolutely the gonest!" and then pausing, he "cut up with the point and blue juice" in the latest popular history book, and today his famous words are still remembered—"Man—this world ain't square."

On the Q.T.: V.I.P.'s O.K.?

We noticed in the President's speech the other day that he was for simplification of government organization. We wondered just how bad things really were until we came across the following bit. What with initials replacing the proper noun these days, our tolerance of the situation was stretched by the following enigmatic set of letters:

This was a special committee set up by the House of Representatives, and its initials stand for Select Committee to Conduct a Study and Investigation of All Matters Relating to the Need for Adequate Supplies of Newsprint, Printing and Wrapping Paper, Paper Products, Paper Pulp and Pulpwood.

Strictly SNAFU.

Trek of a World in 1953

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN

Signs in Independence, Mo. said "Welcome home, Harry."

Thus began the first Republican presidential administration in 20 years, as Dwight D. Eisenhower raised his right hand Jan. 20, 1953 to repeat after Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson the words that would officially make him the 34th leader of this nation.

In the shadow of the Democratic regime, Ike began his term at a slow pace. As the year progressed his policy became more sure-footed and began to assume its own personality.

1953 was a year of phenomenal achievements and disasters. It was a year of great men who achieved, died and were appointed.

MAN OF IRON

In Moscow Josef Stalin, the Soviet man of iron, left the premier's chair empty and said goodbye to the world after 29 years on the job. It was March 5. The following day Georgi Malenkov was proclaimed new premier.

May 29: A British team of mountain climbers conquered the greatest of them all, Mount Everest. The feat was dedicated to Britain's Queen Elizabeth II whose coronation was a sell-out June 2 in London.

It was two days before summer when Julius and Ethel Rosenberg got the shock of their lives. Electrician Joseph Frankel pulled the switch which controlled the juice in the first execution for espionage in the United States.

July 27: After three years of war between Communists and United Nations troops, a truce was negotiated in Korea. Early in August repatriation of war prisoners in the Far East conflict began.

HYDROGEN BOMB

Stupendous disasters tempered achievements for a time. On three islands near the Greek mainland suffering came as a result of the worst earthquake in years. During a hot summer, drought forced southwestern states to their knees and ruined crops; then heavy rains flooded the area.

August 20: Premier Mohammed Mossadegh was violently deposed in Iran. One of the world's best showmen, Mossadegh entertained world observers and his countrymen at a later trial, was sentenced to three years of solitary confinement.

Elections brought about changes in many parts of the world. While new support was gained for Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in West Germany, Alcide de Gasperi lost power when the legislature failed to support his program. Giuseppee Pella became the new premier. Ramon Magsaysay, a young anti-Communist, assumed the presidency in the Philippines.

DEATHS IN WASHINGTON

Four deaths in Washington brought nationwide mourning. Before the year had ended the nation knew that Chief Justice Vinson had sworn in his last president. Maurice Tobin, secretary of labor under Truman, passed away, and Senators Robert A. Taft and Charles Tobey of Ohio and New Hampshire also ended their usefulness to the nation.

A dead man figured in Senate investigations when Attorney-General Herbert Brownell accused Harry Truman of employing Harry Dexter White, whom Truman knew as a Communist, in 1946.

NEWSPAPER CRISIS

Even newspapers faced a crisis in 1953, when New York photoengravers struck for 10 days, paralyzing seven large papers including the Times and Daily News.

Pres. Eisenhower made big history with his proposal of a world pool of atomic materials for peaceful uses following the Bermuda Big Three conference early in December.

The Rosenberg execution was followed in November by the spectacular trial and gas chamber trip of Carl Hall and Mrs. Bonny Heady for the kidnaping and killing of young Bobby Greenlease, heir to a large fortune.

And in a cloister in Canada the world's most famous quintet was split up as Marie Dionne entered the quiet service of God.

Only 'Daily' Publisher

For a few short days during the newspaper strike which ended in New York City exactly a month ago, a former Syracuse university student was the only "daily" newspaper publisher in Manhattan.

John Hurlbut, class of '44, is a former Syracuse newspaper man and currently promotion manager of radio station WNBC in New York. The former Syracusan became an oddity among Gotham journalists when he acted as publisher of a communter's special news sheet during the December '53 news crisis in New York.

Syracuse Gymnasts Excel in Confederacy

WAA SPORTS

By JODY CRONAU

A pair of close overtime contests featured WAA basketball activity last week.

Exploding for three points in the last two minutes of an overtime fray, Kappa Alpha Theta downed Chi Omega 21-19. Chi Omega captain Carol Leland and Emily O'Keefe, Theta, each netted nine markers.

DELTA GAMMA took their second game of the season as they edged Kappa Kappa Gamma 10-8 in an overtime tilt highlighted by precision-like defensive play by both teams. Delta Gamma's Mickey Lynd iced the lowest scoring game of the season with a set shot.

Runners-up in last year's tournament, Theta Phi Alpha romped to their third victory as they trounced Alpha Xi Delta 29-12. Fran Harbach, Theta Phi, scored 15 markers.

Winning their third game of the season Thursday afternoon, Sims III tripped Mace 29-14. Sims' Libby Harner recorded 11 points to bring her three-game point total to 57.

Peck II copped their third game in three starts as they whipped Genesee 22-19, despite outstanding defensive work by Alyce Hunt, Genesee.

WITH 13 POINTS, Anne Tullar led Shaw 3B to a 19-7 margin over Shaw 3C-E. Lund defeated Nottingham 20-7 as Alma Macomber, Lund, collected 12 points.

In Monday bowling league action, Haven Hall topped Phillips by two pins, despite Jewel Blatte's high single of 120. Parker downed Sigma Kappa, and Kappa Kappa Gamma rolled to a decision over Alpha Xi Delta.

Delta Gamma, led by team captain Mary Austin, with 143, defeated Nottingham in Tuesday play. Kappa Delta took Smalley by 96 pins, and the Syracuse City Coeds chalked up a forfeit victory.

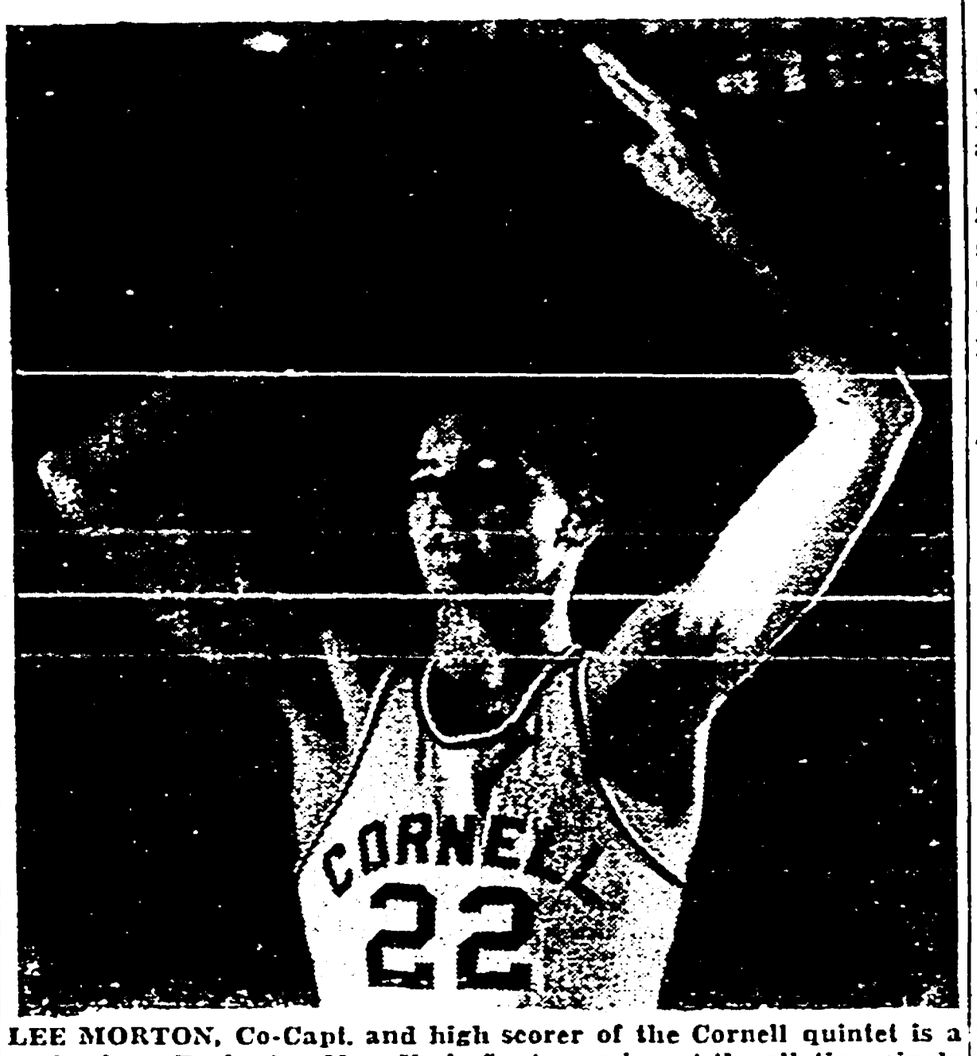
Sims II, Wednesday league members, recorded their third victory by defeating Richards. Sonya Shakotko, Richards, bowled high game of the week, 167. Sigma Tau Delta and Heffron out-bowled Fairfield and Alpha Gamma Delta.

Relatives in Sports Not a Rare Thing

Family acts are sprouting up all over Syracuse athletics this year with the basketball team leading the parade with a brother combo as well as a pair of cousins.

Pat Stark, quarterback on the grid team and stellar playmaker of the hoop team has a brother Mike, on the frosh five. High scoring Ron Kilpatrick and Walt Scott are cousins both hailing from Rochester. Vince Rigolisi of the Boxing team has a brother, Bob, on the frosh fistic squad.

Up and In!



LEE MORTON, Co-Capt. and high scorer of the Cornell quintet is a senior from Rochester, New York. Last year he set the all-time single season scoring record for the Big Red with 414 points for an 18.0 average. He was also selected on the all-Eastern Intercollegiate league team. Morton is a shortstop on the Cornell baseball team.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

The word "attendance" is understandably a very important one in an athletic director's vocabulary. In that ten letter word is implied both spectator interest and financial return which together are the life blood of any sport.

While we were down at Penn State for Wednesday night's basketball game, an extremely interesting situation presented itself. According to one Mr. Acherman of the Lion athletic department, not one outside ticket for an indoor sports event has been sold within the last seven years!

The Recreation hall, where all Penn State indoor sports are staged, seats 5,500 people. Wednesday night all seats but a small set of bleachers behind one basket were packed.

The point we are trying to make is this. At State, a college of 11,000 students, the winter sports are assured of a full house almost every event. It's a sad comment that the same cannot be said of Syracuse, a school of 9,000 with a gym which has to hold only 2,500 to be filled.

Only in several instances, primarily a Duquesne, Cornell and Niagara basketball game, was our gym anywhere near filled. It means a lot to a team to know that there is a packed, enthusiastic rooting section back of them.

Last year, basketball attendance was not of the best possibly because the team was not of the usual Syracuse caliber. This year, the team already has just one less win for the first half of the slate than for all of 1953's schedule.

Starting last Saturday, Marc Guley's warriors embarked on what should be a very successful home stretch drive. The word "home" is very appropriate since eight of the last ten games will be in Archbold.

We hope that Syracuse students will show up to these games and other winter events in droves. The wrestling, boxing, gymnastic and swimming teams all have better-than-average clubs and it will be to the fans' benefit to view as many of these home events as possible.

There is nothing more exciting, outside of playing the sport itself, than to sit and watch the guys that you know, representing Syracuse against the best in intercollegiate competition.

You'll be doing yourself a favor by getting your ID card punched for a Syracuse sports event.

By AL GEFEN

"The second southern trip for the gymnastic squad was a success." That's what Paul Romeo, Piety gymnastic coach, had to say when his boys returned from the southland.

One week before Christmas vacation, Paul and five members of his squad departed for the warmer climates to meet three of the South's better teams in a series of dual meets. Accompanying Paul were Johnny Barkal, Milan Trnka, Dan Traficante, Ferdie Fournies and Corky Sebbo.

THIS SEXTET left the Salt City Saturday, December 12. The first stop was Chapel Hill, North Carolina, when the Orangemen met the Tarheels of the University of North Carolina December 14. The five-man Syracuse aggregation had little trouble in disposing the Tarheels to the tune of 51-44.

John Barkal was key man among the Piety point-producers. He came through with a first place in the parallel bars, second places in the high bar and side horse, and fourth in the tumbling events. Altogether he amassed a total of 16 points.

After besting the University of North Carolina, the Saltine gymnasts journeyed to nearby Durham to oppose the Duke Blue-Devils the next day. Once again Bill Orange came out victorious, copping the meet, 52-38.

Barkal once again led the Orangemen with a high total of 21 points. He gained top honors in the side horse, parallel bars and high bar, and finished third in the tumbling competition.

FLORIDA STATE was the next team for the Hill gymnasts to face. This meet took place Dec. 17 at Tallahassee, Fla. Syracuse was a definite underdog going into the meet, but put up a valiant fight before dropping 56-40 decision to the Seminoles.

Team depth was the key to this important meet. Florida State simply had too much manpower for the five-man Orange aggregation. Don Holder amassed 21 points to lead State to victory. The 1952 Olympic ace captured a first in the side horse and tied for top honors in both the high bar and parallel bars events.

Barkal who had done so well in the preceding meets had to settle for only nine points. He gained these by finishing second in the side horse, fourth in the parallel bars and high bar an dfifth in the tumbling.

Ferdie Fournies was the next most successful Orange gymnast on the trip. He won first place honors in the flying rings and rope climb events against both Duke and North Carolina, and captured the latter event at Florida State while finishing a close second to Jack Miles in the rings.

LAST YEAR'S NCAA tumbling champion started off the year in fine fashion. Corky Sebbo won these events at Florida State, Duke and North Carolina. His victories were accomplished with scores of 294, 281 and 286 at the respective schools. Sebbo also saw action in the rope climb at Tallahassee, but failed to place.

One of the most versatile members of the Saltine team, Milan Trnka, added to the point production of the Orangemen. Trnka placed first in the high bar at North Carolina, tied for the same place at Florida State, but did not compete in that event at Duke.

He also saw action in the parallel bars and flying-rings, with two seconds and a like number of thirds in the three days of competition.

The final member of the squad, Dan Traficante, also gave a fine account of himself in the three meets Participating in the side horse, parallel bars, flying rings and rope climb events, Dan scored one second, four thirds, two fourths and two fifth place finishes in the three days of competition.

All in all, the Orangemen proved to Coach Paul Romeo that they are ready to give the fellow members of the Eastern gymnastic league a definite fight for the league crown. A marked improvement over last season's record is in the offing for the Hill gymnasts.

ROLLES ROLLS

Chuck Rolles, Cornell's 5 foot-6 guard, holds the Red individual, single-game scoring record of 41 points. He set the mark last year as a frosh while averaging over 20 points a game.

55TH MEETING

Wednesday's basketball contest between Syracuse and Cornell will be the 55th in the series. The Orange toppled the Red, 81-77 in overtime, earlier this year for its 39th victory against 15 reverses.

Home Schedule Favors Cagers

With seven of their remaining nine games to be played at home, Marc Guley's hoopsters are in an advantageous position. Their remaining home games are with Cornell, Fordham, Niagara, Penn, Canisus, Penn State and Colgate.

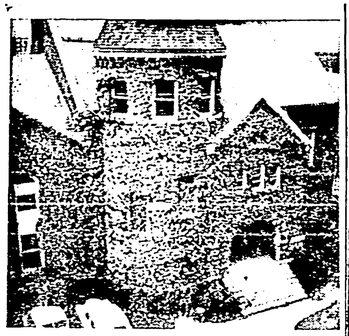
From Bowl Agony to New Year's Eve Toots—1953

Some Highlights of the Old Year at University Include Four New Buildings, Proposed Destruction of Others



THE JOURNALISM Center was so named after the School moved there in June. The building was once home to the women's physical education department before it got its new building.

WE JUST CAN'T help running this picture, but anyway, it's just a reminder that Syracuse made a bowl game once, and that the team has been as great as ever in 1953. Guess that Orange bowl is just bad luck. Look what happened to Maryland.

AFTER A SENSATIONAL last performance in the Orange bowl, Dotty Grover was graduated in June, and yielded her place to . . .

EUNICE MALLOTT naire. Between them, ship in the country. A tons at once. They m

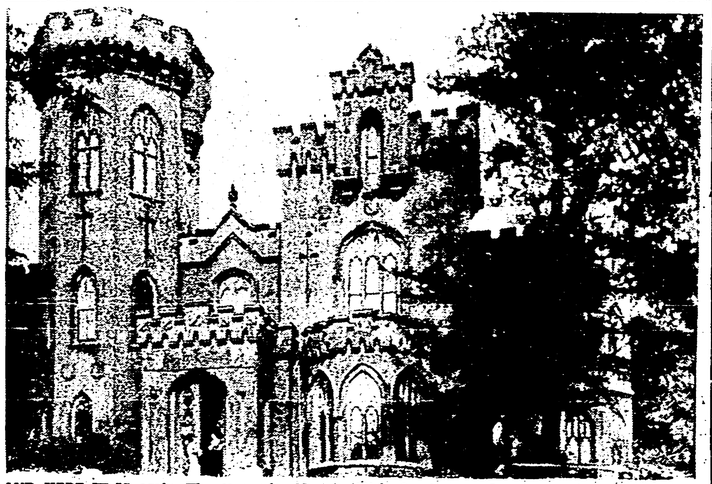
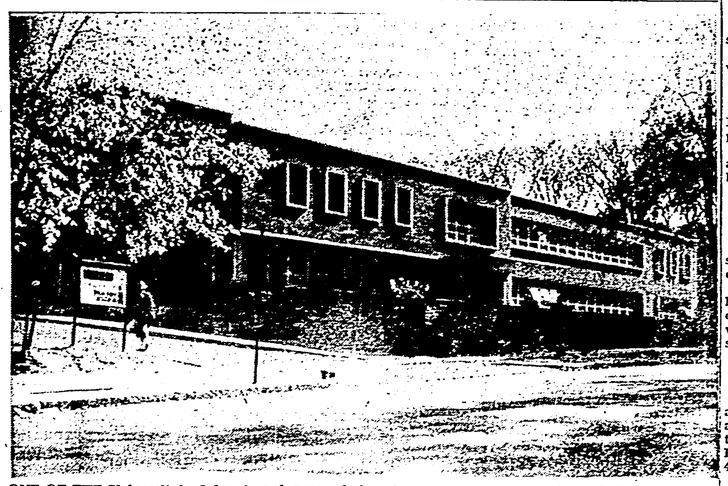
BEFORE THE UNIVERSITY did away with the Student Union, the officials promised us this for the near future—anywhere to fifty years hence. The building proposed in the sketch would have facilities to make the SU Student Union the finest in the country. However, financial difficulties and previous building commitments make it impossible to turn the pen-and-ink drawing into brick and stone now. Anybody got a few hundred thousands kicking around?—for a starter, of course.



AND HERE IT IS again. The campus's oldest building, due to come down next April. The announcement, this year, that it would be destroyed shook every former and present "Kastle Kid." In September, when the razing date had been postponed, ROTC and a few journalism classes kept the old hall from being empty. Oh yes, the Hellbox is going too.



ONE OF THE University's claims to uniqueness is the Special Education building, dedicated during 1953, and the only one of its kind. Help for the exceptional" child is given by students majoring in speech and audial pathology. The educational psychology department is located there too, under the direction of Dr. William Cruickshank.

Politics, New Administration Policies in March of Events

By RO . J. HERZ

The first day of 1953 fell on New Year's day.

On that first day of January, Syracuse came out second best in th Orange bowl, a quaint ceremonial dance held near the sunny shores o Miami's own Atlantic ocean.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch house, Syracuse university, constructi plans for the new Law school building were announced Jan. 6. The Unive sity supported a state-constructed and state-operated educational televisi network.

An all-University placement committee, to coordinate placement, w announced Jan. 7, by Vice Chancellor Finla G. Crawford.

An article in The Daily Orange of Jan. 13 noted that ground would b broken June 1 for the new Med school wings, with Yates Castle to be va cated by April 1. It sounds familiar.

A debate that lasted months in men's student government started Ja 13 with a speech by MSG president Fred Burke, calling for a revision in re presentation and method of election of the assembly.

Platoon football went out Jan. 14 when the NCAA football rules con mittee voted a return to the 60-minute player.

Registration in February totalled 6,563. There were 156 veterans o campus. A new Forestry building, to be built on Hendricks field, was pro posed.

MSG debated assembly revision Feb. 17. A 5-man special committe was set up to study it further. Reserved seating support grew. A farewe service filling Chapel was held Feb. 20 for Rabbi William B. Schwartz, cha lain to Jewish students on campus.

MSG debated assembly revision March 3. A proposed amendment w voted down 17-13, with a two-thirds vote needed.

The Syracuse Daily Orange ceased publication and The Syracuse Or ange, Vol. 1, No. 1, came out March 10 as the Monday issue was dropped.

Reserved seating was slated to start in September. WSG president Ir Roth offered a new constitution at the WSG council meeting. Boar's Hea production of "The Tempest" opened.

The new men's dorms were named Marion hall and Watson hall. MS again brought up assembly revision March 17. An amendment was passe by a 35-0 vote after weeks of bitter debate. Scrabble spread.

Politics reared its ugly head in March with a Non-Partisan league pri mary scheduled, boycotts by United Students party and Tri-Orange party, forced Greek compromise after a packed assembly meeting an deventual NPL support of seven candidates of the other parties.

The Daily Orange was named all-American. The election campaig started April 13. As an omen, the Student Union announced the droppin of all special activities because of insufficient funds.

Student discount service cards went on sale. Campus elections wer held April 22. Stan Leff was elected MSG president; Mary Ann Dalton, hea of WSG. Male students approved the assembly revision amendment; wome voted in the new constitution. To an extent the student governments ha switched representation plans.

The Syracuse Daily Orange celebrated its 50th year of publication wit an anniversary banquet in Shaw, a reception for the paper's former editor and a "Farewell Ghost ball" in the Castle. Roscoe Drummond, now head o the New York Herald Tribune's Washington bureau, keynoted the banque Drummond was DO editor-in-chief in 1924. The DO anniversary edition wa 44 pages.

"Antigone," by Jean Anouilh opened in the Drama building. Plans wer discussed for an interdorm council, which never materialized.

Bids were opened for construction of the Law school building. A strict "no smoking" policy in classrooms was announced for September.

Campus leaders and administration met at Pinebrook the weekend o

May 8-10. Miss Elizabeth Broad, University social director, was married in the Chapel, and now lives in Glasgow, Scotland.

Early in May, the blow fell and the Student Union died. 1,775 students received degrees at the 99th commencement exercises on June 1 in Archbold stadium. Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens delivered the main address.

In September, freshman orientation was shortened. The Onondagan went through several weeks of trial until sufficient subscriptions were received to insure its publication.

Intramural insurance was offered to Hill men, but since too small a percentage signed up, it was rejected by the insurance companies. Shortly after, four students were injured in intramurals.

Dean of Business Administration Robert E. Stone was granted a year's leave to take a teaching and lecturing post at the University of Istanbul (not Constantinople), Turkey.

Plans were made to drop the mid-year graduation, making next June's commencement the 100th.

Walt Kelly returned to Syracuse and announced that Pogo may run in 1956.

Piety Hill Alliance came onto the scene and was banned from campus for four months when it was convicted of ilegal campaigning.

The State university of New York banned all national Greek organizations on its campuses, affecting the Med school at Syracuse.

Rev. W. Wesley Konrad came to Chapel to be Episcopal chaplain. Vince Rigolosi was elected "Mayor of Marshall st." An election for "Sheriff of Waverly ave." was reported to be in the planning.

Construction bids were opened and contracts awarded for Engineering building two, and later, building one. Bowling alleys opened in the Women's building.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt came to campus Oct. 21.

Lack of petitions to run for the MSG assembly made the ballot on election day look somewhat empty. Only three independent petitions were received. Class assemblies elected the remaining MSG assemblymen.

October bowed out with a Campus Chest carnival.

Freshman elections were held Nov. 4, the day following national elections. Francis Procopio, running as an independent, won in a landslide.

The week prior to the Colgate game had some illegal scalpings, even though the "Cazenovia Agreement," outlawing vandalism, had been renewed by the student governments.

Colgate weekend was the time of the Brotherhood Service, at which Dr. Ralph Sockman spoke for the sixth year. Posters, the rally, Queen Carol Amacher, and the formal dedication of the Women's building plus a 34-13 win over the Maroon rounded out the festivities.

The Board of Trustees voted Nov. 13 to retain Dr. Abe Gelbart on the University faculty. He had refused to state under oath as to whether or not he had ever been a Communist before the Velde committee in May.

Aiding student parking problems was a new stairway to the top of Mt. Olympus, where parking room was set aside for 200 vehicles.

Saturday, November 21, the corner of Walnut and University aves. was target of a theoretically dropped A-bomb.

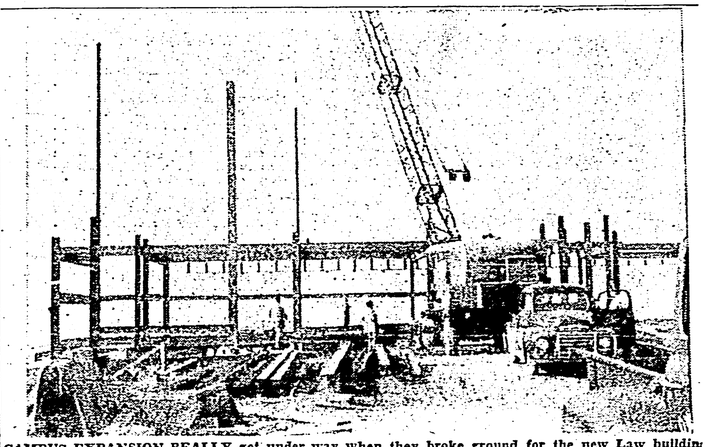
Returning from Thanksgiving vacation, students noted that the Daily Orange had a larger circulation than all major New York city papers. Although temporary, it was true.

Bids were opened and contracts awarded Dec. 4 for Engineering building one. Work started within a week.

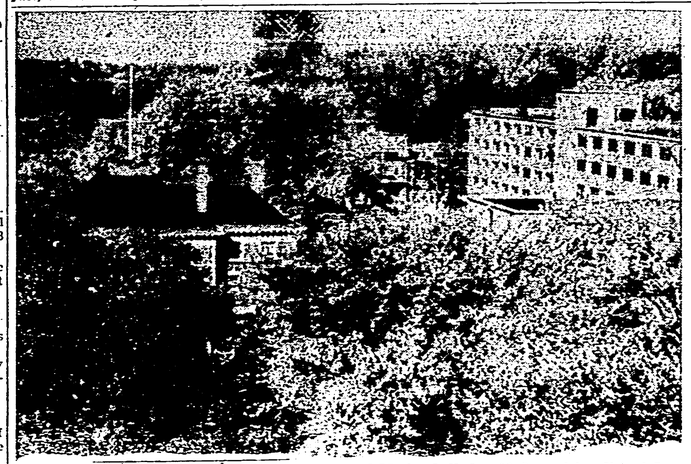
The academic side of 1953 ended on a serious note—"An Appraisal of Russian Social and Economic Life"—given by four Russian experts on the University faculty.

Thus it was a year of gains, as with evolving student government; and losses, as with the Student Union. Although many felt a great deal of action had been taken, much indifference had been shown.

The word was "excelsior."



CAMPUS EXPANSION REALLY got under way when they broke ground for the new Law buildin Over the Thanksgiving vacation, a startling amount of the superstructure was completed, abrupti filling the empty space behind the prefabs. "Riding the blue beetles downtown" will be a thing of th past, and the lawyers will join the engineers in the trek to the campus proper.



THE BEGINNING OF construction on Watson and Marion halls heralded a not-too-distant day whe that long walk or ride to Skytop would become no [illegible] old reminiscences for returning [illegible] men's dorms are being built on the site of several women's cottages, the old Studen Union and a parking lot. More modern buildings for Syracuse University.

Now! Television In Technicolor

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

(Editor's note: This article is the first of two articles devoted to a study of the entertainment world's latest wonder, color television. The second article will be printed tomorrow.)

Within a very few months, an American family with $800 to spare will be able to witness first hand the wonder of I Love Lucy's locks in true-red, the enchantment of Mr. Godfrey's freckles and the full-bloom of Fred Allen's blood-stained eyeballs.

Syracuse and Central New York played a significant role in the development of the recently-approved system of color television. For it was, on our back porch so to speak, that this new and amazing medium took its first giant steps. One of the focal points of the National Television System committee's research network was located among the sprawling, red-brick buildings that go to make up the Electronics Park, the General Electric company's vast television center northeast of this city.

General Electric's contribution to color research began late in 1949 when representatives of the television industry (manufacturers and networks) formed the National Television System committee. It was the function of this committee, which consisted of the chief engineers of 30 companies, to develop a system of color tv "that would be compatible, would reproduce color well and would permit continuous growth and development."

The committee reached its goal in February, 1953, when an agreeable system was perfected and color TV was lifted from a thing of confusion and near horror to a workable device which could bring full-color entertainment to the fingertips of America. The final door was swung open in December when the Federal Communications commission granted approval to the NTSC method.

Electronics park, as one of the NTSC research centers, was the locale of wide color research which included studio and transmission equipment as well as home receivers. In addition to actual laboratory work, the GE scientists also conducted "live" shows from their studios at the Park and transmitted over local TV channels.

Chief of TV engineering in Syracuse is a jolly sort of color television encyclopedia named Irwin C. Abrahams. According to the GE researcher, "We won't know just how good our system is until color sets find their way into homes, but right now we think it's pretty good."

Color transmission takes into account the elements of shade and saturation of color, missing from black and white images. Three signals are involved. A color carrier, a black and white carrier, and a sound signal. Red, green and blue are the important colors for the new medium . . . opposed to the artist's traditional basic colors, which are red, yellow and blue. These are the main factors of the light spectrum.

The electronic devices which serve as TV's "master artist" consist of three tubes each sensitive to the basic colors. The various shades are accomplished by electric impulses and devices which overlap the red, green and blue and finally paint the color image on the home set's phosphoresant screen .

The new color system's feature of compatibility refers to the fact that pictures transmitted in color can be received on monochrome sets without any adjustment. The images remain, of course, in the black and white form. This also can work in reverse with black and white shows being received on color sets. The second black and white carrier accounts for this feature.

With all this, it would seem that Syracuse's back porch research at Electronics park is wider in scope and far more important than any of us would suspect.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

YOU GIVING YOURSELF A CHANCE?

By CHARLES C. NOBLE
Dean of Hendricks Chapel

"Confidence that Conquers"

"I took gas," say the men at Princeton after a bad examination experience; "it was the pits" at Vassar. A good many of us at Syracuse will be asphyxiated and humiliated in the next few weeks unless we get ourselves together. On or off the campus everyday is examination day for the contemporary citizen. We need confidence that conquers, if we are to survive. It is very much in order to paraphrase a popular TV commercial: "How are you fixed for faith?"

Faith in what? For one thing, faith in yourself. It was said of old by the Master of Men to his fellow citizens, "O ye of little faith!". Listen to that, are you giving yourself a chance? A justifiable faith in ourselves to give us the confidence we need. Confidence by definition, is a state of mind, free from diffidence, doubt, or misgivings. It stresses faith in oneself and ones powers but does not imply conceit.

Do you really believe in yourself? I mean you, yourself, and not an ideal projection modeled after a collective idea gathered from association with other people with whom you are foolishly competing. I mean your best possible self, and not the false pattern which someone else, often including parents, may attempt to foist upon you. Have you discovered this unique self and given it a real chance?

We could do just now with additional faith in the lift of love and in the power of prayer. Triumphant living in every crisis depends ultimately on attitudes. We need peace of soul instead of panic of mind, confidence instead of confusion, faith to meet our frustrations, poise to overcome our paralysis. Pervasive awareness of God will make these positive attitudes possible.

The life that throbs in our body and the reactions that make possible our mental processes are all of God. The medium through which we have dependable interrelationships with others is established by God. The surging ambition within us which makes us wish to excell, is a part of the creative life of God. Let us deliberately and voluntarily open our consciousness toward this total power of the eternal and have the confidence that conquers.

At the Last Minute

By ART SIEGEL
Managing Editor

We've got a new aversion to add to the psychology textbooks. It's at precisely this time every semester that this aversion presents itself in its most notorious form.

I am of course referring to the aversion toward getting work done on time.

You might call it an affinity—an affinity for getting the work done late—or just at the last minute.

Term papers, advertising projects, perhaps even a masters these, although this is going off the deep end, are being typed in profusion these days.

When you get a fairly decent mark on something that has been done at the last possible moment and after sleepless nights—or perhaps I should say "night"—you start to think of how you could have racked up had you started early.

But, then, who starts early?

Some of them do.

Several deep-eyed, horn-rim spectacled persons, unheard of, at this moment sit in the library, contemplating a project due next May.

These, however, are in the pitiful minority.

It's the time for bloodshot eyes.

And college newspaper editors who can't see the typewriter in front of them.

And instrospection.

And the recollection, "If only I hadn't wasted the vacation. It was a long vacation. Which was more important to me? Sleep or study?"

The answer, coupled with reunions and parties, should be quite obvious.

And so, we Americans are fated to burn the midnight oil.

What would the coffee barons do without us?

They would perish, forgotten forever in some Brazilian village, surrounded by millions of coffee beans that should have been processed and heated on hot plates and devoured at 4 a.m. on the seventh page of a term paper for poli sci on "Dada for the Masses" which is due at 9 a.m.

Well, kiddies, there's a week left, during which the electric company will thank their lucky stars—and during which we may possibly get that "B" which might have been an "A".

We suggest a hot shower, slowly turned to cold. We suggest coffee or coke.

We suggest that we at the Daily Orange are a lot better off than you. For we keep these hours every night.

Through the Drifts to a Graveyard

Is there no end to the trouble (providing no expense), that the Daily Orange, your campus newspaper, will go to to inform its readers? No search is too great, no question too difficult for its intrepid staff.

Well, the other day (to be perfectly honest, it was Friday) someone called the Hellbox. "What," they wanted to know, "was that cemetery doing in back of the Veterans' Hospital?". That's all, Very simple.

Our duty? (as they would say on some program or the other). Get the facts. Little did it matter that the snow lay deep along the ground. White bucks on feet, and pencil in hand we set forth.

On and on, deeper and deeper into the wilds of South East Syracuse we went. Now we were next to the cemetery. Nothing separated us. That is if one considers a six foot tall fence nothing (we journalists don't care, we just keep on plugging).

Unable to ascend it we looked for an opening (as they would say in the legal profession, a loophole). Alas and alack (and a dash of bitters too) none was to be found.

Why do they want people out? Why not let interested souls wander at their leisure among the tombstones? Why all the hush, hush. These thoughts kept ringing through our journalistic like, inquiring like mind.

Our limited brain couldn't fathom out the problem so we headed undaunted to the city room (we call it a city room because its on the outskirts of the city).

"Well, said ye ed., brandishing his whip, "what did you find?". Could we tell him that we had started out a happy, healthy, student eager to please. That our clothes which were once dry, and new were now soaked. That our disposition was low. We certainly could not! We had to be (in the words of one of our more prolific TV stars) Humble.

Piety Hill Wrestling Aspirations Rest With Co-Captain Rooney

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

How well the Orange wrestlers fare this season will depend on the performance of the entire team, not on any single member. Syracuse's chances for an individual championship, however, rest almost entirely on the broad shoulders of co-Captain Ed Rooney.

The stocky 167-pound junior has been a standout on the team ever since his freshman year, when he took runner-up honors in both the Eastern's and Nationals

Like so many other matmen, Rooney received his initial wrestling experience in high school. Rooney was a member of Mepham's high school wrestling team from his sophomore year on.

While in high school, Rooney won the New York State A.A.U.'s and the senior Metropolitan A.A.U.'s. At that time, Rooney wrestled in the 136-pound division.

Two of Rooney's high school teammates have met him in intercollegiate competition. Ed Mahoney of Lehigh and Hal Mahoney of Cortland, both of whom scale in at 157 pounds, were victims of Rooney's forceful attack.

Bettuci, 147-pound NCAA champion is, according to Rooney, the toughest opponent he faced. Bettuci was one of the few grapplers to beat Rooney in his freshman year.

Favored to win the National championship, Rooney still came close despite his knee injury.

As it turned out last year, Rooney managed to place third in the Eastern's and National's while winning all of his dual meets.

At the Wilkes tournament the last Friday before vacation, Rooney pinned Solomon of Pittsburgh. Solomon defeated the Orange co-Captain in the National Intercollegiate wrestling championships last season.

Besides placing first in the 167-pound division, Rooney received the trophy for the outstanding wrestler in the tournament. The Orange junior pinned three of his five opponents and took the other two matches by decision.

Rooney's fine performance at Wilkes-Barre prompted Orange Mentor Joe McDaniel to say that "he is wrestling better than ever." When taken in the perspective that Rooney has always been wrestling above average, the statement by McDaniel takes on an added significance.

The only other frosh wrestler during McDaniel's eight years at Syracuse who was eligible to participate in varsity sports and who did as well as Rooney was George Gebarhdt. The 177 pound matman was undefeated in dual meets in his freshman year and later was runner-up in the Nationals. An addition, Gebarhdt was also Eastern Champ.

If Rooney continues to show the form he displayed at Wilkes-Barre, it may well be that he will equal and even better Gebarhdt's records in the Eastern's and National's.

A member of Phi Psi fraternity, Rooney is a liberal arts student and is presently majoring in Geography.

As of yet, McDaniels hasn't definitely decided if he will keep Rooney at the 167-pound slot or move him down to the 157-pound class, in which he wrestled exclusively last season. One thing is sure: the 157-pound grapplers whose schools will meet Syracuse in dual meets are hoping Rooney stays at the 167-pound level.

Orange Hoop Action Tops Week's Sports

Syracuse's basketball team engages in a heavy home schedule this week with the action being highlighted by games against Cornell and Fordham.

Coach Marc Guley's quintet face Cornell's Big Red on Wednesday night. Syracuse boasts an overtime decision over the Cornellians at Ithaca earlier in the campaign. Cornell is favored to win the Ivy league race.

Saturday evening, Fordham invades Archbold gym with one of the top teams in the East. Rated in the top ten hoop ratings for the past several weeks, the Rams are led by high-scoring Ed Conlin.

The high-flying Rose Hillers were upset by St. Francis of Brooklyn in one of the biggest upsets of the year, last week.

Boston Pops Plan Student Matinee

Special Performance Set for Feb. 4

The presentation of a special student matinee by the Boston Pops orchestra prior to its concert in Syracuse on Thursday evening, Feb. 4, will be contingent on campus support of such a venture.

According to a statement by Prof. Murray Bernthal, director of the Famous Artists concert series, the Boston Pops organization has agreed to present a student matinee as part of their Syracuse engagement in Lincoln auditorium.

THE MATINEE was arranged after last season's tremendous response to the Pops' concert at which over 1,300 persons were turned away. Bernthal stated that student interest was so great as to demand a special performance for their benefit.

Bernthal urged all individuals and groups on the campus to contact the Famous Artists' office in the Clark Music building if they are interested in attending a Boston Pops matinee. The phone number is 3-0462.

The evening performance by Arthur Fieldler's concert orchestra will be presented in Lincoln auditorium with a company of 75 musicians. Under the baton of its distinguished conductor, the Pops returns to Syracuse for its second successive year. It is the second attraction in the history of Famous Artists to be booked two consecutive seasons.

THE BOSTON group had the longest list of recordings in the RCA Victor catalogue and it stands as the first and only Victor or-

Syracusan Readies Exchange Issue

Ten pages of cartoons will be featured in the January exchange issue of the "Syracusan" which goes on sale tomorrow. One of the most popular issues of the year, it is expected to be a sellout.

This will be the largest exchange issue ever to go on sale, containing 36 pages of the best humor from college magazines all over the country. Despite increased number of pages the magazine will continue to seel for 35 cents apiece.

Stories included in this issue are taken from college humor magazines in all parts of the country. Examples are: "From Here to Fraternity," from the Cornell Widow; "Macbeth Rides Again," from the Texas Ranger; "The Flintlock Myth," from the Harvard Lampoon, and "Don't Push the Panic Button, Professor!" from the Washington Columns.

Ike Offers Hope For Relief in Tax

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

President Dwight D. Eisenhower in his state of the union address to the 83rd Congress Thursday gave hope to college students that some kind of financial relief tax-wise would be upcoming in the immediate future.

He announced that although there will be no further general income tax reductions, the House ways and means committee working with the Treasury department, has laid the ground work for a "more liberal tax treatment of dependent children who work.".

SEVERAL OTHER proposals have also been made by the House committee which, the President reported, will lead to a thorough revision of the entire tax system.

The sweeping revisions and other plans are expected to be contained in Mr. Eisenhower's budget message to Congress on Jan. 21.

Although the $600 limit on tax-free earnings will probably remain, the proposed changes would benefit students by allowing parents to keep them as dependents if parents provide more than one-half of the support of claimed dependents.

Dependents, however, would still have to pay their own tax on income over $600.

THE PROPOSALS thus would aid the college student by enabling him to work and make over the $600 limit, but not be lost as a dependent and cost his parents extra taxes. Many students now work summers, but quit just short of $600 to save parents money.

For an average student then, who probably takes about $2,200 annually to support, he would be able to earn up to $1,100 and still be claimed as a dependent on his parent's income tax form.

The new proposals do not affect the tax for 1953, which must be filed by March 15.

Syracuse Chosen For Law Testing

Nationwide Exams Planned Here

Syracuse has been designated as a testing center for the nationwide administrations of the law school admission tests. These tests will be held on February 20, April 10, and August 7, Ralph E. Kharas, dean of the college of law, announced today.

Seniors, juniors and in some cases sophomores are eligible to take the tests, depending on the law school to which they wish to apply. Applicants should find out from the law schools whether they should take the test and if so, on what date.

Application blanks and an information bulletin describing registration procedures and containing sample test questions, should be obtained four or five weeks in advance of the testing dates, directly from the Law School Admission Test, Educational Testing Service, P. O. Box 592, Princeton, New Jersey.

Dr. J. V. Langmead Casserley, who will speak at the Humanities lecture at 4:15 p.m. Thursday in Maxwell audiorium, has planned two other speaking engagements here for Friday.

Dr. Casserley, an emminent Episcopal clergyman, will address a joint meeting of the Protestant council and the Chapel house representatives Friday afternoon. The meeting is scheduled for 4:15 p.m. in Hendricks chapel.

An open discussion regarding the Thursday humanities lecture will be conducted on Friday. The Chapel staff suggests that all house reps and council members attend the Humanities lecture so that they may get more out of Friday's session.

Fall Hospitalizes Special Student

Infirmary officials said Miss Elm, a resident of Nedrow, struck her head when she fell, but was not injured. She will be detained until this afternoon for examination.

Ball, Birdie, Boiler Found Frozen Fast By Bowling Babes

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Coed athletes found bowling balls frozen to the alleys yesterday morning when they reported for classes. So did those who planned to bat the shuttlecock or take showers.

University repair men are working on coils in the heating system at the Women's building and all heat is expected to be restored by the end of the week.

H. W. Rowley of the building and grounds department explained to The Daily Orange yesterday that the drop in temperature after Friday caused coils in the Women's building to freeze and crack. Most of the building was not affected, but ooms where ventilation fans are operated by heating coils were without warmth yesterday morning.

The cellar, bowling alleys, badminton courts and shower room were affected by the cracked coils.

The women's physical education office reported that no classes had been called off because of the cold. Instruction scheduled in the cold areas was switched to warm rooms. Enough heat in one gym enabled instructors to hold most classes there.

A similar incident occurred last year on campus when prefabs behind Crouse college froze due to a heating failure.

In November, 1950, more than 1200 Skytop and Collendale residents returning from Thanksgiving vacation were confronted with cold living quarters after a major storm which raged throughout this section of the state.

Frosh men were crowded into Archbold gym where 500 mattresses and blankets were provided for them. Others were housed for the night in independent living centers and fraternities while repair men worked to restore heat and light.

Some women students residing at Collendale were moved temporarily to sororities and other cottages.

Meeting Planned By Powers Club

The Powers club, composed of students who plan a full time religious vocation, will meet today at 7:30 p.m. in the alumni lounge of the nenw Women's building.

The meeting will feature a panel discussion in which courses of interest to students in the fields of Psychology, Philosophy, History and Sociology will be reviewed. Professors Lehmann, McKee, Hotchkiss and Piper will take part in this discussion.

Professor Neil Richardson of the Bible departmentn will also speak about a course on religious education which will be offered for the first time next year.

The meeting will adjourn promptly at nine.

By MARIA HEITZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Auditions start today for the casting of the senior musical show, and will be open to all students interested, according to Jerry Leider, drama instructor.

The script chosen for the play "Up In Lights" was written by William Levine and William Dixon. The two liberal arts seniors wrote the book for the show in conjunction with a contest which the drama dept. was sponsoring. The winning script will net the two authors a $100 prize.

"UP IN LIGHTS," which will be presented from May 6-8 is going to be another giant production similar in kind to last year's successful "White Bucks and Tales." Negotiations are now in effect for leasing the Astor theater for the three day run.

Work on the $10,000 production will begin as soon as casting for the parts have been completed. Asked whether he thought this show would be as successful as last years, Leider, faculty adviser for Boar's Head said, "There's no question about it. It should be even better!"

The revue which is co-sponsored by the senior class and the drama honorary is the culmination of Boar's Head's efforts and talent in one huge presentation. One of the reasons for the show is the welcome which "White Bucks" received last year. Both productions are original all-university shows.

Lanny O'Kun and Bill Angelos who did the music and lyrics for "White Bucks" once again collaborated, and have come up with the music for this year's production. Costumes are by Mario Forte; choreography, by Charles Irwin and directed by Jerry Leider. John Jay Moore is designing the sets for the show.

PROFESSOR SAWYER FALK, head of the drama department, will supervise the entire production.

The show which fairly bursts with original skits and tunes that are catchy as can be, features 25 new musical numbers some of which are titled: "Who Are You." "Love Me Easy," "Stop, Look and Love Your Baby" and also one of the novelty tunes "Investigations."

Some of the skits included in the revue are: "Willy Loman and the Farmer's Daughter," "Yong Yanger and Yonto," "From Here to Prefab 16" (an eastern-western) and also an original ballet.

In addition to these and other skits there will also be a 3-D movie included in the revue dealing with the invasion of campus by Martians.

Tuesday and Wednesday—2-5 p.m., singing auditions; 5-6 p.m., acting auditions.

Thursday and Friday—2-5 p.m., dancing auditions; 5-6 p.m., acting auditions.

Weekend to Feature Stocking Feet, Skiers

— Stockingfoot —

College informality at its best is on the way!

All shoeless Syracusans will get their chance to take the spotlight at the annual Stockingfoot dance scheduled from 9 to 12 p.m. Friday, Feb. 13 at Drumlins in one of the initial events of 1954's Winter Weekend carnival.

SHOES WILL be strictly taboo that night with a shoe-checking stand supplementing the regular checking service. An additional inducement for the unshod dancer will be various prizes for top quality winter footwear.

Prizes will be awarded to the top couples in four stock modeling categories, the most holy, most original, funniest and best-all-around. Registration for the contest will be at the checking booth.

Dick Kowell's orchesta will provide music for the annual novelty affair at which the newly-crowned Winter Weekend empress will be introduced.

Tickets for the dance which is a yearly sellout will go on sale on Monday, Feb. 9, the first day of next semester. Co-chairmen Lois Cohn and William Levine have announced the attendance will be limited to 565 couples.

DRUMLINS WILL be decorated as a challet keeping with the overall theme of the weekend, "Alpine Holiday."

Chaperones will be Dean and Mrs. Frank Piskor, Dean and Mrs. Charles Noble and Prof. and Mrs. Theodore Denise.

Committee chairmen for the dance are Jerry Berger and Joan Poppe, tickets; Elizabeth (Betsy) Thomas and Thomas Nelipowitz, arrangements; Carol Agnello and Geannine Mendenhall, decorations; Jack Most and Arlene (Turby) Blum, publicity; Audrey Hazlett and Gwen Mahle, entertainment; and Eileen Brand, scrapbook.

— Skiing —

Skiing will be prominent in three ways during the annual Winter Carnival weekend, Feb 12-14. In addition to both intramural and intercollegiate competition, the winter athletes will keynote the official opening of the weekend, Friday, Feb. 12.

Torch-bearing skiers will dash down the Drumlins hill early that night and light the firebrand on the rink heralding the beginning of the weekend's festivities.

INTRAMURAL EVENTS will take place Saturday afternoon with competition scheduled in downhill and slalom for men and women. Any living center, organization or individual group with five skiers on the team is eligible for competition. Individual and team trophies will be awarded in both events.

At the same time, intercollegiate skiing will be held in the same events. Schools already entered are Cornell, RPI, Army Clarkson and Syracuse. These teams will also compete Sunday, Feb. 14 in a morning cross-country race.

The Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial Jump will highlight that afternoon's schedule. The award to be given to the highest top Syracusan in the event is named in honor of the former Winter Weekend chairman who was killed in an automobile accident last fall.

In addition to team competition, an open event will be held that afternoon.

SALLY SOPER and Joel Rosenbaum, co-chairmen of skiing have announced that chairmanships of the various committees are still open. Anyone interested should contact Miss Soper, Delta Delta Delta, or Rosenbaum, Zeta Beta Tau.

The chairman have also asked to be contacted by any living center having space for the visiting skiers during the weekend.

Drive for Dimes Ends on Friday

The campus March of Dimes campaign ends Friday, Co-chairmen Sue Woodrow and Anite Chappa announced yesterday.

Fraternities, sororities and living centers have been contacted by the committee and a representative chosen, who will collect contributions until Friday.

Reps will turn in money from 2 to 8 p.m. Friday at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house.

Last year University coeds cooperated in the city's Mothers March on Polio fund-raising drive, but this year the march will not be held until Jan. 27. Since this is the middle of the examination period, Miss Woodrow said the drive is being held at the University this week.

Any house that has not been contacted should call March of Dimes headquarters, 3-1181.

Sophs to Receive Movie Discount

The Sophomore Executive council has arranged for reduced rate showings of the excellent comedy, "Fan Fan the Tulip," at the Eckel theater, East Fayette Street, Syracuse.

All sophomores may present their '56 ID cards at the box office until January 14, and in return will receive a gift coupon entitling them to a 20 per cent discount there.

Frosh Set Theme As 'Outer Space'

"Outer Space" will be the theme for Freshman weekend, March 12-14.

Applications for co-chairmen of the event must be handed in to members of the frosh executive council by 6:30 p.m. Thursday. Applications should include ideas for the weekend and previous experience on events such as this.

A contest is being sponsored by the executive council to find the best name for the weekend. The prize will be two tickets to the dance to be held Friday evening March 12. All ideas must tie in with the outer space theme.

Snowfall Today May Help Skiing

A two inch base snow with three inches of windblown powder topped by an icy crust make skiing conditions only fair to poor, reported the ski lodge yesterday afternoon. They expect two or three inches of snow today which will create excellent skiing conditions.

The tow is operating from 2-5 p.m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday. Friday and Saturday the tow may be used from 2-5 p.m. and from 7:30-11:30 p.m.

Qualified instructors and ski patrolmen are on duty at all times.

Dance Floor at Orange Damaged by Fire

SMOKE POURS from the Orange Cafe Sunday as firemen fight a 2-2 alarm blaze in near-zero weather. Two other major fires broke out in the eastern part of the city that day. No official estimate of damage has been made.

The dance floor of the Orange cafe, popular Hill meeting spot, was destroyed in a 2-2 alarm fire at noon Sunday. An official estimate of damage to the restaurant and bar sections will not be made until this afternoon.

Mrs. Benjamin Bloom, wife of the proprietor, told a Daily Orange reporter that the dance floor will not be open until further notice. Whether the downstairs bar opens or not will depend on an inspection by the fire marshall, which will be made today.

The Orange, located at 721 S. Crouse ave., was the site of one of three major blazes, two of them in the University area, occuring between noon and 9 p.m. Sunday. Another fire caused an estimated $25,000 damage to an apartment house at 503 University ave. Fire inspectors are investigating the possibility of arson in connection with the apartment house blaze.

Deputy fire chief Harold Coon said flames at the Orange originated near a basement oil stove. Some firemen indicated the stove may have exploded. Flames soared from the basement into an unoccupied second floor apartment. Flames then raced upward through partitions into the dance

A Lament

The victim was a person of many qualities: He was active in many community activities.

He met with people.

He made them sing, and he sang with them.

He was vibrant.

He would sell his heart for 35 cents.

He loved romance, and a wooing couple—but he detested stags.

Music was his forte. He loved Joni James and Don Cornell.

As a host, his intimate parties and his resplendent blasts were equally magnificent.

He is gone . . . mourned by his constituency left alone in a cold, dry world.

A friend.

"Up in Lights"

We wait with anticipation.

The prize money for the book for the new senior show has been won, but the final prize will go to the student body. Based on the precedence of last spring, we are sure of our statement.

The precedence is the senior show of 1953, the spirit of "White Bucks and Tales" which lingers with us. That bit of college gayness set to music has won wide acclaim for the participants and the University . . . and won a page in our book of pleasant memories.

And now another light perks a glow on the horizon. It is the glow of another star wishing to flash across our academic skies. The fruition of that glow will be "Up in Lights."

In a little over three months the sketches on the drawing boards and the scribbled words between the carefully typed lines will bounce alive in color and song.

And for a few nights, but not too few we ask, the lights of Broadway will illumine our hinterland of education.

3 weeks of finals

What are you doing exam week?

If you're like many upperclassmen, the two weeks of exams will be a hiatus, a splendid holiday, which, coupled with the special four-day mid-year vacation, will surpass in length of time even the Christmas vacation.

Haven't you heard? We're all taking our finals this week.

In the past few years, the practice of giving exams during the last week of classes has become a popular one.

Perhaps, and there is much to be said in this matter, final examinations are not desirable.

Perhaps we condemn the pressure, the cramming, the sleepless nights.

Perhaps we need a new system.

But here we are, with a set of rules that says there shall be finals.

This two week exam period is designed to give the students time to review, to plan their studies and prepare for the exams.

One final this week we could manage, but some teachers do not realize that two or three other teachers are giving "finals" during that week.

Consequently, we are walking around this week in a daze.

If we are to continue taking exams during the last week of classes, let's call off the classes—and hold them during exam week.

TECHNICOLOR TV

RISE OF A 'FREAK' BY EVOLUTION

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

It is reasonably safe to say that color television has progressed a good distance from its "little brat" stages of development to a form of entertainment and information to be praised and not feared.

In the years to come, the new medium will lift itself even more from something short of a "freak" to a generally accepted item in Joe Smith's living room or at the corner refreshment center.

All this will come, as stated by General Electric's Dr. W. R. G. Baker in May 1953, an "evolution not a revolution."

The current situation finds 1954 as pretty much of an experimental year. But the ball has begun to bounce.

Approval of the NTSC color system by the Federal Communications commission came on the afternoon of December 17, 1953. Within an hour after the announcement, CBS was on the air with a variety show in color. NBC came scampering along shortly afterward. The entire development of network color telecasts has advanced at a slow pace since that time and will continue so for some time.

The networks are being restrained by the heavy cost involved and they will move on a plan of "feeling out" the public and sponsors as to their reactions. More and more shows will be presented in color for those who have sets.

The industry also has an enormous amount of kinks to iron out before the nation will be able to enjoy a brand of color reproduction comparable to present black and white images.

In the manufacturing line, the wheels will grind with equal hesitance. The first color sets are now on the market and production will swing gradually toward full-scale in late '54. Perhaps 200,000 receivers will be manufactured this year. The early price, quoted at $800-$1000 by the companies, may recede and probably will in the future but many experts, including those at Syracuse's Electronics Park, believe that the cost of a color set will always be higher than the black and white models.

On the local scene, color is expected to develop as follows . . . 1. transmission of network color shows. 2. transmission of slides and films and finally, 3. local shows in color. Network telecasts can be transmitted at a very small installation cost but due to the enormous prices of color cameras and other studio equipment, "live" local productions are far in the future.

It has been learned on good authority that one Syracuse station will begin transmitting color shows off the network within a month. This is on a very limited basis.

Having seen a lab demonstration of electronic's newest wonder, it would seem that color could not arrive too soon. Its amazing depth and shaping are equalled only by some of Hollywood's best technicolor. Downright amazing.

For this lofty new development of the communications industry cannot stand long as a "freak" of show business. Its eventual bloom will add an unimagined dimension to our leisure life.

Gad, Shades Of 1984!

Under the benevolence of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, "big brother" will be watching the residents of our noble state for some seven days. With the People's eyeball.

According to a proclamation from Albany, a week will be "Big Brother" week in New York state.

The chief executive stated that the big brother movement is the work of "compassionate men." He praised the big brother organizations for doing "a great volume of untold good to the lads whom they rescue from distress."

George Orwell had a word for it.

Gloom on the Quad

By MICHAEL BRAUN

It is now questionable whether we will ever arrive at the millineum. Gloom on the Quad at last is justified. Crying in the Chapel—and sobbing in Slocum are now all right. There is a valid reason for hysterics. Syracuse university's favorite watering place, has burned down and left a void in our hearts.

How can one be conscientious at a time like this? Is it possible to be objective towards something like this? Towards something that you needed, financially if not morally? 'Tis hard, gentle reader, 'tis very hard.

Our service is to the reader first—and ourselves last—(we are told). Present the true picture (they tell us). Who could possibly tell us more about our favorite oasis than Esther, beloved waitress extraordinaire. Gentle, kind, understanding Esther.

Tight little groups were gathered around the entrance to 721 South Crouse, the noble address which stood for fun, frolic and frivolity. They didn't look happy. It was like a wake.

Walking inside we peered down a stairway in back of the bar and saw Mr. Bloom the owner of the cafe. "Where does Esther (the very name brings back bittersweet memories) live, please?" we asked. Mr. Bloom, a short man who looked very worried told us and we were off.

He had told us that Esther was at home and she would be glad to talk to us. We were prepared for anything when the door opened. Our girl was on the threshold to greet us. She was clothed in what has been described as a lounging outfit. That is, Vogue has described it as one. Esther has gone them one better. She has turned it into an outfit that really lounges. Esther, we're kidding. The Levis were beautiful.

After offering us coffee, she started talking about the Orange which has been her habitat since 1946. We asked her when she had first found out about the catastrophe which took the light from our life. "Sunday," she said, "I came to work and there it was (or wasn't, we might say). It was a mess."

We asked Esther what she thought of the change of students in recent years. She was very vehement about this. "They were OK until this year. For some reason the new kids this year are very noisy and troublesome. I wish that the veterans were back. They knew how to act."

She lives with her sister and the latters three children. Every five minutes or so she was yelling at them much as she does at her place of work. Esther maintains, however, that in all the time she has been at the Orange there has never been a fight.

"Most of the kids are well behaved. They seem to realize that the Orange is a place to have fun and not be crazy. Ever since we installed the juke box they have concentrated on dancing." At this point one of the kids asked to show us a dance that he had learned, but our girl banished him to the kitchen.

"Yes," she continued, "some of the students even remember my birthday (Nov. 22). They send me all sorts of presents—and sometimes they even sing happy birthday to me." Esther did not mention how many candles were on her cake and we were gentlemenly enough not to ask.

Sitting across from Esther at the table, we visualized her in the black uniform that she always wears when she is working. She also owns a white one, and she promises to wear it complete with orange handkerchief when the cafe reopens.

We can hardly wait, Esther, we can hardly wait.

A Poem: Barriers

"Why, Oh Why Did They Put Up Those Fences?"

(To be sung to the tune of "Over the River and Thru the Woods.")

Over the bumps and through the muck
To dinner at Sims we go,
We once knew the way
But they change it each day
I wonder if even the architects know—

* * *

Down in the crevasses, up through the slush
For three "super" meals each day,
They keep putting up barriers
Don't know we're such tarriers
As walking through Slocum we go.

AT THE FLICKERS

A CASE OF ACTORS OVER PLOT

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

Performer's Holiday

On the screen of the State we have two exhibitions of performers giving more help to writers than writers have a right to expect.

Exhibit 1—"Give a Girl a Break."

Although this latest M.G.M. musical possesses one excellent production number and a pleasant score, it has a plot dealing with three girls vying for a part, which looks like three vignettes that somebody mistook for a finished product.

The story is so trivial that nobody, even in the film, pays much attention to it. But it serves as a backdrop in front of which some of Hollywood's best young musical comedy stars dish up the finest dancing you are likely to see for sometime.

For the balletomane, we have Helen Wood; for the tap-dance fan, we have Debbie Reynolds and Bob Fosse and for those who prefer clever specialty dancing, we have Marge and Gower Champion. They are all very young, very attractive, and very clever at making you forget they're not in a very good film. Also on hand is Kurt Kraszner, who performs, along with his fellows, as if he really had something to perform in.

The aforementioned plot (we have to call it something) at least has sense enough not to intrude itself too often. And when all else palls, the producers bring on a group of lovely young women to lull the male contingent of the audience into a state of submission. To keep the women happy, they have gowned the girls sumptuously. So there will probably be very little dissension in either camp.

Exhibit 2—"The Actress."

The film version of Ruth Gordon's staged memoirs "Years Ago," is a far sturdier item than the musical. However, as in the case of the former, first rate acting is responsible for the film's value.

Teresa Wright, as the mother of a daughter who longs for a stage career, has the least attractive part. By playing it with great swirl, however, she presents a character who is warm, without being sloppy and submissive withing being unimpressive.

Jean Simmons has the part of the young aspirant and it is to her credit that she avoids all the pitfalls of the role. She is not just a sweet, young, innocent, yearning for a life of glamour. She is a person with a cause. When she is thwarted, she rises to the situation with character and strength. Balance between the girl and the woman is the secret of her success and successful she is.

Next we come to Mr. Spencer Tracy, next we come to the thing for which the film will be remembered. Mr. Tracy's performance doesn't begin, it explodes, and the film is over before one realizes that one has witnessed a performance.

He doesn't create a character; he creates a human being. He creates a man who is blustering, coarse, insensitive, but also honest, devoted and warm.

IN THE HALLWAY

A Listing, Not Control

By ED HARDY

The organizations registration bill comes up for passage in the men's student government assembly again tonight.

It will be the second attempt for approval by MSG after the legislation came out of the organizations, rules and elections panel in December, but failed to get the OK of the entire assembly.

The bill went back into panel for further consideration and revision, but it's expected that the bill that comes onto the floor tomorrow night will be the exact one that went back in last month.

The reason? An apparent misunderstanding by the assembly as to the law's purpose.

Already passed by woman's student government, the rule would merely be a registration and listing of organizations on campus, not increased control, say student government officials.

When the bill came up at the last MSG meeting before Christmas vacation, the assembly engaged in debate over a phrase in it that excepts fraternities and sororities from registering. Then an amendment was approved that struck out the phrase. More debate suddenly arose over the question of secret parts of the Greek constitutions and another amendment was offered to exclude these parts. At this point panel chairman Robert Garver asked for return of the bill to panel.

MSG officials point out the values of the bill. They have already had many requests for a complete listing of student organizations and the registration would make things a lot easier for them in their contacts with these groups. It would also enable them to find out what organizations are no longer existent.

Included in registration would be the group's complete name, address, officers, phone, advisor, purpose, national ties, membership figures and requirements, services and meeting time. A copy of constitution and annual budget would also be required. The information would be submitted yearly, with any changes reported within 30 days to student government.

MSG officials contemplate little trouble with the bill's enactment if it is passed. And definitely not as much trouble as in 1940 when a similar measure was tried, but 28 organizations refused to register. Thus such groups as Boar's Head, Student Union and Eta Pi Upsilon failed for the second time to be recognized by student government.

A Final at 8 o'clock?

No sleep. Crack books until two in the early. Where's the coffee? No sleep. Stumble to Maxwell at 8. Sleep in class. Catch hell. Sleep anyway. Back to dorm. Where's my English textbook? Columbus was found in 1492—or was it 1942? Who found him? The Chaldeans were prehistoric apes—or did they play for Chatanooga in the '38 series? Who was Gesundheit the Magnificent? An ancient bookmaker? A German sneeze? Did he run in the third at Saratoga—or was it Garden State? No sleep. Who's got the "No Doze"? Where am I? Lift that barge, tote that bale. Who was Cholly Hasenmayer—the last president? Point me toward the door, I'm going out for some air. No sleep. Where's the coffee? Who are you? Oh, my roommate. How have you been? Make mine black with two lumps of sugar. No sleep. Is Constantinople near Istanbul? Do they have a Democratic mayor there? The Four Lads, you say? That's funny. Where's the coffee? Who am I? Don't tell me, I'd forget anyway. I'm tired. Can't understand it. Where's the coffee?

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

The Orange basketeers began the second half of the season Saturday night. That's the best which can be said for the Guleymen's most unimpressive win of the year over a hapless Pittsburgh quintet.

Maybe, as one account suggested, it was the caliber of Panther play. By no stretch of the imagination could Pittsburgh, who effectively dropped their seventh straight start, be considered a top competitor.

However, poor as the opposition was, Syracuse passing was sloppy, rebounding proved ineffective, shooting was way off and the impression given was one of a practice scrimmage.

Nevertheless, the Orangemen did show brief flashes of brilliance. Once the passing attack clicked, rebounding, field goals and good basketball seemed to follow naturally.

One such teamwork play stands out in our mind. Manny Breland had wrestled his Panther opponent into a jump ball early in the second half. As the ball was flipped up by the referee, Manny deftly tipped it to Ron Kilpatrick.

Ronnie faked his man out of position and whipped the ball to Mel Besdin under the basket. Besdin, needless to say, didn't miss the easy layup.

Andy Mogish's freshmen, by contrast, looked good in their third straight win of the year. Andy has been experimenting with his starting lineup for the past three games, but after the General Electric tilt, he probably has a much better idea for his top five.

Jim Brown, who hasn't broken into the scoring column in any spectacular fashion previously, was the third high scorer with 14 points. For the past three years, Brown has been burning up Long Island high school hoop circles.

On at least two occasions while playing for Manhasset High he swished 40 or more points through the hoop. The fact that he didn't see too much action up until Saturday night might be some indication of the type of players representing the class of 1957.

This year's contingent will still have some to go to beat last year's frosh record of 12-1. We wouldn't want to bet against the '57 boys however. They might make it.

* * * * *

Wrestling Coach Joe McDaniel's youth movement proved to be a mild success Saturday afternoon although he still had to rely upon the veterans to insure his opening season win.

Out of the eight matches against Cortland, five were represented by sophomores. Both yearlings Jim Rose and Hank Bianowitz looked especially good in taking their first varsity wins.

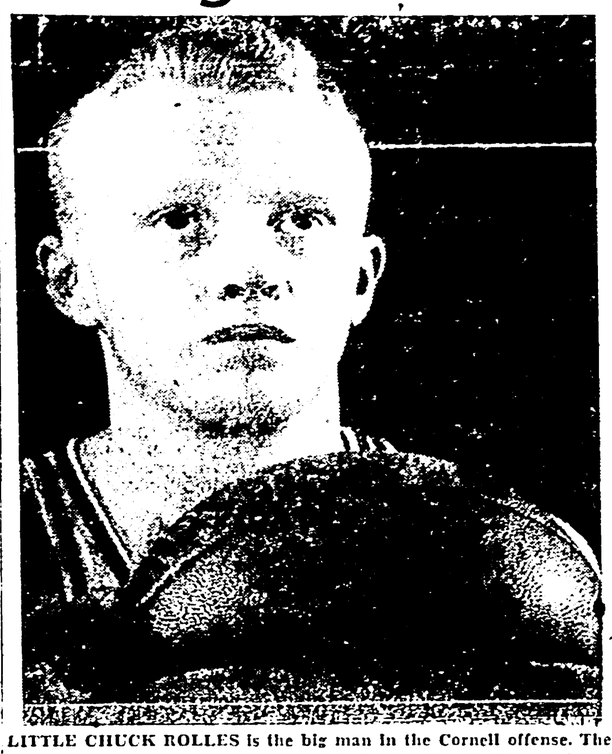
The two did not allow their respective opponents to gain even one point. While Bianowitz was competing, someone asked McDaniel if the boy was a good wrestler. Joe replied, "Fair." Nearby Doc Hugo upon hearing that commented, "Joe never had a good wrestler. The best ones are fair."

By far the most exciting match was the Garland Harris-Hal Mahoney struggle. Co-Captain Ed Rooney did his usual competent job and received his usual nose bleed in besting Dick Lee. It was his second win over Lee this year, the first coming in the Wilkes-Barre tourney.

The usual mild-mannered McDaniel is a real study in emotion at a meet. During the Harris bout, Joe looked as if he himself was wrestling Mahoney. His entire body was tense.

Instructions were said half to himself, "That's the old guts in there, Garland. C'mon." Only when the three minutes round was up did Joe relax. It was a tough meet and tough on the coach, too.

Strong Cornell Next for Cagers



LITTLE CHUCK ROLLES is the big man in the Cornell offense. The 5 ft.-6 watch-charm guard has been hitting on close to 48 per cent of his shots from the floor and his fine ball handling and defensive skill make him one of the best small men in the nation.

Fresh from Saturday night's 80-65 victory over Pitt's Panthers, the Orange hoop squad went through their practice paces yesterday afternoon in preparation for tomorrow's home clash against the Big Red of Cornell.

The second meeting of the two rivals should prove one of the most attractive clashes of Syracuse's home schedule. The highly-rated Ithacans will be striving to reverse their only loss of the season, a 81-77 setback to the Pietymen during the Christmas vacation.

CORNELL HAS won eight straight contests, discounting the upset win by the Orange quintet, to pull into the national spotlight and take the favored spot in the Ivy league race. Veteran co-Capt. Lee Morton and sophomore backcourtman Chuck Rolles have led the Big Red's attack so far. Rolles accounted for 31 markers in the last meeting of the two schools.

Syracuse's chances for another win over their neighboring opponents were dealt a rough blow with the injury to star rebounder, Dave Kline. The 6 ft.-5 center saw limited action in the Pitt contest but was visibly slowed down because of the cast on his wrist.

Guley will probably open with the same five courtmen who started Saturday's clash. Ron Gillespie whose shooting was off, played his normal fine rebounding game and will again be at forward along with Manny "Boob" Breland.

THE THREE high scorers in the Orange's seventh win against the Steel City five, Ron Kilpatrick, Capt. Mel Besdin and Jack Larned will round out the starting aggregation. Besdin connected for 20 points in the win with Kilpatrick and Larned each adding 18 markers.

LEFTOVERS: Saturday's seventh win for the Orange matched last season's victory total . . . Next game for Marc Guley's five and the last clash before exams will be against highly-rated Fordham, Saturday night . . . Syracuse leads in the series against Cornell with 39 wins against 15 defeats . . . Cornell's most recent win was against Brown, Saturday night . . . Greene is in his eighth season as head mentor for the Ithacans . . . Morton led the Cornell scorers last season with 414 points, 18 per encounter . . . This will be the first game away from their own Barton hall for the visitors.

Matmen Win 17-11, Prepare for Temple

Coach Joe McDaniel has his charges back at work today following Saturday's 17-11 triumph over Cortland State at Archbold gymnasium. In the preceeding event the Cortland yearlings trounced Syracuse's frosh aggregation, 27-10.

The wrestlers have one more match slated for this term. They meet the Temple Owls at Archbold this Saturday in the second home meet of the season.

When sophomore Tom King came from behind to decision Frank Ottley 4-2 and put the Orange out in front 6-3, the Piety grapplers got a lead which they never lost.

Both King and Ottley had two points on take-downs but King received two points time advantage and the bout.

In the 157-pound division, Harold Mahoney came from a 6-5 point deficit to pin Garland Harris of Syracuse at the one minute mark of the third period.

The next match saw co-Capt. Ed Rooney outpoint Dick Lee of Cortland, 8-4. One of the better matmen on the teacher's squad, Lee made Rooney work hard for his victory.

SYRACUSE CLINCHED the match when Hank Gobetz pinned Al Chase with one minute left in the third period. Gobetz was undefeated in dual meet competition last season.

With Syracuse leading 17-8, 260-pound John Beecher of Cortland decisioned George Finck to make the final score 17-11 in favor of Syracuse.

Undefeated Frosh to Meet Big Red Cubs Wednesday

Coach Andy Mogish's team kept its record clean Saturday by outscoring General Electric's rugged five, 84-72, in the preliminary contest to the Orange-Pitt game. The Tangerines led the GE squad almost all the way and held a halftime advantage of 42-32.

Vinnie Cohen, 6 ft.-1 jumping-jack, once again headed the cub scoring with 22 points. Rangy Gary Clark, 6 ft.-4, collected 16 and Jim Brown 14 in the victory.

The Cornell game will be the first meeting between the two squads this season. The frosh had a holiday and did not accompany the varsity to Ithaca for the vacation period contest with the Big Red. Syracuse will journey to the Cornell campus on March 1 for the return game in the home and home series.

Orange Fencers Win First Match

Captain John Goldstein and Willie Schop led the Orange fencers to their initial victory of the season in Archbold gymnasium last Saturday afternoon. Goldstein with five straight wins and Schop with three showed their teammates the way as a strong Syracuse combine defeated St. Lawrence 15-12.

The outcome of the match was in doubt until the final round of the epee contests.

ROTC Seniors Hear Military Team Talks

In connection with their studies of the military team, Army ROTC seniors have heard a number of guest speakers during recent classes, explaining the function of various military services in the coordinated military effort.

Dean Smith was a Marine artillery commander during the last war and participated in five major landings, among them those at Tarawa, Okinawa and Saipan.

Lt. Col. William C. Dineen, the commander of the 249th National Guard Field Artillery Batallion in Syracuse, spoke to the Army cadets early in December on "The Artillery Role in the Military Team." During world war II, Col. Dineen served as an artillery commander with the 27th and 1st Infantry divisions.

"The Role of Air Power in the Military Team" was the subject of a talk by Col. Robert P. Halloran, USAF, professor of air science and tactics of the Air Force ROTC at Syracuse.

Col. Halloran served with the 8th Air Force in North Africa and England during world war II and was air attache to India in 1949 and 1950. Since 1950 he was headed the Air Force ROTC staff at Syracuse.

Much of the world-wide popularity of the Pops stem from the program building ability of Fiedler, who not only leads his orchestra in the standard classical works, but also marches, waltzes, ballet music and arrangements of the latest popular tunes in his programs.

Included in the Pop's program will be "Fire Dance," "Pomp and Circumstance," "Blue Tango," "Sleigh Ride," and "Fiddle Faddle" from the LeRoy Anderson library as well as "Prelude to Lohengrin," "Swan Lake" and the "Warsaw Concerto."

Also slated for a Famous Artist's appearance in the near future is Miss Yma Sumac, who will present a concert on Saturday, Feb. 6 in Loncoln auditorium.

TERMED "THE most sensational voice of the century," Miss Sumac will appear with a company of singers and dancers. Her amazing five-octave voice, ranging from a deep contralto to a clear coloratura, has received wide acclaimn wherever she has sung.

Campus Chest Work Ends When Spring Drive Begins

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Campus Chest week, Feb. 22-March 3 will culminate months of work for 35 committee chairmen and hundreds of committee members. In that one collection week, all the efforts will be rewarded or rebuked depending on the result of the drive.

BACK IN October when most students weren't even thinking of the forthcoming drive, the overall chairmen held their first meeting with committee chairmen and laid plans for the future drive. It was then that the annual Feather and Tag days first reached the skeletal stage and the new pep rally was originated.

Ideas for more effective canvassing of students and other promotional schemes developed as the meetings progressed and by Thanksgiving vacation, the ideas had begun to take form.

The organization works under pressure of time and money. Deadlines had to be met for pamphlets and handbooks which publicize the drive. The chairmen had to keep their eye on the finances and keep within their $400 budget.

In an effort to coordinate the entire organization, office hours were held by each committee where other Campus Chest members could contact them to discuss and work out various problems. Although the office was in room 101 of the Castle, a long walk for most members, very few office hours were missed.

AN EXECUTIVE council was named early in the year with the chairman of publicity, Feather Day and Speaker's bureau meeting with the co-chairmen, executive secretary and treasurer to formulate policy. Everyone realized that as the only legal fund-soliciting drive on campus, Campus Chest has to promote their name along with their purpose.

Actual student realization of the efforts of Campus Chest will begin Monday, Feb. 15 when the Speaker's Bureau begins its campaign to inform the University what Campus Chest is and what its collections go to.

Then, the next week will find the beginning of the yearly drive. That week will tell whether the numerous hours of work by Campus Chest members has been worthwhile.

As usual, Syracuse's drive is in competition with Colgate. If Syracuse wins this year, it will be one way of letting workers know their work was successful.

Although flames did not break through the roof, smoke was so thick firefighters were forced to wear gas masks. Police arson investigator Cornelius Cook said a false ceiling contributed to the rapid spread of the flames.

Bloom, the proprietor, Richard Kernan, bartender, and "Red" Russell, a porter, were the only people in the building when flames broke out. Firemen from 10 companies arrived after the first alarm at 12:40 p.m. District Chief Ernest Goebel sounded the 2-2 alarm when the blaze appeared out of control.

Formerly a house the building has grown with several additions. Storage and kitchen space was attached at the rear and a barrom on the front. When students returned to campus this fall, they found the "O" had a face lifting during the summer, with a new side entrance added.

Stanford Professor Speaks Here Today

Dr. Paul R. Hanna, professor of education at Stanford university, will speak at 8 p.m. today on "Point Four and American Education" in Maxwell auditorium.

Dr. Hanna's lecture is sponsored by Phi Delta Kappa, Pi Lambda Theta, and Kappa Phi Kappa, education fraternities at the university.

A graduate of Hamline university and Columbia university, Dr. Hanna has taught at Stanford since 1935.

Mechanical, electrical, civil, aeronautical—in fact, graduates in virtually every field of engineering—find rewarding career opportunities here. There are openings in design, research, in the many phases of production, and for physicists and mathematicians with advanced degrees.

All engineering careers at Boeing have one thing in common: they provide plenty of opportunity to get ahead. Regular merit reviews are held. Advancement is keyed to your individual ability, application and initiative.

The aviation industry offers you a unique opportunity to gain experience with new techniques and new materials. It offers a wide range of application, from applied research, to product design and production, all going on at the same time.

What's more, you can expect long-term career stability in the aviation industry. Boeing, for instance, is now in its 37th year of operation, and actually employs more engineers today than even at the peak of World War II. Besides designing and building the world's most advanced multi-jet aircraft (the B-47 and B-52), Boeing conducts one of the nation's major guided missile programs, and such other projects as research on supersonic flight, and nuclear power for aircraft.

Boeing engineering activity is concentrated at Seattle, Washington, and Wichita, Kansas—communities with a wide variety of recreational opportunities as well as schools of higher learning. The Company will arrange a reduced work week to permit time for graduate study and will reimburse tuition upon successful completion of each quarter's work.

Twenty-five thousand dollars in cash and a $100,000 scholarship fund has been bequeathed to Syracuse university by Mrs. Clara Burdette, 98, the oldest Syracuse graduate. Mrs. Burdette died last week at her home in Pasadena, Calif.

According to the terms of her will, Mrs. Burdette gave $125,000 of her million dollar estate to Syracuse, and $100,000 to each of four granddaughters. The will was filed in probate Monday.

UNIVERSITY officials were not available for comment on what would be done with the $25,000 cash. In the past, however, such grants have gone for general purposes, instruction and services of the university.

Further information was not available on what type of scholarships the $100,000 fund will be used for. University officials indicated that this information may be revealed later in the week.

Mrs. Burdette graduated from Syracuse in 1876 with a BA degree. She became a member of the board of trustees in June, 1917, and served for a time as one of its vice-presidents. She was made a life member of the group last year.

The "oldest grad" was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and received a doctor of aws degree from Syracuse in 1926. She was widely known as a writer, lecturer, teacher and business woman.

CONSIDERED ONE of California's most important citizens, Mrs. Burdette's life and works have been the subject of stories appearing in magazines and newspapers throughout the nation.

Piskor Announces Book Mart Gift

Group Donates $400 To Special Fund

The Student Co-operative Book mart has contributed $400 to the Book Mart Endowment fund, Dean Frank P. Piskor, vice-president and dean of student services, announced today.

The $400 gift increased the total endowment to the mart to $1,-171.04. The fund is set up to help needy students get cash for books.

In acknowledging the receipt of the contribution, Dean Piskor said that the contributions of the book mart represent "the kind of student interest at Syracuse university which bodes well for the future."

The book mart will open the first day of registration, according to Jean Spencer, retiring president of the book mart. No place has been announced yet.

The news officers this year include: president, Betsy Pritchard; treasurer, Inez Schneider; publicity manager, Richard Engle; and business manager, Marcie Damiecki.

France to Award Full Scholarships

Graduating seniors and other students holding degrees from an American university are eligible for scholarships, fellowships and assistantships being awarded by the French government.

The 40 teaching assistantships require that the winner teach conversational English for 12 hours a week in French secondary schools. These positions provide payment of living and incidental expenses and are intended primarily for future teachers of French.

Thirty-five graduate fellowships are also available. They provide a sufficient amount to pay living expenses in addition to free tuition. The fellowships are open to students in all fields of study.

Students holding degrees in music or art are eligible for a $1000 scholarship which will cover room, board and tuition.

Applicants should have a working knowledge of French, good moral character, personality and adaptability.

The health of the applicant will also be considered and only single persons under 35 years of age will be accepted for the music and art scholarships.

Applications are due February 1, 1954. Students wishing further information should contact Earle W. Clifford in the Dean of Men's office.

Candidates Selected For Skytop Elections

Which will it be, the "Beer party" or the "Party party?" The men from Skytop will have a chance to decide the ruling slate when they conduct their election tomorrow.

Tired of their non-campus like life, the Hill M'ers began this regime project. Under the guidance of Joseph Easton, M-3, the election and campaign are being conducted in an orderly and legal fashion.

THE LIST of candidates was drawn up at a meeting to which each dorm (ten in all) was invited to send two representatives, 14 appeared. The 14 reps created seven posts, with two of the reps running for each post. They divided into the two mentioned parties.

The Beer party nominated the following: Burt Gomory, M-5; Vito posts: Burt Gomory, M-5; Vito Bleckman, M-10; John Raffaele, M-5; Robert Cochs, M-6; Stephen Lazzo, M-10; Richard Williams M-3; and Stanley Holland, M-4.

The Party party slated the following: Norman Haddad, M-9; Neils Poulsen, M-9; Frederick Wurzburger, M-8; and George Winston, M-7.

THE CANDIDATES have been conducting individual campaigns in Sims dining hall and at Skytop.

According to Easton, the election is a purely social project and is completely divorced from the University. He stated that it is similar to the recent Mayor-of-Marshall-street gag.

After the elections, the officers will not have any real duties to perform.

The ballotting, however, will be conducted in a serious manner. It will be held tomorrow from noon to 10 p.m. Each Skytopper may hand in his vote which may be a straight or split ticket to his resident advisor, who will be responsible for the legality and the counting of the votes. The resident advisors will then meet for the final counting and will announce the winners.

Barr Applications Due in February

Applications for the Walter S. Barr fellowships, totaling $5,000, are due Feb. 1. The grants are open only to residents of Hampden county, Mass. Awards are usually of not less than $1,000 each and are given to students who look forward to careers of "definite social usefulness," such as politics, social research, teaching and the ministry.

School of Speech Leads in Degrees

Syracuse university's School of Speech granted more bachelor degrees than any other speech school in New York state, according to a survey conducted by the "Quarterly Journal of Speech."

Syracuse topped New York state schools such as New York university, Brooklyn, Hunter and Ithaca. The school here was rated sixth out of 25 leading institutions in total number of speech degrees awarded.

New York state was third in the nation in the number of bachelors degrees in speech, outranked by Illinois, first, and California, second.

Short Story Course Offered Next Term

Prof. Robert Root announced that the second semester of the commercial short story course will be offered in this spring semester.

It is open to students who took the first semester a year ago, last summer, or who are taking it now, as well as students in MP 160. The course is also open to students who did not take the first semester but who can show special qualifications.

The course work concentrates on saleable short stories for all types of magazines. Purely "creative" writings will not be covered.

Yma Sumac to Give Lincoln Auditorium Concert Program

Ancient Inca Music, Andean Drummers Highlight Performance

One of the most unusual attractions in the musical world today, the five-octave voice of Yma Sumac, will be heard for the first time in Syracuse on Saturday evening, Feb. 6, in Lincoln auditorium.

The Famous Artist's concert will feature Miss Sumac and a company of singers, Andean drummers, and dancers. The program will highlight original music composed on ancient Inca themes by Moises Vivanco, noted authority in this field.

Yma Sumac, a comparatively new artist in this country, was discovered in her native Peru at the age of 14 by researchist Vivanco. A direct descendant of the last great Inca king, Atahualpa, Miss Sumac was known to the Indians of the Andes mountains as "Daughter of the Suns."

Embarking on a concert tour when she reached this country, Miss Sumac and Vivanco brought listening America a new brand of music and the young singer's talent was recognized in a series of theater, concert and night club engagements. Her first record album, "Voice of Xtabay" was a best seller and her second, "Legend of the Sun Virgin," received similar acceptance.

During a recent tour of Peru and Venezuela, Yma was given a status which was described as "approaching deification because her voice reflects all that is dear to her people."

Miss Sumac's voice, ranging from a deep contralto to a coloratura, has been acclaimed by music critics across the nation. Among these is the reaction of the New York Times which said . . . "There is no voice like it in the world of music today. Such voices happen only once in a generation."

MSG Assembly Approves Registration, Parties Acts

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Two controversial bills—the organizations registration and the political parties acts—finally received approval from the men's student government assembly last night.

The registration act was OK'd by a unanimous vote and student government officials immediately announced that registration will be held for every student organization, with the exception of fraternities and sororities, from Feb. 4 to 12. The act had been passed by women's student government last month.

FORMS WILL be available in Archbold gymnasium at registration time Feb. 4, 5 and 6 and at the MSG and WSG offices. The president of the group should fill out the form and return it.

An open split between independents and fraternity men once again developed on the floor of the assembly when the much-debated political parties act came up for discussion.

In all respects but one it was the same bill that had caused heated argument last spring, but was tabled after independents and Greeks had engaged in a political tug-of-war over it in the legislative body of MSG.

Last night, however, a 13-7 vote of the 29-man assembly approved the act, including the disputed section which states, "A candidate may be endorsed only once: i.e., his name may appear only once on the election ballot."

THE BILL itself clarifies the position of political parties on campus and provides for posting of a $25 bond with civil service by each party. The bill as presented nearly a year ago had specified $50, but a joint MSG-WSG panel felt it feasible to lower the sum, Chairman Robert Garver said.

Roger Herz had proposed that the one endorsement phrase be dropped from the bill, but the assembly voted down his amendment. Herz called the restriction "undemocratic" and "discriminatory against small political parties."

In other action, the assembly accepted the constitution of United World Federalists at Syracuse university and put two proposals into panel.

The ways and means panel received a resolution by Speaker Pro Tem Arthur Kinney to investigate the possibility of a foreign student guides program for male students similar to the one in effect under WSG. Richard Koelling's proposed amendment to the assembly elections act, which would allow class legislatures to fill MSG assembly vacancies, went to the organizations, rules and elections panel.

Cornell Cagers to Seek Revenge Against Orangemen in Archbold

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Cornell's Ivy league-leaders visit Archbold gym tonight at 8:30 p.m. seeking revenge for their only loss of the season. The Red from Ithaca has racked up eight victories against a single defeat, the 81-77 overtime loss to Syracuse two weeks ago, and is yearning to atone for its only reversal.

The charge from Lake Cayuga will be led by Co-capts. Lee Morton and Dave Bradfield with an able assist from "wee-little" Chuck Rolles, the not-so-little scoring star from Binghamton.

ROLLES, ABOUT the hottest thing to hit Central New York hardwoods since "Bullet Bill" Gabor cavorted for Bill Orange, is leading Cornell in point-making with a 15.6 average. The 5 foot-6 soph hit for 31 points in the loss to Syracuse.

Morton, 6 foot-2 scoring ace from Rochester, and Bradfield, native Ithacan with the deadly set shot, will work in backcourt with Rolles. Jack Sheehy, the team's leading rebounder and third-high scorer last season, will man one of the pivots in Coach Roy Greene's double-pivot attack, with either senior Wendy MacPhee or soph Ray Zelek at the other post.

Top Cornell reserves are guard Don Jacobs, and forward Henry Buncom.

Syracuse will probably start the same quintet that whipped Pittsburgh last Saturday: Capt. Mel Besdin, Ron Gillespie, Ronnie Kilpatrick, Jack Larned and Manny Breland.

THE ORANGE will be minus one of its stars from the previous meeting, big Dave Kline, who gathered 14 points and 18 rebounds in the Barton hall contest. The 6 foot-5 center broke his wrist late in that encounter and has seen only limited action since.

Tonight's contest will be the first road battle of the campaign for Cornell. The Red defeated Hobart, Clarkson, Colgate, Harvard, Yale, Navy, Columbia and Brown at home to launch the season.

The Syracuse frosh will meet the Little Red in a preliminary game starting at 6:30 p.m.

The probable varsity lineups:

Rolles	G	Larned
Bradfield	G	Breland

Contestants Vie For Title Tonight

An Empress will be selected tonight at Maxwell auditorium in the first Winter weekend Empress contest which replaces the former queen contests. Approximately 50 girls will vie for the title with five finalists to be named tonight and the winner selected, but not announced until the Friday, Feb. 12 edition of The Daily Orange.

Deadline for applications for the contest has been extended until 2 p.m. today, according to contest chairman Michael Schaffer, who urges that every sorority and living center submit at least one entrant. There is no limit on the number of entrants by any group.

APPLICATIONS, including the name, address and phone number must be turned into Schaffer, Zeta Beta Tau, 805 Ostrom ave. along with the $1 entrance fee.

Judges for the contest, which will begin at 7 p.m., are Miss Peg Cram, Herald-Journal reporter, Jack Slattery, Herald-Journal sports columnist, Miss Margaret Parker, University social director and Mrs. Mary Verbeck, fashion designer for the Addis company.

Selection of the empress will be based on a nine point basis: three points for attractiveness in winter outdoor costumes, three for beauty and three for poise and personality.

All contesants are requested to meet the contest chairman at 6:30 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium. Required dress is ski pants and either a ski jacket or sweater. Other winter apparel is optional.

WILLIAM ANGELOS will be master of ceremonies for the contest and intermission entertainment will be provided by the Fiji Four composed of Stuart Parker, Dennis Kless, Phillip Huttar and Deane Brink.

The empress will be crowned on Friday, Feb. 12 at the Winter Weekend Ice Pageant and will be recrowned at the Snoball dance the following night. She will reign over the activities of the entire weekend.

All finalists, in addition to the empress, will receive prizes from local merchants. They will also make appearances on radio and TV shows and will be pictured in local newspapers. Last year's queen was Virginia Amram.

Predictions Caput; 15 Degrees Colder

An angry chief weatherman Andrew Keller came to work yesterday morning.

The morning newspapers (including The Daily Orange) had predicted a low of 10 below for last night. Morning newscasts on the radio, however, told listeners that the temperature would be a relatively milder 5 above.

The discrepancy, so Keller found when he came to work, occurred during the night when his assistant made some bad prognostications and handed out the wrong forecast.

The warmer prediction was quickly corrected and once again Syracusans began to shiver as they heard what last night's mercury reading would be.

It all goes to show, though, that even the weatherman can be wrong.

Frosh Weekend Titles Accepted

A suggestion box will be on display in Sims dining hall starting this morning to receive all titles for freshman weekend to be held March 12-14. All names must tie in with the theme of a trip to "Outer Space."

Members of the executive council will accept applications for co-chairmen of the weekend up until 6:30 p.m. tomorrow. Applicants must state ideas and previous experience.

January Syracusan On Sale Today

Inside the bright yellow cover of the January Syracusan, which goes on sale all over campus today, is the annual Exchange Issue, a collection of the best material from college magazines from all across the country.

Today's edition, the second of the Syracusan's new "Jumbo" thirty-six page issues, has ten pages of cartoons, five pages of college jokes, and seven humor features from the Harvard Lampoon, the Washington Columns, the Texas Ranger, and over a dozen other college humor monthlys.

Education Fails Role Says Chancellor

Higher education in this country fails to fully appreciate its new role as cultural leader of the world, Chancellor William P. Tolley declared in Cincinnati Monday.

Although American colleges should be leading our culture, they are failing to reflect it, he said.

"If American colleges have a weakness, it is that they are too servile to society, a weakness brought about by one of their strengths — their extraordinary flexibility that allows them to take changes in their stride."

Tolley asserted that "we sense responsibility in military power and economic leadership but we do not yet have a like responsibility along cultural lines."

Advisers Needed For Male Dorms

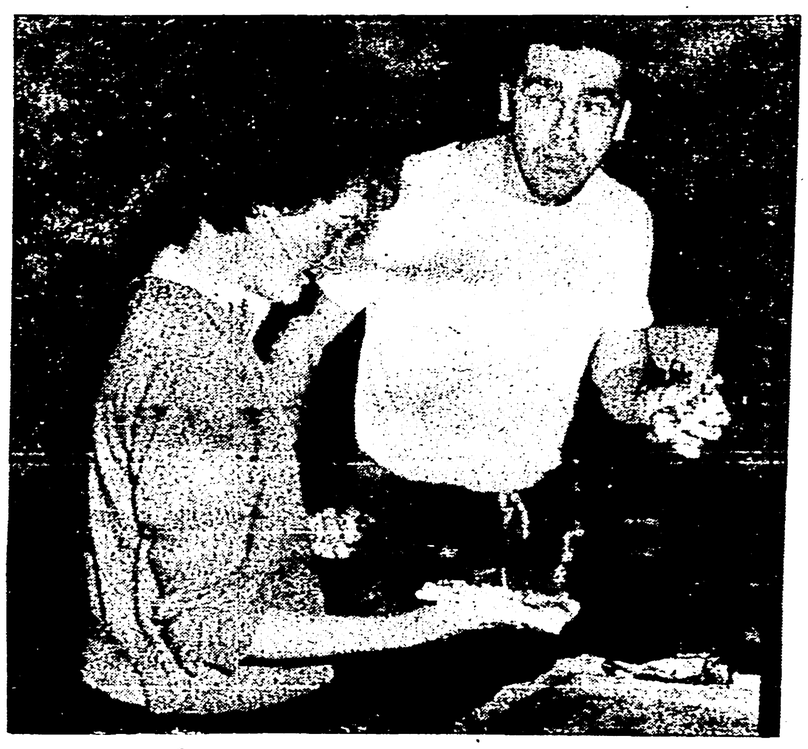
Applications for positions as resident advisor for the coming academic year are now being accepted in the office of the dean of men, James Carleton, assistant to the dean of men, announced yesterday.

Applicants must be single men who have completed, or will complete before their appointment would take effect, a college course leading to a bachelor' sdegree.

Scholarship is expected to be above average, and applicants should have variety in activities. Appointments are for one academic year. Renumeration is in the form of room; room and board; or room board and a nine-hour tuition scholarship.

Applications should be completed by March 1. Appointments will be made beginning April 1.

Pizza Panic Time



EITHER HUBERT BASSETT is attracted to CONNIE DEVLIN or else he just doesn't like pizza. The pies were served at a Pepsi and Pizza party given by Beta Theta Pi last week. All the pizza you can eat was the advertisement, and the Betas made the Italian conversation dish by themselves, from dough up. Jimmy Cavallo and his band entertained more than 200 guests.

An intellect

What is the cultural climate at Syracuse?

Campus Leaders met at Dean Piskor's home last night and delved into our collegiate atmosphere.

Discussion centered around lack of interest by most students in so-called "cultural pursuits." The group concluded that better student-faculty relations is a key to encouraging students to take the classroom back to their dorms, Marshall st. booths and bull-sessions.

We felt quite optimistic as we walked down Ostrom ave. shortly after.

There is no dearth of culture at Syracuse university.

There is, perhaps, the noticeable reluctance on the part of perhaps an engineer, to get enthused in a discussion of the Nicomachean Ethics.

There is perhaps a large sector of the student body that refuses to be spoon-fed the four movements of the Eroica.

Certainly through informal get-togethers and through survey courses, we can expose students to pursuits they may eventually become interested in.

If this is done, the student will be free to pursue what interests him.

The well-rounded individual is the one who is free to develop his own interests and expanding them.

Culture, it seems, is in the marketplace, along with all our other activities.

Study tips?

Now is the time for all good students to come to the aid . . . of themselves, by hitting those books. Here is some last minute advice offered by the Oregon State Daily on studying.

"Make yourself comfortable when you study. If, possible, draw up an easy chair by the window so you won't miss anything going on outside.

"Have a few friends handy during the study period so you can chat when the work becomes dull.

"Keep your study interesting by placing photographs, magazines, goldfish bowls, games and other recreational devices all around while you're studying."

By now you've guessed that these are humorous examples of what NOT to do in preparing for finals, although a good many students may unwittingly follow them.

"Review only the night before the examination, and confine this to trying to guess what the teacher will ask.

"Find out exactly when the final examination will be over so you can plan to forget everything about the course at that moment.

"Stay up all night before examinations. You can spend the first half of the evening discussing your determination to 'bone' and the latter half drinking coffee."

To help you for next semester, we present these final words of sage advice:

"Enter the course as late as possible. By changing your mind several times you should be able to avoid classes until the second or third week.

"Don't bother with a textbook.

"Avoid bothering with notebooks. If you plan to use one anyhow, so that you can draw pictures of airplanes, keep all the notes for a given day on the same sheet of paper."

HEARING AIDS

LETTER TO YOUNGSTER IN VOICE

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

Dear Bridget:

I am dispatching a somewhat restrained reply to your recent inquiry to this desk.

The recording which you enclosed in the letter is very fine but plainly, my dear, I do not remotely approach the position of being able to pass judgement as to whether or not you would, as you so nicely put it, "sound pretty on records."

Your voice has, to say the least, its unusual aspects, which is definitely a point to your favor in this age of new sounds, but since you are but seven years old, it seems that your vocal chords will be doing plenty of gymnastics in the next few years and it would be very difficult to render an opinion as to your final singing potential.

If you do not consider me too blunt (and I'm sure your mommy will take me to task), Bridget, the sagist council I can offer at this time is to forsake a career as a juvenile vocalist and stick to the mud pieces and Uncle Wiggley stories for a bit. I'm certain that your folks wouldn't want to trade their happy little daughter for a throaty, gilted, old dame-type singer for all the dough this side of Aga Kahn.

This whole rush of juvenile fools into the music and record field today is mainly the fault of the dotting parents eager to shove junior or young Goldilocks into the limelight and increase the pile under the matress several fold.

This has been true since the early days when Mrs. Temple wheeled a reluctant Shirley to the M-G-M lot, or when Judy Garland's cradle cries were captured on wax. It has flourished through a series of Quiz Kids, Juvenile Juries, Ted Macks, Horace Hiedts and the like.

I suspect the current seige of child prodigies began when "Sugar Child" Robinson was dropped forceably upon a Steinway. While "Sugar" has grown a beard, the craze now continues with Jimmy Boyd, Brucie Wield, Molly Bee, Mortimer Snerd and who knows what all assortment of freckles and pigtails.

It is my frank opinion that there is no room for them in music today.

Perhaps kids enjoy hearing other kids sing or croon away on a melody but I hardly think so. It appears very clear that little or no enjoyment can be evolved from hearing someone's young brat squeek and scream through a tune while a few of the grown-up sellers have all they can do to balance the budget and keep on the sunny side of a million records.

No matter how favorable it may seem to some, I'm all for leaving the kids to their Tinker Toys and waiting until their voices and emotions have settled down before they bow into show business. I'm sure even Jimmy Boyd's mom might agree when she considers all the boyish delights that her lad is missing with his long and lonely nights at the recording studios.

No, Bridget, I say stick to home a bit longer.

I hope that after you have considered this advice you will decide to abandon a singing career completely. There is a great need in this country for nice wives to make nice husbands happy and a very minor shortage of guys and gals with an eye on the moon who must rely on a little thing like a vocal chord to find a very big thing like success.

Sincerely,

Dick Case

Just Why Isn't It Constantinople?

By ANDRA KADILIS

Who hasn't heard the song "It's Istanbul, not Constantinople"? I certainly have, and to tell you the truth, a little too much. But always while listening to the song, I couldn't help, but wonder, why was the name really changed. Well, the other day Edip Ozturk told me the whole story.

Once upon a time there lived a great ruler and monarch, Constantin of Byzantin. During his rule the most beautiful and important city of Turkey was built and naturally named after him. But then after some time, Constantinople was conquered by the great Sultan Mehmed II. He, of course, could not live in a city named after a man who was not Turkish, so he called Constantinople, Istanbul.

As you might have guessed by now, Edip Ozturk comes from Turkey, and has been here six months. Edip studies at the College of Forestry, after having graduated from the forestry department at the University of Istanbul. For the studies here at Syracuse, Edip and three others were chosen by the Turkish government, out of more than 50 persons that applied for this scholarship.

Edip only complains about the American testing system, where there are so many questions that you only have to answer with yes or no. Edip wants to acquire as many modern methods and techniques for the utilization of forests as possible since that is one of the main problems of the Turkish agricultural policy.

Edip says, that even though a republic has been established in Turkey and modern and democratic ways introduced, Turkey still has preserved a lot of their old customs and traditions. These are mainly based on the Moslem religion of Turkey. There are two great festivals called Bairams—the Candy Bairam and the Sacrifice Bairam.

Before the Candy Bairam the more pious people do not eat the whole day except in the evening after a religious service. This lasts a month. But then comes the great Bairam which lasts for three days and there is more food that any one can take. The second Bairam, called Sacrifice Bairam, comes directly from the story of Abraham, and how he wanting to show his devotion to God was about to sacrifice his son. Today the Turkish people also sacrifice, thus showing symbolicly their obedience to God. bolicly their obedience to God.

But then, in the midst of these deeply Moslem people there is a Christian monument, the famous Moseleum of the Holy Virgin Mary. This is near Smyrna, the second largest city in Turkey, and attracts thousands of tourists.

Edip greatly admires the independence of American youth. He says that in Turkey the children have much more formal relations with their parents, and there is much more obedience. So, the young people grow up completely dependent upon their families. He thinks it is the best custom that the children at a certain age are allowed to worl out of home as in America.

Also Edip has now discovered for himself that all the tales about the great cultural developments and the civilization here are true. Only he can't quite get used to the American food which is much lighter than the Turkish meals. "The Turkish people work hard, and eat strong," he says.

Well, "it's nobody's business but the Turks."

Survey on The Pub

There has been rumor that the local pub has been partially conflagrated.

Thank God.

Nay, kind sirs, I am not an abstainer. I stain as well as the next guy. But quality, sirs, is necessary to the epicurean, to the connoisseur.

Yeah, the place had atmosphere. So damn much atmosphere a guy could hardly breathe. A scientific survey conducted between 11:43:12 and 11:43:14 one infamous night thousands of years ago resulted in the following breakdown:

Cigarette smoke:	97 per cent
Pipe smoke:	1 per cent
Cigar smoke:	.6 per cent

This adds up to 98.6 per cent, and is considered normal by physicians.

Mixed beverages served in such establishment were found by an international investigating outfit to be without a doubt.

To some the sound of rhythm, melody or counterpoint was the attraction, I have learned. Research leads to the conclusion that this emanated from a vari-coloured object placed against one of the walls which not only played music but held up the wall.

My conclusions, therefore, gentlemen:

'Twas an act of God.

Hammering in Your Ear

By FRANK McGUIRE
Editorial Page Writer

The riveting guns you heard hammering on your eardrums before Christmas vacation were assembling 330 tons of structural steel into the skeleton of our new Law building. Construction, which proceeded rapidly during the unusually mild fall, is now slowing down because of the extreme cold. The skeleton is almost complete and some concrete has been poured, but full scale work is not in progress.

The structure is 140 feet by 60 feet and has a height of 75 feet. The main entrance will be on the northeast corner of the building, facing campus. Beams ranging from six inches to thirty-six inches were used in the skeleton. The number of floors seen depends on your point of view. From the hill near Crouse hall, three floors are visible. But from Irving avenue, the story is different because the building covers part of the hillside and extends downward a short distance.

The Law building differs from the two embryo Engineering buildings on campus in that is it of structural steel and concrete whereas the Engineering buildings are of reinforced concrete. (Reinforced concrete is so called because of the steel rods imbedded in it for added strength). The Law building is otherwise just a typical fireproof building.

The cables you may have noticed leading from the topmost girders to the ground are utilized for scaffolding support. Fifty men are on the general construction crew, using steel manufactured by Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in Pennsylvania.

General Contractor for the project, a number of which are in the University's construction program, is the W. J. Burns Company, of Syracuse.

The Daily Orange is attempting to bring to the students on campus a brief sketch of the progress made on the various projects around the hill in this series of articles.

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

Orange Flames; 'Cool' Weather; $5000 Short.

By MILT SHEFTER

The flames were Orange, both literally and actually when the traditional "cafe" burned on Sunday. Firemen had trouble getting their equipment in since everything was sort of bottled up. Fire inspectors who arrived on the scene immediately got down to cases. It was a challenge to try and figure which firemen had red noses from the cold. Recent reports say that the main damage was confined to the dance area. Students affectionately named this the Sardine Room.

* * *

Cold Notes: To quote the bopsters, "Man, how 'cool' can it get?" Pledges of the various Hill houses on dingle-man detail have had to confront brothers with a Birds Eye type menu. Liquids freeze to solids in the short trip back to the front door. The ringing chefs have had their onions (at 5c a slice) freeze right in the trucks. Oh well, it's fine weather for the ducks—if they have snow shoes and parkas.

* * *

It happened at a recent soph senate meeting. One suggestion concerning projects was to buy new uniforms for the band. Ken Fredericks came to speak and said he considered their suggestion rather dubiously since the bill would be around $6,000. Speaker Jim Hutton, remembering the class treasury of less than one sixth of the sum mentioned, choked, and agreed with Mr. Frederick's dubiousness. After a sigh of relief from the Senators, the meeting continued, less expensive projects being the fare.

* * *

And now if you'll excuse us, we must burn some more New Year's resolutions. (Wonder if any of that last batch blew down toward South Crouse? Hmmmm.)

Ad Infernos Properabis

Although the Greeks had a word for it, the Romans apparently didn't as seen in the following bit from the University of Mississippi:

A student handed in a paper on the principle parts of a Latin verb that read: "Slippeo, slipper, falli, bumpus."

Quo Vadis, Mississippi?

MUSIC IN OUR LIVES

Teaspoon o' Bach May Get Results

Has frustration set in? Can't sleep nights? Oh no leave those sleeping pills alone! Why not try Dr. Capurso's prescription? Take twenty bars of Mendelson; add a teaspoon of Bach; sprinkle liberally with some Gershwin melody. Then stir and digest slowly. You should get results in a short time. To quote writer, Doran Antrim, "Just think, you can't take an overdose of sleeping music."

Few have ever doubted the importance of music in our lives or that it has a strong effect on our emotions. Here on campus for example—the listening room at the library is a sanctuary for many, few dorms are without a victrola, and rarely is a chapel service without a choir.

For centuries philosophers and doctors have recognized this intricate association between music and our emotions. During this time they have tried to harness this "magical" power so that it might be used as a means of therapy in treating the psycologically and physically disabled. It has been used to a limited degree.

But more recently, practical application of music in schools and industry in order to counteract the tensions developed in each, has become increasingly popular. Dr. Capurso, director of our School of Music, spent over 3 years of research on a project aimed at determining what reactions certain compositions receive and to what extent personal attitude affects these reactions.

The investigation, sponsored by the Music Research Foundation Inc., resulted in the "Capurso Study." The latter is a list of 105 tested musical selections which caused similar emotional reaction in the majority of the 200 students listening to them. The students attending Syracuse and Kentucky universities were seated in conversational groups in a congenial atmosphere, for the tests. Each person was given a chart on which to record his reaction to the piece played.

It is interesting to note that upon entering the room each of the tested had a different attitude. Moods ranging from deep depression to extreme joy. Yet during one such test, 93% recorded a lift in spirits, a feeling of elation when the "Stars and Stripes Forever" was played.

All right we have the list, now what? Where do we go from here? Dr. Capurso was confronted with a similar question in an interview. He reflected for a moment and then proceeded to expound on the astounding medical and social possibilities of such a source of tested music, possibilities that may have the same dynamic affect on mankind as the Atomic bomb did in 1945.

All this is just dandy. But here we are, students at Syracuse with finals at our heels, what does this union of music and emotion hold for us?

Dr. Capurso cites instances in which students have been tense, unhappy and frustrated as a result of the pressure created by studying that piles up at one time. In actual cases-students have reported that listening to soothing music has relieved this pent-up feeling. Here the Doctor pointed out, that although everyone does not react similarly to all selections, there is usually something that will suit each degree of musical taste and thus produce the desired effect.

In clarifying his point he compared music to film. It is "sensative to images" and records them as they are. Just as the image recorded by a film remains static, so do moods recorded by composers retain the same basic image. A funny snapshot will cause laughter whenever shown. Likewise music that at one time recorded a feeling of joy is able to ressurect the same response in a listener time and time again.

The soothing, power of music especially, has been utilized by industry. Many factories have music playing throughout the workday. This practice has resulted in better output on the part of the workers. Dr. Capurso implies that students, like factory workers, are laborers in the industry of education. And like the factory worker, tension from monotony of routine and pressure, often finds its way to the students. These tensions are a form of social sickness incurable by aspirin, hypodermic or antibiodics. Is music the answer?

What do you think . . . or hear from that question?

LETTERARY COMMENT

'Top' Tunes of 1953 Lacking Emotional Hit

Jan. 7

Dear Richard Case:

I appreciated your article of evaluation of popular music during 1953 which appeared in the Jan. 6 Daily Orange. "The Song from Moulin Rouge" and "Vaya Con Dios" certainly stayed on the hit parade longer than most of the other tunes and Gordan Jenkins' "Seven Dreams" is surely a new idea in popular music.

However, I don't understand how it is possible for you to overlook what I think is the most emotional song that came out last year, "I Believe."

Both Frankie Laine and Jane Froman made beautiful recordings of this semi-classical hit. I realize that you had to consider many of the songs that became popular during 1953, but I don't know how you could overlook "I Believe."

Sincerely,

Roger K. D. Kemp

Editor's note: When queried on Mr. Kemp's criticism, Mr. Case replied that the song "I Believe" was omitted from the listings mainly due to the lack of space. He also stated that the song was a reasonable entry into the popular field bordering on the religious. He commented that none of the recordings, including Mr. Laine's and Miss Froman's, struck him as being "very good." He also had other words for Mr. Laine which cannot be printed under existing postal regulations.

HOW MORAL CAN A VICTORY GET?

or... don't put all your goose eggs in one basket

Once there was a Basketball Team that had Plenty of Nothing. It was so poor that even the Coach hadn't gone to a game all season. Couldn't stand to watch his Scoreless Wonders. So the Futile Five careened through the schedule and hit the road for the Big Game. Due to lose by 45 points, the Experts said.

But somebody back on campus had a Brainstorm. He whipped out his Trusty Telegrammar (the Telegrammar being a pocket-sized guide to telegraph use. If you'd like one, incidentally, for gratis, just write to Room 1727, Western Union at 60 Hudson Street, New York City.)

Spotting a likely idea he started the wheels moving! So, just before game time, the team got more Telegrams than you could shake a Referee at. Group telegrams from fraternities and sororities, personal telegrams from Prexy and the Dean of Women, hundreds of telegrams from students . . . all saying "We're behind you, team!" The reaction? Tremendous. The boys pulled themselves together, went out and lost by only 28 points instead of 45.

The moral is Obvious. The more you encourage a guy, the better he'll do . . . and Giving a Hand by telegram works wonders. In fact, whether it's Money from Home you want, or a Date, or just to send a Soulful Message to Someone Special, just call Western Union or whip down to your local Western Union office.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Basketball returned to Archbold gymnasium last Saturday evening after a one-year recess. That's the way this reporter saw it as the Orange hoopsters defeated a struggling Pitt five. Struggling to get the ball over the half court mark, that is.

This was the first time we had a chance to watch the Hillmen in action this year and the opportunity to see what should be a very successful campaign for Marc Guley and his men. It's been quite a while since Syracuse fans saw a team combine sharp passing, slick ball handling and good shooting combined in one ballgame. That we saw Saturday. In opposition to Mr. Lent.

There are a lot of reasons why the Hillmen have changed from the sloppy hot and cold play of last year's team. We can remember when the boys got a little hot under the collar after this writer had hit them with a slight blast after they had been beaten by Temple. Well, fellows, we think we were right at the time but now we have some pleasant things to say and are mighty happy to be able to say them.

With the loss of Dave Kline for most the season, except for occassional spot duty, the Orangemen are under a severe handicap but could easily make up for the junior's loss with the type of play displayed against the weak Pitt team. Yes, the Panthers looked like the Pirates of the Steel city but still we were very impressed with Syracuse. They looked like a basketball team.

The biggest smile came to our face when we saw Jack Larned finally came into his own as a fine ball player. Last year the junior sharpshooter saw limited play over the season. He was never really given that big chance to prove himself against enemy clubs. This season he got the break and performs with the slickest pair of hands we have seen here on the Hill in quite awhile.

Jack Larned

Larned has poise. His passing is accurate and he has some of the finest shooting ability on the club. In other words, Jack has arrived and is one of the main reasons we liked the big change in Hill basketball. But this isn't the only reason we have suddenly found the hoop sport returning to the Hill since the days of Ed Miller in 1951.

Ron Kilpatrick is another one of the cogs on Marc Guley's new fast-moving machine. The kid from Rochester was put in a sort of "Mickey Mantle atmosphere" when he arrived on the Hill. Rave notices about his play in high school sent the fans in a turmoil when he didn't show up that well.

Well, the kid was under too much pressure and that type of feeling can do strange things to people. In his junior year, he finally has found himself amidst the publicity which may have hurt the start of his college career. Now his pivot play and reboundings are tops. And there isn't anyone on the team who fights harder than Ronnie. That was apparent against Pitt when he struggled time and again to gain possession of the ball.

Then there are the youngsters on the varsity. Fellows like Ron Gillespie, Manny Breland and Walt Scott have come through in fine style to assist the veterans. Gillespie's play especially has improved tremendously over that of last year. He actually looked like a completely different player Saturday with his fine defensive work and timely rebounds.

But the steadying influence on the whole club has been Capt. Mel Besdin, who has finally hit his peak. Besdin did little wrong against Pitt. His finest attributes, the pass and shot, were working with extreme accuracy. His shooting percentage was very high but that excellent all-around play stood out during the entire contest.

Mel is another of those players who came to the Hill with the big buildups. In his frosh year he lived up to them but as a soph slumped off in a substitute's role. Then last year he gradually began to return to that freshman form and now looks the best we have ever seen. He had been afraid to shoot very often but now he seems to have loosened up and become the type of player everyone in Syracuse knew he would be.

Before this column was written, I happened to catch Mr Lent's article on the sloppy play of the Hill five against the Panthers. Well, perhaps Ken was right because he has seen the Orange in action quite a few times. But still it seems a little strange to say that there shooting was off after that fine first-half display. Personally, I was impressed. Maybe it was my first game of the year but I do know one thing: Syracuse and Marc Guley once more have a basketball team. Not the nation's best, but a well-balanced, tight-knit organization which is bound to give many good clubs trouble this year.

It's good to have the sport back in true Orange style.

Frosh Cagers Look for Fifth Win At Expense of Big Red Frosh

By DAVE BENNETT

Syracuse's unbeaten frosh cagers seek their fifth victory of the season tonight when they play the Cornell yearlings in a 6:30 preliminary to the varsity game between the two schools.

Coach Andy Mogish's team went through a strenuous practice session yesterday in preparation for the invasion of the Little Red. The Tangerines defeated General Electric, 84-72, Saturday night for their fourth consecutive win in their first contest after a holiday season layoff.

Coach Mogish was unimpressed by his squad's performance in the weekend victory. The cubs lead the GE quintet almost all the way but exhibited sloppy ball-handling at times.

Little is known about the Cornell five. The Ithacans posted a one and one record in recent games against Syracuse-area opposition.

Cornell outscored the Le Moyne college frosh, 45-41, but lost to the Manlius Cadets, 49-46. Both contests were played on the Little Red's home court, the Manlius affair being a prelim to last Saturday's Cornell-Brown tilt.

Tonight's game will mark the resumption of what has proven to be a torrid rivlry between the two frosh teams. Last year, both Cornell and Syracuse had outstanding yearling aggregations and each squad won on its own court in the home-and-home series.

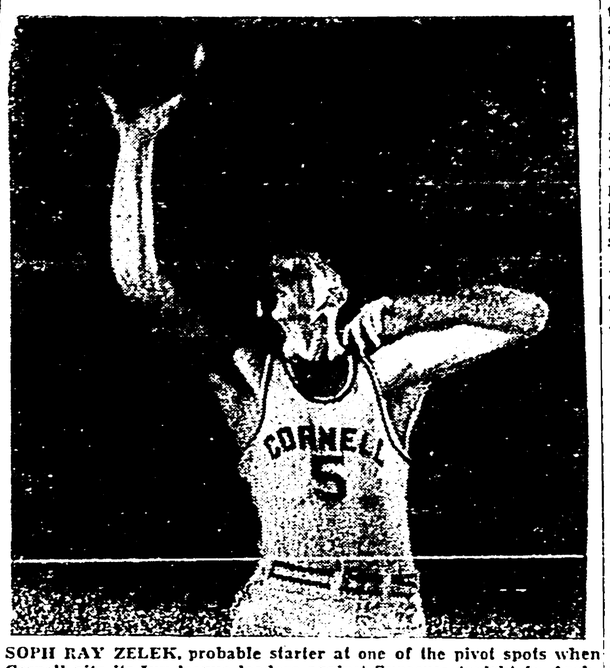
The loss to the Cornellians was the only defeat of the campaign for last year's stellar Orange frosh. The Ithaca team beat the Mogishmen, 72-67, at Barton Hall.

Syracuse gained revenge in its final game of the year. Playing a Cornell team which included Chuck Rolles and Ray Zelek, this season's Big Red varsity mainstays, the Tangerines won 100 to 85 in a high-scoring thriller.

Tonight, the 1954 edition of the frosh quint will try to repeat last year's winning effort against Cornell. The starting lineup is undecided, but Vinnie Cohen and Gary Clark, the scoring standouts on the club, will probably start.

The other three members of the first five will probably be chosen from Vinnie Albanese, Jim Snyder, Jim Roper, Jim Brown, Niel Wilcox and Lou Stark.

In It Goes!



SOPH RAY ZELEK, probable starter at one of the pivot spots when Cornell pits its Ivy league-leaders against Syracuse tonight in Archbold gym. Big Ray averaged 20.7 points a game last year as a frosh.

Schop, Goldstein Lift Fencing Hopes

Orange fencing hopes received a boost last weekend with the fine performances turned in by fencing captain John Goldstein and saberman Willard Schop against St. Lawrence.

Goldstein, who took the North Atlantic Intercollegiate epee honors last year, won five bouts out of five, including two wins in saber while Schop was successful in all three of his saber performances.

Schop's performance was particularly encouraging since he only had a mediocre record last season.

Temple Pins Hopes On Lower Weights

A vastly improved Temple wrestling team will invade Archbold gymnasium Saturday to garpple Joe McDaniel's wrestlers in the second meet of the season for both teams.

The Owls from Philadelphia, fresh from a 23-13 victory over Muhlenburg last Saturday will base all hopes for a victory on their lightweight matmen. Capt. Bob McCreary, a senior, will start the match at the 123-pound slot.

MCCREARY WAS undefeated in 10 matches last year and has been beaten only twice in his three years of varsity competition. Sophomore Jim Rose will wear the Orange colors against him.

McCreary recently distinguished himself in the Wilkes tourney by capturing third place. The fast-moving senior also plays shortstop for the Owl baseball team.

The two other top-flight lightweights are brothers, Bill and Dick Simmons. Both are sophomores, but there is a year difference in their age.

Bill set the spectators to buzzing at the Wilkes meet when he won the 130-pound crown and didn't allow a single point to be scored against him. He was the only wrestler to boast that distinction in the holiday tournament.

THE ELDER brother, Dick won third place in the 137-pound division. Sophomore Hank Bianowitz will meet him, and this match promises to be the best of the meet.

Owl coach Charlie Demetriades' biggest problem is in the heavyweight position. Demetriades is tutoring two football players, senior Joe Ciasullo and soph Bill Schaeffer, to fill that post. Schaeffer got the nod last week, but was pinned by his opponent.

Hill Outlook Bright To Repeat Victory In Ski Carnival

By ART STERNBERG

Cornell and RPI are expected to furnish much of the opposition against the Hill skiers in Thursday's Cornell Winter Carnival Ski meet. Syracuse won the previous meet but will really have to go all out to cop a victory again.

Chances for a repeat performance look favorable, however, as four of last season's top starters will again see action. These men plus some newcomers will compete in four main races, the downhill, cross-country, jump and slalom.

DOUG WALLACE, Hawley Woolschlager, Bob Brussel and Joe DeCarlo are the returnees who will supply the core of this year's team.

The most promising addition to the squad is Art Roscoe, a freshman who resides by Allegheny State park. He and Brussel will specialize in the ski jump race.

Hawley Woolschlager, last season's captain, and Joe DeCarlo are heavily counted upon in the downhill and the slalom. The slalom is the downhill race against time in which the skier follows a course between scattered flag posts, losing points for wrong maneuvers.

Coach Ben Bucko, a former Hill ski star, is optimistic about the team's success. The presence of strong veteran strength in the lineup presents Coach Bucko ith a strong nucleus to work with.

NOT ENOUGH reserve strength has been obtained to prepare for the future. Ben has hopes of finding new material among foreign exchange students who have shown some promise.

After the Cornell meet, the Piety skiers will see much action through the beginning of March. They are at Allegheny State Park, Jan. 30-31; Dartmouth Winter carnival, Feb. 5-6; Syracuse Winter carnival, Feb. 13-14; Cornell, Feb. 20-21 (tentative); St. Lawrence Winter carnival, Feb. 27-28; and finally the Eastern championships, March 5-6.

Mittmen to Open Season Against Maryland Boxers

The first match of the Syracuse university boxing team this year—at Maryland on Saturday—could very well be the biggest stumbling block on the Orange path to a sixth straight Eastern championship.

Maryland has six out of eight starting pugilists returning from last year plus a number of experienced candidates vieing for the 132-pound and heavyweight classes. These weights were vacated by Jack etzer and Cal Quenstedt, Eastern heavyweight champ last year, who have graduated.

FORMING THE neucleus for the current Terrapin team are Gerry Garber, a 125-pounder who captured eight out of 10 bouts last year and Bob Theofield, a 147-pounder who twice defeated Syracuse's Larry O'Sullivan in 1953. O'Sullivan will not have a chance for revenge on Saturday as he will probably move up to the 156-pound class to fight.

Other returning Terp letter-men are 139-pounder Gary Fisher, 156-pounder Dave Lewis, 165-pounder Ron Rhodes and 178-poundre Bill McInnis. Last year Fisher lost three times to the Orange's Eastern champ, John Granger, but the rugged Hill captain will also probably move up a weight on Saturday to the 147-pound class vacated by O'Sullivan.

Rhodes last year lost twice to Bill Miller of the Orange who was Eastern champ at 165-pounds. Since Miller has graduated and vacated his title, Maryland coach Frank Cronin thinks Rhodes has an excellent chance of copping the championship in the Eastern meet at Virginia in March.

The remaining two positions in the Terp lineup have not as yet been decided upon but junior Gene Perkins and soph Capri Guido are the logical candidates to meet Syracuse's Jerry Jaffee at the 132-pound class.

Plant Development
Offers Training and Opportunity

John Purdom, M.S. in Ch.E., Ohio State '48 (right), confers with other engineers on the progress of a new plant.

A young chemical engineer recently had his first assignment in a Plant Development group at Du Pont. He was part of a team assigned to improve recovery of adipic acid, a nylon intermediate, from plant-waste streams.

First, he made a literature survey for possible leads. Three recovery methods came under consideration: solvent extraction, crystallization, and a combination distillation-crystallization process. He helped to set up a laboratory program to compare and evaluate them.

Preliminary results were somewhat inconclusive. It was decided to go ahead with semi-works tests, while an organic chemist completed the laboratory work.

Next, the young chemical engineer joined forces with a mechanical engineer to design a semi-works plant to evaluate each method. In this plant, all vital points were checked and rechecked: materials of construction, steam and water requirements, heat-transfer coefficients, yields, product quality, and pollution problems.

The semi-works data revealed that the distillation-crystallization process was the most economical, and also gave the best product quality. Usually, the next step would be construction and operation of a pilot plant. But this time, engineers from the Production Division arranged for a limited-scale plant test, using a spare batch still and a crystallizer on a part-time basis. Two months of testing confirmed the previous data—the new distillation-crystallization process recovered adipic acid efficiently, and would reduce costs considerably. The plant is now using this process successfully.

That's how one young chemical engineer started his career in a typical Du Pont Plant Development group. The job of such groups is to make processes and equipment more efficient, to adapt products to new uses, and to improve product quality.

Plant Development work not only offers opportunity in itself but valuable training for other fields.

Snow Sculptures To Portray Tales Of Folkwriters

Faculty Members To Select Outstanding Design February 12

Tales of folklore by Grimm and Hans Christian Anderson will return to prominence on the Syracuse campus as amateur sculptors prepare for this year's Winter Weekend snow sculpture contest.

In keeping with the overall weekend theme, "Alpine Holiday," the sculptures can range from European legend to figures in native costumes, according to chairman JoAnne LaFaro. Judging for the sculptures, Friday, Feb. 12, will be based on originality, correlation with the theme and general presentation.

TROPHIES WILL be awarded in four divisions: fraternity, sorority, independent men's and independent women's. Judges for the contests are Miss Sylvia Wycoff and Douglas Wilson of the art department, Earle Clifford, assistant to the dean of men, Dr. Malcolm MacLaren, department of classical languages and mythology and Dr. Robert Rayback, history department.

Miss LaFaro has announced the rules for the contest. No sound effects, mobile objects or commercial ice, can be used, while color is optional. The visible exterior of the sculpture must be completely of snow with a scaffolding covered, if used. The name of the sculpture must be displayed or incorporated in the sculpture.

Last year's contest had seventy-nine entries. With the weatherman cooperating, prospects are for even more entrants this year.

Winter weekend buttons and programs will make their appearance on campus during registration week. Button committee chairman, Leslie Rubin has announced the souvenirs, priced at 15 cents, will be obtainable at Archbold gym during registration and throughout campus the week preceeding Winter Weekend.

Programs will also be on sale at the gym during registration according to co-chairman Samuel Braun and Deborah Terello, and will continue on sale throughout the week until the supply is exhausted.

Including descriptions of each event of the weekend, the program will have 32 pages and 15 pictures. It will be sold for 25 cents.

Members of the program committee are Linda Shulman, Mary Flavin, James Thyer, Donald Fredrickson, Richard Carroll, Sheila Hicks and Deborah Wallwork.

TICKETS FOR the semi-formal Sno-ball dance, Saturday, Feb. 13 will also go on sale at registration, according to co-chairmen Cynthia Satow and Norman Murphy. Priced at $3.50, the dance will be the first major university dance held at the Women's building.

NYU Chancellor Urges Development

Chancellor Henry T. Heald of New York university has announced that he will urge approval of the plan for redevelopment of an area of nine city blocks, three of which will go to the University for educational buildings. The chancellor will appear before the Board of Estimate next week in New York City.

Dr. Heald brought out that New York university was the target of much general opposition because it was a "big institution" that already owned most of the property fronting on the Square and also because the eventual private developer was not yet known and the governmental agencies inless tangible targets.

DO Staff Member Given Promotion

His new duties will include reading copy and supervising headline writing in rotation with other staff members.

Five Finalists Picked; Sno-ball Decor Set

— Sno-ball —

Work on the "Empress Waltz," otherwise known as the 1954 Sno-ball, continues as the junior sponsors of the annual Winter Weekend formal concentrate on decorations and entertainment.

All plans are geared to tie in not only with the overall weekend theme, "An Alpine Holiday," but with the royal theme of the dance.

THE SNO-BALL will be the first formal to use the facilities of the Women's building, and while the large gym is ideal for a dance from the standpoint of size and equipment, one of the major decorating problems is to create a cozy, festive atmosphere.

Decorations chairmen Joanne Schurman and Mary Todd have decided to try and give the effect of a lowered ceiling by use of streamers and a large crown, to be suspended from the center. Evergreen trees, covered with snow and obtained through the College of Forestry will carry through the "Alpine" idea.

Refreshments include royal punch and crown shaped cookies, according to chairmen Lorraine Chinatry and DeBrah Moscow. Programs will be purple and white, programs chairmen Carol Ahlberg and Andrew Mercer have announced.

An original show, written by junior Gail Gilman, will be presented and the winner of the "Empress" contest will be crowned at the semi-formal, which is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 13.

CLAUDE THORNHILL, his piano and orchestra are going to supply the music for the fete, entertainment chairmen Gail Dudkin and Marilyn Nelson have announced. Any juniors interested in participating in the entertainment should call Miss Nelson at Sigma Kappa.

Harold Steinberg and Kay Pierson, in charge of publicity, hint that students should be on the alert for purple match books, which will be distributed during registration week, when tickets go on sale.

Priced at $3.50, the ducats will be sold from booths in Slocum, Maxwell and HL. Heading ticket sales are James Baird and Elaine Kieballa.

— Empress —

Four freshmen and a sophomore swept the field of 81 contestants last night to become finalists in the Winter Carnival weekend empress competition.

THE FINALISTS were chosen by a panel of five judges, including Mrs. Mary Verbeck, fashion consultant for the Addis company; Miss Peggy Cram of the Syracuse Herald-Journal; Miss Margaret Parker, University social director and advisor to the Winter Carnival committee; Dr. Fred Krinsky of the Maxwell citizenship department; and Jack Slattery, Herald-Journal sports columnist.

Judging was made on the basis of attractiveness in winter outdoor costume, beauty and poise and personality.

The weekend empress was selected from among the finalists last night, but her identiy will not be disclosed until Friday, Feb. 12, opening day of the weekend.

She will be crowned at the ice pageant and will reign over the events of the entire weekend. The empress and her court will be presented at the Sno-ball Saturday, Feb. 13.

THE EMPRESS and her court will receive prizes from local merchants and will appear on radio and TV shows.

A native of Woodstock, N. Y., Miss McClellan is a resident of Nottingham cottage. The liberal arts freshman was entered in the contest by Delta Gamma sorority.

Miss Seme, a home economics freshman, was enrolled in the contest by the residents of Skytop M-4. Hailing from LaFargeville, N. Y., the coed reigned as queen of the New York State

Staff Surveys Student Populace Past Two Weeks

Living quarters will be made available during the mid-year vacation without cost to students who find it necessary to remain campus.

This announcement was made yesterday by Miss Kathryn Copeland and Jack C. Buckle, directors of women's and men's residence, respectively.

DECISION TO grant a vacation from Jan. 30 to Feb. 4 was made several weeks ago. This change in the University's calendar was introduced following agreement reached earlier in the fall semester, to discontinue the mid-year commencement exercises which were begun during world war II to accommodate students following an accelerated program.

Personnel deans have spent the past two weeks surveying the student population to determine the number of students who would be unable to take advantage of the mid-year vacation.

Miss Copeland announced that six graduate and five undergraduate living centers will be kept open during the five-day period, for students who have been granted permission by the dean of women's office.

The graduate houses are Kent, Patterson, Peck I, Sargent, Sibley and Rogers, while the undergraduate living centers are Winchell, Haven, Lima, Shaw and Sims.

"IF THERE IS a need for additional housing," Miss Copeland said, "arrangements will be made through the dean of women's office. Students will be advised of the change through their head residents."

Miss Copeland also pointed out that "students will be expected to carry out their usual student government responsibilities with respect to proctoring and other duties during the vacation period."

Buckle explained that arrangements for men's housing would be made through the dean of men's office. Announcements of their arrangements and what houses will be kept open will be made by the resident advisors of the individual living centers.

SKYTOP WILL be closed during the vacation period. Those Skytop students who remain at the University will be housed on campus or at Collendale.

All living centers will close at 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 30 for the vacation. Men's dorms will reopen at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 3 and women's living centers will reopen at 3 p.m. the same day.

Fraternities are requested to follow the same procedure as during regular vacation periods. This means that the dean of men's office must be informed whether an individual house plans to close or remain open.

Students who remain at the University will be informed through their head residents, resident advisors and proctors of the arrangements for dining hall service.

Besdin's Basket Gives Piety 71-69 Victory Over Cornell

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Capt. Mel Besdin's 25-foot set shot with less than 10 seconds remaining capped an uphill battle to give Syracuse's hoopsters a 71-69 victory over Cornell before a standing room only crowd at Archbold gym last night.

Behind from the opening minutes, the Orange with four sophomores and Besdin in the lineup, came from behind an eight point deficit in the last eight minutes to eke out the spectacular victory.

THE SCRAPPY sophomore quartet of Manny Breland, Gus Castellini, Lou Cegala and Clyde Murtock consistently stole the ball from the Big Red in the comeback drive which gave Syracuse it's second tight victory over the Ithacans.

Syracuse tied the score 66-66, with 2:35 remaining in the clash but Chuck Rolles retaliated with a one-hander to regain the lead for the visitors with 1:0 left.

Castellini made good on one of two free throws for Syracuse and then came back with a two-pointer with one minute remaining. Besdin set up the play by intercepting a pass at midcourt.

Rolles missed a shot for Cornell and Syracuse regained possession. Cegala and Breland combined to freeze the ball until Cornell co-Capt. Lee Morton stole it with 30 seconds remaining. He was fouled on the play and made good on one of two attempts, again tying the clash.

BESDIN THEN came through with his clutch basket and as the final buzzer went off, a desperation shot by Morton fell short of the hoop.

The victory was the eighth in 12 encounters for the Pietymen while Cornell was dropping its second clash, both to Syracuse, against eight wins.

Besdin led the scoring for the Orange with 20 points, including 12 for 12 from the charity line to tie the gym record. Breland added 14 while another soph, Ron Gillespie collected 10 before fouling out in the third quarter. Breland also accounted for 18 rebounds.

Senior forward Jack Sheehy led the losers attack with 22 points and 12 rebounds while Morton collected 17 markers. Diminutive 5 ft.-6 Rolles, who scored 31 points in the last meeting between the two squads, was held to 10 tallies, all in the last half.

CORNELL LED at the end of the first quarter, 19-16, increased its margin to 32-28 at halftime, and had a 52-47 edge entering the decisive stanza.

Quick baskets by Sheehy, Morton and Rolles increased the lead, despite a two-pointer by Cegala and a foul by Besdin, before the Orange started their winning rally.

Besdin accounted for eight points and Castellini seven in the eight minute upsurge while Breland and Murrock each added three.

WSG, Staff Sets Permission Rules

City Overnights OK At End of Exams

Any Syracuse university coed may take a city overnight without using a pink permission slip after she has finished her exams.

This was announced by women's student government vice president Elizabeth Brydon last Wednesday at the final meeting of the assembly for this semester.

Miss Brydon added that special 12 o'clocks will be granted to all coeds during registration. A 12 will also be in order the night after semester vacation, Wednesday, Feb. 3. WSG would ordinarily grant a 12 the night before vacation, but this is unnecessary since the pre-vacation evening is Friday.

Beginning next semester those freshmen who are not on probation will be granted 10:15 weeknight permissions. Graduating seniors will have 12 o'clock curfews on weeknights and will receive only six pink slips.

The Winter Carnival committee will meet at 8 p.m. at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house, according to Co-chairmen Janet Caro and Peter Rose. All chairmen are urged to attend the session.

Blazing Meteorite Seen

It came from outer space.

The event was responsible for crash and fire trucks being dispatched, searching parties being organized and local police and airport telephones buzzing all morning.

Those who believed the meteor had landed nearby were advised by experts that the objett didn't land anywhere nearby. They explained that the great speed and the arching path of the meteorite are responsible for the illusion that it plummeted to earth near Syracuse.

It was impossible to tell the size of the object, they said, because its distance from here could not be determined.

Griffiss Air Force base observers, believing the object was a falling plane, dispatched crash trucks to comb the area. A crew in a B-17 reported later that they had seen nothing in the area that would indicate a crash.

The reports ranged from descriptions of the closeness of the object to tales of its beautiful and brilliant colors.

And like as not, Tom Corbett was not aboard.

Housing solved

The Administration has extended the necessary helping hand to those students required to stay on campus during the forthcoming vacation period, by removing the extra housing fee.

It was The Daily Orange in its editorial of January 8, and top officials of women's student government, that first requested the dean of student services and deans of men and women to reconsider the housing policy and lift the extra charge.

It soon became apparent through the surveys conducted by the representatives of student government that more students than originally expected were not able to return home. The majority gave financial reasons.

The staffs of the dean of men and dean of women then conferred on what policy to adopt. Because of the problem of policing quarter-filled dorms, they realized that these could not remain open throughout campus.

And so they did the next best thing. That was, that for this year, those students forced to remain because good reasons would not pay a dorm charge.

We still maintain that the timing of the original announcement was unfortunate in that it came too late, thus unnecessarily inconveniencing many students. But we are pleased to note that from now on, the University will announce and explain all vacations well in advance, so that students can be financially prepared.

The next step, however, must be taken by the students. Coeds who must stay on campus should contact the dean of women's office next Monday. The male population will be informed by advisors and proctors what arrangements they should make.

A matter of money

Money for colleges and universities has been in the news lately. The $125,000 that was given to the University yesterday may bring the query as to just where Syracuse stands financially with its compatriots.

Statistics have a rather pendantic [illegible] about them, but the following should in the student w[illegible]onders about the ex[illegible] of his universi[illegible].

Of our neighbors in the East, Harvard stands in an ethereal world by itself with an endowment of a little over $241 million. From this it carries an annual budget of some $32 million with a student body of 10,000.

The other two-thirds of that triumvirate, Yale and Princeton, are endowed with $141 million and $50 million, respectively. And this educates 7,500 Eli and 3,500 followers of the Tiger yearly on budgets of $16 million and $10 million respectively.

Colombia, with one of the largest enrollments in the East of 26,000, is endowed with $107 million and spends $26 million annually.

But to bring the issue closer to home. In the big three of upper New York state, Cornell educates 10,000 of the Big Red on an endowment of $47 million. Its annual budget is $28 million.

Over at Colgate where there are some 1,300 of the Maroon, the college has a $5,837,000 endowment with annual expenditures exceeding a million and a half.

And here at home in Syracuse, with a [illegible]tal enrollment something over 13,000, our [illegible]dowment is $10,446,854. BUT the annual [illegible]dget, as it stood in '51-'52, was over $12 [illegible]llion.

An endowment, of course, is merely an [illegible]ution's permanent source of income. There are others. But one may see, perhaps, from these figures the difficulties that arise.

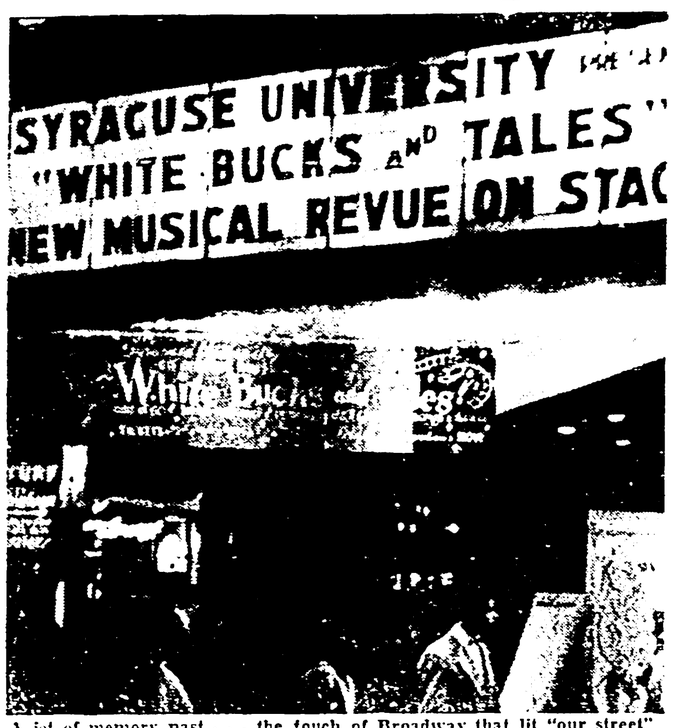
The glow of shows that was 'White Bucks & Tales' comes our way again in a new one, 'Up in Lights'

The First Whisper



A jot of memory past . . . the touch of Broadway that lit "our street" with the glittering marque of the Astor. That time was a wet May night and the occasion . . . an evening at "White Bucks & Tales."

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

About one ago this week, I walked into a small University avenue apartment to find senior class president Don Hornung, Boar's Head chief Jerry Leider and business major Noel Graubart stretched out in various stages of contemplation.

"What would you say if we told you that the senior class is going to produce a musical revue," smiled Hornung. Before a reply could come, Leider spoke up.

"Under the complete direction of Boar's Head."

"Sounds good, huh?" Graubart queried.

It sounded good. Very good. That was the first whisper that anyone outside a tiny group of planners had made of such a show. But the seed had been planted.

By the evening of April 23, 1953, these whispers had bloomed into the $10,000 production of an original musical revue called "White Bucks and Tales."

This week the class of '54 and Boar's Head society set out to build a second such production. This one is called "Up in Lights."

"White Bucks and Tales" was something of an innovation for the Syracuse campus. It stood as one of the first original musical revues to be presented here in many years. The slightly amazing box-office and word of mouth success of the show served as a stimulant into new fields and lead to the 1954 counterpart of "White Bucks."

The production played four performances in the down town Astor theater, with a full house each time. It conceivably might have run for several weeks at a profit but the restrains of a packed campus social calendar and approaching examinations closed the door on such dreams.

Jerry Leider staged and directed "White Bucks" which sported a bright book by seniors Bill Persky and Don Rosenbilt. The composing team of Lanny O'Kun and Bill Angelos contributed 17 new tunes which accomplished such a splash that the campus still hums them as an excepted practice. A long-playing record album of the show's top songs was a "best-seller."

The national magazine, Life, also heard the bells being run for "White Bucks and Tales" and sent reporters and photographers to the Astor theater to cover the show. Only production problems prevented the eventuality of an article.

It was a gold cadilac for all concerned. As Daily Orange drama critic Joan Nadelhaft said on opening night, "The seniors and the dramatic honorary should be proud of 'White Bucks'. We rather think they are."

"Up in Lights" is also an original musical revue . . . a somewhat smaller package than its predecessor but nevertheless filled with the essentials of music, dance and assorted funnery. The book has been prepared by the team of Bill Levine and Bill Dixon, two veteran radio writers who have turned to their first stage venture. Jerry Leider will direct once more and Chuck Irwin will handle choreography.

Initial casting try-outs for the new production began late Tuesday afternoon in the drama building. The production staff was taking names, experience and talent information outside the narrow classroom as the eager performers waited outside to be heard. Director Leider tried to give some reporters a quick run-down of the script.

Inside the audition room, a lull ascended. "What's the new score sound like," I asked Mr. O'Kun and Mr. Angelos.

"Try this one," beamed Lanny. He played something called "Left-over Girl." Bill sang along.

"Well?"

"I like."

The next few minutes were consummed by a zipping once over of the "Up In Lights" score. "Well," smiled the boys, "sound good?"

Very good. Where can I get a ticket?

Just Don't Mention It

We're through! We've had enough! Stop, I say Cease, desist! At once!

Yep, no one's ever satisfied. Few weeks ago (seems eternities) when the ground was muddy and buds blossoming all over the place at the wrong time, we went around crying for an old fashioned winter. Idiot! Dolt! Imbecile! Well, we've had it.

Now as we mournfully crunch through feet of the white stuff, we sigh, and curse ourselves for our former dreams. What the deuce were we talking about? The freezing wind whizzes past our bowed head in triumphant whines and we almost shed a bitter tear. But not quite, it'd freeze.

Even the mercury in our thermometer gave up last week. It lies still and refuses to budge until March. We're wondering if we shouldn't do the same.

Our friends aren't speaking to us. They remember when we kept sighing poetically for just one silken snowflake. Well, we got one. One ton, that is.

All right, we're sorry. We humble ourselves, and bitterly regret ever having opened our mouths. Now, please, please, go away and leave us alone.

Lord, it was cold last night.

—Joan Nadelhaft

A TOUCH OF APATHY

Due to extreme apathy on his part, Roger J. Herz will not write his column this week.

The COMMON Mind

By ART SIEGEL
Managing Editor

(Editor's note: Regarding current discussion of "culture or not" at Syracuse university, the managing editor chanced upon the COMMON man a few days ago. Herewith we present the interview he obtained):

Tell me, Bob, why do you think you're typical, or average?

"Well, I don't, not really. I don't know, I think I'm as well-rounded as the next guy."

How do you mean, "well-rounded?"

In other words, you don't specialize.

"That's right."

Well, what business or profession do you intend to enter?

"That's what I haven't decided yet. I don't know what I'm qualified for."

Tell us something about your academic life, Bob.

"Well, I am a sophomore, in liberal arts. I have exactly a 1.3670 average. That's the all-male average, you know."

Yes, I do.

"And I study the average amount of time, I allot four hours a day to study, and about an hour to attend meetings. I usually listen to the radio and write home for about an hour and then I turn in—about 11 p.m."

Every night?

You go out a lot?

"Every Saturday."

With the same girl?

"Sometimes."

"Well, I go out, as I said, but I don't get fresh or anything. I don't even kiss the girls until my second date. My roommate, though, he—"

Thank you. Let's talk about your cultural life some more.

"Well, girls can be cultural."

Yes, I guess so. Tell us about your relations with the profs, Bob.

"Well, I go to see my profs whenever they schedule a conference with the students. I don't apple-polish, though. I do my work, and I get by."

You don't like your teachers.

"Oh no. They're okay."

Do you read? Or listen to music?

"Yes, I do have some records. I have two of Haydn's concertos and one symphony each of Tschaikowsky, Beethoven, Brahms and Bach. They're the standards, you know."

Yes, I do.

"I began to like a composer called Sibelius. But they don't play much of his stuff around much."

Go on.

"I try to be well-read. I read Life magazine and Harper's, and my roommate's New Yorker."

You like the cartoons?

"Yes. Yes, they're quite good."

Continue.

"Well, as I said, I try to be well-read. Sometimes when I can't get to read a book that everyone else is reading, I read my roommate's copy of the Times book review. It does a wonderful job. You don't even have to read the book after you're done."

Are you in any athletics?

No, I have no time for sports. My roommate's a three-letter man, though. Ben Schwartzwalder says he's going to be great."

What about activities?

"Well, I did sign up for the Daily Orange. But I was just mediocre at writing. Now I belong to student government. I go down there once a week."

But have you no special interests?

"Well, I was always interested in playing bridge. My cousin was a professional."

Have you developed your interest at all?

"No, I guess not. Bridge seems to be fading away. And besides, I've got a lot to do. I've only got four years to accomplish everything."

Do you think you will?

"I guess so."

Well, thanks a lot, Bob. I guess you certainly are well-rounded guy. Yes. Well-rounded.

Well-rounded?

1,925 Days In Paradise

On the evening of April 7, 1949, the names on the star dressing rooms at New York's Majestic theater read "Mary Martin" and "Ezio Pinza." An amazing musical comedy performer trying for a comeback and a seasoned Metropolitan opera star in his first non-classical role.

On the evening of January 16, 1954, Martha Wright and George Britton will sail onto the stage of the Manhattan for a final performance.

After 1,925 performances in New York and countless thousands in every corner of the world, "South Pacific" is closing. Thus, this vehicle becomes the second longest run musical in New York history. And Nellie Forbush and Emile de Becque go their way.

But there are certain things that cannot be erased with the lowering of a final curtain. Indestructible things like "A Wonderful Guy," "Some Enchanted Evening," "Bali Hai," "Happy Talk," "Younger Than Springtime" and 1,925 enchanted evening before the worlds greatest critics.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Lament on 'A Lament'

To the Editors of The Daily Orange:

How does one say goodby to a newspaper? Just keep on printing such lamentable material as appeared in a recent issue of The Daily Orange in the form of an "In Memoriam." Touching as it may have been with its implications of having once served vital social needs, the editorial page is still no place to eulogize the "passing of the bar." Horace Greeley may well have had the editors of the Daily Orange in mind when he said, "Go West, Young Man, Go West."

Unbeaten Hill Tangerines Vanquish Cornell, 107-75

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

With a fine display of scoring punch, Andy Mogish's undefeated freshman team rolled to its fifth consecutive victory last night at Archbold gym, as they whipped the Cornell yearlings, 107-75, in the preliminary game to the varsity contest between squads of the same schools.

The Little Red led only briefly in the contest as they were soundly trounced by the home forces. Andy Mogish was able to use his entire bench in the comparatively easy victory.

THE CORNELL frosh started off quickly and jumped to an early 8-4 lead. But the Tangerine hoopsters were not to be denied. With Cohen and Roper leading the way, the Syracuse freshman came back to score 13 points in the next four and a half minutes, while holding the visitors to a single field goal.

Cohen was practically unstoppable in the second quarter as he hit on jump shots and layups, one after another. Snyder began to find the range and the Tangerines pulled steadily away.

When the substitutes came in for the Orange frosh, the Little Red were able to narrow down the gap somewhat. The score at halftime was 48-32 in favor of the Tangerine cagers. In the first half Syracuse made a remarkable 62 per cent of its shots from the field.

With the starting five back on the court to open the second half, Andy Mogish's crew resumed their scoring ways. Snyder, Clark and Cohen once again led the freshmen in scoring as they proved a complete puzzle to the lads from Ithaca.

THE JUNIOR Redmen seemed to have considerable difficulty in stopping Gary Clark every time he went in for a layup. Eric Juergens guarded Clark early in the fracus, but piled up four personals in the first quarter and fouled out shortly after the second half began.

Cohen left the game in the middle of the third quarter after scoring 22 points. He was not needed thereafter. The Tangerines led 80-52 as the third quarter ended.

The second five opened for Andy Mogish in the fourth quarter. Coach Mogish cleared his bench as the game progressed. The crowd roared as Jim Brown sank a jump shot to enable the Frosh to reach the century mark.

Cohen and Gary Clark led the Tangerines in scoring with identical marks of seven field goals and eight fouls for 22 points. Jim Snyder with 19, and Lou Stark and Neil Wilcox with 10 apiece, also went into the double figure column for the victors. Lou Breger with 19 and Bill Kogan who hit for 13 topped the visitors.

Syracuse Swimmers Prep for Williams Meet on Saturday

A highly regarded Williams swim team invades the Orange Pool Saturday to face Coach Ted Webster's once-beaten Syracuse mermen in a dual meet starting at 3:00 p.m.

The Piety swimmers will have to show tremendous improvement over their performance against Columbia last week to beat Williams, which reportedly has good balance, depth and speed—everything needed for a successful season.

Int co-Captains Ed Rodgers, a diver, and Jim Douglass, a breaststroker, the Williamsmen have two potential first place winners. Douglass swam the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:20 in last year's Eastern championship meet.

Several sophomores should play an important role in the Williams scoring since last year's frosh relay team was clocked in 3:34 in the Easterns.

Before Saturday's meet with Bill Orange, the Ephmen will swim the Colgate Red Raiders at Colgate on Friday afternoon. In their only meet of the young season, the boys from Massachusetts soundly thumped Union College.

After the Williams encounter, the Orange mermen will be idle until February 6 when they will journey to Pennsylvania to face Pittsburgh university. The freshmen nattators will be inactive until the 19th of February.

Frosh Wrestlers Set for Preppers

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Coach Joe McDaniel's frosh wrestlers play host for the second straight week at Archbold gymnasium this Saturday when they meet Wyoming Seminary in a forerunner to the varsity event. Starting time is 1:30 p.m.

The Orange will field the same lineup that saw action against Cornell last weekend with the possible exception of the heavyweight division.

At 147-pounds, Japp Boosman will be McDaniel's choice. Boosman drew last weekend. Ron Marrinelli will grapple at the 157-pound weight division.

Marrinelli and Bob Smith, who will start at the 167-pound division were the only frosh grapplers to win last Saturday. Marrinelli pinned his opponent while Smith came out on the top end of a 4-2 decision.

In all probability, Jim Leutze will start at the 177-pound slot with the heavyweight position remaining open until a wrestle-off between Bob Gage, Jim Rodraya and Jerry Cashman is completed. Gage started against Cornell last week.

THE FROSH wrestlers have three more matches remaining after Saturday's contest. On Feb. 13, Syracuse will meet Oswego State college in the first away meet of the season and two weeks later, the Orange meets Oswego at home. On March 5, the Tangerines close their season against Cornell at Ithaca.

Syracuse will meet a vastly improved Temple wrestling team in the main event this Saturday. The Owls, who are strong in the lower weights, will present a serious threat to the Piety grapplers.

At the Wilkes tournament the week during vacations, Bill Simmons won the 130-pound championship without losing a single point, while brother Dick took third place honors in the 137-pound class.

VETERANS ED Rooney and Hank Gobetz will once again be the Orange mainstays. Rooney decisioned tough Dick Lee last week while Gobetz clinched the Orange win over Cortland with a pin.

CALL FOR OARSMEN

Victor (Mike) Michalson, freshman crew coach, announced yesterday that all lowerclassmen interested in rowing, whether they have experience or not, should see him during registration at the Crew room in the Men's gym.

Michalson will be availjable Feb. 4, 5 and 6 anytime after 2 p.m.

Simmons Selects Orange Lineup For Meet With Maryland Boxers

By JOEL FEIDELMAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The starting lineup of the Syracuse university boxing team was announced yesterday by Coach Roy Simmons in preparation for the debut of the Orange on Saturday at Maryland.

Complications had arisen when it appeared certain that footballer Bruce Yancey would not be in sufficient boxing condition to face the Terps. To compensate for this unexpected development, Simmons pushed his entire lineup up one weight-class with Vince Rigolosi, normally a 165-pounder, filling in for Yancey at 175-pounds.

IN THE OPENING bout Saturday evening, Soph Frank Gueli will represent Syracuse in the 125-pound match. Gueli has looked particularly impressive this week in the 3-round sparring matches at practice. His Maryland opponent, Gary Garber, won eight out of 10 matches last year; which has led Syracuse boxing manager Dick Leibman to term Saturday's 125-pound match as "the bout of the evening."

Boxing in the 132-pound class for the Piety Hillers will be soph Jerry Jaffe, a specialist with the bolo punch which reminds many onlookers of Kid Gavilan. Veteran Art Nelson has moved up one weight-class from last year to fight in the 139-pound bout.

Also moving up from their last year's classes are 147-pounder John Granger, a defending Eastern champ and co-Captain of this year's Orange pugilists with Rigger Rigolosi, and 156-pounder Larry O'Sullivan.

John Pauldine, a returnee to the Orange boxing team after two years in service will face the Terps in the 165-pound bout, while Rigolosi, Eastern champ at 165-pounds last year, will move to 175-pounds to compensate for the loss of Yancey, the regular Hill light heavyweight.

RIGGER WILL face the pride and joy of Maryland, Ronnie Rhodes, in this bout. Two years ago, the sturdy Rhodes decisioned Rigger in the Sugar Bowl tournament, and last year the colorful Syracusan evened the score by beating Rhodes. Saturday's bout will be the rubber match and should be, along with the Gueli-Garber bout, one of the highspots of the evening.

The only match in which Simmons is undecided on who will represent the Orange is the heavyweight slot. Either Red Healey, who has looked good in practice sparring bouts, or footballer Sam Alexander will face Leo Coyne of Maryland. Old-timers around the practice ring in Archbold stadium remember Coyne as the boy who gave Syracuse's George Kartalian a good match two years ago.

Last year Maryland was the only team to tie Syracuse in dual competition, 4-4 in the Orange Bowl tourney, but the undefeated Hill boxers took the measure of the Terrapins in their second meeting, 5-3.

The probable lineup for the Terps is Garber at 125-pounds, Guido Capri at 132-pounds, soph Eric Heintze at 139-pounds and veteran Bob Theofield at 147-pounds. Soph Royd Smith will box at 156-pounds, veteran Bill McInnis at 165-pounds, Rhodes at 178-pounds and Coyne at heavyweight.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

One of the most important wins in Syracuse basketball history was manufactured last night by a team which refused to quit. Time and again an amazed Cornell quintet built up their lead to what they thought to be safe proportions, only to see it torn down completely by the scrapping, battling Orange.

Syracuse fans had cause to be boastfully proud of their team last night. In decided contrast to the two previous games, Marc Guley's Warriors rose to the occasion with their best game of the year.

In the dressing room, the Orange coach was so overcome with emotion that he could only say, "It was a team victory." These five words summed up the game in a nutshell.

It was amazing to see how cool the team acted at times. Especially in the waning seconds, when the score was tied, the ball was passed methodically from man to man before the old veteran Mel Besdin swished the cords with the shot heard round the campus.

In speaking of his winning set, Mel said, "We had orders to drive toward the basket as soon as we could. Morton played me back so far that I felt that I couldn't go in. A set was the only thing to do."

To name the individuals who contributed to the victory would be to name the whole team. But one who stood out aside from top scorer Besdin was Manny Breland.

The tall sophomore really came of age as he scored 14 points, mostly on deadly long sets, constantly stole the ball and held highly-touted Ray Zelek to 10 points including a scoreless first half.

The team which we saw last night was a different squad from that which played Pittsburgh or Penn State. It was a cooler, better-thinking team. With the passing attack clicking like the precision of an IBM machine, top flight basketball came hand-in-hand.

One item of interest which was especially gratifying was that the entire team was cashing in on their free throws. They hit on 25 out of 32 shots for a very respectible 78.1 percentage.

The victory is even more amazing when one considers that Guley played his so-called second team in for a good portion. Walt Scott, Gus Castellini, Lou Cegala, Dick Jaskot, Connie Zimmick and Clyde (Moose) Murrock all had their part in the win.

For Cornell, it was a bitter defeat—especially Syracuse has been the only team to take the measure of the Ithacamen. If the Guleymen can play this way the rest of the schedule, it is certain that nationally rated clubs such as Fordham and Niagara will have their hands full.

But as that great sage Al Zak chuckled after the game, "I lost 10 pounds watching that one." Everyone sweated through last night too, Al.

Comic Campaigners

"BEER PARTY" and "PARTY PARTY" candidates campaign for today's mock Skytop elections in Sims dining hall, where many vegetables were thrown their way.

Orange to Open For Dancing Soon

Damages Estimated In Sunday Fire

The Orange, popular meeting spot, plans to reopen for dancing tomorrow or Saturday night. Damage to the upstairs dance floor was estimated yesterday at $22,000 by Roger Horn, the assistant manager.

He stated that "we are rushing to completion the repairs on the dance floor and we should open Friday or Saturday night for dancing." The downstairs bar was reopened yesterday and will remain open.

THE DANCE floor of the "O" was destroyed in a 2-2 alarm blaze Sunday afternoon. Flames were believed to have started near a basement oil stove. Some firemen indicated that the stove may have exploded. Flames raced from the basement into an unoccupied second floor apartment and from there up the partitions to the dance floor where most of the damage was centered.

Proprietor Benjamin Bloom, Richard Kernau, a bartender, and "Red" Russell, a porter were the only people in the building when the fire broke out. Firemen from ten companies resonded when the district fire chief sounded the 2-2 alarm.

MORE MORE TO COME 'O'

Formerly a house, the building has grown with additions several times. Storage and kitchen space was attached at the rear and a barroom on the front.

THE ORANGE, located at 721 S. Crouse ave., was the site of one of three major blazes, two of them in the University area, between noon and 9 p.m. Sunday.

Another fire caused an estimated $25,000 damage to an apartment house at 503 University ave. Fire inspectors arrested a resident of the apartment house on suspicion of arson, but released him when he produced proof that he was elsewhere at the time the fire broke out.

Skytop to Elect Officers Today

Procopio Addresses Freshman Class

Francis Procopio, Frosh class president, told his class in Sims last night that the mock Skytop election today will serve to bring the fellows closer together.

As the candidates running for the "Beer party" and "Party Party," made their campaign speeches the audience flung tomatoes and other vegetables at them.

Nels Poulsen, running on the "Party" slate for fire commissioner promises that "there will never be another disaster like the Orange."

Balloting will be held from noon to 10 p.m. today. Votes will be accepted by Skytop resident advisors, who will tally the votes and announce the winner.

The election and campaign is being led by Joseph Easton, M-3.

Additional provisions of the room are a snack bar and facilities for club meetings, conferences, dances and parties. The James room was remodeled from space on the fourth floor of Barnard hall.

Decision Not Yet Set On Vacation Dining

Survey of Students Scheduled Soon

A statement from the dean of men's office yesterday indicated that no final word has reached that staff about the possibility that one or more campus dining halls may remain open for the benefit of those students who are granted permission to stay here during the semester vacation.

It was the opinion of other administration sources that no decision on the matter would be reached in time for publication.

A SURVEY OF students who are allowed to remain will be conducted to determine if it is necessary and practical to provide dining services during the five-day period. The results will be announced through head residents, resident advisors and proctors of the various living centers.

This indicates that an announcement made last week that dining halls would be closed during the vacation might be changed if there is enough need for University eating facilities.

The dining hall possibility follows announcement Wednesday that students who find it essential to remain here will not be charged an extra fee for living quarters during the vacation.

MISS COPELAND announced that six graduate and five undergraduate houses will remain open for the vacation period.

Graduate houses are Kent, Patterson, Peck I, Sargent, Bibley and Rogers. Undergraduate living centers are Winchell, Haven, Lima, Shaw and Sims.

Any woman student wishing permission to stay on campus for the vacation must contact the dean of women's office Monday, Jan. 18.

Housing facilities for men will be taken care of through resident advisors and proctors in the various living centers.

Air ROTC Classes Stage Mock Trials

Pvt. James R. Blank was on trial five times this week in air force ROTC.

Charged with larceny—a violation of article 121, Uniform Code of Military Justice—Pvt. Blank (a mythical character) went before a mock special court martial in five of Maj. Robert E. Wood's Air Science III classes on military justice.

The accused was freed only in one class. In another he was found guilty of the larceny charge, while the remaining three courts returned a verdict of guilty of wrongful appropriation, a lesser offense.

Class members filled the roles of all participants in the trials. There were six court members, a trial counnsel and assistant, defense counsel and assistant, reporter, commanding officer and accused. Each side also presented a number of witnesses to establish its case.

The basic situation as presented in each class was the same: Pvt. Blank had been caught in his barracks during a time when the building was supposed to be empty and he was seen by Sgt. Dunn, NCO in charge of quarters, bending over Airman Sam's trunk. When accosted, Pvt. Blank dropped A/2C Sam's pen on the floor and put Sam's watch into his pocket.

In the court martial Pvt. Blank claimed he was picking the pen and watch, valued at a total of $20, off the floor and was going to put them into the trunk.

Winter Weekend Plans Scheduled

— Programs, Pins —

With the weatherman permitting, "Alpine Holiday" will make an advance appearance on the Syracuse campus during registration week when the sale of winter weekend buttons and programs and tickets for the Sno-ball dance begins.

Priced at 25 cents, the souvenir programs will have 32 pages and 15 pictures. Descriptions of each winter weekend event will be included in the program which will be sold at the gym during registration and throughout campus the week preceeding the annual weekend.

Button committee chairman Leslie Rubin has announced the souvenir pins, priced at 15 cents, will also be sold at the gym during registration and continue on sale throughout the following week.

The pins, which were also designed by Carroll, will be orange and brown with the St. Bernard dog depicted. The lettering will say, "Alpine Holiday, S.U. Winter Carnival." Sale of the button is under the direction of Suzanne Taylor.

"EMPEROR'S WALTZ" tickets for the annual junior prom, the Sno-ball, will also be available beginning at registration. Tickets for the semi-formal affair, scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 13, are $3.50.

— Ice Pageant —

"A Little Country Road in Switzerland" will go international and appear at Syracuse as part of the Winter Weekend Ice Pageant, Friday, Feb. 12. It will be one of the two feature chorus scenes in the annual pageant according to chairman Phyllis Krinovitz.

In keeping with the weekend's "Alpine Holiday" theme, the girls in the ice show will dress in Swiss hats and shirts with Bermuda shorts and suspenders.

ABOUT 30 GIRLS will appear in each chorus scene, wearing pastel-colored formals in the "Carousel Waltz" scene.

Other scenes in the show will include a comedy act by Orange gridiron stars turned thespian, and solos by Miss Krinovitz and Jack McLaughlin.

Miss Krinovitz is a well-known figure skater in upper New York where she is a senior champion of the Lake Placid Skating club. McLaughlin also holds many titles and is a member of the Syracuse Figure Skating club.

Another possible addition to the pageant is a baton twirling act on ice. Choreography for the entire show, which has a cast of 40 is being done by Charles Irwin.

THE SHOW will be one of the opening events of the weekend, immediately following the official opening torchlight parade and the crowning of the Empress. Miss Krinovitz announced the show will last about 45 minutes.

Skiing will also be featured over the weekend with both intramural and intercollegiate competition on the slate.

Slalom and downhill races are scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 13 in both categories. Collegiate squads that have already announced they will be here for the affair are Cornell, RPI, Army and Clarkson along with Syracuse.

Any campus group can enter

Coeds Must Inform Administration Of Vacation Plans

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Any woman student who is not going directly home for the semester vacation must obtain a blue overnight slip at Winchell or Shaw in order to conform with University regulations.

According to women's student government Vice-President Elizabeth Brydon, the University is responsible for coeds at all times during class weeks, exams and registration periods. Therefore the coeds are expected to inform the University of all destinations during these times.

FOLLOWING FINAL examinations coeds may take city overnights without using pink permission slips. However, there will be no auomatic 12's for those who remain here for part or all of the 24 hours which they are allowed after last exams.

Automatic 12's have been granted for Wednesday, Feb. 3 for students returning to register on Thursday.

Nurses and other students with permission to remain at the University will have the regular 1:30 curfew Saturday, Jan. 30 and automatic 12's Sunday the 31st, Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 1 and 2.

Miss Brydon asked that all women students who have particular transportation problems petition WSG before leaving for vacation if they find it necessary to return before 6 a.m. or after 12 midnight.

No coed will receive a diploma without having fulfilled all penalties imposed by WSG.

If, at any time during the exam period, a graduating senior should incur enough late minutes for a campus or should incur another penalty of any sort, she should call a senior officer immediately to take care of it.

THE WSG office will be open from 12 to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday during exam weeks, but will be closed in the afternoon.

Curfew Sunday, Feb. 7 is 10 p.m. Classes will begin the following day. At that time freshman women who are not on probation will be granted 10:15 weeknight permissions and seniors who will graduate in June will receive 12 o'clocks.

If any coed has reason to believe she is on probation she should begin next semester taking a permission which is an hour earlier than the regular curfew. If she does not and later learns she is on probation she will have incurred late minute penalties.

Any coed who has voided one or more special pink permission slips during the semester and wishes to have new ones to replace them should contact a senior officer personally or pick them up at the WSG office.

Miss Brydon requested that all house presidents or head residents clip this information and post it on bulletin boards.

Fordham Favored Over Piety Quintet

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's rapidly improving basketball squad will be cast in the underdog role tomorrow night when it goes after its ninth win against four losses as hosts to powerful Fordham at Archbold gym. Game time is 8:30 p.m.

The inexperienced Orangemen are improving with every game, having hit their season's peak in Wednesday night's 71-69 victory over Cornell. Nevertheless they seem to be stepping out of their class against the highly-touted Rams.

COACH JOHN BACH's squad is rated the class of the New York city area, having racked up nine wins while dropping only two battles against the nation's top fives. Included in the Rose Hiller's victims were Niagara, NYU and Princeton, all early season conquerors of the Pietymen.

Fordham's only defeats were suffered at the hands of powerful LSU, in the Sugar bowl and St. Francis of Brooklyn. Latest national basketball ratings had the Rams rated among the first tweny quintets in the country.

In contrast, Coach Marc Guley's sophomore-studded Orangemen have played erratic ball all season, showing their inexperience. The underclassmen were prominent in the Cornell victory, though, and may be all over their early season jitters.

Leading the visitors' attack will be high-scoring junior center Ed Conlin. The 6 ft.-4 rebounder has socred in double figures throughout the season and is being mentioned as a possible all-American candidate. With Dave Kline absent from the Syracuse lineup with a broken wrist, the local five may have trouble stopping Conlin under the boards.

ANOTHER OUTSTANDING threat for the Rams is 6 ft.-4 forward Dan Lyons. Another junior from the Bronx, Lyons outscored Conlin two years ago when both were playing varsity ball as freshman. He is rated by Bach as "one of the finest hoop prospects that Rose Hill has ever seen."

Capt. Ed Parchinski will team up with Lyons at the front court spots while Jim Cunningham and Al Larkin will probably round out the starting quintet.

Parchinski, a 6 ft.-2 senior is also a dangerous scoring threat, consistently hitting for double figures. He is especially dangerous with a set shot from the corner.

Cunningham and Larkin are both excellent passers in addition to having good driving ability. The 6 ft. Larkin is the defensive star of the club having held some of the nation's top scorers under control. Cunningham is the squad's speedster and possesses an accurate set shot.

BACH HAS largely a veteran quintet in his fourth year as the Ram's mentor. Only absentees from the 1952-53 squad are Mike Woods and John Wizbicki, both substitutes.

Guley will probably start the same five men he opened with in the Cornell thriller. Ron Kilpatrick will open at center with Ron Gillespie and Manny Bre-

Grant Presented To Clinic by ADPi

The national organization of Alpha Delta Pi in conjunction with the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults recently presented a grant of $500 to the Gordon Hoople Speech and Hearing Center. The check was presented to Dr. DiCarlo, director of the center, by Betty Carlow, president of local chapter and Miss Janet Miese, a representative of the sorority's service committee. A respirator for use in work with the cerebral palsied will be bought.

The center has been chosen as part of the extensive philanthropic program of the sorority. In previous years the local chapter has supported many gift projects, parties for the children, and individual workers at the clinic.

Senate Officials Say Call of LePage Valid

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Officials of the senate permanent investigations subcommittee have said there was no mystery or no mistake about the calling of Prof. Wilbur R. LePage, Syracuse university professor, as a witness in executive session Dec. 16, the New York Times reported yesterday.

Aides of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), said the committee had received information from "competent sources" that Prof. LePage might have information he could furnish about alleged Communist espionage at Griffis air force base in Rome.

THE ELECTRICAL engineering professor was subpoenead and came to New York, but he swore under oath before the investigation group that he didn't have the information the committee was seeking.

Sen. McCarthy was satisfied that LePage was telling the truth, and excused him as a witness. The Hill prof reported that the senator had apologised to him at that time because he had apparently been subpoenaed in error.

Last week the Wisconsin Republican told reporters that LePage was "a friendly witness, but he had no information that would interest us; I have no information that he was a Communist of any kind, or subversive."

The Times also reported that McCarthy has announced it was not the intention of the committee when it called LePage, to make public the fact that he had been summoned to testify. The professor, however, was told that he was free to make any statements publicly he wished about his testimony.

Weatherman Does More Than Talk About It

By MICHAEL BRAUN

The most important man in town these days seems to be Andrew Keller. Keller is Syracuse's weatherman. Because everyone is talking about things dear to his heart we decided that a trip to Hancock field to visit him would be in order.

We started out and soon lost our way among the winding streets. But we hailed a passing citizen who drew us a detailed diagram and we were on our way.

KELLER, SURROUNDED by a mass of instruments was there to meet us. We were then turned over to Elmer, one of the weathermen. No sooner had we been introduced than our newly acquired guide picked up the phone to inform some interested party that the temperature was 12 degrees above zero.

We asked whether he received many of these calls. "Not many," he said, "About 5,000 a week; used to be more." Elmer has been checking instruments at weather bureau for 33 years. Not always at Hancock though.

He told us that 30 years ago the weather station was located on the roof of the Hall of Languages. It seems that the weather vane that now stays on the roof is all that remains of a once-glorious past.

Since HL, Elmer has worked in Detroit and Honolulu. He spent

Be advised

In less than three weeks Syracusans will start traveling the registration trail. They may meet with adversity along the way, in the form of lines, IBM cards, and faculty advisory system that is extremely inefficient.

It is no rare occurrence that a student goes through eight semesters in the same program and consults with many during that time.

The advisors in Syracuse university work in shfits—for a certain amount of hours each day. Many of us don't know who our registration advisor will be from one term to the next.

Furthermore, in the registration and "guidance" process, sometimes not being acquainted with students previously and sometimes not being themselves in the same program in which the student may be, the advisers may suggest the course which the student would be eligible for, rather than the courses that the student may be interested in.

Conceivably blame could be placed upon the student for not taking it upon himself to select as advisor the instructor he thinks would be most helpful.

But, because, for lower classmen especially, advisers are assigned by the University, we consider that this is the fault of the University advisory system.

We suggest that the University readjust its program so that each instructor is assigned a number of students in his field. They should be required to meet with their advisors a few times each semester and before registration, rather than taking "pot-luck."

When a student changes his program or selects his major he should be encouraged by his present advisor or by the University to consider that perhaps another teacher might be able to help him more.

In this way, we believe, to borrow the interesting term Dr. Cressey coined to Campus Leaders, that students may yet be able to become "junior partners" of the faculty and may be able to save time wasted by the wrong courses. Managing Editor

What's ahead?

The next Daily Orange you open will be dated Feb. 5, 1954.

What headlines will capture student interest during next semester? What problems and activities will complete a busy year?

Not claiming to know "the inside scoop of the crystal ball," we venture some predictions and hopes for February-June, 1954:

This semester will see a turning point for the Student Union activites. We cross our fingers in hopes that the Friday night dances will be resumed after five months of impatient waiting. We also hope that this will be the semester when the Administration announces plans for a central location for the old Union facilities: informal lounging, juke box, TV set, ping pong etc. etc. They may be gone now, but they're hardly forgotten.

The physical plant of the University will continue to unfold: Engineering buildings will rise from the Quad, the law school will put on its outer dress and Marian and Watson halls will be placed in the completed category.

While progress will be recorded in the building program on the main campus, the last "relic of an ancient age," the Castle will die under the pressure of that same progress.

"Up in Lights" promises a Spring Weekend that will be ranked among the greatest. Campus elections candidates will hold student attention but only a few will not call it a single flash of fame.

This is also the semester when the dream of an examination schedule out earlier than two weeks before finals comes true.

The greatest glory, however, is reserved to the seniors, who this year, will march out University doors and put a forceful period to spring semester-1954, as members of Syracuse's 100th commencement class.

LETTERARY COMMENT

GOOD NEWS; 1 CAPITAL; E.E. RETORTS

Half-way

Dear Editor:

The announcement in this morning's Daily Orange that the Administration has altered its policy on the post-exam vacation at the end of this month came as very good news. Certainly this policy change will be well-received by all students who did not feel that the expense of the vacation could be met without financial worry.

The fact that the Administration is willing to change its plans to suit the needs of the students, and pays close attention to student opinion offers much to be appreciated. By once again proving itself willing to meet the students halfway, the Administration has kept the friendship of the student body.

'Culture'

Dear Managing Editor:

It seems in your recent article on culture, an important grammatical ommission was evident, or being an Electrical Engineer perhaps my cultural background is such that it is ill-equipped to fathom such profound philosophizing.

Your portrayal of culture seemed to rationalize a search for refinement and aesthetic appreciation as an escape from an abyss of confusion and indecision.

It seems that anyone of college caliber should:

1. Have already been exposed to pursuits which they may become interested in.
2. Already be free to pursue these interests.
3. And last should reduce some so-called "General Goals" to specific ones.

In closing may I point out that any antipathy towards apparent social apathy might be tempered, with an understanding of the various curriculum and their demands.

Sincerely,

R. L. Kittredge

Escape?

Dear Mr. Kittredge:

I was not attempting to rationalize search for cultural appreciation as an escape. In an indirect way it was my intention to point out the mediocrity of the person who would usually be called well-rounded.

I agree with you that the person of college caliber should be exposed to pursuits that may be interested in, and others that they can get interested in.

I also believe that general goals should be reduced to specific ones, with the thought that it is better to develop one's own interests than to pursue a little bit of everything just because everyone else seems to be pursuing it. To me, this is what we would call "culture," for lack of a better word.

Blowing a Good F-flat; Notes on Red Finals

By HOMER

(While studying for our Russian history final in the library the following notes fell out. Censored blotches were scattered through and there was a 38 caliber hole scorched in one corner.)

6 p.m. "Comrade, finals tomorrow . . . tonight, study! "Loving proctor's voice fading down hallway; real tyrant, bless him. Turn to history book: "First communist was comrade Socrates, taught subversion to Greek masses, martyr to cause. Hannibal great communist general who was victorious over raging cold of Alps . . . attacked subversibly from the rear. Brutus great communist statesman who fought for people, subversively stabbed Caesar in the back. Medici great communist family who benevolently ruled people . . subversively in guise of merchants. Da Vinci great communist painter, painted subversive picture of enigmatic Mona Lisa, first great communist spy." 7:15 p.m. Proctor strides in room. Gives me shot of state no-doze serum . . . tell proctor makes me feel alert and steadies nerves . . . proctor strides out, he's a butcher with the needle, bless him. Take slug of coffee and light cigarette, turn to science study: "Properties of water discovered by Noah, great communist aquatologist (?); aerodynamics first studies by Icarus; was martyrized by filthy capitalist heat magnet. Theory of ancestry of man discovered by Comrade Darwin, great communist exiled to South Sea by mistake. Theory of jet propulsion discovered by unknown communist hero who punctured filthy capitalist balloon with pitchfork." 8:45 p.m. Roommate shuffles in and is shackled to desk by beloved proctor. "Who is ancient enemy of the state?" he barks at me. "Henry Ford," I whip back. Benign smile lights his face . . . playful lash of whip across my trifocals as he leaves, bless him. Back to books . . . turn to literature: "Dante great communist author to first reveal evils of capitalist state . . By BOP

Dear Bix:

Here we are . . . out of cigarettes. The blinds are drawn. My clarinet is making it in the corner. My threads are threadbare. Dad, I've had it. If they asked me, I could write a book. Right now I'm reading one. Several.

The only notes to be heard are the wailings of my Benny Goodman "Carnegie Hall." LP. Dug a Gene Krupa riff.

But there is nothing that us mortals can do. The die has been cast. Finals.

More confusion than Sauter-Finegan's "Extended Play Suite." I am blowing an f-flat in almost all of them. A perfect fugue. My books may be near but where are my thoughts.

I guess I'll have to change my plans.

Jack, Louie, the Duke, Dizzy, Shorty, Homer and I decided to to the Orange. Get some of that old black magic. More bounce to the quart, man. Liquid levity. Soupy suds.

The session jumped moderately. We telegraphed the feeling of dispair. The lads just weren't with it, you know? Sometmies as uncool as Shep Field's "Does the Speerment Lose Its Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight?"

Tried a series of old favorites like "Cool Daddy," "Cool Lady," "Cool Cats," "Cool Sugar," "Laughing Lucy," and "Schooooo Bo Be." Flopped not bopped. All squares, we felt.

Tried flying home bit. Made it half-hour later.

But Jacquet was dancing on my ceiling and Shearing rocking near the window. Images, blowing, swing, bopping; pictures at exhibition. Dream stuff.

My cit book turned to a Kenton score. Jefferson and the boys did a one-night at Constitution hall and Ben Franklin was on drums. Wild.

Logie chipped into bop. Spinoza swung a chorus of "Lollypop" ala Terry Gibbs. Kant pulled on Armstrong vocal. Dewey played his harmonica. "Ebb Tide." Was the end.

Math jumped. All squares rounded and obtuses quadrangled. Frantic logs and lilting triangles. I failed to prove anything.

Made a flip to literature. This cat Hemingway had it cool in the Spanish war but the characters just don't jive. Tried a Gordon Jenkins "Seven Dreams" as background but this session doesn't hit it. Made it through the pages in four-quarter time but the boy spins 33 on a 45.

Tries to dig a chapter with Proust but he's the deadest. Just don't get the feel, if you know what I mean, the boy is deep, just deep and I go to sleep in it.

Made it to a page on Frost but the man doesn't send me like when this number began. The lyrics get the rhythm but they can't hit the beat and come alive.

All in all, Bix, man. I got nothing done in the line of study. I will make a stand here next season.

But dad, it was the wildest. The moon, it shines so bright.

Love,

IN THE HALLWAY

Political Tug-of-war

By ED HARDY

The tug of war is on again and the political pot is beginning to boil.

Independent and Greek forces once again split in the men's student government assembly as the controversial political parties act came up for a vote and was finally passed. The same bill was presented last March, but 34 independents blocked passage by offering a bill to ban all political parties from campus. The move was obviously inspired by proponents of Non-Partisan League, now-dissolved party which usually supported candidates of other parties.

In despute in the act is a phrase which limits endorsement of a candidate to one party. Thus a name can appear on a ballot but once.

It is obviously aimed at groups like NPL. Supporters feel that it is an unfair advantage to candidates to have their names appear more than once on a ballot—especially when backed by a third party that exists probably only for its bargaining power.

The independent leaders in this year's assembly met after the meeting Tuesday and drew up a "minority report" which they presented to MSG President Stanley Leff in hopes that he would veto the act. He has until the next scheduled meeting of the assembly, Feb. 16, to sign or reject. If Leff does refuse to sign the parties act, it would go back to the legislature, where it would require a two-thirds vote before it can become law.

The arguments given to Leff claim the act violates the constitution of MSG, ignores democratic rights, suppress the rights of small groups and "would further add to the condition of indifference in the field of politics."

The independent bloc, which numbered but seven in this second round, put up a good fight to get things its own way, but now they discovered the shoe was on the other foot.

A pervious point of argument was fixed to satisfaction of all in this session when the required bond for a party was lowered from $50 to $25.

Well, the perennial Greek-independent battle rages on. Who knows. We may see a fourth party in spring elections.

THE FINAL WORD

TIPS FOR THE FUTURE SEMESTER

Are you one of those rare people who were floored by finals? Have you vowed to "get an A or bust" next semester? Relax! Your worries are over. While glancing through the Missouri Miner newspaper the other day, we came across these sure tips on how to rate that A.

1. Bring the professor newspaper clippings dealing with his subject—any clippings will do; he thinks everything deals with his subject.
2. Look alert. If you look at your watch, don't stare at it unbelievingly and shake it.
3. Nod frequently and murmer "How true!"
4. Sit in front, near the prof (only if you intend to stay awake).
5. Laugh at his jokes. You can tell. If he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, he has told a joke.
6. Ask for outside reading. Don't read it—just ask for it.
7. If you sleep, arrange to be awakened. It creates an unfavorable impression to trapse sleepily out the door five minutes after everyone else leaves.
8. Be sure the book you read in his class looks like a book from the same course (match books for size and color).
9. Ask any questions he can answer. Avoid announcing that you found the answer to a question that stumped him in your little brother's second grade reader.

There you have it. Get to work, and we'll see you on the dean's list.

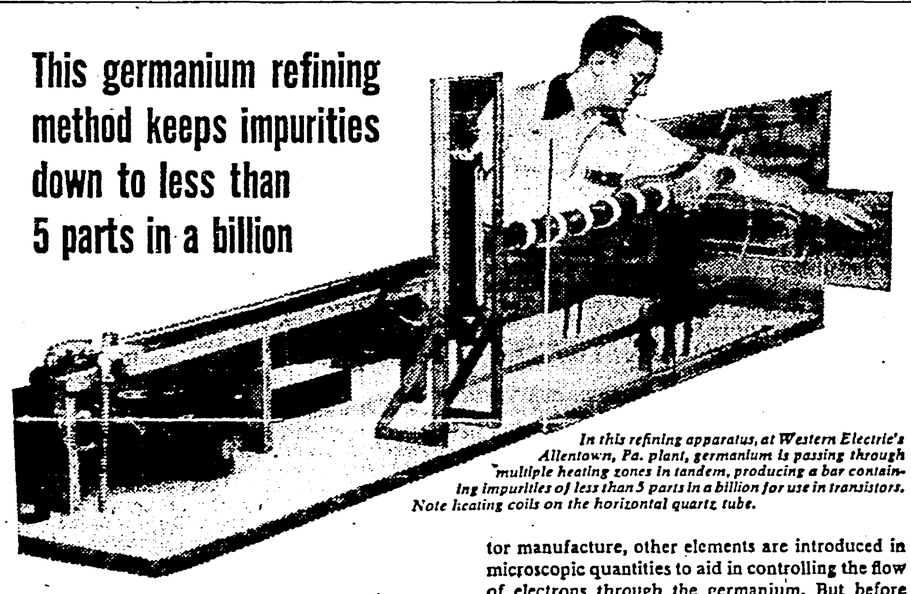
One Stop to Broadway

The stirring "Caine Mutiny Court Martial," dramatic segment of Herman Wouk's best selling book, will be presented on the stage of Lincoln auditorium tomorrow evening at 8:15 p.m. The performance, under the auspices of Famous Artists series, is an overwhelming sellout.

One of this season's outstanding stage packages, the production starr John Hodiak, Henry Fonda and Lloyd Nolan. It is presented under the direction of Paul Gregory and Charles Laughton who were responsible for last season's "Don Juan in Hell" and "John Brown's Body."

"Caine Mutiny Court Martial" will open in New York city on Wednesday, Jan. 20, where it is said to be sold out for three months.

This germanium refining method keeps impurities down to less than 5 parts in a billion



In this refining apparatus, at Western Electric's Allentown, Pa. plant, germanium is passing through multiple heating zones in tandem, producing a bar containing impurities of less than 5 parts in a billion for use in transistors. Note heating coils on the horizontal quartz tube.

A new method of metal refining, currently in use at the Western Electric plant at Allentown, results in the production of germanium that is better than 99.9999995% pure—the highest degree of purity ever attained in a manufactured product.

The need for germanium of such exceptional purity came about when research by Bell Telephone Laboratories in the field of semi-conductors led to the development of transistors, which are manufactured by Western Electric.

The transistor is a tiny crystal device which can amplify and oscillate. It reduces space requirements and power consumption to a minimum.

Germanium crystals of the size required in transistors do not occur in nature; they are artificially grown at Western Electric. At this stage in transistor manufacture, other elements are introduced in microscopic quantities to aid in controlling the flow of electrons through the germanium. But before these elements can be introduced, it is necessary to start with germanium of exceptional purity, so that the impurities will not interfere with the elements that are deliberately added.

So Bell Telephone Laboratories devised an entirely new method of purification, known as zone refining, which was developed to a high-production stage by Western Electric engineers.

In zone refining a bar of germanium is passed through a heat zone so that a molten section traverses the length of the bar carrying the impurities with it and leaving behind a solidified section of higher purity. By the use of multiple heating zones in tandem, a number of molten sections traverse the bar. Each reduces the impurity content thus producing a bar which contains impurities in the amount of less than five parts per billion.

Because of the importance of the transistor in electronics, the zone refining process—like so many other Western Electric developments—has been made available to companies licensed by Western Electric to manufacture transistors.

This is one more example of creative engineering by Western Electric men. Engineers of all skills—mechanical, electrical, chemical, industrial, metallurgical, and civil—are needed to help us show the way in fundamental manufacturing techniques.

Various forms which germanium takes before being used in transistors are shown in this photo. Bar at top is an ingot of germanium after reduction from germanium dioxide. Next is shown the germanium ingot after the zone refining process used by Western Electric. Below the ingots are shown 3 germanium crystals grown by machine, 6 slices cut from these crystals, and several hundred germanium wafers ready for assembly into transistors.

BY GEORGE MEEK

"Pure atheists deserve more respect than agnostics," declared Dr. J. V. angmead Casserley, noted Episcopal theologian, in a lecture yesterday in Maxwell auditorium. He defined the agnostic as a "middle of the road" individual who tries unsuccessfully to live in a state of suspended judgment. This is impossible, said Dr. Casserley, because a man must believe or not believe.

SUSPENDED JUDGMENT is only practical in cases which do not involve action, and since religious beliefs is by nature active, suspended judgment does not apply," he said.

Dr. Casserley pointed out that though the absolute skeptic professes to believe in nothing, he actually believes in disbelief."

"True irreligion," stated the speaker, "consists of outright rejection of religion. It is not made up of indifference to religion or ignorance of religion."

Irreligion is a spiritual condition, in which only a spiritual man can find himself, according to religion."

HE DISCUSSED his subject from th evarious viewpoints of view of psychology, sociology and theology. The lecture contained many colorful and humorous illustrations, including a quotation by Talleyrand concerning how to start up a new religion: "Crucify yourself an drise again in three days.'"

Honest skepticism has a place in religion, he pointed out. This skepticism is justifiable concerning life after death and similar debatable matters.

More than 200 persons attended the lecture, which was the third in the current series of humanities lectures. The two previous lecturers were an archeologist and a philosopher.

He will speak to a joint meeting of the chapel house representatives and the Protestant council at 4:15 p.m. today in Hendricks chapel. Tonight he will address men of the University Methodist church and Grace Episcopal church at 6:30 p. m. at the Methodist church.

Duo-Pianists to Give Recital Jan. 21

Two of America's unique musicians, the duo-piano team of Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Nemenoff, will present the third concert of the current Civic Morning Musicals series Thursday, Jan. 21 in Lincoln auditorium.

Leading exponents of duo-piano literature, Luboshutz and Nemenoff recognized early in their careers that this type of playing called for distinctive techniques and coloring. They have received superlative notices from critics across the country. The team is among a handful of instrumentalists to appear with Maestro Arturo Toscanini.

They have performed on several occasions with the Philadelphia orchestra and in London and Paris. A three-week stay in Israel, which followed a European tour last year, included a dozen orchestral concerts and some four recital appearances.

Included in the Luboshutz and Nemenoff concert will be Mozart's "Sonata in D Major," "Lindaraja" by DeBussy, the suite from the ballet "On Stage" and Chopin's "Rondo."

Tickets for the performance will be available at the Morning Musicals' office in the Clark Music building.

'Lysistrata' Opens Feb. 18, Falk Says

By MARIA HEITZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The opening date for the Boar's Head presentation of "Lysistrata" has been set for Feb. 18, according to Professor Sawyer Falk, head of the drama department.

The Greek comedy by Aristophanes which will be presented in Machinery hall, stars a sophomore, Barbara Hush, Chi Omega, in the leading role of Lysistrata.

THE PLAY, which satirizes the folly of war, comes up with an effective though unconventional plan for disarmament. The women of Greece band together in order to stop the war between Athens and Sparta which has been raging for 20 years. Their peace plan rests upon their determination not to sleep with their husbands until a treaty is signed between the two city states. The scheme proves to be more effective than anything anyone has come up with since.

Tickets for "Lysistrata" will be priced at $1 and $1.50. Social chairmen may arrange for theater parties and block seating for 15 or more persons may be arranged for at a 15% reduction.

Members of the cast include Shirley Fenner, a senior in drama as Myrrhine and Gerald Leider, faculty advisor to Boar's Head as Cinesias.

Other members of the cast include Gerald Reidenbaugh, drama instructor, and Jane Esmay, president of Boar's Head. Also Millie McIntyre, Francesca Trantum, Helen Hurdus, Audrey Hazlett, Teri Seidman, Marlene Mueller and Sam Baskin.

THE ENTIRE production is under the supervision of Professor Sawyer Falk, head of the drama department. Gilbert Katz, publicity director for Boar's Head, is acting as stage manager for the play.

John Jay Moore who designed the set for "The Tempest" will design a similar sculpturesque fixed set for "Lysistrata."

Plans Announced For Room Changes

Coeds Must Notify Head Residents First

All women students who wish to change rooms within their living centers should consult with their head residents before Monday, Jan. 18, according to an announcement from the dean of women's office.

This opportunity is offered in an effort to give students on campus perference on existing vacancies before assigning rooms to new students who will be arriving in February.

Room changes from one dorm to another will take place following registration, Miss Kathryn Copeland of the dean of women's office has announced.

Drop in Grad Enrollment Of Concern to Educators

Due to the draft, the number of students in scientific graduate work last year fell from 11,300 to 8,000. Various educators have charged that the students are being reclassified 1-A before they complete their programs.

Dr. Howard A. Meyerhoff, president of the Scientific Manpower commission, estimates that 3,000 students were drafted last year prior to completion of school.

IN 34 SCIENCE departments in 19 universities 97 men were reclassified. All have been inducted or are awaiting induction.

Two held instructorships and 23 graduate assistantships. The remaining 72 were full-time students. One was a month away from his philosophy doctorate and six would have completed it within a year.

Dr. Meyerhoff noted that many departments were crippled and that many courses had to be suspended because the drafts took place during the summer, when replacement of instructors is nearly impossible.

Dr. M. H. Trytten, director of the Office of Scientific Personnel of the National Academy of Sciences, warned that if this continues we will have a critical shortage of trained scientists and other personnel.

DEFENDING THE Selective Service's position, Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrom, said that bona fide graduate students were not taken from their classrooms.

A major point of conflict between the Selective Service officials and educators is just who is a graduate student. Does a man who goes to college part-time and works as an instructor part time classify as a graduate student.

General Renfrow stated that legitimate full-time students are not being drafted in any appreciable numbers, but those that accept instructorships or work on research projects become ineligible to continue under exemption.

Prof. Donald S. Clark, director of placements at the California Institute of Technology, declared that the present attitude of the local boards was leading to the reduction of highly trained men, a thing that might cause appalling harm to the national welfare.

DR. LEWIS M. Hammond, dean of the University of Virginia, announced that several chemists who had completed more than two years toward their doctorates and would have received their Ph.D degrees in a year or so were inducted.

The doctor reported that he sent letters of appeal for three advanced chemistry students and one mathmetician. He called attention to the army's desperate need for trained chemists and noted that the men would be available for high level scientific work in national defense in about a year. All the appeals were rejected.

According to Dr. Alan D. Ferguson, director of the Office of Selective Service and Veterans' Affairs at Yale university, 80 graduate students were classified 1-A last year. About 75 students in all fields were drafted.

He declared that most of the trouble comes from New York city boards and that they actually seem hostile toward students. He feels that a national policy is needed.

Hill Cubs Meet Wyoming, Aspire for Sixth Straight

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A victory in the last game before an exam period vacation their aim, Coach Andy Mogish's frosh hoopsters drill today in preparation for tomorrow's invasion of the Wyming Seminary quintet.

The Tangerines will meet the Pennsylvania prep school team in a 6:30 p.m. prelim to the Syracuse-Fordham varsity encounter.

THE YEARLINGS, unbeaten in five games thus far this season, reached their scoring peak in Wednesday night's impressive win over Cornell. The frosh five set a new record for point production on the Archbold gymnasium floor in romping over the Little Red, 107-75.

Syracuse's scoring twins, Vinnie Cohen and Gary Clark, posted identical totals of 22 points in leading the Mogishmen to an unexpectedly one-sided victory.

The Orange cubs led from almost start to finish in posting their fifth victory of the campaign. With Cohen hitting steadily on jump shots and driving layups in the second period, the frosh were able to move to a 48-32 halftime lead.

But the rampaging Syracusans did not let up after the intermission. Practically running the Ithacans off the court, the Tangerines extended their margin to 28 points, 80-52, at the end of the third period.

CORNELL MANAGED to find the scoring range temporarily at the outset of the fourth quarter, but the Hill squad quickly came back and went on to win by over 30 points.

The yearlings placed five men in double figures. After Cohen and Clark, Jim Snyder was the next high in the scoring department with 17 points. Neil Wilcox and Lou Stark registered 10 points apiece to move into the double digit column.

Cohen and Clark, in netting their 22 point totals, each scored seven field goals and eight fouls. Snyder's scoring total was evidence of a return to form for the the 6 ft.-4 forward. He had netted only three points in last weekend's win over General Electric.

The Wyoming Seminary team is an unknown quantity. The frosh football team met the Pennsylvanians last fall and were victims of a 26-21 upset.

Students planning to attend the Syracuse-Fordham game on Saturday are urged to get their tickets early to avoid a last minute rush at the box office.

Tickets can be purchased in Archbold gymnasium today from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and on Saturday up to game time which is 8:30. The price of student tickets is 40 cents with the presentation of ID cards at the gate.

EVERY MAN on the freshman squad got in the game against Cornell. The starting lineup for tomorrow is tentative, but once again, Cohen and Clark appear sure starters. Snyder, Wilcox, Albanese, Brown, Roper and Stark, all outstanding against the Red, will also undoubtedly see much service and the other three starters will probably be chosen from among them.

The Cornell win was the season high in scoring for Syracuse. The team, however, has been a consistently high scoring aggregation which has been victorious in each of its outings by margins which have been in double figures. The closest game thus far for the Mogishmen was the 84-72 conquest of GE.

Classy Cager

GARY CLARK, RANGY 6 ft.-4 scoring star for Syracuse's frosh cagers, will be in the Tangerine lineup tomorrow night when the unbeaten Mogishmen go after their sixth victory. Clark scored 22 points in Wednesday night's 107-75 triumph over the Cornell yearlings.

Injuries Jar Orange Matmen

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

With the announcement that Hank Bianowicz will be out of the lineup indefinitely with an injured shoulder, the Orange wrestlers' hopes for a victory over Temple this Saturday at Archbold gym dropped a notch.

Coach Joe McDaniel will depend for the main part on his top-weight men to pile up points. Garland Harris, co-Capt. Ed Rooney, Hank Gobetz and Chuck Dinkelmeyer will probably carry most of the point-scoring burden.

THE MEET starts at 2:30 and the deciding points of the match may be garnered at that time. Orange sophomore Jim Rose will wrestle Owl Captain Bob McCreary in the opening 123-pound bout. If Rose wins, an Orange victory will be much closer.

The Temple grapplers have two outstanding boys in the next two weight divisions, Brothers Bill Simmons at 130, and Dick Simmons at 137. The visiting Philadelphians will be favored in these two matches.

Piety 147-pounder Tom King and Owl sophomore Jack Scanlon will tussle in another close battle. Then Harris, a senior, will follow in the 157-pound division.

Co-capt. Ed Rooney will meet Temple's best higher weight wrestler, Hugh Cherrie, in the 167-pound match. "Cherrie," said Coach McDaniel, "is a good boy, but he's not in Rooney's class."

GARLAND HARRIS is the 157-pound senior who will start against Temple this Saturday afternoon for Joe McDaniel's Hill grapplers. Harris was pinned in the Cortland meet after leading all the way.

POWERFUL HANK Gobetz, who won by a fall in last week's Cortland match, will be out to duplicate the feat again tomorrow when he meets John DiFiori in the 177-pound class. Veteran Chuck Dinkelmeyer will return to the Orange lineup after suffering an injury in the recent Wilkes tourney to wrestle in the heavyweight division.

McDaniel is counting on Rose with crossed-fingers to upset McCreary in the opening match. McCreary, who has only been beaten twice in three years of varsity competition, went undefeated in ten dual meets last year.

The wily Owl Captain has the edge on experience, but Rose is one of McDaniel's most promising sophomores, and the Long Island youth cannot be counted out.

Once again the Orange squad will be studded with sophomore grapplers. Rose, Husband, Weisz and King are returnees from last year's freshman team. Co-capt. Charley DeBellis will probably return to the lineup next week in the Michigan-Syracuse match in place of one of the latter two.

DeBELLIS BROKE his wrist before vacation in December and can have the cast removed next week. The agile senior was a stellar Orange performer in the 137-pound class last year.

Dick Beyer and Enzo Marinelli will guide the freshmen charges against Wyoming Seminary in the pre-varsity contest at 1:00. Both assistant coaches wrestled for Syracuse last year.

Jaap Boosman, 147-pounder, Ron Marinelli, at 157 and Bob Smith, 167-pound acting captain, gained all the Tangerine points in last week's 27-10 loss to the Cornell yearlings.

Boosman collected two points on a draw, Marinelli got the big five on a fall and Smith added three points by decision. Once again the varsity meet will be televised over local station, WSYR-TV.

Sports Editor Lists Staff Promotions Of Ten Members

Ken Lent, Daily Orange Sports Editor, yesterday announced the promotion of ten members of the sports staff as a result of outstanding work during the past semester.

Promoted to junior editors were Don Henry and Dave Bennett. Both are sophomores in the College of Liberal Arts and have worked on the Daily Orange for three semesters.

Henry hails from Lancaster, Pa., and has covered intramural basketball, frosh track, frosh crew and is presently writing about the doings of Coach Joe McDaniel's varsity wrestlers.

Bennett is a local boy who is presently covering frosh basketball. He formerly covered intramural football and basketball and was intramural director during the fall season this year.

Skiers Compete At Snow Ridge

Syracuse skiers will compete in a field of more than 60 college and ski club racers and jumpers in a meet tomorrow and Sunday at Snow Ridge, Turin, New York.

The Onondaga Alumni Ski club of Syracuse will sponsor the Alpine events, downhill and slalom, on Sunday. All the leading colleges and ski clubs in upstate New York are expected to compete in these contests.

Cornell will sponsor Saturday's events, which include cross-country and jumping. Syracuse will compete with St. Lawrence, RPI, Army, MIT, and Princeton in these events.

Ben Bucko, former intercollegiate jumper, and now a Syracuse attorney, will be chairman of the Invitational on Sunday.

Individual medals will be given for downhill, slalom and combined events. Women's downhill race will start at 10 a.m.; men's downhill at 10:15 a.m.; women's slalom at 1:30 p.m.; and men's slalom at 2 p.m.

The Snow ridge course is considered one of the finest in the East, and this is the first time it will be used for a four-event meet.

Knicks, Lakers Top All-Star Choices

The fourth annual dream game of professional basketball will take place on Jan. 21 when the Eastern and Western all-stars tangle at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Coach Johnny Kundla's Westerners will be out to even the series at two wins apiece. Aiding the Minneapolis coach, will be three of his own players, George Mikan, Jim Pollard and Slater Martin. Included on his team are such greats as Bob Davies and Bob Wanzner of Rochester and Andy Philip of Fort Wayne.

The Eastern squad will probably be coached by Joe Lapchick of the Knicks since his squad is currently pacing his division. Big men for the East are Harry Galhitan of the nKicks, Ed McCauley of the Celtics, Ray Felix of Baltimore, Neil Johnston of the Warriors and big Dolph Schayes of Syracuse.

Small men for the East (anything under 6' 5" is considered small in the pros) include Dick McGuire and Carl Braun of New York, Bob Cousy and Bill Sharman of Boston and Paul Seymour of the Nats.

Bladesmen Resume Play in Two Weeks

The Orange fencers will be seeking their second straight victory of the campaign when they cross swords with the Sampson Airmen on Feb. 5 in Archbold gymnasium.

The match will be limited to only the saber and foil divisions as Sampson's squad is too small to furnish a separate epee team.

IN THE last meet against St. Lawrence, Captain John Goldstein left his accustomed epee class to compete in the saber division. He won his two matches without trouble and he will probably fence in the same class against Sampson.

Al Peck, another experienced performer, will again be heavily counted upon. His fine showing last week of two wins against one loss was an indication that he is in top form.

Willie Schop, who won three in a row at the expense of St. Lawrence, is another of Coach Ben Burtt's mainstays. A good performance by he and Peck could definitely swing the advantage in Syracuse's favor.

Coach Burtt's charges will be in for some intensive workouts in preparation for this match. While most students are enjoyinng vacation between semesters, the fencers will continue to practice.

Nats Down Lakers At Memorial, 96-71

Leading all the way, Syracuse's Nationals defeated the Minneapolis Lakers, 96-71 in the second half of an all professional doubleheader at the War Memorial last night. In the first game, Boston downed Milwaukee, 86-74.

The win was the fourth in a row for the Nats and first of the season over the Lakers. It moves the Cervimen within two games of the Eastern leaders, the New York Knickerbockers.

Five Nats hit double figures with Wally Osterkorn and George King tying for high with 17 points each. George Mikan paced the world champions with 19 markers.

In the opener, Boston kept pace with the Syracuse club in the tight race for second place in the Eastern division with a fairly easy win over Milwaukee's cellar-dwelling Hawks. Don Sunderlage of the Hawks and Ed McCauley of the Celts tied for scoring honors each netting 26 points.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Doc Hugo's pride and joy Roy Simmons sends his pride and joys the Syracuse university boxing team into action tomorrow in their opening meet of the 1954 fistic campaign. With the tremendous effect of the brilliant Cornell hoop victory still in many Hill fans' memories, the ring opener may have slipped a little from the athletic picture.

Well, the Hill boxers have been busy at work over the past few months getting ready to defend all kinds of previously won laurels. In case many of you newcomers here at Syracuse don't know, boxing is one of the most popular sports around Bill Orange land. In fact, you could class the SU boxers in the same category as the Yanks or Cleveland Browns. In other words the guys just never seem to lose.

For the past five years in a row Roy Simmons' men have won the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing tourney. In fact, over the years Syracuse has been the dominating team in all boxing circles around the Eastern seaboard. And this year is no exception. The Orange once more are well stocked with top rate material.

The bulk of the Orange team is built around the veteran trio of "The Mayor of Marshall Street," Attorney O'Sullivan and "All the News That's Fit to Print" Granger. These three who are in reality, Vin Rigolosi, Larry O'Sullivan and John Granger seem to be the real backbone upon which Simmie has built his club. All are well experienced and will tell the difference if Syracuse is to have another Eastern champion squad.

Rigolosi is finishing up a fine college career which was highlighted by his wnning of the Easterns last season. He is an aggressive worker who battles his opponent never letting up his attack. Vin is not the most colorful fighter in the ring but when it comes to racking up those all important points he seems pretty invinceable.

The Rigger, who recently took over Marshall st., is facing a fellow who has given him a little trouble in the past years. Ronnie Rhodes, his opponent from Maryland has beaten him once and lost on the other occasion. But Rigolosi's vast improvement since his loss two years ago will give him considerable edge over the Terp boxer in the 175-pound class.

O'Sullivan is the most colorful man on the team. He has lots of speed, an unbeatable spirit and lots of boxing savvy. Larry is undoubtedly the most improved boxer on the club after he won a varsity birth last year. It's well remembered how he lost the Maryland match last year on a mistake by the referee. Larry looked great in his first varsity match that night and hasn't let up since. Tomorrow he'll start in the 165-pound slot.

Granger, who sells New York Times in his spare time has been a consistent performer ever since he was Eastern champ in his soph year two seasons ago. He hits hard and fights an aggressive match. Many an opponent has fallen to the canvas via his powerful slugging. He'll start at 147 pounds.

Another veteran, Art Nelson, will also be counted on heavily at 139 pounds. Art was Eastern champ two years ago and has been a big pointmaker throughout his college career. He is moving up this year to fight in a class seven pounds over last year's 132 pound bracket. In his place will be soph Jerry Jaffee.

Undoubtedly the most interest in the opening match will be on the 125-pound fight where Frank Guelli takes over for veteran Tom Coulter who had a date with Uncle Sam. Guelli is supposed to be a fine prospect and much is expected of him in the future.

So it looks as though Simmie has another winning team but he'll be the last one to tell you about it. With him every match is the big one and if you mention a future opponent he just tells you point blank "you can't count the chickens before they hatch." One of the reasons he is so fine a coach.

But Simmie also always seems to have a problem. I guess even Casey Stengel moans every once in a while. But not Roy. He tells you that if this or that happens then things will be all right. But never will he really go out on the limb. Stengel's like that also. Not a bad combo.

Post Final Sports Schedule Heavy

Syracuse athletes will be extremely busy during the week after finals. The boxers, wrestlers and hoopsters all will see action during that span with the cagers playing twice.

The wrestlers start the festivities on the first day of February against Michigan in Archbold gym. It has been several years since Syracuse has engaged the Wolverines at home.

Marc Guley's five will see action against Niagara at home and Army on the road. The Purple Eagles recently fought their way into the finals of the Madison Square Garden holiday festival before bowing to Duquesne.

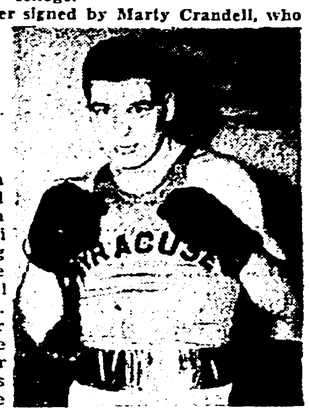
Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Every so often someone (included yours truly) is tempted to comment upon Syracuse university's supposedly poor school spirit.

But when we hear a story like the one Roy Simmons told the other day, it tends to reestablish the faith that Hill students have as much pride in their teams as any college.

Roy recently received a letter signed by Marty Crandell, who veteran fans will remember as the Orangemen's national heavyweight boxing champ in 1949. In it, Marty states that he and several other former Syracusans plan to drive from New York to the University of Maryland for Saturday night's bouts.



Marty Crandell

A trip of that proportion, which takes over five hours, is no small testimony to the interest which these recently-graduated alumni have in their university. Going along will be Chuck Rigolosi, the brother of Vin Rigolosi who will be boxing in the 167-pound class.

Chuck was quite a competitor when he fought under Orange colors after the war. Another traveler is Don Wilde who was sports editor of The Daily Orange a few years back.

The reason that Marty wrote to Simmie was to check on the ticket situation which is not as strange as it seems at first glance. Roy reports that the match is entirely sold out meaning a house of about 7,000 spectators.

Quite a way to open a new season. Incidentally, Roy expects that Bruce Yancey, a returning letterman who should pick up a lot of team points, will box against Army on February 6.

The football and lacrosse star was just plain tired out and a little behind on school work following the grueling grid campaign. He has just begun to work himself into shape for boxing so he requested that he be allowed to skip the Maryland opener.

It is really a credit to Orange coaches such as Roy Simmons who know that an athlete's physical and mental well-being are more important than any single sports appearance.

They say comparative scores mean almost nothing, with which we agree, but it's interesting to note that Fordham has whipped three teams quite handily that have taken the measure of the Orange.

The Rams knocked off highly touted Niagara 77-59 earlier this year. They also took Princeton into camp 74-61 and slaughtered NYU 87-60. Going on the basis of Orange scores against these same clubs, of the predominately sophomore team was inspiring.

The joker in the deck, however, is the fact that Guley's Guys may have reached basketball maturity after Wednesday night's performance. Although they still made plenty of mistakes, the fight of the predominately sophomore team was inspiring.

Almost unnoticed in the excitement was the better-than-average floor play of Jack Larned. Jack was typical of the more alert game the whole team exhibited. It seems that the Rams will have a lot on their hands tomorrow night.

Tomorrow afternoon's clash against Williams is expected to be Syracuse's toughest swimming meet in more than 10 years according to Coach Ted Webster. Talking about the visitors Ted says, "You can't single out any individual because they're all so good."

He expects, however, that his own Orangemen should exhibit better times than in the Columbia encounter. Sprinter Bob Beaumont has been reported to be "particularly hot" in the past week's practice sessions.

The last time the two schools met, in 1928, Williams eked out a 31-28 victory. Ted isn't the pessimistic type but he fears that the result of the 1954 meet will end up the same. The new Englanders seem to have too much depth and balance for the Orange.

Saltine Boxers Face Terrapins Tomorrow

Vince Rigolosi Sidelined for Bout

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

When the bells toll in Ritchie coliseum tomorrow night at 8:15, they toll for the opening of Syracuse's 1954 boxing season. Maryland's Terrapins supply the opening opposition for the Orange.

When Coach Roy Simmons packs his boys on their 12:40 nonstop plane tomorrow afternoon, he will count one less nose. Co-capt. Vince Rigolosi, who was to fight at 175 pounds, one grade over his normal weight, was ordered to the infirmary with a cold when the doctor told him: "You couldn't even stand after three rounds."

FOOTBALLER SAM "The Loon" Alexander will fill in for the missing Rigger. Previously, Alexander and Red Healey were battling it out for the heavy slot.

Alexander was the first boxer Simmons had to drop to a lower weight class. Roy spent most of this week pushing everyone up a notch to fill the hole left by Bruce Yancey, the regular light-heavy who is not in shape yet.

Art Nelson moved up from 132 to 139, Co-capt. John Granger from 139 to 147, Larry O'Sullivan from 147 to 156 and Rigolosi was to move from 165 to 178. Granger and Rigolosi are defending Eastern champs.

Simmons was semi-thankful that he had to move his boys up another weight class. The reason: most of them might have had trouble making the weight otherwise. Said Simmons: "This fight comes too close after the holidays."

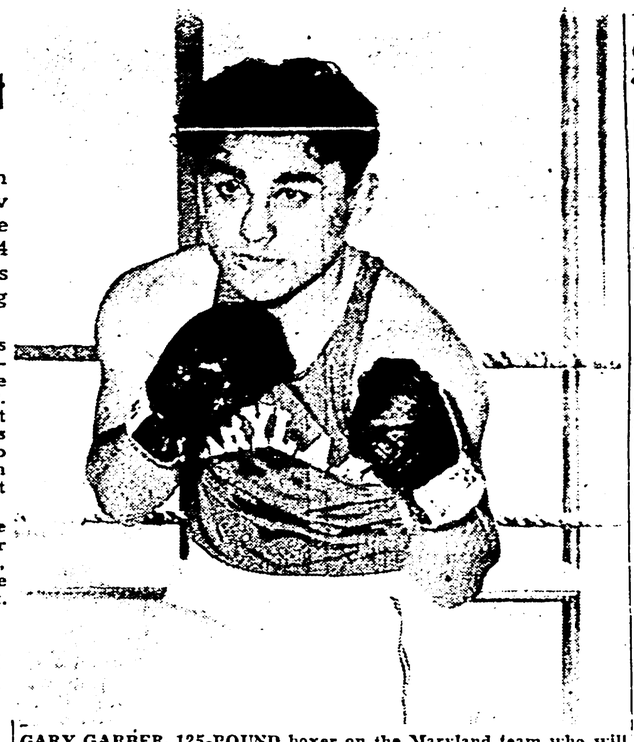
John Pauldine, a former Orange boxer fresh from a two-year tour of duty in the service, will start at 165.

Best bout of the night looms in the 125-pound weight division. Maryland veteran Gary Garber, winner of eight of ten last year, fills the corner opposite Gueli.

Maryland's light heavy Ronnie Rhodes, who also moved up another weight class this year, was due to face Vince Rigolosi in the third and rubber match meeting between the two. Since illness has forced Rigolosi to vacate the match, Sam Alexander will proxy for him.

Probable starting lineups:

Syracuse	Maryland
125-pound—Gueli	Garber
132-pound—Jaffe	Capri
139-pound—Nelson	Heintze
147-pound—Granger	Theofield
156-pound—O'Sullivan	Smight
165-pound—Pauldine	McInnis
178-pound—Alexander	Rhodes
Heavyweight—Healey	Coyne



GARY GARBER, 125-POUND boxer on the Maryland team who will face Frank Gueli of the Orangemen in tomorrow's opening bout at College Point. Garber won eight out of ten bouts last year and is counted on heavily by the Terps this year. He is fast, aggressive and possesses a sharp punch.

Piety Swimmers Seek Win Over Williams

Coach Ted Webster's once-beaten mermen seek to even their seasonal record tomorrow afternoon, when they face a tough Williams squad at Orange pool. Splash-off time for the varsity event will be at 3 p.m.

Williams will face a stern test this afternoon at Hamilton where they oppose Colgate, a power-laden team. In the only previous engagement, the New Englanders downed Union college.

THE DIVING event may be the most important single contest. Ed Gozigan and Garo Taft of the Orangemen will have to give improved performances on the one meter board if they hope to garner points for Syracuse.

Against Columbia, Gozigan barely gained second place while Taft finished last in the four-man field. This gave the Lions six points to three for the Hill duo. Columbia's meet winning margin was but two points.

Capt. Bob Curran of the Pietymen started a week of outstanding performances by captains in last week's event against Columbia. Curran with a sensational sprint closed six lengths in the last lap to finish second. He is strongly counted on for points in the breast stroke.

Kev Wilson, a junior who is vastly improved over last year will see plenty of action tomorrow. Wilson won the individual medley and 440-yard freestyle event against Columbia.

lays and is an excellent backstroker.

BOB DOWNING is the most dependable member of Coach Webster's outfit. Downing probably will see action in the medley re-

Syracuse Gym Squad Due for Long Layoff

Although the next meet is almost a month off, the Hill gymnastic team continues to work out with increasing vigor. Penn State, the next Piety opponent, promises to be one of the roughest teams that Syracuse will meet all season.

The Nittany Lions have always been one of the top gymnastic squads in the country, and this season promises to be no exception. The Pennsylvania school probably can assemble a squad with more depth than any other college in the East.

BACK FROM last year to lead the Penn Staters team is Jean Cronstedt. Cronstedt, who was born in Finland, broke many records in 1953. He is the leading threat offered by the Lions to cop all-around honors and many individual events against the Orange and other teams.

Cronstedt won the free exercise and all-around events in last year's NCAA meet staged here in Syracuse. In addition, he placed high in many of the individual events in which he participated.

The Saltine's chief hope against Cronstedt is Capt. Johnny Barkal. Barkal knows that he has his work cut out for him if he hopes to top Cronstedt in that all-important points scored column.

Although Coach Paul Romeo doesn't have the depth which the Nittany Lions possess, he knows his crew will give Penn State a good fight. It wouldn't be too surprising if the Orangemen bring home a victory over the Penn State team Feb. 6.

Fordham Hoop Clash . . .

land in the forward slots and Capt. Mel Besdin and Jack Larned in the backcourt.

Sophomores Gus Castellini, Lou Cegala, Walt Scott and Clyde Murrock will probably see a lot of action also after their good performances Wednesday. The Orange's last quarter rally found Besdin as the only veteran in the lineup along with Breland, Cegala, Castellini and Murrock.

Gillespie also turned in another performance before fouling out late in the third period, after adding 10 points to the scoring totals.

BESDIN'S 12 for 12 from the foul line in the victory set two new records and tied one according to director of athletic publicity Arnie Burdick. The 12 points from the charity stripe tied a record held jointly by Dave Kline and Ed Miller.

It was a new Archbold gym record though, as both Miller and Kline had connected for their points in away games. Miller racked up 12 against aCnisius in Buffalo two years ago and Kline recorded the same number at Penn State last season. The home court record was held jointly before Wednesday night by Besdin, Kline, Miller and Frank Reddout.

The 100% accuracy from the foul line was another record, no one having hit for so many without a miss.

Wednesday night's crowd of 1,772 was the largest of the season at Archbold and many fans were still waiting in line for tickets when the game started.

The Orange hoopsters will face a 17-day layoff after tomorrow's game because of exams. Their next battle will be a return engagement with Niagara on Tuesday, Feb. 2 at Archbold. Syracuse will be aiming for revenge in that tussle having been outclassed 90-64 by the Purple Eagles in their earlier meeting.

Another game on the docket before resumption of classes for the second semester will be a nationally televised battle against Army. The game on Saturday, Feb. 6 will be played at West Point.

LEFTOVERS: Last year's engagement between Syracuse and Fordham was played in New York . . . The Rams came out on top by a decisive margin . . . Fordham Coach Bach was quite a hoopster in his own right having played on the 1942-43 Rose Hill squad which went to the semi-finals in the National Invitational Tournament . . . Conlin ha shopes of surpassing the school record for most points scored in a season . . . The record is 408, set by 6 ft.-8 Bill Carlson in the 1950-51 season . . . Wednesday's eighth win for the Orange surpassed last season's total victory output of seven . . . Eight more clashes remain on the schedule fo rthe Piety to add to their victory total.

more than 15 years in the Hawaiian capital.

"COMPARED TO Hawaii weather variation, Syracuse is mild," he said, "even though the temperature has gone up to 102 degrees in 1942 and down to 26 below zero in 1926.

While Elmer put on his overcoat to accompany us to the roof of the station we watched Leslie Fields, the other man at the bureau. He was working at a circular board which bore the sign "Wind Aloft Plotting Board". It seems that at the moment he was trying to find just how high up a certain wind was.

By this time Elmer was ready and we ascended the stairway to the roof. Every four hours the bureau sends up balloons from the special machine on the roof. We had just missed the sending of one, but we did get a glimpse at the altimeter which helps in altitude location.

The temperature on the roof is always colder than it is on the ground so the official weather bureau thermometer is located on the first floor. It isn't the ordinary glass type thermometer. This one has dials and buttons. "Almost have to be a physicist to work it" said Elmer.

THE PHONE RANG again and Elmer answered. The person at the other end of the line wanted to know if 8 degrees below zero was freezing. "We get questions like that every day," said Fields. By this time Keller, the chief, had gone home and Mr. Fields was busy reading the teletype which kept him informed of weather all over the country.

In a little room over to the side is a table with a microphone on it. "Mr. Keller makes at 12:25 p.m. and 6:45 p.m.," said Elmer.

Hearing our discussion, Fields turned from the teletypes a moment. "Don't need any predictions today," he said. "It's going to be cold."

ARTHUR FIEDLER and the Boston Pops orchestra are scheduled to play at a sold-out concert for students at 4 p.m. on Feb. 4. Famous Artists series, which is bringing the pops to Syracuse for a performance that evening, has arranged fo rthe special student matinee.

Boston Pops Sets Student Matinee

A special student matinee on Feb. 4 has been arranged for Syracusans to hear the Boston Pops orchestra, which is sold out for its performance here that evening.

Long noted for its refreshing touch on classics and interpretation of popular themes, the Boston Pops stands as one of the top tour orchestras in the world today. Much of the popularity of the Pops stems from the program building talent of Arthur Fielder who not only leads the orchestra in the standard classic works but includes marches, waltzes, ballet music and hilarious arrangements of pop tunes in his programs.

Last season, Fielder and the Pops literally "broke up" Lincoln auditorium with their version of Johnny Ray's "Cry."

Featured soloist with the Boston Pops will be Ruth Slenczynska who will perform the Liszt "Piano Concerto."

A second Famous Artists attractions will be presented on Saturday, Feb. 6 in Lincoln auditorium with the appearance of Yma Sumac and her company of singers and dancers. Miss Sumac, famed for her amazing five-octive voice, will be heard for the first time in Syracuse.

Tickets for this attraction will also be available at the University Bookstore.

2,619 Register During First Day, Find Change in Gymnasium Plan

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

There've been some changes made! This is what 2,619 Syracusans discovered when they reached the final steps in registration yesterday in Archbold gymnasium.

In the first day of registration for the spring semester, Hill students found that two sections of bleachers had been left standing in the main gym. This forced IBM card checkers into the spot formerly occupied by cashiers in the trophy room.

THE MONEY collectors' cages were set up near trophy room windows facing the quadrangle, while the scholarship booth remained in its usual spot near the stairway.

First day figures released last night by Registrar Keith J. Kennedy showed that freshmen led, with 627, in registration by classes. The largest number of registrants by school was 909 in the College of Liberal Arts.

Seniors came in second in registration by classes with 616. Others, in numerical order, were juniors, 556; sophomores, 406; graduate students, 372; and special students, 42.

Due to a decision to end registration at noon Saturday cutting the expected three-day period to two and a half days, some students had to register earlier. These students would normally have registered on Saturday afternoon.

THE DECISION was made by University officials because of an athletic event scheduled for Saturday night in the gym.

The College of Fine Arts had 362 registrants in the first two periods yesterday, while the business administration college followed with 333.

Other high colleges were the graduate school with 283 and the engineering college with 268.

Kennedy told The Daily Orange last night that he anticipates large registration figures all day today with a lower number during the final period Saturday morning.

Antonin Heythum Succumbs During Leave in Munich

Head of Syracuse Industrial Design Department Dies

Word has been received here of the death in Munich, Germany, Jan. 10 of Antonin Heythum, 52, head of the University's industrial design department.

A widely-known industrial designer and architectural engineer, Prof Heythum and his wife, Charlotte, had acted as co-chairmen of the International Congress of Industrial Designers in Paris last summer. They remained in Europe on a half-year's leave of absence granted by Syracuse university.

A LETTER from Mrs. Heythum to Norman L. Rice, director of the School of Art, contained notice of the death.

"Antonin Heythum was one of the outstanding design educators in this country," according to Prof. Rice. "He had the rare quality of being able to see the relationship between human beings and design needs.

Prof. Heythum and his wife, who worked with him on design projects, came to the United States from their native Czechoslovakia in 1939 when he was commissioned as chief architect for the Czech exhibit in the San Francisco Golden Gate exhibition.

IN 1940 THEY worked on the Czech exhibit at the New York world's fair.

The designer was appointed associate professor of design at the New School of Social Research in New York later that year. In 1941 the California Institute of Technology assigned him to organize and maintain an experimental industrial design section on the graduate level.

In 1945 he joined the Columbia university faculty to teach design analysis courses in the School of Architecture.

He came to Syracuse in the fall of 1946 to set up a five year course in industrial design.

IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA Prof. Heythum was one of the foremost stage designers with a record of 94 productions. He was co-editor of several architectural and design publications and was vice president of the Czech Werkbund.

His design of the Czech pavilion at the World's fair in Brussels in 1935 won the International grand prize. He won the golden medal for interior design in Paris in 1937 and the diplome d'honneur in 1937.

Weekly Mixer Dances Set For Coming Hill Semester

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Weekly Friday night dances in the Women's building will be held this semester, University Social Director Miss Margaret Parker and student government presidents Stanley Leff and Mary Anne Dalton announced yesterday.

The first of these open mixer dances has been tentatively scheduled for Feb. 19 in the Women's building dance studio.

WEEKLY DANCE classes have also been planned. F. Walter Medicis of the University staff will begin lessons Feb. 16 in the dance studio.

Both the Friday night dances and the lessons in past years had been sponsored by the now-defunct Student Union.

The policy board of the Women's building met Friday and approved a tentative budget for the dances to be submitted to the administration. A $365 estimate has been made for cost of the dances, including janitorial services, refreshments and publicity, Miss Dalton said.

The policy board has recommended that up to 13 dances be held during the semester, the WSG president added. They will not conflict with other University dances.

AT LEAST one orchestra dance is included in present plans.

Leff and Miss Dalton will set up the initial committee to run the dances. Student government, however, will not be in charge of the dance program, according to Miss Dalton.

More of the old Union's activities may be moved into the Women's building in the future, she said. The browsing library on the third floor will receive magazines formerly sent to the Union.

It is also hoped that card tables can be set up in the third floor lobby for games. Movies are a possibility for the building program.

THE STUDENT Union before its demise at the end of the spring, 1953 semester had regularly put on the Friday night dances and sponsored dance lessons. A total of 21 vic and orchestra dances were held.

In December men's student government assembly passed a resolution to investigate the possibility of sponsorship of mixer dances by a student group. MSG President Leff presented the resolution to the policy board Jan. 22.

Final Loan Approval Sought For New Coeds' Dormitory

Application for final approval by the Federal Housing and Homes Financing agency of a $2 million loan to construct a new dormitory for women will be made Wednesday or Friday by the University.

Preliminary approval has already been granted by the agency, according to F. Gordon Smith, University vice president and executive secretary. Bids are expected to be sought within four months.

ALTHOUGH NO site for the dormitory has been announced, Mount Olympus has been included among the locations under consideration.

Architects Harry and F. Curtis King are preparing plans for submission to the federal agency. Money for the structure is being reserved by the University pending final approval.

Once construction begins, it is expected that the dorm would be ready in a year and one-half.

The Federal Housing and Homes Financing agency is backing construction of Watson and Marion halls, new men's dormitories on Comstock ave. at University pl. and Waverly ave. Planned to house 665 students, the dorms will cost $1.75 million, which has been borrowed by the University.

The University design board has in the past recommended and approved the Mount Olympus site for a women's dorm. The Shaw dormitory had originally been planned for the highest spot on campus.

AT PRESENT there are 1,511 women students living in University dormitories. Haven, Winchell and Sims halls and Shaw dorms house 618 women. Cottages take care of the remaining women.

Most of the cottages probably would be closed when the new dorm opens since they are becoming more expensive to operate and heat.

Orange Boxers Open 1954 Home Schedule

By JOEL FEIDELMAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Syracuse university boxing team, Eastern champions for the past five years, will usher in its home schedule at 8:30 p.m. in Archbold gymnasium, playing host to the perrenially-strong Cadets from West Point.

The charges of Coach Roy Simmons will be slight favorites against the Army mittmen as the Orange continues its quest for a sixth straight Eastern title. Syracuse has already registered one win—a 4½-3½ victory over Maryland in January—while the Cadets come to Syracuse with a 6-3 win over CCNY and a 4-4 draw with the Quantico Marines.

LEADING THE Orange will be veterans John Granger, Larry O'Sullivan, Rigger Rigolosi and soph Jerry Jaffee, all victors at Maryland. Joining this quartet will be Bruce Yancey in his first outing of the year. Artie Nelson who drew at College Park, Frank Gueli and Don MacRae.

Gueli will open the evening festivities by vieing with soph Tom Weinstein of the Cadets at 125 pounds. The shifty Syracuse soph lost a close bout to Maryland's classy Gerry Garber and is hoping to register his first Orange win tomorrow.

Jaffee will meet Army's Paul Merola in another battle of sophomores at 132-pounds. After these weight classes, in which little is known about the Cadets, veteran pugilists will be fighting for both schools.

Artie Nelson, Eastern champ two years ago for the Orange, is slated to meet Haywood Hansell at 139-pounds. This fight could go either way as Hansell defeated his CCNY opponent quite easily.

THE MATCH at 147-pounds is the bout of the evening—Syracuse's co-Capt. John Granger

BOUT TICKETS

Tickets for tomorrow night's boxing match against Army will be $.40 for students. Reserve student seats are $1.20. Tickets can be purchased up until 8:30 p.m. on Saturday.

"Refueling" has been set as the theme and the program will include evaluation and plenary sessions.

Jewish Sabbath Eve services will be held tonight and vesper services are also scheduled by Protestant council.

Students will return to campus at 9:30 p.m. tomorrow. Co-chairmen of the conference are Marialyce Brown and Paul Harrison.

Hill Student's Death Listed as Suicide

Passerby Discovers Body of Sophomore

A 24-year-old Syracuse university sophomore, John H. Sauve of 847 Oswego blvd., shot and killed himself early Jan. 25 in his car parked on Onondaga Creek blvd. near Ballantyne rd.

The coroner's office issued a verdict of suicide.

Police said the body was discovered by a passerby at 8 a.m. The car was locked from the inside and police had to break the vent window to enter.

Sauve, a Navy veteran of the Korean war, was enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts. He worked as a part-time male nurse at Memorial hospital.

Sauve enlisted in the Navy in 1948 and attended hospital corpsman school and was a laboratory technician in a naval hospital. He served in Korean waters before discharge in 1952.

Vacation Room, Board Provided 123 Coeds

Figures released yesterday by the dean of women's office indicate that 123 women students spent the four-day mid-semester vacation period in University livng centers.

The number of men who stayed here was not available for publication yesterday, but housing director Jack C. Buckle said that reservations had been made for many more men than those who actually remained.

FOOD SERVICE was provided for students during the vacation. According to Mrs. Ursula Pettingill, the number of people who ate at Sims, the only dining hall open for the four-day period, varied between 32 and 150.

Some students who remained here because of job commitments probably did not take advantage of the dining hall service because of meal arrangements at their places of employment.

Of the 123 women students who spent the vacation on campus, 62 were graduate students, 46 upperclassmen and 15 freshmen. Miss Kathyn Copeland of the dean of women's office stated that most graduate students here during the vacation were foreign students. Most of these stayed at Sibley, Kent and Sargent cottages.

All upperclassmen were housed at Shaw dormitory and 25 of them were actual Shaw residents. The goup included about 10 sorority women.

Fifteen frosh coeds were assigned rooms in Sims III, since three of them were residents of that section. Three was the largest number of freshman women from any one living center to spend the holiday here.

DO Business Staff to Meet

All business staff members of The Daily Orange and all students interested in joining the business staff will meet at 4:15 today in the Hellbox.

Robert J. Goldstein, business manager, said yesterday that plans and assignments for the spring semester will be discussed at today's meeting.

Faculty Members Attend Conference

Miss Lucille Verhulst, Miss Muriel Langelier and Miss Edith Cobane represented Syracuse university's department of physical education for women at the conference of the New York State association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation in Buffalo last week.

Vice-president of the association of Women in Physical Education in New York state, Miss Verhulst was a member of the panel at the second general session, a speaker for the student section meeting and moderator for the meeting sponsored by her association.

Vacation Mishap Injures Athletes

Three Syracuse university athletes were injured Jan. 28 in a two-car collision in Hallstead, Pa., as they were returning home for the mid-year vacation.

Bob Fleck, all-American football guard of Coatesville, Pa.; Eddie Albright, grid quarterback of Reading, Pa. and Charles "Skippy" Thaw, basketball player of Narberth, Pa. were taken to City hospital, Binghamton, after the car in which they were riding was involved in a collision with a vehicle operated by a Kingsley, Pa. woman.

Albright, driver of the car, suffered knee lacerations. Thaw was treated for abrasions of the forearm. Both were discharged immediately.

Thaw has been lost to the varsity basketball team for the current campaign because of knee injuries suffered in an automobile crash earlier in the school year.

Co-op Book Mart Open to Students

The student co-op book mart in the women's lounge of Archbold gymnasium will take in used books today and tomorrow. Books will be sold from Monday through Wednesday.

Students may pick up money or unsold books Thursday through Saturday. Claims from last semester will also be handled at that time.

Registration Open To Student Groups

All student organizations at Syracuse university, with the exception of fraternities and sororities, must register with student government by Feb. 12, under the terms of the organization registration act passed by men's and women's student government.

Registration forms will be available at Archbold gymnasium today and tomorrow during University registration, at a special booth. Forms are also available in the MSG office, building 30 or the WSG office, third floor of the Women's building.

The following information must be supplied on the registration form by the president of the organization: complete name of the group, address, officers, advisor, purpose, national affiliation, total membership, requirements for joining, services of the group, frequency, time and place of meetings. A copy of the constitution and annual budget must be attached to the registration form.

Student government officials have stressed that the new law is not regulatory, but is purely administrative to aid in obtaining complete files on student organizations.

Peruvian Princess To Give Concert

Andrean Princess Yma Sumac, termed "the most outstanding concert attraction of the decade," will lend an exotic air to the expanse of Lincoln auditorium Saturday evening at 8:15 p.m. in the presentation of a program of Inca folk music.

The electrifying production, which has played to sell-out houses across the nation, will include the "amazing" five-octave voice of Miss Sumac and her company of singers and dancers. It is presented in Syracuse under the auspices of the Famous Artists series.

SPECIAL STUDENT tickets for the Sumac concert are available at the University bookstore or at the downtown offices of Famous Artists in the Clark music building.

Miss Sumac, whose voice has been acclaimed by critics as "the most sensational of the century," will highlight an evening of original music composed on ancient Inca themes by Moises Vivanco, noted authority in that field.

The program will open with the Pachacamac overture, a legend of the Great Creator, which will be followed by native dances, songs by Miss Sumac and orchestral compositions by Vivanco. Miss Sumac's selections include "Inca Tears" and "Tumpa", a waltz number. Vivanco's compositions number "Kon Tiki", a suite for orchestra, "Inca Blood" and "Ecstacy", a tango. "Marinera", national dance of Peru, will conclude the program.

J-School Library Gets $200 Gift

A gift of $200 to the Syracuse university journalism library fund has been made by Charles W. Ferguson, senior editor of Reader's Digest.

Chancellor William P. Tolley, in announcing the gift, said that Ferguson becomes a member of the University library associates.

Ferguson, a resident of Chappaqua, wrote to Dr. Tolley that he had "gotten a very good impression of the work done in the School of Journalism" through his son, Hugh, a student there.

Hugh Ferguson is working for a master's degree in journalism. He was graduated from Alfred university and last fall was awarded an assistantship in the journalism library.

Raquette Lake Site Given Syracuse

University Seeking Additional Estate

Syracuse university has been given the famous Sagamore lodge and associated buildings near Raquette lake in the Adirondacks and is also negotiating for the acquisition of another large estate at Blue Mountain lake.

Sagamore lodge, one-time mountain retreat of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, was given to the University last week by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Emerson of New York. Mrs. Emerson has been a prominent Red Cross executive and is on the board of directors of the Emerson Drug co.

IN ACCEPTING the gift Chancellor William P. Tolley said that the Sagamore buildings would become the mainstay of the University's off-campus adult education program.

The portion involved in the present transfer takes in most of the buildings on the estate—a total of 41 structures including the main lodge, three cottages, several cabins and guest houses, as well as ample service, maintenance and farm buildings.

Located 120 miles northeast of Syracuse and four miles southeast of Racquette lake, the entire estate covers 1,526 acres of land, including a 200-acre private lake and 1,300 acres of forest land.

Mrs. Emerson has indicated that she will turn over other portions

In Memoriam

A true artist is not a man who attains perfection for no man ever does. The true artist is one who constantly strives for the perfect in what he does.

Man may create, but what he creates then trancends him and exists beyond him. Such a creative man was Antonin Heythum, late head of the University's department of industrial design.

But this man had even another rare quality that endears his spirit to this or any university. For Heythum was also a teacher. It has been said that "his respect for ethical principles was one of his most distinguished teaching characteristics."

The artists of today and the artists-to-be of tomorrow have lost as much as those who worked with him have gained.

A step forward

So far, so good.

The first step in the return of the Student Union social activities to the Hill has been taken by the University—revival of Friday night dances and weekly dance classes.

These two activities, as well as other social programs of the Union, were assured by the Administration last year when it became known that the Student Union was closing its doors.

The student body never forgot those promises. Various organizations, led by student government, continued demanding for a return of the activities.

It has been proposed by the Women's building policy board that the student government leaders choose those who will comprise a permanent committee to supervise these dances. We hope that this move will insure that the program will be conducted by students with only Administration advisorship.

But the fight is far from over. Student government in conjunction with this newspaper and other organizations, will continue to request that movies, lounge space and game equipment be provided for this semester.

The long-range program, of course, is the centralization of such activities in the basement of the Women's building.

It is there that permanent dance space, ping-pong tables, television, lounge facilities, magazines, a snack bar, table and card games should be located.

These recreational facilities are a necessity for the students and must eventually be returned to their place in the University program.

Orchids to ...

Congratulations are definitely in order to the six Syracusans who were drafted by professional football powerhouses. Possibly no other action serves to emphasize the excellent caliber of the 1953 Syracuse football team.

Never before have so many Orange gridders been in demand for the pro ranks. One observer pointed out that of all the players taken in the annual football draft, it was Syracuse men who overwhelmingly dominated those chosen from the East.

We also applaud the efforts of Ben Schwartzwalder and the rest of his coaching staff. Without their guidance, these selections would not have been possible.

"I got a 'B'."

Freckled Friend at CBS

By MICHAEL MORGAN

"Humility, that low, sweet root from which all heavenly virtues shoot."—Thomas Moore.

It is rather doubtful if anyone short of Don Quixote or Macawber ever found his thumbs in as many hot porridges as our freckled friend over at CBS, Mr. Arthur Godfrey.

During the past few months, as anyone within reach of a newspaper will testify, this slightly fabulous fellow has stimulated a continual ebb and flow of all things bad and beautiful. A flow which has certainly sent a good batch of vice-presidents and promotion men bald and babbling to the nearest rest home.

Mr. Godfrey had garnered his share of loyalty and an equal quantity of disfavor up until last autumn when the pot really boiled over in the Julius LaRosa epic. This incident, while bring supporters to both sides, threw no small chunk of unfavorable comment on the big redhead's personal qualities. Something like this might have passed over easily for another performer but for a guy like Godfrey, who made such a fuss about virtue and homespun goodness on his broadcasts, it presented a serious challenge to his forte.

All of the issues, of course, received the full treatment of Godfrey's acid air tongue and the radio-TV audiences sat through each and every confession with twitching eardrum.

The question now arises as to whether these disturbances have left Mr. Godfrey and his assorted offerings on the network uninjured. Advancing on the theory that it is his duty, as every other performer's to entertain and little else, then one is forced to the conclusion that he has not.

Through the months, as personal problems crept in, I have watched the Godfrey performances steadily drop their entertainment value until, at this point, the shows barely escape boredom. There have doubtless been a number of family squabbles among the little Godfreys, love, money, position and what have you, and the team seems to lack any sparkle they once possessed. They all seem pretty bored.

It has been whispered on too many occasions that Mr. Godfrey is no sweet sister among his personal and business acquaintances, in fact he's quite a demanding sort, and pressed by problems, his warmth diminishes. The Godfrey charm was somewhat thin to begin with and sliced as it has been, it cannot be overly relished.

All this goes to say that Arthur Godfrey, from this critic's view, is losing interest rapidly. The overly powerful influence of his personal life is becoming so much a part of his show business existence that the broadcasts are becoming less and less entertaining by the week.

Dull would be a better word.

At a Certain Depth the Walls Cave In

By ROGER J. HERZ

Trouble with a rut: at a certain depth the walls cave in; the conformist is trapped before he can shout to break the conventional.

True, nothing is proved by analogy. But ruts are a great problem of the student in hallowed halls of learning and of the individual in the big wide wonderful world when you're in love you're in heaven.

We can think and act. It lies within the realm of possibility.

We can all admit that we exist in ruts. Deeper than merely MWF 8,9,10 and TTS 11. There are larger concepts.

There are many here among us, you'll note, who are in college for an unexplained reason. They know not themselves why.

Some to escape the draft for a while, some to get a husband, but also those who go to college merely as a continuation of the life-rut.

A,B,C,D...
1,2,3,4...

Kindergarten, public school, high school, college . . .

It just can't be boiled down to such a formula. There must be a why. An individual why.

There are those who, in the colloquial, get clobbered, soused, plastered. The escapist sacrifices at the shrine of Bacchus. A rut.

And so, too, are there ruts in thinking. Reading and talking in limited regions so as never to get a new idea. Taking other thoughts and adopting them without question. Absence of evaluation. Using stock generalizations, rationalizations to answer questions, that arise.

We don't hold to the theory of "eat, dring and make merry, for we died yesterday."

AN EVENING OUT

FIEDLER'S FIDDLES ENCORE

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

Mr. Arthur Fiedler of Boston and his traveling musicians were in town yesterday for two shots at the Syracuse eardrum. The occassion was two concert performances in Lincoln auditorium by Fiedler's noted Pops orchestra.

The special matinee performance by the Pops was greeted warmly by a large Famous Artist's audience which rumbled the downtown arena with its applause and encored the group back for three numbers.

The Boston Pops, here for its second local musical circus, is notably a pedestrian organization which aims to please. That it did. The 1954 Pops's book is a lightly level combination directed at all the good folks.

The program opened with an interesting run-over of Wagner's brisk military theme, "Entrance of the Guests," from "Tannhauser" and the tantilizing overture to "Oberon."

Mr. Handel's moody largo from "Xerxes" also loomed large on the Pops's performance lending a lush touch to the technicolor canvas.

Perhaps the most satisfying number of the afternoon was found in the Offenbach "Gaite Parisienne" suite. The familiar Can-Can and Polka-Galop received a sweeping lift from Mr. Fiedler's fiddles. Most interesting.

Miss Ruth Slenczynska, featured soloist with the orchestra, performed Liszt's slightly dull "Concerto No. 1" and although she received a full assist from the Pops, the pretty young lady generally failed to impress.

The final matinee segment featured a pop mood which included a medley of "Kiss Me Kate" music, the ever-requested "Jalousie," and "Pomp and Circumstance." All these excellently performed and well received. Here, it is curious to note that pop music such as this sounds remarkably fine when given a full Fiedler-like wallop.

"Song from Moulin Rogue," "Glow Worm Turns" and "Stars and Stripes Forever" came in by the encore route.

Arthur Fiedler is very like a little boy roaming through grandma's orchard and picking from the trees and of the fruit as he passes. The result is a vari-colored basket of musical goodies which are neither too sweet nor too sour. A happy middle.

A Senior Bows Out

We hustled over to registration early yesterday morning. Noticed an interesting ratio that could prove something if anyone cared to mull over it a bit. The line for freshmen and sophomores streamed up the library steps some 80 strong. Down by the junior-senior entrance we counted a straggling 25. Perhaps the cold weather gets into these old bones. Being old bones ourselves we took a second furtive look and retreated to the warm car until 8:30 arrived.

The advisor was a half an hour late but we thumbed through an old art folio for a last mild retreat before facing up to this last in a long line (no pun intended) of registrations. By the time one is a senior, it is all rather automatic at any rate. We finally accepted the filled out card humbly and mumbled our way out.

A Low Cut 'Sari'

By DOROTHY SACHS

It's easy to spot Sharda Bakshi in any crowd. Her long black braids are complemented by her dark eyes and the red dot of kumkum powder on her forehead. And even though she has been away from her native Bombay for more than a year, she still wears her national dress, which she can select from a wardrobe of 60 saris.

"American girls always ask me why I don't wear more practical Western clothes," she said in a recent interview, "and I keep trying to explain that saris are just as practical as skirts and sweaters."

Sharda's winter saris are made of pure silk, which she maintains keep her as warm as woolen clothes.

"Also," she said with a twinkle in her eye, "saris do not conceal the female figure as some people believe. An Indian costume may be just as tight fitting or low cut as Western dress. So you can get the Marilyn Monroe effect in a sari if you want to."

Comparing the social status of Indian and American college students, Sharda explained that the difference is sometimes amusing and sometimes baffling.

"In India you can't even talk or move about with all whom you like. You're always worried about whether your parents will approve of your behavior."

"Boys and girls don't meet unless they are married," she added.

Sharda expressed her approval of the independence which American students have.

"The main reason students have more freedom here," she said, "is that they are economically independent. In the Orient they are supported by their families, and this binds them to the family. Parents even feel insulted if their child wants to work."

According to Sharda, girls have even less freedom than men in India.

"The ultimate goal for a girl is marriage even if she goes to college. She has to learn to be a good housewife—it's expected of her."

The real difficulty arises when parents insist on selecting a husband for their daughter.

"They expect love to come after marriage," Sharda explained.

Asked if she disliked any of the customs in Western life, she admitted that she could not get used to watching people picking bones at the table. She is a vegetarian and says she does not mind watching other people eat meat. In fact, she said she would like to learn how to prepare it for her non-vegetarian Indian friends.

"But," Sharda wrinkled her nose, "I just draw the line when people start chewing on bones. I sometimes get physically sick."

Another facet of American life which Sharda views with less endo not seem to like to discuss re-thusiasm is the fact that people ligion objectively.

"I always feel as though they are trying to convert me," she said laughingly.

"I could never reason out why people who are so liberal and independent in their outlook on life could not tolerate the free discussion on religion. In India none takes offense at it, and nobody tries to convert anyone else."

Aside from these factors, Sharda assured us that she was having the time of her life in the United States. "I would like to carry home some ideas about freedom," she said, "and I hope to utilize the education I received here in the best interests of my country."

CONFUSION CONFOUNDED

PROBLEMS MULTIPLY WITH IBM

We took it into our heads yesterday, when we were scrawling through our eighth set of IBM cards, to compute the fate of our major four year's work on the things. Simply appalling what one can do with statistics we found out. To whit:

Averaging ten cards a semester we had worked our way through 80 of them. Each card measures about six inches . . . that gave us five feet of pasteboard a term and 40 feet of names, addresses, parents' names and dates through four years.

Then we feverishly took a round number of 10,000 registering a year over the past four years and came up with 200,000 cards passing through our collective hands a year which is, or should be, 800,000 cards in a four year term.

Then multiplying 800,000 by six inches, the sweat stood out at arm's length now, we hit 4,800,000 inches. That quickly broke down to 400,000 feet which is 75.75 miles. That means we could build a cardboard rat run three inches wide from here to Rochester, (by an overland route of course.)

We broke down too and scuttled the 1.5 miles which is 7,290 feet or 88,740 inches or 14,780 IBM cards home.

Adirondack Estates...

of the property to the University when logging operators finish the removal of timber blown down during the 1950 windstorm, Vice President Hugh C. Gregg said.

"EVENTUALLY, it is expected that the entire Sagamore estate will be given to the University," Gregg said.

The Blue Mountain lake property, known as Minnow Brook, has been owned for many years by the family interests of the R. M. Hollingshead co. of Camden, N. J., manufacturer of automobile finishing and lusterizing compounds. It will eventually be transferred to Syracuse university, University Vice President Kenneth Bartlett reported.

"It is a purchase by a pledge with the University agreeing to establish a scholarship in chemistry in the name of the donor," he said.

"The company meanwhile is seeking permission to give the estate to the University. It is hoped that arrangements for final transfer will be completed by spring," Dean Bartlett said.

THE ESTATE is located about 18 miles north of the Sagamore property and is in the center of the Adirondack state park.

The buildings on the Sagamore estate provide accommodations for 150 to 175 persons. In addition to living rooms, recreation, kitchen and utility rooms, there are a total of 77 single and double bedrooms and 24 bathrooms.

The main lodge—largest structure on the Vanderbilt property—is a three story building of frame rustic construction with spruce slab exterior trim and stone foundation. It contains 15 rooms, including nine bedrooms and four bathrooms.

There are also four guest houses which contain a total of 63 rooms and three three-room cottages. All have exterior bark trim with the interior paneled in knotty pine.

IN ADDITION there are three other buildings, a dining hall and kitchen, a two-and-one-half story laundry building and a recreation hall with two adjoining bowling alleys.

The recreation hall is fully furnished with indoor game equipment, while the living rooms and bedrooms contain furniture constructed from native timber of the area. The main lodge also has a library.

All buildings are completely furnished and ready for immediate occupancy, Gregg pointed out.

"The property will substantially augment the University's facilities for its educational conferences and training courses offered to various educational, professionl and business groups," he declared.

IN PRESENTING the gift to the University, Mrs. Emerson explained that she felt "the property would be of most value to a university which could utilize the existing facilities in the furtherance of higher education at all levels."

The property was purchased by Vanderbilt in 1901 and was inherited by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Emerson Vanderbilt, upon his death in 1915.

Commenting on the future of the estate, Chancellor Tolley noted that "the University, by enlarging its campus in the Adirondacks, is now prepared to deal more adequately with the ever-expanding educational needs in various fields of endeavor."

THE SAGAMORE and Minnow Brook properties join the 53-acre Pine Brook estate as part of Syracuse university's "Adirondack campus." The Pine Brook estate at Upper Saranac lake was given to Syracuse by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Loeb of New York city in 1948.

All classes in swimming will meet as scheduled next week, she said, but there will be no special activities in the pool until Feb. 15.

The pool, located in the extreme southern wing of the Women's building, is one of the finest women's pools in the east. It was orginally opened early last semester, and has only recently been closed due to the need for repairs.

Gymnast Squad Resumes Action Against Penn State

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Coach Paul Romeo and his Syracuse gymnastic squad will return to action after a month's layoff facing Penn State's highly regarded team tomorrow afternoon at State College. The meet will mark the Orangemen's initial appearance in competition against a squad in the Eastern gymnastic league.

Tomorrow's meet will serve as a rugged test for the Piety forces. Penn State has been considered as the pre-season choice to cop the championship of the Eastern league. Also, the fact that this will be a home meet for the Nittany Lions tends to give that team a psychological advantage.

SYRACUSE'S BIGGEST problem is that of outscoring Jean Cronstedt. The Lion ace is acknowledged as one of the leading gymnasts in the country, a distinction given him after numerous outstanding feats accomplished in top-notch competition.

Syracuse fans can well remember Cronstedt's performances in the 1953 NCAA meet in Archbold gym. Jean personally accounted for approximately half of Penn State's total points in that meet.

The Saltine gymnasts, however, expect to give Cronstedt and co. a run for their money. Coach Paul Romeo's well-rounded squad, despite a noticeable lack of depth, should give a good account of itself and may even walk off with a victory.

The Orangemen made a successful trip through the Southland in December and recorded two victories in three outings. The wins were recorded over North Carolina and Duke and the only loss came at the hands of the ever-powerful Florida State Seminoles.

Orange Swimmers Visit Pittsburgh For Third Meet

Seek Initial Victory Against Panthers Tomorrow Afternoon

By BOB GROGAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Pittsburgh university will be host to Coach Ted Webster's Orange swimmers tomorrow in a dual meet slated for 8:00 p.m. Syracuse will be seeking its first win of the young campaign against the Panthers.

According to Webster, both teams lack depth and are just about evenly matched. However, in Jerry Weiss, Pitt has one of the finest distance men in the country.

LAST SEASON, Syracuse defeated Pittsburgh, 45-39, in what Webster described as one of the most exciting meets ever staged in the Orange pool.

Besides Weiss, the Panthers possess two fine breaststrokers in Capt. Ron Gainsford and Fred Oniens. Syracusans Ed Lesko and Capt. Bob Curran will have to show improved times in this event if they expect to beat the Pitt duo.

The meet may well be decided in the diving event where Jim Palmer of Pitt and Ed Gozigan are expected to vie for first place honors. Palmer beat Gozigan last year by only three points, but the Orange diver has shown tremendous improvement this season.

Syracuse has lost dual meets to Columbia and Williams while the Panthers beat Ohio university but lost to Navy.

THE PIETY mermen staged their final workout yesterday and will leave for Pittsburgh, by train today at noon. About 16 men are expected to make the trip.

Cagers After Ninth Win In TV Battle With Army

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

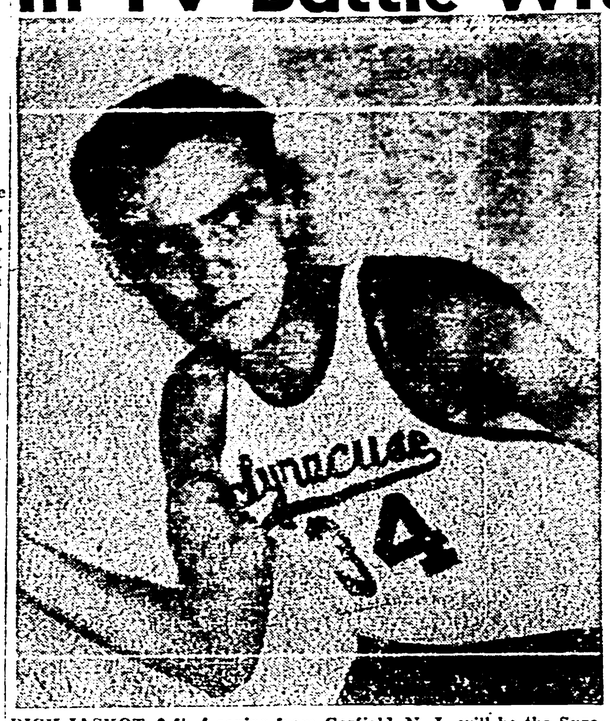
Playing their second nationally televised clash of the season, Coach Marc Guley's Orange cagers will be seeking win No. 9 tomorrow afternoon against Army at West Point. The game will be carried on a 32-station network by ABC-TV but will not be carried in either Syracuse or New York city.

WSYR-TV, the ABC outlets in Syracuse, will not carry the game due to prior commitments. Syracuse appeared on TV earlier this year, defeating Yale, 81-67. Also appearing on the show will be the Syracuse pep band which will travel to West Point for the game.

SYRACUSE'S STARTING lineup will probably find Dick Jaskot and Manny Breland at forward, Ron Gillespie at center and Capt. Mel Besdin and Jack Larned in the backcourt.

Jaskot will be replacing Ron Kilpatrick, the squad's second highest scorer who was dismissed from the team this week after continual run-ins with Guley. Kilpatrick is said to have transferred schools.

Jaskot gave an impressive performance in Tuesday night's 90-70 defeat by Niagara, registering 19 points. The senior from Garfield, N. J., matches Kilpatrick in height, standing 6 ft.-4.



DICK JASKOT, 6 ft.-4 senior from Garfield, N. J., will be the Syracuse hoopsters' starting lineup tomorrow afternoon when they go after their ninth victory against the Army cagers at West Point. Jaskot sank 19 markers in Tuesday's loss to Niagara.

Coach Bob Van Atta's Black Knights have recorded eight victories this season while dropping five decisions. In their most recent outing Wednesday, the Kaydets were upset by Colgate, 80-72.

LEADING THE Black and Gold attack will be Capt. Bill Hannon, a high-scoring center. The 6 ft.-3 senior has averaged 22.5 points per game this year. He also ranks in the top 10 nationally in rebounds, with 18 per contest.

The veteran pivotman holds almost every West Point scoring record, having set his most recent two weeks ago when he racked up 44 points against Mexico. He also holds the individual season scoring record of 408 set last season and seems destined to surpass the total this year. He has registered 309 points so far with eight more clashes left on the schedule.

Star outside shot for the Cadets is sophomore Mark Binstein who has averaged 15.8 markers in his initial year. He will join senior Dick Littlefield at guard while senior Ed Weaver and another soph, Norris Harbold, will be at the forwards. Weaver, a strong boardman standing 6 ft.-3, has been scoring in double figues consistently.

Boxing Team Opens . . .

against Army's undefeated captain Andy Maloney. Both were Eastern champs last year, Granger at 139-pounds and Maloney at 147-pounds and each is looking for a win tomorrow.

Larry O'Sullivan will meet Army's Don Rundle at 156-pounds. Rundle is remembered as the cadet who gave the Orange's Eastern champ, Bill Miller, such a strong fight last year. Rigolosi will meet Cadet newcomer Jim Ahmann at 165-pounds in another steller bout.

Footballer Bruce Yancey will meet Army's rugged Ed Mendell at 178-pounds in his first bout of the young season. If he is in sufficient shape, Yancey is one of the mainstays of the Orange mittmen.

In the final bout of the evening soph Don MacRae will represent Syracuse in the heavyweight bout against veteran Frank Hicks of the Cadets, runner-up to Maryland's Cal Quenstedt for the Eastern crown in this weight last year.

Pietymen To Run In Milrose Relay

Syracuse's fine two-mile relay team will compete in Saturday's Milrose games.

Les Vielbig, Steve Armstrong, Don Schupe and Jack Hubbard will make up the Orange team which will match strides with Fordham, Yale, Georgetown and Colgate in the annual event.

Last week at Boston, the Piety thinclads finished second to the Fordham squad. Vielbig was forced to run an extra lap in the Boston meet when race officials miscounted the laps in the two-mile event.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

It's not easy to cut the team's highest scorer from the squad as Marc Guley did prior to Tuesday night's Niagara game. But the way the Orange coach felt, it was either Ron Kilpatrick or the team.

Reports from several of the team members indicate that they agree with Guley's action. This piece is not intended to take any side, but rather to consolidate and present the story as we have heard it.

According to Guley, the action was forced by an accumulation of incidents. It was pointed out that after one such incident, the entire basketball squad felt that the matter was serious enough to entail a vote.

The vote was in favor of retaining Kilpatrick on the condition that he be given one more chance. He was given that chance more than once, Guley stated.

The incident was one of the most unfortunate to hit Syracuse athletic circles in a long time. Ron was a highly-touted player after setting several high school scoring records. Named by his Madison High coach as the "Vic Hanson of Rochester", Kilpatrick came to Syracuse preceded by reams of publicity.

In his two and one-half years on the Hill, Kilpatrick established himself as a potential star. Guley says that Ron could have been a great player if he had played with the team. Some nights he would score 15 to 18 points, but the 18 points he let seep through because of his individualistic attitude didn't show in the books.

We knew Ron and like him personally, but, as in any sport, the team comes first and the individual next. They say that a youngster and a gun are a dangerous combination. Perhaps the same can be said of an athlete and his press clippings.

Why, oh why, will there not be television of tomorrow's Syracuse-Army basketball game from the Point in the local area. A call to WSYR-TV's program director, Bill Rothrum, revealed the following information.

The station will not be able to carry this game because of other commitments. The only reason that the Syracuse-Yale game from Archbold gym last December was carried by WSYR-TV was because the American Broadcasting company was using station equipment for the program.

The game will be carried over 32 stations. None will be Syracuse or New York stations. Huh!

BILL ORANGE SAYS—55 is an unlucky number for the Orange hoop squad this year. Twice, in both the Fordham and Niagara games, the score was tied at 55-all before both foes romped away to victory . . . Mat Lineup Revamped for F&M

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Minus the services of undefeated sophomore Jim Rose, the Orange wrestlers journey today to Lancaster, Pa., where they will grapple the Franklin & Marshall Diplomats tomorrow night at 8.

Coach Joe McDaniel, whose charges whipped Temple, 21-10, and were beaten by Michigan, 24-8, in earlier meets, has moved most of his regular squad down a weight division and inserted Murray Winer, returning K-vet, in the lineup at the 177-pound slot.

SOPHOMORE JOHN Husband will represent the Orange against King. King was moved down from his regular 147-pound position in the McDaniel strategy.

Ed Welsz, another soph will start at 130 for the Orange against either Gerald Yoder or Ken Kurtz. At 137, McDaniel has a third sophomore, Tom Regular 157-pounder Oakie Harris will grapple Stan DuBelle, the Diplomat's captain, in the 147 bout. Ed Rooney, only other undefeated Orange wrestler, has moved down a notch to the 157-pound slot.

Co-Capt. Rooney added two falls to his victory string in the Temple and Michigan meets. In the Temple match, the sensational junior pinned his opponent in just 33 seconds. Rooney will be facing senior Carl Bemiller tomorrow.

HANK GOBETZ, only senior in the Orange lineup, will open at 167. Gobetz, who suffered his first loss of the season in the Michigan meet, will grapple Sal D'Amico, one of the most powerful wrestlers on the Diplomat squad.

Winer, whose home town is Lancaster, will meet one of his former high school teammates, John Keener, in the 177-pound class. The well-muscled Keener, is the stronger of the two, but McDaniel is hoping that Winer can come through with a win.

George Finck, sophomore heavyweight, will face either Sam Hauck or Tom Muench in the unlimited weight class. Both Diplomat grapplers are seniors. Finck pinned his Temple opponent and was pinned by Big Ten champ Dick O'Shaugnessy in the Michigan meet.

Andreas Denies Reports

Athletic Director Lou Andreas denied rumors that Syracuse university was in the process of forming a new football conference following a United Press story to that effect released yesterday.

The UP story quoted Holy Cross athletic director, Eugene F. Flynn, as saying that the Crusaders had been approached by Syracuse about joining a new nine-team conference. Flynn said that Holy Cross was favorable toward such a move.

Andreas, in denying the story, said that he had spoken to Flynn about the possibility of a league but that he was not "the czar of the conference." The planning for such a proposal was still in the "talking stge," Andreas said.

The Orange athletic director also denied any rumors that Syracuse might be playing either Southern Methodist or Oklahoma in football next year. "We haven't contacted them and they haven't contacted us," he said.

The Piety grid schedule is still incomplete with October 9 an open date. According to Andreas, Virginia Military institute was approached. VMI declined the invitation.

Unbeaten Frosh to Meet Army Plebes Tomorrow

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's frosh hoopsters put their undefeated record on the line once again tomorrow. This time it will be the Army Plebe five, which will try to stop the yearling string when the team meet in a 2:30 p.m. contest at West Point.

Coach Andy Mogish's squad will go after its eighth win at the same time the Orange and Army varsity play. Both games will be held in the big academy field house.

Syracuse recorded its seventh win last Tuesday evening when the Niagara frosh were victims of an 88-76 setback. Playing without the services of their leading scorer, Vin Cohen, the Tangerines led almost all the way to notch their second win of the campaign over the Purple Eagles.

Jim Snyder, rangy 6 ft.-4 forward from Olean, N. Y., played his best game of the year and took scoring honors with 27 points. Also excelling in the point production department were Jim Brown, Lou Stark and Neil Wilcox, with 15, 14 and 13 respectively.

The starting lineup for tomorrow is undecided. The first five, however will be chosen from among Snyder, Gary Clark, Cohen, Brown Stark, Vin Albanese, Wilcox and Jim Roper.

A CAMPUS-TO-CAREER CASE HISTORY

"The interview was the tip-off"

Ed Burtner, '52, watched the way job interviews were conducted before choosing his job. Let him tell you how it worked out.
(Reading time: 31 seconds)

"During the spring of '52—my last year at the University of Maryland—I was interviewed by a number of companies. I was about to get my B.S. degree in accounting.

"It seemed to me that there was a great deal to be learned from the way I was interviewed. Bell System interviewers took their time about job offers. They didn't rush me or themselves.

"I had two talks with the Bell interviewers and then was invited to meet and talk with department heads. Not only did they get a chance to look me over, but I also had an opportunity to get a closer look at their operation. I figured if the Bell System was that careful in selecting its men, it is careful in other things. The interview was the tip-off.

"That's why I'm working here in Washington, D. C., for one of the Bell Companies—The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company. My first job—after general training—was supervising a billing unit with 20 employees.

"Since then I have assisted on internal audits in all departments. I've helped with special studies for management and have become better acquainted with operations of the entire company. Now I'm working on the general books as an accounting supervisor.

"That Bell System interview has certainly meant a lot to me."

• • •

Ed Burtner is moving forward. His experience is typical of the engineering, physical science, arts and social science, and business administration graduates who join the Bell System. He went with an operating telephone company. There also are opportunities with the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. says . . .

FOR more than thirty years we have used research day in and day out learning about tobaccos and cigarettes in the public's interest.

Continuously we and our consultants have analyzed, experimented with and smoked all kinds of tobaccos . . . especially Southern Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish cigarette tobaccos.

Our own cigarettes and competitive brands have been submitted to the most exacting scientific scrutiny including thousands of analyses of millions of pounds of tobaccos.

From all these thousands of analyses, and other findings reported in the leading technical journals, our Research Department has found no reason to believe that the isolation and elimination of any element native to cigarette tobaccos today would improve smoking.

For four years we have maintained in the smoker's interest an intensified larger scale diversified research program. A half-million dollar 30-ton machine, the world's most powerful source of high voltage electrons, designed solely for our use has tested tens of thousands of cigarettes. This program has already given to us direct and significant information of benefit to the smoking public.

Our consultants include Arthur D. Little, Inc. of Cambridge, Massachusetts, "one of the largest and most reputable industrial research organizations in the country" (From Business Week Magazine) and eminent scientists from leading universities.

Today the public can confidently choose from a variety of brands—by far the best cigarettes ever made by the tobacco industry.

Cleveland Group To Appear Tonight

Szell Will Conduct At Local Engagement

The fourth event of the current Civic Morning Musicals concert series will be presented at 8::20 p.m. today on the stage of Lincoln auditorium with a performance by the Cleveland Symphony orchestra.

Under the baton of George Szell, the noted symphony will play its seventh local engagement. Tickets for the performance are available at the downtown offices of Morning Musicals in the Clark Music building or at the box office.

THE CLEVELAND orchestra, now in its 36th season, is one of the youngest of the important symphony groups in Ameriea. It has become a heavy "favorite" of Syracuse audiences in the past. The program for the evening will include Beethoven's Eighth symphony, an arrangement of themes from Paganini and the overture to "Roman Carnival."

An important factor in the quality of the strong tone of the Cleveland orchestra is the exceptional distinction of the instruments from which it is produced.

Nursery Rhymes Return to Hill Winter Weekend

Figures from Folklore Will Dot Campus In Sculpture Contest

Favorite nursery rhymes of our younger days will return to prominence on campus this week as living centers prepare their entries in the Winter Weekend "Frozen Fables" snow sculpture contest.

European folklore and legend ranging from figures in native costumes to characters from the pens of Grimm and Hans Christian Anderson will rise from piles of snow into full-scale sculptures as amateur Ivan Mestrovics do their work on campus lawns.

ENTRIES FOR the contest must be given to contest chairman Jo-Anne LaFaro, Theta Phi Alpha, by 5 p.m. tomorrow, along with the $1 entry fee. Trophies will be awarded to the best entries in four divisions; fraternity, sorority, independent men and independent women.

Judges for the contest are Miss Sylvia Wycoff and Douglas Wilson of the art department, Earle Clifford, assistant to the dean of men, Dr. Malcolm MacLaren, department of classical languages and mythology and Dr. Robert Rayback, history department. They will rate the sculptures on originality, correlation with the theme and general presentation.

Miss LaFaro has announced the rules for "Frozen Fables". No sound effects, mobile objects of commercial ice can be used, while color is optional. The visible exterior of the sculpture must be completely of snow with a scaffolding covered, if used. The name of the sculpture must be displayed or incorporated in the sculpture.

Entries for both speed skating and intramural skiing events are also being accepted. Any individual or team interested in skating should contact Barbara Witter, Shaw, or Martin Wexler, Tau Delta Phi. Any skiing entrants should see Sally Soper, Delta Delta Delta, or Joel Rosenbaum, Zeta Beta Tau.

Syracuse university's book mart will be open today, tomorrow and Wednesday with more than 1,000 bargains in used text books.

The non-profit organization announces surpluses in marketing, accounting, education, religion, speech and zoology texts among others. Many books for large courses such as freshman English are also available.

Plans Under Study For Army Center

The Army has announced that it will make "a further study" before it continues plans for a $400,000 reserve training center at Lancaster ave. and E. Colvin st.

A special staff officer will be sent from Washington to inspect other sites and assist in reaching a final decision on what construction will be made.

Residents of the Lancaster ave. area near Collendale have voiced protest of the Army's plans to build the training center on University property at the northwest corner of Lancaster and E. Colvin. Adjoining ground would be leased from the city for parking.

After approval of the project by the University and city, area residents asked Rep. R. Walter Riehlman to block construction. He has met with First Army officials and suggested Hancock field as an alternate and more practical site.

Pegler's Columns Given to J-School

An almost-complete collection of columns of Westbrook Pegler written since 1948 was presented to the School of Journalism recently by the columnist and King features syndicate.

"Pegler and King Features have performed a real service for the world of scholarship and for American journalism by providing now for the preservation of his column," Dean Wesley C. Clark of the School of Journalism said in making the announcement.

The school will attempt to secure copies of the earlier columns so that it will have a complete file of Pegler's work, Dean Clark added.

The columns will be housed in the journalism library.

Finding Officers

"Would you please tell me how I can contact the president of French club?"

"Who is the treasurer of Boar's Head?"

Hardly a day passes when someone does not phone either the offices of student government or the Daily Orange seeking answers to similar questions.

However, there is usually no one who can aid the questioner. There is no complete listing of organizations or officers at present available on campus.

It is this very situation that student government officials hope to eliminate this week by requiring student organizations' officers to complete registration forms supplying this information.

The legislative bodies of student government approved the registration last month after two years of investigation.

Forms can be obtained in the women's student government office, third floor of the Women's building or at the men's student government office, building 30.

The addresses of the officers, advisor, purpose, national affiliation, total membership number, services and meeting times are also requested so that complete files may be obtained.

WSG and MSG have set Friday as the deadline for returning the forms. The information will then be catalogued for the use of students or outside persons seeking the information.

It may take a few minutes to fill out the form. But it is the individual organization which will benefit by such a record.

Follow the Crowds

Textbook prices needn't drain our respective wallets and purses if we use the student co-op book mart.

Used books needn't gather dust and little else on our shelves.

Sale at the book mart in the women's lounge of Archbold gym will begin today and conclude Wednesday.

In addition to the books submitted by students wanting to sell them, the book mart will also be selling the inventory of the defunct lending library.

Receipts for lending library books will be put in the book mart coffers and profits from the entire volume venture will be put into a recently established endowment fund and later into a scholarship fund.

Students have the opportunity to sell their books at whatever price they elect.

Although books should have been left at the book mart last week, certain volumes in big demand will be accepted early today.

Here is the semi-annual opportunity to get books in good condition for those needed low prices and to sell our unwanted books, too.

See you there.

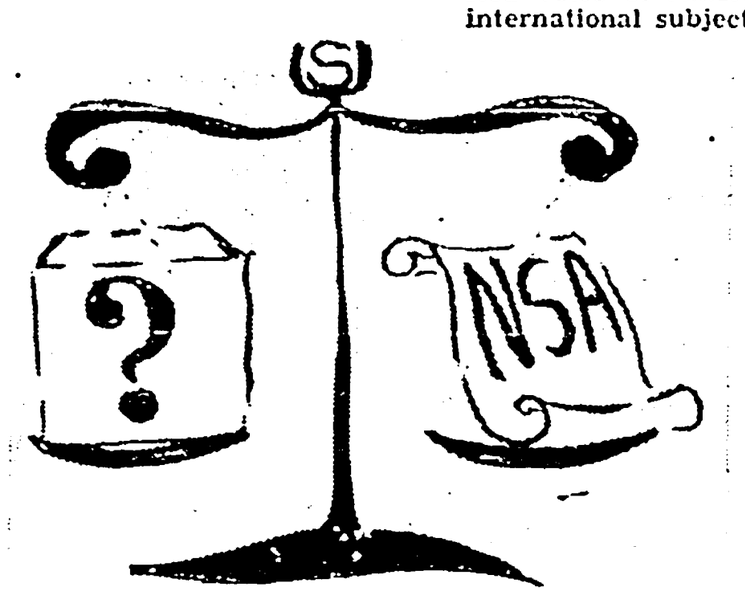
The Question of NSA

NSA's view

The National Students' association has the dual function of service and representation for the students of each school that is a member. It acts as an inter-campus and intra-campus center for the dissemination of information about the various phases of student activities. It tries to strengthen the student government of which it is a part by introducing new means to facilitate the functioning of student government and other campus organizations.

NSA through its national programs protects and aids the individual student and encourages others to do so through programs like the Student Discount Service, intramural insurance, surveys on student working conditions, co-ops, loan funds and others.



NSA represents the Syracuse student at state and national conventions where programs are initiated and stands taken as issues which affect the student. These can be further implemented through pressure in Congress as NSA is now registered as a lobby.

The National Students' association is the only student voice on Gen. Hersheys draft board, the only student organization to have laison with the National association of Deans of Women and the American College Personnel Association. It is the only national student organization that can truly represent American college students in international conferences where it operates programs for peace and understanding throughout the world.

Here at Syracuse NSA has introduced the identification cards and the Student Discount Service through student government. It has sponsored athletic and cultural contests among schools. Each year it carries on an exchange program with Canadian universities and sponsors an extensive European tour program.

Its present program includes another Canadian-Syracuse exchange, a wider tour program, further expansion of SDS and co-sponsorship of the American Foreign Policy conference with nine other campus organizations. A survey on human relations is also being conducted to determine how Syracuse may improve its program in this area.

Stephen Reiss has been appointed by the National Congress to chair a sub-committee on the student judicial system and has been disseminating information to other schools to start or stimulate their systems.

There are many problems to be overcome before the National Students' association can be the most useful and effective instrument of the college student:

1. There must be better coordination between NSA activities and those of student government.
2. The solving of the big-school-small school problem will be a boon to the organization. Many large schools do not need help with the problems that confront the smaller colleges.
3. The serious lack of funds has made it very difficult to carry on as a complete a program as NSA would like. In spite of grants from the Ford foundation and low salaries, the income of the Association has been too small for its growth.

Students need to be better acquainted with the services of the organization so that they can take advantage of its services and enable it to truly represent their opinions.

The respect that NSA has gained in the six years since it was formed to the achievement of its ideal, a strong federation of democratic student governments of the United States raising and maintaining the best that can come of a higher education in an atmosphere of free thought where new ideas are welcomed, where students can grow to a wider understanding of the people of the nation and the world.

Govt's view

During this year, Men's Student Government and Women's Student Government will be evaluating the National Students Association and its program in relation to the whole Civil Service structure of the student governments. NSA came on campus as a part of student government in May 1949; since then there has been no official review of the organization.

In any evaluation, it is necessary to know the purposes and the activities of the group being studied. The National Students Association is an organization of student governments which seeks to serve as a clearing-house of information for the member schools. In addition, it serves as the unified voice of American students on national and international subjects affecting students which are of a "non-partisan" nature.

The student governments of the various colleges and universities are the actual members of NSA. Usually, it is an NSA committee on the campus which carries out the necessary work involved in membership. These NSA representatives are frequently appointed and are directly responsible to the student government. Here, at Syracuse university, the NSA is a branch of Civil Service of both governments. The chairman is elected by the group with the approval of the presidents.

The function of NSA as a part of the student governments here at Syracuse university is threefold. First, it acts as the State Department representing the student body on the state and national levels in conferences of member schools. In this capacity, NSA is link between local student government and others across the country.

Many services arise from this national contact; for example, the foreign tours and the Student Discount Service have an NSA origin. Second, NSA gathers information from other schools which can be used by the student governments and by other campus groups. Third, it dispenses information about Syracuse university student life to the member schools.

In any evaluation, there are questions that arise and must be answered. We feel that these questions must be answered about NSA.

1. Is NSA achieving its immediate objective (in programming)? Is it fulfilling its potential as the only organization of college students?
2. How can Syracuse university students better utilize the program of NSA on this particular campus?
3. How can the expense of NSA, 1/5 of the total budget of the student governments, be justified in relation to the budgets of other departments of the student governments?
4. How much do we actually want from NSA?

These, then are the facts, in brief, about NSA, as seen by the student government. We hope that with them and with a year's experience we will be able to answer these questions favorably when we offer our evaluation of NSA to the government assemblies and to the student body at the end of our terms of office.

Editors' view

The following pair of articles is presented to acquaint the student body with the actions of National Students Association. Later in the term the sudent governments are planning an inquiry into the necessity of NSA's operations on this campus. The Daily Orange withholds editorial comment until the results of the investigation have been presented.

The COMMON MIND at Registration

(Editor's note: During registration we bumped into our fellow, the common man again. In the course of a jagged conversation in the pay line, we gleaned the "typical" approach to another semester. Sporadic snatches of the conversation follow:)

"Well, did you find your advisor all right?"

Ah, no . . . I got a little card about him I think but I haven't bothered to see him since I registered in my freshman year. I don't think he's necessary, really . . . I mean, no? but just talks awhile and take what you want anyway.

"Then how many hours are you taking this semester?"

Oh, fifteen, of course . . . that's the usual you know. I was planning on a little one hour course, but then tuition is more with that and I've already got the check made out for $350.

"What are you majoring in this term?"

Well, not anything in particular. I'm looking for a well rounded education . . . plenty of time to make up one's mind later on.

"You're a sophomore, right.?"

That's right . . . I can always specialize in grad school. I've got a 1.3216, the all men's average, I made it again last semester, best luck.

What courses are you taking, then?

Well, I was going to take an English course but the line was just too long in the library. I've got Trig instead . . . only two waiting there.

"What else?"

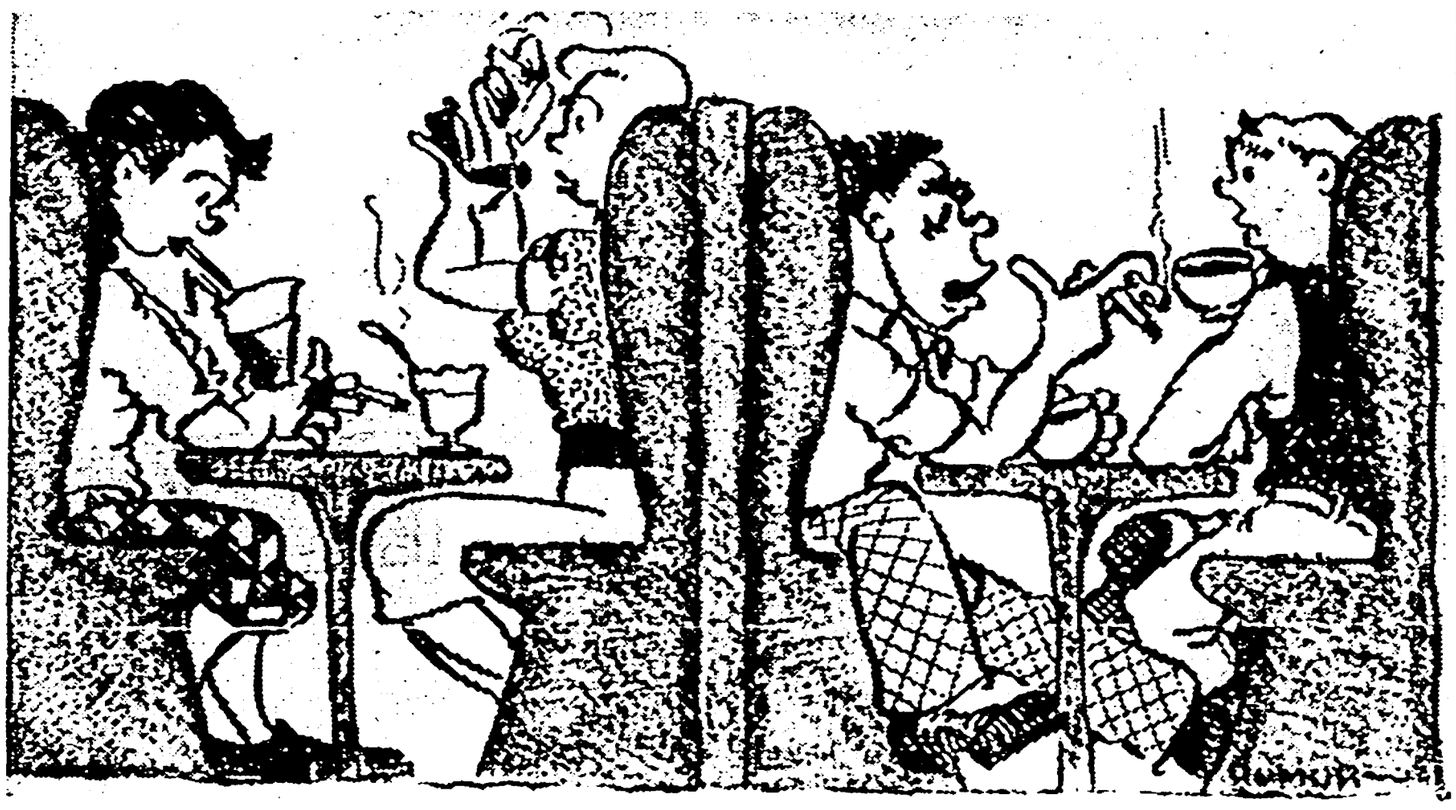
I've got zoology and fine arts, you just sit and look at pictures there, I hear. I may drop zoology because of the afternoon lab, though. Then I've got citizenship and library science because they are both given in the morning.

"Well, here we are at the pay desk . . . been nice talking to you."

The sound of a couple of stamps followed and the man behind the wire said: "O. K. buddy . . . you're a student here now.

A student?

Reflections by Humor



"I've got that lovely Prof. Nutley for philosophy this term."

"Got that creep Nutley for another grind philosophy course.'

'TV or Not TV...'

By DICK CASE

Editorial Page Writer

It has been the subject of a casual smathering of comment during the months past as to whether Mr. William Shakespeare was quite television's cup of tea. Or, perhaps more properly, whether it was his.

All this following several mildly successful invasions by that gentleman's works into the medium. The most illustrious of these NBC's production of "Hamlet" on April 24 of 1953.

After a little less than a year, they went at it again on Sunday, Jan. 24, last. This time it was Shakespeare's "King Richard II," presented in an impressive two-hour shot over NBC's "Hallmark Playhouse.'

"King Richard" was indeed a noble undertaking. The cast was headed by veteran Shakespearean Maurice Evans who was safely successful as the tragic monarch. Mr. Evan's poetic delivery was well supported by Kent Smith as the scheming Lord Bollingbrook and Sarah Churchill, chaperone of the Hallmark series, who shed an admirable lot of tears as Richard's queen.

Perhaps the most significant factor in favor of the production was its amazing set design which was certainly a great accomplishment for the folks in that department. The backgrounds gave a splendid reality to the telecast and were so convincing-that they occasionally drew attention from the actors.

Returning to the early question, I remain to be convinced that this sort of thing will be television's forte. Director Albert McCleary and his staff did a sadly inadequate job of turning the bard's material into "pure TV" clay. The actors seemed to be working on a sweeping stage and not under the close confines of a video camera . . . it was more stage than TV, which hurt the attractiveness of the show.

Hallmark has made it known that it plans annual productions of Shakespeare. Tentatively slated for next season are Mr. Evans in "Coriolanus" or "Measure for Measure." It is hoped that the changes a year can bring will be in the proper direction.

GRIPES?

A note to the complainers:

By the grapevine this newspaper receives many unhappy comments about its material. We take them all in good grace and the ones worth heeding are given more consideration than one may think.

All letters must be signed but a psuedonym may be used for publication.

You Want Service?

It would be difficult to find a subject not covered in films. It would be almost as difficult to find a film that is not available to the Campus Service.

The Campus Service, located at 121 College pl., is in existence for many reasons. It fills requests for films, film strips, slides, recorders (disc and tape) and provides evaluation of materials along with advice for purchasing.

The service is capable of obtaining materials from the Syracuse University Film Library, from other universities, industrial organizations, government agencies, and civic organizations. As we mentioned previously, it would be difficult to find a subject not available to any campus group or instructor.

A projection room maintained by the service may be used by groups without facilities of their own. Campus Service has $7,000 worth of equipment, which is at the disposal of its customers. Included are motion picture projectors, slide projectors, tape recorders, phonograph machines, opaque projectors, and other audio-visual equipment.

Rental rees for fraternities, sororities and other organizations are small. There is no charge for use of equipment or operators by regular university classes.

Most Every Girl Becomes Queen at Syracuse

WHAT GOOD IS a pinup stage without a bathing suit picture? Syracuse queens have reached out to take the beauty crowns of New York state in the past; in 1950 and '51, Miss New York State was a Syracuse coed. Louise Orlando, '54 received the 1951 trophy from retiring queen Marilyn Reynolds, who graduated from Syracuse in 1951.

CASTLE FOR A QUEEN! From these five senior beauties a Senior ball queen was chosen last spring. Seated on the back steps of the historic journalism building and "smiling pretty for the birdie" are, in the usual order, DONNILEA, SMITH, Kappa Kappa Gamma; ELAINE ... Sigma; ... THE DARK-HAIRED SOPH without a scarf (upper right) was destined to become royalty, at least for the ROTC men, who honored her at their annual Military Day in March. She is Marie Constantini. Not only did she reign at the Saturday night ball for all University "service men" but she reviewed the military personnel in a gala exhibition highlighting ROTC festivities.

ONE OF THE FOUR contests for which no fee was charged was the competition for Engineers' Ball queen. Each coed who attend the March dance was allowed to compete for the title automatically. Her majesty BETTY GODFREY radiates as court members MARILYN ROSENTHAL (left) and CINDY SAGE look on. All three received bouquets in honor of the occasion.

Living Centers, S... To Enter 'Monarc...

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN

Coeds come and coeds go, and there's a saying on the hill that every girl's a queen.

In a year of campus history a number of coeds were queens. Daily Orange researchers discovered last week that from January, 1953 through January, 1954 about 14 queens reigned over various formals, weekends and special events. This figure does not include such "local" regalities as the Sweetheart of Lambda Chi Alpha and the Pi Kappa Alpha Dreamgirl.

Contests cost money, and last year sororities and independent living centers forked over about $500 to pay for entering their pretty friends in the competitions. This probably costs each house approximately $15 per year. Yet living centers, especially sororities, are reluctant not to enter candidates in every beauty competition because of alleged fame brought to an organization whose contestant wins.

Major contests last year were held to choose queens for ROTC Military Day, The Daily Orange 50th Anniversary weekend, Senior ball, Spring weekend, Goon Squad Jiminy Cricket ball, Colgate weekend, Winter weekend and The Onondagan.

Of these, the only free contest was the one in which a queen was selected to preside over Spring weekend. Candidates chosen for this honor were all members of Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, and from the group Iris Roth was selected by all women students in the April elections.

Most organizations sponsoring queen contests require a $1 fee from each potential campus beauty. The one exception last year was the Goon Squad competition which cost each entrant only 50 cents.

However, this policy caused some friction among other sponsoring organizations. The contest, which was held in October, came shortly before the Colgate queen competition. Orange Key, junior men's honorary and sponsor of the grid queen contest, amassed only 78 entrants. This was a good deal lower than usual and the fault has been laid at the Goon Squad door. Orange Key members claim that the Colgate contest is the largest autumn competition.

Frosh Rival 1953 Yearling Record

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The freshman basketball team of a year ago compiled a remarkable record of 11 wins and one setback in its 12 games played. This year's frosh team, undefeated in six successive contests, is staging a rugged fight in an attempt to better the brilliant record of the preceding yearling aggregation.

Coach Andy Mogish has been extremely fortunate in obtaining an abundant supply of promising candidates for his squad the past few years. Many Mogish-coached basketeers have gone on to make names for themselves with Marc Guley's golden five.

THE'52-'53 YEARLING squad boasted three performers averaging over 17 points per game. These three high-scoring stars were Manny Breland, Gus Castellini, and Walt Scott. Another player, Ronnie Gillespie, along with Ron Anderson who no longer is in school, led the team in rebounding In addition, Clyde Murrock and Lou Cegala came through in brilliant fashion on occasion.

The above six named with the exception of Anderson, have seen extensive service with the varsity hoop team thus far this year. In fact, in recent games Coach Marc Guley has been starting Breland and Gillespie.

Tangerine Coach Mogish has no less than eight outstanding performers from which to choose his starting lineup. With such a wealth of material, Mogish has chosen to alter his lineup from time to time in an attempt to better rate his players and produce the most potent aggregation.

Gary Clark, a 6 ft.-4 lad who has averaged about 15 points per game and Vince Cohen, a 6 ft.-1 guard with a 21 point per game average have been the most consistent scorers with the frosh team.

JIM BROWN, Vince Albanese, Steve Roper, Jim Snyder, Lou Stark and Neil Wilcox are the other performers who have seen starting service in some of the games already played.

One decided factor favoring this year's squad is the presence of three "big men." Roper, Snyder, and Clark can be included in this category which contains players who range in height from 6 ft.-4 and over.

Marc Guley will need more height next year and it is possible that Roper, Snyder and Clark will figure highly in his plans. The importance of good rebounding was emphasized when the Orangemen lost to NYU in the Garden. In that game, NYU took many more shots and won the battle by five points.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Roy Simmons, Syracuse's boxing coach, sat in his office talking. His thoughts went back to the Maryland meet of a few weeks ago in which the Orange upset the Terrapins before a standing room only crowd.

Simmie recalled the quandry that he was in the day before the meet and it centered around one Vin Rigolosi. Vin had worked out on the Wednesday before the match and had not looked good. In the second round of his practice bout, he had tired rapidly.

The Rigger told his coach the next day that he didn't feel well. His throat was sore, his eyes red and when he talked, he spoke as one does when he has a stuffed-up nose.

The infirmary doctors took one look at Vin and ordered him to bed. The Rigger was in no shape to be up and around, much less stand and box for six minutes.

On Friday, the morning that the team was to leave for the South, Simmie got a call from the infirmary. The doctors were having trouble with the Rigger.

Vin was impatient, saying he was all right—that he could go to Maryland. The medic told Simmie that the Rigger's temperature was normal and his throat, although sore, was a 100% better. It was okay with the infirmary if Vin went on the trip.

Simmie thought. The Rigger had been sick. He was not in top-training shape even before he got the cold. He had some painful pulled muscle fibers in his punching arm.

VINCE RIGOLOSI

But the Rigger was anxious and apparently able to go. Simmie made a quick decision and said all right. The doctor sighed in relief.

At Maryland, it was evident that Rigger's bout could be the pivotal one. If he could just get a tie, the Orange could possibly tie the match.

Vin fought the first two rounds with all his strength against burly Ron Rhodes who had beaten him once out of their previous two fights. The points went to Rigolosi, 10-9 for each round.

But going out for the third and last round, it was plain to see that the Rigger was tired. The recent sickness had taken its toll. The only strategy that Vin could follow was to hang on all the way and hope that he didn't lose the round by more than the two points to tie the bout.

Shuffle, jab, back away and clinch when Rhodes made his move. That was the only thing to do. Then came that unpredictable item which makes the outcome of every sports event remin in doubt until the end. Then came the break.

Rhodes came at Vin again and as he did, Vin side-stepped forcing the Maryland boy slightly off balance. Rigolosi landed a overhand right on Rhodes' head knocking him to the canvas.

It wasn't a knockdown in the true sense of the word, but it was good enough for the referee. Rhodes had to wait the customary 10 seconds before resuming the battle.

That 10 seconds of rest for the Rigger was good enough to carry him the rest of the round. The match was his.

The final score of the meet was Syracuse 4½, Maryland 3½. The one-bout margin was won by a guy who had been ill the day before.

Simmie had one comment to make. He scratched his head, looked up and said thoughtfully, "That boy has guts."

Sampson Conquers Piety Swordsmen In Fencing Meet

By EV MURCH

The tough Sampson Air Force Base fencing squad proved too much for the Piety Hill bladesmen Friday night and came out with a fairly easy 13-5 victory. The Sampson collection of ex-collegiates took a decisive 7-2 margin in the foil and 6-3 in the saber.

Even the usually unbeatable Captain Goldstein had his troubles and managed to salvage only one point in his three sets.

WILLIE SCHOP, who previously had three points to his credit against St. Lawrence, won the initial point for the locals after they dropped the first six in succession. Although it was Willie's only score of the night it was a sweet one in that he took it from Sampson's toughest man, Sikes.

The rest of the scoring was equally divided among Maisulo, Ed Wang and Abe Gilman. George Wooding barely missed scoring by a single touch in his set with Young.

The Syracuse foilers now have a record of one and one.

Hillmen Meet Maroon Saturday, Renew Old Rivalry in Hamilton

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

When Syracuse invades Colgate's Huntington gymnasium Saturday to play the Red Raider five, one of the nation's oldest basketball rivalries will be resumed. For this weekend's game marks the 102 hoop contest between the two schools.

The Orange holds a substantial lead in the long series, with 61 victories to 40 for the squad from Hamilton. But despite the apparent dominance of the Piety cagers, Colgate has won three of the last four games.

LAST YEAR, the Raiders whipped Coach Marc Guley's team twice. In the first encounter, Syracuse was the victim of a 106-88 mellacking as Colgate recorded its highest point total in its history. The Hill quintet also lost the second half of the home and home series, 89-84, in a game played on the Archbold gym floor.

Despite the big point differential in last season's first contest, the Orange cagers made a fight of it throughout most of the game.

After a comparatively close first half, at the end of which Coach Howard Hartman's Raider five led, 43-38, the two teams engaged in one of the highest scoring quarters in the hoop rivalry.

Each team tallied 32 points as the lead changed hands throughout the period. Toward the close of the quarter, however, Capt. Dan Warren of the home squad scored three quick field goals to give Colgate a 75-70 advantage at the outset of the fourth quarter, a lead it never relinquished.

DAN WARREN, captain of last year's Colgate baseball team, was one of the outstanding performers against the Orange a year ago.

WARREN PLAYED an outstanding game in leading his squad to victory. The speedy guard registered 26 points and played a fine floor game. Also outstanding in the winning cause was center Bill Dodd. The 6 ft.-5 senior netted 25 points and was a tower of strength under both backboards in the thrill-packed contest.

Syracuse's three big men, Dave Kline, Frank Reddout, and Ron Kilpatrick tried to stem the Raider tide but their high-scoring efforts proved futile. Reddout scored 21; Kline, 17; and Kilpatrick 18 in the iPety defeat.

In the second half of last year's series, the Raiders again jumped to an early lead and held a 15 point advantage in the early going of the second half. The Guleymen then staged a belated rally which brought them to within three points of Colgate in the last minute of play, but the Hamiltonians were able to hang on for the victory and a series sweep.

Colgate's 106 points last year was the highest total, of course, for the Redmen in the ancient rivalry. The top Hill point total came in the '52 game at Syracuse when Guley's Guys recorded a 90-76 win.

Pro Gridders Choose Several Hill Players

Six Syracuse grid players were caught in the pro-football draft that occurred two weeks ago. In a tribute to Ben Schwartzwalder's coaching ability, six players: Pat Stark, Bob Fleck, Les McClelland, Bob Leberman, Jim George and iVnce Vergara, were selected by the representatives of the National Football league.

These six were added to the two players who were drafted previously: Ted Kukowski and Bill Wetzel and to the four Syracuse players now engaged in pro ball: Carl Karilivacz, Jim Ringo, Bernie Custis and Avatus Stone. Ben Schwartzwalder coached every one of these players.

QUARTERBACK PAT Stark was the first man drafted when the Pittsburgh Steelers, who spent practically all their choices on backfield men, picked Stark two choices after Notre Dame's all-American Johnny Lattner. Since then Lattner and UCLA star Paul Cameron have signed contracts with the Steelers.

The Green Bay Packers, apparently impressed with Syracuse grad Jim Ringo, plucked another Orange lineman: all-American Bob Fleck.

McClelland, one of the few linemen selected by the Steelers, was evidently beef for trading as the Steelers traded him off to the Los Angeles Rams.

HALFBACK CAPT. Bob Leberman was piced by the Baltimore Colts.

Vince Vergara, who still has another year to play for Syracuse was drafted late in the proceedings by the Cleveland Browns perrennial Eastern division title winners.

Faculty Competes for Bowling Honors

The Athletic Department is the team leader in the Faculty Bowling league. In matches played this season including Feb. 1, the Athletic department has scored a total of 97 points and the Mathematics department is second with 86 points.

As of Feb. 1, several league records hold forth. The Stinkers hold the high game with a handicap. That score is 1122. The Stinkers also hold the high team record for games without a handicap with a score of 908.

Club Opens at 8; Food to Remain At Regular Prices

Free dancing from 8 to 10:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday at the Coke and Caper Club in the basement of Slocum hall and a free night food delivery service have been announced by Gerald Hill, manager of the Club.

Beginning tonight, hungry students need only call the University, 76-5571, and ask for the Club to have food delivered to their door. Prices will remain the same, and no charge will be made for the service, Hill said.

FOR THE week-night dancing, tables will be cleared away and a juke box will provide music for dancing. Food will be served at regular prices.

Evening food deliveries will be made by students. Any student interested in day or night counter or delivery work is asked to see Hill at the Club.

For the Club to remain open at night, he asked that students cooperate by returning their dishes to the counter in the evening.

Mrs. Ursula Pettingill, food service director, and Hill derived the plan from a questionnaire which was filled out by club patrons a month ago. Students had expressed a need for these services, Hill said, and if they are a success, they will be continued throughout the semester.

GEORGE KIBBY will be in charge of the Club during the evening dancing.

So far this year the Club has been open from 7:15 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

The spot began about 15 years ago as the Sahara Club under the auspices of the University. A contest was sponsored to rename the popular gathering place, and its present title was the result.

Further Palsy Study Slated by Syracuse

$10,000 Grant Received For Perception Project

Syracuse university will continue its study of perception in cerebral palsied children under a $10,000 grant from the Association for the Aid of Crippled Children of New York city, Chancellor William P. Tolley announced Saturday night.

The project was started a year ago with a $20,000 grant from the Association to find out how many cerebral palsied children suffer from extra-sensitivity to environmental stimuli such as noise and light.

PRELIMINARY studies made by the University show that many cerebral palsied children perceive the world about them very differently from physically normal children, Dr. William Cruickshank, project director, has stated.

The child with cerebral palsy who has this super-awareness of his environment seems to be unable to pay attention to directions because he is constantly distracted, he said.

"We hope we can find ways to help children such as these concentrate in spite of environmental distractions," the director of the special education department said.

Six hundred athtoid and spastic cerebral palsied children will be studied prior to the completion of the project next year. Dr. Cruickshank is being aided by Dr. Harry A. Bice, psychologist of the New Jersey State Crippled Children Commission.

RESEARCH INVOLVING 60 children at the Widener Memorial school in Philadelphia has already been completed. Two more studies are under way at present, one at the Percy Hughes school in Syracuse, and within a few months research will be expanded to include children in Rochester, Toledo and Dayton, O., and Ridgewood, N. J.

Dr. Cruickshank is a past-president of the International Council for Exceptional Children and a member of the National Committee on Education for Exceptional Children.

A night club!

It's the greatest!

In fact, one might almost say it's the most!

Yes, the biggest news on campus since the announcement of Friday night dances is today's story on the new dancing night food delivery service policy being inaugurated this week by the University Coke and Caper club.

At last there is a place on campus open at night where students can go to dance, eat, relax, listen to popular music, play cards or just talk.

On the way home from the library or a meeting, what could be finer than to stop in at the Club for a few spins on the dance floor or a hand of bridge and hamburg?

The second service is going to be a life-saver for the students who love to study and munch and who, for one reason or another, just can't quite get down to Marshall st. for the rejuvenation.

And to those for whom the price always looms large, there's an even greater treat in store. Just examine these prices, for example: hamburg, ham, and tuna fish sandwiches are selling for 25 cents. Sodas and milk shakes are available at 20 cents while sundaes cost only a quarter, Cake and some pies can be had for a dime.

The greatest credit can be given to Mrs. Ursula Pettingill, head of the University food service, and Gerald Hill, manager of the Coke and Caper club. After surveying students' needs, they decided that these two services were most in demand and accordingly set to work to make them possible.

We hope that every student will say "thank-you" by taking advantage of these services now that they are offered and supporting the night Club.

Age of expansion

Of what stuff are universities made of?

It may be said that it is of those who wish to learn and those who wish to teach.

But in this age of exploration in vast fields, it is something more. It is land, a place to build the cubicles, rooms, halls and auditoriums that are necessary in this age of expansion.

This is truly the age of stretching out, of expanding mentally and physically to cope with the complex world we live in.

Thus it is with anticipation as well as appreciation that we accept the gifts of land recently given to the University.

For the opportunities that are opened to this school, our thanks to Mrs. Margaret Emerson who donated Sagamore Lodge in the Adirondacks. The eventual acquisition of the entire estate gives the University a chance for even greater plans.

The eventual transfer of Blue Mountain lake to Syracuse ownership is another area for which we are indebted to the family interests of R. M. Hollingshead Co.

All of this is taken with pride, but we hope with a touch of humbleness. For now the responsibility of its use lies with Syracuse.

May it repay the debt of gratitude to future generations of college students.

Mr. Weatherman

Dear Mr. Keller:

You may be aware that we on the Hill are planning Winter Weekend again. It is to be replete with a dance at which we wear no shoes, and an even bigger dance Saturday at which everyone wears shoes.

We write you because of the winter sports events and the resplendent edifices which we fashion out of the stuff of Jack Frost, the snow sculptures.

In past years we have been cheated of snow; hence we will appreciate any influence you may have weatherman with the higherups to assure a snowfall very soon.

PRAYER FOR SNOW

THEN THERE IS ALWAYS FLORIDA...

Through the twilight the evening campfire shines,
It glistens through the hemlocks and filters through the pines.
The firelight gleaming on the ornate ceremonial dress,
Chief Onondaga chanting, the Saltine Warriors answering yes.
As we move in closer, we hear the volume swell,
Could they be begging the Great Spirit to have their souls from hell?
Or perhaps they're asking Him for a bountiful harvest of wheat,
Or maybe for many babies or a buffalo steak treat?
Maybe they ask for virtue, or maybe even for vice,
Now that we are closer we hear it's snow and ice.
Are they Apache or Sioux or from the Hill,
I think I hear the Indian name of Claude Thornhill.
Now the tempo changes, the voices begin to vary,
They pray for much snow in the month of February.
They do not pray for themselves, they speak for Pete and Jan.
They ask for a snowy weekend for our Winter Weekend.
Oh! May the spirit hear them, and listen to their plea,
Then there will be ice to skate, and snow on which to ski.
So let our voices join them, and let us sing also,
And may the Great Spirit give us plenty of ice and snow.

Breaking Point

On an excursion to the circus, this man from Harvard went to the camel enclosure and carefully selected a straw from amongst the litter. He placed it on a camel's back and waited a moment.

After a minute of scrutiny he stalked on muttering, "guess that wasn't the one."

Stemming the Tide

Panic in America

By HUGH O. MUIR
Editorial Director

The full tide of panic is rolling in, drowning the quiet rationale of the thinker as the wild-eyed ones take to high but rocky ground.

The amount of information and propaganda that has been printed on the subject of the "Red-hunters" has been overwhelming but apparently ineffective. Our country, founded on the premise that all men are created equal, is fast reverting to ...at of George Orwell's ironic pigs on "The Animal Farm" who added: ". . . but some animals are more equal than others."

Whether this panic is widespread in the world democracies, "democracies" that is in the sense of the English tradition, is answered, in part, by a recent event. The question also of whether pure education is the answer to the problem is also partly answered in these occurrences.

Dr. Hildegarde Pauline Ruth Broda is a refugee from Austria. She fled to England in 1938 and became a registered pediatrician in hospitals there. Her life in "this blessed plot, this England" was quite placid until last summer.

For then the supposed villain of the piece entered. For his part of the plot we must glance at 1945. Dr. Alan Nunn May had been convicted of selling atomic secrets to the Russians. He was sentenced to 10 years and released after six years, eight months of the term. Last summer he met Dr. Broda.

After two months she married him and despite the tabloid press of Britain, managed to live in quiet privacy. In privacy, that is, until last November.

At that time Dr. Broda's routine salary increase came before the Cambridge City Council where she lived. And there she met the panic.

. . . said Dr. Broda might spread communist ideas among the children under her care and . . .

. . . said Nunn May was the greatest traitor since Judas.

Here was the panic in its simplest form. Simple guilt by association, simple deduction that 2 plus 2 was 5.

Cambridge is a quiet university town. And Cambridge, at the city council meeting, answered the man from the veterans organization:

"A disgusting form of persecution."

"I do not now if she is a Communist and I do not give two damns if she is. She is one of the best doctors we have."

"A filthy, dirty attack on an individual. Does this man want McCarthyism in this country? He is a traitor . . . a traitor to democracy."

The defense rested . . . and approved Dr. Broda's salary without further discussion.

All of which brings us back to America and a question in our minds. What do we have here?

Certainly not a dictatorship, one leaps to say. No, in government we do not have that.

We have ample education another hastens to add. Yes, we have thousands of colleges and a million students.

But, a voice chimes in, we also have the panic. And here we are forced to consider an unhappy conclusion: that governments and colleges cannot alone stem the tide of anic.

The analogy of the tide seems quite apropo here. A "spring tide" is caused on this planet when the sun and the moon are pulling along the same line, whether together or in opposition, it makes no difference. A "spring tide" is the highest tide of all because of the forces involved.

The sun, in this analogy, is communism. Its unfortunate reflection, the moon, is the panic against communism. And these two forces, either pulling together or apart, cause the waters of fear to engulf the government . . . the colleges . . . and ourselves.

The answer lies here with the British for they beat the panic.

Like the Dutch, the English built a dike against the tide, the tide of panic. The dike of faith in democracy and the abillty of the individual to withstand totalitarianism. We must build that dike to stop the tide until it ebbs . . . and proceed with the work at hand.

But if all is drowned in the interim we have but ourselves to blame . . . for this is a tide which we can control.

SINCERITY & ABILITY PAY OFF

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

This will be a highly sentimental piece . . . a writing touched by something a short of love, respect admiration, jealousy and gratitude for a 37-year-old sound from Hoboken, New Jersey named Frank Sinatra.

In these early days of 1954, Frank stands as the most substancial male singer that popular music has to offer an eager public. A vocalist possessed of such deep sincerity for his work and keen recognition of his personal ability that he has been able to outlast a dark seige of unpopularity and emerge all the better . . . if that is possible.

The pleasant upbeat of acclaim which is coming to Frank Sinatra through a batch of exciting Capitol recordings would seem to refute those who termed him a "passing wartime phenomenon" and those current enthusiasts who will have none of the lad because he refuses to shout off key, writhe in pain or make noise about "unhappy days" in the face of contemporary competition.

Francis Albert Sinatra was born and grew up around New Jersey where he was assortedly experienced as prize fighter, newspaper route man and pick-up vocalist with local bands. His first public appearance was made at an amateur show sponsored by the State Theater in Jersey City. At the age of 20, Frank made his initial professional stab at fame in Hoboken's Rustic Cabin which eventually led to an audition with Harry James.

He got a job as vocalist with the James group but neither Harry nor Frank were overly popular in '39 and the association was shortlived when Tommy Dorsey came along. Mr. T. hired the young singer and Frank's experience with the band was his key to success.

Frank Sinatra stretched the simple "crooning" formula originated by Rudy Vallee into the scream of a million American females and the faint-hearted response of a boundless number of admirers of both sexes and all ages. The bobby sox emerged as a national costume and modern record polls got to know their first repeating million seller. A pleasant Italian voice became a happy mental disorder.

Today, young America has outgrown its Sinatra pulsations and exstols its reverence upon an assorted number of vocal disturbances. And, Frank.

Well, kiddies, Frank is still here and crooning away as if no changes had taken place. The 1954 Sinatra is a mature, entertaining, extremely talented lad who is a now-and-then movie-radio avtor, a warmly funny comediane and above all else, a relaxed, thorough singer.

If there are any doubters present, might I suggest a new long-playing record platter with which the music shops are currently doing heavy business. A wonderful thing titled "Songs for Young Lovers" by Mr. Sinatra. The package was one of the reasons which prompted this advance upon the typewriter. Frank is in fine form for this bright collection which numbers "My Funny Valentine," "The Girl Next Door," "A Foggy Day," "Little Girl Blue" and "Like Someone in Love" among eight games.

And when you drop the old soul down at the end of a day and throw this album on the phonograph, there will be no escaping reverie. It came to me just how many people have loved and lost and won and died with a Sinatra sound in the distance. And how many have simply been grateful for a tiny thrill gotten from a lyric softly sung or a melody lightly caressed by the sincere artist.

"Songs for Young Lovers?" I hardly think so. More that it's dedicated to any of us who ever got a boot from Frank Sinatra.

A Study in the Auto

Being of sound mind and body, and in the interest of greater safety on the road, I submit the following guide for your careful consideration:

Cigarette lighter—a small knob on the dashboard that is ideal for burning holes in upholstery, burnin g hair off arms and legs, and singeing eyelashes while lighting cigarette butts.

Car radio—article used to keep other peoples minds off your poor driving, or, better yet, if you play it loudly enough it will drown out any comments from back seat drivers.

Rear-view mirror—handy to use while applying lipstick, powder, combing hair, etc. Also useful to observe neckers in back seat, and if you ever happen to neck in back seat remember that someone may be watching you.

Flat tire—makes fine excuse for women. Excuse that is too meet young, strong, handsome males who like to change tires.

Emergency brake—to use when you forget where the other one is.

Gear shift—a stick attached to circular wheel that makes a musical noise when pulled up and down. Also handy for hanging purse on.

Fuel tank—when car stops look and see if there is some in it.

Horn—should be blowing at all times to warn pedestrians that you are coming their way.

Dead motor—resembles speech by Malenkov. You know that there's something wrong with it, but sometimes it takes awhile to find out just what.

Glove compartment—makes handy container for gum wrappers and other waste papers which will make a merry blaze and are likely to burn down car when some careless person puts out cigarette in it.

If you follow these rules when you drive—watch out: You're sure to die young.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Complaint on Columnist

February 5, 1954

To the Editor:

After I had read the first few blind attempts at writing by Roger J. Herz, I merely thought that poor Roger was having a mood. However a mood is supposed to be a transitory state of mind; Roger's maladjustment seems to be permanent. If Roger is not maladjusted, then the editor of the DO should be severely chastized for letting a nine-year-old boy write for a college paper.

In Friday's column young Roger revised an old high school theme on "ruts" that started out like a story about the Panama Canal. Despite his slaughter of the English language, it hit pretty close to Roger's own maladjustment. Simply stated, he's in a rut.

My advice, Roger, is that you take two Bayer aspirins in a full glass of water, sign up for Freshman English, and visit the Psychological Services Center at your earliest convenience. Oh, yes . . . and don't try to write for a college paper.

Sincerely,
Lockhart M. Russell

Art for Just Plain Fun

By JOANNE HESS

"Seeing is believing! A look into the Lowe Art Center proved to use that art is for everyone, so if you're one of those people who thinks that you have to be a Rembrandt to enjoy it, banish the thought but quick!

Twentieth century paintings and sculptures will highlight the February art exhibit, formally opening with a tea at 8 p.m. tonight at the Lowe art center. Munson's Proctor institute in Utica is furnishing the 32 paintings and 8 sculptures on display for this month. Miss Katherine Condon is in charge of the exhibit, assisted by art instructors Mr. Frank Goodnough and Mr. James Dwyer.

We asked Mr. Dwyer to sort of brief us on the monthly exhibits. "We feature all types of art gathered from museums or private galleries," he told us. "On some occasions a particular artist whose work is on display is on hand for the opening exhibit."

Before musing through the paintings and sculptures, we wondered if the people attending had to be really hep on all phases of art.

"Oh, there's no need to have a deep understanding of art to enjoy these exhibits," Mr. Dwyer informed us, thus relieving our minds. "The public comes for pleasure and just plain fun." He added that through viewing the exhibits, an appreciation and liking for art is cultivated within the individual.

Our curiosity thus being aroused, we asked for a prevue on the February display. A construction in mobile sculpture claimed our immediate attention.

"That piece of work, entitled 'Three Loops and a Dot', was created by an American artist, Alexander Calder," Mr. Dwyer explained. "He invented the mobile sculpture."

Anyway you look at it it is still a Jaun Gris "Still Life," part of the current exhibition at Lowe.

We noticed that Jean Hans Arp, a French artist, had an odd construction in sculpture form on display. A plastic structure, "New Moon I," also drew our eye.

Turning momentarily away from the sculptures, our attention was drawn to an oil canvas, where we saw how Marsden Hartley, another American artist, had captured "Windy Day; Maine Coast." Another painting featured a lyric abstract, a marine subject created by Lionel Feinenger. Two other important artists whose works we admired were Juan Gris, a Spanish painter and Josef Albers, who heads the School of Design at Yale university. Early art work is represented through the geometrical forms and primary color works of Modrian. Worthy of special mention, in our opinion, is a novel collection of Japanese printings.

Being thus interested by the February display, we asked Mr. Dwyer to give us a background of these exhibits and tell us just how they are chosen.

"These art exhibits have been offered for about seven years now," he explained. "They used to be held in a pre-fab, but now we're lucky enough to have this beautiful art center."

A committee, composed of faculty members chooses the displays on a well-rounded educational basis. He brought out the fact that the committee is always open to new suggestions from students and public.

Stockingfoot Tickets Out; Sno-ball Planned for Gym

Sale Starts Today For Stockingfoot Dance Tickets

A coronation ballroom, hardly recognizable as the main gym in the Women's building, will be the scene of this year's Sno-ball, which begins at 8:30 p.m. Saturday and which will feature the music of Claude Thornhill.

"The Empress Waltz," as the dance has been titled, is annually held on the Saturday of Winter Weekend. It is sponsored by the junior class, and this year's ball will be semi-formal (men need not wear tux) and corsageless.

ior class, and this year's ball will be semi-formal (men need not wear tux) and corsageless.

COEDS ATTENDING the ball may take special 2 permissions and should retain their ticket stubs, which must be attached to the pink permission slips.

Aside from the Thornhill ensemble, entertainment will feature the coronation of the Winter Weekend "Empress" and a skit written by junior Gail Gilman.

Thornhill is nationally recognized as a pianist as well as a band leader. He was a child prodigy as organized his first orchestra at the age of six, and studied the concert piano at the Curtis Institute of Music.

He later became arranger for Bing Crosby, and organized his own band in 1940. After a stay in the navy, Thornhill reorganized his band, which became so popular that it was subsequently chosen "band of the year" by Look magazine.

THE THORNHILL group includes five reeds, six brass, a vocalist and of course the leader's piano. One of the unusual feature is that a french horn, generally used only in concert orchestras, is included among the brass. There are three trumpets, two trombones and five men doubling on sax and clarinet.

Those attending the fete will drink "royal" punch and eat home made crown and diamond shaped cookies. These will be baked by refreshment committee members this afternoon, tomorrow and Thursday in the kitchen on the third floor of Slocum. Any coeds who would like to help are welcome, say refreshments chairmen Debra Moscow and Lorraine Chanutry.

Tickets are priced at $3.50 and will be sold at Sims dining hall daily from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 5-7 p.m. during the remainder of this week. Ticket sellers will also be stationed in the basement of Slocum and in Maxwell lobby from 8:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Junior executive council members and the chairmen of the various dance committees are also selling tickets. Ticket sales will be recorded on a giant thermometer which was put up in front of Chapel last night. Ticket co-chairmen James Baird and Elaine Kiebella say that thus far sales have been going well and urge all those who plan to attend the dance to buy their tickets promptly.

DECORATIONS CHAIRMEN Mary Todd and JoAnne Schurman say that the focal point of the decorations will be a gold crown eight feet in diameter which will be suspended below a ceiling of streamers. Pine trees will carry through the "Alpine Holiday" overall weekend theme, and draperies and crown and snowflake pattern will complete the decorations.

Eight members of Alpha Phi Omega, campus men's service honorary, will serve as ticket collectors, bouncers, coat checkers and cleanup men, arrangements chairmen Gabe Fucso and Anne McKaig have announced.

Match books and leaflets plugging the Sno-ball and distributed in machines and stores all over campus are among the various publicity devices devised by publicity co-chairmen Harold Steinberg and Kay Peterson.

Edwin Cady Edits Swedish Works

Edwin H. Cady, professor of American literature, and a faculty member at American Institute in Sweden have compiled a 270-page anthology of American literature in Sweden.

While a visiting professor of American literature at Uppsala and Stockholm universities in 1951-52, Cady and Lars Ahnebrink, teacher and research specialist in the American Institute, Uppsala, worked on the "Anthology of American Literature, 1600-1900."

Coronation Theme Claude Thornhill To Star at 'Waltz'

Tickets for the informal Stockingfoot dance will go on sale at 9 a.m. today in Maxwell, Sims and Slocum. Despite earlier contrary reports, the tickets were not on sale yesterday. Priced at $1, the sale will continue until the supply is exhausted, according to ticket chairmen Joan Poppe and Jerry Berger.

Attendance at the dance to be held at Drumlins Friday, Feb. 12, is limited to 565 couples according to chairmen Lois Cohn and William Levine. The strictly informal affair is scheduled from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

DICK KOWELL an his orchestra will play for the shoeless throng at the dance. Shoes are strictly taboo and must be checked at the door.

Prizes will be given to couples with the fanciest footwear. Awards will be in four categories, socks with the most holes, most original, funniest and best all-around.

Judges of the sock contest and chaperones for the dance are Dean and Mrs. Frank Piskor, Dean and Mrs. Charles Noble, and assistant Dean of Men and Mrs. Earle Clifford.

Keeping with the weekend's "Alpine Holiday" theme, Drumlins will be decorated as a Swiss chalet.

INTERMISSION entertainment will include a preview of "This Is Your Life," the original musical show to be presented at the Sno-ball dance, the following night. William Angelos will act as master of ceremonies and will also entertain along with Harlan (Lanny) Okun. Dean Noble will also continue his role of song leader.

Also appearing at the dance will be the newly crowned Winter Weekend empress. The empress will be crowned with a diamond tiara from Howe's Jewelers just prior to the Ice Pageant Friday night.

Official opening of the weekend will be the skiers torchlight parade at 7:15 p.m. Friday followed immediately by the crowning of the empress and the "White Boots and Blades" ice show. A cast of 40 will be in the pageant which will last about 45 minutes.

Phyllis Krinovitz, Jack MacLaoughlin and Shirley Christie will star in solo acts while two chorus scenes will be featured. A comedy act will include some Syracuse football stars in unfamiliar activity.

Chapel Leaders Hold Lakeside Conference

By LIZ GODDARD

"Time for Refueling" was the theme of the Casowasco conference attended by more than 100 Chapel leaders and staff members this weekend.

Executives from Chapel board, Protestant council and Jewish Student fellowship met in a two-day session to evaluate their present programs and plan for the new semester.

THE CONFERENCE was opened with a talk by Rev. Arthur Hopkinson, jr. on the history and organization of Hendricks chapel, emphasizing the need for a critical evaluation at mid-year.

Rev. Arnold Nakajima, Lloyd Dunsker and Roger Herz led the Jewish Sabbath Eve services in Lakeview Chapel. JSF and Protestant worship services were also held Saturday morning after breakfast.

Highlight of the Friday evening meetings was a discussion led by Rev. Wesley W. Konrad, Episcopal chaplain, on the ultimate goals of the individual and of the group.

Students sought to find the answers to four questions: Who are we? Whom do we represent? To whom are we sent? Why are we sent?

A THREE-HOUR plenary session was held Saturday morning by an all-Chapel assembly led by Dean Charles C. Noble. Suggestions were made for adapting the Chapel program to meeting the needs of more students and for combatting the problem of apathy on campus.

Students returned to campus Saturday night after Protestant council vesper services, traveling from the Owasco lake site in University buses.

Over-all chairmen of the weekend were Marialyce Brown and Paul Harrison.

Another conference is planned for February 19 and 20 at Casowasco by Chapel House reps, a group of more than 80 representatives from campus living centers.

Forestry Student From Philippines Registers on Hill

Special Student to Take Forestry Economics For One Year

A Filipino forester has enrolled as a special student in forest economics at the State University of New York College of Forestry.

A fifty-two-year-old father of eleven children, Nicanor P. Lalog arrived in Syracuse from New Orleans, where he made an economic survey of the Southern Forest Experiment Station. His program and itinerary have been arranged by the Foreign Land-Grant Colleges. He will be in Syracuse until June.

A GRADUATE of the College of Forestry at the University of the Philippines, Lalog has been senior forester in the Philippine Bureau of Forestry for the past 25 years. He has been engaged in developing and executing forest management plans and also has done some teaching at the University.

The State University of New York College of Forestry will provide Lalog with an opportunity to develop his skills in forest management. Lalog hopes to take back with him from the College of Forestry and other institutions and agencies in the United States a knowledge of new economic developments.

Lalog arrived in the United States in November. After brief orientation at the offices of the Foreign Operations Administration, the Washington International center, and the US Department of Agriculture, he conferred with forest service officials and then proceeded to the Southern Forest Experiment station at Louisiana.

At the completion of his studies at the College of Forestry, Lalog will meet with Department of Agriculture experts and do field work at various experimental and research stations in the United States. He will leave for his home in Manila the middle of August.

THE DU PONT DIGEST

Technical Sales

A major in glibness and a minor in solid information—those were the mythical requirements for a salesman in the old days. But they really never sufficed for a man selling the products of chemical technology.

Today, the diverse applications of Du Pont's 1200 products and product lines create a need for trained sales personnel representing many different technical backgrounds. These men must deal intelligently with problems in chemistry and engineering applied to such fields as plastics, ceramics, textiles, and many others.

Du Pont technical men are assigned to various types of technical sales activity. In some spots they are equipped to handle all phases of selling. In others they deal mainly with customer problems. Also, certain departments maintain sales development sections, where technical problems connected with the introduction of a new product, or a new application for an established product, are worked out.

For example, a technical man in one of Du Pont's sales groups was recently called upon to help a customer make a better and less expensive hose for car radiators. Involved were problems in compounding, such as choice and amount of neoprene, inert fillers, softeners, accelerators, and antioxidants. Correct processing methods also had to be worked out, including optimum time and temperature of milling and extruding. The successful completion of this project naturally gave a good deal of satisfaction to the customer as well as Du Pont.

In another case a customer wanted to reduce carbon contamination of arc welding rod stock. A Du Pont technical service man suggested changes in cleaning procedures that lowered contamination by 90 per cent. The new process also reduced metal loss during heat treatment—a benefit that more than offset the cost of the additional cleaning operations.

Technical men interested in sales work usually start in a laboratory or manufacturing plant where they can acquire needed background. Depending on their interest and abilities, they may then move into technical sales service, sales development, or direct sales.

In any of these fields, the man with the right combination of sales aptitude and technical knowledge will find interesting work, and exceptional opportunities for growth in the Du Pont Company.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Pat Stark smiled when asked about his signed contract with the Pittsburgh Steelers last week. With his broken jaw mended, he looked fit and ready although he lost a little weight in the hospital.

The likeable Orange quarterback says that he's looking forward to playing in the pro ranks in the United States and states that he would prefer to play in the United States rather than Canada.

After all, he said, he will be playing in the East where he is best known and he's on a team which could go places. With fellow-draftees such as Johnny Lattner of Notre Dame and Paul Cameron from UCLA, it would be hard to go wrong.

Pat Stark

The Syracuse star was told that he was drafted mostly on his passing ability. With the two-platoon still in vogue in the specialty-conscious National football league, Pat wouldn't be expected to do much running and little defense.

He realizes, however, that a pro contract isn't all candy and cake. For instance, Carl Karilivacz who spent his freshman year with the champion Detroit Lions, commented on the monotony the week before the games.

"We have no contact work during the week," he said. "Because none of the coaches want anyone hurt in practice. After a few hours of blackboard drill, our time is our own. I bet I saw every movie there was to see in Detroit for the last few months."

The Steelers appear to be as enthusiastic about Stark as Stark is about the Steelers. It should be the beginning of a long, profitable relationship.

The saga of Tom McKenzie, the scrapper who put up one of Saturday's best fights in a losing effort against Army, is one which might rival any "comeback" tale.

McKenzie lost by only two points, 30-28, but the amazing part is that it was the first time that Tom had fought in over two years!

The story began in the early winter of 1950 when the strapping forester tried out for the frosh boxing team.

McKenzie did well in his first year. In fact, in the annual "Novice Tournament" which Coach Roy Simmons holds each year, it was Tom who gave battling Vin Rigolosi his toughest fight of the year.

Tom had all intentions of trying out for the varsity squad the following year, but as the fall wore into winter, he found his studies in forestry taking up more and more of his time and he was forced to give up boxing.

But every time he could, Tom would climb to the loft in Archbold stadium, watch practice and perhaps dream of what it would have been like, if he had been in the ring.

Then this year, McKenzie found that he was able to come up to practice a little more often. One day, Simmons took him aside.

"You know, Tom," Simmie had told him. "If you could have stayed on the team, you could be an Eastern champ by now. There still might be time."

Orange fans Saturday saw what could be the beginning of a modern Horatio Alger story. McKenzie worked out in the ring last Wednesday and Thursday. He ran around the track a bit Friday. That was the extent of his workout for the Army bout.

The bout Saturday night was one of the best. Pitted against veteran Don Rundle of the Cadets, McKenzie, showing a little nervousness, lost his first round 10-8.

Then warming to his task, the serious senior battled Rundle to draw rounds by actually seeming to get stronger as the fight progressed. He lost by the first round margin.

What the battling forester will do in the future, only time will find the answer. It could turn out to be the Syracuse boxing story of the year.

Erratic Hill Cagers to Play Penn

Plagued by a three-game losing streak, Coach Marc Guley's Syracuse hoopsters resumed drills yesterday afternoon in preparation for tomorrow night's clash with highly-rated Penn.

The Ivy league leaders have another strong five this season and the Orange will have to turn in a better performance than in Saturday's 76-70 defeat to Army if they expect to break the victoryless streak. Saturday's performance was one of the worst for the erratic Syracusans.

COACH HOWIE Dallmar's Quakers have racked up an impressive 11-4 record in their 1953-54 competition and haven't seemed to miss former all-American Ernie Beck. The most recent and impressive victory was recorded Saturday night when they outclassed strong Cornell, 60-45 to tie for the Ivy league lead.

Only conquerors of the Red and Blue are Army, Penn State, Columbia and North Carolina State, all top squads.

Led by a three-man scoring threat of Bart Leach, Joe Sturgis and Dick Heylmun, the Pennsylvanians have conquered such strong quintets as Miami, Yale, Navy, Brown and Dartmouth. The Dallarmen hit their peak in the clash with the Navy, sinking the Midshipmen, 78-60.

Leach and Sturgis, the tallest starters on the squad at 6 ft.-4, have led the squad's scoring with nearly 15 points apiece per game. Capt. Heylmun is close behind and also averaging in double figures.

STURGIS, ONLY a sophomore has been the surprise of the team so far with his high scoring performances. Although handicapped by inexperience, the lanky forward has surpassed advance expectations.

To round out the first five, Dallmar has been using junior Karl Hoagland and sophomore Fran Mulroy. Hoagland is the quintet's defensive standout while Mulroy who has been rotating with grid star Ed Gramigna, nailed down the starting job with an impressive performance against Dartmouth.

Syracuse's opening five looks like the same as saw action at West Point with Capt. Mel Besdin and Jack Larned leading the way in the backcourt. Larned hooped 20 markers in the defeat while Besdin was close behind with 18.

Manny Breland and Ron Gillespie will probably be two sophs in the opening five with Dave Kline expected to be fifth man. Kline, although still handicapped by a broken wrist, gave his first starting performance since the injury against the Cadets sinking 10 points.

CAPT. MEL BESDIN will lead the Orange against the highly rated Penn basketeers tomorrow night in Archbold gym. After three straight losses, the Hill cagers hope to regain the victory column with the help of Besdin's fine set shot.

LEFTOVERS: Dallmar is well remembered from his days in pro ball when he combined with Joe Fulks for the Philadelphia Warriors, then a top squad . . . The popular coach was deadly with a driving shot . . . He is in his sixth season as Penn coach . . . The high scoring Leach wears a special brace to protect an ankle that was fractured and dislocated in a baseball mishap . . . In addition to Gramigna, another Quaker gridder on the hoop squad is John Lavin.

Piety Mermen Seek First Win of Season

After losing a 51-33 decision to the Pitt Panthers, last Saturday at the Steel City, Coach Ted Webster's mermen seek to rebound this Saturday for the first win of the season against Buffalo U. on the road.

Bob Beaumont of the Hill splashers turned in two victories in a losing cause. Beaumont captured the 50-yard sprint and the 100-yd. dash as well. In the latter event he turned back Jerry Weiss, star of the Panthers.

Bob Downing of the Saltines turned in a victory in the 50-yd. backstroke despite a poor time of 0:26. The other Hill victory came in the 300-yd. relay with the winning team of Dave Lewis, Ted Bronzyk, Len Kissel and Bob Beaumont.

The diving event which was supposed to be a duel between Jim Palmer of Pitt and Ed Gozigan of the Orange was won by Joe Gaetand of the Panthers. Palmer had edged Gozigan last year by a slim margin and a close struggle was envisioned.

Coach Webster's mermen will face the weakest team they have met so far this season when they take on Buffalo U. Syracuse easily conquered the upstate team last year.

Tangerine Boxers Win Over Plebes

A classy Orange freshman boxing team pounded out a 5-3 decision over the Army Plebes at West Point last Saturday afternoon.

Directed by Bill Miller, captain of last year's Syracuse squad and Eastern champion, the yearlings entered the final two bouts with the score tied up at three all.

Two of Syracuse's big guns, Jannocello in the 175-pound class, and Georgiade in the heavyweight class, sewed up the match for the victors. Jannocello decisioned Morajiewski to put the Orange in front, and Georgiade TKO'd Ledbetter to clean things up.

The Syracuse frosh showed too much all around talent for the inexperienced Army team. Bob Rigolosi, brother of varsity star, Vince won his match in grand style. Joe McCourt, Nick Georgiande, Marks, and Jannocello all came through with victories for the Orange.

The freshmen boxers practice with their varsity mates in the loft in Archbold Stadium. They usually provide sparring competition for the varsity pugilists, and at the same time Orange Coach Roy Simmons gets a chance to watch the frosh in action, helps them improve so they eventually develop into varsity mainstays.

Frosh Cagers Down Plebes Saturday at West Point

Exploding for 52 points in a torrid second half, the undefeated frosh basketball team recorded its eighth consecutive victory by whipping the Army Plebe five, 97-52, in an afternoon game last Saturday at West Point.

The Kaydets were able to make a game of it only in the first quarter as Coach Andy Mogish's squad, utilizing its fast break to the fullest extent, ran up its third highest point total of the season.

ARMY ACTUALLY jumped to an eight point lead early in the first period. Syracuse gradually cut the margin, however, and after it moved in front midway in the second quarter, the outcome of the game was assured and it became only a question of how great the Yearling margin would be.

The frosh pushed their lead to a comfortable 45-28 advantage at intermission. In the second half, in Coach Mogish's words, "we ran them into the ground." The Army coach used 13 men in an effort to stem the Orange scoring tide, but Syracuse simply could not be stopped.

Vinnie Cohen, 6 ft.-1 Brooklyn native, once again led the Tangerine scoring parade, this time with 21 points on seven field goals and as many fouls. Also tallying in double figures for the Piety team were Jim Brown, with 14; Jim Roper, 13; Jim Snyder, 12; and Lou Stark, with 10.

Gary Clark, the yearling's second high scorer, collected nine points. But against the Plebes, as against the Niagara frosh last week, Clark played an excellent game off the backboards and was once again an important factor in the Hill victory.

FOR THE ARMY team, it was a matter of just too much opposition. Not only were the West Pointers unable to stop the Orange fast break attack, but they also could not solve the Syracuse defense.

After the contest, Coach Mogish stated that his team had played a much improved defensive game. The frosh mentor had been displeased with his squad's defensive efforts against Niagara.

Piety Skiers Trail In Carnival Meet

The Hill skiing team, which had hopes for capturing some honors in last Saturday's Dartmouth winter carnival ski meet, was completely outclassed by their more practiced opponents, and finished last in a field of eight.

Dartmouth coped the meet for the third consecutive year with 560.9 points. However, the individual honors went to Les Streeter, captain of Middlebury's team who won two events and performed well in the others.

It was admittedly an off day for the Pietymen. Best they could do was a seventh in the downhill race. Art Roscoe finished 13th in the downhill while Hawley Woolschlager placed 13th in the combined downhill-slalom.

Undefeated Saltine Pugilists Prep For Penn State Match Saturday

With its second straight victory, a 4½-3½ win over West Point on Saturday night, the Syracuse university boxing team started practice yesterday afternoon in preparation for this Saturday's match at Penn State.

While Coach Roy Simmons was undoubtedly happy with the close victory over the Cadets, he realizes certain evident weaknesses in the Orange lineup. Syracuse, Eastern boxing champions the past five years, has won both its matches by the same slim margin; having defeated Maryland in January, 4½-3½.

THE DECIDING bout in the West Point match was the light heavyweight fight in which Bruce Yancey gained a draw in his first outing of the season and gave Syracuse the eventual margin of victory. In case of a draw each team gains ½ point, while a full point goes to the team which wins a bout.

Jerry Jaffe, John Granger and Vince Rigolosi gained their second victories of the young campaign while soph Frank Guelli captured his first win in a Syracuse uniform.

Guelli was particularly impressive in the opening bout of the evening at 125-pounds as he swarmed all over Cadet Tom Weinstein until the referee stopped the fight in the third round.

Jaffe, showing a unique style and confidence all his own, decisioned Paul Merola in the 132-pound clash. Letting Merola take the offensive and scoring his points on counter-punching, the agile Orange soph captured two of the three rounds.

JOHN GRANGER proved his old dependable self as he overpowered Duke Fredericks from the opening bell in the 139-pound bout. The Duke of West Point had hit the canvas twice before the Army coach stopped the bout in the second round.

Rigger Rigolosi, ceding three inches to Cadet Jim Ahmann in the 165-pound bout, took little time to break the West Pointer's defense and bore in for a technical knockout in the second round.

Yancey gave four inches to his opponent, Ed Mendell, and for a time it seemed the versatile Syracusan would gain a conclusive victory as he knocked down the Cadet in the first round. But Yancey tired in the remaining two rounds while Mendell found a second wind and came back strong, and Bruce had to settle for a draw.

Army's Eastern champ, Andy Maloney, gained a close decision over the Orange's Larry O'Sullivan at 147-pounds. Maloney controlled the fight from the start, backpeddaling at will, and O'Sullivan couldn't catch him, though he himself wasn't hit decisively by the West Pointer.

TOM McKENZIE, in his first bout in Orange livery, was decisioned by Don Rundle in the 156-pound bout. McKenzie, a surprise starter, gave a good account of himself against the veteran cadet.

SOPH FRANK GUELLI was a bright spot in Syracuse's 4½-3½ victory over the West Point boxing team on Saturday. Guelli won his first college bout with a TKO over Cadet TOM WEINSTEIN to start the evening festivities and an eventual victory for the undefeated Piety pugilists.

Orange Relay Team 2nd in New York

Trackmen to Compete In NYAC Meet

"They really did well," was all delighted Bob Grieve could say following his two-mile relay team's second-place finish in the Milrose games Saturday night.

Grieve's swift quartet of Jack Hubbard, Don Shupe, Les Vielbig and Steve Armstrong will be competing in New York for the second straight week this Saturday in the New York Athletic club meet.

Once again, a strong Fordham team came from behind in the Milrose games finishing a scant nine yards in front of the charging Syracuse team. It wasn't until the last two laps that Tom Courtney of the Rams overtook Armstrong.

Yale led for the first mile and a half and was nipped not only out of first but also second place by Armstrong who finished barely a half-stride ahead of his Eli opponent at the wire.

With Courtney sprinting the last half mile in an almost unbelievable 1:51.1, the Rams passed first Syracuse and then Yale to cop the event with a team time of 7:43.3. The Orangemen's time was 7:44.4.

Also competing before a jammed-packed Madison Square Garden in the two-mile race was Georgetown which finished fourth and Cornell which limped in a bad last.

WARRIORS-BEARS MANANA

Eddie Shore's revamped hockey Warriors return home tomorrow night against the Hershey Bears. Since the recent shakeup which brought 7 players from the Springfield farm club, Syracuse has split two dates.

A win for the Warriors would put them just one point back of fourth place Pittsburgh.

Piety Gymnasts Bow To National Champs

The Syracuse university gymnastic team went down to defeat at the hands of the powerful Penn State Nittany Lions last Saturday at State College. The 63-33 victory was scored with ease by the strong Pennsylvania team, which looked like they might repeat as National champions, if they continue to display the fine form exhibited against the Orangemen.

The Piety gymnasts were only able to garner one first place, that scored by Corky Sebbo in the tumbling competition, as the Nittany Lions completely dominated the meet. Jean Cronstedt was the individual star as he won the horizontal bar event, placed second in the parallel bar and fourth in tumbling.

TONY PROCOPIO also added considerably to the Penn State score. He placed first in the flying rings and finished second in the horizontal bar. Karl Schwensfeier captured second place in the rings, fourth in the horizontal bar, and fifth in the parallel bars.

Other first place finishers for Penn State included Bob Lawrence in the side horse, Al Wick in the parallel bars, and Burritt Haag in the rope climb. All in all Penn State's terrific depth proved to be too much for the scrappy Pietymen.

John Barkal placed third in the parallel bars and horizontal bar and fourth in the side horse. Milan Trnka came through with fourth place finishes in the flying rings and parallel bars and was fifth in the horizontal bars.

Ferdie Fournies suffered his first defeat of the season in the rope climb as he only managed to take third place. He also finished third in the flying rings. Andy Felice came in second in the rope climb for his initial start of the season.

DESPITE LOSING by a wide margin, Coach Paul Romeo was nevertheless pleased with the showing of his charges. He is, however, looking for an improved performance by the entire team when it faces Temple Saturday in Archbold gymnasium.

Just to prove how strong the Penn State team is this year, their victory over the Saltine gymnasts came only three weeks after they lost a two-point decision to the Swedish Olympic gym team.

Bill Lee of the Orange gymnast squad was a spectator at the Penn State meet. Lee has a broken bone in his right hand and is unable to compete in his specialty—tumbling.

Lee has been forced to withdraw from school in order to have an operation performed on his hand. He plans to return to Piety Hill in the fall unless Uncle Sam decides otherwise.

Alfred Smith Wins As Hoop Resumes With Seven Games

Skytop M-1 Gains Tie Against Irving Ave. In Feature Game

By ART STERNBERG

A last second clutch jump shot by Karl Blixt of Skytop M-1 enabled his team to tie a powerful Irving Avenue D-1-3 squad, 29-29, in intras last night. This contest was a heart-stopper all the way.

Immediately after the game ended, the Irving Avenue men lodged a protest claiming that time was called too soon. John Ohlmann led M-1 with 11 counters while Bob Gobeli and Paul Ripp led the upperclass offense. Until last night's encounter, the Irving Avenue aggregation was undefeated and led its flight with four victories.

SKYKTOP M-2 put on the best show of power in walloping M-9, 55-20. Joe Shanley, who scored 13 points, sparked the victors but the entire squad stood out in a definite "team" victory. The M-9 points were equally divided among the starting crew.

Bill Devries led the City Men to a 41-32 trouncing of Livingston. The game progressed at a slow, deliberate pace the first half, but the townies tore the game wide open in the last two stanzas when Devries broke loose for 14 points. His total for the entire game was 21 points.

Alfred Smith swamped Skytop M-8, 37-27, in another intra cage tilt. Both teams attempted the old race-horse style of basketball—fast breaks and long passes—but the frosh soon tired themselves out. Bob Conklin and Bob Schult paced their team to victory. Between them they scored 25 points.

Frank Veccione sparked a strong M-5 team to a 30-23 victory over their neighbors, M-6. He scored 16 points as his mates took an early lead and never relinquished it during the remainder of the close battle. Bill Van Aken led the losers with 14 well-earned points on a good variety of shots.

IN REMAINING games Washington Arms 2-3 topped Benjamin O'Dell 43-20. The frosh took a 20-point lead at half and clung on to this margin for the remainder of the game. Pete Bass led the victors with 16 points while Lee Kiklier and Lowell Toenneisson shone in defeat.

In the last game of the evening to be played Cleveland B defeated Skytop M-4, 27-20, in a game resembling a football game or wrestling match more than a basketball contest. The points for the winners were well distributed as their top scorer could only garner 5 counters.

The remaining game on the schedule was forfeited by Washington Arms 4-5 to Men's Co-op. Men's Co-op had an eager and full team at the game but their opponents didn't show. Therefore the upperclassmen took an automatic 1-0 victory.

ORANGE OPPONENT

The Penn State boxing team, which will play host to the Orange on Saturday evening, was defeated last week by Maryland, 6-2, and Maryland was beaten by the Orange earlier in the season. Sounds good for the Orange.

Syracuse Grapplers Meet Penn State Away Saturday

After a dismal weekend during which the Orange wrestlers lost a 19-13 decision to Franklin & Marshall, and also the services of steller lightweight Jim Rose, Coach Joe McDaniel is preparing his charges for the tough Penn State meet Saturday.

McDaniel disclosed yesterday that Rose, undefeated 123-pounder, did not return to the University this semester. The canny Long Islander's decision to leave school placed another burden on the already slim chances of a successful wrestling season.

THE PIETY grapplers, who face Penn State for the 29th time in a series which started in 1923, are taking some heart, however, from the showing of heavyweight George Finck at F&M.

Finck came through with a fall in the last minute of the third period of his match, after having trailed 6-2. The five points he garnered saved the meet from being a sham.

Up to that time, F&M led the Orange, 19-8. Co-captain Ed Rooney pinned the Diplomat's captain, Stan DuBelle, with a cradle hold in the first period to add five points to the Syracuse total, and to maintain his unbeaten string.

GEORGE FINCK, Syracuse heavyweight, came from behind in the final period to pin his opponent and give the Orange five points.

Two matches previous, in the 137-pound class, sophomore Tom King had gained a close decision to pick up the first three Orange markers.

THE HILL matmen will have a rough going against the perrennially strong Nittany outfit, which is bolstered by five returning lettermen, including Eastern champions and co-captains Dick Lemyre and Jerry Maurey.

After the Penn State meet which is at State College, McDaniel's grapplers journey to Lehigh and then return to Archbold Feb. 27 when Army is the opponent.

Following the Army meet, the Orange travel to Cornell to meet the Big Red in the finale of the dual meet season.

Syracuse will definitely compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate on March 12, 13 with a possibility remaining that they will also compete in the Nationals.

IN THE meantime, McDaniel is desparately searching for substitutes to replace Jim Rose.

The Tangerine grapplers present a similar problem to McDaniel. Having lost their first two outings, the frosh are still looking for their first triumph.

At present, the only position which is not definitely accounted for is heavyweight. Bob Gage and Jerry Cashman are two of the leading contenders for the spots, with Gage having seen action in the Frosh's first two meets.

Don Clark, Jim Rooney, Win Rushnell and Jaap Bussman hold down the 123, 137 and 147 pound slots while Ron Marinelli, Bob Smith and Tom Offiavao take care of the remaining positions.

AXEL SPOTS—The Orange grapplers have lost three top flight wrestlers this season for reasons other than injuries. Lee Martin and Tom McDougal are the other two grapplers besides Rose to leave Syracuse.

WRESTLING SUMMARY

123 pounds—Helf (F&M) pinned Husband (S) with a reverse cradle in 40 seconds of the third period.

130 pounds—Yoder (F&M) decisioned Weisz (S).

147 pounds—Dehaven (F&M) pinned Harris (S) in 23 seconds of the second period.

157 pounds—Rooney (S) pinned Du Belle (F&M) with reverse cradle in 2:05 of the first period.

177 pounds—D'Amico (F&M) decisioned Winer (S) 6-0.

Heavyweight—Finck (S) pinned Neters (F&M) with body press in 49 seconds of the third period.

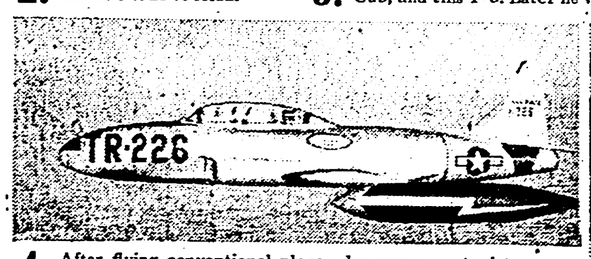
Fly with the Finest in the Air Force
QUALIFIED APPLICANTS WIN WINGS AS AIR FORCE LIEUTENANTS, EARN OVER $5,000 A YEAR!

1. Pilot training begins at Lackland Air Force Base, where Aviation Cadets get 3 months of officer indoctrination.

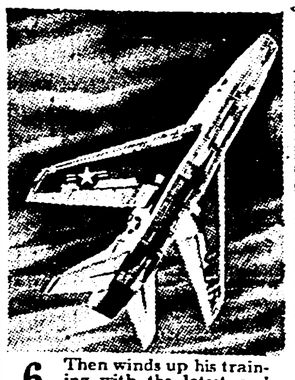
2. It's a hard grind, but Cadets also find time to relax.

3. In primary training the Cadet flies his first planes, a Piper Cub, and this T-6. Later he will fly the more advanced T-28.



4. After flying conventional planes, he moves on to jets... going up with an instructor in this T-33 trainer.

5. He wins his wings as an Air Force officer, earning over $5,000 a year.



6. Then winds up his training with the latest and fastest planes in the air.

7. He's tested those silver wings . . . And won the respect and admiration that go to every jet pilot in the United States Air Force! From now on he'll rule the skies in an Air Force jet.

● For a fast, exciting and rewarding career, make your future in the sky as an Air Force pilot. As a college student, you are now able to join that small, select band of young men who race the wind in Air Force jets. You'll have the same opportunities to learn, advance and establish yourself in the growing new world of jet aviation.

Fly as one of the best

The pilot training you get in the Air Force is the best in the world —the kind that makes jet aces. You'll learn to fly the fastest, latest planes in the air—and fly them safely and well. Those who look to the skies will look to you for leadership and confidence.

Into a brilliant future

You'll graduate as an Air Force lieutenant, earning over $5,000 a year. Your Air Force wings will serve as credentials for important positions both in military and commercial aviation. Air Force wings mark you as the very best in the flying profession.

How to qualify for Pilot Training as an Aviation Cadet!

To qualify, you must be at least a high school graduate. However, you will be of more value to the Air Force if you stay in college, graduate, and then volunteer for training. In addition, you must be between the ages of 19 and 26½, and in top physical condition. If you think you are eligible, here's what you do: Take your high school diploma or certificate of graduation together with a copy of your birth certificate down to your nearest Air Force base or recruiting station. Fill out the application they give you. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet Training Class.

WSG Will Review Fall Term Action At Session Tonight

Coed Representatives To Receive Reports On Key Legislation

Women's student government panel chairmen will review last semester's accomplishments and work tonight at the first assembly meeting of this term.

This is the first WSG group composed of direct representatives of Syracuse university women students to hear a semester report of government actions.

ALTHOUGH NO issues raised extensive controversy on the floor last semester, the assembly passed some important legislation. Organizations panel chairman Lois Clark introduced bills to withdraw recognition of the Women's Service organization and to require registration of all campus organizations.

The activities registration act went into effect after it was passed by the men's student government assembly and all organizations are expected to register with the governments this week.

First academics panel report of the year by an actual junior officer will be given by Roberta Baliba tonight. Last semester, after three resignations from the position, Miss Baliba was appointed to the job by President Mary Anne Dalton. Tonight will be Miss Baliba's first meeting as a junior officer.

Under the temporary leadership of Turbi Blum, the panel began intensive work late in November when the program and objectives for the year were announced.

CHARLOTTE EASTERBROOK, chairman of the house policy panel, will probably report particularly on the recent consideration of a stipulation that all women guests staying in University living centers must have a specific hostess. Miss Easterbook is the first chairman of this panel, which was formed this fall.

The controversial political parties act is scheduled to come to the floor at tonight's meeting. House presidents are expected to deliberate extensively over the bill, which was recently passed by MSG assembly.

The bill specifies that no candidate for campus political office may be backed by more than one party. The bill was passed by a slim 13-7 vote in the men's government assembly.

6,539 Students Register At Three-Day Enrollment

Hoopsters Meet Penn Quakers In Tonight's Game in Archbold

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Marc Guley's Orange hoopsters seek to break a three-game losing streak tonight when they entertain the potent Penn Quakers in Archbold gym at 8:30 p.m.

The Saltines scored their last victory four weeks ago when they nipped Cornell in a 71-69 thriller. Since then they have dropped games to Fordham, Niagara and Army for an 8-7 season mark.

THE QUAKERS, who come to town with an 11-4 record, are favored to capture their second straight Ivy league championship. Howie Dallmar's cagers grabbed a share of the Ivy lead Saturday by dumping Cornell, 61-46, at Ithaca, and play a majority of their remaining league contests at home.

Capt. Dick (Seed) Heylmun is the only senior in the Red and Blue starting array. A 6 ft.-1 forward from Ardmore, Pa., Seed has a wide assortment of shots and is a good jumper. He tallied 391 points in his soph season and is currently averaging over 13 per contest.

Bart Leach, who has taken over pivot duties from departed all-American Ernie Beck, is leading the Quaker scorers. The 6 ft.-4 junior threw in 21 points in the Cornell victory and contributed excellent rebounding.

The biggest surprise for Penn this year has been the consistent play of sophomore Joe Sturgis. A native Philadelphian, Sturgis set a frosh record last winter by tallying 315 points and will open at center tonight.

JUNIOR KARL Hoagland and soph Fran Mulroy round out the visitors' lineup. Hoagland is an excellent defensive player, having held Cornell's Lee Morton to eight points in their recent tilt, and possesses a fine set shot.

Top replacements for the Keystoners are a pair of football stars, Ed Gramigna and John Lavin. Gramigna started several games this season and might break into tonight's opening lineup.

Coach Guley will probably start the same quintet that opened against Army: Capt. Mel Besdin, Ron Gillespie, Dave Kline, Manny Breland and Jack Larned. Kline is expected to see more service than in recent games following his fine performance Saturday against Army. He has played only briefly since suffering a wrist fracture six weeks ago.

Penn won last year's meeting with the Orange, 71-67, in Philly. Syracuse leads the series, however, with 24 wins in 39 games.

DAVE KLINE, who despite a broken wrist will be at the starting center position for the Orangemen against Penn tonight at Archbold gym. Kline scored 10 points in his last outing against Army and his rebounding was greatly improved.

LA Heads List Art, Business Schools Next

Spring semester registration totalled 6,539 students as of Monday, University Registrar Keith J. Kennedy announced yesterday.

This figure, which does not include the College of Law, University college, Utica college or the State university colleges of Medicine and Forestry, includes a total of 6,368 students registered from last Thursday to Saturday noon.

REGISTRATION WILL continue for late comers this week, with complete figures not available for about a month.

Cit Students to Hear City Planner Moses

Robert Moses, distinguished New York city commissioner of parks and chief city planner, will speak to citizenship students on "What Citizens Can Do" at 2:15 p.m., Monday in Chapel.

Where Dr. Alfred Cope discussed the limited and "dirty" aspect of politics last week in his lecture, Commissioner Moses will elaborate on the favorable side of the business by telling what can be achieved through politics.

THE USUAL morning lecture on Monday will not be held. A tape recording of the commissioner's speech will be presented Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Maxwell.

Commissioner Moses has had such a stronghold in New York politics that even President Franklin Roosevelt in 1933, who tried to dismiss him from public office, was highly unsuccessful, says Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown of the Citizenship department.

After receiving his B.A. from Yale and M.A. from Columbia university, the commissioner got his PhD. in political science in 1913 from Columbia university. He also studied at Oxford university where he was graduated with honors in jurisprudence.

Born in New Haven, Conn. in 1883, Moses began as a municipal investigator in New York city in 1913.

DURING THE '20's the commissioner worked on many state committees for public improvements and developments.

After declining the Fusion nomination for mayor of New York city in 1933, Moses ran as a Republican candidate for New York state governor in 1934.

Mayor LaGuardia appointed him City Park Commissioner and Mayor O'Dwyer, in 1946, chose him to administer the city park and parkway system and coordinate it with state and suburban systems.

Besides working on state postwar employment problems, Commissioner Moses also worked as a city construction coordinator and on a committee for slum clearance.

A MEMBER of Phi Beta Kappa, the public ofifcial also writes for magazines and newspapers on government, parks, public works, housing and recreation.

In 1935 Commissioner Moses received the Gold Medal of the Hundred Year club for civic service. The Kiwanis club honored him for his distinguished service for the city in 1942.

Columbia university awarded the commissioner a medal of merit.

Co-op Book Mart Nets Over 3,000

Last Chance Today For Book-bargaining

The student co-operative book mart brought in $1,112.45 yesterday in its second day of sales, according to Rhoda Prithcard, book mart president.

This makes a total of $3,645.80 which the book mart has earned for students in its two days of selling. Today is the last day the mart will sell books. During the same three-day period last semester the book mart netted $4,896.

MISS PRITCHARD emphasized the need for: Field of Psychology, Guilford; Growth of Western Civilization; Literature of Our Times, Waite and Atkinson; A Survey of National Development from 1865 on, Barck, Wakefield, Lefer; and Governing of Men, Leighton, and business english books. The book mart will try to sell any of these books which students bring in today.

There is also an abundance of books for zoology 1, philosophy 1, general education, and speech.

In spite of the heavy business, the book mart still has more than 2,000 left to sell. These books are priced from one-half to two-thirds of their original price by their owners.

Money will be given out for books sold all day tomorrow and Friday, and until noon on Saturday. A fee of five cents will be charged for books sold for under $1.50, and 10 cents for books sold over that price. This is to cover the operating expenses of the book mart.

STUDENTS WHO have books left at the mart from last semester should claim them during the three days set aside at the end of the week or forfeit them to the book mart. Books left at the mart for more than one semester must be relinquished.

More than 1,000 volumes from the recently dissolved textbook lending library also have been turned over to the mart. It has been proposed that the funds from these sales be put into a Student Union endowment fund.

Correction Lists WAER Members

Due to an error, a paragraph containing the names of three new senior staff members at radio station WAER was dropped from the story on the staff appointments on page six of yesterday's Daily Orange.

Those omitted were Phyllis Lavine, new traffic director; Robert Martindale, supervisor of announcers and James McNerney, sports director.

Miss Lavine was assistant to Station Manager E. C. Jones last semester, while Martindale has been on the news and announcing staffs. McNerney, a junior, has experience as an engineer and was on the announcing and sports staffs.

Good news

There's good news in jobs for June's graduating senior going into industry or business, according to a survey recently completed by Northwestern university.

The director of placement there announced the results of his nation-wide survey with an optimistic voice. Business and industrial leaders interviewed contemplated employing more men and paying them slightly higher starting salaries than last year.

The engineering students seem to fare the best with results of the survey showing that much of the increased demand for labor is in the technical and engineering field. The most significant increased demand for non-technical personnel will be in the sales field.

The results of the survey concerning starting salaries also give the edge to the engineer, although the non-technician's pay raise over last year is still substantial. The student from the engineering college can expect a $345 a month pay check in '54, while the non-technician's average wage is predicted at $315.

The opportunities of college women were not overlooked by the survey. As usual, the female starting salary is decidedly below that of her male counterpart. Those without technical training will start at about $240 per month. Women chemists and technicians, however, will be able to boast a $310 wage.

The placement director concluded that the supply of men graduates available for employment will still be well below the number needed because 75 per cent of these grads have yet to face the prospect of military service.

The only bleak spot in this survey were those predictions that jobs would be scarcer next year or the year after. This was attributed to returning veterans and the larger college enrollments.

But here again, the technician stood in the fore as the placement director forecast a continued shortage in engineering, chemistry and other technical fields.

Editor-in-Chief

You are there?

While everybody else is praying for snow, the Sno-ball committee chairmen are just praying for an attendance figure that will let them at least break even financially.

Perhaps the above approach is one of a defeatist, but the problem, part of the new age of the college student, comes up four times a year. For each class faces the gauntlet of holding its annual semi-formal or formal affair.

Now its the junior class's turn.

The common complaint is that college dances are just, shall we say, blah? But Winter weekend presents the paradox of this particular condemnation, the Stockingfoot.

For this particular affair is a sell-out every year, (yesterday the tickets sold out in an hour and a half). Why? Maybe it's this new age again where the college student likes to be a little unihibited and wiggle his toes in public.

True, its the informality and the atmosphere that make the Drumlins party a sell-out. But there's nothing really wrong with a little formality, (girls don't love to live in jeans, you know), and the atmosphere in the Women's gym is what one makes it.

We don't think we have to go into the points about the Band, decorations, and program for the Sno-ball here. Let it suffice to say that one is missing a major part of the Winter weekend activities if the semi-formal is passed up.

New age or not, we hope you haven't forgotten the two step.

CINEMA CLOSEUPS

1953 'Oscar' Nominees

By CHARLES SAMUELS

A preview of things to come

During the windy month of March the American film industry will begin patting itself on the back, via the Academy Award presentations. Last year the ceremony was presented with great opulence and is as usual, negligible judgment in the bestowal of the awards. The following list of nominations will probably not gibe with the list handed to the Academy but in the interest of justice (we hope it is hereby set forth).

Best Actress—Deborah Kerr—A fine subtle performance as the tortured wife in "From Here to Eternity."

Runnerups: Audrey Hepburn ("Roman Holiday") a charming debut performance by a young woman who has enough personality for two.

Celia Johnston ("The Captain's Paradise") Miss Johnston, one of England's finest actresses very nearly waled away with the Guiness film and that is quite a feat.

Best Actor—James Mason, Mr. Mason's Brutus in "Julius Caesar" was a moving portrayal of a tortured soul.

Runnerups: John Geilgud ("Julius Caesar") Mr. Geilgud's Cassius runs Mr. Mason's Brutus a very close second in quality.

Spencer Tracy ("The Actress") The warmest, most cleverly detailed performance of the season.

Best Supporting Actress—Roberta Haynes: A lovely portrayal in "Return to Paradise."

Runnerup: Dorothy Tutin ("The Beggar's Opera").

Runnerups: William Demarest ("Escape from Fort Bravo") The best of the many character portrayals that he has given.

Robert Strauss ("Stalag 17") Mr. Strauss' excellent burlesque as "Animal" was the film's high point.

Best Director—William Wyler: As is usual in films many directors distinguished themselves above and beyond the call of duty. This was not so true of any of them as it was of William Wyler, who in "Roman Holiday," found new and hidden life in the old story of the poor "little rich girl." Mr. Wyler's deft direction was responsible for the film's infectious charm.

Runnerups: Fred Zinnemann ("From Here to Eternity") If Mr. Zinnemann was responsible for the one really interesting new drama, he was also responsible for its failure. By over-directing, individual scenes, the film, as a whole, suffered. Nevertheless, the ensemble acting in the film was due to his very capable work.

Joseph L. Mankiewicz ("Julius Caesar") Getting an artistically coherent picture, using such mismated actors as Marlon Brando and John Geilgud earns Mr. Mankiewicz a salute. However, a more energetic use of the camera would have hepled matters greatly.

Best Script—Daniel Tardasch: Tardasch turned the impossible trick of making something comprehensible of James Jones novel of Army life in "From Here to Eternity." Mr. Jones seemed bent on holding up the English language to ridicule and the original was far inferior to the adaptation.

Runnerups: Frank Fenton ("Escape From Fort Bravo") Here was the wittiest, most adult western script since "High Noon."

Christopher Fry ("The Beggar's Opera") Mr. Fry's script abounded in the kind of adult humor that is all but present in most films.

Best Film—"The Bandwagon": A big bundle of joy: this Metro Goldwyn Mayer musical was the most successful film of the year—successful, because it fulfilled its avowed objective with nothing to be desired.

HIGH CUPPA JAVA

HIGH COST OF COFFEE DATING

By MICHAEL BRAUN

The day of the coffee boycott has arrived. Marshall street is storing up on lemons and tea bags, by Godfrey. The customary cup of java is fast becoming that "spot of tea."

Dutch Haven and The Varsity still charge only a dime for a cup. But it's downright unpatriotic not to protest, it's almost un-American. Tea sales are, as the ad men say, zooming.

This was quite evident when we entered Dutch Haven. Eddie Fisher was singing on the juke box and everyone was listening and drinking tea. Cups and cups of coffee protesting tea.

We walked over to the cashier's desk. "Lot of kids drinking tea these days. Almost outsells coffee," she said, "Look!" We looked. The man at the counter was filling another percolator of tea. Students were literally gobbling it up.

A young lady wearing dungarees and a pony tail haircut ordered a second cup of tea. "I don't really like it as much as coffee," she told us, "but I feel that it's my duty to drink it in order to lower the price."

Someone passed by and volunteered the information that certain bakeries are putting out packaged crumpets to make the Brittanic atmosphere complete.

Over at the Varsity, the situation was similar. Tea sales were rising and coffee sales were going down. The waitresses were now asking "cream or lemon?" instead of cream or sugar. Even the football players were doing their bit and drinking the stuff.

At one table a girl, drinking coffee, looked worried. Maybe this was a clue. We hurried over. "Why are you so perplexed?" we asked. "I want to be patriotic," she said with a slight shiver. And then lowering her voice, "But I don't like tea."

A Dream in Cardboard

By JOY YUNKER

An architect's model of a dream School of Journalism was the senior project of Allen Kosoff, who designed the proposed building.

The model, on exhibit on the fourth floor of Slocum in the School of Architecture, incorporates the features suggested by Wesley C. Clark, Dean of the School.

As proposed, the building allows for an enlarged library to house more books and microfilm files of the great newspapers of the world. This library would allow more working space for researchers.

In addition the building would house regular lecture classrooms. Office space for the faculty and such agencies as the associations of editors, advertising managers, publishers, not only of daily papers, but weeklies, magazines and radio stations would be available.

As planned the offices of the University press, the plant of the Orange Publishing co., the editorial offices of the student publications, club rooms for such organizations as Theta Sigma Phi, Sigma Delta Chi, and the Journalism council would be housed in the building.

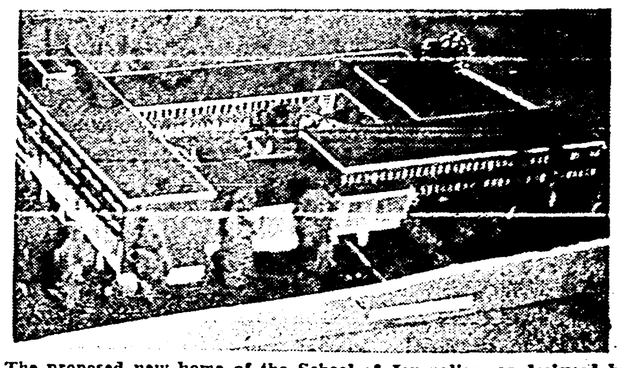
The model allows room for a museum of New York state's journalism history. This would, as proposed, be a central place for the preserving and display of such great works.

The School in a building such as this would have a printing laboratory which would not only provide for the teaching of fundamentals in typography but allow the instruction to be carried through to the finished product.

A laboratory such as this could print an experimental newspaper or magazine or a brochure for the advertising classes.

The wings of the model provide room for dormitories. These dormitories would be for the use of last semester seniors. By being close to libraries and laboratories graduating students would be better prepared to do a professional job.

The model places the site of the proposed school at the corner of University pl. and S. Crouse ave., one of the actual possible sites, when a new building is built.



The proposed new home of the School of Journalism as designed by Allen Kosoff, as a senior project for the School of Architecture. The model is now on display on the fourth floor of Slocum.

A 'Blind Date' Abroad

"Going abroad is like having a blind date."

The comment comes from Robert Root, associate professor of journalism at Syracuse and can be found for ready reference in his new book "How to Make Friends Abroad."

The book comes off the presses Friday from the Association Press. Aside from explaining his "blind date" line, ("a person hopes for the best, but he may secretly be uneasy"), he summarizes a European's and Asiatic's view of Americans.

The little tome is not solid blocks of type, though. Don Peterson, recent graduate and past cartoonist for the Daily Orange and Syracusan, has tossed in some bright cartoons . . . a sort of American's view of an Asiatic's view of Americans.

Prof. Root writes from personal tramping through 17 European countries on a Pulitzer scholarship and also served a term as special Asian correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor.

His memoirs of the other hemisphere link him and his readers with the magic and mud of the old world. As the book jacket notes, it's a Dale Carnegie bit on "How to Make Friends Abroad."

FROM CAMPUS — TO CAREER IS A BIG STEP

When the graduate leaves the college campus to begin his career he is taking an extremely important step. For he is leaving the area of directed-development in college and entering the area of self-development in industry.

Closing the gap between his campus experiences and the realities of earning a living is not easy. The complicated maze of modern industrial society has made this transition a tough task. While the craftsmen of former years grew up with the business, the college graduate of today steps into a strange organization at a relatively high level. He has had no opportunity to understand, through a long period, the methods and operations of the concern.

During his first few years, he is finding his place in the organization—learning its policies and objectives, and at the same time shaping his professional career. He needs all the assistance and guidance he can get.

Here at General Electric, hundreds of young men have found that intensive efforts are made to "bridge the gap" between college and industry—and to help young professional people realize their goals. Through extensive training programs, classroom study programs, leadership programs, and guidance in professional development, carefully selected young men are prepared for positions of responsibility and leadership in their individual fields.

Providing college graduates with the opportunity to know the Company and find the right job in it . . . giving them high-level, flexible orientation and training . . . offering continued opportunity for professional growth are most important tasks at General Electric. Nothing is more important—for our young professional people are our biggest asset.

If you are interested in building a career with General Electric, see your college placement director for the date of the next visit of the G-E representative on your campus. Meanwhile, for further information on opportunities with General Electric write to College Editor, Dept. 2-123, General Electric Company, Schenectady 5, New York.

Levi's Lose 20-6; Roosevelt Forfeits

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A lack of action was the keynote in last night's intramural basketball played on the Archbold floor.

In one of the more classic endings of this season, Levi Morton bowed to Grover Cleveland A by the score of 20-6.

Levi Morton was represented by Bob Perry, Don Pratt, Gordon Davies, Nick Gryzmkowski and Doug Scharback. Grover Cleveland took an early lead and had complete command of the game when the terminating point came.

When Perry, the leading playmaker for Levi Morton injured his back and was forced to quit the game, Levi Morton had no other man to replace him and therefore forfeited the game.

In their previous outings, Levi Morton beat Skytop M-7 by eight points and lost by a close margin to another Skytop team.

The injury to Perry is a serious blow to Levi Morton hopes for the scrappy five foot 10 inch junior has been their leading scorer during the season. Last year, Perry led Levy Morton to the door step of the independent title before they were finally downed by Grover Cleveland.

Grover Cleveland missed many shots from the field but by controlling the boards, they swept to victory . For every shot Levi Morton took, Grover Cleveland took three and this was the determining factor of the game.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt house forfeited to Skytop M-3 in the other scheduled game that did not reach conclusion.

INTRA BITS—With the halfway mark having already been reached in basketball intramurals, Intramural Director Milt Howard urged all teams to show up for their games and forfeit only in case of a dire emergency.

Bowling Scores

Nathan Miller 7, Grover Cleveland 2; Collendale A-3 9, Wash. Arms 3-4 0; Skytop M-8 9, Livingston 0; Army Comptrollers win by forfeit over Skytop M-14; Skytop M-4 win by forfeit over Skytop M-9.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Hamilton, New York, is a small town located in the beautiful Chenango valley about 40 miles south of Syracuse. Its population is between ten and fifteen thousand with about 1,200 added visitors from different sections of the nation. And these 1,200 out-of-towners are the ones that either make or break the name of Hamilton in college circles. Some people might call them wildmen. Others say they are students. But up Syracuse way we call 'em "the enemy." In other words, Colgate and Syracuse are about to meet headon again.

If we said the Orange basketeers were "going to hell" this Saturday evening we truthfully would't be far off the beaten trail. For if you have ever been in Huntington gym on a Saturday night when the Red Raiders are playing it's just like the devil's own home. I know because I was there last year just around this time.

It's got down to the point where a couple of wins over the Raiders could either make or break the current hoop season. When you lose your leading scorer and your best rebounder breaks his wrist it really hurts a squad. The Orange rebounding strength has just about been destroyed as we witnessed against a fair Army team whose boardwork meant victory.

But we still aren't giving up those two wins. Sure we have been taking it on the chin lately. Fordham rocked us, Niagara gave us a shellacking and then the Cadets trimmed our pants. Colgate beat Army and knocked highly-touted Connecticut recently. They even gave Fordham a rough time in the Devil's Den. But who cares about that.

This piece may just do the opposite of what it is intended to do. That's to get that stimulus up to "knock the stuffings out of the guys from down below". They may start posting it up and down the campus but I doubt if it's going to happen again. At least I hope it won't.

You know Colgate isn't invincible. Sure they've got that group of guys who go crazy on Saturday. They may act a little whacky but brother that is spirit and the only way to fight fire is to use fire.

Sure I know, it's Winter Weekend. But these guys aren't going to any dance on Saturday night. They're going out to play a ballgame which to them may prove their most important of the year. The guys are up against a lot of tough obstacles. Playing away from home, that tough backboard, the big Colgate crowd, the Voodoo. Things like that don't help any.

But when it comes to the Orange and the Raiders you just can't tell. With any sort of encouragement from the students from a home crowd the boys could do the trick. So let 'em post this all over the campus if they wish. I'm not saying it won't backfire again but there isn't any harm in trying. But I've got the feeling the Raiders are going to get a mighty rough time this Saturday evening. We'd even go out on a limb and prophesize a victory.

COME ON GUYS, LET'S GO GET THIS ONE!

Seeing a game at Colgate is quite an unusual experience. You walk into a band box gym with every seat filled full of Colgate men. They howl, scream and tear the joint down before the game even begins. I remember one girl walked in with a date and waved to a fellow in the stands. The whole stands stood up and waved back to her. At Colgate it wouldn't even be called a "loose call."

The game began and the students began and Bill Orange didn't. They screamed, they jumped, they got on Guley, they got on Besdin. They went crazy. Every time Mel got the ball the whole stands started to yell in unison, "Melvey, Melvey." Everytime Guley would yell something to his players, the students would mimic him all throughout the gym. Brother, you just haven't lived until you have been down to Colgate.

Well, the Raiders scored 100 points that night and the boys were quite happy about it. You can imagine how the boys show their happiness and especially against Syracuse. Why even Joe Dimaggio didn't have as much fun as the boys from Colgate did that evening. Marilyn wouldn't say so but I would.

When Colgate came up here this writer wrote an article blasting some of their unfriendly tactics and they posted it all around the campus. And when they came up here they whipped us again. This quieted me down for the rest of the year. But as they say in that place where Chuck Dressen used to live, "wait until next season." Now it has arrived.

it's Wonderful Winter Weekend time

Tangerines to Face GE Tonight

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

General Electric's powerful industrial league basketball squad will try to end the Syracuse frosh's undefeated string tonight when the two teams clash in a 6:30 preliminary to the Orange-Penn game at Archbold gymnasium.

Coach Andy Mogish's five will be looking for its ninth consecutive victory while GE will be seeking revenge for an 84-72 loss suffered at the hands of the Hill yearlings earlier in the season.

ON SATURDAY, January 9 Syracuse outscored the Electronics Park quintet, 84-72 in a rugged contest. Leading 42-32 at halftime the Piety aggregation had to battle their opponents throughout the entire second half as GE gave the Tangerines their closest game of the season.

In the first clash between the the teams, the Tangerines were led by Vinnie Cohen and Gary Clark. Cohen scored 22 big points and Clark added 16. Also in double figures for the yearlings was Jim Brown, who netted 14 points.

Tonight, the frosh will try to continue the fine play that resulted in a 97-52 win over the Army Plebes last Saturday at West Point.

In the Army game, Syracuse exhibited an improved brand of basketball as the Kaydets were almost run off the court by a torrid Orange second half fast break attack.

THE LAST half Hill scoring spree against the Academy squad upped the frosh scoring average for the campaign. The Cubs have been averaging a sensational 89.3 points per game against a big school competition.

No opponent, in fact, has been able to make it even close for the Syracusans. The Saltines have had a lead in double figures at the end of each of their games.

The starting lineup is tentative for the GE tilt. Vinnie Cohen, Gary Clark, Jim Snyder, Jim Brown, Lou Stark and Vinnie Albanese will probably see the most service, along with Jim Roper and Neil Wilcox.

After the General Electric game, Colgate will be the next obstacle in the yearlings' path. The Frosh will travel to Hamilton Friday night for an important game with a good Red Raider frosh squad.

THE ELEVENTH Tangerine contest is slated for Wednesday, Feb. 17, when the fine LeMoyne college first year team will invade Archbold for a prelim to the Orange-Canisius game.

Warriors Seek Win In Hockey Battle

Vie Against Bears At Memorial Tonight

The Syracuse Warriors play host to the Hershey Bears this evening at the War Memorial as the hockey season swings into the stretch drive. Game time is 8:30 p.m.

Following tonight's game, the Warriors face the Providence Reds. A couple of wins this weekend would aid the Warriors in their drive for a play-off spot.

The addition of Vern Pachal to the local's squad coupled with the return of health of a few of his ailing charges enables Coach Frank Beisler to field a squad of 15 players.

Pachal is the latest addition to Warrior ranks following the shake-up that saw 10 players coming in to replace five sent to Springfield and five that are still suspended.

IT'S ALL A MATTER OF TASTE

When you come right down to it, you smoke for one simple reason . . . enjoyment. And smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste. Yes, taste is what counts in a cigarette. And Luckies taste better.

Two facts explain why Luckies taste better. First, L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco . . . light, mild, good-tasting tobacco. Second, Luckies are actually made better to taste better . . . always round, firm, fully packed to draw freely and smoke evenly.

So, for the enjoyment you get from better taste, and only from better taste, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Get a pack or a carton of better-tasting Luckies today.

COLLEGE SMOKERS PREFER LUCKIES

A comprehensive survey—based on 31,000 student interviews and supervised by college professors—shows that smokers in colleges from coast to coast prefer Luckies to all other brands! The No. 1 reason: Luckies' better taste!

Hill Organizations Slow to Register

Response by organizations to registration has been slow, according to senior officer George Kepner of men's student government and Jerome Gerber, junior officer in charge.

They pointed out that all student organizations, with the exception of fraternities and sororities, must register with student government by Friday, under the terms of an act passed by men's and women's student government.

Registration forms are available in the MSG office, building 30 and the WSG office, third floor, Women's building.

Student government officials have stressed that the new law is not regulatory, but is purely administrative to aid in obtaining complete files on student groups.

There's plenty of "head room" for you at Boeing

If you are a senior in any field of engineering, it would be advisable to consider the advantages of a career at Boeing after you graduate.

Boeing, for instance, makes a policy of "promoting from within." Regular merit reviews give you steady opportunity and recognition. And in a company with a growth record like Boeing's, there's always plenty of "head room" to move into.

Another advantage at Boeing is career stability. Boeing has grown practically continuously during its 37 years of operation. Today Boeing actually employs more engineers than even at the peak of World War II.

Still another Boeing advantage is the variety of experience and contacts available to you here. Boeing is constantly alert to new materials and techniques, and approaches them without limitations. Extensive subcontracting and major procurement programs—all directed by engineers—give you contacts with a cross section of American industry. Aviation, in fact, is unique in its variety and breadth of application—from applied research to production design, all going on at once.

At Boeing you'd work in Seattle, Washington, or Wichita, Kansas—two fresh, modern cities with a wide variety of recreational facilities, fine shopping and residential districts, and universities which provide excellent graduate study courses. The company will arrange a reduced work week to permit time for this study and will reimburse tuition upon successful completion of each quarter's work.

There are openings in all branches of engineering (mechanical, civil, electrical, aeronautical, and related fields) for DESIGN, PRODUCTION AND RESEARCH. Also for servo-mechanism and electronics designers and analysts, and physicists and mathematicians with advanced degrees.

State Authorizes New Med Hospital At Syracuse Site

Multi-Million Dollar Building Scheduled For 1958 Completion

Plans to replace University hospital of the Good Shepherd with a multi-million dollar State university medical center hospital have been approved by the trustees of the State university of New York.

Scheduled to be ready by the fall of 1958, the hospital will be located next to the basic sciences building on Irving ave.

NO ESTIMATE of cost for the new hospital has been announced, but it is reported to run to several million dollars.

William S. Carlson, president of the State university, said that the hospital will serve a large Upstate area. There will be at least 200 beds in the building and as many extra as are needed in the medical center's educational program, he added.

Also approved by the trustees were an outpatient clinic and clinical laboratories and offices for the medical center.

Construction will allow entering classes at the med college to be increased from 76 to 100 students in the fall of 1956.

"IT IS THE State university's hope that the staff of the medical center hospital as it develops will be in a position to assist many physicians and smaller community hospitals in many ways, such as laboratory and X-ray services and in developing a general excellence of effort," Dr. Carlson said.

University hospital is now operating under a contract with the State university and will continue to operate until the new hospital facilities are ready, according to Harold Coon, chairman of the hospital committee of the Syracuse university board of trustees.

"When that eventually takes place, the future use of the building for educational purposes will be determined by Chancellor William P. Tolley and the University's board of trustees," he stated.

The action by the State university did not consider questions of planning and construction. It is hoped that architects can be appointed by fall and construction can begin within 18 months.

Advertising Exams Scheduled Feb. 20

The eighth annual examination for advertising sponsored by the New York council of the American association of Advertising Agencies will be held Feb. 20 in 313 Maxwell.

The test, which measures aptitude for work in the advertising field, is open to college seniors and any persons under 30 who are not currently employed in an advertising agency.

TO BE HELD here under the supervision of Prof. Philip Ward Burton, chairman of the School of Journalism's advertising department, the examination is made up of a series of aptitude-temperament tests compiled and analyzed by specialists in the testing of advertising personnel.

Over the past seven years the AAAA, has tested almost 5,000 applicants in advertising centers throughout the country. A high percentage of those who have done well in the examinations have obtained employment, according to Charles L. Rumrill of Rochester, in charge of the tests in upstate New York.

A full range of advertising activity is covered in the aptitude tests, which are especially designed to determine suitability of the candidate for contact work or selling, copywriting, layout, etc.

The fee for the examination is $20. Further information and application blanks may be obtained by college seniors from Dean Wesley C. Clark of the Journalism School or Charles L. Rumrill, Charles L. Rumrill & Co., Inc., 339 East ave., Rochester 4, N. Y.

Compositions by Mulfinger include piano pieces, songs, works for organ, stringed instruments and orchestra. Some of his selections will be included in Sunday's concert.

Ozolins, who was also served with the Syracuse Symphony orchestra, was head of cello and chamber music at the State Conservatory of Music in Latvia before coming to this country. He was also solo cellist in the State Broadcasting orchestra in Latvia and a member of the Latvian string quartet.

"Elegy" for cello and piano, by Mulfinger, will be given its premiere performance Sunday. The work is in the form of a theme with 11 variations and was composed in 1950.

Weekend Skaters To Waltz Friday In Pastel Formals

Switzerland Theme Also Included In Pageant

Pastel formals in the middle of February will be the vogue at tomorrow night's Winter Weekend ice pageant at Drumlins hockey rink. "The Carousel Waltz" featuring a cast of 20 girls will be featured in one of the two chorus scenes of the "White Boots and Blades" pageant.

A switch in scene will take the audience to "A Little Country Road in Switzerland" as the chorus changes to Swiss hats and shirts with Bermuda shorts and suspenders.

SCHEDULED FOR 7:15 p.m., the pageant will also include solo acts by Phyllis Krinovitz, Shirley Christie and Jack MacLaughlin. Miss Christie will give a baton twirling show on skates. Comedy will be provided in the show when some of the Syracuse grid stars try their talent on skates.

The pageant will immediately follow the skiers torchlight parade and the crowning of the Winter weekend empress who will be announced in tomorrow's Daily Orange. Admission to the ice pageant is free.

Tickets for tomorrow night's Stockingfoot dance are completely sold out according to co-chairmen Lois Cohn and William Levine. Tickets for Saturday's semi-formal "Empress Waltz" Sno-ball tickets, priced at $3.50, continue on sale at Maxwell, Slocum and Sims.

A NEW ADDITION to the Carnival schedule will be Saturday morning's Jewish Student fellowship service. The event, which will become an annual affair of Winter Weekend, will be held at Hendricks chapel at 11 a.m.

Freshman Spots Law College Fire

Quick action by Daily Orange freshman staffer Diana Dahlman at 6:30 p.m. yesterday prevented serious damage by fire to the law college under construction at the western end of campus.

Walking by, Miss Dahlman saw flames in building material on the second floor of the unfinished structure. She ran to Hendricks chapel, nearest building open, and called firemen.

Canvas apparently was ignited by flames from a smudge pot and spread to the building material, firemen said. Large piles of lumber were nearby, but the fire was extinguished before it could spread.

AFROTC TOTAL

Because of a typographical error in yesterday's Daily Orange, the Air Force ROTC registration to date was incorrectly listed. The correct total is 851.

WSG Reviews Past Year, OK's Political Parties Act

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

After only 10 minutes of discussion, women's student government assembly approved the political parties act last night with three members dissenting.

The bill, which caused much controversy in men's student government assembly and was passed there by a slim 13-7 vote, got the nod from WSG after a few questions from the floor were answered.

EFFECTIVE FOR spring elections, the act requires that a list of party officers be submitted to student governments one month prior to elections.

In addition to the stipulation that a candidate's name may appear only once on the ballot, other provisions of the act are requirements that the name of a new party must be substantially different from the names of other parties and the four top officers must sign pledges that they have compiled with the rules of the act before elections can be held.

The act says that a $25 bond must be posted by each party with the election commission.

In other business tardiness of the University in sanding walks after heavy snow was brought up by a member of the assembly. The group approved a motion to allow the Student Welfare panel to investigate this.

PANEL CHAIRMEN reviewed a semester's progress at last night's meeting. One junior officer distributed a questionnaire which will be used as the basis for a pamphlet to be added to the house president's manuel this spring.

Charlotte Easterbrook asked the assembly members to cooperate with their head residents in answering questions about house problems and solutions. These answers will be incorporated in a booklet to be printed and distributed later in the semester.

Inquiry into dining hall complaints by women students this semester resulted in an offer by food service director Mrs. Ursula Pettingill to consider any menus within reason submitted to her by coeds. This report was submitted by Jean Grube, a member of the panel on student welfare.

Student Welfare panel also investigated space possibilities for a student lending library and the extension of student cooperatives. As a result of the panel's work, traffic lights were placed at University pl. and Walnut ave. and at University and College pl. this fall.

ORGANIZATIONS PANEL originated in WSG the activities registration bill which was passed by both women's and men's student governments.

During last semester the panel chaired by Lois Clark, proposed withdrawal of recognition of Women's Service organization, which had failed to submit a suitable list of projects to WSG.

Constitutions of Women's Athletic association and the Outing club were also approved by the assembly.

Under the chairmanship of Dorianne Bright, public relations panel encouraged student support of FM station WAER but found the expense of installing proper radios in living centers would be prohibitive. Work is now going forward for installation of a wired wireless system, which would enable AM radio to receive FM programs.

Through ways and means panel the Student Discount service was propagated throughout the campus. The panel, chaired by Marilyn Murtha, is now studying tentative plans for a student union in the basement of the Women's building.

Orange Loses, 78-74; Season Record Even

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

(Box Score, Page 4)

With Capt. Mel Besdin playing less than 18 minutes, Syracuse university's hoopsters went down to their fourth straight defeat last night in Archbold gym, 78-74, at the hands of the Pennsylvania Quakers.

The Orange made a futile bid to catch the Quakers late in the last period as Besdin supplied the spark with three driving layups in the final two minutes. Syracuse cut the deficit to 74-72 with 30 seconds remaining but Dick Heylmun's two free throws and breakaway basket sent the Orange to its eighth defeat against a like number of successes.

THE VICTORY, Penn's 12th in 16 games and first on the local court in 30 years, was primarily a three-man effort. Joe Sturgis, a 6 ft.-4 soph from Philadelphia, led the Red and Blue with 23 points while Capt. Heylmun and junior Bart Leach added 22 apiece. Sturgis also grabbed 21 rebounds in one of the finest performances of the local season.

Manny (Boob) Breland of Syracuse captured individual scoring honors, however, with 24 points. Jack Larned tallied 15 and Besdin 10.

Besdin, Syracuse's leading scorer with a 16 point average, played part of the opening quarter, then sat on the bench until the final period.

The Quakers opened fast, scoring seven straight points before Syracuse lit the scoreboard. Clyde Murrock rebounded Dick Jaskot's miss for the first Orange score, after three minutes of the contest had elapsed.

LEACH CONVERTED a pair of free throws and Jaskot countered with one to give the visitors a six-point advantage which they held at the quarter, 22-16.

Penn maintained its margin until midway through the second period when Larned and Breland began to hit. The backcourt duo combined for 15 points in the rally with Breland's drive giving the Orange a 35-33 lead at the intermission.

With Syracuse unable to hit from the field, Penn regained the advantage early in the third session. The Orange caged only two baskets in the period, a layup by big Lou Beverly and a tip by Ronnie Gillespie. Penn's high-scoring trio tallied all the Quaker points in the quarter with Sturgis netting 10.

The winners pulled out to a ten point advantage, 55-45, after the final period opened, but the Orange drew to within five on Breland's goal at the three-minute mark. The rally fell short, however, and Penn scored its 16th win in the 40-game series.

Penn scored 26 field goals in 76 attempts for a shooting percentage of 34.2. Syracuse hit on 22 of 77 shots for 28.5 per cent.

Forte, a member of the Fine Arts faculty is assisted by Lee Gardner, a junior in fine arts and a member of Tri-elt.

JOHN JAY MOORE, drama instructor who has worked on numerous other productions, designed the set for this particular play also. Peter Forward, Sigma Phi Epsilon, majoring in scenic design, is the student technical director for the play.

Also on the technical staff are: Judith Deichler, Samuel Baskin, Lee Poindexter and Robert Dishy.

Book Mart Closes, Announces Totals

Students Must Claim Money, Textbooks

The student co-operative book mart closed its last day of sales for this semester yesterday with a total of $3,618.30 for students who had turned over their books for reselling, according to Rhoda Pritchard, president of the book mart.

The money for the 1,300 books sold will be turned over to the owners of the books from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today and tomorrow and from 8:30 a.m. until noon Saturday.

Any books not claimed by this time must be forfeited. Students also may pick up money left there from last semester during this time. Any money not collected by noon Saturday will be donated to the book mart scholarship fund.

Many of the books sold at the mart belong to the recently disintegrated textbook lending library. It has been proposed that the money from these sales go into a textbook lending library endowment fund.

The book mart is located in the women's lounge of the Men's gym. It is accessible by using the side entrance and following the signs to the second floor.

Temples to Greet Jewish Students

Since there will be no Sabbath Eve services on the Hill tomorrow, students are urged to attend local synagogues.

Services at Temple Adath (conservative) and Temple Concord (reformed) begin at 8 p.m. The New Beth Israel temple holds services at 5 p.m.

Jewish Student fellowship will hold its first Torah service at 11 a.m. Saturday in conjunction with the Winter weekend program.

Dr. Fred Krinsky, assistant to the chaplain of JSF, will deliver the sermon on "Service, not Charity." Stanley Goldsmith is the student cantor and he will be assisted by the JSF choir.

The service will be followed by a brunch at noon in the social rooms of the Chapel, featuring traditional Jewish food. Anyone who takes a reservation may attend as a guest of JSF.

Reservations may not be made by contacting Mrs. Arlene Rothman at the fellowship desk in chapel or by calling 76-5571 ext. 496.

Chapel Address Set By Vice-Chancellor

Vice-chancellor Finla G. Crawford will speak on "My 35 Years at Syracuse" to Chapel house reps at 4 p.m. today in the Chapel Colonial room.

He will be introduced at the meeting open to all students by Dean Charles C. Noble of Hendricks chapel. Refreshments will also be served.

Registration for students wishing to attend the house reps conference at Casowasco on Feb. 19 and 20 will be held from 3 to 4 p.m. today in the Chapel before the meeting.

A talk by football coach Ben Schwartzwalder on his personal philosophy will be part of the program for the two-day conferences on Owasco lake.

Debators Ready For Five Contests

A busy schedule awaits the Hill debate squad this term as it prepares for tournaments with Georgetown, Brooklyn, Rochester, Williams and LeMoyne.

Last term, the debators made only one major trip. Hal Vine, Alex Strasser, Rudy Johanns and Kevin Wilson represented the debaters at the Vermont tournament.

Another activity that the Hill debaters are participating in is the Community Chest drive. Marily Mawson, Strasser and Robert Hecht are helping out the local Chest effort.

Le Moyne Dean Will Speak Here

The Rev. Andrew Brady, S.J., dean of students at LeMoyne college, is scheduled to speak at a joint confraternity meeting of St. Thomas More chapel Sunday night Feb. 21.

He will address members of the Holy Name society and Blessed Virgin Mary sodality on the subject of the Church and education.

All Catholic students are invited to attend.

Drama Apprentice Meeting Planned

Boar's head apprentices are urged to attend a meeting at 7:15 p.m. today in the Drama building, according to Sheldon Weiner, apprentice chairman.

The group has been called together primarily to discuss the production work still to be done for the opening of "Lysistrata" and also "Gigi." Apprentices will be needed to usher, work on costumes and work in the box office.

Membership in Boar's head, the drama honorary, will also be discussed at the meeting.

For firmer footing

Local dry cleaning establishments are doing a land-office business this week.

And we're not so sure that the splint merchants aren't making a tidy sum as the aftermath of what Jack Frost, in collusion with Mother Nature, have been loosing upon us from time to time.

The Hill campus has at least one spot where the mud is like quick sand, and it has many walks that are not sanded early enough after a snowfall and become hazardous.

The former place is in front of Machinery hall, where pipes, lines and various other equipment are being uprooted and where trucks must pass continually because of construction of the new engineering building.

Because of the work being done and because of the many persons who traverse that route on the way to classes or to cokes, the whole area has become nothing more than a sticky brown puddle.

It is virtually impossible to cross the area without taking some of the mud along—on trousers, socks or shoes.

It seems feasible that the University lay a track of ashes several feet wide over the area and lay planks over the ashes. Students will then be able to traverse the planks instead of walking in the mud. Vehicular traffic will also continue unimpaired.

Another hazard, referred to previously, is the dangerous condition of the walks after snowfalls. Often, the walks are not sanded until late morning and meanwhile the snow gets packed down tightly and becomes slippery.

Because the name "Hill" applies literally here at Syracuse, the resultant tumbles can be serious.

We suggest that the sanding be done early each morning following a snowfall so that we can dash to our classes in safety.

Let's feel that terra firma!

Better politics

The final step in the elimination of one of the unfair campus political practices was taken last night when women's student government assembly passed the campus political parties act.

The legislative body of men's student government had passed the bill at a January meeting. Only an improbable veto by either president could block its enforcement this semester.

The most important feature in this bill is the clause which limits the endorsement of candidates. Now a student's name can appear on the ballot but once, a noticeable change from previous election years when a candidate could be supported by more than one party.

In the past, there has been a tendency for a very few students to band together calling themselves a regular party. Because of the dubious attraction of their name, they were able to promise what could be a balance of power vote should the strength of the other parties be about equal.

In this way, these few were able to get their candidates nominated by the other parties. Then, with these candidate's names appearing on the ballot twice, they had the psychological edge in the voting.

So what appeared to be a candidate backed by two parties, was really a student supported by one party and a handful of politically active individuals representing no one but themselves.

We approve this new law which will eliminate such a practice and improve the conditions under which candidates are selected and eventually chosen or rejected by the student body.

AT THE FLICKERS

MR. DISNEY'S HIGHLAND FLING.

BY CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

Walt Disney has become famous because of his skill in cartooning and his motion picture cartoons have endeared themselves to the American public. Recently, he has expanded his efforts to include the distniguished nature series and "live" full-length adventures, of which "Rob Roy," currently on view at the Keith's, is the latest example.

For years, Hollywood has specialized in the kind of adventure film which focuses its attention upon the incredible exploits of a preposterous hero; spending most of its footage scattering lifeless bodies around the countryside. In "Rob Roy," the countryside is Scotland and you can be sure that the bodies are very abundant and very dead. To be brief; look elsewhere for quality.

There are, however, two features in the film that are deserving of your attention. The first is Glynis John. Miss Johns is one of the world's most beautiful women and the sight of her slender form and angelic face, set against the glen is a sight to quicken the pulse of the most phlegmatic observer. Whereas her beauty is set off to advantage, her considerable acting ability is not, but no one seemed to complain.

The other feature, not tainted with the film's general mediocrity, is a scene showing the clansmen bringing a noblewoman to her grave. They bring her in a boat and the rhythmic sound of the oars, the mournful wail of the bag-pipes and the stolid faces of the men, combine to create a moving and colorful scene.

This scene demonstrates the general ineffectiveness of the rest of the film. Taking an essentially colorful event, the Scottish uprising against George the First, the producers have spent all their time in establishing Rob Roy's superhuman strength and leave to the costumes and the bagpipes the task of creating the full sweep of the era. Bagpipes sound Scottish and plaid looks Scottish, but the period is never really recreated. The result is simply another rubber stamp adventure story of little value.

Richard Todd has the role of the highland rogue. Since all the part demands is that he flex his muscles and roll his r's and since he does both these things rather well, his performance is pleasing. As in the case of Miss Johns he has, in the past, displayed considerable histrionic ability. It is to be hoped that the lure of the Disney salary check will not keep him from more important things too much longer.

"Pecos Bill," a Disney cartoon, is also on the bill and it demonstrates conclusively that he ought to stick to cartooning.

NSA Defense Rests

In any vital and evolving organization, reevaluation is necessary in order to insure continued growth and strength. We are pleased to be in full agreement with the presidents of men and women's student government. We are certain that a reevaluation of NSA on the local regional and national levels will enhance the value of the organization to the campus in general and to each student in particular.

Miss Dalton and Mr. Leff proposed that there be a reevaluation of "The National Student's association and its program in relation to the whole civil service structure of the student government." Since one of the functions of the local committee is to implement regional and national programs and policies. it is therefore necessary to review the operation of the regional and national organizations as well.

We should, of course, remember that a national organization composed of well over 150,000 students which must function with a limited budget, which must administer numerous projects, and also attempt to satisfy the needs of various student publics cannot achieve all its aims efficiently. The four questions posed by the presidents of our student governments should be given prime consideration in the reevaluation of NSA. We should also realize that one of the basic questions we must ask ourselves in any reevaluation is whether we are making full utilization of the facilities of USNSA.

We propose then, that a committee be formed to investigate NSA on the local, regional and national levels, that this committee be composed of two representatives of the executive branches of our student governments, two representatives of the legislative branches of our student governments, and the co-chairmen of NSA. The committee would concern itself with the following questions:

1. Are we making full utilization of NSA's facilities. How can we better adjust the programs of NSA to the needs of this campus.

2. Is it possible to cut local expenses for NSA (The present NSA budget is $400 out of the total $2,000 allotment for student government. We feel that the present NSA budget can be cut by at least $50.

3. "Is NSA achieving its immediate objectives?" and "is it fulfilling its potential?"

4. How much do we actually want from NSA?

How can we better coordinate NSA activities with those of student government?

6. Would the division of big school and small school problems better enable NSA to discharge its duties?

7. Is it possible to increase the national budget of USNSA through grants and contributions in order to improve and expand its services while at the same time decreasing the dues of the member schools?

These and numerous other questions should be the main consideration of the committee. However, one thought should be borne in mind by the members of the committee and by the students on this campus—with the aid and guidance of the administration, our student governments have risen to a level of great respect throughout the country.

The organization of our governments have in part been copied by numerous schools and our student leaders have been recognized for their outstanding ability and insight into the problems of student governments throughout the country. We therefore have the responsibility of aiding growth of other colleges and universities in the field of student self government. We must seek not only to receive but to give help when needed. NSA has and will continue to be the means by which our aid may be extended to others.

We rest assured that this reevaluation of NSA will prove beneficial to the student governments, NSA, and the student body.

'A Clear Conscience?'

Gene Namkoong, author of the letter, is chairman of a campus clothing drive for Korea sponsored by the Methodist Student fellowship.

Working with representatives in each living center they collected about 400 pounds of serviceable clothing on their initial collection day, January 25.

Houses may still contribute to the drive by phoning 76-4571, ext. 441. Members of the fellowship will call for the bundles.

The clothing will be packed and turned over to a national organization created to provide relief to needy families in that war-torn country.

The student's father, Consul-general David Namkoonk, who is with the Korean consulate in New York, is a member of this organization.

The clothing is packed here, then shipped to Korea where it is distributed through existing organizations such as the army, community groups and church associations.

The clothing that is contributed should be sturdy and serviceable. Low-heeled shoes are acceptable but high heels, silks and satins cannot be used. Needles and thread, buttons and cloth for patching would also be appreciated.

The Methodist fellowship is planning a book drive in the spring to collect texts for the colleges that are just opening again in Korea.

Old Clothes

Syracusans,

Few of us have ever felt real frost bite or cold without knowing that we would soon be warm. But, I know of some who do. The fact is that most of these people are youngsters who should be in school, but there is no school.

Facts like these don't really strike home until soneone close to you is affected and then you want to take some action.

This last December, my folks returned to Korea from which they came forty years ago. They aren't particularly different, nor are they extraordinarily generous, but when they returned from Korea, they came with empty baggage. My Mother, who left everything, including a fur and woolen coats, came back with just what she wore. She said, "I just couldn't wear anything warm and have a clear conscience."

So I am appealing not to the kind and generous but to guys and gals who have an excess of clothes which people in Korea need so desperately. Please, just save your old clothes that are excess and we'll soon pick them up at your living center.

In all sincerity,
Gene Namkoong

TV CENTER TRIES ON NEW DUDS

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

The gentlemen of tubes and transmitters tried on some new clothes at the radio-television center last night in the form of an experimental dramatic series, presented for a limited audience with a larger goal looming in the future.

The occasion was a closed-circuit production presented "live" from the TV studios in the basement of our main library. One of the few dramatic offerings attempted by the campos staff, and the first this season, the telecast served to point up some new ideas which are buzzing around the center and to advance a few paces into a fresh field of student endeavor.

The show was entitled "Bretzbox Theatre," this referring to a technical device used in video troduction. It consisted of two short dramas and a filmed feature. A group of students as well as representatives of the radio-tv department viewed the show on closed-circuit monitors.

An adaptation of a radio play, "The Other Side," got number one showing. Concerned with the ironies of a prison execution, the little pellet sported a student cast of Dick Ballantine, Milt Shefter, Will Lape, Jr., and Randy Place. These gentlemen, it may be said, accomplished four interesting video performances and were darn fascinating, despite minor technical bluffs.

Art Hooke, of the graduate television staff, provided capable direction.

The second playlet consisted of two scenes from Odet's tense drama, "Golden Boy." This segment was electrically performed by two talented youngsters, Gail Machta and Stu Leslie.

Here, we got a lively succession of camera shots and lighting which drapped a stark curtain around the screen. Although the scenes were unhappily yanked from the Odets' script, it settled gracefully on the eye and ear.

Jerry Adler, also of the Center, directed "Golden Boy" nicely down the line.

The film interlude was a crackling old "March of Time" film. Of all people, John Crosby turned up in the middle.

All in all, a very satisfying inaugural.

Passing in Review

By ART SIEGEL
Managing Editor

Before you turn around in this big wide world, you discover that several traditions, customs, practices, yea, eras, have passed into oblivion or at least semi-oblivion.

Just last week, catching up on our reading, we noticed several that had gone by the boards.

Probably everyone knows that Jack Benny, comedian extroardinaire, has ended his sitting-up exercises, let go of his purse strings, noticed the redness in his "baby blue eyes," and decided to become 40 years old.

Jack Benny has been 39 for more years than he would ever admit.

We were struck by the significance of this sudden move by Benny. Granted, it's a publicity device equal in magnitude to Mr. Godfrey's hip operation or haphazard flight over Teterboro airport, we think that Benny's predicament may have significance in man's general attitude toward man—and life.

Could it be that Benny, like many men, have decided to give up the struggle? To submit to that grim spectre, reality? Perhaps not—if he really were submitting to reality he would turn to 60 instead of 40.

Nevertheless, we hope fervently that Jack—if he will permit the familiarity—will announce coast-to-coast that he is going back to 39. It's a good age to take as a permanent one.

Another era ended recently with the death of Uncle Don, for years the cereal and there's-a-present-under-the-celler-stairs-Bobby king. Uncle Don passed away recently and his successors quickly followed him, figuratively.

These good men of the piano and free coin savings banks were just incapable of surviving the new era—the one in which you send in a box top and find space ships behind the soap dish or your birthday.

This may the forerunner of the death of the radio era; that is; if they ever figure a way to put disc jockeys on television.

No thanks to the nation's press, the Hemingway era is still with us—and we are glad, both for Mr. Hemingway and for the world of contemporary lit.

Finally, someone approached us last week and said, "Why don't you condemn Valentine's day?"

This, coming from an extremely attractive young lady, engaged to a handsome sailor, stunned us. Surely we wouldn't want to end the love era.

"Never!", we said. "Leave this office immediately until your passion returns."

Why deny lovers a day to speak their affection? After all, we have not only days, but weeks, dedicated to seating more sauerkraut and weinschnitzel, being kind to cats, curing malaria in birds and visiting the Empire state. Why is there so much wrong in setting aside one lovely February day for lovers.

No, young lady, although Benny may get gray and give away his money and Tom Corbett may replace corn flakes, the Valentine's day era is here to stay. In fact, it should be Valentine's week.

Hallmark would love that!

Registration sights: The lines at registration seemed to stretch almost to Sims as the semi-annually "hurry-up and wait" session went on. One might have thought the lines had reached the point of no return. The gal fine artists coming through with ten course cards compared to the usual five or six of others seemed to be taking everything except ROTC. Girls in ROTC? Might make drills more interesting.

Marshall St. sights: Seems to be a usual sight to see, Andy, the DU's St. Bernard of mountainous proportions being kicked out of Loehr's at the supper rush. Actually the place gets quite busy and Andy presents an obstacle equal to a Patton tank. The rush also got our favorite waitress slightly confused. By the time we came in, she begged us to order only dishes which cost round numbers so she could add them easier.

Now it can be told. During the mother's march on Polio a short time back, one of the fair collectors came into Manny's Smoke Shop. Her unsuspecting quarry were caught shamed-faced and had to kick in, but good. The victims—Manny's regulars at the pin-ball machines. Well, it was a good cause fellas.

The Wheels Go Round & Round

By JOHN JOHNSRUD

What do the letters IBM bring to mind? They probably conjure up images of long registration lines and endless filling of forms.

However, the uses of the IBM cards and forms by the University goes beyond registration. Let's follow these cards through the steps from blank card to transcript, class list or other end result.

For every student there is a master name card containing all of the basic information concerning the student. This data is punched into the card at the time of admission and the information is advanced as the student advances. From this master card all of the other personal information cards are made.

Prior to registration, the various departments and schools order specially punched sets of cards. Each set of cards indicates a certain course or combination of course and lab section. So is born the second of the two most important IBM cards.

At registration one of these white course cards is given to the student. After the student fills in his student number and hands in the card, it is taken to the IBM room in the basement of the Administrations building.

The information on the master name card is combined with the information punched into the course card producing a set of cards giving all the basic information for every student in every course. This integration of data is accomplished by an IBM duplicating puncher.

With the new information added, the course card is fed into an IBM tabulator-printer where the name of the course, the section number, and the student's name are extracted and printed into class lists. These lists are distributed to the instructors in time for their first class.

The course card is then filed away to be used again at the end of the semester for making a grade card. The grade card is filled out by the instructor and returned to the IBM room for final tabulation.

Transcripts of grades can only be made when all of these grade cards have been returned. Selective Service gives schools 30 days to file lists of class standings for draft deferment purposes. It takes two weeks to process the returned grade cards into a class standing list and two more for the Dean of Men's office to handle the list before results can be sent to local boards. These standings can not be compiled, therefore without the speedy return of IBM grade cards.

The long stream of forms to be filled out is not too high a price to pay when considering the increased efficiency resulting from the use of IBM.

As this machine goes so go the students. It is an IBM computer and tabulator. Punched IBM cards are stacked in the rack in the lower left. These are fed through the machine where the information contained in the punches is translated into electrical impulses which activates the typing mechanism which in turn prints the information on the strip of transcripts.

Tangerines Beat GE, 77-55; Gain Ninth Successive Win

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Syracuse freshman basketball team just keeps rolling along. Last night at Archbold gymnasium, the unbeaten frosh five extended their victory string to nine games by trouncing General Electric, 77-55.

Coach Andy Mogish's squad needed a 29 point fourth quarter to break the game open as the GE cagers kept the play close throughout the first three periods. The yearlings led by only eight points, 48-40, at the end of the third stanza.

GARY CLARK, rangy 6' 4" cager, scored 8 points last night in the yearlings' victory over General Electric.

for Syracuse, with scoring honors going to Vin Cohen and Vin Albanese, who each registered 17 points. Also in double figures for the Hill squad were Jim Snyder and Lou Stark, with 13 and 12 markers respectively.

Gary Clark and Niel Wilcox, who each had eight points, contributed much in the way of floor play and backboard strength and were also important in the Orange victory.

Coach Mogish opened with a starting five made up of Cohen, Clark, Snyder, Stark and Albanese. This quintet quickly took the lead but the white-clad GE team kept within shooting range of the Syracusans.

After six minutes of play the yearlings held a five point, 12-7 advantage. The margin was increased to six markers with one minute remaining in the quarter. At this point, Cohen scored on a jumping one-hander and Albanese hit on a driving layup before two GE foul tosses cut the lead to 20-12 at the end of the quarter.

THE INDUSTRIAL league team rallied at the outset of the second period and moved to within two points of the Hill squad, at 24-22. That, however, was the closest the GE aggregation came. Baskets by Stark, Cohen, Wilcox and Roper pulled the home club in front by a comfortable margin and Syracuse led, 33-24 at halftime.

Mogish went with his starting aggregation as the second half opened. Albanese's basket gave the frosh a 10 point margin at 37-27, but the General Electric team refused to fold as other yearling opponents have, and battled back, managing to slightly cut the Orange lead at the end of the third quarter.

A Tangerine spurt at the beginning of the final period brought the Cub advantage to 53-40. The Pietymen continued to pull away as GE began to wilt under the pressure of Syracuse's fast break attack.

The yearling lead went to 73-54 on a tap-in field goal by Clark and two more frosh buckets in the last minute of play brought the final score to 77-55.

The victory last night was the second of the season over the Electronics Park team, who lost an 84-72 decision to Syracuse last month. The next test for the Tangerines will come tomorrow night for a traditional game with the when the Cubs invade Hamilton Colgate Frosh.

Lack of Tumbling Depth Faces Romeo

Gymnasts Await Owl Invasion

One of gymnastics coach Paul Romeo's biggest worries is the lack of strength in the Piety tumbling department. With Bill Lee out for the season, Romeo practically concedes the tumbling event in every meet automatically to the opposition.

With only Corky Sebbo expected to come through with flying colors, Syracuse must expect to give away points in every meet in the tumbling event. Oh, what Paul Romeo would give to obtain the services of another tumbler.

LEE SUFFERED a broken arm over the Christmas vacation. He has left school for the semester and will have an operation performed on the arm soon. As it stands now, Bill is expected to resume his college career here this June in summer school.

Ned Nanocchio, who finished fifth in the meet with Penn State may improve as the season progresses and gain some sorely needed points in one or more crucial meets.

On the southern tour Romeo used John Barkal, who is a pretty fair tumbler, to assist Sebbo. Barkal brought home some points which aided the Saltine gymnasts in victories over Duke and the University of North Carolina.

The Eastern Gymnastic league, however, does not allow a gymnast to participate in more than three events in a league meet. This means that Barkal, who competes in the horizontal bar, parallel bars, and side horse, cannot participate in the tumbling competition.

TEMPLE, THE Orangemen's next opponent, will arrive in Syracuse Saturday with a squad that is particularly strong in the side horse, flying rings and tumbling. Although the Hill gymnasts expect to gain a few points in the latter event, they hope to make up for that weakness by garnering more points in the other events.

The Owl's leading performer John Jengo, (has received considerable praise for his efforts in the past. When Syracuse travelled to Philadelphia a year ago, Jengo compiled the top point total of any participant in the meet.

The Temple meet will mark the initial opportunity for Syracuse and Central New York gymnastic fans to observe action in this sport this year. The Syracuse-Navy meet the following Saturday will end the brief home schedule for the Saltine gymnasts for the '53-'54 campaign.

Intra Schedule

Beta Theta Pi and Alpha Tau Omega clash in one of the four games scheduled for this evening as action in the fraternity division of the Intramural basketball league resumes after a three-week layoff.

The complete intramural basketball schedule for tonight:

6:15 BETA THETA PI vs. ALPHA TAU OMEGA; 7:00 ZETA BETA TAU vs. ZETA PSI; 7:45 SIGMA ALPHA MU vs. SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON; 8:30 PI KAPPA ALPHA vs. DELTA UPSILON.

Tonight's intramural bowling schedule:

6:15 Alleys 1-2: ALPHA EPSILON PI vs. TAU EPSILON PHI; 3-4 OMEGA PI ALPHA vs. PI KAPPA ALPHA; 5-6 SIGMA PHI EPSILON vs. PSI UPSILON.

8:30 Alleys 1-2 ACACIA vs. DELTA UPSILON; 3-4 DELTA TAU DELTA vs. ZETA PSI; 5-6 PHI KAPPA PSI vs. SIGMA CHI.

Hill Matmen Drill For Niftany Lions

Wrestling coach Joe McDaniel ran his varsity and frosh matmen through intra-squad matches yesterday in preparation for this week's away meets.

The varsity grapplers journey to State College, Pa., where they take on the undefeated Nittany Lions. McDaniel will field the same lineup used against F&M last week. John Husband, Ed Weisz, Tom King, Garland Harris, Ed Rooney, Hank Gobetz, Murray Winer and George Finck will wear the Orange colors.

Penn State coach, Charlie Speidel, is currently gunning for his seventh Eastern team championship. The Lion's coach has five returning lettermen on his squad, including individual Eastern champions, Dick Lemyre and Jerry Maurey.

Meanwhile, the yearling wrestlers travel to Oswego for a 1:00 p.m. match Saturday. The frosh are looking for their first victory, having bowed to Cornell and Wyming Seminary to date.

ZBT, Kappa Sig Win Bowling Tilts

By BOB TATA

A combination of routs and tight scores characterized the competition in last evening's intramural bowling matches as Phi Epsilon Pi, Kappa Sigma, Alpha Chi Rho, Tau Delta Phi, and Zeta Beta Tau all won their contests.

The Phi Ep—Phi Kappa Tau game was easily the most exciting one of the night. With every game decided by a few pins, the Phi Eps managed to eke out a 5-4 triumph. Farmer and Lamel of Phi Kappa Tau and Robbins of the Phi Eps all had fine three string totals of more than 500.

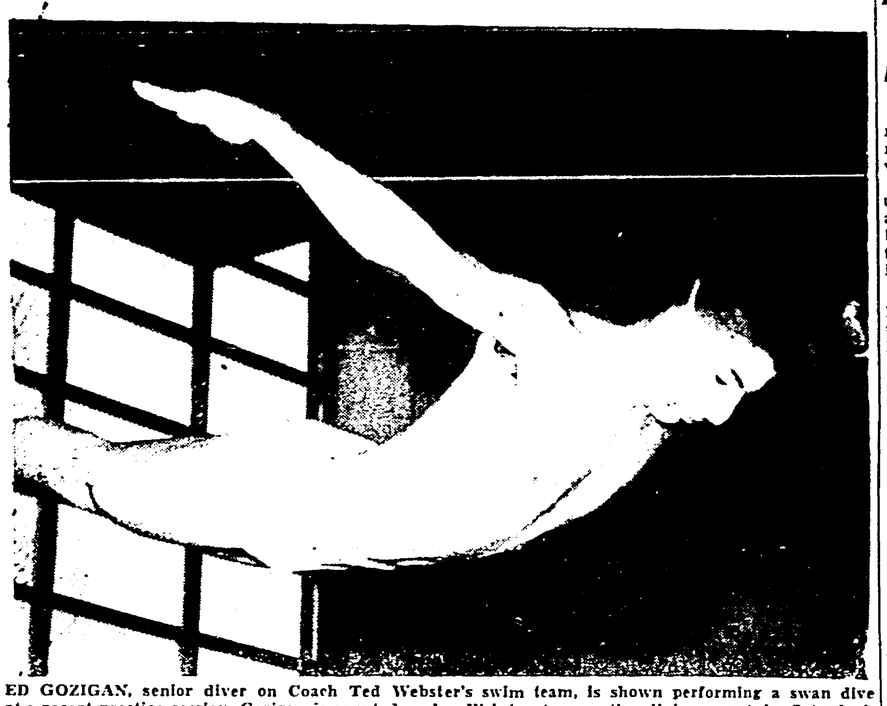
TWO WHITEWASHES were recorded as Kappa Sigma racked up Theta Chi and Alpha Chi Rho whipped Alpha Tau Omega by counts of 9-0.

One hot game gave Tau Delta Phi a close 5-4 victory over Phi Delta Theta. With Charlie Williams rolling the night's high single of 209, the Tau Delts won the second game and with it the match.

In the final contest of the evening, Zeta Beta Tau held onto their first place tie by defeating Beta Theta Pi 6-3.

The scheduled match between Delta Kappa Epsilon and Phi Gamma Delta was postponed and will be replayed at a later date.

Fancy Orange Diver



ED GOZIGAN, senior diver on Coach Ted Webster's swim team, is shown performing a swan dive at a recent practice session. Gozigan is counted on by Webster to cop the diving event in Saturday's meet against the University of Buffalo, at Buffalo. His tremendous improvement over last season has made him a great asset to the team.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Maybe it's the current price of coffee or the weather but Orange winter sports have been losing personnel faster than Tommy Manville loses wives.

With Tom McKenzies and John Pauldine voluntarily dropping off the boxing team, the "We Left the Team in '54" club has increased to twelve. Of these, half have dropped completely out of school for one reason or another.

Coach Joe McDaniel has felt the local depression the worst with only two of his original starting eight still on the squad. Lee Martin, Tom McDougall plus the latest additions of Jim Rose and Chuck Dinkelmeyer have all left school.

Chuck DeBellis and Hank Bianowicz have been out of the lineup with a wrist and shoulder injury.

with a wrist and shoulder injury respectively. Basketball added to the list with the much publicized Ron Kilpatrick incident and Skip Thaw's unfortunate ability to be in a auto when there was an accident.

Both gymnastics and swimming have selected Bill Lee (out of school) and Dave Patterson (scholastic ineligibility) as their candidates.

It has been an unfortunate thing for all were key cogs in their respective sports' plans. For instance, wrestling figured to have a top-notch team this year. You may be able to find adequate replacements for one or two men, but not six.

The same problem prevails in the other winter sports. Lee and Patterson were both counted on heavily to pick up Orange points for their respective teams. The Syracuse jinx has been working overtime. Maybe next year . . .

• • • • •

Mick Hickok, local wrestler and bowler, is formulating plans for a possible All-Star bowling league to start sometime next year. It is his plan to get possible twelve teams, sponsored either by fraternities, independents or local stores, into a full schedule, 32-week comdule, 32 week competition.

This league would not be in competition with intramural bowling, but would rather compliment it. The members of the league would elect all officers including a board to handle disputes.

The competition would be run under the American Bowling Congress rules including the handicap and point system. It would be run entirely by the members.

Right now, such a league is still in the planning stage. If anyone is interested in learning more, Mike can be contacted at the bowling alleys in the Women's gym or at his home on 265 Brooklea dr., 65-8350.

ORANGE SLICES: Tom Coulter, who boxed at 125 pounds and was a top cross-country runner here, is back on campus. Tom says he will be boxing for a Fort Dix regiment team after he returns from leave . . . Penn State, host to the Orange wrestlers this weekend, has won 33 meets in a row. The last team to beat them was Syracuse in 1900 . . . Andy Mogish frosh had won 14 straight games up to last night counting the six won at the end of last year .

SPORTS SCRIBES

The intial meeting of the second semester for the freshman sports staff of the Daily Orange will be held at 3:30 p.m. today in the Hellbox.

Ed Meyer, associate sports editor, will address the group.

McKenzie Quits Piety Boxers; Changes Set

The heavy mortality rate of Orange athletic teams this winter reached the boxing squad yesterday when Coach Roy Simmons announced that middleweights Tom McKenzie and John Pauldine had voluntarily dropped the sport.

This action leaves a void in the 156-pound weight class for the unbeaten Piety pugilists which might be keenly felt Saturday night at Penn State when the Orange, bidding for a third straight victory, face the strong Nittany lions.

PAUDINE HAD fought against Maryland in the opening match of the year. Since then he has found less and less time for boxing as he is supporting himself through school. McKenzie, very impressive in losing a close decision in last week's West Point bouts, finds his forestry schedule too strenuous to continue the sport.

Simmie has no other middleweight left but junior Joe McCord and his experience is nil. McCord will box Saturday night at Penn State, and Simmie is hoping that the newest member of the Orange boxing squad will give a good account of himself.

This unexpected development, aside from giving Simmie a few more gray hairs, leaves the Orange in a precarious position for the Penn State encounter. Although the Nittany Lions lost to Maryland, 6-2, while Syracuse defeated the Southerners earlier this season, Saturday's match looks like a tossup, with the squad getting the breaks eventually winning.

Aside from the apparent weak spot at 156 pounds, the Orange lineup will probably remain the same. Simmie is only undecided at the heavyweight slot, where he will probably take both Don MacRae and Sam Alexander on the trip and decide on the Orange representative at Penn State.

THE SOPH roommates, Frank Guelli and Jerry Jaffe, will again box at the lower weights; Guelli at 125 pounds and Jaffe at his customary 132 pound slot. Jaffe will be paired against a boxer with the tongue-twisting name of Harry Papachoralombous.

Dependable John Granger will open at 139 pounds, followed by Larry O'Sullivan at 147 pounds, McCord at 156 pounds, Rigger Rigolosi at 165 pounds, Bruce Yancey at light heavy and a question mark at the heavyweight slot.

NATS, WARRIORS LOSE

In NBA play last night, the Syracuse Nats fell to three and one-half games behind the New York Knickerbockers as they dropped a 94-79 decision to Boston.

In hockey at the War Memorial, the Hershey Bears defeated the Syracuse Warriors, 8-2.

Alpine Celebration Highlights Skating, Stockingfoot Hop

BY BOB LEFKO

It's time to take an "Alpine Holiday" and whether your choice of activity is skating, skiing, dancing, snow sculpturing or just watching the snow come down, there's something for everyone in Syracuse's 1954 Winter Carnival Weekend.

Latest weather reports promise freezing weather and more snow throughout the weekend, assuring the various events will go off as planned. Abundant snow throughout the week guaranteed top conditions for the snow sculptures.

Sno-Ball Features Include Claude Thornhill, TV Skit

BY PEARL BERNSTEIN

"Back in '54," a takeoff on the TV program "This is Your Life" will be one of the highlights of tomorrow's "Empress Waltz," as the annual Sno-ball has been titled.

Written by Gail Gilman, the skit will be part of the entertainment planned for the junior-sponsored semi-formal ball, which will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the large gym in the Women's building.

MUSIC WILL be furnished by the piano and orchestra of nationally famous Claude Thornhill, and the Winter Weekend "Empress" will be crowned as part of the evening's events, overall dance chairmen Cynthia Satow and Norman Murphy have announced.

Tickets, priced at $3.50, will be sold from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 5-7 p.m. today at Sims dining hall and from 8:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. today in the basement of Slocum and in Maxwell lobby. Members of the junior executive council and the co-chairmen of the various committees will also be selling tickets. James Baird and Elaine Kieballa, in charge of tickets, say that any that are unsold will be on sale at the door.

Over 40 performers will take part in the TV parody, according to entertainment chairmen Gail Dudkin and Marilyn Nelson. The skit will be presented as a series of flashbacks in the life of a Syracuse alumna who has returned to the Hill for a dance and is chosen unawares from the audience.

Will Lape will serve as master of ceremonies, with Francis Lewis in charge of staging, William Smith handling lighting and Mary Jane Noblet doing the choreography. Jean Mosely and Armonde (Joe) Mancueso will be playing the leads.

"OUCH HE Pinned Me," one of the numbers from the skit, will be previewed at the Stockingfoot dance Friday night, and publicity chairmen Harold Steinberg and Kay Peterson warn that all who attend this dance be on the lookout for further promotional stunts.

Among the publicity devices that have been used so far are match books and leaflets distributed all over campus, posters, which were handled by Marice (Candy) Gutewitz, street signs leading to the gym, a snow man holding a thermometer which registers ticket sales in front of chapel and a snow ball which was rolled down the aisles of Sims dining hall Wednesday night.

Even the Sandman has been plugging the Sno-ball by frequent playing of Thornhill records. The piano-playing band leader, incidentally, is no stranger to the Hill, having played at the IFC ball last year.

Thornhill started his career at the age of six, when he organized his first orchestra. He went on to study the concert piano, and worked as Bing Crosby's arranger before organizing a band in 1940. He entered the navy during World War II, and reorganized his band after the war. The group became celebrated for its "sophisticated swing" style, and was chosen band

(See SNO-BALL, page 8)

Mid-February Formal Growing Every Year

By DICK CASE

Like its namesake, the annual Sno-ball has swelled in size and momentum as it rolls along through the years.

The 1954 model of Syracuse's traditional junior prom is a somewhat "super" edition of its predecessors but it nevertheless employs the essential components of music and general merriment. This year's ball, dubbed "Empress Waltz," will highlight the campus's frozen weekend tomorrow evening in the new Women's building.

A BACKGROUND of purple and white will crown the Alpine motif which will be flavored with mighty pines and a plush throne for her majesty, Empress of the weekend. She has been plucked from the freshest beauties of the Orange population and will be crowned in proper royal fashion today.

Maestro Claude Thornhill, who provides music for the 1954 Sno-ball, is a very welcome guest among Syracusans if the number of appearances he has made on campus is any gauge.

The Thornhill group visited Syracuse university as late as April, 1953, when they appeared at the annual IFC frolic.

Other dates include the Sno-ball of 1951 and the IFC ball and Soph Hop during 1948. He also visited the annual Greek weekend in 1947.

Thornhill, a graduate of the Hal Kemp, Benny Goodman and Bing Crosby schools, will spotlight his theme and composition, "Snofall," during the bright evening of dancing and listening. "Johnson Rag," "Where or When" and "Arabian Dance" are numbered among other favorites by the Thornhill organization.

HARKING FROM the early days of 1933 when Fay Welch brought the first Winter Carnival to campus, the Sno-ball has assumed a promotion position among the three days' many pleasing aspects. The junior class affair was traditionally plagued by disorder during the war years as a variety of forces jumped weekends into postponement.

The 1943 Sno-ball was postponed by the lack of sufficient

Prize Snow Sculptures Picked This Afternoon

BY MARY VIVIAN

The snow has fallen, and 71 snow sculptures will have been erected to depict "Frozen Fables" when the judging for the annual contest begins at 1 p.m. today.

The winners will be picked on the basis of originality, corelation with the theme and general presentation, such as the color scheme, artistic quality, and appeal.

A CUP WILL BE awarded to the best sculptures in each of the four divisions: sorority, fraternity, independent women's and independent men's houses.

The judges will include Sylvia Wyckoff and Douglas Wilson of the art department; Earle Clifford, Assistant to the Dean of Men; Prof. Edwin Cady of the English department; and Dr. Robert Rayback of the history department.

According to the rules of the contest, no sound effects, mobile objects, or commercial ice or snow may be used. The visible exterior must be completely of snow. If scaffolding is used it must be covered with snow. Also, the name must be displayed with or incorporated into the snow sculpture.

The sculptures of European folklore and legends will range from figures in native costumes to characters from the tales of European story-tellers such as Grimms and Hans Christian Anderson.

ANDERSON'S UGLY DUCKling will be found in front of Thornden cottage, while Sigma Delta Tau will depict "The Emperor's New Clothes." The Tin Soldier will march past the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity house. Thumbelina will be found not only at Sigma Alpha Mu, but also in a giant flower at Marshall cottage.

Theta Chi will depict a pan-

While sorority sisters, fraternity brothers and independent house members scrambled for piles of snow this week, another group of hill students was hustling for news about Winter Weekend.

Today's Daily Orange is a result of that hustling. Instead of snow sculpture, it is our entry in the weekend competition.

For neglecting studies, classes and other activities in an effort to produce copy we thank all staff members involved. A special salute to Editorial Director Hugh O. Muir for appropriate cartoons.

To our Winter Weekend constituents, Happy yodeling!

REIGNING OVER the weekend's affairs will be newly named "Alpine Holiday" empress Marlene Seme, a French Cottage freshman from LaFargeville, winner from over 80 candidates. She will be crowned at 7:15 p.m. tonight at Drumlins just prior to the Ice Pageant.

"Frozen Fables" snow sculptures appearing throughout campus will be judged today beginning at noon. Prizes will be awarded in four categories, fraternity, sorority, independent men and independent women.

Speed skating races will take the spotlight from 1 to 3 p.m. this afternoon at Tecumseh as the weekend's opening sports event. Both individual and relay races are scheduled with trophies to be awarded to the winners in the "Silver Skates."

Official opening of the weekend will be at 7:15 p.m. when a torchlight parade of skiers will glide down the Drumlins slope. Immediately after, Miss Seme will be crowned as empress. Her crown will be a diamond tiara from Howe's Jewelers. The tiara is jeweled, fancy paved and open pointed with a scroll effect.

MEMBERS OF THE court to be honored along with Miss Seme are Nancy Garfield, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Toni McClelland, Delta Gamma, Kay Senderowitz, Pi Beta Phi and Betty Ann Warner, Delta Delta Delta.

Immediately following the crowning, "White Boots and Blades" ice pageant will take to the ice at Drumlins hockey rink with a cast of 40. The 45 minute show will feature two chorus scenes, solos by Phyllis Krinovitz, Jack MacLaughlin and Shirley Christie and a comedy skit featuring some of Ben Schwartzwalder's finest footballers.

Marlene Seme Will Reign Over Winter Weekend

By POLLY REED

Marlene Seme, queen of the New York State fair in 1952, will again wear a crown.

Until Sunday she will reign as empress of Syracuse's Winter Weekend. Miss Seme was selected over four other coeds, who will reign with the empress as her court.

INCLUDED IN the court are finalists Toni McClelland, Betty Ann Warner, Kay Senderowitz, and Nancy Garfield.

Miss Seme was selected on the basis of attractiveness in winter outdoor costume, beauty and poise and personality. She was chosen on Wednesday, Jan. 13, but her name was kept secret until the official announcement in The Daily Orange.

The empress will be crowned at the ice pageant and will reign over events of the entire weekend. She and her court will be presented at the Sno-ball tomorrow night, where she will be recrowned.

Miss Seme, a home economics freshman, was enrolled in the empress contest by Skytop M-4. She is from LaFargeville, N. Y. and lives in French cottage.

MISS WARNER, the only upperclass finalist, was entered by Reid cottage. She is a sophomore in fine arts, and a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. She hails from Abington, Pa.

A Syracuse native, Miss Garfield was entered by Kappa Kappa Gamma. She is a freshman in home economics.

Miss Senderowitz is a resident

For love makes the world go round!

Prayers answered

We prayed for snow. And our prayers were answered. Already the forms and figures of ancient fables have assumed their frosty shape on campus, heralding Winter Weekend, 1954.

Our collective typewriters have told of the promised fun to be had tonight at Drumlins' rink and ballroom.

We have also hinted that the entertainment and Claude Thornhill's music at tomorrow's Sno-ball might well be worth more than the mere price of a ticket.

If we laid the sheets of copy paper that have told of the weekend's winter sports program end to end, we are certain they would reach the ski jump itself.

In fact, we've written so much about the traditions and enjoyment of this frosty weekend, we are all but becoming snow-blind.

While flipping through a dusty volume on a Hellbox shelf, we were therefore extremely pleased to find a poem that immediately advanced our thoughts to the season that awaits.

The poem penned by one Percy Bysshe Shelley, reads in part,

"If Winter comes,

Can Spring be far behind?"

So, we decided to stop writing about winter.

We will no longer speak of Jack Frost and the white diamonds he leaves in his wake.

No more will we think "Maxwell looks like something from Currier and Ives," or further extol the virtues of Old Man Winter.

In fact, we have decided to write this editorial about Spring.

A man on cue

This is not an editorial about a man who never existed. History has made Abraham Lincoln into a craggy creature of Olympus; and history, both in its preparation and perpetuation, is subject to the foibles of humankind.

Great men are not men who create great events, for such has never existed. A great man is one who rises to deal with situations created by a thousand actors in the plot of time.

Such an individual was Lincoln.

For consider, if Lincoln had been elected President say in the 1820's or 1880's. What clay would have been put in his hands to shape? What great event would he have been forced to rise to?

There is little one can say, for such a thing did not happen. And such conjecture is really unnecessary for Lincoln is a product of history, not the other way around.

Therefore, when this country was threatened with extinction as a nation, he had but to grasp the significance of the event and interpret it for his age.

"A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free. I do not expect the Union to be dissolved; I do not expect the house to fall; but I do expect it will cease to be divided."

Lincoln interpreted correctly, for his time, that a new age was upon our nation. The follies of two and a half centuries were discarded and the United States began its steady rise that would take it in 50 years to the pinnacle of world power.

Some revere his stature, some his heart. Today we would like to revere his presence of mind in remembering his cue on the stage of events.

Wherefore art thou, Will?

'Gone' with Romeo & Juliet

By BOP

Our wild companions one time said, that Willy Shakespeare is really dead. And that his plays cannot survive the current craze of frantic jive.

But now as Valentines abound, let us have a modern sound. And see how Willy's lovers true would speak their parts for me and you.

Scene: a public square (sorry, oval) in Verona. Sam Capulet: Man, these Montagues are balmy. They get their kicks from Mantavani. I hate them all. We live in war. O' mein popa was such a bore!

Shorty Montague: As I hate hell, all Capulets, and thee; draw thy sword and we shall see. Pull the blade, as Woody's with Mars, I'll cut thee up in fourteen bars.

* * *

Scene: Outside the Capulet place. Juliet speaks to her nurse, Lizie. Juliet: Lizie, do my old eyes lie? Who's the handsome cat that's standing by? Nurse: Julie, girl, pray desist. Hold your heart, you must resist. Yonder guy is not for you. His father's name is Montague!

Juliet: Zounds, Lizie, I fear it's lost. I'll win his love at any cost. I know I really must be whacky, but I'll spin him some sides by Gleason, Jackie. (Romeo approaches).

Romeo: Doll, I know our families are the least but please forget I am a beast. Oh, beauty we could move in hi-fi. Let's meet in the garden when the moon is high. Juliet: (overcome) Crazy!

* * *

Scene: The Capulet garden. Romeo stands below as Juliet appears on the balony. Romeo: But, soft! What light through yonder window breaks? If I knew you were coming, I'd have done some cakes. Is it Bix or Louie or Eberle, Bob . . . no, it's Julie, my wild heartthrob.

Juliet: O Romeo, Romeo! Wherefore art thou blowing? Is to Birdland or the Embers you are going? Romeo: Nay, Julie. I seek thy hand. I want you to jam in my two-piece band. Come, let's take five in the place with a steeple and then we'll duet on "No Two People."

It is good to be merry and wise,
It is good to be honest and true;
'Tis well to be off with the old love
Before you go on with the new.
—Anonymous

Juliet: Crazy, Jack, I dig you far. But I fear that Daddy won't give us the car. Meet me at Joe's two days from now and then we'll swing it the most somehow.

* * *

Scene: the Capulet family tomb. Julie has since kicked in.

Romeo: O my love, my wife! Death, that hath suck'd the honey of the breath, hath no power yet upon thy beauty. One time girl it is my duty to tell the boys you've made it with the booty. Now, I fear, you'll bop no more, your horn is rusted near the door. Turn in your card, the session's through. So long, gal . . . schoo-boo-be-dooo. (Rom kills self by biting piece of Carmen Miranda's LP.)

* * *

Prologue: Leonard Feather speaketh: A glooming peace this morning with it brings; Stop and hear while Satchmo sings. Some shall be pardon'd, and some punished; For never was there such a complete story of a hardtime Joe than this of that swinging sal Juliet and her cool Jack, Romeo.

SIGHTS ON VALENTINES
HAVING A 'HEARTY' TIME?

By MILT SHEFTER

Seems as though Valentine's Day is affecting everyone. Some foresters who never took their eyes off trees before suddenly notice other kind of limbs.

* * *

What with the Sno Ball and the Stockingfoot Dance and all the winter sports, those who want to, this Valentine's Weekend, can have a "hearty" time. Pardon me!

Men have died from time to time and worms have eaten them, but not for love.
—Shakespeare

* * *

While the Bookstore and Bookstall have their lines of fanciful messages displayed—one thinks of the original—St. Valentine—and his message which has been interpreted from poetic splendor into modern style—which brings to mind the song hit—From Bard to Bop.

* * *

Setting our sights on some of these valentines, we couldn't help but wonder what kind the current-Daily Orange might get from a "fan":

Violets are blue,
And come in a spray,
If Bandwagon's tops,
T.V.'s here to stay.

* * *

Even the bartender at the "O" gets into the "spirit" of things with a short ditty—

* * *

When girls are near
No thought of beer.

* * *

And in closing may we try one?
We wish you were our Valentine
We'd vow us, loyal, true,
'Cause after all, Dear Syracuse
We like our sights on you.

We couldn't do without you,
We couldn't be a recluse,
And so with your permission,
We'll set our Sights on Syracuse.

* * *

And now if you'll excuse us, we're having an operation. Going to rent our heart out for a "live" Valentine.

Though his suit was rejected,
He sadly reflected,
That a lover forsaken
A new love may get;
But a neck that's once broken
Can never be set.

Where It All Began

By HUGH O. MUIR
Editorial Director

This is the story of three men who gave their lives for a cause; their tombstones have risen thousandfold from the greeting card racks of the world, and their names now stand for exhuberance rather than death.

The third century in Rome was a setting for chaos. Within a mere century, after nearly a thousand years, Rome was to vanish from the pages of civilization. In the year 269 Dioclecian was emperor and Christianity still lurked in the catacombs.

In that year a Roman priest and doctor got in the way of paganism's blind fall and he was beheaded. A rather disfiguring and tragic end. In honor or consolation, they named the cemetery after him.

Rome was beginning to split up into a hundred little empires. It seemed intent on breaking up its enemies into fragments also, for four years later, in 273, a bishop also lost his head. He was asked to Rome and axed to leave.

A scant 40 years later Constantine, (the fellow who made Byzantium, Constantinople which in turn was shucked for Istanbul), declared Christianity legal, for he had discovered, like the Probationists, that you can't legislate certain things away.

But the word was slow in getting to Africa and meanwhile another follower was martyrized. Three down and, as far as history is concerned, no more were to go.

No more, that is, of that name. For these unfortunate fellows all stand in history as saints of a name . . . a saint by any other name would be as . . . well, yes, they all are called St. Valentine.

This Sunday, of course, is their feast-day, but there the connection with our extinct friends ends. The secular twist to Feb. 14 was provided by the fellows who started it all, the Romans. It is generally believed that the Day is a survival of a Roman festival held on Feb. 15. What's a day or so difference in 2000 years?

Love is the business of the idle, but the idleness of the busy.
—Bulwer-Lytton

When poverty comes in at doors. Love leaps out at windows.
—John Clark

Hence the day and the gay ruckus of it all. As for those pasteboard cards . . . some crass capitalist undoubtedly dreamed those up.

Inevitable Clinker

By R. JACQUES HERZ

The great Roman empire declined and fell several years ago.

Cause: Valentine's Day.

Every three or four years we experience a leap year.

Reason: Valentine's Day.

Syracuse university was founded in 1870.

Another effect of Valentine's Day.

This menace has been with us all too long. The time has come to act. We must rid ourselves of this fourteenth day of February or suffer the consequences.

Take for instance this bit about leap year. Just picture for a short minute, (say about 57 seconds), what would happen if February went along nice and calmly without the fourteenth. There'd be plenty of room for the 29th without going over into March and making a mess out of things.

But here in this present—this everpresent Valentine's Day—there's no room for all of this glorious month number two and part of it gets squooshed over into the time of the lion and the lamb.

Besides, Valentine's Day causes men and women, boys and girls, guys and gals to get around and see each other. And I can't possibly think of anything more disgusting than the sight of another human being.

Valentines and Valentinos

Some Cinematic Valentines

By CHARLES SAMUELS

"All the world loves a lover" and all the world, their press agents would have us believe, loves a movie star. This being a celebration of Valentine's Day, an assortment of varied and often sardonic images floated above our heads as to what type of cinematic valentines certain movie stars would be most comfortable or most hilarious in.

Exhibit A. Think of Marilyn Monroe as a bubble dancer who conceived an overwhelming passion for a baseball player. (Played of course by Gary Cooper. If he played Gehrig, he can play Dimaggio.) She would have no end of trouble because her performances would inconveniently coincide with his night games. Like a bubbly Evangeline, she would constantly miss her bat-swinging lover.

It would, of course, be directed by Carol Reed with a background score on a water-logged zither. (Darn those bubbles.) And just before the fade out, Miss Monroe would thrust out her ample bosom, gaze soulfully into Stewart's bloodshot eyes, wet the lips and coo, "What's the final score?" Great—but colossal. Or we have:

Exhibit B: Marlon Brando as a poor but virile truckdriver. This would be perfect for Brando since his poverty would explain his torn undershirts and his virility he could explain in his own primitively mono-syllabic speech, for himself.

Love and war are the same thing, and stratagem and policy are as allowable in one as in the other.
—Cervantes

On one of his jaunts to the Elysian Fields restaurant, he would meet Vivien Leigh, a poor but virile waitress, proud and haughty, clutching at her "Oscar." And after Shirley Booth gave him his Shebaburger, he's realize that it was love. He'd grunt his proposition at Miss Leigh and drag her by her "Oscar" to the nearest streetcar.

The script, of course, would be by that great artist in words, (of one syllable or less), Mickey Spillane. And at the fadeout, Brando would rip the screen to shreds and kick Miss Leigh in the head. Oh, yes, it would be in Cinema-Scope.

Exhibit C: A super-colossal musical with Gene Kelly, Leslie Caron, Donald O'Connor, Fred Astaire, Cyd Charrise, Esther Williams and Lassie wearing water wings. It would be called "An American on a Band Wagon at Coney Island," or "Lassie, if you don't come home." It would open with a heart-warming picture of poor Miss Williams typing away at $45 per week.

Then, in the second scene, she would come home, jump in her 75 million dollar swimming pool, and find Donald O'Connor at the bottom of it. Thereupon she would conceive a great love for him and they would swim off as the Messrs. Astaire and Kelly and the Misses Charrise and Caron danced their heads off in a contest for the best new dance team.

The music would be by Ludwig von Beethoven, since Joe Pasternack exhausted Gershwin, Schwartz, Porter and Berlin, and the sets and costumes would be by John Ringling North. Oh, yes, we forgot Lassie. Oh, well, he's not home, anyway.

For short subjects we could have a capsule version of "Shane" called "Hondo," or a rewritten version of "Miss Sadie Thompson" called "How Sadie Went Bad," or "Rain." And for the more discriminating moviegoers, we could have "From Here to Eternity" turned into a love story with Montgomery Clift and his bugle living happily ever after.

Shall we go on? No? We though not. Anyway, Happy Valentine's Day!—you non-movie stars.

KNAVE OF HEARTS
IN LIEU OF ANY POETRY

By MICHAEL BRAUN

A thought just came to us, as thoughts have a nasty habit of doing once in a while. It happened as we were passing the stores with the pretty valentines in the windows.

How prosaic, we thought to ourselves, it is to just send Valentines to those that you know personally. Wouldn't it be interesting to send a greeting to people you only knew through the newspapers and history books.

Think of the possibilities of this idea. No longer are you limited to the usual hearts and flowers. You can really tell what you think, in verse of course.

* * *

For example a note to our president. On stiff white paper embossed in gold with a border of golf clubs.

Here's to you Ike
In your famey,
Could you have done it
Without Mamie?

Or maybe to Vincent Van Gogh. This would be on a piece of red canvas and the writing would be in yellow.

As an artist you have no peer
Why'd you have to cut that ear?

Perhaps a card to Walter Winchell. On a Stork club tablecloth printed by linotype (A Hearst linotype, of course).

Is it the political hash
That makes you rash
And use your lash?
Or is it cash?

The next one, to Lucrezia Borgia would be printed in tinted arsenic on the back of a Charles Addams cartoon.

Treat them to a drink, Lucrezia
Maybe the poison will go down easier.

Of course we would send one to Joe Dimaggio. This one would be written in spaghetti on an old calendar.

Does Marilyn know how to cook,
Or do all you do is look?

Or one to Daniel Boone, in the shape of a Estes Kefauver hat.

Isn't it funny, Daniel Boone,
That your name rhymes with racoon?

* * *

After having yourself thoroughly investigated you could take a chance and send one to Senator McCarthy.

Joe,
Why the hesitatin',
To commence investigatin'?
Time is starting to laten,
People are tired of waltin',
Think what will happen
To your popularity ratin'?

It's always a temptation to imagine what Adam's Valentine to Eve sounded like.

There are no other Eves,
So adjust your leaves
And don't dare grapple
With that there apple.

There are so many more Valentines that we could send. But we must stop at this point. The postage would run into millions.

And if I loved you Wednesday,
Well, what is that to you?
I do not love you Thursday—
So much is true.
—Edna St. Vincent Millay

'Alias Jimmy Valentine'

By HOWARD VanKIRK

Here it is almost Valentine's day, and it puts us in mind of a gent who goes by the alias of Jimmy Valentine. Jimmy was once a hardened criminal, safe cracker by trade, who has softened up and gone straight, no mean accomplishment in itself.

It is in a little mid-western town that he buries himself to escape the minions of the law. Ironically, or perhaps because his extra legal activity has made him familiar with them, he takes a job in a bank.

In the usual manner of such stories, Jimmy rises in rank and position to become a man of some note; and as usual, he succumbs to the wiles of the boss's lovely daughter, who reciprocates his ardor.

About this time complications set in, and trouble in the form of coincidence enters the picture. The Law hits town looking for the fugitive safe cracker at about the same time that some inconsequential character, (a little girl or some such, we can't seem to remember just who), gets herself locked in an air tight vault equipped with a time lock. The lock is not set to open until long after the air supply inside will be exhausted. The plot has not only thickened, it has gotten down right lumpy.

Who but our hero can save the day? And who should be on hand in the bank at this crucial moment by John Q. Law? So after much internal rending and tearing, Jimmy produces his little black bag full of jimmies, blow torches, dynamite and such as all good safe crackers are commonly associated with, and prepares to give up his job (for who would want a safe cracker as a bank clerk?) and his freedom, to say nothing of the fair damsel.

With all the deftness of the expert that he is, he opens the vault in time, and readies himself to face the music for old crimes. But kindly fate throws a block to clear the field for Jimmy in the form of a kind hearted cop who, like Jimmy, has softened up.

With a tear in his eye in token of Jimmy's sacrifice and new found honesty, John Q. fails to recognize the ex-crook and goes his way in search of more promising trails.

If this short resume of the novel "Alias Jimmy Valentine," by Henry Hyatt, presents a moral or two, it's pretty much a coincidence. However, it does suggest a sort of "greater love hath no man," liberally sprinkled with brotherly love and well seasoned with "love conquers all." Let's just say, "A valentine for Jimmy," and let it go at that.

Shoeless Duos Dance At Drumlins Tonight

By GRACE FRARY

Shoeless couples will find themselves transported to a Swiss chalet tonight as the annual Stockingfoot dance begins at 8:30 p.m. at the Drumlins Country club.

The entrance room and the balcony will be decorated with snow-topped greenery, while the dance floor itself will simulate the interior of a Swiss chalet.

DECORATIONS CHAIRMEN Carol Agnello and Jeannine Mendenhall have arranged to have a huge 3-D scene behind the bandstand. Composed of blue cellophane, it will give the effect of looking out a window over the Alps.

Murals, a grandfather clock, and an old stove will aid in carrying out the theme.

Entertainment, under the chairmanship of Audrey Hazlett and Gwen Mahle, will commence with Dean Charles C. Noble leading the group in singing.

William Angelos, master of ceremonies, and Harlan (Lanny) O'Kun will entertain with new tunes appropriate to the dance.

A PREVIEW OF tomorrow night's Sno-ball will be given as Marilyn Nelson and Gail Dudkin sing "Ouch, He Pinned Me," a number from the original musical show, "This Is Your Life," to be presented at the formal affair.

One of the highlights will be the appearance of the newly-crowned Winter Weekend empress, Marlene Seme.

Prizes will be awarded to the couples sporting the socks with the most holes, most original socks, funniest and best all-around. Footwear for each couple does not have to necessarily match but they must be in the same category for entrance in the contest.

Judges of the contest and chaperones are Dean and Mrs. Frank Piskor, Dean and Mrs. Charles Noble, and Assistant Dean of Men and Mrs. Earle Clifford.

UNDER THE CHAIRMANSHIP of Lois Cohn and William Levine, the affair will last until 12:30. Music will be provided by Dick Kowell and his orchestra.

Tickets for the dance are completely sold out, according to ticket chairmen Jerry Berger and Joan Poppe. Attendance at the dance is limited to 600 couples.

Other committee chairmen are: Elizabeth Thomas and Tom Nelipowitz, arrangements; Arlene Blum and Jack Most, publicity; and Eileen Brand, scrapbook.

The scrapbook is a new idea for Winter Weekend; it will contain all publicity, pictures, and souvenirs of the various events. Two copies will be made, each with covers illustrated with fancy socks.

Winter Weekend . . .

A far contrast from the informal Stockingfoot Dance will be Saturday night's "Empress Waltz" Sno-ball Dance at the Women's Building from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Claude Thornhill and his orchestra will play at the semi-formal, junior class sponsored affair.

EMPRESS MISS Seme will be recrowned with a rose crown at the corsageless affair, the first major dance to be held at the Women's Building. An original musical show, "Back In '54" will feature the intermission entertainment. Based on the popular television show, "This Is Your Life", the show was written by junior Gail Gilman.

Skiing is back on the agenda Sunday at 9:30 a.m. with intercollegiate downhill events grabbing the spotlight at Little Tuck.

Sunday at 1:30 p.m., the Ski Lodge will be the scene of the Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial Open Jump. The event is dedicated to the former Winter Carnival chairman who was killed in an automobile accident last fall. The jump winner's name will be enscrolled on the permanent Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial Trophy and he will receive a smaller replica for himself.

Intercollegiate Western Division Ski Jumping championships will take place at the same time. Admission for the jumping events is 60 cents.

WINTER WEEKEND buttons and programs will continue on sale throughout the weekend. The souvenir buttons with the symbol of the weekend, a St. Bernard dog with a keg, are priced at 15 cents. Containing 32 pages and 15 pictures, the programs are 25 cents.

Janet Caro and Peter Rose are co-chairmen of the weekend assisted by Cynthia Satow and Norman Murphy. Sno-ball; Lois Cohn and William Levine, Stockingfoot; Robert Lefko and Donald Cadwalader, publicity and promotions; Sally Soper and Joel Rosenbaum, skiing; Phyllis Krinovitz, ice pageant; Michael Schaffer, empress contest; Leslie Rubin, buttons; JoAnne LaFaro, snow sculptures; Barbara Witter and Martin Wexler, speed skating; and Dale Van Wagenen, secretary.

Members of the Carnival publicity committee are Peter Giopoulos, John Oetzman, Carol Palumb, Josephine Carpentieri, Sylvia Burger, Virginia Sahs, Annette Manzella, B. J. Seligman, Arlene Semiloff, Margery Hall, Arthur Sternberg, June Vine and Hester MacDonald.

Gowns, Snowsuits Urged For Winter Weekend Use

By FLIP SIROTA

What to wear where?

For any member of the female species, especially the college coed, this is a consistently provocative problem. And this clothes problem doubles in importance whenever a big weekend rolls around.

Well, the calendar has come around to Winter Weekend and there are undoubtedly many coeds who are standing for hours before closets and drawers trying to decide which dress, or suite to wear.

So we offer a few hints, helpful we hope, on what to wear where you are going this weekend.

Friday night's big event is the Stockingfoot dance. For this sweaters and skirts or ski pants and bright sweaters are suitable; a flared skirt and plain sweater decorated with a cute collar or dickie is especially appropriate. As for what to wear on your feet—anything goes.

If you are not going to the Stockingfoot and have plans for an evening some place downtown then a jersey dress with tailored lines would be smart. Save those fancy clothes for tomorrow night.

Saturday, for tramping over campus to view various snow sculptures or watching the ski meets, a ski suit is the best thing to wear. Probably you are one of the many coeds who won such a suit but seldom find the opportunity to wear it. This is the right time.

If you do not want to wear a ski suit then dress in what you usually wear to classes. Remember boots, scarf and mittens. There are an awful lot of snow sculptures around campus.

For Saturday night's big weekend event, the Sno-ball, it is the time to press the wrinkles out of the formal that has been hanging in the closet and dress up until you feel the votes for one of the world's best dressed women could come your way.

The Sno-ball is the time for cut-out shoes, sheer, sheer hose, exquisite earrings, necklace, bracelets. Short formals or ballerina length ones are more popular this year than those of gown length.

If you have a plain formal that you want to sparkle up take a hint from the designers who create in shadow of the Eiffel tower. Buy about 5 yards of rich black velvet ribbon and tie it into a bow leaving very long streamers. Attach this bow to the top of your gown in the back and voila, there is a dramatic and different effect.

For any other place you spend the Winter weekend Saturday night then a dressy dress of silk, taffeta, faille or even velvet is the right attire. Wear that new dress you were saving for a special occasion. Any place you go this night you can dress as elegantly as you like.

And then comes Sunday, day of rest, and after a busy, bustling weekend we suggest the simplest, most comfortable clothes you have and, depending upon your condition, low heels and a long walk in the fresh air; or, a couple of aspirins, your pajamas and to bed.

Pert Peg Parker Awaits Snow Whirl

Plans Cold Carnival Details First Time

By ED HARDY

Miss Margaret Parker is eagerly awaiting her first Winter Carnival weekend as Syracuse university's social director.

Working closely with carnival committees, Miss Parker has helped to plan many of the details for this "biggest and best ever" Winter Weekend.

THIS CARNIVAL will not however, be her first on the Hill. She was a student dean at Waverly cottage in 1949 while studying for her master's degree.

Coming here last spring from William Jewell college in Liberty, Mo., where she was director of student activities, Miss Parker reports that there were no big weekends there.

Although there was some snow, evidently no one thought of all the fun that could come out of a weekend like Winter Carnival.

"We'll have a wonderful weekend, I'm sure," she remarked yesterday. The social director also played weatherman, prognosticating plenty of snow for the next three days.

MISS PARKER is especially looking forward to the skiing events Sunday. "I've never seen anyone on skiis."

She'll be at all the goings-on too, including the Stockingfoot dance. Although not expecting to win any prizes with her socks she laughingly remarked that her's will no doubt be "the holiest ones there."

As for the Sno-ball, it's always been her desire to meet a name-band leader in person. The cute social director says that she used to be a great follower of the top bands, but never met a leader of one. Her chance is coming tomorrow night when Claude Thornhill appears at the Women's building.

Skiers Will Vie For Top Honors; Swiss Style Featured in Ice Show

By JACK REILLY & TOM LONG

Hundreds of freshly-waxed skis will zoom down local slopes this weekend as some of New York State's best collegiate skiers display their abilities in Alpine Holiday competition.

The event will be The Western Division ski championships, held in conjunction with Winter Carnival. Syracuse university will be host to teams from Clarkson, Cornell, Hamilton, RPI and West Point.

THE SKI Lodge at Skytop will be the site of four intercollegiate and local contests. Tomorrow, the six-mile inter-collegiate cross-country race will begin from the lodge at 2 p.m. Sunday at 1:30 p.m., the Intercollegiate Ski jump will also take place there.

Immediately following this ski jump, the Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial Ski Jump will be conducted at the Ski Lodge. This will be an open jump competition with no limitation on the number of contestants or their abilities.

The jump is under the sponsorship of Olmsted's Victrola shop, Lund's University Men's shop, Marine Sports, Inc., Edward Hommel & Sons, Opticians, Wells & Coverly, Inc., and Grody's Luggage and Sports Shop.

A replica of the Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial Ski Jump trophy will be awarded to the highest ranking jumper in the events. The skier's name will be engraved on the permanent trophy which will be kept in the Ski Lodge. However, if one person wins the contest three years in a row, he will be allowed to keep the trophy.

Before her death in the fall, Miss Andrews was co-chairman of last year's Winter Carnival ice pageant, manager of the women's ski team, and a figure skating star.

THE FRATERNITY, sorority, living center, and independent competition will be held at 1:30 p.m., Saturday at the Lodge. Either teams or individuals may enter. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of the slaloms and downhill races.

Little Tuck, a skiing area south of Syracuse, will be the setting for the intercollegiate slalom at 10 a.m., tomorrow, and the intercollegiate downhill race at 9 a.m., Sunday.

Follow South Salina St. into route 11-A. Continue on this route until you reach route 80. Bear left on route 80 to Otisco. Then, take your first left after the Grange hall. Little Tuck will be one mile after this on the right.

Tickets to the jumping events are priced at 60 cents and can be obtained from members of the ski committee. Tickets can also be obtained at the Ski Lodge on Sunday.

PROCEEDS FROM THE SALE of tickets will be distributed between the university's skiing team and the Winter Weekend committee. The Skiers will receive 70% of the sales, while Winter Weekend will get the remaining 30%.

THE ALLIED CHEMICAL corporation will provide ammonium chloride to prevent the snow from melting in case the weather turns warm.

Representing Syracuse in the collegiate events will be Hawley Woolschlager, Arthur Roscoe, Robert Brussel, and Douglas Wallace under the direction of Hill ski coach, Benjamin Bucko.

By ROS BROWNSTEIN and AL BARTKEVICIUS

Shimmering skaters dressed in Swiss style will skim over the ice in the annual Syracuse winter weekend ice pageant. "White Boots and Blades," starting at 7:15 p.m. today at the Drumlins rink.

The only way to get to the Drumlins Hockey rink is to enter from the left-hand parking lot.

After the crowning of the Empress and the torch-light ceremony by skiers, 30 coeds costumed in gray Bermuda shorts, white shirts, suspenders and Swiss hats, will skate to the tune of "A Little Country Road in Switzerland."

A QUARTET of Joyce Crossman, Sue Black, Patricia Parker and Joy Yunker will be featured in this Swiss number.

Another chorus number will be presented by girls wearing pastel-color formals, who will glide together in an Empress waltz to the music, "Valse Bluette."

Choreography for these two highlights of the program was prepared by Charles Erwin.

To add to the gaiety and frolic of the weekend, five football squadders will do a comedy routine on ice. Ed Albright, Dick Darr, Paul Reimer, Dick Beyer, and Bob Leberman will sway to the music of "Classical Jukebox," presenting a series of bits including military and athletic motifs.

SOLO PERFORMANCES will will be given by Shirley Christie, twirling her baton on ice to the tune of "Opus Boogie," and Jack McLaughlin of the Syracuse Figure Skating club, dancing to the music of the popular song, "Oh."

Phyllis Krinovitz, chairman of the pageant and champion of Lake Placid's Ladies Senior figure skaters, will also skate.

Chairmen of the pageant are: costumes, Harriet Kalber and Harriet Schoolman; decorations, June Vine; and choreography, Charles Erwin.

Besides the pageant of the figure skating program, a speed skating contest will also be staged as part of Winter Carnival weekend. "Silver Skates" is the theme of the races to be held at the Tecumseh rink from 1-3 p.m. today weather permitting.

TEN SEPARATE races have been scheduled, and chairmen will award trophies to each of the winners.

Coed skaters will be able to participate in events of 100, 220 and 440 yards and one mile. The men will take over for races of 220, 440 and 880 yards and one mile.

Two one-mile relay races, one for men, one for women, will wind up the speed skating for the day, and the teams winning these contests will receive trophies symbolizing top skating honors.

ON THE speed skating committee are Barbara Streicher, Susan Berman, Ronald Mantley, Paul Stein, Terry Turkat and Treda Trommer, with co-chairmen Barbara Witter and Martin Wexler.

Stockingfoot Raises Drumlins' Business

BY SANDY GOODSITE

"It's always a sell-out." That's what R. S. Burlingame, Drumlins' manager, had to say recently about one of the Winter Weekend highlights, which led us to believe that he is a staunch supporter of the Stockingfoot Dance which will be held tonight from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at Drumlins.

The local winter resort is the annual site for the Stockingfoot Dance and the ice pageant which will be important events this weekend.

BURLINGAME doesn't know the exact percentage of increase in business at Drumlins following the weekend, but he is positive that new people visit the Winter sports spot as a result of the carnival.

One thing is certain, Drumlins' staff will increase Friday night to take care of the large attendance at the sock dance. The manager remarked that every year people try to buy tickets for the dance at the door, but Drumlins has no connection with ticket sales and has to turn the late-comers away.

Destruction of property at Drumlins has been low during the past few years, according to Burlingame. He seemed to appreciate the fact that Syracuse students have been "pretty good" as far as carefulness is concerned.

Although Drumlins' neighbor Tecumseh always receives more business every year on the eve of the Stockingfoot dance, this year Peter Wiles, manager of the club, expects an even larger crowd. This increase in business will be due to the speed skating contests held for the first time at Tecumseh today, 1-3 p.m.

...And so the Snow Is Tumbling Down

As far as weekends go, Winter weekend poses a special problem. Most of the time everybody, especially the ladies hope for warm days and dry ground. This time everyone is hoping for the worst. The worst in this case is lots and lots of snow.

During the week whenever the thermometer dropped everyone breathed a collective sigh of relief. When it snowed people walked with smiles on their faces. But when the snow began to melt gloom ran rampant.

It had even been rumored that certain fraternities have been sponsoring pagan rites to pray for snow. These forays compare with the rain dances of our American Indians. Passing along Comstock ave. this week one could hear the chants and yells of the brethern.

Yesterday, the dances over temporarily, and the weather sufficiently cold, the denizens of Greek houses could be seen swarming all over the streets with bed sheets collecting snow. They were joined by their sorority sisters and the independents. Everybody and his brother was searching for snow. Meanwhile, inside the dorms little groups were gathering and committees on "Research on European Folk Fables" were set up.

When the idea was decided upon work commenced. The weather cooperated, and all through the day and into the night, work was done feverishly, until various forms began to appear.

Walnut Avenue now sported a tub made of snow in front of Lambda Chi Alpha and across the street the girls of Pi Phi were busier than the proverbial beaver.

We walked over. A masculine helper was emptying a waste paper basket full of snow on top of the pile. As he set it down one of the girls slid down the pile. "What a wonderful way to have fun," she said as she fell up to her neck in a pile of snow.

Up on Comstock a group of elementary helligans threw a snowball at a passing student and ran. Unable to pursue them he seized upon the nearest available student who happened to be a sweet young thing in a snow suit. Grabbing her by her unwilling wrist he began to wash her face with snow. What chivalry! A general day of frolic for all the ladies.

Late last night we called the weatherman. "Snow flurries will continue. The weather will remain cold," he said. "I'm sorry that I can't give you a warmer report."

"No," we said. "That's wonderful! We want the coldest, snowiest weather we can have."

Never was a prognosticator so puzzled. After a few seconds and before we could explain he hung up. We had a wistful thought of the spring, when our questions to Hancock field would be slightly more normal.

'Snow Fun Like Winter Weekend

FROST MAIDENS in figure skates pause for breath and a photo. After long hours of practice and instruction they are ready for tonight's ice pageant. Lake Placid skating champ and chairman of the Drumlins event, Phyllis Krinovitz will solo in part of the pageant, which is titled "White Boots and Blades." These skating coeds will star collectively in numbers called "Country Road in Switzerland" and "Carousel Waltz." They will be aided by Orange football greats, who will put on a comedy routine.

Snow and Skate Photos By Lee Jones

SNOW LOVERS emerge from a scare cavern known as the Tunnel of Love by most. Delta Gamma came close to a win with the entry, "Having a Sir-kiss of a Time," in last year's sculpture competition. White precipitation came too late for Winter Weekend last year, but enthusiastic Syracusans decided to have a contest anyway, a few days after the official carnival.

EVEN A snow sculptor has to begin with nothing, nothing but some wet, white stuff that is. An industrious coed packs snow which will later turn into a Pinocchio, Rapunzel or tortoise and hare. Meanwhile one head resident searches for one lost waste can.

SPECTATORS ARE asked to go around by the left parking lot at Drumlins to see the final show these coeds are preparing for. "White Boots and Blades" will be invisible to pageant fans who attempt to view it by entering the building. Coached by a member of the Drumlins skate instruction staff, these ice maidens will follow choreography by Phyllis Krinovitz in the pageant scheduled for 7:15 p.m. today. Following the pageant, fancy socks will appear on the dance floor inside as couples warm up at the Stockingfoot affair.

Weekends of Past Bright, Inexpensive

By GEORGE MEEK

This year's Alpine Holiday marks the twenty-second in a long series of colorful weekends. Some were snowy, some snowless, but nearly all of them had distinctive features to provide plenty of wintertime fun for Hill students.

The Winter Weekend idea was formulated by Joe Aebischer in 1933. He had seen a weekend at Dartmouth, and with the help of a $50 check from an anonymous donor, decided to try the idea here. Aebischer ran off the first Syracuse Winter Carnival despite hard times of the period, on a shoestring.

THE TOTAL expenses of the weekend were but a fraction of what is spent today. Individual expenses were less, too—it cost only five cents for the bus ride to Drumlins. The mayor of Syracuse crowned the queen at this first carnival.

Since its inception, Winter Carnival has seen its traditions come and go. Hill students used to be able to get in on the election of the weekend queen, for ballot stubs were attached to the dance tickets. Now a panel of judges selects the queen.

Another old tradition was the flying of the weather flag from the mast in front of HL. Up until a few years ago, a red flag on the day of a carnival signified that all the outdoor events would be held as scheduled, a white one that they would be cancelled. Perhaps this idea was dropped because of the red flag's implications.

Certain types of skating races are things of the past. Formerly barrel jumping, man and women's relay, and couple's races were held.

CAMPFIRES AND HOCKEY games used to be regular features. Innovations in the 1950 carnival were an interclass snowball fight and a fashion show by the queen candidates.

The most important element in the winter weekends, the weather, is unfortunately beyond the control of the students. A casual survey of past weekends indicates that about two out of every three did not come across with the expected cold weather.

An unusual twist occurred in 1945. Instead of postponing the outdoor events because of warm weather, the committee was forced to postpone an indoor event, the Sno-ball, because of cold weather.

A cold wave and national coal shortage combined to cause postponement of the event.

SOMETIMES THE OUTDOOR events have taken place a few days after their originally scheduled time, but the 1939 carnival took the record with a 36 day postponement.

In 1942 a clever idea provided a touch of the Arctic in Thornden park, former home of many of the weekend's events. Natalie Jubin, then a freshman, brought a dog sled and team of 10 huskies from her Lake Placid home and offered rides around the park.

The first snow sculpture contest was held in 1936. That year Tommy Dorsey played at the Sno-ball. Other big name Sno-ball bands have included Tex Beneke and Claude Thornhill. Thornhill, who played in 1951, will provide music this year, also.

When Skitch Henderson, well known radio and TV celebrity, provided the music in 1949, Syracuse's WAGE carried the musical program, as did many out of town stations on a coast to coast hookup.

THE SNO-BALL, to be held this year for the first time in the Women's gym, has had a variety of homes, including Archbold gym and the Jefferson st. Armory. In 1948 the dance was the formal opening of Sims dining hall. Since checking facilities were in Slocum, a 180 feet long lighted canopy was stretched between Sims and Slocum.

Per Arnnell, University ski instructor from Finland, led the ski parade down Drumlins hill immediately previous to an ice pageant called Olympic Holiday, in last years' carnival.

Carrie Lou Andrews, recently killed in an automobile accident, was one of the directors of the pageant. The now defunct Student Union provided dancing for the overthrow crowd from the Stockingfoot dance.

But, of course, every year's Carnival is the best, and this will be no exception.

Snow Carnival Began With Forester Welch

By JOY YUNKER

Fay Welch of the College of Forestry, took Winter Carnival from the hands of the Women's Athletic Association and made it into an all-University tradition and an outstanding eastern winter sports event.

The third oldest Weekend of its kind in the country, the Carnival was handled by a small group of coeds prior to 1933.

IN THAT YEAR Welch was the advisor to a student Winter carnival committee, headed by Joe Aebischer, who was interested in expanding the Weekend. The success of this first affair prompted the annual presentation, now a tradition at Syracuse.

Fay Welch

Welsh safely guided Winter carnival through the dark year of 1935. That year the students who were in charge of Carnival plans found that they were unable to carry out their responsibility.

Plans for the event were turned over to Welch who aided five forestry seniors in maing Winter carnival into the affair we know today.

Welsh, to whom this year's Winter Weekend is dedicated, has given freely of his time and effort to cooperate with the students.

BESIDES GUIDING the Carnival through a dark year in 1935 he instigated the Outing club, which consequently sponsored Syracuse university's first ski team.

In 1938 he conceived the idea for the first ski school at the University.

Welch's efforts along with those of George Earle, coach of the men's ski team, were instrumental in making the much discussed and hoped for ski lodge into a reality of Walker cottage and was entered by Pi Beta Phi sorority. The Liberal Arts freshman lives in Allentown, Pa.

A native of Woodstock, N. Y., Miss McClellen is a resident of Nottingham cottage. A Liberal Arts freshman, she was entered in the contest by Delta Gamma.

FROM BALFOUR'S, Miss Seme will receive a trophy, and so will each of the four members of her court.

Lund's will give the Empress an imported French scarf, the Town Shop a medallion necklace, Howe Jewelers a tiara of rhinestones and sterling silver, and from Marine Sports, a ski sweater.

Stadium Cleaners has donated dry cleaning and pressing service. Helena Fashions a gold jeweled cigarette case, Wilson's a piece of costume jewelry, and Grody's an imported Scandinavian stocking cap and matching mittens.

Besides this, Miss Seme will receive a fancy necklace from Altman and Greene jewelers, and Olmsted's will give her a record album of "Songs of Syracuse."

THE EMPRESS and her court will also appear on radio and TV shows.

Janet Caro and Peter Rose are overall co-chairmen of the weekend. Michael Schaffer conducted the Empress contest.

Dixieland Music Slated by SAE

"Dixie in the Alps" will be featured at the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house, 737 Comstock ave., from 4 to 7 p.m. tomorrow as part of the weekend festivities.

Freddy Vare's "Dixie Five" will provide music for the open house. A general inviation is extended to the campus.

Opinions Rendered By Weekend Crews

By HOWARD VanKIRK

The Supreme Court of public opinion of Syracuse university and surroundings holds right to one with three abstaining and one slightly off beat that Winter Weekend and the Sno-ball are fine institutions fraught with college tradition.

Concurring:

Mrs. Jonnie Glineck, five years a waitress at the Savoy: "The late crowd from the dance doesn't bother me any more. I'm used to it." She thought that the idea of the big weekend was a good one and that the snow sculpture was fine. Guess we'll drop in for a cup of coffee tomorrow night.

ALBERT HENDRICKS, custodian of the Women's building, the guy who has to stay up late to clean up after the Sno-ball: "I don't mind." He gets paid for the extra duty, and as long as the students are cooperative in doing their part of the clean-up, it's no headache. He also feels that the Ball is a good idea, and the big gym is a good place to hold it.

Marlene Seme, freshman Empress contestant: "It's all very exicting (the contest), and the Weekend certainly is great. We find out about the results of the contest this morning."

Thomas Filiatreau, sophomore, typical college student, and member of the chorus of the skit "Back in '54": "Good skit. Yeah, this is a good time for a big weekend, before we get too far along in classes. I think it's a great idea. Hope we have lots of snow."

Joan Nadelhaft and Eileen Chamberlain, co-editors of the Daily Orange Winter Weekend edition: We think Winter Weekend is a great Syracuse tradition, but this edition is a lot of work for us, so when it finally gets here, we're content to sit back and relax."

Is this the apathy that R. Jacques Herz goes on about?

NORMAN ZANKEL and Paul Thomas, night switchboard operators and law students: These weekends are a part of college tradition and a fine thing, so long as the students remember their primary purpose here. On the basis of Colgate weekend, we expect to have quite a few more calls than usual between now and Sunday, but we don't mind a little extra work."

Dissenting:

Mary Lee Scranton, junior and Syracusan Exchange Editor: "The Weekend is very often a letdown because you're looking forward to it so much. It's a lot more fun to dress for a formal than to wear one all night. A guy has to spend three times as much money on a big weekend than on any other weekend, and he doesn't have a proportionate amount of fun. By the way, I'm going to all the events."

No sour grapes here.

Abstaining:

Harry LeVine, proprietor of LeVine's Artists and Drafting Supplies, 700 S. Crouse Ave: "We sell quite a bit of paint used on the snow sculptures."

Miss Kay Richards, manager of Stadium Cleaners, 145 Marshall st.: "There haven't been as many formals and tuxes as might be expected. They are usually cleaned after a dance, not just before one."

Miss Helen Navetta, of Seven Hour Cleaning & Laundering, Inc., 177 Marshall st.: "We have a usual number of formals and tuxes, but we will have a greater volume after the dance."

Slightly off beat:

MALCOLM FOSTER, Editor-in-chief of the Syracusan: "What's the Son-ball? Oh, I've heard of it. Its that anticlimax after the Stockingfoot, isn't it? The Stockingfoot's the greatest little dance on campus. Artie Siegel and I are doubling for that one. It's really great. Know where we can get a couple of tickets . . .?" and on and on.

In handing down the majority decision, Supreme Court Justice Hugh O. Muir stated: Insofar as the defendant, i.e. Winter Weekend, has pled its case and presented its witnesses, we do believe that despite the dissenting testimony of the prosecution, i.e. certain recluse and anti-social individuals, that defendant should be granted the right, under the rules and regulations of the University, to present the aforementioned blast.

Social Functions Complete Weekend

The all-university functions of the 1954 Alpine Holiday will be supplemented as usual by private parties and other affairs. Miss Margaret Parker, University social director, reports eight such functions registered for the weekend.

Three fraternities have slated dances for tonight: Alpha Epsilon Pi, 901 Comstock ave.; Beta Sigma Rho, 736 Comstock ave.; and Phi Sigma Delta, 508 Ostrom ave. The Phi Sigma Delta event is titled "Chalet for Two."

Afternoon events are the order of the day tomorrow. Sigma Alpha Mu, 712 Comstock ave., will hold a jam session from 1 to 5:30 p.m. An open house dixieland session is planned for 4 to 7 p.m. by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 737 Comstock ave.

Lambda Chi Alpha, 809 Walnut ave., will offer a buffet supper from 7 to 9 p.m.

Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, 743 Comstock ave., has scheduled a parents tea for 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Schultze cottage, 906 University ave., is the only independent living center with a registered function for the weekend. Schultze plans a Valentine open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Full Scholarships Offered by Gibbs

Two full tuition scholarships for college senior women are again being offered by Katharine Gibbs school. An additional cash award of $500 accompanies the scholarship.

The winners may select any one of the five Gibbs schools for their secretarial training—Boston, Chicago, New York, Montclair and Providence. Winners are chosen by the scholarship committee on the basis of college academic record, personal and character qualifications and potentialities for success in business.

Boxers Seek Third in Row

By LEE KIKLIER

Round three of Syracuse's fight to retain its Eastern dual-meet boxing championship begins tomorrow night at Penn State's Recreation hall. The Orange, unbeaten this year, as last, face a State squad that has failed to win, as last year.

It was like putting a carnival show on the road when the bus load representing Syracuse left from the gym this morning. On the bus: the boxers, Joe McDaniel's wrestlers, and the frosh boxers—a sort of three-ring circus that will provide entertainment for a full afternoon and evening at State College.

ROY SIMMONS, who was shocked yesterday by the retirement of his two middleweights, spent the day scrambling to get Joe McCord, his current hope at 156, into starting condition. Except for this sudden change, the Simmons team is in fine shape.

Although the Nittany Lions have lost two matches, their latest loss to the Maryland Terrapins featured several close decisions. The 6-2 loss to Maryland last week was preceded by a 5-3 setback at the hands of Michigan State.

Big man for the Lions is lightheavy Adam Kois. Kois is Penn State's captain, defending Eastern champ and National runner-up. Syracuse's Bruce Yancey, just rounding into shape, might not be quite ready for Kois, but Simmons hasn't forfeited the match.

Syracuse's line-up is set except for the heavyweight where footballer Sam Alexander and sophomore Don MacRae are in the running. The lineup:

Syracuse	Penn State
125—Guelli	Hartley
132—Jaffe	Papacharalambous
139—Granger	Martin
147—O'Sullivan	Stokes
156—McCord	DeMay
165—Rigolosi	Ahern
178—Yancey	Kois
Heavy—Alexander or MacRae	DellaPenna

The Orange will return to State College this spring for the National tourney, April 8-10.

Skiing Will Highlight Weekend Athletics

A SKIER TAKES off in a jump during a practice session in preparation for Sunday's intercollegiate ski jumping events at the Ski Lodge. Some of the top collegiate jumpers in the East will be present at the competition scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. An open jumping event will be held at the same time for the Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial trophy. Staff Photo by Lee Jones

Syracuse Swimmers To Seek First Win Against Buffalo

By STAN ROSENFELD

The winless campaign of either Syracuse or Buffalo university swim squads will come to an end tomorrow evening when the teams clash in a dual meet at Buffalo.

The Orange swimmers will be a slight favorite, as they have been more impressive in their losses to Columbia, Williams and Pitt than has Buffalo in its losses to Colgate, Niagara and Toronto. In the Bulls last time out, they finished third in a triangular meet with Cornell and Colgate.

JACK RYDBERG of Buffalo and Ed Gozigan of the Orange should provide the highlight of the evening when they face each other in the diving event. Gozigan, who is improving with each meet, is still looking for his initial first place performance of the season.

Bob Downing of the Piety splashers will place his undefeated record on the line when he opposes Jerry Wink in the backstroke. Downing has been Syracuse's leading point scorer this year.

Other Buffalo splashers who might prove troublesome are Bob Center and Harry Metcalfe. Their performances so far have been mediocre but both have shown signs of improvement.

Capt. Bob Curran of the Orange is counted on heavily for winning points. Curran finished third in his last outing against the Pitt Panthers in his breast stroke specialty.

NAUTICAL NOTES: Buffalo has one of the newest pools in Upstate New York, which should be a considerable improvement over the Pitt pool .

Swordsmen Meet Powerful Cornell

The Syracuse fencers face their toughest test of the year tonight when they take on the nationally ranked squad from Cornell at 7:30 p.m. in Archbold gym. Ranked fourth in the country last year, the Cornellians will present a show of outstanding fencing and are favored to score a fairly easy victory.

However, the Pietymen, led by Capt. John Goldstein's epee skill, will be out to give them a battle and might possibly make a real scrap of it.

Supporting Goldstein will be Gresser and Wooding in the epee, Schop, Gilman and Wang in the saber, and Klein, Trenk and Marsulo in the foil.

Of this group, Willie Schop has had the best success with a record of 4-2.

Cornell will bring one of the biggest men in the sport, Dave West, an excellent epee man who stands 6 ft.-8.

Wrestlers Rated as Underdogs Against Strong Nittany Lions

By ALEX STRASSER

The Syracuse wrestlers have a job cut out for them tomorrow when they attempt to end the Penn State's Nittany Lions' 34 dual meet streak. Starting time is 2 p.m.

Coach Joe McDaniel will go with the same lineup that saw action in the Orange's 19-13 losing effort against Franklin & Marshall last weekend.

At the 137-pound slot, the Lions have Dick Lemyre, who was Eastern champion the last two years. Lemyre is followed by Jerry Maurey, Eastern champion at 147.

When former Eastern champion Bob Homan, at 123 pounds, and Olympic team member Joel Kurfka are added to this twosome, the explanation for the Lions' 34 meet winning streak becomes clear.

Ironically, Syracuse defeated Penn State in 1951, the last Lion setback before the current winning streak.

AT THE 157-pound slot, Orange co-captain Ed Rooney will be looking for his fifth straight dual meet win. Rooney will probably meet Doug Frey, whom he has beaten several times.

Hank Gobetz at 167 and heavyweight George Finck are the other Orange grapplers who figure to give the Nittanies some trouble. Gobetz won his first two bouts while Finck was victorious in his second and fourth bouts, both by pins.

John Husband, Ed Weiss, Tom King and Garland Harris will be the Orange starters at the 123, 130, 137 and 147 pound spots, retaking care of the 177-pound position.

Filling in for injured Co-Capt. Chuck DeBellis, King has two wins and a draw on the positive side of the ledger. The other grapplers have lost all their outings thus far.

After Saturday's meet, the grapplers have three more matches remaining, with one of them scheduled for Archbold. In addition, Syracuse will send a contingent to the Eastern Intercollegiates in March.

Orange Defends Title in 2-Day Carnival Meet

By ART STERNBERG

A large crowd is expected to welcome the Orange Skiers in their home debut this weekend when they compete in the Western Division championship ski meet to be held at the Suski Lodge. This big event will be a highlight of the annual Winter Carnival and of the outdoor winter sports season.

Starting Saturday at 2 p.m., the representatives of six colleges will take to their skis for cross-country racing. The course has been marked to Drumlin's Country club and back, covering six miles.

LITTLE TUCK, N. Y., a small point 17 miles south of Syracuse, has been designated as the site of morning action during the meet. Slalom and downhill racing will be held there beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday and 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

An intercollegiate ski jump is scheduled for Sunday at 3 p.m. The slate of activity will be rounded out by a program of Intramural championships annually held by the University. These events will be held Saturday afternoon.

Tickets for the varsity meet can be obtained by contacting either Sally Soper or Kay Jackman or at the events themselves.

An addition to the program is the Carrie Lou Andrews memorial jump. Since it is an open jump, competitors don't have to be college students to participate. Skiers from the entire state, independents and ski club reps, will content for the coveted trophy on Sunday afternoon.

THE PIETYMEN, who hope to avenge last week's debacle at Dartmouth, will face competition from Army, Clarkson, Cortland, RPI, and Cornell. The latter two are expected to furnish the roughest opposition.

Cornell placed third in last year's event behind RPI. However, with such returning stars as last year's captain, Dave Foss, they look like the team to beat.

Hill Coach Ben Bucko is looking optimistically for a repeat victory. The squad has had an up-and-down season thus far but can rise to the occasion if the anchormen come through as expected.

The big gun in the Orange offense is Hawley Woolschlager, a senior from Booneville, N. Y. He is a returnee from last year's team. This year, Hawley placed second in the Eastern B Giant Slalom championships at Franconia, N. H., and third in the Fiske Trophy competition at Woodstock, Vt.

HE IS ENTERED in all the events to be held during the Carnival Weekend. The Hill star had one of his rare off-days during the Dartmouth Winter Carnival meet last Saturday in which Syracuse placed last.

Art Roscoe, a freshman newcomer to the squad, is another man who will be heavily depended upon during the meet. His arrival on the team has helped greatly to make up for the slack left when Joe DeCarlo, top slalom and downhill man, graduated.

Roscoe, Woolschlager, and Doug Wallace will participate each in four races, while Bob Brussels and Jan Aagenaes will vie in two apiece. Aagenaes, a foreign exchange student, is new to the team and this will be his first meet here.

Should the Piety skiers emerge victorious, they would be eligible to compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate Senior championships. Last year the Hillmen won the Western championship held here during Winter Carnival weekend, defeating RPI by 32 points.

Tangerines to Face Stern Competition

Red Raider Cagers Host Frosh Tonight

By DAVE BENNETT

Possibly the sternest test of the season faces the frosh basketball team this evening when Coach Andy Mogish's squad invades Colgate for an important game with the Red Raider yearlings.

Syracuse, fresh from a 77-55 victory over General Electric on Wednesday night, is riding the crest of a nine-game victory string. But the Hill squad will have to be at its best tonight for Colgate has a fine freshman aggregation this year. Moreover, a Maroon team is always doubly hard to beat on the small Huntington gymnasium court with a highly partisan crowd behind it.

The Orange cubs were impressive in beating GE and Coach Mogish might start the same five tonight that opened against the industrial team. Vinnie Cohen, Gary Clark, Jim Snyder, Vinnie Albanese and Lou Stark made up the starting quintet last Wednesday.

Cohen and Albanese shared scoring honors in the win with 17 points apiece. Snyder, Clark and Stark also were high in the scoring column, along with Niel Wilcox, who had eight points in a substitute role.

The game tonight is the first of a home-and-home series. On Feb. 27, the Little Raiders accompany the Colgate varsity in their traditional invasion of the Orange court.

Intra Skiing

The annual Intramural ski meet will be held Saturday afternoon at the Ski lodge. Four-man teams from fraternities and living centers will vie for team honors while individual championships will also be decided.

Joel Rosenblum of Zeta Beta Tau will defend his individual slalom and downhill titles in one of the meet's highlights.

Hoopsters Intend to End Losses In Clash at Colgate Tomorrow

By BOB LEFKO

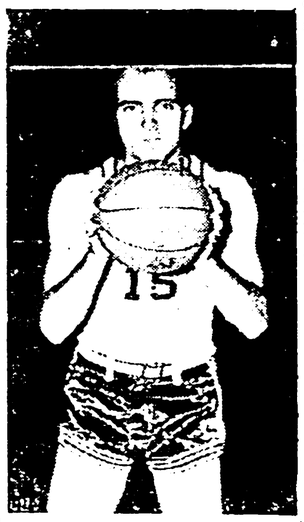
With the possibility of falling under the .500 mark threatening them, Syracuse's hoopsters will be out to break a four game losing streak tomorrow night when they visit Colgate to face the Red Raider cagers. Wednesday night's 78-74 loss to Penn evened the Orangemen's record at 8-8.

Tomorrow's clash will be the 102nd between the two schools with the Pietymen holding a 61-40 edge. Colgate whipped the Saltines twice last season, 106-88 and 89-84. The 106 markers are the highest total ever recorded in a meeting between the two squads and the Pietymen will be out for revenge this year.

COLGATE ENTERS the clash with an unimpressive 3-8 record but has shown great improvement in recent clashes. In their last two performances, the Hamiltonians upset highly-touted Connecticut and one of the Orange's recent conquerors, Army.

The victories chased some of the gloom from Howard Hartman's squad which had been plagued by an eight game losing streak after having won their opener against St. Lawrence. Partially responsible for the improvement was an experiment which moved Capt. Frank Patterson to a playmaker's role from his normal position as the team's high scorer.

The improved scoring of 5 ft.-11 forward Bill Johnson and 6 ft.-6 center Milt Graham freed Patterson for the backcourt role. Johnson has scored 87 points in the last six contests to move into the second spot in team scoring with 115 points. Patterson, a 6 ft.-1 senior, continues to lead the squad with 121 markers.



CAPT. FRANK PATTERSON will be the playmaker for Colgate when it plays host to the Syracuse cagers tomorrow night at Hamilton.

Lanky 6 ft.-5 Cal Wolcott and veteran Don Ronnie will probably round out the opening quintet at forward and guard. Ronnie is the top man in the Raiders collapsing zone defense, which is one of the assets of the low scoring squad.

GULEY IS expected to counter with the same five that opened against Penn. Vastly improved Manny Breland, who has turned into one of the stars of the squad, will pair up at forward with senior Dick Jaskot. Dave Kline, still handicapped by a cast on his broken wrist, will probably open at center and see limited action.

Capt. Mel Besdin and Jack Larned, both who scored in double figures against the Quakers, will again man the backcourt spots. Besdin who played less than half the game against the Pennsylvanians scored 10 points to lead a last quarter comeback while Larned scored 15 markers mostly on long jump shots.

Ron Gillespie and Walt Scott, two of the Orange's strong sophomore contingent are still hobbled by leg injuries but will be ready for limited duty. Both saw last half action against Penn.

Top bench strength for the Raiders is provided by 6 ft.-4 hook shot artist John Doremus and 6 ft. backcourt man Bruce Dursema.

A full house of 1,800 fans is expected to pack Huntington gym for the battle, the first of a home and home series. Colgate is scheduled to visit Archbold gym Saturday, Feb. 27.

Orange Relay Team To Run in Weekend Garden Contest

Coach Bob Grieve's crack two-mile relay team, consisting of Jack Hubbard, Les Vielbig, Don Shupe and Steve Armstrong, will run in the New York Athletic club meet Saturday night in Madison Square Garden.

The smooth-running quartet will be out to better its excellent 7:45 effort in last week's Milrose games. At this outing, the four half-milers were nosed out by Fordham for the blue ribbon.

Two weeks ago, Grieve's striders finished close behind Fordham at Boston. Vielbig and Armstrong are both timing at or below the 1:55 mark, while Hubbard and Shupe are finishing consistently around 1:57.

Tickets for tomorrow's Syracuse-Colgate basketball game at Hamilton can be purchased at the Archbold gym ticket office today. The ducats are $1.80.

Hill Gym Team Makes Home Debut

By AL GEFEN

The Syracuse university gymnastics squad will entertain the Temple Owls tomorrow in a meet which will commence at 2:30 p.m. The meet will be televised over station WSYR-TV.

The meet will mark the first home appearance for the Orangemen. Four away meets confronted the Piety gymnasts before this initial home appearance. Two victories and a like number of defeats give the Hillmen a .500 percentage as they encounter their first home opponent.

JIM "CORKY" Sebbo, Ned Nanocchio and Bruce Brown will represent the home team in the tumbling competition. Since Corky is expected to win the event, it will be up to the other Pietymen to place as high as possible in order that the Orangemen may equal the expected Temple total in tumbling.

Temple is very strong in the flying rings event. Eugene Scholl and John Bretcher will be difficult to stop in this event. Ferdie Fournies, winner of this event at North Carolina and Duke in December and third against Penn State last week, will lead the Saltine participants.

Fournies, if in top form, will give the Templars a run for their money. Coach Paul Romeo will also start Dan Traficante and Milan Trnka in the flying rings.

Syracuse may have the edge in the parallel bars. Co-capt. John Barkal and Milan Trnka give the Pietymen a rugged twosome that will undoubtedly bring several points to Orange cause.

A week ago, however, at State College, Barkal and Trnka captured only five out of a possible 15 points as they finished third and fourth respectively. Dan Traficante may also see service here for the Hillmen.

THE OWLS must be conceded the edge in any pre-meet predictions in the side horse competition. William Coco is the leading Owl participant in this event. A year ago in Philadelphia in a dual meet between the same two teams, Coco won this event as the Owls raced to a comparatively easy victory.

The Salt city team appears to be stronger than the Temple squad in the horizontal bar, Trnka, who only managed a fifth, in the Penn State encounter a week ago, is the chief Orange hope in this one. If he hadn't slipped in his exercise last week, he probably would have done much better.

The event which may decide the entire meet is the rope climb. The Syracuse team of Fournies and Andy Felice gives the Pietymen fine balance. Temple, too, will enter a strong aggregation.

Fournies, who did well on the Southern tour, capturing first place in two of the three meets, has slipped somewhat of late and his return to winning form might ice the meet for Syracuse.

FELICE DID well in his first meet of the season as he came in third in the Saltine loss to Penn State. Much is expected of Andy this season.

Tomorrow's meet may do much in deciding second place in the Eastern Gymnastic league.

Although the Owls appear somewhat stronger, Syracuse could surprise by flashing some of the form displayed in its third-place finish in the 1953 Nationals.

Only one other meet is scheduled for Archbold gym this season, that being Navy's invasion on Feb. 20.

The expected starting lineups:

Tumbling — William Rocco and Benjamin Paul (T); Ned Nanocchio, Bruce Brown and Corky Sebbo (S).

Side Horse—John Drury, Robert Demerjian and Coco (T); Ferdie Fournies, Dan Traficante and John Barkal (S).

Rope Climb—Richard Brown Coco, and Eugene Scholl (T); Nanocchio, Andy Felice and Fournies (S).

Parallel bars—Andy Coco, Jengo, and McCarthy (T); Trnka, Felice and Barkal (S).

Flying Rings—Robert Morten, Scholl and John Bretcher (T); Traficante, Trnka and Fournies (S).

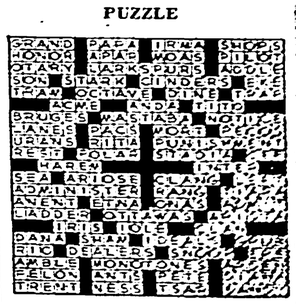
SOLUTION TO CROSSWORD PUZZLE



Sno-ball . . .

"Special 2's" may be used by coeds who attend the ball. Coeds should remember to keep their ticket stubs, which must be attached to the pink permission slips. WSG regulations forbid coeds taking city overnights on the nights of university formals, and if a girl returns to her living center to change from formal to informal clothes after the dance, her special permission becomes invalid.

Those attending the ball will drink "royal" punch and eat home baked cookies, say refreshments co-chairmen Lorraine Chanatry and Debra Moscow. The cookies were baked by refreshment committee members in the Home Ec kitchens in Slocum.

A gold crown eight feet in diameter suspended below a ceiling of streamers will be the main feature of the decorations. Pine trees to carry through the "Alpine Holiday" overall theme of the weekend terned draperies complete the decorations. Mary Todd and Joand crown and snowflake-patanne Schurman are in charge of decorations.

Chaperones for the Sno-ball will include Dean and Mrs. Clark D. Ahlberg, Prof. and Mrs. Hibbard V. B. Kline, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Willard and Prof. and Mrs. D. Kenneth Sargent. Dean Ahlberg is Assistant Dean of the School of Engineering, Prof. Kline teaches geography, Edward Willard teaches in the forestry school and Prof. Sargent is on the School of Architecture faculty.

Other well-known faculty and administration members who will be at the "Waltz" include: the Rev. Gannon F. Ryan, the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Hopkinson, Dean Marjorie C. Smith, Dean and Mrs. Charles C. Noble, the Rev. and Mrs. W. Wesley Konrad, Dr. and Mrs. William M. Cruickshank, Dean and Mrs. Alexander Charters and University social director Miss Margaret Parker.

snow to decorate the weekend but it was finally held in old Archbold gym with muted tones by Robert Lowe and his Syracusans.

The 1945 weekend met with even greater hardship as a critical local fuel shortage closed campus buildings and cancelled the snow holiday on two occasions. Dick Kowell's Kollegians conducted the eventual junior fling at Hotel Onondaga.

Elliot Lawrence's band was one of the first "big" groups to grace a Sno-ball in February 1948 during a year which saw local appearances of Stan Kenton, Ray McKinley and friend Thornhill. Hollywood's exciting Skitch Henderson orchestra played for the 1949 weekend frolic which was held in the Jefferson street armory.

THE 18TH ANNUAL Syracuse carnival found a surrounding of "frozen funnies" fronting the living centers and the famous Glenn Miller orchestra led by Tex Beneke journeyed to Central New York to make music.

The noted RCA Victor recording band of Buddy Morrow entertained at the "Circus Fantasy", 1952's Arctic exhibition.

Last February, the Carnival committee smiled bravely over a general absence of the white stuff, cancelled the snow sculptures, and bought 60 tons of crushed ice for the ski events, when the sky opened Friday and almost a foot of congealed rain fell—too late to do any more than make the weekend wintery.

"A Valentine for Venus" which featured some of Bill Angelos and Lanny O'Kun's best tunes, almost didn't happen. Forced out of the traditional Archbold site by a previous sporting event, a wrestling match, the Sno-ball almost became the first event in the-then-uncompleted Women's building. However, labor troubles stopped that idea cold, and the "Valentine" wound up in Sims, with Ray McKinley's orchestra presiding.

AS IS TRADITIONAL with "Sno-ball" fun, co-chairman Norman Murphy and Cynthia Satow have brewed up a light intermission entertainment written for the 1954 affair by Gail Gilman. A display of original music and choreography will be found in a little item patterned after Ralph Edwards's "This is Your Life" television show.

It would seem that a Winter Carnival's crowning glory, the annual Sno-ball classic, has a lengthy and noble heritage. May 1954 wear hers in good health and three feet of powder.

'Footprints' Scheduled for March

SYRACUSE Daily Orange

Vol. 51, No. 69 Syracuse, N. Y., Monday, February 15, 1954 8 Pages—5 Cents

By LIZ GODDARD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Footprints on the sands of time, an individual's design for living, will be the theme of a campus conference March 7, 8, and 9.

The conference, aimed at stimulating student thought, will feature talks by three outstanding religious leaders as well as forums and discussion meetings.

REV. A. POWELL DAVIES, nationally known liberal and Unitarian minister, and Dr. E. G. Homrighausen, professor of Christian education at Princeton university, will be on campus Monday, March 8.

Rabbi Joseph L. Fink, author and community leader from Temple Deth Zion in Buffalo, will be the conference leader on Tuesday, March 9.

Footprints, organized by a campus-wide group of students, is chaired by James F. Carr and Elizabeth Goddard.

RABBI JOSEPH L. FINK, of Temple Beth Zion in Buffalo, will lead the Footprints conference on Tuesday, March 9.

"It is hoped that the conference will stimulate thought and give students an opportunity to examine their basic philosophies of life," Carr said.

"IT WILL NOT be directed toward any one set of values and there will be as much opportunity as possible for a wide latitude of discussion and disagreement," he explained.

Included in the three days' activities will be the major addresses followed by informal discussions, a colloquium with faculty participation, a student panel discussion, a reception and bull sessions in the individual houses. These will be open to all interested students.

Radio coverage and television appearances are also planned.

Chancellor William P. Tolley and Dean Charles C. Noble have consented to serve as honorary chairmen of the conference.

ALTHOUGH FOOTPRINTS does not have the official backing of any campus organization, many student leaders and members of the faculty and administration have offered to serve as sponsors.

Included on the executive planning committee are Dean Noble, Dean Ruth Haddock, Miss Marilyn Pflueger, John Beach, Marcia Heath and Gayle Kepner.

Committee chairmen include: Marcia Michelbacher, program; Marcia Heath, Henry Einhorn and Jane Dempsey, speakers and arrangements; Gayle Kepner and Nancy Watkins, reception; Harold Vikoren and Avis Yaffee, finance.

Also, James Maneval and James Swanton, ushers; Mr. David Norton and Robert Grogan, printing; Stanley Leff and William Kagler, promotion; Richard Koelling and Dolores Hytron, city relations; Phyllis Sirota, downtown newspapers; Arthur Siegel, special promotions; Milton Shefter, radio and TV.

Also, Jacqueline Jarrett and Elaine Kiebala, invitations; Miriam Fiske, group communications; John Beach and Rev. Arnold Nakajima, continuation; Nancy Van Schaick, secretary.

Spartans' Coach To Speak At Annual Block S Dinner

By KEN LENT
Daily Orange Sports Editor

Hugh (Stubby) Daugherty, former Syracuse line coach and newly- appointed head football coach at Michigan State, has been named as the principal speaker for the annual Orange Key-sponsored Block S banquet, Arnie Burdick, sports publicity director, announced today.

A co-captain of the 1939 Orange eleven, Daugherty joins an impressive list of previous sports greats who have spoken at the Syracuse sports dinner. The new Spartan coach replaced Clarance (Biggie) Munn, another former Orange coach, who was named athletic director of Michigan State directly after the 1953 season.

DAUGHERTY GRADUATED from Syracuse in 1940 after three years on the varsity squad where he played guard. He played under Ossie Solem and it was while he was a sophomore that he first drew the attention of Munn, then an Orange line coach.

A resident of Barnesboro, Pa., Daugherty has coached at State since 1947 when Munn took his entire coaching staff from Syracuse to Michigan State. Since then, some of the nation's top teams, including one Rose Bowl winner, have worn Spartan uniforms.

Before going to State, Daugherty spent four years in the army serving in both Australia and New Guinea. During the war, he was in three campaigns and won the Bronze Star for meritorious service.

While in the service, he served with the First Cavalry at Fort Bliss and then went to Officers' Candidate School in early 1942. There he was commissioned, and assigned to the 387th Port Battalion.

AFTER THE war he taught physical education and coached at Trinity Prep in New York city. At Syracuse, two other assistant coaches, Forest Evasheski, now coach at Iowa and La Verne (Kip) Taylor, now coach at Oregon State, went with him to Michigan.

His mother, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Daugherty, is a house mother at Alpha Delta Pi sorority here on the Hill. He has a sister, Jean, who works at downtown station WHEN-TV and a brother, Joe, who also played football here before breaking a leg.

The Block S banquet, which is set for Sunday, March 28, is the annual award dinner for Hill athletes. Previous well-known sports speakers have been Illinois' coach Ray Eliot, Philadelphia Phillie pitcher Jim Konstanty and former New York Giant football coach, Steve Owen.

The sub-chairmen for the fraternity, sorority and independent divisions will be in charge of sales in the respective houses.

The campus and theatre subchairmen will be in charge of staffs for sales in the campus box-office and the downtown box office. The senior class gets credit for all sales completed before opening night.

The other chairmanships open are those for the promotion, program and arrangements committees.

THE PROMOTION chairmanship includes work with The Daily Orange, radio and television announcements, downtown newspaper publicity, and other stunts.

The program chairman will be in charge of the play program. The tasks include designing the cover, advertisements and copy boosters.

Pan-hel Will Hold Bridge Tournament

A Pan-Hellenic bridge tournament will be held Saturday, Feb. 20, at the Sigma Delta Tau house. Each sorority is asked to send two representatives.

This will be the second of the annual tournaments. The trophy last year was won by Phi Sigma Sigma.

All applications for the tournament must be sent to Sandy Slavin or Joy Weiss today.

United Nations association of Syracuse university has announced a spring membership drive to be held from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Feb. 17 and 18 in Maxwell lobby. All interested students are urged to sign up either Wednesday or Thursday.

President Ethel Faulkin disclosed plans for visits to the Syracuse campus by United Nations personnel.

Students Urged To Get Vouchers

Some students may forfeit their scholarships for failure to pick up vouchers during the registration period last week, Mrs. Frances Nelson, administrative assistant, announced yesterday.

Such students, entitled to scholarships for the semester, will forfeit them if the vouchers are not picked up by Feb. 22. This applies only to those scholarship holders who did not pick up vouchers during registration.

Sculpture Prizes Awarded

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Gamma Phi Beta, Mott cottage and the men's co-op were named winners of the annual Winter Carnival weekend snow sculpture contest Friday.

A total of 73 houses were entered, with top prizes being awarded in four divisions on the basis of originailty, correlation with theme—"Frozen Fables"—and general presentation.

SAE, FRATERNITY division winner, portrayed the tale of the the tortoise and the hare in a colorful creation in front of the Comstock ave. house. Honorable mention among the male Greeks went to Psi Upsilon's Gulliver from Jonathan Swift's Gullivar's Travels.

PINOCCHIO, WITH his long nose, which grew even longer when he told a lie, won honors for Gamma Phi Beta in the annual snow sculpture contest. The portrayal tied in with the sculpture theme, "Frozen Fables."

Syracusan to Print Issue on Free Love

Valentine's day comes but once a year and this year it brings with it the Valentine Free Love issue of the Syracusan, which goes on sale on campus this Wednesday.

First you'll find that the Syracusan has brought back a favorite feature of past years, Quiz Quotes, wherein students are selected at random to answer the question of the month. This month's question is "Do you think there is a place for free love on the Syracusan campus?" and you should see the answers.

Next comes the Kinsey report, by Ken Luchs and Sid Kalcheim, and an insane piece of erotic fiction, The Conquest, by La Fontaine.

Further in the magazine you'll find cartoons, feature articles and more fiction, plus the popular Campus Exchange, a selection of jokes from all the college magazines of the country.

COED ROOM CHANGES

Room changes in University living centers will begin at 9 a.m. today for coeds in the dean of women's office. Women students who wish to move to other living centers may apply from 9 to 12 noon and from 2 to 4 p.m.

Educational peer

A recent article in a nationally circulated magazine presents a blatant and rather egotistical picture of superiority among America's colleges.

The article, by Prof. Gilbert Highet of Columbia university, states bluntly that the Columbia student is "a unique undergraduate."

Highet adds that "Columbia is less fraternal, even less social than other Eastern colleges of its own size. Its young men devote most of their time to reading and talking and thinking energetically about subjects that will be vital all through their lives."

At this point we would like to caution the professor that he is dabbling in a bit of egomania in his disdainful opinion of other educational institutions.

He seems to imply that Columbia, and just Columbia, chooses only promising students from all over the world.

And he also interjects facts about a faculty composed of "top authorities" and "an enormous library" and, of course, the dubious glories of New York city.

Such an argument dealing purely in superlatives is not only a little too sweet but completely lacking in perspective.

This is an age of a thousand little animosities. Undoubtedly these conflicts have determined to a great degree our growth and persistance as a nation. But unnecessary discord has also made this an age of suspicion.

Of course, to anyone who is aware of Columbia's place in the educational world, the criticism here is not of it. The reputation of this institution has given it a proud name across the world.

But it hardly stands alone. No, the errors in course are due to the rather obtuse sightings of Prof. Highet. He has chosen to set his school up on a pedestal for adoration from the masses who have not trodden its halls of two centuries.

The person who insists on verbally proving that "he is the best," is usually the most insecure of the group. This is not true of Columbia. And neither are all other colleges and universities mere gatehouses on the path of learning.

Antagonism on such an inconsequential argument is out of line with the aims of education. One would gather from the professor's article that Columbia produced good students for its own glorification. Institutions exist for individuals, not the other way around.

Obviously Prof. Highet was writing his article to help commemorate Columbia's bicentennial. However, we are forced to ignore his entire premise.

We salute Columbia as a peer in the realm where mankind seeks to know its place in the world.

CINEMA CLOSEUPS

ALL GOD'S CHILDREN GOT CODES

By CHARLES SAMUELS

Daily Orange Movie Critic

Background, Foreground, Battleground

(This article is the first in a series of two articles on censorship of films)

Recently Samuel Goldwyn delivered a diatribe on movie censorship. It might be well to examine the disputed procedure.

Movies may be opposed at three points on their tour to the theater. First, there is the industry's Breen Code. This code, drawn up in 1930 and never revised, is a vague list of inhibitions and prohibitions. As administered by the Johnston office, it has thwarted the desires and visions of more than one motion picture artist. All movies must be submitted to the office for approval and many come out considerably tamer than when they went in.

If a film is fortunate, or rather pure enough, to get a Johnston Office seal, it may find itself unlicensed by one of the many state censors. Variety estimated that the motion picture industry spends $1,500,000 annually on pre-exhibition showings for these boards. Needless to say, the exhibitors do not relish this procedure.

Even if a film gets booked into a theatre it may still meet opposition from the police or any one of a variety of pressure groups.

Of late, there have been many highly publicized examples of the censors at work. Most notable were the cases of La Ronde and M. La Ronde, a French film, based on Arthur Scnitzler's famous play wherein the characters exchange bed-partners with dazzling speed and consistency, was banned by the N. Y. State Board of Regents for being "immoral." M, a remake of the great German film study of a psychopathic killer, received similar treatment in Ohio. In this case, the charge was that it "tended to incite crime."

La Ronde was a frankly and impudently sexual study and the killer in M was a sex maniac. In these cases, at least, one can see reasons, however invalid, for the bans. But, the Johnston Office's refusal to grant its seal to The Moon Is Blue was so irrational as to be absolutely comic. This innocuous little gabfest, where the characters behave as if they had just discovered that boys were different from girls, had its heroine talk of "affection without passion" at such length and with such sickening coyness, that it was conceivable that people's taste for sex would be completely destroyed as a result. But, the words "virgin" and "seduce" were mentioned and that was enough for the Johnston Office.

And if that little incident were not sufficiently absurd the Office forced the producers to delete the words "hell" and "damn" from the dialogue of Cease Fire. A grim drama of GI's in Korea was revamped to have the men speak like English prep-chool students. It was persumed that a soldier uttering the word "damn" would irreparably corrupt all of the members of the audience.

When the censors are not busy censoring they're busy disagreeing. While The Moon Is Blue did not receive a Johnston Office seal it received a license from the Board of Regents. M got the opposite treatment.

The bans on both M and La Ronde were finally declared unconstitutional, by the Supreme Court, which made known its lack of agreement with pre-exhibition censorship.

Pre-exhibition censorship is not only unconstitutional it is flagrantly undemocratic and opposed to the values implicit in the American system. A self-styled board of judges who determines what is safe and unsafe for public consumption, is hardly compatible with democratic philosophy. Were this dangerous state power misused, films of questionable policy and philosophy could be suppressed just as easily as film of questionable morality. Freedom of thought is having a tough enough time of it without adding more obstacles.

IN THE HALLWAY

'Syracuse University Ia'

By ED HARDY

One of the student "pets" that may come up this semester is the proposal for an orientation course for freshmen to be taken during their first term at Syracuse.

Growing out of the present student government training programs, the idea is that every citizen can be a better citizen if he knows more about the community in which he lives. A student should gain an appreciation of the university he is attending—he should know something about it more than just HL is the oldest building on campus. And the student should know who to see about what, how the administration operates, how students have a voice with the faculty, what organizations are at Syracuse and many other similar things.

The best way to do this? By a compulsory orientation program, government leaders say. Admittedly, the present Orientation week for freshmen in the fall is lacking. Speeches of welcome by deans, tours and get-acquainted parties, although important, leave much to be desired.

The good orientation program is one that starts the student thinking about what he wants to get out of college.

As proposed, the course would run one hour a week for one semester. Administration and student speakers would be featured along with films, lectures and discussions. And, like other courses, there probably would be regular examinations.

Many schools have already instituted such programs. Included are discussions and speeches on the history of the educational community, an understanding of the University and its purpose and the role of the student in higher education. There is more time devoted to the group and individual curriculum and a closer study of the extra-curricular activities of the college. By the end of the course the student is thoroughly familiar with the community in which he will spend three and one-half or more additional years.

Such an extended program would have great value here, but its success naturally would depend upon the attitude of its participants—students and teachers alike. Only a carefully worked out plan would gain the favor of freshmen and actually benefit them.

BACK TO THE SALT MINES

Contra 'One Name' Clause

By ROGER J. HERZ

The morning paper a few days ago stated it as news:

"After only 10 minutes of discussion, women's student government assembly approved the political parties act . . ."

Generally there has been no sharp disagreement with the act except over the clause which states that a candidate's name may appear on the ballot but once.

We wish to logically examine several arguments for the clause:

1. Last year there was a certain political association on the Syracuse campus referred to as Non-Partisan League. To the best of our knowledge, it is not now existent.

The proponents of this clause look back to NPL and state that such was a group of "very few students" who were able to promise voting strength and thus influence nominations.

NPL was a poor party, and the election totals showed that the electorate realized it.

2. We hold that this clause is undemocratic, there being no basis for it in our legal tradition. It is primarily a technique to limit the choice of the citizens in a free election.

We believe that the aforementioned clause is unconstitutional and inconsistent with the preamble of the Constitution of men's student government:

"We, the undergraduate men students of Syracuse university, hereby ordain and establish a representative form of government and dedicate it to the ideals of Syracuse university and to the principles of the democratic form of government under which we live as young American citizens . . ."

3. Finally, we note that fraternities and sororities are grouped in solid blocks of 40 whereas independents have no existing political bonds. The power of individual political chairmen in the Greek houses is analogous to "very few students."

This columnist therefore is opposed to such a clause because of the belief that it is a measure with no purpose in mind but to hamper independent political power at Syracuse.

Curious

A 19-year-old University of Massachusetts ROTC student who is majoring in animal husbandry was caught setting off two homemade bombs in a gravel pit. Fined $40 on charges of illegally manufacturing and handling explosives, he told the court he was curious about explosives.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Youth's Answer?

(Excerpts from Sermon preached by Dean Noble, Feb. 14, 1954 in Hendricks Chapel.)

Grim is the word for our civilization, if one views it from the perspective of the pessimists. An insatiable desire for things and an overweening greed appear to be throttling the best in people. Atomic power has been let loose without a corresponding moral power to control it. Security and retrenchment have stultified the pioneering spirit of man. In our fear lest we loose our freedom, we are smothering freedom with dictatorial tactics. Our American tradition seems to be going down the western slope; is not McCarthyism a symptom of political senility? Psychological distress has filled sixty per cent of all the hospital beds in America with emotionally maladjusted people.

One suddenly thinks of that familiar quatrain from Emerson:

"So night is grandeur to our dust,
So near is God to man,
When Duty whispers low, thou must,
The youth replies, I can."

Is that true? Does youth have what it takes?

Just what will it take to offset the discouraging conditions which one properly holds up for consideration? For one thing, confidence. One must have faith in the potentialities for good in the future or he might as well fold up now. Young people everywhere almost instinctively possess this kind of confidence, to begin with, in themselves. Call it sheer physical exuberance, it is there and cannot be discounted.

For another thing, youth possesses a great capacity for criticism. Young people see life often with a clearer perception than their elders. Their moral discriminations are much more severe. They make fearless judgements about what is wrong and right around them. Youth is capable of moral indignation which cuts through the shades of gray so apparent to adults and gets at the heart of matters.

Courage is a third asset of youth. Everywhere young people respond to danger with a sense of expendability which their elders are too cautious to exercise. Human need evokes a generous response among young people everywhere.

CAMPUS CHEST

THE STUDENT EMERGENCY LOAN FUND

(First article of a series)

Syracuse is commonly called a "friendly campus" and with the approach of the annual Campus Chest drive, Syracusans will be able to prove the accuracy of the title. Proceeds from the drive are distributed to eight organizations, one personally benefiting your fellow students and friends.

Financial problems seem to occur at the most inopportune moments for college students, causing at times seemingly unconquerable obstacles. Syracuse students do have a means to solve their problems though by turning to the Student Emergency Loan Fund.

Administered by the International Student committee, a non-sectarian organization supervised by Chapel, the Loan Fund is primarily for the use of foreign students on campus but is open to any needy Syracusan. Loans up to $100 may be be obtained for a period of 30 days without interest.

For the foreign student, the Loan Fund is the only source of finance available. Frequently, it is essential to aid in buying necessities and tiding over temporary financial emergencies until money can be sent from overseas.

Many foreign students, coming to this country with little knowledge of our customs and needs, find emergencies arising which necessitate extra purchases. Only by turning to the Loan Fund are they able to solve the problems.

Therefore, Campus Chest not only proves helpful to people throughout the world but it also provides help for our local friends, by acting as the only contributor to the Student Emergency Loan Fund.

It was early morning. An open book gaped at the ceiling of a fraternity penthouse. A sandy head, propped by a sweatered arm, gazed sleepily out the window as the warblings of a battered radio reached half-open ears.

Suddenly a pleasant voice boomed from the set, "That was 'The Creep' and now, from your requests, the top tune of the week . . ."

The retired gentleman jumped to reality. "Hey, Mike . . . Mike . . . wake up . . . I know that guy on the radio there. Why, he's in my cit class. Why he . . . Mike . . . Mike!"

Although this little scene may be slightly exaggerated, it is not an uncommon occurrance about this campus for students to discover that one of their classmates, lab partners or coffee acquaintances is the man behind the voice, behind the microphone of Syracuse radio and television.

It is no secret that Syracuse is somewhat of a center for the radio-TV industry, boasting five commercial radio stations and two television outlets. This fact affords a bright opportunity for students of the industry to obtain valuable "on-the-job" experience while, at the same time, grinding out an education.

In the case of Syracuse university, these young men turn in an average 40-hour week before the mikes and cameras and somehow sport a healthy scholastic average.

Hill senior Arnie D'Angelo can be found most weekday evenings in the small area surrounding the WAGE news ticker, record library, sports desk and studio mike.

The romance language major has been at WAGE over three years now in which time he has peeked into every phase of broadcasting including work as "color" announcer for the Arena Boxing Club's bouts in the War Memorial ring. Crew Team Preps for Spring Campaign

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The first races for the Syracuse crew squads are over two months away, and Onondaga lake, scene of the Orange rowing event, is covered by a thick sheet of ice. Nevertheless, the Hill oarsmen and crew coaches are hard at work preparing for the coming campaign, which promises to be a big one for all concerned with crew on the Piety campus.

Coaches Gus Eriksen and Vic Michalson report that this year marks the largest turnout for candidates for the varsity crew since they came to Syracuse, in 1950.

ALL VARSITY sweepswingers from the 1953 team are back, with two exceptions. In addition, all men on last year's JV squad, with only one exception, are back and are contending for seats in the varsity shell.

Moreover, the stern five from last season's frosh crew is back, along with seven other members of the '53 yearling team. This stern five is considered outstanding in both size and performance by Coach Michalson, the frosh mentor.

But the story does not stop even here. Juniors Neil Gutchess and Bob Bennett, members of the frosh crew of 1952, are back and will also be fighting for positions in the varsity shell.

Gutchess and Bennett rowed in the five and six positions respectively, in the yearling crew of two years ago, and their addition to the varsity squad should serve to serengthen both sides of the boat.

OF COURSE no statement concerning the lineup for the varsity can be made at this time, but there are outstanding contenders for some of the key positions.

The battle for stroke position seems to be among three men. Ron Love and Gerry Glaser, both strokes in last year's shell will again fight it out for the post but will probably get stern competition from Ray Rogers, stroke of the frosh crew of a year ago.

At number four position, Bob Curran appears the leading candidate. Captain of the team and varsity performer last year, Curran is a star on the Orange swimming team and will not be able to start practice until after the end of the swimming schedule.

At coxwin, Jack Cooper is probably the outstanding contender. Cooper was the stroke-caller on the junior varsity team of '53.

PRACTICE SESSIONS are now under way, with the first full-scale varsity turnout held one week ago. The intensity of the practices will generally increase, with the coaching staff expecting to be able to use the lake for practice between the middle of March and the first of April.

The first race is scheduled for April 24. The varsity and JV crews will journey to Annapolis on this date, for a dual meet with Navy. The Midshipmen, victors in the Intercollegiate Regatta last year, will undoubtedly offer rugged competition for the Hill shells in their first outing.

The next event on the crew slate comes one week later. On May 1, Navy, Cornell, Wisconsin and Boston university invade Onondaga lake fo a big five school meet.

The Carnegie cup aces at Cornell on May 8 will pit the Orange crews against Yale, Princeton and the big Red. On May 15, the Hill crews travel to Washington for the annual Eastern Sprint Regatta.

The sprints will be the final races of the year until the Intercollegiate Regatta. Held at Syracuse on June 19, the IRA event is the "world series" of crew racing and this year will be the third consecutive time that the Orange crews are the hosts for the regatta.

Coleman Reports To Bronx Bombers

Former Hill Student Among 17 Hurlers

By JOAN [illegible]TOR

Walter G. (Rip) Coleman, former Syracuse student, reported Feb. 2 at Lang field and is among 17 hurlers working out in the St. Petersburg training headquarters for the World Champion New York Yankees under Skipper Stengel and several Yankee coaches.

Rip, enrolled last semester in the Liberal Arts-Journalism course is regarded as having a very good chance of pitching for the New Yorkers in the '54 campaign. Breaking into organized ball with Binghamton in 1952, Coleman posted an impressive 2.69 e.r.a winning 11 losing 8. He was the Eastern League's strikeout king, fanning 147 opposing batters.

Last season with Kansas City, Coleman turned in a 9-8 record after a very slow start. Despite wildness, he developed into a mainstay on Manager Craft's mound staff in the pennant stretch.

In the American Association playoffs, Rip received credit for the Blues' opening victory 5-2, over Toledo Mud Hens. Against Montreal in the Little World Series, the going was somewhat rougher as Rip lost the second game to the Canadiens' Hamp Coleman 6-2.

A native of Troy, Coleman entered Syracuse university after the close of the Little World Series and had previously attended Wake Forest university.

Syracuse Gymnast Leaves for Home To Have Operation

Tumbler Bill Lee With Broken Bone Says Au Revoir

By BOB GROGAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Bill Lee was in the Varsity yesterday, saying goodbye to all his friends and this was quite a lengthy undertaking because the personable Orange gymnast has quite a few friends.

Lee broke a bone in his right hand late last semester and has been rendered hors d'combat not only from tumbling—his specialty—but from his studies as well. As Bill remarked "I can just picture myself taking an oral exam in a math course."

COACH PAUL ROMEO will probably miss Lee more than anyone else on the Hill. While Corky Sebbo has won every tumbling match that the Piety gymnasts have competed in, the Orange have lost valuable points because of their lack of depth in this event.

Bill left for his home in Jersey City to have an operation performed to correct the break. He has been up here for the past week winding up his affairs and adding moral support to his teammates in their meets against Penn State and Temple.

Over a glass of 7-Up at the Orange, Lee remarked that he might have been able to take a second against Penn State even with the cast on his hand. The glassy look in his eyes faded as he said this which led the rest of us to believe that he was not kidding.

If all goes well, that is if the arm is slow enough in mending after the operation to keep him out of the clutches of his Uncle Samuel, Lee expects to make up a few credits during the summer sessions. Then he plans to continue his quest for a degree in Physical Education as a junior next fall.

If anything is certain in this world, it's death, taxes, and Bill Lee's eventual return to the Hill. You see, he likes the people at Syracuse university as much as they like him!

SIGNED GRIDDERS

Several of Syracuse footballers have been negotiating with the pro teams since the football draft. First to sign was quarterback Pat Stark, who inked his contract with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Capt. Bob Leberman has signed with the Colts, while all-Americans Ted Kukowski and Bob Fleck are rumored to be inspecting the prospects of Canadian football.

Nationally-rated Cornell Fencers Whip Determined Orange Squad

By BOB TATA and EV MURCH

The Orange swordsmen resume practice for their next triangular meet this Saturday, after dropping Friday night's encounter with Cornell, 19-8.

With Capt. John Goldstein and George Wooding copping two bouts apiece in the epee, the Hill fencers gave the strong Big Red squad a hard battle before bowing. Fighting hard for each point the Pietymen barely missed winning a number of additional bouts by one or two points.

The team, showing their best efforts in the epee, thanks to Goldstein and Wooding, were defeated in that division by a single bout. Goldstein did his usual fine job, but faltered in his first match and was nosed out by Cornell's Pew.

Wooding, however, making his initial start in the epee, was a pleasant surprise to Coach Dr. Burtt, who has been looking for another man to support Goldstein in that weapon.

Although the bladesmen were overcome in the sabre and foiled by identical 7-2 scores, some of the boys outdid themselves and gave their topflight opposition a few surprises.

IN THE still of the night—high above a sleeping American city—an unidentified aircraft is spotted. In a matter of seconds a lightning-like jet interceptor takes to the air. Unerringly, with an Aircraft Observer showing the way, the Air Force F-94 Night Fighter speeds to intercept the stranger. The Aircraft Observer is the man behind the pilot—the officer who keeps America's planes flying on course and on target. Without him the Air Force couldn't do its job.

What is the Aircraft Observer?

He's a Radar Officer . . . employing an all seeing eye that penetrates where human sight fails.

He's an Aircraft Performance Engineer Officer . . . knowing everything there is to know about his plane . . . keeping it fit for the skies and ready for action.

He's a Navigation Officer . . . plotting his plane's course . . . with an entire crew depending on him for a safe flight.

He's a Bombardment Officer . . . in full control of the plane over the target area . . . the Air Force Officer who "lowers the boom" on the enemy.

What the Aircraft Observer gets

He earns over $5,000 a year. His silver Aircraft Observer wings give him prestige and distinction, and he wears the bars of an Air Force Lieutenant. They mark him as the eyes, ears, and brains of America's Number One flying team.

What it takes to be an Aircraft Observer

The Aircraft Observer must be sound of limb, keen of mind, and above all, must have the determination to be the best.

To qualify as an Aircraft Observer you must be single, between 19 and 26½ years old, and a high school graduate. However, it will be better for you and the Air Force if you stay in college and graduate before you apply. Then you, too, can be one of the best . . . as an Aircraft Observer.

Some Relief in Sight—Temporary Gravel Due Soon

UNIVERSITY OFFICIALS GAVE promise of slight relief in the "battle of the mud" when it was announced yesterday that gravel would be placed in front of the Drama building by Thursday in preparation for the opening of the new Boar's Head production. Whether this will be only a temporary measure for the show or one which will be repeated whenever students find themselves "at sea" about the situation (note the above pictures) will be decided at a meeting today of various Administration officers and representatives of the companies engaged in the construction of the Engineering buildings. A permanent road will be built in that location in spring when the heavy excavation work is completed. Until that time, however, the present condition of the ground would be expected to remain the same, especially during spring deluge time, unless the University takes either single or joint action with the companies to keep the roadway passable by the pedestrian student. Various means of maintaining a thoroughfare have been suggested: from planks to a "student bridge." Meanwhile, the student is forced to travel from Smith to Lyman by way of University pl. and College pl. unless he is willing to chance the loss of shoes or is unmindful of the ooze. Staff Photo by Lee Jones

Watson, Marion Openings to Allow Skytop Closing

Semi-formal Highlights Winter Weekend '54

With the cooperation of the weatherman, Syracuse's 1954 Winter Carnival weekend was a complete success, according to co-chairmen Janet Caro and Peter Rose. Overflow crowds were reported at all the events of the weekend. Highlight was Saturday night's Snoball dance which attracted approximately 650 couples.

Snow sculpture judging began the weekend Friday and awards were given to Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, Gamma Phi Beta sorority, Mott cottage, independent women's living center and Men's Co-op, indepndent men's living center for their entries.

Six skiers with torchlights sped down the Drumlins hill Friday night to officially open the "Alpine Holiday" weekend and immediately after, Marlene Seme was crowned as the weekend's empress. Members of her court also honored were Nancy Garfield, Toni McClelland, Kay Senderowitz and Betty Ann Warner.

"White Boots and Blades" ice pageant took the ice immediately after the crowning and entertained the audience with a 45 minute show. Featured stars were Phyllis Krinovitz, Shirley Christie and Jack McLaughlin.

Six hundred couples next pushed their way into Drumlins for the informal Stockingfoot Dance to dance to Dick Kowell's music. Highlight of the entertainment was community singing lead by Dean Noble.

SATURDAY FOUND skiing taking the spotlight with Syracuse's representatives winning the slalom and taking second in the cross-country.

Claude Thornhill's orchestra played for the overflow throng at the Women's building for the Sno-ball on Saturday night. "Back In '54" intermission entertainment had to be presented twice to accommodate the crowd.

Syracusan Arthur Roscoe won the Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial trophy as the highlight of Sunday's ski jumping at the Ski lodge before an estimated 1200 viewers. Syracuse also added another team victory taking the Western Division jumping championship.

The Winter Carnival had a national aspect this year with a picture of Miss Seme being displayed in newspapers throughout the country. The photograph was sent out over the AP wire.

Informal Rushing Scheduled by IFC

Rushing continues tonight for the second of this semester's fraternity informal open houses.

The final open house will be held Thursday, lasting from 7:30-10 p.m., as does today's session.

Rushees are expected to file their preference cards Friday afternoon in the Trophy room of the Men's gym. Greek houses should turn in their bids at 5 p.m. Friday, also at the Trophy room.

The rushing schedule will end Monday, Feb. 22, when rushees should pick up their bids in the afternoon at the Trophy room and report to the indicated fraternity house.

WSG Council Votes 'Minutes'

Stockingfoot Lateness Penalty Removed

Standards council of women's student government voted unanimously yesterday to excuse all late minutes incurred by coeds returning from Friday night's Stockingfoot dance at Drumlins.

The council members believed that lateness was due to no fault on the part of Stockingfooters. However, coeds who attended the dance and were late are asked to turn in the late minutes with written explanations so that Standards council can estimate the number of persons affected.

IN A STATEMENT to The Daily Orange, chairman Elizabeth Brydon said, "Since many girls seriously endangered their health and safety in an attempt to return on time, WSG would like to stress again the importance of using good sense in the interpretation of rules and regulations. WSG places the health and safety of a coed above all else. It is hoped that all Syracuse students will use good judgment should a similar situation occur."

Miss Brydon stated that some coeds who were able to call their living centers relieved a great deal of worry by informing head residents of the Drumlins situation.

She added that some men students are to be commended for not taking unnecessary risks in attempting to get their dates home on time. Men, in addition to women students, should know that WSG takes all such emergencies into consideration when discussing penalties.

Architect Rotunno Will Address TTK

University architect Noredo Rotunno will tell Through the Keyhole coeds about future plans for development at 4:15 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium.

Dr. Rutonno will illustrate his talk with charts of the University instead of the scale model generally used. This is because of the difficulty in transporting the model in poor weather.

Included in Rotunno's address will be a brief history of building and architecture on the Syracuse campus.

All those enrolled in TTK classes are required to attend the lecture, which will replace classes for the week. Other interested students are invited to attend.

Minister Will Talk On Community Role To Powers Meeting

Rev. William McConaghy will speak on "The Minister and His Community" to the Powers club at 7:30 p.m. today in the City Women's lounge.

The lecture will stress the role of the minister in politics and labor relations as well as the amount of time and energy he should put into activities such as the Red Cross, Community Chest and similar welfare agencies.

POWERS CLUB was founded in 1948 as an active committee of the Chapel board and named in memory of Dr. William H. Powers, late dean of Hendrick's chapel.

The group is open to members of all faiths and provides a program that will meet the needs of students preparing for full time religious vocations. It provides fellowship and education for the purpose of acquainting members with the responsibilities and opportunities in religious fields.

The club is organized into religious educational and ministerial groups. These meet together to discuss problems of a nature universal to religious vocations and then separate at the next meeting to discuss problems unique to their vocations.

Previous programs included a lecture on "What is a Christian Vocation" and a panel of professors from four major departments in Liberal arts.

Dr. H. Neil Richardson of the Bible department is advisor to the group.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

Concert Forum Will Follow Krasner Music Presentation

The second in a series of concert forums will follow a performance of the Krasner chamber music ensemble at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the May Memorial church auditorium.

Central New York composers whose selections will be played include Harold Cook, David M. Johnson, Joseph J. McGrath, Robert Palmer, Morris Mamorsky, Arthur Frackenpohl and Franklin Morris.

PROF. LOUIS KRASNER will conduct the program, to be introduced by Dr. Alexander Capurso, director of the School of Music.

Dr. William P. Hotchkiss, chairman of the history department, will moderate the forum, in which the composers will participate. Also on the panel will be Ernest Bacon, composer-in-residence at Syracuse university.

Members of the ensemble will include Krasner and Adrienne Galimer Krasner, violins; Claude Bortel, viola; Alfred Ozolins, 'cello; Wilfred Burkle, oboe; Franklin Morris, harsichord; Arthur Frackenpohl, piano; and Stanley Roelofs, tenor.

The program is under the sponsorship of the Syracuse Friends of Chamber Music.

Chapel Training Program to Begin

Chapel Board training program will hold its first session of the semester at 4:15 p.m., today in the Chapel lounge.

Rev. Arnold Nakajima, Presbyterian chaplain, will speak on "Philosophy of Hendrick's Chapel." William Kagler, chairman of the program, will outline the program schedule during the next eight weeks.

Last semester, 62 people participated and many are now in Chapel activities. The purpose of the program is to acquaint participants with the entire program of Chapel.

Greek Entertainers Group Meets Today

IFC, Pan-hel to Give Shows for Hospitalized

All those who signed up for entertainment in the Interfraternity Council-Panhellenic parties must attend a rehearsal at 4:30 p.m. today in 207 HL.

Anyone who has not signed up but is interested in participating in the entertainment should also report to the rehearsal, which is under the direction of Peter Turner and Nancy Bishop.

Between 800 and 1,000 people will be entertained at these parties to be presented Saturday, Feb. 20, at 27 Syracuse hospitals and nursing homes.

All Greek houses that have not yet returned forms listing volunteers are requested to turn them in immediately to Shirley Samek, Alpha Chi Omega, or Howard Osofsky, Sigma Alpha Mu.

Anyone able to provide means of transportation to the parties is requested to contact Frederick Fischer, 76-0544, or JoAnn Wallace, Alpha Omicron Pi.

STD Will Sponsor Bridge Tournament

Sigma Tau Delta sorority will sponsor its second annual Panhellenic bridge tournament beginning Saturday. Each sorority is requested to send 2 representatives to the initial contests at the STD house, 760 Comstock ave.

The winners of three rubbers will return to the following Saturday for the semi-finals, and the finals will be played at the convenience of the semi-finals victors.

The winning sorority will receive a trophy, which was won last year by Phi Sigma Sigma.

It was erroneously reported in yesterday's Daily Orange that Sigma Delta Tau sorority was sponsoring the tounament.

LIVING QUARTERS of the past will be these all-too-familiar dwellings; the housing facilities at Skytop will be closed with the opening of Marion and Watson halls on campus. To frosh males of the future, a hearty welcome to the main drag.

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Skytop dormitories will be closed next year. Only the rise of an unforeseen factor, such as a sharp rise in enrollment, will cause its use.

Jack C. Buckle, director of men's counseling and residence, told The Daily Orange yesterday that the prefabricated living quarters will be held in readiness in anticipation of increased enrollment in the next few years.

MAJOR REASON for the back-to-campus movement will be the opening next Fall of the Watson and Marion dormitories, which together will house 665 men.

Watson, the freshman dorm, will provide space for a total of 517 men: 499 freshmen, nine resident advisors and nine proctors. It is under construction at present in the block bounded by University pl., Comstock, Waverly and Walnut aves. Room and board will be $762 per year.

Two dollars will be set aside from the room rental as a Residence Fund, which will provide funds for dormitory participation in all-University activities, such as the Colgate Weekend poster contest, Winter Weekend snow sculpture, and Spring Weekend float parade.

From this account will also be provided funds for the replacement and repair of recreation equipment, and for charges for damages occuring in the building for which students do not accept individual responsibility.

THE FUND will be administered by the Watson Dormitory governing council, designed "to provide experience for students in democratic organization for group living." The organization is designed to be flexible so that student residents will be able to use the techniques their particular group needs.

The dormitory is built of reinforced concrete and will be completely fireproof. The two parallel residence wings are connected along Waverly ave. by the lounge and dining room. Each wing is four stories in height.

All rooms in the building are designed for double occupancy. Four different color schemes are used in the room decoration, although all rooms are furnished alike.

In each room will be individual study desks with book shelves, desk chairs and lamps, two single beds with innerspring mattresses, designed by Prof. Ralph R. Laidlaw of the College of Fine Arts, individual bureaus and drapes on the windows.

A DOUBLE closet, 6 feet by 2 feet, is built in. All furniture will be movable. An inexpensive fire-

Campus Chest Will Stage Elections for King, Queen

Syracusans will go to the polls for a new kind of election Feb. 22-25 when they vote in the Orange Feather king and queen contest, sponsored by Campus Chest. Winners of the election will reign as symbols of the Campus Chest drive and will receive numerous prizes from merchants.

Voting for the royal pair will be held at various buildings throughout campus with a 10 cent fee charged for each vote. Proceeds will go to the Campus Chest drive, according to co-chairmen Jon Bjornson and Phillip Stern.

ALL FRATERNITIES, sororities and living centers are urged by the co-chairmen to enter a candidate although no more than one candidate may be entered from each house. Applications must be submitted to Bjornson, Kappa Sigma, or Stern, 805 Walnut ave., by Thursday, Feb. 15.

Candidates and their living centers can conduct any sort of pre-election campaign including posters, advertising and personal appearances.

The king and queen will each receive a turkey dinner at the Varsity restaurant, eight pounds of double-washed, fluff dried laundry from Maxwells, a free copy of the Syracusan, two tickets for Boar's Head's production of Lysistrata, two dinners at Lorenzo's and a carton of Chesterfield cigarettes from the campus representative.

Other prizes for the queen will include a floral crown from J. Allen Deal florists, a sweater from The Town Shop, a copy of Gola by Jacques Lassaigne from Levine's Art Shop and a haircut, wave and shampoo from J. Henri's beauty salon.

SHE WILL ALSO receive a pair of Anson's women's cuff links from the Hill Smoke Shop, $3 free cleaning from Spence Cleaners and an album of "Syracuse Sings" from Olmsteds.

Prizes for the king include a pair of argyle socks from Lunds, a case of coca-cola from Jerry's Super Market, a copy of Mitch Miller's long-playing records from the Clark Music co., a can of pipe tobacco from Jacob's tobacconist, a $5 merchandise certificate from the Varsity Camera Shop, two tickets to the RKO Keith's theatre and a boutennaire from J. Allen Deal Florists.

Another Campus Chest promotional scheme will be the inaugural pep rally Feb. 20. Highlight of the rally will be the auctioning of top campus personalities, student and administrative to act as waiters at living centers Monday night, Feb. 22.

ID Applications Due This Week

New freshmen and transfer students who have not secured ID cards may do so by reporting to Allen Photos, 721 E. Fayette st. on Friday, Feb. 19 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Students must bring tuition receipts. This will be the last opportunity for obtaining ID cards.

Organizations Must Register by Friday

Registration deadline for organizations under the recently-passed government act has been extended to Friday of this week for the benefit of those organizations which have not yet submitted required information.

Presidents and chairmen of campus groups may register at the women's student government or men's student government offices, with Gerald Gerber at Tau Delta Phi or with Lois Clark at Alpha Phi. Blanks can also be obtained at these locations.

Miss Clark, chairman of the WSG organizations panel which introduced the bill in December, told The Daily Orange Sunday that about 40 per cent of campus organizations had registered at that date.

DO Staffers Must Hand in Schedules

Flip Sirota, Ivan Stanton, Grace Sofleiss, Ruth Barme, Helene Bloom, Helen Bowka, Elaine Chesin, Eileen Costello, Lenore Engel, Yohma Grey, Marilyn Head, Vivian Judge, Carol Gottter, Myrna Litchman, Mary Ellen Piper, Carol Royce, Joan Russell, Maxine Siller, Judy Swiller and Maxine Wenters.

Moses Predicts Expansion

By ROS BROWNSTEIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Americans can expect government to expand and enlarge its scope because of growing community ambitions and standards, predicted Robert Moses, well-nown New York city commissioner of parks, yesterday at the citizenship lecture.

"We may as well make up our minds to have interest in government because there is going to be more of it," said New York city's chief planner. Government will be very influential in our generation because citizens want more prosperity and want more services, said Commissioner Moses. As a consequence of these current attitudes, more money will be spent by governments on local levels.

THE COMMISSIONER pointed out that there is a distinction between government in the political aspect and government in the administrative aspect. On the municipal level, the smaller the community, the better will be the administration and the less partisanship there will be.

In discussing the quality of management in local units, Moses said, "We will not get near expert management in larger municipalities, because it just isn't in the cards." The commissioner also admitted that politics in government is inevitable on some levels.

"One of the things that has gone against civil service is that there are too many people who will not stick their necks out. They refuse to take a chance," commented Moses. He said that it is unfortunate, but fewer promising people are rising to the civil service on the municipal level. "There is less and less leadership and ability in this area of government," said the commissioner.

Even in private civic organizations leadership has lost quite a bit of its vitality and vigor, according to Moses. Leaders in these units do not have enough drive and are not capable enough in many instances, said Commissioner Moses. "I'd get rid of them," was his suggestion.

"ONE INTELLIGENT, humorous editor can do more than six editors for a community," said Moses, in explaining what part the press plays in local government. However, "those editors can't be cut out by a cookie cutter," stressed Moses. "The trouble with journalism today is that it lives on sensation and controversy, especially the metropolitan papers."

Comparing life in government and in politics to a game, Commissioner Moses suggested, that the "rules of the game ought to be changed, and there should be more honest play in the game."

Commissioner Moses expressed the optimistic view that political machines in local governments have become more responsible and party leadership is improving.

According to the New York public official, "government will probably not expand into education and socialized medicine."

Although men have slogged through the mud for centuries, we've had enough of the stuff ... (glub)

Mud in your eye?

The "spring" thaw that has blessed us for a few days has obviously brought with it a gripping problem . . . gripping to the soul . . . ah, sole, that is.

But the simple play on words is nothing compared to the havoc played on footwear and even the more aimiable of us are beginning to lose our sense of humor.

But who or what is receiving the disgruntled outbursts about the goo?

The mud is the result of a lack of foresight and some freakish weather. What with construction in many stages on this campus, the turf has been pounded to paste.

Some remedy has now been proposed in the form of gravel for the front of the Drama building. This will provide footing for a few days. But unless tended to, the stones will vanish with the sod.

With the realization that all this costs money, we are in no position to demand fancy sidewalks. But the student body has the right to get to class without having the choice to slog a usual path or take the run around Robin Hood's barn, so to speak.

But those who shuttle between Smith and Lyman are not the only ones confronted with a touch of Syracuse swamp.

The edges of the quad have been infringed with mud; the street through campus is deadliest right where students must cross. Maxwell is moated in spots with water that cannot sink into a supersaturated soil.

One remedy here is to clean the sidewalks of the mud and ashes that remain from our recent siege with winter.

Two days have passed for the marshaling of forces. Now we ask action to give the students a chance to enjoy this smattering of spring without a spattering of mud.

Curfew vs. comfort

Never was there such a confused swarm of students as those that were caught in the checking line (we use the latter word loosely) at Drumlins Friday eve.

There were some young "stockingfooters" who waited over an hour for their coats and footwear. And some needlessly rushed home sans their apparel so that the coeds would be home in time for the 12:30 curfew.

For this purpose The Daily Orange conacted Drumlins officials who promised to alleviate the problem completely next year. This will be accomplished by cancelling public skating that evening, giving the dance committee one more window for checking.

Women's student government has eliminated all "minutes" for those who were detained at the Friday dance. This move was expected since the coeds comprising the standards council do not expect superhuman effort by any coed in arriving home at the appointed time.

It was unnecessary for coeds to rush into below zero weather without coats and shoes in order to make curfew. Extenuating circumstances such as these have always been taken into consideration by WSG in the past and the minutes cancelled.

The permission hours are made to benefit the coed's health, not contribute to its possible ruination.

And while on the subject of the Stockingfoot dance, contrary to certain rumors, there were no extra tickets printed for the affair by any outside group. This is attested to by University officials who kept close watch over such matters.

However, since the tickets are at such a premium, we suggest that in the future, a maximum (of perhaps five) be set on the number each student can purchase. This would give everyone a better chance at garnering the precious ducats.

A Study in the Swamp

By HOWARD VanKIRK

What is this swamp that used to be our fair campus?

After being mightily begrimed and deluged while passing before Machinery Hall yesterday, the determination was there to conduct a survey. So armed with a standard hardwood 18 inch ruler we set out.

Fording the river that flows east down the walk on the north side of the Women's building, we proceeded down the path by the tennis courts and ran hub deep into three and one-half inches of very thick mud.

Turning to the left, we started along the path behind Sims, and again . . . mud, this time only one inch deep, but of a considerably lessened density, allowing it to swirl freely about and over the shoes.

Continuing on to the top of Mt. Olympus, we discovered that the parking lot was fairly dry, but in spots the depth of the ooze measured two inches, and the road down was inundated beneath a running blanket one and one-half inches deep.

On the way down we noticed several foresters floundering about behind Bowne hall on the way to classes. The slime was one and one-half inches thick there. Between Bowne and the library lay a muddy pond one-half inch deep. An inch deep raging torrent ran over the road and sidewalks between the library and the men's gym.

On the walk between Steele hall and Maxwell we sloshed our way, with some difficulty, through one and one-half inches of very determined mud. We didn't recover our shoe without a struggle.

Taking life in hand, we plodded on to the scene of the great deluge, the area in front of Machinery hall, the scene of much ditch digging and more mud. This area, being one of the lowest points on campus, receives a steady stream of overflow in the wet seasons.

Down the slopes from Lyman, from Smith, from the quad and from both sides of the Hall itself, comes the mud and water of much of the campus, to collect in a grimy pool, directly across the path of most students, and to a varying depth of from one to three and one half inches. Its consistency varies from thick mud to very dirty water.

When we were covered to our ankles we decided to call it a day, report to the Hellbox and write our story. "We're through with walking through mud," we were thinking as we walked along the path to the Hellbox. It was then that we slipped and fell. On the way down, we drove the ruler into the earth, and we came up with . . . two and one-quarter inches of mud.

IN CAMPUS CHEST:

The World University Service's Goal

(Second of a series explaining the functions of Campus Chest.)

World University Service has one major goal, "Help Them to Help Themselves." Syracusans will be able to help WUS fulfill their goal by donating to the annual Campus Chest drive, which gives part of its proceeds to WUS.

Formerly known as the World Student Service Fund, WUS aims to supplement the work of destitute students who can't succeed in gaining an education alone.

Some of the aid includes food and clothing, lodgings, medical care, financial scholarship aid and books and laboratory fees for deserving students. In addition, schools needing assistance receive aid as laboratory and x-ray equipment, textbooks and Journals and office and library equipment.

WUS does not completely patronize students. Most of them hold outside jobs to aid in financing their education.

WUS works without prejudice to race, nationality, religion or economic background. It encourages and supports efforts of students, professors and others to meet the basic needs of universities throughout the world, working as a channel through which students of the world unite to help each other help themselves.

No student generation has been as seriously confronted with the necessity of global awareness as has ours. WUS provides the action which unites the universities of the world with the more adequate pursuit of truth and understanding.

Syracuse and other universities throughout the U.S. are accustomed to the utmost of educational equipment. Now through Campus Chest fortunate students can donate to WUS and aid other universities and students to have the advantages we have.

THE CODE'S LAST STAND: THE BREEN

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

The last of the codes

(This article is the last in a series of two articles on censorship of films)

Pre-exhibition censorship was given a death-dealing blow by the Supreme Court but one code remains.

The last of the line is the industry's own guardian, the Breen Code. Samuel Goldwyn, Howard Hughes and other motion picture people feel it should be done away with and it might be fruitful to examine some reasons for this view.

First and foremost, there is the consideration of freedom for the creative artist. This can not be overestimated. When the author of Cease Fire had to have his characters speak in a manner extraordinary for soldiers, and the adaptor of Jan de Hartog's charmingly innocent study of marriage, The Fourposter, had to keep the husband and wife from going to bed together; truth was violated. And truth and art are the surest companions.

It is generally accepted by serious students of the cinema that America is far behind Europe in quality. Even Japan has displayed her superiority with Rashomon and she makes less films in one year than the smallest Hollywood independent studio. One of the chief reasons for the difference in quality is the greater freedom that foreign filmmakers enjoy. Soldiers do curse and man and wife do sleep in the same bed; foreign filmmakers can show this but we cannot. And because we can not we limit the effectiveness of our films before the author sets pen to paper, we limit his imagination. A chained imagination is the worst liability to an artist.

In our films we display a naivatee about sex which is shocking. The mentioning of the words "virgin" and "seduce" caused the Johnston Office to gasp. But there exists in our film a preoccupation with lewdness and sadistic criminality that has no parallel in European film making.

In the French film Savage Triangle, the story of a prostitute and her son was told with delicacy and tact and an unoffensive and moving film resulted. In America, a cleaned up version of Rain, wherein Somerset Maugham's celebrated prostitute, Sadie Thompson, is made to resemble a good girl who is just interested in having a good time, Rita Hayworth nevertheless grimaced and gestured in a manner compatible with low-class burlesque. Marilyn Monroe, undistniguished for subtlety is our movie queen. The number of sadistic crime films turned out annually is staggering. Is virginity and marriage less pure than burlesque and criminal perversion? All should be shown with truth and honesty.

Macbeth is a murderous play but no one would seriously suggest that Shakespeare was advocating murder. If a film depicts prostitution or illegitimacy it is not necessarily championing these things. The artist must be responsible only to his own conscience.

Supreme Court Justices Douglas and Black went so far as to suggest the complete abandonment of pre-exhibition censorship. We agree with them. Pre-exhibition censorship is undemocratic and it is absurd. State censorship exhibits complete lack of confidence in the American people and the Breen Code exhibits complete lack of confidence in the American filmmakers. Are we a race of idiots, without any knowledge of morality and immorality? Must we be restrained from speaking the truth? Are we a democracy or are we not? Censorship answers all these questions affirmatively. Certainly we are as responsible as the Europeans, and if we are we can have as much artistic freedom as they have. Down with the codes!

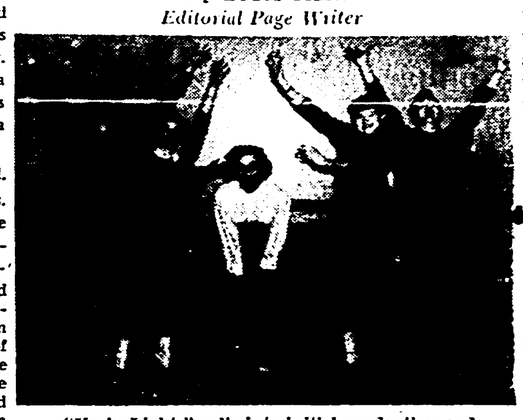
The Castle's Final Fling

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

Doomed to destruction, Yates Castle has ceased to rest peacefully on its Irving ave. foundations. In the eleventh hour of a 102-year existence, it is receiving the benefit of a final rejuvenation.

A final fling, if you will.

Briefly, the Castle rocks. It jumps. It hops with the stimulant of 60 or so singing, dancing, acting people. It's the birthplace and breeding ground for a vehicle which will blossom into reality on the stage of the Astor theater on the evening of May 6 . . . the senior class-Boar's Head production of "Up in Lights."



"Up in Lights" rolls into initial production and five cast members try a new dance routine on for size during a Yates Castle rehearsal. AL GROSS, JUDY DEICHLER, HELEN HURDIS, TERRI SIDMEN and SAM BASKIN give a vivid illustration.

The story is pretty much final at this point. The Castle will be razed beginning April 1 to make way for an extension of the State College of Medicine. The contracts have been signed, construction let and the shovels and crushing blocks stand in readiness.

Prior to the axe-falling, Colonel Yate's mansion is serving its final useful purpose. Jounalism has almost completely abandoned its former home and the theater folks have taken over. Full-scale rehersals for the forthcoming musical revue will continue in the Castle until, according to show director Jerry Leider, "midnight of March 31." In other words, the last possible moment.

The selection of Yates Castle as a rehearsal site for the cast and crew of the new $15,000 production came after endless feet of campus red-tape failed to offer a more appropriate place. When the new Women's building and several other locations were found to be inexcessable and downtown spots were ruled out, the drama department decided upon the Castle. Through the co-operation of Miss Margaret Parker, Dean Frank Piskor and Dean Wesley Clark, the ormer journalism center was acquired and "Up In Lights moved in.

The ball began to roll immediately after the mid-semester vacation and will continue on campus until early April when the company expects to travel to the Astor theater for the remaining time. This activity includes extensive rehearsal of the musical, dance and dramatic portions of the show. At this point, all these aspects are being rehearsel separately but in the final weeks of production, the revue will be run in its entirety.

The Castle is being utilized to the hilt, to the very rafters. Upstairs rooms, once offices, serve as dressing rooms for the cast and downstairs space fairly bursts with choral preparation, skit rehearsal and near frantic choregraphy once-overs. The occassional journalism labs which meet in 105 are favored with a wide assortment of "up in lights" sounds.

In one room, composer-musical director Lanny O'Kun waves excited hands over the large choral group. The old piano is missing several keys but the stouthearted thespians are not to be thwarted and snatches of "Within My Heart," the show's lead melody, fill the afternoon breeze and the traffic to nearby hospitals and newspaper offices pauses to listen.

Or choreographer Chuck Irwin tries to demonstrate one of his dance routines to a group of attractive young ladies. This also can disrupt traffic especially when viewed from the outside of a stately old building which once catered to the uppermost of Syracuse society.

But comment may flow as it will. The gentlemen and ladies of "Up In Lights" will not falter. In their mind is a goal of the evening of May 6 and the image of the Astor curtain parting on opening night.

Quoting director Leider, "I'm very happy with the show so far but we've got a long road ahead of us."

Squeeze in The Freeze

With a slight thaw here we can comfortably consider the case of a water fountain at Southern Methodist university.

The fountain never ran in the winter because the pipes might freeze.

They couldn't run it in the summer because there is a water shortage that time of year.

Last week the SMU student council voted unanimously to try to get the fountain going. How are they going it?

Use Anti-freeze and let it bubble all winter.

Coffee is The Opiate

Now here's the real scoop on coffee! (This is not to be confused with a coffee scoop.)

This reporter sent an urgent request last November to the Pan American Coffee Bureau, with offices on New York's Wall st., for all possible information on the royal bean to be air mail special delivered post haste pronto for a feature.

November passed on, December and 1953 went into the history books, January is no longer with us, and, as no word has yet been received from said Pan American Coffee Bureau, we assume that it, too, is now non-existent.

Another phenomena noted in regard to this rare and exotic bean: in a recent story in The New York Herald Tribune, the noun appeared as Coffee. Capital stuff, we agree, but perhaps we'd be better off if we protected ourselves against this creeping caffeine.

Coffee is the opiate of the proletariat!

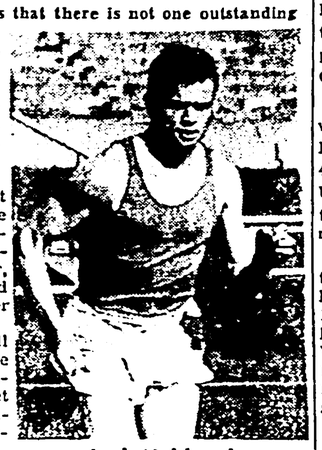
Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

It hasn't even been whispered about campus lately, but the fact is that Syracuse has another potential championship squad in the offing. The team is Coach Bob Grieve's crack two-mile relay who broke the University record last Saturday at Madison Square Garden.

They haven't been getting the publicity, but the old axiom, "Actions speak louder than words" was never truer. Since the first meet of the winter season, the Orange relay of Jack Hubbard, Les Vielbig, Don Shupe and Steve Armstrong have cut their collective time by over 13 seconds.

The advantage of the team is that there is not one outstanding individual on the squad. All are good enough to run a 1:55 half mile, no mean feat in any man's sport. Put them in competition against each other, and you would need an electric eye at the finish line to distinguish the winner.



Jack Hubbard

Perhaps the most amazing fact about the Flashy Four is that none of them ran the half mile consistently in high school. "Tube" Hubbard was a sprinter, Les a miler, Steve a cross-country runner and Don was a baseball player rather than a track man.

Add to this the fact that all workouts have to be held outside in freezing weather and you wonder how Grieve was able to get such a potent aggregation together. Perhaps the answer is enthusiasm.

As an example, Hubbard went into an excited, minute detail of the latest race yesterday. It was all we could do to keep up with his description. Grieve is enthusiastic also.

In describing how Vielbig opened up the Orange lead, Bob said, "He took off as if he was going to a fire." Seated next to Grieve during the race was Bob Giegengack, coach of the runnerup Yale quintet.

Giegengack was justly proud of his smooth running squad and prophesized from the second that Syracuse took the lead that Yale would win going away. By the time Armstrong came down the homestretch 40 yards in the lead, Grieve couldn't resist a good natured jibe at his friend, "You couldn't catch us on a bicycle now."

The only team which has been able to beat Syracuse with any degree of consistancy is Fordham. The Rams, running in a special Metropolitan school relay, ran only 7:45 flat Saturday compared with Syracuse's 7:41.6.

The one meet that Grieve is pointing for is the IC4A's, to be held in the Garden in two weeks. This meet is sort of a World Series of indoor track in which the top collegiate teams in the nation will compete.

Saturday's time tied the IC4A record for the two-mile relay set in 1925 by Georgetown. If the Orange quintet can come up to or surpass last weekend's mark, they could put another blue ribbon cup in the Syracuse trophy case.

* * * * *

George Olenik called us yesterday to convey Hubie Harshberger's sincerest thanks for all that his Syracuse friends have done for him. Hu, who lost a leg in a summer motorcycle accident, is reportedly getting along much better and even plans to take some courses here next fall.

The former Orange lineman hopes to obtain use of an artificial limb in a short time. Meanwhile, it's just a case of waiting for the leg to heal further.

To all of Hubie's friends who have been hoping for a successful recovery, Hu would like to say, "THANKS."

Cagers Seek Repeat Win Against Golden Griffins

Syracuse's Big Three basketball champions await tomorrow's tussle against Canisius after clinching Central New York honors with an 85-83 conquest of Colgate last Saturday at Hamilton.

Canisius' improving Griffins have finally hit their stride after winning only three of their first 13 contests. Joe Curran's cagers pulled one of the season's big upsets recently when they dumped Niagara, 53-46, in a traditional battle at Buffalo.

THE BUFFALONIANS followed with victories over Creighton and Boston college and last week dropped a 74-71 thriller to Manhattan.

Much of the Golden Griffs' improvement resulted from the return to action of soph John McCarthy. One of the stars of last year's frosh, McCarthy has coupled with Capt. Jimmy Young to furnish a needed scoring punch.

Syracuse defeated the Blue and Gold, 61-52, earlier in the year.

Saturday's triumph was achieved by means of an amazing last-quarter rally. Colgate led 83-74 with four minutes remaining but the Orange rolled up 11 straight points for the win. Ronnie Gillespie's pair of free throws were the winning points.

CAPT. MEL BESDIN led the Piety scorers with 20 points while four other Saltines hit for double figures. Jack Larned netted 16, big Lou Beverly 15, Gillespie, 14 and Manny Breland, 12.

Beverly, surprise starter at center, hit on seven of seven shots from the field. Frank Patterson, Colgate captain, paced the Raiders with 30 markers.

Colgate led by six, 49-43, at halftime and increased its margin to 11 after three periods. The Orange used a full-court press in the final quarter, however, and Coach Marc Guley's strategy paid off with the ninth Saltine win of the season.

Gridmen, Booters Choose Managers

Butler K. Clement, a junior in the College of Business Administration, was elected head manager of the 1945-55 Orange football team, yesterday, according to Lou Andreas, university athletic director.

Two assistant football managers were also chosen. They are Robert Colliver, a sophomore in Liberal Arts, and Gregg Doherty, a junior in Liberal Arts.

Andreas also disclosed that Francis Tylenda was elected manager of the soccer team. Tylenda is a sophomore in Liberal Arts. Captains and coaches of the teams vote on managerial candidates.

Hill Skiers Cop Divisional Title

By ART STERNBERG

A decisive triumph by the Hill skiers in the Western Championships division (of the E.I.S.A.) ski meet this weekend proved a fitting culmination for the University's annual Winter Carnival.

The Pietymen scored 386.1 points, 15 more than runnerup Cornell. Although the score appeared to be close, victory was actually insured after the Downhill race, in which Syracuse copped the first three places.

THE SUSKIMEN took first place in two events, one second place and a third place in the Meet. In addition to the important win, two Syracuse skiers, Art Roscoe and Bob Brussel, bestowed an additional honor to the University as a result of their finishing one-two respectively in the Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial Open Jump.

Roscoe, who won the awarded cup, starred throughout the meet. He easily took the intercollegiate jump, scoring 218 points, placed second in cross-country, and third in downhill.

The meet opened in the glistening icy hills of Little Tuck, N. Y., with five teams competing. Hamilton dropped out of the meet after Saturday's heats and Clarkson college failed to show up.

Near-perfect weather conditions aided the skiers as they met for slalom racing on Saturday morning. Dave Stainton of Cornell was first, finishing the course in 47.4 seconds. Ebert of West Point came in second and Putnam of RPI was third.

CORNELL WAS also victorious in the cross-country meet as the combination of brothers Dave and John Stainton took first and third spots respectively. Art Roscoe of Syracuse finished second. Th difficult trail was marked between Drumlins country club and back covering six miles altogether.

In Sunday's events, the Syracuse skiiers really proved their ability. In spite of warm weather which made ski conditions sloppy, the iPetymen were able to cop the first three places with good times.

Hawley Woolschlager won the timed event in 34 seconds. Doug Wallace finished second and Roscoe third. Woolschlager's performance was one of the best of his career.

The jump held at SUSKI lodge was also hampered by the adverse weather conditions. Because of the slushy going on the jump, skiers couldn't get off to good starts and probably lost from five to ten feet per leap.

ROSCOE COPPED the jump with a 70.4 feet leap and scored 218.2 points for both distance and form. Shelby Putnam of RPI finished second and Dave Foss, the Cornell captain came in third.

The Carrie Lou Andrews Memorial Open jump proved to be as exciting to watch as any of the other events staged on the program. Skiers from Syracuse university, West Point, RPI, and Cornell in addition to members of various independent ski clubs throughout the state were represented. Members of Interstate ski club, Onondaga ski club and Swedish ski club vied for the club.

Roscoe of Syracuse university won the honored event. The official trophy will remain at the SUSKI lodge until a skier can win three successive titles in the event. It will then be given to the meritorious skier and a new one posted in its place.

Final official standings:

1. Syracuse (386.1); 2. Connecticut (371.1); 3. Army (332); 4. RPI (318.6).

Relay Team Takes Two-Mile Event In Record Time

Fresh from a record-breaking performance in the weekend's New York Athletic Club meet, Syracuse's two-mile relay team looks forward to this Saturday's test in the National AAU championships at Madison Square Garden.

Bill Orange's dynamic quintet won going away in the NYAC race. Finishing ahead of Yale by about 40 yards, the Hillmen broke the University record for the indoor two-mile relay by posting a 7:41.6 mark.

WITH JACK Hubbard getting the Syracusans off to a ten-yard lead by sprinting his half-mile in 1:56.5, Bob Grieve's boys took the lead and were never headed. Les Vielbig ran the second leg in 1:54.7, Don Shupe the third in 1:56.3 and anchor-man Steve Armstrong in 1:54.1.

The new time bested the old Syracuse record by a full two seconds. The previous mark was set in the 1950-51 season. The victory marked the second of the year for the relay squad.

This Saturday, Grieve takes his quintet back to New York to compete against five of the top relay teams in the East. The Orangemen's old nemisis, the Fordham Rams, will be back to plague them.

Mermen Win First; Sink Buffalo, 62-22

Downing Sets Mark In Backstroke

Fordham's Rams provide the opposition Friday night in the Orange pool when the Syracuse university swimmers will be seeking their second straight victory of the season.

After suffering losses in their first three meets of the season, the mermen of Coach Ted Webster finally came up with a victory, defeating Buffalo university by the lopsided score of 62-22.

WEBSTER FIGURES that his boys should be able to handle Fordham which has lost to RPI, Army, Yale and Union. However, he expects plenty of competition from the Rams.

In the process of defeating Buffalo, Bob Downing of the Orange broke his own record in the 200-yard backstroke with a time of 2:21.0. His old record at the Buffalo pool was 2:22.3 which he set in 1952.

Another feature of the meet was Ed Gozigan's win in the fancy diving event. Gozigan defeated Jim Rydberg of Buffalo after having lost to him earlier in the season in the National AAU swim meet.

Bob Beaumont and Kev Wilson were the only Orangemen to take two events. Beaumont won both the 50-yard and 100-yard free style while Wilson placed first in the 220-yard free style and the 440-yard free style.

Friday's evening's meet against Fordham will start at 8:30 p.m. Preceding the varsity meet will be a match between the Syracuse frosh and Academy high school of Erie, Pa.

Wrestlers Beaten By NCAA Champs

Ed Rooney and Hank Gobetz were the only two Orange grapplers to post wins. Rooney decisioned Bill Krebs 8-0 while Gobetz upset Joe Humphreys 4-2.

Bob Homan, Gerry Maurey and Bill Oberly scored fall for the Lions as they annexed their 34th straight dual meet victory.

The Hill matmen return to the wrestling wars this Saturday when they face Lehigh in an away meet. Coach McDaniel will probably go with the same lineup that wrestled against Penn State in an attempt to get his team back in winning ways.

While the Orange varsity was losing, the Tangerine garpplers downed Oswego State Teacher's college 28-6 at Oswego. Syracuse won all events except the 177 pound and heavyweight tussles.

At the 123 pound division, Don Clark of Syracuse pinned Joe Pecorale of Oswego in one minute, 15 seconds of the first period for the quickest win of the program.

Boxers Tie Lions, Journey to Virginia For Weekend Bout

After their 4-4 draw with Penn State, Roy Simmons' boxers prepared for another road trip for next weekend, this time down to Virginia. The Penn State draw was the first mar on the boxers' record this year. Previously they had beaten Army and Maryland.

That nebulous item known as: "the breaks of the game" decided the bouts, as Penn State roared from behind and copped a tie, winning the last four out of five bouts.

SYRACUSE JUMPED off to an early 3-0 lead when the first three bouts of the evening went to Syracuse. Frank Guelli, Jerry Jaffe and Johnny Granger piled up the first three decisions.

The break came when State's Jack Stokes decisioned Larry O'Sullivan at 147 lbs. Syracuse still led 3-1. Then Joe McCourt, boxing for the first time, lost his by a K.O. to Allen De May. Syracuse—now, by 3-2.

Vince Rigolosi provided the break in Penn State's two wins by decisioning Frank Breidor.

The derailment was only temporary as State's man-killer, Adam Kois, took his bout from Sam Alexander. Simmons figured that Kois would win no matter who he fought, so Roy saved normal light-heavy Yancey for the big one at heavyweight.

PENN STATE'S sophomore footballer Frank Della Penna plopped Yancey to the floor twice and Bruce could not overcome the advantage in points that these knockdowns totaled.

This was the first time the Nittanies did not lose this year. But their first match of the year, against Michigan State, left the Lions slightly crippled.

Virginia, Syracuse's next opponent, fought Army last weekend and drew. This was the same Army team that Syracuse beat 4½-3½ earlier in the year.

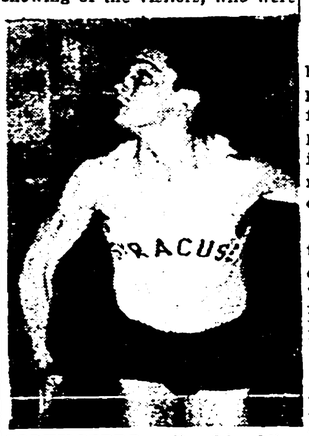
Piety Gymnasts Drill After Losing to Owls

The Syracuse gymnasts will resume practice drills today in an effort to prepare for Saturday's meet with Navy. Last Saturday, the Orangemen were edged in an exciting duel with Temple, 48½ to 47½.

Despite the loss to Temple, the third in succession for the Piety gymnasts, Coach Paul Romeo had nothing but praise to accord his boys, who struggled so greatly for victory, but instead went down to a heart-breaking deefat at the hands of the Owls.

ROMEO ALSO cited the fine showing of the visitors, who were "loaded" in team depth as compared with the Orangemen who used three of their boys in a like number of events.



CORKY SEBBO, national tumbling champion who turned in a victory in his specialty against Temple last Saturday.

In one of his best efforts of the year, Ferdie Fournies, Saltine co-Captain, won the flying rings competition with a point-score of 268. Ferdie also finished second in the rope climb with a time of 3.8 seconds and gained fifth place in the side horse.

In several instances the Owls barely nosed out Syracuse participants to gain higher places in the final total in those events. Temple's John Jengo earned 240 points in the parallel bars, whereas Hillman John Barkal was only accorded 239 by the judges.

Jengo also nosed out Barkal in the horizontal bar for second place edging out the Orangemen, 273 to 263. Third place in the flying rings also went to the Owls' as Eugene Scholl edged Milan Trnka by two points, 231 to 229.

The setback extended the Piety gymnastic losing streak to three straight, two in the Eastern gymnastic league and the other to Florida State on the tail end of the Southern tour. The Hillmen will probably have to defeat both Army and Navy to avoid finishing in the celler in the final league standings.

Coach Romeo cited that his boys have improved as the season has progressed. He feels that a little luck in sending the breaks this way will send the Syracusans on the winning trail.

More than 300 tickets have already been sold for the first weekend performance of "Lysistrata", the Greek comedy which the drama department is presenting in conjunction with Boar's Head.

The show which opens at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 18, is slated to run for at least two consecutive weekends, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

BLOCK SEATING arrangements may be made through the box office which is situated on the first floor of the Drama building. Tickets may be obtained daily from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Tickets for 10-15 persons may be obtained at $1.30 and 85 cents instead of the usual rate of $1.50 and $1.

Groups of more than 15 persons may obtain tickets at $1.25 and 80 cents instead of the usual rate at which individual tickets are being sold.

These lower rates for groups have already been taken advantage of by a number of organizations including Chi Omega, Alpha Phi and Gamma Phi Beta. Other groups planning to attend the show in a body are urged to make their arrangements as soon as possible.

Final arrangements for the Greek comedy by Aristophanes are almost at an end. Scores for the show have been obtained from Samuel Selden, of the University of North Carolina's drama department and from Prof. Mary V. Heinlein of Vassar. Both schools have done a production of "Lysistrata" in the past.

PRINCIPALS IN the cast includes Barbara Hush, '57, Chi Omega, who plays the leading role, Shirley Fenner, '54, Gamma Phi Beta, a drama major, and Gerald Leider, faculty advisor to Boar's Head.

Wooden Planks to Cover Machinery Hall Grounds

If the rain abates today, University students will be given a most welcome present —wooden plankways for the Machinery hall "battleground."

F. Gordon Smith, vice-president and executive secretary, announced yesterday that planks would be laid as soon as the rain ceases.

THE WOODEN walk will permit students to cross from Smith to Lyman without the aid of hip boots. Passage from Slocum across Machinery hall to University pl. will also be facilitated.

At present students traveling west to Smith had to go north to University pl. around the roadway and head south on the path leading to the Hall of Languages.

A permanent roadway will be built in the spring when the heavy excavation work will be completed on both Engineering college buildings. Until this time, however, the wooden planks will serve as a temporary road for pedestrian traffic.

The situation became acute on Monday after sudden warm weather melted the snow within a 48 hour period. Coming immediately after the record cold wave, this melted material could not drain into the soil since the ground a few inches below the surface was still frozen.

Further complications arose because of its low position in relation to the rest of the campus, making the land a miniature drainage basin.

Miss Reece Rules

ELLEN REECE is 1954's Onondagan queen. Picked by recording star Eddie Fisher as the new monarch of the annual yearbook, Miss Reece defeated four other finalists, Gloria Schren, Barbara Goldman, Gwen Mann and Barbara Feidelman.

Ellen Reece Selected Onondagan Queen

Queen Ellen Reece will reign over the 1954 Onondagan.

Miss Reece was chosen by recording star Eddie Fisher to be the annual's reigning beauty. A senior in home economics, she was chosen over four other finalists.

THE NEW QUEEN is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Members of her court include Gloria Schren, Iota Alpha Pi; Barbara Goldman, Alpha Epsilon Phi; Gwen Mann, Delta Gamma; and Barbara Feidelman, Sigma Delta Tau.

Fisher, who called Miss Reece a "sweet blonde" said: "It was a mighty hard job and I hate to have to pick one."

Besides having her picture appear in the '54 ON the Queen will receive as prizes a record album from Olmsted's, a hairset by Fred the hairstylist and a pass to RKO Keith's.

The pictures sent to Fisher for the final selection were taken by Meg Hale Studios.

The 1953 ON Queen, Joanne Sullivan, was selected by Perry Como, star of radio and television. Miss Sullivan was graduated in June and was a fine arts major.

Dwelling Blazes On Comstock Ave.

Reports of a fire at 214 Comstock ave. are incomplete as The Daily Orange goes to press but District Chief Thomas McMahon has indicated severe damage to the structure.

The fire began in the basement, according to the Chief's preliminary reports, and burned its way through to the roof damaging the rooms through which it passed. Smoke and water undoubtedly added to the damage, although to what extent has not been determined as yet.

The building, which is located on the corner of E. Adams st., housed approximately ten families, including several married students and their families.

New Student Union Not in Near Future Rotunno Tells TTK

Present Organizations Sufficient for Hill, Says Architect

No likelihood of a student union building in the near future is visualized by University officials, architect Noreda Rotunno told Through the Keyhole coeds yesterday.

Speaking in Maxwell auditorium, the University architect said opinion has wavered on the possibility of such a structure but at this date lack of space and funds limit extensive plans.

DR. ROTUNNO stated that the administration believes the present recreational setups of many campus organizations are sufficient for student amusement. He did not mention plans under discussion for use of the Women's building basement as a temporary student union.

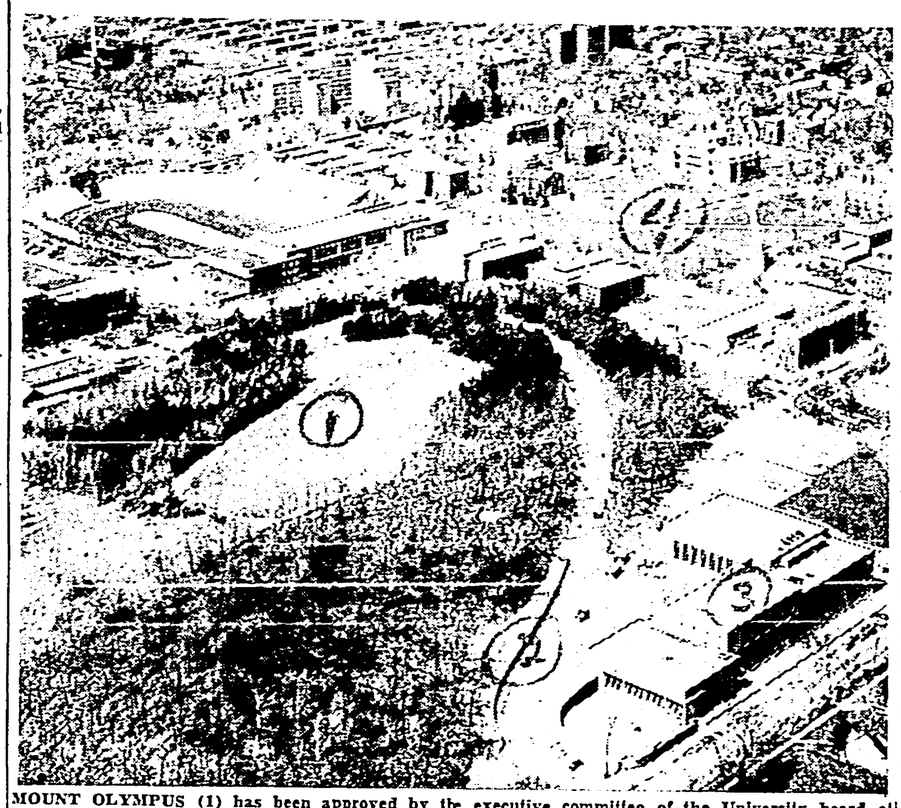
Explaining why expansion of University academic facilities is necessary, Rotunno told TTKers that only in 1919 did Syracuse have an exess amount of floor space in proportion to the average square feet per student allotted in the average private college. At present a student in an average private college has 155 square feet of academic floor space. At Syracuse in 1947 the student had about 69, including Thompson rd. properties .

At that time an additional one million square feet were needed to reach the average. Since then Lowe Art center, the Special Education building and the Women's building have been erected and space has been made available to engineering students beneath Archbold stadium.

Illustrating his talk with charts, Rotunno displayed a copy of plans for building and landscape changes submitted to the University in 1911. This blueprint was almost identical to later plans made by Syracuse university architects. Provision had been made for a quadrangle much like the one finished in the fall.

The period of greatest growth was described by Rotunno as between 1898 and 1909. It was during those years that the University constructed Archbold stadium, the men's gym, the library, Bowne, Sims, Lyman, Smith and the now defunct ceramics building, which was removed last year to make room for the new law school building.

Trustees OK Mt. Olympus Site for Proposed Housing



MOUNT OLYMPUS (1) has been approved by the executive committee of the University board of trustees as the site of a proposed new dormitory for women. Access to the dorm by car would be up the road (2) behind the new Women's building (3) on Comstock ave. The four-story dorm would tower nearly 100 feet above the main quadrangle (4) of the campus.

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The executive committee of the board of trustees of Syracuse university has approved Mount Olympus as the site of a proposed new dormitory for women, F. Gordon Smith, vice president and executive secretary of the University, said yesterday.

Application for final approval by the Federal Housing and Homes Financing agency of a $2 million loan for the building's construction was made last week. Action on the request is expected by next month.

PRELIMINARY approval of the loan has already been granted by the agency, Smith said. Bids will probably be sought within four months.

Once construction begins, it is expected that the dorm would be ready in a year and one-half.

Mount Olympus, highest spot on campus, had been recommended and approved by the University design committee as the site for the structure. Shaw dormitory had originally been planned for the hill.

Tentative plans, subject to possible change, call for a building four tories high and housing 548 women. A basement will contain a post office, recreation room, lounge, snack bar and laundry room. There will also be two lounges on each floor.

PLANS CALL for 532 double rooms, eight singles and eight proctor rooms. The first floor will provide for 114 women, the second floor 142. Third and fourth floors will house 146 women each.

The average double room, according to plans submitted by the University, will be about 16 feet long and 12 feet wide.

Coeds will literally be living on top of the University, since the building will be about 300 feet above sea level and nearly 100 feet above the average campus terrain.

A ramp type covered passageway is eventually planned to connect the dormitory with Sims hall.

NO DINING facilities are provided for in the immediate future, according to the plans.

Once the Olympus dorm opens, most of the small cottage housing units will probably be closed, since they are becoming more expensive to operate and heat.

The Federal Housing and Homes Financing agency is also backing construction of the Watson and Marion dormitories for men on Comstock ave. at Waverly ave. and University pl. The University has borrowed $1.75 million for the two buildings, which will be ready by September.

JSF Will Discuss Jewish Traditions

Rabbi Hyman to Start Questions and Problems

Jewish Student fellowship discussion group will meet to discuss the problem "Why Jewish Traditions?" at 7 p.m. today in 202 Maxwell.

Rabbi Irwin Hyman, JSF chaplain, will start the discussion which will be lead by Miriam Fiske.

The group, which meets every other Wednesday, was formed to allow both Jewish and non-Jewish students to listen, learn and discuss questions or problems that might arise in their minds.

Refreshments will be served after tonight's session.

Weekly Mixer Dances To Begin Friday Night

Weekly dances in the Women's building will begin this Friday with a mixer featuring Ray Caldiero's orchestra, University Social Director Margaret Parker announced yesterday.

The dances, sponsored in the past by the new defunct Student Union, were resumed as a result of a request by student government presidents Mary Anne Dalton and Stanley Leff to the Women's building policy board.

The policy board has tentatively set up a schedule for a series of 13 dances to be held in the second floor dance studio. The dances will be free to all students but identification cards must be shown. The dances are informal and stag or drag.

Leff and Miss Dalton have set up the initial committee to run the dances. They include Nancy Boerner, Ann McKaig, Marley Barkley, Merle Bank, John de Palma, Jerry Gerber, Roger Herz, and Arthur Kinney. The advisors for the group are Miss Parker and Mrs. Margaret Bonisteel, assistant director of the women's building.

Before its demise at the end of the 1953 spring semester, the Student Union sponsored the Friday night dances in addition to weekly dance lessons. Mr. F. Walter Medicis of the University staff, who handled the Student Union dance classes, will aid in setting up classes in the Women's building for both beginner and advanced dancers.

Panhel Holds Convo To Explain Rushing

A convocation for women planning to rush this semester will be held at 7 p.m. today in 312 Bowne hall, according to Nancy Knapp, Panhellenic president.

Any woman interested in rushing is urged to attend by Miss Knapp. Women who have rushed before must check their cards for accuracy, but need not pay the registration fee again. New rushees will be required to register and pay the $2 fee.

IF A COED has registered before, but her card is missing, she will be required to fill out a new one. Any woman not registered with Pan-hel will not be called by a sorority.

Miss Knapp will explain the procedures of informal rushing and answer questions at the convo.

Any sorority rushing informally may call rushees after Thursday to make dates for dinner or coffee. All parties must be planned for after 2 p.m. Sunday. Any bids extended to a rushee must be written.

Orange Meets Griffin Five In Quest of Tenth Victory

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Orange hoopsters go after victory No. 10 tonight when they play host to Canisius' Golden Griffins at 8:30 p.m. in Archbold gym. Andy Mogish's frosh meet the LeMoyne college Jayvee in a preliminary game.

Piety Coach Marc Guley has indicated that big Lou Beverly, who

LATE BULLETIN

Canisius defeated Siena for the second time this season, 81-68, last night in Albany to run its record to 7-11.

scored 15 points Saturday against Colgate in his first starting role, will open at center.

CAPT. MEL Besdin will start at one forward with either Dick Jaskot or Ron Gillespie at the other. Gillespie, bothered by a leg injury in recent games, appears ready for full-time duty after tallying 14 points, against the Raiders.

Jack Larned and Manny Breland will be in backcourt for the Orange.

The visiting Griffs have won only six of 17 contests, excluding last night's tussle with Siena, but have shown improvement in recent games.

Best win of the season for the Buffalonians was a 53-46 upset of highly regarded Niagara three weeks ago. Other victories were over Western Ontario, Scranton, Siena, Creighton and Boston college.

LACK OF A good, big man has hampered Canisius this year but Coach Joe Curran has several players in the 6 ft.-3 category, including Bob Adams, Don Dunn, Johnny Zatorski and Fran Corcoran. Adams and Dunn will probably be in tonight's starting lineup.

Top Griff scorers, however, are a pair of small men, Capt. Jimmy Young and soph John McCarthy. Young, a 5 ft.-11 senior from Philadelphia, possesses a fine set shot and floating layup.

RON GILLESPIE, 6 ft.-1 forward from Waterford, may return to the starting lineup when Syracuse meets Canisius tonight in Archbold gym. The slender soph has been hampered recently by a leg injury but scored 14 points against Colgate last Saturday.

Star of last year's frosh team, McCarthy joined the Blue and Gold varsity a few weeks ago after a semester of ineligibility. He is a 6-foot graduate of Buffalo's Timon high.

Fifth Canisius starter will likely be 6 ft.-1 Bob Kelly, who, like Young comes from Philly's West Catholic high. Zatorski, Corcoran and former Syracusan Jerry Large are the visitors' top reserves.

Syracuse defeated the Griffins early in December, 61-52, with a last-half spurt at Buffalo. Ron Kilpatrick, departed pivotman, led the Saltines with 14 points while Besdin and Kline contributed 13 apiece, Larned 11 and Lou Cegala 10.

The Orange leads the series, 10 victories to nine.

'Tornado' Intensifies As Play Approaches

By DICK CASE

Just 36 hours before the initial Boar's Head production of the current season opens on the stage of Machineral hall, a mild tornado of activity brews in the drama department.

It is the activity of apprentices, designers, directors, actors and their friends . . . all of which goes toward the presentation of the Greek comedy, "Lysistrata", tomorrow evening at 8:15 p.m.

IF EARLY ticket sales are any indication, and we're sure they must be, "Lysistrata" will be an impressive success for the Boar's Head society. At last look, the box office on the first floor of the drama building was doing large business. Single ducats and group seating arrangements may be accomplished at the box office.

The entire production is under the guidance of Prof. Sawyer Falk, director of dramatic activities on campus.

Cast in the Aristophanes drama are Barbara Hush, Shirley Fenner, and Gerald Leider who will handle the top roles. Sets are by John J. Moore and costumes by Mario Forte.

At this point, general buzzing prevails on floor number two of Machinery Hall.

IN THE THEATER space, a vivid tableau of ancient Greece is taking form on the Boar's Head stage under the direction of set designer Moore. The setting, currently littered with the tools of preparation, is brightly assented by a life-size gold statue of Aphrodite which has been erected by talented apprentices.

Advancing to one of the classrooms, one find a hodgepodge of costume sewing, shield painting and prop fixing . . . water jars must look authentic, glass cannot look like glass and helmets must be brilliant yet wearable.

And over at the drama office, Mrs. Groat, Prof. Falk's secretary, is sewing on a bright Greek costume which some attractive young thing will most likely fill tomorrow evening.

The prop chairman is running in search of a particular shade of paint and the cast paces in preparation for a long rehearsal which will doubtless stretch into the early morning hour.

To summarize, this is a time of rapid final preparation, of last-minute switches and little prayers for success.

The rest is in the hands of the audience.

Clean-up drive

From the bottom of our encrusted shoes we send our thanks to the Administration for at last promising action in the "battle of the mud."

Sawyer Falk and the remainder of the Drama building personnel have a special reason to be thankful that the University will soon provide wooden walks for the area in front of the building.

Tomorrow night is the premiere of "Lysistrata" and nothing could have been more disastrous for the players than to have a small attendance because the audience would not brave the muck.

It is bad enough to wade through the area dressed in loafers, socks and slacks but it is another to envision the treck while attired in cocktail dresses or grey flannels.

One of the most vivid sights of the current semester has been students hurriedly leaping back as a moving car or truck splattered mud in all directions.

We firmly believe that every college should have a swimming pool, but not in front of campus buildings.

It is our hope that once the condition is cleaned up, it will remain so for the remainder of the semester.

Such an ordinary item as mud does not present the campus at its best to visitors.

Our only wish now is that the University will not forget the remainder of the walks which are at present inundated because of the rather early spring thaw.

If measures could be taken to keep these thoroughfares free so that students now wading could cease this dubious feat, Syracusans would indeed take a rosier view toward their now dubious feet.

To BM[W]OC's:

Phones have begun ringing in houses and offices of student organization officers.

The person on the other end of the line is reminding officers to comply with recent student government legislation to submit information to MSG or WSG regarding their organizations.

The deadline for submitting the printed forms has been extended until Friday. Until now, however, the program has not produced encouraging results. Very few forms have been turned in to student government.

Purpose of the organizations legislation is to provide student government—and thus students in general—with facts and personnel of campus organizations about which information may be desired. An active file will be maintained for anyone's use.

However, unless all organizations comply, the whole project will prove useless.

Regardless of all the discussion about apathy, it does not seem unreasonable to expect that officers of these organizations—elected and appointed students who have demonstrated a willingness to administer affairs of these organizations—should not be lax in complying with the simple request made by student government.

Too often, legislation is ignored in society because there is no enforcement behind it—because we are too indifferent to comply with requests that are not actual demands with subsequent penalties.

True enough, there is now little that student government can do to enforce this organization registration project.

Not only would it seem ridiculous in a matter such as this to provide penalties but there should be no necessity for them.

We are not being asked to sign statements of a political nature, but merely to give our elected student officials an opportunity to be able to locate officers and organizations.

And if you're an officer, that should make you happy.

Let's get the forms in by Friday.

HEARING AIDS

LOW CALIBER IN LOCAL BROADCASTS

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

We venture that this will fall not lightly on some innocent ears, but it has been felt in many savant corners that there is a almost base lack of taste in the musical programming of Syracuse radio outlets.

Dismissing local television as a sad, swaggering vehicle for any musical expression, it is found that the sound medium, radio, must assume the full burden of presentation. We must also cast aside all network broadcasts which come free of effort to stations and therefore open no space for creative programming.

The concern will be, then, with all air time exclusive of network . . . time which is left for individual stations to burn as they will.

Glancing at a typical day for any of the five local radio stations, it is noted that only one station offers a "live" music show. This broadcast, unfortunately, emerges a definite heavyweight contender overloaded with homespun gibberish and disinterested performers.

So, except in a few scattered instances, the remainder of the music must come from recording or transcription libraries.

Well, sir . . . let's examine an average radio day in our little city.

Prior to 7 a.m., the stations come on the air at various intervals, these punctuated by programming aimed at the agarian populous. This amounts to, in the case of one station, a series of hogcalls, market reports, and hillbilly music delivered by a gentleman with a cowbarn voice and a foul tongue . . . vulgarity is not uncommon in the early hours.

From 7 to about 9 a.m., time is consumed by the "timekeeper" fellows who are personality pluses with an assortment of records and products to sell. The music here is mostly smaltz salted by an occasional hit parade winner or "memory melody". Only one of these five morning voices presents an interesting approach. This fellow, who is extremely funny at times, claims to dislike recorded music completely but his selection is generally varied and tasteful.

What music there is to be found in the afternoon segment runs from a series of cowboy melodies to the top ten. One station devotes almost the entire afternoon schedule to recorded music spun by a personality boy. This particular program, however, is one of the few good popular music trys in Syracuse.

Evenings are almost totally dominated by network offerings except in the very late hours. This excludes of course, Syracuse's independent station which relies nearly completely on recorded forms. Since this station is such a distinct operation, a certain amount of quality does creep in among the quantity.

We would say that the main fault of this giant lack of decent recorded music over Syracuse radio falls upon, firstly, the station management for a general absence of incentive to create new programs, and, secondly, upon the announcer or disk jockey who is almost always forced to select his own music and just can't do it sometimes.

It would seem that the stations, who after all are out to make a profit, are leaning over backwards to satisfy the mass, and those at the extremes, folks who enjoy good classical or good jazz recordings, are being slighted.

Might we suggest that a page be taken from the people at WAER who have no fear of striking out in a new direction. These folks, whom many professional men term "kids playing in radio," present a far more interesting local schedule than the five commercial staffs.

Until such times as Syracuse radio can provide us with at least a snatch or two of good music, refuge will be taken in other forms of entertainment. For, it would seem that professional broadcasters, webbed by the antiquity of tradition, have nothing to offer.

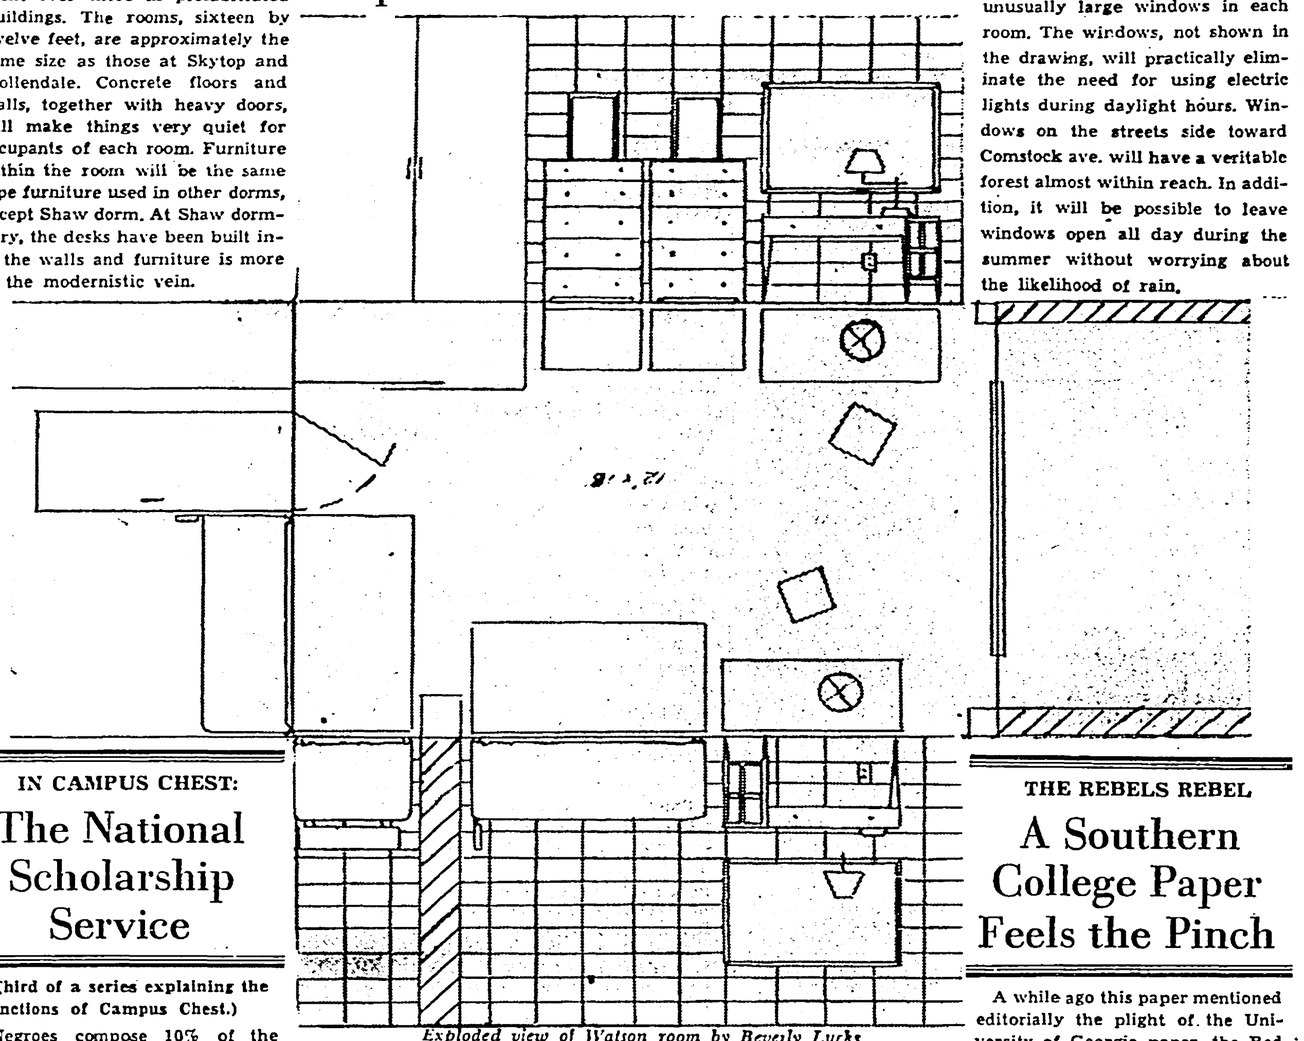
New Home of Freshman Males Next Autumn

This composite view of a room in Watson hall shows the improvement over those in prefabricated buildings. The rooms, sixteen by twelve feet, are approximately the same size as those at Skytop and Collendale. Concrete floors and walls, together with heavy doors, will make things very quiet for occupants of each room. Furniture within the room will be the same type furniture used in other dorms, except Shaw dorm. At Shaw dormitory, the desks have been built into the walls and furniture is more in the modernistic vein.

Exploded View of Watson Room



Exploded view of Watson room by Beverly Lucks

One of the pleasant aspects of the new look at Watson hall will be unusually large windows in each room. The windows, not shown in the drawing, will practically eliminate the need for using electric lights during daylight hours. Windows on the streets side toward Comstock ave. will have a veritable forest almost within reach. In addition, it will be possible to leave windows open all day during the summer without worrying about the likelihood of rain.

IN CAMPUS CHEST:

The National Scholarship Service

(Third of a series explaining the functions of Campus Chest.)

Negroes compose 10% of the population of the United States but less than 1% of the enrollment in non-segregated colleges.

Syracuse's annual Campus Chest drive contributes to the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, which is attacking the prominent problem.

Many colleges are interested in increasing their enrollment of Negro students but since many of these prospective students are unable to finance their education, the increase has not been noticeable.

The Service also is attacking the problem by contacting Negro students in 14,000 high schools and letting them know what opportunities exist, by advising where they have a chance for admission and scholarships and by informing them how to obtain admission to schools and when and where to apply for scholarships.

The Service, which is fully supported by Campus Chest organizations on various campuses, has arranged for over $11 million worth of scholarships per year for needy Negro students. Nevertheless, the sum has fallen far short of the necessary total and many of the students then have to attend less expensive southern Negro colleges.

Donating to the Negro Scholarship Service through the Syracuse Campus Chest will help to provide more trained leadership for America's negro citizens and extend democratic opportunities which will strengthen our influence among the free nations of the world.

LETTERARY COMMENT

A Worm's Eye View?

Feb. 15, 1862

To the Editor:

Mud (a quicksand) is a sepulchre that converts itself into a tide, and ascends from the bottoms of the earth toward a living man. Each minute is an inexorable sexton. The wretch tries to sit, to lie down, to walk, crawl; all the movements that he makes bury him; he draws himself up; he yells, implores, cries to the clouds, writhes his arms, and grows desperate. Then he is in the sand up to his waist; the sand reaches his chest; he is but a bust. He raises his hands, utters furious groans, digs his nails into the sand, tries to hold by a pebble, raises himself on his elbows to tear up a weak sea-weed mounts. It reaches his shoulders, and sobs frenziedly; but the sand it reaches his neck, the face alone is visible now. The mouth cries and the sand fills it, and then there is a silence. The eyes still look but the sand closes them, and there is night. Then the foreheads sings, and a little hair waves above the sand; a hand emerges, dips up the sand, is waved, and disappears. It is a sinister effacement of a man.

THE REBELS REBEL

A Southern College Paper Feels the Pinch

A while ago this paper mentioned editorially the plight of the University of Georgia paper, the Red and Black. The latest report on the situation is one of reductio ad absurdum.

The college publication still comes out weekly, but few members of the original staff are still around. After pressure from a state regent caused by the printing of anti-discrimination editorials, the two top editors resigned.

Two more were moved up to put the paper out under strict faculty supervision. Then the second pair quit.

Now the Red and Black is in the hands of a former assistant sports editor and a reporter. All the copy is read by a faculty adviser before being published.

The South has sacrificed quality for a principle . . . a principle that places Georgia back some 90 years.

WEEKEND MEMORY

RESUME: NOTES ON SNO-BALL

By HOMER

(We found the following on the desk yesterday morning. It was scribbled on the pages of a Sno-ball program . . . all slightly punch-stained. We found a crushed carnation nearby, but our man was gone.)

Picked up date at 9:04 and proceeded to Women's building. Traffic backed up for block, honked horn, ran down two couples, gave up in frustration. Parked on Shaw lawn, date carried me across mud . . . gallant lass. Coat-check line extended into shower room. Waited. Waited. Waited. Finally got to head of line, voice in pile of coats in check room muttered "no room" and subsided in muffled gurgle. Found end of line for second-floor check room down at bowling alley. Rolled 146 before line moved. Waited. Waited. Waited. Finally stowed coats in oven in kitchen and baked at 360 degrees. Arrived on dance floor as band played "There's a Wishing Well . . ." Took a twirl . . . girl singing at bottom of a barrel crooned over microphone. Suddenly trumpets shattered reverie, trampled three couples in the panic. As band continued to hop, people stood around talking . . . sighted a couple dancing, edged over to watch, tapping left foot to rhythm . . . found I was tapping on date's tiny toe . . . gallant lass. Felt parched feeling in throat, got in refreshment line. Waited. Waited. Waited. Got two wilting cups, found date in fireplace, helped her up, drank two cups of punch . . . gad! was dry. Got back to dance floor, guy at mike announced queen's . . . oops, Empress' . . . entrance followed by entertainment. Dashed out to get to entertainment first . . . was preceded by 453 couples. Got into crowd trying to get into dance studio for entertainment. Waited. Waited. Waited. Arrived to find wall ahead. Entertainment began . . . I know, I heard it. After reasonable amount of time, crowd began to crush back, gathered entertainment was over . . . flowed out of studio in mixture of people and perspiration. Back to dance floor, good dance number on. Fell into rhythm, waltzed a few steps . . . trumpet cut loose and lifted chaperone's toupe 20 feet away. Couple of mad cats digging it in center of floor, people stood around talking. Waited, Waited. Waited. Later band began to play slow number . . . "There's a Wishing Well . . . I Wish That I Were There . . ." I did too, and left.

THRU THE MUD with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

To the average Hill athletic follower the name Lou Beverly means very little. Perhaps a few of the fans recollect that he was the fellow on the end of the basketball bench. You remember: the tall guy who just sits and sits. That is just about all Lou has done in his four years on the Hill except for his frosh season. In his initial campaign, big Lou was an important cog in Andy Mogish's frosh outfit along with Mel Besdin and Pat Stark. But that's as far as Lou's basketball career went until this past week when he made his "comeback."

Up until last week's game with Penn, Lou had seen action in about five or six ballgames over his three-year varsity sit. Even during those times he saw very limited duty. But the big guy stuck it out on the wood and finally got the chance he had been hoping for.

Against Penn, the Orange attack was falling and with Dave Kline unable to see much duty, Big Lou got his chance. Well, as soon as the jokers in the crowd saw Lou coming in they began to hoot and howl. But the big guy got to work immediately and cashed in five points. Perhaps it gave him confidence but it certainly made him a new player. At least after what we saw against Colgate.

Lou Beverly

Yes, we had nerve once more to journey down south hoping to see a possible Hill victory. Once more the "joint was jumping" and the voodoo was working but Bill Orange didn't bite. To our amazement the name Beverly was in the starting lineup. Well, Lou played a brilliant ballgame. His shooting and teamwork were among the best we have seen in quite awhile. Time and again he would be fighting for the ball off the boards, sometime getting it and sometime having to get up off the floor. But they just couldn't stop the big guy.

First Guley would put Kline in for Lou and then take him out. By rotating the two big men, the team began to click, but is was Lou's sudden return to form that was the deciding factor. Perhaps he'll never see action again in his collegiate career. But we doubt it. One thing is certain and that is that Lou will never forget his final game at Colgate as long as he lives. Some may call it determination but we call it courage.

* * * * *

Well, Syracuse finally got West Point on its football schedule. It's been a long time and the Orange administrative staff has been looking forward to the West Point signing for quite awhile. The strangest part of the whole matter, although it wasn't planned, is that Syracuse will probably hit the Cadets when they have their finest club since the era of Blanchard and Davis.

Army is in the building process once more. It had a fine club the past year made up mostly of sophs and juniors. Potentially many feel they could someday come up to the wartime powerhouses of Earl Blaik. According to some members of the Army ski team we met this weekend, the frosh as a team were fair but individually they had some top-notch ballplayers. Among them was a halfback who is supposed to be, according to these fellows, another Glenn Davis. And the boys from the Point just don't throw this guy Davis' name around with no meaning.

Syracuse plays the Cadets in 1955 and we really can't prophesy what Army will be like then. But they will be good. This brings us to the ironical part of our story. It seems every time we schedule some big power from the Midwest the team is at its peak. Illinois was scheduled before we knew about Johnny Karras, J. C. Caroline and the other boys. Michigan State was out on the slate long before Biggie Munn had a powerhouse. But I guess those are just the tricks of fate.

Now West Point is on the slate, probably to replace Cornell which may never return after next season. The game itself is one that will draw many New York alums up to Michie stadium to see the Orange in action. After all, these are the guys who have a lot to do with the success or failure of the Hill athletic program and to satisfy them is mighty important.

Despite the ironic incidents of the past, which can be overlooked, the athletic department seems to have made a good move in the right direction. That is to please the alums at least with one contest in one of their strongest areas, New York city. It could be a turning point in Orange grid scheduling, perhaps leading to some even newer names on our schedule in the future. But please, Mr. Andreas, don't book the boys from South Bend. Not for awhile, at least.

Freshmen to Face LeMoyne

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's frosh basketball team, beaten for the first time this season last Friday at Colgate, faces another rugged test tonight when the potent LeMoyne college yearlings invade Archbold gymnasium. The two teams will meet in a 6:30 preliminary to the Orange-Canisius game.

Coach Andy Mogish's squad will be entering the final third of its campaign with this evening's encounter. The Hill team sports a record of nine victories against one setback and has five games remaining on the schedule.

The Dolphins of LeMoyne have a steadily improving record. Last month, the Green and Gold defeated the fine Manlius cadet team. The only comparative score available between the crosstown quintet and the Hill squad are against Cornell. LeMoyne dropped a tight, 49-45, decision to the Big Red at Ithaca while the Tangerines rolled to a 107-75 win over the Ivy Leaguers in Syracuse.

THE STARTING lineup for tonight is tentative. In the last two contests, the opening five was made up of Vinnie Cohen, Jim Snyder, Gary Clark, Vin Albanese and Lou Stark. After the 72-66 defeat suffered at the hands of Colgate, some changes may be made.

The Orange cubs were outhustled by a Raider team that had the advantages of a home court and a partisan crowd. Jim Davis, a substitute guard for the Maroon, proved the difference in the closely contested struggle. Davis connected for four successive field goals from the outside in the third period to give the little Raiders a lead they never relinquished.

Colgate led at the end of the half by one point, 32-31. The Hamilton team showed a balanced offense in which five men scored in double figures.

For Syracuse, only seven men saw service, with three hitting double figures in the scoring department. Once again, Vin Cohen led the Tangerine point parade. He took game scoring honors with 21 points.

SNYDER, A 6 ft.-4 forward from Olean, had 17 while center Clark, also 6 ft.-4, registered 12. Niel Wilcox had four points in a substitute role and Stark had seven.

Alfred Smith Gains Fifth Intra Victory

Alfred Smith notched No. five last night in their unbeaten race for the title in Living Center Flight I. This time it was at the expense of second place Washington Arms 2-3, 42-25.

Bob Conklin led Al Smith with 15 points. Terry Finnel of Washington Arms matched this production. Al Smith led 19-10 at half time, then, with Conklin getting ten points in the second half, stretched its margin to 17.

The three other scheduled tilts ended in forfeit. City Men forfeited to the Aces, the Bearcats forfeited to the Rockets and Skytop M-7 won a forfeit victory over F. D. Roosevelt.

Casey's Five Winners In Intramural Skiing

Casey's Five ran off with the Winter Carnival team ski championship last Saturday, topping its closest competitor, Beta Theta Pi, by more than 10 points, intramural director Milt Howard announced yesterday.

Skytop M-3, which nosed out Beta Theta Pi in the unofficial standings by three-tenths of a point, was declared ineligible after it was discovered they used a skier from M-6.

IN THE Intramural team championships, Alonzo Cornell won the living center title and Beta Theta Pi copped fraternity honors. Delta Delta Delta won the sorority division title as it was the only team to enter.

Rudy Graff of Casey's Five won the individual slalom title with a time of 23.4, followed by Al Duff, also of Casey's, with a time of 23.65 and Frank Krug of Kappa Phi Delta with 23.8.

In the downhill event, Fred Lephard of Phi Delta Theta took top honors with 22.45, with Al Duff and Frank Krug capturing the same positions they took in the slalom.

Charlotte Smith of Delta Delta Delta, Joan Witmer, independent, and Sandy Eakin of Delta Delta Delta took top honors in the girls' slalom event while Nancy Bogart, independent, Kay Wallace and Miss Eakin, both of Delta Delta Delta, took honors in the downhill competition.

Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon were not listed in the team championship standing, as they competed only in one event. SAE took part in the slalom and Phi Delta in the downhill competition.

WAER to Carry Canisius Contest

Syracuse university radio will again assume the shot-by-shot description of Orange basketball today at 8:20 p.m. as the Golden Griffens of Canisius meet Marc Guley's men in Archbold gym.

The only Syracuse station carrying the contest, WAER will send announcers Donald Decker, Kenneth Gilchrist and William Dickson to cover the game over 88.1 on the FM dial.

NATS LOSE

Neil Johnston broke the Madison Square Garden individua scoring record last night by tallying 50 points as the Philadelphia Warriors waltzed to a 95-76 win over the Syracuse Nationals.

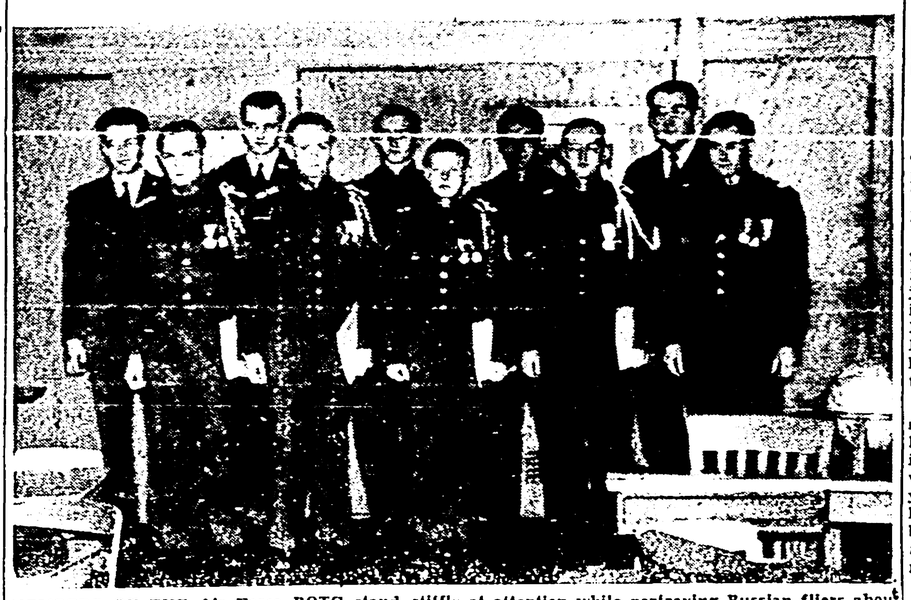
'--Then We Bomb New York'



MEMBERS OF THE Air Force ROTC stand stiffly at attention while portraying Russian fliers about to bomb New York city. One member of the group acted as the colonel, and gave a complete briefing as to how the job was to be done most effectively. The demonstration was presented to the Parent Teachers association of Percy Hughes school to show the possible dangers.

AFROTC Stages Bombing Briefing

'Colonel' Instructs 'Pilots' For NYC Air Raid

Possibilities of an attack on the continental United States were vividly portrayed last Thursday as seven Air Force ROTC cadets presented a mock briefing of members of the Russian air force about to bomb New York city. The briefing was given before some 70 members of the Parent-Teachers association of Percy Hughes school in Syracuse.

Arrayed in blue air force uniforms bedecked with red collars and shoulder boards and colored medals modeled after Russian insignia, Charles E. Eager, portraying the Russian colonel commanding the mission, outlined the overall plan to attack New York.

Radio stations in Syracuse were to be used on the 16-hour flight to give the Russian "points of reference" for navigation.

ATOMIC BOMBS and gas bombs were to be dropped on New York to render the city uninhabitable.

Following the attack the Russians were to crash-land in the sea, where they would be "picked up" by waiting submarines.

The raid was planned for Armed Forces day, in the hopes that the United States aircraft would be involved in celebrations of the day and would be caught off-guard.

Briefing included information, some illustrated with charts of the attack route and weather data in pictorial form, on navigation, armament, weather and intelligence.

ALL MEMBERS of Arnold Air society, the members included Eager; Donald C. Cole, intelligence officer; George Rovere, operations; Rodney Milnes, navigation; James Flanigan, armament; Robert Street, weather; and Joseph Petkash, lead bombardier.

City Commissioner Moses Not Used to Questions

By PEARL BERNSTEIN

Robert Moses sat back in his chair in the Citizenship office in Maxwell, relaxing after his speech before the Cit 1 students in Chapel.

Unused to the question-asking tactics of college freshmen, whose inquiries covered a range of subjects from morality to McCarthyism, New York city's well-known Park Commissioner, who was Phi Beta Kappa when he was in college, was far more at home in this informal atmosphere.

NEW YORK'S chief planner was more than willing to talk about his experiences and views on various civic problems. Connected with city government for over 30 years, Moses readily admitted that he has been involved in politics but adamently denied that this in any way implies corruption or mis-management.

He firmly believes that "people make good government" and that politics and administration cannot be separated. His experiences in city government have convinced the commissioner that "city manager" plans, like those advocated by most college public administration programs, "may sound fine on paper, but could never work."

"A city manager is too colorless and has little popular appeal," he said. "He is useful as a third or fourth string man, but must take orders from the top."

When reminded of the success of city managers in cities like Cincinnati, the Commissioner remarked that unlike New York or Syracuse, Cincinnati is a relatively homogeneous city. He described New York and Syracuse as "polygots, melting pots of various racial and religious groups, where a city manager could never be a success."

AGAIN MOSES emphasized the vital importance of the personal element in administration. Previously, in his lecture he has urged vigorous leadership on the part of newspaper editors as a way of overcoming the inefficiencies and blunders characterizing so many local administrations.

During the question period at the lecture the Commissioner was asked whether he felt political machines were good for this country. He replied that we'd have to work with them, since they were the only ones we have.

Honesty, the Commissioner believes, is the only possible policy for administration on any level. He repeatedly emphasized the need for truthfulness, using Puerto Rican problems in New York as a case in point.

Moses said that the governor of Puerto Rico was far more willing to discuss this problem, created by migration of over 350,000 Puerto Ricans to New York during the past three years, than were cit officials.

HE CITED some facts and figures on the tremendous problem this migration has created. The housing situation is one of these. Assuming that one room per immigrant is needed, and multiplying the cost of building one room, $2,560 by the number of rooms needed, one gets an idea of the obstacles encountered in planning a civic program to deal with such problems.

The Commissioner was particularly vigorous in his denunciation of "those who have tried to force independent candidates off the New York ballot." He said that he felt ex-Mayor Impellitteri was "sold down the river" by power conscious politicians. Moses also described the lack "of a decent primary" in this city.

Robert Moses is a tall, powerfully built man who appears far younger than his almost 70 years. He speaks forcefully, radiating some of the personal charm and vigor which have been largely responsible for his almost unbelievable success in a city where administrations come and go but Moses seems to go on forever.

Syracuse Cagers Defeated By Canisius Griffins, 81-70

Canisius' Golden Griffins handed Syracuse its ninth loss of the season last night with an 81-70 victory on the Archbold hardwood. The Griffins grabbed a five-point advantage at the half and were never seriously threatened after that.

The Griffins employed a deliberate, slow-moving offense, completely dominating the boards, to pull away in the second half.

SYRACUSE GOT close just once after the intermission, when Kline drove for a bucket and Breland scored on a fast-break to cut the deficit to 59-53 early in the fourth quarter.

The visitors solved the Saltine full-court press, however, and maintained a substantial margin until the finish.

Capt. Jimmy Young paced the Canisius attack with 28 points including a court record-tying string of 12 straight free throws. John McCarthy, Don Dunn and Bob Adams also hit for double figures.

Jack Larned topped the Orange with 16 points while Manny Breland added 11 and Dave Kline 10.

Bob Kelly of Canisius opened the evening's scoring with a jump shot but Larned retaliated on a drive. The lead bounced around during most of the period until Young hit with a set and Dunn scored twice from in close to give the Griffs a 19-15 advantage at the quarter.

The Buffalonians held the lead until Syracuse drew even at 27-27 on Kline's free throw with four minutes left in the half.

FRAN CORCORAN hit on a jump shot but Breland countered with a three-pointer to give Syracuse the advantage. Corcoran hit again and Young tallied twice with only Larned's foul point to break the string. Mel Besdin tallied a pair of free throws but McCarthy caged a one-pointer and Dunn scored from the field for a 38-33 Canisius lead at halftime.

Th lead changed hands nine times during the half and was tied on seven other occasions.

Adams, Kelly and McCarthy combined for six straight points as the third period opened and the Griffs were contented to wait for "good" shots the rest of the way.

Canisius hit on 26 of 66 shots from the field for a percentage of 39.4 while the Orange went 25 for 78 and 32.1 per cent.

The loss evens the Piety record at nine-and-nine with games remaining against Penn State and Colgate. Canisius has won eight of 19 contests.

ID Cards Needed For Friday Dances

Identification cards will be required for admission to the weekly Friday night dances in the dance studio of the Women's building.

The first in a series of 13 weekly dances will begin at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow, according to Miss Margaret Parker, social director of the University.

Ray Caldiero and his orchestra will provide the music for this week's informal mixer. Students are requested to dress informally.

The dances were begun upon the request of student government leaders to the policy board of the Women's building. Admission is free.

Registration Set For Casowasco

Registration is being held this week for Chapel House reps conference at Casowasco Friday and Saturday.

Unlike the House Reps conference in October, this weekend will also be open to members of other chapel committees and fellowships. A limited number of places will be available for students not directly connected with the Hendricks Chapel program.

Tobogganing, sledding and other winter sports have been planned. Tickets costing $6 will cover all expenses including transportation and meals.

CITY WOMEN

Syracuse's city women's club will hold it's first supper meeting of the new semester at 5-7 p.m. tonight in the city women's lounge of the Women's building.

All city girls interested are invited to attend. Price of the supper will be $.50.

Concert Will Feature New Yorkers' Works

Compositions by composers of the Central New York area will be featured in the concert of the Krasner chamber music ensemble slated for 8:15 p.m. today in the May Memorial Church auditorium. The second in a series of concert forums will follow the program, with the composers participating.

Prof. Louis Krasner of the School of Music will conduct the ensemble, with Dr. William P. Hotchkiss, chairman of the history department, moderating the discussion. Dr. Alexander Capurso, director of the music school, will introduce the program.

COMPOSERS TAKING part in the forum include Harold Cook, Joseph McGrath, Robert Palmer, Arthur Frackenpohl, Franklin Morris, David Johnson and Morris Mamorsky.

Also on the panel will be Ernest Bacon, composer-in-residence at Syracuse university. The composers will debate their philosophies of music and the writing of chamber music.

The first movement of Harold Cook's "String Quartet" will open the program. Cook is a native of Lebanon, Pa., and received his master's degree from Syracuse university. He is a former instructor in the School of Music and is first flutist of the Syracuse symphony orchestra.

Next on the program will be "String Quartet in B Minor" by Joseph McGrath, a faculty member of the School of Music and organist-director at St. Mary's Cathedral. He states, "Tonalty (inclusive of modality) has a continued validity but can and must be expanded to embrace all relevant accretions of modernity. The initial idea of the composer should determine the style and musical materials to be used in bringing the original idea to fruition."

ROBERT PALMER, whose string quartet will be performed, studied at Eastman School of Music and under Roy Harris and Aaron Copeland. He is now associate professor of music at Cornell university.

Arthur Fraskenpohl, whose "Sonata for Violin and Piano" will be presented, is a graduate of Eastman and studied composition with Bernard Rogers, Darious Milhaud and Nadia Boulanger. He is on the faculty of the State Teachers' college at Potsdam.

A "Trio Sonata No. 1 in D for oboe, violin, 'cello and harpsichord" will then be presented. Its composer, Franklin Morris, studied with Walter Piston, at Harvard and with Richard Donovan and Paul Hindemith at Yale. He is now a teacher of theory and history of music here.

"Partita for String Trio and Tenor Voice on the Chorale" written by David M. Johnson, will be performed. Johnson studied with Ernest Bacon and Rosario Scalero and is now on the faculty of the School of Music, also acting as organist-director at the South Presbyterian church.

MORRIS Mamorsky's "String Quartet No. 2" will conclude the musical program. Mamorsky studied composition at Yale university and has provided music for many radio and television shows in recent years.

Members of the ensemble include Krasner and Adrienne Galimer Krasner, violins; Claude Bortel, viola; Alfred Ozolins, 'cello; Wilfred Burkle, oboe; Franklin Morris, harpsichord; Arthur Frackenpohl, piano; and Stanley Roelofs, tenor.

McElheran Will Lead First Chorale Concert

Syracuse university singers will be in the spotlight when the Syracuse Chorale presents its first concert of the season at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 24, at the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts. Brock McElheran, conductor of the Crane Collegiate Singers of the State University Teachers' college in Potsdam, New York, will be guest conductor.

Among those singing with the group will be Dr. Malcolm MacLaren, chairman of the classical language department; Prof. Lawrence Longley of the art department; Miss Nancy Johnson, a student dean in Shaw dormitory; Edwin Flath, graduate student in organ; Donald Ingrahn and Barbara Stener, seniors in Fine Arts.

OTHERS INCLUDE Virginia Taber, Fine Arts junior; Donald Buck, Liberal Arts sophomore and Philip allen, engineering graduate student. Guest soloists will be Lorraine Smorol, soprano, a senior in Fine Arts; Robert Evans, tenor in Fine Arts; and Frederick Griesinger, bass, a sophomore in Fine Arts.

Crawford Reviews 'Religious Climate' During 35 Years

Vice-Chancellor Cites Trends at Syracuse At Convocation

Syracuse has set the pattern for the rest of the nation by creating a climate that is favorable to religion, Vice-chancellor Finla G. Crawford told a meeting of Chapel house reps last Thursday.

Reviewing his 35 years on the Syracuse campus, the vice-chancellor termed this the most significant development of the period.

TEN OTHER outstanding trends were listed by the veteran administrator. Physical expansion, particularly in the great building periods of 1929 and after World War II, was noted.

"Although HL is built in a style of architecture that was the very best type of the 1880's because it was conducive to easy use of space, we're going to see more of this mordern architecture," Dr. Crawford predicted.

Discussing the decentralization of the faculty, he noted that the faculty "used to live under the eaves of the University."

"The personnel program of the University has to be altered to take the place of the personal relationship we used to have when students had the opportunity to get into faculty homes easily," he said.

"SYRACUSE SHOULD be proud of its facilities for married students," he said, recalling his undergraduate days at Alfred university when there were two married students in the whole school.

A shift of cultural and educational power is being made along with the shift of economic and military power of the world to the United States, he stated, citing the large number of foreign students studying here.

Dr. Crawford told the Chapel audience that Syracuse will do a gross business of over $3 million in research contracts this year, adding that the figure will be $6 million within three years.

"This research is one of the great services Syracuse university is rendering to government and to industry," he said.

ADDITIONAL SERVICES of the University were mentioned in connection with its extra-mural programs at Utica college and throughout central New York as well as its post-entry programs in Russian languages, army controllership, forestry, law and other colleges.

The vice-chancellor cited the heavy graduate program on the campus as a recent record. Of the 9,000 students on campus, 2,000 are graduate students.

"Syracuse has become a great residential institution and we will become more so," he stated, pointing out how this distinguishes Syracuse from many other large urban universities.

The development of a top management group at Syracuse was mentioned as another significant change over the years. "When Chancellor James Roscoe Day ran Syracuse there were no vice-chancellors or vice-presidents," he said. "Now we have a top management team making the decisions."

The semi-formal affair will be open to the entire University for the first time since engineering classes returned to campus from Thompson rd. locations. Theme of the dance is based on the St. Patrick's Day celebration.

St. Patrick is patron saint of the engineers.

Charles Rogers will act as overall chairman of the Ball. He is assisted by illiam Hannett, publicity chairman; Fred Lyman, tickets; John Maksymiack, decorations, and Fred Boenig and Joseph Verzino, queen committee.

Ticket sales will be announced at a later date.

PROFESSOR SAWYER FALK, head of the drama department gives last minute instructions to BARBARA HUSH, preceding the opening tonight of "Lysistrata." Syracusans will view the performance at 8:15 p.m. in the Drama building.

Comedy to Mark 50th Anniversary Of Boar's Head

By MARIA HEITZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A gala opening night is predicted for the Boar's Head presentation of "Lysistrata" when the curtain rises at 8:15 p.m. for the Greek comedy, which will be played to a near capacity crowd.

The production will be given in the drama building on the same stage which accommodated last year's "Tempest." "Lysistrata" will be the first play to be given this year which marks the drama honorary's 50th anniversary.

AMONG ALL the other last-minute preparations which have occupied the minds of persons involved in the production, is the problem of the quagmire in front of the Drama building.

Professor Falk stated that the building committee has assured him that "gravel and a boardwalk will be placed in front of the building so that it may be conveniently approached" by the first-nighters. The comfort of its patrons in this matter has been guaranteed by the department.

According to the latest estimations tickets sold for the production number 500 and indicate the biggest advance sale since the drama groups have occupied Machinery hall, the present drama building.

A few tickets are still available for tonight's performance, according to Maris Ubans, box office business manager. Students wishing to obtain tickets for performances this weekend or next should contact the box office, 4-2776 any time between 10 a.m. or 9 p.m. daily.

TO CARRY out the festive atmosphere of opening night ushers and usherettes will be attired in tuxedos and formal gowns, as they accompany people to their seats. Adequate cloak room facilities have also been provided.

Tickets have been selling at $1.00 and $1.50, but special rates for aggregations numbering 10 or more are in effect. For groups of 10-15 persons, rates will be $1.30 and 85 cents.

Groups consisting of more than 15 persons may obtain seats at $1.25 and 80 cents, by making their reservations at the box office.

The cast numbering 60 students held their dress rehearsal last night. The costumes which were designed by Mario Forte of the Fine Arts college, are fashioned in the Grecian mode and are indicative of the entire production and set which follows the tradition as closely as possible.

Aside from Barbara Hush, who plays the lead in "Lysistrata" principals in the cast also include Shirley Fenner, Joanne Reed, Millicent McIntyre, Frances Trantum, Sue Taylor, Gerald Reidenbaugh, drama instructor and Gerald Leider, faculty adviser to the group.

Miss Dalton Outlines WSG Assembly Work

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

To legislate, to report on proceedings and to work in panels were the duties of women's student government assembly members as outlined by President Mary Anne Dalton in a report on the present state of WSG at last night's assembly meeting.

In what she termed a "re-evaluation of our own self-importance", Miss Dalton elaborated that each assembly woman serves as the most important member of her living center. Her duty, in addition to actual legislation, is therefore to offer criticism, and to present the views of those at home.

MISS DALTON divided her message into sections concerned with legislation, the WSG constitution, Civil service and comments on the assembly. She did not include panel activities in the address since reports sufficiently covered these last week.

Definite plans for the incorporation of a permanent joint student court as a part of student government were discussed as an event of major significance. Previously the court has existed only by executive agreement of WSG and MSG presidents, renewed each year.

If the joint court is established on a permanent basis, justices will have a definite manual of procedure which they have lacked in the past.

WSG and MSG are now conducting study on the practicality and usefulness of National Students association on this campus, according to Miss Dalton. This study includes an investigation of NSA projects and the amount of money spent by the organization. A report is scheduled to be given later this semester, if possible.

"Involving almost revolutionary controversies and conflicts," is the desire of student government to control budgets of all campus activities, Miss Dalton reported.

INDIVIDUAL BUDGETS at present are under the jurisdiction of various academic departments and advisors. If a budget act went into effect the system would be centralized and student government would handle funds allotted to campus organizations.

Miss Dalton urged all who would change the WSG constitution to propose innovations this semester while the present incumbents can give advice based on their understanding of the fundamentals involved in drawing up the document which went into effect this fall.

The WSG president stated that mid-semester reports of all activities are being filed and that Standards council is preparing a review of all policy decisions.

In addition, Civil Service reports have already been filed for the semester. These include a recapitulation of the Through the Keyhole program, which has been largely revised this year toward modern methods of teaching. The program will also include an improvement in selection of guides, the public relations area and study of relationships between city, foreign and campus guides.

Miss Dalton commended the WSG secretary-treasurer on formation of an office procedure for more effectvie administration of the executive.

Missing persons

There are some "holes" on campus.

Wait, this is not another editorial on the physical problems of the University ground, (which were solved temporarily yesterday in an unexpected manner).

The "holes" of which we are writing are the vacancies in the men's student government organization. To be exact, there are eight holes in this group.

Although this may not seem a large number in itself, one must consider that it is over 20 per cent of the entire assembly membership.

In fact, it was by a vote of only six representatives that the controversial political parties act was passed.

The vacancies are mostly in the sophomore class. Here five members are needed: two in the fraternity group and three independents.

Looking at the problem from another aspect, four of the eight vacancies are in the independent category. A complete filling of these independent slots would mean that only the absolute minimum of unafiliated male students had taken the opportunity to become active in MSG.

Those joining the assembly now can still participate in the work of the panels. The problem of centralization of student activities, pre-registration, reserved seating, the National Students' association and intramural insurance are only a few of the pertinent problems with which men's student government will concern itself for the next three months.

Joining the group now will also provide the legislator with needed experience and qualifications for work in government next year. It may also provide any candidate with a record on which to run, should his work be outstanding.

Seniors should contact Barbara Suchy; juniors, Leonard Eisen; sophs, Margaret White and frosh, Arlene Plotkin, the officers who will submit applications to their respective class assemblies.

This is no time for more holes.

Wallflower?

Ah, pedanticism, what interesting things are crushed in thy name.

The commentary here is a simple one. The question quite basic, and the action discussed a most economical move.

We bring to your attention the Friday night dances at the Women's building. Any lack of attendance could be due to a hodgepodge of reasons.

1. We are a campus of wealthy young men who take none but the best and most expensive for our ladies fair.

Well . . . ah, no. We can say that, we believe, without affronting the young tycoons in our midst. A goodly number of us squeek through the weekly movie and coffee date with a minimum allowance for getting our shirts cleaned.

2. We and our fellow students are basically anti-social and refuse to waste time and social composure on entertaining women for an evening.

Negative. The seige laid to women's living centers come weekends dismisses this thought without question.

3. Although the flickers and idle companionship may be fine, we men just don't delve into the fancy footwork of dancing.

On the basis of last weekend, we and our feet just don't agree. In fact, a little dancing seems very agreeable after a hard day in the slush.

Which brings us to our question. Why not drop around to the dance studio Friday evening for an inexpensive, sociable evening with a little music for toe work?

The local busses have a sign which reads "It's work to drive; why drive to work?" A date is no work, (in most cases), so why not foot it over to the Women's building tomorrow night?.

Revolt in the Masses

By ART SIEGEL
Managing Editor

If you've ever wanted something really badly, you've probably found that someone else—maybe a lot of someones—felt the same way. When many of these persons gather, psychologists term them a "crowd" and psychologists have appropriate textbooks and theories dealing with the behavior of these collective masses of humanity.

Crowds were particulary heavy at last week's barefoot ball—the Stockingfoot. We had a great time but we came up with several suggestions that could alleviate the crowd situation and its cohort, the problem of lines.

A med student tells us that the average human—if he exists—occupies approximately seven cubic feet in volume. Those who knew Archimedes intimately will no doubt agree.

Many of us, unfortunately, have been leading academic lives too long and occupy considerably more than that.

Therefore, we suggest that next time you anticipate a crowded evening with limited floor space, you embark on a rigorous diet of yogurt and stale rye bread to reduce your volume to six cubic feet—as a very minimum.

We recommend to next year's committee that all persons exceeding this limit be categorically banned. All persons suspect of violation should be weighed—with their own pennies.

Next we should all visit Arthur Murray and persuade him to offer a course in "Swaying." This is much more practical than bumping—or is it dancing?—in a crowded area, and if made a requirement we would all sway and no one would try to glide over the dance floor thus injuring thousands of content swayers.

Then, if we are double-dating, we should get to know the backs of our doubles' heads—so we can find them in the crowd. And we should carry flares—small ones—to signal them when we are about to part or have something interesting to tell them.

We should carry along pocket ash trays if ash trays will not be near.

And we should come equipped with a pair of collapsible shoes if we are going to a shoeless dance. Thus, if there is a long line at the checkroom we can run out to get the car and come back the next day for the shoes.

Crowds are really fun, though. Look at all the people you get to say hello to—as they walk over you.

Listen, you think it's bad around here? In the army you have to stand on line to get on line! And then you find out it's the wrong one.

Jazzy Sponsor; 'Snappy' Card; Missing Dime

Bop notes: Those recent "crazy commercials" carried by local radio stations concerning Army Reserve enlistment have had listeners slightly perplexed as to the object.

The commercials having such lines as "Blank Division is the Most to Say the Least" are explained by Lawrence Myers of the Radio-TV Center faculty. Mr. Myers, who also happens to be the writer of these, says it attracts the audience's attention. Yeah!

One of the valentines we received caused an odd twist of fate. A former friend of ours from Cornell (we parted after our last win over them in Archbold) sent us a booby trapped card. We were taking a shower when we heard the trap go off and found one of our roommates shocked at the mouse trap on his thumb and red-faced at being caught going through the mail. Not knowing what to do, he grinned sheepishly and remarked, "Well, Happy Valentine's Day, anyhow."

Gripe Dept. This concerns the poor patrons of the pay-phone. Upon calling the University, these poor souls are sometimes notified of a wrong connection or a busy extension and asked to call back and then hung up on. The University operators seem to have very little regard for the value of a dime, and some people have to deposit up to 50 cents to reach an office or department. We know there isn't much you can buy with a nickel any more, but we hope the University operators aren't starting the same movement on the dime. Times are hard enuf'. Enuf' said?

Mud Bowl Dept: Sure is funny to see people who pass the obstacle course in front of Machinery hall bending down on the sidewalk at Lyman and kissing the good old "terra firma". The Campus Canines have had their fill of the stuff too, and many a begrudged owner has had to get out the soap, water, and flea powder, especially for the new brown coat. The only ones who seem to enjoy the mud are the kiddies at the Nursery School on College Ave. Mud pies, of course!

And now if you'll excuse us, we must polish our skiis. After yesterday's rain deluge, we're willing to try anything to outwit the mud.

A Plea

We are now reduced to an absolute plea.

Over the last week the Daily Orange has received various letters that touch upon topics of interest both to the paper and the student body. HOWEVER, these letters have been unsigned and therefore it has been impossible to print them.

Any student who writes in MUST sign his or her name to the letter. The Daily Orange will print a pen name if requested, but the editors must know the identity of the author.

This policy has been established for reasons obvious, at least, to writers on controversial subjects.

AT THE FLICKERS

THE KID STEALS THE SHOW

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

There is an old adage in the theter that runs something like this: Never play a scene with a child or an animal act for they'll steal it every time." This adage is based on sound audience psychology, for the mere fact that the performing child is probably up way past his bed time immediately disposes the audience in his favor. The producers of "Little Fugitive", now on view at the Eckel, doubtedly had this in mind when they made the film.

They hit upon Coney Island, with its multiplicity of games and rides, as the logical setting for a child to mug to his life's content. Having made this decision, the problem was how to get him there. So, they whiffed up some fluff about his having been tricked into believing that he had accidentally killed his brother. His brother's friends advise him to "take it on the lam" and he flees to Coney Island.

However, the producers, Morris Engel and Ray Ashley never allow the boy, Joey, to be perturbed too long about his "crime" and they rest of the picture concerns itself with his various exploits on the sand, boardwalk and waters of Coney Island. If this description leads you to believe that "Little Fugitive" is a slight and relaxing film it has given you the correct impression.

It is in the choice of Richie Andrusco as Joey that the producers found their trump card. The sight of Richie struggling with a hot frankfurter, taking a trick photograph or trying desperately to knock down a row of bottles in an amusement arcade is calculated to melt down the heart of the most confirmed child-hater. The result of this string of charming vignettes is a slight but thoroughly winning film.

Although "Little Fugitive" is undoubtedly thin it is, nevertheless, an important film—important, because it shows conclusively what excellent results can be accomplished with a little money and a lot of imagination, even when one employs the slightest of ideas. For the cinema is first and foremost a visual art and there is no substitute for good photography. A representative example of the ingenuity that went into the making of the film is the colorful background score by Eddy Manson played on one lone harmonica.

Being an unconventional feature film "Little Fugitive" should not be judged by ordinary standards. In its class, however, it emerges a film of great charm and inventiveness.

IN CAMPUS CHEST:

Friends Service Committee

(Fourth of a series explaining the functions of Campus Chest.)

Whether it be the library, Women's building or their fraternal organizations, students here have a spot to sit, study and talk. Students throughout the world do not all have such facilities though and frequently those who do are indebted to the American Friends Service Committee, one of the beneficiaries of the Syracuse Campus Chest, for their luck.

AFSC does not prescribe charity alone. It provides students with an opportunity for "self-help." The world wide organization tries only to provide a "living experience" for the needy.

It provides food, clothing, medicine, neighborhood centers, refugee services and international centers. These services and projects are frequently employed in poverty stricken areas to aid people to get back on their feet.

Most of the work is done in Europe, India, Pakistan and our own country, providing positive action in peace making during both war and post-war years.

In addition, thousand of college and high school students learn "living experience" throughout the year by studying and living together with people from many lands, of many races and religions. They also work together in city slums, in war-devasted lands—and poverty stricken rural areas to gain added knowledge.

20 Bachelors Keep House On Ostrom

By GEORGE MEEK

In the Syracuse men's co-op, at 516 Ostrom ave., 20 students take care of all the chores from cooking to dusting and enjoy doing it.

The co-op, described by members as halfway between independent and fraternity living, provides inexpensive room and board, and a chance to work and play together in a spirit of cooperation.

There are no membership restrictions regarding race, creed, or color—the only requirements are financial need and a willingness to devote free time to work details.

Details employ time that would otherwise be wasted, according to the co-op men, and do not interfere with schoolwork. No housekeepers are employed, and each student works a few hours a week on a rotating schedule.

The house contains a number of spacious, completely furnished rooms, each with two or three occupants. Improvements now being carried out include painting the halls and building a basement game room.

Menus at the co-op are planned by the men themselves, aiming at maximum satisfaction. As an exclusive co-op feature, each student may bring in one woman a month as a dinner guest.

A social program from dances to coffees is offered. The Co-op Weekend, an annual event, includes a picnic, banquet, semi-formal and University open house. It occurs in the latter part of April.

Co-op leaders recommend the program as a good way to save money and build character. The more students that apply for admission to the co-op, the cheaper the rates can be. At the University of Michigan the large number of students in the co-op, 175, live economically at forty dollars per month for room and board.

If about 30 new applicants for the co-op program can be found, it may be possible to add an additional house to the program. The present building is University owned, but a building fund is being established to enable the organization to buy the residence.

The present co-op rates are $14 a week for room and board. A 90 cent telephone charge each month permits unlimited local calling. Total expenses at the co-op are less than $500 a year, or $2000 less than the new men's dormitories.

The Syracuse co-op has been active in campus activities, receiving first place trophies in the independent men's division of the last Winter Weekend sculpture contest and last fall's Colgate poster contest.

First & 10 for Drama

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

On the the eve of his first production of the current stage season, Prof. Sawyer Falk takes much the same attitude as a football coach approaching the initial encounter.

There is a team of actors standing in readiness and the prize to won is approval by their first night audience which will venture to the Drama building this evening at 8:15 for the Boar's Head production of "Lysistrata." Prof. Falk predicts victory.

As head of dramatic activities on the Syracuse campus and director of Aristophanes' comedy of ancient Greece, Prof. Falk finds his company "deep in strength" and happily concedes that the "Lysistrata" cast is one of the "nicest" he has ever worked with. Almost everyone in the drama department is associated with the production in some capacity or other.

Speaking on his interpretation of the drama, Falk noted that Aristophanes is "one of our most tremendous writers for the stage." However, since the play was originally written for Greek audiences in an ancient outdoor theater, the director first faced the problem of bringing the text up-to-date; a restatement of "Lysistrata" for modern performance.

Citing his approach, Falk noted that the Boar's Head version will not assume a lecture mood but will simply entertain. He threw in the phases "exurberance" and "carnival spirit" to describe the modern flavoring applied.

There is static to be found in "Lysistrata" and Falk points out that ensemble playing will assume an important part in the production. This factor brought up another difficulty in presentation. Since Aristophanes had written the satire for large groups, the mass movement had to be modified somewhat while retaining the "full-bodied" quality of the production.

He also emphasized that small parts are important in "Lysistrata" as well as the larger roles. "One or two lines spoken by a minor character have great weight," he noted.

Prof. Falk also glanced into the future to point out that two other plays are currently in rehearsal for presentation in the very near future. These are "Gigi," to be debuted around March 1, and "Another Part of the Forest," slated for April 1 at Drumlins. These may overlap "Lysistrata."

Falk also spoke of a new drama, "Cretan Woman" by Robinson Jeffers, which he has been asked to direct on Broadway in the fall. Plans for this are incomplete, at this point.

But "Lysistrata" will be Sawyer Falk's main concern for the next few weeks.

The lamps burned late in the drama building last night and they will continue to do so as a ambitious group of theater people accomplish one venture after another; each, we trust, with more pleasant success than the last.

Frosh Cagers Top LeMoyne, 83-71, To Register Tenth Win of Season

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Sparked by Vin Cohen and Gary Clark, Syracuse's frosh basketball team defeated the rugged LeMoyne college yearlings, 83-71, at Archbold gymnasium last night. The victory was the tenth of the campaign for Coach Andy Mogish's team, which needed an outstanding second period performance to beat the cross-town quintet.

COACH MOGISH started the same quintet that had opened in the last three frosh games. Cohen, Clark, Jim Snyder, Vin Albanese and Lou Stark were the starting five but they had a difficult time staying with the hustling Dolphins in the opening minutes of play.

The crosstown squad took the lead at the outset of the first period but three baskets by Jim Brown, inserted as a substitute early in the quarter, kept Syracuse in contention. LeMoyne pulled away to a four-point, 22-1 advantage with one minute remaining in the quarter. Clark's close-range jump shot with 10 seconds left tied the score at the end of the period, 22-22.

In the second quarter, Clark and Cohen gave brilliant performances. Big Gary, the 6 ft.-4 center for the Hill team, hit for two driving baskets in the early moments of the period as Syracuse moved to a 28-24 lead. Clark, who had not been outstanding in the scoring department in recent yearling games, gave further evidence of a return to early season form with two more field goals.

THE SECOND half was a close one, but the big lead built up by the Piety squad before the intermission proved an insurmountable obstacle for the Dolphins. The home team's margin varied from nine to 17 points as LeMoyne was unable to make the game close and Syracuse could not break the contest open.

CAPT. PETE POTTER of the Virginia boxing team is a versatile athlete as well as one of the best collegiate pugilists in the country. This fall, Potter was also co-captain of the Cavalier football team.

Orange Boxers Prep For Southern Battle

Intensive practice is being held daily by Coach Roy Simmons and his Orange boxers in preparation for the coming trip to Virginia and the important match with the Cavaliers on Saturday night.

The undefeated Piety pugilists find themselves in the rare position of being underdogs for a dual meet. Although Virginia has lost to Louisiana State university, 5½-2½, and only drew Army, 4-4, a team which the Orange beat, the Southerners have been installed as slight favorites.

THIS PAST week Simmie has been attempting to fill certain evident weak spots in the Syracuse lineup. Bruce Yancey, who fought heavyweight last weekend at Penn State, will be moved down to his regular 178-pound weight class, and either Sam Alexander, who gave the Nittany Lions' Adam Kois a very good fight on Saturday, or Don MacRae will fight at the heavy slot.

The rest of the Syracuse lineup should remain the same. Frank Guell, improving with every bout, will open the evening at 125-pounds, followed by his roommate, Jerry "the Spoiler" Jaffe at 132-pounds. Jaffe is called the spoiler by Simmie because no opponent looks good against his individualistic style.

John Granger, the old standby, will fight in his customary 139-pound position followed by Larry O'Sullivan at 147-pounds. O'Sullivan has been plagued by bad luck lately and is hoping to regain his form of old on Saturday.

Newcomer Joe McCord is the logical choice to open at 155-pounds since he is the only real middleweight on the squad. Joe fought well at Penn State but was simply overmanned by his opponent.

THE ALTERNATIVE solution, to move O'Sullivan and Granger up a weight and put Art Nelson at 139-pounds, isn't feasible since NCAA ring rules state that a boxer must in post season tourneys compete in the weight in which he fought three-fourths of his dual bouts. Granger and O'Sullivan are both more valuable to the Orange in its bid to regain the Eastern crown for the sixth straight year at their present weight.

Undefeated Vince Rigolosi will box at 165-pounds, probably against the Cavalier Capt. Pete Potter, which should be the bout of the evening. This is the third year that Potter has captained the Virginia boxers, a record at the Southern institute of higher education.

Three members of the current Syracuse boxing team are sporting undefeated records. Co-Capts. John Granger and Vince Rigolosi have three wins each under their belts, as has flashy soph Jerry Jaffe. Soph Frank Gueli follows close behind with two wins in three outings.

LAST HOME MEET

Saturday's gymnastic meet between Syracuse university and Navy will be the last home appearance of the Orange gymnasts for the '54 season. Student tickets are 40 cents while the general admission price is $1.20.

Yearling Swimmers Seek Initial Win

By BOB GROGAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Two contests are on tap for the frosh swimmers of Coach Ted Webster as they face Wyoming Seminary at 4:00 p.m. and Academy High School of Erie, Pa., at 7:00 p.m. Friday in the Orange Pool.

The Tangerine splashers have an 0-1 record having lost to Albany Academy in their lone appearance of the season. Following tomorrow's two meets will be one against Manlius here next Tuesday.

WHILE THE frosh are not too deep in any event, there are several boys who are capable of good performances. Webster will probably juggle his lineup to give his team a chance to compete in a variety of events. He is not too concerned about the over-all record of the frosh but would like to get a lead on what he has for next season's varsity meets.

In the freestyle, Webster expects big things of Graham Vanderveer who has been very impressive in recent workouts. The frosh from Lakewood, Ohio has looked extremely good at the longer distances and should become an outstanding performer in the 440-yard freestyle next season.

Also included among the frosh swimmers are Dave Stoll, a former interscholastic all-American diver from Rochester, Jon Buzzard and John McGill. McGill and Buzzard will probably compete in the backstroke and breaststroke.

11 Teams Fighting For Top Positions In WAA Leagues

By JODY CRONAU

With the WAA basketball tournament past the midway mark, 11 squads are battling to retain first place positions in their respective leagues.

Playing last week, Theta Phi Alpha's squad rolled to their fourth straight victory as they trimmed Shaw 3B, 23-17. Marilyn Bobeli, Theta Phi, bucketed 17 points for the Monday night league leaders. Anne Tullar, Shaw, hit for 17.

PECK II, TIED with Theta Phi for Monday night honors, recorded their fourth win as they beat Phi Sigma Sigma 25-17. Peck II forwards Jane Jellison and Nancy Boerner scored 12 and 11 points respectively.

Shaw 3C-E notched their second win as the result of a forfeit from Gensee. League leaders Kappa Alpha Theta and Delta Gamma added a pair of wins to their records.

Kappa Alpha Theta, boasting outstanding defensive work, held Charles, 18-11, to gain their third triumph of the season. Delta Gamma took their third straight win as they topped Chi Omega, 26-16. Joan Janecek, Delta Gamma, tipped in 14 tallies.

In the frosh field, Sims III walked over Hafts, 34-10, as captain Libby Harner, playing with a broken finger, and Leona Wilenski, Sims, each hit for 12.

Mace annexed a forfeit from Lund.

PI PHI, Tuesday league team, trampeled Brewster 21-2, for their second win of the season as Pi Phi Lynna Stephens scored 10 markers.

Tied for the Tuesday league lead with Pi Phi, Alpha Delta Pi took a forfeit from Sigma Kappa.

Trailing Pi Phi and Alpha Delta Pi are: Gamma Phi Beta, Brewster, Alpha Phi and Delta Delta Delta.

In Tuesday afternoon league play, Wilson downed Geneva 30-6 as Wilson's Barbara Hagaman and Lois Henke chipped in with 13 and 12 markers respectively. Wilson, Wilbur-Woodworth and Haven are currently tied for first place in their division.

IN MONDAY league bowling play, Alpha Xi Dlta, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Haven Hall downed Parker, Phillips and Sigma Kappa.

Mace, Tuesday league team, defeated the Syracuse City Coeds, while Delta Gamma and Schultze won forfeits from Alpha Omicron Pi and Hurst.

Wednesday teams Sims II and Heffron topped Sigma Tau Delta and Fairfield. Charles, led by Doris Hutchinson with 143, trounced Alpha Gamma Delta by more than 100 pins.

Tangerine Grapplers Seek Second Consecutive Win

Syracuse's frosh wrestlers will attempt to make it two straight this Saturday when they travel to Hamilton to meet the Colgate yearlings in their fourth meet of a six match schedule.

Last Saturday, the Tangerines finally broke into the win column with a 28-6 win over Oswego State Teachers' college at Oswego. Previously, the Frosh grapplers lost dual meets to Cornell and Wyoming Seminary.

COACH MCDANIEL will field the identical lineup that participated in Saturday's romp over Oswego.

Don Clark will be starting at the 123 pound slot, followed by Jim Rooney, Win Bushnell and Jaap Boosman in the 130, 137 and 147 pound divisions.

Ronald Marinelli, Bob Smith, Jim Leutze and Bob Gage round out the remaining starting posts. Of the eight starters, only Leutze and Gage lost at Oswego.

At the 157 pound slot, Marinelli will be seeking his third victory, against no setbacks. Marinelli won his opening bout against Wyoming Seminary, was sidelined for the Cornell match, and then returned to action with a win in last Saturday's meet.

ANOTHER FROSH who promises to give the Red Raiders trouble is Smith. The 167-pound frosh lost his opening bout but was victorious against Cornell and Oswego. With Hank Gobetz graduating this June, Smith is in line for a starting post next year if he continues to improve.

Following this week's meet, the frosh will return home to meet Oswego next Saturday and on the 27th, they close their season with a return match against Cornell.

Meanwhile, the Orange varsity will be meeting Lehigh university in Pennsylvania in an attempt to get back to winning ways. Coach McDaniel, as in the frosh match, will go with the same lineup that wrestled last weekend.

Co-Capt. Ed Rooney who is undefeated in his dual meet bouts this year and senior Hank Gobetz, who won in three of his first five outings once again figure to be the Orange's main hopes in the middle and heavyweights.

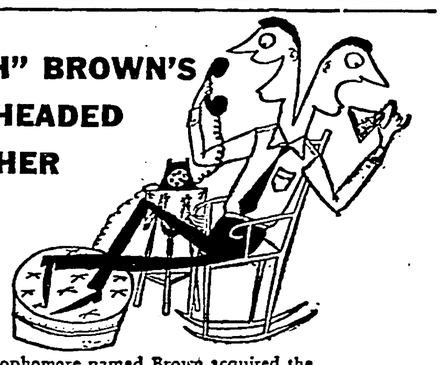
"FLASH" BROWN'S TWO-HEADED BROTHER


A certain Sophomore named Brown acquired the appellation "Flash," not because he was lightning on the gridiron, but just because he was never without an answer.
You'd pass him on the quadrangle and say "How's it goin', Flash?" He'd answer, "Air Express." Get the pitch?
Brown often referred to his "two-headed brother" in conversations. One day a few men in his fraternity were needling him.
"Your brother's two heads must present quite a few problems."
"Not really. The only problem was his neatness," said Flash.
"Neatness?" "Yes," answered Flash, "he worried about it. Said he couldn't find a shirt that didn't wrinkle around the collar. You see, he was often looking in two directions at once, or eating and talking on the telephone. Hard on a collar."
"What did you do?" They knew he did something about it.
"Simple. I got him the Van Heusen Century shirt with the exclusive soft collar that won't wrinkle ever! I got him different collar styles and colors. $3.95 for the white, $4.95 for the colors and superfine whites. You should have seen the grins on his faces when he saw how those collars stayed neat all day and night without starch or stays."
"I guess he can really hold his heads up now," said one.
"Yep. He figures he gets four times more wear from Century than from other shirts. Of course, he actually only gets twice the wear. He just figures in both heads."
One of the men visited Brown at Christmas, and found it was all true.

Coed 'Angel Flight' Will Aid AFROTC

A flock of angels to spur on Air Force ROTC cadets has been organized at Syracuse university; specifically, the Angel's Flight, composed of Hill coeds.

The group, which has been given temporary approval by women's student government, will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in 313 Machinery hall.

FIRST PROJECT by the newly formed organization will be assisting in plans for the annual military ball this spring.

Officials of the organization hope that a women's drill team will be organized as soon as the Flight gets underway. It was emphasized, however, that members of the Angel's Flight are in no way obligated to the military and that membership will in no way lead to a commission in the armed forces.

The group, strictly an honorary, will adhere to the same rules as any other Hill honorary society. Stated aims are to promote and advance interest in the air force, to obtain information concerning the military services and to aid the progress of AFROTC and Syracuse university.

Coeds interested in joining the organization must be in good standing academically. In addition to regular college membership in the group, alumni and honorary members will be appointed.

Applicants must show an interest in the Angel's Flight and the AFROTC program.

Coeds interested in further information have been urged to contact Ann Middleton, 801 Walnut ave., 76-2207.

Ray Caldiero's Orchestra To Play at Mixer Tonight

Ray Caldiero and his orchestra will play from 8:15 p.m. to midnight today at the first of a series of weekly Friday dances to be held in the Women's building dance studio.

The mixer dances will be free to all students with identification cards required for admission. They are stag or drag. Students should dress informally.

ORIGINALLY sponsored by the now defunct Student Union, the dances were resumed this semester as the result of the request by Women's Student Government President Mary Anne Dalton and Men's Student Government President Stanley Leff to the Women's building policy board.

The policy board has set up a budget large enough for several orchestras to play during the semester. The remainder of the dance music will be provided by records.

Arrangements also have been set up for refreshments to be served in the building during the dances. Approximately 13 dances will be held during the semester. They will not conflict with other University dances.

The initial committee to run the dances has been set up by Leff and Miss Dalton, although student governments will not be in charge of the dances.

THE COMMITTEE members include: Nancy Boerner, Ann McKaig, Marley Barkley, Merle Bank, John de Palma, Jerry Gerber, Roger Herz, and Arthur Kinney.

Miss Margaret Parker, social director of the University, and Mrs. Margaret Bonisteel, assistant director of the Women's building, are the advisors for the group.

Before its demise at the end of the 1953 spring term, the Student Union also sponsored weekly Tuesday night dance classes. Mr. Walter Medicis, who handled the Union dances, will aid in setting up classes in the dance studio of the Women's building for advanced and beginning classes. They tentatively have been set to begin next week.

Many of the Union's other activities also will be moved to the Women's building. The browsing library on the third floor will receive magazines formerly subscribed to by the Union.

It is hoped that card tables can be set up on the third floor for games also sponsored by the Union. Movies also are a possibility for the Women's building activities' schedule.

Brotherhood Speaker

RABBI EDWARD T. SANDROV will be the speaker at Sunday's brotherhood service at 10:50 a.m. in the Chapel. Rabbi Sandrov heads the congregation of Temple Beth El of Cedarhurst, Long Island. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania.

Two Student Groups Recognized by WSG

Two campus organizations have been approved by women's student government assembly and are recognized Hill groups as of Wednesday evening.

Constitutions of Angel's Flight and United World Federalists received the WSG nod Wednesday night and the organizations have begun to accept members.

ANGEL'S FLIGHT met last night to draw up plans for the future. Its objects are to advance and promote intefest in the Air Force, obtain information concerning the service and aid the progress of the AFROTC.

The purpose of United World Federalists, as stated in the constitution approved by WSG, is to develop interest at Syracuse university in strengthening the United Nations charter, in creation of a world federalist government and in aid to underdeveloped areas.

Termed a cultural organization by Susan Jakl at Wednesday's assembly meeting, the UWF will function primarily as a discussion group at Syracuse.

Membership of Angel's Flight numbers about 28 and additional interested coeds are sought to join the group. First project will be assisting in plans for the annual military ball this spring. Although members are in no way obligated to the military, officials of the group hope to organize a women's drill team in the future.

Angel's Flight will be run as an honorary whose applicants must be interested in the AFROTC program.

Three MSG Bills Under Discussion

No major business was transacted at Wednesday night's meeting of men's student government.

Conduct and welfare panel Chairman Robert Garver reported that three important bills in his panel will probably be ready for assembly action in two weeks. The bills are the joint student court revision, assembly elections act amendment and joint MSG-WSG report on National Students association.

Ways and means Chairman Richard Sutter said that a subcommittee will be set up to work with Dean of Student Services Fran Piskor on the proposed student activities budget control.

In a brief summary of student government activity this year, speaker pro tem Arthur Kinney listed as specific accomplishments the revamping of assembly rules in MSG, new assembly training program, work on student apathy, traffic lights at College and Walnut pl. and Walnut ave., licensing of student organizations, political parties act passage and approval of United World Federalists constitution.

Dr. Owen to Speak At Lecture Series

English Prof Will Talk On Imagination in World

Dr. David H. Owen, associate professor of English at Syracuse, will speak at a humanities lecture at 4:15 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25, in Maxwell auditorium.

"The Imagination in a Naturalistic World" will be the topic of the lecture, which is the fourth in the 1953-54 series.

Dr. Owen, who specializes in American literature instruction, also teaches in the American studies seminar with Dr. Stuart G. Brown of the citizenship department.

The speaker took his bachelor's degree at Lawrence college and his master's degree at Columbia university. He received his Ph.D. from the State University of Iowa.

Dr. Owen says "The Imagination in a Naturalistic World" will be concerned with developing the imagination's role in our modern scientific world.

Attendance at the first three lectures, given by Niel H. Richardson, Susanne K. Langer, and J. V. Langmead Casserley, was quite heavy, and it is urged that those planning to attend Thursday's lecture get there early to find seats.

As in the previous lectures, the speaker will be available in the evening for questions and discussion. The informal session will be at 8 p.m. in the Faculty club in the Haven hall basement. Both students and faculty are invited.

CAMPUS CHEST TROPHIES

All fraternities, sororities and independent living centers which have trophies from last year's Campus Chest drive are requested to return them to Stuart Smith, Tau Epsilon Phi, immediately.

High Bidders Get Leaders At Chest Rally Tomorrow

"WHAT AM I BID for this fine specimen of young Syracuse manhood?" He can wait on tables, and be funny at request. And all the money goes to Campus Chest, folks. WILLIAM ANGELOS, auctions off ARTHUR SIEGEL, while JACQUELINE JARRET looks provocative, and ROBERT LEFKO looks hopeful that someone will buy him in the auction due Saturday for the fund-raising event. Photo by John Johnsrud

"Come one! Come all! And what am I bid for this campus wheels as a waiter for a night?" That will be the comment of the day at 2 p.m. tomorrow when the Campus Chest pep rally and auction is held on the Library steps.

Fraternities, sororities and independent dining halls will be able to choose from a list of 48 campus leaders, both student and administrative, with the highest bidders having their choice as waiter at Monday night's dinner.

WILLIAM ANGELOS will act as auctioneer and master of ceremonies for the affair with other entertainment provided by twirler Alta Burg and the Fiji Four. Composed of Stuart Parker, Dennis Kless, Philip Huttar and Deane Brink, the Fiji Four will introduce the new Campus Chest song, "It's Campus Chest Time Again."

Words and music for the original song were written by Chester Gino and Arthur Ring. It be a symbol of the entire drive.

Bidding for the campus personalities will be as in any auction with all groups eligible to bid for a candidate, according to co-chairmen Diane Hirshhorn and Stuart Smith.

Organizations are urged to have at least one representative at the auction with the authority to vie for the personalities.

Finances are to be from the organization and not from the individuals. Proceeds from the auction will go to the Campus Chest drive.

In case of rain, the event will be held in Maxwell auditorium.

INCLUDED IN the list of personalities are top faculty members, weekend queens, class officers, athletes and other big wheels. A complete list of the future waiters for a night can be found in The Daily Orange.

The pep rally, which is the first in the history of Campus Chest, will act as the keynote opening of the Campus Chest drive which is scheduled for Feb. 22-March 3. Goal of the drive, according to overall chairmen JoAnn Swalm and Stuart Parker, is $7,500.

Last year, the drive fell under the same goal, collecting $6,600.

CANDIDATES FOR the title of King include Lloyd Dunsker, Beta Sigma Rho; James Messina, Kappa Sigma; Chester Gino, independent; Samuel Shawhan, Sigma Chi; Gregory Doherty, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Konstantinos Salonika, Alpha Chi Rho and a dual candidacy of Robert Lefko and Jack Hennessey, Delta Tau Delta.

Hennessey and Lefko are running as one candidate with hopes of gaining the title of co-kings. A vote for either one will count as a vote for the two.

Entries in the contest for Queen include Audrey Haberle, Mott cottage; Madge Evans, Delta Delta Delta; Arlene Lambert, Alpha Delta Pi; Wilhelmina Werner, Alpha Omicron Pi; Constance Talbott, Alpha Chi Omega; Blanche Krisher, Phi Sigma Sigma and Harriet Ehrlich, Sigma Delta Tau.

CANDIDATES AND their living centers are eligible to campaign in any way they desire including using posters, advertising and personal appearances.

Monday will also be Feather feathers being sold in six spots, Crouse, Maxwell, Lyman, Hall of Languages, between Sims and Slocum and on the quad.

Solicitors for Feather day will be members of various fraternity and sorority houses. These include Delta Gamma, Iota, Alpha Pi, Sigma Tau Delta, Phi Sigma Sigma, Alpha Xi Delta, Delta Tau Delta, Tau Epsilon Phi, Beta Sigma Rho, Sigma Kappa and Phi Delta Theta.

Campus Chest co-chairmen Stuart Parker and JoAnne Swalm and publicity chairmen Robert Lefko will be guests of Joyce Grossman on "Your Show" on WAER on Sunday at 10 p.m. to further explain the functioning of the Campus Chest drive.

Final Book Mart Figures Announced

The student co-operative book mart closed this semester's business transactions Saturday after handling business amounting to $3,618.30, according to Rhoda Pritchard, book mart president.

The book mart is co-sponsored by the book mart organization and Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity. A Phi O's representative to the book mart executive council is Philip Lapidus.

Approximately 1,300 books were sold for students last week, according to Miss Pritchard. These used text books were taken to the mart by students who set their own prices. The books sold at the set price, which averaged between one-half to two-thirds of the original price.

The mart charged the students five cents for books sold for under $1.50 and 10 cents for books sold above that price. This fee went towards covering the operating expenses of the mart.

Sophomore Veep Applications Due

Applications are now being accepted for vice-president of the sophomore class. The vacancy was created when James Hutton, former vice-president, transferred to another university following last semester.

In accordance with the Class Governing act the sophomore executive council will choose two nominees from the applicants. The Soph senate will then vote for the vice-president.

Applications must be handed in by midnight, Tuesday, Feb. 23 to Harriet Ehrlich at Sigma Delta Tau, 336 Comstock ave. or to Margaret White at Lima cottage, 926 South Crouse ave.

Application should include name, telephone number, address, present class activities and an idea for a sophomore class event during the remainder of the year.

Architects Plan Costume Soiree

A theme of "shades and shadows" carried out in costumes of black and white will be featured in a "soiree" party presented by third year architecture students at 8:30 p.m. today at the "Corner House" on Grant blvd.

The party, a take-off on a Beaux Artes ball, will be held in honor of W. B. Moore. There will be prizes for the best costumes and music provided by the Ken Frederick's band. Entertainment will be presented by students.

Any person needing rides to the affair are asked to meet in front of Slocum at 8 p.m. Coeds may get special two's for this dance.

Fellowships Open To Fashion School

Three fashion fellowships covering full tuition of $1,050 for the one-year course at the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Careers are again being offered to senior women graduating in 1954. Winners must be able to finance their living and incidental expenses for nine months in New York.

Final counts indicate that more than 800 people will be entertained tomorrow by workers from campus sororities and fraternities.

A total of more than 500 Greeks have been recruited for this joint Panhellenic-Interfraternity council Social Service project. Twenty-seven different homes and hospitals will be served.

SEVERAL PARTIES have been planned for adult, children's and mixed wards. Musical entertainment will be provided, and some skits presented. Some patients are considered in "very low" condition, so they will be served special meals and will be given individual attention.

All people working on the project, the first of its kind on the Hill, are to report to Hendricks chapel at 12:45 p.m. tomorrow. There the workers will be divided into small groups and sent to the organizations requesting entertainment.

Project chairmen are still asking for people who are willing to donate cars Saturday afternoon. Also still needed are people who are willing to entertain. Specific talents desired are piano-playing, drawing and singing. All those interested should report to Chapel tomorrow afternoon even though they have not signed up for the work.

Patients being entertained are of all ages, and the groups will range from 140 at the Elmcrest children's center to two or four at University hospital.

COOKIES AND cigarettes are being donated by Kallfelz and Chesterfield, respectively. All other expenses are being covered by Panhel and IFC.

IFC is participating in these parties as part of its bi-annual Social Work program.

Shirley Samek and Howard Osofsky are over-all co-chairmen of the affair. Other committee chairmen are Peter Turner and Nancy Bishop, entertainment; Frederick Fischer and Jo Ann Wallace, parking; Charles Moore and Gretchen Griesinger, refreshments; Aaron Miller, Judy Epstein and George Taback, arrangements.

Institutions involved are the Stafford, Abel, Algen, Castle, Brooks, Case, Chase, Diehl, Melrae, Draper, Greene, Hazelton, Mears, Scott, Violette, Drew and

Piety Boxers Travel to Virginia; Aim for Third Victory Tomorrow

By JOEL FEIDELMAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The undefeated Syracuse university boxing team left by plane at 7:30 a.m. today for Charlottesville, Virginia and tomorrow night's important encounter with the Cavalier pugilists.

At the time of departure, Orange coach Roy Simmons was undecided on the starting lineup. The Orange, slight underdogs to the Southerners, are definitely set at the lower three weights with Frank, Gueli, Jerry Jaffe and John Granger ready to box tomorrow.

THE MIDDLEweights will provide a problem to Simmie, however. He might go with Larry O'Sullivan at 147-pounds and Joe McCourt at the 156-pound class, or he might move O'Sullivan up to 156 pounds and insert Artie Nelson at 147 pounds.

The remainder of the team is set. Vince Rigolosi will be found in his customary 165-pound class. Bruce Yancey has been moved down from heavyweight to the 178-pound class and Don MacRae will finish the evening in the heavy tilt.

The lineup complications have arisen from the fact that most of the strength of the Orange is concentrated in the lower weights, and middleweights Tom McKenzie and John Pauldine dropped from the squad two weeks ago set up an evident weak spot in the middle weights.

Leading Virginia, which has to be conceded slight favorites although the Cavaliers were defeated by the Louisiana State team, 5½ to 2½ and could only gain a 4-4 draw against West Point, are Co-Capt. Pete Potter and Sunny Nichols.

POTTER STARTED the season at 155 pounds, but it is thought that the versatile Virginian will move up a weight to meet undefeated Vince Rigolosi at 165 pounds. In the same vein, Nichols will probably vacate his 165-pound berth and move up one weight to the light heavyweight class where he will meet Yancey.

An ironic situation develops when it is seen that Virginia is also strongest in the lower weights. The Cavalier trio of Bill Banerdt, Bob Rush Grace Whiteley, fighting at the 125, 132 and 139-pound classes respectively, are all extremely good boxers.

Banerdt last year drew with Sam Marino, Eastern champ at 125 pounds and later defeated John McGee, Army's Eastern champ at 132 pounds. Rush was beat by Granger last year and Whiteley is sporting a very good record this season.

Ron Hertzwig will box at 147-pounds fo rthe Cavaliers against Nelson. The Virginia choice at 156 pounds has not yet been designated. Rounding out the Cavalier lineup, veteran Bill Roberts will probably box at 178 pounds and Bill Creech, a newcomer to the sport this year, will finish the evening's festivities at heavyweight.

Losses of Personnel Hinder Hill Matmen

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Where did they all go to? That is the question that is plaguing wrestling coach Joe McDaniel these days as he peers over the wrestling roster.

At the beginning of the year McDaniel had such stalwarts as Hank Bianowicz, Tom McDougal, Lee Martin, Jim Rose, Chuck DeBellis and Hank Dinklemeyer on the squad. Today, none of these grapplers are on the Orange roster.

A LOOK at what the Orange squad would look like if the above mentioned grapplers were with the team shows that Coach McDaniel has good reason for being dejected.

Rose wrestled at the Cornell and Temple meet for Syracuse this year winning both bouts and was rated by many as one of the best newcomers to the 123 pound division. Today he is gone, having left school at the end of the fall term.

At the next weight division, Ed Weisz is presently holding forth. Although Weisz has shown improvement recently, he has yet to come up with his first victory. Before Weisz took over the 130 pound chores, sophomore Hank Bianowicz held down the starting slot.

Bianowitz not only won his first two outings, but impressed observers with his speed and agility on the mat. During the Temple meet, Bianowitz aggravated an old back injury. He will be out for the rest of the year.

HAD HE not left Syracuse this fall, sophomore Tom McDougal would be wrestling at the 147 or 157 pound slot for the Orange. One of the better frosh in the East, last year, McDougal is sorely missed.

Co-capt. Debellis was scheduled to wrestle at either the 137 or 147 pound slot. Debellis, however, broke his wrist before the season opener and will be lost for the remainder of the year.

Cagers Face Penn State

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Needing two straight victories to finish the campaign over the .500 mark, Syracuse's basketeers will be cast as an underdog tomorrow night when they play host to the powerful Penn State Nittany Lions in the finale of a home and home series at Archbold gym. Game time is 8:30 p.m.

Coach Elmer Gross's invaders are in the midst of one of their most successful seasons having racked up 10 wins against three setbacks. The Pennsylvanians will invade Colgate for a clash tonight before meeting the Pietymen.

LED BY high scoring Jesse Arnelle and Capt. Jack Sherry, the Nittanies romped to an early season victory over the Orangemen at Penn State, 77-63.

Coach Marc Guley may make some shakeups in his starting lineup after the squad's listless showing in Wednesday's 81-70 defeat to Canisius. The Hill mentor feels the Hillmen "failed to show any team play" in the battle.

Guley also commented the squad looked extremely bad under the boards where the shorter Griffins had complete control. Lou Beverly who had turned in some good rebounding in recent clashes failed to clear any shots and Dave Kline is still hindered by the cast on his broken wrist.

As it stands now, Jack Larned, Manny Breland and Capt. Mel Besdin are sure starters with the remainder of the opening five in doubt. Ron Gillespie, Beverly, Walt Scott, Dick Jaskot and Kline are all possibilities.

LARNED AND Breland were the only bright spots in the Canisius battle both hitting for double figures. Their outside shooting ability should be helpful against the strong Penn State zone defense.

Arnelle will get the starting call for the Lions at center with Sherry and Ron Weidenhammer scheduled to open in the backcourt. Ed Haag will man one forward slot with Jim Brewer and Jim Blocker rotating at the other.

The 6 ft.-5 Arnelle has been the outstanding scorer on the quintet registering 276 points for a 21.2 average. Sherry a 6 ft.-1 junior has also been averaging in double figures recording 149 markers for 11.4 per battle.

Blocker, a 6 ft.-4 junior has been Arnelle's biggest help in clearing the boards and may get the starting call over Brewer because of his height.

ONLY ONE more contest remains on the Piety schedule with Colgate's Red Raiders due to visit Archbold gym next Saturday. Victories in both tomorrow's and next Saturday's battles would give the Saltines a final 11-9 ledger.

Biggest surprise in Penn State's schedule was their defeat at the hands of Pitt last Saturday. The Panthers were easy prey for Syracuse earlier in the year but have improved lately.

Other comparative scores easily favor the visitors. They conquered Penn, victor over Syracuse and whipped Colgate in an earlier meetings by 20 points. Syracuse had to rally in the final quarter to whip the Hamiltonians, 85-83.

Hill Relay Squad Races in AAU's

New York Event Scheduled Saturday

The Orangemen's crack two-mile relay squad once again invades Madison Square Garden in New York for tomorrow night's National AAU championships. Syracuse will be going after its third victory in six outings.

Running for the Hillmen will be Jack Hubbard, Don Shupe, Les Vielbig and Steve Armstrong in the anchor position. Main competition is expected from Yale and Fordham. Coach Bob Grieve's boys whipped the Eli last weekend in the New York Athletic Club meet.

Fordham has been the Orange nemisis all year having edged them out twice. This is the third time that the Syracusans have competed in the Garden this year.

Other teams that the Orange will meet tomorrow are the New York Pioneer Club, the New York Athletic Club, and Georgetown. Next week is the big test when the Orange quintet sprints against the top college teams in the nation in the IC4A's.

Orange Grapplers Rated Underdogs Against Engineers

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Coach Joe McDaniel's varsity wrestlers journey today to Bethlehem, Pa. where they will meet the tough Lehigh Engineers tomorrow. This clash will be the 25th between the two schools in a series which began in 1926.

McDaniel will go with the same line-up that has seen action in the two previous meets. John Husband will open the match at 123-pounds against Eastern champion Alex McCord.

PLUCKY JUNIOR Ed Weisz will represent the Orange in the 130-pound division against the Engineer's clever Jim Mahoney. Mahoney is one of Lehigh's four returning lettermen. He won 7 and lost 2 last year.

At 137, McDaniel has sophomore Tom King. King will draw one of Lehigh's best grapplers, junior Ken Faust. Faust was decisioned 10-5 recently by Dick Lemyre of Penn State, who whipped King 6-0 last week.

Garland Harris will draw another tough assignment in the 147-pound class when he meets Lehigh's outstanding sophomore grappler, Ed Eichelberger. Eichelberger tied Jerry Maurey, who pinned Harris at State College last week.

Orange Co-Capt. Ed Rooney will be out to extend his undefeated string in the 157 slot when he meets either Dick Whited or Roger Taylor.

ROONEY'S MATCH will probably provide the Orange with its first points. The powerful junior has knocked over opponents like ten-pins in the five previous meets.

Senior Hank Gobetz will wrestle the Lehighman that Rooney doesn't. Whited will probably move up to 167 to meet Gobetz. Gobetz came through surprisingly last week with an upset win over Penn State's Joe Humphreys to boost his personal season record to 3-2.

Murray Winer, who earned his wrestling letter in '49 and '50, will wear the Orange colors in the 177-pound position. The K-vet will grapple Dave Gallagher. If Winer has regained his pre-war endurance, he may come through with his first win of the season.

Junior George Finck will close the match at the heavyweight spot for the McDanielmen. Finck will meet letterman Joe Comley in the final bout. The 210-pound junior has improved with each match, and McDaniel is crossing his fingers for a win.

Last year the Engineers defeated Syracuse 16-11. The Orangemen have won only two of the 24 matches with Lehigh. Gerry Leeman coached the Pennsylvanians to an 8-2 record last year, and a third place finish in the Eastern standings.

A CAMPUS-TO-CAREER CASE HISTORY

He had a head start

It took a class reunion to show Ed Mahler, '50, that all first jobs are not alike. He tells us why.
(Reading time: 33 seconds)

The class reunion at his alma mater, Swarthmore College, was an eye-opener for Ed Mahler. The talk among the Class of '50 switched to jobs. Ed had taken it for granted that everybody was happy with his work.

Then he found that some of his classmates had had two or three jobs since leaving school. Others had kept the same one but weren't satisfied. By sticking with his first job and intending to make it a lifetime career, Ed suddenly discovered he had a head start.

After being graduated with a B.A. in Economics, he went to work for Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania in 1950. He reports he chose the Telephone Company because it seemed to offer the best chance for a career.

After a year of training in which he worked in each of the departments—installing telephones, handling business contacts with customers—Ed felt he had a good look at the entire company. He was assigned to the Traffic Department, which has the responsibility for seeing that customers' calls are handled efficiently. The job included personnel work in addition to developing better operating methods and practices. He was quickly put on his own.

Now Ed has been transferred to the job of estimating the amount and type of new equipment which will be needed in central offices as their customers increase.

Ed points out that projecting himself into the future isn't anything new. That's precisely what he attempted to do when he chose his first—and only—job.

• • •

Ed Mahler's job is with an operating company of the Bell System. But there are also jobs for engineers, arts and science and business administration graduates with Western Electric, Sandia Corporation, and Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Cornell, MIT Visit Saline Fencers

Local Upset Hopes Led by Goldstein

By BOB TATA

The Syracuse fencers will be in for a stiff test Saturday when they engage powerful Cornell and MIT in a triangualr meet at Ithaca. Both Cornell and MIT are highly regarded in fencing circles.

Cornell trounced Syracuse in the first meeting of the two teams earlier this season. The Orange hopes for revenge Saturday, but they will have to be in top form if their hopes for an upset are to materialize.

THE SYRACUSE swordsmen are definite underdogs in this tilt. Cornell is particularly strong in the foil division and are favored to take this event. Syracuse's saber and epee teams will be heavily depended upon to take up the slack.

Capt. John Goldstein will be fortified in the epee division by George Wooding, who was very impressive in the first match against Cornell. Junior Joe Lauterstein is scheduled to be the third starter in this division.

The foil and saber first-stringers will line up as follows: saber, Al Peck, Willie Schop and Abe Gilman; foil, Ed Wang, Dave Klein and Bodo Trenk. Jerry Marsullo, after an illness, will sub in the foil section.

Capt. Goldstein wouldn't venture a prediction on the match, but commented "We'll give them a rough fight."

MIT PERENNIALLY ranks high in the national fencing ratings. They defeated Syracuse last year, but their strength this year is unknown. One thing is certain, they are capable of giving any fencing squad a tough time.

Cornell and Syracuse are both loaded with fine sophomores. The prospects for next season are bright for both schools. Right now, though, Syracuse is concentrating on Saturday's meet.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Fictional sports stories are strange. A usual ending for such a tale is when the hero says that he will go out and lick old Siwash singlehanded and then, by golly, he trots out onto the field and does just that.

What is strange is that these endings sometimes have their counterparts in real life. There's a phrase for it, in the trades—"calling your shots."

Admittedly, this is not the easiest thing in the world to do, but Bob Downing, a top-notch swimmer, is "calling his shot" tonight. Bob has said that he is out to break the pool record in the backstroke and it looks like he has a good case.

Bob Downing

Bob already holds the University mark of 2:20.5 set at NYU last year. Two weeks ago, the senior from Hollis, L. I., smashed the record he posted last year at Buffalo.

Tonight's target is the one held by Ralph Coxhead of Sampson AFB who grabbed off the fastest time in the Orange pool two years ago at 2:19 flat. The only reason that Downing can go after the mark is that tonight he can go all out.

In previous meets, Bob had to "save" himself for other races. Fordham, however, isn't as strong as some previous Orange opponents so that Downing can afford to give the 220-yard backstroke all he has.

Coach Ted Webster told us, "Bob has a good chance to make it. If he keeps going like he has all season and doesn't make any mistakes, he should break the record."

Downing may also race in the medley relay but that is not definitely set. Incidentally, he was the leadoff man on the medley including Ed Lesko and Tom Schaefer, which set the pool record of 3:01.4 last year.

The Engineering major has a string of five consecutive wins in dual meets. The only collegian who has ever beaten him is Ram backstroker Jerry Curran who graduated last June. Good luck, Bob. It's a tough thing to call your shots and then make them.

* * * * *

Check the current story, running in this month's issue of Esquire magazine, which tells about Wisconsin's boxing coach John Walsh. Wisconsin, who visits Roy Simmons and his boys a week from tonight, has dropped only 12 bouts out of 138 since starting the sport in 1933.

Of these 12 losses, two have been administered by the Orange. The only item in the story we take exception to is that Walsh is the top collegiate boxing coach in the business. We think we have a pretty good one right here in Roy Simmons.

Maybe Marc Guley's boys can snap out of it long enough to upset Penn State tomorrow. So far this year, an Orange squad has yet to twist the tail of the Nittany Lions.

The Staters beat us in basketball down there, got a moral victory by tieing the boxers, upended us in wrestling and took home a last minute 20-14 football win last fall.

Swimmers Favored Over Fordham

Victoryless Rams Battle Orangemen At Archbold Gym

By BOB GROGAN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Coach John Lyttle's not so rampaging Fordham Rams will be seeking to upset Coach Ted Webster's Hill mermen in a dual meet tonight at 8:30 in the Orange Pool.

The luckless Rams have lost to Union, Army, Yale and RPI thus far and must be considered underdogs in tonight's contest. Syracuse has an unimpressive record, having lost to Williams, Columbia and Pitt while defeating Buffalo university, but should have enough top performers to beat Fordham.

AFTER HIS record-breaking feat against Buffalo last week, Bob Downing will be out to knock some time off the Orange Pool mark in the 200-yard backstroke.

The only swimmer to beat Downing in his specialty in three years of dual meet competition was Jack Curran of the Rams. Since Curran has graduated, Downing may lack sufficient competition to shatter the Pool mark but he intends to give it a try.

Tickets for tonight's swimming meet between Syracuse university and Fordham are priced at 40 cents for students presenting ID cards at the box office and $1.20 for general admission ducats. The meet will be held in the Orange Pool and is slated to start at 8:30 p.m.

Bob Beaumont and Kev Wilson of the Orange both scored double wins against Buffalo and will be out to repeat against the New York City team. Beaumont should receive strong competition from Bill O'Donnell of the Rams in both the 50 and 100-yard freestyle races.

Ed Gozigian should take the fancy diving event since Bob Adams of Fordham has been unimpressive in the earlier meets while Gozigian has shown steady improvement as the season has progressed.

WEBSTER MAY swim Capt. Curran in the medley relay or he may go with Ed Lesko, depending on which individual he feels can do the best job. If the Orange swimmers build up a big lead early enough, the Hill Coach may juggle his lineup to see what his reserves can do.

Preceeding the varsity swim between the Rams and Syracuse will be a frosh contest pitting the Orange yearlings against Academy High school of Erie, Pa., at 7:00 p.m. The frosh also see action Friday afternoon, facing Wyoming Seminary at 3:00 p.m. No admission will be charged for the freshman meets.

NYU LEADS SERIES

The only opponent on this year's basketball schedule that holds a series edge over the Orange is Syracuse lost this year, 78-73, down in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Gymnasts Battle Middies at Home

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse gymnastic fans will have their final opportunity of the present campaign to see the Saltine gymnasts in action in Archbold gym tomorrow, as the Pietymen meet Navy in an Eastern gymnastic league clash.

The Midshipmen of Coach Chet Phillips, although not up to strength of the Navy team a year ago, should give the Orangemen quite a battle in almost every event. The loss through graduation of such performers as Hal Lewis, all-around man, and Bill Graff, outstanding tumbler, has left holes in the squad which have not been filled thus far.

JOHN BARKAL will be out to gather some important points for Syracuse's gymnasts when they play host to Navy tomorrow.

THE NAVY squad, nevertheless, will bring to the Salt City several key performers who have done quite well in outings to date. The boys from Annapolis hold the most strength in the rope climb where Burton Munger and Fred Stetler have both hit the pan in four seconds.

Corky Sebbo, as usual, should win the tumbling event quite easily. Munger and Guy McElroy are Navy's chief hopes in the event in which they should compile more points than the total of the Orange contingent.

John Barkal, if in top form, could win the side horse. Dan Traficante has looked well in recent outings and should be a contender for honors in this event. Ferdie Fournies will be the other Syracuse participant.

James Brewer and Mitchell Soltys are definite starters for Navy in the side horse. The remaining Annapolis participant is unknown at the present time.

THE MIDSHIPMEN boast one of the leading horizontal bar men in the country in Philip Cronk. His teammates consider him as one of the most valuable men on the entire Navy team.

Syracuse will enter only two participants in this event. Milan Trnka, who captured a first last week in the meet with Temple and Johnny Barkal, who has been consistingly improving, should give the Pietymen a good one-two punch.

In the all-important rope-climb event, it will be Navy's Munger and Stelter against the Hillmen's Ferdie Fournies and Andy Felice

Fournies and Felice have been staging a terrific fight amongst themselves with the competition coming out even in the two outings which have been staged.

Bob O'Malia of the Middies is rated as one of the leading parallel bar men in the East. His teammate, Don Rourke, gives the Navy team a good combination to use against the Orangemen.

SYRACUSE WILL offer Barkal and Trnka in an effort to capture valuable team points for the home squad.

The final event of the afternoon will see Edwin Shuman of the Middies competing with Fournies of Syracuse for first place. Traficante and Trnka will also see action in this all-important event.

NATS WHIP PISTONS

Syracuse's Nats romped to an easy 91-77 victory over the Fort Wayne Zollner Pistons in National Basektball association action at the War Memorial last night. Dolph Schayes led the winners' attack with 28 points.

Freshmen Basketeers Meet E. W. Edwards

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Having proven that they can rebound from defeat, Syracuse's frosh cagers today prepared for Saturday night's game with the E. W. Edwards team at Archbold gymnasium.

Coach Andy Mogish's squad, beaten for the first time this season last weekend at Colgate, bounded back Wednesday night with an 83-71 victory over a tough LeMoyne freshman team. The win at the expense of the Dolphins gave the Hillmen a record of 10 victories against the lone defeat by Colgate.

IN THE Edwards team, the Tangerines will be meeting an unnown quantity. Mogish will probably start the same five that have opened in the last four frosh contests. Vinnie Cohen, Gary Clark, Jim Snyder, Lou Stark and Vin Albanese make up the quintet that started against LeMoyne.

Cohen and Clark were outstanding in the conquest of the crosstown squad. The 6 ft.-1 Vinnie scored 24 points and played a fine floor game as well as being a power under the backboards.

Clark, the 6 ft.-4 yearling center, exhibited a return to early season form as he tallied 23 points and also contributed much backboard strength. Cohen and Clark were particularly effective in the crucial first half, collecting 19 and 16 points respectively in the opening 20 minutes.

Syracuse needed a strong second quarter to beat LeMoyne. After falling behind in the early moments of the first period, the Piety team rallied to tie the score 22-22 at the end of the initial quarter.

THE SECOND stanza was the most important one of the game. Clark registered two quick field goals at the outset of the period and Cohen added a basket and a foul. After the Dolphins cut the Orange advantage to six points, Cohen and Clark tallied again to give the home team a substantial 11 point lead at halftime.

The second half was anticlimatical. The teams battled on even terms but the Tangerine's lead was never in danger. Syracuse placed five men in double figures. Stark had 11 markers and Snyder and Jim Brown scored 10 apiece along with the 29 point plus efforts of Cohen and Clark.

Three men gave fine performances for LeMoyne. Little Ron Mack had 19 points and played an excellent floor game. The bespectled 5 ft.-11 guard gave the frosh trouble throughout the contest as his passes lead time and again to Dolphin baskets. Bob Canty and Dan Cavalliere were the other LeMoyne players in double figures, with 19 and 21 points respectively.

Following tomorrow's encounter, the Hill team has three games remaining on its schedule. On Sat., Feb. 27, the Colgate frosh invade Archbold for what will probably prove to be the key game of the season for the Syracuse yearlings.

THE RED Raider cubs are the only team to pin a defeat thus far this year on the Orange. Colgate beat the Pietymen, 72-66 at Hamilton last week.

Dr. Jahn Chosen For Swedish Job

Dr. Edward C. Jahn of the New York State College of Forestry, has been selected as one of a group of experts who will appoint a new professor of pulp and paper technology at the Royal Technical university at Stockholm.

Jahn, associate dean for physical sciences and research, left for Stockholm via the Scandinavian Airlines yesterday.

THE APPOINTMENT of a professor in Scandinavian countries is complex. A committee of persons not connected with the university reviews the background and publications of the applicants. They also listen to two test lectures by each aspirant, one of his own choosing and the other assigned by the committee.

The opening at the Royal Technical university came about when Prof. Erik Hagglund, an internationally famous wood chemist, announced plans of retiring in spring. Pulp and paper is Sweden's largest industry and export.

Dr. Jahn, who represented the forestry college at the 13th international chemistry congress in Stockholm last summer, speaks and reads Swedish with ease. In 1929-30, he was a fellow of the American Scandinavian foundation and studied Swedish pulp and paper manufacturing.

During World War II, he was appointed by the U. S. government as a special technical adviser on scientific and technical developments in Sweden, Finland, and nothern Europe. In 1946-46, Dr. Jahn was senior economic analyst of the Department of Commerce and attache to the American legations and embassies at Stockholm, Oslo, Helsinki, and Copenhagen.

Coeds to Attend Retailing Convo

Elizabeth Gulesian and Kay Horan, seniors in the College of Home Economics, will attend a conference on campus in retailing today.

The conference will be held at New York university's school of retailing.

More than 150 students, representing some 60 colleges will participate in the program which includes a preview of spring styles and a behind-the-scenes tour of Stern Brothers' department store.

The theme of the conference is "Your Future in Retailing." The students will study the opportunities offered by the field, how to prepare for them, and how to apply for a job.

Campus Chest Campaign Starts

Frosh Will Feature 'Universally Yours'

Freshmen will literally take over the campus March 12-14, as the class of '57 celebrates the ninth annual freshman weekend. Overall weekend chairman are Alexandra Toth and Karl Scharl.

Early Friday evening the freshmen will hold a kickoff followed by the "SU Revue," an original variety show featuring frosh talent. Chairmen of the revue and all entertainment of the weekend are Merry Dash and Guy Galeered.

DIXIELAND HITS the Hill Saturday afternoon at a jazz session of which Harriet Epstein and James DePiero are chairmen.

Highlight of the weekend is the semi-formal dance, "Universally Yours," which will feature original decorations and a radical departure from the ordinary queen contest. Chairman of the affair are Barbara Murray and Richard Greenburg.

Dean Charles E. Noble will talk at the interfaith service in the Chapel Sunday morning. Heads of the service, in which members of the freshmen class will participate are Elizabeth Blackwell and Paul London.

Other committee heads are: decorations, Sabra Jones and Richard Hazelton; tickets, Myrna Paul and John Cullen; refreshments, Paula Thaler and Joseph Easton; business, Dorris Lemp and Joel Kottick; welcoming, Judyth Goldstein and George Winston; date bureau, Eleanor Bieg and James Tipka; publicity, Ruth Anderson and Jerome Parmet.

All freshmen interested in contributing talent to the "SU Revue" or working behind the scenes are urged to contact one of the entertainment chairmen. Tryout acts should be ready for auditions later this week.

Other committees started work last week. Students interested in participating should attend meetings as announced in the DO, or contact committee heads.

Her subject will be "The Philosophy of Social Work."

Miss Walker received her undergraduate degree in philosophy at Syracuse and her master's degree in social work at Catholic university, Washington. She returned to Syracuse a year ago to take her present post after work in New York and Chicago.

The probation officer is a member of numerous professional societies and has written and lectured about the social problems of American communities.

Prof. Rice Appointed Art Dean of Carnegie

Prof. Norman L. Rice, director of the School of Art, will leave the University June 30, to become dean of the College of Fine Arts at Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh.

Rice joined the faculty in 1946 after leaving his post as dean of the School of Art Institute of Chicago. He is vice-president of the National Association of the Schools of Design.

Rice is also a member of Alpha Chi Rho, Delta Phi Delta, Tau Sigma Delta, the American Society of Aesthetics and the College Art association.

On campus, he is a member of the University Library committee and a member of the Chancellor's Educational Policies committee. Rice is vice-president of the Syracuse Friends of Chamber Music and president of University Press.

He is a member of the board of trustees of the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts and a member of the Cazenovia Civic club and Board of Education. Rice has served on the art jury of the Cortland county fair and the Schenectady Art club art jury.

The director has been serving as chairman of a committee of consultants at Carnegie.

Eight Organizations Will Receive Aid From Proceeds

Today is Feather Day as the 1954 Campus Chest drive begins on the Syracuse campus with a goal of $7,500.

"Now Is The Time" is the theme for the drive which will continue through Wednesday, March 3, according to co-chairmen JoAnn Swalm and Stuart Parker. Solicitors will start visiting living centers tonight urging students to donate freely to the campaign the only fund-soliciting drive on campus.

EIGHT ORGANIZATIONS, directly or indirectly benefiting students in the U. S. and other countries, will receive aid from the proceeds of the drive. Two University groups which will benefit directly from the funds ar the Student Emergency Loan Fund and Syracuse-in-Asia.

The loan fund gives as much as $30 for 30 days to Syracuse students while Syracuse-in-Asia annually sends a Syracuse student to Thailand for study.

Some of the organizations receiving funds gain all their income from various Campus Chests. These include the World University Service, the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students and the American Friends Service Committee.

A definite project to aid the building of a Liberal Arts university in Japan is another aim of the drive while Syracuse chapters of the Red Cross and Community Chest will also benefit from the drive.

Last year, the Syracuse drive fell under its $7,500 goal collecting $5,600.

Tryouts Announced For Speech Contest

Tryouts for the annual New York Journal-American Tournament of Orators will be held early in March, Dr. Calvin J. Callaghan of the School of Speech and Dramatic Art has announced.

The public speaking competition is open to all undergraduates under 26, and to Utica college students. Applications must be made to Dr. Callaghan.

A duplicate set of prizes totaling $2,000 is available to the winner, since the contest is run from a district to a national scale.

Competing students must prepare an original speech not more than six minutes long on the subject "Abraham Lincoln," and deliver it without reference to notes.

Any view of Lincoln's character, life or influence may be presented. Contestants are permitted wide latitude in their approach, although it should be remembered that the orations are meant to be of a commemorative nature.

This college invitation tournament will open in April with a series of four events from which winners may advance to the finals.

WOLSELEY TO SPEAK

Prof. Roland E. Wolseley, chairman of the magazine practice department, will address members of the Associated Business Publications Wednesday at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York. The occasion is the annual Eastern Conference of the organization.

Ed School Reps Attend Conference

Ten faculty members of the School of Education recently attended the American Association of School Administrators convention in Atlantic City.

Skidmore Prof To Speak Here

The Syracuse university chapter of the Alpha Kappa Delta, national sociological honorary, has obtained Dr. E. V. Stonequist, chairman of the department of sociology at Skidmore college to speak in the Maxwell School of Citizenship.

Rah Rah, Syracuse!

One of the new contributions of the present freshman class is the formation of a frosh cheerleading squad which will be composed of members of each incoming ...

... squad will perform at freshmen athletic events. A tentative constitution for the squad was drawn up at a recent meeting conducted by frosh executive council member Barbara Solomon.

AT THE PRESENT time, the team would be composed of a minimum of four boys and four girls and a maximum of eight boys and eight girls. Anyone interested in belonging to the squad should watch the DO for an announcement of the first meeting.

In organization, the group would be similar to that of the varsity cheerleaders, however, all new cheers would have to be approved by the varsity squad.

Those trying out for the squad of '57 must attend three meetings, the first within the next three weeks, the second in mid-March and the last late in the semester. They would also be required to participate in practice sessions during March for varsity cheerleading try-outs, but they are not compelled to tryout for the varsity team. Previous experience is not necessary.

By choosing a squad from the class of '57, it will be possible to set up a pattern for succeeding years. One member of the freshman team will act as an advisor to the squad the following year.

These tentative plans are being presented to WSG and MSG by Miss Solomon for approval. At the meeting, Miss Verhulst, women's physical education director, and Madge Evans, assistant headcheerleader, gave their opinions and advice in the organization of the squad.

State to Announce Yates Razing Bids

Bids for the demolition contract of Yates Castle will be announced shortly, according to a statement yesterday by William S. Carlson, president of the State University of New York. The razing will begin April 1.

He said that the Department of Public Works will soon announce bids for the construction of the proposed multi-million dollar addition to the College of Medicine building here on campus. Construction will begin as soon as the Castle has been demolished, he added.

Timely challenge

With an orange clock recording monetary progress and orange feathers sprouting all over campus, no one will long remain oblivious to the fact that the 1954 Campus Chest campaign has commenced.

This is also the start of the second Colgate-Syracuse rivalry of the year—since the Orange are in competition with the men from Hamilton on the question of just what college can surpass its respective goal.

The committee this year has outdone any predecessor in preparing events and stunts to capture the enthusiasm (and pocketbooks) of the students.

For those lost in the maze of Campus Chest activities, the following is a simplified version.

1. Feather Day—Today only. Any donations welcome.

2. Orange Feather King and Queen—Voting today through Wednesday. Ten cents per vote.

3. "Wheels" auctioned at Saturday's rally —Serve their term . . . whoops, serve their dishes tonight.

4. House solicitations—Today through March 3. Top houses in each division receive trophies. Special prize will be awarded the house with the highest amount per person.

5. Individual solicitations for city students—Booths will be open in Maxwell tomorrow and Wednesday.

There is the complete scorecard of activities. With all these events it does not seem possible that we cannot "beat Colgate" now as in the fall football season.

The funds donated to the Campus Chest are given to needy Syracuse students and those in other parts of our nation. Our dimes and quarters eventually reach into homes throughout the world, as the Campus Chest organizations put the funds to use in overseas countries.

Although one does not expect adult maturity from all college students, this drive will give Syracusans another chance to show a growing awareness of their social responsibilities.

Certainly "Now is the time" to prove that we can "beat Colgate"—in spirit, responsiveness and generosity.

Surely there will be no one who will resist the challenge.

AT THE FLICKERS

LUCY & DESI: THE SHOW'S ON WHEELS

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

The Pros Have It

In the mechanical helter-skelter of modern day movie making, many producers find it easy to substitute slick professionalism for art. When this superficial approach is taken in the production of a heavy drama, the results are usually hollow and meaningless. When, however, the professionals start making empty-headed comedy the results are often very entertaining. "The Long, Long Trailer," currently on view at the State, is an example of such slick farce.

Vincente Minelli ("Father of the Bride") is an old hand at domestic farce and his knowing eye is aware of all the comedy inherent in the type of situation involving the domestic squabbles of family life. His new production based on the assumption that honeymooners, funny in a house, would be devastating in a trailer, is a charming lesson in good farce comedy.

"The Long, Long Trailer," entertaining though it may be is a picture of very little importance. What is important about it is that it has brought Lucille Ball back to the screen after a long, lucrative employment on the coaxial cable. Miss Ball proves conclusively that she is one of the finest low-class commediennes in the business. She is a past master of the "take," the "leer" and all the other "gimmicks" which characterize the expert farceur and in her current film her comic talents are exhibited at their best and her red hair, in Technicolor, is exhibited at its reddest.

The fact that Miss Ball is an expert performer is no news to any of us who have followed her "I Love Lucy" series. What is news is the performance of Desi Arnaz who doubles as her husband on the T.V. show and in real life. Mr. Arnaz started as a routine straight man. However, his comic talents have steadily improved and in this film he displays them at the peak of their power.

Both Miss Ball and Mr. Arnaz turn the seemingly impossible trick of creating two original characters that bear only the most nominal resemblance to the Ricardos.

Though the film is essentially a duet, Marjorie Main and Kennan Wynn turn in two memorable bits, the smallest this reviewer has seen them in. They prove that a good actor can be excellent regardless of the length of his part.

LETTERARY COMMENT

At Home On the Hill

All letters to the editor must be signed. A pen name will be used upon publication if desired.

To the City Student:

Who comes to college only for the classes? (This usually is asked with a sneer.) But there are quite a few city students who do just that—come to college just for the knowledge. It already has been established that though classes are an inevitable factor here on the Hill, they aren't the whole story.

It's any city student's privilege to stand apart from affairs on the Hill, but we're sure that a great many of them wish silently that they were a little closer to the center of activity. What's the reason for their hesitation? Are they busy? Don't they know how to get started? Don't they feel welcome, wanted and loved?

Do they really want to participate? Does the responsibility for their inactivity lie with campus organizations, with those living on the Hill, OR WITH THEMSELVES?

Now that we've stuck our necks out, borrow a pencil, tear a page from last semester's notebook and let's have some concrete, constructive replies via the letter columns.

TWO RABBLE ROUSERS from the city

Nonentities by Norm

"And that, in modern slang, sums up Freud's theories."

Test-tube Mushrooms

A Syracuse university professor and two Hill graduates have been successful in growing Morchella hortensis, Boud., in glass tanks in the laboratory.

Translated into terms of importance to all, the above Latin is the name of one of the world's rarest and most delicious mushrooms, formerly found only in Europe when climatic conditions were exactly right, and then only for a few weeks in the spring.

Thus in the past the flavorful mushroom was available only to the European gourmet and the American mushroom fancier when he travelled abroad—when nature cooperated.

Now the mushroom can be produced by the millions in only four days, by a method similar to that by which penicillin is grown.

Because of the three men who had a hand in the project during the past 10 years, the present famine may be alleviated within a few months, and the mushroom may appear on dinner tables on steaks, in soups and as a powdered "mushroom seasoning."

The researchers who worked on the project at Syracuse say that not only can the mushroom be produced quickly by this method, but that it's easy and inexpensive to grow them in a solution under controlled laboratory conditions.

The three are Prof. C. C. Carpenter, a member of the plant science department at Syracuse for more than 35 years, and two University graduates, Dr. Paul Klens and Dr. Chester A. Koda.

Dr. Klens is now assistant chief of a microbiological laboratory in Elizabeth, N. J. Dr. Koda recently joined the research staff of the State university of New York College of Medicine at Syracuse.

When Dr. Klens was an undergraduate student on the Hill, he discussed with Dr. Carpenter the possibility of growing some species of Morchella artificially, as it is the most delicious of all mushrooms.

Dr. Klens first experimented with the common commercial mushroom, Agaricus campestris, in doing his doctoral disertation, but his interest in the better-flavored Morchella continued. His early experiments proved to his satisfaction that he could grow good-sized mushroom balls in three or four days.

Continuing his search for a better-flavored mushroom, he sent to Holland for cultures of two Morchella species. These were turned over to Dr. Koda in 1950.

Less than a year later, Dr. Koda was using the mushroom balls grown from the Morchella hortensis in making his own mushroom soup.

The mushroom looks quite different from the European one. Nature's original Morchella has a thick stock and pitted cap. The Syracuse mushroom is round, cream-colored, and about the size and shape of a pea.

Dr. Koda calls it a "lucky accident" that he discovered that a seasoning can be produced by freeze-drying the mushroom balls. He had to carry out the freeze-drying as part of the research, and out of curiosity tasted the dried mushroom. "If anything, it was better than the raw mushroom," he said.

The ease with which the mushroom balls are produced is rather startling to the layman. It's like taking an apple and chopping it up into microscopic bits, putting the pulp into a solution, and harvesting a crop of whole apples in a few days.

Specifically, the miscorscopic bits of the fibre are placed in a solution enriched with vitamins, sugar, minerals and other elements. Each tiny fragment expands with startling rapidity, and forms a ball, since the solution is kept in constant motion by compressed air.

When more mushroom balls are wanted, a few old ones can be chopped up, with each speck eventually growing into a new mushroom. As many as 10,000 new ones can be obtained by chopping up one pea-sized mushroom ball and growing the fragments in solution.

Several companies have already indicated interest in the Morchella. As a seasoning it is already popular with the families and friends of the researchers, and has been used on steaks, in soups and other dishes, just as salt and pepper.

Problem for Chessmen

We found an interesting problem in chess the other day. Being somewhat inexpert at the game, we became idly interested in a store window on S. Crouse which had a chess board set up and players on it.

It didn't take us long to figure out that the black king was checkmated: interesting, we thought. Then, since it was warm, we tried to follow the moves that could have led to the monarch's dorm.

After fifteen minutes we came to the conclusion that the situation was impossible. The king could not have gotten where he was without being already in check at every move. As we say, interesting.

Being plodders at the game, though, we thought we might be wrong. So if anyone who happens to read this and be a chess player, we would appreciate a check on the check-mate . . . and check with us.

A Latvian Architect Ends the Retreat

By ANDRA KADILIS

BY BY, BI!

There was one sad girl among the happy crowds of the Winter Weekend. Maybe you have noticed a creature hopping across campus, completely hidden by huge piles of books and drawing plates, and rulers and triangles sticking out on all sides, one leg in a cast.

This girl is Bi, short for Biruta Smudze. Bi, coming from Latvia, way in Northern Europe, is an enthusiastic skier, but shortly before the weekend she got a little too excited and broke her leg. "Oh, this is nothing new to me," announces Bi. "Last year I broke the other one!"

Biruta had to leave Latvia as the Communists occupied her country shortly after World War 2. Then she lived in Displaced Persons' camps in Germany. Now she has ended her retreat in America.

Even though Bi was just a little girl, when leaving Latvia, she remembers her little country on the shore of the Baltic sea very well. She remembers the country side with pine woods and white birches, the long winters and the colorful summers. The thing she remembers best about Latvian summers is the John's day, which is the day of summer when the night is shortest.

Bi was born in Liepaja, which is one of the most important cities of Latvia, since it has a large sea port. It is the same city where two years ago Russians downed an American airplane.

Already as a little girl Bi played on the sea shore building huge castles of sand, and got the urge to build. Now, when asked why she is majoring in architecture, she answers: "Most of my life I have seen only ruins and distruction, but I want to build. And maybe someday, when I get back to Latvia, I can be the first one to build a skyscraper there." Bi is a good mathematician, and not only once has embarrassed the noble adding machines in stores by adding faster than they.

About Germany Bi remembers the "happiest" moment of her life when she got her first piece of chewing gum from an American G.I., and didn't quite know what to do with it. She chewed it for a whole week, and then by mistake swallowed it together with sauerkraut. Afterwards, she had to chew something else, because she could not admit to the other kids, that she had lost her exceptional delicacy.

When it comes to say goodby to Bi, everybody starts out fine, but then gets confused. How could you make out which by is which?

In the Imperative Mode

By ART SIEGEL
Managing Editor

We have evolved a new world; yay, a new concept. The word is "THIMK." The concept is more difficult.

Most of us, sitting in a dentist's office or in an insurance agent's office have seen the framed rectangular sign that reads "THINK." This word, in the imperative mode, means, as IBM probably conceived it, productive concentration. Not any kind of concentration, but productive concentration.

Several weeks ago some of our staff members had some leisure time and printed up some of these signs in a type lab. But what was the result? Where the "N" would be expected, a broad "M" stood instead.

They decided to see just what the results would be and distributed these signs to several acquaintances. The reactions as you may expect, were indeed varied.

They got shocked looks, the kind people give you when they think—oh, that word!—you are insulting their intelligence.

They got raucous laughs—these were recorded as positive reactions—and they got smiles of the person who thinks he should laugh—and that it's the thing to do, even if he does not catch on at all.

Someone said, however, that he thinks the sign was printed because the correctly spelled "THINK" signs are too common; so common that no one bothers to look at them anymore.

"If no one looks at them anymore, then no one thinks. Right?" And he went back to his Scrabble game.

They agreed categorically.

He added that if we all see the sign mispelled we will all begin to take notice of the sign. This will make IBM happy and they will give out more signs.

But he didn't say whether it would make us think.

Finally, someone remarked that the sign just proves that machines are not infallible. He cited the exaggerated story of the IBM machine that translates Russian. "These machines can do everything but eat spaghetti and think," he said.

The DO'ers told him that there has probably been invented a machine that eats spaghetti, neatly; but agreed that no machine can really think.

However, in all respect to our friend, we cannot accuse this particular machine in question of trying to think but failing. It was a printing press. We were told that there was a human being pushing the pedal on the press at all times. Humans set the type.

It was the printer who tried to think and goofed. But it's great, we think, to see that men are still allowed to make mistakes. That is, after all, how cellophane was invented—through a mistake.

And that was the original idea from a more original idea by Henry Morgan. The sign was printed intentionally—really. DO'ers can spell (?)—and the idea behind it was that the printer wasn't thinking. It was interesting to find the varied reactions.

Charles Addams has a new cartoon that shows a wizened old gent sitting at his desk late at night. Above it on the wall stands a new sign, "SCHEME."

And a Dearborn, Mich., city official has everyone look at their IBM signs for two hours each day. That's how Newton discovered the laws of motion, he claims.

What do you thimk?

IN CAMPUS CHEST:

'THE WAR OF IDEAS' ACROSS THE WORLD

(Sixth and last of a series explain the functions of Campus Chest.)

"The War of Ideas" is being fought here on the Syracuse campus by the Syracuse-in-Asia project, one of the funds which receives aid from the University's Campus Chest drive. Tom Gill, a former Syracuse student who is the present representative from our campus, is helping spread the ideals of the project while teaching at Chulalonghorn university at Bangkok, Thailand.

With a primary purpose of fighting communism, the fund is based on five purposes, aiding Asian education, promoting cultural interchange, increasing international understanding, spreading knowledge of America in Asia and stimulating American study in the far east.

With English teachers badly needed, the aid given to the orient by instructors like Tom Gill is extremely helpful in promoting the American way of life.

But aid in Asia is not the only work accomplished by this organization. An active program on the Syracuse campus helps to stimulate interest in and understanding of Asia and Asian problems.

Tom Gill is finishing his tenure in Thailand and within the next two months, a new representative will be chosen to finish the work. Campus Chest donations will do much to aid his successor.

Two other more familiar organizations receiving funds from Campus Chest are Community Chest and Red Cross. These two organizations, as the other six recipients, forego their rights to have a campaign on campus so Campus Chest will be the only fund soliciting drive.

Unlike the Syracuse attempt in the rivalry, Colgate does not feature several promotional stunts for the campaign, but concentrates on the one large pep rally. Members of the rival college seem absorbed in the entertainment. Alta Burg twirled for the event, and JoAnn Swalm, Campus Chest co-chairman gave the challenging speech telling the Hamiltonians to go all out to try and win the trophy again this year. Syracuse will try its best to bring the trophy here, she said.

Feather Da y. King and Queen Elections To Highlig Annual Fund-Raising Drive

By BOB LEFKO

The great rivalry between Syracuse and Colgate will find a competition this week as the Syracuse Campus Chest drive strive money than the Hamiltonians did in their drive early in January.

Winner of the drive will receive the Orange Key-Maroon Key by the junior men's honoraries of the two schools and presently he 1953, Colgate went over its $6,600 goal collecting $6,900 while Syra $7,500 goal with a collection of $5,600. Both schools have set the sam selves for this year.

Basis for award of the trophy is the total amount which each s though Syracuse has a much larger student body, no differentiation

Colgate Sets Individual Sum

All students at Colgate are requested to donate at least $5 set sum designated at Syracuse. Normally, the collections are like the Hamilton school with many living centers adding the donation

In past years, the average donation has always exceeded th reaching nearly $8 per person in some years. Last year, the averag rate.

The Colgate drive which ran for a week this year began Tues trary to Syracuse where Campus Chest is an independently spons the Colgate drive is sponsored by Maroon Key.

Proceeds from the Maroon's campaign are distributed amo ganizations. These include the American Negro Scholarship fund, fund, Heart fund, Cancer fund, Malton Community Chest, Hamilton pital and Red Cross.

In their attempt to promote the drive, the committees have compiled many extra promotional schemes. Included are:

Mantle Clock Awarded

Highest overall award of the campaign will be a mantle clock awarded to the living center which donates the highest sum per person. This clock is not a rotating award but will be kept permanently.

Division awards will also be given to the living centers donating the largest total on a rotating basis. Last year, Tau Epsilon Phi won the fraternity trophy, Sigma Kappa won the sorority award, Wilson cottage and Men's Co-op in the independent divisions.

An added incentive to freshmen men's dorms this year will be the awarding of a date with Sigma Chi Sweetheart Joan Davey to a representative of the top sections of Skytop and Washington Arms. Skytop will be divided by dorms and Washington Arms by floors with the winning sections picking their representative.

Feather Day Opens Drive

Opening event of the drive is today's Feather Day campaign. Booths will be located for donations in Crouse, Maxwell, Lyman, Hall of Languages, on the quad and between Sims and Slocum.

Orange feathers will be given to all donors with no set donation necessary, according to co-chairmen Margot Baum and Robert McAllister. Collections are being made by members of various fraternities and sororities.

Rulers Chosen This Week

A new innovation in this year's campaign will be the election of an Orange Feather King and Queen. Voting for candidates will be held today, tomorrow and Wednesday at Slocum and Maxwell from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Votes are priced at 10 cents.

Candidates for queen are Audrey Haberle, Madge Evans, Arlene Lambert, Wilhelmina Werner, Constance Talbot, Blanche Krisher and Harriet Krisher.

Among the candidates for king are Lloyd Dunsker, James Messina, Chester Gino, Samuel Shawhan, Gregory Doherty, Konstantinos Salonika and a dual candidacy of Robert Lefko and John Hennessey, running for the title of co-kings. Winners, who will be announced Thursday, will receive prizes from various merchants. Proceeds from voting go to the drive.

Auction Keynotes Drive

The keynote opening of the drive was Saturday's pep rally and auction at which 48 campus personalities were auctioned to living centers as waiters. The "wheels" will fulfill their duties at tonight's dinner.

Also highlighting the pep rally, held on the library steps, was the singing of the new Campus Chest song, "It's Campus Chest Time Again," by the Fiji Four.

The original song, which will be highlighted throughout the week, was written by Arthur Ring and Chester Gino.

Carnival Featured in October

One of the earlier events of the campaign was the Carnival held on the quad in late October. Over 60 living centers entered booths in the event providing over $300 proceeds for the drive. Included in the Carnival were a ferris wheel, a dish throwing booth, a fortune telling booth and all other typical midway entertainment.

Orange Clock Records Progress

Advancement of the drive toward its goal will be recorded on an Orange clock on the library steps. Each day, the hands of the clock will advance as the drive approaches its goal.

"Now Is The Time" is the theme of the 1954 Syracuse Campus Chest drive and as Co-Chairmen Parker and Miss Swalm describe it, "Now is the time to beat Colgate in a different kind of competition so let's everyone give as much as possible to make the Syracuse drive far surpass its goal."

THE CARNIVAL SWINGS are no place to discuss business, but that's doing. The Carnival, which was held in October, was a success, with what JoAnn Swalm, Chest chairman, and Jon Bjornson, seem to be more than 60 booths set up for the drive.

Fencing Captain Doubles as Coach

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

If you should drop in the fencing room some weekday afternoon, you will find a tall husky dueler giving instructions to some frosh in the proper art of handling a dueling sword. The fencer is Capt. John Goldstein, who doubles as epee man and fencing instructor on the squad.

In most sports, the captain's duties end with keeping team morale up and flipping a corn to determine whether the team will receive or kick-off. This is not the case with fencing.

The fencing captain fulfills the dual role of coach and fencer, as fencing mentor Benjamin Burtt is unable to make road trips. In addition, the captain aids the coach with the instruction of the frosh duelers.

Goldstein, fortunately, is admirably fitted for both jobs. In his freshman year, Goldstein learned the art of epee from Capt. Len Rubin, who is rated by Burtt as the best foiler in the history of Syracuse fencing. Besides foil, Rubin was also an expert handler of the epee.

Rubin was the one who firmly entrenched the dual role of the captain in the fencing by-laws. Not only was Rubin one of the better foilers in the East, but he also undertook the tremendous job of forming a frosh dueling team.

One of Goldstein's pupils who has made good is Willie Schop. The diminuitive sabreman was not a ball of fire in his sophomore year. He seemed to be lacking something.

Goldstein sensed this and switched him from foil to saber. Today Schop is the No. 2 saberman ahead of Abe Gillman, who held that position at the beginning of the year.

Goldstein seems to bear out the theory that "a good fencer makes a good instructor."

In his three years of varsity fencing, Goldstein has won approximately 80 per cent of his bouts. At one time last year, the Orange captain had a 13-bout winning streak going.

The Orange captain's greatest tribute came from Cornell mentor George Cointe when he said, "that guy is good enough to make my epee section." A perennial powerhouse, Cornell was rated 4th in the nation last year.

A good swordsman can fence more than one weapon and Goldstein is no exception. So far this year, he has won five out of six epee bouts and 3 of his five saber outings, giving him the best won-lost percentage on the team.

This comes as no surprise, however, when his past record is taken into consideration. Despite the fact that he was only a sophomore last year, Goldstein raced Capt. Bill Robinson down to the wire before losing out in the fight for the Dean Dellis trophy, which is given annually at the Block S dinner to the athlete who has done most for Syracuse fencing.

A pre-law student, Goldstein will probably not be back at Syracuse next year. When Athletic Director Lew Andreas looks on the fine record Goldstein has compiled in Syracuse fencing, he will be glad that he participated in the fight to elevate fencing to varsity status in 1949.

Hill Mermen Down Fordham 72 to 12

By STAN ROSENFELD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse university's mermen easily gained their second win of the season last Friday night at Orange pool as they downed Fordham, 72-12.

The highlight of the meet was Bob Downing's unsuccessful attempt to shatter the University record for the 200-yard backstroke. The pool record is 2:19 and Downing's effort was :02.7 seconds off the mark although he romped to a 35-yard win.

KEV WILSON, however, did establish a new University record in winning the 150-yard individual medley in 1:45.5. The old record was 1:42.3 set by John Garry in 1952.

Downing was the only double winner of the night, as he captured the 50-yard freestyle besides his win in the 200-yard backstroke. oDwning had little trouble in capturing this event either with teammate Bob Downing a close second.

In the opening event of the evening, Syracuse's 300-yard medley relay team raced to a 25-yard victory over the Rams. The winning Orange combo consisted of Jerry Buhlen, Ed Lesko and Len Kissel. Buhlen gave Syracuse an eight length lead.

Syracusan Jim Sutton raced to a flashy win in the 220-yard freestyle with Ed Liddle of the Hillmen second and Ram Pete Rank third. The score at the end of the second event was Syracuse 13 and Fordham with only one tally.

THE ONLY Fordham victory came in the diving event where George Adams of the Rose Hillers beat out Ed Gozigan of Syracuse. Joe Bleyden of the Orange was 84:15.

The Summary:

300-yard medley relay: Won by Syracuse (Buhlen, Lesko, Kissel). Time—3:22.2.
220-yard freestyle: Won by Sutton (S), 2. Liddle (S), 3. Rank (F). Time—2:24.2.

When you come right down to it, you smoke for one simple reason . . . enjoyment. And smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste. Yes, taste is what counts in a cigarette. And Luckies taste better.

Two facts explain why Luckies taste better. First, L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco . . . light, mild, good-tasting tobacco. Second, Luckies are actually made better to taste better . . . always round, firm, fully packed to draw freely and smoke evenly.

Vender Makes Good; Stars for Hill Boxers

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

On Aug. 22 of last year, rchbold stadium was filled ith, of all things, a football owd. The Pittsburgh Steel- s were playing the Detroit ions for the Cerebay Palsy nd.

Up in the stands a triangular aced young man was barking: "Programs. Thirty-five cents apiece. Six for two dollars." (The price at that time: 50 cents.) When his odd form of salesmanship failed he walked away with a parting shot: "O.K., but if you get cerebal palsy, don't come to me."

USUALLY, HOWEVER, Jerry Jaffe doesn't give up too easily. Now he is boxing for Roy Simmons in the 132-lb. class and, as yet, he hasn't found any reason for giving up—for you see, he hasn't lost yet.

At the end of last season, Coach Roy Simmons found that boxers, much like humans, get bigger as they get older. Most of his lightweight boys were having trouble making their weight. Artie Nelson, last year's defending champ at 132, had to forfeit his title when he couldn't make the weight for the Easterns held in Archbold gym last year.

Everyone was kicked up one weight division this year and 125-lb. Tom Coulter was drafted. Simmons began to fear for the first few weights.

His fears va ished when roommates Frank Gueli at 125 and Gerry Jaffe at 132 began and continued winning bouts.

JAFFE NEVER had any real boxing experience in his hometown of Niagara Falls and took his first crack at the organized gloves when he came to Syracuse.

Jaffe styles his fighting after his hero: "Keed" Gavilan, whose relaxed shuffle and flurry swinging has kept him welterweight champion of the world. Jaffe, like Gavilan, uses "the bolo punch," a singularly ineffective blow that consists of a wide cranking of the arm.

Simmie has affectionately dubbed him: "The Spoiler" for two reasons: 1) He has beaten fighters who, according to the books, should never have lost and 2) His ambling, unorthodox style makes even the most polished fighters look like stumblers.

Actually, the biggest advantage that Jaffe has is his unorthodox height (5 ft.-8) for his weight. With the reach edge Jaffe has been able to unbalance opponents with a stuttering left jab. In the next few matches, Jaffe will be facing men v. . . . rable reach.

Since Jaffe and his . . . roommate Frank Gueli came around Simmons has had the trouble load shifted to the middleweights. Any series of men at 156 have given Simmie nothing he can rely on, as yet. Larry O'Sullivan at 147 is having combination trouble. It's a combination of the tough luck that hounded him last year and the fact that some of the men in his weight class are among the best in the country.

How Jaffe will do against Wisconsin's Ray Hunder, is difficult to tell. But at least he won't have to sell programs to see the fights.

Phi Psi, Phi Eps, Win in Intra Loop

Hadjis, Hutchings Lead in Scoring

By BOB TATA

Phi Epsilon Pi, Phi Kappa Tau and Phi Kappa Psi all won quite handily in Friday night's intramural basketball games at Archbold gymnasium.

The Phi Eps scored an easy 24-10 victory over Pi Lambda Phi in the first game of the evening's competition. Barstow of Phi Ep netted 14 points, more than the entire Pi Lam team. Zausner scored 6 for the losers.

Phi Kappa Tau's quintet rolled to a 37-23 win at the expense of Beta Sigma Rho. Oerck and Pugsley led the winner's offense by dunking 12 and 10 markers respectively. Goodman was Beta Sig's big gun with 13 tallies.

A powerful Phi Kappa Psi five routed a determined Acacia squad 52-17. Phi Psi's Hadjis, a varsity football player, hit for 14 points to lead his team to victory. Hutchings put on a one-man show as he registered 14 of Acacia's 17 points.

INTRA BITS—The intramural schedule is heading into the home stretch. With more than three quarters of the games already played, most of the battles for flight championships have narrowed down to few-team affairs. The winners of individual independent and fraternity flights will conduct separate playoffs to determine their respective champs.

THIRD-PLACE team Alpha Xi Delta annexed a forfeit from Shaw 3B. Genesee, in fifth place, squelched Phi Sigma Sigma, 17-11.

Top Thursday team Sims III drubbed Ostrom, 35-17. Leona Wilenski and Libby Harner again led Sims' scorers as they chipped in 17 and 16 points respectively.

Playing Thursday night, Kappa Alpha Theta and Delta Gamma matched tight zone defenses as Delta Gamma squeaked past Theta, 12-10.

Scanning the Intramural Scene

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Intramural Director

Today, we'd like to tip our hat to Mike Hickok. Many of you sports fans may not know Mike; but in case you're interested, he's one of the most active persons in the athletic program here at Syracuse university, whether it be varsity or intramural athletics.

Mike is employed by the University in a dual capacity. He takes charge of the athletic equipment in the locker room of Archbold gymnasium and also runs the bowling alleys in the Women's building.

NINETEEN FIFTY-FOUR marks the 21st year for Mike as an employee of the University. He first was hired to work in the bowling alleys in the Old gym in 1934. After the fire destroyed part of the gym in December, 1947, Mike stayed on with the University and had charge of the athletic equipment.

When the new addition on to Archbold gym was constructed, Mike assumed his duties as custodian of the locker room. He admits that the facilities in the locker room make it a very nice place for work.

This fall, the Women's building opened and Mike was engaged to operate the six bowling alleys. In addition, he maintains a staff of ushers for the football and basketball games and assumes many other miscellaneous duties.

Mike Hickok's working day begins at 8:30 a.m. and does not end until 12 midnight. This schedule repeats itself for six out of the seven days of the week. Often too, he must come in on Sundays also, in case a visiting team wishes to work out or if there is some extra work to be done.

We think Mike deserves due credit for his assistance in the athletic program. His only consolation is the summer months when he can obtain the badly needed rest which he well deserves.

LAST THURSDAY evening we were fortunate to sit in on a meeting of the Intramural council. The council, which represents the students in the formation of intramural athletic policy, meets once a month.

At Thursday night's meeting the question of how to lessen or eliminate altogether bowling forfeits was discussed. It was decided that next year a more firmer policy will be put into effect.

A protest by Irving D 1-3 concerning a basketball game played February 8 with Skytop M-1 was allowed and will be rescheduled. The game ended in a tie.

It was agreed that next year competition in intra sailing will be started. Regular competition will be planned with a trophy given to the winner as in other intramural sports.

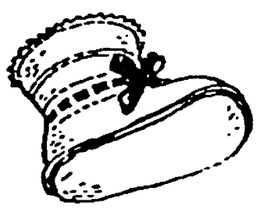
Kicked in the Face by a Bootee



OR . . . Who Ever Called it a "Blessed Event"?

Once there was a Sophomore who had a Sister. He also had a Girl. As Coincidence would have it, both females labored under the Baptismal Handicap of Ermintrude. Small world.

The sister (call her Ermintrude I for the record) got married. In due process, she produced an Offspring. So, fraternal-like, Our Boy sat down and wrote her a Letter of Congratulations, starting "I hear you have a Baby . . ." Only trouble was, he forgot to mail it. Went off for the Weekend, leaving it on his desk, where his Roommate spotted it.

The latter, being The Soul of Honor, didn't read any farther than the lead-off . . . which was, logically enough, "Dear Ermintrude." Jumping at a Conclusion, he addressed an envelope to Ermintrude II, slapped on a stamp and dropped the Missive in the Mails.

Our Sophomore still has a sister named Ermintrude. No Girl. And he still has No Idea why.

Had he but had a Telegrammar, he'd have Known Enough to send Sis and Spouse a handsome Congratulations telegram. (Telegrammar — an idea-packed, pocket-size guide to telegraph use. To get one, free, just write to Room 1727, Western Union at 60 Hudson St., New York City.) Telegrams get to the Right Destination . . . carry Good News, Invitations, Bids for Dates (or Cash) more resultfully than any other Form of Communication. When you have a message to send that Means Something, just call Western Union or sprint to your Western Union office.

Draft Exam Applications Ready in Clifford's Office

Applications for the April 22 selective service college qualification test will be available this morning, Earle W. Clifford, assistant dean of men, told The Daily Orange yesterday. They must be postmarked by March 8.

"Anyone who hasn't taken it yet should take it, regardless of class standing or ROTC status," he advised. He urged all students who have become 1A or have registered for the draft since the November administration of the exam to take this one and have their scores registered with their draft boards.

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY will be one of more than one thousand examination centers. The three-hour test in the past has been held in Archbold gym.

The exam provides evidence for local draft boards when considering a student for academic deferment. To be eligible to take the test, students must be selective service registrants and must be pusuing a full time college course. Students who have previously taken the test may not take it again.

Undergraduates must score a 70 or better in order to be eligible for deferment on the basis of the exam. Graduates must score 75 or above.

The test will consist mainly of English and math questions.

THE ASSISTANT dean answered those who believe waiting to take the exam will up their score with the statement that "specialization in any area tends to work adversely in a general test of this type, and therefore the sooner a student takes the test, the better he will probably do."

The tests, of which this will be the eleventh, are administered by the Educational Testing service of Princeton, N. J., which also administers the college entrance examinations.

All the exams are of equivalent difficulty and therefore students taking them can be graded on the same basis.

IFC, Pan-hel Hold 27 Shut-in Shows

Twenty-seven individual parties were held successfully Saturday afternoon by Panhellenic association and Interfraternity council, for patients and inmates throughout Syracuse.

Working through the Volunteer center, IFC and Panhel lined up the 27 nursing homes and hospitals and scheduled informal parties and entertainment. More than 600 Hill students, most of them Greeks, turned out for the project.

EARLY COMMENTS praised the Greek organizations highly on the social-work project. More than 800 patients were entertained at the affairs.

Several institutions commented on the way the entertainers themselevs enjoyed the parties. The patients were treated to songs, impersonations, dances, skits, magic acts and conversation.

Refreshments were served at most of the affairs, with some of the "parties" being limited to special meals due to the relatively poor condition of the patients.

Prof. Theodore Denise, faculty fraternity advisor, said "every report that I have heard has been very satisfactory and I congratulate both groups." Individual reactions among students participating in the parties was also favorable.

HOWARD OSOFSKY, IFC social action committee chairman, stated, "The number and spirit of the fraternity and sorority representatives exceeded our expectations. Shirley (Samek) and I want to thank them all for their efforts."

The number of people entertained ranged from four at University hospital to 140 at the Elmcrest Children's center. All expenses were taken care of by IFC and Panhel, except for donations of cookies by Kalfelz and cigarettes by Chesterfield and Lucky Strike.

Overall co-chairmen for the affair were Osofsky and Shirley Samek. Other committee chairmen were Peter Turner, Nancy Bishop, Frederick Fischer, Jo Ann Wallace, Charles Moore, Gretchen Griesinger, Aaron Miller, Judy Epstein and George Taback.

Institutions involved were the Stafford, Abel, Algen, Castle, Brooks, Case, Chase, Diehl, Melrae, Draper, Greene, Hazelton, Mears, Scott, Violette, Drew and

St. Thomas More Hears Rev. Brady

The Rev. Andrew J. Brady, counselor of students at LeMoyne college, was guest speaker at a joint meeting of the Holy Name society and Blessed Virgin Mary sodality of St. Thomas More chapel Sunday.

He outlined to more than 150 students present their responsibilities as Catholic students, touching upon the dogmatic basis of responsibility, the actual command of the Popes and the precise demands of today's society.

"It is almost impossible under the social pressure of today to stay good," Father Brady said. He cited as examples poor taste in many television programs and the literature on magazine counters throughout the United States.

Mary Ann Dalton, chairman of arrangements for the meeting, introduced Father Brady. Miss Dalton was assisted in planning by Carol Palumb, Robert Lefko, Marie Basil and Raymon Kazanjian.

Injured Saberman Recovering; Peck 'Rests Comfortably'

Syracusan Stabbed By MIT Fencer Last Saturday

Allen E. Peck, 28, seriously injured in a fencing meet last Saturday, was reported off the critical list yesterday at Tompkins Memorial hospital in Ithaca and "resting comfortably," according to John Goldstein, captain of the fencing team.

Peck, of Slocum Heights, had been wounded in a saber match with a fencer from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The match was a triangular meet, held with Syracuse, Cornell university, and MIT at Ithaca.

THE SABER blade, a blunt instrument, had apparently cut through the two layers of protective clothing and run up through the seam of the inside jacket. Peck was stabbed in the right arm pit. No blame, however, could be placed for the accident, according to Goldstein. There were no faulty instruments or clothing, he stated.

Peck fell on one knee to the floor after being stabbed. The MIT fencer immediately drew his blade out after the accident. An ambulance was rushed onto the floor of Barton hall for Peck. He was taken to Tompkins hospital.

Goldstein said that he had never seen such an unusual incident.

Peck is married and has two children. He is a veteran and is a senior in the college of Liberal Arts. He is an experienced fencer and is a letterman. This is his third year of competition.

Cornell university won the match. Up to the point of the accident, other Syracuse fencers had been winning. This was Syracuse's fourth meet of the year.

Dean Rogers Speaks On Equal Education

By PEARL BERNSTEIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Concrete suggestions for the present as well as faith in the future of equal education marked the address of education Dean Virgil M. Rogers before Cit 1 students yesterday.

When speaking about the segregation cases currently before the Supreme Court, the tall, handsome Southerner said, "Of course the court can hardly do anything but recognize that we have only one class of citizen—first class."

DEAN ROGERS traced the concept of equality of opportunity in education from the democratic concepts embodied in the Declaration of Independence to the present need for federal aid to education.

"The principle of equality in education has long been recognized but never realized," he said. He gave as the main reason the inequalities in wealth distribution among states, which causes the states with the most children to educate to spend the least amount of money.

Also cited were the "traditions of bigotry, prejudice and fear toward those who have education," and inability of the schools to meet the pupils' needs due to poorly trained teachers and inadequately planned programs. The dean particularly decried the inadequate on-the-job training given most teachers.

Federal aid to education would provide much help in solving these problems, Rogers believes. "The trend from local to state to nation is inevitable," he said.

AS PROOF he cited the results of three studies conducted during the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations. Each one has recommended federal assistance to needy areas. In 1949 federal aid to education on a need basis almost passed the Congress but was defeated on the issue of whether church schools should be granted aid as well as public institutions.

Dean Rogers emphasized that federal aid should be given in lump sums to the states, which would then distribute the money to the various counties as needed.

During the question period following the lecture, the dean was asked his opinion on released time for religious instruction in the public schools. He said, "Released time is legitimate, but it doesn't work. The very process of taking a child out of school on a sectarian basis creates conflicts that otherwise do not exist."

The failure of released time is

Campus Mushroom Hits the Presses

Publication Describes Botanical Discovery

Tempo, a nationally circulated pocket magazine, is currently running a story on the quick way of growing a rare European mushroom which was announced this month by Syracuse university.

The story is carried in the "At Home" section of the publication and is accompanied by a picture of coed Suzanne Gorman putting some of the mushroom seasoning on a steak.

After crediting Syracuse university with the discovery, Tempo magazine reports that "Modern scientists went into action on kitchen table level and produced . . . the mushroom which from planting to eating took only four days."

The magazine continued, "The tiny, pea-sized fungi can be freeze-dried, used for seasoning on meats, for soups; or by themselves, a tempting taste-variant for in-a-rut menus."

Dr. Chester F. Koda carried out the research on the mushroom, Morchella hortensis, Boud, and developed the mushroom seasoning. Dr. Paul Klens conceived the idea originally that this mushroom could be grown in solutions and might be good as a table food and Prof. C. C. Carpenter served as a consultant.

JSF PERSONNEL

Jewish Student fellowship personnel committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in Sims lounge. All students interested in personnel work are urged to attend.

First Mixer Draws Over 500 Students

Over 500 students attended the first in a series of weekly mixers last Friday night in the dance studio of the women's building, according to Miss Margaret Parker, University social director.

Music for the dance was provided by Ray Caldiero and his orchestra. Caldiero and his band are featured at the Clover Club.

TWELVE MORE mixer dances are being planned to supplement last week's. They will be informal and dates are stag or drag.

The dances originally were sponsored by the now d- t Student Union. They were resumed this semester upon the request of student government to the Women's building policy board.

A student activities committee has been named by student government presidents Mary Anne Dalton and Stanley Leff. The committee includes: Nancy Boerner, Ann McKaig, Marley Barkley, Merle Bank, John de Palma, Jerome Gerber, Roger Herz and Arthur Kinney.

The committee also is making plans to begin dance classes which Student Union sponsored originally. Instructors will be Walter Medicis and Jane Russell. Both beginning and advanced lessons will be given.

The possibility of setting up tables for games such as scrabble, chess, checkers, and cards in the lounge of the Women's building is being investigated.

Reps Hear Coach At Owasco Lake

About 40 students attended a Herdricks chapel house reps conference at Casowasco this weekend.

They arrived at the Owasco lake estate late Friday afternoon by University bus. Feature of the evening's program was a talk by football coach Ben Schwartzwalder.

TELLING OF THE need for perspective in present day living, he compared training for athletics and training for religion.

The coach discussed next season's "tougher grid schedule" and outlined the possible effects of membership in a conference league.

Dr. Fred Krinsky, assistant chaplain to Jewish students, spoke to the group Saturday morning on his personal religious beliefs. Discussion followed.

The Saturday schedule also included planning sessions for the Chapel guide book and Footprints conference, which comes March 7, 8 and 9.

A Protestant vesper service was held in the evening before the students returned to campus.

Leaders Auctioned for $530 Total

Forty-seven campus leaders netted $530.78 for hill charities when they were auctioned to living centers Saturday to act as waiters and waitresses for one night.

Saturday's pep rally and auction started Syracuse's 1954 Campus Chest drive as the "wheels" were auctioned to highest bidders to serve at last night's meals.

WITH William Angelos acting as master of ceremonies and auctioneer, the celebrities were sold after entertainment had been provided by twirler Alta Berg and the Fiji Four who sang the new song of the campaign, "It's Campus Chest Time Again."

Highest bidding of the day went for the administrative leaders with the services of Earle Clifford, assistant to the Dean of Men, costing Kappa Sigma $40.50.

Dean Eric Faigle of the School of Speech and liberal arts college brought the second highest price, $40, from Kappa Kappa Gamma. Delta Kappa Epsilon added $35 to the campaign with the purchase of Vice-chancellor Finla G. Crawford.

Highest price paid for a coed was $20 bid by P- Upsilon for the services of Madge Evans. Vincent Rigolosi brought the highest bid for a male when Kappa Alpha Theta paid $22.

PSI UPSILON and Alpha Phi claimed the most waiters and waitresses with Psi Upsilon acquiring Carol Amacher, Elizzbeth Brydon, Sandra Eaken, assistant Dean of Men Jack Carleton and Miss Evans.

Alpha Phi acquired Registrar Keith Kennedy, associate Dean of Men Carlton Krathowohl and Leberman.

The others auctioned and the houses which purchased them are Dr. Fred Krinsky, Phi Sigma Sigma; Gerald Leider, Iota Alpha Pi; Floyd Schwartzwalder and Peter Rose, Alpha Chi Omega; Alta Berg, Acacia; and Janet Caro, Arlene Lambert and Margaret Whi-, Tau Delta Phi.

Little bill lost

To the Faculty and Administration:

While glancing through the usual pile of news from other campuses today, we were struck particularly by a release from South Bend, Indiana.

"More than 475 Notre Dame honor students may be absent from class an unlimited number of times, according to a new University regulation announced by the vice-president in charge of academic affairs, Rev. Philip Moore."

The item explained that undergraduates having academic averages of 88 per cent or better will now be allowed to skip classes without penalty, although being held personally responsible for any work or tests missed by being absent.

Father Moore stated that his experience has shown "that the good student, who is not under compulsion to go to class, never misses except for very serious reasons."

"We feel that the time has come for students to assume personal responsibility for their education," Father Moore emphasized.

At Syracuse, a bill liberalizing absence regulations was passed last year by men's and women's student government. This was followed by a proposal by the faculty.

The latter plan would recognize the superior student by exempting those on Dean's list for two semesters from the regular absence rulings (except the 25 per cent rule). Students on the Dean's list for one semester would be permitted two absences per credit hour.

This regulation would recognize and aid the superior student while giving added incentive to students to maintain a higher scholarship. Here is a system of having students "assume more responsibility for their education."

When last heard from, the plan was residing in a committee of the University Senate.

We wonder what happened to it.

A marble statue

Theory is revered by the few; individuals are idolized by the many. And so the role fell to George Washington to stand statuesque in history as our nation's answer to tyranny.

But Washington's qualities for greatness do not lie solely in the fact that he was in the right place in the world at the right time in history. Many men have been on that spot and chosen infamy in the history books.

It becomes rather difficult to delete the unnecessary adjectives in the feature story of the Virginia planter. The original reporters have long since punched out, and their copy was not the clearest.

So when it comes time to write the annual obituary to a man fast turning into a marble statue, the facts become someewhat sketchy.

True, the clippings of history reveal a patient general, a quiet statesman and a thoughtful President. Persistent research reveals little else that is of value of publication in the Press of the world.

Of this it is important to remember: the present generation gains little from the bones of its ancestors. Prolific eulogies about "the Father of his country" produce little when equally little is realized about his ideas that made him great.

So yesterday marks the 222d birthday of the carrier of a germ, the germ of our democracy that struck tyranny with a plague and strengthened the United States to the world power it is today.

To the Editor:

We of the Syracuse Men's Co-op want to express our thanks for the excellent write-up of the Co-op and its purposes, which appeared in the DO Thursday, Feb. 18.

Since cooperative living is a service to students, you have done a service to the student body in bringing this information to its attention.

No mention was made, however, of the means by which a student may apply for membership in the Syracuse Men's Co-op, and many students will doubtless want this information.

Application blanks are available at the Co-op house, 516 Ostrom ave., at the office of the Dean of Men, and are being distributed at some independent men's living centers.

Interested men are invited to stop in at the Co-op house at any time.

Sincerely,
Edward M. Snyder

To the Editor:

I wish to acknowledge Charles Samuels' criticism on the film now being shown at the Eckle theater by saying that I think he has missed the point completely. I think his criticism on the technical masterpiece of the film showed his complete lack of really appreciating a film of "this type." To me the technical skill in filming was only secondary to the real purpose, that of showing a "Real" situation. The makers of the film have, in this respect, taken a lesson from the geniuses of filmmaking, the Europeans, and depicted real actions, real people on the real stage. That's what makes it, in my opinion, the most refreshing and thoroughly enjoyable American film to hit this city in many a moon. The purpose is further reinforced when at the height of the film both brothers meet and the mode of acknowledgement is completely free of great tragedy and traumatic upheaval that it seems perfectly believable for two boys to act in this manner, considering circumstance. This lack of the "Hollywood Sentimentalism" so prevalent in children films makes for the most refreshing and thoroughly enjoyable experience imaginable. In this respect the film is more than photography at its best or merely a cute little kid. Either Mr. Samuels has never observed children or he lacks the humor with which to appreciate these incidents which are typical steps in growing up. The success of the film lies in its simplicity, plus its Reality, the latter word being completely eliminated in Mr. Samuels' criticism.

To the "Two Rabble Rousers" and the city student:

It's all too true that many city students do not take full advantage of their campus. Classes alone do not make up a well-rounded life for any college student.

But this says nothing about the University; instead, it tells a sad tale about the city student.

Being a city student myself, I looked around for my niche in this institution during orientation week, and, to my surprise, found many niches just about my size. Arms were flung open to me so much as to any resident student. And no one asked, "Where are you from?"

None of the extracurricular activities seem to care whether you hail from the city or elsewhere. All they want are interested workers. And many are the activities available to the interested student:: city or resident. The DO welcomes students gladly, as do any of the Chapel-sponsored groups. Athletic events are open to all, and debate and other such activities want speakers, not "out-of-towners." Show like "Lysistrata" and "Up in Lights" ask for talent, not geographical location.

Much has been said about campus SAG, and many of the city students seem to be charter members. Cone on, gang. Crawl out of your dingy holes and see the light of extracurricular activities!

Worse than Mud; Coeds in ROTC

By POLLY REED

Out Michigan State college way they're having a bigger, more bitter controversy than our mud, lack of a student union, and MSG put together.

There's a more afoot in the Michigan State legislature to change the hallowed name of Michigan State college to Michigan State university. The proponents of the measure aver that the college is actually a university, anyway, since it is a collection of colleges.

Opponents point to that hobgoblin of little minds, Tradition, and say that Michigan State college it has been, and Michigan State college it shall remain.

Even the University of Michigan got in on the act, saying that to change the name to MSU would be "an infringement on the name of the University of Michigan."

Maybe Michigan just has too many colleges and/or universities. Or maybe people who oppose the change on the grounds of "tradition" would prefer to go back to the traditions of gas light and horse and buggy.

On the lighter side, word comes to us that the Corps of Sponsors, a coeds' auxiliary of ROTC, was given special recognition at Nebraska university.

At the recognition ceremony, an army band played selections off key and officials gave informal speeches and told jokes.

A music lover down in Columbia, S. C., did something last week that we've been wanting to do for a long time, but never got the nerve. It started when the student walked into a bar, stuck a dime in the juke box and failed to get the record he selected.

A newspaper account from "The State", reports what followed:

"The man used his feet and fists to tear up the machine. He knocked the glass out, pulled the wires loose, broke the records, tore out the tubes and wrecked the mechanism of the machine. Damage was estimated at $100.

The story concluded with the statement that the man had been arrested. They should have pinned a medal on him!

Answers given in a general information test given at the University of Oregon included: Fjord—A Swedish automobile; Nicotine—the man who discovered cigarettes; Scotland Yard —two feet, ten inches; Concubine—when several businesses combine.

Ah, higher education!

IN THE HALLWAY

Finding 'Missing Men'

By ED HARDY

Now under consideration by men's student government assembly is an amendment to the assembly elections law that would, in effect, leave no doubt as to the legality of class assemblies selecting men to fill vacancies in the MSG group.

Back in October when the new elections act was due to get its first test, government officials held their breath, hoping that enough men would run to enable election of a complete assembly. The catch was the ratio set up by the law—each class was to be represented by at least three fraternity men, three independents and one city student.

The worst came true at election time. Only 36 men petitioned for nomination. They could fill but 27 seats because in some classifications there were more than enough men to run. Five of the 27 ran uncontested. One vote elected them to the so-called representative MSG assembly.

What to do about the other nine seats? The MSG constitution provides that on the death, withdrawal, registration, ineligibility or removal of an assemblyman, the legislative body of the man's class shall appoint a replacement. The assembly elections act states that class legislatures can also choose replacements if an assemblyman changes his classification after the election.

The dilemma, however, was what to do if there were not even enough men in the first place to read the minimum required in a category. Broad interpretations gave the power to choose new reps in such cases to the class assemblies.

A few men have already gone into the MSG assembly through their class legislatures. In order that the status of these men and any others that come in through classes will not be questioned, soph Richard Koelling has proposed an amendment giving the class assemblies outright power of filling unwanted assembly seats.

The amendment goes farther, though. If the class assembly can find no qualified candidate in the right classification, anyone from the class could fill the seat. Thus the original ratio plan—which caused much debate before it was passed—would go down the drain. It might even be possible for a class to be represented by nine men from only one category, as all independent reps.

We realize that there seems to be no other plan if the assembly is ever to meet with all 36 seats filled, but destroying in any way the ratio system set up in the original election law destroys the whole purpose of representation. We wonder if this is what the assembly actually wants?

A WORD WITH THE STAR:

'Lysistrata' Lead Does the Rounds

By MARIA HEITZ

Getting into the habit of being late for appointments and almost missing a train won't always rate you a conversation with a Hollywood star, but we know of one instance where it did.

Barbara Hush, a drama major and the striking blonde star of "Lysistrata" which opened Thursday in the Drama building, had just this experience.

It was during the last vacation that Barb was pulled aboard the 20th Century just as it was leaving the station, by a conductor and another kindly gentleman who was on hand to help a lady in distress. Thanking them both for their aid Barb went on her way and thought no more of it until the following morning when she met the chivalrous stranger in the dining car.

It turned out to be none other than Glenn Ford, and from there on in Barbara was on familiar ground discussing the theater with one of Cinema's star attractions.

Right now the 19-year-old soph is still appearing with about 60 other students in the cast of the Boar's Head Greek comedy, which opened last week.

Being a Boar's Head apprentice and a member of the "Lysistrata" cast involved spending an average of six hours a day in rehearsal. Dramatic activities coupled with being WAA rep for Chi Omega and soph representative for Berwald cottage keeps any week of the year a rather hectic one for her.

Barb, who is one of 6 daughters in the family hails from East Hampton, Long Island. Her interest in the legitimate theater started inadvertantly enough about nine years ago when her parents sent her to take diction lessons to improve her speech. These diction lessons eventually led to drama lessons and from there on in, says Barbara, there was no doubt about what she wanted to do.

Barbara's dramatic activities and training are not only limited to the work she does on campus. She spent her last summer working for a summer stock company in East Hampton, Long Island. Barb plans to do likewise this year. Eventually, with her schooling out of the way and circumstances permitting, she plans to go to France to do some acting in a repetoire company there.

As the weeks of rehearsal drew to a close and opening night came closer, Barbara's efforts in her first lead role were to be viewed for audiences to judge for themselves.

AN EVENING IN

TV Without a Struggle

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

In a field which is sadly burdened oft times by its own tremendous weight, pleasant relief is to be found in a television presentation which is able to progress with a minimum of struggle on the part of all concerned.

Such a broadcast is beamed out from the campus radio-TV center each Sunday afternoon (2 p.m., channel 3) under the title "Open Shelf Room."

Produced by the graduate television staff through the facilities of WSYR-TV, the show is an informal front parlor-like discussion of current reading material by a group of local persons prominent in their respective careers. "Open Shelf Room" returned to the TV listing about a month ago after an absence of more than a year.

Prof. Art Weld, radio-TV instructor and producer of the show, is moderator of the 30-minute discussion which usually revolves about a specific subject . . . say, a new book, magazine article or special problem in the world of literature or journalism.

Last Sunday's program was concerned with weekly news magazines and their comparative importance. Mrs. Hilbert Kline of the School of Speech and Profs. Harold Root and Roland Wolsley of the School of Journalism, joined Weld for the round-robin.

The folks responsible for "Open Shelf Room" have chosen to leave this broadcast pretty much to wander as it will unhampered by sundry interruptions, bulky camera work and similar overproduction. This particular discussion bounced along with no punches spared and although the guests did become downright excited over their likes and dislikes, the management did not seem the last concerned and no attempt was made to silence belligerent voices.

All these factors went to accomplish a surprisingly commanding half-hour riddled with crisp, intelligent discussion which, for some reason or other, kept right on the topic and cleared up most of the mist spread around earlier in the program.

Prof. Weld and his staff, including associate producer Rhea Sikes, certainly have a neat package in "Open Shelf Room" and unless well-informed guests and suitable topics run short, a straight discussion offering such as this should well pronounce the capacities of the TV center.

Next week's telecast will feature a discussion of "Spirit of St. Louis" by Charles E. Lindberg. Prof. Albert George of the Romance language department will be among the guests.

In Defense Of Sport

On the front page of today's paper there is a story on an injured athlete, a man who suffered one of the many "freak" accidents that plague the world of sport.

On such occasions as this, the non-sport enthusiast usually mutters as he turns the page . . . "too bad, but it seems foolish to risk all that for such a minor thing."

This unfortunate verdict is laid down on so many occasions when injury occurs in the realm of athletics. It is usually delivered by the judges who preside from the armchair and rarely from the circuit magistrate who makes the rounds of sports.

There is no special case for fencing, in which this particular accident occurred. Though perhaps less known than the paying games of football, basketball, etc., it still fills the prime requisite for its existence: it is a sport in the true sense of the word.

There are many fields of endeavor that test a person. Whether it be the test of business or politics, writing or athletics, the individual is met with a challenge at every rounding of the bend in the trails to the top.

However, there is nothing that so concentrates the powers of concentration, alertness, (both physical and mental), fairplay and competitiveness than an athletic contest.

For here, concentrated in a single event, is the examination of life in a capsle. Here one works for oneselve and the group; here lies the determination to win at all costs short of robbing the other fellow an equal chance to do the same.

It is a part of our society that everybody drive to the top. All too frequently we have taken that to mean "at all costs." It is the peculiar American and British brand of athletics that attempts to supplant this latter concept with the idea that the drive to the top should be accomplished by one's own abilities . . . and team play.

The old British phrase that "Briton's battles are won on the playing fields of Eton" can be a touchstone for our civilization.

And the injured are a part of this. But they are not emblematic of defeat; they attest to the inevitable faults of every system where we must constantly look out for . . . and correct.

So Seeing is Believing?

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Page Writer

This week's haranguing in re-climbing our own Everest or building our own Panama Canal:

Doubt can be a useful element of life.

We gain this from an idea we had always known as "solipsism." Some dictionary definitions are somewhat hampering, but don't dim the concept any.

Briefly, it is the concept that nothing exists. Thus that we can be sure of nothing outside our own consciousness. It might be extended to include our own minds.

What first-hand evidence do we have of this world, anyway?

Sight?

As this amateur dabbler in the science sees it, sight is he end product of the following:

Something, which we refer to variously as light waves or light rays (we don't know which, as it has qualities of both) come from all sorts of angles to strike that which our eyes are focused on.

Bouncing off at all sorts of crazy angles, and some of the original light energy having been absorbed, some comes in the direction of our eyes. Let's say we wear glasses. The rays or waves come in one side, are distorted into various directions, are distorted again upon going out the other side.

The same thing occurs in the lens of the eyeball. Eventually some of the light energy reaches the retina, upside-down and backward, and is transformed into electro-chemical discharges.

Somehow this reaches the brain, and we say we see things. Add to this the fact that no two eyes in the universe see exactly the same colors (we're all color-blind to an extent) and we begin to wonder just how closely we are in contact with the world about us. The same indirectness could be shown for other senses.

This idea might be used as a reason for withdrawal from the world. We don't encourage that, but think that a knowledge of our so-called separation from it may lead us to wisely keep an element of doubt in our minds. This can be useful in more ways than the metaphysical.

Let us in each case of decision gather all the facts available, objectively and wisely make a decision, and carry it out, but with the reminder that we might be wrong. Tomorrow may uncover additional knowledge to change our truths, just as an old concept of a flat earth has been in time replaced.

Smoke Signals Give the Word

Watchful Waiting

Now you see him, and now you don't. His whereabouts are usually announced by smoke signals at the corner at approximately 10:15 a.m. daily. Normally you might think this is a case for Sherlock and Dr. W., but use of the "spy glass" reveals that his cigarette is the cause of the smoke signals.

Soon the smoke disappears, and a passerby arrives on the scene. For this we usually allow five minutes: catching up on the latest social and world news. Shortly a tip of his hat, and gathering of his huge pack indicates that he's on the march again.

Other "watchful waiters" may see him in an entirely different route, but my watching party and I follow him visually as he crosses the street, and walks slowly down the other side, taking care to stop only at the houses where it's absolutely necessary.

Yes, everyday the watch prevails for or "Ambassador of Correspondence," otherwise known as the mailman.

Taking an Obscure View

It happened in a psych class last week:

It was the B semester and the instructor wanted to ascertain that everyone knew each other.

"Do you know all the girls in the class?" he asked one young lad.

"Yessir, I do," he replied.

The instructor went down the roll and all of the men knew all of the ladies—that is, all except one. "Do you know all the girls in the class?"

"Well, not exactly," the young man replied.

"Why not?" asked the instructor.

"Well, it's my wife. She won't let me look at other women."

Gymnasts Prepare for Army

No rest is in store for the Syracuse gymnastic team after their brilliant 52½-43½ conquest over the Middies from Annapolis. Although no meet is scheduled this weekend, the team will settle down to the task of preparing for the week with Army, March 6, and the Easterns the following weekend.

Coach Paul Romeo could offer nothing but praise for his boys after they asserted firm supremacy over the Midshipmen. He was especially pleased with the performances on the horizontal bar and parallel bars where the Orangemen rolled up very high scores.

FOR THE SECOND week in succession, Milan Trnka copped two first place finishes with victories in the above mentioned events. His fifth place in the flying rings gave him the distinction of being the leading individual scorer of the meet with 13 points.

Trnka has now raised his total point score in Eastern gymnastic league meets to 35. Ferdie Fournies is second on the squad with 29 and John Barkal follows with 27. Trnka now cannot break the Syracuse record held by Joel Baba, who totaled 54 points in 1951, as he would only score 53 points by winning three events at Army.

Milan, who performs in two events with Barkal, has surprisingly outshined the latter in league meets thus far. John, Orange co-captain, led the team in total points scored last year and had been expected to lead the Pietymen this campaign, but Trnka has taken the play away from him in the meets to date.

Corky Sebbo, as usual, won the tumbling event, but the Syracusans only counted seven points in the event to Navy's nine. Once again the obvious lack of depth in tumbling was noticed. Sebbo's winning score of 284 was the highest accounted for in the entire meet.

BOB SHUMAN was Navy's only winner, as he captured first place in the flying rings. Fournies probably would have given him more competition in this event, had he not had difficulty in performing one of his routines. Ferdie, however, won the rope climb with a time of 4.0 seconds.

The home audience was treated with top-grade performance from many of the local competitors. The victory obviously had much to do in lifting the team morale after the Saltine gymnasts had dropped two straight league meets.

The summary:

Tumbling—1. Sebbo, (S) 284 points; 2. Munger, (N) 261; 3. McElroy, (N) 245; 4. Schnavarria, (N) 200; 5. Manocchio, (S) 90.

Side Horse—1. Barkal, (S) 268; 2. Traficante (S) 251; 3. Soltys (N) 241; 4. Fournies (S) 211; 5. Arnold (N) 205.

Horizontal Bar—1. Trnka (S) 283; 2. Cronk (N) 252; 3. Dunne (N) 220; 4. Barkal (S) 216; 5. Knettles (N) 217.

Rope Climb—1. Fournies (S) 4.0 seconds; 2. tie between Felice (S) and Stelter (N), 4.2; 4. Munger (N) 4.4; 5. Glover (N) 4.8.

Parallel Bars—1. Trnka (S) 264; 2. Barkal (S) 262; 3. O'Mella (N) 251; 4. Bourke (N) 235; 5. Traficante (S) 197.

Flying Rings—1. Shuman (N) 259; 2. Fournies (S) 240; 3. Haerner (N) 239; 4. Smith (N) 234; 5. Trnka (S) 218.

Badger Boxers Loom As Piety Opponents

All thoughts, mostly unpleasant, are on Wisconsin today in the Syracuse university boxing camp, even though the Orange pugilists gained an unexpected 4-4 draw at Virginia on Saturday to remain undefeated.

Wisconsin, symbolizing the epitome of collegiate boxing, comes into Archbold gymnasium on Friday evening to meet the Orange in what is probably the last major stumbling block on the path of a Syracuse undefeated season in dual competition.

THE ORANGE would not be in the enviable position of two victories and two draws in four outings if it wasn't for the surprising performance against the favored Cavaliers on Saturday, a meet which Syracuse, with any amount of luck or breaks, could have easily won.

The other Syracuse victor was light heavyweight Bruce Yancey who gained his first victory of the year when Virginia forfeited in this class. Seldom in collegiate boxing does a pugilist win without taking off his bathrobe.

Syracuse gained its remaining point on the basis of two draws—Artie Nelson, in his first fight of the year, being held to a draw with Ray Hetzwig in a peculiar decision. In his first two rounds, it seemed that the Syracusan was winning on points. Then in the last round, Nelson opened a cut over Hetzwig's eye, and the referee stopped the fight and called it a draw.

IN THE opening bout of the evening, Frank Gueli, after a slow start, gained momentum in the third round, chased Virginian Bill Banerdt all over the ring and the ref called the fight a draw.

In the 132-pound clash, Jerry Jaffe was tumbled from the unbeaten when Bob Rush was awarded a close 29-28 decision in a fight which could have gone either way. Rush captured the first and third rounds while Jaffe took the second round on the official's score card.

Veteran Pete Potter was hard pressed by Larry O'Sullivan of the Orange before he registered a close decision. Giving Potter the scare of his life, O'Sullivan fought, in the words of his teammate, Jerry Jaffe, "his best fight of the year."

In the last bout of the evening, the bout which gave Virginia the draw, neophyte Don MacRae was decisioned by veteran Bill Creech of the Cavaliers.

Nats Face Hawks In Crucial Game

Still clinging to their mathematical chances of catching the New York Knicks and being only two games ahead of the onsurging third place Boston Celtics, Syracuse's Nats swing back into action tonight against the Milwaukee Hawks at Cincinnati.

Syracuse trails the Knickerbockers by three full games with but 12 games remaining on both their schedules. The Cervimen have six home encounters, five road tilts and one game on a neutral court.

After tonight's game with the lowly Hawks, Syracuse comes back to the War Memorial on Thursday night to face the Boston Celtics. The Celts have caught fire in the last month and are breathing hard on the backs of Syracuse. The third place team does not receive any money, but the second and first place finishers do.

Tangerine Cagers Aim to Avenge Only Loss Against Red Raiders

Bring on Colgate. That is the by-word today for the Syracuse frosh basketball team which will go through intensive practice sessions all this week in preparation for Saturday's invasion of the Red Raider yearling quintet. Colgate is the only team to pin a defeat thus far this season on Coach Andy Mogish's squad.

The Maroon defeated the Hill freshmen, 72-66, two weeks ago at Hamilton. Thus, when the Raiders come into Archbold gymnasium Saturday night for the traditional conclusion of the home and home series, they will be meeting a Piety aggregation which is anxious to atone for its only loss.

SYRACUSE HAS compiled a record of 11 victories against its lone defeat. Win number 11 was recorded last Saturday night at Archbold when the Tangerines spurted in the final 15 minutes of play to whip the E. W. Edwards team, 89-76.

The surprising industrial league squad made a battle of the game for two and one-half periods. Midway through the third quarter the downtown team tied the score at 46-46, but the frosh rallied to take the lead and then maintained their margin until the end.

For Syracuse, four men scored in double figures. Jim Snyder tallied 19 points, Vin Cohen, 18; Lou Stark, 17; and Jim Brown, 12. It was Cohen's sparkling third period play, however, that was a major factor in the Hill victory.

Leading 37-32 at halftime, Syracuse's offense faltered at the outset of the second half, and the Edwards team tied the score. Cohen was then inserted into the home team's lineup and almost immediately the Tangerines regained their lead. Vin scored on a three point play, added a foul, and then collected another basket as the Syracuse attack improved.

IN THE FOURTH period, the Pietymen maintained a healthy advantage and were never in trouble.

Outstanding in defeat for Edwards was Bob Sager. The former Orange varsity cager registered 29 points and his inspired floor play and board strength bothered the frosh all evening.

Matmen to Oppose Knights Saturday In Last Home Meet

Coach Joe McDaniel's varsity wrestlers renewed practice sessions yesterday in an effort to sharpen their condition for the coming home meet Saturday against Army after being completely outclassed by Lehigh, 27-3, last weekend.

The only optimistic outlook from the Lehigh debacle is that sophomore Tom King and junior George Finck, in addition to the ever-amazing Ed Rooney of course, are showing signs that they will be in the higher echelons of wrestling next year.

KING WAS defeated 7-1 by highly touted Ken Faust in the 137-pound division, but the match was closer than the score indicates. The quick-moving Orange soph has handled himself admirably against some very tough opponents, and McDaniel was quick to point this out.

Equally promising is 210-pounder, George Finck. The affable junior is only in his second year of wrestling, but he has improved vastly with each match.

Finck was decisioned 9-3 Saturday by Eastern champion Werner Seal. He couldn't match the experience of Seal as far as take downs and reversals are concerned, but the speedy heavyweight proved his agility by gaining three escapes.

Co-Captain Ed Rooney got the only Syracuse points by whaloping his opponent, 12-3 in the 157-pound division. Roon nearly had a pin in the first period but some true sportsmanship on his part robbed him of it.

WITH ABOUT 30 second to go, Roon had the Engineer's Roger Taylor in a pinning hold, when Taylor called out that his ankle was hurt. The referee did not hear Taylor, but Rooney did and released his hold.

In the closest match of the day, Hank Gobetz was edged by the Engineer's Dick Whited, 7-6. Whited got a point on an escape in the final period to gain the decision.

Saturday's meet with Army will be the last home meet of the season for the McDanielmen. Rooney's match will probably be, for the first time this season, the most competitive individual battle.

The slam-banging Orange co-Captain will contest the Cadet's Dale Ward, one of the top 157-pounders in the East. This match should offer an ample display of wrestling finesse.

Hill Quintet Faces Maroon in Finale

Assured of at least a .500 season, the Syracuse hoopsters are preparing for the year's finale against Colgate Saturday in Archbold gym. The Orange grabbed its tenth win in 19 starts last weekend with a 71-69 victory over Penn State.

Colgate also turned back the Lions from State College, topping the vistors 75-63, Friday evening. Coach Howie Hartman's crew has a record of 5-9, not including yesterday's tilt with Buffalo in the Queen city.

SATURDAY'S BATTLE with Colgate will be the 103rd in the series which dates back to 1902. Syracuse holds a 62-40 edge in the traditional rivalry, including an 85-83 victory at Hamilton a week ago.

The Raiders are led by 6 ft.-1 Frank Patterson, set-shooting junior from Chatham, N. J. First junior captain at Colgate since Ernie Vandeweghe held the distinction in 1948, Frank has emerged as a top-notch scorer and playmaker. He tallied 30 points in the earlier Orange meeting and threw in 26 Friday against Penn State.

Bill Johnson, a 5 ft.-11 junior from Niagara Falls, is another Maroon scoring threat. He cracked the starting lineup last year as a soph and has improved steadily in recent contests.

Buffalo downed Colgate last night, 65-64, at the winners' home court.

Other Colgate regulars are Don Ronnie, defensive ace from Maplewood, N. J., and big men Milt Graham (6 ft.-6) and Cal Wolcott (6 ft.-5).

SYRACUSE STAVED off a last-minute Penn State rally for Saturday's victory. The Orange led by six points with a minute left but the Lions scored twice to close the gap.

State forward Earl Fields missed a free throw with five seconds remaining and big Jesse Arnelle also missed the rebound just before the buzzer.

Capt. Mel Besdin paced the Orange with 33 points, setting a court record by converting 15 of 16 free throws. Jack Larned was the only other Saltine in double figures with 11 while Lou Beverly and Ronnie Gillespie divided 18.

Arnelle topped the visitors with 25 points, one more than caged by Ed Haag. Capt. Jack Sherry added 11.

The Orange outscored State in all but the last period, jumping to an 18-15 advantage at the quarter and stretching the margin to 33-29 at halftime and 53-46 after three periods.

Trackmen to Invade Garden for IC4A's

Coach Bob Grieve as in many past years is again preparing his Varsity indoor track team for the "World Series" of track, the IC4A national championships at Madison Square Garden.

Led by Jack Hubbard, Les Vielbig, Don Shupe and Steve Armstrong who will run the two mile relay, Ray Osterhout who will run the two mile, Jim George and Frank Calzi who will run the mile, the Orange will be well represented.

Last Saturday evening the two mile relay team finished second to Fordham who ran the two miles in 7:41.6 breaking the record set by the Grievemen a week before. Jack Hubbard led off running the half mile in 1:57.5, Les Vielbig ran his in 1:55 flat, followed by Don Shupe in 1:56.5, and anchorman Steve Armstrong in 1:53 for a cumulative 1:42.5. Following the Orange were Georgetown, N. Y., Pioneer club, Manhattan, and in last place St. John's.

This weekend will mark the third time this season that the Orangemen have run in the Garden. Not only will Fordham who beat them by five yards last week be there, but also other top teams in the country.

Warriors Cling to Playoff Hopes

The Syracuse Warriors will try and keep their slim playoff hopes alive in three home games this week. The Warriors will be in action on Wednesday and Saturday evenings as well as Sunday afternoon. The Sunday game is the first of its kind in Warrior history.

NBA FINALS

This year, the three top teams in each division engage in a round robin playoff to determine the NBA winner. In the East, it will be New York, Syracuse and Boston while the West has Minneapolis, Fort Wayne and Rochester.

Thru the Muck With Meyer

By ED MEYER
Associate Sports Editor

This Saturday is the captain's last game. The captain, if you haven't discovered is hoopster Mel Besdin, a fellow who I have known personally for the past four years. And believe me, they have been a quartet of years which have had some of the greatest thrills a college ballplayer will find.

Behind these four years there is a moral and Mel Besdin has proved it to a tee. That of course is, "determination is mighty tough to beat."

Yes, to a senior playing his last game it seems as if the four years have just flown by. It seems just like yesterday that the former Manlius star was teaming with fellow Syracusan Pat Stark leading Andy Mogish's freshman club. But that was four whole years ago and in that time things can really changed. And they did for Mel Besdin.

Three years ago as an inexperienced soph he moved into Madison Square Garden with the Orange five to oppose New York University.

Mel Besdin

Mel hadn't seen much action up to that contest because of the many veterans on the club. But that evening he finally got his break and according to New York Knickerbocker Coach Joe Lapchick, who was interviewed at the half, "that Besdin is one of the greatest prospects I have ever seen in the Garden this year." It was quite a compliment for the soph who played a brilliant ballgame that night.

Last year the fortunes of Bill Orange were heading for a downfall. But the Hill five pulled one of the biggest upsets of the year by dowing mighty Niagara at Archbold. That night the Hillmen were unbeatable and Mel had the finest night of his two-year career by setting a new Gym scoring mark with 31 points.

And now it is the final season and Mel has two important years behind him hoping for a fine year and of course some revenge against his old enemies from down south. But before Colgate there was Cornell and what may be considered his greatest college thrill. As most of the fans remember the Orange trailed throughout the contest here at Syracuse until Mel's set cut the cords with five seconds to go and a Hill victory was assured.

There were other fine games but the first trip to Colgate, Mel's last one was one of his best. That night they were all set for him. They had the "Melvin" yells and the handkerchief brigade ready But Mel was ready too and poured in 20 points to lead his team to a two point victory.

Then came last Saturday's Penn State game and his chance for the all-University individual game scoring mark. Going into the last period he had 30 points against a zone defense. But in the final stanza he scored only three markers concentrating on a team victory by freezing the ball most of the quarter. That's why they chose the guy as a captain.

As I said before Mel is a pretty determined individual. He just never seems to give up no matter what the odds. Sure you see him squawk a lot on the court but that's the kind of a guy he is.

One who is in there fighting for every point which may tell the difference between victory and defeat. Don't get me wrong, Mel's no martyr, just a ballplayer out to see his team win.

But what does a captain think going into his last contest? Knowing Mel, he'll probably reminisce before the contest. The Garden, Hamilton, Cornell, Jess Arnelle, Niagara. They'll all be running through the guy's mind when he steps out for the Star Spangled Banner and the opening whistle. Four years a fellow just will never forget. And to end it all by beating the Raiders would be typical of a Besdin finish. It's been that way all through his career. AND THAT IS THE WAY IT IS GOING TO BE SATURDAY!

Syracuse Frosh Swimmers Encounter Manlius Tonight

By JEFF WENIG

The frosh mermen after having defeated Wyoming Seminary and Erie Academy last Friday afternoon will take on Manlius Military Academy tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Orange pool.

By strange coincidence, Manlius uses the Orange pool in which to practice and therefore knowing most of their times, Coach Webster is quite optimistic as to the outcome.

The lineup used tonight will only be slightly altered from the ones used to sink Wyoming and Erie 46-29 and 40-25 respectively, and will rely mostly on the swimming of the three freshmen stars, John Buzzard, John McGill and Graham Vanderveer.

IN FRIDAY'S meets, records were shattered to oblivion by the above three. In the afternoon meet Vanderveer set the freshman record for the 200-yard freestyle with 2:06.4. Then McGill churned through the water to break the 50-yard freestyle record and set the new one at 0:25.2. Then it was Buzzard's turn and he set the freshman record for the individual medley with a 1:48 passing the old mark by eight seconds.

In the evening meet, Buzzard broke the 50-yard record set in the afternoon by McGill with a sparkling 0:24.8 and McGill broke the record set by Buzzard in the individual with a 1:40, eight seconds faster than the afternoon time.

Although most of the points were gained by McGill, Vandeveer and Buzzard, others who added to the score for the aquamen were Nelson Borges who swam brilliantly in the backstroke events. Ed Trosin and Jim Brewster in the relays and Jeff Wenig in the 100-yard freestyle events.

Special Performance Slated For 'Lysistrata'

A special performance of "Lysistrata" will be given tomorrow evening in the drama building. Tickets for the performance will go on sale today.

Due to the unusually large advance sale for the regular Thursday, Friday and Saturday performances, the drama department has arranged for the additional show tomorrow evening.

CURTAIN TIME for the Wednesday performance is 8 p.m. Other performances will begin at 8:15 p.m. as they did last week.

More than 500 persons viewed the first weekend performances of "Lysistrata" the Greek comedy which was produced under the auspices of Professor Sawyer Falk, head of the Drama department.

The Greek comedy, which was the first Boar's Head production of the year, received favorable notices both downtown and on the Hill. Barbara Hush as Lysistrata, Shirley Ann Fenner and Joanne Reed were especially commended for their performances. The entire company of 60 persons was lauded for able support in the play.

The Syracusan, campus humor magazine was also on hand to photograph performance stills which will appear in next month's issue as a picture series on Boar's Head activities.

BLOCK SEATING arrangements are still available for the future performances of Lysistrata. Special rates for group seating are still also in effect.

Tickets for performances Feb. 24, 25 and 26 and 27 are available at the box office in the Drama building. Reservations may be obtained by calling 4-2776.

Johnson Loan Fund Of $500 Available For J-School Men

More than $500 from the newly established H. Douglas Johnson Sr. loan fund will be made available to men in the School of Journalism.

The announcement was made by H. Douglas Johnson, Jr., in behalf of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism honorary and by Dean Wesley C. Clark, of the School of Journalism. The loan fund was established by a gift from the Syracuse professional chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

H. Douglas Johnson, Sr., who died three years ago Saturday, was a leader among newspapermen in Syracuse. For many years he was news editor of the Herald-Journal.

At the time of his death he was described as one of the best-loved newsmen in the area and his funeral was attended by notables from the entire area.

Mr. Johnson was a brother of Harold Johnson, founder and long time owner of the Watertown Times.

Dean Clark termed the gift a very generous one which was much needed.

Fine Arts Museum Holds Exhibition

Exhibitions of special interest to drama and design students are at the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts until Sunday.

The major showing, "Theatre Designs," is an international loan collection containing sketches for stage sets and for costumes, as well as miniature stage sets. They are all done by leading theater designers of today.

The designs include sketches from "Smash-hits" now current in New York. "Almanac," "Wonderful Town," "Can-Can," "The King and I" plus "South Pacific."

There is a collection of water colors made by the noted British artist John Piper for the coronation opera "Gloriana" by Benjamin Britten, and obtained through the British ambassador in Washington, D. C.

Other showings include posters by Toulouse-Lautrec and prints by Picasso. An exhibition of East Indian arts and crafts sent to the Museum by Miss Durga Deuklar of New Delhi, India, who is now studying at the Syracuse College of Home Economics, is also included.

Another student asked the dean his opinion on the value of the state Board of Regents. He replied that his experience as school superintendent in three states with no Regents has convinced him that "it does more harm than good, tending to encourage teachers to prepare for the Regent exams instead of teaching for the pure joy of learning."

Tuition Increased 150% For Last Years of Nursing

Rates Will Rise To $500 in Fall Says Dean Smith

By ARLENE LAMBERT
Editor-in-Chief

Tuition for the junior and senior (clinical) years in nursing will jump from $200 to $500 per year beginning next fall, Dean Edith Smith of the School of Nursing announced last night.

Approximately 210 present freshmen, sophomores and juniors in the nursing program will be affected by the 150 per cent rise.

UNIVERSITY OFFICIALS indicated that the action was made necessary by the continued deficit of the nursing program. With Syracuse operating under a tighter budget each year, the Board of Trustees felt that this loss could no longer be absorbed.

At the same time, Vice-president Frank Piskor revealed that scholarships fixed to tuition and held by the nurses would also be increased.

A special procedure has been set up to give extra consideration to nurses applying for University grants-in-aid.

Passed by the University Board of Trustees at its November meeting, the tuition rise was not made public until last night at a special nursing convocation. Letters prepared by Dean Smith were also sent out yesterday to the parents of all students affected by the move.

MANY OF the nursing students had heard rumors of an increase in rates, but according to the nurses, few were prepared for an increase of 150 per cent.

There are now 55 frosh, 48 sophomores and 117 juniors enrolled in the School of Nursing.

After the war years, tuition in several colleges was increased. Finally an all-University tuition program became effective which omitted, however, the clinical years of nursing.

This is the only step which has been taken since that time to increase the tuition from its original $200 level for those years.

Balloting to Conclude Today For Orange Feather Contest

Today is the deadline for casting ballots in the Orange Feather King and Queen contest sponsored by Campus Chest. The two day election will continue with voting at Maxwell and Slocum from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Ballots are 10 cents.

Votes are placed in orange colored milk bottles with each nickel being counted as one vote. Early reports in the election gave Madge Evans and Constance Talbot an early lead in the queen division while Konstantinos Salonika held a tight edge in the closely packed king division.

NEARLY 700 VOTES were cast during the first day with the Campus Chest collection being swelled by almost $35.

Final reports show that Monday's Feather Day campaign garnered $270 for the drive in comparison to $140 collected in 1953. Solicitors from Delta Gamma, Iota Alpha Pi, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Sigma Tau Delta, Phi Sigma Sigma, Delta Tau Delta, Alpha Xi Delta, Tau Epsilon Phi, Beta Sigma Rho, Sigma Kappa and Phi Delta Theta distributed the feathers throughout campus.

Today is also the last day for city students to contribute to the drive on campus. Samuel Braun and Diane Johnson, co-chairmen of the division have announced that nearby commuting students will be contacted personally. Those living far from campus though, are urged to donate at the city booths.

The booths are located at the spots as booths for voting at Maxwell and Slocum. They also will remain open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

ALL COLLECTIONS captains should turn their house envelopes into the Campus Chest office in the Women's building as soon as collected.

Trophies will be awarded to living centers which donate the most to the drive in four divisions. They are fraternity, sorority, independent men and independent women.

Last year, Sigma Kappa won the sorority division and Tau Epsilon Phi topped fraternity competition. Wilson Cottage was the leading independent women's dormitory and the Men's Co-op won in the independent men's division.

This year's Campus Chest goal is $7,500. In addition to collections from Feather Day and the King and Queen contest, the drive was supplemented by over $800 from last fall's Carnival and $530 from Saturday's auctioning of top campus personalities. Co-chairmen of the drive are JoAnn Swalm and Staurt Parker.

MEMBERS OF the executive council include Carol Terpening, executive secretary; Jon Bjornson, treasurer; Diane Hirshhorn and Stuart Smith, promotions; Milicent Auerbach and Robert Lefko, publicity; and Jane Arnold and Bernard Bregman, Speaker's Bureau.

Other Campus Chest chairmen are John Hennessey and William Connelley, fraternities; Sandra Stoller and Elizabeth Wright, sororities; Chester Gino and George Kibby, independent men; and Marilyn Day and Joan Brownell, independent women.

Also, Ann McKaif and William Shore, faculty gifts; Gail Dudkin and Rosemary Ferris, special gifts; and Robert McAllister and Margot Baum, Feather Day.

Pinebrook Heads Need Suggestion For Discussions

Allan Anderson and Marcia Michelbacher, co-chairmen of Campus Leaders' annual Pinebrook conference, have requested areas student concern be submitted by Hill students.

The problems or areas submitted should be directly connected with college life in general and Syracuse university in particular. The committee will select the most vital areas and submit them for discussion by campus leaders and members of the Administration.

Ideas should be submitted to Anderson at Phi Gamma Delta, 732 Comstock ave., 75-4418.

Activities Group Plans 'Variety Night' Friday

By ROGER HERZ

Plans for a "Variety Night," built around the Friday 8:15 p.m. to midnight mixer in the Women's building was announced late yesterday by the newly organized Student Activities Committee.

In a rapid expansion after the first open mixer of the academic year last Friday, which was attended by over 525 persons, SAC announced that in addition to the mixer, a jazz concert on records weeks are record concerts highlighting classical music and musical comedy.

Refreshments, featuring home-made cookies fresh from Friday afternoon ovens will be available.

The dance, second in a series of 12 during the semester, will be free to all students showing an ID card. Dress will be informal, and students may come stag or drag.

The eight original members of SAC, appointed by student government presidents Mary Anne Dalton and Stanley Leff, have decided to remain a committee of the whole, with subcommittees to be set up. Thus, no specific committee member will head an individual subcommittee.

SAC IS actively working toward the reinstitution of dancing classes, which will be taught under Walter Medicis, who rendered such a service in the now defunct Student Union. Both beginner's and advanced classes are planned.

Member of the committee are Merle Bank, Marley Barkley, Nancy Boerner, John de Palma, Jerry Gerber, Roger Herz, Arthur Kinney and Ann McKaig.

Miss Margaret Parker, University social director, and Mrs. Margaret Bonisteel, assistant director of the Women's building, serve as advisors to the group.

Any organization feeling it can contribute ideas to the group or work with SAC in a cooperative function is invited to contact any of the committee members or leave word at the receptionist's desk of the Women's building.

Too much, too late

The bombshell of the year exploded last night!

The scene was a special convocation for the School of Nursing freshmen, sophomores and juniors. The "blockbuster" was the announcement that tuition for the final two years of the program would be increased 150 per cent next September.

The reason given by University officials was that the continued deficit of the School of Nursing could no longer be absorbed by the over-all University budget.

That the nursing school incurs a sizeable deficit each year, we cannot deny.

That a small (in numbers) school with large laboratory and clinical facilities and expert teachers must have higher expenses than income, we also agree.

That the University budget, with a smaller waistline each year, cannot continue to absorb huge losses from any department, we concur.

However, the abruptness and timing of the solution makes it impossible to support.

The members of the University Cabinet or Board of Trustees should have foreseen that eventually the tuition for the last two years of the program would have to be increased—for two reasons.

From what can be learned at present from Administration officials, the latter two years of the School of Nursing were the only ones within the University whose tuition was not raised during the last five years.

Secondly, the School of Nursing has annually incured a deficit which was absorbed into the University budget. For several years, the budget has been getting smaller. It was to be expected that losses occurring in any department would eventually have to be reduced.

It therefore does not seem possible that this move could not have been anticipated before necessity forced a rise of 150 per cent at one swift stroke.

The nurses, although warned ahead by rumors, had little idea that the increase would be in the neighborhood of $300 per year or $700 extra for the last two years combined.

True, many students are on tuition scholarships which will also increase, but many are not.

A great number of nursing students are on fixed scholarships. It is to these students, those who are working their way through and those from families with small incomes that the action seems "too much, too late."

There has already been the usual talk of transfering, but much of this can be discounted as "first-impression reactions."

However, there were many nurses who last night returned to their cottages faced with the very real problem of whether they could continue with nursing at Syracuse.

Should the extra consideration on grants-in-aid give her the needed resources, all would be fine, one of the nurses had said. But if not, the $700 would be an insurmountable barrier—especially when the expenses had been measured to the penny for the years ahead.

At a time when good nurses are at a premium, such a move seems incongruous.

We can now only hope that the myriad of problems created for the students will eventually be solved with the smallest amount of loss to the individuals and the University.

An Evening to Remember...

By MICHAEL BRAUN

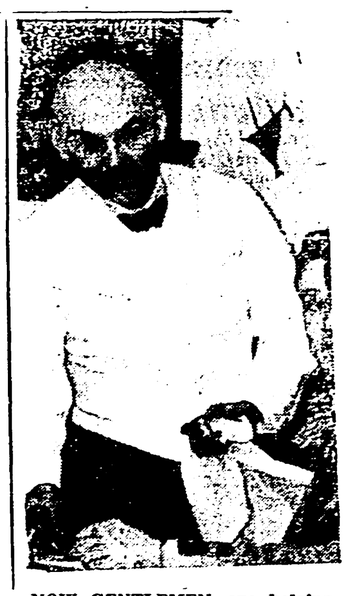
ACTING ON the premise that Colgate queens, vice-presidents, and cheerleaders don't know beans about the culinary art, Mrs. Mabel King the Psi Upsilon cook explains some of the finer points to MADGE EVANS, CAROL AMACHER, ELIZABETH BRYDON and SANDRA EAKIN. EAKIN.

WHAT'S THIS? Dean of Men EARL CLIFFORD drinking a Manhattan. Impossible you say. But no it isn't. For you see kiddies, it was only apple juice in wolf's clothing.

ORANGE GRID star BOB LEBERMAN looks like the perfect host. The occasion is the weekly buffet dinner at Alpha Phi where mine host Leberman served the coffee.

THREE LITTLE administrators from school. Looking contented on the Alpha Phi couch are Dean JIM CARLETO. Registrar KEITH KENNED and Dean CARL KRATHWOHL. Thanks to the dirty dishes they didn't remain contented for long.

MONDAY NIGHT the campus politicus got a practical lesson in politics. Here ELIZABETH BRYDON, WSG vice-president gets a practical lesson in what is known as hot potato handling.



NOW GENTLEMEN, one helping of steak is enough. The scene is the Delta Kappa Epsilon house where vice-chancellor FINLA G. CRAWFORD served the vittles to the boys.

MONDAY WAS definitely EUGENE PARKERS day. The Kappa Sigma brother was served royally by Assistant Dean of Men EARL CLIFFORD. The Chinese gong behind Parker summoned the Dean to do his bidding.

Daily Orange Photographs by John Johnsrud

Rumor has it that everything comes to he that waits. The reverse was true on Monday night. Those that were waited on had all the fun.

Campus Chest sponsored an auction on Saturday and Monday night all debts were paid. We walked unannounced into a few well selected houses and observed the passing scene.

Over at Kappa Sigma the brothers were just sitting down to the evening meal. Pork chops, potatoes and salad graced the tables. A waiter was serving the beverage which looked suspiciously like Manhattans. The waiter, who wore a red, white, and blue head waiter ribbon on his chest, looked suspiciously like Dean Earl Clifford of the Dean of Men's office. Manhattans and Dean of Men didn't seem to jibe.

Every once in a while a Chinese gong would summon the Dean to serve. Observing this pagan rite we became entranced with its many possibilities. Manhattan after Manhattan was served until we were offered one. We still maintain that apple juice and a cherry in a cocktail glass looks like a Manhattan.

One of the brothers motioned to the Dean to begin serving. He came out with a tray of beer mugs. Turned out to be milk. We left Kappa Sigma.

The Kappa Sigs had paid forty dollars and fifty cents for Dean Clifford. Maybe they were trying to get their money's worth. What about Liz Brydon, Carol Amacher, Sandy Eiken and Madge Evans, who had been purchased for a grand total of fifty dollars. We walked suspiciously into Psi U.

The house was in darkness. Here and there a candle was on a table. The brothers were eating. Carol Amacher the queen of Colgate weekend, was carrying a plate of ham, peas and potatoes to a brother who looked as if he had been starved for months.

We walked into the kitchen. Mrs. King the cook was preparing for the dessert. "What do you think of all these pretty girls waiting on table" we asked.

"Not much," retorted Mrs. King.

Into the kitchen came WSG veep Liz Brydon toting a huge tray and singing the Psi U song along with the brothers. How did she ever learn the words? The girls were now scraping the dinner dishes and we left for the Dekes.

Vice Chancellor Crawford, upon whose shoulders the policy of Syracuse university rests in the absence of the Chancellor was serving steak to the brethern. They were all individually cooked and the Vice-Chancellor was kept hopping.

One of the brothers asked if the steaks could be hurried. "They'll just have to wait," said Ma Baker the Deke cook. We left the Dekes as the Vice-Chancellor was taken from his meal for the fourteenth time.

At Alpha Phi things were really humming. The gals had snared four waiters and were being served royally. Assistant Deans of Men Carleton Krathwohl, Registrar Kennedy and grid star Bob Leberman did the waiting.

After everybody had been served and the waiters were taking their food Winnie Bogardus who was helping the waiters reminded them that it was the policy of Alpha Phi that "there were always seconds for the help."

Dean Krathwohl in a red apron with a red and white fringe took a place on the couch in the living room and was joined by the others. Winnie and Mrs. Rathburn the housemother ate their dinner on the other side of the room where they could keep an eye on the help.

While the gals and waiters were eating we went across Walnut to the Acacia house. Alta Burg singlehandedly had served a roast beef meal to twenty brothers. She seemed to feel that this was a lot more difficult then twirling, at least to her. In recognition of the hardships she had suffered chapter president Keith Johnson presented her with a loving cup.

We wanted to stay but duty called and we hurried back to Alpha Phi to see what Winnie had dreamed up. The boys had served the cake and coffee and were about to leave. They started to say goodbye to the housemother and to thank all the girls.

"Wait," said Winnie. The waiters looked around. Handing the registrar an IBM card to work with, our girl said, "You forgot to scrape the plates."

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

PLEDGE TRIX; DAMP PLAY; GLOW SHOW

By MILT SHEFTER

The picture in the paper which showed a hill fraternity with no furniture only showed half the story. As it was, the pledges from that house loaded the furniture in a rented van, and parked it behind another hill house. After going through the tortures pledges must suffer for such pranks, they decided to return the furniture, but found no truck where they had left it. Reports kept pouring in as to the location of the van, and from Cazenovia to Ithaca the search went on. It was finally located in the Skytop dump and at last reports the brothers are sitting for their meals. The pledges, still feeling sensitive to the whole thing, prefer to stand!

* * *

Sights on Lysistrata: Maybe the Greeks had a different word for it, but it couldn't match that of some of the audience who got splashed, but good, in the second act. And stretching the imagination to the limit, the doll-type baby gave off a rather human sounding yell considering its primary constituence was sawdust.

* * *

Game sights: The bulldog in the stands Saturday night caused some to wonder if perhaps it wasn't Penn State we were playing but Yale. And no matter what you say against the officials you've got to admire their persistance. One of the striped gentlemen was unceremoniously deposited on the hardwood by State's Arnell, quite by accident, and in the true tradition of the theatre, still in a sitting position, he coughed up his whistle, blew it, and the game went on.

* * *

Seemed like football season to see the band out there, as usual. Even the old maestro himself, Ken Fredericks got into the act by joining in with his trombone. But the blowers of the brass lament that there's no aisle around them for the patrons to climb down out of the altitudes. Seems the management could provide better routing for the fans. After climbing so high, it is sometimes necessary to make a quick descent to avoid nosebleeds.

* * *

Black light sights: Glad to see the black lights which are in actuality ultra-violet, working this time. They failed during football season and Miss Burg twirled in actual black with no light. However, the full effect was achieved Saturday night, and the lights added dazzle to her usual sparkling performance.

* * *

And now if you'll excuse us, we're going to start studying meteorology. No more wondering about this Syracuse weather and riding in open convertibles with a storm coat on.

LETTERARY COMMENT

Death to Apathy

Feb. 16, 1954

To the Editor:

Thank goodness, at last you have Roger Herz back in print. I missed him greatly in those issues that lacked him. And I liked the theme of apathy, perhaps I didn't agree with him but he would stimulate thought.

One point of improvement would be perhaps to offer suggestions as to how to help lick the "curse of college students."

The Wings of Song

By DIANE DAHLMAN

Have you ever noticed the effect seasons have on the average man? In summer there is nothing he would like to do better than to lie on the cool, cool grass under the refreshing shade of his favorite oak and let life pass him by.

By fall, the sparkling chill of Jack Frost descends upon him, and he's ready to yell and cheer. (He has to do something to keep warm.) By winter, he settles down to work (?!?) but in the beautiful springtime he rises above the average and wants to sing. There must be some reason why Syracuse holds an annual Step Singing contest during Spring weekend.

This contest is really one of the oldest traditions on the campus and has changed several times in its long history. As early as 1889, large sings were held on the college lawn after Chapel. By spring of 1904, enough interest in group singing had arisen that the men of the various colleges decided to assemble on Crouse hill for a "good old time sing" from 6:30 to 7:30 once a week. This was thought to be an excellent time for such an activity because it could not possibly interfere with anyone's work, even the "fussers." The Glee club and cheerleaders lead these song revels.

Although this began as a men's activity (probably because the women weren't allowed such late permission hours) by 1922, the girls had moved in and converted the sings into an interclass sing contest. The class giving the best performance had the privilege of singing at the Lantern ceremony connected with the annual Women's day in the first part of May.

These class sings continued into the 1930's but in 1926, the first official Step Singing contest as we know it today arose. Similar contests had already been held during the past years at neighboring colleges such as Vassar and Wellesley. The groups were to sing one humorous song and one song representative of college life. Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, was to judge the winner. That group sang also at the Lantern ceremony.

In 1928, another cup was added to the contest. A balanced program and the excellence of the harmony were two of the factors taken into consideration in the judging.

During the war years, the contest was discontinued but in the post-war period, it was resumed again. The character of the songs chosen had changed from the humorous to the religious although not all songs were hymns. Songs bringing out the most unusual harmony and tone became very popular.

By 1948 the contest was broken into two classifications, a small house and a large house division. This was done to afford each type of house an equal opportunity.

In another week, many houses on campus will begin to practice for this year's contest. It's still a long time before Spring weekend, but by the time finals are held, the big week will almost upon us. Hours of effort will be represented in the voices of the girls who reach the grand award, the silver cup.

Boxers Aim to End Draw Streak Against Badgers

With Wisconsin's boxing Badgers next on the list, fistic Coach Roy Simmons is putting all efforts to get his boys out of their tie-fascination. Although Syracuse is still unbeaten, their last two matches have ended with draws.

Wisconsin, annual collegiate boxing champs, got off to a late start this season and their record is only 1-0. That one came via a severe thumping to Penn State last week, 6-2, at Wisconsin.

CHARLIE MAGESTRO, Wisconsin 139 pounder, who will battle Syracuse's Eastern champ Johnny Granger for the third time this Friday night.

WHEN HEAVYWEIGHT Bob Hinds finished the evening off with a TKO in 1:21 of the first round over Penn State heavy Joel Coleman before 10,500, it marked Wisconsin's first outing to seek their third straight unbeaten season.

Wisconsin Coach John Walsh can just close his eyes and point, and he comes up with a champ in any weight.

One of the top fights of the night is due when Charlie Magestro at 139 takes on Syracuse's Thumpin' Johnny Granger, Eastern champ. Granger lost in the regular season last year to Magestro, but beat him in the NCAA's.

Co-Capt. Bob Morgan dons the gloves to defend Wisconsin at 147 pounds. Morgan, an NCAA champ at this weight two years ago, lost his first match of this year. Wisconsin's other loser against Penn State: Ev Chambers at 165. Simmons expects some juggling of the Wisconsin lineup to match Syracuse's strength at this weight.

AT 125 Coach Walsh has Roy Kuboyama, a transfer from the University of Hawaii where, as a freshman, he won the NCAA tourney at 112 pounds and qualified for the U. S. Olympic tryouts.

In the light heavy bracket Wisconsin has Ray Zale, a nephew of former middleweight champion Tony Zale. Ray, who holds a decision over Syracuse's Bruce Yancey, is also a defending NCAA champ.

Co-Capt. Bob Meath competes at 156. Vince Rigolosi, Syracuse's Eastern champ at 156, holds a decision over Meath.

Syracuse Coeds Tie For Sportsday Title In Weekend Meet

By JODY CRONAU

A Syracuse women's basketball squad toppled St. Lawrence and Ithaca in intercollegiate sportsday competition in the Women's building Saturday to gain a tie for first place in the tournament.

Wells college, sharing first place with the Hill team, downed Cornell and William Smith.

Barbara Bucko, Syracuse captain, and Libby Harner led their team to a 34-18 victory over St. Lawrence, as each recorded 16 points. In their second game of the afternoon, the Hill sextet dropped Ithaca, 22-18, as Harner scored 14 in the tight contest.

WELLS DEFEATED Cornell, 16-9, and blasted William Smith, 33-12. Syracuse will tangle with Wells next Saturday at the Wells basketball sportsday. A Syracuse squad will be chosen following an open practice from 8 to 9 p.m., tomorrow in the Women's building.

Teams participating in the tournament, and their records include: Syracuse, 2-0; Wells, 2-0; Ithaca, 1-1; William Smith, 1-1; LeMoyne, 0-2 and Cornell, 0-2.

In badminton finals, Ellie Marsh of Wells outscored Dorrie Lemp of Syracuse, 11-3, 11-2, to annex the singles crown. Elmira's doubles team of Ann Harvey and Mary Ross tripped Ithaca, 15-2, 18-3.

Syracuse's keglers missed second place by one pin in the bowling tournament.

Approximately 130 girls participated in the largest intercollegiate sportsday ever held at Syracuse, sponsored by WAA.

Sparkling Soph

MANNY BRELAND, soph backcourt star, will probably be in the starting lineup when the Orange closes its season Saturday against Colgate in Archbold gym. A 6 ft.-2 Syracusan, Manny is averaging 9.5 points per game.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

With West Virginia's Mountaineers now on the '55 and '56 Syracuse football schedules, another link has been added toward the proposed Eastern grid conference. It's been sort of a public secret the past few months that Penn State, Pittsburgh, West Virginia and Syracuse are the nucleus of the budding league.

The addition of Ben Schwartzwalder's alma mater to the Orange slate makes Syracuse's possible entry into the group just that much easier. Reportedly all that is holding up the definite formation of such a group is the possibility that Army and Navy might join.

The two service academies, of course, would "make" the league. If they could be brought into the fold, any other Eastern league, including the Ivy league, would be relegated to a second place position.

Orange officials appear to be all for such a move. Following a story out of Holy Cross which stated that Syracuse was attempting to formulate a league, athletic director Lew Andreas stated that this was not the case, but hinted that Syracuse was receptive towards it.

Two reasons have been presented. First, that a league championship would enhance league football games. Second, a league would have better bargaining power with bowl committees.

The second point is a most important one. In the last two years only one team with no league affiliation has been invited to a bowl game—Syracuse. Just a coincidence?

As such, the league-which-is-not-yet-born is still in the paper stage. There's a lot going on behind the scenes which no one knows. As the man says, "Just watch your daily paper."

• • • • •

Optimistic Roy Simmons feels unusually good concerning his team's chances against Wisconsin's boxers this Friday night. On paper, the Orange will definitely be considered the underdog.

The Badgers had their first meet of the year last Saturday against Penn State and won handily, 6-2. The same Staters tied Syracuse two weeks ago, 4-all.

What Simmie is basing his hopes on mostly is that his Big Four of Frank Guelli, Jerry Jaffe, John Granger and Vin Rigolosi can come through to gain a tie. It would be quite a feat since the visitors have taken their last eight matches in a row.

The last team to beat Wisconsin was Penn State way back in '51. Quite a team to buck.

Frosh Mermen Sink Manlius In Third Straight Win, 42-32

By JEFF WENIG

The frosh mermen, after defeating two teams last Friday, continued on their winning ways by downing Manlius Military school, 42-32 in the Orange pool last night.

Coach Ted Webster juggled the lineup just before the meet and as it turned out the contest was not as easy as expected but a fight for points throughout.

Coach Webster tried to keep his stars, Graham Vandeveer, Jon Buzzard, and John McGill in as few events as possible and therefore give the other freshman swimmers a chance at the taste of victory. But they still proved that they deserved the praise they have received by breaking the freshman pool record set by Cornell university for the three-man medley. It was the first time that the three have swum together.

Nelson Bogers, who won the 100-yard backstroke by almost a complete length of the pool, is developing into a fine backstroker. Ed Trosin aided the team with much needed points by scoring a first in the 100-yard free and a close second in the 50. Jeff Wenig came through with a first in the 200-yard free style.

The diving of the evening went, as it had twice on Friday, to Chuck Kibling. By completing difficult dives, Kibling totaled enough points for his win.

Others who performed excellently and aided in the aquamen's victory, were Jim Brewster, Dave Dickes, and Dave Stoll.

Phi Delt, Sigma Chi, AEPi, Tau Delt Win Intra Hoop Games

By SOL BECKER

Eight games were scheduled on the Archbold hardwoods last night. Phi Delta Theta displayed some of the smoothest playing of the evening while downing Alpha Chi Rho by the score of 45-29.

The Phi Delts took an early lead and were never in trouble.

SIG SIEBER led the victors with 17 points, while his teammate Ronnie Tyler also hit for double figures in scoring 12 points. High man for A Chi Rho was Paul Kuenstner with 14 points.

Closest contest of the evening saw Tau Delta Phi down Kappa Sigma 28-20. The Tau Delts led at halftime by a score of 11-8. With the efforts of Danny Present and Charlie Williams, the Tau Delts outscored their rivals 17-12 in the second half.

Williams led the scoring with 14, while Present consistently cleared the boards.

In other games of the evening, Alpha Epsilon Pi downed Pi Lambda Phi 46-16.

LEVI MORTON forfeited to Skytop M-5. Psi Upsilon defeated Phi Epsilon Pi 32-20 with Dick Barstow scoring 14 points in Psi U's victory.

Sigma Phi Epsilon won over Phi Kappa Tau 31-15. Bob Trees was high man for the Sig Ep's with 17 points. In another forfeit, Delta Kappa Epsilon was the winner over Tau Epsilon Pi.

In the final game of the evening Sigma Chi swamped Kappa Phi Delta 51-21. George McGlynn tossed in 19 points for the winners, while dependable Orvie Wambold was good for rebounding assists.

Forestry Senior Wins Annual Prize For Scholarship

Richard Silliman Receives Award From Paper Firm

Richard Silliman, a pulp and paper technology major, has won a $200 prize for high scholarship at the State university of New York College of Forestry.

The 22-year-old senior from Oneonta, received the award from the American Pulp and Paper Mill Superintendent association, Chicago.

This represented the third Fred C. Boyce student award at the forestry college. Syracuse has been designated with the University of Maine and Western Michigan college of Education at Kalamazoo as an institution where the prize will be given annually.

The award was presented by Harry E. Weston, executive secretary and treasurer of the association. A graduate of pulp and paper training at the College of Forestry in 1921, Weston is also a former member of the faculty.

Weston explained, during a brief talk before students and faculty, that the Boyce award furthered his organization's purposes of encouraging a high level of educational preparation for paper industry careers.

Silliman attended Oneonta senior high school where he was graduated in 1949. Prior to enrolling at the College of Forestry he attended Oneonta State Teachers' college.

Phi Ep Leaves Tri-O; PHA Off Suspension

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Politics came back into the news yesterday.

With 43 days left before spring elections, Edwin Hochberg, co-chairman of Tri-Orange party, pulled out of the group and took his house, Phi Epsilon Pi, with him.

AT THE SAME time, the four months suspension of Piety Hill Alliance came to an end.

In a letter to John Hennessey, Tri-O co-chairman, Hochberg said that he was resigning as the other leader of the party because of "extra work" as a senior. The Phi Ep is also speaker of the men's student government assembly.

Phi Ep, with 64 members and pledges, also left the party. Hennessey said the letter described the move as "the will of the majority."

The fraternity now joins the politically-inactive list. It is not known what its future political plans are.

HENNESSEY reported that he will carry on alone at the helm of Tri-Orange. The party is expected to meet next week.

Piety Hill Alliance, suspended from all political activities for four months Oct. 23, is also slated to meet to map plans for the spring campaign, Chairman Larry O'Sullivan stated.

WSG OK's Plan To Provide Center

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Unanimous approval for presentation to the Administration of plans for a student activities center in the Women's building basement was indicated by members of women's student government assembly last night.

Display of a large drawing of the tentative floor plan drew enthusiastic response from women legislators.

"THE ADMINISTRATION must feel that this is a necessity and that a need is felt, ways and means panel chairman Marilyn Murtha told the assembly prior to presentation of the floor plan. She listed nine deficiencies felt by students and organizations on campus which illustrate the imperative need for activities space as soon as possible and asked for further suggestions from the floor.

Basement of the Women's building is about three times the size of the dance studio. The plan exhibited by Miss Murtha consisted of a large lounge and dance hall surrounded by several smaller rooms. Entrance to the "center" would be by a door located on Euclid ave.

At present no partitions have been built in the basement. Miss Murtha suggested that money for this construction and for ventilation and painting, which constitute major expenses of the proposed center, might be obtained from University endowment funds.

In the proposed plan a kitchen and snack bar is located to the left of the entrance. Other rooms occupying positions around the large lounge, in clockwise order, are director's office, three meeting rooms with moveable partitions to expand into one room, television and card room, listening room, ping pong space, storage, and study lounge or club meeting place which might be used in a capacity similar to the Maxwell Founder's room.

MANY STUDENTS and groups have decried lack of space for activities during the past semester, Miss Murtha said. Among deficiencies listed are complaints that city, foreign and independent students have had no definite place for recreation and leisurely talk, and that there is at present no place for many students to watch television, which includes coverage of important national and international events such as conventions and presidential messages.

Also central meeting places for committees are non-existent, there are no indoor all-campus recreation facilities and little space has been provided for posters and exhibits. A student union might also settle a definite spot for Friday dances and include a food concession on a profit or non-profit basis.

The plan goes to men s student government assembly next Tuesday for discussion and preliminary approval.

Trip to Snow Ridge Slated by Ski School

Snow Ridge skiing for university ski school students has been planned for Saturday, March 6. The excursion to Turin, N. Y., will be limited to ski school students only.

Since ski school instructors, under the direction of Roberta Wadsworth and Robert Friedman, will be available for various phases of ski instruction, there will be no charge for lessons.

A chartered bus will leave the entrance to the main campus at 7:30 a.m. and stop at the ski lodge to allow students to pick up equipment. There will be no transportation charge.

Snow Ridge features include a restaurant, cafeteria, ski shop, waxing house, chalet and recreational features. Skiing areas are suited for various levels of ability.

The trip may be counted as a makeup class for credit students and is an integral part of the ski school program. All ski school students are required to attend the session, which is a necessary phase of their course instruction, according to Miss Wadsworth.

All students are urged to register at the Ski lodge before next Wednesday, March 3 if they plan to take the trip.

UNASU Will Hear Dr. Dickinson Talk On Italian Problems

Guests from Colgate university, Hamilton and LeMoyne colleges will hear Dr. Robert E. Dickinson tell the Syracuse university United Nations group about population problems in Italy at 7:30 p.m. today in the city women's lounge of the Women's building.

A professor in the Hill geography department, Dickinson was educated in British colleges and taught at University college of Exeter and Leeds university before coming here. He was an intelligence officer with the Royal Air force during world war two and prepared detailed terrain maps of westen European countries at that time.

Dickinson spent 1951-52 on leave from the University, studying population problems in Mediterranean countries with a view toward improving living conditions. He has published a number of books and research articles.

econd Semester ROTC Enrollment Shows Drop of 42

Training Begins For 601 Men In Army Corp

Second semester activity of this year's Army ROTC program got under way recently with a total enrollment in the corps of 601. This is a drop of 42 from last semester's roster.

The MSI group, which studied organization of the Army and ROTC and individual weapons during the past semester, will take up the study of American military history. The number enrolled in this section is 292, a reduction of 15 from last September.

CREW-SERVED weapons were studied by the 210 MSII students the first term and they will continue with this into the second. The final 18 hours of instruction will be conducted on map reading. The greatest reduction was experienced in this section of the corps, as 27 less men are now registered.

The first and second years of the course consist of two class and two drill sessions per week. The student receives two credit hours if he passes the term's work. In the last two years, four class sessions per week are held in addition to the drill. The advanced cadets receive three credit hours.

The MSIII men will study organization and missions of various arms and services such as infantry, artillery signal corps, etc. Only one cadet was dropped from the group of 73 which was instructed in tactics of small units from September to January.

Between the third and fourth years the advanced corps cadets attend summer camp. While there they receive general instruction in the practical application of the things learned during the three previous years. Included are the handling of weapons and leadership of troops.

IN THE final year of the course the cadets study logistics and operations as well as military intelligence, administration and law. The role that the United States is playing in the international situation and a short officer indoctrination complete the course.

When called to duty, the graduate normally takes three month branch training in his particular field, before being placed by the Army.

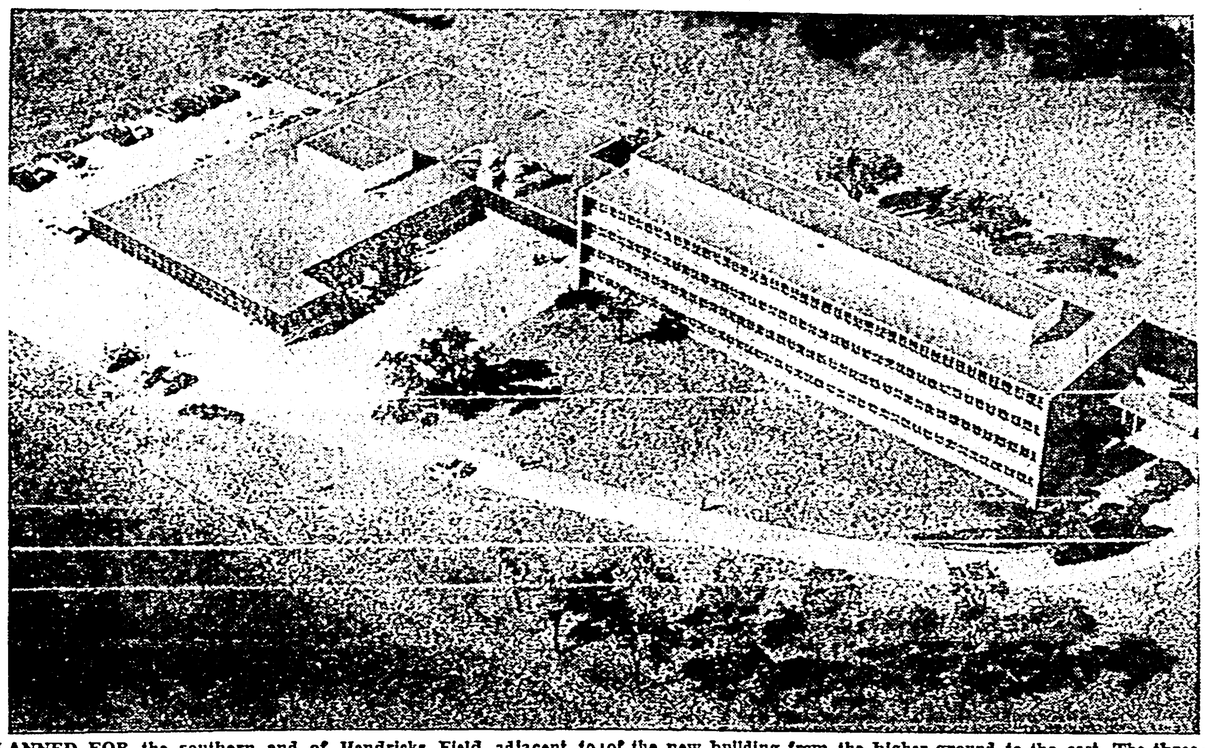
The MSI and II cadets will receive 27 hours of classroom instruction this semester. The advanced cadets, meeting four times per week, will conduct 55 such missions.

Outdoor drill will begin March 2 if weather permits. In case of inclement conditions, indoor drill will be conducted.

DATE WITH ADELE

WAER will present "A Date With Adele" starring Adele Cohen singing movie music today at 6:45 p.m. The selections will include: "It's A Grand Night For Singing," "Where Or When," "Your Love," "One Song" and "Bewitched." The program is produced by Wallace Brodley.

April 1 Target for Inviting Bids For New State Forestry Building



PLANNED FOR the southern end of Hendricks Field adjacent to Marshall hall is the wood products building of the State university College of Forestry, seen from the southeast. At the extreme right is the bridge, which will serve as an entrance direct to the third floor of the new building from the higher ground to the east. The three-acre site was acquired from the University in 1951. The remained of Hendricks Field is to the north, upper left in this scale model.

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Target date on invitations for bids for construction of the Wood Products building is April 1, Hardy L. Shirley, dean of the State university College of Forestry, told The Daily Orange yesterday.

The building plans, which recently won a design award in a competition held by "Progressive Architecture," will be built at the south end of Hendricks field adjacent to the west end of Marshall hall.

ONE OF THE problems which prolonged the completion of specifications, he said, is that the type of window in the structure had to be changed.

The original plans had called for casement windows, but weren't permitted because of a State Labor code section which doesn't permit such buildings to have windows to which safety belts can't be fastened from the inside.

Dean Shirley said that the State Public Works department is now working on plans for the windows which will come back to the College for approval. He noted that the department is doing its best, but that it is also busy with Thruway bids and other projects.

The Forestry college prepared original specifications, he said, and a private architect drew up plans for the building and much of the equipment attached to the building. This plus the complex problems encountered in running water, several lines of electricity, heating, ventilation and telephones have lengthened the job.

THE WOOD preservation laboratory, a sizeable planning job, has just been completed by a St. Louis firm, the dean said.

The three acre site for the building was acquired from Syracuse university in 1951.

The Wood Products building will house the departments of wood technology and forest utilization, the plastics technology labs for work related to the department of pulp and paper technology and cellulose and polymer chemistry.

Covering 96,000 square feet, the structure will be largest in the College of Forestry. Bray hall, built in 1917, has 69,984 square feet and Marshall hall, built 1932-33, has 76,367 square feet.

THE AWARD by "Progressive Architecture" magazine was made in the industrial category, and was presented to Reisner and Urbahn, original architects of the building.

The award jury noted the way in which the building is adopted to a difficult site and the way the one-story machinery and deliveries wing is provided with special footings to compensate for vibration.

Since the ground level of the structure is 24 feet below that of the nearest building on the campus, a bridge into the third floor will serve as an entrance into the building.

Freshmen Schedule Variety Program

Ideas are on the road for the freshman variety show, SU Review, to be held the Friday night of Freshman weekend. Guy Geleerd, co-chairman of the affair, announced that a great variety of talent had turned out for the tryouts held Wednesday afternoon.

A novelty act, a piano player and several singers are among the acts included in the program. There is a possibility that more tryouts and an organization meeting will be held Saturday afternoon.

Regular rehearsals will begin Monday, Merry Dash, the other co-chairman and Geleerd will be in charge of all rehearsals.

The winning act will be awarded a trophy by the merchants of Marshall street. This has been an annual custom. Each year, the winner's name is engraved on the cup. It is now on display in one of the store windows along Marshall street.

Nurses Will Receive Special Financial Aid

Sufficient aid for University nursing students was predicted by Vice-president Frank Piskor yesterday.

In a statement to The Daily Orange, Piskor expressed confidence that with the existing grants in-aid, gift, scholarship and loan resources, the University will be able to help every nurse needing financial aid because of the increased tuition rise for junior and senior nurses.

THE INCREASE from $200 to $500 per year, effective next fall, was announced to the nurses on Tuesday by Dean of the School of Nursing Edith Smith.

"In addition to the special attention that Dean Smith will give to each student, the scholarship committee, in making its awards, will give nurses every consideration possible," the Vice-president stated.

Scholarships based on tuition will also be pro-rated. This means that a nurse holding a half tuition scholarship would now be given $250 instead of the former $100.

Kenneth Bartlett, dean of public relations yesterday revealed that a study of the cost of student nursing had recently been conducted. The last two years (clinical) were found to be most expensive because of the high ratio of instructors to students.

University officials originally indicated that the move was made necessary by the continued deficit in the nursing program which could no longer be absorbed by the overall budget.

Approximately 210 currently enrolled students will be affected by the increase.

Sociology Group Will Hear Author

Dr. E. V. Stonequist, chairman of the sociology department at Skidmore college, will address the local chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta, national sociology honorary, at 8:30 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium.

Dr. Stonequist, the author of "Marginal Man", is an authority on racial and cultural hybrids. He attended Clark university and Cornell university and received his doctorate from the University of Chicago.

He became a professor in 1928. He is also the author of "Saratoga Looks to the Future" a study in city planning.

EBB AND FLOW

WAER's Ebb and Flow will present Miss Rosemary Sennett of the School of Speech and Dramatic Arts reading excerpts from letters of George Washington at 7 p.m. today. The program is in honor of George Washington's birthday and is produced by Harriet Kusmer.

Today is the last day for entries to the annual Sing Singing contest. They must be in by 5 p.m. to chairman, Ann Forrest at Delta Delta Delta. Miss Forrest emphasized that the one dollar entry fee must accompany the form.

The name of the house, the song leader, her phone number, the number of girls in the house and the name of the song chosen should be included in the entry blank. Pledges should be counted in the number from a sorority but a girl may also sing with her living center.

Tomorrow there will be a compulsory meeting of all song leaders in 111 Maxwell. Detailed information concerning the contest will be given at this time.

Physics Colloquium To Hear Anderson

Dr. James L. Anderson, research associate at the University of Maryland and a Syracuse graduate, will address the physics colloquium today at 4 p.m. in 106 Steele hall. The topic for the afternoon is "Recent Developments in Quantum Field Theory."

Fritz Froehlich will discuss "The Debye Hackel Theory" at the Solid State seminar at 4:15 p.m. tomorrow in 104 Steele hall.

"Our big complaint is that we were totally unprepared for an increase in nursing tuition like this"

New momentum

At last night's meeting of the women's student government assembly, drawing and descriptions of a proposed center in the basement of the Women's building were discussed by the members.

Next week the sketches will be shown to the MSG group for its consideration. In another two weeks the final student plan will be sent to the University administration.

Actually, this is the second student plan on the future of the Women's building basement. An executive body of both student governments presented a report at the close of last year—the first step in the drive for centralizing activities and reinstituting Student Union facilities.

The need for the facilities which would be placed in the basement has been evident since the closing of the Student Union last spring.

The most obvious expression of student sentiment on the subject was expressed last Friday when over 500 Syracusans attended the first in a series of mixer dances, once a part of the Student Union program.

Students do need a permanent place for dancing, and rooms for watching TV, playing cards, ping-pong, listening to music and general lounging or indoor recreation. A snack bar would also be a welcome asset.

The drive is not for these rooms or facilities spread throughout campus—but for centralization in one place: the basement of the Women's building.

This is one drive that should be supported by the students 100 per cent.

Help wanted

We all have a job waiting for us.

This job is usually for two years, and it is one that we get by virtue of being citizens of the United States.

It is the job, the duty, of being a soldier —and its motivating force, the draft.

Most of us want to finish our educations before we hit the khaki trail. Our best opportunity to obtain a scholastic deferment is to hop right up to Dean Earle W. Clifford's office in the Administration building and fill out an application form for the selective service qualification test.

This exam, plus class standing figures, will permit many to finish their education before entering military service.

No doubt many of us are thinking that with the Korean hostilities halted, the draft will end, too.

This is untrue—empirically, if you've noticed some of your buddies getting scooped up, and secondly, ideally:

America has passed the point in her history where she will become prepared only for a war in being. Warped ideologies and revolutionary military weapons have proven that we must continually be on guard lest America be swallowed up.

Our military forces must remain strong and our nation guarded until the dream is fulfilled that wars end and brother embraces brother.

The task of guarding the free world falls on the male youth of the United States. Perhaps it is not pleasant to be legislated into donning a GI's duds, but preparedness is essential to the well-being of our later years.

For those who wish to complete their education first, the test offers that opportunity.

But, in our time, the draft is now an institution—and, though we may hesitate to admit it, vital to continuation of our way of life. And two years is not a big price for that.

Aroused Students Answer

Three blue-uniformed Syracuse nursing students sat playing three-handed bridge. When they heard we were from the Daily Orange requesting comments and their reactions on the 150 per cent increase in nursing tuition for juniors and seniors, the cards were put away and all three began talking at once.

One began, "I'm not the only one in college in my family. My brother is going to school and my family just can't afford to send him and now pay for this increase in my tuition."

Another continued, "We have classes with state students who don't pay anything. They even get paid $30 a month for their work. We aren't complaining about that, but if nurses are needed so badly, it seems silly to raise tuition like this. We have no way to work during the week, as our hours are different each week. We can't work during the summer because we have only three weeks vacation and must attend classes for the rest of the time."

The question of scholarships was raised and one coed asked "So many people in nursing need aid, and many more will apply now, so how are they going to decide how many scholarships to give out?"

"Another thing," said a student nurse who just came in, "On what basis will people be given aid? How many will be helped and will there be enough to go around?"

"Our big complaint," said a white-capped coed, "is that we expected a $25 or at the most $50 increase. We were totally unprepared for an increase like this. If only the University had started a couple years ago to raise tuition each semester it would have come gradually and we could have planned for it. This way, many of us don't know how we will manage to swing the tuition."

Especially hard hit were the sophomores and freshmen who have to begin now to pay the increase.

One sophomore said, "I think the amount of increase itself is probably fair, but we should have known sooner so we could plan for it." She seemed to feel that some underclassmen would have to transfer to less expensive nursing schools in January, had they known about the increase.

Another underclassman, and many students in clinical period, requested a budget, detailing where money now goes, and where the increase in tuition will go.

"Many students will hang on to see if they can't get help," chimed in another junior, "and if they can't get it, they may be forced to leave the University."

The fact that tuition was raised was not so much resented as the amount that students now in training would have to pay.

It did not seem fair to many to have the increase "so much so suddenly."

Most nursing students interviewed understand the University's need for more money . . . they just want to know where their money is going, and will everyone needing it be able to get aid? They hadn't planned on this 150 per cent increase, and the only way that many of them can stay in school is to get financial aid.

A Something Amiss

By ROG

A Syracuse Transit company bus disappeared during the rush hour last night on Salina st. between Eire blvd. and Jefferson st. Police estimated that 127 persons were aboard..

Charges flew thick and fast soon after as officials of the bus company refused to assume the blames for the loss. Investigations have been launched by the Civil Air Patrol, the American Legion and the Boys' club.

WSG Standards council late last night announced that any girl who was on the bus when it disappeared will not be held responsible for late minutes when and if she returns.

MSG assembly convened to act regarding the occurence and passed a resolution to the effect that the disappearance of the vehicle was truly overwhelming, careless, devastating and due entirely to apathy on the part of the riders.

Dr. Albert Shrdlu, eminent physicist, asked to express an opinion on the vanishing, asked this reporter what proof he had that the bus ever existed. "Figment of the imagination," he claimed.

The stock market is expected to be sharply affected this morning. Ads appearing in this morning's newspapers' "Positions Open" columns, requesting applications from men between the ages of 23 and 35 to work as a Syracuse Transit company bus.

Applicants, the ad stated, should be able to provide their own snowshoes.

The White House issued no comment, though observers here and in Washington saw this as a sign. It is not known what effect the incident may have on international relations or the birth rate.

There is hardly any precedent for a disappearance of this sort. Only three times, before, once in the days of the horse-drawn trolley, has there been such an incident.

The latter two are usually excused because of experimental equipment.

A Literary Questioning

By MICHAEL BRAUN

The library on campus has always presented a bit of a problem to us. How does it work and who are the literary superhumans that make it tick.

We were full of questions as we walked up the steps that lead to the library. Once inside we headed towards the desk of the head librarian. Miss Eckert was talking "I'm sorry" she said "but please tell your professor that we only have that book in the first edition." It seemed that the good doctor required edition number two.

We asked Miss Eckert how many students processed library cards. She walked over to the main desk and returned with a book.

"At present 4,159 undergraduates and 1,333 graduate students hold cards in the library" she said.

We started to ask her the breakdown by classes in order to confirm a suspicion we held about upperclass reading habits. But she was off to the main desk to register some knowledge thirsty sophomore in the library.

When she came back we inquired about the literary preferences of the faculty. A grad student had to borrow her keys. We walked over to Miss Graham who is in charge of the Open Shelf Room.

Miss Graham started to speak but was interrupted by a sweet young thing who wanted to know about the New York Times Book Review of the previous Sunday.

After she had finished we tried again. "What books are popular with the faculty?"

But no, she was off to look up something or other so we walked into the art room and started speaking to Mrs. Smits a lady with a warm European accent. She told us that we should be sure to see the libraries excellent picture collection. She enthusiastically led us to see Miss Hewlitt who is in charge of the collection.

"Many of the students don't seem to realize that for just fifty cents they can rent a beautiful, beautiful, picture. Yes, a simply gorgeous, I mean a gorgeous picture." We glanced up at the wall and saw the Mona Lisa and Whistler's Mother. We started to ask why they were not rented but Miss eHwlitt anticipated us. "Most of the students prefer the moderns. Yes, most of the students like the Picassos and the Braques, and the, well you know, the modernists. It's a shame, yes, it's a shame that these old masters have to hang on our wall instead of in somebody's room. A shame."

We told Miss Hewlitt that we would spread the word that the pictures were for rent, and left her for the music department. We found Miss Lempke, who is in charge there.

"Do you know what record is most popular with the students" she asked.

We didn't.

"Guess" she said. But we could not guess.

"It's Beethoven's Ninth. Next comes Brahm's First, and anything by Rimsy Korsakov. Most of the students like the symphonic pieces better than the vocal selections."

Miss Lempke had been playing Beethoven's Ninth, of all things. The record neared the end and she went to turn it over. We left the library prepared to spread the word.

Violence In Endless Profusion

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

WAR IS HELL

No picture is nearer and dearer to the heart of a Hollywood producer than one chock-full of nice saleable violence. Since war films are about as violent as one can get, they have been turned out in endless profusion. The latest of the graphic presentations of the statement: War is Hell, is Paramount's "Cease Fire," now showing at the Keith's.

Having to do with a patrol action in the last day's of the Korean war, filmed on location and employing real soldiers as actors; the film is understandably authentic. If you like war films you will find this one better than most. It is noisy, violent and brutal and as aforementioned highly authentic.

The soldiers go through their paces with a knowledge of what it's all about and are approximately grim, heroic and soldierly. There is even the inevitable comic. However, in this case his non-professionality causes his jokes to fall flat. Dmitri Tiomkin's score is martial and Owen Crump's direction is slick.

"Cease Fire!" suffers from too much authenticity. Since it employs no stars, it employs no real story. Therefore it is not a moving emotional experience. It also is completely devoid of comment on war. This lack of point of view hardly recommends it as an intellectually appealing film. It is little more than an extended newsreel, gripping, sometimes hair-raising, but a newsreel nevertheless. If this kind of thing appeals to you, you will have an exciting time of it. If you are tired of seeing mass-slaughter, though, "Cease Fire!" has nothing to recommend. It certainly is not conducive to a belief in the nobility of man.

"Jivaro", a bit of nonsense about the Valley of the headhunters, completes the bill. The ads say it is pronounced "Hivaro." We suggest that it be more properly pronounced "Louseroo." It does have Rhonda Fleming in technicolr, however, and this is quite a pleasant sight.

CHIT-CHAT ON DISKS OF LATE

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

The old warrior will relent an inch or two in favor of the anguished cry and devote this essay to a sidewalk synoposis of Records, Inc.

This will concern some recordings, not necessarily the newest or the best, which a few of the boys would like to see pushed along. These boys, of course, not being professional platter pushers but the blokes who wander into music shops and buy the recordings. To those who have wondered . . . "Why doncha?" . . . this column is dedicated.

* * *

"The Four Freshmen," Capitol extended play—There are certainly better sounds around and presumably worse, but for the most part, the four young voices blend interestingly. This set includes four tries, the best of which is "It's a Blue World," in itself a pleasant smoothie but nothing to incite the mass hysteria which seems to be coming to the Four Frosh. I would like to hear more from the Freshmen. They may have something there.

"Venus De Milo" and "You Made Me Love You," Bob Manning — The best yet by Bob who has a pretty new tune on the first and an enchanting Bobby Hackett backing up the flip. Two fine pop performances.

"Cross Over the Bridge," Patti Page—Patti is in the spiritual mood with a big juke box item cum four Page voices and assorted gimicks. One of the few cases when four times one equals nothing.

"Shorty Rogers and His Giants," Victor LP—This LP is a bright, bopping showcase of modern sounds featuring the neat new Roger's combo. "Pesky Serpent" takes top billing. All in all, a highly interesting album, if modern is your taste.

"Pass the Jam, Sam," Dinah Shore—Dinah benefits from a cute Henri Rene riff background on this, a little jumping domestic novelty. Tasty peppermint fluff.

"Young at Heart" and "Take a Chance," Frank Sinatra—As one friend said when he heard this, "Play it again."

"Manhattan," and "Love Theme from 'The Robe'," Les Baxter's orch.—Two notable instrumental etchings by the Baxter group. "Manhattan" is more spirited and listenable than "The Robe" which seems a bit on the heavy side for popular consumption.

"Fountains of Rome" and "Jeux," Symphony orchestra of the Augusteo, Rome—A beautiful LP performance of the Respighi and Debussy themes recommended especially for hi-fidelity devotees.

"Victory at Sea," Robert R. Bennett conducting, Victor LP—this has been around for some time but it merits mention due to a new birth of popularity. "Victory" is the Richard Rodgers score written for the NBC-TV show. The "No Other Love" theme and a series of Sousa-like marches highlight the set which is a valuable edition to the discriminating library.

"Glenn Miller Story," Decca LP —Joseph Gershenson and the Universal-International studio orchestra have duplicated eight Miller standards note for note as soundtrack material for the leader's current film biography. The result is a delightfully interesting package but I'd still favor purchasing these same sides by the original Miller group . . . there's nothing like the genuine product. Included are "In the Mood," "Moonlight Serenade" and "Little Brown Jug."

"Julie" and "Blue Night," Sidney Torch's orch and chorus—two highly sentimental pieces brilliantly arranged by Britain's Mr. Torch. "Julie" is the girl from M-G-M's "Take the High Ground." There is, I suspect, no music to compare with a beautiful woman.

Not in a Package

By POLLY REED

This is brotherhood week . . . a week when we're all supposed to sit down and examine our ideals and actions when it comes to the "other fellow," the person who's the member of a minority group.

So maybe we slough it off . . . or maybe we stop and think about it for a while. Maybe we make a special effort to speak to that Filipina in history class, or the Negro in lab. But is it any more lasting? Do we do anything permanent?

The newspaper of Mississippi Southern college ran an editorial stating that this is Brotherhood week and we should all seek brotherhood through "soul-searching, prayer and perseverance."

"The rules are simple," said the Southern newspaper. "Regard each man and woman as an individual. Not as a Catholic, Protestant or a Jew." The editorial went on for eight more inches extolling brotherhood among the three religious groups.

It seditiously ignored and evaded Negroes, also Orientals, Mexicans, and other racial minority groups. Apparently in the minds of these southerners, it doesn't matter where or how you worship, so long as your skin is white.

Does brotherhood mean merely getting along with faiths other than your own? Or does it mean trying to understand and respect all men . . . men with different color skins and different national heritages from yours?

Brotherhood doesn't come in a package. It is not a commodity to be taken down from the shelf with one hand. According to the Mississippi Southern college newspaper brotherhood means "self-aware practice." But can we afford to practice brotherhood only among those minority groups which we pick and choose as the Southern paper apparently advocates.

In the South it is the Negro, in the southwest the Oriental, in the north it is the recent European immigrant. In other parts of the country, and in other small warped minds it is the Jew or the Catholic who has that "special experience," that of knowing he is regarded as "different" from the rest, and that somehow "difference" connotes evil.

Yes, this is Brotherhood week. Many Americans will review their concepts of men of minority groups. They may draw noble conclusions . . . . and go on practicing intolerance. A few others will go on quietly living the principles of Brotherhood week in their hearts and lives for the other 51 weeks.

What will you do?

Serious Omission

Reading our unabridged collection of a columnist's writings the other day we noticed one serious ommission. It strikes us as being a grave social error and yet his pen has not touched paper to question its why or wherefore.

The problem, sir, is this. Why on Monday does it become March 1. Why is February no longer here. Why is February gypped of the extra days, and even more cosmic, what happened to said days?

A puzzlement, truly a bewildering, perplexing, troublesome, yea a wondersome problem. We searched our minds. What could be the reason. We thought of one solution after the other until our cerebrum had mulled over 247 possibilities. We arrived at a conclusion. The conclusion? Apathy! Plain, honest to goodness, backbreaking, everyday, patriotic Apathy.

Never mind our why and wherefore, oh sage. Run, don't walk to the vast research facilities. He should seclude himself in yon ivory tower and seek out all the eggheads he can find. Think, meditate, and set quill to parchment.

We, the public are waiting.

Cagers Set for Colgate

Hill Risks Winning Record Saturday In Season Finale

Stop Patterson and finish the season over the .500 mark are dual motives for the Syracuse cagemen as they go through the season's final drills in preparation for Saturday night's finale against Colgate.

A victory over the Red Raiders would assure the winning season and it seems the best way for the Orange to accomplish this will be by halting the Hamiltonian's fancy shooting captain, Frank Patterson. In the last meeting between the two quintets, the junior forward racked up 30 markers although the Pietymen edged his squad with a late surge, 85-83.

COLAGATE WILL enter the fray with an unimpressive 5-10 record but their most recent performances have shown improvement. Although they lost a 65-64 heartbreaker to Buffalo Monday night, they seem to have hit their peak with Friday's 75-63 shellacking of Penn State. The same Nittanies battled Syracuse to the final gun before falling, 71-69.

Partisan Syracuse fans are hoping the Saltines will be ready for one of their good performances against the nearby invaders. So far this season, the sophomore studded squad has proved to be either very good or very bad. They've whipped some of their strongest competitors while falling prey to teams they were expected to outclass.

Mel Besdin, the local's captain will be playing his last game in a Syracuse uniform and the final outcome of the game may rest on his shoulders. The stocky set shot artist looped 33 markers against Penn State and if he can continue with such a scoring output, the Orange will have a big edge.

Besdin will have another goal for himself Saturday as he strives to become the seventh cager in Piety history to record 300 points or more in one season. He has 297 so far and seems sure of reaching the coveted mark.

ALSO BIDDING adieu to Hill cage competition will be reserves Billy Nelson, Lou Beverly and Dick Jaskot. Beverly, who started in the first Colgate battle, and Jaskot have seen spot duty this year while Nelson, who sparkplugged the club on occasion last season, has been relegated mostly to the bench.

Student tickets for Saturday's encounter can be obtained in the athletic office until game time. They are 40 cents with the presentation of an ID card.

BILL NELSON is one of four seniors who will make their final appearances for the Orange Saturday against Colgate. Bill is also an all-American soccer player. Other seniors closing their collegiate careers will be Capt. Mel Besdin, Dick Jaskot and Lou Beverly.

Injured Peck Taken To Hill Infirmary

Al Peck, the Orange fencer who was seriously injured in a meet at Cornell last Saturday, has been moved to the local infirmary, it was announced yesterday.

The victim of a freak accident in which an opponent's saber cut through the seam of his heavy fencing jacket and into his right armpit, Peck was on the critical list for a short while but now seems to be rapidly recovering.

MEANWHILE, THE rest of the team is practicing for their coming meet with Buffalo on March 6. They will be out after their second victory of the season as against 3 defeats, the last of which came in Saturday's triangular meet with Cornell and MIT.

Much of the blame for this loss, however, rests with the accident, which not only robbed the team of one of its good fencers but dulled their interest in the meet.

Up to the time of the mishap the Pietymen were doing very well, leading the MIT swordsmen and giving the Big Red a real run for their money.

Ed Wang was the big winner with three in the saber, while John Goldstein, Abe Gilman, and Bodo Trenk added two points apiece. The final score was Cornell 46, MIT 21, and Syracuse 14.

Piety Frosh Practice For Oswego Matmen

Fresh from an 18-12 victory over the Colgate wrestling club which evened its season record at 2-2, the freshman wrestling team participated in intra-squad matches yesterday in preparation for the return match with Oswego State this Saturday.

This match will be the last home meet of the season for the yearling grapplers, and will preced the Syracuse-Army varsity meet. Sarting time is 1 p.m.

THE CUB grapplers, who are coached by Dick Beyer and Enzo Marinelli, soundly whipped the Oswego club two weeks ago at Oswego.

Last Saturday the yearlings made it two wins in a row. Don Clark led off at the 123-pound slot by gaining five points with a pin. Clark also pinned his Oswego opponent on Feb. 20.

Jim Roney followed for the Orangemen with a decision in the 130-pound class. Winnie Bushnell, at 137, lost a 12-9 decision but displayed a big improvement while doing so.

At 147-pounds Jaap Bossman came through with a 6-2 decision to make the score read 11-3 Syracuse. The next two matches ended in draws. Ron Marinelli at 157 and Pedro Gonzales at 167 figured in the stalemate for the Orange.

THE 177-pound match was one of the finest of the meet. Bob Smith, who is undefeated to date, decisioned Colgate's "playing coach" by a 7-4 count. The Red Raider wrestlers are not an official athletic team yet, and Smitty's opponent was acted as captain and coach for the group.

In the final match Jim Podraza, a frosh football player, was pinned by his Colgate opponent. Podraza was wrestling for the first time this season, but "moved around pretty nicely' according to Coach Beyer.

While the frosh are looking to go above the .500 mark percentage wise, Coach Joe McDaniel's varsity grapplers will be seeking their third win against four losses when Army's Cadets move in.

The boys from West Point boast four better-than-average wrestlers in 137-pounder Pete Fikaris, 157-pounder Dale Ward, 167-pounder Gerry Tebben and heavyweight Gerry Lodge.

THE LATTER was an outstanding ball carrier on Army's Eastern championship football team. Ward and Tebben, who was a finalists in the Easterns last year, are the top two Army grapplers.

The Cadets have two other veterans on the team, Jim Karns at 147, and Clark Benn at 130. Neither of these has shown too much this season, however.

Last year the McDanielmen edged Army 15-12. The match this year may be equally close with either team capable of a win. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

Phi Psi Leads In Intra Sports

According to the latest statistics issued by IFC intramural chairman Bud Clement, Phi Psi is leading the Hill fraternities in athletic events with 91 points, followed by Beta Theta Pi with 89 points and Sigma Chi with 80.

Clement, official statistician of Greek intramurals, allots points to fraternities according to participation, winning, and how far the team goes in the flight. According to the different sports, a different number of points are given. Generally, five points are given for entering a team in a sport, two points for the actual play of any meet or game, and one point for winning.

IN MAJOR sports, such as football, basketball and softball, one extra point is given for capturing the flight championship. In certain individual sports, such as skiing, track and cross-country points are awarded individuals in the order of finish—these points going toward their house total.

When a Greek team fails to show up for an athletic event, they lose a point from their total. On the basis of the point system, participation is the main criteria in determining the best fraternity athletically speaking.

The Coach Says

Introducing Syracuse Intramural Director Milt Howard

As the University intramural athletic director and head of the Ski Top recreational area, I am often asked to explain our program here at Syracuse.

In setting up the intramural program we have two objectives. One, of course, is seeing to it that every young man in the University is active in some sport. The other is to offer as many sports as possible to the student body that will have a carry over value in later life; for example, golf, swimming, tennis, bowling, handball and even sailing.

I believe that here on the Hill, we have as good a program for intramural athletics as does any college or university in the country. We have as many activities and as many participants, as does any school of comparable size. Only in the actual facilities for carrying out our program, do we possibly fall short.

The new men's gymnasium is well equipped. The lack of a field house, however, has forced the athletic department to take over many of the facilities that would usually go to the intramural program. During the basketball and boxing seasons especially the space usable by the intra program is drastically reduced.

With the erection of bleachers in the main gymnasium, two basketball courts, volleyball and badminton playing areas are rendered unusuable. It is true that there is another smaller gymnasium in Archbold, but it is rarely possible for the intramural program to use both gyms because the basketball and gymnastics teams use at least one of the courts at all times for practice purposes.

But the future for intras does look bright. Plans for the further development of the Skytop-Collendale recreational area have been drawn up along with the design for an extension on the gymnasium. We have hopes that some of these plans will materialize in the very near future.

Along with the proposed field house, also scheduled for construction are additional softball and baseball fields, a 27 hole golf course, an outdoor swimming pool and a skeet range. If the gym were enlarged, almost all facets of the program could be increased in size and scope.

The development of the off campus recreation area has already started, however. The ski lodge, the fine Skytop tennis courts, and the baseball field at Collendale have all been completed in recent years. These are only the beginning, though, we hope.

There will be some changes made in the intramural competition divisions themselves next year. With the elimination of the Skytop living centers and the erection of the new men's dormitories, a change in the flights is necessitated.

We will probably set up the flights according to the proctor divisions the University administration sets up for the new dorm. The new plan will operate much like it did when Sims was a men's living center and there were five teams representing the dorm.

At the present time, we are approaching the end of the winter sports season. Last week, the Intramural Council, the organization of student representatives that make all the intramural rules and makes the decisions regarding protests, held the drawings for bowling and basketball. Playoffs in those sports will start shortly.

The basketball program has all the flight winners competing in the playoffs. The fraternity flight winners playoff among themselves and a fraternity champion is crowned. The same plan is carried on in the living center division.

The living center champion then plays the winners of the independent flight. The winner of this game goes on to meet the fraternity titleholder for the all-University championship.

The intra bowling champion is decided by a somewhat different program. There are two rounds of bowling competition. The flight winner of round one meets the flight winner of round two for the flight championship. The all-University champion is then crowned after a playoff of all the flight winners.

Volleyball and handball elimination tournaments have been drawn up.

Following the conclusion of the basketball and bowling playoffs, the intra spring sports season will begin. Scheduled for this year are softball, golf, tennis and horseshoes. There is also the possibility that baseball will be added, but playing areas are presently not available for this sport. Individual tournaments will also be held in golf, tennis and horseshoes.

The big problem that faces the intra program is lack of some facilities. Recreation is one of the important parts of a well-rounded university program. To put the leisure time of the student body to good wise use is important, we will be able to do this job better if we get more facilities.

— MILT HOWARD

Intra Bowling Results

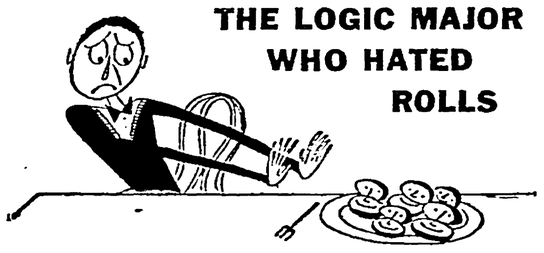
Forfeits marred last night's intramural bowling with three of the scheduled teams failing to appear. In the games that were rolled Theta Chi defeated Phi Kappa Tau, Skytop M-8 downed M-5, and Pi Kappa Alpha took Psi Upsilon.

Wehrdorfer of Theta Chi was top man for the evening with a high single of 231 and high triple of 549. Dick Farmer of Phi Kappa Tau, although not at his best, was second with 474. Phelps of Psi U had 464.

Here are the results:

Theta Chi 9, Phi Kappa Tau 0.
Skytop M-8 9, Skytop M-5 0.
Psi Upsilon 7, Pi Kappa Alpha 2.
Phi Epsilon Pi 9, Alpha Chi Rho 0 (Forfeit).
Tau Delta Phi 9, Phi Gamma Delta 0 (Forfeit).
Zeta Beta Tau 9, Phi Delta Theta 0 (Forfeit).

THE LOGIC MAJOR WHO HATED ROLLS



Recently a young mid-westerner enrolled at a university as a Logic major. His father had told him, with some understatement, that he was illogical. He refused to squire a pretty girl to a dance because her name was June Betz and he was against gambling.

He wouldn't eat avocados because they were also called "alligator pears" and he didn't like alligators.

In addition, he was a slob.

Some of the men in his dorm tried to talk to him.

"Look at that shirt," they said. "The material's cheesy. Why don't you hop down and get a Van Heusen Oxfordian... it's soft, fine oxford cloth."

"I'm not attending Oxford. I'm attending Old Siwash," answered our boy.

"But, look, Buster. This oxford cloth is woven tighter so it'll last longer. It's a smart investment. And it only costs $4.50."

"So who needs it? I might get hit by a truck. Then what good would it be?" quoth Buster.

"What about your collar? Flat as a pancake! Don't you want a good-looking button-down with that famous Van Heusen relaxed-roll?" one asked.

"I got nothing against pancakes. I hate rolls."

Note: Our man flunked Logic post haste, and was drafted. The Army has him classified under "Secret Weapons."

Mighty Mite

LITTLE ROY KUBOYAMA, Hawaii's gift to the Wisconsin boxing team, is expected to give the Orange's Frank Guelli his hardest fight of the year on Friday night in Archbold gym when their 125-pound clash opens the evening festivities. Two years ago Kuboyama was NCAA champ in the bantam weight class.

Sports Day Team Opens Practice

An open basketball practice for coeds will be held today from 8 to 9 p.m. in Gym B of the Women's building. Ten girls will be selected to compete in the basketball sportsday this Saturday at Wells college.

At the Syracuse sportsday last Saturday, Syracuse and Wells tied for first place in the basketball tournament. LeMoyne will also send a team to the sportsday.

Phi Psi Crushes Sigma Nu 63-19 In Intra Action

By EV MURCH

Putting on one of the best high-scoring shows of the year, Phi Kappa Psi steamrolled over Sigma Nu, 63-19, in last night's intramural basketball.

Dino Hadjis, mixing fine set shots and hard-driving layups, led the onslaught with 16 points, high for the evening. He was closely followed by little Otto Ottaviano, who hit for 13.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI put on a great last half rally to overcome a 15-7 half time deficit and defeat Kappa Phi Delta, 25-22. Hero of the drive was Woods, who tallied eight of the 18 comeback scores.

Another racking was turned in by SAE as they swamped ATO, 45-16.

Most of the scoring was divided up among Ed Dalton, Bob Forester and Neil Forsythe who garnered 13, 12 and 12 respectively.

Led by Kline who hit seven of their last 11 points, SAM came from behind to knock off ZBT, 19-13.

THE CLOSEST games of the night were Acacia's 27-25 victory over Pi Kappa Alpha and the 15-15 deadlock between Delta Tau Delta and Beta Sigma Rho. Dave Hutchings with 12, was the big gun for Acacia, and Al Goodman's eight tops for Beta Sigma Rho.

In other games, Beta Theta Pi won over Zeta Psi, 36-18, and Pi Alpha Chi overcame Lambda Chi Alpha, 28-12.

Stricken With Cerebral Palsy, He Aids Handicapped Children, Needs Help

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Attention all Hill students with any degree and any type of talent! This article is dedicated expressly to you. It's about a little guy who needs your help desperately so that he may continue his life's work. His story:

Charles Mitchell is 22 years old. He lives in a college environment and talks the college jargon. But Charlie can neither read nor write. Nor can he move about freely.

CHARLIE HAS spent his 22 years in a wheelchair, stricken with cerebral palsy. He couldn't attend high school, for there were no teaching facilities for cerebral palsied children until recently.

But the little guy has overcome these deficiencies with something in which he excels—courage—and has gone on to become one of the most active helpers of handicapped children in this area.

In the mid 1940's Charlie began his life's work—injecting a note of joy and happiness into the drab lives of handicapped children. Knowing what it felt like to be a shut-in, he launched into his career with high enthusiasm.

Encouraged by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd VanCamp, Charlie made several contacts by telephone with various public relations men.

THESE PHONE calls resulted in a series of shows for the benefit of handicapped children. Charlie's earlier shows featured high school entertainers. His troupe performed at the Wieting Johnson hospital, the Elmcrest Children's center, the Percy Hughes High school for Handicapped Children, the Cerebral Palsy clinic and Camp Goodwill, all local institutions.

He did all this work unaided by any but the public relations men of several Syracuse organizations. In 1947 however, he reached a milestone with the founding of the Benevolent Unit of Syracuse, an organization whose express aim is to aid handicapped children.

Charlie's reputation had been established by then, and he was named public relations director of the unit, a position he has ably filled since that time.

In 1949 Charlie, moving to 411 University ave., decided to utilize campus talent in his shows. One of his first, best, and most dependable workers from the Hill was Dottie Grover, who performed in his shows throughout her four-year college career.

WITH DOTTIE, who was nationally known as a baton twirler and led the University Marching Band, Charlie introduced a new and highly polished form of entertainment into the programming of his shows.

Dottie's flying batons sent the popularity of the shows to new heights. In this era Charlie arranged more and more types of diversified entertainment for "his kids."

He contrived a twice-a-season trip to a Syracuse Nationals basketball game and obtained films of various athletic contests, one of which was last year's Syracuse-Alabama Orange Bowl clash.

In 1950, Mario Rossi, then executive secretary to Mayor Thomas Corcoran, wrote this about Charlie and the success of his work:

IT'S A CASE of a lot of nice people responding to the request of a wonderful boy in order that a ray of sunshine may be brought into the lives of folks who aren't able to get around freely."

Charlie took to having rehearsals at his home so he could supervise routines and make and take suggestions about individual and group performances. About these, Rossi wrote:

"Boy, those rehearsals must be really something! A combination of a lot of work and a lot of fun, with your gracious mother playing hostess and not minding a minute of it as long as it means so much to you and to others who are handicapped."

Charlie, a guy who sees to every little detail, got help from the Police department on a small but important matter. He arranged to have policemen who were off duty drive him and his entertainers to and from the various places where he staged the shows.

BUT SOON Charlie had to curtail his efforts somewhat, because the high pitch of activity began to take its toll on him and his mother. He decided to produce talent shows at the Percy Hughes school and the Cerebral Palsy clinic only.

This year he limited his activity even more to just Percy Hughes. But a new and unforeseen problem confronted him. It was and is: no interest among talented Hill students.

Charlie had to cancel a show last Fall, and is now worrying about the prospects of the annual Spring show at Percy Hughes. He has received the word of just one entertainer to date, while trying to line up a solid cast.

"It (the Spring show) means an awful lot to these kids," he said. "They'd be awfully disappointed if we had to give it up." Charlie is full of ideas for new baton routines, but he has not been able to contact any twirlers who might effect his ideas and take part in the coming show.

"EVERYONE thinks its too early to worry about the show (to be held May 7)," he said, "but if we had rehearsals one hour a week for the next two months, it'd only be eight hours of practice."

Charlie, a perfectionist, was already worrying about how the show would look to the kids. "It's only an hour show, from 1 to 2 in the afternoon, but it has to be good," he declared.

With a wistful sigh, he reminisced about last summer's show at Camp Goodwill in which screen star Margaret O'Brien was featured. Then, suddenly, "These campus kids have to come through for us," he said intensely, "They have to!"

Charlie's phone number: 75-7500.

CHARLIE MITCHELL has dedicated his time to throwing some brightness into the lives of handicapped youngsters. He discusses a future show with a famed University alum, DOTTIE GROVER, one of his top stars in the shows.

Dr. Owen, who is the fourth speaker in the series this year, specializes in American literature. He will discuss literature and imagination in relation to the world today.

INFORMAL DISCUSSION pertaining to the lecture will be held at 8 p.m. in the Faculty club, 910 University pl. Students and faculty will have the opportunity to meet Dr. Owen and continue the speech topic in a social atmosphere.

Prof. J. F. Olsen, chairman of the humanities lecture series, recommends Dr. Owen as a stimulating speaker, and urges those planning to attend to get there early, in order to assure getting seats. Previous interest has indicated this is necessary due to heavy attendance at the other lectures in the series.

Dr. Owen received his Ph.D from the State university of Iowa, and also received degrees from Lawrence college and Columbia university. He has spoken before several groups on campus in the past, and is well-known for his interpretation of the effects of psychological developments on literature.

The next lecture in the series will feature Karl Shapiro, reading his own poetry. It is scheduled for March 18 and will be held in Hendricks chapel.

Previous speakers in the series have included Neil H. Richardson, Susanne K. Langer and J. V. Langmead Casserley.

LA, BA Offer Special Two-year Programs

Hoop Action Set: Freshman Women Vs. Student Deans

Basketball in a different form will be the bill of fare tomorrow afternoon at the Women's building when 12 freshmen women compete with student deans in a contest for the benefit of Campus Chest. Scheduled for 2:15 p.m., the game is being sponsored by Lund Cottage.

Halftime intermission will feature an exhibition by the University's gymnastics squad and a student dean marching band. Jo-Ann Swalm and Stuart Parker, co-chairmen of the Campus Chest drive, will also speak.

ALL 40 STUDENT deans will play in the game wearing specially prepared costumes instead of the usual basketball regalia. Cheerleading for student dean's group will be directed by Miss Ruth Haddock, assistant director of student deans.

Admission to the contest will be 15 cents with all proceeds going to the Campus Chest drive. Block seating will be available at the door for any freshman cottage or dormitory.

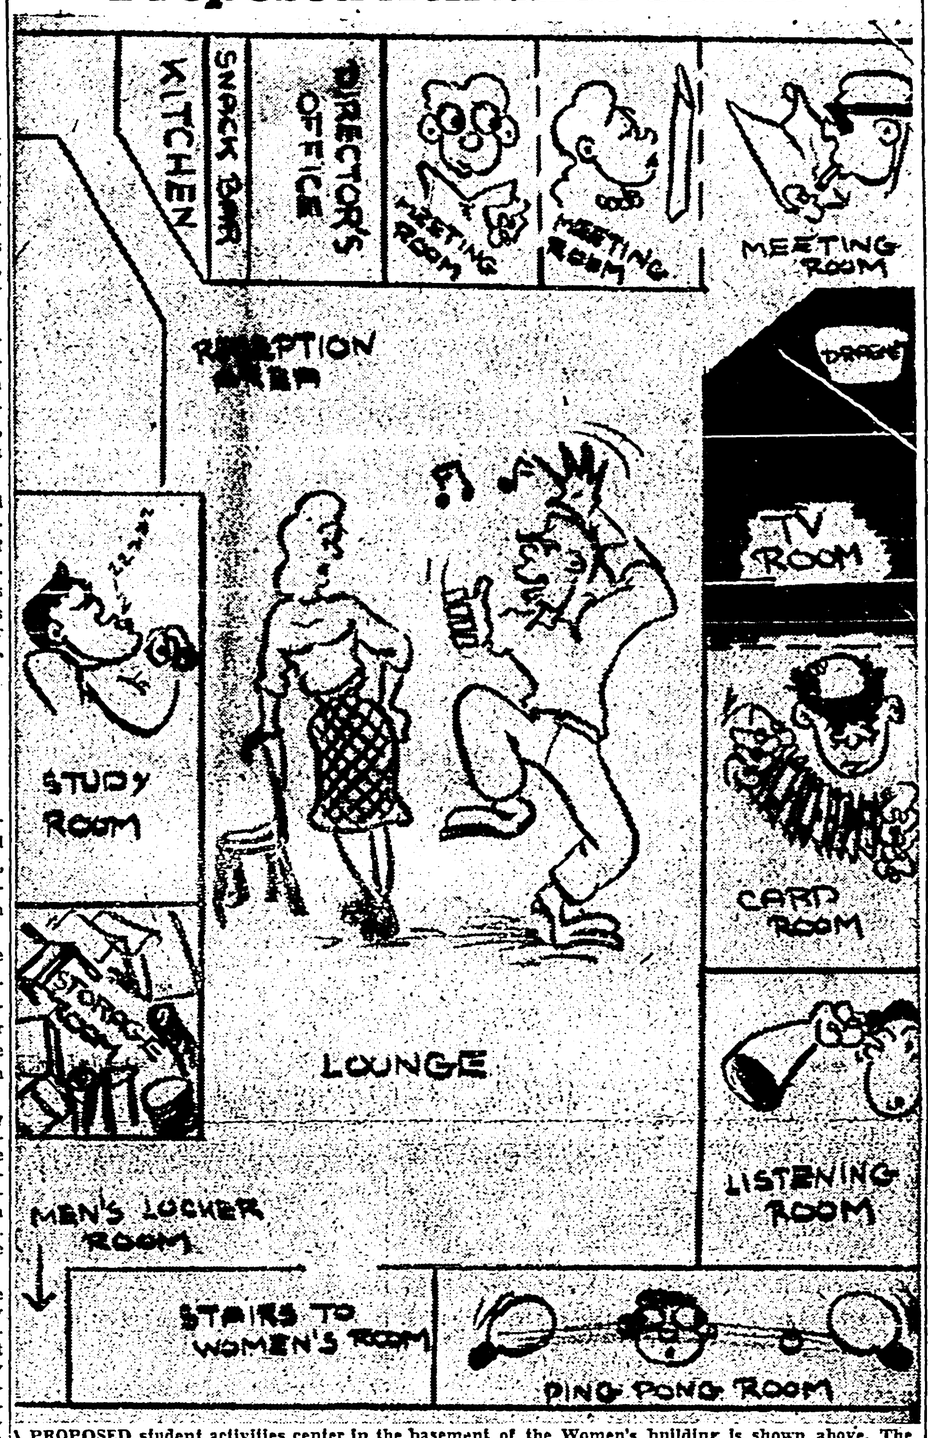
Freshmen girls who have already been selected for the squad are Elaine Macomber, Sally Hall, Vilma Vanvoris, Doris Lent, Marilyn Derr, Barbara Haggerman and Barbara Chamberlain.

The 1954 Campus Chest drive will continue through Wednesday, March 3. All solicitation captains are requested to submit their totals to the Campus Chest office in the Women's building as soon as complete.

MONDAY WILL be Faculty Drive day on campus with all faculty members requested to leave their donations with their secretaries or in their departmental offices, according to co-chairmen Ann McKaig and William Shaeg. The collections will be made throughout the day.

Collections for the drive have already been supplemented by proceeds from four special affairs. The King and Queen contest produced $150 and Feather Day collections totaled $270. Saturday's auction of campus personalities benefitted the drive by $530 while last fall's Carnival added over $850.

Proposed Activities Center



PROPOSED student activities center in the basement of the Women's building is shown above. The sketch was drawn from joint WSG-MSG panel proposals which will soon be sent to the Administration. Plans include meeting rooms, an informal lounge, TV and card rooms, ping-pong and a crack bar as well as space for dancing.

Man Needs to Face Reality Says Prof. Owen at Lecture

By GEORGE MEEK

"The imagination provides man with an outlet in a world of terrifying reality," Dr. David H. Owen said yesterday at the humanities lecture in Maxwell auditorium.

Man was depicted by Dr. Owen as no better than a beast of the forest, and he is a chance and accidental hapening. His essential nature is that of inhumanity, and he hates things as they appear in the world, he said.

SPEAKING to an overflow audience, Prof. Owen further dealt with man's inability to cope with the world of reality.

He said that "for better or worse, man is caught in a naturalistic strait jacket." He has no control over the world, and so cannot predict accurately what it will do to him. Man is a part of "the whirling dance of the atoms," a dance which is leaderless and answers no request numbers, he stated.

Dealing with the role of ideas, Dr. Owen continued to cite references from Jonathan Edwards, one of his main sources.

Ideas are good for their own sake, said the speaker. They express objects in the light of the person who holds them, since ideas are the personal images of objects and not objects themselves.

CREATIVE imagination in a naturalistic world was defined by Dr. Owen as "a judgment of beauty." Since man's views and imagination are inherently selfish, he is eternally damned. Although imagination is a great unifying factor, it cannot escape the all-powerful reality of the "dance of the atoms."

Dr. Owen, an associate professor of English, showed how literature fit into the role of imagination. Literature was termed for the purposes of the lecture as "poetry" but was not limited by this arbitrary terminology.

"Poetry is symbolic, and necessarily ambiguous, he said. The criteria for judging "poetry" is not truth of falsity, but believability. Man's own concepts are put into their place as he seems them, so "poetry" must necessarily be subjective rather than objective, he believed.

The speaker touched on several other points, such as knowledge and faith as a basis for emotional security. Man strives for knowledge, and supports it with faith. There are definite limitations on the extent of our knowledge, for we can never comprehend completely the "dance of the atoms."

OTHER POINTS include the equivalence of response and stimulus in the eyes of the naturalist, and a concept of the will acting in terms of inclination.

Students and faculty questioned and discussed Dr. Owen's points at the faculty club yesterday evening. The next speaker in the humanities series will be Karl Shapiro reading his poetry in Hendricks chapel on March 18.

Courses Granting Associate Degrees Begin in Fall

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Two-year programs of study leading to special degrees will be offered in the College of Liberal Arts and College of Business Administration starting in September, it was learned yesterday.

The courses, fully authorized by the New York state Board of Regents and by the State Department of Education, have been designed to meet the needs of students who desire higher education terminating at the end of two years instead of the usual four, according to the University.

THE DEGREE of associate of arts will be awarded by the liberal arts college, while the bus ad college will grant the associate in applied science degree.

Although the two-year program is a complete unit in itself, it has been so designed that, at the termination of the sequence, students may become candidates for regular degrees in the colleges without loss of time and credit. The two years may be applied toward a bachelor's degree in liberal arts or B.S. degree in business administration.

A program of 60 academic hours has been set up in both colleges.

Acting Dean Morris E. Hurley of the College of Business Administration said that the entrance requirements for the special program will be the same as for regular University admission into the college. Tuition will also be the same.

HE POINTED out that all students registered in the two-year plan will be treated as regularly-enrolled students. "We feel many in the two-year program will stay on for two more years and receive the regular degree," he added.

The plan will be instituted after several years of study by special committees in both liberal arts and business administration colleges. A standing bus ad committee on the matter and a liberal arts group chairmaned by Prof. Roy A. Price held several joint meetings and developed the program that will begin in the fall.

The two-year plan of study is in effect in several other universities in the country, according to Dean Hurley.

The associate awards are recognized degrees symbolizing achievement in the particular field, he said.

Representatives of the University have already outlined the new plan and its benefits to many high school students.

THE LIBERAL arts program, in accordance with the requirements of the State education department, sets up the following general requirements: English and social studies, 12 hours each; mathematics and sciences, nine hours; humanities, six hours; additional courses in any field of liberal arts, nine hours; and additional courses in any field within or outside liberal arts, 12 hours.

The business administration program provides for 27 to 30 credit hours of liberal arts work and 30 to 33 hours in business administration. Basic bus ad courses are required. Selected business technique and content courses normally found in the third and fourth years of study have been moved into the second year of the special program.

The course allows opportunity for specialization within a specific business area chosen by the student.

University college will also offer the two-year program.

Debate Tournament Scheduled Today

University Team Faces Rochester, Cornell

Syracuse university's debate team will participate in three debates at 7:45 p.m. today in the Alumni lounge of the Women's building.

Teams from the University of Rochester and Cornell university will discuss with Syracuse the topic, "Resolved, that the United States should adopt a policy of free trade."

Taking the affirmative side for Syracuse against one of the two Rochester teams will be Alex Strasser and Camille McCarthy. Kevin Wilson and Douglas Ingalls will handle the negative side against the second Rochester team.

The affirmative side will be defended by Marilyn Mawson and Howard Osofsky against Cornell. All interested people are invited, and refreshments will be served.

At a debate tournament at Williams college in the middle of March, the Syracuse team will discuss a special topic, "Resolved, that incompatibility should be grounds for divorce."

Other future meets scheduled are at the Rochester tournament on April 10, and at the LeMoyne tournament, also in April. The topic for these two tournaments will be the same as today's topic.

The team will also participate in an invitational tournament at Dartmouth university, which is a necessary preliminary test before being admitted to the Nationals at West Point.

Wisconsin's Badgers Box Orange Tonight

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Disregarding Horace Greeley, Wisconsin's boxers will step into an Archbold ring tonight to face Syracuse's Eastern champs at 8:15 p.m. The outlook for the mid-westerners, the perennial colossus of national boxing: better than even.

Wisconsin's boxing Badgers pulled into Syracuse yesterday noon and worked out in the Orange loft. They brought essentially the same team that started against Penn State last week in Wisconsin's first match.

SIMMONS' BOYS are "in the pink" and Wisconsin should provide the best opposition that the Orange boxers have seen since last year's Nationals.

Foremost among the old grudges to be resumed will be Thumpin' Johnny Granger's rubber match with Badger 139-pounder Charlie Magestro. Each won one last year, Eastern champ Granger's win coming in the Nationals.

Badger Co-Capt. Bob Morgan at 147 has beaten two Syracuse men, but not Artie Nelson, whom he will face tonight. Morgan, who was national champ two years ago at this weight, lost a surprising decision in his first try last week.

Another feud looms in the light heavyweight. Bruce Yancey lost last year to Ray Zale, cousin of former middleweight champion ony.

VINCE RIGOLOSI picks the only other loser in the Penn State bout last week: Ev Chambers.

Syracuse's only lineup change from the array they presented last week at Virginia will be in

(See BOXING, page 4)

Fraternities Hold Miami Triad Dance

Syracuse university's sixth annual Miami Triad dance will take place March 5 in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Syracuse. Charlie Spivak and his orchestra will provide music for the dance.

The triad is jointly sponsored by Sigma Chi, Beta Theta Pi and Phi Delta Theta, commemorating the fact that all three houses were founded at Miami university in Ohio.

John Pauldine, Beta Theta Pi, will act as overall chairman of the affair. Skip Slater, Phi Delta Theta, and Henry Grethel, Sigma Chi, will assist Pauldine.

Similar dances are held on campuses across the nation at which the three fraternities have chapters.

Charlie Spivak is billed as "The Man Who Plays the Sweetest Trumpet in the World."

Nominations Asked For IFC President

Nominations for president and vice-president of Interfraternity council for the 1954-1955 school year must be submitted by Tuesday, March 2, to Fritz Briggs at the Alpha Chi Rho house, it was announced at an IFC meeting Wednesday.

Accepted nominations will be announced at the IFC meeting Wednesday, March 3, and coting on the candidates will take place at the following meeting, March 17. Fraternity houses will have the two weeks after nominations for discussion on the candidates.

IFC sing applications are due Monday, and should be handed to Deane Lavender at Delta Upsilon.

Prof. Theodore Denise, faculty fraternity advisor, congratulated Panhellenic council and IFC, at the IFC meeting for the work they did on the social action project of last weekend. He quoted Dean Frank P. Piskor as saying that the project was "the most outstanding thing the students have done."

David Bennett and Al Bartkevicius were named as co-editors of next year's edition of "Meet the Greeks." Both Bennett and Bartkevicius are now junior editors on the staff of The Daily Orange.

Bridge Semi-Finals Sponsored by STD

Semi-finals of the bridge tournament sponsored by Sigma Tau Delta will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 27.

The following houses are still eligible and will participate: Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Phi, Alpha Xi Delta, Delta Gamma, Gamma Phi Beta, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, Phi Sigma Sigma, Sigma Delta Tau, and Zeta Tau Alpha.

Frosh Will Highlight Outer Space Formal

"Universally Yours", a semi-formal dance, will highlight the activities at the 1954 Freshman weekend, March 12, 13 and 14.

The dance is planned from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., Friday, March 12 in the Women's gym.

The theme for the affair ties in with the overall theme of the weekend, "Out of This World." The orchestra for the event has been selected and will be announced at a later date.

Decorations for "Universally Yours" are a secret and will not be revealed before the time of the dance. They will, however, tie in with the space theme.

Tickets for the affair will go on sale on Thursday, March 4. The price will be $2 a couple. The tickets will continue to sell until all 250 are sold, or until the time of the dance.

The tickets will be sold daily in Maxwell, Sims, Slocum and Shaw. They will also be sold in the Women's building.

Barbara Murray and Richard Greenberg, co-chairman, promise a good dance with an unusual theme. They particularly stress the original secret decorations.

Entertainment will be provided by a committee under the chairmanship of Guy Gallard and Merry Dash.

Sophomores Elect Anderson Veep

Harold Ronald Anderson, 23, was elected vice-president of the class of '56 by the sophomore senate last night.

Anderson, an independent who comes from Oneonta, resides at 102 Walnut pl. and is enrolled in the College of Business Administration.

Chicago Exhibit To Feature Slides

Three entries of photographic slides by Dr. William M. Harlow, professor of wood technology at the State university of New York College of Forestry, have been selected for showing at the 9th Chicago International Exhibition of Nature Photography at the Chicago Natural History museum.

One of these slides, "Pine Cone Scales," has been chosen to be part of travelling exhibit of the Museum. The other two are entitled "Maple Wing" and "Osage Orange."

Last Spring, Dr. Harlow placed four of his pictures in the Syracuse International salon of photography at the Museum of Fine Arts.

Dr. Harlow is the producer of several colors films on nature subjects. His latest is "Time Lapse Etudies of Growing Trees." The exhibit will close Feb. 28.

BOOK PUBLISHED

Edna Eastwood, former Syracuse student, has written the recently published "When the Time Comes," a book dealing with the story of Holy Week and Easter.

Organist Featured In Crouse Sunday

David Johnson, organist and composer, will give a recital of sacred music at 4 p.m. Sunday in Crouse auditorium. Admission to the event is free.

Assisting Johnson in the concert will be Louis Krasner, Adrienne Galimir and Ernest Horvath, violins; Claude Bortel, viola; Alfred Ozolins, cello; and Stanley Roelofs, tenor.

Johnson is assistant professor in the School of Music, and organist-choir director of the South Presbyterian church. His belief in the need for more writing in the field of contemporary sacred music led to his decision to base Sunday's concert entirely on religious themes.

The concert will open with the sacred compositions "Lo, He Comes, with Clouds Descending," and "Hark, the Glad Sound, the Savior Comes."

Next on the program are "Come Holy Spirit," "A Hymn of the Majesty of God," and "All Loveliness is Thine."

A Partita for string trio and tenor voice on the chorale "Herzliebster Jesu" will follow. The organ and string quartet will play a fugue, and the andante from "Sonata da Chiesa."

Johnson will direct more sacred pieces: "Wake, Awake!," "Come, Thou Long-expected Jesus," "To God the Father, God the Son" and "A Hymn for Holy Innocents' Day."

The program will close with "Now Yield We Thanks and Praise."

CHILDREN SHOW

Children from the Percy Hughes hospital will be shown cartoons, films and entertained with other games supplied by Sigma Kappa and Sigma Chi at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 28.

WAER's Program Schedule Changes Beginning Sunday

By DICK CASE

Stimulated by recent new staff appointments, radio station WAER will institute a rejuvenated programming schedule beginning with this Sunday's broadcast. The new lineup will number several entirely new programs and revamped versions of previous offerings as well as the standard campus radio productions.

According to James Fellows, newly-appointed WAER program director, the revised schedule will present a fresh approach in the programming department in addition to fulfilling the station's function to represent the University to the community. "We strive to offer something other than the standard programs presented by commercial radio," Fellows stated. "It's the best of its type."

WAER, listed at 88.1 on the FM dial, currently presents approximately 52 hours of programming each week. The backbone of the schedule is news and music with a strong emphasis on special events, sports and drama.

Prior to initiation of the new listing, WAER will present a unique sports broadcast beginning at 6:15 p.m., Saturday with the presentation of a "doubleheader" basketball contest between Syracuse and Colgate from Archbold gym. Both the freshman and varsity games will be aired.

In an attempt to offer a different view of local government, campus radio will present a new show "Inside City Hall," beginning 6:10 p.m. this Sunday. The 10-minute series will highlight tape recorded interviews with various city officials on current problems of municipal government.

MAYOR DONALD Mead will be featured on the first broadcast. Albert Mardon and Ransom Place are producing the show which is announced by Wallace Bradley. It will be heard every other week.

Running alternately with "Inside City Hall" each Sunday will be "Syracuse This Week." This offering will present a major local issue from the proceeding week.

WAER News Director Richard Ballentine acts as producer and announcer for the production.

One of the most ambitious productions ever attempted by the WAER staff will be debuted at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 4. The hour-long series, titled "Anthology," will be presented each month and will feature entertainment and information on topics past and present.

THIS INCLUDES original musical compositions and dramas as well as talks by University faculty members. "Anthology" will utilize a large cast and all of the WAER facilities. Edward Rasch is the producer.

"Steps to Peace," produced by Inez France in cooperation with the Syracuse Peace Council, is a new addition to the WAER's Tuesday schedule to be aired at 6:45 p.m. each week. The program will give highlights of the work of the local council. Technical direction is handled by Philip Irwin.

Among the musical shows available to WAER listeners are "Symphony Hall," 7:05 p.m., Sunday; "Keyboard Concert," 7 p.m., Tuesday; "Voices in the Night," 9:05 p.m., Tuesday; and "Showtime," 3:05 p.m., Saturday as of March 6.

"Distaff Digest," featuring Gwen Mahle with the women's side of the news, will be added to WAER's daily broadcast slate Monday through Friday, 5:05-5:15 p.m.

THESE NEW programs will be integrated with the FM outlet's regular programming schedule which includes daily news and sports shows in addition to a wide assortment of musical and dramatic presentations.

During the current year, Program Director Fellows has indicated that WAER will extend its coverage of University sports and also will present limited broadcasts of high school athletics. Plans for remotes of the Brotherhood

Pristine posters

According to philosophers here and there, one of the prime purposes of a college education is to train the individual to think . . . and to think in many fields.

Tuesday another category was added to the list. Tau Sigma Delta, sponsor of the Colgate weekend poster contest, has delivered its new set of rules. And the momentum from perhaps years of, shall we say, filched ideas has ground to a stop.

At least we sincerely hope so now that there is no question as to where the thought for a poster design evolves from . . . the minds of the student body.

Up to now the rules included nothing about who designed what and how for Colgate. The censoring of noise and lights and 3-D put somewhat of a cramp on posters built after 1954.
