Graduates Form Associ

GSA to Start Activities For All SU Post-Grads

AN IMPORTANT FUNCTION of the grad commission has been to encourage grad students to meet each other at social affairs. These students chat gaily at a recent program of the commission. Upon the ratification of the new constitution, it is hoped that many more grad students will use the facilities open to them for social activity. The purpose is to provide an integrated program for the first time.

For almost 50 years, the graduate student was a nebulous cre ture, who walked the Old Oval in body only, but whose spirit w presumed to be far above the reaches of ordinary underclassmen.

These book-laden individuals went their lonely ways, doi their research in silence, and getting what social life they could whatever way they could, without being united in any special bo

The need for an organization of some kind was felt more an more until it finally crystallized into the formation of a grad con mission in the early 1940's.

Weekly grad gatherings, under the co-chairmanship of Hel Spencer and David Cross, have been an integral part of the p gram. The sessions are informal, including such activities as co munity singing, bridge, and discussion groups. Refreshments are ways served. A panel of speakers recently presented a series discussions on the values and effects of music on the minds a emotions.

Another active grop has been the women's athletic program, which Barbara Garey is chairman. All women grad students m participate in basketball, volleyball, badminton, and swimming.

The commission has also undertaken several new projec this year. A survey has been taken of graduate activities and ser ices available in other colleges and universities, to give the loc commission ideas for furthering its program.

An orientation booklet comparable to the Orange Guide has b written and is about to go to press. This booklet will be given to new grad students at Syracuse.

The revival of the grad convocation during registration has a been discussed for the purpose of acquainting the new grad stude with the work of the commission.

The latest achievement of the commission has been the wri ing of a constitution for the formation of a Graduate Studen association (GSA) to take the place of the present commission. I adoption will mark the first constitution of the grad sudent bod

The three purposes of the GSA are, according to the constituti

"1) To provide opportunities for graduate students of Syrac university to participate in social, intellectual, athletic, and ot recreational activities;

"2) To supply information pertinent to the interests of gra uate students;

"3) To uphold and foster the objectives and ideals of Syrac university."

Approximately 1,500 on-campus grad and professional sch students are to be granted full membership and right to hold off These students include all those registered in the Graduate school Syracuse university, those in the separate grad programs of the sch of education and forestry, and those in the Colleges of Law and M dicine.

Associate membership is to be accorded to interested facul members, Syracuse alumnae, or any graduate of any other u versity not attending Syracuse. These GSA members will not ha the right to vote or hold office.

According to the proposed constitution, the president of the C will be elected at a general meeting in April, but will not assume duties until after spring commencement.

The social committee of the new group will be in charge of parties and dances during the year. One new event that may be ad in the near future is a formal dance for grads only.

The duties of the chapel committee will be to continue weekly informal chapel program, and to secure appropriate spe ers of general interest.

A possible future project of the athletic committee is a pro of athletic activities and competitioan for men, as well as the tinuation of the present women's program.

The publicity committee will handle all publicity of the va activities of the GSA.

ation for Campus Unity

ther tea during registration week and a Christmas party. The l party of the year has been scheduled for May 1. Under the v GSA a formal dance for grad students may be held, and new ial functions arranged, to get the grads together.

udents on campus. At the present time there are 100 foreign stuents from 26 foreign countries, Hawaii and Puerto Rico registered the various graduate schools of Syracuse. Canada has the largt representation with 26, 12 come from India and 10 from Hawaii. his committee would see that the foreign students were repreented in the association and would urge them to participate in its tivities.

The executive committee of the GSA would include the presit, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, and the chairmen of the committees.

At least two all-association meetings are to be held each year. At se meetings proposed amendments to the constitution will be ed upon and all business of interest to the entire association will discussed.

There are two possible means of raising funds for the GSA. The raduate school may provide an annual allotment to the associaon. The second means would be through a compulsory fee, payle at registration by all grad students carrying more than six ours of course work.

The sponsor of the new group is to be the Dean of the Gradu school of Syracuse university. The present dean is Dr. Carl R. e, now in his first year of serving in that capacity. However, he had previous experience as associate dean of the Maxwell school, osition he had held for several years.

Commenting on this year's grad commission and its activities, an Bye said, "The student leadership of the commission has been usually competent, vigorous, and interested this year." He believes t the proposed constitution is an excellent idea.

He commended the organization on its intention to keep more curate records than has past groups, for its survey work of other iversities, and its new Orientation booklet.

The Graduate school has been supporting the commission by viding mimeographing and typing work and donating a filing inet in which to keep its records, according to Dean Bye.

The leadership which Dean Bye praised so highly is the result the activities of the executive committee of the grad commission. s year's chairman was Dorothy Smith, student dean of Phillips' age. Henry Vander was co-chairman, Ruth Telman, secretary, rl Ing, treasurer, Ross Rathie, social chairman, Margot Kalbern, publicity, Miss Spencer, chapel and Miss Garey, athletics. rking with them were many other interested and active grad dents.

Now that the Graduate Students association constitution has en written, all that remains is the ratification by a general meetg of all grad students. This meeting has been set for 8:15 p.m. morrow in the City Women's lounge on the third floor of the omen's building. The commission requests that all grad stunts be present.

At this time the constitution will be presented for discussion l ratification. Nominations for next year's president will be called the officers elected. The financial program and registration fee l be discussed, along with possible uses of GSA funds. The comsion will provide refreshments at the sessions.

Although the grad students are often overlooked, they comprise proximately one-fourth of the student body on campus. Much of fame of the University comes through the research and papers tten by the master's and doctorate degree candidates. The forn students, too, are important in the eyes of the University as an to international relations.

The ratification of the new constitution will be the greatest step the unity of this important campus body. It will draw together the dent deans from the dark recesses of the frosh women's dorms, resident advisors from the wilds of Skytop, and the mysterious dents of the professional schools. All that remains is the need for erest and cooperation. With that, the final purpose of the constiion, "To uphold and foster the objectives and ideals of Syracuse iversity," will be realized by an important group on campus.

DANCERS WHO PERFORMED at the St. Patrick's day party show native Irish costumes. Besides dances, parties, and the women's athletic program, the commission sponsors a weekly get-together in the Colonial room of the Chapel. At this time grads may play bridge, chess, join in community singing and discussion groups or just chat. The Thursday sessions have been exceptionally successful.

INCLUDED IN THE sports program of the grad commission is swimming for all those with athletic privilege cards. Other events are free. Enjoying the pool are: clockwise, Eleanor Nelson, Dorothy Smith, Shirley Wadle, and Shirley Vincent. A sports program for men has been proposed and may be enacted under the new Graduate School association after it begins operating next year.

Orange Fencers Conclude Season With Losing Record

Goldstein, Gresser Lead Swordsmen In Win Column

By EV MURCH

With their victory over RIT last Saturday, the Syracuse Fencing squad ended a season that was in some way successful and by other standards unsuccessful.

A look at the record would seem to be most discouraging. The final count stood three wins and four losses. However, during the latter part of the season a number of underclassmen showed great promise for the future.

Of these only one is a junior and six are sophomores, who will have two years to improve. Willie Schop, the lone junior, now has two years of experience behind him and has shown flashes of great swordsmanship during the past season.

The sophomores are George Wooding and Joe Gresser, who displayed vastly improved epee skill in the last few meets; Abe Gilman, an up-and-coming saber man and Ed Wang, Bodo Trenk, and Saul Klein, who comprise the entire foil squad.

A tough blow to the team will be the graduation of Captain John Goldstein. During his three years on the team Goldstein has been one of the top epee men in this part of the country.

Last year he was epee champion in the North Atlantic Intercollegiate Fencing classic and would have had a good chance to retain his title, had not a late bus prevented his appearance this year.

The team's three victories came at the expense of RIT and St. Lawrence, each of whom they beat once in a dual meet and once in the triangle meet at Canton. The losses went to Cornell, Sampson, Air Force base, Buffalo and MIT and Cornell in a three-way meet.

HAL McGRATH, former Orange tennis captain, is shown with a mass of trophies he annexed during the summer tennis circuit. McCrath was playing coach in 1952 and won the eastern intercollegiates singles championship in 1951.

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

One of the victims of the twelve inch snow storm that blanketed Syracuse last Monday is the Orange tennis team. Outdoor practices, on the clay courts, which were scheduled for later this month, will now probably have to be postponed till May.

It is possible that the racquetmen will be able to use the hard surface sky-top courts after the Easter vacation, but the clay courts will not be usable until May.

Despite a weak serve, Kerr won more than one half of his matches last year. Kerr has been working on his serve over the winter and according to O'Brien, appears to have straightened it out."

Last year, Kerr's serve lacked power. With a change in style, he is able to get more force from his service. In particular, Kerr's second service has improved greatly.

BRATT IS another improved letterman returning from last year's squad. The husky senior has been working on his backhand and apears to have strengthened that portion of his game.

The Orange senior has lost many a point due to a weak backhand, as opponents would take advantage of this flaw in his game. With his backhand apparently straightened out, Bratt should show great improvement over last year's form.

The other returning veteran is Wyn Lott. Possessing the best service on the squad, Lott plays an aggressive game, using his service to set-up forehand smashes.

A newcomer on the squad who promises to aid the local tennis contingent is Sonne Bonne of Mergui, Burma. Possessing a strong forehand smash, plus good twist and drop shots, Bonne is counted upon heavily by O'Brien, who might use him on his starting team.

SYRACUSE WILL miss the services of three lettermen who graduated last June. Former player-coach Hal McGrath, Bob Marquardt and ex-Capt. Art Sholk are the graduated lettermen.

In 1951, McGrath was the eastern intercollegiate tennis champion. In 1952, McGrath took over the coaching reigns in addition to his playing duties.

During last summer's tournament circuit, McGrath won the New York State singles and doubles championships, the singles and doubles city championships and the central New York State single's championship. In addition to these triumphs, McGrath also won the Genesee valley championship in Rochester and the Yahnandasis tournament also of Rochester.

While Marquardt didn't win as many tourneys as McGrath, he did take the mixed double city championship with Francene Harback. The previous year, Peter Bratt won the city mixed doubles championship.

Sholk wasn't the world's best player but he came close to being the world's best captain.

Before a match against Union college, Sholk got his thumb caught in the door of a car and had to have the entire nail removed. Despite this fact, Sholk won his singles and doubles matches. After the game, he fainted. It was later discovered that his thumb was bound too tightly, causing a loss of circulation and the resulting faint.

O'Brien is the third coach of the tennis squad, since postwar days. Art Prochaska war and held the coaching coached the Orange after the reigns till McCrath took over in 1951.

Foresters Lead Faculty Bowlers By Slim Margin

Athletic Department, Engineers, Press For Leadership

As the faculty bowlers go into tonight's schedule of contests the Foresters hold a very slim ½-point edge over the Athletic department in the battle for first place. Right on their heels are the Engineers, only one point out.

The Foresters took command as a result of last Monday's seven to two victory over the cellar-dwelling Forestry department. Meanwhile, the Athletic keglers dropped all nine to the oncoming Engineers, which plunged the race into a tight three-team battle.

THE MATH department fell out of the fight for the first time since the season started, as they bowed to ROTC, seven to two. They now trail by eight points, but with the rapid shuffles that can take place in the standings they are far from out of it.

The Holy Rollers hung on in fifth place by sinking the up-and-down Linguists, seven to two. The defeat knocked the Linguists back to tenth place.

The Pinknots crept past the Stinkers into sixth spot by knocking over the odor-boys, six to three. They now trail the Rollers by three and hold onto sixth by one.

In the other game, Marshall skidded to eighth and the Utes crawled out of the bottom by virtue of a seven to two decision.

HIGH TRIPLE for the evening was turned in by Harold Core as he rolled a 557, substituting for one of the Foresters. Core acts in the role of utility man, taking the place of missing bowlers for any team that shows up undermanned.

Allan Sylvester of ROTC was high single man for the contests as he added a 233 to the defeat of the Mathematicians. This was the only 200 string in addition to the 207 that Core rolled up in his high triple series.

The standings as of this morning:

1.	Foresters	120
2.	Athletics	119.5
3.	Engineers	119
4.	Math	112
5.	Holy Rollers	108
6.	Pinknots	105
7.	Stinkers	104
8.	Marshall	100
9.	ROTC	96
10.	Linguists	93.5
11.	Utes	82.5
12.	Forestry	78

Frosh Crewmen Face Tough Season

This season's freshman crew is facing a schedule that includes all the top frosh crews of the country. The top attraction on the slate will be the IRA's which are scheduled for the third year in a row on Onondaga lake.

The first race of the year will be at home on May 1. The frosh will meet in that race, crews from Cornell, Navy, Wisconsin and Boston U.

Hill Oarsmen Practice For Season Opener

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

With their season-opening raves against the powerful Navy shells less than three weeks away, the Syracuse varsity and junior varsity crews face strenuous series of practice sessions before invading Annapolis on April 24.

Inclement weather has greatly hampered the preparations of the Orange oarsmen. Coach Gosta "Gus" Eriksen's squad has had less than five days of practice on Onondaga lake while other eastern crews, particularly Navy, have had many more.

GUS ERIKSEN, head crew coach, is preparing his oarsmen for a busy schedule.

THE SCHEDULE for the Hill varsity crews this year is a very difficult one. The opening event on the slate pits the Syracuse varsity against a Navy boat that is undefeated in 20 consecutive races against the world's best competition. The Midshipmen's streak includes two victories in the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regattas, a win in the 1952 Olympics, and two consecutive triumphs in the Eastern Sprint Regatta.

Furthermore, only three men were lost by graduation to the Annapolis varsity, and only one man will not be back from the the powerful Middie JV boat.

Following the Navy contest, the Orange play host to Wisconsin, Navy, Cornell and Boston university in the only home races of the season.

This five way regatta on Saturday, May 1, should be indicative of the comparatice strength of some of the nation's best crews. Navy, of course, is a proven quantity. But the sensational Cornell boat, a close second in last year's IRA and always-strong Wisconsin will also provide stern tests for the improving Saltine sweepswingers.

ON SATURDAY, May 8, the Piety squad travels to Ithaca for the important Carnegie Cup races. Although not eligible to win the cup, the Hillmen have an opportunity of matching strokes with three eastern crew powers, Cornell, Princeton and Yale.

The Eastern Sprints are held over a 2,000 meter course on the Potomac River. Last year's all-around points-winner was Navy, whose varsity rowers took the Evening Star Trophy and whose JV shell coped the Richard A. Glendon Trophy. The Cornell freshmen were the victors in the yearly race in '53.

On Saturday, May 15, the Syracusans journey to Washington, D. C. for the annual Eastern Spring Regatta. Along with Navy, Cornell, BU and Wisconsin, Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Rutgers, MIT and Dartmouth will take part in the big event.

The Easterns are the last scheduled races for the Orange until the IRA regatta held on Onondaga lake on Saturday, June 19.

THIS BIG regatta is the world series of crew racing. This year, 11 schools will take part in the 52nd annual event. Last year, it was Navy winning the race only after repulsing spirited bids from both Cornell and Washington. Washington's surprisingly strong JV shell raced to an easy win in the junior varsity attraction.

The Orange boatings for the Navy opener are undecided. The stroke position appears at the present to be a battle among the two varsity strokes of last year, Ron Love and Gerry Glasser, and the '53 frosh stroke, Ray Rogers.

Varsity captain Bob Curran should have the inside track for the number four position but it is too early to make predictions concerning any of the other positions.

The Hill coach, Gus Eriksen, is starting his fifth season as head coach. Like most other college crew coaches, Eriksen is a product of the University of Washington. He rowed on the Huskie crews and was an alternate on the U. S. Olympic rowing squad of 1936.

A NATIVE of Seattle, Wash-ton, he was graduated from the university in 1939. From 1942-49, Erisksen was a member of the Huskie crew coaching staff, being responsible for lightweight and intramural rowing, and handing the freshmen in 1948 and 49. At Washington, his oarsmen never lost a boatrace, defeating 40 straight opponents.

National Collegiates Rated Even; Idaho To Defend Boxing Crown

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

This is a big year for Eastern boxing and just to prove it, Penn State is playing host to the National Collegiate boxing tournament this coming weekend.

The fights run Thursday night, April 8 through Saturday night, April 10. Everyone who is anyone is being given an outside chance to win this, the 23rd renewal.

FIRST OF ALL, Wisconsin, as usual, will be the favorites. The Boxing Badgers haven't lost a match this season and are being considered the team to beat.

Last year's first-time champ Idaho State has been heavily dug into by graduation and is not counted on to defend their title with much success.

Syracuse will trot down four boys: Frank Gueli, Eastern Champ Jerry Jaffe, Thumpin' Johnny Granger and Vince Rigolosi. Very probably all of these boys will participate in preliminaries on Thursday night.

Since three of these boys won in the Wisconsin match, they are being given the best chance. Because of Ganger's upset in the Easterns it may be possible for Johnny to be a National champ without being champion in the East.

One of the most interesting questions of the tournament as far as Syracuse is concerned centers around Orange Eastern champ Jerry Jaffe. Can Jaffe's radical ring behavior stupefy boxers from all over the country as it did boxers from all over the East?

Syracuse's other rep is 125-pounder Frank Gueli. Gueli won right into the semi-finals in the Easterns. There, a decision by a ref who, the night before, was accused of favoring Guelli left Frank without an invitation to attend the finals.

There are other teams in the match besides Syracuse and Wisconsin. Maryland's Eastern champs and Louisiana State's Southern champs are ranked as other favorites.

FROM OUT of the west, San Jose State is being counted on, as is Virginia. Even home team Penn State is given their best chance in years.

As in any tournament, there are a high number of strong or favored teams. Since so much depends on the luck of the draw and so little on team strength, it boils down to a battle of individuals. A team with a few excellent fighters will fare better than a team with more balance.

The last time the Nationals were held in Penn State was 1950.

Co-op Housing Open To Coeds Next Year

Fifty-four upperclass Hill coeds may be able to take advantage of lower room or board charges next year, Miss Kathryn Copeland, director of women's residence, told The Daily Orange Friday that one upperclass full cooperative house and two upperclass semi-cooperatives will be available for women students next year.

THE FULL CO-OP is Peck II, at 114 Waverly ave., and it has vacancies for 20 coeds next year. Those who live in a full co-op are given free rooms and charged only $6 per week for food. This has been the standard fee for the past four years. Cooking and cleaning are done by the resident students.

Two semi-cooperatives, with vancancies for 17 coeds each, are Genesee, 914 S. Crouse ave., and Mott, 906 S. Crouse ave. Coeds living in these houses plan their own cleaning duties, which consist of about 20 minutes of work per day every other week for each resident.

Women students who wish to live in a full or semi-cooperative submit regular room applications to Miss Copeland in the dean of women's office, indicating their choices of living centers.

Students Will Vote Today In Yearly Spring Elections; Ballot at Maxwell, Slocum

Eight booths will be open tomorrow to receive an expected 60 per cent turnout of voters in the annual spring elections.

John DePalma, men's student government junior elecetions officer, and Elaine Greenberg, women's student government elections office, have announced location and times of voting booths as follows: Library steps, outside Hall of Languages, outside Maxwell and main quad, 9 a.m. to 1:15 p.m.; Slocum basement, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Sims, Washington Arms and Shaw, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 7 p.m.

NUMBER 33 will be punched on identification cards.

All students who have lost ID cards should get voting certificates between 2 and 4 p.m. today at the MSG office, building 30.

Candidates must sign elections pledges by this afternoon at the MSG office, elections officials said. Any candidate who does not sign will not be allowed to run, they stated.

Women students will vote for class officers, WSG president, WSG chief of civil service, six WSG junior officers, WSG assembly speaker, WSG secretary-treasurer, Eta Pi Upsilon spring weekend queen and foreign student guide chairman.

Court Applications Due by Thursday

Applications for justices of the meen's student court will be accepted until noon Monday at the men's student government office, building 30, Stephen Reiss, chief of civil service, has announced.

The government trust board will meet that afternoon to appoint two seniors, two juniors and two sophomores to justice positions.

Men with at least a 1.6 cumulative average are eligible to be justices. The position is permanent as long as the appointee maintains the requirements of the office.

Men interested in applying should include name, address, phone number, class and ideas for the court in their applications.

Sitting on the trust board Thursday will be Frank P. Piskor, dean of student services; Eric H. Faigle, dean of the College of Liberal Arts; Stanley Leff, MSG president; Reiss; and Raymond Guenter, retiring chief justice of MSG.

Quarter Rounds Will Begin Today

Quarter finals for the annual Spring weekend step singing contest begin at 7 p.m. today in Hendricks chapel. Seventeen houses are entering the quarter finals according to Anne Forrest, chairman.

Houses scheduled to sing tonight in the small house division are Butler, Parker, Mace and Phillips cottages. In the large housee division are Phi Mu, Haven hall, Sigma Kappa, Delta Gamma and Delta Zeta.

Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, sponsors the contest in connection with the Spring weekend festivities. Two cups are awarded to the best houses in the large and small divisions by Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music honorary.

KEY APPLICATIONS

Applications for Orange Key, junior men's honorary, are now available in the dean of men's office, Darwin Bolden, president, has announced.

Rejuirements for membership in the organization, which recognizes outstanding junior men, are a 1.4 cumulative average, participation in at least one extra-curricular activity and second-semester sophomore standing.

Completed application forms should be returned to the dean of men's office by next Tuesday. Pledges for Orange Key will be introduced at Moving-up day exercises Spring weekend.

American Journalism Assailed by Dr. Brown

By PEARL BERNSTEIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

"I regret to have to say that the American press over the past decade has done a very poor job keeping us informed on what is going on in the world," said Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown yesterday when he addressed Citizenship students.

Dr. Brown, chairman of the citizenship program, spoke in place of Dr. Warren Walsh, whose talk was postponed until May 17.

TALKING ON "World Communism", what and why it is, Dr. Brown discussed the Asian and European manifestations of the Marxist-Leninist doctrines.

He said, "Since the end of World War II Communists have been talking a different language," and he attributed this change to the tactics of Mao Tse Tung, leader of Red China.

"You would suppose, from the press, that Chiang Kai-shek were the most important man in China today . . . The fact, whether we like it or not, is that Chiang is a has-been . . . Mao is the man."

"In an important sense," Dr. Brown continued, "Mao, who is a veteran Marxian revolutionary, has rewritten Max and Lenin, making them more efficient."

NO LONGER is the idea of the class struggle stressed as the way to overthrow a government. Now the Asian communists appeal to the sentiments of national pride, desire for revenge against foreigners, especially whites from the West who have exploited the native populations, and jealousy of the rich by the poor.

The lecturer described the situation in Indo-China. Ho Chi Minh, leader of the Viet Minh forces, was legally elected president of what we now call Viet Nam, he pointed out. The current struggle rose out of disagreement over the status ofCochin China, in the south of Indo-China.

"I am not saying the French were wrong," said Dr. Brown. "But none of this is in the papers. We cannot turn our faces away from the harsh matter that much of this is based on truth. We cannot deny that poverty and exploitation have existed."

A VAST MAJORITY of the Indo-Chinese are illiterate; they do not understand the French plans for participation in the French Union. They cannot read what Communism had done to freedom in China. They can only understand the threefold appeal to their national pride, desire for revenge and jealously of the rich landowners.

Turning to Communism in the West, Dr. Brown emphasized the conditions in France and Italy, where communist leaders have frighteningly large and powerfully organized followings.

"Politically the Communists are so strong they present a constant danger of seizing control," said Dr. Brown. Communists control most of the labor unions in both countries, in addition to holding many positions gained in free elections.

He cited the devastation of two wars and the mixed tradition of democracy and totalitarianism characterizing both nations as among the reasons for the success of the communists

Soph Receives Grant For Studies in France

Marcella (Marcie) Damiecki of Alpha Omicron Pi was recently awarded a scholarship grant to spend her junior year in France under the sponsorship of Sweetbriar college, Va.

MISS DAMIECKI, a liberal arts students and French major is the only person from Syracuse this year to receive the award. She will leave for France August 31 on the Mauritania.

When she arrives in France, she will live with a French family "to learn the language." She will attend the University of Paris during her junior year, beginning this November.

Before beginning school, she will take a six-week intensive course at the University to qualify her to compete with other French students there, with whom she will have classes.

Miss Damiecki, who plans to teach, frankly admits she is slightly afraid of going, even though this is what she "has always wanted to do." She feels that it will be rather difficult competing with native-born French scholars, "but other American students studying over there will be in the same boat as I," she stated.

THE AUBURN-HAIRED sophomore said she is "very happy to bee going and I hope it lives up to all I expect it to be. My father and mother are also very excited about my going."

Although school will officially end in June, Miss Damiecki will stay on and spend the summer in Switzerland. When she returns, she will have enough credits to qualify as a senior.

In order to be chosen, Miss Damiecki had to be recommended by the chairman of the French department and the dean of her college.

She must have had two years of high school French and two years of college French.

She is requested to study French literature at the University and must have a French average of B previously in order to quality.

MEN'S HOUSING

Sophomores may apply for places in Grover Cleveland starting today. One hundred four places are open. Any student may apply for room in Marion (83 places left) or Washington Arms (30 doubles and 14 singles still available).

Peck Will Speak In Lecture Series

The J-school will present the third in a series of talks on industrial journalism, when Willis L. Peck will speak on "The Editor and his Facilities." The talk, which is open to all interested will take place at 7:30 p.m. in room 202 of the J-center.

Peck was recently elected president of the American association of Industrial editors. He also holds a position with the house organ of Reveree Copper & Brass, Inc. and serves in an advisory capacity to other publication committees.

ROTC To Vote Today For Military Monarch

Members of ROTC will vote today for the queen of the annual Military ball to be held this Saturday from 9-1 in Archbold gymnasium. Balloting will continue until Thursday for the seven finalists.

The winner will be announced by Chairman Clifford Way, at the intermission. She will be crowned by Marie Costantini, last year's queen, who will retire at that time as honorary Lt. Colonel of the Cadet corp. The queen will be awarded two tickets to the senior show "Up in Lights," compliments of Scabbard and Blade, military honorary.

SAMMY BLUMKIN and his orchestra are providing the music for the formal affair. Dress for the cadets in the army will be a regulation uniform. For the Air Force, regular uniforms with white shirts and black ties are required. Corsages for the dance are optional.

Invitations have been sent to official heads, university officials, city officials and other local college military units. Cadets by military custom are required to meet the chaperones and introduce themselves.

All members of the cadet association are invited to attend. A date bureau is being sponsored by Angel's Flight, women's branch of ROTC. Cadets wanting a date are requested to sign up.

George Kepner will act as master of ceremonies at the intermission at 11 p.m. Entertainment will feature musical renditions by Bill Angelos and the Air Force chorus from the language training program.

POET AND SONG

Tonight on "The Poet and His Song," Richard Elman—Syracuse University student (Junior, English major in Liberal Arts) and poetry-short story writer will be featured reading his own poetry.

The program also includes the poem "Four Fugues On Flight" read by Richard Elman and Willard Lape, Jr. "The Poet and His Song" is produced by Phyllis Perkins.

NSA Commission Announces Slate

Competition Begins For Seminar Course

The International Commission of National Student association has announced the opening of competition for second international relations seminar to be held in Cambridge, Mass., and Ames, Iowa from July 12 to Sept. 1.

The program, initiated last summer, is designed to provide students with specialized knowledge in the field of international relations as it affects student life.

ALL STUDENTS at NSA colleges are eligible to compete. Those selected will receive scholarships to cover room, board, tuition and transportation.

The first part of the program at NSA's international offices in Cambridge, consists of five weeks of seminars and lectures by leaders in academic and student worlds.

The second period of the program will be spent at NSA's seventh national congress Aug. 18 to Sept. 1 at Iowa State university.

Application forms are available from the MSG president and chairman of the political science department, NSA said. Applicants should show definite interest in international relations and student activities. Knowledge of a foreign language is helpful.

Deadline for applications is May 10. The selection committee will announce its decision June 1.

Speech School Slates Dramatic Poetry Series

A program of dramatic poetry and readings entitled "America: 1954" will be presented by the oral interpretation department of the School of Speech at 8 p.m. Sunday, April 11 in the drama building auditorium.

Directed by Miss Rosemary Sinnett of the oral interpretation department, the program is devided into two sections. The first includes a series of traditional American ballads, performed by a chorus and discussed in a descriptive narrative.

THE SECOND portion will consist of a reading of Stephen Vincent Benet's poetic drama, "Listen to the People." The Benet drama will be done by means of narration, chorus parts and individual voices. Written in 1941, the piece is a denunciation of totalitarianism. It is an indictment of these forces and those who permit them to exist.

By changing the names of places in the drama, members of the department were able to bring the poetry up to date and to present an appalling story.

Narrator for the program will be obert Martindale. Other individual parts include radical voice, onald Merson; conservative voice, Charlotte Lehon; totalitarian voice, Marjorie Austrian; woman, Sherry Ruib; man, Frank O'Brien; Voice of '63, Marlene Poindexter; and American voice, Diane Riskin.

Last year students in the oral interpretation department presented Stephen Vincent Benet's "Western Star." The choral programs are given in an effort to revive reading and poetry presentations, which were popular at Syracuse university a number of years ago.

Reading Tryouts Scheduled Today

Tryouts for group-reading in the Dylaan Thomas play, "Under the Milk Wood" will take place from 3 to 5 p.m., today.

Written to be performed as a group reading, the piece of literature was the last thing that Thomas wrote before his death last November.

The play, to be produced in the Boar's Head theater Sunday, May 16, will be directed by Prof. Ray Irwin of the School of Speech.

The sequel to last year's "White Bucks and Tales" is being presented by Boar's head and the senior class, and will star the cream of campus talent.

"UP IN LIGHTS" which opens Wednesday, May 5th will continue to run at the Astor theater until May 8th. Curtain time for all performances is 8:30 p.m. However, the performance on Saturday, May 7th will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets for the senior show, which are regularly priced at $2.50, 2.00 and 1.50, may be obtained on the Hill until April 14th.

Special rates will be given to students who order and pick up tickets before April 14th. A twenty-five cent reduction on each ticket will be given up until that date.

The $2.50 orchestra or loge seats will be $2.25, the $2 first balcony seats will sell for $1.75 and the second balcony $1.50 seats will cost $1.25. Students are urged to buy their tickets early to insure good seating arrangements and also take advantage of the special rates.

ACCORDING TO Gerald Leider, director of the show, these rates will only be effective until April 14, and the tickets must be picked up by that date or no reduction will be given.

Students who wish to attend the musical in a group will also be given special consideration. For aggregates consisting of 20 or more persons a 10 per cent discount will be given.

If these group seating arrangements are made and paid for before the 14th of April, the groups will receive 25 cents off on each ticket plus the 10 per cent discount for the group.

All reservations made after April 14th must be picked up by Tuesday, May 4, the day prior to the opening of the show. No reservations will be held after that date.

Tickets may be obtained from now until Easter vacation by calling the box office at the Drama building, 4-2776. After the 14th they will be available both there and at the Astor theater.

Dunsker, Miss Yaffee Win in JSF Elections

MED MEETING

The New York State Section of the merican Physical Society will hold a two-day conference April 9 and 10 at Syracuse university.

The conference will include a visit to Electronics park, an open house at the campus physics department, and a dinner at Drumlins.

Lloyd (Chet) Dunsker is the new president of Jewish Student fellowship. Other recently elected officers for the 1954-55 years are Avis Yaffee, first vice-president; Lenore Green, second vice-president; Ina Suade, secretary; and Florence Miller, treasurer.

Dunsker, a junior majoring in American Studies, is a member of Beta Sigma Rho fraternity. He served as representative to MSG assembly and the junior assembly as well as chairman of the UJA drive. He is a past vice-president of JSF.

MISS YAFFEE, former treasurer of JSF, was co-chairman of the Brotherhood service Colgate weekend. A junior, she was recently initiated into Pi Sigma, plant science honorary.

Lenore Green is a junior majoring in speech and hearing therapy. She was a Chapel rep and chairman of JSF public relations committee. She is now pledging Psi Chi, psychology honorary.

Ina Suade, a sophomore majoring in business administration, is the past co-chairman of JSF cultural committee. She is also a campus guide, chapel rep, representative to Quill and Keys and a member of the State Activities committee.

Miss Miller, a sophomore majoring in English education, is a member of Delta Phi Epsilon sorority. She is past co-chairman of the JSF cultural committee and a campus guide.

THE OFFICERS have announced that applications for positions on the new executive council may be submitted to Mrs. Rothman at the JSF desk in chapel through Friday of this week.

Among the openings are chairmanships of the Discussion, radio and TV, public relations, worship, choir, social, secretariat, Hebrew and Yiddish committees.

Students interested in working on one of these committees may also sign up in the Chapel. Interviews will be held in the near future.

Phone Co. Slates Coed Interviews

Mrs. Maybelle Zekas and Miss Mildred Bull, representatives of the New York American Telephone and Telegraph co., will be at Syracuse university Thursday, April 8 to interview senior women interested in management positions in the telephone company.

Coeds who wish to see Mr. Zekas or Miss Bull should make appointments as soon as possible with Miss Dorothy Osborn in Room 107. Women's building.

To be eligible for employment in these positions coeds need not be recipients of degrees in specific fields of study. Company representatives will consider women students for employment who have degrees in most major fields of liberal arts and from a number of other colleges of the University.

The Telephone co. hires a number of college graduates each year to enter a special training program for company representative positions. Employees are generally guaranteed steady and pleasant work at a good pay rate.

In addition to positions as representatives, the Telephone co. provides a variety of employment possibilities, including personnel work, business and administration and work on publications.

Cheer Tryouts To End Tomorrow

Finals in the cheerleading contest for varsity recognition will come to an end at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 7 in Gym B of the Women's building.

Competing in the finals will be four sophomores and four juniors. The sophomores are: Janice amb, Ellen Betz Schieler, Margerite (Mawny) White and Virginia Peck.

SAM Wins Chancellor's Cup Prize

Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity won the Chancellor Tolley cup Saturday night at the Interfraternity council ball. The cup was presented personally by Chancellor William P. Tolley.

The cup is awarded annually for all-around fraternity achievement.

VICE-CHANCELLOR FINLA G. Crawford, to whom the entire weekend was dedicated was presented with a sterling silver cigarette box. Dr. Crawford is celebrating his 35th year with the University. It had been the first time IFC weekend was dedicated to an individual.

Chancellor Tolley and Vice-president Frank P. Piskor paid tribute to Dr. Crawford, noting his modesty, his devotion to the ideals of education and the fact that he has never sought praise for himself.

University fraternity scholarship cup was awarded to Tau Delta Phi, and Psi Upsilon won the IFC sing award.

MUCH OF the formal ceremonies had also been presented before at the IFC banquet earlier Saturday evening, at which 28 invited couples were present.

A brief moment

It has been a fraction over three and a half centuries since modern man first put the stage to music. Opera is the ponderous grandfather of its playboy descendant, the operetta. And it in turn has begot the gay young wastrel, the musical comedy.

But our judgment, and history's, is not a harsh one for this tuneful expression of our life and times. The musical comedy has lifted every facet of our world in the most expressive of international languages, music.

But it all means the same thing. Opus is a Latin word meaning work. And opera means work. Whether it is grand opera or musical comedy . . . it is still work.

And "Up in Lights" is work.

We dropped into the first major rehearsal of the senior show at the Astor. The cast hadn't seen much of each other over the past three months of split practice. We slipped into a back row seat and watched.

They had just finished a recording. The director stood half way back in the theater and called "tableau." There was a moment of shuffle, a picture formed. There was no music but someone snapped their fingers in the rhythm of the theme song and, in the odd silence of feet dancing to a tune in memory, practice began.

We witnessed the entire opening in a pantomime. It is a sight that those on opening night will never see, perhaps well enough. But here was the birth of the cohesive force that will make its debut just one month from last night.

Today tickets become available for the first time. All of the work has not been for the money those tickets will bring in. The $15,000 bill will be footed by the folks on our side of the footlights.

So we all share in this opus of ours. The magic of theater, music and college life will melt, for one bright evening, into a world in which each and every name, for a brief moment, will be "up in lights."

No more alibies

There's no poli sci exam, no meeting more important than the one in 204 HL. The only possible reason for an absence could be campaigning and that, in our opinion, is not a valid excuse.

The meeting tonight will be the final one for the '53-'54 legislature. It has been a more active organization than its predecessor, a body which spent all its time in changing internal structure.

But there is still one important measure which must be approved before the assembly bows out. And that is the bill making the joint student court a permanent organization.

This bill was not conceived in haste. Justices and other government personnel have been concerned with its formulation since last semester. Finally the two page document was sent to the assembly and put into panel.

When the legislative body took its first look, it decided the measure was too vague or complicated in certain areas. Discussion was tabled.

At the next meeting, the chief justice of the court was on hand to explain the technical points. Only this time there was no quorum and the bill had to wait another week.

It's literally do-or-die tonight. The almost "lame duck" assemblymen can forget their responsibility to the people they represent and simply find other things more important to do. Or some members can go out campaigning for a new office in the very government they are forgetting.

They can do these things and put an indelible blot on the assembly record—or they can assemble for an hour tonight and add another page to the list of legislative accomplishments.

Musical 'UP IN LIGHTS' Demands An Army of Footlight Soldiers

WHEN "UP IN Lights" goes up in lights at the Astor theater on the evening of May 5, a first night audience will view the radiant product of three months of rehearsal and a half-year of planning all multiplied by the toil, sweat and tears of over 150 people.

For this will have been a team effort. The work of what "Up in Lights" director Jerry Leider likes to call his "army".

This is a stronge army, however. For one thing, it has two chiefs of staff, i.e. General Leider, who is directing the original revue and General John Beach, president of the senior class which is cooperating with the Boar's Head society to produce the show. Briefly, the division goes something like this: Boar's Head supplies the talent and theatrical know-how and the seniors give with the business and promotion staff and aid in the balance of nearly $15,000 the estimated cost of the production.

Although "Up in Lights" had been a gleam in Jerry Leider's eye ever since "White Bucks and Tales" Spun its way to success on the Astor stage in 1953, the show actually began to take form in November when the drama department ran a contest, offering a $100 prize for the best revue book. As it turned out, two students, Bill Levine and Bill Dixon, took first prize in the script contest and the idea for a new musical revue lept from a director's imagination to a neat, type-written packet of rag bond.

PRODUCTION STRATEGY began to whip into formation during the late days of the first semester and early in February, casting nearly complete, "Up in Lights" moved into Yates Castle for the prime attack on rehearsals. Although they had to maneuver in many directions for rehearsal space since that time, the group still manages to stick pretty faithfully to the production schedule.

The days of bivouac and temporary camping came to an end last Thursday when the show moved into the Astor for the final month of preparation. "Up in Lights" shifted into top gear today when tickets went on sale at the drama department.

And who are the colonels, majors, sergeants and even privates in this sprawling "Up in Lights" army whose talents will mesh for the eventual product?

Lanny O'Kun and Bill Angelos—these obys wrote the music: Lanny and the melody and Bill and the lyrics. Following ast season's acclaim for "White Bucks", this melodious militia is looking for smash number two in 1954. Although almost 20 new tunes have been written to date for "Up in Lights," Lanny and Bill are still working on special material including ballet music. In addition to this, as musical director, Lanny is top kick for all arrangements, orchestrations and choral direction and Bill plays an important part in the cast.

Bill Levine and Bill Dixon—the authors will turn actors in several of the revue's comic scenes and they're on constant call to the battlefield for script revisions and new material.

ANITA KHANZADIAN—a lead dancer in "White Bucks", Anita assumed the duties of choreographer when Chuck Irwin was forced to leave for personal reasons. It's Anita's assignment to stage the large dance numbers, perfrom herself and generally coordinate all the activities of over 20 pairs of convorting feet. As ballet mistress, she must conduct frequent dance classes to insure maintenance of march review perfection.

Gil Cates—"Up in Lights" field general and stage manager, Gil takes on the many-sided command of the production. It's his duty to see that everything runs smoothly on stage during rehearsals and later, when the show is actually playing. Gil works closely with the director's assistant, Sue Taylor, production directors, Marty Lassman and Al Gross and technical chief, Peter Forward. Properties, wardrobe, makeup, and "arrangements" fall under this regiment.

Business Staff—lead by the show's business manager, Cliff Way and class president Beach, this batalion governs the finances, promotions, ticket sales, programs and the unnumbered listing of small jobs which go toward putting this show up in lights.

THE STAFF works in close connection with the director in coordinating stage and business maneuvers. These are the foot soldiers who run stories to the downtown papers, thrown posters up on campus, arrange interviews and in general, accomplish one of the army's main goals, getting seats filled at the Astor, May 5, 6, 7 and 8.

Then, of course, there's the some 70 dancers, singers, and actors who will fill the stage quite handsomely each evening at 8:15.

The entire army is supervised by the commander-in-chief, Prof. Sawyer Falk, head of campus dramatic activities. Along with General Leider, this team keeps the "show on the road," so to speak.

There is the army and its final objective. Seven big production numbers, nine sketches, 20 new songs, dancing feet, dimming lights, aching heads, sore throats, ticket stubs, Max Factor, a basket of props, satisfied smiles, clapping hands, and all the popcorn you can eat . . . "Up in iLghts."

The shout of "Curtain Going Up," the luster of stain and the smell of Max Factor, a tinge of excitement out front and backstage . . . Sam Baskin is the gay spirit of musical comedy.

'You'll see a comic dancer'

from the theme melody "Show Business"

A first act stretch is practiced by the "Up in Lights" dance group. The giant "Hayride" number takes form.

'What an ace'

from the novelty "Stop, Look, Love Your Lady"

"Up in Lights" wants you for support.

'We'll be laughing, singing...'

from the theme melody "Show Business"

"We've got a big, fat mammy" comes from the chorus as music-makers Lanny and Bill provide open-mouthed direction.

'We'll do our bit'

from the theme melody "Show Business"

Man of Satin, Mario J. Forte

IN A FIELD which places large emphasis on eye appeal, costuming assumes a natural spot of importance. It is only natural, therefore ,that the "Up in Lights" costume designer, Mario Forte, has the ability to sprinkle a goodly amount of star dust on the new revue.

Due to the vastness of the costuming task, Mario's work will run right up untily the first curtain rises. At present, the fine arts instructor is laboring at the drawing board to dream up costumes for the show's big production numbers. He must decide upon a practical design and a practical fabric which will glow from the stage yet be convenient for whatever motion is required of the performer.

Mario was designer and coordinator for "White Bucks and Tales." In addition to the actual planning, the preparation of "outer space" wear for the pro-he adapts street clothing for the various scenes which do not demand specific dress.

Wigs, lights, 'make-up'

'Stop, Look and Love your lady; don't let another...'

from the novelty "Stop, Look, Love Your Lady"

To cut or not is discussed by director Jerry Leider and authors Bill Dixon and Bill Levine. Constant revision and deletion is one of the many things a director must consider.

Man of Paints, John J. Moore

IN THE basement of the campus drama building, where backdrops are born, John J. Moore, director of scenery and lighting for "Up in Lights", is currently working out the ponderous details which will go to brighten the Astor stage.

A veteran of many campus productions, and designer for "White Bucks and Tales," John is no yearling in the game. As technical director for the Boar's Head theater, he has designed all the productions in the past three years, including "Richard III", "Witches Sabbath," "The Tempest" and most recently "Lysistrata" and "Gigi."

According to early reports, a few treats are pending in the musical if John has anything to do with it. Included in production plans are the extensive use of "black lights," rear-screen projection, ultra violet light and some quite astounding spectacles such as a 30-foot space ship and an air-borne surprise in the "Hayride" number.

If "White Bucks" was any indication, John J. Moore's bag of tricks is far from diminished.

'Do more miracles'

See, here's how. . . John J. Moore, set designer, shows assistant Pete Forward some "Moore" miracles on the Astor theater.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Well, they finally got the Yankees in a hole. It took them five years but the sportswriters can finally start to tell the public that the World Champions are falling apart. With only one week before the major league baseball swings back in competition it looks like the five time pennant and world series winners are in poor shape. But, many ardent Bronxmen will contend, spring training means little.

It's true they don't put the wins and losses picked up in the spring in your league column but the all important are of getting into condition during that period may tell the difference in a close pennant race. That is the place where the New Yorkers may be in for trouble. If so, Casey Stengel is surely going to have his worries this reason.

On the other side of the ledger is the fact that every team has to have their spring practice lumps. And when a club with the caliber of New York begins to lose games the headline happy writers begin to come up with some paper reading news. That's the stuff that sells newspapers and the boys love to write about it.

That brings us down to the final pickings for the coming campaign. Last week we toured the National league with some remarks on the clubs and now it's time to look over the junior circuit before the final predictions are made.

Last week all the major league players voted the Yanks as the club to beat once more. It's true you can't pick against a club loaded with so much talent but the time has come. And in this corner the Yanks have been the special favorite for the past 15 years.

Pitching is the key to a pennant and the Yanks are going to have plenty of trouble getting it. Vic Raschi is gone, Allie Reynolds can't go on forever, Ed Lopat, even though he has an assortment which may let him pitch forever still can't be the bellweather of any team. The rest of the staff will consist of Ed Ford, Tom Morgan, Bob Kuzava, Jim MacDonald and John Sain. The old man, Mr. Sain, is the key man in this block of players. If his relief work is on the slightly excellent side it could make a great difference.

Ford and Morgan are the youngsters of the staff. The latter is returning from the service and his ability is questionable. Ford didn't look good at the end of last year.

Boston, Mass. is the place we think will be the site of the 1954 World Series from the American league standpoint. The Red Sox are on the move. Owner Tom Yawkey, once put millions into a great team and got one pennant out of it. Then he started to rebuild and this time his dream should come true a little earlier.

Lou Bodreau has a hustling young ballclub. He'll have the team's number one gun, Ted Williams back in May already to go. With the kid in there, hitting like he did the remainder of last season you just can't the Sox out. But, they have others who will make them a strong contender such as Bill Piersall and Bill Goodman.

The pitching will be strong enough to back up this powerful hitting club. That is where they lacked it before. Headed by Mel Parnell, the staff should produce just the right combination along with the good hitting to beat the Yanks.

But the Sox won't have to do it alone. All the clubs are out to beat the Yanks more than ever. Teams like the Indians and the White Sox will also be in there battling for a pennant. They should combine with the Red Sox to give the Bronx Bombers some of the stiffest competition they have had.

Well, that's just about it. First we ran down the senior league and now the junior circuit. Next fall when the final tallies are in we won't be around here, so don't go looking for our scalp. And say here's just a hint on the kind of predictions these are. For every foot of the forty that Paul Seymour's set beat the Lakers last Saturday this writer lost one buck. Now read on . . .

Penn State Garners Gym Championship In NCAA Event

Penn State captured team honors and Jean Cronstedt topped the individual performers in the NCAA gymnastics tournament staged over the past weekend at Champaign, Ill. Syracuse's spirited, but small, squad tied for eighth place in the two-day competition.

Originally, the Piety coach, Paul Romeo, had planned to enter three men in the NCAA championships, but was forced to cross off the name of Corky Sebbo, national tumbling champ of a year ago, when the top-flight tumbler suffered a severe ankle sprain in a workout Thursday night in the Illinois gym.

THE LOSS of Sebbo severely hurt the team chances of Syracuse. He had been counted upon to win several valuable ponits for the never-say-die Orangemen, but when the injury proved serious, Romeo decided to take no chance and eliminated him from the competition.

The two Saltine gymnasts who did enter the competition, were successful in earning Syracuse a tie with Temple for eighth place. Ferdie Fournies qualified in the side horse, rope climb, and flying rings, and finished sixth in both the rope climb and flying rings and ninth in the side horse. Altogether, Ferdie scored 12 points for his team.

Milan Trnka, the other Hill participant, placed ninth in the all-around and tied for sixth in the horizontal bar. He slipped in the first-day eliminations on the parallel bars, thus preventing him from entering the finals in that event.

Cronstedt, well-known in Eastern gymnastic circles, was almost a one-man show, as he swept first place honors in the all-around, free exercise, parallel bars, and horizontal bar. The Nittany ace, won every event that he had qualified in.

DON PERRY of UCLA set another record in the rope climb for the second year in succession. A year ago, Perry set the record in Archbold gym, as he recorded a fabulous time of 2.9 seconds.

Penn State scored an easy team victory as they rolled up a total of 137 points, 49 better than the closest rival, the University of Illinois. The Illini were tremendously weakened by an injury to their great all-around performer, Frank Bare. Bare was hurt in qualifying round of the horizontal bar, when he fell off the aparatus.

Florida State, came in third in team score with 65 points, followed by UCLA with 53½, Michigan State with 37, Iowa with 27, Southern California with 25, and Syracuse and Temple with 18½ points apiece.

Piety Nine Prospects High As Spring Practice Begins

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Although handicapped by the abesnce of almost all of last season's starting nine, bad weather and other difficulites, Coach Ted Kleinhans is expressing a surprisingly confident tone as the Orange baseballers go through practice sessions for the 1954 season.

Few names from last season's group, which compiled a 7-5 record, are among the athletes working out in the Collendale Barn with only the pitching staff stacked with veterans.

Twenty-eight potential diamondmen are working out now and Kleinhans expects to keep about 20 on the squad. Probably the top name among the list is veteran catcher Phil Young. The stocky junior has been the starting receiver for two years, batting just below the .300 mark last season.

Challenging Young for the job are sophomore Sam SantaAngela and Orzehowski. Both are big and hit long balls.

Darr and another footballer, senior Dino Hadjis are fighting for the opening call at first base. The left handed slugging Darr is one of the few southpaw swingers on the squad. Hadjis is being slowed down by a sore arm and the question is whether it will hinder him.

ED ALBRIGHT, the gird quarterback, is also switching to his heaves to the baseball diamond and is a strong candidate for the second base slot along with another sophomore, Frank Skvorak. Both are potentially heavy hitters and fancy fielders.

At shortstop, two returnees, Dick Neufang and John Hauch are battling along with newcomer Al Totaro. All three are short, fancy-fielders but not especially proficient at bat. Neufang and Hauch both compiled averages around the .250 mark last season.

All-American football center Ted Kukowski is also switching to baseball and may develop into one of the squad's most reliable performers. Ineligible last season, the right handed swinging senior is said to be a powerful slugger and a fancy fielder.

PAUL SLICK and Nivk Coyne are the leading candidates in the comparatively open race for the outfield slots. Coyne is another of the few lefthanded swingers on the team and both are said to be powerful hitters.

Further help may come if veteran Mickey Rich comes out for the squad. The former catcher was switched to the outer pastures last season and and compiled an above .300 average in limited action. Another addition to the outfielding staff may be present hurler Bill Cassidy, a heavy clouter who may double his positions.

Pitching looms as the strongest spot on the Piety nine and is the timism. Two righthanders, Mickey Kyff and Bill McGarney turned in some impressive and winning performances in 1953, while two junior southpaws, Gordon Smith and Bert Rich are full of potentential.

According to Kleinhans, "If the pitching comes through, we could have a pretty good team." The difference between a pretty good and a great team, according to the veteran mentor is the absence of Walt Craddock.

THE SOUTHPAW flinger had one year of eligibility remaining when he signed a professional contract with the Philadelphia Athletics. The presence of the fireballing artist would have been a big help to this year's Saltine nine.

Vanderveer Shines In Swim AAU's

Swimming coach Ted Webster termed Graham Vanderveer's performance in the National AAU's at Yale as "good" after the Syracuse freshman competed in three events this weekend.

Although Vanderveer failed to place, Webster felt he did well against some of the top competition in the United States. In the 1500-meter, the Orange frosh placed 12 out of 18.

The 400-yd. individual medley was done in 5:10.3 by Vanderveer. He finished eighth in a field of 24 after just barely being beaten out for second place in his heat.

Syracuse Sailors Defeated In Macmillan Cup Races

A combination of poor weather and misinterpreted rules deprived the Syracuse sailors of capturing the coveted McMillian Cup series at Annapolis on Sunday. The Orangemen had only to finish the final race to take the crown when the hard luck occurred.

The Piety Hill crew held a slim one and one-quarter point lead over the field going into Sunday's events. The last race started auspiciously with a fair breeze blowing. After the second marker was rounded, the wind gave out completely and the yawls drifted around for three hours without a breath of wind.

When the breeze finally picked up, darkness had already set in. With the breeze stiffening, complete darkness fallen, and no other boats in sight, the Orange crew voted to head back home.

Case of the dry "oil" well

Not at all unusual, you say? But this well was purposely drilled that way! In fact, precautions were taken to see that the well wouldn't contact oil-bearing sands. It was to be a vital part of an elaborate waste-disposal system built into one of Du Pont's new plants near Victoria, Texas. It is an example of the unusual engineering problems which Du Pont technical men encounter.

The "well" itself is almost a mile deep—4900 feet, to be exact. Waste fluids from the plant are forced down this well, to be absorbed by non-oil-bearing sands—far below the level of any surface water. Piping near ground level is in the form of concentric shells, and fresh water is delivered to the annular opening around the waste pipe. Furthermore, the water pressure is higher than that of the fluids in the waste section. In this way, any leakage in the pipe system causes fresh water to enter the surrounding sands (or the inside waste system) and prevents objectionable materials from reaching the sands at surface levels.

Other interesting procedures are used throughout Du Pont's many plants to guard against river pollution. For example, scientists were asked to make a complete marine-life census on one river before a plant was built nearby. The company wanted to be certain that no waste would be discharged which would challenge the natural pattern of marine life.

Throughout the Du Pont Company, wherever there is a need for the services of technical men, there are varied and interesting problems that present a challenge to engineering skill and imagination.

Birthday Bonus

"FOR HE'S a jolly good fellow" filled the halls of Machinery hall yesterday as the ROTC staff saluted Custodian BILL MATHEWS on his 68th birthday. The occasion was replete with birthday cake, which Bill cut, and exchange of gifts and greeting from Cols.

The most surprised man in Syracuse yesterday was Bill Mathews. Bill, born in "Haighteen haighty six" is chief custodian of Machinery hall. He is a philosopher, a friend to all his associates, and from his use of the English language, perhaps a poet too.

Bill was 68 years old yesterday and the staff of Air and Army ROTC feted him to a surprise party in one of the building's classrooms. As Bill stepped up to the sports shirts and the two bottles of imported wine and the birthday cake that had been bought for him, he smiled and in his English dialect told the assemblage that this birthday will always be his fondest one.

BILL WAS born in Potteries in the town of Staffordshire in England. He left for Canada on his birthday in 1914 and traveled over Canada and the United States. Working on his cousin's farm in Jamestown and then working in Chicago, he joined the U.S. army in 1917. After serving two years he worked in Chicago and then came to Syracuse.

A skilled pottery maker, he worked in Onondaga Pottery co. and then in 1926 the "wanderlust" led him to California. He returned here in 1929. He worked in Maxwell and HL for the past nine years has been in Machinery hall.

has been in Machinery hall.

Bill likes the cadets and the drama students. They're all very gentlemanly. The University as an employer, he says, offers freedom of action, which Bill treasures. He has no thought of retirement: "You work until you get to the point where you can't work anymore. It's better than sitting thinking about things you shouldn't think about."

Although he gave up smoking, he still carries a lighter around for the convenience of other persons. And he refuses to preach on any evils of smoking.

As we wrote the story we couldn't help thinking: The Daily Orange has Frank Locke—its dean. Obviously, Machinery hall too has a dean: Bill Mathews.

Communists as we do when we vote Republican. Many want a change, and feel that nothing could be worse than what they have now. They particularly have a hunger for peace, which is what the Communists promise.

"Communists in France and Italy are not despised by their fellow citizens as they are here," said the speaker. Their countrymen remember that the communists, for whatever motives, were among the bravest and ablest leaders in the resistance movement during the German occupation.

"In the long run," Dr. Brown concluded, "most of these people can be counted on to choose democracy. It is our job to see that they know where to find it."

Showing extraordinary skill at the game, Miss Berman reduced Lee Kiklier, junior editor, to second money; and Arthur Siegel, managing editor, to place position.

IT'S ALL A MATTER OF TASTE

Late for your date? She hates to wait? Need something nice to soothe her? Give her a round, firm Lucky Strike—They're cleaner, fresher, smoother!
W. T. Donoghue, University of Virginia

When you come right down to it, you smoke for one simple reason . . . enjoyment. And smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste. Yes, taste is what counts in a cigarette. And Luckies taste better.

Two facts explain why Luckies taste better. First, L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco . . . light, mild, good-tasting tobacco. Second, Luckies are actually made better to taste better . . . always round, firm, fully packed to draw freely and smoke evenly.

So, for the enjoyment you get from better taste, and only from better taste, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Get a pack or a carton of better-tasting Luckies today.

My roommate was a grouchy soul—No person could be meaner; But Luckies made him change his tune—They're smoother, fresher, cleaner!

Twelve Accepted By Pershing Rifles

Wohl, Smith Get Awards At Drumlins Banquet

Twelve new members were initiated into Company F-8 of Pershing Rifles at the recent annual initiation banquet at Drumlins. Awards were also given to Ronald Wohl, who was promoted to warrant officer, and Ronald Smith, who was promoted to sergeant.

The new initiates are: John Carlson, David Dickes, James Edgelel, Bruce Fritz, Richard Goodfellow, Richard L'Hommedieu, Robert Macfadden, Thomas Nelipowitz, Anthony Pombo, Richard Ralph, and Ronald Yaffee. Air force advisor Master Sgt. Marvin Chilton was made an honorary brother.

Charles P. Morse, class of 1905, was guest speaker at the banquet. Morse is a past commander of American Legion in Syracuse and past commander of the Sons of the Civil War. He spoke on the necessity of being prepared, reminisced about world war I and General John J. Pershing, the founder of the National Society of Pershing Rifles.

Irwin, Miss Savey To Lead Cheering

Finals in the contest for varsity recognition will be held at 8:30 p.m. today in Women's gym B.

Competing in the finals are Janice Amb, Ellen Betz Schieler, Margaret White, Virginia Peck, Patricia Burkland, Ann Larson, Ann McKaig and Marjorie Jones.

Finalists for the men's cheering squad were to be chosen last night.

Seven Posts Open On LA Council

Applications for membership on the Liberal Arts Advisory council are due by 4 p.m., Tuesday, April 13, in the Liberal Arts office.

Forms for applying should be picked up in the LA office in HL during the remainder of this week.

Positions are open on the council for three sophomores, one junior, and three seniors. Persons who will have achieved these academic ranks by the fall semester may apply.

The council serves to promote better relationships between the students and faculty of the college. Problems worked on this year include revising the advisory system and the gifted student.

Internships Offered To J-School Juniors

Summer Jobs Open On Papers, in Radio

Establishment of an internship program for juniors in the School of Journalism was recently announced by James H. Ottaway, president of Ottaway Newspaper-Radio Inc. The program will train students in newspaper and radio operation.

"I have long felt," Ottaway said, "that the business sides of newspaper and radio need to devote greater emphasis to recruiting young men."

HE CONTINUED that there seems to be a tendency for many young men to overlook the rewards in the business fields of newspapers and radio.

The program is being conducted with the cooeration of Wesley C. Clark, dean of the school, who calls the internship program a forward step.

Those selected for the program will work from June 14, to Sept. 10 for Ottaway newspapers and radio stations. A minimum of three students will be selected. Two will work on newspapers and one on radio.

The program is under the direction of Lyndon R. Boyd, assistant to Ottaway. For those students who are successful there is a strong possibility of permanent employment after graduation.

SELECTION WILL be made by Dean Clark and Philip Burton, chairman of the advertising department. Application blanks are available in the Dean's office.

The Ottaway newspapers are the Press-Republican, in Plattsburgh, the Star, in Oneonta, the Bulletin, in Endicott, and the Record, in Stroudsburg, Pa.

The Ottaway radio stations are WENE, Endicott, WDOS, Oneonta and WVPO in Stroudsburg, Pa.

SKI CLUB

Final meeting for those skiers going on the Tuckerman Ravine ski trip will be held at 7:30 p.m. today at the Ski lodge. Election of officers will be held and the trophy for the outstanding contribution to skiing will also be awarded.

Student Court Bill Approved by MSG

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The joint student court bill finally received legislative approval as the 1953-54 men's student government assembly met for the last time last night.

The group also cleared out several pieces of legislation before concluding its current session. Action included:

1. ESTABLISHMENT OF a permanent committee to work with women's student government in further investigation of National Student association.

2.Acceptance of three recommendations on University living and eating requirements.

3. Passage of an amendment to the anti-noise act.

4. Established a joint student assemblies steering committee.

VOTED TO send a letter introducing MSG to incoming freshmen.

The joint court act, which still must be approved by WSG before it can go into effect, was passed by the men after being considered in the assembly for three weeks.

A proposed amendment pointed at student assembly approval of a code of procedure and judicial code was defeated.

IN PRESENTING a report on investigation of new University policies concerning living and eating requirements, especially in the case of sophomores, Assemblyman Alvin Applegate said that students who attend Syracuse university must accept the University's regulations.

Four Houses Win First Quarter Finals Of Step Sing Contest

In the first night of the step singing contest quarter-finals four houses were selected to continue. They are Phillips and Butler cottages, Sigma Kappa and Delta Zeta.

Phillips cottage, conducted by Harriet Krevlin, sang "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor" defeating Mace cottage, conducted by Margaret Wheeler, singing "People Will Say We're in Love." Butler cottage sang "When Day is Done," conducted by Nancy Nichols, to win over Parker cottage, conducted by Judy Granite, with the song "Let Us Break Bread Together."

IN THE FIRST flight of the large houses Sigma Kappa conducted by Jean Mosley sang "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings" from the 84th psalm to win over Haven hall singing "Suabian Folk Tune" conducted by Barbara Caramella and Phi Mu singing "God Speaks to Me" conducted by Mary Harper.

Delta Zeta conducted by Nancy Knapp won in the second flight of the large houses singing "Cherubin Number Seven." They defeated Delta Gamma singing "Our God to Whom We Turn" conducted by Delite Fox.

Judges for the contest were Miss Margaret Parker, dean of women's office, Mrs. Richard Downing, Sigma Alpha Iota alumna, and Kirk Ridge, school of music faculty.

Houses scheduled for tonight's contest are Sperry and Winchell Waitresses in the small house division and in the large house division are: Alpha Omicrom Pi, Delta Delta Delta, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Chi Omega and Chi Omega.

Tonight's contest will conclude the quarter finals. Winning houses are allowed nine hours of practice before the semi-finals to be held April 27 in Hendricks chapel. Finals will be held on the library steps May 7, the Friday night of Spring weekend.

Klemens to Discuss Publicity Activities

Ted Klemens, representative of Campus Merchandising bureau, Inc., will be on campus today to discuss promotional activity with the campus Chesterfield representatives.

Klemens said that the campus representatives will also be representing L & M filter cigarettes. He said the new Ligget & Myers product, recently reduced in price, will be made known to college campuses throughout the nation.

Alternates of the campus representatives will also be at the meetings, to acquaint them with the positions that begin for them when the present reps graduate.

Final Payments Due for 1954 ON

Final payments are now due on the 1954 Onondagan. Both the second and final payments may be made at this time, at the ON office in building 7.

The office hours for this week are today through Friday, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The office will not be open the two days before vacation.

Making the payments now will avoid delay and confusion at the time the books are distributed next month, ON editors said. The 1954 book will be mailed to seniors who graduated in February.

Speech School Slates Advisory Committee

Eric H. Faigle, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and School of Speech, has set up a student advisory committee in the speech school patterned after the successfully operating student council of the liberal arts college.

James Flynn, a senior in the speech department, was elected chairman of the student advisory committee. Harriet Kushner, a radio-television departmental major, was elected secretary. The council members, chosen by departmental faculty on the basis of merit from each of the speech school departments include: Gilbert Katz, Suzanne Taylor, drama; Elizabeth Batrlett, Harriet Kushner, Jane Fellows, radio.

WINONA YOUNG, radio and oral interpretation; Loretta Farley, public address graduates; James Flynn, Marilyn Mawson, speech education; Cynthia Faigle, Jane Blanchard, speech therapy.

This council will act as a liason between the faculty, students and the administration. The council is designed to work out valid problems of curriculum, student-faculty relationships, advisory and orientation problems among the departments within the School of Speech.

The council, which meets every Thursday in the Hall of Languages, has on its agenda for the spring term the setting up of the council framework with provisions for its self-perpetuating membership, and a spring project such as an advisory panel for freshman and all other students who wish enlightenment on the work of any of the School of Speech departmental areas.

Near-record Vote Seen for Election

A quiet campaign comes to an end today as nearly 4,500 students go to the polls to cast their ballots in annual Spring elections.

Student government elections officials see a near-record turnout of about 60 per cent of the eligible voters providing weather is clear.

EIGHT BOOTHS will be open for balloting, John DePalma and and Elaine Greenberg, election commissioners, have announced. Locations are as follows:

LIBRARY (Outside) 9 a. m.-1:15 p.m.
HALL OF LANGUAGES (Outside) 9 a.m.-1:15 p.m.
MAXWELL (Outside) 9 a.m.-1:15 p.m.
MAIN QUAD 9 a.m.-1:15 p.m.
SLOCUM BASEMENT 10 a.m.-2 p.m.
SIMS DINING HALL 11 a.m.-1 p.m., 5-7 p.m.
SHAW DORMITORY (Comstock end) 11 a.m.-1 p.m., 5-7 p.m.
WASHINGTON ARMS DORMITORY 11 a.m.-1 p.m., 5-7 p.m.

In the event of rain, the library, Maxwell and HL booths will move inside the buildings.

All students must present identification cards in order to vote. Elections officials will punch no. 33 on each ID card when the ballot is cast. Voters also must sign a registration sheet.

EACH MALE student will vote for officers of his class, men's student government president and nine MSG assemblymen. Members of the class of 1954 may cast ballots for MSG president.

A woman may vote for all women's student government candidates and officers of her class. Present senior women will be able to ballot for all WSG officers and the Eta Pi Upsilon Spring weekend queen. Voting for campus guides will be at the quad booth.

Women will choose the president of WSG, chief of civil service, executive secretary-treasurer, six junior officers, assembly speaker, campus, city and foreign guide chairmen, and secretaries and Women's athletic association president.

Second semester students will vote with the class that entered the previous September.

Piety Hill Alliance and United Students parties are running candidates for MSG president and all class officers. Four students are competing for sophomore class offices under the Independence banner.

CLASS OF '54 MAY VOTE IN SOME RACES

Members of the present senior class—class of 1954—will be able to cast ballots for certain student government offices, elections officials have announced.

Male seniors may vote for the president of men's student government. Women may ballot for all women's student government offices, including the six junior officers.

In addition, only senior women will choose the Eta Pi Upsilon weekend queen from among five contestants.

Reception Slated For Miss Deulker

Omicron Nu Will Honor Home Ec Scholar

Miss Durga Deulker, holder of a scholarship from the National Home Economics association, will be honored at a reception by Omicron Nu, home ec honorary, at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the alumni lounge of the Women's building.

Miss Deulker is from New Delhi, India, and also holds the Helen W. Atwater scholarship. She will speak on "Indian Fashions," which will be illustrated by home ec students who will model the clothes.

She is on the staff of Lady Irwin college, New Delhi, where she teaches home economics, and is secretary of the New Delhi branch of the All-Indian Women's conference, which founded the college.

Over-all chairman for the reception is Ann McKenzie, who announced that the reception is open to the public. Ellen Williams, Harriett Donaldson, Cynthia Overton, Elizabeth Curtin, Rosemary Graham, and Nancy Bauer are assistants to Miss McKenzie.

Indian Will Cook At Home Ec Club

Miss Durga Deulkar of India will present a demonstration of an Indian dinner at the Home Economics club meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in 306 Slocum.

Members of the club will prepare dinner during the meeting and serve it following the session. All interested persons are invited to attend.

RHO DELTA PHI

Applications are now being accepted for Rho Delta Phi, English honorary. Blanks may be picked up in the English office in the basement of the Hall of Languages.

Students Survey Housing Problem

Part I of the city-wide survey of housing conditions undertaken by various groups is almost completed, Morton Archer, senior statistition of the state division of housing told The Daily Orange yesterday.

More than 600 student surveyors have visited sample homes throughout the city, and the results are being collected and will be tabulated shortly. All that remains of this part of the survey is revisiting of those who were not at home.

AS OF yesterday, part II, a complete account of the 15th ward "problem" regions began. Archer said that any interested students are welcome to participate and should contact Dr. Alfred Copelo or Phillip Bradley in Maxwell.

Briefing sessions will be held at 1:15 p.m. every day this week in Maxwell auditorium. Those who have already been briefed and want to pick up their assignments can do so any day at 2 p.m., also in the auditorium.

Results of the survey will probably be ready by June 1, and will be turned over to the mayor's redevelopment committee, which will do the actual planning work.

The University is not committed to any particular solution of the problem, Archer said. Students are participating as a public service, and because of the experience to be gained in survey techniques. It is also hoped that the door-to-door talling will provide some insight into sociological conditions in the city.

MEN'S HOUSING

Seniors may apply today for rooms in Grover Cleveland. The following space is open: 47 places in Grover Cleveland; 84 in Marion, and 48 in Washington Arms.

'Gigi' Performances Mark Second Week

The two-act comedy is being presented in the Coronet theater of the Drama building, which utilizes the stage alongside the one on which "Lysistrata" was presented earlier this semester.

DIRECTED By PROF. Sawyer Falk, head of the drama department, the play was adopted for the stage by Anita Loos and was based on a novel by Colette.

Playing the lead of "Gigi" this week is Betty Schwartz, a freshman in drama. Shirley Ann Fenner, a familiar figure in Hill productions opened the show last week in this same role.

Others in the cast are: Gerald Reidenbaugh, an instructor in the drama deartment; Nancy Edwards, who was active in the Astor theater downtown; Francesca Trantum, Kenneth Bowles, Marlene Muller and Millicent McIntyre.

Tickets for the performance tonight and on April 22, 23, 24, 26, 27 and 28 are still available at the box office of the Drama building.

Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. for all performances. Tickets are priced at $1.20 per person.

Unfilled posts

The call went out last week to the male population informing interested persons that applications to the men's student government court were being accepted.

It now seems that not too many people were interested. This is unfortunate.

The court is one body which should not have to plead for members. As the only student judicial body, it is responsible for administrating penalties for infractions of University or student government regulations.

It was not too many years ago when a student court was non-existant. The Administration then decided to delegate some of its authority in these disciplinary matters and soon a student court was formed "in full faith that a responsible student conception of justice is possible and beneficial to the campus."

Yet, the Administration can hardly be expected to remain enthusiastic about a body which has a difficult time in replacing its membership.

Another important area in which the justices have jurisdiction is in cases brought before the joint student court when both male and female students are involved. The chief justice post is also one of the highest in government. Perhaps the list of applicants will increase by Friday. We certainly hope that the students eligible to serve the student body and the University in this manner will not let the posts go begging.

Editor-in-chief

Maestro bows out

Conducting an orchestra is labor; it's brooding; it's control; it's ebullience.

It is the maestro's task to convey to an audience, seen or unseen, the thought of whatever music he is interpreting.

It is his job to get tough with the violinists; to become temperamental when the tempo drags; to feel personally defeated when the second celloist hits a "clinker."

He is in his ivory tower, a world of his own—responsible to the rest of the world for only one thing: music. And, if he knows his music, he does not have to think about the rest of the world.

Sunday, the maestro, the central figure in contemporary music, left the podium of the NBC symphony for the last time. The 87-year-old conductor left behind him a 68-year career—a career that ran the span of the average man's entire life.

His last concert was a fiery all-Wagner performance, played in the changing metre, the excited highs, and the beauty that made him the maestro to music lovers.

Befitting his profession, his intenseness ended when the last bar had been played, and in the shyness of someone who far away from the rest of us, quietly scorned the publicity, ignored the pleas of critics yesterday, and quietly stepped down.

We hold no hope that Toscanini will return for a regular series again, but hope to see him in guest performances. He is an old man, who retired while he was still able to conduct a performance that would earn the respect of the young and the old alike.

What is Toscanini's mark in music? He is to this generation of music what Paganini was in his generation, what Beethoven was in his generation, what Cantelli and Bernstein will be in theirs.

And this perhaps is his biggest mark: that when a novice begins a basic classical library, he knows he cannot go wrong when he sees the cover that bears the picture of a gray intense man, and the big words in capital letters, "Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony orchestra.

A CASE OF ego and naivete was apparent in the "answer" given by McCarthy to Murrow on television last night.

The junior senator's 25 minute attack in reply was recorded on film. It was presented without comment by the host of "See It Now." The audience was left, for the moment, to draw its own conclusions.

The jack of all tirades asked this question: "What do the communists think of me . . . and what do they think of Murrow?" From this he gave quotes from various front publications that quite roundly condemned the senator and praised Murrow.

We ask this vital question? Just what is the communist tactic against an enemy? Is it to attack him to drive him out of existence? We say no. It is proven that anyone the communists praise is immediately placed under suspicion by Americans.

And as for those they attack . . . the communists know that they elevate these people in the eyes of the nation.

Therefore, if the communists really dislike McCarthy so much, why do they raise his national prestige by condemning him? Why do the communists work so hard to keep the dairyland delegate in a position of power?

The answer seems obvious.

Truly, the senator, in his feeling of importance, has no real grasp of the kind of enemy he is fighting. And such naivete in this age of power politics is a menace to the very people to whom he carries his "messages."

PASSOVER and Easter coincide this year, with the first night of the Jewish holiday starting at sundown Holy Saturday, and continuing for eight days.

The close proximity of the two holidays this year reminds us of the relationship of the first Easter to Pesach, as it is called. The Last Supper, commemorated by Christians throughout the world on Holy Thursday, was a Sedar, or ritual supper which is observed on the first night of Jewish Passover.

The above facts should be reason enough for tolerance among religions, if any reasons are really needed.

THERE is a jungle, there is a jungle, there is a vast, vivid wild, marvelous, marvelous, marvelous jungle, open to the public during business hours. A jungle not far from Laundro-Mat, between a market, and a dry cleaner.

There, there where you eat tuna fish on rye, ham on white, a chocolate-covered doughnut, a coffee on the street of Marshall in the haven there. Rows and rows, of chewing students, sillions and sillions of gulping students and waitresses who move steadily along on ball bearing feet.

While lines and lines of linemen, doctors, professors, gas workers, box salesman, kids, pupils and students filled with jungle hunger and jungle rage and jungle love stalk their food to the sound of jukeboxes plugged by a thousand nickles hidden there.

There where you need a reservation for a booth at noontime, where tempers flare and fingers point.

There in the only jungle in the whole, wide world where students are waiting for students and the hungry can be psychoanalyzed while they smoke and wait for booths.

KEEPING IN mind the singular advantages to be derived from conservation and contour plowing and crop rotation, we noted the muddy, muddy plots of land on our campus yesterday.

We lingered long upon the thick, rich, fertile earth which stretched for yards and yards across the quadrangle. It seemed a simple waste that this land could not be put to better use than grass which is very decorative but not highly productive. Only kangaroos and horses and sacred cows eat grass.

We're sure such fertile fields are just the thing for crops like celery and rice. It is therefore suggested that the University embark upon a full-scale planting scheme to raise produce which could go directly to the campus dinner table and thereby save the food service hundreds of dollars in celery- and rice bills each year.

When such fruitful gain is to be had from our muddy flats, it seems a shame to blunder the soil on a trivial like grass.

We agree it's about time that the mailman were recognized.

AN EVENING IN

'High Tribute to Radio'

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

About a month ago, I offered a minority report concerning the new WAER series, "Anthology" which debuted over campus radio at that time. It seemed that several noted broadcast authorities did not share the enthusiasm of this department in calling the premier "an excellent performance."

With this in mind, the second of the "Anthology" programs was heard last Thursday evening. If anything, the hour-long show was better than the first and certainly a high tribute to the abilities of the radio shack people.

"Anthology" number two concerned itself with a transportation theme and more particularly, sinking of the "Titanic." The first 30-minute segment dealt with transportation in general featuring an interview with Prof. Virgil Cover of the business administration staff. This portion was highly informative but a bit drawn. A story on General David Sarnoff, who received radio messages during the "Titanic" incident, was also included.

Musical interludes were provided by the "Anthology" studio orchestra led by Emmett Orlando of the school of music.

The orchestra's presentation of melodies of the "Titanic" period were less inspired than the original material on the first show and somewhat dull in spots.

"Anthology's" main glory came in the second period with an original drama, "The Story of the Titanic", written by the show's host and co-producer, Dick Ballentine. Utilizing a poetic theme by Edwin John Pratt and a poet as narrator, the drama took us into the life of the "Titanic" designer and buildship's fatal maiden voyage.

There were random comment following this production that the "Titanic" drama was indeed one of the best such things accomplished at WAER in recent years. It can only be added that the segment was certainly a fine one, well written, sharply performed with excellent usage of effects and musical background (from Richard Rodger's "Victory at Sea"). It was a bristling and convincing job.

WSYR's Carl Zimmerman acted as the poet-narrator and the cast included Ron Merson, Stu Leslie, Willard Lape, Jr., Matthew Seidman, George Wilson, Bill Levine, Robert Elwood and Elaine Quirt. They helped us experience the thorny confidence of the "Titanic" voyage and the tinge of tragedy and the lapping sea as it foiled over the corpse of the ill-fated ship.

Thursday's "Anthology" will be presented at the Alpha Epsilon Rho convention in Columbus this week as a prime example of WAER's best programming. It should speak well for Syracuse university radio and perhaps make for a few embarrassed smiles among the giants of commercial broadcasting.

"Anthology" is co-produced by Ed Rasch with Jaynee Werner as assistant. Ransom Place is announcer and technical director by Elliot Spiro and George Hamilton.

Does Voting Mean Anything In the End?

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Page Writer

Topics for today: love, the vote and the hydrogen bomb.

This is the time of the year for spring and love. Either or both will, no doubt, if they haven't already, hit Syracuse before July. The blue sky, a new season of spring fever, and a glorious life to lead, provided there's nothing to do.

And then along comes the insignificant irrevelant, immaterial sordid side of life. Some of the campus wheels are holding elections. (Divvy up the old prestige posts for next year.) Twelve class officers, couple of government officers, assemblymen.

"Hell," our hero, who is nearly anyone, figures "why waste my time? Doesn't mean anything anyway.

We'll mutter back that perhaps it could. Maybe some of the inefficiency in government round here could be swept to the winds with a little constituent responsibility. Get on the ball and vote for someone competent. And maybe follow it up—go see the guy if he isn't doing anything and give him a few ideas.

All this stems from a hunch we've got: that ID cards or no, rain snow or hurricane, there won't be many people voting today. Maybe it's dangerous to vote, although we haven't yet seen the latest mortality rates among voters.

There's choice: spend the day over a cup of coffee or take out a few minutes to show interest in a good government on campus. Later there'll be a similar opportunity for good government in city, state, nation and world, perhaps.

Remember the choice in a world with newer and bigger hydrogen bombs. And upcoming are cobalt or oxygen bombs.

And follow that with the reflection that it is better to have had a hydrogen bomb and exploded it than never to have had a hydrogen bomb at all.

An Eye on Cheaters

A professor at the University of Indiana has solved the cheating problem—at least temporarily.

He placed classroom desks in a horseshoe arrangement around the room about three feet apart. Then he left, telling the students they were on their honor.

But if anyone tried to look on another person's paper, everyone else would see him.

Overloading Causes Beef on 'Buggers'

By MILT SHEFTER

There are some new words floating around Slocum basement these days—"cheater-eaters" and "buggers." These are not new additions to the menu, but rather the current jargon describing those "hurry up and wait" people who won't wait.

Several recent letters to The Daily Orange have focused attention on the increasing number of people cheating in the meal lines at Slocum.

This problem, once thought to be too trivial to worry about, has now snowballed into a situation which finds many people moving backward instead of forward in line.

The Daily Orange investigated these complaints and found such a situation does exist. The lines were observed and clocked at various times and under different conditions. Conclusions show that the lines at times stretch up the steps and almost out the door.

Students were timed and found to be in line 20-25 minutes before reaching the counter. At lunch periods, it takes 15 minutes or more, the worst time being immediately after classes are dismissed (i.e. 11:50 a.m. and 12:50 p.m.).

Students who were questioned said the only way to avoid the situation was to arrive more than 20 minutes early to be among the first in line, or to come at least a half hour after the line opens so the wait is shorter. Obviously, neither of these alternatives can always satisfy the students' schedule.

And so, rather than wait and be late or be bored by waiting, people resort to their own means. Hence the "buggers." The methods of bugging are simple, yet variable. A single person will try to appear inconspicuous by just wandering over to talk to someone in the line. Within a few moments, he is in the line.

Others merely step in ahead of a friend, and if anyone complains, he can always say that he was in the washroom and the place in line was saved. However, there are very few complaints for the simple reason that almost everyone has "bugged" at one time or another. Those few that haven't, are caught on the short end of what appears to be a battle of survival for the fittest.

Among those cited as the boldest of the buggers are the athletes. These are easily recognized by face, symbol on their jacket, or by the mere observation that these are one of the most closely knitted groups. Despite popular opinion, these athletes aren't the only offenders, nor do they exceed others by any great number. True, the athletes, because they are a close group, have an easier time bugging in line, but many girls' cottages, also traveling in groups, pull the same thing.

One outstanding reason for the overcrowding, hence the bugging, is the addition of 73 extra people to the Slocum lines. These figures, released by Food Service, are explained as special arrangements for a few with diet deficiencies to eat in Slocum where a choice of food is offered.

This idea attracted many who enjoy a choice of food, and as a result, an overload of people have presented doctors' notes which allow them to eat in Slocum. Add these to those eating on meal tickets, the athletes, and the transients and the overcrowding results.

So the problem exists, and all concerned have good reasons for their actions-except the buggers. No problem can be effectively solved when people jump to their own methods without consideration for others.

SCANNING CAMPUSES:

Envisioning A Trend in Discrimination

By POLLY REED
Editorial Page Writer

At Dartmouth college the students passed some foresighted and far reaching legislation recently.

In a campus wide voting, the students ousted all discriminatory clauses in all fraternities.

If, by 1960, there are still clauses in a fraternity's charter banning or limiting membership because of "race, religion, or national origin," the fraternity will be banned from campus.

Could be a trend envisioned here. Many college are becoming more and more outspoken on this problem. They don't want organizations on campus which do not live up to the spirit of democracy which they are supposed to foster.

On a larger level, New York is doing the same thing with Greek groups connected with the State University of New York.

The trend of the times is becoming too obvious to ignore. Let a word to the wise be sufficient.

A few weeks ago we reported in this space the story of a Negro, Robert Wesley Wells, who was sentenced to die in California for throwing a spitoon at a penetentiary guard.

At the time it was Brotherhood Week and we commented on how brotherhood works in some parts of our country. If this was an example of how brotherhood and justice works, the prospects for the future looked rather dim.

Today there is a heartening touch to add to this picture. The governor of California was swamped with thousands of letters from citizens all over the country who had never seen nor heard of Wells before. They all protested this miscarriage of justice, and asked the governor to review his previous decision not to pardon Wells.

Last week Governor Goodwin Knight communted the death sentence to life imprisonment.

He managed always to be true to this statement, in the sence that he was never adverse to changing his mind, doing and saying things in different ways.

He was, in other words, consistent with his statement. But—how could he afford to be consistent to a statement belittling consistence? Was Ralph Waldo Emerson a hypocrite?

Perhaps if he had been inconsistent with his advice, it would have been more appropriate. But then he would have had to practice consistency—just what he was fighting against.

It seems a hopeless situation, but perhaps with a little more thought it will resolve itself. Emerson was consistent with his statement, apparently a hypocritical action. To be true to his own beliefs, you say, he would have to be inconsistent in everything. But to be inconsistent in everything, he would by definition have to be constantly and consistently inconsistent.

But that would make matters worse. To be consistently inconsistent would constitute inconsistency to his statement attacking consistency. His only recourse was to be inconsistently inconsistent, which we have proven he was.

We like Emerson.

LETTERARY COMMENT

COMPLAINT ON THE LINE CRASHERS

To the editors of The Daily Orange:

A rather surprising thing happened to me while waiting in line to eat the Commons tonight. When I got in line there were nine people ahead of me. I lowered my eyes to gaze at a newspaper, and when I raised them there were 20 ahead of me.

Now, if one were to assume that this appens all the way along the line, think of the poor fellow standing near the end. Before long he would find himself progressing up the stairs and eventually would find himself waiting out in the cold and the storm. Fortunately, this does not happen, because it is only the front part of the line which the line crashers are interested in. However, when one can stand in line and count folks crashing the line ahead faster than one per minute, it moves from the petty situation to the downright disturbing one.

There is a variety of individuals involved in this sort of highschoolish conduct. One wonders just how they justify their precedence over those who come earlier. It is not little distracting to see a group of lovely coeds come in the door, survey the line, and then sidle down towards the front and crowd in with friends. It is no less disgustgusting to see the boys (for they do not deserve the title "men") doing this.

It is evident that a majority of those crashing the line are of a sort of athletic "fraternity," that is, well-known and not so well-known Syracuse university athletes who know a lot of people and are apparently not ashamed of such unsportsmanlike conduct. Since many of these openly identify themselves by their Syracuse jackets with the bright orange names, we can assume that they don't mind having their public deportment called to the attention of the rest of the S.U. students.

Next spring I shall return to my home on the Pacific Coast and will take with me numerous impressions of Syracuse and Syracuse university. Fortunately, I shall be able to give an excellent account for most things. However, when the student body is typified by their representatives, the athletes, is mentioned, I shall not be able to honestly give a good report. I sincerely hope that the individuals involved will realize that this sort of petty behavior does no more than get them through the Commons line faster.

I would be interesting to see an explanation in this newspaper on the justification for their behavior. However, I seriously doubt that one will be forthcoming from any of the individuals or groups concerned. This assumes, of course, that these athletes realize that honors due them must be given by the students and the University and not grabbed of themselves.

Perhaps the editors of this journal can offer an answer, or better yet a solution. Maybe it lies in giving more training in civic responsibilities, or the relationship of the individual to society. Perhaps a quick introduction to some of the works of Emily Post would be appropriate. Whatever the answer, I know that I speak for many besides myself when I hopee that this situation comes to an abrupt halt.

Sincerely,
J. M. Trappe

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Roy Simmons is busier these days than a Casanova on New Year's Eve. This week, the Orange football-lacrosse-boxing coach is like a juggler trying to keep two sports going at the same time.

Yesterday was typical as Simmie commuted between his boxers who are finishing a season and the lacrosse squad who is starting one. He leaves this morning with Vin Rigolosi, Frank Guelli, Jerry Jaffe and John Granger for the Nationals and then return to round his lacrossers into shape before their Spring-vacation jaunt.

Boxing's Big Four finished their Syracuse workouts in grand style yesterday as Jaffe and Granger battled a fast three rounds and Rigger fought former Orange champ Tim Curley for a furious six minutes.

Curley, who graduated from here in 1951 and was a two-time Eastern titlist, gave Vince a taste of some of the top leather men he is apt to meet starting tomorrow night.

None of the Orangemen know much about their respective opponent. Syracuse happened to pick four starting foes who were not met in regular season competition or at the Eastern tournament.

Granger, for instance, knows nothing about Vic Harris from San Jose State, "I saw Al White fight from there last year," says John, "and he was really good. If this boy beat him out for the 139-pound weight this year I can expect trouble."

Simmie's battling sophomore, Jerry Jaffe, has drawn the toughest assignment. He will be forced to fight twice tomorrow, once in the morning and once in the afternoon, if he wins his opener against Ralph Wadsworth from the University of Idaho.

The night-time foe will be the always rugged Vince Palumbo of Maryland. It was Palumbo whom the Spoiler upset in the Eastern to take the 132-pound title.

Even though Syracuse is sending down only four men, it has an outside chance of taking a team title. Both Jaffe and Granger have a better-than-average chance of winning a gold medal and anyone who counts out the Rigger or scrapper Guelli from contention is dead wrong.

Remember the headlines in the Sunday papers which claimed that the Syracuse sailing team won the McMillan cup? Actually the Orange finished fifth and the story back of that makes interesting reading.

According to Jack Cummings, captain of the sailing team, the Pietymen would have won if they had only crossed the finish line in the Sunday afternoon race. The Hill sailors did win on Saturday, which the downtown papers assumed was the only race.

In Sunday's event, however, the wind was so calm that five boats were towed in before a small storm stirred shortly after dusk. The Orange craft had no motor and only two weak oil lamps plus a flashlight to pierce the darkness.

With the wind whipping up the waves to dangerous heights, the sailors elected to drop out of the race rather than risk someone falling overboard in the dark. We think that the decision was more than justified. A human life is more precious than a win any day.

Capt. Joan Poppe Leads Kappas With 24 Points

By JODY CRONAU

Exploding for 17 points in the final quarter of the WAA championship basketball game, Kappa Kappa Gamma annexed the University title by downing Sims III, 46-31, last night in the Women's building.

Kappa, led by Capt. Joan Poppe, who poured in 24 points, held Sims III to three points in the last period. Connie Davis, Kappa forward, tallied 17 counters, while Libby Harner, Sims captain, recorded 23.

SIMS III jumped to a first-quarter lead of 5-2, as Harner scored on a layup and added a foul toss, while Sims' Lee Wilenski sunk a set shot.

In the second quarter, Harner netted seven, and teammate Hazel Immergut dunked a layup.

Davis had eight for Kappa; Poppe, scoreless in the first period, added six for the champs, and Kappa led at the midway mark, 16-14.

Opposing captains Poppe and Harner continued to hit in the third period, as the score seesawed between the two teams. Poppe pushed in 11, and Harner countered with 10; Kappa led 29-28 going into the final quarter.

KAPPA GUARDS Carol Fagan, Lois Baxter and Claire Davis held Sims III to three points, as Poppe and Davis each scored 7. Kappa Joan Witmer collected three in the last frame, and the team had a 15-point margin.

Kappa's precision-like defense, snappy passing and consistent rebounding out-shone efforts of Sims III. Sims guards Paula Thaler, Esther Brachim and Marlene Rapport, using a zone defense, lacked height.

Cups will be presented to Kappa, upperclass champs, and frosh champs Sims III at the annual WAA Spring Banquet to be held April 28 at Drumlins.

A University all-star WAA team will be chosen by a WAA committee to play the top Cornell team in Ithaca this Saturday. The Kappa sextet, scheduled to represent Syracuse as a result of their win last night, is unable to make the trip.

Guelli Goes

FRANK GUELLI, Syracuse's entry in the 125-pound class of the NCAA boxing tournament to be held this week at Penn State, drew a bye into the semi-finals. Guelli will fight for the first time in the Nationals on Friday night.

Simmons, Hill Boxers Leave for Nationals

At 9:30 a.m. today Roy Simmons will pack his four boxers into his car and leave for Penn State to enroll the boys in the National Boxing tournament. The boxers will stay at a motel during the tourney and will get a chance to loosen up, along with entries from 15 other teams, in Penn State's ring this afternoon.

EASTERN CHAMP Jerry Jaffe on the other hand, runs into his first bout on Thursday afternoon. Since the 132-pound class has the most entries, Jaffe, if he is to take the crown, will have to win four bouts. Jerry faces Ralph Wadsworth from the University of Idaho.

Thumpin' Johnny Granger fights Vic Harris of San Jose State in one of the three 139-pound fights to be held on Thursday night.

That leaves Vince Rigolosi, the only other Syracuse boxer making the trip, to face Earl Orr of North Carolina Agriculture and Technical college. Rigolosi also fights on Thursday night.

NOW THAT the bouts are scheduled, it seems that there is only one defending champion in the whole crop: Ray Zale, Wisconsin's 178-pounder. Two champs dropped out at the last minute yesterday.

Vic Kobe, defending champ at 119, from National champ Idaho State had to withdraw due to illness. Michigan State's champ at 165, Tom Hickey, was declared scholastically ineligible by his school and cannot compete.

There are, however, two 1952 champs and both of them go Thursday afternoon. They are Wisconsin's Roy Kuboyama at 119 and Washington State's 165-pound champ, Gordon Gladson.

Syracuse's Athlete of the Year, Bruce Yancey, is sitting this one out. Bruce had an operation performed on a tooth and, although he is on his feet, he didn't have time to train for the National bouts.

Grieve Works Cindermen Despite Soggy Conditions

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Despite a water-soaked track and poor weather, the core of Coach Bob Grieve's varsity track team continued working out yesterday in an effort to keep in shape during the pre-season lull.

Grieve and his runners are awaiting anxiously the opening competition of the Spring — the relay carnival at New York on the 17th of this month.

THERE IS good reason to do so, too, for this year's cinder crew is loaded with potential winners. Only one runner, George Dickerson, is missing from last year's team, and a group of capable sophomores will add greatly to the sum talent of the 1954 team.

Grieve's array of runners will be lead by senior Ray Osterhout. The slim strider will compete in the mile and two-mile events. Another senior, Frank Calzi, will run in these same events. Thee third long-distance-running senior on the squad is Gene Parker. He will run the two-mile.

Two sophomores and a junior will complement this trio in the longer runs. The latter is Steve Armstrong and the second-year men are Les Vielbig and Jim George, the smaller, Armstrong, who captured fifth place in the IC4A mile last year, and Vielbig will run the mile and the 880, while George will compete in the mile and two-mile events.

The third half-miler on the squad is sophomore Ed Alger. Along with Armstrong and Vielbig, Alger promises to make the Orange half-mile contingent one of the team's toughest.

IN THE 440, Coach Grieve has another trio of top performers. They are Jack Hubbard, Don Shupe and Bob Pugsley. They will also compete in the mile-relay. Hubbard and speedy Dick Jackson will represent the Orange in the 220.

Jackson will sprint the 100 along with Chuck McGlynn and Jim Sutton. McGlynn, Shupe and Bob Savoie will do the low hurdling for the Orange, and Savoie, Bob Beattie, Wendy Hoone and Dick Heydet will run in the tall timber event.

That accounts for the "running" portion of Grieve's team, and these performers will probably account for the majority of the Orange points. The "field" side of the ledger is slightly weaker.

Capt. Joe Martin, however, is one certainty among the field candidates. Martin heaved his javelin to a second place distance in last year's IC4A meet, and doesn't figure to be any worse this year. McGlynn will take part in this event for the Hillmen too.

Another of the field events in which the Orange may come through is the broad jump. Jackson and McGlynn are the top jumpers on the squad. Hoone and Tom Kirby also will compete in this event.

The versatile Hoone will also compete in the two other pit events, the pole vault and the high jump. Other vaulters are Henry Wrightman, from whom Grieve expects high things, and the diminutive sprinter, Jim Sutton.

Heydet and Savoie will complete the Piety high-jumping contingent.

SOPHOMORE PETE Schwert figures to be Grieve's top weight man, at least latently so. Schwert has shown a lot of promise in the discus and shot put events. Jimmy Vance will put the shot for the Hillmen, and Jim George, the larger, will throw the disc.

In addition to the New York relay carnival, the Grievemen will run in the annual Penn Relays at Philadelphia a week later. The date for this highly competitive event is April 23-24.

On May 1 the Orangemen face their first dual meet foe, Colgate, at Hamilton. A week later Boston university comes here for a dual meet. On May 15 the cindermen will travel to Alfred college of a triangular meet with Colgate as the third party. The IC4A, NCAA, and National AAU meets follow in late May and June.

DO Staffers Pick Dodgers, Yanks World Series in '54

By AL GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

With the major league baseball season less than a week away, many people have attempted to predict the outcome of the two pennant races. The sports staff of The Daily Orange is no different in this respect and so presents its selections for the coming season.

A year ago the staff correctly named the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers as pennant winners and sticks with these selections for 1954. Cleveland and Milwaukee are again picked to finish second in the National and American leagues, respectively.

NEW YORK will have an easier time winning its sixth successive title than the Dodgers will in copping their third straight.

The Yankees, helped by the return of Tom Morgan from the army, will once again have a strong pitching staff. Morgan should make up for the absence of Vic Raschi, who was sold to the Cardinals.

The acquisition of Eddie Robinson and Harry Byrd from Philadelphia will give the Bombers added power and another top-notch starter. And if Gerry Coleman returns to his stride of three years ago he should offset the loss of Billy Martin, who was drafted.

Cleveland must come up with more pitching to beat out the Yankees. Overworkage of the "big three" probably cost the Indians the flag a year ago. First base is also a weak spot but the acquisition of Dave Philley will strengthen the outfield.

BOSTON IS our choice to finish third. A good all-around team with emphasis on youth, the Red Sox must have the services of Ted Williams to provide the power in their attack.

Chicago should finish fourth. Ferris Fain must come back with a fine hitting season, Minnie Minosa will have to fill the bill at third and the aging Willard Marshall must have a spectacular season if the Sox hope to finish higher.

Washington, with fine pitching, could be the surprise team of the league. Despite a wonderful late-season spurt in '53, Detroit will have difficulty improving on its sixth-place finish. Philadelphia, aided by the big trade with New York, and the new Baltimore Orioles will bring up the rear.

In the senior circuit, Brooklyn's power plus the return of Don Newcombe should provide ample strength to enable the Dodgers to repeat. Age appears to be the Bums' big problem but added reserve strength has been obtained in the persons of Sandy Amoros and Don Hoak.

THE BRAVES were hurt by the loss of Bobby Thomson who broke an ankle in an exhibition game. When Thomson rejoins Eddie Mathews, Andy Pafko, Joe Adcock, and Danny O'Connell in the lineup, the Milwaukee will be loaded.

St. Louis will probably be stronger than a year ago, with Vic Raschi certain to help the pitching department.

Willy Mays' return and better pitching should enable New York to climb back into the first division.

The Philadelphia Phillies have failed to improve their personnel enough to keep up with the top four and figure to drop into the second tier. Cincinnati, Chicago and Pittsburgh round out the pennant race.

The complete order of finish:

NATIONAL	AMERICAN
Brooklyn	New York
Milwaukee	Cleveland
St. Louis	Boston
New York	Chicago
Philadelphia	Washington
Cincinnati	Detroit
Chicago	Philadelphia
Pittsburgh	Baltimore

Wooding Elected Fencing Captain

Syracuse's fencers yesterday selected George Wooding, sophomore epee man, as captain of next year's squad.

Wooding had a 13-7 record over the past season, showing marked improvement in the last few tilts. His big job in the coming year will be to take up the slack caused by the graduation of John Goldstein, who has been the epee mainstay for the past two years.

WHAT COLOR GOES WITH A BLUSH?

A modest little freshman named Caspar Doyle found himself getting quite neurotic. It seemed that every time a girl looked at Caspar, he blushed. His sallow little cheeks turned a violent crimson. Then he would blush more because he was blushing.

He didn't get very far with the ladies and began brooding. Fortunately, he was a wealthy modest little freshman, and he finally bundled his problem off to a psychiatrist.

"I even hate my shirts. I know when I wear a white shirt it's only going to make my blush look redder," he dolefully intoned from the couch.

The head-shrinker's eyes lit up with dollar signs. He said: "Ahem. This trauma is obviously deep-seated and will take a long time to unravel. But meanwhile, try wearing some Vanahue shirts. Van Heusen makes them in lots of colors that will tone down your blush and you're bound to like the smart new collar styles. For your practical side, they're fine smooth broadcloth, color fast and Sanforized.
See my nurse for the bill, please!"

Caspar bought Vanahue in all the colors and smart new collar styles for $3.95 each. It worked. So many of the girls look at him now, he blushes constantly. Everybody thinks he just looks rugged and virile.

four fraternity men and three independents have submitted petitions. The class assembly will appoint two more assemblymen after elections to fill out the nine spots in the class of 1955. No cityites petitioned for a place on the ballot.

The seven senior assembly candidates will be elected automatically this morning when their names appear on the ballots.

Ten men are running for junior class representatives. Three independents are automatically in the assembly because of no opposition. Five Greeks and two city students are eligible.

The MSG assembly candidates:

SENIOR CLASS — Fraternity: Michael Newcomb, Lloyd Dunsker, Daniel Present, Max Seiken, Independent: Arndt Zetterstrand Lowell Toenniessen, Malcolm Foster.

JUNIOR CLASS — Fraternity: Donald Barney, James Young, man, Frank Wolfe. Independent: Eugene Romeo, George Heitmann, Oakley McEachren, City: Barney Hamilton, Richard Koelling.

Frosh May Apply For Goon Squad

Upper freshmen are eligible to apply for positions on next fall's goon squad. The goons, chosen by Traditions commission, take charge of making incoming freshmen at home during orientation week.

All applications must be turned in by April 14. Applications should include name, address, phone, high school, college activities, ideas for orientation week and a picture of the applicant.

Interviews will take place after vacation. About 150 goons will be selected.

Several of the goon squad workers will be chosen for Traditions commission service at the end of next year.

Cadets May Get Reduced Tickets

Boar's Head and the drama department are honoring the Cadet Association of Syracuse university this week by making reduced-price tickets for "Gigi" available to CASU members.

Tickets, ordinarily selling at $1.20, will be sold at a 45 per cent discount, with a two-ticket limit to each cadet.

Cadets must present CASU membership cards at the box office to obtain the reduced rates. Members of Air Force and Army ROTC cadre will also be extended the rate privileges.

"Gigi" is being presented at 8:15 p.m. each night this week in the Coronet theater in Machinery hall.

Both the drama department and both branches of ROTC occupy the same building, known officially as Machinery hall, but because of the two departments having offices there, often known as ROTC building and Drama building.

VICE-CHANCELLOR FINLA G. CRAWFORD expresses his appreciation to the Interfraternity Council for dedicating the IFC weekend to him during intermission of the IFC ball Saturday night.

Concert Will Feature Works by Dr. Bacon

Dr. Ernst Bacon, noted music faculty member and composer in residence, will present a concert with the Madrigal singers, a female vocal group, at 4 p.m. Sunday in Crouse auditorium. Dr. Bacon's works will be featured at the free performance.

The program will mark the first local presentation of Dr. Bacon's "Five Fables with Music", which was first done last December in Carnegie hall.

FOLLOWING PIANO selections by Dr. Bacon, he will conduct the Madrigalists, accompanied by Edwin Flath at the organ. Victoria Gorcoff, a junior, will be the soprano soloist for the group.

The singers will perform Bacon's arrangement of five oems by Emily Dickinson, as well as a secular cantata titled "From Emily's Diary." The cantata, also arranged by Bacon, contains 11 sections.

The Madrigal singers are 18 girls, mostly music students, who rehease weekly. They were formed a few years ago by Dr. Bacon to continue an old tradition of a chamber music group.

The group has sung at the faculty women's club Christmas party and at a Sunday afternoon concert last December. The madrigal singers will appear at the state convention of federated music clubs to be held in Syracuse in early May.

DR. BACON, director of the singers and composer of the music to be offered, has been with Syracuse university for seven years. After intensive instruction here and abroad, he offered recitals in the principal centers of the United States, Germany, Austria and France.

He has been guest conductor with the San Francisco, Detroit, Denver, Southern and Illinois symphony orchestras, the municipal chorus of San Francisco, and the Federal Orchestra of Los Angeles.

The concert which he will direct Sunday is open to all students, faculty and the general public.

St. Thomas More Bowlers Rank High

St. Thomas More bowling team members toppled a three-game total of 2925 pins recently to capture seventh place in the New York state Holy Name bowling tournament held in Syracuse.

The team rolled for four weeks in downtown alleys in the tourney. One hundred seventy-one teams from Watertown, Syracuse, Buffalo, Utica, Rochester and other sections of the state competed.

St. Thomas More was also honored for hitting the highest total of the 18 parish team entered from the Syracuse diocese.

Team members included Robert Majewski, John LaParo, Henry Demers, James Messina and James Hern.

Students to Attend Stream Gauging

Miss Anderson Elected Speaker Of Assembly

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Dorianne Bright was chosen next year's president of women's student government yesterday by Syracuse university coeds. She will be inaugurated in ceremonies on Saturday morning of Spring weekend.

WOMEN STUDENTS elected Lois Clark WSG chief of civil service. Miss Clark vied with Charlotte Easterbrook for the position. Miss Easterbrook will be next year's associate chief of civil service, in charge of the Through the Keyhole training program.

Assuming next year's position as speaker of the assembly will be Barbara Anderson, who deefated Carmela (Connie) Curreri yesterday at the polls.

WSG executive secretary-treasurer will be Patricia Mosher. Runnerup Roberta Baliba will act as chairman of the social chairmen's assembly.

Six sophomore women were elected to serve as WSG junior officers. They are Carol Ackerson, Arlene (Turbi) Blum, Deborah Byrnes, Mary Anne Ellis, Carole Leland and Margaret (Mauny) White.

CAMPUS GUIDE chairman, elected by the present guides is Nancy Boerner, who won over Joan Hartig. Guide secretary is Sonia Dalrymple. Miss Dalrymple's opponent was Lucille Levine.

Marjorie Austrian was chosen chairman of foreign student guides yesterday and Gail Kepner was elected executive secretary of the group.

Dolores Hytron was elected over Janet Lemp yesterday as chairman of city guides. Secretary of the group, who won over Mary Lou Steigerwald, is Ann Hamilton.

New WSG president, Miss Bright has been chairman of the public relations panel this year. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, Lambda Sigma Sigma, junior women's honorary; and

Honors Program Set by LA College

WSG Plan Approved For Gifted Students

Gifted students will have a chance next year to do private study in an honors program incorporated into 20 departments of the College of Liberal Arts.

This was announced at last night's women's student government meeting by Roberta Baliba, whose academics panel has done much of the investigation concerning the honors program.

WOMEN LEGISLATORS voted to incorporate the joint student court into student government, following similar action Tuesday night by men's student government assembly. The court act provides for 10 justices, five women and five men, with the chief justice post alternating yearly from man to woman.

In approving the joint court act, coed legislators also voted for a standard manual of procedure to be followed by future courts.

The executive committee of the liberal arts college approved the honors plan this week and it will be incorporated into next year's liberal arts catalogue, according to Miss Baliba.

In the future, juniors and seniors who maintain a general 2.0 average and who show exceptional ability in their major field will be allowed to do individual work in their field of interest.

STUDENTS WHO are accepted for the program must also have the approval of the department in which they plan to do outside study. Their work will be equivalent to six credit hours in regular course study and will end with a junior thesis or comprehensive examination or both.

All candidates in the program will be asked to engaged in individual projects.

Those departments sponsoring the new program are zoology, plant science, mathematics, physics, geology, chemistry, psychology, drama, English and classical languages.

Also participating are the departments of physical education, romance languages, political science, American studies, economics, history, geography, philosophy, German and Bible and religion.

Fraternity Men Get Slight Edge In Legislature

Fraternity men will show a slight edge in the 1954-55 men's student government assembly.

A total of 14 Greeks were among the 25 men elected to the legislature yesterday in campus-wide balloting. Independent assemblymen number 11, with two city men, both Greeks.

NINE MEN were selected for sophomore and junior assemblyman posts—the maximum number allowed in classes. Only seven from the class of 1955 applied for nominations and all were elected. Two more seniors must be elected by the class assembly.

Independence party-backed candidates took seven of nine sophomore positions. It was the only class where Independent candidates pulled more votes than the fraternity men. Freshman class President Francis Procopio polled the highest number of votes among all assembly nominees.

Class-by-class break down shows four fraternity men and three independents among the senior class assemblymen; five Greeks, three independents and one city student among the junior class; and three fraternity men, five independents and one cityite.

The following men were elected:

JUNIOR CLASS: Fraternity: Donald Barney, Donald Butterman, Robert Hecht, Frank Wolfe, James Young. Independent: George Heitman, Oakley McEachren, Eugene Romeo. City: Byron Hamilton.

Broken down according to political parties, seven men from Piety Hill Alliance party houses were elected. United Students and Independence party have five men each among the new assemblymen.

Although names of political parties were not associated with candidates on ballots yesterday, parties were allowed to support and campaign informally for assemblymen.

Three USP'ers Take Offices In Senior Class

By ED HARDY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Piety Hill Alliance swept into power yesterday with victories in eight out of 13 offices as approximately 2,274 students went to the polls in the annual Spring elections.

Stuart Parker of Phi Gamma Delta led PHA down the win trail with a decisive 748-497 vote over United Students party's Arthur Kinney of Alpha Tau Omega.

USP won its strongest foothold in the class of 1955, as three incumbents repeated. Samuel Shawhan again garnered the presidency, with Jacquelyn Jarrett regaining secretary and Gregg Doherty treasurer. Cynthia Satow was the only PHA'er to come out on top in the senior class, taking the vice-presidency.

As expected, largest turnout was in the class of 1957. Some 1,066 voted—55 per cent of the class, also the greatest percentage. Total percentage of all voters eligible to cast ballots for class officers was 48 per cent, 10 per cent above last year's figure.

David Boreanaz was the only Independence party candidate to get into office. He won the treasurership of the sophomore class with 522 votes, 211 more than PHA's Theodore Van Syckle. Three other candidates sought soph posts for the young Independence group, but were not elected.

In the senior class, Shawhan topped John Hennessey, PHA, 300-234. Miss Satow topped Arthur Koeppel, 287-244 for the vice-presidency. Miss Jarrett tallied 280 ballots to Marcia Sank's 251, while Doherty beat Harold Vikoren, 286-242. Koeppel and Miss Sank will sit on

Special 'Gigi' Rates Given ROTC Corps

Each Cadet Offered Two Discount Tickets

Going along with the good neighbor policy, Boar's Head and the Drama department will honor the ROTC Cadet association with special rates for the "Gigi" performance tonight.

Cadets who went to see the play last night or who plan to attend tonight will receive a forty-five cent discount on tickets, upon presentation of their membership cards.

Each cadet will be entitled to no more than two tickets. The special rate on tickets which ordinarily sell for $1.20 is also extended to members of the Regular Army and Air Force staffs in charge of ROTC activities.

Both the Drama and ROTC departments occupy the same building, known as Machinery hall and the Drama building. The play is being presented in the Coronet theater on the second floor which the drama department utilizes. ROTC classrooms and offices occupy the first floor.

"Gigi" will be presented every night this week at 8:15 p.m. The lead role is played alternately by Betty Schwartz and Shirley Fenner.

Sets were designed by John J. Moore and the play is under the supervision of Professor Sawyer Falk, head of the department.

Graduates Approve Changed Constitution

The grads have a constitution. At an open meeting Tuesday evening in the Women's building, the new Graduate Students association constitution was ratified.

Among the changes in the original draft was the rewording of the article defining membership. The constitution now states that membership is open to any graduate student on a free and voluntary basis, but is not automatic.

ADDED TO the original purpose of the association is a section empowering the GSA to speak only for its membership, rather than for all grad students.

Dorothy Smith, chairman of the former graduate commission, presided at the meeting. She introduced members of the executive committee who gave brief reports on activities and accomplishments of the commission during the past school year.

Following ratification of the constitution, the executive committee proposed the names of Marion Waterman, Ross Rathie, and Helen Spencer for next year's GSA president. Rene Beauchamp was nominated from the floor. Marion Waterman won by majority vote and will assume her duties after spring commencement.

DEAN CARL R. BYE of the Graduate school was present at the meeting and stated his views on the purpose of the new group. He said that it was not the intention of the administration to force students into active membership of an association in which they want no part.

Sophs Will Draw For Room Choices

Coeds who will be juniors next year will draw preference numUniversity living centers from 9:30 to 4:30 p.m. today and tomorrow in room 110 of the Women's building.

All sophomore women who will occupy University housing next year should draw at these times and must bring room applications signed by parents or guardains before they will be permitted to draw.

IF A COED wishes to have a specific person for a roommate this should be noted on the room aplication. If a certain room is more important, this should also be indicated.

According to Miss Kathryn W. Copeland, director of women's residence, there will be no changes in room assignments until after registration in September. All assignments will be made this semester as soon as vacancies permit.

Living centers for upperclass women next fall will be Berwald, Brewster, Charles, Corneille, Fairfield, Hurst, Jewell, Lima, Reid, Root, Scott, Shaw and Winchell.

One full cooperative, two semi-cooperatives and two nurses' residences will also be open in the fall. The full co-op is Peck II and the two semi-cooperatives are Genesee and Mott.

COEDS WHO live in either kind of co-op will have room free and a substantial reduction in board. These coeds take care of housework on a group basis, and in the full co-op they also do their own cooking.

The two nurses' residences open next semester will be Hyde and Powers.

Med School Sets Demolition Date

Destruction of Yates castle will begin Monday, April 12, according to an announcement by the State university Medical college yesterday.

Bielec Wrecking & Lumber co. of Syracuse will start the demolition, which will cost approximately $5,900. The Castle is being razed to make room for an addition to the basic science building at the College.

Chi O, Pi Phi, Servers Win in Quarter-Finals

Winchell Waitresses, Pi Beta Phi and Chi Omega were the winning houses in the last night of the quarter finals in the annual Spring weekend step singing contest held last night in Hendricks chapel.

Singing "Black is the Color of my True Love's Hair," a Kentucky folk song arranged by John Niles, Winchell Waitresses defeated Sperry cottage singing "Shenandoah," a ballad arranged by Marshall Bartholomew. Both these groups were conducted by Barbara Peck.

IN THE FIRST flight of the large houses Pi Beta Phi won over Delta Delta Delta and Alpha Omicron Pi. Pi Beta Phi, conducted by Marcia Mulligan sang "Hear My Prayer" by Will James. Delta Delta Delta sang "How Blest are They" by Tschaikovsky conducted by Suzanne Prentice, and "Prayer" from Hansel and Gretal by Humperdink, was the number chosen by Alpha Omicron Pi. They were conducted by Marcella (Marcie) Damiecki.

Chi Omega, conducted by Judith Hicks, singing "May Now Thy Spirit" by Schvetky-Treharne defeated Alpha Chi Omega who sang "God so Loved the World" from the Crucifixion by John Stainer. They were directed by Nancy Bishop.

The three judges for last night's contest included Mrs. George Mulfinger, Mrs. Ada Crouse and Miss Alice McNaught. Mrs. Crouse and Miss McNaught are members of the School of Music faculty here at Syracuse. Mrs. Mulfinger is an alumna of Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music honorary.

Anne Forrest, contest chairman, announced that an important meeting of the leaders of the contest would be held at 5 p.m. tomorrow in 111 Maxwell. At this time, drawing for the order of singing in the semi-finals will be held. Houses are allowed nine hours of rehearsal before the semi-finals, to be held April 27 in Hendricks chapel.

THE FOLLOWING houses are entering the semi-finals. In the small house division are Butler and Phillips cottages and Winchell Waitresses. Chi Omega, Delta Zeta, Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Kappa are in the large house division.

Step singing is sponsored each year by Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, in connection with the events scheduled for Spring weekend. The finals this year will be held on the Library steps Friday night, May 7. Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music honorary awards cups to winning houses in the large and small divisions.

Applications Open For IFC Offices

Applications for the posts of assistant secretary and assistant treasurer of Interfraternity-council must be turned in to Howard Osofsky at the Sigma Alpha Mu house by Monday.

The application should include name, activities and experience. Sophomore fraternity members are eligible for these posts.

The assistant secretary and treasurers will serve under the present secretary and treasurer to gain necessary experience, and the IFC executive council will select, from these assistants, the next officers to serve.

Public Admin Panel Discusses Relations

By PETER McNALLY

Government and Industry relations toward each other were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the American Society Public Administration in the Founder's room in Maxwell.

John R. Schenck, president of Engelburg Huller co., Dr. Donald Davenport, Deputy commissioner in the Commerce department of New York and Prof. Archbold McIssac, chairman of the Economics department at Syracuse, each discussed different aspects of government and industry relation toward each other. Dean Hardy Shirley, of the Forestry College, introduced the men to the assemblage.

SCHENCK, AS a representative of industry, told what business expects of government. He said, "Government should do nothing to curtail the self-reliance of industry."

In explaining this he said that industry must have responsibilities; that there are certain things government must do. He stated that the government should lay the ground rules, setting an example in efficiency and leadership.

Schenck said, "Government should supply more assistance for efficiency of operation."

Dr. Davenport, representing government, then spoke, emphasizing the kind of work the Department of Commerce in Albany is doing. It tries to bring about a closer understanding between industry and government.

THE COMMERCE department never tries to persuade an industry to move into New York, unless the department considers it very suitable for both the area and the business, he said.

Dr. Davenport said it is their express purpose "to serve business while, at the same time, utilizing the state's manpower."

"Efficiency could be improved," he admitted, "but the willingness to cooperate is good."

Prof. McIssac then discussed how the individual comes out in this relation between industry and government.

McISSAC EXPRESSED the view that in our modern economic

52 Juniors Named Guides by WSG

Fifty-two junior women have been appointed to act as senior campus, city, transfer and foreign student guides next year. These coeds were selected after serving as junior guides this year.

Named to senior transfer guide posts were Barbara Breck and Joan Brownell.

Senior foreign student guides next year will be Carol Alvater, Marjorie Austrian, Patricia Bowin, Deborah Brown, Eileen Chamberlain, Adele Cunningham, Gail Kepner, Beverly Nason, Marion Stevenson, Carol Terpening, Betsy Wright and Marjorie Zeiner.

Publishers Issue Book by Dr. Beck

"Through the Gospels to Jesus" a beginning text for college religion courses by Dwight M. Beck, chairman of the Bible and religion department, has been published by Harper and brothers.

The text provides a general study of Jesus as set forth in the gospels and as interpreted by both scholars of the past and today. The story about and behind the writings of the gospels, the world in which Jesus lived, the sources for the study of Jesus, and an analysis of the synoptic gospels and the fourth gospel is included.

Dr. Beck has been teaching the gospel at the University, since 1930. Associate editor of the Journal of Bible and Religion, he has served as president of the National association of Biblical instructors. He is also author of "Concerning the Gospels."

Councilman Mullaley Talks to Republicans

"Everything revolves around money, and consequently planning takes a long time," said Councilman-at-large James Mullaley in an informal address recently to the Young Republican Club of Syracuse university.

Mullaley, speaking on city planning, suggested that the realization of a plan may take from five to 20 years.

HE INFORMED the group that the city of Syracuse uses a post-war planning system brought about by a series of articles done by Fortune magazine. The periodical used Syracuse as a test city in an expanding area.

Expert planners left the city with a reservoir of excellent blueprints for many ideas.

He explained that planning is vital to modern cities because of congestion and in some cases decentralization. He said that planning involves financing and that many times there is a lack of funds.

As an example he gave the new thruway. He told the club that the highway was originally thought of in 1947, and that it is just coming into being now. He also reported that a series of arteries to the thruway are now in the planning stage.

MULLALEY, discussing the city budget, informed the members that Syracuse has a $24 million budget, of which 41 per cent goes for education and school maintenance.

Accent on food

Men's student government tackled the University housing and dining hall policy Tuesday night and came up with some recommendations well worth consideration by the Administration.

The entire report as submitted by assemblyman Al Applegate will be summarized in the Daily Orange in the near future. Discussion on the exact policy concerning Marion and Watson halls and sophomore board contracts will therefore be postponed.

However, the recommendations which were eventually passed by the assembly can be acted upon immediately. If similar resolutions were approved by women's student government, the structure of the organizations requested might be set up before the end of the semester.

The first recommendation asked the University to revise the student-administration board which dealt with housing and dining hall problems. It is here that one representative from each of the student governments can transmit complaints and make suggestions in this area.

The second recommendation asked that a special subcommittee of student government be created to investigate complaints and act as a clearing house for these before presentation to the housing board.

Perhaps an MSG panel corresponding to the WSG house policy panel could achieve this purpose.

Since sophomore males will now be required to take board contracts (if not eating in fraternities), the creation of such boards to handle complaints is almost a necessity. This is especially true when upperclassmen living in Marion must also eat at Watson. The creation of such committees will be indispensable when juniors and seniors eventually go on board contracts.

Setting up the machinery now for next year and for greater future use would be a wise move for the University to consider.

It is a provoking thought when one realizes that in the month of April the United States has entered its four greatest wars excluding world war two.

On April 6, 1917, we declared war on Germany. On April 12, 1861, Fort Sumter was fired upon to begin the War Between the States.

On April 19, 1775 the shot heard round the world was fired at Lexington. And on April 21, 1898 the Spanish American war began.

But now we have entered into a strange new type of war. It is the war of dares. Nations are scratching lines of progress in the dust of time and practically daring other nations to cross them.

In five years the atom bomb was developed, (based on years of research.) In less than a decade it was obsolete. In four years the hydrogen bomb was developed. And, in terms of destruction, in four months it was obsolete.

But here the line has reached a point where no one dare cross. For the Cobalt bomb borders on uncontrollable nature itself. That is the great guf between the mere H-bomb and the C-bomb; the former could be controlled, the latter, never.

For the C-bomb spreads a deadly killing radioactive dust over an area of tens of thousands of square miles, depending on the wind currents.

Ironic. For in this month of wars man possesses a weapon unparalleled in history . . . and he can't use it.

THE LOWE SHOW

Golden Age of Art

By JOANNE HESS

Not only handsome but educational! This phrase best describes the April exhibit at the Lowe Art Center. Opening today, the exhibit features the "Golden Age" of English textiles for autumn months brought from the Salamandre Museum of Textiles in New York city, boast the work of famous designers of different periods.

We were awed by the colorful silk textitles, cottons, and linen chintzes, both reproductions and originals. Those of the 18th century are in the rich colorings of Queen Anne and early Georgian periods, followed by mid and late Georgian periods. In the latter era, we noticed the designs became smaller and the colors softened during the neo-classic revival. Interior decoration for our homes today bears marked resemblance to the 18th century designs, and it was this century that fostered styles borrowed from the English for the furnishings of our colonial and post-revolutionary homes.

One of the most beautiful eras of the 18th century on display is that of Queen Anne known as the "Age of Walnut." Damask was the favorite silk textile.

Spacious chairs and love-seats borrowed from the late Italian Renaissance and Baroque periods of the 17th century, feature patterns composed of date palms, artichokes circled with palmettes, acanths leaves and pomegranate.

We were especially intrigued by the "Age of Mahogany," which displays the work of the famed Thomas Chippendale. In his first phase, the French, he uses lace patterns; in his second, the Chinese, he incorporates Chinese fretwork and cloud motifs. During the Gothic revival, he borrowed textiles of the early 15th century.

The next sequence featured the late Georgian period, beginning with the reign of George III and continuing to the start of the 19th century.

George Hepplewhite, contemporary of Adam, followed the classic trend, but in a simpler style, in that he used dimity. Another artist whose work seemed to resembel Adam, was Thomas Sheraton, although he featured narrow stripes.

We couldn't conclude our report on the "Golden Age" exhibit without mentioning the rich trimmings. During the Queen Anne era on through the Chippendale era, tassled fringes were in style. In the late Georgian periods, straight edged cut fringes were popular. Pendants capped with dainty bowknots of palette wire covered with silk were suspended from elaborate headings.

"This exhibit proves that we do display works other than those classified as modern art," one of the art teachers told us.

AT THE FLICKERS

A Tidy Piece Of Suspense, But Superficial

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

Terrifying

Heston, Parker and the Ants

From "Lennigen and the Ants," a terrifying story of one man's experience with the carnivorous South American driver ants, a gripping film entitled "The Naked Jungle" has been fashioned, which is now being offered to the strong-hearted customers at the Keith's. "The Naked Jungle" is a tidy piece of motion picture suspence. However, it unfortunately chooses to tell its gruesome story from the point of view of a man with a neuroses as gnawing as the ants. The script by Phillip Yordan and Roger MacDougall is a tense, craftsmanlike job but its inability to mate its two elements, adventure and psychological probing, keeps it from being really moving.

The hero, played as if he had stepped out of a comic book by Carleton Heston, is a young man who has never known the pleasures of a young woman. Eleanor Parker, as his mail order bride, proceeds to teach him and the ants she produces in Mr. Heston's pants are often more interesting than their more murderous counterparts.

Heston's portrait of Lennigen is straight from those chronicles of muscularity where nothing, not even several billion blood thirsty ants, can phase our hero. Since Mr. Heston is totally unable to indicate it, his psychological problem is of the kind that will convince only the most naive. All he is able to do is snort at Miss Parker and indicate by his heavy breathing that what he lacks in experience he makes up for an imagination. Since Miss Parker is quite lovely, his action is understandable. Since she is quite talented, she makes him look silly.

It is probably futile to argue with the superficiality of "The Naked Jungle" as it would appear that this is all most Hollywood producers are capable of. They have provided an exciting few minutes, but it is unfortunate that they are able to stir only the adrenils and not the heart or mind.

Brilliant

A Wonderful Sound

This is getting to be a habit. Boar's Head has provided still another afternoon of brilliant comedy. This time the providers were W. C. Fields and Mae West and their vehicle was an outrageous western called "My Little Chickadee."

The late W. C. Fields was a commediene whose acrid wit, malapropisms and sly slapstick are as fresh and devastating today as when they were created. All of these are faithfully and funinly rendered in this film. The result of his efforts makes one realize just what a comic genius is now lost to us; a genius at once original and expert.

His partner in the little prank was the extravagantly sexy Mae West. Miss West presents a portrait of sex that is so exaggerated and determinedly provocative that the comic result is uproarious. In this film she wiggles, winks and waddles her way through a preposterous series of circumstances that is the stuff of great farce.

The short subjects on the program offered us a happy glimpse of the late Willie Howard and a rather unhapy glimpse of Harry Langdon. Mr. Langdon is a commediene whose humor does not apear to have stood the test of time. His slapstick is unfunny, witless and poorly paced.

Mr. Howard with his absurd dialects and costumes and his wonderfully mobile face is quite another matter. He was faithfully represented by the films shown.

It's a great thing for this campus: the Boar's Head film series. Laughter, one of the pleasantest sounds in the world echoes through the Coronet theater on Sundays.

WORD FROM COLORADO; THANKS

Interest

April 3, 1954

Student Body President
Syracuse University
Syracuse 10, New York

Dear Sir:

On behalf of the University of Colorado we would like to congratulate you for coming out on top in our contest last week. The program created a good deal of interest on this campus, and we feel that your record is quite commendable. May we wish you the best of luck in future College Quiz Bowl competition.

Sincerely,
Hal Feder,

Glorious

To the Editor of The Daily Orange:

Now that the College Quiz Bowl is a matter of history—and a glorious moment in our history at that—I should like to take the opportunity afforded by your paper to thank the many people who played such important parts in the success of the Quiz. To name them all would take more space than you'd allow me I'm sure.

However, I do feel that special mention should be made of the contribution of Prof. Ed Cady who worked hard in preparing our panelists for the two wins they achieved.

Assistant Dean Ed Smith of Liberal Arts and the LA student advisory council deserve special credit for their fine assistance. Milt Shefter of the group was especially helpful.

Margaret Parker and the staff in the Women's building were most patient and helpful with the preparations that were necessary and most gracious hosts to the broadcasts.

On ticket distribution, the offices of the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women gave very valuable and welcome assistance. Not to be overlooked are Bill Ehling of the University News Bureau and your own Daily Orange which gave such enthusiastic publicity to the program. Also, without the excellent cooperation of WSYR personnel, Bob Whitney as referee and Bob Parkhurst, as engineer, the broadcasts would have been something less than the successes they were.

Finally, the panelists and alternates (you know them. They're famous now!) are to be thanked. They spent many long hours preparing for the contests. Whether they had won or not, the largest bouquet should go to them.

Sincerely,
Edward C. Jones

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

The Liberace Smile

By MILT SHEFTER

The College Quiz Bowl ended happily for all concerned on this end as the contestants got their watches and the school got another five hundred dollars. And the big question is what to do with it? Suggestions come from far and wide, all with good interests at heart. Brings back thoughts of another sum we won in '53. In fact the musical selection of "Moon Over Miami" on the broadcast brought back these memories all too vividly. One thing for sure—these two weeks have erased a year of bad publicity and that's a good exchange in anybody's book.

• • •

At the end of the show, the announcer and quiz-master were making more than a few fluffs—couldn't help but think this was the birth of a new comedy team: Ludden and Costello.

• • •

Red Face Div.: It happened at the IFC Ball. S.U.'s pert young social director had a long trail of tresses. She stopped and rebuked her escort for stepping on it. He denied this and in turn confronted the gentleman immediately behind her. This person never faltered, and his Liberace-style smile never wrinkled as he apologized. Yep, you guessed it—personable Elliot Lawrence.

• • •

Strange Happenings Dept.: Unusual sounds have been coming from the men's gym lately. On Tuesday and Thursday, one can notice a muffled noise accompanied by the recognizable bark of a drill sergeant. Upon closer examination, one finds Army ROTC drilling in stocking feet. If one can overlook the sensitivity around the nose area, it's possible to consider that this innovation was copied from the popular Friday night activity of Winter weekend. Sticking to the U. S. Government slogan, thru wind, rain, etc., ROTC will have drill! Some "feat," huh!

• • •

And now if you'll excuse us, we must take out more insurance. That intersection at Marshall and University doesn't give good enough odds for our present policy.

Tangerine Runners Begin Workouts For Track Season

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Featuring a couple champion quarter milers, a promising long distance runner, and a group of versatile athletes, the 1954 freshman track team began working out in full yesterday in the annual "get-in-shape" programs.

The yearling cindermen have a three meet schedule this year to look forward to. Last year's two opponents, Colgate and RPI are on the slate again, and Manlius Academy has been scheduled. All the meets will occur in late April and May.

ONE OF the quarter-milling champions on Coach Bob Grieve's squad is Art Ritchie. He won the National Interscholastic high school championship in 1952 in the 440.

Art also distinguished himself in the indoor track season earlier this year by trying a mark set by the famed Mal Whitfield in the 600-yard event of the Canadian 91st Regiment army games.

Pushing Ritchie all the way will be Roger Gilbert. The slight freshman broke the tape in 49.5 last year in the New York State Inter-Sectional Championship 440 yard dash.

Another quarter-miler who should pick up some points for the Tangerine striders is Bob Smith. Smittie won local noitice during the winter through his wrestling ability.

Grieve's lone distance man is Bob Milner. Milner, who follows a long line of distance men in stature, gave a good account of his abilities during the indoor season. At the 91st Regiment games he finished second in the 18-year-and-under miler run.

Dick Day and Jim Schneeder will provide the punch in the dashes. The former should be the mainstay in the 100 and 220, while Schneeder's speed will be utilized by him in the hurdle events.

Sports-hopping Jim Brown is event-hopping for the frosh tracksters. Brown may compete in the shot put, discus, javelin and high jump events, or any combination thereof.

THE SUPERBLY-built Long Islander has starred in the freshman football and basketball campaigns so far this year. One of his hardwood budies, Vinnie Cohen, will be topping the bar in the high jump event with him.

Cohen has been acclaimed as one of the outstanding hoop prospects to play at Syracuse in a long while. His amazing jumping ability on the hoop floor should carry him to some winning heights for the frosh.

Raleigh Hoffmeir is Grieve's lone prospect as yet for the broad jump. As is the case in a lot of the events, a complete list of definite candidates has not yet been assembled.

Among the prospective competitors is football player, Rudy Farmer. Farmer may put the shot for the frosh this year.

THIS YEAR'S frosh team will have to go some to equal the mark of last year's team. The '53 aggregation featured such stellar performers as Jim George, Les Vielbig, Ed Alger, Walt Jeschke, John Kannert and Jim Sheedy.

Many Hill Coeds Entered In WIBC Bowling Tourney

By JOAN NADELHAFT

Several Syracuse university teams will compete in the Women's International Bowling Congress tournament which opens at the Jefferson Bowling Academy today.

The 54-day meet will kick off with opening night ceremonies, with Mayor Donald H. Mead as principal speaker. The festivities are planned for 7 p.m. at the 40-lane establishment, site of the 37th annual competition.

WIBC National Secretary, Emma Phaler, has not told the Daily Orange how many SU coeds are participating in the tourney, but will release the information after the competition rolls are given the final once-over before the actual start of the meet tomorrow at 9 a.m.

The competition, which began with eight teams in 1917 in St. Louis has swelled to the largest national meet of its kind, with 4,537 five-woman teams competing. In adidtion to the team class, 8,000 more women will compete in the doubles and singles.

WIBC President Jeannette Kneprath, who arrived yesterday and National Secretary Emma Phaler who came to Syracuse Monday, will speak at the opening along with Harriet Darling, General Tournament Chairman, Doris Swetman, president of the Syracuse Women's Bowling Association and Alberta Crowe, Vice-President of the WIBC. Officers of the New York State Woman's Bowling Association will also be present.

Philip Chase, president of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce, and Clarence Kellar, head of the Chamber's Convention committee, will help in the official welcome to the 22,685 women who will bowl in the tournament.

MARION LADEWIG of Grand Rapids, five-time winner of the national all-star singles classic will fire the opening ball of the meet.

One squad of 40 teams will bowl opening night—the New Process Gear league—who will lead off on the 40 Jefferson lanes. squads will bowl daily until May 31 when the tournament ends. Local teams bowl during the week, and teams from distant states bowl on weekends.

Michael Hickok, manager of the University bowling alleys, supplied the WIBC with names of potential Tournament City Boosters for the competition. TCB's are non-sanctioned bowlers, who are being sponsored by local businessmen for the match.

Three Hill Boxers See Action Today; Guelli Draws Bye

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Three of Syracuse's "Frequent Four" open their quest for a National boxing title today down at Penn State. Co-Capt. Vince Rigolosi plays lead-off man this afternoon while 125-pounder Frank Guelli rests on a bye until Friday night's semi-finals.

Thumpin' Johnny Granger and Eastern Champ Jerry Jaffe take on opponents tonight. Last-minute withdrawals which necessitate a redrawing in the affected weights, radically changed the schedule that had been announced.

Vince Rigolosi, at 165, faces Nelson Alvarez of Hampston Institute tomorrow afternoon. Alvarez had a 3-1-1 record in his league.

GRANGER'S OPPONENT will be decided in the Gil Inaba-Tony Hansell afternoon fight. Inaba, of Washington State, is Pacific Coast 132-pound champ who moved up a weight class, while Hansell is Maryland's champ who beat Granger in the Easterns.

Jaffe's choice will come from the afternoon bout between Johnny Stiglets of Louisiana State, and Wisconsin's Terry Tynan. Stiglet had a 3-1-1 record during the season. Jaffe beat Tynan when they fought in Archbold gym this season.

If Rigolosi wins two and the others take their single matches, all will advance to Friday night's bouts where they will be joined by their fourth: Frank Guelli.

Wisconsin is considered the team to beat as proven by the three seeds given to Badger boxers. Ray Zale at 178, heavyweight Bob Hinds and lightest-weight (119) Roy Kuboyama are the three.

WASHINGTON STATE, San Jose State and Virginia each put a pair in the seed bracket. The purpose of seedings is to pick the top two men in each bracket and save them the trouble of participating in preliminaries which they would probably win.

Syracuse has no seeded fighters.

Out of all the 61 fighters from 15 colleges there is only one returning champ: Wisconsin's Ray Zale. Two defending champs dropped out two days ago. Defending team champion Idaho State lost too many of its rated fighters to be considered for contention.

If Jaffe can befuddle opponents and if Granger can convince the Nationals judges, Syracuse has two winners. Wisconsin, however, can probably count on three.

NATS MEET LAKERS

The Syracuse Nationals take on the Minneapolis Lakers tonight at 8:30 in the War Memorial in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series for the NBA championship. The Lakers hold a 2-1 edge so far and are favored to retain their crown.

BIG BATTLE

Hugh O. Muir and Joan Nadelhaft won the second and third heats of The Daily Orange Spring Invitational Croquet tournament in front of pre-fab 7 yesterday.

Matches will continue daily and the public is invited.

Frosh Nine Starts Outdoor Practice

Since the wintry weather, which has seriously hampered the freshman baseball team thus far, has cleared, at least temporarily, the frosh nine has moved from Archbold gym to Lew Carr field for practice.

Thus far only prospective pitchers and catchers have worked out under the eye of Coach Andy Mogish, but this week, the remainder of the team, or any prospective candidates, will commence practice.

COACH MOGISH, while impressed with the battery candidates, has issued a call for tryouts for all positions. Any interested freshman is to get in touch with him.

The six-game Tangerine schedule begins on April 30 at Colgate followed by a return contest at Syracuse with the Red Raiders and home and home series with Ithaca and Cornell frosh.

Among the boys out for the battery positions there are a number who made outstanding high school records.

Some of the pitchers are owners of one or more no-hit efforts, and all possessed low-earned run averages. Others had remarkable strikeout success, averaging over fifteen per seven inning game.

THERE IS also an abundant supply of talent in the catching department. All of the hopefuls are strong armed boys and most of them hit in the three and four hundred bracket as high school backstops.

Air Force Lt. Colonel Awarded Promotion

Word was received yesterday from Washington of the promotion of Lt. Col. William A. Hoy to the rank of full colonel. Col. Hoy is the newest member of the AFROTC staff at Syracuse.

A senior, rated pilot with 2,600 hours in the air, Hoy recently returned from Korea where he participated in 19 missions with the 17th bomber group.

In addition to holding the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal, Korean service medal and the UN service ribbon, he also possesses ribbons from the Asiatic-Pacific and Korean theaters.

Col. Hoy's career in the Air Force began shortly after he received a BS degree in forestry from Iowa State university in 1940. After completing his flight training at Randolph and Kelly fields, he received his regular commission.

In 1946 he became operations officer for the 13th Air Force headquarters. From 1948-52 he was connected with Air Force basic training activities at Lackland Air Force base, Texas, and later at Sampson AFB, N.Y. Then he was sent to Korea.

Except for his tour in Korea, Col. Hoy and his wife and family have lived in the central New York state area since 1951.

MISS CLARK, elected civil service chief, served as organizations panel chairman and is a member of Alpha Phi. She is the president of Lambda Sigma Sigma and a pledge to Eta Pi Upsilon.

Miss Mosher, executive secretary-treasurer, chaired the student welfare panel this year and is a member of Chi Omega. She is also in Lambda Sigma Sigma and Eta Pi Upsilon.

A home economics major, Miss Anderson is a member of Alpha Xi Delta. She participated in the WSG student welfare panel this year and has been a junior guide and on the chapel worship committee. She is also a member of Omicron Nu, the home economic honorary.

Elections for president of Women's Athletic association will be held today. Candidates for the post are Francine Harbach and Ann Lynd.

No election figures were released in the WSG balloting, as it is the custom to keep final votes secret.

stated that "planning has to be related to financial planning rather than physical planning."

Returning to the budget, the councilman reported that the state provides Syracuse with $5 million dollars in state aid per year for various benefits. He said that this comprised 20 per cent of the city's annual revenue, the remaining 80 per cent coming from property and sales taxes, traffic fines, various licenses and water taxes.

In defining state aid he said that it wasn't exactly what it sounded like, but that it was a reallocation of taxes collected from all the communities. He stated that the state gives $6.75 in aid per person to every city.

THE CITY IS limited by state law as to what is taxable, he said. Reminding the group of the two per cent sales tax, he told them that it was absolutely necessary because the money received was badly needed.

Telling the group about city government, he said that the Common Council has very little financial power because Syracuse has what is known as the strong-mayor type of government, so that the financial power is vested in the Board of Estimate.

UJA AWARDS

Awards will be presented to the outstanding houses in the United Jewish appeal campaign at Sabbath Eve services at 7:15 p.m. tomorrow in Hendricks chapel.

An open house at Sigma Alpha Mu, 712 Comstock ave., will follow the services. Acting as hostesses will be members of Alpha Epsilon Phi, Iota Alpha Pi and Sigma Delta Tau sororities.

Phi Sig Sponsors Cancer Fund Drive

Syracuse chapter of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity is one of the co-sponsors of a program to obtain cancer funds. The fraternity's work in this project was begun by the University of Illinois chapter.

Edward Berman, local chapter president, said yesterday that the chapter here will solicit contributions for the drive locally.

The fraternity has set a minimum national goal of $20 thousand. The drive will be culminated at Illinois by a dance to be held in Huff gymnasium there. It is anticipated that 2,500 couples will attend.

Martin Greenberg has been appointed local chairman of the drive of the Syracuse chapter. The Syracuse chapter of the fraternity itself has contributed $250 to the drive so far, Berman said. Contributions will be recorded in the national "ad book" for the Illinois dance.

Orators to Meet Penn in Maxwell

A busy weekend of debates awaits the Hill forensic society as its members prepare for the first campus meeting between Syracuse and Pennsylvania since pre-war days.

The debate will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in Maxwell auditorium. Meanwhile, the Orange debators will have participated in the Rochester Invitational debate tournament, which is being held Saturday in Rochester.

Rudolph Johanns and Alex Strasser will defend the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved that the United States should Adopt a Policy of Free Trade?" at Maxwell against Pennsylvania.

This will be the fourth time that Strasser and Johanns will have combined on the affirmative side of the national debate question this year. Both Orange debators were members of the teams that won the Hamilton debate tournament in 1952 and the LeMoyne debate tournament last March.

Sunday's debate will be the first campus-wide debate sponsored by the Hill organization since Syracuse played host to the Army debators at the Chapel in the fall of 1951.

At that time, Sam Goekjian vice-president, respectively of the debate team, upheld Syracuse against the Cadet debators. In 1951, the national debate topic was "Resolved: That the Congress of the United States Adopt A Policy of Free Trade."

AT ROCHESTER, Saturday, Kevin Wilson and Camilla McCarthy will combine on the affirmative side of the national debate topic while Douglas Ingalls and Strasser will uphold the negative side. This is the first time Miss McCarthy and Wilson have combined their debating talents.

Robert Newman and William Murray took the affirmative side of the question: "Resolved: That the President of the United States Should be chosen by Direct Election," while Janice Hering and Anthony Wannick defended the negative side. This national high school debate, in which Syracuse won both questions, was judged by varsity LeMoyne debators.

Members Choose New WAA Head

Francine Harbach, Theta Phi Alpha, was elected president of the Women's Athletic Association for 1954-55 yesterday, as members of the WAA functioning board and representatives from the University living centers and sororities voted in the annual election.

Other athletic association officers include Mary Ann Lynd, vice-president; Patricia Houlihan, program chairman; Bayne Chase, secretary; and Barbara Bucko, treasurer.

Miss Harbach, who was the junior class representative to WAA this year, participated in athletic activities at LeMoyne college during her freshman and sophomore years. At LeMoyne, she was a member of the National Students association.

Vice-president Mary Lynd, Delta Gamma, was program chairman for the athletic group this year. The Fine Arts junior is in the synchronized swimming group, and a member of the chapel public relations committee.

Sophomore Patricia Houlihan, Theta Phi Alpha, headed a WAA lower house panel this year, and was a member of the WAA functioning board.

Bayne Chase, Chi Omega, is in the physical education major's club, and sings in chapel choir. In liberal arts, Miss Chase is now managing WAA badminton activities.

Treasurer Barbara Bucko, Charles cottage, organized the 1953-54 women's basketball tourney, and last year led her freshman dorm to the University basketball championship.

Temple Will Serve Passover Meals

Jewish Student Fellowship has completed arrangements to have kosher passover meals from April 22 to 25.

Meals will served in the Temple Beth Israel, 601 Irving ave. Lunches and dinners will cost $1.50 and $2.25, respectively. Tickets for all seven meals may be purchased for $12.50.

Reservations may be made at the JSF desk in the chapel board room. Reservations will require a partial payment before spring vacation.

WAER Will Close During Vacation

Station Sets Sign-off For Two-week Period

Radio station WAER will suspend operations for two weeks beginning at 10:20 p.m. Sunday. The campus FM outlet will return to the air 3 p.m., April 25.

According to program director, James Fellows, the closing was brought about by a lack of a staff to operate the station during the Easter vacation period and also as a result of general operating difficulties. He stated that there is a general decrease in audience during the vacation period and that the station would rather "do a good job part o fthe time than a mediocre job all the time."

THE COMPLETE shut-down of broadcast operations is not new to campus radio. Similar measures have been undertaken during sevral past vacation sessions. Fellows indicated that certain "operating difficulties" evolved in the current operation would be ironed out during the time the station is off the air.

Returning to the FM band, WAER will operate through the end of the semester and will proceed on a limited basis during the summer vacation.

Prior to the suspension of operations, WAER lists a top program prospect for the coming weekend. At 8:30 p.m. today, the station will present the New York State Board of Regents convocation from Albany through the facilities of the Rural Radio network. The hour and one-half broadcast will include an address by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Admiral Arthur Radford, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff.

The convocation highlights the theme, "The role of education in a free world." Donald Girard of station WFLY, Troy, will handle the "color" side of the airing.

ADDITION PROGRAM offerings, slated after April 25, include possible coverage of the University baseball team's home games, a special package coverage of spring weekend, and the highly praised "Anthology" series, slated for May 13.

Program director Fellows also indicated that WAER staff members would conduct a survey on campus radio listening following the Easter recess. Supervised by Lawrence Myers, director of research for the radio-television center, the survey would include questions on WAER listening and a query on just what listeners would like to hear on radio which they aren't at this time.

Krinsky to Talk On 'Disinherited'

Dr. Fred Krinsky will speak on "The Disinherited" at JSF Sabbath Eve services at 7:15 p.m. today in Hendricks chapel.

Awards will also be presented to the outstanding houses in the UJA campaign.

Following the service there will be an open house at Sigma Alpha Mu, 712 Comstock ave. Acting as hostesses will be members of Alpha Epsilon Phi, Iota Alpha Pi and Sigma Delta Tau sororities.

LA College Mails Cards to Sophs

Major cards are being sent to all sophomores in the College of Liberal Arts. They must be returned to the LA office by Monday, May 17.

Cards are being mailed before vacation so students will have an opportunity to discuss choice of a major with their parents.

It is important that students dispose of this matter before May 17. Failure to do so will cause a longer waiting period at registration.

MEN'S HOUSING

Next-semester seniors may apply starting today for rooms in the small living centers and prefabs at Collendale and on Irving ave. Juniors may apply starting Monday, sophomores on Tuesday.

DO LISTS CORRECTIONS ON HOUSING

The Daily Orange erroneously reported yesterday that rooms in cooperative and semi-coop houses were free.

Rooms in the two-semi-coops, Mott and Genesee, and in the full coop house, Peck II, are $176 per year, or approximately $5.50 per week.

Meeting Announced For Song Leaders

All song leaders whose houses won in the quarter-finals of the annual step singing contest are requested to attend a meeting at 5 p.m. today, in 111 Maxwell.

At this time, the order in which the houses will sing in the semi-finals will be outlined. Attendance at this meeting is required and the song leader should send a replacement if unable to attend.

Eight houses are entering the semi-finals. In the small house division are Berwald, Butler and Phillips cottages and Winchell Waitresses. In the large house division are Chi Omega, Delta Zeta, Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Kappa.

Song leaders for the small houses are Beatrice Hinman, Nancy Nichols, Harriet Krevlin and Barbara Peck. Judith Hicks, Nancy Knapp, Marcia Mulligan and Jean Mosley are conducting the large groups.

JSF Group to Telecast 'Pageant of Passover'

"Pageant of Passover," a 15-minute WHEN television show produced, acted and directed by members of Jewish Student fellowship, will climax the group's productions for the year.

Scheduled for 1:15 p.m. Sunday, the program will give an unique presentation of the story of Passover as explained to a small boy.

FOR THE past two years, JSF has been participating in the WHEN-TV series "These Things We Share." After their last program, "Dear Mom," they were asked to do this special show for the station.

This program, the largest to date, will include a cast of 24 plus the 18-voice JSF choir, directed by Miss Joan Sugarman.

THE STATION is doing all the art work in addition to supplying two cameramen and a complete floor crew.

Narrated by John Alderman, the story will show a small boy played by Mitch Rothman, son of Mrs. Arlene Rothman, JSF counselor, asking questions about Passover.

Objects such as the wine club, basket, plaque of commandments and Hagadoh will be utilized until the entire story has been told and brought together.

Gene Daugherty of WHEN-TV is supervising the station's part of the show.

Waiters, Hostesses Needed as Servers

'Strawberry' Fete Set for May 8

Waiters and waitresses are needed to serve at the traditional spring weekend strawberry breakfast on May 8.

Although the meal will be served continuously from 8 to 9:30 p.m., students can sign up for two shifts, from 8 to 9 a.m. or from 9 to 10 a.m.

Those interested in helping at this year's fete which will be called "Strawberries with the Stars" should contact Patricia Fay, Kappa Alpha Theta, or Sue Radcliffe, Berwald cottage.

Diners will be greeted by hostesses who will seat them at tables bearing the names of Broadway and Hollywood stars.

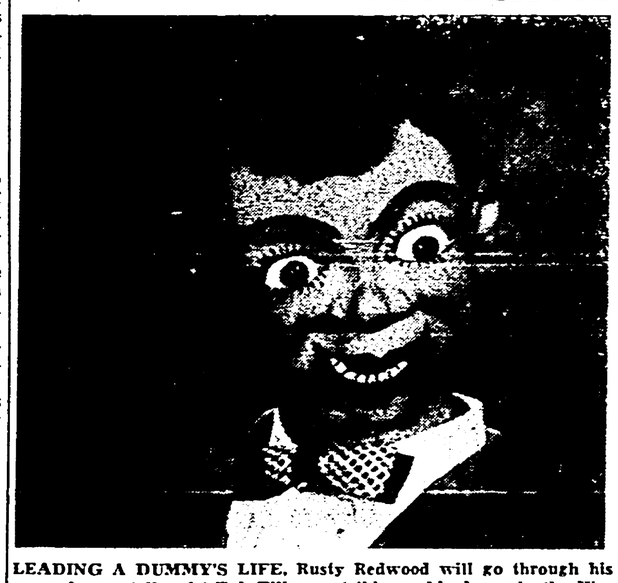
Dance Entertainment Set



LEADING A DUMMY'S LIFE. Rusty Redwood will go through his paces for ventriloquist Bob Fillman at this week's dance in the Women's building tonight. Rusty and Bob are now starring on the "Tip-Top Showboat" show on WHEN-TV.

A tribute dance dedicated to the winners in yesterday's elections will be held from 8:30 p.m. to midnight today in the dance studio of the Women's building.

In addition, ventriloquist Bob Fillman and his dummy, Rusty Redwood, will perform. Currently starring on the "Tip-Top Shoboat" on WHEN television, 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Fillman also has toured with Johnny Ray, Vic Damone, and Edgar Bergen.

Admission to the dance will be free. Identification cards will be required for admittance.

The lounge will be set up with games, including chess, checkers and cards. Also, the weekly concert will be held in the lounge during the dance.

Cadets Will Honor Queen At Ball Tomorrow Night

House Presidents Will Attend Convo

Campus house presidents will meet at 2:15 p.m. Sunday at the Ski Lodge for their annual house presidents conference.

The conference, scheduled to run about three hours, will include a welcoming speech by Vice-chancellor Finla G. Crawford and five seminar discussions led by members of the women's student government assembly.

DR. CRAWFORD will discuss "Educational Objectives" at 2:30 p.m. Following his talk, house presidents will break up into five smaller groups for the discussions.

Each group will have a member of the administration as an advisor. Mrs. Ursula Pettengill will be with the seminar on dining halls, led by Barbara Anderson, recently-elected speaker of next year's assembly.

Pride in the University will be discussed in a group led by Martha Tallman. Advisors for this seminar will be Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith and Miss Ruth Haddock, assistant dean of women.

The seminar on social standards will be chaired by Elizabeth Ann Cramer and the advisor will be Miss Margaret Parker, social director of the University.

MISS KATHRYN COPELAND, director of women's residence, will advise a group discussion on large dorm living. The seminar will be led by Marlene Smith.

Carol Campbell will be student leader of the final seminar which will concern the gifted student. Dean M. Eunice Hilton of the College of Home Economics is advisor to this group.

Those in charge of arrangements for the conference are Martha Tallman, transportation; Roberta Wagner, program; and Carol Wolfe, refreshments.

All women students are invited to attend the conference. Interested coeds should call Carole Leland, 75-7736, if they plan to be at the conference and are not house presidents. Miss Leland will assign each to a panel in order to keep the conference organized. Actual participation is not required, however.

Broadway Costume Featured in 'Gigi'

Shipping From Nassau Involves Customs

Authenticity may well be the slogan by which dramatic activities on campus operate.

An example of this is the recent problem which the drama department had in getting all the original costumes for its production of "Gigi."

The costumes were designed and executed by Karinsky of New York and Paul Porter of Paris, for the original Broadway production of the play.

GETTING THEM to Syracuse, however was no easy matter. The British Colonial Playhouse, Nassau in the Bahamas, used them for the play there, and before all the trunks filled with costumes were delivered to Boar's Head, the New York, Rochester and Syracuse customs were involved.

It was Aunt Alicia's costumes which caused the big problem. The trunk containing her costumes were left at the New York Port Authority. It seems there was the little matter of papers which hadn't been sent from the Bahamas. The trunk still sported a Paris label, and it took quite a bit of convincing to persuade New York customs that this particular trunk was supposed to accompany the others to Syracuse and was not destined for France.

Arrangements had to be made both with New York and Rochester port authorities before Syracuse audiences saw Francesca Trantum in the original costumes of Aunt Alicia.

It may have taken innumerable phone calls and a few aspirin but once again the drama department came through with the original, down to the last of the 20 costumes used in the period production.

Performances of "Gigi" will continue tonight, tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Coronet theater of the drama building. Tickets are priced at $1.20.

Applications Due For Class Day

Applications for class poet, historian and ivy-orator for senior class day are now being accepted, according to John Beach, president of the class of 1954.

The applications should include name, address, qualifications and ideas. They are to be turned in to Barbara Suchy, Delta Gamma; Tess Oesterreicher, Phi Sigma Sigma; or Al Hart, Omega Pi Alpha.

Seniors may also order their caps and gowns now. They are urged to do this early in order to avoid the rush and to insure availability of the right sizes.

Syracuse-in-Asia To Serve Supper

Syracuse-in-Asia will sponsor a Chinese supper from 5:30 to 7 p.m. today in Hendricks chapel lounge.

The meal, complete with chopsticks, will be served buffet style and is open to all students. Tickets priced at 85 cents, will be sold at the door and will also be available all day in Miss Ruth Hoople's office in chapel.

English Professor Travels to Geneseo

David H. Owen, associate professor of English, will present Wallace Steven's "The Glass of Water" today at a meeting of the College English Association of Up-state New York being held at the State University teachers college at Geneseo.

The meeting will concern criticism and its application in the teaching of literature.

Catholic Men Hold Retreat Next Week

The annual Catholic men's retreat of St. Thomas More chapel will begin at Sunday morning Masses in Crouse college.

The Rev. Harold X. Folger, S.J., director of Christ the King retreat house in Syracuse, will conduct the retreat. He conducted the women's retreat at St. Thomas More this week.

The program for the retreats includes Mass and instruction at 6:45 a. . Monday. Confessions will be heard at St. Thomas More from 3-5 p.m. and devotions will be held at 7:30 p.m.

The retreat will end with Mass at 6:45 a.m. Wednesday at St. Thomas More.

Lectors for Palm Sunday will be Clifford Way, Holy Name society vice-president, at the 9:30 a.m. Mass and Robert Curran, Holy Name president, at the 11 a.m. Mass. They will read the passion according to St. Matthew.

George Kepner, vice-president will read the passion of St. Mark Tuesday morning. Vice-president William Healy will be lecturer for the passion according to St. Luke at Wednesday's Mass.

Dean Announces News Posts Offer

Dean Wesley C. Clark of the School of Journalism announced that the undergraduates interested in obtaining a news bureau internship for the academic year 1954-55 may apply through the School of Journalism office.

Applications blanks may be obtained from the dean's office in the school. Applications must be returned to the dean's office by April 30.

Students elected as interns will work in the University's news bureau, performing news writing and public relations functions. The internship program provided the student with a stipend of $500 a school year. Sophomores, juniors and seniors are eligible for the internship.

COURT JUSTICES

Applications will be accepted until Monday noon for justices of the men's student court. Interested men should apply to Stephen Reiss, chief of civil service, building 30.

Invited Officials, ROTC to Dance In Men's Gym

Cadet Association of Syracuse university, will present the annual military ball tomorrow, 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Men's gym.

All members of CASU, which includes both army and air force ROTC units here, may come free of charge to the affair. The cadre of both units, as well as several military officials from nearby units such as Hancock and Collendale, have also been invited to the dance.

THE QUEEN of the ball, who was chosen by CASU members this week, will be crowned at the affair and will receive a number of prizes. She will get a special Italian dinner for two at Lorenzos, and two tickets to "Prince Valiant" at Schines Paramount.

She will also receive jewelry, a "Songs of Syracuse" record album from Olmsted's Varsity Victrola shop, and two tickets to "Up in Lights," courtesy of Scabbard and Blade, military honorary.

Corsages will be given to the queen and the six members of the court.

The seven finalists, from whom the queen was chosen, are: Ann Schenk, Alpha Phi; Doris Hertenlendy, Lund; Carolyn Gilbert, Phillips; Geraldine M. Wilde, Geneva; Susan Eisenberg, Wilson; Ann Hoffman, Wilson; and Barbara Fidelman, Shaw.

THE CHAIRMAN of the decorations committee, Lorraine Chantry and Ronald Wohl, announce that there will be dark drops at both ends of the gym, and colored parachutes along the sides. A reflecting silver ball and gold streamers will also add to the atmosphere.

Crowning the queen will take place at about 11 p.m. Last year's queen will be on hand to crown the newcomer, who will be escorted to the stand by the cadet colonels of the army and air force ROTC corps. The members of the court will be introduced by other ROTC cadets.

Refreshments will be served in the trophy room, according to John Doty and Jo Ann Wallace, refreshments chairmen.

The entertainment will feature the 40 man chorus from the air force language training program at Collendale. William Angelos and Ronald Yaffee are in charge of entertainment.

THE BAND selected to play for the affair is Sam Blumpkin's orchestra, which played for the Freshman weekend "Universally Yours" dance last month.

Army cadets will wear their regular uniforms to the event, but air force cadets are requested to wear white shirts and black ties. The dance committee says corsages will be optional.

The overall chairman for the dance is Clifford Way, a senior air force cadet. In addition to the above committee heads, he was assisted by Arthur Siegel and Richard Wolff, publicity, and Alan Vosburgh, invitations and programs.

NYC Announces 'Special' Schedule

"Orange Special" trains will leave Syracuse at 11:42 a.m. and 12:52 p.m. next Wednesday, the New York Central announced yesterday.

Special roundtrip reduced tickets will be available at $14.34 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Bursar's office in building 24 on University pl.

Train 40, The Missourian, which leaves at 11:42 a.m., will carry students to New York. Train 90, The Chicagoan, leaves Syracuse at 12:52 p.m. and will carry students to New York and Boston.

Special return trains will leave New York at 2:15 p.m. and 4 p.m. Wednesday, April 21.

The spring vacations begins at noon next Wednesday. Classes will be resumed at 8 a.m. Thursday, April 22, and not 9 a.m. as stated in several University catalogs.

Applications Open For Orange Key

Applications from second-semester sophomores for Orange Key, junior men's honorary, will be accepted until Wednesday. Forms are available in the dean of men's office and should be returned there.

The loophole

The announcement that a special honors program for gifted students had been created in the College of Liberal Arts was a bit premature. The plan has not yet received the approval of every body which must consider it, although supporters are hopeful for an early OK sign.

The problem of the gifted student in college is universal. Often hampered by required courses, and non-challenging material, this student, who could gain the most from a college education, is denied that opportunity.

Very wisely, the liberal arts college sought to aid this gifted student and created a faculty subcommittee to work with a student subcommittee on the problem. The proposed honors program which evolved from their work has received favorable comment from various LA departments and was approved by the executive committee of that college.

The recommendation now resides in the LA curriculum committee. If approved, the program would then need the backing of the liberal arts faculty and the University senate.

The honors program would permit qualified students, selected by the department of their major, to substitute a project for two three-credit courses. Under the guidance of a staff member, the student would be able to participate in research in his field bypassing some of his required major courses (and adding six credits to his record.)

We hope that the various committees will approve the program without unnecessary delay—in time for next year.

The remedy

In the days when universities were attended solely by the leisure gentry, the primary end product was the cultured gentlemen. Our modern day of higher education in mass production has deleted much of the culture element.

To be sure, the "culture" has been prevelent. But our present-day student has such a difficult time fitting in classes and a weekly movie that rarified enjoyment goes by the board.

The above thought occurred to us when we noticed that this Sunday offers as fine a combination of inexpensive yet tasteful events as has been with us for awhile.

At 2 p.m. the varsity debating team will argue it out with the team from Pennsylvania in Maxwell auditorium. The topic is Free Trade.

At 3 and 5 p.m. Boar's Head offers another of its film series on the finest comedies from Hollywood.

At 4 p.m. in Crouse Ernst Bacon will direct a lively session of madrigals ranging from the 16th century to our 20th.

And at 8 p.m. an oral interpretation "America: 1954," will be presented in the Drama building.

The word "culture" has picked up a deadly connotation in some places; the remedy this weekend lies with the reader.

The cotillion

The cadets and all the members of the ROTC staff will be arrayed in gala military formal dress for the event.

In a few short years the corps has grown from a small organization into an important part of the nation's military training.

Under the leadership of Cols. Rittgers, Stevens and Halloran and their staffs the corps now has an important purpose.

We congratulate the future officers and their ladies and wish them an enjoyable weekend.

IN THE HALLWAY

A Look at Elections

By ED HARDY

Whereas in 1953 United Students Party captured eight of 13 spots, this year the shoe was on the other foot. Piety Hill Alliance, new to the campus political scene in October, took eight spots.

Included among them were the important men's student government presidency, and presidencies of junior and sophomore classes. Only USP man to garner a top class post was Sam Shawhan, incumbent. Apparently the class of 1955 felt that Shawhan and three other seniors-to-be had done a job that was generally satisfactory this past year. In fact three of the four USP victors were in the class of '55: Jackie Jarrett, secretary, and Gregg Doherty, treasurer, were victorious once again.

Jack Hennessey, PHA's senior class head hopeful, had described the race with Shawhan as "a personal feud." It was their third battle for the presidency together: Hennessey topped Shawhan as sophomores; the junior class spot went to Shawhan, though. This year, when he couldn't get the MSG presidential nomination for PHA, Hennessey figured he's give one more try for the presidency against Shawhan. The voters still liked the Kentuckian, though.

USP's failure could be indicative of things to come on the campus political scene. Last year Tri-Orange party copped but five positions. In October seven of the strongest Tri-Orange houses and five USP houses formed Piety Hill. Tri-Orange flopped in frosh elections and never recovered. The party disbanded before campaigning began for Spring elections this year.

PHA made strong showings over USP in both junior and sophomore class elections Wednesday. The only USP candidate to get in won by a tiny one-vote margin.

Charges of mudslinging appeared to be in fashion where the new Independence party was concerned. The "third party" was the victim of a flier distributed to most frosh dorms during the wee hours of Wednesday morn. "Four independents who claim their independence" was the signature on the smear sheet which said the party was made up of a "group of gung-ho idealists who are going to revolutionize the political system." There was word, though, that members of the other two parties were a bit dissatisified with Independence tactics in the campaign.

The group made a fair showing, taking the soph treasurership out of four offices it tried for.

Independence's influence in the MSG assembly is bound to be felt next year. Five of the party's soph men were elected, one of them getting the largest number of votes cast for any one assemblyman. Votes for Greeks reps in the class were spread over nine candidates so that only three were able to place among the highest ballot-getters.

Biggest surprise of MSG elections came when Sigma Phi Epsilon's junior Dick Koelling failed to pull enough votes for election. He had been highly-touted for the speakership of the 1954-55 legislature.

With elections in the book now, it looks as if the politicians can dismantle their platforms for another year.

And, we might observe, it looks like one happy family for student government next year.

An Education Becomes A Dream

By POLLY REED

Shades of Aldous Huxley's Brave New World

"I slept my way through college," said a Nebraska college graduate when he received his sheepskin last June.

This startling statement came as a complete surprise to the student's professors who had once predicted his college career would end in failure.

Last week the graduate disclosed his secret. He had been "sleep learning."

He made his own sleep-learning device and experimented, because, as he said, "I was working full time and was trying to carry 19 credit hours at college. I was told I was failing, so I figured I couldn't lose anything." Time has proven that he didn't.

"It was hard the first few weeks," said student A. W. Turnbow, "but anyone can learn while he sleeps if he sticks to it. Sleep-learning will revolutionize education once the public accepts it," he added.

Student Turnbow's unusual method of obtaining knowledge was first applied to his course in Russian. "I read two-thousand Russian vocabulary words into the machine, then gave the English meaning to each," he reported. "Results were so successful that I started to read notes from all my courses into the device.

"My fellow students laughed when I told them about sleep learning, but when I started tossing about five syllable vocabulary words, formulas, dates and complete passages from Shakespeare, they changed their attitude," he reported.

Could it be we're closer to one aspect of Huxley's "Brave New World" than most people realize?

ON THE TOWN

Some Weekly Notes On the Weekend

By MICHAEL BRAUN

—LE' CINEMA—

SCHINE'S ECKEL—

Now you too can see why Frankie and Donna won Oscars this year. From Here to Eternity which garnered eight of the precious little things is on view here. Also playing are Deborah Kerr, Burt Lancaster and Montgomery Clift in this story concerning the side of the army that you don't learn about in ROTC. On the same bill is Alaskan Eskimo for which Walt Disney also won an Oscar, his skillionth. Feature Friday and Saturday at 7:20 and 9:55 p.m.

LOEW'S STATE—

Ann Blyth is still singing the "Indian Love Call" across miles and miles of CinemaScope Canadian wilds to Howard Keel in Rose Marie. Fernando Lamas of the pampas completes the triangle, which seems to exist even in the wilderness. Bert Lahr and Marjorie Main make the whole thing bearable. Feature at 7:48 and 10:00 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

MIDTOWN—

The Warner Brothers have spent millions of dollars to show you just what caused all the excitement in Portugal back in 1917. You are there in magnificent Technicolor as The Miracle of Fatima unfolds. Feature, Friday at 8:15 and 9:45 p.m., Saturday at 8:15 and 9:55 p.m.

LOEW'S STRAND—

People never seem to tire of Shakespeare, viz Julius Caesar entering its seventh week. There are some who have seen it ten times. James Mason cavorts as Brutus and Marlon Brando gets off his motorcycle to play Antony. Feature Friday and Saturday at 6:00, 8:00 and 10:00 p.m.

SCHINE'S PARAMOUNT—

3-D returns to the Salt City in The Creature From the Black Lagoon. Our man is polishing his stereo glasses and will write his one dimensioned review for Monday's edition. Also playing is Project M-7 which sounds like something a frosh girls' cottage might have thought of. Feature Friday and Saturday at 7:36 and 10:23 p.m.

—LEGITIMATE THEATER—

CORONET THEATER—

Shirley Fenner plays Friday and Betty Schwartz Saturday in Gigi by Colette. This is the second Boar's Head production this season. The story concerns a girl's awakening to some very basic facts of life. The Misses Fenner and Schwartz do this awakening in the same costumes from the original Broadway production. The settings are by John J. Moore and are one of the most impressive features of the show. Performance at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

—CONCERTS—

CROUSE—

For those who abhor chamber music, detest tocates and fuges and just can't stomach jazz, but love hey-nonny-nonny, this is the thing. Dr. Bacon of the school of music conducts the madrigal group in a group of songs ranging in period from the 16th century to the present. An original madrigal "Five Fables With Music" will be presented as a finale by the group. The performance is at 4 p.m. Sunday in Crouse auditorium.

—ATHLETICS

WAR MEMORIAL—

The cards are on the table as the Nats play the Minneapolis Lakers for the NBA playoffs. Feeling is high in certain places and this should be quite a contest. The battle commences at 3 p.m. Saturday and tickets are selling like tickets to a NBA playoff should.

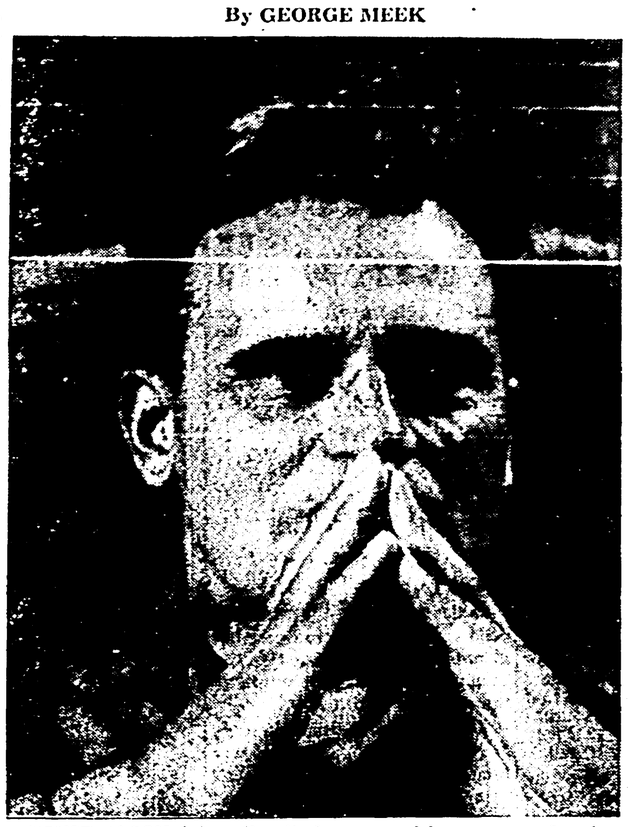
—REMINDER DEPT.—

WARREN STREET—

It's a long, long way from here to Salina and the bus makes the trip much more enjoyable than walking. For those procrastinators in the audience, and there are many, we present the following as a public service. Last buses Friday night: Walnut, 12:45 p.m.; Drumlins, 12:30 a.m. and University 12:30 a.m. On Saturday, University 12:30 a.m.; Drumlins 12:45 a.m. and Walnut 1:15 a.m.

Opera and Musicals

By GEORGE MEEK



ERNST BACON, internationally known musician, muses and rests his chin on the hands that have played pianos in countless concert halls and written nearly all types of compositions.

An instructor in piano and composition for seven years here, Bacon was formerly director of Syracuse's School of Music.

His classroom-studio, which overlooks the city from the second floor of Crouse, is ample and comfortable, with two grand pianos and storage space for music, a great deal of which was written by himself.

Relaxing in one of the comfortable sofas, Bacon tells of the concert planned by the Madrigal singers, a group he organized and directed, to be held Sunday at 4 p.m. Many of his works will be featured at the recital.

"Five Fables with Music," which will be locally presented for the first time, had its premiere at the eighth annual Christmas concert last year in Carnegie hall. Bacon says Raymon L. Irwin, associate professor of speech, will be the narrator for the "Fables."

Bacon, who received his MA from the University of California, also studied at Northwestern university, University of Chicago, and Lewis institute. He has been instructed by several European and American greats in piano, composition and conducting.

The noted musician is probably most famous for his compositions, which he says cover a wide field from opera to musical comedy. He has produced works for piano, two pianos, chorus, violin and cello, and voice. He estimates that he has written more than 200 songs.

Last year's Boar's Head production of "The Tempest" featured music by Bacon. Works which have achieved national acclaim include two symphonies, the orchestral suites "Ford's Theatre" and "From These States," and an opera, "A Tree on the Plains."

He has also written cantatas, or medium length selections. These include "Ecclesiastes," "The Lord Star," and "From Emily's Diary."

The last of these, which contains Emily Dickinson's poems, will be presented by the Madrigal singers at the Sunday afternoon concert.

As a conductor, Bacon can justly say that he has conducted some of the best symphonies in the country. The San Francisco, Southern, Detroit, Denver and Illinois symphonies have all had him as guest conductor. He founded and directed the Bach Festival at Carmel, California.

Ernst Bacon is one of the true greats to which Syracuse can point with pride, and it is too unfortunate that more university students don't have a chance to come in contact with him.

THE 'BUGGERS' BEEF

Slocum Takes Action

By MILT SHEFTER

The problem of the "cheater-eaters" or "buggers" at Slocum Commons will be met by direct action, according to information released by Mrs. Ursula Pettengill, Director of Syracuse University Food Service.

In a statement to the Daily Orange, Mrs. Pettengill said a more complete monitor system would be put into effect in an attempt to stop "line bugging." A host has been hired to watch the lines at supper, and starting today, one will also be on duty for the lunch period.

These "hosts" will request all people they see cheating in line to go to the rear. If the request is not followed, the names will be taken from the meal ticket and turned in for recommended disciplinary action.

Mrs. Pettengill said she felt that if people couldn't appreciate Slocum and respect the rules, they should be asked to eat elsewhere. She also added that the doors have been opened ten minutes earlier since the influx of the extra people because of diet deficiency.

Both Mrs. Pettengill and Mrs. Catherine Marte, supervisor of the Commons, feel this new system will be a success. They report that the host, on his first night of duty, asked some 25 people to go to the rear after they were caught cheating in line, and the request was met courteously and followed.

The officials have literally "taken the bull by the horns" in an attempt to solve the problem. The effect and result remains to be seen.

Answering The Challenge To Wear Shorts

To: Roger J. Herz
From: Flip Sirota
Re: Bermuda Shorts

This is to inform the male contender in this issue, Roger J. Herz, that on the day of Monday, April 12, of this good year, he is hereby summonded to don the apparel of his defense, understood from transactions heretofore discussed to be a pair of Bermuda shorts (man's tsyle) and knee length socks, and to attend to his regular Monday business ON the Hill campus.

This is also to inform Mr. Herz that Wells & Coverly, of 334 So. Salina st., very concerned in the basic controversies that arouse all mankind, have gallantly come to Mr. Herz's rescue and have decided to provide him with the necessary apparel.

Flah & co., of 419 So. Salina st., specialists in women's attire and also interested in the outcome of this controversy, have consented to provide the aforementioned clothing for the female side.

Therefore, all conditions of previous agreements having been satisfactorily fulfilled, on this coming Monday, weather permitting (anything but a snow storm), Mr. Herz is hereby notified to keep his part of the contract, the party of this summons will keep theirs, and the issue will be revealed for all to see.

WAA Squads Play Cornell Titlists at Ithaca Tomorrow

By ALLIE GEFEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

One complete all-star team and part of another was selected by the WAA last night to represent Syracuse against Cornell tomorrow.

Dorris Lemp in the singles and Johanna Clark and Mary Giambattista in the doubles were selected for the WAA all-star badminton squad. Dillie Ronsenthal, Ida Aude, Joyce Grossman, Marilyn Derr and Lynna Stephens were chosen for the WAA basketball team that will meet the Cornell women champs. Three more all-star basketeers were slated to be selected today.

Teams representing Syracuse in basketball, vollyball and badmiton will meet the Cornell titlists. The Syracuse WAA all-star squads have been chosen by the WAA committee.

The three all-star teams will leave by bus Saturday morning for Ithaca. The action will begin about 2 p.m. and the bus, carrying the players, will return home directly after the action has been completed.

Indoor Drills

The frosh baseball batteries will continue indoor practice in the old gym until further notice, Coach Andy Mogish reports. Mogish stated that notice concerning outdoor drills for the remainder of the team will be posted on the bulletin board outside his office.

The Daily Orange was in error yesterday when it reported that the frosh nine would begin outdoor drills at Lew Carr field.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Bruce Yancey returned yesterday from the scene of his biggest sports thrill since arriving in Syracuse four short years ago. More exciting to him than all the touchdowns, lacrosse goals and boxing wins, Bruce L. Yancey was presented with the Syracuse Athlete of the Year award Wednesday night.

It was appropriate that the honor was given to him at an alumni dinner given in a sedate New York restaurant. The setting was like the man—quiet and modest.

Present were two of the three men who have had the most to do with Yancey's meteoric career. The third, Roy Simmons, was detained because of the boxing Nationals. But at the dinner were Ben Schwartzwalder, Orange football coach and Bob Thomases, Bruce's former high school mentor.

Talking about Thomases, Bruce said, "That's the man who has helped me the most." It was he who boosted Yancey to football and lacrosse fame at sports-hungry Sewanhaka high school on Long Island.

Bruce Yancey

Then Schwartzwalder and Simmons took over where Thomases left off. The results are in the book. Bruce was leading pass receiver and third top scorer on the Orange football team.

He went to the finals of the 178-pound Eastern title bouts before being edged in a close fight by rugged Adam Kois of Penn State. An all-American midfield honor came to him last year after his most successful lacrosse season in either high school or college competition.

Those are the highlights of Yancey's career but the biggest happened Wednesday night. As Bruce put it, "I was really impressed."

From all estimates the drive was well over 400 feet and traveled through the Irving ave. tunnel.

Saltine Stickmen Practice For Nittany Lion Opener

Despite the absence of Coach Roy Simmons who is with the Orange boxers at Penn State, the Hill lacrosse team is continuing daily workouts on Hendricks field. Frosh Coach John Echeandia, former Piety captain, and co-Capt. Bruce Yancey are directing the practice sessions.

The stickmen have been drilling for several weeks though hampered by cold weather and adverse field conditions.

All-American Yancey and his mates travel southward during the coming spring vacation for a pair of games. They will invade the lair of Penn State's Nittany Lions for the season-opener on April 19, then visit the powerful Terrapins of Maryland on the 20th.

CROQUET PLAY

Daily Orange spring invitational croquet tournament will be decided at 4 p.m. today on the lawn near Steel hall.

Four finalists, selected after a week of elimination heats, will lock wickets in mortal combat for the championship. They are Hugh O. Muir, Judith Berman and Joan Nadelhaft. The fourth finalist will be determined in another elimination that will be held at 3:30 p.m. today.

Muir, asked for comment, merely looked firm. Mrs. Nadelhaft said she is confident and Miss Berman said, "I will defend my crown to the end!"

Hill Sailors Rest After Cup Races

The Orange tars will have the weekend off after the heartbreaking defeat at Annapolis last Sunday. Although the sailors don't have a regularly scheduled race, they will be working hard in anticipation of the Boston dinghy regatta to be held after vacation.

Capt. Jack Cummings will lead his teammates through their paces on Lake Onondaga this weekend. The Orangemen's main inspiration will come from their desire to defeat MIT, an eastern sailing powerhouse, on the latter's home waters, the Charles river.

The Syracuse frosh team will journey to Kings Point the weekend of the 24th for the Eastern frosh eliminations. A good showing in this event will certainly raise Syracuse's hopes for further strengthening next year's varsity.

Rigger, Jaffe Lose; Frank Guelli Byes Into Semi Finals

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Thumpin' Johnny Granger was the only Orange boxer to fight and survive in last night's first round of the NCAA boxing tournament down in Penn State. Granger will be joined in tonight's semi-finals by 125-pounder Frank Guelli who is resting on a bye.

The first night's battle was marked with falling bodies and big names. Eastern champ Jerry Jaffe and Co-Capt. Vince Rigolosi lost their bouts, as did Wisconsin's Ray Zale in the upset of the night.

GRANGER's 139-pound win was a handy decision over Washington State's Gil Inaba. Inaba, a converted 132-pounder, qualified for the fight by whipping Tony Hansell, Maryland's Eastern champ, in a matinee bout. Next for Granger: Hampton Institute's George Pickens.

Guelli will put on gloves for the first time in the Nationals tonight and look across the ring at Japanese born Seiji Naya, one of the University of Hawaii's two winners in the first round.

In the afternoon, 165-pound Co-Capt. Vince Rigolosi trailed through much of his bout with Hampton Institute's Nelson Alvarez. Rigolosi lost a 2-1 decision.

THE STRUGGLE was a close battle and it was a narrow 2-1 decision that Stiglets got away with at the end of the fight.

Wisconsin had a tough day. When Terry Tynan lost his afternoon bout, it wasn't so bad. But at night, the only defending champ in the tournament, Wisconsin's 178-pound Ray Zale was beaten. The winner: Don Quarles from North Carolina Agriculture and Technical.

Even though Wisconsin lost two men, so did Syracuse. The Orange now have only an outside mathematical chance for team honors in this year's NCAA's.

Rigolosi went down to the Nationals hampered by a bloody-able nose which he acquired in the Easterns. He had been training all week with a bulky, nose-covering head gear that sometimes hampered his vision.

SOPHOMORE JERRY Jaffe, Syracuse's only other loser, also had a scar. A slice of his hairline was taken out in a sparring bout with Johnny Granger about two weeks ago. This cut was not serious by Nationals' time, however.

Whether or not the injuries played any part in their defeats is unknown, but both bruises can now be rated in the: "now it can be told" category.

With Granger still alive, there is the chance that John may take a National crown without taking the Easterns. Guelli who was knocked out only by Wisconsin's Roy Kuboyama this season, will not have to face him in the Nationals.

If both fighters should lose tomorrow, plans were that the Syracuse team would return to Syracuse immediately.

FOR SENIOR Rigolosi it was the closing out of a four year stint. Rigger won the Eastern crown two years ago, but couldn't seem to grab any of the tempting titles this year.

Freshman Crew Squad Prepares For Rugged Four Race Schedule

By ERNIE ETOLL

With four races facing them this spring, the frosh crew members are now engaged in an intensified training program. According to Coach Mike Michalson, this year's crew is looking forward to a good season.

Last fall the frosh learned the basic fundamentals of rowing and did not go on the water at all. For most of them it was their first experience at this sport. Starting in January, after a layoff of two months, they again beban training.

MIKE MICHALSON, frosh crew coach, is putting his squad through intensive practices this week in preparation for the season opening race against Navy, Cornell, Wisconsin and BU on May 1.

THEIR FIRST time on water in shells was in the class day races. Since then the weather has been against them and as a result they are behind in their training program. Actually there have been only four good workouts this year, one two weeks ago and the other one during this week's wave of good weather.

The lineups are at this time a little indefinite as the men have been challenging each other's position with regularity.

For the past few days the first boat has contained Tom Christie at stroke, Pete Beckett, 7; Stan Goldsmith, 6; Dave Acker, 5; Bob Bier, 4; Tom Lotz, 3; Mike Smyth, 2; Carl Blixt, 1; and Ron Fodey, coxswain.

The second boat at the present time contains Walt Hoover at stroke, Jack MacLelland, 7, Jeff Wenig, 6; Bob White, 5; Chuck Crosby, 4; Joel Kobrin, 3; Arnie Dick Green, coxswain.

THE REST of the crew is composed of Dick Kovac, Dick Enz, Bob Williams, Al Stringham, Phil Schulder, Don Taylor, Jack Kesel, Martin Knappe and Sveinn Ellerts. The other two coxswains are Dick Davenport and Dick Horstmann. The coxswains rotate every day and as yet it's too early to pick the starting one.

May I will find the frosh at home in their first intercollegiate race. Opposing them will be frosh shells of Cornell, Navy, Boston university and Wisconsin. The following weekend they will travel to Cornell to oppose Princeton, Yale and Cornell in the Carnegie cup races.

On the next weekend the frosh pullmen travel with the varsity and junior varsity to Washington for the Eastern Sprint championships. There they will compete against all major eastern frosh crews.

Following the first three races of the year, the frosh will begin training for the IRA's to be held on Onondaga lake June 19. Last year's winner, Washington, who has dominated in the frosh races for the last six out of seven years, will again compete. Other strong opposition is expected to come from Navy, winner in 1952, when it swept all three races, varsity, junior varsity and freshman and Cornell.

Last year's crew placed sixth in an 8-crew field. This spring, the crew should improve, as they have good manpower to make up for last year's lighter boat.

Syracuse Grapplers Place High in AAU's

Beyer, Rooney Finish Second in Tourney

Junior Ed Rooney and grad student Dick Beyer have returned to campus after grabbing second place honors in the National AAU wrestling tournament in California last weekend.

Rooney, who recently won the 157-pound Eastern collegiate championship and placed second in the Nationals at the same weight, just missed—by one-half second—adding the medal given for the quickest take-down to his runner-up medal.

"Roon" put his opponent down in 15 seconds in one of the earlier rounds, but one of the heavyweigh t competitors grabbed the trophy from his fingertips by completing a take-down in 14.5 seconds.

Beyer placed second in the 191-pound class. The former Orange athlete won the Eastern Regional AAU title in that weight two weeks ago.

Nats Top Lakers; Tie Final Series

In basketball's world series last night at the War Memorial the Syracuse Nationals evened the set by beating the Western champs Minneapolis, 80-69. Each team has now won two games, both splitting on home courts.

The Nats will play home for the last basketball game of the season on Saturday afternoon. This game will be televised, but blacked out in the Syracuse area.

The sixth game will be played on the Lakers' home court Sunday. A seventh, if needed, will be played next Tuesday at Minneapolis.

Sunday Poetry Show Set

The curtain of the drama building auditorium will rise at 8 p.m. Sunday on an oral interpretation of "America, 1954."

Presented by the oral interpretation department of the school of speech, the program will be divided into two sections. The first part will include a series of traditional American ballads to be performed by a chorus and discussed in a descriptive narrative.

A READING of Stephen Vincent Benet's poetic drama, "Listen to the People," will comprise the second half of the program.

Miss Rosemary Sinnett of the oral interpretation department directs this year's presentation. The department tries to give a performance of a Benet selection each year. Last year the program was "Western Star," written by the famed American poet.

"Listen to the People" is a bitter denunciation of totalitarianism and that which it stands for. Written in 1941, it indicts the forces and people who permit this system to exist.

By changing a few place names, members of the oral interpretation department discovered they could bring the piece up to date, and it will be presented in this manner Sunday.

THE BENET drama will be done through narration, chorus parts and individual voices.

Howard Conklin Will Visit Campus

Prof. Howard E. Conklin, chairman of the state college Department of Agriculture Economics at Cornell university will visit the campus today.

He will accompany a graduate seminar in land utilization on a field trip conducted by Miss Elenor Hanlon to the Tug Hill plateau. He will explain the rural land use by a classification system recently completed at Cornell.

Professor Conklin was the guest of the geography faculty and the seminar students at a dinner held last night at Drumlins.

A CAMPUS-TO-CAREER CASE HISTORY
"I didn't know there was such a job"

EMMETT SMITH, E. E., '50, never heard of telephone traffic work, but what he saw of the job intrigued him. He explains how it worked out.
(Reading time: 40 seconds)
Emmett Smith supervises operation of this training switchboard, which he originally helped to design.
"Communications have always been one of my main interests—in the Navy and at the University of Michigan. So I was very happy when the Michigan Bell Telephone Company invited me to visit their headquarters to talk about a job.
"In Detroit I had a chance to look at a number of departments, including one I'd never heard of before, the Traffic Department. I found that, in addition to the engineering of switchboards, its work involved the supervision and the actual handling of customer calls. It struck me like a wonderful opportunity to combine staff engineering and field management.
"My first impression was right, too, because my work covered both. First, I had on-the-job training assignments in several different kinds of offices—local, Long Distance, dial and manual. Then I worked in engineering, translating estimates of future growth into the actual number of circuits and switchboard positions required.
"Now I'm supervising the operation of one of the boards I helped engineer. Briefly, my job is to see that my district gets the kind of equipment it needs and that what we have is functioning properly. Working with people is another major part of my job, too, because I serve in an advisory capacity to the supervisors of the Long Distance operators.
"Needless to say, I'm happy with my job. A job I didn't even know existed."
Emmett Smith's job is with a Bell Telephone Company. There are similar opportunities for college people with Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation.

Engineering Building 2 Sets Fall Opening

Orientation Slate Suggested to Inform Freshmen's Parents

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Parents of incoming freshmen, September 1954, may become part of the University's orientation program.

Proposed by the academics panel of women's student government, the parents' orientation program would inform mothers and fathers of incoming freshmen about various procedures and traditions of the University.

THE PROGRAM would be conducted at a special convocation for parents, scheduled at a time when freshmen are occupied at house meetings or other orientation activities, probably the first day of orientation.

Presented to the University orientation committee by academics panel chairman Roberta Baliba in March, the plan was favorably received by members of the administration-faculty-student committee. At present the orientation committee is attempting to work out problems of time conflict in the early fall activities, according to Dean of Men Carlton L. Krathwohl, chairman of the group.

The committee consists of Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith, who alternates every other year as chairman, Dr. Theodore Barck of the history department, Social Director Miss Margaret Parker, the presidents of student government and president of the Traditions commission.

As proposed, the parents' convocation will cover about seven major aspects of life and studies at Syracuse university. Parents will be told about the academics program on campus and will hear an explanation of the grading system, averages, the meaning of dean's list, the cut system and meaning and effects of probation.

OTHER TENTATIVE phases to be discussed are the philosophy of permissions for coeds, the advisory system, extra-curricular activities, traditions, sports, the placement program and a brief history of Syracuse university.

The orientation committee will continue discussion and plans for the parents' convocation at their next meeting, which is scheduled shortly after Easter vacation.

Lantern Ritual Practice Begins

Fifty outstanding junior women and fifty seniors have been chosen to participate on the basis of scholarship and activities, Blanche Krischer, chairman, announced.

The ceremony will take place at twilight during the intermission of the step-singing finals. Rehearsals will also be held tomorrow.

Two Eta Pi Upsilon pledges, Elizabeth Bowman and Betsy Wright, are assisting Miss Krischer in planning the event.

'Gigi' Performances to Continue Until Tomorrow, After Vacation

Performances of "Gigi" will be given tonight and tomorrow night in the Coronet theater of the Drama building. The play will also continue another run starting Thursday after Easter vacation. Performances after the vacation will be given on April 22-24, 26-30 and May 1.

MISS SCHWARTZ is a freshman in drama and a Boar's head apprentice. This will be the beginning of a long run for her, as she has been signed to repeat the role this summer at the Massachusetts Brampton playhouse.

Miss Fenner, a senior in drama and secretary of Boar's Head have appeared in numerous Hill productions. Among them are "Night Must Fall," "My Heart Don't Say So," and more recently "Lysistrata."

She has also been signed as the leading ingenue in the Rockville center, Long Island, Summer stock company.

Miss Schwartz will take over the "Gigi" role at tonight's performance and on the Thursday following vacation, while Miss Fenner will take the lead tomorrow night and on Friday April 23.

"GIGI", the second production of Boar's Head 50th anniversary festival year, played last week to capacity houses.

The costumes are those worn in the original Broadway production of a few seasons back and were designed and executed by Karinsky and Porter of New York and Paris.

Gerald Reidenbaugh, drama instructor, plays opposite Miss Schwartz and Miss Fenner. Also starred in the production are Kenneth Bowles, Nancy Edwards and such familiars as Millie McIntyre, Francesca Trantum and Marlene Muller.

Tickets priced at $1.20 may be obtained at the Drama building box office. Phone reservations will also be accepted at 4-2776. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Sickness Strikes Twenty Hill Coeds

Twenty acutely ill coeds suffering from dizziness, chills and nausea reported to the student infirmary last Thursday and Friday, infirmary head Dr. J. Arnold Cronk has told The Daily Orange.

Although the symptoms were familiar, Dr. Cronk said he could establish no particular pattern in eating habits that might have caused the sudden outbreak.

All of the girls have meal tickets for Winchell dining hall and the fact that many other coeds who eat there had the same symptoms in milder form may indicate that food poisoning was at fault.

Possible other causes, according to Dr. Cronk, are a 24-hour virus or intestinal flu, which also lasts for 24 hours. The disease may have been spread in the dining hall or in the individual dorms, as it is highly contagious, said the doctor.

TV Show to Air Hill Prof's Poem

"The Game," a poem by Prof. A. E. Johnson of the English department, will be read on the Good Friday broadcast of the Gary Moore television show, the Columbia Broadcasting company has announced.

Friday's program is from 1:30 to 2 p.m.

The poem appeared in Prof. Johnson's first published volume, "Poems," in 1927.

Concert Scheduled By Music Students

Lillian Willis and Myron Leet, senior music majors, will present a joint student recital at 8:30 p.m. today in Crouse auditorium.

The program, which is open to the general public, will include four selections by Miss Willis and five by Leet.

LEET WILL play "Introduction and Allegro" by Walond, "Toccata, Adagio and Fugue" by Bach, "Finale in B Flat" by Franck, three pieces by Langlais, and three choral preludes by Lenel.

Miss Willis plans to offer Mozart's "Concerto No. 4 in D Major," "Sverdsen's "Romance," Mylnarski's "Mazurka," and Franck's "Sonata for Violin and Piano."

Leet, a student of Dr. Arthur Poister, is a member of the American Guild of Organists. He has been a daily chapel organist, a member of the chapel choir, and a member of marching and symphonic bands. He is secretary of Acacia fraternity.

Miss Willis has had a wide background in music, including appearances on campus radio station WAER, Peekskill (N. Y.'s) WLNA, and the county center, White Plains, N. Y. A member of several music clubs here, she belongs to Sigma Alpha Iota, profesional women's music fraternity.

ATTENDS CONVENTION

Dr. G. Orville Johnson, associate professor of special education, will attend a National Vocational Guidance association convention on "Intergraded Approach in Counseling Mentally Retarded Adolescence" at Buffalo today.

Partially-Done Structure to Serve For Present Time

By TOM LONG

Present construction on engineering building two, located directly behind Machinery hall, is scheduled to be completed May 16. The building will be available for use next semester.

For the present, the structure, 78½ by 143 feet, will consist of only a basement and sub-basement. Future plans call for four additional stories.

THE BUILDING now extends to two-thirds of its completed length. When finished it will occupy the land where the greenhouse is standing and will mark the east end of the new quad.

Flat slab floors and roof are constructed around the building's reinforced concrete frame. The present roof will become the first story floor when future construction takes place. The red face brick exterior walls with limestone trim will match other University structures recently built.

In order to make room for the engineering building, 65 feet of the south end of Machinery hall was removed. Construction was begun October 15, and 217 tons of reinforced steel and more than 2,500 cubic yards of concrete have been used.

Finished floors in the basement and sub-basement will be Kalman specially laid and hardened cement to prevent dust collection. The windows will be constructed of aluminum and the roof insulated against loss of heat in winter and the sun in summer.

MAIN ENTRANCES to the building are located on the north and east sides, but two more will be added when the structure is fully completed.

Rest rooms are constructed with glazed tile walls and ceramic tile floors. Offices will have interior painted walls and ceiling.

Supplies for engineering building two will be delivered on the road between the east wall and Slocum hall. The dip in the road will be filled in and leveled to facilitate drainage and delivery.

Mechanical engineering will occupy the sub-basement completely. Power and propulsion labs which contain test cells, a steam generator and steam power equipment will be located there. Advanced fluid mechanics and aerodynamics laboratories will also be housed on this floor.

Both the electrical and mechanical engineering departments will be represented in the basement. An electrical machinery lab with rotating machines and transformers as well as refrigeration, air conditioning and diesel power labs will be situated there.

When the four additional floors are completed, mechanical engineering labs and offices will all be placed in engineering building two. All electrical engineering equipment will be there except the AC network analyzer which will be in building one.

Persons seeking rides home and drivers, who have space available, should supply their names to the Travel Bureau, located at the receptionist's desk in the Women's building.

Plan for parents

Someone remarked last fall that the University did a superb job of orientating the freshmen, but "wouldn't it be nice if parents could be oriented, too."

This suggestion may very well become a reality, according to various student government officers who have worked on such an orientation program for the past month.

It is not uncommon to find parents unfamiliar with the academic or social program of the University. Perhaps they were not fortunate enough to attend college themselves, or perhaps, their Alma Mater operated in an entirely different fashion.

If a short orientation program could be instituted for parents, it might save many a problem resulting from misunderstanding of the college program or its regulations.

The amount of material which could be covered in such a session, would of necessity, be rather limited. The most important subject would probably be academics, including an explanation of the grading system, and averages. The meaning of the dean's list and the cutting system has also been planned.

An explanation of the latter subject would be one of the most worthwhile. Much friction can be created by a lack of understanding over the difference between high school and college "cutting."

Another topic which should be discussed is the place of extra-curricular activities—what they can contribute to the individual and what emphasis should be placed on them.

It is our hope that this short parents' orientation convocation will be approved and will become a part of next fall's calendar.

Watch out!

There is but one automobile entrance to Syracuse university. It is located near Sims hall and provides for two-way traffic.

During the past week, probably because of the exuberance caused by the first signs of spring, several joyriders have taken the wrong way up the narrow winding road.

As yet there have been no accidents.

One day, however, a movable object—an auto—may meet an irresistible force—a blue beetle bus—and then, brother, WATCH OUT.

'The Dirtied Sphere'

Baseball Season Starts Its Swing

By ROG

The sport of the batted ball and the pitched bottle has returned to the land.

Yea, verily, and the masses congregate in the hills and dales and in place of green grass to watch the dirtied sphere thrown and the sharpened spike aimed.

Here, kind sirs and gentle ladies, is an amusement for the building of fair play and sportsmanship. It is here the novice on the infield learns how to express himself well to his opponent in debate. It was here that the great schools of public speaking, rhetoric and debate were instituted.

Where but on the no-man's land between first and second points of rest can the young gentleman in apprenticeship learn the qualities of patience in waiting for his brotherly tea massociate to advance him by physical power?

The student epicure may learn much in the cathedral of the horsehide. Here may be obtained rare elixirs and other concoctions which are unequaled and unsurpassed any other place on this earth.

The sport is not one of the present alone. The future has much in store, such as the delightful prospect of standing in line three weeks and four days without sleep, food or water to get tickets in the far distant corner to see the annual autumn championship of the universe.

Then, too, there is for the fanatic of the sport the much-welcomed task of many nights of lengthy study in memorizing various averages, means and other statistics on who did what, where, when, why and how.

Some of the gentle readers of this article may meet one of these. If countered on the king's highway with a question regarding "the young child bowling median with the Bostonian Natives," merely shrug the shoulders and seek shelter.

Remember, ladies and gentlemen of culture, that this season is but a short-lived one and we shall return to a normalcy within the short space of several moons.

Also, 'tis better to have lived through a season of baseball and suffered than never to have lived through a season of baseball at all.

Prince-size?

MUSIC TO OUR EARS

Sounds of Spring

The unfamiliar sound of the sparrows, when you listened with one sleepy ear. The "oohs" and "ahs" of girlish admiration of new spring clothing. The unusually slow shuffle of feet across the quad that only today shows its Irish. The faraway tone in the professors voice as he tries to discuss some abstract theory. The myriad of voices at lunch telling of convertibles, baseball games and crew races. The mixing of pigments on the lawn as the artists express their love of beauty, by interpreting it.

The quintesence of enjoyment coming from a couple who are sitting on the grass eating strawberry ice cream cones. The squealing of a little girl as she sees the cone and wants her own. The rustle of crinolins as new spring clothes catch the afternoon wind. The squish of the mud which was too soon forgotten.

The sounds of tinkling glass as the wafering places shift into high gear for the uplift in thirst. The umpires decisions, the players protesting, on the back lot where a boy becomes Babe Ruth. The sighs as one realizes what he has missed all winter. The roar of the shower as it too receives unexpected attention.

The sound of the oxygen tanks, modern, blowing up a blue balloon for a child who knows not of science but only her treasured plaything.

The churning of the cinders on the track as the runners prepare for their season. The blending of soprano voices eminating from chapel as step singing rehearses. The clatter of typewriters in the publications office, still turning out copy with the beautiful sky right outside the window.

Movie doormen looking rather like princes from the Arabian nights proclaiming the efficiency of their theaters air-conditioning. The munching of sandwiches in the open as America gets reacquainted with the picnic. The rythmic beat of the jump rope on the pavement.

The whisper of the calendar in the breeze telling us that vacation is merely hours away. The whistles of approval that greet each lass as she sports her Bermuda shorts on campus. The professors thanking the class for attending despite the detractions.

The gurgle of the goldfish who have miraculously survived the cold and reappear in their peaceful bowls. The small sound of the crocus, harbinger of spring, pushing up to meet the world.

The sound of contentment with everything coming from everybody. The slightly tired sound which is just one more indication. The sound of spring.

NEED FOR PERFECT EYESIGHT

Long on Shorts

There may be a shortage of coffee, $1,000 bills and Taj Mahals, but the only shortage the folks in White Plains are worried about is the shortness of shorts.

It all began when the mayor proposed banning abbreviated summer shorts and sun clothes once warm weather arrives.

Well, the police have been warned by the "weaker sex" to go mighty easy when they determine if the shorts are too short. Said the leader of a local civic group:

"Dress should be left up to the individual. I can tell you this: The first policeman who comes up to me to measure will get his nose popped."

The women in favor of short shorts received commendable support from a number of gentlemen, all of whom happen to have perfect eyesight.

In the opposite corner were many women, most of whom were either (a) overweight, (b) overage or (c) married to those gentlemen with perfect eyesight.

AT THE FLICKERS

King Kong vs. Darwin

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

Field Day for Six Year Olds

Some exceedingly puerile student must have been frightened by a palaontology course. Nobody else could be responsible for the little horror called "The Creature From the Black Lagoon," now at the Paramount.

Science Fiction has been a going interprise in recent literature. With the exception of "The Day the Earth Stood Still," however, all of Hollywood's excursions into this field have been aimed at the six year old mentality. The new entrant, for all its pseudo-scientific gobbledygook, is no exception. This study of a prehistoric monster is calculated to suggest the employment of Charles Darwin as technical advisor, but it owes far less to Darwin than to King Kong.

The creature of the title, is really a rather amiable fellow. It isn't until the scientists start messing around his lagoon that his temper begins to flare. He kills off a few actors, thankfully giving the audience a respite from the dialogue, until he glimpses Julia Adams in a tight bathing suit. Thereupon he begins displaying activity appropriate to "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male" and the rest of the film is a battle between the monster and Richard Carlson for the affections of Miss Adams.

At the end of the film the humans triumph and the kids in audience send up a yelp of unanimous approval.

The whole thing, incidentally, is in Three-D.

QUARTZ CRYSTALS

How a 1¼ hour "gem-cutting" operation became an 8-minute mechanized job

PROBLEM: Preparing quartz crystals for use as electronic frequency controls calls for the highest degree of precision. So much so, in fact, that prior to World War II skilled gem-cutters were employed to do the job.

But during the war. there were not enough gem-cutters to keep up with the demand for crystals in radar, military communications and other applications.

Western Electric tackled the job of building into machines the skill and precision that had previously called for the most highly skilled operators.

SOLUTION: Here is how quartz crystals are made now—by semi-skilled labor in a fraction of the time formerly required:

A quartz stone is sliced into wafers on a reciprocating diamond-edged saw, after determination of optical and electrical axes by means of an oil bath and an X-ray machine. Hairline accuracy is assured by an orienting fixture.

The wafers are cut into rectangles on machines equipped with diamond saws. The human element is practically eliminated by means of adjustable stops and other semi-automatic features.

The quartz rectangles are lapped automatically to a thickness tolerance of plus or minus .0001". A timer prevents overlapping. Finally, edges are ground to specific length and width dimensions on machines with fully automatic microfeed systems.

Most of these machines were either completely or largely designed and developed by Western Electric engineers.

RESULTS: With skill built into the machines—with costly hand operations eliminated—this Western Electric mechanization program raised production of quartz crystals from a few thousand a year to nearly a million a month during the war years. This is just one of the many unusual jobs undertaken and solved by Western Electric engineers.

Quartz stones are cut into wafers on this diamond-edged saw, with orientation to optical axis controlled by fixture. This is just one of several types of machines designed and developed by Western Electric engineers to mechanize quartz cutting.

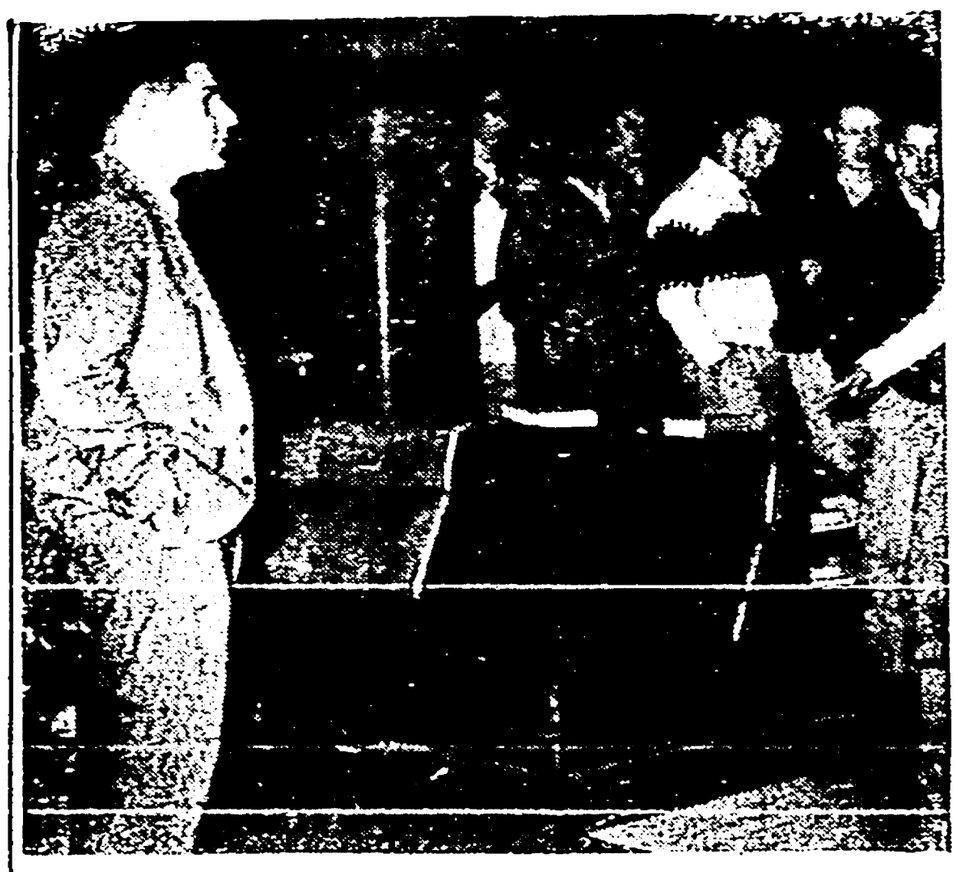
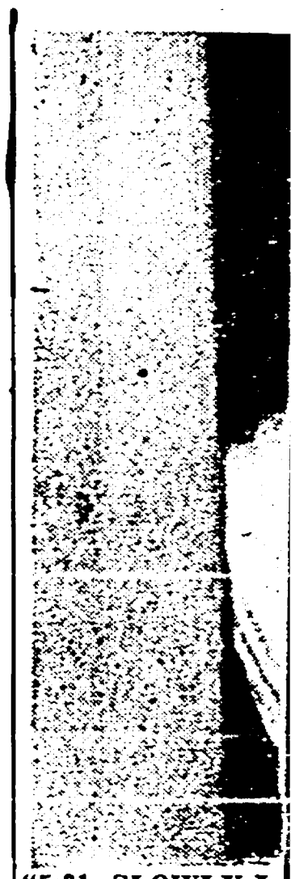
It's Those Line-Breakers in

"THE LINE was up to the door. People scattered all over the steps into the basement. Some had been there since morning. They had lunch in the Coke and Caper. Supper would be in the Commons if their luck held out. What a mob. Some times ya wonder if it pays to go to all this trouble just to eat."



"5:30. THE GUARD was at the other end of the line. I stepped out to look the situation over and saw some people I knew. The line was still up to the door. I shouted to these friends.



"5:31. SLOWLY I was in line. I talk good ad-libber. I Nobdoy did. They

"5:00. THE LINE is already back to the Coke and Caper club. Looks like there might be time for a sandwich before supper since the doors won't open until 5:20 and it will probably take another 20 minutes to move in after the line opens.

MY GOODNESS, will you look at that line! All the way up the steps and almost out the door. One thing for sure is that these guys are in for a long wait before they eat. Maybe they'll get bored and try to "bug in". Watch the birdie.

By MILT SHEFTER

Center Spread Photos by John Johnsrud

We've been beefing on the buggers for a few days now and some results have been seen.

The officials at Slocum have added a host at two meals to watch for line-breakers and he's been catching an average of ten per meal. Some bugging still goes on. One Daily Orange tabulation showed 16 people bugging in a 30-minute period. During this time, the host caught some but not all.

The one fallacy in the host system is the threat behind it. As previously reported, the person is caught and asked to go to the rear and if they refuse, their names are taken from the meal ticket and turned in for recommended disciplinary action. Only one half the patrons have meal tickets however, and as has been stated, almost all the people have bugged at one time or another.

Still, the host system is an attempt to relieve the situation and it must be considered noteworthy in that.

The reason for this increase in bugging is attributed to another increase, that in the lines at the Commons. At the beginning of the semester, 73 new people were added because of diet deficiency. It was thought that the choice-type menu offered at Slocum would be better for their purposes.

People who had had diet deficiencies had been eating at a special diet table at Winchell at an added cost of five dollars per week. At the end of last semester, the table was closed and the people transferred to Slocum. At that time there were about eight people involved.

The word spread rapidly and soon many people showed up at the student infirmary with requests from their personal doctors requesting a change of diet. These were put in Slocum. The number mounted and soon there were 73—compared to the original eight.

At this time, the student infirmiry, with Dr. G. Arnold Cronk as acting director, turned down all further requests. This resulted in some people being denied a privilege they really deserved and a lot of hard feeling developed. Under the circumstances, this was the only course open to Dr. Cronk.

Meanwhile, the lines at Slocum were held up. These new people were not used to the choice-type menu and dwadled in their choice. Multiply that times 73 and you have one very nice delay. This, no doubt, is an excellent cause for increased bugging.

Before this semester, what bugging did go on was too trivial to worry about, except in a few cases. Now, the lines move backwards in places as a result of increased bugging. It is not uncommon to see a person start out even with one of the poles in the Commons, and a few minutes later be behind it.

The ironic part of this whole deal on diet-deficiencies is the fact that there is no way to check these people as there was at Winchell, where each one had a specific menu. At Slocum they are left to their own means, and in many cases, there is no difference between their present menu and the one they had before as far as diet is concerned.

The student infirmary finds itself in the middle about the whole situation. They've had to turn down legal excuses since there just isn't any more room for more people at Slocum. They were not consulted about the change from Winchell in the first place and this confuses their stand even more.

The solution seems to lie in a better type menu in the other hall. Dr. Cronk was quoted as saying, "From a psychological and moral standpoint, multiple-choice menus are better than the fixed type."

If these multiple-choice menus were put into effect, there wouldn't be much scheming as the diet-deficiency to get to Slocum where it is in effect. Without the extra people, no overloading, and perhaps no bugging.

And so, it comes down to mean that if all the dining halls were to offer multiple-choice menus, the one that now does would not be overcrowded.

The University at present cannot support this type of program on their present rate of charges. They are reluctant to raise the charge since they feel the added burden would be unfair to the students.

With the sophomores being automatically on board next semester and the frosh on as usual, it would seem that all would be much happier with a better choice at the table.

NOW THIS is what we'd call an id it except on Fridays or at least a hal dream can't ya. Just think only a fe menu.

He was good at Spanish. He slugged me. Seems I swore at him. Slowly I turned and started the long trek back to the end."

here from 450 to 500 people at one meal. 's enough impetus for anyone to scheme transients, diet deficiencies, faculty-there

AND WHAT do we have here? The time is 5:22 and these three pensive looking gals aren't even in line yet. If they don't hurry, they'll have to wait over a half an hour to eat since the line stretches to the Slocum entrance.

TIME IS 5:25. Line is still same length and the gals are in it already. Could it be that we've caught some "buggers" in the act. For shame gals. Now the people behind you will have to wait even longer to eat.

I Was a 'Bugger' For the Daily Orange

By MEL SHAFT

It was Friday afternoon. The weather had been nice—for Syracuse. I approached Slocum with my head bowed. Since my first two blasts had already been in print, I wanted to be sure I wouldn't be identified. I walked up the steps and in the door. Well, almost in it.

The line was up to the door. People scattered all over the steps into the basement. Some had been there since morning. They had lunch in the Coke and Caper. Supper would be in the Commons if their luck held out.

It was 5:15 p.m. The doors weren't to open for five minutes yet. I estimated at a glance that there were about 293 people in line. Just a rough guess—like you play a hunch some time. Sometimes a rough guess is OK and sometimes it isn't. Just a matter of luck I guess. I was right and the man gave me a cigar.

5:17. Cigar must have been stale. I was sick. Line now getting set for the starting bell at 5:20. 5:19. Everybody on their marks, set, and they were off. The first person gave a shriek and jumped into the steam counter. Came out fast. Hot.

5:21. I was inside the door.

5:23. I was out again. The line was moving backwards. I looked up towards the front. People were cutting in line. I stumbled backward and down the steps. This would never do. This was a battle of the fittest, the law of survival would rule.

5:25. I walked down the steps and into the Commons lounge. There was a guard on duty. He didn't scare me. His gun did. I grinned weakly and walked into the men's room.

5:27. I walked out of the men's room. The guard was still there. I decided my hair needed combing and walked back in.

5:30. The guard was at the other end of the line. I stepped out to look the situation over. Line was still up to door. I saw some people I knew. Slowly I started sidling to them. I shouted their names loudly and smiled. I wanted everyone to know they were my friends. After all, only "buggers" cheated in on strangers.

5:32. After a short conversation I edged in. Nobody said a word. I made it.

5:32:15. An arm reached out and the guard smiled at me. He pointed to the rear. Slowly I turned and started the long trek back.

5:33. I reached the end. I was mortified. There were only five people behind the place I cheated in. Crime doesn't pay.

e. The only trouble is that you won't find our before the line opens. Well, ya can utes and we can dig into that choice-type UMMBOY, LOOK at that food. And we get a choice too. Gee, I pity those poor kids at Sims and the Arms. Set diet. No wonder so many of them have diet deficiencies. Well, enough chit-chat. Let's dig in.

Former Syracuse Athlete Appointed Sports Editor

By JOAN CONNOR

Ballplayer, father, writer, . . . Meet Mal Mallette, 1947 graduate of the Syracuse university school of journalism.

A native Syracusan and graduate of North Syracuse high school Mal recently took over the position of sports editor of the Ashville (N. C.) Citizen.

ON THE HILL, southpaw Mallette played freshman basketball and was a pitcher on the baseball team his freshman and sophomore years. When war interrupted his education in 1943, he inked a New York Yankee contract. Fortunately he was able to play ball while with the Air Force in Europe and upon discharge in 1946, the Yanks farmed him to Norfolk.

As often happens, Mallette got lost in the vast Yankee chain of farm clubs after reaching the Kansas City club of the American Association. In 1949 Branch Rickey, then Brooklyn owner, bought his contract assigning the much traveled hurler to Sacramento.

In 1951 he was traded to Montreal, the Dodgers top minor league franchise. In the Canadiens' uniform Mal reached his peak compiling a two-season record of 23 wins against only 4 defeats. At the end of the 52 campaign, arm trouble forced him to retire.

MAL MALLETTE, former Orange pitching star, who became sports editor of the Ashville times, is shown when he was a hurler for Bill Orange's baseball squad.

In the meantime, Mal married Eleanor Ingram of Ashville, N. C., and they have two sons. He returned to Syracuse university during the winter months graduating as an honor student. Still keenly interested in sports, Mal decided to put his journalism training to good use and turned to sports writing. Until recently, he was staff sports reporter of the Ashville Times. April 5 he became the sports editor of the Ashville Citizen.

DURING HIS SEVEN years as a ball player, Mallette observed the player's reaction and sentiments toward the sports writer which prompted him to write the article, "What Do the Players Think of Him" which was published in the March issue of Quill, the monthly publication of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity.

Among other things he discloses players from the bush leagues to the big leagues object to the writer who will do anything for a story so far as to mingle fiction with facts. He states, "There are many firm friendships between writers and players which have been able to endure because the writers have maintained high ethical standards," but he concludes the honest reporter may suffer from the tactics of his colleagues: "Ballplayers are like the burned child; he fears all stoves."

Athletic Department Regains Pin Lead

Two Teams Tie For Second Place

The Athletic department regained the lead in the torridly contested faculty bowling league with only two more matches left in the season. The leaders captured all nine points in last week's match to total 128.5.

Last week's leaders, the Foresters, clipped to a second place tie with the Engineers. These two have 124 points to their credit. The math department is a close fourth at 121 points.

These four teams are in contention for the championship won last year by the Athletic department. There are 18 points possible for each team yet.

Intramurals In Perspective

By DON HENRY

Daily Orange Intramural Director

During a discussion the other day with Bob Bell, Milt Howard's genial adjutant, a point of local interest came up that merits considerable reflection.

Each year at Binghamton an intercollegiate invitational volleyball tournament is held. It features both varsity and intramural teams from the colleges in the East.

According to Bell, there are three classes of competition. The "A" group is the big college varsity team group. The "B" division contains small college varsity teams and college intramural champion teams. The "C" class claims the so-called "beginners."

Enter the issue. Why doesn't the intramural department send a representative to this intercollegiate open tourney? Or the intercollege playoffs in other intra sports, viz football and basketball? (In connection with this, Phi Delta Theta, the all-University basketball champs, recently defeated the Utica college intra champion five. The Phi Delts were sponsored by a fraternity of the same name.)

The answer is a logical one. The intramural department feels that intramurals should be just that. In other words, intramurals (see definition) would not be intramurals if intercollegiate competition were scheduled in the program.

As far as we can determine, the intra department thinks a hue of unofficial minor sport would be attached to any inter-collegiate competition.

We agree in only one instance, namely if the contest were a two-team affair or a "Big N" type of championship among colleges. Whether this minor sport aura is good or bad would probably be charted at the point (plus-or-minus yes, plus-or-minus no) on a graph of the ensuing debate.

Nonetheless we think that an INVITATIONAL tournament such as the one at Binghamton is very definitely not minor sportsy. In turn we feel that the all-University intramural champion volleyball team should play at Binghamton next year. If the intramural department doesn't sponsor the team, perhaps the sports honorary or the sports staff of this paper could.

The expense would be little, and an open tourney would add a lot of incentive to intramural participants. (This applies, of course, to all intra sports, not just volleyball.) What do you think, intra guys?

* * * * *

Now that the intra interum is upon us, we thought we'd tie up the winter season with a summary of winners. But the ping pong division did us dirt. At this writing, Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Chi were scheduled to swat it out for the Fraternity title. The Greek champs must then meet Skytop-5 for the all-University table tennis crown.

Excluding that sport, the season's resume goes like this. Tau Delta Phi gained two all-U titles—in volleyball and in handball. They are unique in this double-winner respect. The Phi Delts also have a chance to win two sport crowns, however.

The Walnut Ave. boys are favored in the ping pong play-offs and they copped the basketball laurels, as has been parenthetically stated. The Army Comptroller keglers were the only independent team to garner a championship. They won the bowling title.

* * * * *

The spring sports rulings this year are short and effective. Because of the shortage of time, there will be no playoffs in any sport. Single-loss elimination will rule.

This is a good idea for another reason too. In the sports wherein a regular season and playoffs are scheduled, there are often too many forfeits. Under this one-and-done system of elimination, forfeits should diminish greatly.

The spring sports ledger includes softball, golf, tennis, horseshoes and track. The latter is a one-day affair. Last year, the turnout by both participants and fans at this event was very encouraging. The track meet this year will include the same events.

They are: 100-yard dash, 120-yard low hurdles, 440-yard relay, 880-yard relay, shot put, and high jump. The meet will be held on Saturday, May 15. That date should indicate an even better fan attendance than last year. Here's hoping.

Tennis, Golf Call

More candidates are still being sought for the varsity tennis and golf squads. Those interested in tennis should contact Coach Frank O'Brien at the journalism center while future golfers should see co-Capt. Bob Mandeville.

The Orange golfers swing into action immediately after the Easter vacation while the netmen have their opener in early May.

O'Brien Raises Hill Tennis Hopes

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A few months back, men's student government assembly was debating the issue of minor sports. How can we aid minor sports was a question frequently asked in discussions. Part of the answer to this question can be seen in the record of tennis mentor Frank O'Brien.

After Art Prochaska had resigned as coach in 1950, Hal McGrath became player coach. McGrath did a creditable job, but as coaching is a full time affair, he found it increasingly difficult to keep up both his playing and coaching ends.

AS A RESULT of his dual function, McGrath's game fell off, while the team was still shy of a full-time coach.

Soccer, fencing, sailing, skiing and tennis had just been cut off from University support. Interest in the game was falling. In a word, the situation certainly looked dark.

At this time, O'Brien was asked to take over the coaching reins and he did so in early February of 1953.

Free to devote his time exclusively to the playing end of the sport, McGrath's game improved. Of far greater significance, however, interest in tennis started to revive. More candidates began to show up for practice and a team spirit developed that was previously lacking.

SYRACUSE ALSO started to win, as the squad swept tournament after tournament in the summer tennis circuit. Tennis had made a comeback in both a quantative and qualitative sense.

The man responsible for this change is Frank O'Brien. As his father was president of the triple A American association and secretary of the New York Giants baseball club, the journalist instructor long had an interest in athletics.

The Orange tennis mentor is a natural athlete. In high school, he participated in swimming, water polo and soccer at Townsend Harris Hall high school, also termed the "sweat shop," as it graduates students in three instead of the usual four years.

At college, O'Brien won a letter in football, while also participating in baseball, swimming, soccer and basketball.

MEANWHILE O'BRIEN had cultivated an avid interest in tennis, as a sport in which one can participate even when well advanced in age. Needing little organization, as only two men are needed for a game, tennis became O'Brien's major interest in the athletic field.

When he was thus offered the coaching job in the fall of 1952, O'Brien saw a chance not only to further his study of the sport, but also to help get tennis re-established on campus.

One of the first things he did on assuming the coaching duties was to teach a new stroke to certain team members who he thought would profit from it.

The system O'Brien teaches requires learning only two different grips: one for the forehand and one for the backhand. An additional advantage of this system is that the stroke in the forehand is identical to that in the backhand.

WHILE THE new stroke taught by O'Brien has undoubtedly aided in building better players on the squad, it has not been the main cause of success. As Coach O'Brien has once again proved, progress can be made when one sets out determined to do so.

The answer to the question "how can we aid minor sports," is manifold. One sure method that will help as O'Brien showed, is effort. Let this be a hint to those who limit their campaigning for minor sports to verbal efforts.

Hugh MuirTriumphs In Croquet Contest

Hugh O. Muir, editorial director, copped first place in the first flight of The Daily Orange Spring Invitational Croquet tournament Friday. Al Bartevicius placed.

Judith Berman and Joan Nadelhaft came in after them. Miss Berman, touted as a strong contender, will enter the second flight. She said yesterday, "I will fight to the end to regain my crown."

Freshman Crew Continues Practice

The team and Michalson are looking forward optimistically to a fine season. This year's second boat appears much stronger than last year's first which was able to cop 6th place in the IRA's last June.

Voice of the Turtle: Spring's Here

By PAUL B. SEXTON

Spring, as they say, has definitely sprung.

A fluffy haze has settled on the southeast part of Syracuse and the only way it's noticed is in the things we do on these warm days.

Browning said that in the vernal season all's right with the world. It's "all right," that is, as long as we can sit back and nurse the fever that calls for no temperature except the temperature outdoors.

And it's "all right" so long as we don't have to exert ourselves to enjoy it.

Lovers enjoyed spring this week. The parks were jammed.

Cynics predicted it wouldn't last. They looked for show over the weekend.

Convertibles, tops down, folded their wings, and some of the more inconsiderate pilots began racing up one-way drives the wrong way.

The teachers began taking attendance.

It was a quiet day, somewhat breezy.

Dusk fell; the light seemed bright, but the brightness became clouded in blurry halos.

Voices seemed louder on the streets. Maybe there were more of them.

There seemed to be a lot of people with a lot of things to do.

But no one seemed to want to do anything.

And up on Mt. Olympus, if the stars were out at all, there were those that would find them.

And the University policemen would find those who were looking for the stars.

And from a high place the smokestacks of the city and the mud and the soot and some of the older buildings were beautiful now. A mass of colored constellations far away in the blackness of the sky.

The spring awakening. Everyone felt like dreaming. And nobody felt like awakening.

Neither do we.

So we'll stop now. There's a croquet game going on outside.

Semester Registration Totals 12,006 With 8,649 on Hill

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

On-campus registration for the current semester is 8,649, a drop of 152 from last fall, Registrar Keith J. Kennedy told The Daily Orange yesterday.

Second semester registration has increased only once, in spring 1946, he said, when a large group of veterans upped the on-campus figure to 7,405 as compared to 5,716 the previous fall, he said.

Causes for the normal drop in figures in the spring semester, he noted, include January graduates, small number of new students, and drop-outs.

A total of 12,006 students are enrolled in the 14 schools on campus and at University and Utica colleges. This figure does not include registration at the New York state School of Medicine at Syracuse.

Class breakdowns are as follows:

Sophs to Sponsor Open Jive Session

"Spring With A Swing", the Soph-sponsored jazz concert, will feature Jimmy Cavallo and his five hep cats.

The session, scheduled for 2-5 p.m., Saturday, April 24, in the Trophy room of the men's gym, will highlight the post-Easter season with peppery dixieland and rock-house jazz.

Richard Zallen, Phi Epsilon Pi, chairman of the fling, announced that the campus will be given the latest on the concert through house meetings, posters and fliers.

Every hep kid and his coed are invited to come to the session. Refreshments will be served along with the jazz.

Engineers to Hold Canada Field Trip

During the Easter vacation, the local chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will hold a field trip to several major Canadian projects.

Francis T. Sendker, chapter president, will lead the tour through Canada. The highlight of the trip will be a visit to the new hydro-electric project at Niagara Falls.

Here huge tunnels are being constructed to carry water around the falls to power generators below the Falls. The group will visit several other construction sites.

Military Queen

Traditions Committee To Select Goon Squad

Samuel Braun and Lois Cohn were recently named co-chairmen of the Goon Squad for next year, according to Ward Ingalsbe, president of Traditions commission.

The two will take charge of accepting applications for the Goon Squad immediately. All applications should be handed in to Braun at Phi Gamma Delta or to Miss Cohn at Shaw dormitory before Easter vacation.

ONLY UPPER freshmen may apply. Their applications should include a personal photograph, name, address, telephone number, high school and campus activities anl any suggestions for improvements of the orientation program.

All applicants will be interviewed by members of Traditions about a week after Easter vacation.

The Goon squad is composed of approximately 150 members. They returned early in the fall to aid in the freshman orientation program. Other work of the squad is assisting at pep rallies and conducting the placard cheering at football games.

Positions on Board Now Open to Coeds

Governing Board Reps Aid in WAA Policy

Applications for sophomore, junior and senior class representatives to the WAA Governing board may be picked up in room 202 of the Women's building until Friday, April 23.

All freshmen, sophomores and juniors are eligible to apply for the positions; applications are due by April 23 to either Theta Phi Alpha Delta Gamma or the WAA Board room. Board room hours are 1 to 2 p.m. and 4 to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 1 to 2 p.m. on Friday. No previous WAA experience is required.

The senior class representative, important in policy-making, is responsible for WAA social functions, and directs the annual blazer sale.

Acting as publicity chairman of WAA, the junior class representative, also important in policy-making, assists the Vice-president, while the soph rep assists the program chairman of the organization.

National Honorary Offers Membership

Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honorary is accepting applications. Any major in a social science, including history, geography, political science, sociology, economics, psychology, and similar majors, of junior status and above, with a culmative and major average of 2.0 is invited to apply.

Interested students are to contact Don Ackerman, 215 Wellesley rd, by April 21. The spring lecture and program of the group will be presented May 6 with the annual organization party and initiation scheduled for later in the month.

Rev. Arthur Mielke Will Address Club

Powers' club will meet at 7:15 p.m. today in the city women's lounge of the Women's building, co-chairmen Dorothy Hill and James Olcott announced.

Rev. Arthur Meilke of Park Central Presbyterian church will speak and lead a discussion on the meaning of Easter.

Powers' club is open to students planning full-time religious vocations. Dr. Neil Richardson of the department of Bible and religion is the club's advisor.

Outing Club Slates Election of Officers

Elections of officers of the Outing club will take place today during the general meeting from 7:30 to 10 p.m. on the fourth floor of Lyman. The slate is as follows:

Cahrles Ward, president; Philip Hamilton and Himothy O'Keefe, vice-president; Donald Moore and Timothy O'Keefe, activities director; Jim Holt, treasurer; Jane Rosebrook, corresponding secretary; Richard Pittman, recording secretary; Toni Spano, historian; Toni Spano, membership chairman; Nancy Farnsworth, social chairman.

Film slides of this year's Folk festival will be an added feature of the meetings.

ORANGE GUIDE

Orange Guide committee will meet at 7 p.m. today in 207 Maxwell. The committee will discuss plans for rewriting next year's Guide to tie it in better to the orientation program, and to add more information for the parents of prospective students.

Tickets for Musical Will Sell Tomorrow For Special Price

May 5 Opening Set For Senior Show, "Up in Lights"

Tickets for the musical comedy, "Up in Lights" will be sold at a 25 cent reduction until tomorrow in the box office of the Astor and in the Drama building.

The sequel to last year's "White Bucks and Tales" will open Wednesday, May 5 at the Astor until May 8. Curtain time for all performances is 8:30 p.m. However, the performance on Saturday May 7 will begin at 7:30 p.m.

TICKETS FOR the senior show are regularly priced at 2.50, $2.00 and $1.50. The box offices will be closed during the Easter vacation.

Students who wish to attend the musical in a group will also be given special consideration. For blocks consisting of 20 or more persons a 10 per cent discount will be given.

If these groups make arrangements by tomorrow they will receive 25 cents off on each ticket plus the 10 per cent discount for the group.

All reservations made after tomorrow must be picked up by Tuesday, May 4. Tickets may be obtained by calling the box office building at the Drama building, at the Drama building, 4-2776.

Final Grad Dance Scheduled for May

Grad send-off, the grads last dance of the semester, is scheduled from 9 p.m.-12:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 1, in the Dance studio of the Women's building.

Bill Martin and his Ohioans, the same combo that played for the successful Christmas party, will provide the music. Tickets are priced at $1.00. They may be obtained from any of the committee members.

Over-all chairman of the affair is Marion Waterman. Assisting her are Joy Lines and Fay Paulsen. Clair Olds is refreshments chairman; Dell McDevitt heads the decorations committee, and co-chairmen of publicity are Mary Lynn Dewey and Jack Mallon.

This dance, as other grad functions, is being sponsored by the grad commission.

Assembly OK's '54 Convocation

A senior convocation open to the entire student body of the Class 1954 was approved by senior assembly last Thursday night.

The convo will be held on Monday, May 3. All seniors are invited. It has been planned in order to give graduating seniors a specific outline of events on graduation weekend.

Dean Edwin Smith is in charge of the entire graduation exercises and will be present at the convo to outline the events and give the procedure for the exercises.

Dean Smith also will give a breakdown on the graduation fee which all seniors must pay in order to obtain their degrees.

LAST DO

Today's issue of the Daily Orange is the last one before the spring vacation. Publication will cease for a week and a half, and will resume soon after the holidays. Both editorial and business offices will be closed during this period.

Senior Ball Will Feature Music of Woody Herman

By LIZ GODDARD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Woody Herman and his orchestra will provide the music for the Senior Ball on Saturday, May 8, co-chairmen Winifred Dawe and James Carr announced.

This will be the group's first appearance in the United States this year, since it is returning from a European concert and dance tour on May 6.

One of the country's leading jazz proponents, Herman appeared at the War Memorial in Syracuse last spring. Recordings of his music are made by the Mars Record co.

The theme for the Spring Weekend dance has been selected but will not be announced until after Easter vacation, the chairmen said. Colors for decorations, pink and black, will be in keeping with the theme, however.

Formal dress will be optional for the dance which will be held in the gymnasium of the Women's building. Plans for the evening are being made to utilize the entire building.

Mailed publicity will go out to students this week. City and off-campus students will be given an opportunity to order tickets, selling at $4 per couple, with enclosed order blanks and envelopes.

THE DANCE COMMITTEE has been working closely with the senior class executive council and assembly in planning the details of the final University formal of the academic year.

"This year's committee has spent much time and effort to plan a superior evening in terms of music, decorations, entertainment and added features," John Beach, senior class president, said.

Applications for the position of entertainment chairman will be accepted this week and immediately following vacation. They should be submitted to Miss Dawe, Alpha Chi Omega, or to Beach, Phi Gamma Delta.

Special professional entertainment is planned for the intermission periods utilizing some Hill talent.

Campus Debaters To Meet Princeton After Vacation

Syracuse university's debators will meet two teams of forensic members from Princeton on April 23 in rooms 304 and 309 in the Women's building. The debates have tentatively been scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

Last Sunday, the scheduled debate between Syracuse and Penn State was cancelled as Penn was unable to make the trip due to a last minute emergency. Alex Strasser, secretary of the Hill forensic society, and Rudolph Johanns, the debater who has participated in more debates than any other Syracuse debater, were scheduled to defend the affirmative side of the national debate United States Adopt a Policy of question: Resolved: That the Free Trade."

Douglas Ingalls and Strasser will defend the negative side of the national debate question against Princeton while Howard Osofsky, president of the Hill forensic society; and Max Baratz uphold the affirmative side of the question.

This will be the first time since pre-war days that Princeton will meet Syracuse in a home debate. Guests are invited to attend either or both debates.

Following the Princeton debate, Syracuse will have its next home debate against Canisius on April 20. The Hill debaters close their debate season at the Albany legislative conference which will be held sometime in May at Albany.

Over the weekend, four Syracuse debaters participated in the Rochester invitational debate tournament. St. John's of Fisher won both the team and individual trophy in the tourney, in which the Orange finished with a 3-3 record.

Camilla McCarthy and Kevin Wilson won two of their three debates on the affirmative side of the national debate topic while Strasser and Ingalls won one of their three debates.

An interesting sidelight of the tournament was the victory of the affirmative team of St. John of Fisher's over Ingalls and Strasser. Two weeks ago, Strasser and Ingalls decisively decisioned the same team from St. John's while going on to win the LeMoyne debate tournament. St. John's of Fisher turned the tables last weekend by first tripping the Orange negative team and then going on to cop the tournament.

Applications Out For Civil Service

Applications for New York state civil service exams are available now. Forms will be accepted until April 30.

Chancellor Analyzes Middle East Situation

Poverty, ignorance and ill health are the three basic problems in the Middle East, Chancellor William P. Tolley told citizenship students yesterday.

Don Williams' film program in that area, which provides films geared to the people's interests and needs, was listed as an example of the right kind of help. This series covers such subjects as midwifery, first aid, sanitation, farm methods and care of children.

"NEITHER THE British nor the French seem to understand our approach to the individual, our concern for human value," Tolley said, stressing the importance of American ideas in education abroad.

Student exchange programs, the need for experts abroad, and promotion of private foreign investments were also mentioned as advisable.

In economic matters, the Chancellor called for treaties with foreign countries which would improve the climate for foreign investment as well as loans for economic development by the international and export-import banks.

COMPARING THE problems of Indo-China with the current situation in the Middle East, the chancellor stressed the seriousness of the latter problem.

"Looking at the problem from the point of view of our national security, Indo-China is a penny ante game compared with the stakes in the Middle East," he stated. "We have seriously underestimated the strategic importance of this critical area."

"Temporarily we have a world surplus of oil, but if war should come again, the oil of the Middle East might provide the margin between victory and defeat," he warned.

The chancellor recently returned from an extensive visit to this area of the world. His citizenship lecture was the first presentation of his findings to the student body.

Outing Club Given Adirondack Trophy

Group Receives Award For Mountaineering

Syracuse university's outing club has been awarded the Adirondack Loj Torphy, awaarded annually for supremacy in winter mountaineering among New York and western New England colleges.

This, the sixth of the yearly awards, was given by the Adirondack Mountain club Saturday night at the annual Winter Mountaineering conference at Cornell university.

The decision is based on the number of man-days spent in the mountains during the winter, the number of peaks of over 4,000 feet climbed, and the difficulty of the ascents. Syracuse also won the award in 1951.

Baby Sitter Saves Officer's Children

A teen-age baby sitter led three children to safety early Sunday morning when fire broke out in a cottage owned by Col. and Mrs. William E. Hoy on E. Seneca lake rd. near Waterloo. Col. Hoy is on the air force ROTC staff at Syracuse university.

Polly Kipp, the baby sitter, took the Hoy children—William, 7, Richard, 5, and Barbara, 4—to safety when flames of undetermined origin struck the Hoy house and three adjacent cottages. Col. Hoy and his wife were not at home when the fire started.

JSF to Sponsor Passover Meals

Students desiring Kosher Passover meals next week may place their reservations with Mrs. Arlene Rothman at the Jewish Student fellowship desk in Chapel.

If tickets are purchased in advance, the cost for seven meals from Thursday April 22 to Sunday April 25 will be $12.50. The meals will be served at Temple Beth Israel, 601 Irving ave.

If cost or payment is a problem, special arrangements can be made for the Kosher fare, through Mrs. Rothman.

CRAWFORD SPEAKS

Vice-chancellor Finla G. Crawford will speak to the students in the chapel training program at the last session before vacation. The meeting is planned for 4:15 p.m. in the Colonial room of Hendricks chapel.

University Sculptor Gets Culture Medal

Ivan Mestrovic, sculptor in residence at Syracuse university, was awarded the 1954 Christian Culture Award medal of Assumptian College, Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

Mestrovic, chosen to receive the honor by a unanimous vote of the award sommittee, was presented the medal Sunday at the college, Rev. J. Stanley Murphy, C. S. B., chairman and founder of the Christian Culture series said.

During the last few months, Mestrovic has finished busts of Chancellor William P. Tolley, Chancellor Everett N. Case of Colgate and Francis Cardinal Spellman.

Bestowal of the award, unique in Canada and recognized through out the Christian world, was first made in 1941 upon Sigrid Undset, Norwegian novelist.

Poetry Contest Entry Blanks Due

All University students are eligible to enter the Whiffen Poetry Prize contest, with deadline set for May 3.

The prize, established by Mr. Erwin T. Whiffen, an alumnus of the University, is given annually for the best poem submitted by any student in any department of the University. The contest is not restricted to students in English classes.

This year's prize of $25 will be awarded by a committee from the English department. There are no restrictions on form or subject matter, but all poems should be submitted typed in duplicate.

Air Force Commencement To Feature AF Secretary

Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, H. Lee White, will be guest speaker tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. at the United States air force language training program commencement in endricks chapel.

At the ceremonies White will be presented with an honorary Doctor of Laws degree by Chancellor William P. Tolley.

ARRIVING AT Hancock field today in an Air force plane, White will be met by University officials and Col. Robert Halloran, USAF, commandant of the Air Force ROTC detachment at the University. White will be accompanied from Washington, D. C., by Col. K. O. Dessert, USAF.

White will arrive on campus tomorrow morning and will be met in front of Hendricks chapel by the AFROTC honor guard and band. After reviewing the honor guard, White and his parties will proceed into the Chapel for the commencement exercises.

Also attending the graduation will be Maj. Gen. Ralph P. Swofford Jr., commander of the USAF Institute of Technology and Col. W. R. Middleton, chief of the civilian institutions division, USA FIT, Wright-Patterson Air Force base, Dayton, Ohio; Brig. Gen. D. C. Doubleday, commander, Griffiss Air Force base, Rome and Col. Robert Israel, commander, 32nd Air Division, Hancock field.

A native of Oswego, White was appointed to his present position by President Eisenhower in February, 1953. He is responsible for the management functions of the Air Force, which include supervision of the Air Force's military and civilian personnel programs and policies, as well as educational and training policies.

A graduate of Cornell Law school in 1937, White practiced law in Binghamton for several years. Before his government appointment, he was a partner in the law firm of Cadwalder, Wickersham and Taft in New York.

Serve last first?

Additional action will soon be taken by the University concerning the long lines in the Commons.

Miss Kathryn Copeland, of the Dean of Women's staff, announced yesterday that there will be a meeting of all coeds having "diet deficiency" permits immediately after Easter. She will clarify the University policy on such cases and ask their cooperation.

Numerous stories have been written about the situation during the past week—the length of the lines and the large numbers of line-breakers. The University was well aware of the problems and had set up a "host" to chase the crashers to the end of the line.

We discovered, however, that this one host could not patrol the whole line at the same time and that some line-breaking was still occurring—and that many people were still annoyed at the conduct of those who chose not to wait their turn.

One of the reasons why the lines had grown longer than usual was the addition of 73 students on "diet-deficiency" permits.

However, even if the number is cut, this will not attack the main source of the complaints. The real problem lies with the students eating there. They do not realize that the Commons is operating to serve a large number of students and faculty, the same as any other restaurant. These thoughtless students do not believe in acting the way they would in a regular restaurant.

They think that "last come, first served" is the appropriate motto and use every unfair method in proving it.

It's not up to the University to provide "more and better" monitors for such lines; it shouldn't even be necessary with college students. Instead we suggest that each line-breaker think of someone besides him(her) self and wait his turn.

The University is doing its part in attempting to regulate the "diet-deficient" students—now the students must do theirs.

There's more to life

Anyone who tells you that poetry is a dying art may be absolutely right—unfortunately.

It seems that, in these days of atomic and hydrogen bombs, of steel and of square concrete blocks, that many of the arts are fading.

Erwin T. Whiffen, an alum, gives $25 annually to the student in any department who submits the best original poem.

Entries for the contest are now open. The only qualifications are that the poem be typed in duplicate and submitted to the English department.

We can think of some qualifications for a poem.

It should express something in which you really believe.

It should be clear. Though it may employ symbols, it should be such that the reader, if he is at all intelligent, will be able to understand the thought you are trying to convey.

It doesn't have to rhyme, but it may.

You don't have to write in a standard form like the jambic penatmeter, but you may.

Why not try it. Take all your thoughts, think of all the expressive words in the English language—their rhythm, their beauty, their meaning—and then write your poem.

Don't write it just for the $25. Write it because you feel like writing it. Otherwise, forget the whole thing.

Write it about a night you'll never forget, or about the crumbling of civilization, or about your girl friend.

But write it. And when you do, remember,
"A poem should not mean
But me." (MacLeish)

"MOUSE" lives in our television set. The fellow is timid, tiny and obviously not too choosy as to his domicile.

Our first notice that he was there occurred during one of the less gripping suspense shows last week. In a lull between clipped sentences we heard a scratching eminating from the screen that a few seconds ago had been given over to threats and gunshots.

Refreshing.

Two days went by before we met whisker to whisker. 'Twas then that we realized that he had picked his noisy post as a permanent one. We visualized him nibbling on an almond, (he raids the nut bowl on the way in), and enthralled with the weird screechings around him.

We rather envied his view of things from the back. Pulsating tubes and a jumble of hums seemed far more intriguing than the screen that faced our desultory view.

It all came to a head yesterday. Our copy of Punch arrived in the mail and we met ourselves face to face on the third page. There, in gloomy pictorial, sat an emaciated form of Rodin's "Thinker" staring pensively into a TV screen.

The title was "The Non-Thinker."

Our first thought was of "Mouse." We were sure he wasn't brooding atall in the cabinet. We visualized him rocking in glee at the charged atmosphere, not having to face any of the stupid realities on the screen.

OUR GOVERNMENT is always objective.

A Syracusan sent to his senator for some information regarding alcoholism, a subject he was writing a paper for.

One bright spring day a heavy bundle of information arrived. Several colored government pamphlets were contained within the aforementioned bundle.

The student read on, taking notes. He got to the end of one pamphlet—a discussion of a hearing.

The final sentence in the volume read, "That is all the time we have. Meeting adjourned."

IT'S A SEASON so important it is unfortunately stereotyped from top to bottom, start to finish, and Alpha to Omega.

Something has really come to campus. Call it spring, summer or anything your thesaurus will offer you—the fact is apparent:

The male begins once more to notice the female of the species . . . a beautiful warmth enters the world . . . sky never so blue . . . grass ne'er as green . . .

There never was a feeling like this before. Never was there so magnificent a world. Never again will there be . . .

. . . Until next year.

AN OMINOUS note has been struck across the water. Over in Israel 2000 doctors have gone on strike, a 24-hour "warning strike" for higher pay.

We recall a theme from the Hippocratic oath that promises to serve to correct the ills of mankind if at all possible. It is unfortunate that the very mankind that is protected by the medical profession brings things to such a state.

We suppose the lawyers will take to the picket line next.

If they do . . . we'll sue.

JUST as some students like to leave school before that fatal noon hour when it is all quite legal, we note a trend in the direction. One professor has scheduled a class from noon to 12:50 p.m. Wednesday. This may be of far-reaching significance. Students will cut back one, two, three days for the extra weekend; and faculty will extend classes, hours, then days and soon we'll have the damndest studentless classes yet seen.

◆

COMES the merrie season of spring once more and the groundhog comes out into the air for good. Same with people, too, it seems.

We were sitting quietly in the Dutch last night when one of these characters walked by.

"Hi!" he said, and walked on.

Then, turning around after two more steps: "And say, by the way, thanks for the Christmas card!"

◆

TRUDGING ACROSS our dry campus the other day we noticed an advertisement on the side of the Skytop bus. It blazoned a plea for consumption of a certain type of wine.

We were enthralled. This, we supposed, was appealing directly to the audience most concerned.

Who was the Gal?

By MILT SHEFTER

Spring Sneaking Dept.: The query of the days seems to be, "who was that couple kissing on the front page of the DO?" Most interest, of course, centers around the gal, and the grapevine has it that she's an L.A. senior from a cottage on S. Crouse. (With apologies to W.W.) The irony of the while thing seems to center on the fact that Historic Oakwood is in actuality a cemetery on Comstock. Seeing isn't always believing.

• • •

And speaking of spring reminds us of spring housecleaning. And spring housecleaning, we somehow associate with the digging aside of Slocum. (Dare we mention that place again?) The shovels have arms which stretch up into the horizon, but the other end works closer to earth. The only trouble is it's also close to the greenhouse. The bookies, in between-season slump, are giving the odds glass will tinkle. Our bet rides with the shovel, and that's the DIRT.

• • •

Obstacle Dept.: Seems there's a new challenger for the "obstacle of the week" award. The depending champion, the mud and rock quarry in front of Machinery, has been challenged by the croquet green in front of the Engineering prefabs. Many a pedestrian has had to skip over a well-aimed shot fired by participants in the DO Croquet Tournament. A few have considered wrapping the mallets around the players' heads. Well, everybody gets their hard knocks out of life in one way or another.

• • •

Gripe Dept.: These warm days, one gets thirsty. According to our embryonic desires, we attempt to alleviate the situation by getting a drink. It was while in pursuit of this course that we found the mere trickle in the fountain outside the L.A. office too petty for our means. Taking pride and thirst in hand, we kept ascending until we found a fountain which produced adequate results on the fourth floor. We pushed, and the spray hit the ceiling. After several washings of surrounding walls, we mastered it and resumed our business, hoping our thirst would subside for awhile. You can't satisfy all the people all the time, I guess.

• • •

And now if you'll excuse us, we're going to string some colored Easter eggs at Marshall and University. Maybe someone will think they're traffic lights.

P.S. Have a nice vacation.

Trend in Evidence

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

In these days of penance and remorse, perhaps we of the jackal pack could pause and offer space to the other side in this daily struggle of good and bad music. Such a measure would be especially appropriate in light of a piece written recently, attacking local radio for its laxity in presenting a high type of musical programming.

For, and all devotees of the extremes of broadcasting could pause here to revere, a trend is in evidence in and about Syracuse. A definite wiggling of local broadcasters out of a self-woven cocoon and into the light. This will be a slow, sure advance, limited by the silken threads of sponsorship, but effected by a group of enterprising young radio personalities who would like to see the business a bit brighter than it is.

One of the most interesting exploits is the move by WNDR radio to spread a patched quilt of recorded music over its afternoon schedule. From around noon to late afternoon, the station programs a long list of recordings which range from hillbilly to the classics; something for all of us. Of particular interest is the jazz segment which presents a remarkable tasteful line-up.

A seemingly well-read, well-voiced and well-versed gentleman named Bill Quinn conducts things around the WNDR afternoon turntables with considerable skill. This factor helps out all the way.

The only disturbing thing about WNDR's plans is the way in which classical music is handled. Symphonies are frequently interrupted for almost vile commercials and the over-all air of the classical portion is one of levity. There seems to be no consciousness as to just what's going on.

Over at WHEN radio, we find Al Meltzer and his daily afternoon "Music Man" series which offers very fine record items in the popular-jazz-semi-classical vein. Mr. Feltzer appears to know his way around music and his choice of platters is generally good.

Although WOLF oft times is overcome by the tremendous weight of its near 100 per cent recorded music schedule, a few moments of careful selection are in evidence. High among this group is a Saturday morning session of "Juke Box" moderated by Denny Bracken. Mr. Bracken likes to fool around with some collectors' items with a heavy accent on the jazz vehicle. The result makes for good listening.

Let it be said that the other station appears to be exerting a mild effort toward good, consistant musical programming. The future may see a few happy revisions.

These above mentioned are only a small number and, to be sure, not the entire bright side of the picture. Sueh thought-over programming does, however, re-affirm our faith in the potential of the radio business which has lay on its side far too long.

THE SCIENCE WORLD

The Egg & Cortisone

By JOHN JOHNSRUD

While walking through the basement of Lyman hall, we happened to glance into one of the many laboratories of the zoology department. What we saw startled us.

A man was holding a large hypodermic needle, poised to plunge it into an ordinary egg. We went in and asked what it was all about.

He introduced himself as Dr. Hiram Evans and the egg. The egg was part of an experiment with cortisone and chicken embryos.

"Cortisone is a drug that is very useful in counteracting the effects of arthritis. It has been discovered however, that the drug has several flaws. One of these is its tendency to shrink an embryo," he explained.

Pointing to two alcohol-filled jars, Dr. Evans illustrated what he meant. In one jar was a normal chicken embryo and in the other was a cortisone-treated embryo.

"The first is an experiment control or untreated embryo used for comparison purposes. This other one, (the little one), has been treated with a cortisone solution. You'll notice that it is about a third the length of the control. The cortisone has slowed its growth and development and has thus produced a smaller embryo."

The zoologist went on to explain his experiments. He obtains eggs from nearby farms and places them in an incubator in his laboratory to stimulate growth.

"Eight days later, I remove them from the incubator and inject some with doses of cortisone of varying strengths using this hypodermic you saw as you came in."

After ten days of incubation, the eggs begin to show small differences in their embryos, continued Dr. Evans.

"Variations on wing and leg length, neck size, and body weight are the key to understanding the influence of cortisone. In the hundreds of tests so far made, we have proven the growth-inhibiting effects of the drug."

So, we mused, cortisone is like all the other "wonder" drugs. It has its shortcomings, also.

Here is graphic contrast in the appearance of a control chicken embryo and a cortisone treated one. These embryos are the same age, but cortisone has inhibited the growth of the one on the right.

A TIME FOR EVERYTHING

RIGHT IN 'FINISHING THE GAME'

The Good Friday program of CBS's Gary Moore television show will feature the following poem by Prof. A. E. Johnson of the English department. The half-hour broadcast Friday begins at 1:30 p.m.

Prof. Johnson's "The Game" appeared in 1927 in his first published volume, "Poems."

THE GAME

(An old Judean talks, circa 100 A.D.)
Knew Him: Sure; and saw Him
Bleeding on the cross:
I was still a growing lad
And mischievous and fond of play
They tell me, once,
As He was faring through our street
My Mother tried to call me from a game
To have Him place His blessed hands
Upon my head; and how I said—
"Aw look, Mother, we're losing;
"He'll be by another day."

They say she told this to the Man himself,
And begged that He would grasp her hands
That she might pass His blessing on to me,
Her careless lad caring more for a game than Him;
And how He said the boy was right
Finishing the game, the losing game.
Well, I saw Him, as I said, upon the tree,
And passed Him three days later
On the road wending to Emmaus
With two bright-eyed chaps
That didn't see me through listening to Him,
Nor how the night came o'er the hills
Like prayer, just like it's falling now.

You don't believe me?
Then ask my Wife, at the well there;
She heard my Mother tell, many a time,
How I passed up the blessing with
"Aw see, Mother, we're losing;
"He'll be by another day;"
And how He said the lad was right
Finishing the game, finishing the game.

And how He looked towards the big City
Thinking maybe how He
Would go through with the losing game,
Thinking maybe of Golgotha,
Where I saw Him—losing.

Mistaken Identity

He walked briskly to the blackboard, erased what had been written there and announced, "If there is anyone not here for Political Science 4, now's the time to leave."

The students protested. This was Political Science 1, they said. Then it dawned on the bewildered professor, who grinned, apologised, said "I must be in the wrong room" and left.

A minute or so later the right professor came in.

Student—Faculty Panel Suggests Good Taste for Wearing Bermuda Shorts

Shorts Battle Concludes In Deadlock; Roger Says...

THE SURVEY

By LIZ GODDARD
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Overheard in the Corner Store: "It's all right when girls do it but when boys have to, it's pretty bad."

Yesterday was the time of the big challenge—Shorts Day. The battle of the sexes was renewed with a novel twist.

STARTING WITH an unassuming column by Roger J. Herz on anyone's right to wear Bermuda shorts when he so desires, the issue was twisted, magnified and subverted until its culmination in yesterday's fashion show.

Coed's Corner editor Flip Sirota soon took issue with Mr. Herz, stating that such apparel is out of place on the campus and further challenging the columnist to appear in the island-type wear on a mutually agreed-upon date.

She contended that although the shorts would look badly, she was certain that she, as a representative of the fairer sex, would look far better than Mr. Herz would under similar conditions. Wells & Coverly and Flah and Co. were both eager to cooperate by providing the two with their costumes for the day.

Mr. Herz always accepts a challenge.

AND SO . . . the two appeared in their nine o'clock classes slightly chilled and extremely self-conscious.

Ranging from stares to giggles, to grunts, to outright whistles (for Mr. Herz), campus sentiment was difficult to classify.

Dr. Alfred Cope, citizenship professor, called to Miss Sirota from half-way across campus. "Why the shorts?" he wanted to know. Miss Sirota explained that she was attempting to prove Bermuda shorts should not be worn on campus.

"I don't see why not," was the discouraging but complimentary comment.

IN THAILAND the wearing of such shorts is quite common, Thai student Udomphong Pengsaengthong told reporters following the duo.

"The shorter the better," was Arthur Kinney's opinion on the issue and Jack Buckle, director of men's housing, stated he does not approve of Bermuda shorts for women because they are not short enough.

Others, including Rita Frankel, NSA co-chairman, were more cautious in granting approval to either side. "Depending on whether or not it can be used against me, I stand on the fifth amendment," she stated criptically.

After coffeeing in the Corner Store, the challenger and the challenged went out doors to have a picture taken. They were followed by two bystanders who immediately rolled up their trousers and demanded to get into the act.

IT COULD NOT be definitely ascertained whether their actions indicated approval or derision.

In an effort to obtain some indication of public opinion an impartial poll was taken to leading campus journalists. This resulted in a disheartening tie between Miss Sirota and Mr. Herz with five vagrant votes cast by the Daily Orange sports staff under Kenneth Lent's leadership for Debbie Reynolds. How did she get into the picture?

Commenting on the success of the day's adventure, Mr. Herz, in his customary lucid fashion, stated "As the vice-chancellor said when asked for his reaction on the ending of prohibition on December 5, 1933, 'I have nothing to say'."

Miss Sirota was more emphatic. On learning the results she jumped so hard her knee socks fell down and in this over-joyed state informed the press that if she were not so committed to her point of view, she would think of reconsidering.

Debbie Reynolds was unavailable for comment.

DOWN MAXWELL STEPS to get some opinions at the Corner Store go the pro-and-con-ters of the Bermuda shorts issue. Bucking the cold winds yesterday were FLIP SIROTA and ROGER J. HERZ. The weather was sort of chilling for bare knees.

SALT MINES

By ROGER J. HERZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Seemingly humorous through the cynics be on the subject of Bermuda shorts, we stand in but slightly abbreviated attire after an enjoyable day under the Syracuse sun and reflect that in addition to modeling the things, perhaps we've stood up for actual freedom.

THE POINT we tried to make yesterday, and we consider it far more important than like or dislike, was that each individual should make his own choice concerning cloths he or she wishes to wear, just as he or she should have the freedom to decide what to eat.

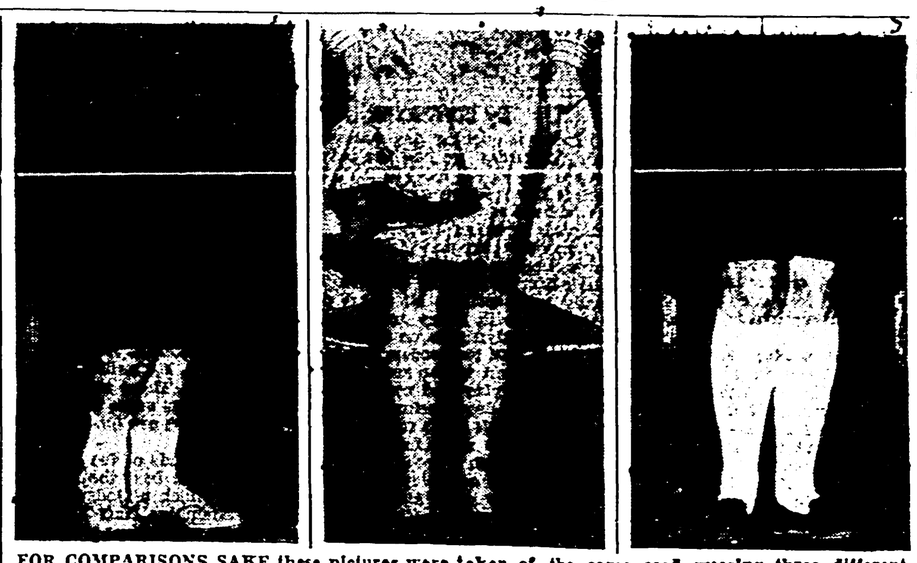
We believe that should an individual wish to wear a certain article of clothing, not considered indecent by the society (and we'd set relatively generous boundaries), that individual should have the courage of his convictions and wear such.

There's another point to be gained from yesterday's test, although we consider it a lesser one than the freedom.

Men's clothing is generally designed to torture. Recent years have seen the introduction of nylon, orlon, dacron, lightweight suits and shirts. Man, however, and now we're talking of the male classification, suffers from day to day, summer to summer in shirt, tie and jacket.

NO DOUBT it'll take quite a long time before this convention changes. There are trends. Restaurants admitting men and jackets when the fahrenheit hits 95, various other relaxations in the 10 commandments of what to wear.

As women were able to rid the earth of the bustle, perhaps we can start working toward a bit more logic in dress.



FOR COMPARISONS SAKE these pictures were taken of the same coed wearing three different types of current leg attire. First is the ever-popular and comfortable bobby socks and loafers which is appropriate for campus wear. Next a bit of cheesecake art which the Frenchman considers one of the things that makes life interesting. And then a view of the controversial Bermuda shorts with knee length socks which are O.K. if one intends to stay in one's own backyard.

Let's Take A Critical Look At Photographs Above

By FLIP SIROTA
Coeds' Corner Editor

An erstwhile photographer about campus remarked the other day that one thing about the mechanical phase of taking pictures is that the camera never lies.

On this fact, which we feel no one will repute, let's do a little critical examination of the three photographs above. They were all posed for by the same individual and represent three types of leg apparel coeds are most likely to wear.

LOOK AT the picture of the skirt with bobby socks and loafers. This is the generally accepted everyday attire on the Hill. It appears trim, neat, comfortable for length of skirt into consideration still those unsigtly anatomical appurtenances, knees, are thankfully hidden from view by skirt hem, slip, and long underwear if one is the type.

But on the whole the picture given is that a pair of fairly nice legs, and even if they were not that could be kept one's deep dark secret.

We've gone a little cheesecakeish in the second picture but it proves the point we wish to make rather well. There is nothing more complimentary to a women's legs than sheer stockings which add grace and all beauty that fifteen denier can give.

Another factor that adds to the beauty of legs in stockings is the clean,smooth line that is achieved. Comparing the second picture with the first, and remembering that the same legs modelled for both, note how much heavier the leg showing between the top of the socks and the skirt hem looks as compared with the same part of the leg in the stocking picture. The heavier look comes because the socks break up the natural line of the leg which the stockings do not do.

AND NOW we come to the third picture which is the cause of why this article is being written in the first place. Starting from the ankle up the leg appears heavier and heavier, which is the natural shape of a leg, but which is emphasized by the bulky look given by the knee length socks.

Starting from the top of the picture and travelling down, suddenly, oops, we're neither here nor there. Looking like something that shrunk in the wash or something that was meant to be any length longer, but unfortunately there was not enough material, these Bermuda shorts stop at a level for which there can be no explanation except that someone made a horrible mistake.

And between these two opposing forces looking all the worse because it is the only bare part showing, is that anatomical feature described before.

The combination of legs looking heavier than they really are, happen, to everyone who doesn't look for that sanforized label, before buying, and knees (enough said there) the total picture is something quite shocking.

THIS BROKEN line from socks to knees to shorts is one of the principle disadvantages of this outfit. There's a lot to be said of the view from the rear but that topic has been thoroughly discussed countless times before.

These three pictures prove, we think, that a girl's legs look best in stockings. But since this is not the kind of attire anyone wants to wear to classes five days a week the next best thing is the attire in the first picture. We do not think the attire in the third picture is either appropriate for classes or even half as becoming.

The majority of coeds cannot ally themselves with Marlene Dietrich's claim to fame, but do they have to make matters so much worse?

Dean of Women's Staff Establishes Certain Rules

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Last September something new, in addition to freshman, became prevalent on campus.

Bermuda shorts were a new college gimmick, and it caught on like the well-known conflagration. In March a special panel discussion was held at the Women's building to air problems which might arise from wearing of the above knee-length apparel by coeds.

The panel, which consisted of Elaine Kiebala, Stanley Leff, Social Director Miss Margaret Parker and Men's Housing Director Jack C. Buckle, came to no policy decision. However, Miss Parker told The Daily Orange yesterday that the dean of women's staff has established its policy on Bermuda shorts for women students.

BERMUDA SHORTS are in the same classification with slacks and jeans, she said. Wherever slacks and jeans are properly worn Bermuda shorts are considered acceptable to Syracuse university standards, and the same rules apply to them as to slacks and jeans.

This means that coeds are not allowed to eat evening and Sunday meals in a University dining hall while wearing Bermuda shorts, although they may attend breakfast and lunch in such attire.

The dean's staff, which represents the administration in such decisions, also frowns upon the wearing of the shorts in the city proper. This policy is directed largely by the University's desire to maintain good relations with residents of Syracuse. In the past city people have expressed concern over slacks and jeans worn in Syracuse, especially in shopping areas.

Miss Parker believes that Bermuda shorts are here to stay. She warned that coeds must be carefut not to wear them too short, though.

BERMUDA SHORTS by any other length would NOT look the same, she cautioned, and they would be considered in another category. The "shorts" classification limits apparel to sports events and living centers.

Way Down South The Bermuda Way

Everything in this Coeds Corner issue is tied in with Bermuda shorts. This article is about that medium-sized island to the south that is the cause of all this trouble.

Heading for the sunny, surf-washed sands of Bermuda on Thursday will be a group of lucky Syracuse students showing the pale, drawn effects of a hard, cold winter.

BY THE TIME spring vacation ends and they return again to the Hill, it is hoped the temperature will be a good many degrees warmer by then, these lucky students will be the proud-possessors of a glowing tan gained only by hours of sunning under a tropical sunny sky.

A little over a year ago, around Christmas time to be exact, another group of misguidedly-happy students headed south for a famous vacation resort strip of sand, Miami Beach, Fla. he end of their holiday was a little disappointing set-back but otherwise they got tanned just the same.

No such annoying factors will rear their ugly necks to ruin the vacation of the Bermuda-bound students. They are free to really soak up the sun and maybe turn one page of the unread psych book they selfir-gheto,'moeto book they self-righteously brought along.

Perhaps they will do a little surveying while in Bermuda and see if many native people, men and women and little children too, really wear the shorts that bear their name.

IT IS unfortunate that the beautiful island in the British West Indies should be associated with these shorts of such a queer length. It would do well for the Bermuda chamber of commerce to consider various means to sever this mental connection.

They should consider renaming the island or else start a big campaign to promote the merits of greasy sun tan lotion or the beauty of enlarged flowery, fruit hoop earrings.

Croquet Tourney To Start Second Flight Contests

Second flight eliminations of the Daily Orange Invitational Croquet tournament will be held at 3 p.m. today in front of Steele hall.

Three more such eliminations will be held before the final championship battle for the title.

Hugh O. Muir, editorial director and Al Bartkevicius, junior editor, are two of the finalists, both having tallied in the first flight playoffs last week.

Three more elimination heats will be held after vacation and then a second flight playoff among the heat winners to determine the other two finalists in the championship battle.

The News in Short(s)

TIMES

The committee for the suppression of Bermuda shorts was handed a rousing defeat yesterday by the bi-partisan Senatorial committee investigating the matter.

The committee examined witnesses all morning. They heard from such luminaries as Marilyn Monroe, Dame Mae Witty and Babe Zaharias. They also heard from various members of the Bermuda shorts manufacturing industry.

THE INVESTIGATING committee was formed when a faction of Senators started receiving letters from their constituents which declared that all those who did not wear shorts were suspected of being subversive.

Never, at least not since the days of the Scopes trial, have tow such singly minded forces met. One observer likened the present case to that 1924 trial when he declared:

"Duh, it's almost like the Scopes trial."

What he was trying to say, and as far as we of the nonbiased, bi-partisan, underpaid, forthright members of the New York Times staff can see is this: the anti-Bermuda shorts faction is made up of conservative old women much like the women who supported Bryan back in 1924. According to one observer they are the same women.

The pro shorts faction is like the Darrow supporters in that legalistic battle 30 years ago. These comparisons are not obvious to all, we must report, but as the hearings go on we will, in the words of one of the passerbys in the corridor, bring you all the news that's fit to print.

POST

It happened last night, and as usual your reporter was there. The meeting of the Senatorial committee had recessed for dinner and were due back for an extraordinary evening session. The first witness was to be Marilyn Monroe.

As soon as the congressmen had convened the meeting, I intercepted Miss Monroe in the corridor. That's not bad for an Ohio farm boy, now is it? Well anyway, I asked her if she'd have dinner with me.

SHE ACCEPTED, and along with the Beautiful Wife we traipsed over to the Hotel Mayflower for a snack. As we walked in the room we caused a sensation. People kept telling me to move out of the way and let them see la Monroe as she walked to the table.

When we got to the table we ordered dinner. Miss Monroe was not hungry last evening. The bill however came to a total which was speakable. The total however, could be used to buy a new tractor on my uncle's farm. Have I ever told you about my uncle? Well maybe sometime I will.

Anyway when we had finished dinner I put the question to Marilyn: "Miss Monroe are you for or against the wearing of Bermuda shorts?"

And do you know what she said to me? Me a poor little Ohio farm boy. She said right there at the Mayflower:

"Really, Mr. Wilson, not in front of your wife."

That's Earl brother

JOURNAL-AMERICAN

It was horrible. I have never seen such an insult to decent American womanhood, as I saw in the sacred rooms of our beloved capital today. The meeting for the investigation of the supression of Bermuda shorts had been convened. The first witness to be called by the committee was some motion picture star. Then the committee called for the second witness.

It was that woman. Right there on the stand she had the nerve to swear on a Bible and besides the American flag. The same flag that she and her husband tried to destroy. Every time I think of it it makes my blood boil.

SHE HAD come to defend the right of American women to wear those horrible shorts. They called her an authority. What kind of an authority is she. They said that she knew American women as well as anybody else. That may be true as far as coal miners' wives go. But how does she know about the silk importers' wives and how they feel about the situation.

She claimed that if women wore the shorts in the summer they would be healthier by having their legs exposed to the nourishing sun.

She claims that by Bermuda shorts being made in great numbers it would be a boon to the garment industry. Whenever I think of all those people who are out of work and would be unionized if her plan comes true my blood fairly bubbles. The committee must not heed her advice. They must not blunder.

God bless America!

Granger Wins Crowr In National Tourney

Theoretically, Syracuse's Johnny Granger can beat any collegiate boxer in the country at his weight; but he can't beat everyone in the East. This paradox arose when Thumpin' Johnny Granger boomed to a decisive 3-0 decision over Wisconsin's Chuck Magestro to take the National championship at 139.

Before the tournaments started for the Orange boxers, it was generally conceded that Granger would stand the best chance in post season play. When Granger lost the Easterns, it became more imperative that he win the Nationals.

JERRY JAFFE came out of the Easterns with a championship so he was also considered a contender for the 132 title.

Co-Capt. Vince Rigolosi lost his Thursday afternoon 165 outing and Eastern champ Jaffe was razor-edged out in the evening show by Louisiana State's John Stiglets.

GRANGER smelled blood. He was in the finals against Wisconsin's Chuck Magestro whom Johnny beat earlier in the year. Granger did lose once to Magestro, but that was out in Wisconsin last year.

Granger started early and pounded away to his heart's content. Magestro never stood a chance. Granger was so much, in fact, that Magestro was penalized a point for stalling and holding in the second round. Despite Magestro's loss, Wisconsin won the team honors.

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

Today is opening day for one of the biggest businesses in the world. Yesterday we had the privilege to talk with a person who's led has one of the most important jobs in that business world. His name is Larry Pitler, and his father is well-known coach Jake Pitler who handles the first base coaching chores for the National league champion Brooklyn Dodgers.

Larry recently was discharged from the Air Force and is now a student here at Syracuse. But today isn't just any ordinary day in Larry's life; it's opening day and it's against the Giants. Most people usually know quite a bit about their dad's business so we decided to sit down with Larry and learn some of the insights on his dad, and the Brooklyn club on this appropriate day.

Larry said that today is a big one for the veterans from Jack Robinson down to the rookies like Don Zimmer. Up until now it has been all play and now the work must begin. There always is that opening day tension, Larry said. The players seem to sense they have a job to do for the next six months and are anxious to get off on the right foot.

Oddly enough there is only one idea in the minds of the Brooklyn front office and players right now. That is to beat the Yanks. Everything they do is aimed at this one goal which a Dodger club has yet to accomplish. Time and again the champion New Yorkers have either come from behind or got to work from the start to defeat the Brooks. But the players feel this has to change eventually and, of course, they feel this is the year, once more.

Larry went on to talk about the men who have made the Brooklyn club such a success. He talked about Captain Pee Wee Reese to whom all the players look in time of trouble. Reese is the fellow who leads the club on and off the playing field, Larry said. Many a rookie will come to him with personal troubles both about baseball and private matters. And the other half of the Reese family, the Mrs., always takes a rookie's wife aside, trying to comfort her in any way possible after it has been learned that her husband is being sent to the minors.

But when it came to the clutch, Larry said, there is no one the team counted on as high as Jackie Robinson. The team feels that he is the man who can mean the difference betweena contender and a champion. In other words, without him a pennant in Brooklyn would be greatly questioned.

There are other men who make up a winning club. Larry pointed out two more individuals who have had a lot to do with the Dodger rise to the top; Roy Campanella and Gil Hodges. He told about the time Campy came out to the mound with Larry's dad during the 1950 season to speak with Don Newcombe. The Giants had blasted him for six straight hits, all swinging on the first pitch. Pitler asked Campy what Newk had and he replied, "Jake, I really don't know. I haven't caught one yet."

Hodges' story is the one about the great comeback after a poor series in 1952 and worse spring in 1953. Gil, Larry said, reached the peak of success in last year's series. A note of human interest came when he got his first hit against the Yanks in the opening game. Everyone sitting near his wife, who broke out in tears, rushed over to congratulate her on her husband's return to form. Larry was sitting two seats away from her and saw it all.

We went on to talk about the Bobby Thomson homer in the 1951 playoffs. Larry told us how he walked into the Dodger clubhouse after the game and what he saw. Pitcher Ralph Branca was in tears, as was most of the team. Next door the winning Giants were celebrating and you could hear their yells and cheers through the thin paneling. It was like a morgue and most of the fellows could not believe what had happened.

It was getting late and Larry had to leave for supper. Before he left we asked about the team which will defend its crown today against their arch rival Giants. He said he had received a recent letter from his dad saying the boys weren't in real top shape. He also said that the big questoin mark, Don Newcombe, has completely changed his self-centered attitude since his hitch in the service and is expected to help much more than before.

The final question and the biggest one was on the National league race. Larry was sure of his answer when he said, "there'll be seven teams who won't win the pennant and they don't include Brooklyn."

Hill Stickmen Will Leave On 3 Game Dixie Jaunt

The Syracuse lacrosse team walks the plank tomorrow when it departs for a week-long, three-game southern invasion. Roy Simmons' stickmen open the season Thursday at Bethlehem, Pa., against the Lehigh Engineers and follow with games against Pennsylvania and Maryland next week.

Simmie is pessimistic, and understandably so, about the forthcoming trip. The Orangemen have been hampered by snow and mud and, according to the veteran mentor, are "way behind" for this stage of the training period.

ROY SIMMONS no sooner finishes coaching one sport than he is busily engaged in some other Hill athletic team's doings.

CONSIDERING the unadvanced condition of his team and the caliber of opposition it will be called upon to face in the next week, Simmons regards the journey primarily as a means of readying the Orange ten for future contests.

An all-new attack, veteran mid-field and defense and an untried goalie is the way Simmons sees his 1954 team. Biggest problem is that of replacing John (Itch) Echeandia in the nets.

Echeandia was regular goaltender for two seasons and last year was named to the Upstate all-star team and received all-American honorable mention.

THREE SENIORS, co-Capt. Leo Pollack, Primo Belluz and George Rovere, provide a solid defense. Don Laaksonen, soph football player, has shown rapid improvement and figures as the top reserve.

Simmons has two veteran mid-field lines of nearly equal ability. The senior trio of co-Capt. Bruce Yancey, Don Moller and Al Duff will probably draw the starting assignment with the Tom Havill-Bob Tucker-Dave Kline line not far behind.

Only returning attackman is Ed (Pug) Smith, junior from Floral Park. Three sophs are vying for the other two slots. They are: Stew Lindsay from Concord, Mass., Bob MacLea, Baltimore, Md., and Don Muller, Wantagh.

Lehigh, initial Orange opponent, has eight lettermen back from last year's squad which won only four of 10 contests. The Engineers have veteran attack and mid-field trios, however, and figure to test the Orange. Thursday's tilt will be Lehigh's third of the season.

PENNSYLVANIA is of unknown quality. The Quakers, who will be met April 19 in Philadelphia, compiled a 7-6 record last season.

Maryland, which will be met on the 20th at College Park, is regarded by Simmons as the nation's top team. The Terrapins recently handed Virginia its worst defeat in history. They will have six games under their belts when they play Syracuse.

HILL WAA TEAM WINS

A Hill WAA volleyball squad defeated teams from Ithaca and Oswego, 34-18 and 32-30, at a sportsday at Cornell Saturday.

An all-star Hill basketball team dropped a close game to Cornell, 14-11, and whipped Oswego, 33-10, as Joyce Grossman poured in 22 points.

Boeing eight-jet B-52 global bomber

Which field of engineering interests you most?

Whether it's electrical, civil, mechanical, aeronautical or any related field, you'll find a rewarding career opportunity at Boeing.

Engineers of virtually every type are in increasing demand here—for Boeing is growing continuously, and today employs more engineers than even at the peak of World War II. That's the kind of situation in which positions up ahead keep opening up. Boeing fills them from within its own organization, and holds regular merit reviews to give you steady recognition.

As a Boeing engineer you'd be part of a team that, for 37 years, has pioneered successful, trail-blazing types of airplanes. You could look toward a stable future with such long-range Boeing projects as a pilotless aircraft program (one of the largest in the country), development of America's first jet transport, research on supersonic flight and nuclear power for aircraft, and the world's fastest multi-jet bombers, the B-47 and B-52.

You'll find a wide range of experience and contacts available to you at Boeing. The aviation industry is unique in its variety and breadth of application—from applied research to production design, all going on at once. Boeing is constantly alert to new materials and new techniques, and approaches them without limitations. In addition, Boeing's vast subcontracting program—requiring engineering co-ordination—offers an opportunity for contacts with a cross section of American industry.

At Boeing, you'd work in Seattle, Washington, or Wichita, Kansas—two fresh, modern cities with a wide variety of recreational facilities as well as universities which provide excellent graduate study courses. The company will arrange a reduced work week to permit time for such study and will reimburse tuition upon successful completion of each quarter's work.

Senior Convocation Planned Tomorrow For June Graduates

Committee Announces Beach, Miss Dalton Head Marshalls

By MARY VIVIAN
Daily Orange Associate Editor

A class convocation for all graduating seniors will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow in Maxwell auditorium, according to John Beach, president of the class.

The class marshalls will be introduced at the convo, in addition to explanations of graduation weekend by several administration and faculty members.

OVER-ALL CLASS marshalls for the University are Beach and Mary Ann Dalton. Beach, a liberal arts student, is president of the senior class. Miss Dalton, an education student, is president of women's student government.

The college marshalls include: Fine Arts, Ann Forrest and Clarence Mather; Business Administration, Allan Anderson and Eugene Parker; Liberal Arts, Elizabeth Brydon and Larry O'Sullivan.

Also, Home Economics, Ann Lines and Ellen "Billie" Williams; Education, Audrey Drezen and Constance Pierson; Engineering, William Terrell and Albert Smith; Journalism, Hugh O. Muir and Winona Brierly; Nursing, Judith Abbott and Barbara Laubach.

In addition, Speech, Maris Ubans and Tess Oesterreicher; Forestry, Blair Knapp and James Craine; and Utica College, Patti Ann Burke and John Finnegan.

DEAN EDWIN SMITH will speak to the senior class about graduation costs and events of graduation weekend in June. His speech will be supplemented by Dr. Oscar Barck of the history department.

Winifred Hughes, president of the Alumni Association, will tell the seniors about the alumni situation. Dean of Women Marjorie Smith also will attend.

All seniors are urged to attend in order to ask questions regarding graduation.

Be a Lady, Gigi!

BETTY SCHWARTZ, left, listens attentively, while NANCY EDWARDS explains how a young girl should act in the long running performance of "Gigi" at the Drama building.

'Gigi' Set for Tonight, Will Run Until Friday

Post-vacation performances of "Gigi" will be given in the Drama building tonight and continue until Friday, April 30. The show which opened April 1st, hailed by both downtown and Hill audiences, has been held over due to its success.

The two-act comedy is being presented in the Coronet theater in the Drama building and tickets for all performances are $1.20. Curtain time has been set for 8:15 p.m.

Playing the lead of "Gigi" is Shirley Fenner who alternates in the part with Betty Schwartz. Both girls have done so well in the roles that each will portray the part for summer stock theaters.

The costumes used in the Hill production are the ones used in the original Broadway show of a few seasons back. The settings were designed by John J. Moore, and a special rolling stage is being utilized for rapid scene changes.

Members of the cast include: Gerald Reidenbaugh, as Gaston LaChaille. An instructor in the Drama department, Reidenbaugh has appeared in many previous Boar's Head productions.

Nancy Edwards, as Madame Inez Alvarez. An alumni of Syracuse, Miss Edwards was also active in the Astor theater productions this year.

Francesca Trantum, as Madame Alicia de St. Ephlem. Miss Trantum is a senior in Drama, and appeared in "Lysistrata" not long ago.

Religious Meeting Continues Today

The faculty conference on religion goes into its second day today with three seminars; the natural science faculty seminar with J. Theron Illick as chairman; citizenship and sociology department seminar with Stuart G. Brown, chairman; and engineering faculty seminar, with J. V. McKenna, chairman.

Dr. Albert Outler, professor of Christian ethics at the Perkins Theological seminary, Southern Methodist university, is guest speaker and seminar leader at the conference, which ends tomorrow.

Major question of the conference is "What are our obligations to our students as reflecting our personal, moral and religious convictions?" The conference got underway last night in the Alumnae lounge of the Women's building, when Dr. Outler spoke on "The Implications of Religion for a University Faculty."

Engineers, Students Hold Annual Dinner

The 53rd annual engineers' dinner, sponsored by the Engineering Alumni association, was held Saturday in Shaw dining hall.

Rich D. Whitney, professor emeritus of mathematics, acted as toastmaster and Dean of Hendricks Chapel Charles C. Noble delivered the invocation. The alumni report was given by James H. Carpenter, president of the Engineering Alumni association, and Ralph A. Galbraith, dean of the College of Engineering, gave a report on the new engineering buildings and facilities.

Ferdinand Hemmer, Best All-Around Senior award.

Wayne C. Lee, Arthur J. Heidrich, Norman S. Pieniaszek, and Charles A. Swallow, G. M. Berry Freshman awards.

James A. Kennedy, Eta Kappa Nu award to the electrical engineering sophomore with the highest average for the first three semesters.

Entertainment was provided by Robert Dishy and Muriel Wainwright.

Campus to Hear Salzberg Lecture

Thomas H. MacDonald, formerly federal commissioner of the Bureau of Public Roads, will be the featured speaker in the annual Salzberg memorial lectures to be held here this week.

The lecture will deal mainly with highway problems, and will include other prominent men in the transportation field.

CHANCELLOR WILLIAM P. Tolley will open the meetings Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in Maxwell auditorium. MacDonald, who will receive an award for distinguished contributions in the field of transportation, will speak on "The Engineer's Relation to Highway Transportation."

Clark D. Ahlberg, assistant dean of the college of Engineering and chairman of the 1954 lecture committee, announced the choice of MacDonald because "he has contributed as much to the development of the highway system as any man alive today."

The lectures are jointly sponsored by the colleges of engineering and business administration.

A symposium is planned for Thursday in the founders room of Maxwell. This session, which will start at 10 a.m., will feature Dr. Theodore Matson, director of the Yale bureau of Highway Traffic, Pyke Johnson, former president of the Automotive Safety Foundation and J. Charles Durkin, vice-president of the Niagara Motor Freight corp.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will be presided over by Robert B. B. Moorman, chairman of the civil engineering department of the L. C. Smith College of Engineering.

The Salzberg memorial lecture was established in 1949 under a grant to the University by Murray M. Salzberg, a Bus Ad graduate, who wished to bring to the campus each year outstanding personalities in the transportation field.

MacDonald recently retired after 34 years of service as head of the Bureau of Public Roads, during which time he engineered many major projects, including the Alaskan highway. In addition to his US projects, he helped provide aid for Latin American and European road construction.

Humanities Series Slates Prof. Mierow

Instructor to Speak Of Mediterranean Trip

The sixth lecture in the current humanities series, which will feature a Phi Beta Kappa speaker, will be held at 4:15 p.m. Thursday in Maxwell auditorium.

Professor Charles C. Mierow, of Carleton college, will lecture on "The Most Modern Voice From Antiquity." The address will be given in cooperation with the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa as a part of the ceremony initiating new members.

Mierow, who has recently returned from a trip to the Mediterranean, will include material about the Roman poet Quintus Horatius Flaccus in his lecture.

Princeton university awarded the speaker the A.B., A.M. and Ph.D. He also hold Ed.D., Ll.D. and L.H.D. degrees. In addition to Phi Beta Kappa, he is a member of Kappa Sigma, Delta Epsilon, and Eta Sigma Phi. He belongs to several professional societies.

Mierow has published "The Gothic History of Jordanes," "Hugo de Sancto Victoire," new editions of "Cataline" and "Vita Malchi Monachi Captivi," and translations of "The Two Cities—A Chronicle of Universal History to the Year 1146 A.D." and "Exploits of Federick I Called Barbarossa."

Once a visiting professor at Syracuse, Mierow has served at the University of Denver, Phillips academy, Princeton, Colorado college, and North Carolina.

Professor Sawyer Falk of the Syracuse university drama department will speak on May 13 at the last lecture of the current humanities series.

Senior Ball Features Woody's Third Herd

Music for the Senior ball on May 8 will be provided by Woody Herman and his latest band, "The Third Herd."

This will be the group's first appearance in this country after returning from a concert tour of Europe.

PLAYING THE clarinet professionally since he was eight, Herman formed his first band in 1936, calling it "The Band That Plays the Blues."

High spot of its career was his 1946 Carnegie hall concert when he presented "Summer Sequence" and the special composition written by Igor Stravinsky, "Ebony Concerto."

Readers of "Metronome" magazine voted his latest band tops in the country. Two of their new records, "Stompin' at the Savoy" and "Perdido" have been picked as jazz records of the year by "Downbeat."

The band features vocalist Dolly Houston and pianist Nat Pierce. Herman himself is starred as vocalist and also on clarinet and alto sax.

TICKETS FOR the spring weekend dance which will be held in the Women's building from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. are selling at $4 per couple.

Refreshments will be served and formal dress will be optional for couples attending, co-chairmen Winifred Dawe and James F. Carr announced.

Official photographer for the ball will be John Johnsrud. Pictures will be furnished in souvenir folders.

Are you there?

After a four year trudge, the simple act of commencement seems like a light gambol over the quad. Not so.

Tomorrow evening's convocation begins the rigorous training to turn 1589 apprehensive students into graduates. In this great age of regimentation, it is practically a must to learn the ways and means of commencement weekend and all that it entails. This is the only general meeting for this purpose.

The convocation will deal with such important matters as caps and gowns, checking graduation requirements, and the activities of Commencement weekend.

The meeting is a must for the marshalls; graduating seniors' attendance is desired. It is obviously more convenient for all concerned if as many as possible are informed. The word might filter around a little faster.

One may query just why the meeting is to be held in Maxwell auditorium which only seats around 200 since the class has 1589? The horrible obvious answer is that not many more are expected.

We trust the senior's interest in the results of their four year's work will disprove this.

K-day

Two events relating to Korea are taking place today. First is the opening of the Far East peace talks at Geneva; the second is the opening of the American-Korean Foundation's campaign for funds.

The national goal has been set for $10 million. The appeal is not being made by the Koreans themselves, however, but by Gen. Eisenhower, Gen. James VanFleet and the American-Korean Foundation who want to "help Koreans to help themselves."

The survival of Korea as a free and independent country cannot be underestimated in the plans for world peace. Gallant and courageous, these people have proven themselves as loyal as any comrade the United States has ever had.

One half million homes were destroyed in the battles which rocked the tiny peninsula. Two million Koreans gave their lives for freedom while nine million now find themselves homeless.

This drive is our way of telling the Koreans that we intend to stand by them and wish to aid them in rebuilding their country.

Trains are being sent around the country to collect vitally neded goods and materials for shipment to that nation. Special drives are also being sponsored in Syracuse and other large cities.

The Koreans need our support now as we once needed theirs. We must prove that we do not quickly forget friends such as these.

Editor-in-Chief

Note to the Unemployed:

By DOROTHEA L. CHANDLER College of Business Administration

(Editor's note: Spring brings more than showers and flowers. It also brings the end of another school term. This casts a multitude upon the prospective lists of the unemployed. For those who care to work off a winter's leisure, the following is presented to aid the laboring set in finding that elusive element: the employer. This is the first of four articles.)

Are you job hunting? If you have not found that ideal job for summer or after graduation, perhaps you can use a few suggestions on writing application letters. There are two kinds of application letters generally recognized. The first is the solicited letter or response to an advertisement or request that you submit a formal application; the second, the unsolicited is a letter that you write to a company in which you would like to work to determine whether there is an opening for a person with your qualifications.

Obviously the opening sentences for the two types are not the same. If you write in answer to an advertisement, for example, tell the name of the paper in which you read the ad as well as the specific job for which you are applying. Many large firms may have several job descriptions in one issue of a paper. You may even clip the ad to which you are replying, and attach it neatly to the top of your letter.

If you are told to submit a letter of application after talking with a member of a company's official family, be sure to state the name of the person who made the suggestion. Perhaps you will be told about a vacancy by a placement office, or by one of your professors; then you should give the source of your information as your introduction.

You may write an unsolicited letter to determine whether a vacancy exists in a company that appeals to you because of the work performed. If you know where you want to work, why not write that company; there may be a vacancy for June! Now is the time to get your letters out. Most companies like to receive unsolicited letters of application. Your interest in a particular type of work may be a strong recommendation for the position. Be sure to learn all you can about a company, its products or services, before you write; then relate your training and experience to the needs of the firm. The first sentence of a letter is usually the most difficult one for an inexperienced writer. The following is direct: Do you anticipate an opening in your (?) department for which a June graduate with a major in (?) might qualify? If you do, please consider by qualifications.

The second paragraph should show how your training and experience will fit into the type of work done by the firm. If you have not worked in a similar company, then show your interest in the work but DO NOT apologize for lack of experience! Sell your training and let the person who reads your letter realize that you are willing to fit into the work routines of the organization with promptness and dependability.

Unless you need more than one paragraph to discuss your training, the third paragraph of your letter should refer to your personal data or resume sheet on which you list details of your preparation and experience as well as your references. (You will find directions for writing your data sheet at the end of this presentation.) Close your letter with a request for an interview; include your telephone number even though the letter may be written to a company hundreds of miles away; the telephone is often used to check your voice and your responses before an invitation for an interview is extended!

Always write your own letters after careful planning. It should be remembered at all times that personnel directors and office managers have many reference books on their desks and they are familiar with the wording of sample letters of application! It is a matter of record that two people lost opportunities for interviews because their identical letters of application arrived in the same mail on the same desk!

Happy Holliday

Get a good script, cast it with a talented leading lady, let a skillful director put it through its paces and you have a hit. Make the script "It Should Happen to You," place Judy Holliday in the lead and your hit is sure to delight the customers. That is exactly what the new film is doing at the State. It treads the thin line between satire and farce with such dexterity that it emerges the wittiest and most hilarious comedy to come from Hollywood in a long, long time.

Garson Kanin has [illegible] a script about a girl's obsessive desire for fame which almost destroys her happiness, that unlike most of Hollywood's empty-headed attempts at humor, has several trenchant comments to make, comments about the transitory quality of fame and the phoniness of a life of glamour.

"It Should Happen to You" is never content to remain a lark; it is instead a skillful blending of the serious and the comic which has, in its own way, as much power as a good drama. This comedy is, like the earlier "Born Yesterday" a joy containing more to it than meets the funny bone.

Miss Holliday's performance is likewise a substantial job. She has the ability to appear natural and relaxed without forgetting that she's acting. Hollywood's full of Bing Crosby's whose ease stems from a complete lack of concern with acting, but it is only an actress, of the stature of Miss Holliday, that can combine both. A twist of the lips, a glance, a shifting of the hips—and a human being is created. This is the kind of acting that one encounters too infrequently.

Fortunately for all concerned one of Miss Holliday's leading men possesses comparable ability in creating believable characters. Jack Lemmon, a young man imported from television, is easily the best thing that General Sarnoff has ever done for the M.G.M. lion. Mr. Lemmon gets under the skin of his character and fills it until it swells to life-like proportions. Added to this invaluable skill, is a fine sense of timing and a highly personable appearance. Hollywood has a new find.

Michael O'Shea hands in a clever portrait of a hard-headed television announcer and every bit part sparkled under the smartly paced direction of George Cukor.

The only actor that is out of place is Peter Lawford and his failure points up the complete naturalness and good taste of the rest of the film. Mr. Lawford's studied boyishness and English sauvity belongs in a Noel Coward drawing room. On a bench in central park it is not as home as the "boy next door" charm of Jack Lemmon.

Nonentities by Norm

LETTERARY COMMENT

Getting in the Swim

To the Editor of The Daily Orange:

In a recent issue of Time Magazine it was stated that "Syracuse University, which boasts the finest collegiate swimming pool in the country was recently host to the Inter-Collegiate swimming meets."

This is a point of pride, and in conversations with people who have never been to Syracuse the topic invaribably comes up. However, examining the situation concerning the pool's availibility to the student body makes one hides his face in shame.

It seems the pool is only open to the general student body at certain hours which have been determined by the athletic office. Said hours are between 1 and 5 p.m. on weekdays, while regular gym classes are in session in the pool.

On the surface this seems very generous of the Archbold powers that be. But they seem to forget that the majority of the student body has classes during these hours on weekdays.

The pool is used by the faculty on Monday and Friday nights. Certainly there is no question that they are entitled to it. However on the other nights, and on weekends when the majority of students could use the pool it is "closed to the public."

Various fraternities and outside organizations rent the pool and pay the Athletic office a substantial amount for the privilege of using it.

This situation is not an economic necessity as far as we can see. Over on Comstock in our "brand new $3,000,000 Women's building" the ladies have solved their problem nicely. Each coed who use the pool facilities pays $5 for the privilege.

Except for the faculty and the varsity practice sessions this same idea could be adopted in Archbold. Isn't it about time that the Athletic Department started thinking about the average student who pays their salaries?

Sincerely,
Interested

Although Miami university sounds like paradise when they tell it to the people up north, one man on the inside has other things to say. He wrote to the editor of the paper that he could almost see his notebook through the mushroom cloud of smoke that descended almost as soon as class started. As one not addicted to nicotine, he dedicated the following poem to his classmates:

"Buying a pack of cigarettes
Seems pretty silly to me.
Just take a trip to the classroom
And breathe the damn smoke free."

Suddenly it's Springtime Again a

Time for Swimming, Sunning, an

. . . Baseball Players Swat 'Em

NATURALLY, YOU CAN'T talk about spring without mentioning baseball. In fact, you can't avoid it, even if you are so inclined. If you're not hit on the head by little boys batting it around in the streets, you hear the scores every time you turn on the radio. Oh well, the Chiefs are playing this afternoon, and who wants to go to classes, anyway? It's much too nice out.

. . . And No More of This

For Awhile Anyway . . .

. . . Shorts of All Kinds

EVEN THE CONTROVERSIAL ones. The long and short of the bare legs question will be viewed more and more as the days lengthen, and the thermometer rises. It is generally assumed, the males prefer the ones at left. A Daily Orange poll of at least one Syracuse man has revealed they feel the ones at right are too long. "Might as well as wear a skirt," they said.

Are you young at heart?

They tell us that "Fairy tales can come true, It can happen to you, If you're young in heart; You can go to extremes with . . ." and so forth.

Join us on this beautiful spring day. Come with us back to yesteryear when the University was young. A hearty "Hi Yo Lancelot," the Lone Student rides again!

Those were the days of the annual spring joust.

Each April 26 the student body would gather in front of the Student Union (which in those days was called Camelot) and they would watch the Knights of the Coffee Table battle for the hand of the spring Queen of Syracuse.

And what a queen she was! Her hair was blonde—so blonde that the sun hid in envy. Her name: Dottie. And when she twirled her two fiery batons in honor of the men who were about to engage in combat for her troth, the whole student group would bow and cheer an old InIdIiaInIIIIIII group would bow and cheer an old Indian chant, "Maxwell----Maxwell----Maxwell."

Then, as the queen sat there, looking very inviting, an innocent, unspoken sigh bridging her lips, the two contenders rode their charges for the kill.

It was only a figurative kill, because the weapons were only orange shakers.

And after the joust, King Tolley would fete the entire assemblage to a huge feast on the lawn. Teddy Wilson and his "Knightly Five" would play the music; and Bill Shakespeare and Lanny O'Kun would recite poetry and sing original tunes.

Those were the days.

And they all lived happily ever after.

THE GOLDBUG

But times weren't always so gay back in the old days. Once upon a time the University needed money. A young student, who wanted to make a name for himself in the University, went to the Treasurer's office one spring to present a money-making offer.

He told the financial wizards that he could spin gold out of old straw that had covered the tennis courts during the winter.

They laughed.

But the business staff and the administration thought it over. After all, it wasn't the 20th century yet. The 20th century was still relegated to the science fiction stories of midieval magicians.

And there were witches in those days. Everyone knew that. As a matter of fact, there was a witch hunt going on near the Potomac river at that very time.

What the blazes! What was there to lose? Straw was cheap then, and fortunes are often made from gambles.

So Buildings and Grounds loaded up an ox-drawn truck with straw and they delivered it to pre-fab 7. (In those days, pre-fab 7 looked like a Castle.) The student was provided with a needle, a spinning wheel, a picture of Douglas MacArthur for inspiration, and a case of Pepsi Cola.

During the day, everyone would try to catch a glimpse of what he was up to, but it was of no avail: he had sealed up the windows.

Three months later, no word had yet been heard from him. The student's parents grew frantic. No one could find the keys that would unlock the building.

May rolled around, and one lazy, steaming day, the student emerged. And lo and behold, as students and faculty rushed inside, they saw 87,000 yards of gold yarn neatly spun and stacked throughout the building.

Well, this was the biggest thing that had ever happened at Syracuse. People came from near and far. Sen. McCarthy accused the young lad of inflating the currency. "You are a red!" McCarthy

"X student in closed session, "I'm a

But he was loyal to Syracuse and remained.

He was feted on the library steps. He was introduced to the student body. But he had always refused to tell anyone his name.

Finally, after much coaxing he revealed that his name was "R".

"What does the "R" stand for?" asked the emcee.

"Let's not be silly," he replied. "Not even I can spell my name."

And they all lived happily ever after.

(And you know what his name was.)

SAM AND THE CORNSTALK

Once upon a time, on a fine spring day, a group of forestry students were engaged in planting some experimental seeds in front of Bray hall.

No one knew what the seeds were.

But they intended to find out.

So they carefully tended the seeded plot each day.

Time passed and nothing happened.

But one day a few weeks later, the students arrived on campus for their 8 o'clock classes and what to their won giant cornstalk an t in Syracuse an evil evil vamp who was desperately jealous of the fair princess.

So one morning in April she cast a spell on the Princess.

She slept and slept and slept.

No one could awake her. The girls in the dorm shook her and they summoned the doctor but they couldn't wake her up.

The enchantment had done its work.

And the evil, evil girl slept away all the Princess's beaux—all that is, except one:

Prince Alarming.

He would never give up. He would carry the torch for his sleeping coed until the milennium. He was determined, as you can see.

Meanwhile the Princess, while sleeping, was missing all her classes and gathering more than the maximum number of cuts.

Prince Alarming knew of only one cure: a kiss.

So, one day when the Princess was walking on campus in her sleep, escorted by one of her friends, Prince Alarming came over and gently kissed her.

She immediately woke up, smiled, and embrased her wonderful Prince.

After explaining why she had cut classes so much, she went back to school and made the dean's list.

And they all lived happily ever after.

All, that is, except the evil, evil vamp. She got so engrossed in her social life that she flunked out.

There will be those of you who don't believe our stories about Syracuse in this spring. Well, if you are one of those, you're also the kind of person that has never wished on a star, or watched a robin in your yard, or dreamed of faraway places and Hawaiian guitars and Thornden park and Mt. Olympus and a sleepy afternoon.

Spring is the time for dreamers. And if you dream well in the springtime, you can continue even after June 21. You can dream all year 'round.

You can't find these stories in the Onondagan or in The Daily Orange files.

But if you believe them, you're really "young at heart."

And if you don't then you—WAIT! Turn around Look! Do you see that wolf chasing Little Red Riding Hood down College pl.?

Believe it now?

. . . Girls and Ice Cream Cones

ANOTHER OF THE sure signs of spring—coatless girls, and ice cream cones. Blouses blossoms all over the campus, and the consumption of the delicious dairy food goes way up, along with the mercury. Oh well, be "as giddy as a baby on a swing," because it's spring, and that feeling comes only once each year. Of course, with some people, it lasts 12 months.

SPRING ALSO MEANS stumbling over the fine-artists, sprawled over the steps and sidewalks, with sketchpad in hand. It's a great excuse to soak up the sun, and just laze around a bit. The artist's though, say it's work. Anyone for F.A. 2?

THE URGE TO sit on the grass, soak in the sunshine, and just generally goof off is stronger than ever now. There aren't any miracle drugs for the annual disease afflicting everybody these days, and sulphur and molasses doesn't work. The symptom—lassitude, and the prognosis—good, at least when finals start staring you in the face. But right now, when you feel like working, just lie in the sun until the feeling passes, and the mal de printemps won't be fatal.

Stickmen Will Battle Cortland In Home Inaugural Wednesday

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The local lacrosse season swings into high gear this week as the Orange stickmen play host to Cortland on Wednesday and Penn State Saturday. Roy Simmons' lads faced Dartmouth last Saturday in the home opener.

Syracuse's recent southern excursion was very successful. The Orange won two contests on the vacation trip and extended Maryland's mighty Terrapins before succumbing, 16-9.

Pennsylvania also fell victim to the touring Orange, 11-4, at Philadelphia on the 19th. The Penn tilt goes into the official records as a practice game, however, since it was not scheduled until this spring.

The Orange started fast against Maryland but a combination of 90-degree heat, curtailed spring practice and the fine Terrapin lacrossmen turned the tide late in the first half.

Syracuse jumped to a 3-1 advantage and led 4-2 early in the second period. Maryland took the lead at the halftime intermission and was never again headed while rolling to its seven-goal victory.

AFTER THIS week's contests with Cortland State and Penn the Orangemen entertain the Onondagan Indians on Sat., May 8. Two big battles are scheduled the following week as the Simmonsmen travel to West Point on Wednesday the 12th and return home for a Saturday tilt with Rennsalaer Poly.

A pair of road contests close the season as the Hill stickmen invade Hobart on May 19 and Cornell on the 22nd.

Hard Work Looms For Orange Tars

Balance of Campaign Should Spell Success

With the Boston Cup dinghy regatta in the background, the Orange tars will settle down to some stiff workouts in preparation for their coming meets. They will now set their sights on Colgate and Cornell in anticipation of capturing the Triad regatta.

It would seem that Syracuse will be ranked as the team to beat as neither Colgate nor Cornell are rated highly in sailing circles. The Hill sailors expect to receive the most trouble from Cornell, but feel that they are capable of copping the win.

In a freshman meet just before spring vacation, the Orange Cubs won the upper New York state frosh eliminations and thereby qualified for the middle Atlantic championship competition. The Syracuse skippers Jay Short and Art Arnold racked up the winning 31 point total between themselves.

Hill Nine to Meet Colgate, Big Red

After opening the baseball season at Union college on Saturday, the Syracuse university nine is set to usher in two games this week. Arch-rival Cornell will be met at Lew Carr Field in Collendale on Wednesday afternoon and Colgate will provide the opposition Saturday at Hamilton.

The Big Red are expected to improve considerably on their 7-6 record of last year as Coach Royner Greene has returning lettermen at every position.

DON RONNIE, Colgate flinger, who should se action against Syracuse this Saturday afternoon. Ronnie was a starter on the Maroon hoopsters.

SIX EXPERIENCED flingers grace the pitching mound for the Ithacans. Bob Young and gridder Joe Marotta lead this neucleus. Other returnees of who much is expected are Capt. Don Jacobs, a second baseman who hit a sizzling .426 last year, basketeer Lee Morton at shortstop and returning outfielders Dick Meade who hit .412 last year and Mike Hostage.

While Cornell seems to have strength and experience in all nine positions, Colgate's prowess is questionable. The Red Raiders seem strong in the infield and on the mound, questionable in the outfield and highly doubtful behind the plate.

The all-veteran infield of Hal Horan at first, Len Kraus at second, Bill Johnson at short and Capt. Bob Berry at third base is the bright spot of Coach Red O'Hora's team but pitcher Don Ronnie, possessor of a 4-1 mark last year, looked like the best ball player on the squad.

Outfield holdovers Bruce Dursema and Ted Carangelo are expected to provide most of the offensive power for the Red Raiders, but Berry is still around and he hit .395 in 10 games last year.

On paper it seems that the Orange, in the first full week of the infant collegiate baseball season, will be meeting two of its strongest opponents. But ball games, especially with Cornell and Colgate, are played on the field, not on paper, and Orange mentor, Ted Kleinhans, has enough material on hand for Syracuse to give a good accounting of itself.

Chiefs Roadbound After A's Series

The Syracuse Chiefs conclude their initial home stand of the International league baseball season tomorrow at MacArthur stadium.

Tennis to Highlight WAA Sports Scene

Signups for a WAA-sponsored tennis singles tournament will be held in the locker room of the Women's building starting today. Coeds interested in the annual tourney may sign up on a chart posted in the room; directions for procedure to be followed will be indicated on the chart.

WAA tennis is held every Friday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in Gym A, Women's building, or on Euclid ave. courts, where instruction is available.

Three intercollegiate tennis matches are scheduled for the season. Hill tennis squads will be selected after tryouts. Last fall, Syracuse's team took its only match, 2-1.

For information, call Lee Freedman, 4-9810.

Early Season Form Prevails in Majors

The opening week of the 1954 Major League baseball season produced no startling events as form held in most cases.

Baltimore, the newest entry in the American League showed an improved pitching staff in early action. The ex-Brownies obtained some fine efforts by Bob Turley, Don Larson and Duane Pillette.

Dodger pitching was poor in the opening week, but their overpowering hitting kept them right in there. Jack Robinson, Duke Snider, Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges were all over the .350 mark in early action.

Pitt Added to Grid Slate

By KEN LENT
Daily Orange Sports Editor

The Pittsburgh Panthers meet Syracuse in a home-and-home football series starting in 1955, Lew Andreas, athletic director, announced yesterday. The '55 tilt will be the Orangemen's opener here on Sept. 24.

The second game is slated for Pittsburgh on Sept. 29, 1956. The two contests renew an old rivalry which has been dormant for 15 years. The last game was a 14-0 Panther victory at Archbold stadium in 1930. Playing at end for Pitt that year was Ted Dailey, currently a Syracuse assistant coach.

The 1955 curtain-raiser will be the eleventh game of the series which has seen the men from the Steel city winning six, Syracuse two with two ties. Perhaps the most exciting game was the 1923 battle which the Orange swept, 3-0.

Played in New York's Polo Grounds, the Panthers, then known as the Yellowjackets, were knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten when Jack McBride kicked a field goal with present Orange backfield coach Roy Simmons holding.

Head coach for Pittsburgh is Red Dawson who coached the now defunct Buffalo Bills from 1946-49. During that time both Rocky Pirro of the Syracuse coaching staff and Colgate's mentor, Hal Lahar, played under him.

This makes the seventh game which has been officially announced for '55 and '56. Other Syracuse opponents will be West Virginia, Army, Colgate, Penn State,, Holy Cross and Fordham.

It is also rumored that the nation's No. 1 team, Maryland, will be met in '55 and '56.

Syracuse Golfers Conquer Fordham At Tecumseh, 6-1

Mandeville Leads Orange With 69; Burke Also Wins

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

A small Friday afternoon crowd saw the orange golfers celebrate their return to the links with a 6-1 triumph over Fordham at Tecumseh.

This was the first time Syracuse met Fordham since pre-war days. Co-Capt. Bob Mandeville, led the Orange with a three under par 69. Mandeville defeated Tucker Byrner of Fordham 4-3, after piling up a strong lead in the first nine holes.

ONLY A junior, Mandeville was the Syracuse interscholastic champion in 1952. Last year, Mandeville was runner-up to Frank Plata in the fourth annual invitation golf tournament of the Oswego country club.

Co-Capt. Gerry Sullivan of Syracuse also triumphed with a 4-3 victory over Vince Vantasse of the Rams. Sullivan shot a one under par 71 in registering his first win of the season.

One of the three returning lettermen for the Orange, Sullivan took an early lead and had the match clinched by the 15th hole. Last year, the husky linksman compiled a 5-3 record.

The only other returning lettermen to compete for Syracuse was Ed St. Pierre. St. Pierre shot a six over par 78 to down Charles Wendy, 4-3.

All but Golobic won their matches. Golobic shot a 12 over par 84 while bowing to Jim Horan, who shot an 8 over par 80.

Burke beat Mick Komormich of Fordham 3-2, after coming back from behind while Scollar, Dadey and Burke took their matches after compiling early leads.

FRIDAY'S MATCH was played under the rules of the Intercollegiate golfing association, meaning a seven member team was employed.

Essentially, six and seven member team matches are similar but there is one basic difference.

In seven team matches, there are seven individual events between the opposing team. The Captains exchange lists with their best golfers on the top and the lesser lights on the bottom.

The winner of an individual match accumulates one point for his team, four points clinching the match. As in seven team matches, individual bouts highlight the golf competition in six-team meets. The only difference is that points are also accumulated via the best ball system.

AXEL SPOTS—Syracuse will participate in the Easter intercollegiate's on May 8, 9, and 11th for the first time since pre-war days. The seven team game will be employed there. This Wednesday, the Orange meet Hobart at Tecumseh. Following Hobart, the Orange face Colgate also at home.

IT'S ALL A MATTER OF TASTE

A man who smokes a Lucky Strike
Is really on the ball.
So round, so firm, so fully packed—
The cigarette for all!

Bob Vickery, Jr.
University of Missouri

When you come right down to it, you smoke for one simple reason... enjoyment. And smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste. Yes, taste is what counts in a cigarette. And Luckies taste better.

Two facts explain why Luckies taste better. First, L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco... light, mild, good-tasting tobacco. Second, Luckies are actually made better to taste better... always round, firm, fully packed to draw freely and smoke evenly.

So, for the enjoyment you get from better taste, and only from better taste, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Get a pack or a carton of better-tasting Luckies today.

What brand is grand throughout the land
From Maine to old Kentucky—
With smoothness, mildness, better taste?
Why, yes, you're right, it's Lucky!

Students May Ask For New Books

Library Will Investigate Possibility of Order

Students have recommending power to request book purchases by the University library.

Individual faculty members may also suggest titles to be added to the library and each department is entitled to order a specific number during the year.

When a request for a new book is received, librarians check the budget and then investigate how many copies if any, are already available on campus in the branch libraries.

If the demand is considered sufficient the book will be placed on order in the University Book store.

Some privately published books are received as gifts but the large majority of newly issued books must be purchased since publishers realize libraries are their biggest customers.

Rare and first editions are often presented to the University such as the Mark Twain collection which was recently on display in the lobby of the main library.

Campus Leaders Must Return Pinebrook Cards

St. Thomas More Schedules Elections

Sodality Women Choose New Officers Tonight

Annual elections of officers and executive council members of St. Thomas More chapel will be held this week.

Members of the Blessed Virgin Mary sodality will meet at 7:30 p.m. today, while the Holy Name society will hold elections at the same time tomorrow night.

Men's and women's senior nominating committees have proposed slates to be presented to Holy Name and sodality members. Nominations will also be accepted from the floor.

Outgoing Sodality President Elizabeth Curtin will preside at tonight's meeting Room Drawings For Frosh Coeds Slated This Week

The numbers game for coeds will end this week when freshman women draw for sophomore room preferences from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday in room 110 of the Women's building.

Thirteen regular upper class living centers will be open next year for occupancy. Women who have 30 credit hours at the end of this semester will be eligible for residence in these houses.

COEDS SHOULD bring completed applications with parents' signatures to the Women's building on the day they draw. Each woman must pull her own number or write out authorization for someone else to draw for her.

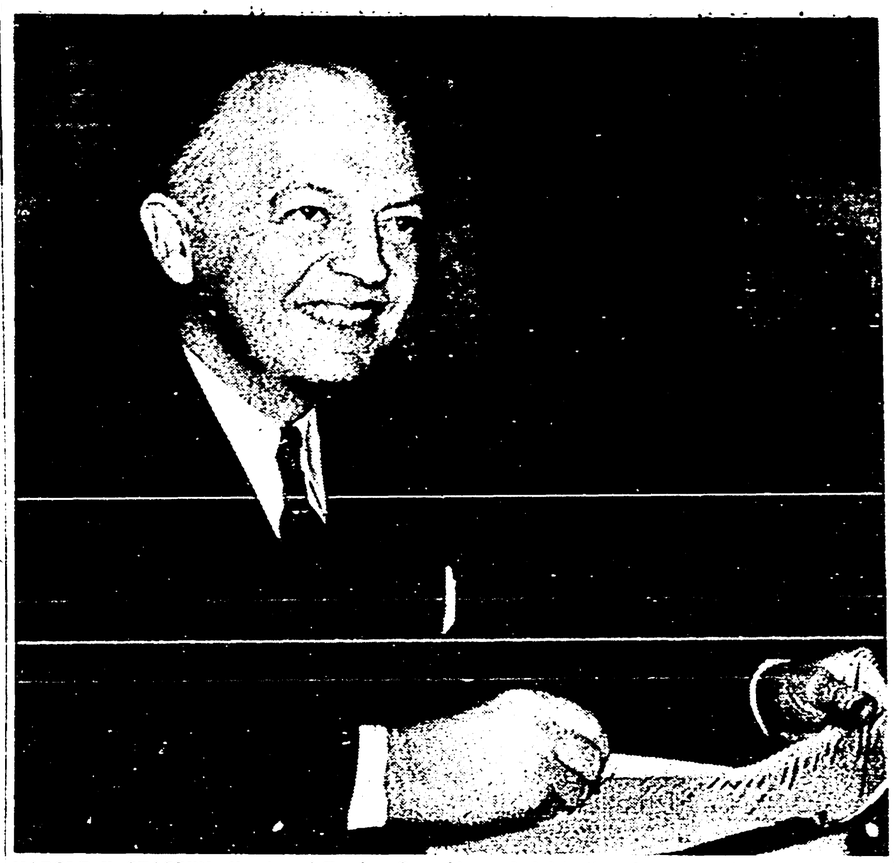
Three room choices are alloyed each coed, although she may include more than that under the application section headed "Remarks." Coeds should visit dormitories before drawing to get an idea of where they wish to live next year.

Desire to room with a specific coed should be included on each application. If a certain room is more important than roommate, or vice versa, this should also be indicated.

Room contract is for two semesters and all coeds will be held responsible for this arrangement. Assignments will be made as soon as vacancies permit and there will be no changes until after registration in September.

Upper class houses open next fall will be Berwald, Brewster, Charles, Corneille, Fairfield, Hurst Jewell, Lima, Reid, Root, Scott, Shaw and Winchell.

Peck II is a full cooperative and Genesee and Mott are semi-cooperatives, while Hyde and Powers are nurses' residences.



HAROLD E. STASSEN, director of Foreign Operations administration, former president of University of Pennsylvania, will be the speaker at the University's 100th commencement, June 7. Stassen was three-time governor of Minnesota, and he was a top contender for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948 and 1952. He served in the Navy during World War II.

University to Give Honorary Degree To FOA Director

Harold E. Stassen will be the speaker at the University's 100th commencement June 7, Chancellor William P. Tolley, said yesterday.

Stassen, director of the Foreign Operations administration, former governor of Minnesota, and former Mutual Security director, will receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree, according to the Chancellor.

STASSEN WAS in the presidential nomination spotlight twice in 1948 and 1952, and was elected president of the University of Pennsylvania in 1951. He left that position after being appointed Mutual Security director in 1952 and was appointed to the Foreign Administration post in August, 1953.

After receiving his law degree in 1929, from the University of Minnesota, Stassen was a member of the South St. Paul law firm of Stassen and Ryan. A year after he began his law practice, he was elected county attorney of Dakota county, Minn.

He held that post until 1938 when he was elected governor of Minnesota. Taking office at the age of 31, he was the youngest governor in the history of the United States. He was reelected governor in 1940 and 1942.

Stassen resigned governorship at the conclusion of the legislative session of his third term and entered active duty in the Navy in 1943 as a lieutenant commander. He served on Adm. William F. Halsey's staff in the Pacific theater from July 1943 to the end of retary and then as assistant chief the war, first as Halsey's flag sec- of staff for administration of the Third fleet.

HE RECEIVED the Legion of Merit award for outstanding performance of duty during the Philippine campaign and the Formosa and South China sea sweeps. Stassen also received the Bronze star for exceptional service in the evacuation of American prisoners of war from Japan.

He was awarded six battle stars for active participation in the Battle of Empress Augusta Bay, First and Second Battles of the Philippine sea, and attacks

Cressey Notes China's Position At Maxwell's Citizenship Lecture

By PEARL BERNSTEIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

In a discussion of "America in the Far East" Dr. George B. Cressey yesterday told Citizenship 1B students that the population of China is increasing by 1,000 persons per hour.

The Maxwell professor of geography cited this as the outstanding fact to be remembered in an evaluation of the current and future

DR. CRESSEY analyzed the economic development in Communist China during the last two years, illustrating his comments with maps and slides taken from Chinese magazines.

Twenty-six provinces and two special areas, Tibet and Inner Mongolia, make up modern China, and better transportation is one of the country's greatest needs.

"So great is the population of China," said the speaker, "that a brand new railway can be filled from the day of completion." Government statements mention 9 to 11 new railway projects, but all are not listed in the press.

Dr. Cressey pointed out that at least one of these projects will provide direct access to the Soviet Union, as will new highways and airlines now under construction.

"MANY OF China's rivers have severe floods, and indications are that much work has been done to control these," Prof. Cressey went on. He showed slides of new dams, reservoirs and canals on the Yangtse, Huai, Yellow and other rivers that will stop the devastation of the floods, as well as providing transportation and irrigation.

Peking leaders have established 2000 state farms, 52 of them mechanized, but "has only made a beginning in the goal of a completely socialized agriculture."

To offset the wind erosion which follows, and which created the dust-bowl area of the southwest United States, the Communist government has sponsored large tree and grass planting projects.

IN REFERENCE to industrial expansion, Dr. Cressy said, "Here we have some of the most audacious plans for the future." These plans include raising the level of industry to that of agriculture.

Soviet aid has enabled great industrial progress in Manchuria, and in general the cities of the north are undergoing the most expansion, the speaker said. For this reason he feels the danger of Chinese intervention in Indo-China is not as great as it was for Korea, since transporting materials to the south would provide a serious drawback and drain.

Eight Houses Sing In Semi-Finals

Judges Will Select Contest Finalists

Eight houses are scheduled to compete in the semi-finals of the annual Spring weekend step singing contest to be held at 7 p.m. today in Hendricks chapel.

These eliminations will be the last before the finals held on the Friday night of Spring weekend. At this time four houses, two in the large house division and two in the small house division, chosen from tonight's contest, will vie for the cup awarded each group by Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music honorary.

Houses in tonight's competition are Berwald, Butler and Phillips cottages and Winchell Waitresses in the small house division. In the large house division are Chi Omega, Delta Zeta, Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Kappa.

The contest is sponsored by Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary. Anne Forrest, contest chairman, said that public is cordially invited but visitors attending are requested to be there on time so that groups singing will not be interrupted.

Deadline Extended By Campus Chest

Deadline for applications for overall and committee chairmanships for the 1955 Campus Chest drive has been extended until Sunday, according to this year's co-chairman Jo-Anne Swalm and Stuart Parker.

Interviews for the positions will be held next week with the overall co-chairmen being selected first. They will then help in the selection of committee chairmen.

Applications can be submitted to Miss Swalm, Mott cottage, or Parker, Phi Gamma Delta, and should include name, address, telepone, experience and ideas.

Committee chairmanships include publicity, promotions, speaker's bureau, feather day, treasurer, executive secretary, and carnival. Solicitations divisions positions are fraternity, sorority, city students, independent men and women, faculty gifts and special gifts.

Keys for this year's chairmen are now available at the L. G. Balfour Co. on Marshall st., and should be picked up as soon as possible. Chairmen are also requested to turn in their reports immediately.

Smith to Discuss Graduation Plan

Caps and gowns, checking graduation requirements, and the activities of graduation weekend wil be explained to graduating seniors by Dean Edwin Smith at a senior convocation at 7:30 p.m. today in Maxwell Auditorium.

Dean Smith's talk will be supplemented by Dr. Oscar Barck of the history department. Dean of Women Marjorie Smith also will attend.

THE ALUMNI situation will be explained to the seniors by Winifred Hughes, president of the Alumni association.

The over-all class marshalls also will be presented. They are Mary Anne Dalton, president of women's student government, and John Beach, president of the senior class.

The individual college marshals also will be introduced. They are: Fine Arts, Ann Forrest and Clarence Mather; Business Administration, Alan Anderson and Eugene Parker; Liberal Arts, Elizabeth Bryden and Larry O'Sullivan.

Also, Home Economics, Ann Lines and Ellen "Billie" Williams; Education, Audrey Drezen and Connie Pierson; Engineering, William Terrell and Albert Smith; Journalism, Hugh Muir and Winona Brierley; Nursing, Judith Abbott and Barbara Laubach.

IN ADDITION, Speech, Marie Uban and Tess Oesterreicher; Forestry, Blair Knapp, and Jim Craine; and Utica College, Patti Ann Burke and John Finnegan.

All seniors are invited to attend in order to be able to ask any questions regarding events, fees and other information regarding graduation.

Dr. Fisher Honored With Fulbright Prize

Dr. Marguerite J. Fisher, associate professor of political science at Syracuse university and president of the New York State Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, has been awarded a Fulbright Research grant to the Philippines for 1954-55.

Dr. Fisher will lecture on political theory at the Women's university of the Philippines, and do research on the political activities of women both in the Philippines and in Japan. She will participate in plans for the political education of women drawn up by the UN. Commission on the Status of Women, and the International Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Delegates Attend Educational Convo

Syracuse Professor Delivers Address

Faculty members and students of Syracuse university's division for the education of exceptional children are attending meetings of the International Council for Exceptional Children being held this week in Cincinnati.

Those attending are: Dr. William M. Cruickshank, director of special education; Dr. Louis M. DiCarlo, executive director, and Dr. Walter W. Amster, clinical supervisor, Gordon D. Hoople Hearing and Speech Center; Dr. G. Orville Johnson, associate professor of special education; Dr. William Miller and James Warwick, Syracuse university press; and Mrs. Elisheva Shohat, June Ammon, Rhode Barron, and Charles Neill, students in the special education division.

Dr. Cruickshank, a past president of the Council, will attend executive committee meetings and will present a paper on "Education of Gifted Children" later in the session.

Zonta Club Sets Coed Scholarship

The Zonta club, in association with Syracuse university, will award one year scholarship to a coed who is a legal resident of Onondaga county.

The award, amounting to $350, is equally contributed to by the club and the university.

Application blanks for the scholarship are available from Miss Haddock in the office of the Dean of Women. An enrollee of any undergraduate college is eligible.

The blanks should be mailed to Dr. Dorothy M. Naumann, chairman of the committee, at 111 Waverly ave., Syracuse.

Awarding of the scholarship shall be based on the need of financial assistance of the applicant, acceptable scholarship abilities and potentialities of leadership or contributions in the best interests of society.

Tickets on Sale for 'Act IV,' Senior Ball

WOODY HERMAN AND HIS "Third Herd" will play pretty for the people at the Senior Ball, May 9. "Act IV" will be the theme of the ball, tying in with Spring weekend's overall theme, "All the World's a Stage."

"Act IV" will be the theme of the Senior Ball on May 8, tying in with the overall spring weekend theme "All the World's a Stage."

Tickets for the Saturday night formal, priced at $4 per couple, will go on sale today. They will be sold in Sims dining hall during the lunch hour, in Slocum from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and in the University Book store from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

VIALS OF Act IV perfume provided by Faberge inc. will be distributed to couples attending the dance next week. Idea for the dance theme came from a Christmas gift one of the committee members received from her roommate.

Sam Ruben of Faberge explained that the name of the perfume signifies that the most romantic part of an evening is after the third and final act when a couple leaves the theater.

The Senior Ball will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Women's building. Woody Herman and his orchestra will provide the dance music and plans are being made for entertainment including a professional group from another campus.

Spring Weekend queen chosen by senior women in recent campus elections will be feted at the ball with her court. Candidates for the honor were selected from members of Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary.

PINK AND black will be the dominant colors used in decorating the gymnasium, chairman Mary Todd announced. She called for students to assist in the decorating job which will include dying and starching 1400 yards of cheesecloth. Those interested can contact Miss Todd at Mott cottage, 4-9450.

Herman's band, famous for its jazz concerts, will return to the United States from a European tour on May 7. This will be its first appearance in this country since the tour. While in Europe it was widely acclaimed as a dance band as well.

Singer Dolly Houston will be featured with the orchestra.

Refreshments will be served and formal dress will be optional. The Senior Ball is traditionally the last scheduled University social event of the school year.

Vacancies Remain In Men's Housing

One hundred ninety-three vacancies remain in men's housing for next semester, Jack C. Buckle, director of men's counseling and residence, said yesterday. Included in this figure are 70 places in Marion dormitory.

The list of approved private housing is now available in the office of the dean of men. Students having already made arranagements for next semester in a private house should check to ensure that it has been approved for the fall semester, he said.

Next-semester sophomores, who must live in University dormitories or fraternities, must make arrangements by May 15 and will not be permitted to register next fall until a housing assignment has been made.

Buckle strongly advised any student desiring to petition to work for board or for approval of a private house should do so before leaving college this semester.

GLENNON ADDRESS
Dr. Vincent J. Glennon, associate professor of education at Syracuse university, will address the general session of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics at the annual meeting today in Cincinnati.

School of Music To Sponsor Picnic

The School of Music's student advisory council is sponsoring a picnic to Green Lakes state park on Saturday, May 1. Students and faculty members from all colleges of the University are invited to attend.

Tickets for the affair will be on sale through noon today at a booth on the main floor of Crouse. Priced at $1 apiece, they may also be obtained from members of the advisory council.

Transportation will be provided from Crouse at 10 a.m. Saturday. The group will return in the late afternoon.

Lorraine Smorol and Catherine Mallatis, co-chairmen of the affair, promise a "great outing with plenty of refreshments, entertainment and things to do." This is the first year a picnic has been sponsored by the student advisory council.

Syracusan Sells Parody Tomorrow

The cover may look bad, but the inside promises to be even worse, according to Mal Foster, editor of the campus humor magazine. That's the April Syracusan, "Modern Scream," which goes on sale all across campus tomorrow. "Modern Scream" is the 1954 parody issue of the Syracusan, fifth in the magazine's history.

Don't forget to look for your friends and your campus leaders on the pages of Modern Scream, too, because they're all there in profusion. Better get an extra one to send home.

All work and no play makes everybody rather dull; but NO work at all is worse. we present the compromise

Guest of honor

We are honored that Harold E. Stassen has accepted the invitation to address the 130th commencement exercises of Syracuse university, June 7.

Perhaps the prime requisite of bestowing this academic honor on someone at a college graduation is the person's productive service to whatever field he is in.

Mr. Stassen more than qualifies.

He has always been available to serve when and where called upon.

But when we speak of a man who was twice a top contender for a presidential nomination, it would be naive indeed if we did not recognize that he is a politician and is known mostly for his work in politics.

He has been president of a great university and has been three-time governor of Minnesota. He resigned the latter post to serve in the Navy during world war II. Now he is Foreign Operations Administration director.

We think his present job is his most important—a vital one in the struggle by ourselves and our allies for peace and world cooperation.

Educator, yes; humanitarian, yes; but primarily, politician.

He is an example of the kind of honest politician this country needs more of.

Good neighbors

The "melting pot" will be reproduced on campus next year when the International House for male graduate students opens its doors.

A similar experiment in cooperative living with students from other lands (a private not a University venture) was tried once before at Syracuse but eventually failed becauase of a lack of response from the students. Once again we are being given the opportunity to prove whether such an experiment can succeed on the graduate level.

This International House will bring together 12 students from American and other countries under a planned program. Food will be prepared by the students on a cooperative basis. Discussions will broaden the knowledge of each student in this undertaking.

The wealth of understanding and insight that can be gained from association with other nationalities becomes the focal point of the venture.

By so doing, one of the objections frequently raised by some of the foreign students is overcome. This is the fact that many live only with people from their own country or other foreign lands. They say they are here to learn how Americans live but miss a part of this when they do not actually live with them.

The Americans who voluntarily become a part of this project will also become their close friends, counselors and guides. This will help close the gap where no male foreign guide program exists.

We hope that this experiment will not go the way of its predecessor.

The working class

Despite the pedantic philosophy of the critical pessimists, the working classes are here to stay . . . that is if we all get a job eventually.

The Daily Orange is printing a series of articles to aid the neophyte laborer in acquiring a job in the world outside.

It is no trick to get A job. The real skill is involved in getting THE job. That is theoretically why we are in college.

But the best education in the world goes to waste if it is not applied. That sounds rather elementary, but actually many people never realize their full capabilities due to sheer laziness.

We suggest you glance through the series. Two more articles will follow today's. It's your future.

JOB HUNTING?

ON WRITING LETTERS OF APPLICATION

By D. L. CHANDLER
College of Bus. Ad.

Here are a few suggestions to follow in writing your application letter. Think of the person to whom you are writing. What does he want in an employee? Word your letter to answer questions about your training and experience in which the reader will be interested. Anticipate his questions and offer the answers. Remember your letters of application are IMPORTANT letters. One letter may determine where you will live for years or the remainder of your life! One letter man to a large extent determine the opportunities you will have for advancement, assuming of course that you are willing to work hard on the job. One letter may decide who your friends will be and where your children will attend school! Or, if you do not remain on one job, or in one location, at least the letters of application that you write will have a decided influence upon the pattern of your life.

When you write a letter of application be sure that you have done your best. Have a person who knows something about letters read what you have written before you sign it. Your letter should be typed on one page with a data sheet attached. Your signature should be readable! ALWAYS reread your letter just before you fold it to put it into the envelope. Be sure you know how to fold a letter properly for the size of envelope that you are using.

Stationery and Arrangement of Letter. Use good plain white paper 8½ by 11 inches for your letter. Keep your margins uniform and wide enough to make your letter look inteesting. Leave at least an inch of space between the top edge of the paper and the complete date line address which consists of your street address on the first line, the city followed by zone, and state on the next line, and the complete date on the third line. Then allow another inch between the date line and the inside address; you may discover that you can use a few more lines after you have typed your first copy. Be sure to leave a white space between the last line of the inside address and the salutation, and between the salutation and the body of the letter as well as between the paragraphs. Finally, leave a white space after the last line of your letter before you type the closing.

Be sure the type is clean before you start to type your letter, and be sure that the ribbon makes a good clear impression. Organize your letter so that you will have variety of sentence structure. Of course, you will be sure that you have no misspelled words! Recently a young man had a letter of application returned with several errors encircled and the following comment written across the top: "You may be a smart young man, but we can't use a person who can't spell!" Sign your letter with dark blue or black ink.

The enveloped that carries your letter should be the regular business size, 9½ inches long, so that you will need to fold your letter only twice. Fold the lower third up from the bottom; crease across the page. Next fold the upper third down within a quarter of an inch from the first fold and crease. Insert your letter into a correctly typed envelope. Of course, if you prefer to fold your letter only once, there's an envelope approximately 6 by 9 inches that will attract attention by its unusual size. The envelope should match your typing paper in quality and whiteness. If there is a new stamp available you might attract attention to your letter by using it.

If you should receive an acknowledgment of an application letter and then wait for two or three weeks without getting an invitation for an interview, you should write another letter. Of course, you must use a different approach, but perhaps you overlooked some accomplishment in your first letter that might be of interest to the company.

The Real Lowdown On Stars

I was browsing around the ally behind the Brown Derby the other night when I ran into Babling Tower and his latest flame. She's a starlet on the way up in the grade C westerns. Bulldogs steers for now . . . but Babling told me confidentially that she's a knockout in a covered wagon.

The Forlorn Hopes are expecting their ninth. He has two Cadillacs in the garage and four sport cars while she is expecting her third convertible. Here's to a bouncing baby blue job for the lovely couple.

Cecil B. Theshill has announced his latest Biblical epic. It will be a lavish costume job of the Garden of the Garden of Eden story. Problems have arisen on the casting of the serpent but Rank Sinatra is vieing for the part against Mrs. Dimagio. She will have to shed 50 pounds for the part but she has told me confidentially that she wants to play a serious role.

David Sellsnickles threw one of the gayest parties of the season over the weekend. His cozy mountain retreat on Knob Hill was the scene for this cozy orgy . . . over a thousand extras were on hand to give it a homy setting. Loretta Tells All

Compiled By LOUELLA PARSNIP

Each month a Hollywood celebrity answers personal questions submitted by her fans. This month's star is Loretta Young.

Dear Miss Young:

I am a young man (no pun on your name) 26 years old. I have a college degree dietetics, with a minor in engineering. My health and vigor is excellent. I am, if you will pardon my modesty, robust.

I pride myself in popularity. Three years ago I overcame a terrible case of acne, and now I feel that I have more than made my place in society.

So tell me, why can't I find a girl?

Sincerely,
R. N.

Dear Mr. R. N.:

Your problem is not unique.

My advice to you is to face the stark reality of the situation. Go home to your wife. Tell her all about your criminal record and I am certain that she will forgive you. After all, that is what a spouse is for—to forgive—and forget.

Didn't the minister tell you that at your wedding?

Sincerely,
Loretta Young

Dear Miss Young:

I don't really see any sense to the horrible debates in Washington, to the petty squabbles, to the waste of the taxpayers' money, to the stark hypocrisy of it all.

I told my husband yesterday, "Miss Young will agree with me even if you don't."

Why can't I get into the movies?

Sincerely,
C. F.

Dear Mrs. C. F.:

Your problem is not unique.

You can get in the movies; that is, if you go out and get a job and earn the price of a ticket.

Sincerely,
Loretta Young

Dear Fans:

Each month I get a pile of letters that if laid end to end would stretch across Vine st.

I read each of these letters first, before throwing them back into Vine st.

And the problems are not unique. Everyday problems.

You can solve them, even without my expert advice. It only takes a little ambition, a little fortitude, a little gumption and a little money for the psychiatrist.

Sincerely,
Loretta

Hollywood is my Beat

Our movie boner for this week comes from Miss Petunia Scrimp of Cupcake Junction, Iowa. Miss Scrimp writes that in the M-G Twentieth Brothers film "From Here to a Roman Holiday" there was a serious boboo.

She begs us to recall the scene which takes place just after the murder is committed. We see him dialing the telephone.

Five years later the villian has been apprehended and is being brought to justice. The girl who he supposedly called is on the stand. She swears that he admitted the murder over the phone that fateful day.

It is this moment that Miss Scrimp questions.

I have here before me Miss Scrimp's affidavit. She says that the line, my dear fans, was busy.

Colossal Review of Colossus

By SAMUELS & DELILAH

Friends! Don't miss it!
Fabulous!
Sensational!
Bloodcurdling!

It was nice. She was pretty. He was a doll. A living doll. And the screen. It was different. Not like the lod-fashioned screen. This one was on not only backwards and upside-down but it was taller than it was high. And the color. Yes. It certainly did.

The plot was a subtle mixture of subtleties and subtitles. There was no sound.

The characters were portrayed by actors and actresses, with the exception of Rin Tin Tin, who is not registered with Central Casting but wandered in from a local foxhunt.

Anyway, the picture. Lots of nice people were there to see it. "Killer" Jones of Metro-Goldwyn-Alcatraz stole the show. The police have since recovered it, however.

The popcorn could have been better. Just a teeny bit more buttered salt on each golden kernal would have helped a lot.

Of course, it would have been more convenient if they'd supply paper bags to put it in.

Now, darlings, let me describe the scene as the picture received a premiere reception. Nine hundred solid gold brass bands played outside the theater. The governors of 34 states were on hand to kiss the starlets.

The crowd was large, though not unruly. Both of them applauded as the picture's stars paraded into the theater past the six-dimensional television cameras.

The seats in the theater were comfortable. Not like Beautyrest, but I should complain? It's not an easy job, but what the hell.

The titles were well designed and in excellent taste. Any of you dear readers interested in learning the name of the film, which I've unfortunately have forgotten, can find same at your local theater.

Rebuffed By Idol

It was one of those warm-hearting events in everyday life.

I was sitting in the Brown Derby the other night having a little snack to help my indigestion. Just a few chocolate-dipped oysters with pickle sauce. One of their Friday specialities.

Anyway, I wanted to go get a pack of cigarettes, so I asked my friends to excuse me because I had to go to make a phone call. And there at the cashier's desk, I saw him. Sam Slender, Western star.

"Can I have your autograph, Mr. Slender?" I asked.

"No," he said.

AN EVENING IN

TOP TV SHOW NOT QUITE ALL THAT

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

There was cause for examination over the by-gone holiday. Examination of several aspects of local television. A business which is, just incidently, observing a teddy bear's picnic on channels three and eight of Syracuse.

The prime concern was to be found in a telecast called "Jim DeLine and his Gang" (WSYR-TV, 12 noon, M-Fri.) which last week was voted the "best local television show" by TV Guide magazine. Speaking through its readers, TV Guide, a national publication with local pages, found the daily 45-minute variety show the top offering on the Syracuse video scene.

Be this as it may, the April 20 telecast of "Jim DeLine and his Gang", viewed by this department, left much to be desired. It also left a great many questions as to the taste in the mouth of Syracuse televiewers unanswered.

I had watched this program on several other occasions but this prior experience was not sufficient to unscramble the assorted and tumultous goings-on in the DeLine spectacle. The thing began with some business outside the studio involving the Syracuse Chiefs baseball team which was parading by the camera in convertibles in celebration of the renewal of ball-throwing in this city.

The purpose of all this being, it seemed, to try out the new "zoomar" lens purchased by WSYR-TV to teleview some of the Chiefs' home contests. Someone was attempting to commentate on the situation in the background while the lens swung crazily over the sidewalk, streets, up the side of adjoining buildings, on hubcaps and what all. It was quite bewildering.

Following this demonstration, the program returned to the studio wherein were gathered the DeLine gang which roughly numbers an orchestra of eight, two male singers, a girl vocalist, moderator DeLine and an unnumbered list of unidentified persons who wander in and contribute remarks on call. It is difficult to comment on the quality of this talent because I don't think I've run across anything to compare with it.

situation. Perhaps a shade of enthusiasm, the right kind of enthusiasm would be just the thing.

On the particular viewing, it was explained that only one camera could be used resulting in a few long shots of dead air while the camera raced around the studio.

This business, coupled with the continual switches outside the studio to pick up the "zoomar" lens in action on the street, made for more muddle.

It would seem that the main strike against "Jim Deline and his Gang" is the factor of confusion which does no good for the show in the hands of persons unable to channel such confusion interestingly. In such a medium, each show should be a whole product in itself and should not rely on past association for its life. As it is, the telecast is overly informal.

Despite its obvious simplicity, this Jim DeLine business leaves one to wonder just what is going on in local television if this is what the viewers vote "the best."

The apparent selection cannot be a large one.

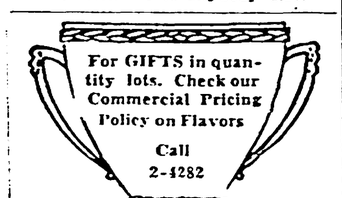
War & Movie Errors

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movie Critic

When the mythical kingdoms in "Duck Soup" went to war with one another, the audience at the Coronet theater was treated to farce that was as pointed as it was funny. Unfortunately, the latest in the Boar's Head series of classic cinema comedies, is for the most part a series of repititious and uninspired Marx Brothers tricks that are presented without regard to continuity and meaning. When the Mark Brothers use farce as they do in the last sequence of their film in an organized, logically insane manner "Duck Soup" is clearly a masterly work. When they use it throughout the rest of the film with no apparent purpose it becomes dull and labored.

"Duck Soup", which entailed as whacky a portrait of monarchy as is probably to be found, presents the masters of rapid-fire slapstick with a vehicle, which, when it is good, is great. The war sequence at the end of the film is a parody of war that appealed to both the minds and the funny bones of the paying customers. The shot of the absurdly funny Harpo Marx wearing a sign: "Join the Navy and see the Army," in the midst of a heavy battle is a small masterpiece of visual humor. Groucho is likewise hilarious and Chico is an admirable foil for the shennigans of his eloquently mute sidekick. It is too bad that "Duck Soup" was thrown together with so little script.

The short subject on the program, Mack Sennet's "The Barber Shop" with W. C. Fields was perfect. The Field's drawl is always good for a belly laugh and in this little joyride the drawl is used on lines well calculated to elicit said laughter. When Mr. Field is going through his routine nobody pays much attention to anybody else.



Failing the Course

A Yale university economics instructor who tried to teach investment procedures by example has flunked his own course on the stock market.

It began when instructor Robert E. Will decided to give his freshman class a practical demonstration on the workings of stock. Will passed on a tip that New Bristol Oils, Ltd., was on the way up and "a good investment."

Within no time the freshmen had given Will the money to invest in Canadia oil, and Prof. Lloyd G. Reynolds, head of the economics department, was censuring the action as "rather imprudent."

The Yale Daily News, student paper, reported the size of the transaction to be 16,000 shares, but Prof. Reynolds said only 1,600 shares were bought.

Reynolds said Will has been ordered to reimburse his students for the venture. Since the stock has fallen slightly instead of rising, Will stands to lose five cents a share—plus brokerage fees—if he sells it immediately.

When You Join
The "Men Who Measure" . . .

When you leave school as an engineer and join the ranks of the "men who measure," you'll want the most accurate and durable measuring tapes. Lufkin Chrome Clad Tapes ARE the most accurate and durable because their markings are bonded to the line and protected by multiple platings of metal that also protect the fine steel in the line. This all-metal line is longest wearing—it won't crack, chip, peel—is easiest to keep clean—is most rust and corrosion resistant. Chrome Clad Tapes are the choice of engineers the world over.

Whether you're running a survey, building a bridge or a building, railroading, road building, mining or drilling—there's a Lufkin measuring tape exactly right for the job.

Stickmen Await Cortland After Saturday Conquest

Denied the use of the two-platoon system in football, Coach Roy Simmons has successfully adapted it to his lacrosse pattern and will trot it out again tomorrow when the Cortland State Teachers come to town.

Syracuse had a chance to oil up its system against Dartmouth last Saturday on Hendricks field when it downed the Green Indians, 14-10. Simmons employed the two-platoon at midfield and defense to coo the home opener in handy fashion.

Stew Lindsay, soph forward, kicked off the scoring with an unassisted goal in 3:02. It was followed rapidly by midfielder Al Duff's 4:46 tally with Muller assisting.

When Gates scored for Dartmouth it was a one-point edge that Syracuse held. The first period ended with Dave Kline and Yancey scoring to move Syracuse three points away, 6-3.

That was only temporary, however, as the Green's Gates and Lenhard tallied in the first five minutes of the second quarter. It stayed at 6-5 until the final minutes of the half when Duff netted one and Yancey two for Syracuse.

THE 9-5 SCORE was added to as soon as the intermission-ending whistle blew. Lindsay and Duff each pushed a single through and the 11-5 score was never threatened.

In addition to Yancey's five scores, Duff and Lindsay tallied three apiece while Kline, Miller and Smith each counted once. Duff, Yancey, Bob Tucker and Don Moller notched assists.

Dartmouth, starting early, but badly, this year, now has a 2-7 record. Depending on how you count, you can take your choice between a 2-1 or 3-1 record for the Orange. If you consider the game at Pennsylvania over the holidays, although it's officially listed as a practice tilt, the Saltines own a 3-1 mark.

Cortland, tomorrow afternoon's foe, won but two of eight last year. The Dragons were trounced by Syracuse, 16-2, in their 1953 opener.

On Saturday the Orange will entertain Penn State's Nittany Lions.

SYRACUSE'S ATHLETE of the Year, BRUCE YANCEY rifled home five goals in the weekend conquest of Dartmouth. The all-American midfielder and Orange co-captain will lead his mates against Cortland State tomorrow afternoon.

Faculty Prepares For Baseball Tilt

Determined to avenge a 25-3 beating at the hands of the students last year, the business administration faculty is preparing for the traditional student-faculty baseball game at the third annual bus ad picnic next Tuesday at Green Lake.

Included in the faculty lineup will be "Hustling" Hurley, "Skeeter" Reeder, "Leaping" Landry, the Smitty twins, "Tiger" Tjersland, "Fireball" Feller and "Hammering" Haseman. "Mauler" Munroe will act as umpire.

Those wishing to play on the student team may sign up on the bulletin board in Slocum. Charles Knickerbocker, in charge of athletics for the event, announced that all those who sign will have an opportunity to play.

In addition to the game, which will start at 2 p.m., golf, horseshoes, volleyball and fishing will be available to the picnickers.

The lake has been stocked with sock-eyed salmon and trout, and the Park commission has authorized fishing for those with licenses.

Tickets for the picnic will be available at 25 cents each tomorrow in the rotunda of Slocum. Any student may purchase a ticket. Bus ad classes will be dismissed at noon Tuesday to enable students to attend.

SAILORS 10TH

The Piety sailors found the going a bit rough last weekend in the Boston Dinghy regatta. Syracuse finished 10th in a field of 13. Len Monague was the only individual first place winner for the Orange. The yearling team fared worse than the varsity, finishing eighth in a field of a like number.

Crew Faces Strong Rivals In First Home Competition

Syracuse's varsity and junior varsity crews, beaten in their season-opening races last weekend at Navy, prepare today for the invasion of four top collegiate rowing rivals in Saturday's big regatta on Onondaga Lake.

The Orange Oarsmen will play host to Navy, Cornell, Wisconsin and Boston university in what the New York Times has called the biggest race from a national standpoint on one of the biggest college rowing days of the season."

FOR THE HILL shells, it will be the second test of the season and the first multi-crew competition of the year. The Saltine oarswingers lost both races at Annapolis by open water margins.

In the varsity race, the championship Navy crew rowed to its 2nd consecutive victory by whipping Coach Gus Eriksen's Piety boat by two and one-half lengths.

The Academy oarsmen's undefeated string includes a win in the 1952 Olympics, two IRA victories, and a two-length defeat of Princeton in its first '54 outing. The Middies never trailed while handily defeating Syracuse over the one and three-quarter mile Severn River course.

The Midshipmen, rowing at a torrid 42 strokes per minute pace at the start of the race, quickly opened a half-length lead. The sailors extended their margin to a full length at the half-mile point and had an open-water advantage as the shells passed the three-quarter mile marker.

AT THIS POINT, the Navy boat had settled down to a 28-stroke beat while Syracuse was pulling 30. The Orange upped its stroke to 36 in an effort to close the gap as the boats entered the stretch run. But the host shell, moving at a smooth and steady 32-stroke pace, withheld the Saltine drive to extend its string to the longest unblemished record in recent crew history.

The junior-varsity race paralleled the varsity event as the Academy Jayvees sprinted to an early lead and then extended the margin steadily in winning by four lengths. The time for the JV race was 10:21.0 with Syracuse 15.9 seconds back. The Navy varsity's time was 10:07.5, the Orange finishing in 10:17.1.

The Hill varsity shell was stroged by Ray Rogers. Roger Parfitt was in the seventh seat, Ham Dixon, six; I Clark, five; Neil Gutchess, four; Gerry Baule, three; Capt. Bob Curran, two; and Ollie Richards, bow. Bill Kennington was the varsity coxswain.

the favorite's role once again this weekend. But facing Cornell and Wisconsin, second and fourth respectively in last year's IRA, a more experienced Syracuse and a Bu boat that may prove surprising. Coach Rusty Callow's boys will have to be at their best.

LACK OF experience will hurt both the Big Red and the Badgers from the midwest. This weekend's regatta will be the first test of the season for both shells, which had to make replacements due to graduation losses from the powerhouse crews of a year ago.

But both Coach "Stork" Sanford of Cornell and Norm Sonju of Wisconsin expect their boats to be good once again this year. Boston, a poor finisher last season, was a driving second in the mythical Charles river championships last week and may have a much improved shell.

The Beantown rowers were two and one-half lengths behind Harvard in the race for Boston vicinity crews, but were some three lengths in front of MIT. Boston's JV shell finished second in this regatta also.

Syracuse, with only about three weeks of on-the-lake practice before the Navy encounter, will be a more experienced shell. The race, then, appears to be a very important and indicative one for all the crews involved and for the national rowing picture also.

THE NATIONAL crew picture began to take shape last weekend. Pennsylvania, Princeton and Columbia hooked up in their annual Childs cup regatta on Princeton's Lake Carnegie. The Orange will be meeting all three of these shells later in the year in the Eastern Sprint regatta and the IRA.

The powerful Penn boat whipped the host Tigers by one length in the varsity event. The Lions from New York city were a length in back of Nassau. Coach Joe Blacks Red and Blue JV rowers also were victorious with Princeton and Columbia once again second and third.

Out on the Pacific coast, California's big Bear eight, a perennial challenger in the IRA's, won its season-opener by two lengths

Dual Meet Opener Looms for Runners At Colgate Saturday

Tough Breaks Hinder Hillmen at Relays; Vielbig Spiked

A series of tough breaks put the Orange trackmen out of the running at the Penn Relays last weekend, but Coach Bob Grieve's crew worked vigorously yesterday in readying for the season's dual meet opener at Colgate this Saturday.

Grieve had planned to enter teams in the four-mile and distance medley relays and the frosh mile relay at the Philadelphia games. The latter team met with no mishap, and came through with a third-place 3:24.8 effort.

This team unexpectedly turned out to be the only Syracuse team to place at the Relays. At the start of the distance medley, lead-off man Les Vielbig got spiked during a "break" before the gun sounded.

The strong-running sophomore might have run a good race despite the wound if he could have run immediately. But two more gun-jumping episodes occurred before the bona fide start.

By this time Vielbig was feeling the full force of the wound. This spiking accident considerably slowed down the medley relay foursome (Vielbig, Armstrong, Shupe and Osterhout), but worse yet, it caused the Hillmen to scratch from the four-mile relay.

ANOTHER TOUGH break occurred when broad jumper Dick Jackson missed qualifying for the finals by one-eighth of an inch. Jackson cleared 22 feet 5 inches. A dozen grains of sawdust would have given the speedy sophomore a crack at the finals.

Javelinin' Joe Martin tossed his stick to a third-place distance. The husky Pennsylvanian threw it 194 feet 7 inches, 12 feet less than the winning toss.

The Grievemen travel to Colgate Saturday with revenge for last year's defeat at the hands of the Raiders in mind. Meet time is 2 p.m. A week from Saturday Boston university comes to town for the Piety cindermen's first home meet of the season.

Croquet Play Won By Goddard, Muir

Elizabeth Goddard and Hugh O. Muir captured the day's prizes last Thursday in the second flight eliminations for The Daily Orange Spring Invitational Croquet tournament.

Goddard will compete in the second flight playoffs and the two winners will play in the championship tourn . Muir has already qualified for the championship matches and was playing Thursday "just for practice," he said.

Final heats before the second flight playoffs and the championship matches will be held at 4 p.m. today and tomorrow near pre-fab 7. Second flight playoffs will be held 4 p.m. Tomorrow and the championship battles will be held 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday. Spectators are urged to attend, according to the croquet committee.

'Big Three' Rivals Next for Piety Nine

Syracuse's diamond forces dive right into the core of their 1954 campaign this week with battles against arch-rivals Cornell and Colgate scheduled Wednesday and Saturday.

Coach Ted Kleinhans will probably call on righthander Bill Cassidy for the mound chores in Wednesday's home opener against the Ithacans with Mickey Kyff the probable choice at Colgate.

KYFF GOT the Orangemen off to a victorious start in the season's lid-lifter against Union Saturday by going all the way in the 7-5 decision. The veteran moundsman was hit freely, but tightened up in the clutches. Cassidy, a sophomore, will be making his first varsity appearance against the Big Red.

Cornell brings an impressive 4-1 ledger into the battle including a 15-1 trouncing of Hobart. Their other victims include Sampson, Clarkson and Brown. Yale handed the Ithacans their only setback with a 16-0 thumping.

Kleinhans will probably keep his lineup the same for the home opener, with third baseman Ted Kukowski again filling the clean-up spot. The slugging two-sport star made an impressive debut with two singles.

Another gridder, Paul Slick, and Nick Coyne also added two hits to the nine-hit Piety attack while Dick Neufang, Ed Albright and Ed Roman each accounted for singles.

SYRACUSE GOT off to a fast start against the Dutchmen with four runs in the second inning, after the hosts had recorded their initial marker in the first stanza.

Darr walked and Slick and Roman folowed with bingles. Kyff was safe on an error and then singles by Coyne and Kukowski kept the rally going.

Union closed the gap to one run with two tallies in the third, but the Orangemen came back with two more markers in the fifth and a single tally in the sixth.

The losers rallied for two more runs in the seventh to close the gap and threatened in both the eighth and final innings. They filled the bases with one out in the eighth, but a double play ended the rally. In the ninth with the tying run on second and one out, Kyff retired the next three batters without difficulty.

THE ORANGE flinger gave up 11 hits and nine bases on balls in the battle, but tightened up in the clutches. The tight Piety defense was charged with only two errors.

Soph Ray Schapley and senior Al Totaro may break into the starting nine for the Cornell encounter. Totaro is fighting with Neufang for the shortstop slot while Schapley is battling for the call in centerfield.

Wednesday's opener at Lew Carr field will begin at 4 p.m. Saturday's battle at Colgate has a 2:30 p.m. starting time.

TED KUKOWSKI, Orange third-baseman and cleanup hitter, banged a pair of hits in Saturday's 7-5 victory over Union.

Spring Intramurals Commence Today

Softball, Tennis Open; Golf Starts Saturday

Syracuse's spring Intramural program opens today with initial action in two sports. Three tennis matches are slated for the Skytop courts this afternoon with a quartet of softball games carded for twilight play on Hendricks field.

Competition will continue in both sports throughout the week. A third spring season opens Saturday morning with eight golf matches on the Tecumseh course.

Horseshoe competition will begin next week.

All spring sports will be run on a direct elimination basis. Today schedules:

SOFTBALL

Alpha Chi Rho vs. Phi Kappa Tau; Alpha Epsilon Pi vs. Phi Sigma Delta; Alpha Sigma Phi vs. Pi Alpha Chi; Alpha Tau Omega vs. Pi Kappa Alpha (all games start at 6:15 p.m. on Hendricks field).

TENNIS

Phi Epsilon Pi vs. Beta Theta Pi; Sigma Alpha Mu vs. Tau Epsilon Phi; Alpha Sigma Phi vs. Delta Upsilon (all matches start at 4 p.m. on the Skytop courts).

Syracuse Nationals Draft Mel Besdin

Mel Besdin, native Syracusan and Orange basketball captain last season, was plucked in the National Basketball association's draft last weekend by the local Syracuse Nationals.

The Nats selected Besdin as their eighth choice. Their first wish was John Kerr, Illinois's 6-foot-9 high-scorer.

Fred Wilt Works Out With Piety Runners

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

An Indiana basketball player turned distance runner showed up at Archbold stadium late yesterday afternoon and worked out with several of Coach Bob Grieve's trackmen. That Hossier strider was none other than Fred Wilt, one of the top runners in the nation.

Wilt, who formerly held the world's record in the two-mile run, ran through a series of speed exercises and paced a pack of the Grievemen through a mile and a half in preparation for the Boardwalk mile this Saturday at Atlantic City.

ACTUALLY, THE workout was not in preparation for any specific race. "I run any chance I get," the FBI agent said. "It keeps you young, you know."

Wilt began running track in high school. But it wasn't till his freshman year at Indiana university that the wavy-haired G-man got his real start.

After the basketball season was over, he "took up track." In two months he had lowered his best high school time in the mile, 4:40, to a healthy 4:22.

Heightened by a spirited competition with miler Don Gehrmann at the turn of the mid-century, the Hoosier stepper reached the very fast time of 4:05.5 in the Boardwalk mile in 1950. His best indoor mile was a 4:08 effort last year.

IN ANSWERING the question, "What mile gave you your biggest thrill," the investigator put all New England stoics to shame.

"None of them, I guess." Then "Well, every time I win a race it's a big thrill." Finally, "I guess one of the biggest thrills was the time I first beat (Don) Gehrmann in the mile." (Won in 4:08.4 in 1951 at Madison Square Garden.)

According to Wilt, he (Wilt) is "not much of a miler. I'm really a two-miler." Proof of this is the fact that he set a world record in that event on Feb. 23, 1952. His time was 8:50.7. Horace Ashenfelter recently erased that mark by two-tenths of a second. (8:50.5)

Wilt has ran against Ashenfelter in the two-mile twice this year. He defeated the new record-holder once and Ashenfelter beat him once.

"I THINK I could do well, if I had a chance to run it (the two-mile) frequently," the former hoopster said, tossing a ball of tape into a basket eight feet away.

"I don't train scientifically, because I don't get a chance to run every day. Sometimes I run twice a day, knowing I won't be able to run for the next few days."

Proof that he could do well in the two-mile was recently manifested in the fieldhouse at Purdue when the investigator ran an 8:58.7.

The veteran miler thinks that Wes Santee of Kansas State and John Landy of Australia are the best milers of today and that both are capable of a four-minute mile today. "Of course," Wilt added, "Landy hasn't proven himself in actual competition." (Landy has run mostly paced miles.)

What about Mal Whitfield, he was asked? Whitfield edged Wilt for second place Saturday in the Ben Franklin mile. "He's a good runner," Wilt said. "It depends on how hard he tries, just how great he will be."

AS THE Hoosier high-stepper jogged off on another lap of the field, he yelled to Coach Grieve, "If you see anything wrong with my form, let me know." Grieve who is most proficient at that task, shook his head sadly, then roared at the incongruity of the request.

Wilt floated down the track.

Aspiring Golfers Meet Tomorrow

There will be an important meeting of all persons interested in playing on the frosh golf team tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the Phi Gamma Delta house.

The freshman schedule—a four-meet slate consisting of two home-and-home series with Cornell and Colgate—begins this Friday at Colgate. Candidates for the team are urgently needed. s yet enough candidates to complete a full team have not reported.

If interested persons cannot attend the meeting, they may contact Jack Belle at 75-4418 or 4-6317.

New Inter-nation House Will Open

International House, a new University approved living center, will open next year to graduate men.

The purpose of the living center according to Alan Knox and Robert Laubach, originators of the plan, is "the cross-pollination of ideals." It is a private venture.

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE will be located at 1108 Madison st. Included in the house is a fully-equipped kitchen, a living room and dining area, and study and living quarters adequate to house twelve male grad students.

Room cost in the new center will be $8 per week, excluding the price of food. It will be in operation the complete year, including all vacations.

Four of the twelve students living in the house next year are to be from the United States and the others chosen from as many different countries as possible.

Each member of the new living center will share in the purchasing and preparation of the food. Cooperative eating has proven to be economical in the past.

ANOTHER FEATURE of International House will be periodical discussions among the group, with guests from the University faculty and Syracuse community as often as possible.

Knox stressed the fact that all participants in the new program must be interested in international living, especially the representatives from the United States. A similar program was held at Syracuse some time ago, but the house was closed because of lack of interest.

Anyone interested in living in International House next year or who wishes additional information may contact Knox at 1108 Madison st. or call 75-3474 any evening.

Journalism School Asks Applications

The school is open to students who will have completed their sophomore year at the end of the present semester with a 2.0 average in required journalism courses and a 1.4 average in other courses.

Applications must be returned to 20a Journalism center by 5 p.m. May 14.

back? I think that is very unlikely."

In order for the Nationalist forces to reconquer the mainland, they would need a far larger and better equipped army than they have now, many supplies and a program that could regain the confidence of the people, Dr. Cressey does not feel that any of these can be achieved.

"WE ARE probably going to have to live with Communist China . . . indefinitely," said Dr. Cressey. He feels the only possibility of a change would be as the result of a third world war.

Therefore—"What to do about recognition."

"Sooner or later we shall have to swallow our pride and recognize Red China." Among the problems, which such recognition would create would be defining the status of Formosa, which is part of China but which contains one million refugees whom the United States cannot return to the Peking regime.

Dr. Cressey also discussed the economic situation of Japan. He mentioned trade as the biggest problem of the Japanese and said, "If we deny to Japan trade with China, we will have chaos there." The only other possibility would be extensive American subsidy.

Japan has an area about the size of California, only 15 per cent of which is arable, and a very large population. She vitally needs all her imports, but unless she has markets for exports, Japan will go bankrupt, and this may pave the way to Communism.

Students Plan Hollywood Opening for 'Up In Lights'

"Hollywood" festivities will usher in the musical revue, "Up in Lights" next Wednesday, May 5. A gala opening night is planned for the show which will run from May 5-8 at the Aastor theater downtown.

"Up in Lights" is the third production to be presented during Boar's head's fiftieth anniversary year. The success of last year's musical "White Bucks and Tales" and the demand for more all-student shows like it, are the reasons for this year's production.

PLANS FOR the show started last semester, and rehearsals have been going on for months, to make "Up in Lights" better and brighter than anything the Hill has seen in a long time.

Tickets are on sale both at the downtown box office in the Astor and in the Drama building. Reservations will be accepted by phone at either place, but reserved tickets must be picked up by Tuesday, May 4, the night before the show opens. The ducats are priced at $2.50, $2.00 and $1.50. Special rates for block seating may also be obtained by aggregates of 20 or more persons.

Curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m. The only exception will be Saturday May 8th, when the show will start at 7:30 p.m. to allow those who wish to attend the senior ball to do so.

The $10,000 production features a cast of singing, dancing personages, 60 in all, not counting the many more who have been working behind the scenes since the very conception of the revue.

LANNY O'KUN and Bill Angelos who wrote the words and music for "White Bucks" collaborated again on this show and came up with more melodic numbers.

The book for the show was written by Bill Dixon and Bill Angelos. Acting as director is Gerald Leider, instructor in the drama department. The entire production is being given under the supervision of Prof. Sawyer Falk, head of the department.

Pianist Will Give Graduate Recital

Jerrold Cox, pianist, will give a graduate recital for his Master of Music degree at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Crouse auditorium.

The program, which is open to the general public, will include Mozart's Sonata in D major, Chopin's Sonata in B minor, and four Brahms compositions.

Featured selection will be Ravel's "Gaspard de la Nuit" suite. This will include three compositions, Ondine, Le Gibet, and Scarbo.

Cox has had varied musical experience. He has been a soloist for Civic Morning Musicals, and accompanist for the University chorus.

Waggot Named Honorary Prexy

Aside from the usual order of business, officers for the coming semester were announced.

Harry C. Waggot, a junior in the school of fine arts will take over duties as president of the honorary. Lenore Taylor, a liberal arts student will act as vice-president. Maria Heitz will assume the duties as secretary while Alex Strasser will act as treasurer for the group.

Campus Graduate Receives Fulbright

Alfred Heller, graduate of Syracuse University School of Music, 1952, has been awarded a Fulbright grant for music to St. Cecilia's Academy, Rome, Italy for 1954-55 academics year.

Heller is now studying toward his master's degree in music at the Manhattan School of Music, where he is studying piano.

Graduation Details Revealed at Convo

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Members of the Class of '54 were presented a roundup of announcements, activities and arrangements for commencement at a special senior convocation last night in Maxwell auditorium.

Undergraduate marshall Edwin Smith, assistant dean of the liberal arts college, revealed the commencement weekend agenda to attending seniors and announced other details including information about rehearsals, fees and accommodations for guests.

J. WINIFRED HUGHES, secretary of the Alumni association, told seniors they are automatcially members of that group upon graduation. She explained purposes and activities of the alumni organization. Members of the Senior assembly announced plans for Class Day and the class gift, and marshalls were introduced to the seniors.

Each graduating senior may invite as many guests as he wishes as no tickets will be required for admission to this year's commencement exercises, according to Smith. Graduation ceremonies are scheduled to be held Monday, June 7 in Archbold stadium. In event of rain they will be held in the War Memorial downtown.

He announced that caps and gowns can now be ordered at the University Book store. Rental fee is $2.25 per person. Men who will be commissioned into the Army or Air Force following commencement should not rent caps and gowns unless they wish to be photographed in academic robes since they will attend the graduation exercises in uniform. Women will wear black gowns without white collars. Printed announcements and invitations are on sale for 15 cents each at the Book store.

Bills for the $15 commencement fees will be sent out next week, Smith announced. He stressed that this figure covers only about three-fifths of the actual commencement cost for each person, and that the University pays for the remainder. Seniors should pick up graduation packets on or after Monday, May 17 in 203 Administration building. The packets contain information about commencement and about the Alumni association.

REHEARSAL FOR commencement ceremonies is slated for 9:45 a.m. Friday, June 4 on Hendricks field or in Archbold gymnasium in case of rain. Smith urged all candidates for graduation to attend the practice, without caps and gowns, in order to insure smooth running of the final exercises.

All sniors are urged to know

Teaching Plan Open To LA Seniors

Liberal Arts seniors who wish to participate in the intensive teacvher training program this summer should contact Miss Lillian North, administrative assistant to Dean Eric Faigle, by Tuesday, in the Liberal Arts office.

The course will be given in several private and state-supported schools in New York state during the summer months. Those completing the course will be qualified to teach in state elementary schools in September.

No previous education courses are required of those taking the training program.

Architect's School Takes Part in Show

The School of Architecture is participating in the show, "Architectural School Work in the United States" in New York through May 20.

The show, sponsored by the Architectural League of New York is designed to present a cross section of the vital activities of architectural training centers in the country.

The University's exhibits will be on the subjects of "Fifth Year Architectural Practice" and "Architectural History."

CHI OMEGA OFFICERS

Christine Wulfetange was recently elected chapter president of Chi Omega sorority.

Dololes Hytron was named vice-president. Beverly Darrow will take over as secretary, and Lynn Persse was elected treasurer.

Phi Beta Kappa To Initiate Members At 3 P.M. Tomorrow

Horonary Will Attend Humanities Lecture At Maxwell Hall

Phi Beta Kappa, national liberal arts scholastic honorary, will initiate new members into the local chapter tomorrow. Activities will include an afternoon initiation and meeting, a special Phi Beta Kappa speaker at the humanities lecture, and a banquet.

The new members, most of whom were elected this spring, will be initiated at 3 p.m. A chapter business meeting will follow.

Professor Charles C. Mierow of Carleton college will speak at the humanities lecture at 4:15 p.m. in Maxwell auditorium. All the new members as well as those elected in the fall are invited to this lecture.

Mierow, a Phi Beta Kappa who has published several works and taught at many colleges, was once a visiting professor at Syracuse. His topic tomorrow will be "The Most Modern Voice From Antiquity."

All members elected this academic year will be the guests of honor at the chapter's banquet which will be held in Shaw dining hall.

Malcolm MacLaren, overall chairman for the initiation day program, requests all banquet guests to use the Ostrom ave. entrance to Shaw.

Dean Eric H. Faigle of the College of Liberal Arts will attend the banquet. Professor Mierow, the humanities speaker, will show slides of his recent Mediterranean trip.

Men's Glee Club To Present Concert

Hakanson Directs Group In Johnstown Program

The University men's glee club wil present a concert tonight at Knox junior high school in Johnstown, N. Y.

Frank Hakanson of the School of Music wil direct the program, in which the gle club will be supported by a small modern dance group. The entire ensemble will travel to Johnstown by bus.

The glee club will sing the same selections they offered at Sunday's concert in Crouse auditorium. Donna Jeffrey, soprano and Anthony Lombardo, accordianist, will do repeat performance with the group tonight. Robert Johnston, who did not appear Sunday, will offer tenor solos.

Fulton county Syracuse alumni are sponsoring the program, which will be the first one in Johnston for the glee club.

The program will feature three sea chanteys, popular selections including "Stranger in Paradise," and semi-classical selections.

Assembly Hears Speeches, Elects Newcomb Speaker

Men's student government president Stuart Parker and Frank P. Piskor, vice president of the University and dean of student services, addressed MSG assemblymen last night at the first meeting of the newly-elected organization. Michael Newcomb was elected assembly speaker in the first order of business of the 1954-55 group.

Ronald Miller was voted speaker pro-tem of the assembly. The organization, with only one member absent, had chosen Newcomb over William Murray, 12-11, and elected Miller in a run-off ballot against Jeffrey Wenig, 12-10. Newcomb abstained in this voting, Barney Hamilton, a third candidate, lost out on a first ballot.

PARKER OUTLINED a program for future legislation, stressing the problems of housing for athletes, the new field house, intramural insurance, a co-ordination of the foreign students programs and the inter-campus anti-vandalism pact with Colgate and Cornell.

He cited the need for educating the students as to the details of the intramural insurance program, and the possibilities of expanding and improving the anti-vandalism pact.

"Maybe this is the year for the assembly to come into its own," stated Piskor in his message. In tracing the history of student government on campus, he voiced the opinion that as most other groups have had their periods of superiority in government, it looked as though the assembly could now take the alidenfi take the lead in evolving from student government to a "University community government."

In the light of past history of camapus government, Piskor expressed optimism for the possibilities of eventually having a community government which would embrace the problems of stdents, faculty and administration.

SINCE CAMPUS government could be traced from early fraternity domination to academic class domination and on to elected student bodies, he said, this future evolution was highly probable.

Newcomb, a junior in Liberal Arts and a member of Alpha Chi Rho, has had two years of experience in the assembly, serving on the athletics and public relations panel.

Miller, a freshman, has been in the assembly for the past year, working on the rules, organizations and elections panel. He is a Liberal Arts pre-med student and a member of Pi Lambda Phi.

Marvin Wallen, legislative commissioner of Civil Service, announced last night that the committee studying National Students association would be continued, with former assembly members Arthur Kinney and Richard Koelling acting as advisers.

Chief Justices

DARWIN BOLDEN and JO ANN SWALM have been elected chief justices of the men's and women's student courts respectively. Bolden is a liberal arts junior and Miss Swalm is a junior in business administration.

Bolden, Miss Swalm Assigned as Justices

Darwin Bolden and JoAnn Swalm have been elected chief justices of men's and women's student courts, respectively.

Bolden will also serve as chief justice of the joint student court, and Miss Swalm a sassociate justice.

A JUNIOR in the College of Liberal Arts, Bolden has been on the court for two years. He is co-chairman of National Students association and president of Orange Key, junior men's honorary. He is a resident of Niagara Falls.

As chief justice, Bolden will preside at arraignments and at trials, sit on the men's student government trust board and be a member of campus leaders. He is also charged with swearing in new MSG officers.

Miss Swalm, a business administration junior, lists Malden, Mass., as her home town. She is had experience on the women's court as a justice and was co-chairman of Campus Chest this year. The new chief justice is also a junior guide and member of campus leaders and Lambda Sigma Sigma. She is pledging Eta Pi Upsilon.

Six new justices have been appointed by the MSG trust board. They are Curtis Ford and Edward Snyder, senior justices; Thomas Bird and Arthur Maahs, junior justices. They will join the three veteran justices who return from this year.

FORD WAS a member of the MSG assembly, while Snyder is co-chairman of Protestant council of Hendricks chapel. Bird is a member of the sophomore class executive council and an executive assistant at St. Thomas More chapel.

Maahs has been chief defense council of MSG, Gordon was on the defense staff this year. A staff photographer for the Syr-

Response to 'Quiz Bowl' May Bring Return in Fall

By DICK CASE

Strong public response coupled with the over-all success of the program has strengthened the posibilities that the National Broadcasting company's radio series, "College Quiz Bowl" will return to the air next fall.

According to Allen Ludden, the moderator of the program, the chances are "very good" that the show will return both on radio and perhaps TV next season. He added, however, "this is subject to the vagaries of the profession, and I would hesitate to sound too sure of our program's future."

"COLLEGE QUIZ BOWL", inaugurated in October, 1953, each week presented two teams of college students in a test of knowledge. Syracuse university appeared on "Quiz Bowl" March 25 and defeated a five-time winning team from Washington and Lee university.

The Syracuse "quiz kids" became reigning champions of "College Quiz Bowl" April 1, winning over a team from the University of Colorado.

According to Ludden, "College Quiz Bowl" was taken off the air because it was an expensive program to maintain by NBC on a sustaining basis without a sponsor) and they reasoned that a 26-week season could suffice for this first year on the air.

It was indicated by Ludden at that time, the final broadcast of the current radio season, if the program should return in the fall, Syracuse would be the defending champion.

THE FOUR SYRACUSE panelists, Janet Caro, Jane Bauer, Raymond Guenter and John Beach, are all graduating seniors and would not be eligible to compete in the fall series. Four new panelists will be chosen from the undergraduate ranks under qualifications set p by NBC.

Dr. Edwin Cady of the English department handled the panel selection and was coach of the students.

Ludden indicated that mail in favor of the rogram's return and by the NBC program department last week has been very great. "We've received letters from all across the nation," he stated, "with a large amount from the west coast area. All have had some very nice things to say about the show and would like to see it back again."

Regarding a possible summer television series based on the "College Quiz Bowl" format, Ludden stated that such a show is currently in preparation but is strictly tentative at this time.

THREE MEMBERS of previous panels appearing on "Quiz Bowl" broadcasts would be brought to New York and would compete in the bowl on a tournament basis. Further plans for a televised "College Quiz Bowl" are incomplete at this time.

Syracusans who wish to support the return of "College Quiz Bowl" may do so by writing directly to the National Broadcasting company program department, New York City, to notify the network of their interest.

Asked for his personal comments on the broadcast, Ludden stated that "after 26 weeks, I am more convinced that this program serves a need than I was at the outset and I am delighted to see the way each campus has grabbed on to the spirit of competition.

"It is heartening indeed to see such campus support for the efforts of those whose accomplishments have to do with knowledge and study. I believe it is a hearty commentary on the too-often-misjudged young people of today."

A is for...

A for the Astor where the senior musical opens one week from tonight. A for the aspiration of the actors and the anticipation of the audience.

A for the ability of the artists and amusers and the acting of the assorted assemblage.

A, also, is for academic for this is a school project motivated by an amateur love for the arena.

And A is for the final accolade of approving applause from those in attendance beyond the footlights.

As for anniversaries, this is only the second in the area of senior shows. The review is an adolescent in the vast world of theatre.

It is A-day minus seven.

But it is also strikingly different to the adult shows of Broadway . . . for this is Syracuse and hometown wrapped up into one attack.

But A-day minus seven will drop to A-day minus nought as suddenly as a vacation week slips by. Tickets are slipping by fast also with one third of the 6000 potential stubs already sold.

The Astor seats 1500 a night. The heaviest night, Saturday, has already claimed over 900 buyers.

We dropped down to the Astor the other day on the pretense of buying a ticket and happened to hear part of the rehearsal.

There is a song that lilts along with "stop, look and love your lady . . ." Quite catchy . . . but when we caught the "stop, look . . ." part of the line again we knew our duty and slipped out to the box office.

We suggest you do the same . . . and in the glow of the S. Salina sidewalk you may catch your face "up in lights."

Aid for sophs

Choosing a major, a problem confronting members of the class of '56, is universal at this time of year. Colleges throughout the country are planning special programs to aid their sophomores.

Some plan convocations; others, emphasize individual counseling. One college, however, attempted a unique experiment in educational guidance, which well might be used as a model for other universities.

Vassar college recently held a sophomore conference at which 36 alumnae returned to answer the questions of second-year students. This conference was not designed as a job-finding service but as an opportunity for students to hear first-hand from alumnae how their liberal arts education offered a springboard for later careers.

Formal speeches were dispensed with and all sessions were of the question and answer discussion type. The alumnae divided into seven panels each representing one broad field. The schedule was arranged so that students were able to attend several panels as well as talk individually with the women.

The panels included art, drama and music; business and advertising; government and international agencies; newspaper work and free-lance writing; research, scientific and technical fields; personnel and social work; ad the professions.

The alumnae stressed the importance of forming a plan of related studies which develop the student's interests in more than one direction.

Perhaps this is one device that colleges could use more than they have—that of securing alums to talk with students who are making a final decision on a major; their advice is important, too.

SHOW BIZ

WORDS ON A FIGHTING ANGEL

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

How do you speak to an angel?

An angel which strikes a startling figure in white robe and disarranged wings and halo. An angel who sings.

An angel who is six feet tall, has broad, broad shoulders and an iron fist. An angel once a boxer, now a dancer. An angel with broken nose who quotes with extreme eloquence the works of "Red" Smith and Grantland Rice.

An angel named "Rigger."

Having brushed off this massive descriptive prose, a word of explanation might be in order. It is simply this: Vincent "Rigger" Rigolosi, senior scholar, his highness—the mayor of Marshall Street and 1953 Eastern middleweight boxing champion, has turned in his fistic gloves and embarked upon a career in show business. For, "Rigger" is a featured performer in the new musical revue, "Up in Lights," which opens May 5 at the Astor theater.

He plays, among other things, an angel.

This is no small event in the annals of Syracuse university athletic and dramatic history. Seldom, if ever, have the two distinct fields merked. But, as "Rigger" puts it, "there is a great similarity between boxing and show business. Why, I can compare rehearsals with training . . . same thing."

He notes also that this entire transition is part and parcel of a trend begun several years ago by such illustrious leather pushers as Ray Robinson, Joseph Louis and Maximillian Rosenbloom. "If they can do it (he means sing, dance and act), why can't I?" remarks "Rigger".

This little turnabout began a few months ago when Gerry Leider, director of "Up in Lights", approached young Vincent and asked if he would be interested in a part in the new revue. The time was ripe for change and "Rigger" replied "Why not?"

It was a difficult decision to make, this abandonment of the boxing sport which had been his love and glory for nearly four years. Supplemented by active intramural work, "Rigger" had boxed impressively on the Orange varsity team. In 1953, as a light-heavyweight, he took the Orange and Sugar Bowl crowns and, as a middleweight, won the Eastern championship. Not that the tide of circumstance was turning away from the flashing Rigolosi fists, but after seven straight wins this season, "Rigger" dropped two matches in the Nationals and Easterns.

This lead the newly-elected mayor to wonder about this profession. Many things pointed toward a theatrical career. A broken nose prompted his doctor to advise "Rigger" not to box in the Easterns. The boy was reported to have sung "The show must go on" and boxed any way.

Much earlier his coach had commented, "Rigger," with that footwork, you belong on the stage."

So when the tempting morsel was swung before him, the mayor bit.

'Now "Rigger" will tell you . . . "I deeply regret leaving athletics but the loss can be compensated by the joys of show business . . . Every minute is enjoyable." Commenting on the decision of Vincent Rigolosi to leave the sporting game, Coach Roy Simmons of the boxing team was heard to mutter, "He's in his element now, he's in his element now . . ."

When told that "Rigger" was to appear as an angel, Mr. Simmons stated, "An angel?"

That's right, coach, an angel. And what is more, "Rigger" is a three way man, singer-dancer-actor, in the truest tradition of Chuck Davey and "Sugarfeet" Robinson. He appears in the hilarious "Angel" skit with funnyman Bob Dishy in which the pair do a soft shoe and song number. In addition to this, he is featured in the "Show Business," "Hayride," and "Stop, Look and Love Your Lady" numbers and several other skits. He also handles all personal appearances by cast members.

And if there be any wonderers pondering on the voice of the "Rigger," let it be said that it cannot be likened to anything heard on or off the stage to date. No, not Pinza, Crosby, Como or Casey Stengel. And the show opens May 5.

Which can only lead to the turning of some words by Edwin Arlington Robinson . . . Vincent Rigolosi, born too late; Scratched his head with ring bells ringing; "Rigger" trilled and called it fate; And kept on singing.

JOB HUNTING?

Meeting Face to Face

By DOROTHEA L. CHANDLER
College of Business Administration

(Editor's note: Well, we've discussed the writing of letters of application but one must inevitably face the employer in person. The interview is the second half of this task of becoming a taxpayer. Tomorrow we will have the concluding part of this series and will deal with the data to be presented to the prospective employer.)

Interview. Your letter should work for an interview because the meeting is just as important for you as it is for the prospective employer. There are a few points that you should have in mind before the interview. The employment officer will talk very casually, but he is scheduled to get information about your personality, attitudes, health, character, intelligence, alertness, initiative, self-confidence, poise, enthusiasm, and experience. You may be interviewed by several staff members before you are finally employed by a company. Each person will observe you not only during the actual interview, but between interviews. Wait to smoke until the interviewer suggests it, then you may decline if you wish! If you are given a plant tour, keep your eyes open. Listen, too. You may need to use some of your observations before the interview is over or later.

College students should remember that wherever they go to work there will be people who have worked for years to achieve their positions and they will not look with favor upon the young person who expects to reach the top without serving an internship. The beginning worker must realize that he can no longer do just what he wants to do! He must think of himself as one of a group because his ultimate success and happiness will depend upon thinking of others—the people with whom he will work! This attitude of mind may help you not only in getting that first job, but it will be important in getting ahead.

Always carry a copy of your data sheet with you to the interview as you may have to fill out a formal application blank under supervision and it will be very much easier to do a neat and complete job with all the information assembled ahead of time! You may find that the person interviewing you doesn't have a copy of the data sheet on his desk because his secretary is out of the office and he doesn't know where to locate it. In this case, you may ask whether he wishes to refer to yours.

Every young man ought to know early in his colege career, or before, that when he is being considered for promotion in his career job, his wife may be interviewed, too. Often the decision to employ a person for a responsible job or to promote a person to a position of greater trust may be based upon observation of the home and social qualifications of the family. An interviewer and his wife might come to spend the weekend with you! If this is news to you, perhaps it will give you an opportunity to do some thinking.

Always write a thank you letter for every interview in which you participate. This message may be handwritten. You may include some observation made during your visit at the plant or a comment about the cordial way in which you were received.

(Concluded Tomorrow)

Surprise, Surprise!

Charged with the rather unpleasant duty of answering the telephone at a University sorority house, a pledge found a new way to answer to cut down incoming calls.

She would say, "Good afternoon, Phi Beta Kappa."

SU GOES IVY; ACT IV ODOR; ODD PROPS

By MILT SHEFTER

And it looks like the Ivy Look is coming to S.U. With the former prexy of U. of P. scheduled as Commencement speaker, it seems the University is tending toward the "real" collegiate motiff. The football team recently went Ivy (de-emphasization of athletics) by cancelling Spring practice.

• • •

An interesting sidelight on the Senior Ball favors can be noticed by pointing into the wind. The vials of vitals for catching that man, will be distributed per Faberge signifying the finale of the "play on education" for the Seniors. The smell will greet bandmaster Woody Herman on his return to this country. One thing is for sure—with Act IV in the air, he'll have no trouble locating the campus.

• • •

The current is starting to build up and one week from tonight, the switch will be pulled and Syracuse university will go "Up in Lights." Recent publicity on the musical has included local plugging of show tunes by local jockeys. Requests may help put these on top of the local hit parade. The four-night run has required an odd variety of props including a teletype machine, police nightsticks, and a rare prop—garbage. Looks like hill people will be in for a rare treat in smells next Saturday night.

• • •

The current trend on long sideburns seen on some hill men lately can be attributed to that house on Euclid we've mentioned before. It's part of their gala 50th Anniversary celebration using a Southern Cotillion theme. Kenny Delmar, the famous, Ah said famous, son, Senator Claghorn will be only one of the prominent guests. One part of their May 14 Weekend extravaganza will be their formal secession from the Union witnessed by the Chancellor. Inside sources have it some other jealous frats will be there to accept the resignation.

• • •

This Sunday night, a new ribbon will be put into the DO's master typewriter. Several who have devoted most of their four years to the pencil and typewriter, will be honored for a last time. Their names will vanish almost as soon as yesterday's paper, but they've made a format which the incoming lead will have to work hard to fill. And that's one sight we know we'll see.

• • •

And now if you'll excuse us, we must get a haircut. Some hints are downright rude, Ah said rude, son!

Have You a Vice?

Trublu: Smoke?

Professor: No, thanks.

Trublu: Well, what vice can I interest you in?

Professor: I hear there is a connection between your smoking and lung cancer.

Trublu: Statistical only.

Professor: How's that?

Trublu: As "The Man on the Run" said last night, "Pass me my cigar!" You see, there is only statistical evidence on this lung cancer business, not medical.

Professor: You mean if a good percentage of smokers die from lung cancer while the proportion of non-smokers is minimal, that's statistical evidence, not medical nor chemical?

Trublu: Naturally. All you are doing is playing around with some statistics, you have no medical evidence.

Professor: Fascinating logic!

Trublu: But valid.

Professor: According to the advertising promoters.

Trublu: Did you ever stop to think, they may have to raise your income tax if too many people quit smoking

Trublu: Oh, yes, we can, if you

Professor: I guess the real argument in this is neither statistics nor medicine; it's "good for business" on one side and desire for a drug on the other.

Trublu: You aren't silly enough to identify smoking and drug addiction?

Professor: Ever try to quit?

Trublu: I could if I wanted.

Professor: Ever try?

Trublu: I don't want to; I like the felowship.

Professor: You can quit alright. I did. But it is quite a torment to be without the drug.

Trublu: Why, if it really were a drug, we would ban it.

Professor: No, apparently we like our drugs, so tobacco and alcohol stay.

Trublu: They are just harmless little socializers. You would not put them into a class with opium and such stuff.

Professor: Why not?

Trublu: Think of the effects.

Professor: I mentioned lung cancer. But let's take opium. My friends in Thailand say they would rather have opium smokers around than drunks.

Trublu: Yes, but it wrecks them physically.

Professor: They say they have had to revise many of their opinions on that score. But talking about physical wrecks; ever meet an alcoholic? You could hardly miss, considering it is now one of our most widespread diseases.

Trublu: But all drinkers are not alcoholics.

Professor: Nor are all opium smokers gibbering idiots.

Trublu: What are you arguing for? Want us to open the doors to opium?

Professor: I never said open up to anything. We were talking about drugs.

Trublu: Yes, but you make opium seem so harmless we might as well loosen up.

Professor: Or tighten up on the drugs we already have. There's an even more important item: these drugs require huge acreages of land to produce. But we have not enough land to produce food. Looks to me like there is a moral problem involved.

Trublu: You sound like a Puritan.

Professor: If you had any information about Puritans you would not say that.

Trublu: Killjoy!

Professor: I like to eat.

Trublu: Ha! I knew you had a vice.

Raising a Question

A poll taken at Westminster college, Pa., showed that nine out of ten students knew nothing about the Bricker amendment. One student said he knew it had something to do with the President and treaties, but said he had not "bothered to investigate the subject."

Commented the Holcad, college newspaper: "This indicates that students are snug in their little world of 1,000 people. We consider this a bad sign."

THRU THE MUCK with MEYER

By ED MEYER, Associate Sports Editor

They said the last one was the toughest of all to write. Yes, it was going to be hard saying goodbye. You want to let out every feeling you ever had about the old college try or the glorious four years which you'll never forget. You want to go back to 1950 and tell about the Bradley tournament and how the Orange five trailed 18-0 from the start and came back to win. You want to talk about Bernie Custis, Ed Miller, Jack Kiley, Ray Osterhout. You want to praise Ben Schwartzwalder, Roy Simmons, Bob Fleck, John Granger, Bruce Yancey and Ted Kukowski. Yes, you sure wanted to do a lot in that last column. Why you could have used at least room for two "Mucks with Meyer."

You sure had a great wealth of material to use. Remember the time young Ray Osterhout ran against Dick Shea of Army in his sophomore year, and when Bucky Roche dropped in 35 points to nip Cornell at Barton hall. These were memories we could write about.

How could you forget the time big Frank Reddout tied the all-University scoring mark against Canisius or when Mel Beadin split the cords with four seconds to go, beating Cornell. And who'll forget the trip to Miami and the Lambert trophy. Then there was the time Hal McGrath won the Eastern tennis title or when Syracuse missed upsetting mighty West Point in lacrosse. You sure wanted to writ about them. There are things a guy just never forgets.

Then there was the IRA. Remember meeting Allison Danzig of the Times and Irving Marsh of the Trib. Then there were our old buddies Arnie Burdick and Jim Decker. The three of us ran that regatta and what an experience it was. There was Rusty Callow of Navy and all those great men of the lakes. You sure learned what crew racing was like.

Then there were those other experiences. Remember, life at Skytop and the big Colgate raid that never came off. And Colgate weekend, what a blowout. Then pinnings, movies, studying, movies and more movies. The Orange, the DH, the deficiencies and the movies.

Who can forget the big water fight or the fire at Skytop. Then there were the "Marshall St. Athletes" who should either be outlawed or unified into one club.

Now you can't forget those two old oratos of the equipment room, Al Zak' or Doc Hugo. Then there was Frank Locke of the Journalism school, who always had the good word for everyone.

But there was one we had to save for the end. A person with whom it would be fitting to end this, our final column. This is the guy we started out with way back in 1950, when only a young freshman writing for The Daily Orange. He's a fellow we think quite a bit of even though we have had our discrepencies: track roach Bob Grieve.

Yes, we have known Bob Grieve for the past four years. Covering a coach in three different sports sure lets you get the inside scoop on any individual. That's the way we learned just what made Bob Grieve tick.

One thing we discovered right off the bat was that Bob Grieve is not afraid to tell you if you're wrong. This reporter knew little about track and Grieve proved it right in front of me. Not many people know it, but Bob had taken a journalism course in college and thought he knew a little about writing. So as you can see my first introduction was not the greatest event.

Well, time passed and I started to get the feeling that the two of us weren't as far apart as when I had started. Then one day, Bob asked me if I would like to write a feature story on one of Syracuse's all-time greats in track, Dick Church. Bob had all the information in his office and I began my research. To this day I'll never forget writing that story. Thus began my friendship with Mr. Grieve.

I was with Bob for indoor, outdoor track and cross-country. I saw the guy develop Ray Osterhout, Steve Armstrong, and many other fine runners. I saw him in fits of angers and moments of happiness. I know him better than any other coach on the Hill. In closing I'd like to personally thank him for the help he was to me in starting out on my college writing career. And to also say that I hope the University gets him some more of those dual meets for his spring season. He sure deserves it.

Well, that's about all. It's been a pleasure being able to write a weekly column expressing my views on so many different parts of the sports world. In fact college itself has been a great experience. I'd also like to thank everyone I've been associated with at Syracuse for any help they have given to me.

Someone mentioned the other day about four years, and four minutes; there wasn't much of a difference in there passing by.

minutes; there wasn't much of a difference in their passing by.

It's time for a new phase of life so borrowing a line from somewhere, "goodbye and good luck." And thanks for everything.

Piety Stickmen Battle Cortland St. Teachers

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's stickmen go after victory No. 4 today when they entertain Cortland State at 3 p.m. on Hendricks field. The contest will be a sort of home-coming for Cortland's new coach, John Donati, former Orange football captain.

Donati is faced with a rebuilding job in his first season as Dragon mentor. He has only six veterans on his current squad and the inexperience was evident in last week's opener as Hobart trampled the Teachers, 18-6.

TOPS AMONG the Cortland returnees are goalie Joe DiPace and defenseman Bob Jorgenson both of whom received honorable mention on the 1953 Upstate all-stars. Other vets are Bob Hoppey, Dick Agar, Ted Hinckley and Al Dodge.

Coach Roy Simmons plans no changes in his opening lineup. Ed White will open in the nets with the senior trio of Primo Belluz, Bob Miller and co-Capt. Leo Pollack at defense.

Syracuse's frosh lost a practice contest to Hamilton yesterday afternoon on Hendricks, 8-6. The visitors jumped to an early lead and held a 4-2 advantage at the half. The Tangerines drew even in the third quarter but a pair of last-period Hamilton scores proved decisive.

John Staweski, Hubie Bassett and Paul O'Donohue each tallied twice for the Orange. The frosh open their regular season Saturday against St. Bonaventure.

Rain Halts Intra Spring Openers

The rains washed all of yesterday's intra competition down the drain forcing a rescheduling of the events. According to Milt Howard, intramural director, all of the softball games originally scheduled for yesterday will be played next Tuesday.

The tennis matches that were scheduled have not been re-scheduled, as yet.

Following is the intramural schedule for today:

SOFTBALL—All games start at 6:15 p.m. on Hendricks field.

Field 1—Beta Sigma Rho vs. Pi Lambda Phi, Field 2—Beta Theta Pi vs. Psi Upsilon, Field 3—Delta Kappa Epsilon vs. Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Field 4—Delta Tau Delta vs. Sigma Alpha Mu.

TENNIS—All games start at 4 p.m. on the Skytop courts.

Hill Golfers Seek Second Win Today

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The Syracuse golfers go after their second straight victory today when they meet the Hobart Linksmen at Tecumseh golf course. Starting time is 2:30.

Only four of the Hill linksmen who started against Fordham last Friday are sure to start.

CO-CAPTS. Gerry Sullivan and Bob Mandeville will once again top the Orange list. Ed St. Pierre and Sam Scoller are the other two definite starters.

The remaining starters will be drawn from Bill Smithers, Ben Record, Tom Dady, Don Burke, Dick Golobic and Jim Roach. Burke and Golobic won their only starts against Fordham last Friday.

As of yet, it hasn't been determined whether the match will be a six or seven man game.

Two years ago, when the Orange up-ended Hobart twice in a home and home series, the match was a six man affair.

PI ALPHA TAU MEETS

The last meeting of Pi Alpha Tau, captains and managers honorary will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the trophy room of the Men's Gym.

Orange Batters Oppose Cornell In Home Season's Opening Tilt

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Sophomore righthander Bill Cassidy will get the call on the mound for the Orange nine this afternoon as Syracuse inaugurates its home campaign against Cornell's Big Red at Lew Carr field. Game time for the clash is set at 4 p.m.

The locals will be looking for their second straight victory after an opening game 7-5 conquest of Hobart. Cornell enters the battle with an impressive 4-1 ledger including wins over Sampson, Hobart, Clarkson and Brown. Only setback for the Ithacans was a 16-0 trouncing at the hands of Yale.

PROBABLE OPENING hurler for Roynce Green's visitors is veteran righthander Joe Marotta, owner of a 2-1 record this season.

Coach Ted Kleinhans is expected to stick with the same Syracuse lineup that came out ahead at Hobart with two possible exceptions. Dick Neufang, who started in the opener, is being pushed for the shortstop and leadoff spot by Al Tolaro, while Ray Schapley is challenging Ed Roman for the opening call in centerfield.

The rest of the infield will remain the same with footballers Dick Darr, Ed Albright and Ted Kukowski manning the first, second and third sacks. Kukowski, who connected for two one baggers in the inaugural, will again fill the cleanup spot in the batting order.

Paul Slick, who went two for two at Hobart, and Nick Coyne will fill the other pasture spots while veteran Phil Young is slated to go behind the bat.

LEADING THE Cornell attack will be second sacker Don Jacobs. The veteran captain hit for a .426 clip last season from his leadoff slot in the batting order. Sophomore footballers Bill DeGraff and Dick Meade and veteran Mike Hostage will roam in the outfield while sophomore John Simek is scheduled to open behind the plate and bat cleanup.

The battle between the two arch-rivals will be the first of two big clashes for the Pietymen this week. Saturday, they travel to Hamilton to meet Colgate.

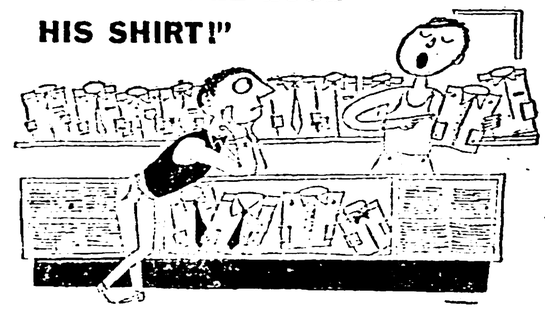
"THE GUY'LL LOSE HIS SHIRT!"



"... I walks into this haberdasher jist off campus, see, and ask for a white shirt. He starts givin' me this song-and-dance about that Van Heusen Century with the soft collar that supposed to not wrinkle ever. The jerk starts snowin' me with some 14-day free trial deal, that if I'm not satisfied after wearing it and washing it for 14 days, he'll gimme my dough back.

"I'm from Brooklyn, see, and I don't trust nobody. I ask guy, 'What's the catch, buddy?' He says, 'No catch. Wear it as much and as hard as you want. If the collar ever wrinkles or wilts, you get your money back. Wash it yourself. It's easy. You just iron the collar flat, flip it, if it folds perfectly because the fold-line's woven in. If not, your money back.'

"The guy tells me it's the only soft one-piece collar in the world, that it lasts up to twice as long as othe shirts and only costs $3.95 for whites and $4.95 in co and superfine whites. I tell him he's nuts to make su stupid offer. I tell him he'll lose his shirt. It's a kind of see. I figure no shirt will live up to all that malarky.

"And y'know what? I been wearin' and washin' it now a hunerd and fourteen days, and I still can't find nothin wrong with it."

Tolley Jr. Receives Insignia

Taking place in the office of Lt. Col. George R. Stevens III, professor of military science and tactics, the presentation followed the administering of the oath of office by Stevens, and signified Tolley's acceptance of a commission as 2nd lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army Reserve.

He anticipates being called to extended active duty with the Corps of Engineers upon completion of his graduate study.

Step Singing Finalists Selected for Contest

In very close contests last night, Butler cottage and Winchell Waitresses in the small division, and Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Kappa in the large house division, were selected to sing in the finals of the annual Spring weekend step singing contest.

Singing Robert Katcher's mellow "When Day Is Done," Butler cottage, conducted by Nancy Nichols, won in the first flight of the small houses. They feated Berwald cottage who chose "Beside Still Water" by Bernard Hamblin. Their conductor was Beatrice Hinman.

Winchell Waitresses chose a Kentucky folksong, "Black Is the Color of My True Love's Hair," taken from the mournful tunes often sang by the people of the Blue Ridge Mountains, arranged by Jorn Niles, for their winning song. Barbara Peck directed the group.

"Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor" by Irving Berlin, depicting the message at the base of the Statue of Liberty, was sung by Phillips cottage, who were defeated by the Winchell Waitresses. Conductor for the house was Harriet Krevlin.

In the first flight of the large houses, "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings" was the winning song selected by Sigma Kappa. Based on the 84th psalm, the piece was written by Samuel Liddle. Jean Mosley lead the house.

Defeated in this flight, was Delta Zeta who sang "Cherubin No. 7" by Bortniansky, another piece based on a religious theme. The song leader for this group was Nancy Knapp.

Pi Beta Phi was the winner in the second and last flight of the large houses. They selected "Hear My Prayer" by Will James as their song. Marcia Mulligan was the conductor. This piece is also based on a Biblical quotation.

Chi Omega singing "May Now Thy Spirit" was defeated in this flight. Their music was composed by Schvetky-Trcharne. Judith Hicks was song leader for this group.

Judges for the evening were Mrs. Charles Benton, Professors George Mulfinger and Sidney Sukoenig. Mrs. Benton is an alumnae of Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music honorary. Mulfinger and Sukoenig are both from the school of music on the Hill.

Houses are allotted six hours of practice between now and Spring weekend, May 7. The finals will be held on the library steps at 7 p.m. on the Friday night of the weekend. In case of rain, arrangements have been made to hold the contest in Gym A of the Women's building Anne Forrest, chairman, announced.

Sponsored by Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, the winners are awarded a cp in both divisions by Sigma Alpha Iota who co-sponsors the contest.

Prof. Mierow Will Deliver Sixth Humanities Talk Today

Prof. Charles C. Mierow, a Phi Beta Kappa from the faculty of Carleton college, will give the sixth lecture in the current humanities series at 4:15 p.m. today in Maxwell auditorium.

Mierow, who recently returned from a Mediterranean trip, will speak on "The Most Modern Voice from Antiquity." His lecture will be in conjunction with the initiation of new members into the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

THE NEW members of the national honorary, who will be initiated at 3 p.m., will attend. The lecture, however, is open to the entire campus.

He was graduated from Princeton in 1905, received his A.M. there in 1906, and his Ph.D. in 1908. He was awarded L.L.D. in 1927 by the University of Colorado, L.H.D. by the University of Denver in 1933, and Ed.D. by Colorado college in 1934.

The humanities speaker has held [illegible] full time teaching posts, including professor of Latin at Phillips academy, professor of classics at Princeton, and professor of classical language and literature, professor of research, dean and acting president of Colorado college.

HE HAS held summer teaching positions at Syracuse, the University of North Carolina and the University of Denver.

His publications include "The Gothic History of Jordanes," "Hugo de Sancto Victoire," and new editions of "Cataline," "Vita Malchi Monachi Captici," and a chronical or Universal history to the year 1146.

"Frederick of Barbarossa" by Otto, Bishop of Freising, is his most recent translation. He completed this last year.

MIEROW IS a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Kappa Sigma, Delta Epsilon and Eta Sigma Phi. His long list of professional societies

Senator, Bunche To Speak in City

Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon and Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, director of the United Nations Department of Trusteeship, will be guest speaker tomorrow and Saturday at the annual meeting of the New York State Political Science association at the Hotel Syracuse.

The meeting will begin at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow afternoon with a report on state legislatures. A panel will specifically examine the New York state legislature.

DR. RALPH J. BUNCHE, director of the United Nations Department of Trusteeship, who will speak in Syracuse Saturday.

MEMBERS OF the panel are as follows:

Dr. Belle Zeller, Brooklyn college; Richard H. Balch, chairman of the New York state Democratic committee; Lynton Caldwell, Syracuse university representative for the public administration program in Albany, sponsored by Syracuse and New York universities; Walter J. Mahoney, Republican majority leader in the New York State senate; and Emmet N. O'Brien, legislative correspondent and director of Gannett News service in Albany.

Senator Morse will speak at the dinner meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow on "Cleaning Up Congressional Investigations."

A panel discussion on the attitudes and reactions of the peoples of Africa and Asia to events and policies of the United States will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in Maxwell auditorium.

Dr. Bunche will speak at 1 p.m. Saturday at the luncheon meeting at the Hotel Syracuse. Soon to be appointed assistant secretary-general of the United Nations, Bunche already holds the highest rank of any American citizen in the UN. He is also president of the American Political Science association.

Dr. Donald G. Bishop, professor of political science, is in charge of arrangements for the two-day meeting.

Psi Chi Will Present Films on Childbirth Today in Pre-fab 19

Members of Psi Chi, psychology honorary, will meet at 7 p.m. today in Room C, Building 19, behind Sims dining hall, for a showing of a movie on childbirth in conjunction with marriage and the family classes.

A regular business meeting will follow the showing of the film, at a place to be decided then.

Mrs. Barbara Griggs, director of the marriage and the family sequence of the College of Home Economics requests that all members be on time so as not to delay the regular class period.

Split Vote Invalid, WSG Announces Hour After Meeting

Three-fourths Majority Of Votes Not Cast, Secretary Finds

By POLLY REED
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The most widely split vote in women's student government assembly this year came to naught last night when it was discovered an hour after the meeting that the required three-fourths majority of votes to pass a measure had not been cast.

The proposal which stirred the women legislators into the year's longest debate would change the term of a house president from one semester to one year. Special cases would be petitioned to the executive committee of the assembly. The passage of this measure would change the procedural code.

THE MOTION had been okayed 40-27.

Mary Anne Dalton, WSG president, acknowledged the discrepancy between the required majority and the actual vote, and declared the vote null and void. To make the proposal law, the house presidents will have to vote on it again.

Main arguments against the proposal were:

1. In freshman and transfer houses women cannot get to know each other well by the time elections are announced. By having the term of president last for only one semester coeds in the house are guaranteed a January election where they may choose a new president, should the present one prove unsatisfactory.

2. A HOUSE MIGHT hesitate to petition for a house election in January if it felt it were a "special case."

Arguments for the proposal include:

1. The assembly operates so that if there is a major turnover of personnel in the middle of the year, much of its effectiveness and efficiency is lost. The new women do not have the benefit of a training program, panels must adjust to new members, while women who have been working on panels must leave their work to the new and inexperienced legislators.

2. Election of a president for one year will encourage houses to look more closely into candidate's qualifications, interests, and past activities.

3. If the house or an individual decides a mistake was made, a petition for an election may be filed with the exec committee.

Forestry Students Hear Yale Ecologist

Dr. Paul Sears, professor of conservation at Yale university, told forestry students yesterday that the United States' supply of natural resource could fail.

Noted ecologist and author of "Deserts on the March" and a biography of Charles Darwin, Dr. Sears said, "The great increase in our population with a simultaneous disregard for conservation principles could easily get s into trouble."

The acting chairman of the department of botany at Yale pointed out that U.S. population is increasing at 1½ per cent a year, now ten million above the figure predicted 20 years ago. At the same time floods, dust storms, and other man-invited catastrophes take a toll of our natural resources.

Alumna Given Fulbright Grant

Mrs. Joan F. Johnson, summa cum laude graduate of Syracuse university in the College of Liberal Arts has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship in France.

After attending a month's orientation program in Paris Mrs. Johnson will study the French language and literature at Bescancon.

TV Series May Use Film Of 'Up In Lights' Scenes

By MARIA HEITZ
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Portions of the new musical revue, "Up in Lights" will be filmed in early June by Ward-[illegible] on the proposed Columbia Broadcasting System television series, "Varsity, USA."

The new CBS television production is scheduled to make a nationwide debut in the fall. "Varsity, USA" will consist of a 26-week series of half-hour films presenting authentic college "varsity shows," performed by the students themselves.

ACTING AS host for the series will be Bennett Cerf, publisher, anthologist, columnist and panelist on T.V.'s "What's My Line?"

Members of the "Up In Lights" cast will go to New York for four days in the early part of June to have portions of the musical filmed. Representatives of Ward-Villani films will be in Syracuse to make final arrangements and to view the show at the Astor, sometime next week.

The show's basic format includes an introduction to the particular school being represented that week; a brief interview with an outstanding alumnus; and excerpts from the schools show.

"Up in Lights" will open at the Astor theater on May 5. Performances will be given for Hill and downtown audiences through May 8.

CURTAIN TIME for all performances is 8:15 p.m., except for Saturday May 8 at which time the musical revue will start at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are on sale both at the downtown box office in the Astor and in the Drama building on campus. The ducats may be obtained for $2.50, $2.00 and 1.50.

The 26 shows will cover varsity shows in all parts of the country. All performers in "Varsity, U.S.A." will be college students under the direction of Henry M. Martin, movie director.

Broadway arranger Don Walker, who helps stage all Michael Todd productions, is supervisor of musical arrangements. Gene Bayliss, of Broadway's "Finians Rainbow," "Carousel," and "Brigadoon," and T.V.'s Martha Raye and Milton Berle shows, is supervising choreographer.

Mass Chorus to Close Step Singing Contest

A chorus of over 500 women will sing at the step singing finals Friday night of Spring weekend, Anne Forrest, contest chairman, announced yesterday. The group will officially bring the contest to a close with the singing of the alma mater.

Every house which participated in any phase of the contest is expected to provide members for the choir. From the large house division, each house must provide at least 12 singers at a minimum, but it may contribute as many more as wished. A minimum of six girls are required from each of the small houses.

IF A GIRL has sung for her cottage and her sorority, she is expected to represent her cottage. A person may represent only one of these groups. If her cottage has provided the minimum of six, then she is allowed to represent her sorority.

Two rehearsals are scheduled for the group at 5 p.m. and 8:45 p.m., Tuesday, May 4. All members of the chorus must attend at least one of these practices in the Chapel.

Houses are asked to try to provide an equal number of first and second sopranos and altos so that the "mass" chorus will be a well-balanced group.

Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary and sponsor of Spring Weekend, has approved the organization of this group. It is possible this year, Anne Forrest said, through the spirit and cooperation which existed this year in step singing.

Hill Music Students To Present Concert

Classical, Contemporary Artists Represented

Students of the Chamber Music classes of the School of Music will present a chamber music program at 8:15 p.m. today in Crouse auditorium. The public is invited.

Compositions from the classical, romantic and contemporary periods will be presented in varied combinations and instrumentation by 17 students.

THE PROGRAM will open with Beethovens Trio in C minor, opus 1, No. 3. Irene Kunzelmann, piano; Ernest Horvath, violin; and Robinson Gourley, cello, will offer this selection.

Anita Cronemeyer, piano; Lillian Willis, violin; and Joseph Retino, clarinet, will play a trio by Milhaud.

Mendelssohn's Trio in D minor, op. 49, will be offered by Natalie Godlman; Gloria Bryan, violin; and Anita Scalise, cello. Two movements will be played.

Helen Mardikian, violin; Susan Prentice, viola; Gourley; and Miss Willis will play a string quartet selection by Hindemith. This will be followed by a violin and piano duet on a Franck Sonata by Louis Francini and Lucille Giers.

SHIRLEY KIDDER, Ernest Horvath, and Gourley will play Beethoven's Trio in G major, opus 1, No. 2, a selection for piano, violin and cello.

Another selection for the same instrumentation, Tschaikowsky's Trio ini A minor, opus 50, will be offered by Judith Hicks, Louis Francini and Miss Scalise.

Horvath, Francini, Miss Scalise and Gloria Bryan will play three movements of a Beethoven string quartet. The program will close with a Brahms trio, to be offered by Miss Bryan, Miss Scalise and two pianists, Barbara Ennis and Jerold Cox.

This program will be the only time that the chamber music students will be heard as a group this year. Campus parking is permitted.

Army Temporarily Drops Reserve Site

Riehlman Announces Federal Policy

Rep. R. Walter Riehlman of Tully has announced that the Army has temporarily dropped plans for a new reserve training center in Syracuse.

The $400,000 structure had first been proposed last year for construction on University property at Lancaster ave. and E. Colvin st.

Riehlman, who suggested Hancock field as an alternate and more practical site for the center, said that the Lancaster ave. site did not comply with federal policy, which requires provisions for expansion of new structures for possible use by the other armed services. This is an economical measure, he added.

At the same time he announced that the air force had plans to construct a similar $500,000 training center in this area.

The army, which rejected the Hancock field location as inconvenient and out of the way, will continue to use its W. Taylor st. armory for reserve training.

Neighborhood opposition to the Lancaster ave. site has been strong. Rep. Riehlman was asked in January to block the center's construction in that area.

Seniors Will Choose Class Gift Next Week

Seniors will be asked to choose between two possible class gifts in the near future. They will vote for a diathermy machine or a microfilm reader. Date for the voting will be announced at a later date.

The two gift ideas were announced and explained at Tuesday night's senior convo in Maxwell auditorium. Allen Kosoff explained at that time that the diathermy machine which would be given to the infirmary is a device which emits heat waves and causes blood to circulate faster near injured areas. Dr. Arnold Cronk of the Student Health service has stressed the great advances in medical care which the diathermy apparatus would bring at the University.

IF THE class of '54 decides on the microfilm reader, this machine will be purchased for the library by equal donations from the seniors and from the University, since the cost would be too high for the class to raise by itself. Louise Cahan told seniors Tuesday night that the microfilm reader, if purchased, would be considered the senior class gift.

Class Day was described by Tess Oesterreicher at the convo. She announced that the informal ceremonies will be held on Sunday afternoon of commencement weekend, and asked seniors to submit applications for ivy day orator, class poet, historian and prophet to Alan Hart at Omega Pi Alpha or to her at Phi Sigma Sigma.

At the convocation, J. Winifred Hughes, secretary to the Alumni association, told seniors they will be inducted into the organization Friday evening of commencement weekend.

The annual Kum Bak show, in which talented alumni participate will be held the same evening. Each year a prominent Syracuse graduate in the entertainment world is invited to participate in the show. Last year Mary Becker, well-known concert violinist, was the guest star.

MISS HUGHES announced that information about the Alumni association will be distributed to seniors in commencement packets which may be picked up in room 203 of the Administration building on or after May 17. The packet will include a welcome letter, a personnel blank and an orange ticket which entitle seniors to attend the Kum Bak show.

She urged seniors to fill out the blank before leaving campus, as it is the first chance they will have to go on file in the alumni files.

STRAWBERRY BREAKFAST

"Strawberries with the Stars" will be the theme of the annual strawberry breakfast May 8. Decorations for the meal, to be served continuously from 8 to 9:30 a.m., will include caricatures of campus and Hollywood stars.

Applications Due For MSG Offices

Applications are now being accepted at the men's student government office, building 30, for senior commissioners, attorney general and chief defense counsel of MSG.

All interested men who meet the qualifications should submit their applications immediately to Chief of Civil Service Stephen Reiss.

The student government trust board will meet Monday afternoon to select new men for the posts.

Applications Ready For Summer Dorms

Applications for summer housing are now available and are being accepted in the office of the dean of men, Jack C. Buckle, director of men's counseling and residence, said yesterday.

All undergraduate men students are required to live in University housing, a fraternity, or an approved private house. Freshmen and sophomores must live in University housing and eat in a University dining hall.

Dormitories will open for the first session at 10 a.m. June 27 and will close at the end of the second session at 5 p.m., Sept. 11. The first session ends Aug. 7 and the second session begins Aug. 9.

A deposit of $10 is required with the room application, and will be applied directly toward the room charge. This will not be refunded unless notification is made two weeks before the beginning of the appropriate session.

Undergraduate men will live in Grover Cleveland, with one floor of the building reserved for freshmen.

Graduate men may contract for rooms in Marshall apartments or Flick apartments. A limited number of apartments will be available in these two buildings for married couples without children.

Commission Sets Last Grad Dance

"Grad Send-off," the final graduate dance of the year, will be held from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. on Saturday in the dance studio of the Women's building.

Bill Martin and his Ohioans will furnish the music. Tickets are priced at $1.00. The affair is stag or drag.

All grad students, their husbands and wives, faculty members, Syracuse alumni, and graduates of any other college are invited to attend.

Chairman of the send-off is Miss Waterman. Committees assisting her are: decorations: Dell McDevitt, chairman, Arthur Gradstone, Ed White, Sanford Mabel, and Watson; refreshments: Miss Olds, chairman, Mildred English, Miss Paulson, Bruce Hogan, and Bill Andrews; publicity; Mary Lynn Dewey, Jack Mallon, and Miriam Morgan; tickets,

Bus Ad College Sets Picnic at Green Lakes

Highlighted by a student-faculty softball game, the College of Business Administration will hold its third annual picnic Tuesday at Green Lakes.

Acting Dean Morris Hurley has announced that classes in the bus ad school will be dismissed at noon to allow all students to attend the picnic.

THOMAS HALL, chairman of the affair, stated that a large student turnout is anticipated, one which should top previous years' totals.

The traditional softball series is split at a game apiece, with the students having won last year's contest, 25-3. Seeking revenge, the faculty has enlisted the services of the members of the army comptroller course.

Sports chairman Charles Knickerbocker has announced that students may sign up for their team on the bulletin board in Slocum.

According to transportation chairman Abraham Langer, cars will be leaving between noon and 2 p.m. from Slocum. Those having no means of transportation are requested to sign up on the Slocum bulletin board. Drivers with space in their cars should check this list.

Paul Bacher, food committee chairman, reported that the traditional picnic fare of potato salad, hot dogs, and other foods will be served at no additional cost.

TICKETS FOR the affair are available at 25 cents each, according to committee chairman Clifford Way. They may be obtained in the Slocum rotunda. The picnic is open to anyone wishing to attend.

In the event of inclement weather, the picnic will be postponed until Thursday. Publicity chairman Roland Smith will be in charge of weather reports. A large red balloon will be flying on or near the quad, with weather announcements attached.

Exhibits Planned For Lyman Hall

An open house will be held tomorrow by the departments of zoology and plant sciences in Lyman hall. The exhibition will be open from 2-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m.

Exhibits in the basement and on the first and second floors feature such studies as parasitology, endocrinology, genetics, vision, hearing and many others.

Motion pictures dealing with cells and their functions, digestion and reproduction will be shown in room 117.

Picnic at Ski Lodge Scheduled for J-Day

Journalism Day will be celebrated this year with picnic festivities at the Ski lodge.

Dean Wesley C. Clark of the journalism school has announced that all afternoon classes in journalism will be called off Monday, May 10 so that students and faculty members may attend the picnic. Festivities begin at 12:30 p.m.

Features of the picnic are two skits and a faculty-student spelling bee. Undergraduates will present a skit about the journalism faculty, while the professors will mimic their students.

Although classes in other schools and colleges will not be cancelled for the event, Dean Clark said arrangements will probably be worked out so that undergraduates and graduates in journalism may be excused from them.

Tickets for the event will be on sale for 50 cents from Wednesday, May 5 to Friday, May 7 in the dean's office in the Journalism center.

Fellowship Gives Annual Banquet

Lutheran Student fellowship will hold its annual banquet Sunday in Hendricks chapel lounge rather than in Mt. Tabor church as previously announced.

Dr. Edmund Steimle, long-time student worker and now professor at the Lutheran seminary in Philadelphia will be the speaker.

Reservations for the 5:30 p.m. meal must be in by noon tomorrow. They can be made by calling William Stolte at 4-9897 or Arlene Swertfeger at 4-3121, ext. 12.

FINAL SPLASH PARTY

The final all-University splash party of the year will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Orange pool, Archbold gym.

Campus Leaders' Group Schedules Pinebrook Conference May 13-16

Plans for the fifth annual campus leaders' conference at Pinebrook camp May 13-16 have been announced by Co-chairmen Allen Anderson and Marcia Michelbacher.

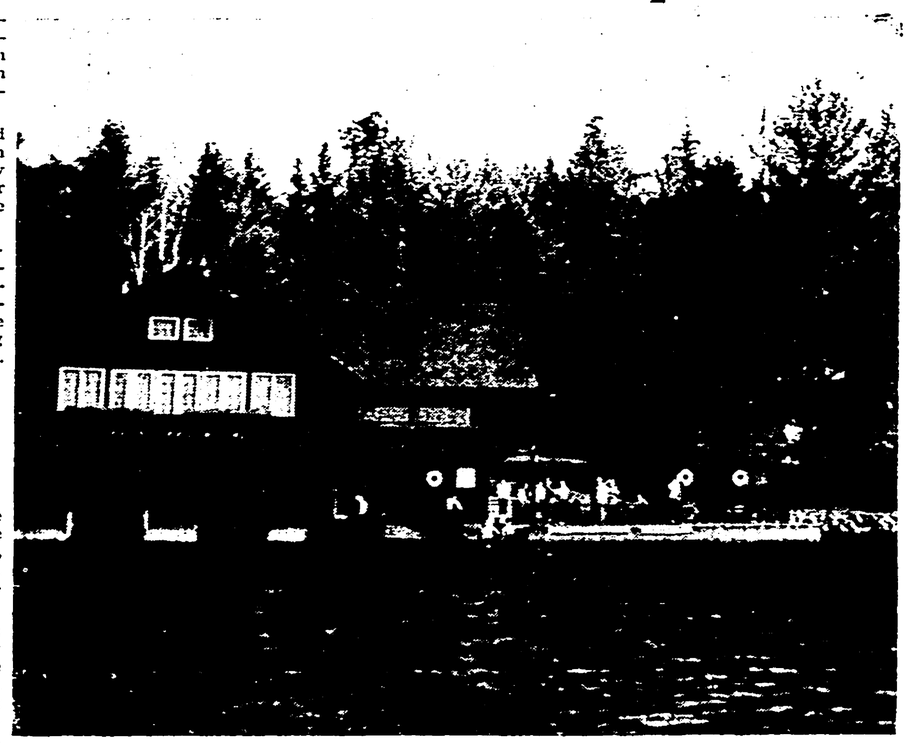
About 60 student leaders and 15 faculty and administration members will attend the four-day conference at the 52-acre Upper Saranac lake estate owned by the University.

PROPOSED TOPICS for discussion include campus moresdress, smoking and manners; activity programs and how to interest more people in them; the library; independents, including upperclassmen and co-op housing.

Other topics planned are organization and structure of the University; campus leaders' requirements; and recreation and University policies on athletics, including scholarships and housing.

Prof. Theodore C. Denise of the philosophy department will give the keynote speech on Friday, May 15. Chancellor William P. Tolley will deliver his annual address to the conference.

A faculty discussion panel is on the program for Saturday night. Faculty members on the panel will be Prof. Michael O. Sawyer, citizenship department; Prof. David H. Owen, English department; Prof. Robert P. Lett, electrical engineering department. Prof. Alfred H. Cope, citizenship; and Prof. Walter G. Kell, accounting department.



AWAY FROM IT ALL. Pinebrook camp nestles on upper Saranac lake. Approximately 60 Campus Leaders and 15 members of the faculty and administration are readying plans for the 180-mile trek to the Campus Leaders conference, May 13-16. The conference will include panel discussions on student life and problems, and on the University in general.

And they're off..

The speaker has been chosen and the MSG president has outlined some of the areas where legislation could be effected. The newly-elected assemblymen also signed up for desired panels during the first meeting Tuesday.

This means that by next week, the assemblymen will be assigned to the panel in which they will work during the forthcoming year. Panel chairmen may even be selected before the end of the term.

This is the dream which was envisoned by the creators of the constitutional revision last year. Here at last is the assembly which can begin to function immediately at the beginning of the school year with an agenda already set up.

Here, too, is the MSG assembly which can take the intiative in discovering student problems. No longer will the body rely on work already started by an early-forming women's student government assembly.

The future looks bright, but will remain so only so long as the delegates cooperate with one another and refuse to be divided into disupting factions. With the present line-up of assemblymen, a Greek-independent split could easily occur. We hope that such division will remain theoretical.

The '53-'54 assembly was notable in that it did not involve itself in long disputes over internal matters but concentrated on problems of general student interest. Much of the legislation passed cannot be initiated until next year. Its effectiveness may well depend on the "follow-up" exercised, by the '54-'55 group.

At least the right foot has been extended.

500 coed voices

. . . the music of 500 Syracuse coeds.

Next Friday night, as Spring Weekend officially opens, all the coeds who participated in the annual step-singing contest will blend their voices in the Syracuse university alma mater.

Aside from the singing at football games, we think this is probably the largest chorus in the University.

The step-singing contest is one of the Weekend's many traditions.

We are certain that this year's contest will be the best yet, because of this innovation.

And, we hope that all the gals who are scheduled to blend their voices under the clear moonlit (we hope) sky next week, will attend the rehearsals.

So that they sing pretty for the people.

Roll the cameras

If all goes well, the films will be seen coast-to-coast on the CBS television network.

And the hard work and talent that is going into the production may be the springboard to a show-business career for some deserving young thespian, writer or musician.

We recall with some retrospective sadness the Life magazine episode last year. After the literally hundreds of photos were taken, "White Bucks and Tales" unfortunately failed to tally.

But the television cameras, the radio speakers and the magazines have been good to the Hill this year.

The musical show should be terrific.

And we have little doubt that the electron tubes will be lighting up nationwide in the near future with a capsule showing of "Up in Lights."

JOTTINGS

AMONG the welter of comments concerning the Army-McCarthy hearings, one significent fact stands out—that able legislative minds are dallying with the goings-on in the committee-room, while our foreign affairs are in crises of potential world war gravity.

While hard words are being tossed about over whether Army Secretary Stevens was smiling at Pvt. Schine or not, and why, Adm. Radford flew to Paris to confer with NATO, and other senators, those not involved with photographs, are saying that Indo-China might be the next dying ground for Americans.

Of course, one person is happy about the whole thing—The Senator, because the television cameras are grinding. We wouldn't want to intimate that it's the Senator's personal charm that makes the hearings so fascinating.

◆

SPRING fever in students produces a notable lethargy. But the flora seems to receive a kick from it all.

We were strolling down by Chapel on the macadam sidewalk when we noticed that it, the sidewalk, had green measles. Little bumps all over with green topping . . . grass pushing its way up from underneath.

A glance at the newly planted areas elsewhere produced a vision of muddy brown and we concluded that Nature, like students, only works under pressure, too.

◆

THE cliche about "making the world safe for democracy" has taken on a greater meaning.

The current fracas about Indo-China makes us think that perhaps there is a heavier price for our way of life than we have believed in the past.

Looking back, it appears that since our culture came into being, we have been continually challenged to protect that way of life.

More and more the free world has had to battle off the rest of the world—the dictators, the tyranny, the crazed diplomatic killers, the Communists.

Perhaps to keep this—this closest approximation to democracy that has ever been achieved—we must pay the price of continual bloodshep. It would appear that peace for any length of time for the whole world is at present impossible. We can, however, strive toward that goal in the hopes of lessening this terriffic price.

We are reviled to think that the price of freedom must be bloody defense. But history has led us to that conclusion.

It is, however, a price that while horrible to conceive is not too excessive for the results achieved.

◆

WEATHER has come. It will not go.

The Syracuse monsoons are upon us, scarcely more than a few days after we were basking our white skins in the 87 degree sun of a five-day blessed Syracuse.

About the only further comment on the weather is an anecdote told us a few days ago:

A pretty coed jokingly told a fella that she would remain in love with him until the snow fell again.

Well, if she didn't mean what she was saying she'd better run.

We fell the first few flakes on our head right now.

◆

FURTHER WIND, further storm would appear to be brewing about University dramatic activities as word comes to use of the proposed filming for television of "Up in Lights."

Great, we would say at first glance.

But then, pessimists that we are, a note of caution enters as thoughts of 1953 and "White Bucks and Tales appear. Thoughts of Life magazine and great joys and then faded hopes.

Syracuse was set on its ear by the thought of national recognition of the Life caliber and was sadly let down when the magazine found no space in its pages for a feature on the musical.

Now fame is smiling once more. This time in the form of nationwide television.

We hope that the CBS television people will be handled ever so gently by "Up in Lights" so that the dreams will come into form this time around and the Syracuse glory will be spread across the tubes of a nation.

◆

DUE TO the change in senior staffs at the end of this week, this is probably the last JOTTINGS column. This is the ninth column and the last inning in the game.

But, like baseball, the game may end but the players will come to bat another day . . . and against different opposition. So we shan't say goodby, just so long 'till the next round when we will all be playing ball for keeps.

Survivors Speak:

The power of the press, they tell us, is its ability to get to the source of a topic. We agree with this emphatically. And so we present from actual breathing, talking writing people several views of Skytop. All but one of the questioned has been a resident (?) of the project. The last person named is a typical (?) current dweller.

"The closing of Skytop ends an era of student housing at Syracuse which was originally intended as an improvement on prior living centers" states Dean Frank Piskor (our "non-resident"). When Skytop was first completed it was an answer to many prayers.

"To many freshman generations it has meant close friendships and fine fellowship. Like many of us, they have qite a sentimental attachment to it."

A Resident Advisor in 1950 and now the one in charge of Men's housing, Jack Buckle has many memories of Skytop. Outstanding among them has been the annual development of a high "espirit de corps" among the resident male freshman.

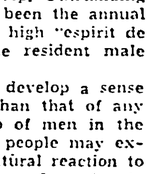
"They seem to develop a sense of unity higher than that of any comparable group of men in the University. Some people may explain this as a natural reaction to adversity. However, I prefer to think that it resulted from two principle reasons:

"1—The natural isolation of the group in a 'removed' residence situation, and 2—The homogeneous nature of the group living under ideal conditions."

According to Hugh O. Muir, Daily Orange Editorial Director: "Since I moved from Skytop to the Hellbox I have found that at least my sinus attacks have been mitigated. (My vocabulary has picked up a bit too.) At any rate, the one consolation about Skytop is that you can get pretty far away from campus at no cost. If there is anything better than being a Syracuse freshman at Skytop I suppose it is being a Syracuse graduate in Timbuctoo. (The Army can arrange that at no cost also, I hear.)"

Dean Earl Clifford (R.A.'50) says that he appreciates Skytop even more now than he did in 1950. So many of the campus leaders who now hold forth got their start in M-7 which was affectionately known as "Cliffords Cave".

"I had all I could do to prevent Hugh O. Muir from cartooning on the wall (Mr. Muir now draws exclusively for the Daily Orange), and to keep Bill Levines attention on his homework rather than on writing at all times, (Mr. Levine is now co-author of the $10,000 senior show "Up in Lights".) "I look forward to Watson hall which will certainly be a tremendous step into a new era in housing," says Clifford. "However," I'll never forget Skytop," he adds a bit witsfully.



Charles Samuels, who is Movie Critic, presently finds Skytop his home. He states flatly that "Life at Skytop is an uninspired spectacle with a cast of thousands." Perhaps he'll mellow with age. After all absence makes the heart grow fonder.

THE FADEOUT

End of Skytop

By MICHAEL BRAUN

The men's dormitories known in official circles as Skytop and unofficially by a multitude of cognomens will cease to be at the end of the semester.

The sixteen pre-fabs which have been braving the elements since 1948 will not be torn down. They will serve as a "reserve force" in the event that some future freshman class cannot be accommodated in Watson dormitory.

As far as housing on campus Skytop is relatively new. At the end of World War II freshmen men were living in such outlying districts as Baldwinsville, Hancock Airport and the State Fair Grounds. For a while back there some frosh were even residing in the Yates hotel.

The powers that be decided that the unity so vital to a freshman class was not being upheld by these well-scattered students.

So, with the help of a federal loan, Skytop opened its doors to the public on July 8, 1948. The public came in droves to inspect the freshman male Valhalla.

Perhaps the most important thing in Skytop is a mimeographed sheet handed out at the beginning of the year. Written on this sheet is the daily bus schedule.

It is by this schedule that everyone in Skytop regulates their day. To be on time for a nine o'clock class you must leave your dormitory at 8:39 in order to make the 8:40 bus.

The student running madly along the quad at two minutes of eleven of an evening, is merely trying to catch the eleven p.m. bus (the last). At least this is the obvious reason. One never can tell.

The experience of living in a Skytop dormitory can only be fully appreciated in retrospect. It is one of those entities that is more popular among the alumni than among the incumbents.

JOB HUNTING?

Giving All the Dope

By DOROTHEA L. CHANDLER

College of Business Administration

(Editor's note: Last but not least you have to give the prospective employer a smattering of WHAT you are aside from WHO you are. In this last article of the employment series we deal with the data sheet. First read, then run . . . to your nearest employment agency. Good Job and good luck.)

DATA SHEET. Prepare your data sheet to display your qualifications to the best advantage. Type your name, address, and telephone number at the top as well as the date. Usually for the beginning worker EDUCATION should be the first heading. Place at the left margin the dates to represent the years spent in high school or a preparatory school, then give the name of your school. Under this list the years covered by your college work, and give the name of your university.

You may wish to list next COURSES STUDIED IN MY MAJOR FIELD. Some students use another heading effectively—COURSES TO SUPPLEMENT MY MAJOR. For Radio, Speech, Psychology, or Journalism majors, for example, it will be helpful to mention courses taken in shorthand, typewriting, and office machines. These courses may make it possible for you to obtain a job as an assistant to a career person from whom you can learn many valuable pointers that will lead to your promotion in less time than if you were one of many in another department.

WORK EXPERIENCE. List to the left the dates employed, then job followed by a statement about the firm names, and the type of your knowledge of the details of a specific job. It is not enough to say that you worked for a company. What can you do!

ORGANIZATIONS. If you have membership in several organizations, list the groups, and mention offices to which you have been elected, or major chairmanships that you have held.

PERSONAL DATA. Age, weight, marital status, health. You may include a picture; surely it will help to sell you.

REFERENCES. Usually three references are required. You may use five. Please remember to get permission to use a person's name as a reference. For your academic reference you will no doubt use the name of your major professor. For experience, use the name of someone who can speak about your behavior on the job. For the personal reference your recommendation should include observation of group activities in which you have participated.

One of the advantages of having your credentials on file with a university placement office is that you can refer prospective employers to the office for supporting information and references. This simply means that since you have given the office the names of the people who will recommend you, one letter of each will be placed in your file and copies can be sent out whenever necessary without further inconvenience to those who agreed to recommend you. Very little attention is given to letters of recommendation that an applicant may send with his letter! Therefore, those who recommend you must write a letter each time a company requests information or your references must be sent from a placement office.

Now that you have read the pointers on writing letters of application, the data sheet, and the interview, best wishes for your success in getting that job!

Conclusion

A Driver's Soliloquy

Sitting on the Skytop bus on the seat behind the driver, reading a copy of Gibbons "Decline and Fall" etc., was overheard the following soliloquy. It was so tender that we hereby reproduce it in all its original beauty and simplicity.

The driver murmereth:

"Those ---- kids. Coming in the bus every day and throwing their ---- cigarette butts all over the floor. Putting their feet up on the seats and sticking their heads out the window to yell at some dame. "What time does the bus leave?" That's all I hear all day. I'm beginning to hear it in my sleep. This goes on all week. Then on Saturday night they take a shower and get all spruced up. The thought of a date with a dame makes them ask me about the bus about 10 times as often. Then they tell me to hurry and I never get a chance to finish the comic book I was reading. ---- them. During the day they always ask me whether I've seen the mailman up at the top. How am I supposed to see him. I get my mail at home. What do they think I am, a watchdog? --- it, time to leave. Off to Skytop with 41 guys and a St. Bernard."

AT THE FLICKERS

NO SUBTLETY IN THIS ONE; IT SCREAMS

By CHARLES SAMUELS

Daily Orange Movie Critic

Russell and the three-letter word

Jane Russell not only has standard female equipment; she has more of it. Since, she possesses no setting ability, this is her sole distinction. Her new film at the Paramount, "The French Line," not only has the cliches of the "poor little rich girl" theme; it has more of them. Similarly, since, it possesses no quality, this is its sole distinction.

It took genius to think up a plot as ridiculous as this one. The writers would have us believe that every man in the State of Texas refuses to marry Jane Russell. This would seem to border on idiocy. But when a few million is included in the deal (and the writer's set this forth as the reason for the masculine reluctance) it would seem to be downright insanity.

And don't think that anything that follows is any more plausible Miss Russell falls for silent screen lover Gilbert Roland who is old enough to have fathered her, and looks it, only after she tests him to find out (get this), if he's after her or her money.

The script for this musical comedy is trite; while the music is simply terrible. To add to the show, with the possible exception of the highly talented Mary McCarty, there isn't an actor on board. The only thing that this little mishap has to offer is a sumptuous display of fashions and a dance that caused the Breen office to deny "The French Line" its seal of approval.

We hasten to inform you that the dance is not worth the rest of the film. However, it does manage to send the mercury soaring for about a minute and a half.

The Breen office frowned on this piece of terpsichore for being "suggestive." It does not suggest, it screams. As a matter of fact, under the relentlessly erotic direction of Lloyd Bacon, everything that Miss Russell does in the film screams.

It would appear that Mr. Bacon has absolutely no faith in the audience's understanding anything that isn't blueprinted for them. At one point Mary McCarty refers to Miss Russell as "chesty." This is hardly difficult to recognize. Furthermore, the love scenes have been staged with Mr. Roland gazing at Miss Russell in a general southerly direction. Somebody has never heard of the appeal of subtlety. Sex is not spooned out here; it is paved on with a steam roller and has just the effect.

The Orange sports scrapbook for the Spring of '54 may have to be bound in waterproof leather if the current monsoon season persists . . . The Middies are the overwhelming favorite this Saturday on Lake Onondaga. New York papers are calling this race the most important of the year next to the Intercollegiate Regatta.

Hill Stickmen Trounce Cortland, 22-8

By LEE KIKLIER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Neither mud nor rain nor sloppiness afield kept the Syracuse university lacrosse team from squishing to a 22-8 win over Cortland State Teachers' college yesterday on Hendricks field. With Attackman Stew Lindsay scoring 5, Don Muller scoring 4 and aiding in 5 others, the Orange lacrossers sewed up their fourth win in the third quarter.

Hendricks field appeared barely recognizeable to Syracuse Coach Roy Simmons and Cortland Coach John Donati, fullback-captain of the 1950 Orange football team. But in the ensuing slop, Syracuse proved to be the better mudders.

THE GAME started slow as Don Moller was the first to crack the net in 1:15 with an assist from Ed (Pug) Smith. Syracuse plodded along and added three more scores by Smith, Bruce Yancey and Bub Tucker, the last two being assisted by Don Moller.

It wasn't until Cortland found themselves behind by four points that they scored. In 8:22 of the first quarter high scorer Allison broke through. Dodge and Hinckley added one apiece and as the quarter ended Syracuse was ahead 4-3.

Syracuse persisted, and in the second quarter Lanky Lindsay and Don Muller each scored two to sandwich Pug Smith's one goal. Dodge and Allison scored for Cortland and the score stood at 9-5.

At the end of the third quarter the Orange began to slip away. They split the ropes for four goals in the last minute of the third quarter. Don Moller led the splurge with two goals and two assists.

THE GAME had some remarkably good flashes of play despite the mucky conditions and murky officiating. Coach Roy Simmons made sure that every uniform on the bench got its share of the mud as the game degenerated into a semi-soccer wrestling match in the fourth quarter.

This was Simmons' fourth win as now his boys get cleaned up and prepare for Penn State's invasion this Saturday.

Score by periods:

Syracuse	4	5	9	4—22
Cortland	3	2	2	1— 8

Scoring:

GOALS—Syracuse: Lindsay 5, Muller 4, Yancey 3, Tucker 3, Moller 3, Smith 2, Ouff, Havill; Cortland: Allison 4, Hinckley 2, Dodge, Kelly.

ASSISTS—Syracuse: Muller 5, Smith 5, Moller 4, Duff, Pollack; Cortland: Dodge 2, LeClaire, Quinn.

HIGH SCHOOLERS

High school girls from Baldwinsville, Valley, Nottingham, Solvay and Auburn schools will participate today in a sports program in the Women's building.

Approximately 116 girls are expected to participate in volleyball, basketball, deck tennis and service ball under the direction of members of Syracuse's Physical Education Major's club, sponsorers of the sportsday.

Chairman of the playday is Evelyn Liskovsky.

Undefeated Golfers Edge Hobart College

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Co-capt. Bob Mandeville shot a four par over par 76 to lead the Orange golfers to a 5½-3½ victory over Hobart on rain-soaked Tecumseh golf course yesterday afternoon.

The triumph was Syracuse's second in as many outings. Last Friday, the Piety linksmen downed Fordham 6-1 in the opener of their nine meet schedule.

ED ST. PIERRE and Ben Record were the other Orange victors. Record defeated John Naozrall of Hobart 5 and 4 while St. Pierre shot a nine over par 81 to down Warren Geiger of Hobart.

Co-Capt. Gerry Sullivan of Syracuse and Sam Scoller, also of the Orange, lost their matches to bring their seasons record to 1-1. Sullivan shot a low four over par 76 but bowed to Chuck Jeales, who had the day's low with a one over par 73.

YESTERDAY'S match was played under six-team rules so a best ball play was staged. Co-Capts. Sullivan and Mandeville of the Saltines lost the first round; but won the next two, to garner two points for Syracuse.

After the match, the hill linksmen designated Mandeville, Scoller, Sullivan, Smithers, Dick Golobic and Tom Dady as the golfers to represent Syracuse at the intercollegiates later this month.

CO-CAPT. BOB MANDEVILLE of the Hill golf team won yesterday against Hobart as the Orangemen captured their second straight victory of the season.

SPRING INTRAS

Any individual entries for tennis, golf or pingpong should bring their entries to Milt Howard's office in Archbold gym by Saturday. The entry should include name, address, phone number and name of sport.

FROSH BASEBALL

The entire freshman baseball team, including infielders and outfielders, will workout at 3:15 p.m. today on the Collendale field, according to Coach Andy Mogish.

Rain-soaked Hill Nine to Resume Practice Before Colgate Invasion

Though disappointed over the postponement of yesterday's baseball game with Cornell, Coach Ted Kleinhans and the Orange varsity will resume practice today, weather permitting, in preparation for Saturday's invasion of Colgate at Hamilton.

The undefeated Hill nine, victor over Union college, 7-5, last week in its only outing of the infant season, is expected to meet stern competition at the hands of the Red Raiders.

EITHER SOPH Bill Cassidy, who was suppose to pitch yesterday's game, or Mickey Kyff, veteran flinger who registered the opening victory at Union, will take the mound for Syracuse on Saturday.

Regarding the other eight positions, Kleinhans is expected to use the same lineup that defeated Union in the season opener, pending any change in practice in the next few days.

Veteran Phil Young will open at catcher to handle either Kyff or Cassidy. Dick Darr at first, Ed Albright at second, Dick Neufang at shortstop and Ted Kukowski at third will round out the infield. Neufang is the only Orange veteran in the lot, although Kukowski had experience at the Naval Academy.

Veteran Nick Coyne will flank newcomers Roy Schapley or Ed Ronan and Paul Slick in the outfield.

It is interesting to note that since there is no spring football this year, four footballers are starting on the baseball team. Aside from Kukowski who is a senior, the other three footballers, Darr, Slick and Albright, would not have been able to play the diamond sport for Kleinhans this spring had there been spring grid practice.

Jack Larned Elected Piety Hoop Captain

By EV MURCH

Jack Larned, stellar backcourt man for the Orange basketball squad this past winter, was elected captain of next year's five by his teammates yesterday.

Larned, a three-year veteran, teamed with this year's captain, Mel Besdin, at the guard slots during the past season and was second to him in scoring. Besdin scored 323 while Jack hit for 201 in the full season of 20 games.

JACK LARNED, three-year veteran of the Orange basketball team, was elected captain for the 1954-55 season yesterday by his teammates.

THE 5-FT-11 junior learned his baseball at Mount Pleasant high in Schenectady, where he was one of the stars of a powerpacked team. He graduated from there in 1951 and came to Syracuse on a basketball scholarship.

In the 1951-52 season freshmen were eligible for varsity ball and Larned, along with Dave Kline, got into nine games for a Syracuse team that finished with a good 14-6 record against some of the top teams in the country.

In his soph year Larned got into 16 games of the 20 and garnered 37 points.

In the season just passed, however, he really came into his own, becoming one of Coach Marc Guley's most valuable stalwarts.

UTILIZING A driving bankshot that drove enemy defenders crazy, Jack hit the high double figures in most of the team's important games and nearly led them to a victory over Army as he tallied 20 points.

Episodes Featured From 'Up in Lights' In Retailers' Review

Syracuse Merchants See Sneak Preview Of Senior Revue

The Retailers' Review, sponsored by the retailing and merchandising students in the College of Home Economics and Business Administration took place yesterday afternoon. The affair was held from 3-5 p.m. in the Alumni lounge of the Women's building.

The Review was staged for executives of Syracuse stores which cooperated during the past year in placing the students in pat time jobs.

A preview of the Syracuse university student musical production "Up in Lights" highlighted the program. The preview featured several of the outstanding songs and sequences presented by the students taking part in the musical show.

Displays featuring merchandise from local stores were also shown. These full-sized displays were constructed by students taking part in the event and were entirely original.

This year's program marks the first time that students from both colleges have combined efforts, although the "Review" had been held for three consecutive years prior to last year.

The purpose of the program, as outlined by the two faculty advisers, Miss Jean Carlson, Home Economics, and Dr. C. A. Nolan, Business Administration, is to acquaint retailers with the retailing program provided by the University schools, and to promote further professional relations between students and executives.

MANAGEMENT FROM The Addis Company, Born and Griffiths, C. E. Chappel and Sons, Dey Brothers, E. W. Edwards and Son, Flah and company, Alexander Grants, W. T. Grant and company, Lincoln Stores incorporated, Marine Sportswear, Sears Roebuck and company, Witherill incorporated, and Wells and Coverly attended the "Review." Also attending the affair were Miss Kay Russell from WSYR, Arlene La Rue of the Herald-Journal and Alice Keegan of the Post-Standard.

Co-chairmen for the "Review" are Miriam Davis and Herbert Steigler. Other chairmen include Elizabeth Gulesian, program; Marilyn Culver and Donald Cranson, publicity; Augusta Rosen and John Koniski, invitations and programs; and Kay Horan and Marilynn Sherman, refreshments.

Eight to the Bar

"THE DISSIPATED EIGHT", guest singers from Middlebury college in Vermont, will provide the entertainment at Act IV, the senior ball scheduled for Saturday, May 8. The inter-fraternity octet, noted for radio and TV appearances, has been performing on New England college campuses including the University of Vermont and Rutland and Dartmouth colleges.

Senior Ball Will Feature 'Dissipated Eight' Singers

Middlebury college's "Dissipated Eight" will be guest singers at Act IV, the senior ball, on Saturday May 8.

Organized on the Vermont campus three years ago as an interfraternity octet, the group expanded its talents and traveled throughout the New England area to sing at colleges and community gatherings.

THEY HAVE recently appeared at the University of Vemont, Rutland and the Middlebury and Dartmouth winter carnivals.

The octet has sung on many radio programs and made some recordings. Television appearances are being planned.

The "Dissipated Eight" will be the main feature of the entertainment planned for the spring weekend dance in the Women's building.

Tickets for the formal priced at $4 per couple are now on sale at the University book store and at the desk in the Women's bldg.

BOOTHS WILL also be open in Slocum and Maxwell from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and in Sims from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Woody Herman and the Third Herd will provide music for dancing at the formal. Vocalist Dolly Houston will be featured with the orchestra.

All women attending the dance will receive gift vials of Faberge's "Act IV" perfume. The theme was chosen to fit in with "All the World's A Stage," overall theme for Spring Weekend 1954, which is dedicated to Boar's Head's fiftieth anniversary.

Formal dress will be optional for the dance which is scheduled to last from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. An early curtain is planned for "Up in Lights" so that those attending may also go to the ball.

Decoration in the new gymnasium will include draped curtain effects and gilded trees. The dominant colors are pink and black.

Statistics Show Rise In Grant Requests

Office Now Taking Applications

Scholarship and grant-in-aid applications for the academic year 1954-55 are being received somewhat faster than last year, Frank P. Piskor, vice-president and dean of student services, said yesterday.

Reviewing the new procedure set up this year, he said that women will pick up their applications in the office of the dean of women, where they will review their case with a staff member. The application will be turned in to that office.

MEN WILL follow a corresponding procedure in the office of the dean of men.

These scholarships and grant-in-aid are open only to undergraduate upperclassmen, he noted, including present freshmen who will be sophomores next fall.

Two liason officers on scholarships were appointed earlier this year to expedite the application procedure. Earle W. Clifford, assistant dean of men, and Ruth Haddock, assistant dean of women, now serve in these capacities.

Syracuse Selected Debate Tourney Site

Syracuse university has been selected as next year's site for the 1955 District VIII Intercollegiate debate tournament. The tourney was held this year at Dartmouth college in Hanover, New Hampshire.

The tournament is conducted over a period of three days, are held annually at West Point.

DR. J. EDWARD McEvoy, the Syracuse debate organization, was also elected chairman of the West Point tournament committee for District VIII.

Syracuse will entertain the leading universities of New England and New York state in the 1955 tournament.

Around 80 debators and forty faculty members will be housed during the three days. Over 160 debates will be scheduled.

This year, thirty of the leading colleges and universities in the New England area participated in the Dartmouth tournament.

Howard Osofsky, president of the Hill debate organization, and Max Baratz, represented the Stuart Steven varsity debate council at the tourney. The Hill forensic society members participated in the entire eight rounds of the tournament, receiving three wins, four ties, and one loss.

Glennon to Speak To Grad Students

Dr. Vincent J. Glennon, professor of education, will speak on "The Old, the New and the True in Teaching Methods" at a meeting of the Catholic graduate students club of St. Thomas More chapel at 8:30 p.m. today.

It will be the last session of the year for the graduate student section.

Dr. Glennon did undergraduate work at Fitchburg state teachers college, took his master's degree at Boston university and his doctorate at Harvard.

Hill Phi Beta Kappa Initiates Members

Thirteen candidates were initiated into the Syracuse chapter of Phi Beta Kappa yesterday. The initiation took place in the Maxwell founders room.

Sylvia Churgin, a plant science major and Alfred MacRae, a physics major were eligible for the scholastic honorary with 90 hours of credit.

Those eligible for initiation with 105 credit hours included Barbara Rose Burneau, Zoology; Mary Flavin, Pre-Physics Therapy; John Gordon, Physical Education; Margaret Hake, Journalism; Rudolph Johans, Economics; Nancy Jones, English; Hugh O. Muir, Political Science-Journalism; Edna Reynolds, Journalism; Peter Rose, Sociology; Frances Traube, Fine Arts.

Arnold Laifer, Psychology, was initiated with 120 hours of credit.

The initiation banquet was held last evening in Shaw dormitory dining hall. Dean of Liberal Arts Eric Faigle and Mrs. Faigle were guests of honor.

Reverend Welsh To Discuss Senator

"Christianity and McCarthyism" will be the subject of a discussion led by Rev. Walter N. Welsh at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at Grace Episcopal church.

Supper preceding the Canterbury fellowship meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. in the church on the corner of University ave. and Madison st.

Selective Service Applications Ready

Test Set for May 10, Clifford Announces

Applications for the May 10 selective service college qualification test are now available in the office of the dean of men, Earle W. Clifford, assistant dean of men, announced yesterday. They must be postmarked by May 20.

The purpose of this exam, he said, is to give those turned 18 since the administration of the last test to take it during this academic year.

Clifford again strongly urged that any student who hasn't yet taken the exam should take it, regardless of his class standing or ROTC deferment. He stressed that waiting to take the exam at a later date usually works against the student, because of specialization in college.

The exam provides evidence for local draft boards when considering a student for deferment. To be eligible to take the exam, a student must be a selective service registrant and must be pursuing a full-time college course. The test may not be taken more than once.

Undergradates must score a 70 or better in order to be eligible for deferment on the basis of the exam. Graduates must score 75 or above to be considered.

The test will consist mainly of English and math questions.

CAMPUS GUIDES

All campus guides, old and new, foreign, transfer and city, are requested to meet at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in Sims lounge.

The group will lead campus tours for the high school citizenship students on campus for the weekend.

Three Hill Groups Donate Door Gifts

Door prizes for the business administration picnic, scheduled for Tuesday at Green Lakes park are being donated by three campus organizations.

Clifford Way, president of Sigma Iota Epsilon, professional management fraternity, has announced that the group is donating two tickets priced at $2.50 each for "Up in Lights."

The Society for Advancement of Management will offer a ticket to Act IV, the senior ball. Way is also president of this group.

President Eugene Parker has announced that Beta Alpha Psi, accounting honorary, will give an album of the music from "Up in Lights."

Tickets for the affair, priced at 25 cents each, are still on sale in the rotunda of Slocum.

Prof. Mierow Calls Poet on 'Immortal' In Humanities Talk

Lecturer Congratulates New Phi Betes Who Attend

By GEORGE MEEK

Professor Charles C. Mierow of Carleton college discribed the Roman poet Quintus Horatius Flaccus as "the most modern voice from antiquity" at yesterday's humanities lecture in Maxwell auditorium.

The lecture, the sixth in the current series, was held in conjunction with the initiation of new members of Phi Beta Kappa. Dr. Mierow, himself a Phi Beta Kappa, congratulated the new initiates, several of whom attended the lecture.

THE SPEAKER opened with several general remarks about the poet, who is termed by many scholars as "Horace the immortal." Horace was credited with spreading Greek attitudes into Roman literature.

Dr. Mierow also credited the Latin bard with the introduction of several platitudes, some of which are in use today, and the intoduction of several prophecies which have been realized.

Following the general description of Horace, Dr. Mierow read a long poem in blank verse which told of Horace's life and works.

The poem described Horace's early years, his experiences with the conspiracy of Brutus and Cassius against Caesar, his trips to Greece, his early jobs, and his first writings.

ALSO MENTIONED were Horace's friendship with Virgil, and "the forthright honesty and simple speech" of Horace's works.

In addition to descriptive material, Dr. Mierow's blank verse selection contained references in the first person to Horace's predictions and theories.

Horace held several views regarding enduring values which are still accepted today, and his predictions regarding the fate of social and political life have proven unsually accurate.

Dr. Mierow summed up Horace as "ever to discerning hearts most dear," and added that he held in Rome today a status equal to contemporary poets.

NY High School Students Arrive for Cit Conference

By PEARL BERNSTEIN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

1250 high school juniors and seniors from all over the state arrived on campus yesterday morning to participate in the ninth annual Citizenship Education conference.

"Conflicting Loyalties" is the theme of the conference, and in addition to participating in panel and discussion groups, outstanding delegates will receive awards in the form of full and partial tuition scholarships.

THE DELEGATES were selected by competitive examinations in their schools, and are being housed in sororities and fraternities here, at the University's expense. In addition to the alloted number of delegates some schools, at their own expense, have sent outstanding students as observers.

Dean of Liberal Arts Eric Faigle will open the conference at 9 a.m. tomorrow in Hendricks Chapel with a welcoming address.

The students will then break up into groups of 25 for discussion meetings to be held in classrooms and living centers. Discussion leaders are volunteers from campus.

Dr. Roy Price of the Maxwell school is overall chairman, and he is assisted by a group of former award winners who are presently on campus. Heading this group are Saul Klein and Jack Robinson.

DURING THE morning session juniors will discuss: As a leader, should your primary loyalty be to your principles or to those of your followers?

Senior topic is: What conflicting loyalities will be involved in a good citizen's attitude toward accepting public responsibility?

Each group will then select the four or five students it considers outstanding, and at 11 a.m. the conference will adjourn for luncheon at Sims dining hall.

Discussions will resume at 12:40 p.m. in the form of 12 town hall meetings each led by 12 panelists, with audiences of about 150. The panelists will be those selected by the morning sessions.

TOPIC FOR the town hall group is: Should a teacher's right to teach be denied or restricted because he holds beliefs unpopular to the community (local or national) in which he is teaching?

Each meeting will then designate its outstanding panelist, and this group of 12 will meet in Chapel at 2:10 p.m. for a discussion before the whole group.

Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown, chairman of the citizenship program, which supervises the conference, will be leader of this final panel. WQXR will broadcast these proceedings live.

Dean Charles Noble will deliver the concluding address, and following this, Vice-chancellor Finla G. Crawford will officiate at the presentation of awards.

DIRECTLY AFTER the final discussion, the 12 panelists will be interviewed by faculty members, and six of them will receive full-tuition scholarships to the University. Four will get partial tuition grants.

The conference will end about 4:30 p.m., and Dr. Price will dismiss the students.

Unbeaten Crews From Annapolis Favored In Tomorrow's Regatta

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

The eyes of the crew-racing world will be focused on Syracuse tomorrow when the Orange oarsmen play host to four highly-ranked collegiate rowing rivals in the season's only home regatta on Onondaga lake.

Navy, Cornell, Wisconsin and Boston university are the schools which will test the Hillmen in the four-race program. The festivities are scheduled to get under way at 2 p.m. with a clash between the third varsity shells of Syracuse and Cornell.

RACES ARE scheduled at 45 minute intervals after this initial event, with the featured five-crew varsity test slated to start at 4:15 p.m. The freshman race, set for 2:45, will be the first competition of the year for all the crews concerned, with only Wisconsin not being represented. The junior varsity event will begin at 3:30 with all the visiting schools entering shells.

For Syracuse, the regatta marks the second intercollegiate competition of the year. Last week at Annapolis, Coach Gus Eriksen's varsity and JV boats lost their season-openers to the Navy.

The Midshipmen defeated the Piety first boat by two and one-half lengths. In winning, the Academy oarsmen recorded their 22nd consecutive victory, the longest unbeaten record in recent crew history. The Middie string includes a win in the 1952 Olympics, two victories in the IRA regatta, and two wins in the annual Eastern Sprint competition.

With this impressive record, the sailors must be afforded the favorite role once again tomorrow. But Coach Rusty Callow's boys expect one of the toughest tests of their crew careers.

CORNELL AND Wisconsin, although inexperienced, are rated fine chances of upsetting Navy. The Big Red was a driving second in last year's IRA race and the Badgers from the Midwest were a close fourth.

Boston, weak last season, is billed as a highly-improved boat. The beantown rowers have had one race this year, losing to Harvard but defeating MIT in a three-way regatta on the Charles River.

Syracuse, more experienced after its comparatively close race with Navy, could also spring some surprises. The varsity event, therefore, is viewed by the experts as being an open race, with the results being indicative of the comparative strength of some of the nation's top crew powers.

The Orange boatings are only tentative at this time. Last week, the Hill varsity was stroked by Ray Rogers. Roger Parfitt rowed No. seven; Ham Dixon, No. six; Al Clark, No. five; Neil Gutchess, No. four; Gerry Baule, No. three; Capt. Bob Curran, No. two; and Ollie Richards in the bow. John Cooper, the varsity coxswain in the last race, will probably call the beat again this week.

Chancellor Tolley To Address Staff At Annual Dinner

Syracuse university will honor seven retiring faculty members and 14 faculty members with 25 years of service tonight at the Chancellor's annual dinner at 6 p.m. in Sims dining hall.

Chancellor William P. Tolley will give the main address of the evening and will present watches to the retiring professors. The 25-year people will receive pen and pencil sets and certificates.

DR. FRERERIC J. Kramer, the chairman of the German department, will be toastmaster, and Ruth Pinnel, assistant professor of music, and Kirk Ridge, professor of music, will present musical selections.

Four of the retiring professors who taught in the college of Liberal Arts, are Dr. Lewis W. languages; Dr. J. Theron Illick, professor of zoology; Dr. William C. Lehmann, professor of sociology and anthropology; and Dr. Raymond F. Piper, professor of philosophy.

Dr. Jacob Kwalwasser, professor of music education, a member of the College of Fine Arts faculty, will also be honored.

Two members of the State University of New York Upstate Medical Center are retiring; Dr. Leo Gibson and Dr. H. H. Joy, professors of medicine. Both doctors will continue their active relations with the Medical College and their private practices.

THE FACULTY members who have been with the university for 25 years are: Leonard W. Adams, associate professor of marketing; Kenneth G. Bartlett, vice-president and dean of public relations; Mrs. Prudence S. Connors, professor of housing, equipment and management; Lillian Eckert, the School of Library Science; Dr. Clarence J. Gabel, College of Medicine; Philip J. Haddock, College of Forestry; Dr. Abraham S. Lavine, College of Medicine.

Also, LeRoy A. Mullin, assistant professor of electrical engineering; Andrea L. Nielson, registrar's office; John C. Sammi, College of Forestry; Dr. Ferdinand J. Schoeneck, College of Medicine; LeRoy C. Stegeman, College of Forestry; Florence R. Van Hosen, associate professor of library science; and Theodore Webster, the swimming coach.

University Chorus Will Give Concert

Semi-annual Program Scheduled for Monday

Syracuse's university chorus, directed by Frank Hakanson, will present its semi-annual concert at 8:30 p.m. Monday in Crouse auditorium.

Ruth Pinnell, soprano, and Donald Wittig, baritone, will be soloists for the progam, which will be the eighty-fifth in 42 seasons for the University chorus.

The chorus will present Johannes Brahm's "German Requiem," which is composed of seven sections. The group will start with "Blessed Are They That Mourn," "Behold, All Flesh Is As the Grass," and "Lord, Make Me to Know."

The fourth section, frequently performed as a separate selection by choirs, will be "How Lovely is Thy Dwelling Place."

Other sections which will be offered are "Ye Now Are Sorrowful," "Here on Earth Have We No Continuing Place," and "Blessed Are the Dead that Die in the Lord."

The soloists are both active in the School of Music. Miss Pinnell is on the faculty, and Wittig is a graduate student. The accompanist for the chorus will be David N. Johnson.

Monday's concert, which is free, will be the last formal appearance of the University chorus this year. It sang at a special Christmas concert last December 14.

Berry Breakfast Ticket Sale Begins

Tickets priced at 75 cents go on sale today for "Strawberries with the Stars."

The spring weekend breakfast will be served continuously from 8 to 9:30 a.m. on Saturday May 8. Tickets will be available in Slocum, Maxwell, HL, the Corner store and the University Book store.

Music for the affair will be provided by Ken Fredericks and his band and the Fiji Four.

Decorations will feature caricatures of campus and Hollywood stars, chairman Deborah Wallwoch announced.

Printed in the shape of stars, the tickets can be saved as weekend souvenirs after the stubs have been removed.

Tables will not be reserved but hostesses will greet guests at the door and show them to seats. The meal will be served continuously this year in order to avoid waiting.

The menu will include cereal, toast, coffee anud milk in addition to the traditional strawberries.

Installation Planned At Friday Service

Jewish Student fellowship Sabbath Eve services will be held 15 minutes earlier at 7 p.m. today in Hendricks chapel.

Installation of new officers will be held in place of the usual sermon. Participating in the service will be Theodore Kaplan, student leader, and Roberta Faxstein, student reader.

An oneg shabbat will immediately follow the service.

Officers who will be installed are: Lloyd Chet Dunsker, president; Avis Yaffee, first vice-president; Lenore Green, second vice-president; Ina Swade, secretary; Florence Miller, treasurer.

Applications Due For WSG Justices

Second semester sophomore may apply for positions on women's student court before 5 p.m. Tuesday, May 4, according to Chief Justice Winona Brierly.

Applications should be submitted to Miss Brierly at Alpha Xi Delta or to Mary Anne Dalton at Theta Phi Alpha. Those seeking positions should include on the applications name, address, telephone, average, activities and suggestions for the court.

Final Film Slated In Cinematic Series

"You Can't Take It With You" starring James Stewart and Lionel Barrymore will close Boar's Head's Dramatic society's film series commemorating their golden anniversary, Sunday, at 3 and 7 p.m. in the Proscenium Arch theater in the Drama building also schowing are two Charlie Chaplin movies: "The Count" and "Laughing Gas."

Miss Adamiec Chosen Dream Girl

Melanie Adamiec, Alpha Delta Pi, was crowned "Dream Girl of Pi Kappa Alpha for 1954" at the fraternity's annual ball, held last Friday evening at the Corinthian club.

Each year the fraternity selects a queen at their "Dream Girl ball." From an initial field of 27 contestants, composed of girls from the sororities and women's living centers on the campus, Miss Adameic was finally selected from six finalists as Pi Kappa Alpha's choice for the title.

She will now compete with the "Dream Girls" chosen from each of the other 109 chapters of the fraternity.

Miss Adamiec is a junior in the School of Speech and Fine Arts, majoring in radio and television. She is also an active member of Boar's Head's activities.

Candidates are judged on considerations such as poise, appearance, intelligence and sincerity. The brothers interview each applicant in order to select the finalists. These finalists are then invited to an after-dinner coffee.

From this last group is selected the girl to reign for the coming year as "Dream Girl of Pi Kappa Alpha."

PROGRAM CHANGE

Due to a change in the WSYR-TV program schedule "So You Want to go to College!" student produced and directed television show, will be aired at 3:30 p.m. instead of 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 2 to June 6.

Filling a vacuum

Though the seniors may consider themselves indispensable, when they leave there will be no appreciable vacuum on campus.

It is another story with the class gift.

Quite soon seniors will be asked to choose what they will give to campus when they leave. This deserves some serious thought since it will serve as a useful memory of the class of 1954.

As it stands now, the seniors will choose between a diathermy machine for the infirmary and a microfilm reader for the library.

Both are useful and both would fill a notable vacuum in campus needs. Either one would be a gift many levels above a memorial rock or a flagpole, necessary as they might be in some circle.

We urge the graduates-to-be to put some thought into their mark of progress on campus. It may help to justify the mark of progress left on them by the University.

Company Manners

We've got company coming!

1,250 students to be exact.

For tomorrow, Syracuse university will be the site of the annual Citizenship Education conference for high school juniors and seniors.

For more than 24 hours these students, the outstanding leaders of their respective schools, will be watching us, finding out exactly what Syracusans are.

They will be housed overnight in our sororities and fraternities; they will participate in panels and discussions in classrooms and other Greek houses. They'll be buying postcards on Marshall st. and pennants at the Corner Store.

They will probably be seen wandering over the Quad or looking at the Law College; they'll be seen praying at church Sunday.

These leaders are here primarily to compete for scholarships to the University and to gain insight into citizenship, leadership and all that they imply. But some are also here to see if Syracuse university is THE place for them for the next four years.

Let's show them the meaning of a "friendly campus."

Editor-in-Chief

The Disloyal

Act IV, the senior ball, will mark the final act of the Class of '54 before the graduation exercises. An outstanding dance is being planned with Woody Herman and his orchestra, imported collegiate talent and all the facilities of the Women's building at the committee's disposal. It should be a success.

But will it be? The evening of May 8 has been scheduled as a "closed night" for campus social functions in order to prevent conflicts with the traditional formal. Evidently this is not enough to ensure a free social calendar.

We know of at least two Greek organizations which plan to hold their own formals on the same evening. Naturally these dances have not been scheduled on the University social calendar. As further protection for the sponsoring groups, they are being held on dance floors outside of Syracuse city limits.

All house presidents received a letter from senior class president John Beach asking for their support in making the dance a success. "It would be a great help," he wrote, "if you would use your influence to encourage a good representation from your group, and to avoid any plans for conflicting social events."

Certainly the success of the dance will not depend on the activities of two or even several houses, but incidents such as these can be a heavy blow to a planning committee which has been working feverishly for weeks to present students with a worthwhile dance. It will become increasingly discouraging for any class to try and offer something unusual or outstanding in the way of a large-scale social event if practices like these increase.

ON THE TOWN

Some Weekly Notes On the Weekend

By MICHAEL BRAUN

SCHINES' ECKEL—

Oscars command center screen in the Eckel's film fare this weekend. All the films that are shown have one, at least one, of the little things. On Friday evening Roman Holiday will be shown at 4:18 and 8.29 p.m. Audrey Hepburn won the best actress award for this one, and William Holden, who won best actor for Stalag 17, which will be shown at 6:22 and 10:30 p.m. On Saturday Theodore Dreiser's "An American Tragedy" under the title A Place in the Sun will be on view. This film stars Montgomery Clift, Elizabeth Taylor and Shelley Winters. It was directed by George 8:23 p.m. Shane, with Alan Ladd, Jean Arthur, Van Heflin and Bran-Stevens who also won an Oscar and will be on view at 4:04 and don "Shane, come back" de Wilde will be shown at 6:11 and 10:30 p.m.

RKO KEITHS—

Something called Dangerous Mission will be playing this weekend. It stars Victor Mature and Piper Laurie which should make it pictorially attractive to members of both genders. Picture at 7:51 and 10:00 p.m. Friday; 8:53 and 11:02 Saturday. Also showing is Red Garters, a satire which tried but didn't quite seem to make it.

SCHINES' PARAMOUNT—

The local boys have been counting on their fingers and toes the day when the ad would come true. "J.R. in 3D" it said "That's all brother." And now the much heralded "French Line" is on view Friday and Saturday at 8:02 and 10:09 p.m.

LOEWS STATE—

It's Beachhead starring Tony Curtis, whom the ads tell us "makes the jungle steam." "Fort Algiers" with Yvonne de Carlo is also on the program. Beachhead will be shown Friday and Saturday at 6:58 and 10:00 p.m.. Fort Algiers at 5:34 and 8:36 p.m.

LOEWS STRAND—

The scene: Peter Lawford's apartment. The girl: Judy "Born Yesterday" Holiday. The setting: romantic. The dialogue: Mr. Lawford, "Darling, I get so lonely all by myself in this lonely apartment." Miss H., "Why don't you get yourself a parrot"!!! This patter is typical of the hysterical tone of It Should Happen to You, one of the funnier tomes of frustration in the big city.

Besides the aforementioned two, Jack Lemmon late of Radio City is appearing. This goes on at 7:00 and 9:55 p.m. Also showing is Drive a Crooked Road, in which Mickey Rooney declares that he doesn't know how to kiss a girl. Martha Vickers must have written the script.

CORONET THEATER—

Academy award time on campus too it seems. You Can't Take It With You by Kaufman and Hart will be shown by Boars Head Sunday. This wacky farce stars Jimmy Stewat and Lionel Barrymore. The family depicted by these masters of a screwy situation, shouldn't happen to a dog. Also on this bill, which incidentally is the last of the season, is "The Vagabond" and "The Adventurer" starring Charlie Chaplin who certainly needs no introduction or praise. Feature at 3:00 and 7:00 p.m.

—LEGITIMATE STAGE—

ASTOR THEATER—

The much heralded, much looked forward too, Up in Lights opens at the Astor Wednesday night. Probably this time next week some absent minded but tune conscious soul will start to whistle a ditty from this production, which cost our local thespians a rollicking $10,000.

With a cast of 59 and Rigolosi it premiers Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Going Irish

At Maritime university, Halifax, Nova Scotia, coeds grew weary of seeing the same old faces in their morning mirrors.

They experimented by wearing green lipstick, but were discouraged by shocked males on the campus.

LYRICS & LAUGHS

From the Pages of A Mythical Book

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

"If they asked me, I could write a book," said the aging blonde in Rodgers and Hart's "Pal Joey." If we were asked, we are certain that any ambitious student of journalism could write a book, not musical perhaps, on the assortment of talent in the new revue, "Up in Lights."

It fairly spills over.

Two of the most descriptive and startling personalities to be found in the "Up in Lights" cast are Helen Hurdus and Bob Dishy.

Helen is doing what comes natural to her, singing with gusto to busto the most powerful eardrum. It is simply power, Max.

Not that Hurdus is all strength. There is quality, too. A strange, warbling, swinging quality that reminds you of another powerhouse named Ethel Merman. Both, it appears, possess the same stage-warming quality.

Perhaps the secret is that she is not afraid to give out when the melody warrants. Perhaps it's that she has an inborn "beltin" talent. Perhaps we're suckers for bounce. At any rate, Helen Hurdus is the dish that pleases.

We saw the "Stop, Look and Love Your Lady" number the other night and were convinced.

The man with the face of rubber, the humor of movement and the gift of comedy will make us laugh in "Up in Lights."

Bob Dishy is a funny man.

He can't help it.

We can't help breaking up.

"Dish," like Hurdus, would seem to come by entertaining naturally. His inner touch for pantomime and spoken comedy is distinct and boundless. He is always to be found at the larger campus stage events with a new routine or an old one, which is eternally laugh-provoking. Last year, he hopped through "White Bucks and Tales" in a score of forms and brought on a cloud burst of approval for the "Library is My Beat" number.

In "Up in Lights," Bob also hops. In fact, he seems to be on stage more than the footlights.

He has another pantomime ready and he sings, dances, acts and in general, brews up a storm. At rehearsal, "Dish" and Mayor Rigolosi were trying out a new routine on stage. Bob was mugging all the way. The "Rigger" broke up. He couldn't help it.

Bob Dishy is a funny man.

BUGS & THINGS

Living & the Dead

By JOHN JOHNSRUD

When our geography class in Lyman was cancelled yesterday we decided to go watch the preparations for the open house of the life sciences which opens today.

Descending into the basement we saw professors and students readying their exhibits. Here and there a chick embryo or a fossil insect looked out at us.

In one of the many laboratories on this sub-level of Lyman being used in this exhibition, we saw Dr. Verner Wulff tuning up his equipment for a demonstration of brain and heart waves.

Most of the exhibitors would not be setting up their contribution to the open house until early in the morning but we saw several picture displays. One of these showed several parasites that have been preserved for posterity through microphotographs.

After touring the mainly unfinished exhibits we went upstairs to talk with Dr. George Holz, member of the committee handling the zoology department's section of the open house.

We saw when entering his office in room 115, the usual array of papers and books indispensible to a professor. We asked him how large a crowd he expected to attend.

"We held a similar exhibition last year. About 500 people came then. We'd like to see more this year but we expect to have about the same size crowd."

Continuing on upstairs, we eventually arrived on the second floor where the department of plant sciences will present is contributions.

Noticing one of the displays we decided that no place is safe from 3-D. Stereoviewers here give the observer a life-like picture of various plants. Another exhibit interested us. It was a family tree of plants showing ancient plants and their modern counterparts.

Then we saw a door with the name of Dr. Richard O'Neill painted on it. We knew he was in charge of the plant sciences committee so we walked in and asked him what some of the exhibits not yet set up would deal with.

"There will be presentations in bacteriology, botany, food technology, genetics, and microbiology. Among others there will be a collection of old and new microscopes and a group of photographs of bacteria and viruses taken with an electron microscope at a magnification of 100,000 times."

We said we would be back this afternoon or this evening to see the rest of this one-day stand of the life sciences.

WORLD OF BOOKS

From Cleopatra to Frank L. Wright

By PETER McNALLY

Where did Cleopatra live? What kind of architecture was stylish enough to suit her, and all her predecessors and descendents?

This information, plus many other types of architectural questions, you can answer for yourself, fast and easily. For over in Slocum hall the Architecture library contains knowledge of a building sinct the time when first started sheltering himself against the elements.

To make the process as gratifying as possible the 6,000 books are shelved according to the different architectural periods.

Greek houses are followed by books about Roman architecture. And grouping continues right through the Middle Ages, the Renaissance up to the modern day planning of Frank Lloyd Wright.

Naturally, to have any authority, these books are written by architects and are usually illustrated.

But the really large illustrations are in the big books of engravings, which are 3x2 feet x 3 inches in size, sometimes smaller, sometimes large. One of these folios of engravings is by Antonio Palladio, the 16th century architects. There are several other rare volumes in the library.

The third floor library, located in the same room as the Education library, is purposely established for architecture students, yet there is probably something there that could interest everyone on campus.

The Fine Art students use this library for some of their design problems. The 50 periodicals have among them magazines featuring interior decoration, which is of interest to the Home Ec students and Bus Ad students may find out what trends there are in modern building.

Even the Drama and Forestry students can find subjects of interest to them here. The former can discover what theaters have been like since Thespis first set foot in front of the Greek altar, while the latter can unlock information on how architects plan to eat up frests for the construction problems of today.

Of course, the Liberal Artist, interested in all phases of culture, will find it all very illuminating.

A particularly interesting aspect is the history class in architecture which lasts for the full five-year program. Mrs. Cotton said that this is where the library's 7,000 photographic slides come in. To illustrate the different periods of architecture the history teacher uses these color slides.

The engravings may show Cleopatra, but even if they don't, there are also some very worthwhile garden statues to enjoy.

Getting 'SG's Together

By ED HARDY

The proposal for a joint student assembly steering committee passed this month by men's student government has interesting potentialities.

Introduced by Senior assemblyman Alvin Applegate, the plan is seen as a way "to foster cooperation between MSG and women's student government assemblies, coordinate legislative programs and adjust differences arising from MSG and WSG acts which have a common purpose.

The committee would also, according to Applegate's bill, function as a laison and advisory group between other student government groups and the University administration.

Speakers and speakers pro-tem of both assemblies and all regular and special committee chairmen of the legislatures would sit on the joint steering committee.

Any increase in membership would have to be approved by MSG and WSG lawmakers. Monthly meetings of the group have been proposed, with the assembly speakers acting as co-chairmen.

Eight suggestions were made in the original bill. The committee would consider conflicting points in MSG and WSG legislation which has a common purpose and would offer adjustments subject to approval by both assemblies.

The steering committee, however, would not have any original jurisdiction of its own.

Calling of joint panel and committee meetings supposedly would be facilitated. Executive branches would be aided in "advancing the common interests of men and women students to the University administration."

The steering group would keep the student body informed of legislative objectives, Applegate said. It would also give advice to assemblies on legislative procedures and programs.

The joint steering committee appears to have definite possibilities as a useful device to more closely coordinate the activity of both student assemblies in related fields.

LETTERARY COMMENT

'A Few Facts About Use of The Men's Pool'

April 27, 1954

Editor c/o Letterary Comment
Daily Orange
To Whom It May Concern:

In defense of the Athletic Department and to enlighten an "interested student," I think a few facts about the use of the Men's Pool should be pointed out.

To begin with the pool is available for use between the hours 1:00 and 6:00 p.m. (not 5:00 p.m. as stated) and the gym classes do not use the pool at this time; they are held during the morning hours. The reason for limiting the use of the pool to afternoon is simple. Last year, in addition to the afternoon sessions, the pool was open from 7:30 to 10:00 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, but due to the lack of use by the students this was eventually done away with this year, on the basis of the previous year's experience and with the addition of the facilities of the Women's Pool it was felt that the afternoon session would be sufficient. Apparently the decision was a wise one since there have been no complaints voiced by the students and the pool continues to receive no better than average use, hence increasing its availabllity seems rather pointless.

I hope this clears up the situation somewhat so that we won't have any students "hiding their faces in shame at the mention of the availability of the Men's Pool."

Sincerely,
Capt. Swimming Team
Bob Curran

CHEATING THEMSELVES

A Waste of Time

From the Associated Collegiate Press

Higher education demands more of students than mere attendance. The paper at the University of Toledo has printed some of its professors' and students' peeves on this subject:

"Teachers fail to realize that they have been teaching the same subject for a number of years," says one student. "They think we should know as much as they do in a much shorter time."

"For the most part," complains one English professor, "it is the lack of curiosity which I object to. Students are not interested in learning just for the sake of knowing something. Everything must have a practical application."

Another professor terms "laziness" as his pet peeve. "College students are the only people in the world who pay for something and then do their best to cheat themselves out of it."

Lacrossers Seek Fifth Victory In Tomorrow's Penn State Test

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Penn State's Blue and White, traditional rivals from the Nittany mountains, provide the opposition tomorrow as Roy Simmons' stickmen go after their third straight victory on Hendricks field. A preliminary battle between the Syracuse frosh and St. Bonaventure varsity opens activity at noon with the main contest set for 2:30 p.m.

Simmons will be matching wits with one of his most illustrious proteges tomorrow. Penn State's coach, Nick Thiel, was an all-American attackman on the Hill in 1932 and '33 and captain of the Orange lacrossers his senior year.

A NATIVE Syracusan and graduate of Central high, Thiel has been at the Nittany helm for 17 seasons, compiling a 68-92 record. Last year State beat only Loyola of Baltimore in eight contests.

The Lions have dropped decisions to Navy and Loyola this season after winning their opener over Kenyon. They visit Hobart today on the first leg of a two-game weekend journey.

Nine lettermen form the nucleus of Thiel's opening lineup. Don Bell, 5 ft.-11 senior from Rochester, will probably open in the nets with lettermen Jim Hay and Herb Horikawa teaming with junior Ev Weidner at defense.

AN ALL-VETERAN attack promises to make the Orange defense hustle. Dick Klein, Jim Reed and Ron Youtz are experienced forwards likely to open for the visitors.

Syracuse will be shooting for win No. five after dumping Dartmouth and Cortland State in its last starts. Only the loss to powerful Maryland mars the Orange record.

Simmie contemplates no lineup changes for the coming battle; Ed White will be at goal with Bob Miller, Primo Belluz and co-capt. Leo Pollack at defense; co-capt. Bruce Yancey, Don Moller, Al Duff, mid-field; Stew Lindsay, Don Muller, Ed (Pug) Smith, attack.

The second defense in Simmons' two-platoon will be Don Laakson-en, George Rovere and Alvaro (Pedro) Gonzales with the Dave Kline-Tom Havill-Bob Tucker trio as alternate mid-field. Hank Bianowicz and L. B. Sutherland are the top attack reserves.

A YEAR ago the Orange defeated State, 18-13, as Yancey and Smith each scored four times. Moller added three tallies and four assists while Kline counted twice.

After tomorrow's game the Saltines enjoy a week of comparative ease before meeting the Onondagz Indians next Saturday. The following week, however they face the dangerous Army Cadets and Upstate champion Rensselaer Poly.

John Echeandia's frosh will be making their first regular start tomorrow after dropping an 8-6 practice tilt to Hamilton on Wednesday. St. Bona is fielding a lacrosse team for the first time in the university's history.

Frosh Diamondmen Inaugurate Season

By EV MURCH

Weather permitting, the frosh baseball team will open its season this afternoon at Hamilton against the Colgate yearlings. The first home game is set for Lew Carr field tomorrow afternoon at 2:30, when the invaders will be the Little Red from Cornell.

So far, practices for the Tangerines have been limited to a scattered few fitted in between numeous days of rain. This has made the cutting job twice as hard for Coach Andy Mogish, as he has been forced to pick is line-up from some 30-odd virtual strangers.

HOWEVER, HE has set down a tentative starting lineup.

He expects to start either Tom Hallet or Bill Williams on the mound this afternoon. Both boys are strong-armed right-handers who compiled impressive high school records. Behind the plate will be Bob Kuhne, a rugged backstop from New York City.

In the infield, Mogish plans to use either Dick Barstow or Al Cann at first, Vin Albanese at second, Phil Hogan at short, and Joe Krivak or Lou Stark at third.

The otfield will be patrolled by Bill Bown, Jack Thoden, and either Joe McCann or Nick Baccile.

Other boys who may see action are Pete Dounias, an outfielder, Bob Tata, a catcher, and pitchers John Pannucci, Oz Winters, and Jim Snider.

Saltine Yachtsmen Race on Weekend

Nine Eastern Squads Provide Opposition

By BOB TATA

The Orange sailors will take to their boats again this Satrday and Sunday in an attempt to atone for their stinging defeat of last weekend. Their opposition will be fom nine Eastern schools around New York state.

The top five teams in this competition will qualify for the Mid-Atlantic championships later on at Annapolis. Capt. Jack Cummings is very optimistic about the race and predicts a win for the Orange.

Syracuse met each of the teams entered in this regatta last fall and beat all but Kings Point, the home team. Cummings believes this year's team is the strongest Hill varsity in many a year. A Piety entry has never finished lower than fifth in this particular event.

An Orange success is largely in the hands of skippers Len Montague and Ken Resen. Warren Witherstine and Tom Murray will man the mainsheets and carry out the skippers' commands.

The Syracuse squad will leave this noon and is scheduled to arrive in Kings Point in time to get a good night's rest before an early morning pre-race practice.

Feidelman Hurls Tau Delt to Win

Tau Delta Phi easily defeated Lambda Chi Alpha, 19-2, behind the three-hit pitching of Joel Feidelman and a 14-hit attack, in the opening night of softball action on Hendricks field last night.

In another high scoring game last night, Sigma Chi outscored Delta Upsilon 16-3. Ernie Schweband and Ken Gilchrist homered for the winners. Larry Isaacson pitching for the losers gave up but one more hit then his mound opponent, Bob Ernst.

The other two games of the evening were 7-5 wins for Kappa Sigma and Kappa Phi Delta over Sigma Phi Epsilon and Sigma Nu respectively. For Sigma Nu, Jack Robinson and Jim Saunders hit homers for the losers while Francis King collected two hits for the winners. Sig Ep outhit Kappa Sig 5-4 but were unable to score with men on base. Dave John smashed a homer for the losers.

Tennis Squad Opens Season Tomorrow Opposing Colgate

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Minus two of his starters, Coach Francis O'Brien will have to rely on untested netmen when Syracuse meets Colgate tomorrow afternoon in the curtain raiser of a seven meet schedule.

Pete Bratt and Ken Smitey, who were scheduled to start for the Orange, will probably be unable to make the trip. Bratt will be attending his brother's wedding while Smitey is in the hospital with measles.

THE ONLY definite Orange starters are John Kerr and Boone Soone. Kerr is the only returning letterman to start for the Orange, while Soone, a transfer student from Burma, has yet to see intercollegiate action.

Syracuse will be minus the services of former Capt. Hal McGrath who graduated last June. While on the hill, McGrath was tennis coach, captain and Eastern Intercollegiate singles championship in 1951.

McGrath had the best season when a sophomore. In his junior year, he assumed the coaching duties and his game suffered under the dual strain.

Another potential Orange starter who won't be ready for Colgate is Al Bernstein. Bernstein was high on Coach O'Bien's list but his duties in the senior play have interferred with tennis.

The remaining starters will be probably drawn from Tom Long, Win Lotte, Godrey Lebhar, Dick Lorenz and Herbert Walker. Other racketmen who have been working out but who are not yet ready for starting roles are Kev Wilson, Vic Oberschual, John Barkal, and Herbert Haft.

Oberschal was a starter on Coach Andy Coccari's soccer squad, and was one of the reasons for the Orange's fine 5-1 record.

This afternoon, the frosh netmen open their season against Colgate. Like the varsity, which was undefeated on a long southern tour, the frosh Raiders are strong at all positions and will give the Tangerines plenty of touble.

Piety Linksmen Oppose Raiders

The Syracuse golfers try for their third consecutive win tomorrow afternoon when they face Colgate university at Hamilton.

Co-Capts. Bob Mandeville and Gerry Sullivan, Ed St. Pierre and Sam Scholler will definitely start for the Orange.

Mandeville won both of his earlier outings while Sullivan won once and lost once. St. Pierre also won both matches.

The other Orange starters will be drawn from Ben Record, Dick Golobic, Tom Dady, and Jim Roach. Golobic and Dady saw action against Hobart last Wednesday afternoon.

Colgate Clouter

BRUCE DURSEMA will be in the outfield for Colgate's Red Raiders tomorrow when they play host to the Orange nine at Hamilton. The speedy flychaser batted an impressive .318 in last season's competition.

Orange Baseballers Battle Colgate Away

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Rained out of their opening home tilt Wednesday, the Orange baseballers will take to the road again tomorrow afternoon when they invade Hamilton to face the Colgate nine. Bill Cassidy will probably handle the mound chores for the Pietymen as they go after their second straight win. Game time is 2:30.

Red Raider coach Red O'Hora will pit a largely veteran lineup Capt. Bob Berry and center fielder Bruce Dursema. Berry led the Maroon attack last season with a .359 batting average while the speedy Dursema powdered the ballball at a .318 clip.

SENIOR DON Ronnie will probably open on the mound for the Hamiltonians. The veteran hurler recorded a 4-1 record last season with a 4.05 earned run average.

Most questionable spot on the Colgate roster is behind the bat where two sophomores, Mike Costanzo and Pete Hopkins have been vying for the job. Both are cosidered top prospects but lack experience.

The remainder of the Maroon infield will be composed of vets Hal Horan, Len Kraus and Bill Johnson while Ted Carangelo, a second stringer last season and either Frank Nardulli, Frank Speno or Bill Huther will round out the outfield. The final three are sophomores.

Coach Ted Kleinhans is still undecided at two positions for the Saltines. Dick Neufang and Al Totaro are battling for the shortstop slot while Ray Schapley is challenging Ed Roman in right field.

THE REST of the lineup will be the same that won the opener against Hobart last Saturday. Dick Darr, Ed Albright and Ted Kukowski will man the infield while Paul Slick and Nick Coyne will fill the other outer pasture spots. Veteran Phil Young will again open behind the plate.

The right-handed Cassidy will be making his first varsity appearance on the hill. Only a sophomore, he was scheduled to fling in the postponed opener against Cornell.

Colgate compiled an impressive 8-2 record last season including a 3-0 whitewashing of the Orange. The second scheduled clash between the two squads was rained out. This year, Colgate is scheduled to visit Syracuse for a return game on June 5.

Cindermen Journey to Hamilton Tomorrow for Dual Meet Opener

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Coach Bob Grieve and his aggregation of strong runners leave tomorrow noon for Hamilton where they will take on the Red Raider cindermen in the opening dual meet of the season.

The match should be a close one, with the Orangemen seeking to avenge the 10-point loss inflicted on them last year by a Colgate team that was too high "up" to be defeated.

A couple of winners in the 1953 outing will lead the Raiders' attack. Russ Bradshaw, a fine distance runner, and Les Wallock, a speedy middle distance man, will provide the steepest competition for Grieve's capable charges.

Bradshaw has run a 4:15.7 mile last year when he nosed out Ray "Poppa" Osterhout by one second. Osterhout evened the personal duel by trouncing Bradshaw in the two-mile. Wallock is capable of a 1:54 half-mile. He is also an outstanding quarter-miler.

To confront this pair, Grieve will go with Osterhout, Steve Armstrong and Jim George in the mile; Osterhout, George, Frank Calzi and Gene Parker in the two-mile; and Les Vielbig and Armstrong in the 880.

Jack Hubbard and Don Shupe will contest the Raider's Don Perry and possibly Wallock in the 440. Perry is rated as a good quarter-miler by Grieve. Hubbard and footballer Dick Jackson will be entered in the 220-yd. dash against Colgate's Franze, Sutton, and Cooley.

THESE FIVE plus Hillmen Chuck McGlynn and Jim "Tiny" Sutton will compete in the century dash. McGlynn and Bob Savoye are entered with Colgate's Faulkner in the 220-yd. low hurdles. The 110-yd. tall timber event will feature Faulkner, Savoye, Hill all-around man Wendy Hoone and Bob Beattie.

Hoone will also pole vault, high jump and broad jump. Hank Wrightman and Jimmy Sutton will supplement Hoone in the former event and Savoye will high jump. Jackson, McGlynn and Tom Kirby round out the Orange broad jump entry.

Javelinin' Joe Martin should have an easy time of it in his specialty and Grieve is hoping for a second and/or third place from Rudy Fromm or Len Kissel.

Sophomore Pete Schwert will lead the way for the Grievemen in the weight events against the Raiders' Plante. Also putting the shot for the Orange will be Jimmy Vance, while George Cook and 230-pound Jim George heave the discus.

Yealing Oarsmen Race Tomorrow

Future varsity crew prospects will be unveiled Saturday afternoon at 2:45 p.m. when the frosh crew opens its season on Onondaga lake against the freshmen of Navy, Cornell and Boston U.

The two-mile race will be the third for Boston U. which lost to Harvard in their opener and then came on to defeat MIT in their other race. Navy defeated Princeton in their only race of the season.

The tentative lineup for the regatta appears to be Walt Hoover, stroke, Pete Beckett, No. 4, Chuck Crosby, No. 6, Dave Acker, No. 5, Bob Beier, No. 4, Tom Lotz, No. 3, Tom Christie, No. 2, Karl Blixt, bow and Dick Davenport, coxswain.

A CAMPUS-TO-CAREER CASE HISTORY

"There wasn't a dull minute!"

(Reading time: 36 seconds)

"Training can really be interesting. I found that out when I joined A.T.&T.'s Long Lines Department after getting my B.A. at Cincinnati and my M.A. at Michigan in '52. Long Lines is the organization specializing in Long Distance communications. I was put in the training program, and there wasn't a dull minute.

"For instance, one of my jobs in the Traffic Department was estimating the exact number of calls that would be placed in a city on Christmas Day. My estimate was off by only 68 calls!

"Then in the Plant Department, I made a study of damage done to a certain cable. Found out that the most damage occurred in an area used by hunters. Some special public relations work among hunters helped improve that situation.

"And in the Commercial Department, I helped analyze the communication problems of one of the largest textile companies—it had widespread offices and plants. The recommendations made are now in use.

"The variety in my training has carried over to my regular job here in Cincinnati. My job is to see that good service is maintained for private line customers—pipeline and power companies, theater TV and the like. Every day is different.

"As far as I am concerned, I've found my career."

Meeting Tackles World Problems

Korean difficulties, the Israeli conflict and measures for expansion of international trade were discussed by representatives of sixty colleges and universities at a recent mid-Atlantic Model General Assembly meeting.

Held at Alfred university, the model assembly had five members from the Syracuse university Unitied Nations club. Chief speaker was Benjamin Cohen, assistant UN secretary general.

Dr. Donald G. Bishop of the Maxwell school gave the critique for the conference. Syracusans attending were Roma Yellon, Nancy Whittier, Susan Jakl, Stephen Eben and Rosemary Caviolo.

Editor Gives Lowdown On Admissions Policy

By ARTHUR B. SIEGEL
Managing Editor

This admissions business is a thankless job.

We talked with Dick Loester at the admissions office a few days ago. This is, of course, the busy season for Dean Hafer and his assistants.

JUST HOW DOES A student get accepted? We wanted to know the criteria for undergraduate admission to the University.

First consideration are the student's high grades. Secondly, the college entrance exams are considered, and thirdly, the applicants' recommendations and supporting materials.

Applications for the music, art, architecture and nursing schools are handled primarily through the respective colleges. Ultimately all decisions are made by the University Dean of Admissions.

Probably the most difficult part of the process is determining what criteria are the most valid and reliable.

BECAUSE OF different marking systems of different high schools the staff considers heavily the student's rank in his class. Only rarely does a student get admitted if he is in the lower half of his graduating class.

Again, there are always other factors. A student may be poor in his high school grades but he may do well on his college boards. The University considers this as illustrative or potential.

In such cases the determining factor is often the recommendation of the high school principal.

Sometimes a student who has potential is admitted on a one-semester probationary status with limited curriculum. Reasons for such action may be that the student has not "found himself" while in high school or perhaps he has had to work while in high school.

OFTEN A doubtful applicant will be requested to have a personal interview with Dean Hafer or one of his staff members. This interview may determine whether the student should be admitted.

It's a tough job, Loester said. "We get long distance calls every day from parents who want to know why their son was rejected or why he can't take a full program."

Repeating the difficulty in valid criteria, Loester mentioned the biographical information, activities participation and other indications of character and potential that are included in the application materials.

The only thing that bothered us as we finished the interview was the question of possible strengthening of the interview system.

OBVIOUSLY, IT would be impossible to interview every candidate for admission. No large school does that and for reasons of time and money it would be impossible.

We left with a pretty fine impression of the admissions work. We left with the impression that where a student shows potential he is given a chance.

We recommended only that in the more doubtful cases, interviews be insisted upon, or in cases of the applicant living far away, searching applications material be sent to him.

Once in awhile in every school some "moron" or "jerk" get in. Most of us know such characters. But they don't last long. They are given a chance to prove themselves: if they don't, it can't always be called a mistake on the part of the admissions personnel. They're only human and they're doing a superhuman job.

Asian Expert

UN Assistance Chief To Talk Wednesday

The new chief of the Office for Asia and the Far East in the Technical Assistance Administration of the United Nations will speak on "Progress in Technical Assistance" in Chapel Wednesday.

The lecture is sponsored by Panhellenic association, but is not limited to sorority women. All students and faculty members are invited and urged to attend the lecture at 4:15 p.m. A question and answer period will follow.

MISS ELEANOR M. Hinder administers the United Nation's programs of expert assistance to governments from Pakistan eastward. This involves the services of more than 70 experts and the provision of 100 fellowships a year, in addition to regional programs collaborating with the UN economic commission for Asia and the Far East.

Miss Hinder has had a long professional experience in Asia. She lived in China for more than 20 years. For ten of these, until 1942, she was in charge of the equivalent of a Labor department in the Shanghai Municipal Council. This is the governing body of the former International settlement in Shanghai.

In her work she developed factory inspection services, conducted standard of living studies, and developed regular cost of living indices. She was responsible for mediation of industrial disputes and organizing the training for workers.

She was in China when the Pacific war broke out. After repatriation in Britain, she was for two years the special consultant to the International Labor Office on Chinese affairs.

FOR THE next seven years Miss Hinder was in the service of the United Kingdom Foreign Office, first as its representative on the UNRRA Committee for the Far East which carried out a large program in China.

Later she was United Kingdom liaison officer with the UN activities in the Far East.

She has been awarded the honor of Office of the British Empire (O.B.E.) in recognition of her services.

Panhel previously sponsored this yearly lecture with Independent Students' association. Last year was the first year the lecture was not presented.

Other lecturers have included Mrs. Frank Galbraith, noted engineer, and Miss Lisa Sergia, who was for a time a secretary to Benito Mussolini.

Miss Smorol Picked For Music Contest

Lorraine Smorol, a School of Music voice major, will be the area finalist in the nation-wide Marcella-Sembrich voice contest.

Miss Smorol, who was selected to represent the Syracuse-Buffalo area on April 24 at auditions in Buffalo, will be eligible to compete with finalists from other areas for a $500 study grant.

The finals, which will be held on May 15 in Buffalo, will include contestants from seven other areas, including Chicago, Detroit and Minneapolis.

The contest is sponsored by the National Polish Culture society.

Two Rehearsals Set In Hendricks Chapel For Coeds' Singing

Mass Women's Chorus Will Close Contest Spring Weekend

The two scheduled rehearsals for the "mass" women's chorus that will close the step singing contest will be held tomorrow at 5 and 8:45 p.m. in Hendricks chapel. Anne Forrest, contest chairman, emphasized that it is important that all group representatives take part in at least one rehearsal.

All sororities are requested to have at least 12 girls who sang in the contest present at the practice. In the small houses, which participated in the contest, six girls are required to attend the rehearsal.

IF A GIRL has sung both for her sorority and her cottage, she is expected to represent her cottage. Only if her cottage has fulfilled its quota will she be allowed to sing with her sorority.

The preceding numbers required from each group are the minimum that each house should provide. As many more as wish to may sing in the chorus. Roll will be taken at each rehearsal.

To insure that the chorus will be well-balanced, each house should try to provide an equal number of first and second sopranos and altos. The Syracuse alma mater sung will be the same arrangement that has been used through the past weeks in the competitions.

Only houses singing in the competition are not required to send members to the practices since they wil be in rehearsal already. These houses include, Butler cottage, Winchell Waitresses, Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Kappa.

COMPETING HOUSES have six hours of practice before the finals. The contest will start promptly at 7 p.m. on the Library steps. In case of rain, arrangements have been made to hold the finals in gym A of the Women's building.

Step singing is sponsored by Eta

'Up in Lights' Set For Astor Debut

The hustle and glitter of an opening night will be captured both downtown and on the Hill, when "Up in Lights" the new musical revue, opens at the Astor theater Wednesday night.

The May 5th opening of the show will mark the end of weeks of rehearsals and preparations by the drama department. The musical is scheduled to run Wednesday through Saturday nights. Curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m. with the exception of Saturday night when the revue will start at 7:30 p.m.

"UP IN LIGHTS" was recently chosen to be shown in a TV series next fall, called "Varsity, U.S.A." The CBS television show will present highlights of the musical in a half-hour program.

Tickets for the production went on sale prior to Easter vacation. Many fraternities and organizations have already taken advantage of the block seating rates to attend the show in a group.

Aggregates of 20 or more persons include: Zeta Beta Tau, who have made reservations for 114 persons and Delta Upsilon whose group consists of 100. Other houses attending in a body are: Sigma Phi Epsilon, Psi Upsilon, Tau Delta Phi, Sigma Alpha Mu, Pi Lambda Phi, Alpha Epsilon Pi.

THE $10,000 production features songs of Lanny O'Kun and Bill Angelos, and a cast of 60 students.

Tickets which have been sold at the present time number approximately 2,700. Ducats are available either at the box office in the Astor theater or in the Drama building.

However, all reserved tickets must be picked up by Tuesday, May 4th. Groups of 20 or more persons may obtain a special discount of 10 per cent on the price of their tickets. Regular rates are $2.50, $2.00 and $1.50 per person.

LA Council Names Seven Members

Bennett Only Sophomore Chosen by Body

Seven new members were named Friday to the Liberal Arts. Advisory council. They are juniors Barbara Witter, Roberta Faxstein and Roberta Baliba and sophomore David Bennett.

Barbara Murray, Marianne Oesterreicher and Richard Green were the freshmen chosen.

Miss Witter is a sociology major with a 2.3 average. Miss Faxstein has maintained a 2.1 average also as a sociology major. A science education major Miss Baliba has a 2.0 average.

Bennett, an American studies-journalism major, has a 2.1 average, while Miss Murray has maintained a 2.2 average with a humanities concentration major.

Miss Oesterreicher and Green have 2.2 and 2.0 averages respectively, Miss Oesterreicher is an American studies major.

The council learned that Marie Morris, at present a junior studying at Silliman university in the Philippine islands on a Presbyterian Foreign Missions Board scholarship, will return to the council next year as a senior.

Juniors include Howard Osofsky, Jean Brydon, Sidney Weinstein, and Stuart Parker.

CHAPEL CHOIR

The Hendricks Chapel choir of Syracuse university will present its annual spring concert on Monday evening, May 10, 1954. The concert is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. in Hendricks chapel. Admission is free but collection will be taken to defray expenses.

Waring Pennsylvanians Perform Tonight

FRED WARING and his Pennsylvanians hit the Syracuse trail at 8:30 p.m. tonight in Loew's Strand. Waring is shown here with members of his vocal group. The orchestra and chorus has been known nationally for more than a decade and are featured each Sunday night on the Columbia Broadcasting System television network.

Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians will present a special concert at 8:30 p.m. today on the stage of Loew's Strand theater. There will be only one performance.

Sponsored by Dave Salmon, inc, the performance will include the glee club, orchestra and soloists. Included in the 60 artists from the Waring television shows and concert appearances is the Teen Trio, three singing girls from Flint, Mich. The 16-year old girls will make their first local appearance.

Decca recording artists, the Pennsylvanians have been a top musical organization for nearly a quarter of a century. The Waring ranks have been the starting point for many noted musical performers including Les Paul and Joe Marine. The group's weekly television show over the CBS network is an outstanding Sunday evening offering.

Noted for their choral arrangements, the Waring aggregation has also presented many special seasonal and holiday broadcasts.

Tickets are available at Dave Salmon box office in the Clark Music building. The office will be open until 5:30 p.m. today and the theater boxoffice will be available from 6:30 p.m.

'Music in the air'

There'll be "music in the air" tonight when the University chorus presents its final and largest concert of the season.

This will be the eighty-fifth time in 42 years that this male and female chorus will provide an evening of free music entertainment for the campus.

Two soloists are scheduled to perform along with the chorus. One is on the faculty of the music school while the second is a graduate student there.

The numbers selected by the group are varied. Brahms and spirituals—both will be represented.

We suggest that every student attempt to arrive at Crouse by 8:30 p.m. tonight. Perhaps fraternities and sororities could even make an extra effort to conclude their meetings by that time.

The students have long been practicing to make this concert a success. We presume that other city concerts will not mean an empty auditorium on the Hill.

Music will be in the air; we hope you'll be around to hear it.

The work ahead

Men's court has come a long way in the past year.

More and more responsibility has been delegated to it by the Administration.

However, as the court ends another—and its best—year, we believe there are several phases of court action and procedure that could be strengthened.

Firstly, it appears that Civil Service could do a much more efficient job of informing the nine justices when a trial is to be held. There has been much complaint this year.

Sometimes the justices are never notified.

At other times they are notified only a few hours before the trial is to be held; and consequently, must either be absent because of other plans, or must miss their appointments so they can attend the trial.

Some of the new justices have stated their intentions of determining a statute of limitations. We commend this measure.

Thirdly, we trust that persons who come before the court will respect the court. We hope they will answer clearly and without facetiousness if they are to help in a fair decision. We hope they will dress in a manner befitting attendance at any meeting, not just a court meeting.

Lastly, we hope the court will be an efficient body; and that its members will do all they can to maintain interest. We hope no justice present or future is a justice because he wants an extra activity.

The court's function is a serious one.

'Why' of Housing Rules

Welfare Subcommittee Report on Syracuse University Housing & Dining Hall Policy

I. What is the Syracuse University Housing and Dining Hall policy concerning male students?

Syracuse university is traditionally a resident university, not a day university, and as such the university desires to house all undergraduate men and women in University dormitories or in fraternities or sororities. Permitting sophomores, juniors, and seniors to live in private housing is only temporary means of housing undergraduates. And the University is gradually extending the requirement calling for residence in University dorms or fraternities to all men students.

Next year sophomores will have to remain in University dorms, unless they are eligible to become fraternity brothers in the fall of 1954. Sophomores must also eat in University dining halls unless they are eligible to become brothers. If a sophomore pledges a fraternity during the first semester, he may petition to eat in the fraternity the second semester, but must remain living in the University housing unit for the complete academic year.

II. Have all those who will be subject to compulsory University housing and dining hall requirements been properly notified?

All members of the class of 1957 were sent letters by Dean Piskor during the summer of 1953 notifying them that they would have to live in University dorms and eat in University dining halls for their first two years of college life.

Sophomores who entered the University in February, 1953, were not notified of the policy, but in most cases these men will be juniors by the fall of 1954 due to summer school attendance. Some sophomores, who registered at the last minute as freshmen in the fall of 1953, may not have been informed of the conditions concerning dormitory and eating for their first two years at the University. These men were in most cases just referred to the Director of Men's Housing for assignment without any prior explanation. Also some male students who entered the University beginning with summer session, 1953, may not have received proper information. However, the majority of those affected by the newly enunciated policy were informed before they entered Syracuse university.

II. Why are the students who contract for room contracts in Marion dormitory required to eat in Watson dining hall?

First, we must point out Marion dormitory is open to seniors, juniors, and sophomores in that order. There are 148 possible accommodations in Marion, if we include facilities for proctors and resident advisors. In Watson dormitory there are 499 possible accommodations open to freshmen. The Watson dormitory dining hall seats 448 and will feed about 900 if operated on a cafeteria basis.

Both Watson and Marion dormitories were built on government loans under a contract calling for dining hall facilities. In repaying the loan, payments are made on a segmental basis, which in effect means that a certain percentage of the debt repayment must be for the dining hall services as such. In order to secure the budget requirements for the new dormitories, as well as pay for the dining hall and dormitories debt retirement, there must be a guaranteed dining hall income. Under the 1954-55 budget for Marion and Watson dormitories, which covers a nine month period instead of a twelve month period, there is an item calling for the feeding of 850 men in Watson dining hall.

Of the 850 men who will be required to eat in Watson dining hall, it is estimated that less than 700 of the Marion and Watson men will eat in the dining hall, if we exclude those who work for board, etc. The remaining men may come from the freshmen who will reside in Collendale next year.

The University, in the light of these statistics, feels that it is necessary to require all men rooming in Marion dormitory to also take a board contract in Watson dormitory dining hall. The University also points out that rooming in Marion dormitory is purely voluntary for upperclassmen.

How to Do Without

COMFORTS OF HOME

On the Charlottesville, Va. campus the $2 million academic building is under serveilance. The architect forgot to provide pencil sharpeners and waste baskets in this rambling structure.

However, some farsighted soul ordered cartons of waste baskets which have arrived and are still obstructing the corridor in which they were unloaded. One English professor has solved the problem by leaning out of the window to sharpen his pencil with a pen knife.

How else could you eliminate the need for both pencil sharpeners and waste baskets?

HI-FIDELITY

ON THE ODDITIES OF SOUND

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

As far back in history as 20 years ago, a highly specialized cult of musical listeners were given to daily ritual before a mass of electronic devices which at some time, might have been an electronic phonograph.

These people were lost in the loveliness of sound and strove continually to improve the reproduction of the phonographs by a wondermaze of electronic trickery. Their objective being to squeeze the highest possible truth from recordings.

Through the passing years, this cult has, as a result of great publication and intense interest, greatly increased in population and the business they were about has become to be known as "high fidelity." In 1954, hi-fi is perhaps the most communitive and discussed disease among music devotees. It is also a field which is widely misunderstood and a giant mystery to thousands of non-technical Americans who would like truer reproduction from their phonographs but have been snowed and lost by the hi-fi avalanche.

In pursuit of a solid definition it would appear that "high fidelityi' is simply this: The highest possible faithfulness in reproduction of recorded sound; the presentation of the musical "highs" and "lows" often lost on modern turntables as well as "middle range" sound.

There is also the need for "high fidelity" techniques in the actual studio recording of music so that the most complete range of sound is preserved on wax. For, certainly, not even the most elegant phonograph will reproduce notes that are not on the recording in the first place.

The move toward high fidelity in music has received a large push of interest during the past year with the development of low-cost equipment which, while not completely hi-fi, does satisfy most ears. At this point perhaps a distinction would be in order.

The actual hi-fi addicts are those who purchase all their own equipment and assembly their personal sets molded to personal taste. According to authorities, the home-assembled hi-fi sets offer better reproduction than the majority of manufactured items.

Then there are those whose ears will be satisfied with a limited scope of reproduction and who can get along quite well with low-cost sets.

On the market at present-time is a variety of high fidelity equipment which range from highly expensive home-constructed sets to highly expensive ready-made consoles to medium priced (below or around $100 sets. The last do not offer completely satisfactory sound but do rate highly beside phonographs made three or four years ago.

From hard knocks to soft shoes.

AT THE FLICKERS

SOMEBODY BAD STOLE THE SCRIPT

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Movies Critic

"Red Garters," now showing at the Kieth's, may be one of best examples of wasted potential in cinematic history. Outfitted with a clever production and personable performers, it possesses a script so thin and aimless, that what takes off with the grace of a lark, lands with the lightness of a ton of bricks.

Fortunately, "Red Garters" employs three young ladies who, besides being highly decorative, are highly talented. Rosemary Clooney, Pat Crowley and newcomer Joanne Gilbert distinguish themselves above and beyond the call of duty.

Miss Clooney is in a class of her own. She breezes through the film with the authority of a Mary Martin and her performance is a joy.

The talents of Cass Daley and Jack Carson are wasted but they manage to get a laugh or two which is par for this course.

The production is fresh and bright and the score, while not outstanding manages, at least, to keep the customers awake. Furthermore, "Red Garters" possesses stylized sets and costumes which have the wit and bounce of a fine cartoon.

However, as a guy whom we knew once said, "the play's the thing" and there is very little play discernable here.

In an introduction to the film, "Red Garters" proclaims itself a satire on Westerns. Unfortunately, when the viewer has finished his unhappy task, he is left with the inescapable conclusion that the producers called it a satire to excuse themselves from presenting one of the corniest, shallowest most tedious films on record.

Building Two Opens in Fall

Two buildings for the use of the College of Engineering were begun in 1953. The first building to be started is the one located south of Machinery hall and west of Slocum. The only name given to this structure is building two.

Building two was begun in October. Building one as the other structure is called is located south of L. C. Smith hall.

Both buildings will eventually be four stories high, but building two will be occupied in September with only the basement and sub-basement finished.

The structures will be red brick and limestone in keeping with the other new buildings on campus.

Building two will house the mechanical engineering laboratories, libraries, the administrative offices, drafting rooms, and the offices of the Institute of Industrial Research.

Building one will house all the chemical engineering laboratories, parts of the civil, industrial, and electrical laboratories. The structure which was begun in December will occupy 58,482 square feet of space.

The cost of building one is approximately $940,000 and building two is costing $496,000. The architects for both buildings are Harry A. and F. Curtiss King.

The original plans called for only one building but the need for additional space on ground level, due to the amount of heavy equipment needed was the cause for the change of plans.

Funds from the sale of the Thompson rd. property provided the funds for the new structures. The new engineering buildings are the first major step in the development of the east quadrangle.

New Structure Dominates Irving Avenue—Gives Forth Lawyers Starting In The Fall

Lawyers Move from Downtown To New Home on Irving Avenue

By JOY YUNKER

The silhouette of Ernest I. White hall, the new home of the College of Law, is now a familiar sight to students walking west on campus.

When the law students occupy the building it will be the first time they have returned to campus since 1924. The present site of the School is 400 Montgomery st.

Ground was broken for the structure June 15, 1953 with the hope that it would be completed by June, 1954.

Except for a six-week stoppage in construction when the supply of steel from the local mills was delayed due to a flood of orders, work has proceeded faster on the law building than on the other construction work now in progress.

The $922,000 structure is the first to be built on the social science quadrangle behind Hendricks chapel. It was decided to name the building after the prominent Syracuse businessman and attorney, who provided a large portion of the funds for the structure. White is a former publisher of the Post-Standard.

The new College of Law overlooks Irving ave. to the west. This side of the building is four stories high. The east side of the structure facing campus is three stories.

Situated between Crouse college and Archbold stadium the building covers an area 135 feet long and 63 feet wide.

Three main classrooms, 14 faculty offices, administration offices and a seminar room are scheduled to be included in the building. A reading room, lounges, locker room, and a student snack bar are planned for the new facilities.

To put the final touches of completion on the new facilities of the Law college there will be club meeting rooms available to the students.

The ceramics building facing Irving ave. had to be demolished to make way for the new structure. Funds for that building were made available by Frank J. Marion, a trustee of the University.

One of the two new men's dorms will bear his name as a permanent tribute.

Piety Nine Opens Home Season Against Big Red Squad Today

By BOB LEFKO
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Rained out in its first attempt to open the home season last Wednesday, Syracuse's baseball nine will take to the field this afternoon in their rescheduled inaugural against Cornell's Big Red. Game time for the lid-lifter is 4 p.m.

Cornell has recorded a 4-1 record in early-season competition while the locals had a 1-0 ledger entering Saturday's clash at Colgate. The Ithacans racked up a 7-6 record in the 1953 season.

COACH TED Kleinhans is expected to pitch righty Mickey Kyff in the battle, seeking his second win. The veteran moundsman went the full route in the opening game 7-5 win over Hobart. He was hit freely in his first appearance but tightened up considerably in the clutches.

Righthander Joe Marotta will probably get the call for Cornell coach Royner Green to oppose Kyff on the hill. The veteran hurler was responsible for the visitors' early wins over Hobart and Clarkson, but was knocked out of the box in the Big Red's only setback, a 16-0 trouncing at the hands of Yale.

The Cornellians attack is led by lead-off man and second sacker Don Jacobs. The visitors' captain hit an impressive .426 in last season's competition. Another strong clouter for the visitors is shortstop Lee Morton. The senior clouter, captain of the basketball squad, is remembered for being the only person to hit a homer over Cornell's right field wall.

Most highly-rated newcomer for the opposition is catcher John Simek. The 6-ft.-2 sophomore hits a long ball and bats cleanup.

OTHER PROBABLE Cornell starters include outfielders Bill DeGraff, Dick Meade and Mike Hostage, Bob Young, 1B, and Clay Haviland at the hot corner.

Orange coach Ted Kleinhans has his lineup fairly well set with two exceptions. Dick Neufang and Al Totaro continue to vye for the shortstop job while Ed Roman and Ray Schapley continue their battle for the third outfield slot. Other flychasers will be Nick Coyne and Paul Slick.

The remainder of the infield will be rounded out by Dick Darr, 1B, Ed Albright, 2B and Ted Kukowski, 3B. Phil Young will open behind the plate.

This week shapes up as a busy one for the Pietymen with single games scheduled tomorrow and Wednesday and a double-header on the ledger at Penn State Saturday. Tomorrow, the Saltines will travel to Geneva to battle Sampson while Clarkson will invade Lew Carr Field Wednesday.

By the end of the week, Kleinhans will probably have a good line on how his squad shapes up. The pitching staff, probably the most questionable spot on the team, will have its opportunity to show whether it is of winning caliber.

Intramurals In Perspective

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Intramural Director

After a two-day weather delay early last week, the spring intramural season finally got under way. Baseball, tennis and golf competition edged into gear with the renewal of sunlight. Horseshoe scheduling has to be completed yet.

The softball games that were postponed Monday, (April 26), will be made up tomorrow night. The games washed out last Tuesday will be played Wednesday night. Tennis matches that were rained out last week should have been made up at the convenience of the players, preferably in the same week in which they were postponed.

A WEEK from Saturday, one of the high spots of the spring season will take place, namely, intramural track day. Last year's winners, Phi Delta Theta, are among the favorites again. The Phi Delts captured first place ribbons in four of the six events last year.

The same events are scheduled for the meet this year. The 100-yard dash, the 110 high hurdles, 440 relay, 880 relay, broad jump and high jump events will test the participants.

Talk has been circulating around the quad that this six-event program is barely adequate. I concur. Why aren't races such as the 440-yard dash, the 880-yard run or even the mile relay included in the program?

Some contend that a quarter mile would be a marathon to the intra runners. They think the poor condition of most of the par-100 yards long.

BUNK! THESE disparagers overlook the fact that the intramural ticipants wouldn't allow more than a walking finish to any race over cross-country run is highly competitive despite the fact that it is a 2.2 mile course.

One of the few shortcomings of the intra track day is that it is too short a spectacle to really appreciate. If only the quarter-mile were added to the slate, the over-all completeness of the day would be raised to a level with where it should be.

Phi Kappa Psi leads the interfraternity intramural league after the conclusion of the intra winter sports season. The intrafraternity council announced that Phi Psi, with 155 points, holds a small advantage over Phi Delta Theta and Beta Theta Pi, with 151 and 150½ points respectively, as the Greek houses enter the Spring sports campaign.

The Standings (for the first ten teams):

Phi Kappa Psi	155	Tau Delta Phi	111
Phi Delta Theta	151	Phi Epsilon Pi	107
Beta Theta Pi	150½	Zeta Psi	105
Sigma Chi	141½	Delta Upsilon	102
Theta Chi	112	Psi Upsilon	95

Phi Kappa Psi, Zebes, Victorious in Softball

Phi Kappa Psi, Zeta Beta Tau and Phi Delta Theta were the winners in Friday night's intramural softball contests, while Theta Chi and Phi Epsilon Pi battled for eight innings to a 9-9 tie.

The Phi Psi's exploded for six runs in the third frame to down Zeta Psi 8-3, as they added more points to their lead in the fight for intramural honors. Zeta Psi's only threat also came in the third when they put thre runs together.

MEL BESDIN, Syracuse's varsity basketball captain, pitched ZBT to an 8-2 victory over Phi Gamma Delta. The Zebes scored in each of their four chances, garnering one in the first, three in the second and two in both the third and fourth innings.

The best pitching effort of the evening was turned in by George Newi of Phi Delta Theta, who held Tau Epsilon Pi to a lone single and two runs in the fourth.

Dick Randall struck the big blow for the Phi Delts, cracking a three-run homer in the initial frame.

Captains Coach Golfers

By ALEX STRASSER
Daily Orange Junior Editor

In sports, as well as in other fields of endeavor, words often have more than one meaning. An example of this is seen in the various connotations given the noun captain.

To the average sports fan, captain or co-captain refers to an athlete, who having demonstrated exceptional proficiency in a particular sport through long tenure and service, is given that title as a deserved award.

WHAT ARE the functions of the captain in most sports. In collegiate football, the captain tosses a coin to determine whether the team will receive or kick-off.

For those individuals who exchanged bubble gum wrappers in their childhood, a great future lies ahead if they should make the grade as captain in major league baseball. There, the captain often exchanges the team's batting order before the commencement of the game.

All this doesn't detract, of course, from a function universally shared by captains of all races and nations: to maintain and elevate team morale. Yet, that is where the captains function ends. In most cases, that is.

This brings up to Syracuse university and the role of the captain in minor sports. Few individuals know that in sports such as fencing and golf, the captain is player, coach, teacher and father confessor, all at the same time.

CO-CAPTS. Bob Mandeville and Gerry Sullivan of the Hill golf team demonstrate the immense job a captain faces in a minor sport, especially if that sport should have no coach.

Golf got its start on campus on April 23, 1921. Under the direction of Coach Nelson O. Brown, the Hill linksmen won the New ork State title for three consecutive years.

After 1925, however, interest began to taper off in the sport and in 1942, due partially to the war and partially to student apathy, golf was discontinued as a varsity sport.

GOLF RETURNED to the Tecumseh links in 1947 but in 1952, golf was cut off from university support and the sport was literally left hanging in mid-air, with no captain, coach and student support to back it up.

This was the organization inherited by Mandeville and Sullivan this spring. True the Orange had a winning record in 1953, but things were still in a state of flux, and student support was everywhere but where needed.

Ed. St. Pierre was the only other returning letterman besides the two co-captains. A schedule had to be set up, new players taught, and a frosh squad established on the Hill.

The three-fold job of being captain, coach and player at the same time was too much for Hal McGrath of the tennis squad, as the lapse in his game showed after he assumed the coaching reigns.

SULLIVAN AND Mandeville decided, however, to give the job a whirl. The success of their efforts is not only demonstrated by the squad's first two wins, but more important, it is seen in the spirit and enthusiasm of the varsity golf squad and in the existence of a hustling frosh golf team.

While the golf squad still wants a full time coach, golf enthusiasts no longer need fear the debacle of golf on campus. Mandeville and Sullivan have shown that captains with both ability and desire, can lift a varsity sport from the doldrums to sunlight.

In the meanwhile, you can help by coming out to see your squad in action. The golf team has two more matches scheduled for Tecumseh golf course. Let's be there and give our team some support.

Hill Oarsmen to Row In Carnegie Cup Race

Scenic Cayuga lake, adjacent to the Cornell campus at Ithaca, will be the site for the next even' on the Orange crew schedule.

The Hill oarsmen mark the midway point in their five race slate when they take part in historic and exclusive Carnegie cup races Saturday. Cornell, Yale and Princeton will provide the opposition in the Syracusans' third outing of the year.

COACH GUS ERIKSEN'S varsity eight will be in the peculiar position of having a chance to win a race and yet not be officially recognized as the victory. This situation resulted when the Pietymen were invited to perform in the regatta but were declared ineligible to win the Carnegie cup, a symbol of crew supremacy among the Big Red, Eli and Tiger boats.

Following this weekend's competition, the Orange oarsmen will have a week to prepare for the big Eastern sprint championships, held on Washington's Potomac river on May 15.

The sprint races are billed as the "biggest regatta of the crew racing season." With 13 shells taking part in the varsity event on the comparatively narrow Potomac, two elimination heats are necessitated before the championship race can be run.

These eliminations, held in the morning, find the first three finishers in each of the races qualifying for the finals.

THIS YEAR, the Eastern field includes Navy, Cornell, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Boston university, Rutgers, Dartmouth, Columbia and MIT along with Syracuse.

Colgate Downs Frosh, 11-1, in Season Opener

By EV MURCH

The freshmen nine's lack of practice was very evident in their opening game last Friday when they dropped a 11-1 contest to Colgate's little Raiders.

The rainy weather of the past week really caught up with them as they displayed very ragged fielding and lack of timing at the plate.

PITCHER TOM Hallett was the victim of the poor support as misjudged flies and booted grounders kept him in continual hot water. He was finally driven to cover midway in the game, with Oz Winters and John Pannucci finishing up.

The one bright spot of the day was the play of catcher Bob Kuhne. He led the frosh at bat with a double and two singles in three trips and allowed Colgate no liberities on the basepaths.

THE BIG frames for the home team were the fifth and seventh. In the fifth they sewed up the game with three and in the seventh they added five for insurance.

Chuck Garibaldis was the offensive star for Colgate, rapping out four for four. Rosecronce slammed the big blow of the day, a 387-foot circuit clout.

University Will Use Bowl Funds For Video Set, Microfilm Viewer

Distribution of the $1,000 won by Syracuse University in the NBC radio series, "College Quiz Bowl," was made last week by a committee consisting of University vice-presidents Frank Piskor and Kenneth Bartlett, representatives of student government and th four "Quiz Bowl" panelists.

The money will be used to purchase a much-needed microfilm viewer for the main library and a television receiver for the women's building. The film viewer is priced at approximately $740 and the video setfi $240. Remaining funds will be used to cover the production expenses of the program.

FOUR SYRACUSE panelists, Janet Caro, Jane Bauer, Raymond Gunter and John Beach, took two victories in the broadcast test of knowledge defeating Washington and Lee university and the University of Colorado.

The winning school receives $500 for each victory to be distributed as the school sees fit. Each member of the winning and losing team were awarded a wrist watch on the show's final broadcast, April 1. Syracuse is defending champion of the series and will be the first school on the air when and if "College Quiz Bowl" returns to the NBC network in the fall.

According to NBC sources, the prospects for the return of the series are "very good."

The library microviewer, used to study newspapers and other documents on microfilm, is greatly needed in the main library, according to director Wharton Miller. The library currently has one viewer and the addition of another will relieve a crowded schedule of persons waiting to use it.

AN EARLIER committee, set up after the first "College Quiz Bowl" win, set aside the initial $500 for television sets in the women's building but it was later decided that only one receiver would be purchased due to the great need for the microfilm viewer.

If "College Quiz Bowl" returns in the fall, new panelists will be selected because all of the present varsity scholars are seniors and ineligible to compete in future competition.

DO STAFFERS MUST ATTEND MEETING TODAY

All members of The Daily Orange editorial staff must attend a general meeting at 4:15 p.m. today in the Hellbox. Edward Hardy, newly-elected editor-in-chief, will outline policy for the rest of the semester and other senior editors will discuss plans for the paper.

Sports staff members will hold a meeting at a later date.

WSG Announces Weekend Curfews

3 O'clock Permissions Given Ball Attendants

Marilyn Murtha, vice-president of women's student government, today announced women's permission hours for Spring weekend on May 7, 8 and 9.

Permission time for Friday night is 12:30. All students are allowed city overnights.

Coeds will be allowed to leave and enter living centers at 5 a.m. instead of 6 a.m. on Saturday morning. Women will have an automatic 2 o'clock on Saturday night without pink permissions.

All those attending the Senior ball may obtain a 3 o'clock permission by attaching the ticket stub to a pink permission slip.

There will be no city overnights on Saturday for those attending the Senior ball.

Starting Monday, May 10, WSG has granted 2 additional pink permissions to freshmen and to sophomores and 3 to juniors.

Permission hours will remain the same for all students including those on probation.

Conference Reps Get Scholarships

Twelve high school seniors and juniors have received full scholarships to Syracuse as a result of their participation in the Citizenship Education conference held on campus last weekend.

1,500 delegates from 300 secondary schools attended the conference which was sponsored by the School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. The awards were presented by Vice Chancellor Finla G. Crawford. Dean Noble delivered the main speech of the conference. He spoke on "The Tests of Citizenship."

Others receiving full scholarships are Edward Stevens, Syracuse; Edmund Copeland, Peru; Ronald Golden, Herkimer; Sandra Grant, Liberty; and William Powell, Snyder.

The scholarships were given on the basis of performance on written exams and leadership ability as demonstrated in panel participation during the conference.

Partial scholarships were awarded to: Ann Baldwin, Aurora; Herbet Bloch, Canton; Martha Boriack, Rome; Roxanne Gershuny, Kingston; Arlene Novack, Monticello; and David Wilcox, Wellsville.

Miss Reed, Meek Receive Citations

Polly Reed and George Meek were awarded the outstanding on The Daily Orange at the DO banquet Sunday night.

Miss Reed has been a junior editor since December. She has covered the Panhellenic, marching band, and assistant Women's Student Government and campus politics beats

She is a sophom... in Liberal Arts-Journalism, and has a 2.4 average.

Meek is on the upper sophomore staff, and has covered the humanities lectures. He enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts and has a average.

These awards are presented annually to the sophomore and the freshman on The Daily Orange who have contributed the most to the paper and have shown the greatest improvement.

Applications Due For Exec Council

Sophomores who are interested in applying for junior executive council should have their applications in to Robert Martindale, Kappa Sigma, 105 College pl. or Sheila Hicks, Kappa Alpha Theta, 306 Walnut pl. by May 9.

The application should include name, address, phone number, cumulative average, high school and college activities, ideas and suggestions for the class.

PSI CHI

Psi Chi, national psychology honorary, is holding its initiation banquet at 5:30 p.m. today at Howard Johnson's restaurant.

Those persons planning to attend should meet at the Comstock entrance of Shaw dormitory at 5 p.m. Anyone planning to drive to the banquet should also meet at Shaw.

Forester Wins Research Award

Nelson F. Button, conversion and distribution major at the New York State College of Forestry, recently won a $50 award at the Forest Products Research society.

Eric Anderson, chairman of the Committee on Annual Award for the Outstanding Senior for the Northeast Section announced the three winners yesterday at the meeting. Button received third place honors. His award was sponsored by Baxter D. Whitney and Son inc., Winchendon, Mass.

The recognition is based on outstanding achievement in the study of wood utilization technology. Two RPI architecture majors won first and second prizes.

Kulski Discusses Soviet Liberties

"Thirty-seven years after the Russian revolution of 1917 it is hard to find any social justice in the U.S.S.R." Professor Wladyslaw Kulski told Citizenship students yesterday in lectures in Marshall auditorium.

French revolutionary ideals of liberty, equality and fraternity have created problems in the Soviet Union which cannot be solved. Factors responsible are quick industrialization, conformity and over organization, Prof. Kulski said.

LIBERTIES HAVE been lost in Russia because quick industrialization has brought strict labor discipline. Workers are supposed to make sacrifies for the future millenium of justice, and in order to enforce this ideal severe penalties are invoked for lateness or absence.

"The peasants are chained to their collective farms by a system of domestic passports," said Prof. Kulski. The Minister of the Interior has power to send workers to collective labor camps in Siberia without the benefit of legal justice for the worker.

The set-up of the Communist party was outlined by Prof. Kulski. Out of 250 million Russians, only seven million are actual party members.

The party members themselves have little power, since all authority has been concentrated in the Supreme Soviet, composed of nine professional politicians. This council's decisions are dictated by high executives of the party.

SINCE ABSTAINING from voting signifies opposition to the party, over 99% of all registered voters vote. Of those voting, only .16% digress from the party line. This small minority occurs because citizens on long distance trains have the power to vote in the elections of the nearest community, Prof. Kulski explained.

There are wide differences in standards of living in the Soviet

(See KULSKI, page 4)

New Campus Group Open to Veterans

Organization to Stress Integration Program

Veterans of world war II and Korea will hold an organizational meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Maxwell auditorium, Russell Brigandi, president of the temporary council of the organization, has announced.

Vice president Eugene Romeo stated that membership is open to all veterans at the University. Plans are being made to have a representative of the organization visit all areas where veterans are housed.

The group hopes to emphasize the role of veterans as members of the University community, rather than as a separate type of student.

There are approximately 850 veterans on campus at present, ac- the regional office of the Veter- the regional office of the Veterans' Administration. This figure is expected to top 1000 in the fall semester.

This group marks the first attempt to organize Hill veterans since the "K-Vets" of last year. The group failed when they were unable to receive monetary aid from State and Federal governments.

Chairman to Direct 500-Girl-Chorus In Annual Step-sing

Anne Forrest, Eta Pi Upsilon chairman of the annual Spring weekend step singing contest, will direct the newly formed chorus of 500 girls which will close this year's contest with the singing of the Alma Mater.

Composed of all the sororities and small houses who had a part in the competition, the chorus will rehearse at 5 and 8:45 p.m. today in Hendrick's chapel auditorium. Each house is expected to attend at least one rehearsal. Roll will be taken.

SORORITIES ARE to supply at a minimum of 12 girls but more may participate if they desire. A minimum of six girls is required from the small houses. A girl may sing with her sorority only if her cottage's quota is filled.

An equal number of first and second sopranos and altos should come from each house so that the overall chorus will be well-balanced.

Finals in step singing will be held on the Library steps this Friday at 7 p.m. At this time, Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music honorary, will award a cup to the winning house in the large and small house divisions.

Houses competing for the cup are Butler cottage and Winchell Waitresses in the small house division. In the large house division are Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Kappa.

Students to Attend Bus Ad Picnic

Classes Cancelled For Afternoon

Students and faculty in the College of Business Administration will attend the third annual college picnic today at Green Lakes Park.

Classes in the school will be dismissed at noon. Those planning to attend should watch the notice pertaining to weather conditions, posted at the east entrance to Slocum. In case of inclement weather, the affair will be held Thursday.

Thomas Hall, over-all chairman, announced that cars will be leaving from Slocum from noon until 2 p.m. for those not having rides at present.

A picnic lunch at no extra cost will follow the student-faculty softball game, scheduled to start at 2 p.m.

Tickets are still available for 25 cents in the Slocum rotunda.

ED HARDY, newly chosen editor-in-chief of The Daily Orange, assumed his duties yesterday, as ARLENE LAMBERT retired from the post.

By ARLENE LAMBERT
Retiring Editor-in-Chief

Edward J. Hardy, liberal arts-journalism junior, was unanimously elected Editor-in-Chief of the '54-'55 Daily Orange at a meeting of the Publications Board Friday.

A junior editor since November, 1952, Hardy this year covered men's student government and campus politics. He has also written the weekly column, "In the Hallway," an interpretative series on the workings of student government and politics.

THE 20-YEAR OLD editor wrote extensively on national politics last year when his "beat" was the '52 elections. He has also covered campus civil defense, Red Cross, IFC, building and development and the Administration.

He was recipient of the Daily Orange outstanding freshman award in '52 and outstanding sophomore award last spring.

Hardy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hardy, Pelham Manor, N.Y., is majoring in American Studies and Newspaper practice. He is vice-president of the Holy Name Society of the St. Thomas More chapel, a representative in the 1952 MSG assembly and a member of the Public Information staff of the Air Force ROTC.

The new editor has also been elected to three honoraries: Orange Key, junior men's honorary; Arnold Air Society, national air force ROTC honorary and Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity.

HARDY HAS worked professionally on the Pelham Sun during the summers of '51 and '52. Last summer he served as a reporter for the Syracuse Post-Standard and as news editor of the Summer Orange.

The Editor-in-chief of the Daily Orange directs, coordinates and is responsible for the work of the more than 100 staff members, acts as the official link between the Daily Orange and both the students and Administration, formulates official DO policy, along with the other members of the senior staff, and represents the paper at official functions.

Panhel Installs President Harper

Miss Prins Chosen Vice-President

Mary A. (Kit) Harper of Zeta Tau Alpha was recently installed president of Panhellenic association on campus.

Marcie L. Prins, Kappa Delta, assumed the duties of vice-president. Geraldine E. Hanna, a Theta Pi Alpha, is secretary and Roseanne Rubel, Phi Sigma Sigma, is treasurer.

The major offices of the Panhel council go in rotation so that each house has a cycle of offices. In 1955-56 Miss Hanna will assume the duties of president and Miss Rubel those of the vice-president.

Reserved Tickets Available Today

Seniors to Receive Commission on Sales

All tickets which have been reserved for performances of the musical revue, "Up in Lights" must be picked up by 9 p.m. today.

Tickets wi lnot be held after that time due to a previous commitment made with the senior class. The senior class will receive 20% of all ticket sales made before tonight.

After that time, tickets will still be available at the box office both downtown at the Astor and in the Drama bldg. on campus.

If block seating tickets now on reservation are not picked up by the deadline tonight, the special rates will not longer be in effect for those groups.

Tickets for all performances are $2.50, $2.00 and $1.50. Aggregates of 20 or more persons however may still get a discount on tickets bought after today on a cash basis.

Symphonic Band To Give Concert

Syracuse University's symphonic band will present an outdoor concert at 3 p.m. Sunday on the quad.

The band, which is under the direction of Dr. Harwood Simmons, will be conducted by Kenneth Fredericks in the Sunday concert. Fredericks, a Syracuse graduate, is now serving as graduate assistant to Dr. Simmons in charge of bands in the music school.

In keeping with the theme of Spring Weekend the band will give a light and varied concert including show music, pop tunes and marches.

John Philip Sousa's "Hands Across the Sea" will open the program and his "Stars and Stripes Forever" will be the final number.

Also included in the spring Weekend concert will be the overture to "Guys and Dolls," selections from "Me and Juliet" and a suite of old American dances.

The concert will be the final event of the 1954 Spring Weekend dedicated to Boars Head's fiftieth anniversary.

This is a requisite for a diploma.

Misses Chamberlain, Goddard; Herz, Toenniessen Named Editors

Eileen Chamberlain
Managing Editor
By ARTHUR SIEGEL
Retiring Managing Editor

The girl with the blonde hair and the hazel eyes is the new managing editor. Her name, Eileen Chamberlain.

And I can't get mushy—not for the managing editor.

TO EILEEN goes the job of overseeing the daily operations of the paper. She will occupy the big desk in the newsroom and probably she'll find that all three of her phone extensions are ringing at once every afternoon.

I do hope she'll add the women's touch which has been missing from the job for many years, now. The managing editor's desk will no doubt be much neater than it has been in the past.

Eileen will also be the paper's troubleshooter. She will determine what news will go in the Imagination is the key.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Herz of New York city, he has served on the Daily Orange for three years in varying capacities. He has been a junior editor for 1½ years. On the news staff he has covered the administration, building program, engineering and Chapel.

Mr. Herz's work for this year on the editorial page has been varied. He has crept into print under the nom de typewriter of R. Jacques, ROG and at times, Roger J. Herz. He has philosophized on mud, apathy, bombs,

Executive Editor
By JANET CARO
Retiring Executive Editor

Elizabeth A. Goddard, a junior in political science-journalism, takes over the desk and duties of Daily Orange executive editor today.

The 19-year-old coed (she'll be 20 this Saturday) is a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y., and naturally claims to be a Dodger fan. In her new position she will have charge of staff training and assignments and will teach freshman, sophomore and junior editors' classes.

DAUGHTER OF Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Goddard, "Liz" is well known to the campus as co-chairman of the recent "Footprints" conference. She and her co-chairman conceived the idea for the all-University conference, dedicated to thought in the field of basic philosophy, and brought the idea into reality.

Before a roaring crowd of more than 15 sports staff members, Lowell Toenniessen, a junior in business administration, takes over the sports editor's post today. The 19-year-old advertising major is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Toenniessen of Wilson, New York.

One of the outstanding sports staff members in the past year, Toenniessen covered the opposition football, basketball and lacrosse beats this year. Last year, he was sports editor of The Daily Orange 50th Anniversary Edition in addition to covering wrestling and soccer.

A VIOLENT advocate of the Detroit Tigers, the unassuming junior has had numerous outside activities. Toenniessen has been a

. . . and farewell

It's always difficult to say (or write) good-bye.

But farewell it must be; the "old order" has changed and is being replaced by the new. Tomorrow will find a new editor, a new senior staff and perhaps, some new Daily Orange policies.

During the past year, the DO has tried to serve the University community in two ways: 1) as a newspaper, presenting and interpreting news and feature material and 2) as a responsible organ able to use its "power of the press" for the advancement of student welfare.

Through the cooperation of the editorial, business and sports staffs acting as a coordinated unit, the Daily Orange last semester achieved a First Class grade in the national Associated Collegiate Press ratings, one notch above that of last spring.

Financially, the '53-'54 Daily Orange is operating in the black and will be able to give to the students, by June, a total of 131 papers, 10 more than last year.

The Daily Orange has attempted to present all the news of the campus, accurately and without prejudice. We have opened our columns to both sides of controversial subjects and have been sincere in our appraisals and editorial comment.

We have remained a student-operated, independent paper—independent and free for thoughtful criticism. And that meant orchids and frowns to both student and administration alike, when it seemed that the general welfare of the students was suffering.

Specifically, the Orange Special was changed to a more convenient time, boardwalks were laid at Machinery Hall a little sooner, the Maxwell bell system was reactivated, the Colgate poster contest rules were more clearly defined, and the solution of mid-year vacation housing policy was aided by DO suggestions.

The problem of low morale of the bands was examined and the line-cutters in Slocum were daubed with editorial ink.

We are proud of these accomplishments and attempts at correction. However, we are proud only in remembering that it has been our responsibility to the students which has been fulfilled.

The position of editor-in-chief has not been a job; it has been a joy. And it was the senior staff team that made it so. It was Art Siegel, a Managing Editor who gave more of his time, energy and creativity than two Daily Orange's deserved. It was Hugh O. Muir, a man with ability and intelligence who moulded the editorial page into a most thought-provoking and highly read page. It was Bob Goldstein, a tireless worker who turned words into money and money into extra DO's. It was Jan Caro, whose contribution as executive editor should not be underestimated. It was Kenneth Lent, a witty but searching reporter and a sports editor who could direct his team with vitality.

We leave with a little sadness but not with regret. For the people who next will fill these chairs have proven their ability and talent, individually and as a team.

The next editor, Ed Hardy, into whose hands we have placed the challenge and responsibility of the DO, has so earned our respect and confidence during the past three years, that we are certain the progress of the paper, journalistically and service-wise, will be greater than ever before. To him goes my personal wish for success, echoed hundreds of times by the staff members he will now have the pleasure of working with, and the staff who now must say good-bye.

Good luck to you and your staff, Ed . . . may your contributions be outstanding and your achievements unlimited.

HEARING AIDS

3 HEADS BETTER THAN ONE

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

Harlan S. O'Kun, who owns a large piece of stock in the melody-making partnership of O'Kun-Angelos, rested his three heads on a piano top deep in the Astor orchestra pit, now and again rising to chew a jelly sandwich from Walgreen's.

On the stage rising behind him, rehearsed William M. Angelos, 50 per cent and crooning cohort of the triple headed piano player. Their little child, "Up in Lights," was to open in two days.

Mr. O'Kun rattled his heads, one for composing music, one for leading an orchestra and another for directing the chorus; his duties in "Up in Lights." Mr. Angelos, who writes the lyrics and does a good hunk of performing in the revue, extended a large foot to inaugurate a soft-shoe routine with Robert Dishy.

"Up in Lights" will be one of the last, if not the swan song of collective ventures by O'Kun and Angelos on behalf of Syracuse university. It will be the illustrious and melodious finale of a campus enterprise begun in 1951 when the two gentlemen were commisioned to write a tune for the Sims formal. "Side!-Di!" came out of this trial flight and the partnership stuck.

Since that time, words and music for every campus dance and a great majority of similar social affairs have flown from the factory. The exact number of tunes is something over 250. Not the least of this collaboration, 1953's "White Bucks and Tales."

In supplement, or perhaps compliment, to their composing abilities, Lan and Bill are given to on-stage performances. Bill, a better-than-passing singer and straight man, Lan, an excellent piano thumper and would-be comic. Versatile would be the word here.

Lan, a crack baseball player before taking music seriously, has high and wide trust in "Up in Lights." With the zeal of a clock carpenter, he has gone after the sound of "Up in Lights" and lifted it to a magical thing. "We've got a great chorus and some fine vocal arrangements, he beams, "and (if he may be permitted the personal exuberance) some good tunes."

"We may have some trouble equalling the ballad 'My Sweet' with the new one 'Within My Heart' but otherwise the situation is bright," sayeth Lan. Jumping things like "Stop, Look and Love," "It Can't Be Too Hard," "Turnabout," and "Leftover Girl" offered with ballad material as "Love Me Easy" and "She's the Girl for Me" gilt the situation.

Bill is especially moved by "Turnabout" and "Marshall Street Mope." The last is a fresh tribal dance for and about the fauna of lower campus.

With a grace unlike baseball players, Lan has sought to remedy a rather distracting orchestra sound found in "White Bucks". He will lead a group swelled by seven instruments and garnished by two pianos. "This will be IT," boubled the O'Kun maestro head.

Helen Hurdus was flushing out her vocal chords in a dressing room perch and a servile drama apprentice was maneuvering a suction machine eating up crumbs in the second balcony as the O'Kun-Angelos dialogue continued. There was remembrance of the days past and music written and sung on every possible subject from "Spaghetti with Betty" to "Hollywood" to something new on "looking sharp in your harp and halo" which that romantic baritone "Rigger" croons. It is a collection warranting pride.

It was also agreed among those who had crawled out of the folding chairs to join the assemblage, that "Up in Lights" is a fitting thirty for Harland S. and William M.

"We certainly hope everyone will want to buy the LP album of the show's top tunes," sang the authors at last.

Spoken like a proper third baseman and a well-rounded straight man.

Even a Fool is Wise

Must We Think So?

By HUGH O. MUIR
Retiring Editorial Director

We think so because other people all think so;
Or because—or because—after all, we do think so;
Or because we were told so, and think we must think so;
Or because we once thought so, and think we still think so;
Or because, having thought so, we think we will think so.
——Henry Sidgwick

After the event even a fool is wise.
——Homer

All the world is not a stage for when the curtain rings down there is no guarantee that it will ring up on the same scene again the following day.

No, all the world is a court where one must ever defend himself and put his knowledge to work based on cases in the past.

Such conclusions rudely leap into our minds as we survey barren desk and walls where we have ruled for twelve months. There is absolutely no regret for the paper shall never be in dire need of us again and it is time for us to bundle ourselves on to newer jobs and another case.

Many people confuse the graduation from one job to another, be it from college to work or a newspaper to a profession as a sort of sentimental stopping point which entails a great deal of reflection on the past and a judgment of what a great job has been done. (Retrospect rarely reveals flaws.)

True, after the event even a fool is wise.

In a month an assorted group of fools will take off from a thousand desks across this campus. Now we shall truly see who was lucky enough to get a college education and a college degree at the same time.

A college education is sometimes defined as a four-year vacation from learning what one could learn in two years in business. When it comes to business, that may be true.

But to us the most important ingredient of a college education is bringing out a person's potential on how to think for himself. We live in a world of conformists and the man who can strike out on his own mental track may reach salvation as long as it is not a single track.

A mass is made up of many individual parts, but mass and parts never exist apart at the same time. We speak of a Ford car, not of an amalgamation of assorted products such as tires, glass, batteries, engines, nuts, bolts, and rivets assembled by the men on the Ford automobile company's production line.

Naturally this could bring up a brisk little problem; if we all careen off on our little tangents, who's going to do the work? For all of the individual parts are necessary.

This situation is solved because colleges and people, like Ford cars, are not always efficient. Many of us, perhaps including yours truly, will subside into the ooze. But we can protest to none but ourselves for to each has been presented the opportunity to tally.

We contend that the foregoing is more than philosophical tomfoolery. In fact, we are trying to make this as short a sentimental stopping point as we can; the new man is here for the desk and we'd best be moving out of here.

The problem now for us all is moving into someplace else.

Interesting forecast of the United Nations Department of Social Affairs a few days ago—a prediction of a world poplation totalling four billions within 30 years. Thus 1984 may be not only out of Orwell but overpopulated, too.

At present the earth's inhabitants number 2,500,000,000. This figure increases by about 30 million per year through excess of births over deaths, according to the UN report.

The social scientists said that the planet could theoretically feed a much larger population than it now holds, providing resources were used wisely and substitutes found for those in short supply.

However, because of "ignorance, greed, strife, superstitions tech, blind tradition," production increases will probably be "much smaller than those which are technically possible," they said.

"It is, therefore, easily possible that the means of producing the necessities of life will not be increased as rapidly as population grows, and that the level of living of the world's people will be depressed as their numbers increase," the report continued.

The scientists predicted that underdeveloped nations where population is growing fast will feel the subsistence squeeze to the greatest extent. These nations cannot depend on migration to solve the problem, but must improve food production and develop industries to absorb their increased man power, they noted.

The report estimated that world population is 12 times today what it was when the years started appearing with an A.D. after them. It is five times what it was 300 years ago. Since 1850 it has risen by one and a half billions, they said, with Latin American the fastest growing region.

The report listed three ways to improve the world's ability to meet the tide of growing population, as follows:

Easing restrictions on international trade and migration; joining of nations into larger economic, if not political, units; and intensification of international cooperation, particularly in the provision of capital to countries where it is sorely needed for economic development.

A Drastic Solution

When the Daily complained editorially that only seven students had turned out to give the football team a sendoff to Oklahoma (where Iowa State lost, 47-0) a group of readers wrote a letter with these suggestions:

Fire 1. the football coach, 2. most of the assistant coaches, 3. the athletic director, 4. the basketball coach, 5. the publicity director, and 6. the radio announcer who broadcasts the games.

Then the readers added, build up a strong alumni organization to help athletes through school.

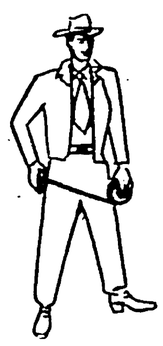
And so saying, news editor Paul Bacon of the University of Toronto's student paper resigned his job. He was protesting the burning in effigy of Sen. Joseph McCarthy by fellow students, who hung and roasted the senator one night with the full support of the paper. We haven't gone quite that far . . . yet.

Wherever You Go In Engineering you'll find LUFKIN Measuring Tapes



In every industry engineers need specialized measuring equipment — that is why Lufkin, world-wide specialist in measuring devices, makes nearly 8,000 different tapes, rules, and precision tools. In highway, railroad, oil, mining, surveying, forestry, and construction work, engineers specify Lufkin "Chrome Clad" steel measuring tapes to get the most on-the-job durability. In swamp, brush, desert, gravel pits, and wherever a tough dependable tape is an absolute must, Lufkin "Michigan" babbitt metal chain tapes are preferred. City engineers and construction engineers use the Lufkin "Wolverine." The line in the Lufkin "Western" is the same weight as chain tapes, but subdivided throughout, making it ideal for heavy field work. Lufkin "Lucas" mine tapes resist rust and corrosion. In the oil fields "Chrome Clad" tapes are standard as they withstand hard use, fumes, and corrosion — they are used for gaging, tank stropping, and measuring standing casing.

When you go out on the job specify Lufkin measuring tapes — you will find one for your every measuring need. Send today for your free catalog.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

A LITTLE SLICE OF TRAGEDY

By MICHAEL BRAUN
Editorial Page Writer

All the farewells to today's edition make one stop and think. Saying goodbye to something can leave an indelible impression on someones mind.

Our little slice of tragedy opens at the birthday party of a five year old we know. How different is one's outlook when one is enjoying a birthday party at the age of five.

Among the presents that were received on this particular natal anniversary was a large box. Eager hands opened it and reposing inside between tissue paper and lettuce leaves was what is commonly known as a praying mantis.

The beast was just completing his daily morning devotional. His arms were alligned in a position that would make any Pilgrim ecstatic.

The assemblage at the party stared in open-eyed wonderment at the creature. "What will you name him?" someone asked. Various names were brought up and finally they decided on Sam. A simple name, yes, but so full of strength and all that makes America America.

Sam continued his prayer unmindful of the crowd which constantly made pilgrimages to his home. All through the rest of the year Sam devoted all his energy to praying and munching the lettuce leaf.

One day Sam was left out in the living room. Someone had forgotten to turn the television set off. Sam went bravely on munching and praying, unmindful of the money that was being spent by NBC for his entertainment.

Suddenly the scene on the screen shifted. The announcer was saying something about committee hearings. A furtive figure appeared behind a large table.

He was saying something about a picture. Every so often a younger man would lean over and whisper something in his ear.

For about an hour Sam watched the program. His apprehension mounted. He was really becoming a scared mantis. Beads of perspiration flowed down his arms.

Then suddenly as if by some divine inspiration Sam began to pray. He was praying for the man on the screen. Never in all his years had Sam prayed so hard. All forms of nourishment were foresworn as Sam continued his marathon of prayer.

The next morning we found him. He was still in his accustomed devout pose. This time though the strain had been too much.

So much prayer had been required for the man on the screen that Sam had expired of sheer exhauston.

We buried him in his little box under a mound of earth where roses now grow. The roses incidentally are red but we like to think that this is only because they are blushing.

SCANNING CAMPUSES:

Double-cross in Brown

By POLLY REED
Editorial Page Writer

Grass doesn't grow on the Syracuse university campus. It survives. Sometimes. And it isn't green, either. It's a sort of sickly yellow-brown. It doesn't get to be this color through old age. Grass doesn't have a chance to get old at Syracuse.

Now, we aren't talking about the grass on the old oval or new quad. That is green, bordered by a clean white collar of sidewalks. But grass elsewhere is crisscrossed with a pattern of dirty brown paths.

Know why? Because 8,000 students, and a couple of professors too, save an estimated 5,342 seconds a day avoiding paved sidewalks.

They're very nice sidewalks, but they're ignored. Only in moments of extreme emergency—say when a student has ten minutes he must waste or run the risk of getting to class on time—do sidewalks get walked on.

But grass at Syracuse is optimistic. It tries hard. Every spring—about this time—the rain falls on it, and when it doesn't rain, the sun sometimes shines. Well, this sort of thing encourages grass.

There are other optimists at Syracuse. They're in the buildings and grounds department, and the maintenance staff. They try to bolster the lost cause. They try to grow grass. They spread lime in the winter. They spread fertilizer in the early spring. Then, later, they sneak out and spread grass seeds when nobody looks.

But they don't get away with it. Pretty soon the seeds begin to bud. Little tender grasslings pop up. We students spot them. We stomp on them. We trample on them. Not a blade gets away unsquashed.

What's all this leading up to? Just this: we have the nicest sidewalks east of Salt Lake City. But they would look even nicer if there were a little lawn bordering them. We've seen pictures of the stuff, and we know.

Jumping to Confusion

How absent-minded can a professor be?

A class at Oregon State college organized one day to find out. By prearrangement, they protested to a professor that he had failed to announce a test he was scheduled to give them.

Startled—and clearly confused—by the mass argument, the professor postponed his test.

Along the Sidelines

By KEN LENT, DAILY ORANGE SPORTS EDITOR

Freshman football coach Les Dye outlined plans for a Block S club to us the other day. The idea for such an organization was formulated last week at an informal meeting of coaches and players. If such an organization could ever get into full swing, it could do Syracuse athletics immeasurable good.

The idea briefly is this. There should be an organization of the lettermen on campus. The purpose of such a club would be first, to further Syracuse athletic tradition and second, to act as a common meeting ground between the players, coaches, and athletic brass.

Such an idea is not new and most compuses have such an organization. At Syracuse, there has not been sufficient interest expressed to begin one which would be strong enough to carry out its numerous possibilities.

Dye mentioned just a few of the functions which the Block S club could do. For instance, it would be possible to standardize the athletic jackets and more important, the method of awarding these jackets.

The club could sell favors or programs at football games to obtain enough money to give seniors who are three-year lettermen a blanket or similar recognition.

The organization could participate in service projects. It could work wth the Varsity club downtown on many ideas which would help Syracuse sports become more prominent.

But most important, a Block S club could act as a sounding board for player gripes. Instead of just having unfounded rumors float around campus, it would give the coaches and athletic department a chance to show the athletes their side of the story.

The possibilities for such an organization are almost unlimited. Right now, some of the groundwork is being laid by Dye and publicity director Arnie Burdick. A questionnaire has been made up and is being sent to other colleges.

The purpose is to find out more specific information about what similar organizations are dong on other campuses. A strong Block S club could be one of the athletic program"s biggest assets. All it needs is the interest of the athletes.

Paul Gallico describes the trade (or profession) of sports writing as being played "under the guns." Four years on The Daily Orange has shown us what he means by that statement.

It has meant a race against the second hand of the clock toward the reporter's daily goal—the deadline. It has meant a chance to work with some of the most understanding, hard-working and wonderful members of the Syracuse family. It has meant the privilege of meeting and talking to the great and near-greats of the Orange sports world.

If we attempted to name off all of the individuals who have helped us in the last four years, it would take a list of names which would literally take up ten columns of this size.

We have found out one thing. The Syracuse sports family in our book is the greatest in the world (although admittedly we could be prejudiced). For all of the handicaps the athletic department, including players, coaches and officials, have worked under, they show a spirit which would be difficult to squelch.

Just take a look at the track team working outdoors in a blinding snowstorm; a Syracuse coach taking a trek down to Miami for a lacrosse conference on his own time and money; an Orange official attending to the endless details which make up the smooth functioning of a football game and you can get an idea of what we mean.

To Lowell Toenniessen, we wish the best of luck and give him a top-notch, enthusiastic sports staff. To the friends we have made this year, our most humble thanks. We'll always be proud to say that we were "under the guns." THIRTY.

Saltine Baseballers Meet Sampson AFB at Geneva

By BOB LEFKO
Associated Sports Editor

Unable to play their home opener for the second time yesterday, the Syracuse diamondmen take to the road again today for a trip to Geneva to battle the Sampson Air Force Base Sabres. Game time is 2 p.m.

Yesterday's scheduled lidlifter with Cornell was called off early in the day due to wet grounds and will not be rescheduled. The game was also postponed last Wednesday. The two nines have another contest scheduled May 19 at Ithaca.

THE ORANGEMEN will be out to raise their record above the .500 mark again today, after Saturday's 11 inning, 10-9 setback by Colgate evened the ledger at 1-1.

Righty Mickey Kyff will probably get the mound call against the Flyers. The veteran flinger was charged with the defeat in the Colgate battle in a relief appearance. He also owns credit for the Orange's inaugural win against Hobart. .

Hal Horan's 11th inning single with the bases loaded and one out spelled defeat for the Syracusans against Colgate after a continuous Orange comeback had sent the clash into extra innings.

Syracuse opened the scoring with a first inning tally but the Red Raiders came back fast off starter Bill Cassidy with six markers in the initial three innings. The losers tightened the gap with two run outbursts in both the fourth and fifth innings while the Hamiltonians were registering single markers.

BEHIND 8-5 ENTERING the eighth frame, the local nine rallied for a single run and came back with three scores to take the lead in the ninth. Big blow of the uprising was outfielder Joe Orzehowski's triple. Gordon Smith, third of four Orange hurlers, couldn't hold the lead though and gave up the tying run. Kyff came on to snuff out the rally.

Winning hurler for the Raiders was lefty Sam Frankel, last of four pitchers, who pitched scoreless ball for the final two frames. Syracuse's four hurlers included Cassidy, Bill McGarvey, Smith and Kyff.

Orzehowski and catcher Phil Young led the 10-hit Syracuse attack with three hits each while Nick Coyne, Ed Albright, Ted Rutkowski and Hauch each collected one bingle.

JOE ORZEHOWSKI, who collected three hits at Colgate Saturday, will be in the starting lineup for the Orange nine today.

Golf, Tennis Teams Lose to Red Raiders

Colgate athletic teams beat Syracuse in two sports over the past weekend as both the Red Raiders golfers and netmen proved too much for the ill forces.

The doubles team of Tom Long and erb Walker kept the tennis match from being a complete rout as they posted the only Orange victory in the 6-1 loss.

John Kerr narrowly missed missed winning his singles match, but lack of practice kept most of the other boys from doing their best.

Colgate's linksmen shut out the Hill golfers 7-0 in the match at Hamilton. The Syracuse team will find the going even tougher next weekend as they compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate meet.

INTRA TRACK

Twenty-one houses have already submitted entries for the annual intramural track day competition. The meet will be held on Saturday, May 22.

Orange Crewmen Step Up Practice For Cornell Races

Disappointed with the showing of the Syracuse crews in last weekend's home regatta on Onondaga lake, Coach Gus Eriksen will put his Orange oarmen through intensive practices all this week in preparation for the Carnegie Cup races at Cornell on Saturday.

Only the scant margin of a decklength, the distance by which the Hill frosh beat Boston U for third place in the freshman race, saved the Piety boats from being completely shut out in the big four-race program last week.

Records fell by the wayside in the smoothly run slate which found Navy's championship varsity recording its 23rd consecutive win, the Middie JV boat also winning and Cornell's freshman and third varsity boats rowing to comparatively easy victories.

The Navy varsity crew broke the existing Onondaga two-mile record. The Annapolis oarsmen, stroked by the brilliant Ed Stevens, won their race in 9:57, but had a stiff battle with the potent Big Red shell all the way down the courses.

Runners to Meet Boston Terriers After Victory Over Red Raiders

Fresh from a doubly sweet win over Colgate Saturday, Bob Grieve's varsity trackmen now look forward to their first and only home meet of the season this Saturday against the Boston university aggregation.

Two aspects of the Colgate meet were especially refreshing to the Hillmen. 1. They avenged last year's 71-60 defeat at the hands of the Red Raiders by topping the hosts, 72-59. 2. Senior Bob Savoye finally broke into the blue ribbon circle after three years of near misses by copping first place honors in three events.

The top two performances of the day came in the 220-yd. dash and the 880-yd. run. Gus Franze, Colgate's diminutive sprinter, established a new Colgate mark in the 220 by breaking the tape in 21 seconds. The former record was 21.1 seconds.

Les Vielbig, stellar Orange sophomore, turned in a very excellent 1.55 minute half-mile performance. He was pushed all the way by the Raider's Les Wallack in one of the most exciting races of the day.

Another thriller was the 440-yd. dash which Jack Hubbard, Syracuse's top quarter-miler, won in 49.8 seconds. Don Perry of Colgate matched strides with Hubbard to the last 20 yards. During this stretch, Vielbig came on from 15 yards back to nip Perry by a yard for second place. All three runners finished in a span of three yards.

The results:

Mile run—1. Bradshaw (C). 2. Aymesong (S). 3. Overshout (S). Time—4:18.7.
100-yard dash—1. Franze (C). 2. E. Sutton (C). 3. Jackson (S). Time—09.9.
120-yard high hurdles—1. Savoye (S). 2. Faulkner (C). 3. Moore (S). Time—15.5.
880-yard dash—1. Vielbig (S). 2. Wallack (C). 3. Snipe (S). Time—1:55.
Discus—1. Franze (C). 2. E. Sutton (C). 3. Jackson (S). Time—21.0.
220-yard low hurdles—1. Savoye (S). 2. Faulkner (C). 3. Codding (C). Time—24.9.
2-mile run—1. Osterhout (S). 2. George (S). 3. Colet (S). Time—9:51.9.
Mile relay—1. Colgate. Time—3:21.0.
Shot put—1. Powell (C). 2. Schonkoff (C). 3. Morse (C). Dist.—44 feet, 9 5/8.
High jump—1. Savoye (S). 2. Jordan (C). 3. tie; Moore (S), and Ormsby (C). Height—6 feet.

Tangerine Nine To Battle U. of R.

Andy Mogish's frosh nine will take the field for the third time this afternoon when they face the University of Rochester yearlings at Lew Carr field.

The Tangerines will be after victory number one, as against two defeats following their 2-1 heartbreaking loss to Cornell last Saturday. Bill Williams absorbed the setback even though he pitched a fine three-hitter.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

WHY do thousands of college smokers from coast to coast prefer Luckies to all other brands?

BECAUSE Luckies taste better.

WHY do Luckies taste better?

BECAUSE Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. And that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—brings fine tobacco to its peak of flavor . . . tones up this light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better—cleaner, fresher, smoother.

SO, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Enjoy the better-tasting cigarette—Lucky Strike.

Onondaga Tribe to Face Orange Lacrossmen Here

Roy Simmons' stickmen sloshed through a practice session at Hendricks field yesterday afternoon in preparation for their next contest this Saturday at home against the Onondagan Indians. The Hill lacrossers notched their fourth win in five starts with an easy 20-7 decision over Penn State Saturday afternoon.

Attacker Stew Lindsay drove home eight goals, the high for the year for the Saltine outfit against the outmanned Nittanies. The tall New Englander turned in his best performance in Orange livery and great things are expected of the sophomore.

All-American Bruce Yancey, Don Moller and Smith accounted for eight goals among them. Moller made four goals and five assists with Yancey and Smith chipping in with two goals and two assists.

The Onondagan Indian affair is a traditional one and probably the most exciting from a spectator standpoint. Many of the Indians do without the usual body paddings and are a hustling band. Their play is reminiscent of an old time Indian attack upon a western town. Last year's contest was easily won by Syracuse but the tribe from the Onondaga valley has given Orange teams many hard times over the years.

That Final One: Hail and...

By ART SIEGEL
Retiring Managing Editor

How does one go about writing about four years in the short space of 14 inches? How do you describe the four years.

Do you remember the croquet game? Or the confused looks of the pretty girls on the frosh staff? Or the ulcers you nearly get and some do get? Or do you remember the day the paper rolled at 6:15 a.m. and you stayed up for your eight o'clock?

I GUESS I'll remember all of those from time to time.

For myself, and the rest of the senior editors, last night was graduation night. Dean Noble told it to us: "For you college IS The Daily Orange."

And you never miss the sleepless nights and the mud at the all-night diners and the photographers who made the cuts the wrong size until you graduate.

I miss them like hell today.

THEN YOU sit up straight and start copyreading your last story, you say to yourself: Gotta take out all the mush. After all, this isn't the end of my life. So you clean it up best you can. Avoid all the ... the hackneyed phrases, so that your column is just another story—but one that in its simplicity just tear your heartstrings out.

I'm not built that way. My last one is going to be mushy.

We five retire to green pastures today: to revel in our newly-found freedom. But we'll hate every minute of it.

Muir is off to Columbia; Lambert to the fate that someday awaits us all: work; Lent is off to the Air force; Caro to wedded bliss; and me to Cornell.

The important thing to remember about the DO is that it is entire within itself. It is an organic thing. We the retiring feel pretty desolate today watching the paper go on as if we had never been there. It's a pretty awful feeling.

BUT IT'S the Daily Orange. It will always be that way—the Daily Orange, not Lambert, Siegel, Muir, Caro and Lent; or Hardy, Chamberlain, Herz, Goddard and Toenniessen.

And those that leave it have something precious—something indefinable that I like to call "Daily Orangeness."

And once in awhile I still see ghosts—the ghost of George Lockwood, sitting there screaming. I wonder, did I scream like that? I guess I did.

In the days to come the DO bull sessions will probably touch on what the 1953-54 staff accomplished—or failed to accomplish.

BUT IT'S the new staff's job to do right what we did wrong and to do better what we did right.

And that will also be the task of THEIR successors.

Now it is time to observe the unwritten code that makes me sometimes think the DO is part of the Ivy league in its tradition. Away we must go, banished to pasture and stud.

But to pause for thanks first: to The Daily Orange, for the most hectic, aggravating, sleepless, tiring, frustrating wonderful days of my life.

Chamberlain...

paper—and where. She will supervise copyreading, headlines, layout for pages 1 and 4, and see that staff relations are good. And, the perennial task of recruiting photographers.

The nerve-wracking job calls for determining the best interests of the students from the University, and thus, the paper.

MISS CHAMBERLAIN hails from Schenectady, N. Y., and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Chamberlain. During the past summer she worked on the Schenectady Union-Star.

Her activities include the Catholic choir and foreign student guides. She is a member of Lambda Sigma Sigma, junior women's honorary; Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary; and Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary.

During her three years on the paper she has covered women's student government, dean of women's office, United Nations at Syracuse university, campus politics, concerts and the nursing school.

Miss Chamberlain is a dual major in history and the School of Journalism. She is a junior and is 20 years old.

She also regularly corresponds to the fella she's pinned to, who once held the M.E. spot himself.

AS EILEEN takes over the post today, I can't help thinking, she's a gal, but beneath that beautiful exterior lies the heart of a woman who knows what she wants—and how to get it. I know she'll get what she wants for the paper next year.

Eileen, if you'll permit me to break a code of journalism and become personal, I am leaving you a box of aspirin. George Lockwood left me a similar box. It's been emptied many many times.

Keep cool, and you won't need it.

Herz...

apathy, thought, apathy, Castles and apathy.

And now he is faced with an apathy problem of his own.

But tack onto that the responsibility of printing a page that will interpret as well as inform, entertain as well as incite, and one is faced with problems confounded.

An edit page should appeal to all segments of the college campus. It is no more the scholars than it is the C student's. It should cause a lifted eyebrow, a relaxed grin and a satisfied or unsatisfied feeling.

And the task falls to Mr. Herz.

He is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, journalism fraternity; Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary, and has served on men's student government for two years, the latter year as chairman of the welfare and conduct panel.

He served as a member of the executive council and director of radio-television, of Jewish Student fellowship, and has been a member of the student activities committee.

The editorial director was graduated from the Bronx high school of science and is at Syracuse on state and University scholarships. His professional training has included a three month term on the New York Herald Tribune.

With that we shall close. The responsibility of Mr. Herz's words in uprint now fall upon himself.

Luck.

Liz is a member of Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary; and a pledge to Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, and Theta Sigma Phi, women's professional journalism fraternity.

Liz was honored at the Theta Sig banquet Thursday night for the highest average among the junior women in the journalism school. Liz didn't get to the banquet, but the $100 award came as a pleasant surprise anyway.

Next fall she will act as co-chairman of "Chapel Night," the orientation program for freshmen planned by Hendricks chapel.

DURING HER three years on the DO staff, her beats have covered various aspects of the campus, including Independent Students' association, the bus ad college, Chapel and Spring Weekend.

Summers have been spent at home, commuting to the isle of Manhattan each day. Before coming to Syracuse, Liz was employed for the summer at Newsweek magazine, proofreading—an art she later found very handy on the DO.

For the past two summers she has worked at a bank in the city, "in charge of dead files. They said they needed a college student, but all you had to know was the alphabet. An ape could have done it."

This June Liz moves into the offices of the New York Herald-Tribune for three months of writing shipping news and other stories. With this job and her new DO position, Liz Goddard hits the journalistic "big time."

member of the men's student government, the marching band, the ROTC band and treasurer of Orange Key, junior men's honorary.

Sources close to Toenniessen claim that he will call his column, "Sports Notebook," Staff promotions will be announced by the new sports editor in the near future.

It will be Toenniessen's job to coordinate the efforts of the 15-man sports staff. In addition to assigning men to the many Syracuse sports, Toenniessen will have charge of promotions, and plant assignments.

Lt. Wolff of ROTC Resigns Position

Cadet lt. Richard Wolff, an M.S. IV student has resigned as editor-in-chief of the Gulden joint publications of the army and air force ROTC.

Wolff has been highly instrumental in the development of the paper from a mimeographed sheet to a professionally printed edition. He was one of the founders of the Cadet Association of Syracuse university (CCASU) and has worked in other military activities. Ivan John Fluichman, an A.S. II Liberal Arts sophomore was named to fill the vacancy.

Union, but there are comparatively few well to do people by American standards. Income taxes account for a small part of the Russian income, but "turnover" and other indirect and unfair taxes on food amount to the largest part.

Other undemocratic features of Russian society are illustrated by the state's non-recognition of the right of private property and by restrictions on personal life.

Prof. Kulski joined the political science department of the university in 1951, after having been previously associated with the University of Alabama. His newest book, "Communism in Practice: The Soviet Regime," is being published by the University Press and will appear next fall.

California Group Involves Professor in Controversy

By MICHAEL BRAUN

Dean Virgil Rogers of the School of Education has become embroiled in a controversy concerning his nomination without his knowledge, for the superintendency of the Los Angeles school system.

Rogers is one of some 95 educators whose names were submitted for the $25,000 a year post. According to a dispatch filed from Los Angeles for the New York Times he was also named on a list of 20 men issued by a "small but highly vocal bloc critical of the Los Angeles school system." The list stated that Rogers was in favor of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Commission.

"UNESCO" states the Times, "is to this group a target of hatred second only to the Kremlin." The group feels that UNESCO "stands for world government and world government implies world domination.

Florence Fowler Lyons, a spokesman for the group which issued the smaller list, said that those named were "pawns in an insidious plot to infiltrate the school system with propaganda on behalf of UNESCO."

Miss Fowler identified Rogers as being a "former vice-president of the Progressive Educators Association, and in 1952 president of the American Association of School Administrators, which endorsed UNESCO."

IN A STATEMENT issued yesterday, Dean Rogers agreed that he was a supporter of UNESCO. He also pointed out that many governmental leaders including President Eisenhower are supporters of the group.

"The United Nations and UNESCO were sanctioned by the Congress of the United States, and as loyal citizens we should support the UN and its branches," stated Rogers.

"If school people don't try to get people in the world to live peacefully and work together while at the same time remaining loyal to the United States, we may be living in armed forces forever," he said.

IN AN explanation of the charges, Dean Rogers made light of the allegations. He stated that the American Association of School Administrators was composed of 18,000 superintendents of schools, and if it was necessary to classify at at all, it "certainly was conservative and might well be termed reactionary."

He said that the other organization, the Progressive Education Association, was formed about 1919 by private schools to promote modern educational methods many of which are in operation in schools today. he association has since disbanded.

Dean Rogers stated that the president in 1939 and "in those days the word "progressive" had another connotation than now," he also said that he had no now and "would not accept the job if it was offered to me."

ROGERS DECLARED that his name was probably submitted by some university, probably Columbia, Chicago or New York, without him being informed of it. He pointed out that his name was submitted before this and that he was a personal friend of the retiring superintendent, Alexander Stoddard.

Dean Rogers came to Syracuse last year, and yesterday he declared that his prime interest is teacher training and not school administration.

The Los Angeles antagonists conducted a campaign recently which received national attention. They succeeded in moving the study of UNESCO from the social studies curriculum of the Los Angeles school.

THE SAME block was believed primarily responsible for the school board's rejection of a $335,000 teacher training grant from the Ford Foundation, which supports organizations favoring UNESCO.

The Los Angelos school system is one of the most extensive in the country having 440,000 pupils, 15,000 teachers, 492 schools and an annual budget of $140,000,000.

Gerber, Reiss Advise MSG on Future Work

MICHAEL NEWCOMB, elected speaker of MSG last week, took the gavel for the first time at last night's meeting of men legislators.

By AL BARTKEVICIUS
Daily Orange Junior Editor

New Chief of Civil Service, Jerome Gerber, told Men's Student Government assemblymen last night that they represent not only the student body, but also student government itself.

Speaking at the last scheduled MSG meeting of the year, he stated that "as the students hold you, they will hold the assembly." He also stressed the need for co-operation among the assemblymen to insure a productive year of legislation.

STEPHEN REISS, out-going Chief of Civil Service, proposed that the two main issues to be faced by the assembly would be an integration of the present foreign students' programs on campus, and the need for legislation strengthening and improving the anti-vandalism pact with Colgate.

Michael Newcomb, new speaker of the assembly, agreed with Reiss about the importance of the two issues, stating of the foreign students' program, "This is the big one."

Newcomb went on to cite other needed legislation, concerning the football reserved seating system, a revision of the class elections act, a study of National Students' Association, housing for athletes, the new field house, intramural insurance, and the campus organizations act.

Members and chairmen of the assembly panels were announced, with the Student Conduct and Welfare panel having Daniel Present as chairman; Ways and Means panel, William Murray; Organization, Rules and Elections panel, Philip Sperry; and Athletics and Public Relations panel, Jeffry Wenig.

THE MAIN difficulty in ironing out problems in the anti-vandalism pact, according to Reiss, is that "Colgate wants rivalry Colgate style, while Syracuse wants rivalry Syracuse style."

He described "Colgate-style rivalry" as being mainly scalpings and campus raids, and said that "Syracuse-style rivalry" was to have the inter-school spirit worked out more on the playing field in organized sports, rather than between individuals.

Breakfast Ticket Sales Continue

Ticket sales for "Strawberries with the Stars" will continue for the rest of this week, chairman Patricia Fay has announced.

"Although some tickets will probably be sold at the door, the supply is limited and there may not be any left by Saturday," she said.

PRICED AT 75 cents, ducats for the traditional breakfast are available in the Corner Store and the University Book Store all day. They will also be sold during lunch and dinner hours at Sims and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Slocum and Maxwell.

Breakfast will be served continuously from 8 to 9:30 a.m. on Saturday in Sims dining hall. Members of Lambda Sigma Sigma and Eta Pi Upsilon pledges will serve as hostesses at the traditional fete.

Fresh strawberries will be the main feature of the meal which has a theatrical theme to fit in with "All the World's a Stage," over-all theme of the weekend.

DECORATIONS WILL include caricatures of campus and Hollywood stars.

Peter Manicas and the pep band will supply background music for the diners and the Fiji Four will also be featured.

No breakfasts will be served after 9:30 a.m. so that those attending will be able to watch the moving-up ceremonies to be held on the library steps at 10 a.m.

Applications Due For Exec Council

Sophomores who are interested in applying for junior executive council should have their applications in to Robert Martindale, Kappa Sigma, 105 College pl. or Sheila Hicks, Kappa Alpha Theta, 306 Walnut pl. by May 9.

"Up in Lights" giant original musical revue will open at 8:15 p.m. today on the stage of the Astor theater.

One hundred first-nighters will receive roses at this evenings opening of the musical. The first hundred people attending the performance of the show will be presented with a flower, compliments of Markowitz's flower shop.

PERFORMANCES OF the $10,000 musical which has been in rehearsal for the past few months will be given tonight, and on May 6, 7, and 8th.

Curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m. except for Saturday night when the musical will begin at 7:30 p.m. to allow students to get to the Senior ball.

The revue is similar in type to last year's "White Bucks and Tales," with humorous skits and musical production numbers. Songs were written by Lanny O'Kun and Bill Angelos. Gerald Leider, drama instructor is directing the show, with Sue Taylor acting as his assistant. The entire production is under the supervision of Prof. Sawyer Falk, head of the drama department.

TICKETS FOR all performances Wednesday through Saturday night are still available at the box office downtown. Reservations are no longer being accepted, but the ducats may be obtained on a cash basis.

Seats are being sold for $2.50, $2.00 and $1.50 per person. Aggregates of 20 or more persons who intend to see the revue in a body may still take advantage of the group discount.

"Up in Lights" is being presented as the final production of Boar's head's fiftieth anniversary year. It will be a feature of "All the World's a Stage" the annual spring weekend celebration which this year has been dedicated to Boar's head. drama honorary.

LARGE PRODUCTION numbers in the show include: "Show business," "Hayride," "Stop, Look and Love Your Lady," and "Trip to the Moon," the show's finale.

Feature skits number, "Willy Loman and the Farmer's Daughter," "The Scooter Thief," "Goodbye Sam" and "The Home Life of a TV Panelist."

Special material includes "a comedian and an athlete" in heaven with Robert Dishy and Vincent Rigolosi. "It Can't Be Too Hard," with Frank Lewis and Helen Hurdis and "Turnabout" with William Angelos, Albert Gross and Samuel Boskin.

Representative of Ward-Villani film productions will view the show this week to make final arrangements for the filming of portions of "Up in Lights," which will appear in a TV series called "Varsity, U.S.A." It will be pre-

'Up In Lights' Songs Recorded in LP Album

A special long-playing recording of the outstanding musical selections from the new revue "Up in Lights" will go on sale today at the Astor theater in connection with the opening performance of the original production.

Recorded by members of the "Up in Lights" cast and an instrumental quartet, the LP will be on sale after each performance of the revue, today through Saturday, at a booth in the lobby of the Astor. Each 10" disk is priced at $3.

THE ALBUMS will also be placed on sale at various spots on campus next week.

A total of 11 tunes from "Up in Lights" are included on the LP. "Stop, Look and Love Your Lady," "Send in for Outformation," "Love Me Easy," "Turnabout," "Leftover Girl," "I Fell in Love With You Again," "It Can't Be Too Hard," and two choral numbers "Show Business" and "Hayride" are among these. The selection was made as presenting a general outline of the show's spirit.

Original cast members appearing on the recording include Lorraine Peters, Helen Hurdus, Fred Griesinger, William Angelos, Robert Hosid, John Gardner, Frank Lewis, Alfred Gross and Greta Wolf.

THE RECORDING was engineered by Phillip Clark.

Sale of the "Up in Lights" LP is directed by Harlan (Lanny) O'kun and William Angelos, composer and lyricist of the revue's music. Seniors on campus, O'Kun and Angelos have written over 250 tunes as a team including the numbers in last year's musical revue, "White Bucks and Tales." A similar recording was prepared from "White Bucks" and met with a highly successful sale on campus.

"Up in Lights," directed by Gerald Leider and supervised by Prof. Sawyer Falik, is presented as the final production of the golden anniversary celebration of Boar's Head dramatic society. The class of 1954 is sponsoring it. The two hour revue includes original skits, dance, musical and production numbers by a student cast of 60.

J-School Picnic Set for Monday

The spring picnic of the School of Journalism has been set for 12:30 p.m. Monday at the Ski Lodge, Phyllis Deming and Howard Van Kirk, co-chairmen of the affair, announced.

All Monday classes in the School of Journalism have been cancelled Wesley C. Clark, Dean of the school announced. Dean Clark added that he has asked the cooperation of the other schools in the University in excusing the absences of journalism students Monday afternoon.

HIGHLIGHTS OF the picnic include a skit in which the faculty will mimic their students and also a skit in which the students will demonstrate the actions of the faculty.

Charles C. Noble, Dean of Hendricks Chapel, will be on hand to keep the peace in a spelling bee between the faculty and students of the School of Journalism. As at all picnics softball will be in the air for those in search of excitement.

Tickets for the event may be purchased in the office of the Journalism Center for $.50 a person. The charge will cover the expenses of the food.

All students in the school and those taking courses in the school but not officially enrolled are invited. Buses leave in front of Sims on the hour and every 20 minutes for the Ski Top and the Ski Lodge.

Medical Appointment

Alfred Boeck, Public Relations Officer at the State University of New York College of Medicine, has been appointed an educational consultant to the US Air Force to help establish the training program for the Syracuse Air Reserve Center.

Radio Expert Will Speak At Dinner Dance Friday

DR. WALTER R. G. BAKER will be main speaker at a dinner dance Friday for members of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional commerce fraternity. A leader in the television field, he is now at Electronics Park in Syracuse.

Dr. W. R. G. Baker, of the General Electric Co., will speak at Alpha Kappa Psi's dinner dance planned for 7 p.m. this Friday.

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional commerce fraternity, selected Dr. Baker because of his long and varied experience in the field of electronic communications.

DR. BAKER joined General Electric's laboratory at Schenectady soon after his graduation from Union College in 1917. He worked for several years testing and developing radio apparatus for aircraft, submarines, captive balloons, torpedo boats, destroyers, and battleships.

In 1926 he was put in charge of designing all radio products. and he was instrumental in forming several test stations. He was in charge of communicating with the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

Dr. Baker worked with the RCA Victor corporation from 1929 to 1936, when he returned to GE. He later became manager of the radio and television department, and then vice-president.

University Housing Available For Guests of June Graduates

Housing accommodations for the guests of graduates can be obtained for Commencement Weekend through the Dean of Men's office, beginning next Monday, May 10.

Rooms in University living centers will be available to all seniors registering for these rooms at a charge of $1.50 per guest each night. The living centers will be available for assignment for the evenings of June 5 and 6, according to Harold S. Johnson and Mario J. Cataffo of the Commencement Housing committee.

SENIORS MAY sign up for these accommodations Monday in the Appointment Office in the Administration Building from 3-5 p.m. until Friday, May 14.

Students may cancel their request for rooms at any time prior to June 5. However, the final deadline for registration is May 14. The housing committee therefore suggests that the students register for their guests even though they are not certain that the visitors will definitely claim the rooms.

Students will make no deposit for their rooms. The full sum will be payable when they pick up their assignment during a two-day period which will be set aside during the week before commencement.

SENIORS LIVING in university living centers may request accommodations within their own houses for their guests, wherever these are available.

Students who rent the rooms are requested to check each room before their guests arrive to see that the rooms are in proper order. The $1.50 charge per guest does not cover cleaning of the rooms. Cleaning supplies are available in each living center upon request from the Resident Advisor.

Rooms are available for use from 12 noon of the date assigned until 2 p.m. the following day. They may not be occupied without first checking with the resident advisor and turning over to him a guest slip.

ALL HOUSING details for the weekend are under the direction of the Commencement Housing Committee.

In addition, questions may also be asked of all resident advisors and proctors.

Four Cadre Chosen For ROTC Honorary

Four officers from the Air Force ROTC training staff at Syracuse University became honorary members of Arnold Air Society in ceremonies in Machinery hall last night.

The cadre honored were Maj. Robert E. Wood, Capt. Herman Bladergroen, Lt. Robert B. Monier and Lt. Gen C. Tomb.

Cadet Norman F. Shofstall, a junior, was elected commanding officer of the Col. Robert Halloran squadron of Arnold Air Society. Also chosen last week were William Petro, executive officer; William Stevens, adjutant recorder; James Flannigan treasurer; Stanford Hovey, operations officer; Charles Ward, publications; and Edward Hardy, public information officer.

Lunch Reservations Due

All reservations for the annual spring luncheon of the Syracuse Women's club must be purchased by May 8. The luncheon is scheduled for Friday May 14 at 1 p.m. Information concerning tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Charles Antoni. Mrs. Warner Hammond is the general chairman

WAER Plays Hits Of Senior Musical

Featured in this series is the "Fred Griesinger Show" which will present a live preview of the musical at 6:45 p.m. today. Guests on the show included Lorraine Peters, Greta Wolf, William Angelos, Alfred Gross, Samuel Baskin, Robert Hosid and Robert Dishy.

GERALD LEIDER, director, and Gilbert Katz, stage manager, will be interviewed as part of the special offering.

The musical numbers include "Who Are You," sung by Griesinger; "Love Me Easy," Miss Peters; "I Fell in Love With You Again," Miss Wolf and Griesinger, "Turnabout," Angelos, Gross and Baskin; and "Trip to the Moon," Griesinger, Hosid and Dishy.

Barbara Berger, piano; Michael Flangan, bass and guitar; and Lynn Bardo, drums complete the musical instrumental group.

RICHARD BALLENTINE is host of the Griesinger show which is produced by Edward Basbch and written by Kenneth Luchs.

"Up in Lights" will also be featured each evening this week on "Evening Showcase," heard at 6:25 p.m. over WAER. Kenneth Sparks is host.

News notes on the musical will be presented over the regular daily news broadcast of WAER.

Youths Try Assault On Hill Employe

City police this morning were holding two Syracuse teen-agers in connection with the attempted robbery and assault of Henry Demers, night food manager at Slocum Hall's Coke and Caper club last night. Demers was threatened by the pair near the University branch post office on Marshall St. shortly before 11 p.m., police said. They apprehended the youths a half hour later at Beech St. and Erie Blvd. E.

Today: Another Beginning

Walking across the campus yesterday we heard the Crouse chimes ring out with the familiar Alma Mater. Something down deep within us suddenly brought the realization that now we were a part of it all. We were no longer a specific individual, but from this day hence The Daily Orange. Waiting for us was a desk, chair and typewriter of our own -- but most of all, a responsibility to meet.

Students, faculty and administration place their unbounded trust in our position. We must prove that we merit this trust. It will be our purpose to serve their interests.

Our actions will be in all sincerity; we will believe fully in what we do and will be ready to answer for it. Naturally there may be disagreement to what we say. This is only right, for in this great land of ours every citizen is able to complain if he doesn't like what the press has to say.

We will criticize where we think it is necessary. We will offer suggestions. We will be ready to praise. And we will inform.

To us the canons of journalism are sacred. We realize our duties of independence, impartiality, accuracy and truthfulness. We can only accept the challenge that has been handed us and go on to meet new horizons.

The Daily Orange senior staff is like a basketball team. The captain is helpless unless he has four other good men to aid him in scoring and to help him to produce a winning season.

On this paper the editor has to have efficient, hard-working, responsible and good aides. This year we hope we are that team.

With the editor, it is a group that knows its duty and responsibility and will use them wisely.

But we hardly feel right in accepting our new places without paying respect to the persons who occupied them before us. Where there was a job well done, we believe in offering praise. We'd like to give it to Arlene Lambert, Art Siegel, Hugh Muir, Janet Caro and Ken Lent.

Today each is just like any other person on campus. Their accomplishments, however, are now part of the shining past of this newspaper and of this University. They have set a mark at which we must shoot.

Today's issue marks for us, as well as for the retiring staff, an end and a beginning. For us it is the ultimate reward for three years of hard work on the Daily Orange and the beginning of a fourth of even harder effort. For the five outgoing editors, it is the end of a job well done. In a month they will be facing the world. We know that what they have learned and what they have done for the Daily Orange will help them in the years ahead. To them, we can say only, thanks for everything and good luck.

I Hold These Truths...

(Editor's note: The Syracuse Daily Orange today begins a daily presentation of the philosophy of life of University faculty, administration and students, in their own words.)

By DR. ROBERT D. MURPHY
Chairman, Newspaper Practice Department, School of Journalism

"Moderation is the silken string running through the pearl chain of all virtues."

Thus long ago wrote Joseph Hall, Bishop of Norwich.

So many of our social and personal sore spots stem from excess that Bishop Hall's words are as alive today as they were in the 17th century.

We are all familiar with the corruption in public life by a few individuals whose desires for power or profit pass the bounds of moderation. We all know how a family of nations can be set on edge by a few leaders who are intemperate in their hunger for power. We know, too, that intemperance can wreck the lives of the most brilliant, or the most industrious.

But most of us look upon moderation as a device which can lead us to the kind of life we want. The difference between success and mediocrity is slight. For example:

As a trumpet player in my high school band I managed to come in only a fraction before or after I was supposed to, and my notes would be only a fraction off pitch. However, the band leader, whom I considered intemperate in his demands for perfection, referred to my activities as "muddying around." He would delight in asking a better trumpeteer to play a passage, then have me play it. After such a demonstration he would look at the other members of the band and remark, "Now you see what I mean by muddying around." Eventually this treatment discouraged my musical ambitions, to the quiet joy of my family.

At the time I felt that the difference between my playing and that of my betters was infinitesimal. However, that minute difference marked success or failure.

The difference is equally minute between a successful and a stagnant personality. Moderation helps us walk the narrow line between good habits and destructive ones. Moderation helps us to enjoy a good meal, but keeps us from becoming gluttons. Moderation insists that we devote thought to the problems of the world, but keeps us from worrying about colossal problems to the extent that we are not fit to keep order in our own cranny.

What is the difference between self-confidence and pomposity? There is no answer except that which each one gives to himself, and the boundary line is marked by moderation. What is the difference between humility and self-debasement?

Each of us finds his own answer. Abraham Lincoln was a humble man, but he was sufficiently moderate in his humility to discipline the prima donnas in his cabinet.

The habit of moderation is a prime help in the everyday business of making the right decisions in the small things which will eventually determine the course of our lives.

This is not a plea, though, for middle-of-the-road, fence-straddling, mugwump living. Moderation does not preclude bold courses of action. It does give us a "silken string" with which to bind together our other virtues. And "virtues" is just an old fashioned word for the characteristics that help toward a useful, happy integrated life.

Show Ready, Almost, With Dress Rehearsal

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

The double-thick, jet-black stage door of the Astor theater swung shut upon the blackness inside. A midnight cleaning woman dropped her pail with a jangle four stories up over Salina street. Three individuals, their ears still ringing with music, struck out toward campus.

The individuals were Jerry Leider, Gil Cates and Al Gross. They were leaving the Astor theater following a long, long, dress rehearsal for "Up in Lights." It was earlier in the Wednesday a.m. and their show was to open later this day at 8:15 p.m. It was ready. Well, almost.

It was ready after over four months of rehearsal and many more weeks and days of preparation and thinking and dreaming prior to that. The magic firecracker was ready to be ignited. The time switch had been set. Home in their beds, 60 people who had given life and liberty to the musical for its rehearsal period, were dreaming of sugar plumbs dipped in applause and glowing with the allure of praise.

They knew it was good. They only wondered if the audience would think so. They were ready. Well, almost.

This "Up in Lights" existence had begun as far in history as April 23, 1953 when a first-night audience applauded "White Bucks and Tales" into success. Jerry Leider made up his mind then to "do it again."

The powder was set into grisling motion earlier in October when the drama department conducted a contest to bring in the best script for a musical revue. A prize, a casting session, a meeting, and rehearsals began their progression toward Oct. 1.

Inside the Astor, late last evening, the inners smirked of readiness. Scenery was rolled high above the massive stage to be sprung at the appropriate cue. Music stands grew like golden sticks of corn in the orchestra pit. A table of props lay ready for motion. The orchestra and balconies began warming prior to being sat in.

Stillness hovered where, in just a few hours, sounds would explode and bounce and kindle and music would be sung. Lines read and spoken. Feet swung and pianos thumped.

The three men of the theater and of "Up in Lights" thought of all these things past and present as they wandered slowly toward campus. They visioned the Astor marquee glowing with the show business spelling tonight and the crowds flowing in. And then out again. They visioned a smile on the faces of these people during out. The smiles were there, bright and clear.

Well, almost.

Frosh Aspirant Puts Hours Into 'Up in Lights'

By DIANA DAHLMAN

"What am I going to do, it won't come off."

We rushed to the bathroom the other day to discover the cause of the above lamentation. There stood Jane in a sloppy army shirt, a smudged face, bedraggled hair, a can of black paint in one hand and a can of cleanser in the other, staring dejectedly at the sink.

The basin of the sink was blackened beyond recognition and the paint was dripping over the sides onto the floor. We asked how this had happened.

"I had to paint a tray for the show, and I forgot I was using enamel," she answered. "I'll never be able to clean this up."

Fifteen minutes of elbow grease later (with the assistance of some turpentine) we had dispelled Jane's worry and the sink shone like sunshine. We could not say the same for ourselves.

This is just one of the many confusing moments in the life of a Boar's Head apprentice. Jane Handleman, a freshman in speech and drama, is a typical example of the many young dramatic aspirants here on the Hill. They're at the bottom of "Up in Lights" and the other big productions. They work quietly on the sidelines, getting a chance to be in the chorus or to say a line or two, waiting for the day when they will be "Up in Lights."

This year she held a speaking part in "Lysistrata," is in the chorus of "Up in Lights" and has worked on costumes and technical details in the show. She played the lead in a one act play, "The Rope" by Eugene O'Neill, which was given exclusively for drama students. One of her biggest jobs came at the last minute when she was called upon to become head property mistress for "Gigi."

Over 20 hours of her week go to rehearsals and performances. This gives her little time for other activities. Yet, she has directed the pledge tea entertainment at her sorority, Iota Alpha Pi, and holds the office of vice-president in Schultze cottage.

"Most of us find time to study only between entrances backstage at the show. I've practiced by lines for "Lysistrata" in Schultze's smoker in old jeans and I memorized famous cases from the Supreme court in ancient Greek costume on an orange crate between scenes," she told us.

"And our weekends and big dates," she continued, "come only after the show is finished for the night."

Her main ambition is to be accepted to Boar's Head, the drama honorary. For all work connected with the dramatic productions, apprentices receive points. They are accepted when they have acquired enough points, but none of them know how many are needed for admission.

In her three years in summer theater, she has done everything from acting to pressing Vincent Price's pants. She hopes to do some bit parts on television this summer.

"One of the nicest things happened to me this year on the opening night of 'Lysistrata.' Although I had only a small part, Schultze sent me flowers and a telegram and really made me feel as if I had the lead," she said.

It's Jane and many, many more like her that you'll see in the chorus of "Up in Lights." All year their world's a stage. It is useless to count the hours they spend working, practicing and improving so that someday, they too, may "swing on a star."

Aerial Dangers In Local Cottage

At moments convenient to the maintenance men of the University, there are males in the girls' dorms. Though this may shock some females it is nothing compared to what almost happened to one of the hard working men.

He was balanced precariously over a second floor railing changing a light bulb one 8:30 a.m. when a coed flounced out of her room and suddenly came upon him. There was a piercing scream and the maintenence fellow pretty near took a one and a half gainer down the stairway well.

Patience, please . . . men at work.

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

Variety Sets Critique; Hill Loses A Friend

By MILT SHEFTER

Tonight the curtain will rise on several month's accumulative effort of over a hundred people. Variety magazine has already served notice via an article last week, that they'll be on hand to judge. Mounting hopes of national publicity are coralled by memories of last year's Life spread which never made it. From first-nighters to Saturday nighters, one question will be asked—How does it compare to last year's? Only you can answer that!

• • •

We won't spoil the surprises in store but be on the look-out for a new dance which will revolutionize Marshall St., satirizations on current topics including our boy Joe, and above all, keep your eyes peeled for a big "surprise before your eyes" in the Hayride number and here's a "break a leg" to a swell bunch that's worked awfully hard.

• • •

The Hill lost an old friend last week. He was here for over 25 years. His store stocked everything from Bop to Bach and students spent many hours of enjoyment at his invitation listening to them. Somehow, the store won't be the same without his contagious smile. But the music still plays on and students still stop in, even if just to listen. We think that's the was Howard Olmsted would have wanted it.

• • •

The parent Traditions commission has named the new group of two-headed ones. The picking was rough and the heartbreaks rougher. Reminds us of one of the songs from last year's Big Chum-Little Chum Show: " . . . then as Goons we'll turn you loose, on a brand new crop of freshmen here at Syracuse." Call it coincidence but the showmen responsible for that tune open with more words and music tonight.

• • •

This may not be the full story but it's the way we heard it. It concerns an Army ROTC cadet who was climbing the steep hill used as a short cut to get to the supply room before drill. He slipped in the mud and another person offered his help. The cadet blinked at the other person and smartly saluted Cadet Col. Pete Seevers, head of the Army Cadet Corps. Then he went on his way mumbling something about "only in a democracy."

• • •

One of the strangest sights these spring days is a football game in Walnut park. One of the Hill frats coaches as the two girls' teams in what is referred to as the "Powder Puff" game. Any relation between a powder puff and the tags made in that game is purely coincidental. What's this feminine poise coming to?

• • •

And now if you'll excuse us, we must polish the old focals we waited too long to get seats for "Up in Lights" and now we'll have to stretch our sights.

Awful Literal Lobby Vs. Cream Pie Misuse

By LEE KIKLIER
Executive Sports Editor

I have a lobby in Congress. In fact, I have several lobbies in Congress; all dedicated toward one aim: correcting the English language. Actually, I'm not as rabidly concerned with correcting the English language, as I am the use of it.

My biggest gripe is confusion. All too often people use the word "literally" for the word "figuratively." For example, Dr. McKee (the head of the psych department) was lecturing about Fred on a date with Mary. Mary mistakenly doused herself with perfume and in Fred's enclosed car, the smell became unbearable. In the words of Dr. McKee: "He was literally asphyxiated. So he turned to Mary and said, 'Mary, what have you got on?' (or words to that effect)." If Fred was literally asphyxiated, he wouldn't be able to say much. Literally means: as written, word for word. (I got a "C" from Dr. McKee.)

It was Ken Lent, retired Daily Orange sports editor, who said that Philadelphia was "literally across the street" from Baltimore. Of course, Ken walks across the DeTeaware River every day for his morning constitutional.

I have others. I am campaigning to have the name "Boston Cream Pie" changed to "Boston Cream Cake" which I think the foul stuff more closely resembles.

Did you know that the word: perogative (pronounced per-roga-tive) isn't perogative at all? It's prerogative (pronounced pre-roga-tive).

Also, tell me the difference between flamable and inflamable? If you do, you're lying in your teeth, there isn't any difference.

I used to know a girl who insisted that some things (not me) were "awful nice." Literally (and I think I mean literally, but you can look it up) this would mean that it would be so correct as to fill you with awe. (If the test papers I handed to Dr. McKee were awful nice, I might have gotten more than a "C".)

And so we close today's correction lesson, you ignorant slobs.

Along the Sidelines

By THE DAILY ORANGE SPORTS STAFF

One of the unwritten axioms that exists around a sports page make-up desk is: "A pre gets play over a post." Or in laymen's terms, play up the game that is coming rather than the one that has already been played, all other things being equal. This is undoubtedly pilfered from many other pithy sayings: Always look forward, never backward, you can never change what's been done, etc.

We of the sports staff, at the risk of becoming sloshy, would like to stop this once and look backward.

So, Ken Lent, we are using your masthead for the last time. Remember all the times we used it previously: The number of times your picture was lost . . . The Colgate edition which wasn't put to bed until 4 a.m. (and Dean Noble said we were sane) . . . The April Fool edition when your "warped" mind ran amuck and you allowed every trick you ever wanted to see . . . The late evening snacks down at the Simodill . . . The spring columns you dreaded writing because of lack of material . . . The last column which Joe, the linotype operator, slugged with a "Thank God."

These are memories, one of the most important intangbile assets "derived out of being alive 'til you're a hundred and five" on the staff of the DO.

Now that you are graduating, Ken, we envy you, your memories. But we are looking forward to forming some of our own. The trouble is, you never know you have memories in this annoying newspaper racket until after you're finished scurrying around to meet a thousand deadlines for a thousand items.

And you, Ken, after the IRA regatta, face a future of General Electric and Schenectady or General Twining and the Air Force.

There are others we say goodby to, also.

We say goodby to Associate Editor Ed Meyer, his Muck, his Marshall st. athletes, his countless Mel Besdin columns, his women troubles, his friendly grin.

To Bob Grogan, who has absolutely no enemies in the world, we say goodby. It borders, we believe, on being an impossibility to dislike Bob.

Bob is now semi-engaged (we think) to a cute little item, Nurse Judy Abbott. If he gets that job in town, we extend Bob a standing invitation to drop down to Hellbox Add 1111111 and kick around the merits of more New England athletes.

We send a belated adieu to Albanian (one who comes from Albany) Al Gefen, or Allie Gefen as his last byline read. We hope his Senior Ball comes off OK this weekend.

We extend goodbys also to the retiring senior editors—Arlene Art, Hugh and Jan.

To all those departing, we express thanks, a fond farewell, and the hope that no matter how much success you enjoyed on the Syracuse campus you may have even more in future endeavor.

Sincerely,
The Daily Orange Sports Staff

Downing, Sutton Receive Awards

Bob Downing and Jim Sutton have been cited for special achievement during the past swimming season Coach Ted Webster announced yesterday.

Downing, senior backstroker from Hollis, was named the year's ton received the nomination for outstanding performer while Sutmost valuable improvement.

Chiefs Open 3-Day Stand Tonight

The Syracuse Chiefs return to MacArthur Stadium this evening to open a three-game stand against the Havana Cuban Sugar Kings. Single games are scheduled tonight, tomorrow and Friday, each starting at 8 p.m.

After the current series Skeeter Newsome's Tribe will be on the road for 11 days, visiting Richmond and Havana.

Piety Nine Meets Tech Team Today

By BOB LEFKO
Associate Sports Editor

Syracuse's baseball nine makes its third attempt to open the home season today as host to Clarkson Tech at Lew Carr Field. Prospects are doubtful though, due to the poor condition of the field after Monday's rain. Scheduled starting time is 3:30 p.m.

Yesterday's encounter with the Sampson Sabres at Geneva was postponed, because of wet grounds as were the Piety's two arranged home inaugurals against Cornell Wednesday and Monday. Yesterday's battle has been reset for tomorrow.

MICKEY KYFF is scheduled to open on the mound for the Saltines for the third straight day, weather permitting. Coach Hank Hodge of Clarkson is expected to counter with righty Dick Stys, who has just recovered from an early-season spike injury.

Stys had the stitches removed from his injury Saturday and made a one inning appearance against LeMoyne. He is considered the top flinger for the Golden Knights.

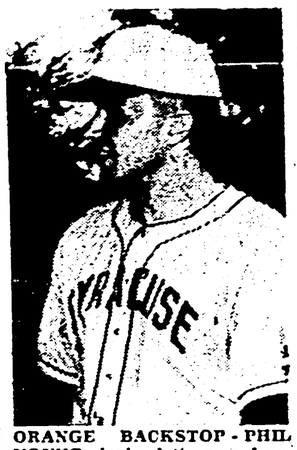
Kyff enters the fray with a 1-1 record, having gone all the way to win the opener against Hobart, while losing to Colgate in a relief role.

CLARKSON'S EARLY season record includes two wins, two losses and a deadlock with Rochester. Victims include Rochester and LeMoyne while Cornell and Colgate scored decisions over the upstaters.

With the continual schedule changes, the Orange can look forward to a busy time the rest of the week. In addition to the Clarkson and Sampson encounters, a doubleheader is on the ledger at Penn State Saturday.

Coach Ted Klienhans is expected to keep the same lineup he used in Saturday's 10-9 defeat at Colgate. Newcomers Joe Orzehowski and John Hauch will probably open in the outfield after impressive performances. Orzehowski led the Piety attack with a single, double and triple in five tries.

Yesterday's frosh battle with Rochester was also postponed and will be played Thursday at Lew Carr Field.



ORANGE BACKSTOP - PHIL YOUNG, junior letterman from Mayville, will start behind the plate against Clarkson Tech today.

Frosh Lacrossers Play Hobart Ten

Syracuse's frosh lacrosse team opens their season today with a game against Hobart College. The game is scheduled to start at 3 p.m. down on Hendricks field.

Coach John Echeandia's boys have only played one practice game, thus far this year. The record for the Hobart College frosh stickmen is unknown.

Sam Brown, AEPi, Hurls Perfect Game In Intra Softball

Sam Brown of Alpha Epsilon Pi pitched a perfect game in last night's intramural play in an 11-0 victory. In other games, Alpha Tau Omega shut-out Pi Kappa Alpha, 9-0, Alpha Chi out-hit Phi Kappa Tau, 12-3 while Pi Alpha Chi zeroed Alpha Sigma Phi, 3-0.

Brown's efforts, in which no one touched first base except the first-baseman, racked up eight strikeouts. AEPi backed him up with 4 runs in the third, 6 in the fourth and tacked on one in the last. Second baseman El Sallerson blasted a home run and a single to lead the attack.

ATO's winning eight runs came on 10 hits to support winning pitcher Haden Patten's scoreless flipping.

Pi Alpha Chi's Lew Petricola handed Alpha Sigma Phi three hits and 10 strikeouts. Pi Alpha Chi got their three runs in the first and that ended the scoring.

In a monster 7-run four inning, A Chi Rho put the game beyond the reach of Phi Kappa Tau. Don Flynn, centerfielder for A Chi Rho, blasted a home run to help Tom Kennedy last through a rocky last inning.

Netmen Travel Into Cornell-land; Face More Experienced Big Red

By ALEX STRASSER
Associate Sports Editor

To have the weather against you is bad enough. To have both the weather and Cornell's top-flight tennis squad against you makes everything that more difficult and this is the situation the Orange racquetmen face tomorrow afternoon when they meet Cornell at Ithaca.

A few weeks back, Cornell took a swing through the South, compiling a long list of victories on the way. What worries the Orange, however, is that the Big Red are already in mid-season shape, while the Hill squad has been able to put in only a few practice sessions due to the inclement weather of recent weeks.

THREE MEN that Syracuse will have to especially watch are Gil Rothrock, Leid Barker and Joe Barack of Cornell. If they were to combine all the trophies they won in high school, amateur and intercollegiate competition, there would be few trophies left out of the group.

The Orange will go along with John Kerr, Pete Bratt, Win Lott and Boone Soone as their first four starters. The remaining two single slots will be filled by two of the following: Goff Lebhar, Pete Lathan, Dick Lorenz, Tom Long and Herb Walker.

Vocalist to Sing at Ball

Vocalist Dolly Houston will appear with Woody Herman's orchestra at "Act IV", the 1954 Senior ball, Saturday night finale of Spring Weekend.

Also featured with the band will be pianist Nat Pierce, Herman himself is starred as a vocalist as well as on the clarinet and alto sax.

"THE DISSIPATED Eight," octet from Middlebury college, will provide the evening's entertainment. This group has been touring eastern colleges and universities to sing at formals and weekend entertainments.

Tickets for the ball, priced at $4 per couple, are on sale this week at the University Book Store and the Women's Building desk as well as in other campus buildings.

Formal dress is optional for men attending the dance. All women will receive complimentary vials of Faberge's Act IV perfume.

DECORATIONS WILL be in pink and black, the colors now being featured on campus posters. Refreshments will be served in the alumni lounge and photographer John Johnsrud will take pictures of couples attending the dance.

Herman's orchestra is currently on a European tour, giving jazz concerts and playing for dances. This will be the group's first appearance in this country after its return.

Recent recordings by the group have been named among the top band records of the year and the band was voted the top orchestra in the country by readers of Metronome Magazine.

Over-all chairmen of the dance sponsored by the senior class are Winifred Dawe and James Carr.

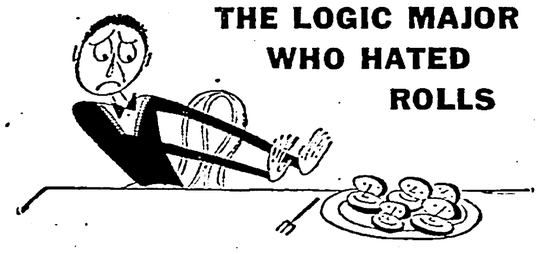
THE LOGIC MAJOR WHO HATED ROLLS



Recently a young mid-westerner enrolled at a university as a Logic major. His father had told him, with some understatement, that he was illogical. He refused to squire a pretty girl to a dance because her name was June Betz and he was against gambling.

He wouldn't eat avocados because they were also called "alligator pears" and he didn't like alligators.

In addition, he was a slob.

Some of the men in his dorm tried to talk to him.

"Look at that shirt," they said. "The material's cheesy. Why don't you hop down and get a Van Heusen Oxfordian... it's soft, fine oxford cloth."

"I'm not attending Oxford. I'm attending Old Siwash," answered our boy.

"But, look, Buster. This oxford cloth is woven tighter so it'll last longer. It's a smart investment. And it only costs $4.50."

"So who needs it? I might get hit by a truck. Then what good would it be?" quoth Buster.

"What about your collar? Flat as a pancake! Don't you want a good-looking button-down with that famous Van Heusen relaxed-roll?" one asked.

"I got nothing against pancakes. I hate rolls."

Note: Our man flunked Logic post haste, and was drafted. The Army has him classified under "Secret Weapons."

President's Election Bill Defeated Again in WSG

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Managing Editor

A motion which was the object of a freak defeat by the women's student government assembly last week was reproposed, reconsidered and redefeated last night at the assembly meeting.

Speaker Patricia Fay made a final report to the assembly and turned the meeting over to a newly elected speaker Barbara Anderson after other business was concluded. Head residents of all living centers were special guests of the meeting.

THE PROPOSED amendment to the assembly procedural code was a provision which would require that house presidents be elected only once a year. At present most living centers hold elections each semester.

Last week the proposal met defeat when it failed to receive a three-fourths majority vote. When coed legislators ballotted 40-27 in favor at the meeting it was announced that the motion had been carried. An hour later Assembly Secretary Carole Leland discovered that 61 votes were needed for the passage of the amendment.

Miss Fay explained last night that failure of WSG officials to note the discrepancy was an oversight. "It has made us all realize we need to be a little more on our toes," she said.

ASSEMBLY PARLIAMENTARIAN Barbara Murray, who was later named next year's clerk by Miss Anderson, moved that the group reconsider the question. This motion was supported by a 42-20 vote. However, when voting was called for again on the proposal, it was again defeated, this time by a ballot of 45-33.

Assemblywoman Carmela Curreri presented a bill which would create a joint steering committee of MSG and WSG assemblies. This was also defeated by the women legislators, many of whom voiced the opinion that they had not been sufficiently informed of the measure. The steering committee proposal has been passed by MSG assembly.

In presenting her report, Miss Fay suggested that next year's assembly fully review the procedural code to find possible flaws in the document. She also asked that the possibility of electing house presidents for a full year term be looked into once more.

HER FEELING is that efficiency in the assembly is hindered by the disrupting of continuity when new assembly-women come into the group following January elections.

Miss Fay presented a long list of improvements accomplished by this year's assembly and said that the panel system had been developed to its fullest.

"The assembly has established itself as a capable body, able to represent women students to the fullest," she asserted.

Classes Dismissed By Crawford; Exceptions Noted

Students will be excused from their Saturday classes to permit them to attend Spring Weekend activities, Vice Chancellor Finla G. Crawford announced yesterday.

This announcement does not apply to law students and graduate students in education. Saturday morning law classes and graduate courses in education will meet as usual.

Registrar Raymond F. Crossman of the State College of Forestry stated that forestry students also are being excused from their Saturday classes.

Bennetts Awarded Architecture Medal

Presentation Made By Regional Director

Francis L. Bennetts was awarded the School Medal of the American Institute of Architects at the annual School of Architecture Dinner last Friday.

Regional director C. Storres Barrows made the presentation to the senior student, along with a volume of Mont. St. Michel Chartres, for his outstanding academic abilities.

Donald Q. Faragher, toastmaster for the dinner in the Onondaga ballroom, introduced the speaker of the evening, Ralph T. Walker, an eminent architect from New York city.

The Henry Adams Prize and a copy of Mont. St. Michel chartres was presented to Donald L. Schoell, by Mr. Barrows, as he was runnerup for the AIA Medal.

Dean L. C. Dillenback presented Charles W. Rothery and Donald L. Schoell with the Luther Gifford prize of $100. They are senior students who during their five years have been outstanding in design.

The New York Society of Architects Medal was presented to the senior, who during his five years had been outstanding in construction. This award went to John E. Stefany, given to him by Prof. Donald Kenneth Sargent.

Allen Keith Turner, secretary of Sigma Upsilon Alpha, presented his organization's award for the Freshman who has been voted by the faculty and students as being the most outstanding first-year student to Roger E. Kahn.

Two juniors were also honored according to their scholastic attainment and promise of leadership. Paul H. Malo, student representative and William H. Scarbrough, alternative, are to attend the AIA convention in Boston from June 15 to 19.

Interviews Slated At Dean's Office

John F. Meehan, representing Central Intelligence Agency will be in Syracuse Monday to interview women students who will graduate in June and who are interested in clerical work.

All interested coeds should make appointments for these interviews today and tomorrow with Miss Dorothy Osborn in the dean of women's office.

Knowledge of typing is essential for all applicants and shorthand is considered desirable for the intelligence agency jobs. Students who are majors in any field may apply, but coeds in social studies are particularly welcomed.

Most employees begin work in Washington, D. C., but may be transferred later to posts in Europe or other foreign areas.

Blue Slips Issued Before Saturday

Coeds who wish to travel this weekend should obtain overnight permissions from Winchell or Shaw between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. today or tomorrow.

Both offices will be closed Saturday and women students who wish to leave campus and have not picked up blue permissions slips will have to call a women's student government senior officer for an out-of-hours permission. This kind of permission necessitates a weekend campus for anyone who takes it.

No Drivers Allowed

No driving will be allowed on campus this Saturday, according to the University Parking Commission. This action is taken in view of the Spring Weekend activities taking place Saturday.

Singers to Attend Music Convo

The University Madrigal singers and two School of Music officials will take part in the convention of New York State Music Clubs, planned for Sunday and Monday at the Hotel Syracuse.

The convention will feature a reception and concert at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, and a dinner at 7 p.m. Monday. Dr. Alexander Capurso, director of Syracuse's School of Music, and Dr. Ernst Bacon, will be among the guests. Dr. Bacon will direct the Madrigal singers at the banquet.

Sunday evening's program will feature a 75-voice chorus and a guest concert pianist; Claudette Sorel. Naomi Farr, lyric soprano, will sing Monday evening.

The dinner is limited to persons with reservations, but tickets for Sunday's program are available at the School of Music office for $1. Proceeds will benefit the organization's scholarship fund.

This weekend's convention is a bi-annual event for the state wide federation, which is a philanthropic organization of music groups and individuals. The club attempts to help newly discovered talent, give scholarships, and aid music-minded veterans.

Hill Symphony Will Perform Last Crouse Concert

Dr. Alexander Capurso, director of the School of Music, has announced that the last Crouse concert to be given before the end of classes will be a benefit performance by the University Symphony orchestra.

The concert, which is planned for 4 p.m. Sunday, May 16 in Crouse Auditorium, will benefit Sigma Iota, professional women's music fraternity. Proceeds will go to SAI's "foundation Fund" for music charities and scholarships.

Featured selections in the concert will be "Amaryllis, Suite for Orchestra" by Handel-Beecham, and "Symphony No. 5—Reformation" by Mendelssohn.

Dr. Capurso will direct the 60-piece group, which includes students and faculty from several of the University's colleges. The honorary chairman of the event is Mrs. H. Winfield Chapin.

All persons interested in being listed as a sponsor on the program may send their contributions to Janice Forsythe, treasurer, Sigma Alpha Iota, 4711 W. Genesee st.

The May 16 concert will be the second for the University Symphony this year. It offered a Sunday afternoon program on March 7.

Dr. Landis Returns From Pakistan Visit

Dr. Mildred M. Landis, professor of art education at Syracuse University, recently returned from Pakistan where she was visiting professor at the University of the Punjab in Lahore, West Pakistan, under the Fulbright Program.

In addition to lecturing in arts and crafts, Dr. Landis acted as consultant in design for the Ministry of Education and the All-Pakistan Women's Organization. She traveled several thousand miles by automobile in the Punjab, Swat State, Northwest Frontier Provinces, Baluchistan, and India. On these trips she supplied art materials for children who had never before had painting experiences.

On her return trip to the United States, Dr. Landis spent some time in Hong-Kong, Japan, and Hawaii. She will spend May and June at her home, Hartsville Hill in Alfred, and will return to the campus on July 1 to teach in the summer session.

UN Asian Expert Addresses Group On Aid Program

Miss Hinders Speaks To Chapel Group On Technical Help

"The United Nations program of technical assistance is one of the best examples of international cooperation on the part of all countries in the world today," Eleanor M. Hinder, new chief of the Far East Technical Assistance Administration for the United Nations, stated in her lecture on the organization's progress yesterday.

Miss Hinder spoke before an interested group in Hendricks Chapel telling of her experiences in administrating the United Nations program of technical assistance to under-developed countries. The talk was sponsored by Pan-Hellenic Association. The lecture was not announced in yesterday's Daily Orange.

SHE SAID that the program had started only five years ago. Many people doubted that the nations would participate but within two and one half years, so many under-developed countries had applied for help, they were unable to meet the demand entirely.

The program is paid for by donations from the various countries given at a contributing conference held early in November, she explained.

Since every nation contributes in their own currency some problems arise in trying to redeem the value of the money. Three solutions have been reached in answer to this problem. In nations where aid is needed, their money is used within the country.

IN SOME countries in Northern Europe where little aid is needed, representatives from the needy nations are trained in the country and their money is used to pay for their expenses. This money is also used to buy equipment from these nations.

She pointed out that over 250 highly-skilled technicians had been sent to countries requesting the services of the program. Although some of their greatest problems had arisen from the lack of more skilled aid within the country, progress is being made.

Its best feature is the marvelous international cooperation that has been given the committee. She said that over 70 nations are now included in the program.

Posts Now Open For Soph Class

Applications for next year's sophomore executive council must be handed in by 6 p.m. tomorrow.

They must include name, address, telephone number, experience and ideas for the class.

They may be submitted to Norman Butterfield, Theta Chi; Joan Scism, Theta Phi Alpha; Margaret Churchill, Delta Delta Delta; and David Boreanaz, M-9.

All Coeds Going to Dance To Have Late Permissions

Weekend Will Feature 'Syrafins' Performance

BARBARA SUCHY will emcee at Act IV. Entertainment for the senior ball will include an inter-fraternity octet from Middlebury College.

Three o'clock permissions will go to coeds attending the Senior Ball Saturday night provided they fill out a pink slip and attach a dance ticket stub, Marilyn Murtha, WSG vice-president announced.

Women attending the ball will also receive bottles of Faberge's Act IV perfume as favors at the dance, which has a theme of the same name. This is the first time that favors have been given at a spring weekend dance.

FORMAL DRESS will be optional for men attending the dance, chairmen Winifred Dawe and James Carr announced, stating that corsages are not considered necessary. These provisions have been made in order to cut the expenses of those attending.

Senior Barbara Suchy will serve as mistress of ceremonies for the entertainment portion of the dance program which will feature a singing octet from Middlebury College.

Known as "The Dissipated Eight", the inter-fraternity group from Vermont has made many appearances on Eastern college campuses at dances and large weekend events.

SPECIAL DECORATIONS have been planned for the dance which will be held in the Women's Building gymnasium. With pink and black as the dominant colors, they will include gilded trees imported from Skytop and cheesecloth clouds suspended from the ceiling to the room.

Refreshments will be served in the Alumni lounge and tables and chairs will also be set up on the patio of the building if the weather is fair.

Tickets are priced at $4 per couple and are currently being sold at booths in campus buildings as well as in the Corner Store and the University Book store.

WOODY HERMAN and his orchestra will provide the dance music Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Featured with the orchestra are pianist Nat Pierce and singer Dolly Houston.

Herman himself has starred as a vocalist and also on the clarinet and alto saxaphone.

The Spring weekend queen and her court, which was selected from the membership of Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, will be featured at the ball. They will be introduced to those attending by Miss Suchy.

Yancey Will Plant Japanese Cherry

University in Orient Presents Tree

Among special events during Spring Weekend will be the planting of a Japanese cherry tree outside of Sims Dining Hall. The tree, a gift of Japanese Christian University, will be planted at 3:45 a.m. Saturday by Bruce Yancey.

Miss Ruth Hoople of the Hendricks Chapel staff, told The Daily Orange yesterday that the Japanese university sent the tree here as a token of appreciation for a fund started by chapel fellowship groups to build a special house on the Tokyo campus.

THE LIVING center will be called Syracuse House and will be the residence of American instructors and professors who teach at Japanese Christian University.

Japanese students also signified their appreciation for American cooperation and interest in them by presenting the cherry tree to Syracuse University.

Breakfasters at the Saturday morning "Strawberries with the Stars" event will be able to watch planting of the tree from their tables in Sims or as they leave the dining hall.

TICKETS FOR the annual Spring Weekend Strawberry Breakfast are on sale this week for 75 cents, according to Patricia Fay, chairman of the event.

This year's tickets are star-shaped. Those who wish to attend ducats early as they are selling fast and may not be available at the door.

Applications Set For Class Day

Applications for poet, ivy orator and prohpet for the class day of the Class of 1954 are being accepted by Tess Oesterreicher, co-chairman of the event.

The applications should include name, address, telephone number, activities and suggestions. They should be turned in to Miss Oesterreicher at Phi Sigma Sigma.

Class Day will be held on June 5 on the quad. It will be the final salute to the senior class. In addition to the incoming and outgoing senior presidents attending, the marching band also will play.

Syracuse's swimming Syrafins, newly-organized WAA synchronized swimming group, introduced "The Syrafins World Premiere" to an alumni audience last night in the pool of the Women's building.

Including eleven numbers, the pool program will be presented at 8:30 p.m. today for invited guests, and is to be a feature event of Spring Weekend at the same hour. Friday night, when admission will be twenty-five cents, and the performance will be open to the public.

CUSTOMS AND traditions of eleven areas of the world will be interpreted by approximately 40 members of the youthful swim group. American numbers include The Western Square Dance Motiff and The Summertime Duet, while a British Isles Suite includes English, Irish, and Scottish arrangements.

The Syrafins who created all program props and decorations, began rehearsals in March.

Assisting Mrs. Steve Durkee, faculty advisor, and Jane Blanchard, synchronized swimming manager, are Diane Williams, publicity; Mary Ann Lynd, decorations; Sandy Kruge, customes; Marjorie Gale, ushers; Mary Hotlz, programs and tickets; Faye Coxe, music; Carol Fabend, lights; and Mary Lowe and Evelyn Liskovsky, props.

Joint Senior Recital Planned for Today

Suzanne Brousso, pianist, and Jean Mosley, soprano, will present a joint senior recital at 8:30 p.m. today in Crouse Auditorium. The general public may attend free of charge.

Miss Brousso, a student of George Mulfinger, has been active in several music groups in her four years on campus, and is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, professional women's music fraternity.

Miss Mosley, a student of Ruth Pinnell, has participated in city as well as campus musical activities, and is a member of Civic Morning Musicals, Inc. Both students will fulfill requirements for the Bachelor of Music degree with the recital.

Miss Brousso will play major selections by Bach and Beethoven, and other selections by Brahms, Chopin, and Bartok.

Paul Ochsner will accompany Miss Mosley as she sings selections by Handel, Schumann, Wagner, Rachmaninoff and Ravel.

Rat Taken for Ride On Icebox Motor

Starts Fire in Cellar Of Winchell Dorm

Acting Winchell housemother Mrs. Jean McKendrick had a hectic evening last night as smoke from a basement refrigerator fire filtered through four floors of the dormitory.

The whole thing started with a little rat who peacefully sat on the motor belt of the large walkin type refrigerator in Winchell's basement. According to night electrician Charles Koegel, the automatic motor started and threw rat and belt into the workings of the motor.

The girls soon smelled smoke, and informed Mrs. McKendrick, who was in charge for one night while the regular housemother was away. Firemen arrived after the alarm bell sent pajama-clad Winchellites scurrying to the street. Patrolman Edward Kincella of the Syracuse Police Department investigated.

When electrician Koegel arrived, he was surprised to find that the skinned and lifeless rat had caused all the commotion.

Work on cleaning up the refrigerator and fixing the motor was begun at once, because Winchell dietician Shirley Bibbins said the food in the refrigerator would spoil if left overnight.

NSA Seminar Applications Due

The deadline for applications for the NSA International Students Seminar is Monday. The seminar will be held this summer in Boston, Mass. and Ames, Iowa.

Twelve scholarships are being offered to the conference which will train a student in the field of international student relations.

Miss Levine, Kibby Will Head NSA

Lucille Levine and George Kibby have been appointed new co-chairmen of National Students Association, the present chairmen Rita Frankel and Darwin Bolden announced yesterday.

Miss Levine, a junior in liberal arts, comes from Jackson Heights, N. Y. She has a 2.3 average and this year headed the human relations sub-committee of NSA. She is also a junior guide and a member of Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary.

KIBBY, A NAVY veteran with four years of service, is a sophomore with a 1.8 average. He hails from Pittsfield, Mass., and this year worked on the international students program, one of NSA's fields of interest.

He is a member of Traditions Commission, worked with Campus Chest and was chairman of the Goon Squad dance.

Currently NSA is distributing a human relations questionnaire which will investigate student relations with faculty, administration and government. Results will be announced by the end of the semester.

St. Thomas More Tickets Available

Tickets for the annual St. Thomas More Communion Breakfast are now available and may be obtained from any of the reservation committee members.

The breakfast, scheduled for May 23 at Drumlins, will follow the 9:30 a.m. mass at Crouse college. Reservation committee co-chairmen, Lorraine Chanatry and Thomas Bird, state that the tickets will cost $2.

Over-all co-chairmen for the event are Margaret O'Connor and Frederic Hopmeier. Other committee heads are: Arrangements, Carol Palumb, Carmen Malagisi; Hospitality, Mary Lou Steigerwald, Caruso; Entertainment, Joanne Laforo, Robert Hoban, and Publicity, Marie Basil and Jack Reilly.

Excitement Marks Senior Show Opening

By MICHAEL BRAUN

A SCENE SUCH as this could only occur very, very, rarely. Your eyes do not deceive you. It's VINCE "RIGGER" RIGOLOSI (right) fighting it out with SAWYER FALK, head of the drama department. "Fight" was staged in celebration of the opening of "Up in Lights."

In the shipping business it is known as a christening. A bottle of champagne is broken on the bow as the liner steams down the pier. In show business the phenomena is called opening night. There were no indications of empty wine bottles on Salina st. last evening, but at the Astor Theater it was a christening, New Year's Eve and Happy Birthday rolled into one. "Up in Lights"—the pride of Boar's Head and a company of 75 actors, singers, dancers and technicians—opened and steamed down its own particular wharf to the public.

The curtain was scheduled to rise at 8:15 p.m. promptly, (or so said the man at the box-office). At 7:15 p.m. the lobby of the Astor was the scene of unorganized organization as dancers limbered muscles "for the important last time."

AT THE doors Joyce Grossman was giving the staff of ushers last minute instructions. She was pinning a gardenia on her dress and telling each girl to do the same. As she pinned, Jerry Leider, the director of the show, rushed by. "Break a leg," Joyce said to Jerry.

All was frantic inside the Astor now. The time was 7:30 p.m. and makeup was starting to be applied. Only one figure remained aloof from all the madness that surrounded him. Vince Rigolosi, "The Rigger" was standing next to the box office outside the theater, contemplating.

His contemplation was inter-

Attitudes and the Times

We note that Dean Virgil Rogers of the School of Education "was included on a list . . ." and that he "was identified as a member of . . ." by a small but highly vocal and influential bloc of citizens in Los Angeles, who consider the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Commission the "UN's brainwashing apparatus."

This California group objects to UNESCO material being used in the public school system because they consider it "propaganda" for world government, which to them implies world domination.

It is a significant comment on these times that a certain uncomplementary attitude is implied by the use of the phrases mentioned above. Dean Rogers is a supporter of UNESCO, as are President Eisenhower and a great many other people. He is "named" on a list, which implies something more than the facts. The list he is on is of persons active in supporting the UN group.

The Los Angeles group "identifies" Dean Rogers as a former president of the American Association of School Administrators, which endorses UNESCO. This group, of over 18,000 school superintendents, is termed conservative by the dean.

The word "democracy" has been subverted by the Communists. Must we add common verbs to the list?

Experiment for Tomorrow

You may have noticed a few changes in yesterday's paper. Most of them were small and perhaps would go unnoticed by the layman. But they were some things we felt could stand revision or change in order to meet one of our objectives for this year—to bring a better Daily Orange to our readers.

At the top of the front page, in what we call an "ear," we shall daily offer "Reflections." They say a little thinking goes a long way. Perhaps these thought provokers will do just that.

Another thing we're trying is a column of world news items. One of our duties is to keep the student aware of the top news from around the globe. Many students never read a newspaper thoroughly; many probably can't identify the top persons in the news daily.

It is not our aim to fill our columns with world news. We leave that up to other newspapers. But if in any way our six inches of world news helps someone to reach a better understanding of the problems of today, then we shall be pleased.

There'll be other changes during the next two and one-half weeks. In a newspaper, as in anything else, experimentation is necessary for improvement.

I Hold These Truths...

(Editor's Note: The Daily Orange will present daily the philosophies of life of University administration, faculty and students in their own words.)

By ART SIEGEL
Former Managing Editor, Daily Orange

What is there so satisfying to the ego as knowing that you have done something and the whole world knows it? And if not the whole world, at least the part of the world you care about.

We are no different than most of the crowd. Satisfaction for inherent good in things is what we tell others about but ignore ourselves.

Most of us come to college, probably, with the idea of attaining some material mark in the world: a 3.0 average, or a string of keys three feet long or the knowledge that the Chancellor knows you so well he will write a recommendation for you.

Far be it for me to say that these things are not useful and important. They are.

But in themselves there is nothing as empty as material fame

Someday, it all catches up. I don't refer to that far off day in the sky, but right down here on old mother earth. Someday, be it when you seek a wife, or try to get ahead in a job, or try to seek some mental peace, it will all catch up—the honors and the individual.

If it doesn't catch up, then you haven't a thing in the world—and I will feel sorry for you.

Sure. But let's preface our reasons. We inhabit a planet on which there is a society—a group of societies. This society—or group of them—has not yet become ideally perfect. Perish the day that it does.

Rather, we try to make it a more perfect one. We reach toward a goal that subconsciously we know we'll never attain, but we keep approaching it closer and closer—as a geometric progression approaches but never reaches infinity.

Thus, in the world of today, and probably a hundred years hence, there is no perfect justice. All accomplishments and deeds are not rewarded in material things or even in immediate recognition by others.

But some things are! I am not that foolish that I would suggest we all go off to some far away land and sit and meditate for the rest of our lives.

Certainly no human can exist completely on his own satisfaction. If one can, he is not a part of the world and cannot be considered part of it.

Although we may think we have done a lot of good and have not been recognized for it, I believe that someday by virtue of the individuals we are and the way we live and believe, the good that was done will out.

In a sense the latter statement is materialistic—if we dream of that day when we will be better individuals for it. But that kind of materialism is the kind I like—and I could not escape reality that much that I would deny it.

So what if Shakespeare was right when he said, "The evil that men do lives after them . . . the good is oft interred with their bones."

The good may do us a lot of good—while we're still kicking around on top of the earth.

Question and Answer Re Senior Ball Dress

To the Editor:

The men on campus, at least among the many to whom I have talked, feel that there are several phases of the Senior Ball that have been seriously neglected.

In the first place, all of the publicity has stated that formal dress is optional. This phrase leaves many doubts.

Also, I wish the committee would clarify the necessity of giving corsages to our dates. Thus far they have not taken a stand. Are our dates to be spared embarrasement if they do not get corsages, or are we compelled to buy them?

Thomas Richardson

To the Editor:

In answer to Mr. Richardson we would like to take a "stand" on the questions which he has brought up.

In planning this year's Senior Ball two things were uppermost in the committee's mind. First, because of the significance of the Senior Ball as the culminating social function of the Class of '54 and our desire to make it possible for everyone to attend, we changed he format of the Ball from what it had been in previous years.

Because opinion was almost equally split on the questionnaire that we circulated to Senior dormitorys about the dress for the ball it was decided to make "formal dress optional" the rule of dress for the dance. This means that formal dress is optional for the men and they may wear either tuxes or dark suits. Since women would wear the same dress whether the dance were formal or semi-formal this does not effect them.

Again, to make it possible for everyone to attend, the committee has said that corsages are not necessary.

We feel that this year's dance is going to be an outstanding one from the point of music, decorations, entertainment, and favors and we hope that the campus will support the class of '54.

Some Haven't Yet Grown Up

Word has been received that one of the sororities on the Hill awoke one morning recently to find their lawn adorned with parking and other street signs.

This seems at first to be truly representative of college life. Here is found spirit, vim and vigor. Someone had courage to pull a prank.

There's no information as to whether the heroic individuals responsible were of high school or college level, but it appears they were of kindergarten intelligence.

Perhaps there is need to set aside certain areas of the city which are fair game for these hunters. And perhaps it's merely a question of growing up.

Nursing School Code of Honor Backs Integrity

By MOLLIE GLASER

The students of the Syracuse University School of Nursing have an Honor Code to guide them in personal living, patient care and school work.

The preamble of the Honor Code states that since students in the School of Nursing firmly believe that personal honor and integrity form the basis of ethical conduct an Honor Code is necessary. This code, formulated by the student body, places upon the individual student the responsibility for upholding its regulations.

Guiding the administration of the code is a Student Honor Committee. This committee is made up of two representatives each from the freshman and junior classes who serve for a period of two years. Meetings of the committee are held monthly or as the need arises.

The Honor Committee is responsible for sending out letters to pre-freshman explaining the code and its purpose. During orientation week a convocation is held to acquaint the students further with the system.

Whenever the statement, "This examination is conducted under the Honor Code," is written on the examination paper, students are allowed to take the test in a room without an instructor present.

Each student is on her honor to report dishonesty, and few students have ever succeeded in cheating and not being reported.

A student who is aware that she has violated the Honor Code should report herself to any member of the Student Honor Committee within three days of the violation. If any student feels that someone has violated the Code, she must, within 48 hours ask the individual in question to report herself to the Honor Committee.

The committee and the girl in question, along with the witness, have an opportunity to discuss the situation and a student is then declared innocent or guilty by a two-thirds vote of the committee.

If it is found that the code has been violated a recommendation may be made that the student receive a grade of zero, or, upon the discretion of the instructor, that the examination may be retaken. A student may be dropped from the school for a second offense of the same nature.

It has been suggested that the system be given a try in other schools of the University. Little could be lost, and much could be gained.

Astor 'Lights Up' With Musical; No 'White Bucks,' But Pleasant

By JOAN NADELHAFT
Daily Orange Drama Critic

There were ghosts at the Astor Theater last night.

We tried to shoo them away, but they persisted—we kept expecting to hear dinglemen and "Hollywood."

We did hear "Hollywood" and that's what brought the whole thing on. They chose to introduce "Up in Lights" with some familiar music from "White Bucks." Very effective, but "White Bucks" stayed, even when "Up in Lights" got going.

This is just one way of saying that musicwise, "Lights" doesn't match its predecessor. Lanny O'Kun's music is pleasant, but he didn't seem to make it this year. The same is true for the words of Bill Angelos.

But the two Bills (Levine and Dixon) hit it with their sketches. When they take off and spoof some of the dramatic highlights of the past five years, the show is really worth seeing.

If Roberto Rossellini had seen "Scooter Thief" he would have sued, but it's a marvel. Italian movies will never be the same again after that one.

The small skits, without exception, were the best. One of the most uproarious wasn't even on the program. We still don't know what it's called, but we feel that "Don Juan is Hell" might be appropriate. Three people march out onto the stage and recite "Clapboards are parallel," "and so are you," with perfectly straight faces. There's more to it, but it would spoil the fun to tell about it.

Bob Dishy carries the whole load of the show. There just wasn't the talent to pick from this year, and he was forced to be onstage most of the time. It's to his credit that he did such a fine job. The boy's funny, that's all.

His best single bit is entitled "the Three Eiffels" and Dishy does a balancing act with two spotlights that is beyond words. It is, without a doubt, one of the funniest sketches we've seen in a long time.

As a matter of fact, the show, when it's funny, is hilarious, for the most part, but when it tries to get emotional, it bogs down.

The other takeoffs, such as "Willy Loman and the Farmer's Daughter" are excellent, and we feel the new campus "bit" will be the "Dishy nudge." It should rival last year's "I'm nauseous."

Sam Baskin is a boy to watch. By the time he becomes a senior, he should develop into a first-rate comedian. He should develop a style of his own, though, and eliminate the Tomchin characteristics.

While we're tossing bouquets, Helen Hurdus deserves some. She has a fine music-comedy voice, and we only wish she had had more to do.

As a matter of fact, there were several others who could have brightened things up considerably if they had been onstage more: Fred Greisinger, who with the right songs to sing, has the best voice in the cast; Lynn Wightman, who adds lots of charm whenever she comes onstage; and Bob Scarpato, who can handle comedy and ballet, too.

Vince Rigolosi is one of the bits dotting the musical which make it very worthwhile seeing. "Rigger" will never live it down and we're wondering if Hizzoner will dare show his face on Marshall St. next week. He makes a charming angel.

The choreography lacked spirit which was needed for the type of scenes presented. The costumes were bright, and fitting to the sequences and the sets were effective.

Gerry Leider has a creditable show, but we're wondering if he didn't see ghosts, too.

AT THE FLICKERS

Poe's 'Murders In Rue Morgue' Not Satisfying

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Film Critic

A number of years ago, Edgar Allen Poe wrote a story called "Murders in the Rue Morgue." Had he known what Warner Brothers was going to do to it, he would have undoubtedly abandoned the project. For the abor- unveiled at the Keith's is an active, 3-D version that has been tempt to turn Poe's great mystery into a horror story, with results that are frightening for reasons very different from those intended by the authors.

"Phantom of the Rue Morgue" is the result of mixing a little Poe with a lot of schmaltz. The mixture is indigestible. For the intricacies of the solution of a horrible crime, the authors have substituted the intricacies of a weird little story that is awful. Focusing its attention the the ape, instead of the mystery, was an ill-conceived notion that spelled disaster for what might have been an exciting film.

The writers would have you believe that Karl Malden is a lunatic (posing as a psychiatrist, of course) who goads an ape into murdering women because his wife found him highly repulsive. The lady, as a matter of fact, found him so repulsive that she committed suicide to get out of his clutches. She was lucky. The audience has no such easy way out.

Patricia Medina is brought in as the next victim in the line-up bu,t don't worry, the cops get there in time. They always do.

For a film that tries so hard, this one is a conspicuous waste of time. It's not that "Phantom of the Rue Morgue" isn't gory enough (it has enough bodies to adequately furnish a small-sized cemetery). It's just that the high pressure horror in this film is old hat and since no ingenuity was used in rehashing it, the whole thing is just too stale to have any real effect.

There are plenty of murders in this film, but the chief victims are the audience and Poe.

The co-feature is "Prisoners of the Casbah." It, if you can conceive of it, is worse than the featured attraction.

Gummed Stamp Date Unnoticed

Were you aware that adhesive postage stamps were invented just one hundred fourteen years ago today? Probably not.

This, unfortunately, is one of the lesser celebrated holidays in the United States. We make a big fuss over the Fourth of July, and Thanksgiving and Christmas, but never do the drums go bang and the cymbals clang for this occasion.

A few minutes musing on the potential of this day:

Along with the parade of big brass bands, flashy drum majorettes, and open-top notables we could have vendors going up and down the avenue selling special government issues, with adhesive not just on one side, but on both sides.

These stamps would be used to send two letters for the price of one, and would be used only on national holidays.

Along with this perhaps the federal government could start an advertising campaign along the lines of "Your Letter Gets there faster with a stamp than without."

The work bulb gave way to spotlights as "Up in Lights" opened and the dancers performed for people instead of empty seats.

Young, Central Liven Papers

A battle that has extended to the sacrosant pages of The New York Times has given new hope to the theory that fighting journalism did not die with Pulitzer and Bennett.

Such screaming headlines as "A Memo to Robert Young" and "Here are the Facts" enliven the interest of these once hallowed pages.

It seems that the folks down at the New York Central are out to get Robert Young and Mr. Young is out to get them. This seems quite simple. However other factions including (or so it seems) every railroad in the country are trying to get into the act.

There have been memoranda from such people as Jim Moran "whose 300 shares of stock seem to me just like your 100,000, Mr. Young." It gets more complicated as it goes along.

Fie on television. A pox on the National and American leagues. They rate second interest. Mr. Young and the New York Central is the commodity to keep an eye on.

We wish they'd take ads in this newspaper.

Orange Nine Will Meet Sabres On Air Force Base Field Today

By JOEL FEIDELMAN
Associate Sports Editor

With its fingers crossed regarding the weather, the Syracuse University baseball team will journey to the tip of Lake Keuka this afternoon to meet the Sampson AFB Sabres at the air base.

For the fourth straight day the Orange have had a game scheduled. Yesterday, a scheduled clash at Lew Carr Field with Clarkson Tech was postponed because of wet grounds, the same thing that happened with Monday's scheduled tilt with Cornell and Tuesday's invasion of Sampson. Today's game is a re-scheduling of Tuesday's postponement.

IT IS PROBABLE that Coach Ted Kleinhans will start Mickey Kyff on the mound today as Kyff was scheduled to pitch yesterday. The senior right-hander is rapidly asserting himself as the workhorse of the Orange mound staff. In the season opener Kyff defeated Hobart, 6-4, and last week he lost the decision in relief as the Hill nine was beaten 10-9 at Colgate in extra innings.

The remainder of the starting lineup today will be Dick Darr at first-base, gridder Ed Albright at the keystone sack, Dick Neufang at shortstop and Ted Kukowski rounding out the infield at third. Veteran Phil Young will handle the catching chores.

In the outer garden the starters will probably be Nick Coyne, Joe Orzehowski, who had a single, double and triple against Colgate in his first game this season, and either Paul Slick or John Hauch. Slick had two hits in the Hobart opener but didn't play against the Red Raiders.

IN REGARD to today's game, Sampson is something of an unknown quantity. Syracuse will be hoping to improve on its 1-1 record, but in past years the Sabres had winning teams and it is expected that the Air Force has placed some baseball talent on the base.

A point of interest is that while often outstanding minor league baseball players are stationed at Sampson for basic training, they are not allowed to play on the base team. Only members of the permanent base party are allowed to compete, and this leaves out basic trainees.

Following tomorrow's game, the Orange nine will journey to State College, Pa., to meet the Nittany Lions in a double header on Saturday. Soph Bill Cassidy and junior Gordie Smith are the probable Syracuse pitching choices.

VERSATILE ATHLETE—Football quarterback and punter ED ALBRIGHT is spending his spring as an infielder on the Orange baseball team. He will open at second-base this afternoon when Syracuse visits the Sampson Sabres.

Alpha Sig, Phi Delt Win in Intra Tennis

Alpha Sigma Phi downed Phi Kappa Psi 2-1 and Phi Delts Theta did likewise to Alpha Epsilon Pi in yesterday afternoon's intramural tennis matches.

For Alpha Sigma Phi it was Jerry Swinski and Al Festa's winning of the singles that provided the margin of victory. Phi Kappa Psi pulled out the doubles but to no avail.

Fred Labhard provided the difference for Phi Delta Theta. Completely outplaying his man he won handily, 6-0 and 6-3.

Although AEPi pulled even by winning the other singles contest, they lost the match when they failed to produce a doubles team.

The other scheduled meeting, between Tau Delta Phi and Sigma Chi, was postponed until tomorrow.

Frosh Track Team Opens Dual Meet Season on Friday

Speedy Bob Milner To Enter Three Running Events

Coach Bob Grieve's freshman track team opens its dual meet season this Friday in Archbold Stadium against the Colgate yearlings. Grieve's runners will be looking to duplicate the outcome of last year's meet when the Tangerine outfit waltzed to a 77½-51½ victory.

The majority of the points garnered by the local first-year man in Friday's contest will probably come through the performances of a quartet of yearling competitors.

JIM BROWN may go in six events—the discus, shot put, javelin, high jump, broad jump and 100-yard dash. The sterling Long Island youth has shown especially fine form in the shot and high jump events and may well gain a couple of blue ribbons here.

Bob (Wilbur) Milner is entered in the two-mile mile, half-mile and possibly 120-yard high hurdle events. The 5 ft.-6 Philadelphian has turned in excellent times.

Dick Day will take over the chores in the dash events. The flashy former prep school star is also a member of the mile relay team.

ROG GILBERT, 1953 New York Intersectional quarter-mile champion, will run his specialty and move up to the half-mile run along with Milner.

The slight speedster will add a leg on the mile relay. Bob Smith will also run two quarters; one in the mile relay and one in the race against Gilbert.

Jim Scheeder, Craig McArt and Jim Hyde are Grieve's frosh hurdlers. The latter pair will top both the low and high hurdles. Scheeder will run the century dash.

Warren Jennings and Jerry Moore in the disc, Rudy Farmer in the shot, Ted Warhoiak in the javelin, Ed Lynn in the broad jump and Oz Simpson in the pole vault round out the young Piety aggregation.

Simmons Named All-Star Coach

Roy Simmons, Orange lacrosse mentor, has been named coach of the Northern all-stars for the 1954 North-South game it was announced yesterday. The annual event, sponsored by the Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association, will be held at Municipal Stadium, Freeport, on June 11.

Simmons' stickmen have won five of six contests this season and meet the Onondagan Indians Saturday on Hendricks Field.

Freshmen Defeat Hobart, 16-10, For Second Victory in Lacrosse

By EV MURCH

The Syracuse frosh lacrosse team downed the Hobart yearlings yesterday afternoon at Hendricks Field, 16-10. It was victory No. two for the locals as against no defeats, the only other game being last Saturday's 11-2 opening-day win over St. Bonaventure's varsity.

The boys from Hobart kept the game fairly even through the first 20 minutes but couldn't hold the Tangerines down. In the final 10 minutes of the initial half the home team poured in five goals to break a 5-5 tie and, with a 10-5 half-time lead, that was the ball game.

FOR A TIME in the first few minutes it appeared as though Hobart would be out of it altogether. The local first-year men took a 4-1 lead in a little over eight minutes and dominated play.

However, the visitors held them in check throughout the remaining minutes of the quarter and added one of their own to make it 4-2.

Hobart's big chance came in the second quarter when, after Syracuse's Paul O'Donahue hit at the 40 second mark, they poured in three consecutive goals to tie the score at five-all after 4:50 of the period.

THIS IS where the roof fell in. Led by John Stawecki's three quick counters, the Tangerines piled up their commanding half-time lead. Rudy Mendez and Hub Bassett were the other two donators to the cause.

The third period was all Syracuse as John Echeandia's crew banged in five tallies to two for the losers. In the fourth and final stanza, the Hobarts made a last ditch comeback against an array of substitutes, but fell far short.

O'Donahue was again the top scorer for the Tangerines, tossing in five goals and six assists following his four-goal, five-assist performance last Saturday.

OTHER BIG men for the frosh were Bassett with four goals and an assist; Stawicki with four and two; and Mendez with three goals. John Williamson did a fine job in the net.

The next frosh game will be Saturday at Cornell.

Cornell has faced some of the same opponents that the Syracuse squad has and has likewise beaten them. This should indicate an interesting game and possibly the toughest test for the Tangerines.

SAE, Beta Theta Pi, Sammies, Pi Lamb, Win Softball Games

By FRANK VECCHIONE

Southpaw Mel Kline pitched and batted Sigma Alpha Mu to an 18 to 1 victory over Delta Tau Delta in intramural play last night. In other games Sigma Alpha Epsilon edged Delta Kappa Epsilon, 9-8, Beta Theta Pi turned back Psi Upsilon, 7-4, and Pi Lambda Phi outslugged Beta Sigma Rho, 17-6.

Kline had a fine night, allowing just two hits and striking out nine batters, besides doubling to drive in the first three runs for the Sammies. Mel Friedman hit a grand slam homer for the victors, while Jack Thoden blasted a sole circuit clout to account for the losers' lone score.

In the only extra inning game of the night, Jack Forester singled to right to drive in the winning run for SAE. Huffmire led the Dekes' attack with a homer and a triple driving in three runs.

Beta Theta Pi combined three consecutive doubles in the first inning which paved the way for their triumph over Psi U. Ron Heydot pitched a good steady game for the win.

Pi Lambda Phi's Jerry Bertisch pitched a two-hitter against Beta Sigma Rho, although the latter managed to get six runs. Shortstop Mel Smith of the Pi Lambs contributed two homers, driving in six runs.

Five Teams Entered In Women's Regatta

The women's sailing team will participate in the annual Women's Regatta Sunday, May 9, on Ondondaga Lake. Five teams—Syracuse, Cornell, Wells, Rochester and Vassar—will compete for the Bea Patterson Trophy. Vassar is defending champ.

The race is due to start at 1 p.m. with a skipper's meeting set for 12:30.

Last year, Syracuse, led by Shirley Smith, came in second. Shirley, who took three first places, has since graduated.

The Regatta is being run by Jackie Warner with Gordon Bentley, Hob Whitney and Al Cumings, Jr., on the race committee.

Tennis Team Loses To Big Red, 9-0

Cornell's experienced net squad showed too much poise for the Orange racketmen yesterday afternoon when they rolled to a 9-0 victory at Ithaca.

Kleid Barker, Joe Barack and Gil Rothrock led Cornell to victory with smashing triumphs.

If all the trophies won by Barker, Barack and Rothrock were to be added up, very few would be left out of the group.

The other Orange singles starters were John Kerr, Ken Smiley, Dick Loren, Pete Bratt and Boone Sone.

The lack of practice that has been plaguing Syracuse due to bad weather showed up in the matches Cornell, fresh from a victorious Southern tour, was in mid-season form while the Saltines were first getting into playing shape.

COACH GUS Eriksen's shells continue practice sessions today for the cup competition. Powerful Cornell, along with a young and improving Princeton crew and a fine Yale aggregation, will provide the opposition in the Hillmen's third outing of the year.

Cornell was second to Navy in the races last week. Syracuse was fifth and last in this event and also lost to the Middies in a two-boat regatta at Anappolis in the season's opening competition two weeks ago.

Princeton also lost a two-shell race to Navy and was second to Pennsylvania in a three-boat event. Yale also placed second to Penn in a three-crew contest.

COACH VIC Michalson's frosh oar-swingers will get their second taste of intercollegiate competition Saturday. Third to Cornell and Navy last week, the yearlings will face the potent Big Red and fine Eli and Tiger boats in their race.

Syracuse will also send third varsity and second frosh shells to Cornell to make it a five-event afternoon.

FROSH TILT POSTPONED

Today's scheduled baseball game between the frosh and the University of Rochester yearlings, which was to have made up the game postponed Tuesday, has itself been postponed.

Oarsmen Lose Parfitt For Carnegie Contest

Dick Nichols, 18-year-old sophomore from Groton, has replaced the ailing Rog Parfitt at the No. seven seat in the Orange varsity crew. Parfitt has an abscessed molar and will not be able to compete in Saturday's Carnegie Cup races at Cornell.

Nichols rowed in the junior varsity boat in the home regatta last weekend and was a starting frosh oarsman last year.

Professor Ward to Speak At AAUP Dinner Sunday

Faculty participation in college and university government is on the increase. This will be the major point brought out in Prof. Paul Ward's speech at the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors' annual banquet to be held 6 p.m. Sunday at Drumlins.

Tickets are now on sale at $2.60 and may be purchased from one of the 36 department representatives. Prof. Paul Gilbert, of the mathematics department is in charge of tickets, and Prof. Eric Lawson, of the College of Business Administration, is heading general banquet arrangements.

PROF. RAYMOND F. CROSSMAN has been named the first Dean of Students at the State University of New York College of Forestry. Prof. Crossman has been registrar and professor of English at the College since 1942.

WARD, CHAIRMAN of the philosophy department of Syracuse University, serves as chairman of Committee "T" of the AAUP, which is concerned with the place and function of faculty in college and university government. Since 1920 the committee has been doing research on this issue.

Ward became chairman in 1938. Colleges and universities numbering 335 have participated in the study, and Ward will bring out the comparison of the early report with the 1953 version at the banquet.

The local chapter of AAUP at Syracuse is one of the largest in the country with over 300 members. The national organization itself, composed of professional groups interested in teaching and research, has 43,000 members.

WORKING WITH Ward on his committee are A. J. Carlson, University of Chicago; George H. Sabine, Cornell; H. S. Conard Grinnell College; J. A. Leighton, Ohio State; J. W. Woodard, Temple University.

Ward has been a head figure in conducting research. Last year he obtained a leave of absence and furthered his study at the association national headquarters in Washington, D. C. He reported some of his findings at last year's annual meeting in Chicago and this year's meeting in Buffalo. The banquet this Sunday will give members of the local chapter an opportunity to hear the report.

Ward, born in Indianapolis, Ind. has worked for both the national and the local chapters. He joined the faculty of Syracuse University in 1922 and became a member of the association shortly thereafter. He's listed in the current "Who's Who in America," served as a flier in World War I, and in the Air Force in World War II. At present he holds the rank of major in the Air Force Reserve.

Raymond Grossman Named Forestry Dean of Students

The State University of New York College of Forestry will have a dean of students beginning July 1, for the first time in its 43-year history.

Dr. Hardy L. Shirley, Dean of the College, announced the appointment of Prof. Raymond F. Crossman as Dean of Students yesterday at a convocation. Prof. Crossman has been registrar and professor of English at the Forestry College since 1942.

The new Dean of Students received a BA degree from Syracuse University in 1926 and an MA in 1931. He also did graduate work at New York University and Teachers College at Columbia university, specializing in administration and guidance.

Prof. Lawrence J. Belanger was appointed Acting Registrar of the College of Forestry, replacing Prof. Crossman in that office.

Dr. Joseph S. Illick, Dean Emeritus, also spoke at the convocation on "Being Alone and Being Associated," dealing with the subject of professional and other organizations with interests in forestry.

Paraguayans Stage Revolutions Against Chaves Government

CLORINDA, ARGENTINA — President Federico Chaves' government is reported to be having trouble with revolting Paraguayan Army Forces. Rebels are said to have taken the base on the Paraquayan River and have captured several districts in the capital city, Asuncion.

McCARTHY TESTIFIES

WASHINGTON—Senator McCarthy, on the stand for the first time in his battle with the Army, testified a partial copy of secret FBI reports dealing with Army security risks was given to him by an Army intelligence officer. McCarthy, however, refused to answer questions by Army counsel Joseph Welch as to the officer's identity.

CHAIRMANSHIP ANNOUNCED

GENEVA—Britain and Russia will rotate as chairman of the Indochina peace talks which are scheduled to begin either tomorrow or Saturday. The rotation plan was reached yesterday by French and Russian officials, representing East and West, along with final arrangements for the Indochina parley.

Sigma Nu Chooses White Rose Queen

More than 50 couples attended the affair, which was held at the Dewitt Ranch Motel. Anthony Lombardo's orchestra played for the event.

Miss McLeod, a 5'10" blue-eyed blonde, received a bouquet of white roses from James Saunders, Sigma Nu's social chairman. The queen was selected from a field of five semi-finalists.

Bus Ad's Picnic Reset for Today

Undaunted by Tuesday's bad weather, the students and faculty of the College of Business Administration have rescheduled their picnic for today at Green Lakes Park, publicity chairman Roland Smith has announced.

Classes in the school will be dismissed at noon, with rides to the picnic site available at that time in front of Slocum.

Those who have not yet purchased their tickets may do so at the park.

Astor Opening Night

spersed with occassional sighs and chewing of gum. He seemed to feel that "there's no reason to be nervous, after all this isn't a fight, is it? I know what I'm going to do, don't I?" Still the Rigger seemed a wee bit jittery.

THE TIME was now 7:42 p.m. Leider had been up for 48 hours and his occassional yawns testified to the fact.

At 8 p.m. the action switched to to the stage. Someone yelled, "We've got 6 girls and only 30 costumes." A voice answered, "That's tough, but it's too late now." Dancers were arabesquing from up stage to down and failed to hear this remarkable discourse.

It was 8:10 p.m. Up on stage everyone was telling everyone else to "break a leg." A cast member explained that this is merely theatrical lingo for "good luck."

NOW IT WAS 8:22 p.m., seven minutes after the curtain was scheduled to rise. Rigolosi was expounding his philosophy backstage on opening nights in general and on this one in particular. The Rigger said, "If hell be on earth, it is in the heart of a thespian awaiting the curtain on opening night."

While he was expounding this bit of wisdom, Variety, Billboard and the rest had taken their seats. Leider wished the entire cast a final "break a leg," the overture started and "Up in ights" was trotting the boards.

The scenes flashed before the audience in a kaleidescope of Mario Forte costumes and brilliant scenery. Authors Bill Levine and Bob Dixon came on stage in sweaters to explain the whole idea of the show . . . Bob Dishy, Alfred Gross and Joan Reed, Helen Hurdus playing double images of each other . . . Marty Abbey took off his pants when rushing good old SOT and made the brothers do likewise . . . Helen Hurdus in a voice equaling Marie Dressler at her finest gave instructions to a female football team . . . Bill Angelos, Alfred Gross and Sam Baskin described the "turnabout" problem . . . Bob Dishy as Willie Lohman and his meeting with the farmer's daughter . . . Greta Wolff sang with a voice foretelling future triumphs . . . Margaret Brust recited poetry which would even interest Eliot . . . Miss Hurdus in her brassy voice.

INTERMISSION CAME and went. The audience sat through the second act. Bob Dishy clowned. Miss Hurdus sang and Margaret Brust questioned the realities of "life in the village."

The show received six encores. The curtain fell and the powerful stage light was put into place. The audience went home, perchance to dream or whistle a tune.

IT'S ALL A MATTER OF TASTE

When students burn the midnight oil
While cramming for a test,
The smooth, fresh smokes they reach for most
Are Luckies...always best!

Marilyn Sergeant
University of Arizona

When you come right down to it, you smoke for one simple reason . . . enjoyment. And smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste. Yes, taste is what counts in a cigarette. And Luckies taste better.

Two facts explain why Luckies taste better. First, L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco . . . light, mild, good-tasting tobacco. Second, Luckies are actually made better to taste better . . . always round, firm, fully packed to draw freely and smoke evenly.

So, for the enjoyment you get from better taste, and only from better taste, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Get a pack or a carton of better-tasting Luckies today.

If cleaner, fresher, smoother taste
Is that which you would prize,
There is but one solution, friend,
Buy Luckies if you're wise!

Spring Weekend With the Stars Welcomed

Woody Herman to Furnish Music At Perfume-Favored Senior Ball

By JOANNE HESS

Curtains will go up on Act IV at 9 p.m. tomorrow in the Women's Building gymnasium with Woody Herman and orchestra playing the overture.

VOCALIST DOLLY Houston will be featured with Herman and his orchestra who will arrive in the country from a European dance and tour.

Barbara Suchy, vice-president of the class of '54 which is sponsoring the ball will emcee the entertainment and other special events on the program.

Outside entertainment will be provided by "The Dissipated Eight," vocal octet from Middlebury College in Vermont. An inter-fraternity group, they have toured eastern colleges and appeared at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival celebration.

THE SPRING Weekend queen and her court will be formally presented by Miss Suchy. The queen, elected by senior women, will be crowned at the pageant tomorrow afternoon.

The weekend royalty will receive sets of Act IV cosmetics specially made for them by Samuel Rubin, owner of Faberge Inc., manufacturers of Act IV perfume.

Tickets priced at $4 will be sold in campus buildings today and will be available in the University Bookstore and the Corner Store until 6 p.m. tomorrow.

AVAILABLE AT the desk in the Women's Building, tickets will also be sold at the door tomorrow night.

Spectators may purchase admission to the balcony for $1 per person at the door. The balcony will be partially reserved for holders of these spectator tickets in order to give visiting parents and relatives a chance to see the ball.

Refreshments will be served at tables in the alumni lounge. Decorations will be in pink and black, using cheesecloth clouds and painted trees from Skytop.

CHAPERONES FOR the evening will include Prof. and Mrs. Frank Hakanson, Prof. and Mrs. John H. Shaw and Prof. and Mrs. Robert P. Lett.

Chancellor William P. Tolley will head the receiving line for the dance. Also greeting the guests will be Vice-chancellor and Mrs. Finla G. Crawford, Dean Marjorie C. Smith, Vice-president and Mrs. Frank P. Piskor, senior class president John Beach, Winifred Dawe and James F. Carr, co-chairman of the dance.

Members of the dance committee include Frances Meiselmen, refreshments; Mary Todd, decorations; Anita Chappa, tickets; Nancy Bishop, programs; Joyce Penny, invitations and chaperones; Alan Gefen, arrangements; Sandra Clayton, secretary; Mary Vivian and Gwen Mahle, promotion.

Co-chairmen of Ball Give Free Tickets All Day Tomorrow

Lucky stars may give some couples free tickets to the Senior Ball.

Two sandwichmen will tour the campus tomorrow wearing signs advertising the dance and selling tickets to Act IV. Every fiftieth ticket will have a red star on the back, and this one will be given free.

JAMES CARR, co-chairman of the dance, will be one of the walking box offices. The pair will circulate at moving-up ceremonies and the float parade and will be in the Thornden Park in the afternoon at the pageant.

No one will be told if he is eligible for a winning ticket until he has offered to purchase one.

Late Permissions Granted to Coeds

All Special Blue Slips Issued Today Only

All coeds who attend tomorrow night's Senior Ball will be allowed special 3 o'clock permissions, according to Women's Student Government Vice President Marilyn Murtha.

In order to take advantage of these permissions, however, each coed must attach her ticket stub to her pink permission slip.

WOMEN STUDENTS may leave their living centers starting at 5 a.m. Saturday and men will be allowed in all coed houses at any time before 12 noon as a special Spring Weekend concession.

Any coed who wishes to travel this weekend must secure her blue permission from Winchell or Shaw between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. today. Both offices will be closed all day Saturday.

If every member of a living center plans to attend the Senior Ball, the house may be closed. However, if house members wish to close a cottage under any other circumstances, they must personally contact Miss Kathryn Copeland in the dean of women's office for permission.

Cadets to Honor Chancellor Tolley

More than 1,500 Syracuse University cadets of the Army and Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps will honor Chancellor William P. Tolley with the annual Chancellor's review Tuesday on Hendricks Field.

About 900 AFROTC cadets and 600 Army ROTC men will salute Dr. Tolley in the parade, which will be open to all students, faculty, guests and the general public.

EIGHTEEN CADETS will receive special awards for outstanding service in special ceremonies at the review.

Military queen Geraldine Wilde, School of Speech and Dramatic Art freshman, and her court will also be presented with awards and will be in the reviewing stand for the parade.

Cadet Col. Peter Seevers will direct the Army ROTC unit in the joint review, while Cadet Col. Robert Leberman will lead the Air Force.

Ward, Retino Give Senior Recitals

George Ward and Joseph Retino, seniors in the School of Music, will give a recital toward their Bachelor of Music degree at 8 p.m. Sunday in Crouse Auditorium.

Ward, a percussionist, will offer a number of selections, including Chedeville's "Bascoral Sonata" and Bartok's "Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion."

RETINO, A Clarinetist, plans to feature "Trio in E Flat" by Mozart and "Der Hirt auf dem Felsen" by Schubert.

Jester Will Dance In 'Curtain Time'

A spritely jester who dances his way through the life of the theater captures the main theme of the 1954 Spring Pageant. Entitled "Curtain Time," the pageant was written by Sally Alger, a senior in fine arts and music.

The entire event, considered a high point of Spring Weekend, is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in Thornden amphitheater or in case of rain, in Gym A of the Women's building. Launching the festivities will be the queen's court procession and coronation, followed by the presentation of awards and the pageant story.

LUCILLE STITZENBERGER appears as the jester, with Marlene Poindexter as the charlady. Taking part in "Tempo Tantrums" dance routine will be Carolyn Nesbitt, Renee Osterneck, choreographers, Barbara Cain, Helen O'Brien, Barbara Davis, Marie Cacoliris, Marcella Damiecki and Elaine Sage.

"Fuffle Dance" routine features Joan Huff and Heather Haslam as choreographers and leading actresses, with Sue LaVigne, director, and Eugenia Haaf, Marjorie Jones, Gwen Mann, Lola Lee, Pat Severin, Jean Marshall and Sally Belt. Dancing "Cavort of the Critics" will be Mari Jordan, choreographer and author, Barbara Stone, Maureen Kelly, Marcia Larson and Janice Tripp.

"The Broom and Bucket Duo" features Lucille Stitzenberger and Marlene Poindexter. The entire cast will appear in the finale.

WALTER LAPE is narrating the pageant, Joan Huff is directing and Heather Haslam is acting as manager. Committee chairmen for the pageant include Winona Brierly, Jane Dempsey, Marilyn Mawson, Deane Lavendar, Frederick Briggs, Ray Osterhout, Dorianne Bright and Joanne Swalm.

In charge of costumes are Barbara Suchy, Ann Lines, Madge Evans, Lois Clark and Charlotte Easterbrook. Elizabeth Brydon, Particia Mosher and Inez France are acting as queen's court chairmen.

Spring Pageant 1954 climaxes over three months of planning, writing and rehearsing.

Berry Breakfast With the Stars Scheduled for Sims

The Strawberry Breakfast is older than Spring Weekend itself. The traditional affair was originally part of Women's Day festivities before the present celebration became part of the spring calendar.

"Breakfast with the Stars" bears out the weekend theme of "All the World's a Stage." Sims dining hall will be decorated with large strawberries, and caricatures of Hollywood and campus stars to set the mood of the weekend.

IN ADDITION to these decorations each table will bear the name of a stage personality. Your hostesses for the morning meal are the pledges of Lambda Sigma Sigma, junior women's honorary, and Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary.

The special breakfast will consist of fresh strawberries (traditional fare), cereal, sweet rolls, coffee or milk. The waitresses, who will provide continuous service from 8 to 9:30 a.m., will wear white blouses, gaily colored skirts, and white aprons.

Because no meals will be served after 9:30 a.m. those attending will be on hand to witness the moving up ceremonies to be held on the library steps at 10 a.m.

MUSIC AT the annual fete will be provided by Peter Manicas and the pep band. The Fiji Four will be featured performers.

Tickets for the breakfast are still on sale in Maxwell, the Corner Store, the University Book Store, Slocum, and some will be available at the door for 75 cents per person.

Rain HQ Named

The Kappa Kappa Gamma house will serve as information headquarters for Spring Weekend in case of rain. Students desiring to know where an event will be held in a downpour should call 76-8856 or 75-9336.

Rev. MacLennon To Talk at Dinner

Rev. D. H. MacLennon, of Hamilton, Ontario, will speak at the annual banquet of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship at 6 p.m. today at Tubbert's.

All those persons needing transportation to the banquet should meet at Hendrick's Chapel at 5:30 p.m.

(Photo by Art Siegel)

CHANCELLOR WILLIAM P. TOLLEY prepares to start off Saturday morning right. He's buying the first ticket to the traditional breakfast, titled "Strawberries with the Sars," from CURT FORD.

Queen's Crowning Set For Park Ampitheatre

One of Syracuse's five outstanding senior coeds, her name a secret since last month's campus elections, will be crowned as Spring Weekend at 2:3 p.m. tomorrow in Thornden Park, preceding the pageant.

The candidates are Mary Anne Dalton, Theta Phi Alpha, Liberal Arts, Women's student government president; Jane Dempsey, Chi Omega, Liberal Arts, campus guide chairman; Madge Evans, Delta Delta Delta, home economics, WSG civil service chief; Judy Perry, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Liberal Arts, head of WSG social chairman's assembly; and Ellen (Billie) Williams, Charles cottage, home economics, WSG executive secretary-treasurer.

All FIVE are members of Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary. The four runners-up will serve in the queen's court, as will all other senior members of the honorary, who are: Winona Brierly, Elizabeth Brydon, Jeanne Byrnes, Janet Caro, Patricia Fay, Anne Forrest, Rita Frankiel and Honako Hillen.

Also, Blanche Krischer, Arlene Lambert, Ann Lines, Marilyn Mawson, Nancy Hoehle McClelland, Constance Pierson, Susan Radcliffe, Patricia Roden, Virginia Sheldrick and Barbara Suchy.

The queen and her court will march to "Pomp and Circumstance," and will be preceded by a herald on horseback. In case of rain, the ceremony will be held in gym A o fthe Women's building.

Syrafins to Give 'World Premier'

"World Premier," synchronized swimming program, will be presented by the Syrafins tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the pool of the Women's building. The program will be part of the festivities for Spring Weekend. Tickets ae 25 cents and will be available at the door.

The Syrafins are the newest team representing the coeds on the Hill. All program props and decorations for the skits were designed by the group. Rehearsals have been held since early March.

APPROXIMATELY FORTY members of the group will present their interpretations of world customs and traditions. Included in these will be numbers representing United States, England, Ireland and Scotland.

Jane Blanchard, synchronized swimming manager, and faculty advisor Miss Barbara Lancey and Mrs. Stephen Durkee are coordinating the event with the aid of Miss Lucille Tucker, who is working with choreography.

Singing Finals, Ballet Will Open Festivities

By ELIZABETH GODDARD
Executive Editor

All the world is a stage and particularly Syracuse this weekend.

Step singing finals at 7 tonight on the library steps will officially open Spring Weekend 1954, dedicated to Boar's Head's fiftieth anniversary.

OTHER FEATURES OF tonight's program will include the traditional lantern ceremony in which the garduating women pass on the symbol of their seniority to the juniors, and Syrafin's water ballet.

This new swim pageant is titled "World Premier" and the swimmers will perform in the Women's Building pool to an international theme. The show starts at 8:30 p.m.

Another curtain will be going up at the Astor theater at that time when the senior class will present their third performance of "Up in Lights," the O'Kun and Angelos musical revue.

HERALDS ON horseback will awaken the campus at 7 a.m. tomorrow announcing the start of a full day's festivities.

Breakfast and strawberries will be served from 8 to 9:30 a.m. in Sims dining hall as Syracusans are treated to "Strawberries with the Stars."

Formal inauguration of MSG and WSG officers will take place at 8:45 a.m. in the alumni lounge of the Women's Building.

Bruce Yancey, representing the three senior honoraries sponsoring the weekend, will plant a Japanese cherry tree besides Sims at 9:45. The tree is a gift to the students of the University.

OFFICERS OF major campus organizations will be introduced to the campus at 10 a.m. on the library steps. The senior thesis and frosh lid will be burned as Chancellor Tolley officially moves up the classes leaving the seniors in a state of limbo until graduation.

William Angelos will serve as master of ceremonies for the first parade. More than fifty entries will pass by the reviewing stands, all using the theme: There's No Business Like Show Business."

A herald on horseback will precede the entrance of the Spring Weekend queen and her court. They will be accompanied by the members of Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, co-sponsor of the weekend with the two mens honoraries.

THE QUEEN and her attendants will reign over the pageant in the Thornden Park ampitheater.

Step Singing Finals Are Opening Event Of Spring Weekend

By DIANA DAHLMAN

Four houses will compete in the finals of Spring Weekend's annual Step Singing contest at 7 p.m. today on the Library steps. The first of the scheduled events for the weekend, it will be opened by Anne Forest, Eta Pi Upsilon contest chairman.

The four groups singing are Sigma Kappa and Pi Beta Phi in the large group division, with Butler cottage and Winchell Waitresses in the small house division.

SIGMA ALPHA Iota, women's professional music honorary, who co-sponsors the contest with Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, officially opens and closes the contest. They have chosen "Inviolata" by Gounod as their selection for the finals of the contest. Patricia Paluso will conduct the group.

Judges for the evening are Mrs. Herman Beyle, and Professors Frank Hakanson and Arthur Poiter. Mrs. Beyle is a Sigma Alpha Iota patroness. Professor Hakanson is a voice instructor in the School of Music and also the conductor of the University Chorus. He has also received national honors conducting the local unit of the American Legion.

Professor Poister is an organ instructor in the school of music. He is better known as the director of the Hendrick's Chapel choir. Houses will be judged on deportment, appearance, rhythm, pitch, balance, tone quality, choice of song, ennunciation, attack and interpretation.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER the singing, the Lantern ceremony will be held. At the close of this event, the newly formed "mass" chorus will sing the Syracuse Alma Mater. Miss Forrest will conduct the group.

Houses represented in this chorus are: Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Alpha Phi, Delta Zeta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Phi Mu, Alpha Omicron Pi, Sigma Kappa, Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Delta, Alpha Xi Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Delta Gamma, Theta Phi Alpha, Haven Hall, and Kappa Alpha Theta in the large house division.

In the small house division are:

Yancey to Set Tree Outside of Sims

The planting of a Japanese cherry tree outside of Sims Dining Hall will take place at 9:45 a.m., Saturday.

The tree, which will be planted by Bruce Yancey, was sent here by a Japanese university as a token of appreciation for a fund started by chapel fellowship groups to build a special house on the Tokyo campus.

Miss Ruth Hoople of the Hendricks Chapel staff said the living center will be called Syracuse House and will be the residence of American instructors and professors who teach at Japanese Christian University.

Japanese students showed their appreciation for the cooperation and interest in them by presenting the tree to Syracuse University.

Those attending the Saturday morning "Strawberries With The Stars," will be able to watch the planting of the tree from their tables in Sims.

This year's tickets for the morning event will be star shaped in keeping with the weekend theme.

Pat Fay, chairman of the breakfast, said that the ducats, which are selling for 75 cents, are going very fast and may not be available at the door.

The Strawberry Breakfast has been a tradition of many past Spring Weekends and is one of the favored highlights. Lambda Sigma Sigma and Eta Pi Upsilon, honoraries, are supplying the waitresses.

Applications Set For Draft Exam

Applications for the May 20 selective service college qualification test are now available in the office of the Dean of Men, Earle W. Clifford, assistant dean of men, announced yesterday. They must be postmarked by Monday at the latest.

Clifford urged all students who have not yet taken the exam to do so, regardless of their class standing or ROTC deferment. The purpose of the test, he said, is to give everyone who turned 18 since the last exam an opportunity to take it during this academic year.

HE STRESSED that waiting to take it at a later date usually works against the student, because of specialization in college.

To be eligible, a student must be a selective service registrant and must be pursuing a full-time college course. The test may be taken only once. It provides evidence for local draft boards when considering a student for deferment.

Undergraduates must score at least 70 in order to be eligible for deferment on the basis of the exam. Graduates need to score 75 for consideration.

Musical Continues Performance

"EH, ZAZU PIZZA." Funnyman Bob Dishy delivers some rounded Italian dialogue to Teri Seidman in "Scooter Thief," one of many humorous skits in "Up in Lights." The original revue will be presented today and Saturday on the stage of the Astor theater.

By DICK CASE

The golden anniversary celebration of Boar's Head dramatic society will take form on the stage of the Astor theater today and tomorrow as the original musical revue, "Up in Lights," continues a four-day run.

Offered by campus dramatic activities in cooperation with the class of 1954, the two-hour production is presented in conjunction with the Spring Weekend overall theme, "All the World's Stage." The entire weekend has been dedicated to Boar's Head's golden anniversary.

THE CURTAIN for today's performance of "Up in Lights" will rise at 8:15 p.m. The Saturday showing will begin at 7:30 p.m. in order to allow couples to attend the senior ball, final attraction of the weekend.

Tickets for the two performances are available at the Astor boxoffice. Reservations are no longer being accepted but ducats may be obtained on a cash basis.

"Up in Lights" which opened Wednesday, features a cast of 60 students. Prof. Sawyer Falk, director of dramatic activities on campus, is supervising the entire production which is directed by Gerald Leider. The book was written by William Dixon and William Levine.

WORDS AND music for the production have been written by Harland (Lanny) O'Kun and William Angelos. O'Kun is musical director of the revue and Angelos plays an important role in the cast. Mario Forte is costume designer and Anita Khanzadian is choreographer.

Scenery and lights are under the direction of John J. Moore, Peter Forward, Barbara Baird and Jane Esmay. Gilbert Cates is stage manager.

Critical reception to "Up in Lights" by local newspaper reviewers was generally good. Representatives of Variety and Billboard magazines as well as area publications were among first nighters.

THE SATURDAY evening audience will include representatives of Ward-Villani productions of New York which is filming portions of "Up in Lights" for the proposed television series "Varsity USA."

Final arrangements will be made this weekend with Ward-Villani for the filming which will be done early in June on Long Island. The proposed video series will feature 26 weeks of top college productions. "Up in Lights" is slated to be one of the first five presented.

Large production numbers in the revue include "Show Business," "Hayride," "Stop, Look and Love Your Lady," and "Trip to the Moon."

"WILLY LOMAN and the Farmers Daughter," "Scooter Thief," "Party Poopers," "When in Rome" and "From Here to Pre-Fab 16" are among the skits. Special materials include "Tip That Halo," "Turnabout," "Continental Acrobats" and "And the Walls Came Tumbling Down."

"Marshall Streep Mope," a dance-production number dedicated to the popular campus broadwalk, is one of the show's top numbers.

"Up in Lights" has optioned the Astor for a possible extension of the run into next weekend. No desicison as to whether the production will run at that time was available at press time. If ticket sales warrant, the run will be extended. Plans have also been made by Boar's Head to reopen the Greek comedy "Lysistrata" next weekend.

Special long-playing recordings of 11 tunes from "Up in Lights" will be available in the lobby of the Astor theater during each performance. Priced at $3, the disk was recorded by the cast and includes "Love Me Easy," "Left-over Girl" and "It Can't Be Too Hard," among other selections.

Spring on the Syracuse Stage

Spring will star on the Syracuse stage as the weekend festivities get under way tonight.

Traditions, pulled out of closets, dusted off and polished up for their current appearances, will play a prominent part in the activities line-up for the three days. Whenever we plan something special we seem to look to the past for assistance. Nostalgia has an important place in this weekend which represents the culmination of a year's social events.

Moving-up ceremonies, the exchange of lanterns, the annual pageant and strawberry breakfast all have their origins in the past. Few of us could trace them to their exact beginnings and fewer of us would want to. And yet they are an integral part of the festivities.

A healthy respect for the past and a delight in its contributions is a valuable asset to any community. Spring Weekend 1954 offers an interesting combination of tradition and originality that provides a fresh and sparkling experience even to the jaded seniors.

Aptly titled "World Premiere," the swim show will offer something new to Syracusans seeking entertainment. The latest creations of campus artists will be on exhibition at Lowe Art Center. Act IV makes its contribution to originality by way of imported collegiate talent and perfume favors.

Returning alums will be introduced to the wonders and marvels of the still new Women's Building which will be a center of activities for many of the events.

Each float in tomorrow's parade, while recalling some production that has passed its opening night, will be an obvious example of the ingenuity of today's students.

This morning it all lies ahead of us—this combination of past and current talents for enjoyment in the present. These three days are a timeless sort of experience that need no setting in reality.

For freshmen it will be their first chance to test the truth of the fabulous stories told by upperclassmen. Sophomores can catch up on all they overlooked last year. Juniors, pressed by the thought that there's only one more left, will be sure to "make the most of it."

And the seniors . . . the seniors will enjoy their last suspension in time and space before the harrying rush of finals, graduation and plans for the future close in on them.

To aid them in their achievement of this special sensation Chancellor Tolley will place them in a state of limbo early tomorrow morning.

So what can we say but "Relax and have a wonderful time."

To the weekend committees who are praying for sunshine we can only offer that wishing will make it so. They broke the four-minute mile, didn't they?

I Hold These Truths...

By JOAN NADELHAFT
Daily Orange Drama Critic

A creed to live by must be a personal thing. It is too easy to adopt a ready-made code, and follow it slavishly.

When the average individual is asked why this is allowed, or that is forbidden, he has no answer. He just does things that way because it is the path of least resistance.

It is hard work to think about a code for personal living and even harder to follow it, once it is formulated.

Part of the confusion of our generation, deplored by the last one, is due to this unwillingness to do some original thinking. A person sees hundreds of conflicting ideals, and doesn't know which to believe. Hence the confusion.

However, once the thinking is done, if it is done, the way is not easy. In fact, the path gets harder from then on. Following one's own chosen way is difficult, particularly when it deviates from the "accepted thing."

People are naturally social, and often a thinking individual has to face the loneliness which comes from practicing a firm set of convictions.

However, close friends, the ones who really count, will understand, or not understanding, make allowances. They do not condemn the individual for his beliefs—perhaps they seek him out because of them.

A real friendship goes beyond the opinion of people at large—it is not subject to public censure or praise.

So, the non-conformist, as that is what thinking people usually become, will have friends, but not as many as he would have if he followed convention—or what passes as the things to do at the moment.

Doing the "proper thing," and walking the accepted path is not the difficult task it is often painted. Rather it takes courage to say and do what one believes, regardless of public pressure.

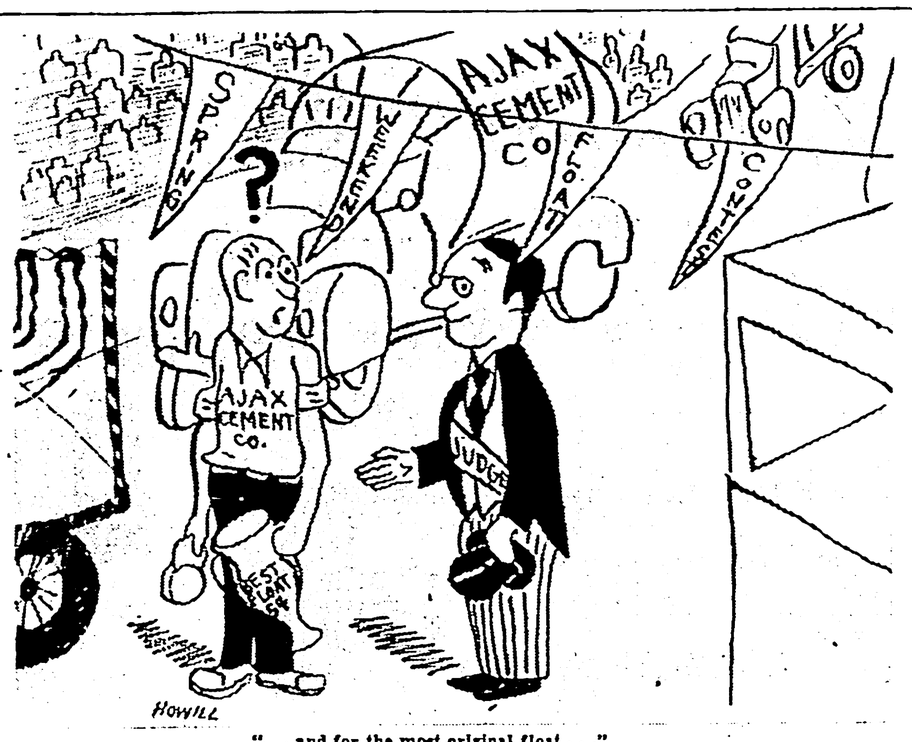
It is much easier to do as others do—or as one is told to do by the group. "Temptation" may develop to lead the virtuous one astray, and he may feel he is being noble by resisting it, but it is really fear of public conviction which keeps most people from doing what they wish to. Fear, and a lack of strong conviction.

The person with the thought-out, defined moral creed is a serene individual, providing he believes what he does is right, and is behaving according to reason, not emotion.

The essential basis for behaving according to a personal code is the belief that the creed is moral and correct.

Human beings are essentially good, and personal creeds are good by definition—provided the individual in question is mentally healthy. A twisted mind formulates a twisted creed—a sane mind, a sane one.

The hardships are hundred-fold, but the rewards beyond all imagining—a clear outlook and the serenity that comes from a mind at peace with itself. We need more people like that these days.



"... and for the most original float ..."

To all mothers everywhere: HAPPY MOTHER'S DAY! Especially to mothers of students presently slaving over two term papers and a few miscellaneous exams, who think constantly of you but sometimes just forget to write the things they'd like to, go the most sincere and loving greetings.

AT THE FLICKERS

Monroe Talent In This Picture Is Only Scenic

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Film Critic

The Paramount theater has, in its last two bookings, demonstrated a concern for female charm that is indeed admirable. Unfortunately, it has demonstrated no such concern for quality, and its current film, "River of No Return," is almost as bad as the earlier "The French Line." The new offering is a routine western, whose only virtue is the scenic appeal of the Rockies and Marilyn Monroe.

If the new film manages to be intermittently exciting it is only because it confronts its hero with enough obstacles to suggest that it is a revival of "Perils of Pauline." Robert Mitchum faces, in turn, a thief, wild Indians, a mountain lion, surging rapids, marauding prospectors and—Marilyn Monroe. Miss Monroe is responsible for his defeat. She walks off with him crawling behind her, even if he makes every pretense at being the victor.

While not wanting to disparage Miss Monroe's obvious charms (and indeed, who could) her acting is simply terrible. The minor flaws that went unnoticed in previous film are painfully apparent here. These consist of a speech pattern with an emphasis on consonants that would frighten the wits out of a speech therapist, a complete inability to walk two feet without sufficient hip-swaying to outfit all the vicious females in all the film ever made, a pursing and wetting of the lips before every breath and a tendency to read every line as if it were an invitation. Were she appearing in an exotic setting, all this would be very nice. On a raft, however, it is slightly out of place.

It must be said that all of the guilt for this ridiculous display must not fall on Miss Monroe's shoulders. The director, Otto Premminger is at fault. He seems never to have made up his mind as to whether his film was a western or a sex opus. He has Miss Monroe appear on the raft in jeans by Travilia and douses her with water until said jeans fit like a second skin. He has her being wiped down by Mr. Mitchum, in one scene, with only a thin blanket between her and censorship and in another he has them wrestle with no holds barred. Did someone say the cinema is an art form?

Through Senior Eyes: Thesis Fire Tradition

By ART SIEGEL

Tradition and its pomp arrive tonight. Spring weekend is here, and with it the thoughts of revelry, excitement, happiness, and—the senior.

This time the thesis is burning for him! He can hardly believe it as he watches them burn the senior thesis on the library steps. Now he's in a state of limbo. What a hilarious state to be in, he thinks. He is done—graduated—commenced.

But not quite.

Finals still loom before him. Especially the one in abnormal psych. That'll be a tough one.

But just the idea of it. Four long years—ended—done—kaput.

Someone else standing there watching the thesis burn has a slightly different idea on the subject. For him, four happy and profitable years are becoming only memories with each flicker of the flame.

The thesis burns ever brighter. So do the seniors' memories.

One thinks about all the thousands of hours he spent in the Dutch Haven. Gosh, that's quite a few hours. Where will I spend them the next few years? Probably in a fox-hole. But I'll remember the Dutch Haven. I'll probably never see it again, he thinks to himself.

And that girl, thinks another one. The thesis—mostly ashes now, begins to curl and the crowd is cheering. That girl! It would be just my luck to meet her during my last year!

Another one. To him—or to her—it's a great life. Sure, I'll miss the Hill, but look at this job I've got! Look—$390 a month. I'm sitting on top of it all. They really recognize talent, I guess. What a job!

The thesis is only ashes now. The cheers end and the ashes blow away. Setting on cornices and windows of all the campus buildings.

For some the joyride is over; and for some it was never a joyride. To most, this little ceremony seems to put the "Finis" mark on it all.

But the guy who gets the biggest thrill out of the weekend—before he goes off to celebrate at the ball and the float parade and the dance pageant—is the guy who feels he's accomplished something—who looks at a picture taken when he graduated from high school and then thinks of himself now . . .

And thinks to himself, "Veni, vidi, vici."

This is it, kiddies. This, to paraphrase Eliot, this is the way college ends—with a bang to some, a sigh to others.

Told In First Person: Life of A White Buck

By GEORGE MEEK

I'm an unhappy little white buck. That's me. Since it's early in the morning and my master isn't up yet, I can tell you my troubles.

Although I'm only a young shoe as shoes go, I'm so old and ragged looking that I'm ashamed to be seen any more. I look almost like black suede. My brother, who passes me on the street quite regularly, is just as dirty as I am.

When my master bought me and took me home, I thought sure he'd take care of me. He was so proud of me the first few days, but then he started neglecting me. He just took me for granted.

I was scuffed up on stairs all the way from the Women's building to HL. Boy, did it hurt! If I had blood inside of me I would have bled. He wore me in the rain, too. The rain wasn't too bad itself—it cleaned me off a little—but the mud was intolerable.

I can't go to dances anymore, because I'm too dirty. I'm not even sure I want to go after what happened to me at my first dance. My brother and I were gliding tranquilly along when our master's date stepped on us. She kept doing it, too. I thought I'd die! Think how you'd feel if you were in my position.

What's that? You don't know how a shoe would feel? Please try to understand.

Another thing I don't like is being thrown all over the room at bedtime. When I get off my master's smelly old tootsies after a hard day's work, I'd like to sit quietly by my brother. But I can't, 'cause I'm thrown helter skelter all over the place. It's awful!

I wish I were repaired regularly. It's hard to do my best job when my heels are run down, but my boss forgets this.

Getting scuffed, thrown, stepped on, and neglected, that's my lot. I just wish my master had a little more consideration after all the nice places I've taken him.

Theater; Legit, Cinema; Dance For Weekend

By MICHAEL BRAUN

LEGITIMATE THEATER

Astor Theater

The dormant Astor theater comes to life this weekend to the shuffle of dancing feet and melodious singing. When the kids down at the Astor aren't bursting into song they're expounding on the theory that "clapboards are perpendicular, and so are you."

Directed by Gerry Lieder, "Up in Lights" sports a cast of 60. Particularly outstanding are Bob Dishy and his tumbling act; Greta Wolff singing "I Fell in Love With You Again;" Helen Hurdis directing a feminine football team in a brassy manner and Margaret Brust doing just about anything.

Performances are tonight at 8:15 p.m. and tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are priced from $1.25 to $2.50 and may be obtained at the Astor box office.

THE DANCE

According to the folks on the committee, center stage this weekend will not be anyplace, but any place, but Syracuse U. Indeed not. This coveted position will be occupied for the first act by the aforementioned "Up in Lights," and at 9 p.m. by the Senior Ball, which the interested ones have affectionately, and quite appropriately titled "Act IV."

MOTION PICTURES

Loew's State

The boys at MGM must have looked in their crystal balls and decided that it was now or never. Anyway, they've really gone all out to bring us "Executive Suite." The picture stars 9—count 'em—9 of the finest stars from the MGM stable. The story's mediocre but who cares when Barbara Stanwyck, William Holden, June Allyson et als are in it. Feature at 6:29 and 9:56 p.m. Something called "Steel Lady" will be shown as a respite at 4:59 and 8:26 p.m.

Schines' Eckel

"A Place in the Sun" starring Elizabeth Taylor, Montgomery Clift and Shelley Winters shows just what occurs when you know what happens. Also showing is "Shane" or "please come out of the west and be my great white father." Starring in this are Alan Ladd, Jean Arthur, Van Heflin and Brandon de Wilde. Feature at 4 p.m. and 8:20 p.m., Friday. On Saturday "The Bigamist" with Ida Lupino and "Heat Wave." Feature at 7:40 and 10:10 p.m.

RKO Keiths

People just like to be scared. Attesting to this is the audience that "Murder in the Rue Morgue" is receiving. This is for you if you're the type that likes murder in three dimensions. Feature at 7:00 and 10:00 p.m. Also showing is "The Prisoner of the Casbah" which is just as any other picture with a similiar title should be. This is being shown at 6:52 and 9:52 p.m.

Schines' Paramount

Ever since "How to Marry a Millionaire" closed, some of the boys have been restless. "When is that dish Marilyn Monroe going to appear in the movies, and in CinemaScope yet?" they inquire. Well fellas, here's your chance. "River of No Return" boasts the presence of la Monroe and, as an added attraction for the ladies, Robert Mitchum. The story takes place in the far West. Feature at 8:05 and 9:55 p.m.

Midtown

"Their love was a smoldering passion, just like the island where it existed," scream the ads. Anna Magnani lives on a volcano in this one, appropriately titled "Voleano." To carry this a little further (and much to our dismay, the director does) "Volcano" is an eruptive love on an eruptive isle. Feature at 7:08 and 9:30 p.m. From volcanos the other picture takes us to the not so infamable north to view "Alaskan Eskimo" at 6:30 and 8:55 p.m.

Draft Exam Planning Stresses Equality Goal

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Director

Making up the selective service college qualification tests administered three times per year by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J. takes more work than might be assumed at first.

The exams are given in November, April, and the third exam of this academic year is scheduled for May 20, with the deadline for postmarking applications set for this Monday, May 10.

ETS doesn't just sit down and pull a handful of questions out of a hat, the Selective Service monthly bulletin notes.

The questions must be gathered, tested, and then carefully considered by the planning group to insure that each test is well balanced between verbal, reading and mathematical questions. Each must be precisely equal in difficulty to previous tests.

The three divisions at ETS, which also administers college entrance examinations, are composed of college graduates. The questions are reviewed and criticized by other writers and are then tried out on non-draft eligible students of college caliber.

The questions are thus analyzed for relative difficulty. Lack of clarity, or too high or low a percentage answering correctly will cause the question to be thrown out.

The question categories are split up so that a student not finishing the test within the allotted three hours will have an opportunity to work with at least part of each of the three types.

When the test is ready to be printed it is sent under armed guard to an unnamed printing plant. It is printed secretly and a careful accounting is made of every printed page, including page proofs.

Test booklets are numbered and shipped to the 1,000 testing centers. The exam books are counted carefully before and after the exam, which is taken behind locked doors. Everyone taking the test is thumbprinted.

Explicit instructions are given and the exam is taken in complete silence. So exact are the testing rules that no matter what time the test actually begins, the supervisors must set their classroom clocks at 9 and end the exam exactly at 12.

The only item about the qualification test which is not exact is that a student cannot be sure he will be deferred, even though he scores a passing grade of 70 or over (75 is passing for graduate students).

Scores on the test do not of themselves determine eligibility for deferment, but are used by local selective service boards in considering a registrant for an occupational deferment as a student.

'53 Float Almost Got to Parade, Except for $$$

Comes the day of the spring float tomorrow and we will reflect just a few short minutes on the try one independent house made last year toward entering the annual classic.

Seems that a sophomore, reflecting that the floats were traditionally on trucks appearing several stone's throws long, would be provided by, as he put it in the application, "a two-wheeled, human-powered device for transporting oneself," or as more commonly known, a bicycle.

The plans were complete. Others in the dormitory began to show interest. The day was awaited.

The bubble of expectancy was burst by a phone call from the float parade chairman. The decorated two-wheeler never got to the festive route. Seems there was an entry fee and the men withdrew.

Parade to Feature Show Titles, Ideas

By JACK REILLY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

It'll be the march of floats tomorrow when the campus takes a trip in the annual float parade, colorful highlights of the 1954 Spring Weekend, "All the World's a Stage."

Forty-nine sororities, fraternities, living centers, and organizations will join in the Hill caravan, based on the parade theme, "There's No Business Like Show Business."

THE EVENT will begin at 10:30 a.m., or immediately after the Moving-up day part of the ceremony. However, all floats must be in proper order at Hendricks Field at 10 a.m.

The parade will begin at the main library, head down College Pl. and turn down Walnut Ave. From there, the route leads across E. Adams and up to Walnut Pl. Finally, it will go down University Pl. and stop at the Corner Store.

At this point, the top three floats in each of four categories will be selected. Only those 12 floats will pass along the route for the second time.

ETA PI Upsilon will donate the prize for the most beautiful float, one of the four categories. Tau Theta Upsilon will present a cup for the most original idea. The best all-around entry will receive the Phi Kappa Alpha award, while Panhel's cup will go to the funniest entry.

Last year's winners were Sigma Phi Epsilon, best all-around; Zeta Tau Alpha, most beautiful; Phi Kappa Psi, most original and Pi Lambda Phi, funniest.

Among this year's entries are "Red Shoes," Chi Omega; "Gone With the Wind," Alpha Tau Omega; "Birth of a Nation," Alpha Chi Omega; "Carousel," Alpha Epsilon Phi; "Peter Pan," Alpha Phi; "Finian's Rainbow," Sigma Tau Delta; "Les Beauz Arts Ball," Gamma Phi Beta; "Cover Girl," Phi Sigma Sigma; and "Wizard of Oz," Zeta Psi.

ALSO, "THE Reluctant from Mr. Roberts," Theta Chi; "Footlight Fantasy," Kappa Delta; "Night and Day," Sigma Delta Tau; "Swan Lake," Kappa Alpha Theta; "Midsummer Night's Dream," Iota Alpha Pi; "By the Beautiful Sea."; Sigma Kappa; "Caesar and Cleopatra," Phi Kappa Tau; "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Kappa Kappa Gamma; "African Queen," Phi Delta Theta; "Show Biz," Alpha Xi Delta; and "Showboat," Kappa Sigma.

Others include "Ondine," Alpha Delta Pi; "Paint Your Wagon," Delta Upsilon; "The King and I," Lambda Chi Alpha; "Disney Land" Theta Phi Alpha; "Bali Hai," Delta Zeta; "Creature from the Black Lagoon," Pi Alpha Chi; "Joan of Arc," Alpha Omicron Pi; "Oscar," Delta Tau Delta; "Lili," Shaw; "Salute to 3-D," Tau Epsilon Pi; and "Faust," Alpha Gamma Delta.

Also "Quo Vadis," Sigma Alpha Epsilon; "Brigadoon," Delta Gamma; "That Old Black Magic," City Men; "Tom Sawyer," Delta Delta Delta; "Snow White and Seven Dwarfs," Alpha Chi Rho; "Antony and Cleopatra," Psi Upsilon; "Tales of Hoffman," Zeta Tau Alpha; "This is the Army," Sigma Chi; and "The Wild One," Zeta Beta Tau.

IN ADDITION, "Medea," Phi Mu; "Personalities," Omega Pi Alpha; "The Moon is Blue," Pi Beta Phi; "The Greatest Show on Earth," Phi Gamma Delta; "Stalag 17," Tau Delta Phi; "Hell's Angels," Phi Kappa Psi; and "Diamonds are a Girl's Best Friend," Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Judges for the contest will be Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith Associate Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford and Sylvia Wyckoff, George VanderSluis, Dean Carleton Krathwohl and Frank Goodenow of the School of Art.

The parade will be televised by the University television center through the facilities of WSYR-TV.

PERSONALITY'S THE thing, and the voice of BILL ANGELOS will be heard tomorrow morning when he emcees the Float Parade.

Morris Will Present Composition Recital

Franklin Morris of the School of Music faculty will present a composition recital at 4 p.m. Sunday in Crouse Auditorium. He will be assisted by Harvey Smith-Spencer, tenor, and Adrienne Galimir, violinist.

The programs, which will be free of charge, will contain a variety of selections for piano, voice and quartet, and string trio.

"BOSTON SONATA for Piano" produced by Morris last year will open the program. The allegro and adagio movements will be played. "Sonata for Violin and Piano," which contains alegro moderato and andante movements, will be played by Morris and Miss Galimir.

Morris' "Trio Sonata for Oboe, Violin, Cello and Piano" which was written in 1953, will be next on the program. Morris will be assisted by Louis Krasner, violin; Wilfred Burkle, oboe and Alfred Ozolins, cello.

The final grouping in Sunday afternoon's concert will be six Robert Frost poems for tenor and string quartet, composed by Morris, this year. Smith-Spencer will sing, and the quartet will be made up of Ozolins, Miss Galimir on the second violin, Claude Bortel on the viola and Louis Krasner, first violin.

THE SIX songs which will be presented are "The Sound of the Trees," "Prayer in Spring," "Departmental", "Stopping by the Woods on a Snowy Evening," and "Wind and Window Flower," and "My November—Guest."

Morris was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology with a Ph.D in organic chemistry. After several years as a research chemist, he switched to music and studied composition with Walter Piston at Harvard and Paul Hindemith at Yale.

At present he is an instructor in music theory and a history in the School of Music.

Sunday's concert will be followed by the final one of this year's series, a program by the University Symphony Orchestra at 4 p.m. Sunday, May 16.

Hark! The Heralds Begin Playing In the Coming Morn

If what occurred in past years holds true tomorrow morning, the official start of Spring Weekend will pass unnoticed by all except a scattering of insomaniacs.

The sleepless ones will see the "heralds on horseback" that traditionally open the weekend festivities at 7 a.m. Dorianne Bright, the new president of Women's Student Government will be astride the first mount.

Her horse will be led by Mary Ann Dalton, the outgoing WSG chief. Miss Bright and the other three riders will be wearing jodphurs and riding habit.

They will start the procession at the Women's building. From there they will proceed along Comstock ave. to Marshall st., turn left to Walnut ave., left along Walnut to Waverly ave., right to So. Crouse, left to University pl., left along University pl. to College pl., left along Euclid ave. to Comstock ave.

The women will then proceed to Sim dining hall for the traditional strawberry breakfast. The meal is called "Breakfast with the Stars." The early awakening by the heralds is ostensibly to remind us that Hollywood arises at 7 a.m.

Alarm clocks will not be a necessity because the coeds will carry bugles which they will sound intermittently.

When questioned as to what tune they would play, Judith Perry, president of the Social Chairmen's Assembly, replied:

"Reveille, I guess. That would probably be the most appropriate."

Student Visitors Tell of Projects

Thirty-three New York high school students will be the guests of Syracuse University this weekend to describe the results of their recent research projects in the fields of chemistry, physics and biology.

The occasion is the third annual New York State Science Congress, sponsored by the New York State Science Teachers Association. Dr. Alfred T. Collette, assistant professor of science education, is the chairman of the local arrangements committee.

EACH STUDENT will present an exhibit and give a talk on his particular project from 2-5 p.m. on Friday or from 9-12 a.m. on Saturday in Gym A of the Women's Building. The public is invited to view the exhibits and hear the talks.

Six of the students will be chosen to receive four-year full-tuition scholarships. Twenty-three colleges and universities, including Syracuse, are offering scholarships to the winners, who will be announced at an awards banquet Saturday evening in Shaw dormitory.

The participants and their proctors will live in fraternity and sorority houses during their two-day stay on campus.

Senior Show Music Given by WAER

Personalities and music from the musical revue, "Up in Lights," will be featured on "Saturday Matinee," heard 4-5 p.m. tomorrow over FM radio station WAER.

THE THIRD HERD stampedes again tomorrow when WOODY HERMAN and his men of music provide dance tunes for the Senior Ball, scheduled from 9-1 a.m. in Gym A of the Women's Building. Act IV is the theme of this year's promenade.

Lantern Ceremony Planned for Tonight

Each year a special ceremony is held by junior and senior women chosen for outstanding scholarship, service and extracurricular activities.

It is called, simply, a lantern ceremony but it means more than just an exchange of lanterns.

The senior women, wearing grey gowns, will arrive at the Library steps at 7:30 p.m. complete with lanterns. Here, after singing a song, they give the lanterns to the junior women, dressed in white blouses and dark skirts.

SYMBOLIZING THE seniority of the graduating girls, the lanterns are passed on to the junior women each year at this ceremony.

Last year, the ceremony was cancelled because of rain. This year, however, should it rain, it will be held in the alumni lounge of the Women's building. In 1952, the ceremony was part of the Stadium Open House which is no longer held.

Senior women participating include first sopranos: Jean Mosley, Inga Loeb, Joan Wallick, Lois Allen, Joan Nadelhaft, Lois Primas, Barbara Rosenberg, Ann Soulen, Patricia Ellenberger, Dee Shober, Marjorie Clyne, Patricia Saxton, June Vine, Edna Reynolds.

FIRST ALTOS: Roma Yellon, Jane Russell, Elaine Achber, Carol Zeiger, Arlene Swertfager, Emily McPartland, Constance Talbot, Ellen Riece, Sally Ann Belt.

Second altos: Gwen Mahle, Pamela Lasky, Nancy Walker, Miriam Heller, Phyllis Deming, Blanche Krischer.

FIRST ALTOS are: Marcia Sank, Christine Wulfetange, Elizabeth Bowman, Lois Cohn, Gabrielle Frankel, Ann McKaig, Adele Cunningham, Margot Erskine, Elaine Kiebala, Barbara Watson, Eileen Chamberlain.

Pink Clouds for Ball

Twelve trees from Skytop have been covered with 2 gallons of white paint for use as decorations at the Senior Ball. Cheese cloth, 4,200 feet of it, will be transformed into pink clouds suspended by 2,000 feet of rope.

Quad Concert Set By Symphonic Band

The University Symphonic Band's contribution to Spring Weekend will be an outdoor concert at 3 p.m. Sunday on the quad. The concert which will consist of "spring-like" music, will be the final event in the weekend.

Under the direction of Dr. Harwood Simmons, the band will play show music, pop tunes and marches. Kenneth Fredericks, graduate assistant, will conduct the band.

IN CASE of inclement weather, the program will take place in the Men's gymnasium.

The program will open and close with Sousa marches. The first selection will be "Hands Across the Sea," and the final one "Stars and Stripes Forever."

The second selection will be the overture to the Broadway musical "Guys and Dolls." This will be followed by a promenade by Anderson and a march, "His Honor," by Fillmore.

THE BAND will play a selection from another musical, Rogers and Hammerstein's "Me and Juliet." Fillmore's march "Rolling Thunder, will be next.

Three sections of Bennett's "Suite of Old American Dances," Cake Walk, Schottische, and Western One-Step will be played.

American Attention Drawn to New French Peace Plan

WASHINGTON—A four point plan providing for communist withdrawal in Indo-China has been brought to the attention of American officials. The Geneva Conference will reportedly take up the Indo-China problem following final ratification of arrangements for the meeting, by the Communists.

McCARTHY vs. BROWNELL

WASHINGTON — Disregarding Attorney General Brownell's warning that disclosure of an F.B.I. report about communist infiltration into the Army would not be "in the public interest," Senator McCarthy not only states that he will make public part of the copy, but also requests the rest of the "sequence" from the F.B.I.

VERDICT HANDED DOWN

SAN FRANCISCO — Harold Jackson and Joseph Lear were sentenced to death yesterday for the kidnapping of real estate man Leonard Moskovitz, last January. Kidnapping and inflicting bodily harm automatically requires the death penalty.

LIE DETECTOR USED

LA CROSSE, WISCONSIN—In a desperate attempt to track down the disappearance of 15-year-old baby sitter, Evelyn Hartley, police gave lie detector tests to a score of high school students and two teachers yesterday. The police are prepared to test 17,000 boys in the town's high school and local college, if necessary.

Step Singing . . .

IMMEDIATELY AFTER the singing of the Alma Mater, the decision of the judges will be announced. Natalie Goldman, president of Sigma Alpha Iota will award the cups to the winners.

Sigma Kappa is singing "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings" by Samuel Liddle. The piece is based on the 84th psalm. Jean Mosley is their conductor.

Marcia Mulligan is Pi Beta Phi conductor. They have selected another piece with a religious theme, "Hear My Prayer" by Will James.

"BLACK IS the Color of My True Love's Hair," arranged by John Niles will be sung by Winchell Waitresses. Expressing the sad folksongs of the Kentucky Hills, the piece is conducted by Barbara Peck.

Robert Katchen's "When Day Is Done" was selected by Butler cottage for their song. Nancy Nichols is the group's director.

Step singing is one of the oldest traditions of Spring Weekend. It began in 1926 with six houses competing. This year nearly 50 houses participated.

'Cat' Cavalla Plays At Jazz Concert

Jimmy Cavallo and his jazz band will be the featured entertainers this Sunday from 2-5 p.m. at an all-University Jazz Concert which is being given at Beta Sigma Rho, 736 Comstock Avenue.

The Jazz concert, at which refreshments will be served, is an open affair and everyone is invited to attend. It is part of Beta Sig's fourth anniversary weekend.

Cavallo, who has become one of the most popular entertainers on the Hill this year will perform with his quintet, featuring "Diz" on the tenor saxaphone.

Piety Crew Underdog for Carnegie Cup

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's varsity crew will be cast in the role of the definite underdog tomorrow when Cornell, Princeton, Yale and the Orange clash in the important Carnegie Cup races on Ithaca's Lake Cayuga.

Five Hill crews will make the short journey to the Big Red campus for a full afternoon's program of rowing. Coach Gus Eriksen's junior varsity and third varsity oarsmen will accompany the number one Saltine boat-load while frosh Coach Mike Michalson's first and second yearling eights will compete.

CORNELL'S POWERFUL varsity, a driving second to the championship Navy crew in last weekend's regatta on Onondaga Lake is rated the favorite in the feature race for the Carnegie Cup.

Coach Stork Sanford's boat, stroked by the peerless Pete Sparhawk, is composed mainly of sophomores. The Cornellians, therefore, should improve greatly with experience. But off the performance of the Big Red here last week, any improvement should make them a champion crew.

Cornell battled the undefeated Middie shell all the way down the Onondaga course and only a spurt by the Annapolis crew in the last hundred yards beat the Ithacans. Wisconsin, usually a rowing power, was almost three lengths behind the Red at the finish with Boston U. and Syracuse trailing far back.

YALE, A CLOSE second to Pennsylvania last week, will be making its second start of the season. The Elis finished ahead of Columbia and less than a length behind the Quakers in their opener.

Princeton lost to Navy in its season-opener. The Nassau also lost to Penn while finishing ahead of Columbia in a three-way regatta.

Syracuse will be trying to regain some of the prestige lost in the fifth-place finish last week. The Piety oarsmen gave Navy a spirited battle before losing by two and one-half lengths to the Midshipmen two weeks ago. But the last place position in the home regatta last Saturday was disheartening.

THERE WILL probably be one change in the Hill varsity boating. Dick Nichols will replace the ailing Rog Parfitt in the number seven seat. The other positions are only tentative, but in the first two races, Coach Eriksen went with Ollie Richards in bow, Bob Curran, number two; Gerry Baule, number three; Neil Gutchess, number four; Al Clark, number five; Ham Dixon, number six; and Ray Rogers at stroke. Jack Cooper has been the varsity coxswain in the opening races.

If the varsity springs an upset and beats its Ivy League opponents, the Carnegie Cup will go to the second-place finisher. Syracuse, competing upon invitation, is not eligible to win the cup, historically symblomatic of crew supremacy among Cornell, Princeton and Yale.

The Orange JV boat will also be an underdog in its race. Second to Navy in its opener and just nosed out by BU for fourth place last week, the jayvees will be looking for their first victory. The Hill third varsity, five lengths behind Cornell last week, will be competing for the second time this season.

Hill Sailors Ready For Pentagonal

The Orange sailors will journey to Colgate this weekend for a pentagonal regatta against Hobart, LeMoyne, Colgate and Hamilton. Syracuse expects the only serious challenge to come from Hamilton.

The men from Hamilton will be led by Dave Smalley, an outstanding skipper.

Onondaga Warriors' Invasion Awaited by Orange Lacrossers

By LEE KIKLIER
Executive Sports Editor

To help Roy Simmons' lacrosse team to celebrate Spring Weekend, the colorful Onondaga Indians come down to Hendricks Field at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday.

The Onondaga Indians, actual Indians, annually play Simmons' boys and usually empty out the teepees and bring the whole family down. The unusual part is they play good lacrosse and Simmons is planning to start his varsity for the fray.

BRUCE YANCEY, all-American Orange midfielder, has caught a virus, handicapping him with a severe cold. Yancey hasn't shown up since for practice since the last game but there is an even chance that he will start, as he has been improving lately.

If Yancey isn't ready, however, Bob Tucker will be called on to fill in at the mid-field slot. The rest of the team remains the same: Don Moller, Al Duff, joining Tucker or Yancey at midfield; Stew Lindsay, Ed Smith, and Don Muller at attack; Primo Belluz, Co-capt. Leo Pollack, and Bob Miller at defense and Eddie White at goalie.

Simmons will go out after his sixth win, but he will keep an eye cocked toward next week's schedule. Coming up next week: Army and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, the best of the Eastern crop.

THE INDIANS, generally give the Simmons-men a tough battle but they tire late in the games. The Indians as a group are comparatively old and they are used to the box-type lacrosse in wheih play is restricted to limited squares. Last year the Orange won 14-5.

They are an attraction however. They disdain the use of pads.

Their average age is not excessive, but that's only because the 17-year-olds tend to bring down the total created by the 65-year-olds. Among the older of the tribe: old Eli Cornelius whom, it is said, was here since the valley was discovered or the sport was conceived, whichever came first.

Simmons warns, however, that they are extremely clever, and that Syracuse's best chance of winning is to rely on a running game. Howie Hill, the Onondaga Indians center, will probably be the best Syracuse faces all year, estimates Simmie.

Frosh Invade Ithaca For Carnegie Races

Coach Mike Michalson will take his freshmen first and second shells to Ithaca for the Carnegie Cup races Saturday afternoon. Last weekend the first yearling boat placed third in the regatta held on Onondaga Lake.

The frosh Lacrosse team will be away this weekend for a game against Cornell. Coach John Echeandia's team will be seeking its third win of the young season, Saturday, having already beaten St. Bonaventure and Hobart.

Ithaca engages the frosh nine on Lew Carr Field at 2:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon. The Syracuse yearlings will be seeking their initial victory of the season after absorbing losses at the hands of Colgate and Cornell.

Netmen Visit Sampson

The Orange tennis team seeks its first win of the campaign this saturday when it meets the Sampson netmen at Sampson.

John Kerr, Pete Bratt, Dick Lorenz, Win Lott, Ken Smiley and Boone Sone are probable starters for the match.

Besdin No-hitter Defeats Phi Psi; Tau Delt, TEP Win

By ERNIE ETOLL

The epitome of pitching was reached last night by Mel Besdin of Zeta Beta Tau when the basketeer pitched a no-hitter in intra softball against Phi Kappa Psi as ZBT won its second game 13-0.

Besdin's battery mate, Barry Ross, led the Zebe attack with a home run, while Ted Brontzyk and Dave Denvel were the pitching battery for Phi Psi.

JOEL FEIDELMAN pitched his second straight 3-hitter for Tau Delta Phi as Tau Delt easily defeated Kappa Sigma 9-1. Feidelman struck out five in his five-inning stint on the mound for the undefeated winners. Tony Gross, Marty Hertz and Curley Adler led the Tau Delt attack with two hits each.

In other intra action on Hendrick's Field last night, Sigma Chi swamped Kappa Phi Delta by the football score of 31-7. Leading the victor's offense were Orvie Wambold and Joe Brooks who hit homers, pitcher Bernie Ernst with three hits and Pete Mutchler who had four singles.

In the final softball action, Phi Delta Theta come from behind in the last inning to defeat Theta Chi, 9-4, behind the pitching of George Newi and the hitting of Ted Van Syckel. The Phi Delts were behind 4-2 going into the fifth, but pulled the verdict out of the fire with a seven-run splurge.

In intra tennis last night Tau Epsilon Phi blanked Sigma Alpha Mu, 3-0, In singles Paul Ripp of TEP defeated George Taback of Sammy, 6-2 and 6-3 to open the evening after which Joel Lasko defeated Dick Caro, 6-2, 6-0. In doubles play, the TEP duo of Mel Shore and Steve Friedberg topped Paul Babitz and Neil Wolfram, 6-1, 4-6, and 6-0.

Sports Notebook

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN, Sports Editor

The recent selection of Syracuse's Roy Simmons as Yankee coach for the annual North-South lacrosse game is further proof of the confidence and esteem with which he is regarded by the collegiate sports world. The amiable three-sport tutor was previously named coach of an American boxing team which will tour Japan in August to entertain United States troops.

This year's lacrosse festival will mark Simmons' first appearance as head all-star coach. He has served as an assistant for nine contests, however, after refusing the head post on several occasions.

A year ago the Rebels defeated the Northern stickmen, 12-9. Simmie will, of course, be seeking to turn the proverbial tables on June 11, and the way they're rolling up victories, several Orange seniors might well accompany their tutor to Freeport's Municipal Stadium.

Tomorrow's visit by Eli Cornelius and the Onondaga Indians is one of the high points of the local lacrosse season. Not only does it auger an interesting and entertaining afternoon but it also brings to mind the fabulous history of lacrosse.

Oldest game played on the North American continent, lacrosse was originated centuries ago by the Canadian Indians as "baggataway." It was the early French settlers, however, who named the modern sport "La Cross" because the netted stick employed resembles a Bishop's crozier. Gradually, both the French and English settlers took up the sport and it soon became Canada's national outdoor game.

Despite the lack of standardized rules, lacrosse continued to gain in popularity and spread to the United States late in the 19th century.

Modern lacrosse differs extensively from the Indian baggataway, so much so, in fact, that one of its earlier participants would probably have trouble recognizing his favorite past-time.

The ancient baggataway combats were not decided so much by the skill of the performers as by their ability to carry on despite terrific pounding with lacrosse sticks. Indian strategy called for crippling as many opponents as possible before attempting to score points. Great differences are apparent in the size of the playing area and number of contestants, also.

Baggataway did not limit the size of the team nor that of the field. As many could get into the frolic as desired. Sometimes there were only 75 or 100 men on a side; other times the opposing squads numbered up to 1,500 or 2,000.

Tribal medicine men acted as referees and decided the goal lines. In the beginning, the spots where the medicine men stood served as the goal line. If either chose to wander, became absent-minded or went for a long hike, the field moved right along with him. In fact, the goal line often moved five or 10 miles in the course of play as thousands of braves raced through woods, up hill and down dale in pursuit.

Way back when, baggataway was a combination festival and minor war. Tribal supremacy was often decided on the baggataway field and the contest was preceded by a big "pow-wow", feast and dance. The entire tribe lined the playing field to urge on their "warriors."

So it will be tomorrow on Hendricks Field as nearly the entire Onondaga Tribe moves to Piety Hill, squaws, papooses and all. The Indians play the game differently now but they still refrain from using pads, helmets and other "white man's" equipment. And out there somewhere will be ancient Eli, so old that even he's forgotten his age; the only thing you can say about Eli is that he probably isn't one of the game's founders.

FOOTNOTES—Roger Bannister's 3:59.4 mile yesterday at Oxford, England ends speculation as to whether Kansas' Wes Santee or Australia's John Landy would be first to run the "miracle mile." Bannister cut two full seconds off Gunder Hagg's former world mark in what might have been history's greatest athletic performance.

• • •

The Syracuse-Clarkson Tech baseball game which was rained out Wednesday afternoon may be rescheduled for Monday the 17th. Both Orange Coach Ted Kleinhans and Clarkson mentor Hank Hodge would like to see the game played, perhaps on a neutral Watertown diamond.

• • •

We noticed that Walt Craddock, former Piety hurler, struck out 13 men last week while hurling Savannah to an 8-2 victory over Columbia in the Class A Sally League. The lanky southpaw was the mainstay of the Orange mound staff the past two seasons.

Next week is the big one for Roy Simmons' lacrossers as they visit West Point on Wednesday and entertain Rensselaer Poly on Saturday. Victory in these contests would put Syracuse in the driver's seat for the Laurie D. Cox Division championship of the Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association.

• • •

This seems to be an "old man's" spring in the major leagues; Steve Gromek, Eddie Lopat, Sal Maglie and Murray Dickson, all in the over-35 bracket, have each won four ball games already this season.

• • •

Gus Eriksen has certainly had his troubles this spring. Not only does he have to beat the weather in preparing the Saltine crew for a rugged schedule but now he's losing men left and right. Rog Parfitt, veteran number seven oarsman, will miss tomorrow's Carnegie Cup races due to an abscessed tooth; and just a few weeks ago lettermen Gerry Glasser and Ron Love were declared ineligible. No one would blame Gus if he jumped off the nearest high building.

Weather Stops Syracuse Nine For Fourth Consecutive Encounter

Coach Ted Kleinhans and the Syracuse University baseball nine can only look at the sky and wonder—for the fourth straight day the Hill nine was rained out of a game as the tilt at Sampson was cancelled because of wet grounds.

Yesterday's scheduled outing with the Sampson Sabres was a rescheduling of Tuesday's game which had been postponed because of the weather. Since the Orange has no vacancies in the remainder of its schedule, it is probable that yesterday's washout will result in a permanent cancellation.

With hope in their hearts the Hill nine are awaiting Saturday's annual twin-bill at Penn State with the Nittany Lions. Probable pitchers for the Orange are Mickey Kyff, possessor of a 1-1 record this year, and soph Bill Cassidy with Gordie Smith as an outside possibility.

Expected to take the mound for the Nittany Lions are Keith Vesling and Dave Lucas, each of whom beat West Virginia this year to give the Penn Staters a 2-0 mark thus far.

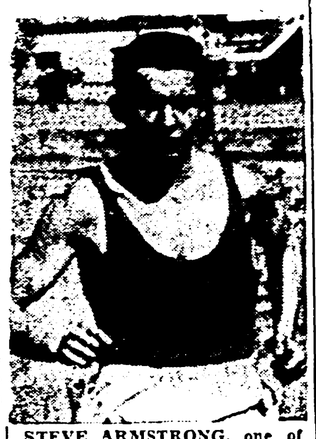
Piety Trackmen Face Boston U. Tomorrow

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Spring weekend and track weekend fall on the same date this year. Today the freshman track team opens sports festivities with a meet against Colgate's yearlings at 2:30 p.m. Tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. Coach Bob Grieve's varsity cindermen entertain a very strong 12-man contingent from Boston University in the only home dual meet of the season.



STEVE ARMSTRONG, one of Bob Grieve's top milers, will see action in tomorrow's Boston University meet.

The Beantowners are one of the top dual-meet teams in the East. They boast some of the top Eastern performers in dashmen Shearer and Bruce, distance runner Bill Smith, high jumper and pole vaulter Bruce Hescock and weight-men George Bates and Pete Allan.

GRIEVE WILL go with the same line-up that won against Colgate last week. The affable mentor, however, concedes the two-mile to the visitors and will concentrate on the mile and the 880.

All four members of the Syracuse IC4A champion two-mile relay team can hit 1:55 and below in the half, and at least three Hillmen have been under 4:20 in the mile in time trials.

Ray Osterhout, Steve Armstrong and Don Shupe have been Grieve's top milers, while the latter two plus Jack Hubbard and Les Viebig are top-notch half-milers.

HUBBARD, HOWEVER, will compete in the 440-yd. and 220-yd. dashes. Dick Jackson will be sprinting in the 220 and 100, and will also combine with Tom Kiby to lead the Orangemen in the broad jump.

Frank Calzi, Jim George (the smaller) and Gene Parker are Grieve's choice for the Hill two-mile entry. George may run the mile though, for the diminutive sophomore has been turning in times in the low 4:20's.

Bob Savoie will again run the 120-high and 220-low hurdle events and will high jump. Bob Beattie in the highs and Don Shupe in the lows rounds out the Hill timber-topping contingent.

HANK WRIGHTMAN and Wendy Hoone, who placed one-two in the pole vault last week, will shoot for a duplicate performance tomorrow, but the competition from Hescock will be very tough.

Capt. Joe Martin is out to break the 200-foot mark in the javelin throw. Martin will be backed up by Rudy Fromm and contested by the Terrier's Pete Allan.

Bannister Sets New World Track Mark; With 4-Minute Mile

Lanky Roger Bannister of Oxford University ended trackdom's sweepstake for the four-minute mile yesterday when he dashed one off in 3:59.4. The new record which broke the old one by a complete two seconds, saw Bannister, who is in his sixth year of running, sprint the last quarter-mile in a phenomenal 59 seconds plus.

Bannister's win was a surprise to most, for he was the outside bet of the three moderns who have been trying for the record. Both Australia's John Landy and Kansas State's Wes Santee were given better chances to break it. Even Fred Wilt in an exclusive Daily Orange interview conceded that Santee had the edge.

However, two years ago, when Bannister made his last U. S. appearance in the Ben Franklin Mile at the Penn Relays, Syracuse Coach Bob Grieve predicted that Bannister would be the first to break the mark.

For a mark such as this to be accepted as the world record, approval must be given by the International Athletic Federation. All aspects of the race will be reviewed, but it is almost definite that the mark will stand. The previous world record of 4:01.4 was set by Sweden's Gundar Haegg

Saltine Golfers Invade Dartmouth For Eastern Intercollegiate Play

By ALEX STRASSER
Associate Sports Editor

Golf takes another step on the comeback trail tomorrow afternoon when the Orange linksmen compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Championships at Hanover, N. H.

Today is the first time since prewar period that Syracuse will attend the Eastern. Back in 1923, the Hillmen were champions but the Saltines have been unable to reach the charmed circle since then.

EIGHTEEN SCHOOLS will participate in the tourney with Syracuse and Boston College being the only two not members of the Eastern Conference.

Dartmouth and Princeton are heavy favorites to finish one-two, with Princeton slight favorites for first-place honors.

Although victorious in two of their first three outings, the Orange linksmen still are not given much of a chance to finsh in the top three.

UNLESS a last minute change is made, Co-capts. Bob Mandeville and Gerry Sullivan will take Tom Dadey, Don Burke, Dick Golobic and Bill Smithers on the trip.

This will be Sullivan's and Mandeville's first shot at the Intercollegiates. Both have gotten off to fast starts and will give tough competition to some of Princeton's and Dartmouth's first-line golfers.

In the opening match of the season against Fordham, Mandeville shot a three-under-par 69 to lead the Orange linksmen to a 6-1 victory over Fordham. Following the Fordham triumph, Mandeville shot a four-over-par 76 on mud-soaked Tecumseh fairway to cop his second win of the campaign.

EVEN IN his losing effort against Colgate, Mandeville shot a 76, the lowest score for the Orange.

While Sullivan won only one of his first three outings, he did shoot a commendable four-over-par 76 in his losing effort against Hobart.

The Orange co-captain is known for his putting abilities on the greens. Mandeville, on the other hand, scores more frequently with long shots.

OF THE other four Orange starters, Golobic and Smithers have the most experience having seen action in two of Syracuse's first three outings. Dady and Burke started only once but strong showings in practcie won them berths for the Hanover trip.

This afternoon, the Tangerine golfers meet Cornell at the Tecumseh links in a renewal of rivalries dating back to the 1920's. After today's match the frosh have two meets left, one with Cornell and one with Colgate.

Angelos Will MC 'Moving Up Day'

By GEORGE MEEK

Traditional "moving-up" ceremonies, which will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow on the library steps, will give students a chance to see the largest possible concentration of past and future campus "wheels."

The ATO cannon will start things off with a bang, and the cheerleaders will liven things up further with a few cheers. William Angelos, lyrics writer for the current production of "Up in Lights," will take over as master of ceremonies for the event.

ANGELOS WILL first explain the meaning and background of moving-up day, and then introduce the weekend chairmen Judith Perry, John Beach and Lawrence O'Sullivan.

After introducing next year's cheerleaders, Angelos will present, one by one, the heads of 17 various campus organizations who will formally install their successors.

When the retiring officers have completed this ceremony, Francis Procopio, president of the freshman class, will burn a frosh lid, symbolizing the end of the first year at college for the freshmen.

BEACH, PRESIDENT of the Senior class, will then burn a senior thesis to symbolize the completion of four years' work by his class.

Chancellor William P. Tolley will carry out the final portion of the traditional ceremony. He will officially "move up" the classes, and present awards to the student with the highest cumulative average in each of the four classes.

In case of rain the ceremony will be held in Hendricks chapel.

Mary Ann Dalton and Robert Leberman, co-chairmen of the moving up ceremonies, have announced that the head of the 17 organizations will present new officers.

Samuel Shawhan has the unique honor of turning the class of '55 over to himself, since he was re-elected for a second term.

DARWIN BOLDEN, Orange Key president, will present new pledges to that junior men's honorary. New members of Lambda Sigma Sigma, junior women's honorary, will be introduced by Leslie Rubin.

Chapel co-chairmen Patricia Roden and Deane Lavender will turn the chapel organization over to James Fellows and Elizabeth Wright.

New Interfraternity Council prexy Howard Osofsky will take over the reigns from Fritz Briggs, and new Panhellenic president Mary Ann Harper will replace Nancy Knapp.

New pledges of the senior men's honoraries will be announced by Beach of Tau Theta Upsilon and O'Sullivan of Phi Kappa Alpha. Miss Perry will introduce pledges to the senior women's honorary, Eta Pi Upsilon.

Spring Weekend . . .

Lights" is planned at 7:30 so that couples may also attend Act IV, senior ball, which starts at 9 p.m.

Woody Herman and his orchestra will provide the music for the dance in the Women's Building. Entertainment, refreshments and special events will be provided at the ball which is scheduled to last until 1 a.m.

ALL COEDS will receive 2 a.m. permissions tomorrow night and those attending the ball may stay out until 3 a.m. by attaching a ticket stub to a pink permission slip.

Syracuse University Symphonic Band will give a concert in front of the Chapel at 3 p.m. Sunday. Art students will also be exhibiting and selling their work at Lowe tomorrow and Sunday afternoons.

Pre-College Advice On New TV Series Presented Sunday

"Who Should Go to College" will be the topic discussed on the new television series, "So You Want to Go to College," produced by the radio-television center and seen 3:30 p.m. Sunday over WSYR-TV.

The program is designed to provide pre-college guidance for high school students and their parents.

Discussion leader is John Hafzer, University dean of admissions.

PANELISTS FOR this week's program will be Joseph McAnaney guidance counselor at Solvay high school; John Witte, director of admissions, College of the Seneca; and Dean M. Eunice Hilton, Syracuse Colleg eof Home Economics. Students from Solvay high school, parents from the Solvay PTA and the Dewitt Mothers' club will be the audience.

Topics for future programs include "How to finance a college education." How to select and apply for college," "What about the draft" and "How can parents help prepare students for college."

Student producer-director of the series is Shirley Brocker, graduate television student who is assisted by David Hurwitz, associate producer.

Bugle-Blowing Coeds Will Awaken Campus

By PETER McNALLY

Coeds blowing bugles wakening lazy Saturday morning University sleepers while keeping their balance on the backs of horses—this is the way Spring Weekend started for University students in 1933. Ever since the first moving-up day on May 23, 1893 events have been added and dropped.

The moving-up day of 1893 was expressly for men. It took place in the chapel when the lower students would fill the vacated seats of the seniors, who had had their last final exam and did not have to be present in chapel.

In 1914, when our doughboys were headed across the "big pond" the coeds took over the spring festivities and instituted Women's Day. This was started by Miss Katherine Sibley, former director of women's physical education.

Women's Day lasted until 1921 when it fused with Moving-up Day. The different ceremonies were then arranged with some of the women's events being eliminated. One of the more interesting events that was slashed was the Pantomime Dance of Hiawatha given by the junior girls.

AFTER WORLD War I in 1939 the men still were not really active in the spring activities so they did a burlesque of "Peter Pan," as done by the coeds the year before.

The next year, 1940, MSG and Eta Pi Upsilon combined to make a bigger and better weekend. In 1941 the two froces inaugurated a Mardi Gras atmosphere which lasted for several years.

But again war caught up with the spring festivities and much was cut from the weekend. Even "Peaches and Dream" had to take the place of the Strawberry Breakfast, in 1944.

But one tradition has remained through thick and thin and that is step-singing. Today will mark the 61st time that it has been included in the spring celebration.

Sigma Kappa, Winchell Win Step Singing Finals

By DIANA DAHLMAN

Winchell Waitresses and Sigma Kappa were chosen as the winners in the finals of the annual Spring Weekend Step Singing contest Friday night in the Women's gym. Due to rain, it could not be held on the Library steps as was originally scheduled.

Their opponents in the finals were Butler cottage and Pi Beta Phi. Also featured at the contest was the "mass" chorus composed of all the houses taking part in the step singing contest this year. This group was lead by Anne Forrest, Eta Pi Upsilon contest chairman.

WINCHELL Waitresses sang as their winning number "Black is the Color of My True Love's Hair" a Kentucky folk song arranged by John Niles. A moving number, the piece depicted the sadness expressed by the folk people of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Barbara Peck conducted the waitresses. In earlier contest eliminations, she was highly commended by the judges as being a very unusual director.

Butler cottage, competing against Winchell in the small house division, was directed by Nancy Nicholes. The women chose the popular semi-classical "When Day is Done" by Robert Katchen as their song.

TAKING THE honors in the large house division, Sigma Kappa had Jean Mosley as its director. Their winning song was a hymn based on the 84th psalm, "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings." The piece was written by Samuel Liddle.

Running a close second in the finals was Pi Beta Phi. Also using a religious selection for their song they chose "Hear My Prayer" by Will James. Marcia Mulligan was the group's director.

Mrs. Herman Beyle, and Professors Frank Hakanson and Arthur Poister were the contest judges. Mrs. Beyle is a Sigma Alpha Iota patroness. Prof. Hakanson is an instructor of voice in the school of music. He is also director for the University chorus.

Prof. Poister is best known as the director of the Hendricks Chapel choir. In the school of music he is an organ instructor.

Miss Forrest gave a brief history of the contest in her introductory message. Beginning in 1926, there were only six houses entered in the contest. This year, nearly 50 groups participated. The newest feature is the "mass" chorus which will be continued in future contests.

For a while, it was conducted solely by Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, but Sigma Alpha Iota women's professional music honorary, joined in the sponsorship and awarded a cup to the winning group.

When the contest was divided into two divisions, a large and small house division, two cups were awarded. This contest is one of the oldest Spring Weekend traditions on campus.

Lessen Selected Business Director

By BOB GOLDSTEIN
Business Manager

The Daily Orange will be in capable financial hands next year as Shelly Lessen, a liberal arts junior, takes over as DO business manager.

Elected by the Board of Publications Thursday, Lessen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Lessen, Syracuse. He is majoring in English with a minor in advertising.

LESSEN, A member of Alpha Epsilon Pi, was assistant business manager of the Daily Orange this year and has been on the staff for three years. He also sings with the University's men's glee club.

During the past two summers the new business manager was employed by the Syracuse Herald-Journal on the editorial staff.

The business manager provides the Daily Orange with advertising and is general watchdog of the financial system. Besides directing the activities of the advertising department, Lessen will also supervise the classified, promotion and circulation departments.

He is expected to name his senior staff managers later this week.

Dean Smith Speaks At Nursing Convo

Editor of 'Lamp' Speaks On Need of Staff

Dean Edith Smith of the School of Nursing was the principal speaker at the last all-school nurse's meeting on Wednesday night.

Dean Smith gave a brief talk on the necessity of the tuition raise for the clinical years. Her talk was followed by a question and answer period to clarify disputed points.

A DISCUSSION was held concerning the honor code, and recommendations were made concerning problems that have arisen. The matter was referred to the executive committee who will discuss it in detail at their next meeting.

The editor of The Lamp, the School of Nursing magazine, spoke on the purpose of the magazine and put out a call for new members.

All those interested in working on any part of the magazine are asked to report on Wednesday, May 12, at 7 p.m. to the School of Nursing.

THE NURSING candidates for next year's officers were announced and voting will take place today in all nursing buildings on campus. New officers will be announced by the end of next week.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Norton, director of the executive council for many years. Mrs. Norton is leaving the School of Nursing at the close of the Spring term.

Officer Training Offered Seniors

Capt. James S. Hecker, the Marine Corps Officer Procurement Office, has announced that he is accepting applications for the Officer Candidate Course for seniors and graduates to convene in late summer. The course reopened on May 1, 1954.

Competition is expected to be extremely keen for the quota of the class. All interested students are urged to write Capt. Hecker at room 405, Post Office Building, Buffalo 3, New York at the earliest date.

UNDER THIS program, applicants accepted receive a short indoctrination course and then are commissioned as 2nd Lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Immediately after commissioning, each office is assigned to a five-month basic officer training course whiih is held at Quantiio, Va. Attendance at this course is a requirement of all Marine officers.

Specialist training and duties are available to qualified officers after completion of the basic officeres training course, Capt. Hecker points out. Some of the specialities available include artillery, communications, disbursing, personnel, supply, food service, photographic interpretation, engineering and many others.

Tolley Delivers Talk Defending Schools, American Education

Chancellor Cites Need For Colleges to Aid Public Schools

By JACK REILLY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Citing the current attack on American schools, Dr. William P. Tolley, at the recent Chancellor's Dinner, observed that he "would not exchange the American system of education for that of any other country."

Speaking in Sims dining hall before members of the faculty, Chancellor Tolley stated that the "public school needs friends and we should count ourselves among them."

"WHEN ONE segment of education is under criticism, all segments are affected," he said. In addition Tolley believed that the great need of public schools today is more adequate tax support.

He also believed that ideas developed by American education will "prove our surest means of winning the friendship and understanding of other nations and people."

The University head declared that the United States desires no territory and has no dreams of empire, "but we now have the power that once was England's."

CITING THE four distinguishing characteristics of the United States schools, the Chancellor said that "with American education nothing is impossible."

He mentioned that one of the characteristics is our interest in the individual. The Chancellor believed that American education is also interested in the whole student.

Another element, he found, was the US concern for democratic ideals and social justice. "Education has lifted status of workers, levelled class distinctions, and increased economic security for all," Chancellor Tolley affirmed. "Our culture is extraordinarily sensitive to human needs and social justice."

THE THIRD characteristic is America's attention to social change. "It is the addition of knowledge that makes education necessary for a change," he declared. Old times are static, new times are progressive, he said.

"The point is that, in the past, the time span of important change was considerably longer than that of a single human life—thus mankind was trained to adapt itself to fixed conditions," he stated.

The final distinguishing point is the United States' attention to teaching and efficiency in learning, added the Chancellor. He asserted that the improved teaching and learning in some schools are the best in the world.

In the future, Chancellor Tolley stated, the United States can attempt to raise the level of knowledge and taste, the economic status of teachers and can "bring the creative energy and strength of the American schools to backward areas."

'On' Ready for Students Beginning Next Monday

By JOY YUNKER

The 1954 Onondagan will be on campus beginning Monday May 17, Charlene Veon, business manager of the yearbook announced yesterday.

Those who have ordered the book may pick up their "ON" from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. May 17 through 21 at the University Bookstore. No books will be distributed during exam weeks and those who do not receive them must wait until next September.

THOSE WHO have ordered the annual and have not made their second or final payment may make paymeht Monday through Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Onondagan office in pre-fab 7. Paying for the books in advance will aid the staff at the time of distribution.

The book is now at the bindery, the final step in publication. Dispite financial difficulty the annual will be distributed on time, a fete which the 1953 "On" was unable to accomplish. Last year's book did not reach campus until November.

Publication of the 1954 Onondagan appeared dubious when University Vice-president Frank Piskor revealed that the University would not require seniors to purchase the book. During the past four years when seniors have been billed for the annual at the time of graduation, they have provided the bulk of the funds needed to insure publication.

THOMAS A. BECKETT, editor of the 1954 "On," conducted a poll of seniors during registration to determine the number of seniors who would purchase the book. Approximately 500, or half of the members of the senior class, replied, not enough to insure publication.

The aiDly Orange sponsored a poll and a vote was taken in all living centers to approximate the number of persons who would support the book.

The board of publication endorsed the 70-year-old publication and stated that if the Onondagan could secure 1,500 subscriptions prior to Nov. 7 the annual could be published again this year.

WHEN IT appeared that even the subscription drive would not secure the publication of the yearbook, Beta Sigma Rho fraternity sponsored an essay contest, "I Bought a 1954 Onondagan Because . . ." with $40 in cash prizes awaiting the winners.

Marshall St. merchants joined Beta Sigma Rho in its effort to save the faltering publication. With their aid the amount of cash prizes to be awarded the winners amounted to $440.

With the cooperation of the entire campus the publication of the 1954 Onondagan was finally made possible. May 17 is a culmination in the year long struggle.

Students May Attend Food Panel Meetings

By EILEEN CHAMBERLAIN
Managing Editor

Everybody gripes about University food at one time or another. And usually nothing is done about these complaints because they don't get beyond a small group of friends.

This year the Women's Student Government panel on student welfare decided to do something to satisfy those students who wish to channel their suggestions through the menu committee which decides when turkey, pork chops or roast beef will be served in University dining halls.

THE COMMITTEE, which meets at 2 p.m. each Monday in Sims, is chaired by Mrs. Ursula Pettingill, food service director.

Mrs. Pettengill, after discussing dining hall problems several hours with Jean Grube of the student welfare panel, indicated she would be happy to have student representatives attend each meeting of the menu committee and to consider all reasonable suggestions made by them.

A plan considered by chairman Patricia Mosher and her panel members would include one representative from each campus dining hall at every meeting of the committee.

STUDENT suggestions for menu changes would receive careful consideration, according to Mrs. Pettengill, and procedure might be changed to satisfy student desires wherever possible.

Some areas which the joint group might discuss would be the possibility of boxed lunches for those who cannot eat in a dining hall because of class schedules, and choice of two milk servings either at the noon or evening meal.

Miss Mosher has announced that an open meeting of students could be called before the end of this semester to organize the menu committee representation if enough people indicate interest in the plan. Those who would attend such a meeting are asked to call 4-9539, 4-9451 or 75-5711 and leave the message with anyone who answers that they will plan to be at the discussion.

AT THIS YEAR'S House Presidents Conference Mrs. Pettengill explained the food service setup to one of five discussion groups. Enthusiasm came from several unexpected groups at this time and the possibility of an open meeting was considered.

As worked out thus far, the menu committee student representation would consist of one person from each of the four dining halls—Shaw, Sims, Winchell and Washington Arms—at each meeting. A sheet would be circulated in the fall to each living center with a list of scheduled committee meetings and of coeds in the house.

A different representative from each dining hall area would be present at every menu committee meeting.

This is a tentative plan which will go into effect if students show sufficient interest in the idea, Miss Mosher stressed that those who wish to have an open meeting contact one of the three above telephone numbers.

Rifle Team Finishes Season's Activities

Syracuse University's first rifle team in several years recently completed their intercollegiate competition and are looking for a banner season next semester when all team members will return.

Coached by Warrant Officer Francis W. Carey of the AFROTC and S/1C Arthur W. Stone of the Army ROTC, the varsity competed against Cornell and Temple among other opponents. The Frosh rifle team also participated in their own schedule and lost to the crack Manlius Cadets by only 40 points.

MATCHES ARE based on the best scores out of a possible 1500 points. In the Cornell event, Syracuse was defeated 1396-1276.

The Temple shoot-off was a postal match. Temple team members shot in Philadelphia and the Syracuse group here. Then the targets were exchanged and results compared. Final tabulations on the match are not as yet completed.

The team is fully recognized by the University and varsity letters and frosh numerals will be awarded. Members must participate in three-fourths of the matches in order to be eligible for the awards.

ALTHOUGH THE team is coached by representatives of the ROTC detachments here at Syracuse, team members do not have to belong to either Army or Air Force ROTC. All students maintaining a one point average or above are encouraged to try out.

Edward Stone was elected captain of this year's varsity club and Phillip Grausman led the frosh. Other varsity letter winners are Brandon Blum, Chuck Shaw, Richard Hilliker, Roland Smith, Tom Hinchey, Paul Foster and Tony Loiacono.

Anyone interested in participating on the team should contact Lt. Col. Ernest L. Meggs, team advisor, at registration in the fall.

Cressey to Visit England for Talks

Dr. George B. Cressey, Maxwell professor of geography at Syracuse University, will spend two weeks in England to attend the meeting of the executive committee of the International Geographical Union. Dr. Cressey is vice-president of the Union.

A number of lecture invitations have been extended to Dr. Cressey. While in London, he will speak on world food problems at a meeting of the Society for Visiting Scientists. Other lectures on "China's Prospects" and "How Strong is Russia?" are scheduled for the University of Nottingham, University of Birmingham, University of Durham, (Newcastle) and Trinity College in Dublin.

Norton Selected To J-School Post

David M. Norton has been appointed instructor in the School of Journalism. The announcement of the appointment was made by Wesley C. Clark, dean of the school.

Norton, son of Mrs. C. H. Norton, 407 E. 4th st., Jamestown, holds an AB degree in journalism and psychology from Syracuse university.

Since 1946 he has been employed as a laboratory assistant in the School of Journalism. Before moving to Syracuse he was employed by Martin Merz and Son, Jamestown.

WHILE TEACHING at Syracuse he has worked with the Empire State School Press Association and the School of Journalism Research Department. His writings have been published in several trade magazines in the printing and journalism fields.

Norton is a member of the International Graphic Arts Education Association and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity.

Citizenship Lecture To Feature Lerner

Max Lerner, Professor of American Civilization at Brandeis University will address the Citizenship 1b classes this morning. His topic will be "Why the Alliance was Boilt."

Lerner, a columnist for the New York Post has spoken at Syracnse previously. His topic today will be in connection with the study of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which is currently being studied by citizenship students.

THUS FAR the studies have shown the situation in Europe prior to the NATO pact. Lerner will bring these up to date and explain the necessity of the organization and how it operates.

He will speak at 10 a.m. in the Chapel. A tape recording of his remarks will be played at 2:15 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium, for those unable to attend the morning session.

Physics Honorary Holds Banquet

Dr. Verner Wulff of the zoology department was the guest speaker at the recent banquet of Sigma Pi Sigma, Physics Honor Society. Dr. Wulff spoke on the "Retina of the Eye." Dr. Searl J. Silverman served as toastmaster.

Newly elected officers are: Eric Ellis, president; Douglas Ingalls, vice-president; Joseph Marquisec, secretary; and Carl Stannard, Jr., treasurer. Faculty advisor is Dr. Henry Lewinstein.

Hendricks Chapel Choir To Give Spring Concert

DR. ARTHUR POISTER, MYRON LEET and ELINOR HUSSEY look over part of the music which will be sung by the endricks Chapel choir at its annual concert tonight in the chapil auditorium. Admission to the concert is free.

The annual spring concert of the Hendrick's Chapel choir will be given at 8:30 p.m. today in the Chapel Auditorium.

Under the direction of Prof. Arthur Poister, the choir will sing the Bach Contata No. 4, "Christ Lay in Todesbandeu" as its major presentation. The text for this piece is comprised of a hymn by Martin Luther.

A BRAHMS model, "The Walls of Heaven, O Savior, Rend," three sacred Russian songs and a group of anthems will complete the program. Gail Faulkner, Donald Wittig, and Robert Johnston will be soloists for the contata.

There will be no admission charge, but a collection will be taken to aid in defraying the expenses of the concert.

In the past few years, the 110-voice choir has appeared at several downtown functions including the Civic Morning Musicals' Christmas concert. It annually performs in the Zeta Phi Eta Christmas Pageant.

The Colgate Eve Brotherhood Service and the all-University Brotherhood Banquet are part of the choir's yearly activities as well as Christmas carolling to the patients of the hospitals in the campus area.

Local Youth Plays In Musical Revue

A little boy in the midst of bigger boys, young Bobby Sosid has not become a little fugitive.

He has stood firmly and proudly on the stage of the Astor theater and offered stiff competition to his shown business cohorts in the new revue "Up in Lights." Bobby is the sole non-University member of the musical's cast of 60.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hosid, 123 Miles Ave., Syracuse, 13-year old Bobby is a ninth grade student at William Nottingham High School. He was recruited for "Up in Lights" from the University's Children's Theater. No newcomer to campus entertainment, he appeared in several Hill productions including "Christmas U.S.A.," presented by WAER in Chapel during December.

In "Up in Lights," Bobby appears in the "Trip to the Moon" number, "Show Business" and "Hayride." He's one of the hardest working members of the cast with a good deal of talent in a small package. He also appeared in "It Can't Be Too Hard" which was cut from the production after Wednesday due to the extreme length of the entire show.

PHILLIP GRAUSMAN and RICHARD RUST, two members of the frosh rifle teams which recently completed its season, show their talents. Grausman captained the club which included among its opponents, Cornell and the Manlius Cadets.

Foreign Students Contest Scheduled

A 10-day all-expense trip to Washington, D.C. as the guest of the Encyclopaedia Britannica Co. will be the prize to the foreign student, studying in the United States, writing the best essay on "How to Strengthen Democracy in the Free World."

The essay must be 1,000 words long and express the writer's opinions. All entries should be sent to International Forum Contest, Encyclopaedia Britannica, 425 North Michigan Ave., Chicago 11, Ill.

Human Lives at Stake

Tragedy may lie dormant in the buildings of Skytop—the tragedy of human lives lost in fire.

A student court trial recently brought out the fact that there is not only a misuse of the fire alarm systems in dormitories, but a disregard by residents for the alarm bell's ringing as well.

Perhaps this regard can be traced to the many times the bell is used, not for a fire or drill, but rung falsely as an outlet for mischief-makers.

When the fire signal rang in a Skytop dorm early one weekday morning in February, few persons among the building's occupants bothered to get out of bed or even to come into the hallway to see if anything was wrong. In this instance the alarm was rung falsely by a prankster.

Two persons who were up, though, described their feelings merely as "curiosity" and "mild interest." One stated, "If there were a fire, I assumed I would be notified."

If not the bell, what would such notification be? "People running around and shouting," he said. These are the same things that create dangerous panics.

Fire safety equipment must be respected. Fire hoses, alarms and exit signs have become the objects of frosh pranksters too often in the past. With spring fever at a high pitch during the next month, there is the threat that they will continue to be the targets of abuse.

The lives of 46 men, however, may depend upon respect for the fire alarm. Prefabricated buildings' interiors could be destroyed rapidly by flames.

"Mild interest" should turn to immediate response. Right now the whole situation is headed in the same direction as the story of the boy who cried "wolf" once too often.

Max Lerner and NATO

Another one in the series of worthwhile Citizenship 1b lectures is promised this morning in Hendricks Chapel.

Max Lerner, New York Post columnist and a widely-known lecturer, will discuss the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The topic should tie in nicely with the cit students' current work—that of NATO. The speech is open to all students.

"Why the Alliance Was Built," subject of the Brandeis University professor's speech, will aid the student to better understand these security alliances. It is a timely topic, particularly since trouble in the Far East has intensified American thought toward a similar pact in the Pacific.

I Hold These Truths...

By DR. FRED KRINSKY
Assistant Professor, Maxwell School of Citizenship

There is an ancient Jewish colloquialism which is intended as a guide to life and which, to my mind, also summarizes that which I believe. For the essenre of this maxim is the emphasis it places upon the transferenre to daily activities all of those noble and high-sounding ideals to which we all ascribe theoretically.

If we were to list the various qualities and virtues so constantly extolled by professors of democracy and pastors ofJudeo-Christianity, we wouln not only have a remarkably good guide for the perplexed of our times, but, in all liklihood, unanimous agreement as to their validity and rogency.

The problem that arises, however, is how to make these ideals a part of our daily mundane affairs—in the classroom, the dormitory, the fraternity house and in all of our relationships with our fellow citizens.

To me, the answer to this urgent need lies, simply, in the studied practice of our affirmations. It leads to my acceptance of the sanctity and worthwhileness of human life which involves the humble acknowledgement that man's road to knowledge and meaning, to power and freedom, is paved by the hard labor of human intelligence.

It leads me to a concept of God as an ideal guiding conduct towards achievement of man's loftiest purposes. It leads to my assistence that religious faith cannot be separated from those actions which lead to a social order in which the men of the world can find individual fulfillment and fruition here on earth.

It brings me to reject those totalitarianisms which have only restricted use for man's intelligence and which manifest the great malady of our day—the fear of mind.

Above all, I have come to believe that only democracy—both in politics and religion—expresses a true faith in man and thus remains free of Communist perversions of the meaning of freedom on one hand and baseless and spineless religiousity on the other.

For only in a democratic community is the individual human being of infinite and surpassing worth. Only within the democratic framework does the earth and human culture belong to all men.

Only democracy assumes that men can and should rule themselves and that no segment of them be relegated to being hewers of wood and drawers of water.

And only the democrat safely feels that the human mind can be trusted and should be set free.

One final comment! There is a notion abroad, one which has been particularly emphasized in recent popular books, as well as public addresses, that "faith in man" is the root of all social evil in our time.

I do not hesitate to denounce this as the intellectual scandal of this day and age. Man is not the anti-God. Faith in man is not Godless.

Indeed, a faith is holy to the degree that it is human. That which renders the Absolute holy is the touch of the human. The sanctity of the divine resides in its relevance to the realization of the ideal of social and individual fulfillment.

The secret, therefore, of any religion, and any legitimate political system, is in its man-centered strands. God, as well as government, is of, for and by the people.

SUNDAY SERMON

'Salute to the Future:' Sensitivity to Duties

By DEAN CHARLES C. NOBLE

(Excerpts of sermon, "Salute to the Future," on May 9, 1954.)

This particular Sunday appears to involve a big contradiction: it is Mother's Day which means an affectionate bow to the part, and it is spring weekend which always turns one's eyes exhuberantly to the future.

However, a grateful memory of the benefits which have come to us out of our personal and historic background need not necessarily interfere with a salute to the future; in fact, the more one recognizes of the past, the greater the challenge of the future will be.

To stand before the monuments of those who pioneered in democracy is to call us anew to democracy's support. To thank God for true motherhood is to pledge ourselves to the abolition of all forces and institutions which frustrate the human race.

Our western civilization, grounded in Bibilical tradition, has always looked forward. This spirit stems from the earliest beginnings of the Bible story, where it is recorded: "Moses led Israel onward from the Red Sea."

Unfortunately, many timid souls prefer not to accept this challenge. Parents try to hold their children back lest the responsibilities of life be too great for their little ones, who have managed to grow to maturity in spite of their parents.

Pessimistic souls, aware all too completely of the evidence of depravity all about them, fail to see the glimmer of divinity within humanity and bog down in the wilderness of despair. Some of us are so frightened by the threat of atomic power in the hands of reckless rulers that we are about ready to seek a convenient cave and pull it in after us.

This kind of timidity, cynicism, and despair will get us nowhere. The way of life lies toward the futurt, but the kind of future we shall have will depend upon the principals around which we rally our forces. If we choose our standards properly we can march out of the wilderness into the promised land.

Freedom we must choose, or we shall have slavery. The tides of regimentation spiritually and politically are running strongly today, but an opposing tide set up by free spirits who are willing to implement their freedom by action can prevent our being engulfed.

The kind of future we shall have will depend likewise on whether or not we accept responsibility for our community welfare. In our closely knit world we are forced to see that we are our brother's keeper, and the establishment of justice is our inevitable concern.

Finally we shall become men of faith or we shall slide into futility. Abraham Lincoln looked into the future and prayed that "This nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom."

It is high time that we caught up with Lincoln's prophetic prayer and realized that all of us in life possess and hold power under God. When that kind of reverence and sense of responsibility is regained, our future will be assured.

AT THE FLICKERS

Executives Hit Sweet Creation In New Flick

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Film Critic

A number of stars were hanging around the M.G.M. back lot. John Houseman got them to sign their names on the dotted line and with their help, has turned out a film that moves with the speed and efficiency of the Twentieth Century Limited. "Executive Suite" is easily one of the more interesting of the recent films.

Adapted from the novel by Cameron Hawley, dealing with the struggle for power set off by the death of a top executive, the script by Edward Lehman is a precise, craftsmanlike job that ties up all loose ends, leaving nothing to the viewer's imagination.

This substitution of precision and slickness for depth and perception will frustrate those people who found potential in the story that has been insufficiently explored in the film.

"Executive Suite" does resolve itself too patly. However, no one could complain about a script as carefully wrought as this one. Each scene is finely paced and strung to the preceding and succeeding ones with a continuity, that generates a suspense that becomes at times, almost unbearable. The sense of timing in Lehman's script is extraordinary.

It is to the all-star cast, however, and to Robert Wise, the director, that final credit must go. When pros like Holden, tanwyck and Frederick March get to stealing scenes from one another the result is grand larceny.

Connoiseurs of fine acting will have a field day trying to find the outstanding performance here. We would nominate Frederic March. Mr. March's performance of the power-hungry executive whose desire for the presidency is an obsession, is a miracle of understatement. Detail upon detail is piled up with the end result being the revelation of a human being and all the devious and hidden motivations driving him. This is truly a great job.

The other performances run Mr. March's neck and neck. Robert Wise directed his cast within an inch of their lives and they all perform like horses in the Kentucky Derby.

Barbara Stanwyck has never had a director who could control her more effectively and she is very powerful in this film. William Holden is every bit as good as he has ever been and the Messrs. Jagger, Pidgeon, Calhern and Douglas are all superb as the other vice-presidents. June Allyson is fine as Holden's wife and Shelly Winters and Nina Foch work wonders with lesser roles.

"Executive Suite" may not have the profundity of fine art but it has the sharpness of fine theater.

Letters to the Editor: Re WSG, Hi-fi, 'Lights'

To the Editor:

Several women on your campus have been thinking and talking about some factors which have come to light due to the recent WSG elections.

They have realized how little, actually, the women's student body has to say in who will represent them as officers in their government. The sophomores take the very necessary and competant Through the Keyhole course and, from these students the 12 candidates for junior officers are chosen by the Standards Council, a closed group.

Therefore, one of these girls will be the present of WSG in two years and will represent the Syracuse University women to the administration. And of the six active junior officers, the campus women must decide among them for the senior officers. These candidates are chosen by only three or four of the active senior officers.

How many of these sophomore and junior candidates do the voters know? How can they determine who can best represent them? They vote on the basis of the girls with whom they have contact, like or dislike personally, or, in many cases, the campus prestige of a name.

How can the voters decide who will be the most competent on the basis of a picture and the girl's past activities?

There seems to be an unavoidable trend on this campus to put those into an office who have done the best jobs in other activities—"Well, she proved herself in this, and is so active and has such a terrific average, that she would certainly do well in this job."

This attitude disregards many potential leaders who have been given no opportunity to prove themselves. Syracuse University has the most developed extracurricular activity program in the country.

Granted, this is important, but is it the ultimate end of a university?

The courses here are too often overlooked in the maze of campus life, and many courses are never evaluated by the student; the aim is merely a passing grade. But there are poor courses in this university taught by poor professors, and they are recognized as such by only a few students.

Women's Student Government could answer the students' problem concerning these courses; they could get at the roots of petty cheating on objective quizzes; they could really make this university a magnificent institution if they could get through an effective honor system; they could help in instigating a better student-professor relationship.

They could stand, not only for regulations for women on this campus (the women are satisfied here), but for the real problems of the campus. And, if the candidates for whom we vote would stand publicly for one of these real problems and but their efforts into that problem, then the women would have a platform on which to base their voting. Probably all the girls who run are capable, but how does the campus know?

How does the campus know what they will do if they get elected, if they are our correct choice for a particular office, if both candidates are equal in ability?

Corrections on High-Fidelity

To the Editor:

With all respect to Mr. Dick Case of your staff, I think it about time that the gentleman named should be aware of the fact that his articles on communications seem to be filled with all sorts of loopholes.

Mr. Case's attempts are to his credit; however, when reporting on technical subjects in communications, he fails, it seems, to understand, himself, the subject on which he is writing. This has especially disturbed me in regard to his article concerning high-fidelity in the May 3rd edition of your paper.

It is high time that we caught up with Lincoln's prophetic prayer and realized that all of us in life possess and hold power under God. When that kind of reverence and sense of responsibility is regained, our future will be assured.

recorded sound etc." It should be brought to Mr. Case's attention that not only is high-fidelity accurate reproduction of recorded sound, but high-fidelity begins actually long before this.

It begins fundamentally with the arrangement and type of microphones used to record the selection. Next, is the proper recording of the music on to tape. THAT is where the high-fidelity, so to speak, begins. You've got to have the soil before you can plant the seed.

Mr. Case's article continues with a statement to the effect that low cost equipment is available in hi-fi that is NOT hi-fi, and satisfies most ears. Mr. Case should remember that under Better Business Bureau laws "false claims in advertising" cannot be made!

At this point, I'd like to quote an official from WQXR in New York City who should know, if anyone, about this subject since WQXR is known throughout the industry for its service in the light of this subject.

Mr. Chet Santon who conducts a highly respected hi-fi program on that station has a definition of hi-fi that Mr. Case might think about. To Mr. Santon, hi-fi is "what sounds best to you." "Does it match the concert-hall performance when you hear it on recordings." "If it does, then you have hi-fi."

Finally, I would suggest, that Mr. Case might better serve his readers by using information which is complete and understandable. He might refer to "High-Fidelity Magazine," consult radio men in wholesale houses in the city of Syracuse, and check record dealers. There are several "sides" to the hi-fi story, as there are to other of Mr. Case's articles. He might well check into them for the benefit of his readers.

Review Notes, Art Comment

My dear Miss Nadelhaft:

My kind appreciation for the mention in your preview of "Up in Lights" Daily Orange, 6 May 1954. A little more nostalgia has been added to my visit to Syracuse.

I find it necessary, though, to inform you that Mr. Baskin and I, close friends and associates, find it difficult to note any similarity in our respective performances. Both of us are rather concerned by any such comparison.

It is unfortunate, I feel, to compare with such finality the current and excellent revue with the production of last year of which I was proud to be a part. The major merit of "Up in Lights" is its ability to stand as a clever production beautifully presented. Theater, as all Art forms, develops by comparison to the past. But when such comparison is to become the major point of judgment, then perhaps the reviewer must become a little more contemporary in thinking.

My fondest personal regards,
Julie Tomchin

"Bachelor's Quarters" Life With Days Hailed

By DICK CASE
Editorial Page Writer

Bachelor's Quarters, 6:45 p.m., Thursday, WAER

Ken Sparks has a pleasant voice and relaxed delivery which he puts to good use on the weekly WAER offering "Bachelor's Quarters." This is not, as the title might indicate, aimed directly at the males in audience but rather broadcast by a bachelor from his quarters, which in this case, happens to be a music room.

The mood is one of an easy flow of music and talk by Mr. Sparks. He is apparently sitting at the piano and the songs and accompaniment ripple out in a pleasant stream. Ken has a well-controlled, almost sweet baritone which profits quite well by the tunes he does. Last week's broadcast features music from south of the border.

He also slips a recorded "gem" into the center of the program. On the last airing, it was Crosby. Time between Ken's crooning is consumed by sundry news notes and varied comments by the host.

"Bachelor's Quarters" once again points up the imaginative, compelling programming available from WAER which, for the most part, is not widely circulated on the campus. This type of thing must be most entertaining to those who can listen with any regularity.

Ken Sparks and his little 15-minute room is a place of great warmth and smooth sound interrupted only on occassion by a touch of forced relaxation.

* * *

Life With Father, 7 p.m., Sunday CBS-TV.

Clarence Day, Sr., has bellowed and ranted in a variety of vehicles, the latest of which is available each Sunday over CBS television. This time around "Life with Father" is a witty "live" video series which distinquishes itself from other similar shows by simply being interesting and highly funny.

Leon Ames is bravely bullish as Papa Day, a role he seems to enjoy immensely. Ames is a thorough Papa right down to the twisted mustache and bellowed "Oh, no!" Laureen Tuttle, another veteran, is Mother on the series. Miss Tuttle's characterization, coupled with the convincing supplementary people on the show, contributes to the success achieved.

TV's "Life with Father," stacked against contemporary competition in the domestic comedy scene, is a good yard above the rest. Its gentle humor, fine acting and general smoothness blend for one of the top productions in the field.

An evening with the television Day family is well spent.

More Than the Flowers Blossom Forth When 'Spring Has Come'

By DICK CASE

(This page is dedicated to the artists, fine and otherwise, who emerge from their places of hibernation this time each year, splattering creativity and paint all over campus.)

"Spring has come like the silver needle-note of a fife. Like a white plume and a green lance and a glittering knife and a jubilant drum."—Joseph Auslander.

Spring, the sugar pill. Spring, the stimulation, the chlorophyll, has come to awaken the artful heart.

At 1 a.m., Saturday morning, March 20, jazz music was ceased and harpiscord notes begun at the Clover Club. A scholar, sleeping outside the tavern, awoke and walked up Crouse Avenue. A car braked to allow an old lady to cross Marshall Street. The strains of "I Get a Kick" spilled out from Thornden and awoke a dreamer in Ostrom Cottage. A star hung over the Forestry campus. Spring had come.

THE STRANGE stimulation spread its green and breezy branches to the musician, the dabbler in paints, the poetic soul, the molder of phrases.

Windows flew open on Crouse hill and sounds, previously trapped by glass and brick within, were caught by the breeze and sprinkled across campus Trumpets blew their shrill cords through open portals across the alley into Maxwell. Trilling voices spurted from crowded prefabs in the shadow of the lofty Crouse tower.

Suddenly the grass became a more appropriate site for the artist. He, or she, moved paints, pallets, canvasses out into the sunlight and found new unseen beauty in Syracuse. Art, in its many, diverse forms, bloomed.

IT WAS a spring cleaning of ideas. A morning of the year renovation of enterprise and creation.

Down in the shanty where adjectives grow like weed and misspellings abound, Daily Orange typewriters belched out the verbage of Spring. The journalistic heart was moved to passion and words sprouted like daisies from the Smith-Coronas. One spring-struck student of word trickery stated in the daily that "dusk fell; the light seemed bright but the brightness became clouded in blurry halos."

Another sang "the quintescence of enjoyment coming from a couple who are sitting on the grass eating strawberry ice cream cones." And another, "Yea, verily, and the masses congregated in the hills and dales in the place of green grass to watch the dirtied sphere thrown and the sharpened spike aimed."

It was pure poetry.

THE MOOD of madness and creation and chirping spread itself in every direction. Down in Manhattan, the sporting journalists, freshly returned from Miami, stroked their rhyming dictionaries and burst their verse on the opening of baseball over the teletypes and out into the city rooms. One author noted in his lead sentence. "The Pirates don't exist. They just don't exist."

Down the hall, cartoonists were inking up art on parks, convertibles and grandmothers. In the backroom, behind the lead pot, the drama department viewed the diminishing theatrical season with remorse and stuck flaming swords into any shows that dared uncover their belated forms for an opening night.

From 42nd Street, was heard the late notes of Romberg and we got something called "Lost in Loviness" which seemed quite appropriate to the juke boxes and music lovers for the current season."

BACK AT Syracuse, front lawn grass sitting replaced pilgrimages to the movie houses. Charles Samuels, campus song bird, went anyway and reported "his failure points up the complete naturalness and good taste of the rest of the film. Mr. Lawford's studied boyishness and English sauvity belongs in a Noel Coward drawing room."

Campus thespians peeked bug-eyed from the top floor of Machinery Hall at the rising pinnacles to the west of them and sunk back into the Coronet theater to stir up a good laugh with "Gigi." The more artful and Spring-touched stage-steppers wrote drama and shouted in the basement surrounded by Greek columns. A few, lifted by the light, warm air, floated down to the Bookstore and bought a copy of "Theater Arts."

ON TELEVISION, J. Fred Muggs began scratching himself. Somewhat later, he bit Martha Raye.

The days of creation were upon us.

Fraternal houses cleaned out the cellars and piled Winter Carnival trapping on the curb for the sanitation trucks. More intellectually English scholars sought the shelter of their rooms and turned a hand to a short story or blank verse. The Yacht club went sailing and Lanny O'Kun wrote music in the orchestra pit of Astor theater.

THE ARTISTS of woodage and type sizers spread their wings and entered a crouquet tournament in the journalism shanty's front lawn.

A sweat-shirted gentleman chewed a balogna sandwich and authored a Cit paper on the Maxwell grass.

An inspired, in love, coed spread a bottle of bright red rinse over her darking curls and splashed her nails pink.

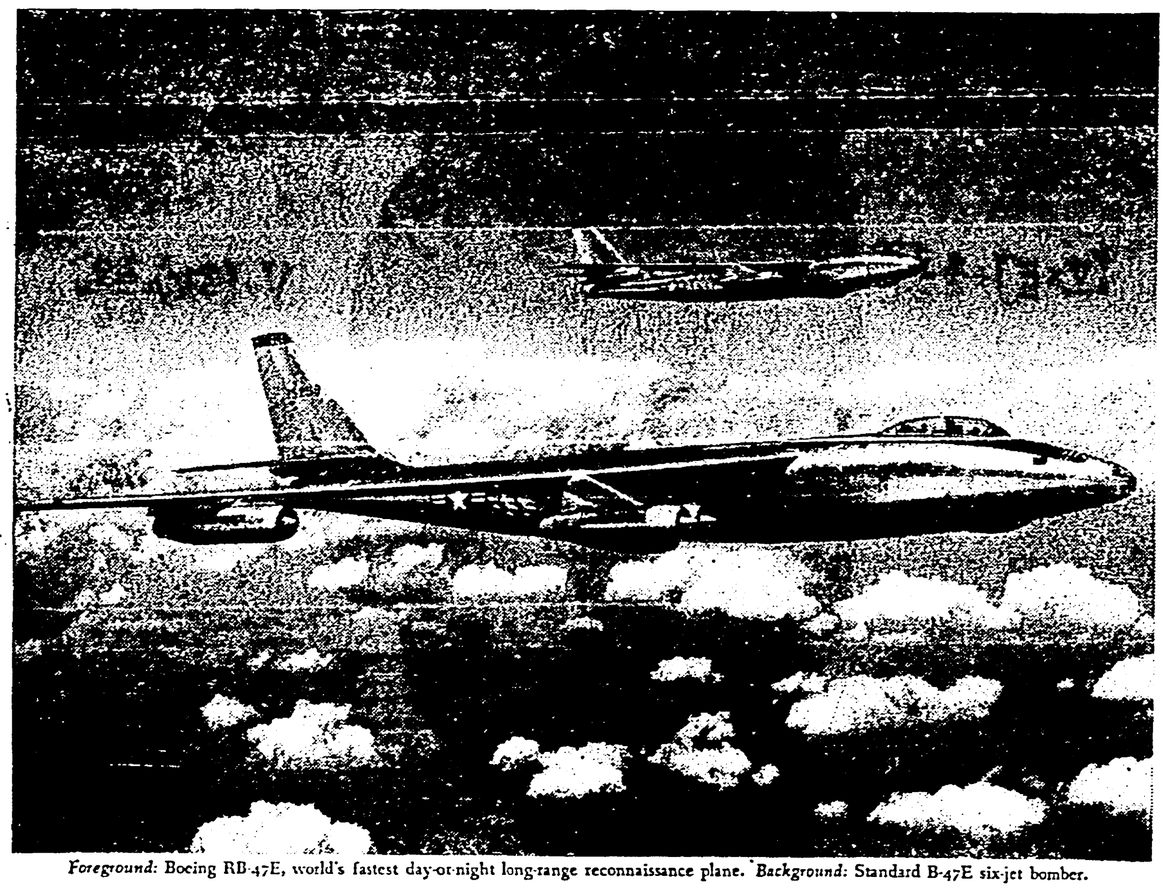
Spring had come.

EVEN DESCIPLES of Master Mestrovic can't resist the balmy breezes. Across the street a couple of kids were making mud pies proving that the creative urge hits everybody, regardless of age or avocation. Photos by Judy Gordon

MAYBE YOU DIDN'T think there was anything artistic about writing a master's thesis. Just goes to show that you too can be wrong, because here's a young man who obviously finds the great outdoors more conducive to creativity than a cubbyhole up in the library stacks.

ABOUT THIS TIME very year fine artists can be found all over campus, sketching trees, houses or whatever else meets the fancy. One coed who lives on Waverly Ave. relates that last week as she sleepily walked out of her dorm to go to her 8 o'clock, she stumbled over a couple like those above, sitting on the steps painting a house across the street. "Class assignment" they offered cheerfully as she muttered under her breath something about "crazy nature lovers." Photos by Judy Gordon

BLOW THAT PICCOLO, man, right through the open windows of Maxwell so those morning poli sci students will be reminded that one can't appreciate the finer things in life with one's nose stuck in a textbook on public administration in the Ozarks, or something to that effect.



Foreground: Boeing RB-47E, world's fastest day-or-night long-range reconnaissance plane. Background: Standard B-47E six-jet bomber.

What do you want most in an engineering career?

Is it room to grow? Then join a company that's growing. Boeing, for example, has grown continuously throughout its 37-year history of design, production and research leadership. There's always room up ahead—and Boeing promotes from within. Regular merit reviews are held to give you steady recognition.

Do you want long-range career stability? Boeing today employs more engineers than even at the peak of World War II. Here you'd work on such projects as pilotless aircraft, research on supersonic flight and nuclear power for airplanes, on America's first jet transport, and the world's outstanding jet bombers.

Do you want variety of opportunity? Aviation is unique in this respect. It offers you unmatched variety and breadth of application, from applied research to production design, all going on at once. Boeing is constantly alert to new materials and new techniques, and approaches them without limitations. In addition, Boeing's huge subcontracting program—requiring engineering co-ordination—offers you contacts with a cross section of American industry.

Boeing engineering activity is concentrated at Seattle, Washington, and Wichita, Kansas—communities with a wide range of recreational opportunities as well as schools of higher learning. The company will arrange a reduced work week to permit time for graduate study and will also reimburse tuition upon successful completion of each quarter's work.

There are openings in all branches of engineering (mechanical, civil, electrical, aeronautical and related fields) for DESIGN, PRODUCTION and RESEARCH. Also for physicists and mathematicians with advanced degrees.

Craddock, Former Orange Pitching Star, Makes Good in First Sally League Starts

By JOAN CONNOR

Walt Craddock, former Hill student and member of last year's baseball team, is finding the clubs of the Class A Sally league to his liking. In his two starts for the Savannah A's, Lefty Craddock has gone the route, winning the pair.

April 17 he made his organized baseball debut against the Columbia Reds and was credited with the 4-2 win. A week later, with the Reds once again supplying the opposition, Walt whiffed 13 batters while spinning an 8-2 victory.

WALT CRADDOCK

LAST YEAR the young southpaw was handcuffing the opposition of Coach Ted Kleinhans and the Orange nine. He would be in a Syracuse uniform today had his draft notice not been confusing.

It seems that on his original notice, Walt was classified 1-A. Expecting to be called into the service before his senior year, he signed a contract with the Philadelphia Athletics. Several weeks later he reported for an Army physical and was reclassified 4-F.

Craddock was a member of the class of 1954 and was dually enrolled in liberal arts and physical education. He pledged Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

AFTER INKING the Philadelphia contract, he was assigned to the Ottawa A's spring training site at Leesburg, Fla.

Ottawa Manager Les Bell, predicted Craddock would be pitching in the majors within two or three years. Taft Wright, veteran major and minor league player, tagged Walt as the A's best young prospect.

Before the close of the training sessions, Lefty Craddock was optioned to Savannah. The Philadelphia front office felt he should be playing regularly but his pitching at Ottawa would be limited. With Savannah he will have a regular turn on the mound. He also will benefit from the coaching of Manager Clyde Klutz, one time National League catcher.

Two years ago Coach Kleinhans commented on Walt's potential as a major leaguer. Two years from now Coach Kleinhans may very well be watching Walt live up to his potential as a regular on the Philadelphia Athletics.

Frosh Nine Meets Rochester Today

Andy Mogish's freshman nine makes a third attempt to play the University of Rochester yearlings at Lew Carr Field this afternoon. The contest was postponed twice last week, Tuesday because of rain and Thursday on account of wet grounds.

Saltine Tennis Captains Prove Great Factor in Team's Success

By ALEX STRASSER
Associate Sports Editor

Hal McGrath, Art Sholk and, now, John Kerr form a lineage of tennis captains of which any team could be proud. McGrath, Sholk and Kerr have contributed more to the prestige and power of the captain than any other netmen in the history of tennis on the Syracuse campus.

The function of the tennis captain lies somewhere between his counterparts in baseball and golf.

THOSE WHO have watched major league baseball games have undoubtedly seen captains exchange batting lists. The baseball captain's job doesn't go far beyond this function.

In golf, on the other hand, the captain is coach in everything except name, as Syracuse has no golf mentor. Jumping over to tennis, we see that the captain figuratively adds up the duties of the golf and baseball captain, divides by two, and comes up with his role on the tennis squad.

A better insight into the function of the tennis captain may be gotten by delving into recent tennis history, and coming up with the respective records of former tennis Captains McGrath, Sholk and Kerr.

WHEN McGRATH took over the captain's reigns in 1951, tennis was just beginning to get back on its feet at Syracuse following World War II. A keen student of the game, McGrath, perhaps more so than anyone else, led to the broadening of the captain's duties.

Sholk succeeded McGrath as captain. Not as fine a player as his predecessor, Sholk nevertheless made one lasting contribution to the by-rules of the net squad.

The captain became the coach's right-hand man, aiding in the instruction of certain elementary strokes, seeing that gripes were taken care of, and standing in for the coach on many occassions. Tennis is an individual sport and, as the coach can't give individual instruction to all the players at the same time, someone is needed to spell the coach. Sholk was the man to fill that job.

KERR, THE net captain for the spring of 1954, has followed the precedent layed down by Sholk.

While not measuring up to McGrath as a player, Kerr still is one of Syracuse's better racketmen. Last year he won more than half of his matches, besides copping the Syracuse city doubles championship with Bob Marquadt.

The tennis season hasn't yet reached its half-way mark, but Kerr has already erased all doubts about his living up to the McGrath-Sholk tradition. In a word, Kerr has become the cohesive force on the squad, the true function of all good captains.

TOURNAMENT TRIO—HAL McGRATH, JOHN KERR, BOB MARQUADT pose with their trophies. McGrath was captain in '52 while Kerr captains this year's team. The three have been Coach Francis O'Brien's big guns in previous tourneys.

Bureaucrats Win; M-3, M-8 Romp

An eight-run outbrust in the third inning of the Skytop M-8—M-5 softball game, which enabled the former to win by a 10-5 score, highlighted a nearly full card of activity in Hendrick's Field last night.

In the other contests, M-3 walloped M-2 by a 9-4 count and the Bureaucrats topped Nathan Miller 5-2. The remaining game between M-10 and Collendale A-9 was forfeited to the Collendale squad.

Intramurals In Perspective

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Intramural Director

Intramural activity finally swung into full operation over the weekend with the scheduling of horseshoe pitching competition. Twenty-nine teams have been entered in this sport.

All horseshoe matches are scheduled for the pits at the Ski Lodge Recreation area. If the teams wish, they may arrange another place to hold the contests, as long as they notify the intra office ahead of time.

With only two weeks of school left, a lot of teams are still in the race for the various crowns. As of May 6, there were 15 teams remaining in the golf competition.

Also as of May 6, 26 teams had yet to play in the softball competition and 21 racket clubs were still in contention for the tennis crown. Barring unusually poor weather, each sport should be able to name a champion for Intra Director Milt Howard has allowed for postponements in drawing up the weekly schedules.

Tuesday afternoon, while the rain came pelting down, the easy-going director leaned back in his chair and began to mentally reschedule the games that would be rained out that day.

Milt is a whiz when it comes to programming the different slates. Considering the poor weather, surprisingly few games are left unplayed. This includes softball, tennis, horseshoes and golf.

The soft-spoken intra chief reminisced a little wistfully. "When I first came up here," he said, "there wasn't such a thing as a Friday afternoon class, or any late afternoon class for that matter, and we used to play our softball games in the afternoon.

"That way," he continued, "we got an earlier start in the spring, not having to worry about darkness, and we got a lot more games in by the time exams rolled around. But now . . . my goodness, lots of boys have labs and late classes 'til 5 or 6 o'clock and you certainly can't schedule afternoon games that way."

Milt, however, has scheduled some afternoon competition. The horseshoe matches are slated to run from 4-6, and the tennis matches also run in the late afternoon hours.

We got around (as we always do) to talking about the track day competition coming up, and Milt pointed out a few errors in last week's script. For one, the hurdle event is 12-yard low hurdles and not high hurdles as was stated.

For another, the intra competition will fall on Saturday, May 22, and not Saturday, May 15, as was mistakenly noted. Milt and track Coach Bob Grieve, who cooperates with the intramural department in planning and running the meet, have not yet decided whether the competition will be in the morning or afternoon.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that last year's rules will govern the meet. The major restrictions therein are that no man may compete in more than three events and that a house may not enter more than two men in each.

Although he has never mentioned it in more than an annoyed tone o fvoice, Milt is quite disappointed wit hthe carelessness shown by the intra participants in keeping correct and complete match results.

Last week, the silvery-haired director had to scour around all over campus to locate scores from some of the tennis and golf matches, even though explicit directions for turning in results are provided to all contestants.

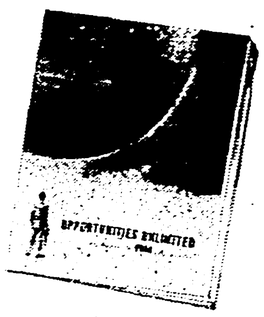
To a young engineer

. . . with his eye on the future



All your life you've been heading for this . . .

A place where ideas flourish, grow into realities.

A place where you're creating; contributing to human progress; using to the full your engineering education.

A place where what a man knows and what he can do are the things that determine his future.

Here at IBM, whether you're an ME, EE, or Engineering Physicist, whether your major interest is research, product design, or product development, there's something big for you to do, something that gives you not merely "job satisfaction," but job enthusiasm!

Your placement officer has copies of a new 32-page brochure picturing work at IBM Engineering Laboratories. It's titled "Opportunities Unlimited." Ask him for a copy today. Or write Mr. W. M. American Foreign Policy Attacked as Inadequate By Lerner at Cit Lecture

By DAVID BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Max Lerner, speaking at the Citienship 1b lecture at Hendricks Chapel yesterday, attacked the current American foreign policy as inadequate to control the advancement of Communism.

Lerner, author, columnist and part-time professor at Brandeis University, decried the "New Look" in American defense and the indecisive policy in Asia and the West. He pointed to the present Administration's failure to put forth a hard-headed and progressive program as the cause for the present dilemma.

"A curious alliance of isolationists and atomic internationalists" have hampered the President, Lerner said. These two apparently divergent forces have combined to oppose any negotiations for peace in Indo-China while at the same time blocking American intervention in the strife, he stated.

"Too great a deference on the president's part to political and business professionals and congressional investigations," was emphasized by Lerner as an important factor in the inadequate foreign policy.

The "New Look" in American defense, use of massive and instant retaliation to aggression, was condemned by Lerner. He stated that this policy can only "doom America to helplessness in any kind of a war situation except an all-out atomic one."

America's present attitude toward her Western allies, too, was attacked by the columnist. "We should not "wave the big atomic stick at our enemies, rather, we should give our allies a voice in the control of the bomb."

"The crux of the Western Alliance is not how the defense of Western Europe, but it is the desire of the people of the West to have a voice in the control of hydrogen warfare."

Secretary of State Dulles, according to Lerner, did not take cognizance of this desire in his recent diplomatic travels in Europe. The Secretary concerned himself with recruiting support against the Chinese Communists and did not ask for aid in the control of the bomb.

Lerner implied a mistake has been made in Asia as well as Europe. He pointed out that there was a triple revolution now taking place in Asia. An anti-imperialism, a new concern for color and accordingly an anti-white feeling, and a cry for agrarian reform, make up this three-fold revolution.

But instead of taking advantage of this change, America, "who was in the best position" to gain from it, has failed, said Lerner.

"We should have maintained a flexible policy at the Geneva Conference. We should have showed the Asians that it was the Communist Chinese and not the Western nations that represent the great threat of imperialism. We did not do this," Lerner said.

We have not taken advantage of anti-communist leaders in Asia. We should support such men as Nehru instead of antagonizing them.

Much of our trouble in formulating an effective foreign policy lies in "the intellectual paralysis that has been taking place in America," said Lerner.

He has dealt with these problems in such books as "Ideas Are Weapons," and "Ideas for the Ice Age."

"The assassins of the American dream," including Senator McCarthy, have spread this doctrine of conformity, he stated.

At the conclusion of his speech, however, Lerner voiced his belief that possibly the nation is "coming out of the age of conformity" and that "there is a new feeling of courage developing in America today."

AL CERVI, Syracuse Nats' coach, will speak at the Interfraternity Council banquet Sunday. The dinner will be at 6 p.m. in Sherman's Hotel Hilton restaurant, and will honor IFC representatives. Cervi coached the Nats to the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs recently, before they were defeated by Minneapolis. Intramural awards will also be presented at the banquet.

Cervi Will Speak At IFC Banquet

Al Cervi, coach of the Syracuse Nationals basketball team and one of the "greatest pro competitors of all time," has been named speaker at the annual Interfraternity Council Awards banquet, according to co-chairmen Robert Lefko and George Taback.

The banquet, scheduled at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 16 in Sherman's Hotel Hilton Restaurant, will pay tribute to the IFC representatives. Awards will be given to members who have given outstanding service to the council and tribute will also be paid to the outgoing officers.

IN ADDITION, the intramural award will be presented to the house which has accumulated the most points throughout the year.

Guests at the affair will include two IFC reps from each fraternitey and house presidents. Members of the university faculty will be guests of honor.

Cervi gained national prominence in recent months by leading the Nats to the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs before they were eliminated in their final clash with Minneapolis.

THE DIMINUTIVE mentor has led the Syracusans since the 1948-49 season. He was player-coach during the first five seasons before restricting his activities to the bench this year.

All IFC reps will be able to procure their house's invitation to the banquet at the IFC meeting tomorrow night.

1500 ROTC Cadets Honor Chancellor at Noon Review On Hendrick's Field Today

Chancellor William P. Tolley will be honored by more than 1,500 Syracuse University Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets at noon today with the annual Chancellor's Review on Hendricks Field.

About 900 Air Force and 600 Army cadets will assemble in Archbold Stadium and march onto the field. Eighteen awards will be made to outstanding cadets at the parade, which is open to all students, faculty, guests and the general public.

CHANCELLOR TOLLEY will ride in a jeep to inspect the troops. With Dr. Tolley will be Col. Robert P. Halloran, PAS&T of the AFROTC, and Cadet Col. Robert Leberman, wing commander. Lt.-Col. George R. Stevens III, PMS&T of the Army unit, and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts Eric H. Faigle, will be in a second jeep.

Dean Faigle will be presented the Sons of the American Revolution medal for good citizenship by Col. Halloran and Charles Morse. Morse will also give the American Legion Post 41 Queen's Medallion to Geraldine Wilde, san Eisenberg, Barbara Fidelman, Doris Hertelendy, Carolyn Gilbert and Anne Schenk—will receive sponsor ribbons from American Legion Syracuse 40-and-8's.

Poli Sci Prof Appears In Albany Today

Dr. Phillips Bradley, professor of political science, will present a five-volume report on "Presidential Nominating Politics in 1952" to Governor Thomas E. Dewey today in Albany.

Dr. Bradley was one of a group of political analysts who made a study of nominating politics in 1952 in order to determine how well American political nominating procedures functioned in making the will of the people known at the nominating conventions.

The volumes contain studies of how both parties in every state and the territories selected their delegates, as well as a report and analysis of pre-convention and convention nominating politics on a national basis.

The findings, contributed by 340 political scientists from all states of the union, were published by the Johns Hopkins Press.

Spring Weekend Awards Made For Scholarship, Floats, Cottages

By POLLY REED
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Twelve bare-footed, yellow-skinned Lambda Chi Alpha's and their float, depicting the Broadway hit "The King and I" copped first prize in the "best all around" category of the Spring Weekend float parade Saturday.

Second prize went to Sigma Alpha Epsilon's "Quo Vadis" and Psi Upsilon took third with "Antony and Cleopatra."

FOR THE second year in a row Zeta Tau Alpha garnered the most beautiful float prize. They won this year with "Tales of Hoffman." Gamma Phi Beta, in black and white, won second place with their "Les Beaux Arts Ball." Alpha Gamma Delta's "Faust" was awarded third prize in the category.

A burlesque of early movies, "The Perils of Pauline," won the funniest float prize for Pi Lambda Phi. The good ship Reluctant from "Mr. Roberts," featuring a St. Bernard dog, won second prize for Theta Chi. Tau Epsilon Phi, with a "Salute to 3-D" was awarded third.

The most original float was Kappa Kappa Gamma's "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." Delta Gamma's "Brigadoon" and "Birth of a Nation" by Alpha Chi Omega won second and third respectively.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON the Spring Weekend queen was an-Wilde's court—Ann Hoffman, Announced from among the members of Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary and other senior women chosen outstanding.

As flash bulbs popped, Mary Ann Dalton, president of Women's Student Government this year, was crowned queen by Iris Roth, last year's WSG president.

Miss Dalton was chosen the outstanding senior woman from finalists including Jane Dempsey, Madge Evans, Judith Perry and Ellen (Billie) Williams.

OTHER MEMBERS of the Spring Weekend court were Jeanne Byrnes, Winona Brierly, Elizabeth Brydon, Janet Caro, Patricia Fay, Anne Forrest, Rita Frankiel, Hanako Hillen, Blanche Krischer, Arlene Lambert, Ann Lines, Gwen Mahle, Marilyn Mawson, Nancy Hoehle McClelland, Constance Pierson, Sue Radcliff, Patricia Roden, Patricia Saxton, Virginia Sheldrick and Barbara Suchy.

For the second consecutive year, Schultze freshman cottage copped the best freshman house award, presented by Barbara Anderson, president of WSG Assembly.

Also for the second year in a row, Butler cottage was awarded honorable mention. French cottage also received this honor.

IN THE Independent house division, Mott cottage was voted outstanding and Charles cottage honorable mention.

Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith awarded Arlene (Turbi) Blum the outstanding sophomore woman cup. Evelyn (Betsy) Wright was awarded the junior woman's cup. The awards were given on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service and character.

Arlene Swertfeger, a transfer from Middlebury, was granted the outstanding transfer cup. It was presented by assistant Dean of Women Ruth Haddock.

AT MOVING up ceremonies Chancellor William P. Tolley gave awards to the man and woman in each class with the highest average.

In the senior class Arlene Lambert, valedictorian, with a 2.94 average, and Reuven Dobry, salutatorian, were recognized. Miss Lambert is enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts and Dobry is in engineering.

From the class of 1954 Frederick Clapmeier, Utica College, with a 2.97 average and Marcia Frink, Liberal Arts, 2.83 were named outstanding scholarship students.

IN THE junior class Lawrence Krishar, Liberal Arts, 2.89 and Joan Brydon, Liberal Arts, 2.88, won the awards. Freshmen Robert Gorden, Liberal Arts; John Connor, Utica College; Barbara Cain, Liberal Arts; and Paulene Allen, Utica College all had a perfect 3.0 averages.

After the presentation of the awards, Chancellor Tolley officially "moved up" freshmen, sophomores, and juniors. Seniors were committed to a state of limbo from which they will be rescued June 7.

Political Negotiations Must Precede Military Pacts in Asia, Says Lerner

By MICHAEL BRAUN

The plan for a Southeastern Asia Treaty Alliance (SATO) was negated by Max Lerner yesterday. In an interview with The Daily Orange, Lerner said "that any military alliance in Asia must be preceded by political negotiations. Such countries as India and Burma will not enter into a military alliance unless they can be reasonably certain of political security."

Lerner, a columnist for the New York Post, had just completed a speech to Citizenship 1b students on current world problems, particularly those applicable to Asia.

Concerning the recognition of Red China Lerner commented that this could most effectively be carried out through a "package deal." This would include cessation of hostilities in Indo China, settlement of the Korean problem and a permanent peace treaty for Japan.

LRNER DOES not consider these demands excessive. He commented that in diplomacy as in poker "nobody immobilize his aces." He feels that before any of these problems are attacked the most important one, "population pressure" should be met.

He cited Dr. Margaret Sanger's recent appearance before the Japanese Diet as being very important to the future of Asia. "It is only through means of scientific birth control that the question of Asia's future can possibly be determined." The amount of people now living there make any type of negotiations nearly impossible.

In reference to President Eisenhower's policy of "trade not aid," Lerner commented that "while this might stablizie the economies of certain Western European countries it would wreck havoc with Asia which is only recently awakening to the problems of world trade."

DISCUSSING THE 'Oppenheimer case he said that the ultimate implications will not be realized until it has been observed how many scientists enter governmental work. "There is a growing resentment in the scientific community against the government. The scientists resent the government's 'isolation' policy regarding the forming of official policy.

They treat the scientists as separate entities often giving them no indication of the ultimate objective of their research. Scientific governmental work has never been financially lucrative. Now it is doubly unattractive to scientists because of the restrictions placed on them."

Concerning the Asiatics' view of racial equality in the United States, Lerner said that "every gain in internal racial democracy is worth two combat weapons." He feels that among the ly Hoover's fault that FBI files have been misused." he deeducated segment of the Negro population there is great confidence that have been taken by the government towards racial equality.

ON THE question of legislative access to executive files, Lerner feels it is a direct violation of the separation of powers doctrine. The role of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is a very important one to the security of the country and should not allow itself to be prostituted or misused by politicians who are intent on personal gains and destruction of character.

Basically, the role of the FBI can be broken down into two important divisions. First, it is one of security which is mostly technical work and is of vital importance to the government. Its other function is that of a security agency and it is here that its powers may become misused.

The function of Hoover as head of the agency is solely determined by his superior, the Attorney General. Brownell's philosophy seems to be one of "immediate tightening up" rather than the "watchful waiting" of his predecessors, stated Lerner.

"SO, IT IS really not entireclared. "However, he should take all precautions against the specific use of classified information and not release it until it has been cleared by responsible members of the executive department."

Lerner said that 'the role of the press in contemporary opinion, and even in governmental operation has been greatly underestimated. He said that while now even the more conservative press has come out against McCarthy, at the beginning they released all of his statements as "gospel truth."

"Not enough thinking individuals are entering the field of journalism today," he stated. "Too many of our contemporary writers seem more concerned with who said something rather than why he said it. The mere fact that a member of the Senate makes a statement is no reason for it be treated as "infallible."

"THE MODERN journalist attempts to write a story with no background of the situation involved," Lerner said. "More and more writers appear in print who have no cognizance of current world affairs of an inclusive nature. He is only aware of the overall situation as it concerns his particular story."

"Perhaps this is because of the growing climate of opinion among non informed people in this country against anything smacking of intellectualism. This fight was instigated by the McCarthy forces and has been waged on a grand scale by people sympathetic to his cause."

Lerner cited Elmer Davis' recent book "But We Were Born Free" as being a particularly good explanation of this problem. In his book Davis explains the growing association of the word "intellectual" with the word "Communist." Davis feels that this is due to the forces that promulagated the

Boar's Head Gives Comedy This Week

"Lysistrata," the Greek comedy presented by Boar's Head earlier this year, will reopen for performances this week. Brought back by popular demand, the play will run Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, in the Drama Building.

Curtain time for all performances is 8:15 p.m.

The drama department's production of "Lysistrata" by Aristophanes has already been played before when the show ran for six weeks earlier in the semester.

THE THREE-DAY performance will be the last bit of live theater that Syracuse will see for this year, until the drama activities begin anew in the fall.

Starring in the lead roles of "Lysistrata", are Barbara Hush, Shirley Ann Fenner and Gerald Leider. Familiar faces who appeared in last week's musical "Up in Lights" will be on stage again to resume their roles in "Lysistrata." They are: Helen Hurdis, Bob Dishy, Sam Baskin, Bob Scapato and JoAnn Reed.

The entire show is under the direction of Prof. Sawyer Falk, head of the drama department.

Reservations will be accepted by phone at 4-2776, or at the box-office in the drama building. Tickets will be sold for $1 and $1.50 per person.

Year's Last Dance Slated for Friday

"The Orange Special" is the dance in the Women's Building, theme for this Friday night's according to Norma Voracio and Honey Hoyt, co-chairmen of the dance.

The dance will be the final one for the semester as it will be held on the last day of scheduled functions for the University.

SPORT CLOTHES are in order for the occasion which, like all of the previous Friday dances, will be free to University students who present their identification cards.

The music for the dance will be provided by records. Students at any time during the event may request their favorite selections to be played.

In addition, jazz records will be played in the lounge throughout the dance.

AEP Elects Officers

Prof. Irwin to Direct Dylan Thomas' Play

Prof. Raymond Irwin of the Speech School will supervise a production of "Under Milkwood" by the late Dylan Thomas on May 16. The shortened version of the verse play will be given at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Drama Building.

Dylan Thomas author of the play finished the piece last fall just prior to his visit to Syracuse. When he was in New York arranging for its casting he died.

"UNDER MILKWOOD" is one of the few plays written to be presented as a group reading. It is the twelfth play Prof. Irwin has presented in this manner over the past few years.

Some of the previous readings given by the Speech and Dramatic apartments were: "Electra"....., dapartments were: "Electra," "Antigone," "Faust" and "Salome"

The reading itself deals with a day in the lives of people in a small Welsh town. The play will be presented with recorded sound effects and the characters will speak in Welsh accents.

MEMBERS OF the cast are: Daniel Leary, as the principal narrator, Janet Bettenfield, Robert Cheesman, Claire Swan and Bette Neejer. The entire production is under the direction of Prof. Irwin.

Students are urged to attend this reading of this play by Dylan Thomas who has been called the greatest lyric poet of the 20th century. Admission is free.

Former Trustee Dies In Syracuse Home

George H. Bond, a former member Regents and Board of Trustees of Syracuse University, died Saturday afternoon at his home, 304 Walnut pl.

Bond, who was born August 10, 1873, the son of William H. and Ida Hopkins Bond, lived his entire life in the Syracuse area.

AS AN undergraduate at Syracuse University, he served for two seasons as captain of the football team. He received his AB in philosophy in 1894 and graduated from the law school in 1897, in the first full time law class to graduate from the University.

In 1930, the University honored him by conferring the honorary degrees of master of philosophy and doctor of laws.

While on the Hill he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, and Phi Delta Phi, honor societies. He was a founder of Phi Kappa Alpha, senior men's honorary.

AFTER GRADUATION Bond became the senior member of the law firm of Bond, Schoenick and King. He was one of the organizers of the New York State Association of District Attorneys and served as president of the New York Bar Association in 1937.

Bond was a member of Chancellor Flint's executive and finance committee. In 1937 he accepted chairmanship of the Alumni fund, which controls and undertakes the raising of endowments.

Opportunity to Have a Say

Students found this week that another University function is not as arbitrary as it has seemed in the past. With an offer to include undergraduates on a menu planning committee, food service officials indicated that they are willing to consider student opinion in providing one of the three prime needs of life to campus residents.

Although members of a Women's Student Government panel did much of the investigating of the possibility of student representation in planning meals, the food service people seemed eager to have advice on University meals from those who must eat them. Last year such a plan was discussed but it was dropped because of disinterest on the part of the students whom it most concerned.

This year on open meeting will be held to discuss a similar plan, if women students shown interest. By dialing one of three phone numbers—4-0539, 4-9451 or 75-5771—this interest can be indicated. Mrs. Ursula Pettengill has told student welfare panel members she is willing to take any suggestions within reason for improvement of meals and service.

Suggestions from the panel have been followed in many instances in the past. More eggs are served now at breakfast, condiments are provided at all meals and diners are offered a dual choice of desserts at lunch and at the evening meal.

Student representation on the menu committee can bring welcome improvements in food service. It is a chance to turn gripes into praise and idle comment into constructive action.

Please Keep Off the Grass

The vernal equinox having passed, the time has come for lawns and campus to be rejuvenated.

And so markers with white strings and waving ribbons have been placed to mark for the passerby where grass has been replanted.

One year ago the same attempt was made. For several days the familiar brown footworn paths through greener sections remained untouched by leather sole; after that the budding green didn't have a chance for survival.

A little restraint now will make for a more beautiful campus. Take a look at the grass in front of the Special Education Building—that grew in over a period of a year and a half. A repeat performance is in order all over campus.

So far the replanted areas have been left alone pretty much, and sun and rain have added their bit. We hope that this will be the year that we'll be able to say, as contrast, "How green is our Hill."

A Case of Common Courtesy

One of the things that saddened us over spring weekend was, unfortunately, the actions of some individuals at the float parade.

A rope had been set up in front of the Library for the crowd to stand behind. This was disregarded by the individuals in question, who refused in rude manner when asked to move.

We're sorry to note this, not only because it's a breach of common courtesy, but because in the eyes of visitors it casts a reflection on Syracuse that we hardly think desirable.

I Hold These Truths...

By STAN LEFF
Former President, Men's Student Government

I believe that an individual's worth in this world is measured by his life's activity. His trbutes to God, through the medum of his church, are superfluous in comparison with the value of his actual daily behavior.

There is potential goodness in everyone; it remains for the individual to do good or evil. No church has a priority on goodness or evil. Ultimately, all believers act as individuals—as do agnostics and atheists. The proof of a Godly life for me is in the doing, not the believing.

I cannot truly say that I have a faith. I do not feel that having a faith is of prime importance to living a good life. Judeo-Christian ethical teachings provide me with my basic guide to living a constructive life, but I do not follow them to the "jumping off place" at which point they become a faith.

Accepting a basic religious belief is something which I feel highly unqualified to do. It seems to me that I have only begun my search for truth. What I have accepted is the belief that anything done to promote peace and harmony is done in the cause of truth.

It is my aim in life to contribute to peace and fellowship among all of mankind. There may be some selfishness underlying this goal . . . for as long as there are antagonisms and threats of violence my own life is in jeopardy. In a sense, then, I am seeking to insure my own survival when I claim to strive for the welfare of everyone. However, the major goal is one that I would give my life for, if this were the only way to attain it. I feel that every individual shares in holding the key to the future, and that it is only as responsible individuals that we can better the world in which we live.

I believe strongly in democracy, which offers us the essential framework within which we can develop ourselves as individuals and within which we are encouraged to assert our individuality. Democracy, too, offers us direction by placing certain ideals before us. It offers to me all of the tools which I feel are necessary in leading an enriching, worthwhile life.

Col. Halloran to Leave Hill Air ROTC in June

By ART SIEGEL

There is something intangible and soul-satisfying in devoting time to education according to a one-time Syracuse student.

Now a teacher, Col. Robert P. Halloran is a professor of air science and tactics of the AFROTC unit here.

Halloran, who leaves the University sometime in June, said yesterday that every Air Force officer ought to work in this atmosphere to obtain an understanding of the American system of education.

COL. ROBERT P. HALLORAN, AFROTC head at Syracuse, who goes in June to Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala.

He will be in charge of education and training at Air University for the more than 200 colleges and universities that have AFROTC programs. He will be stationed at Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala., home of Air University.

The smiling, pipe-smoking colonel said yesterday that Syracuse University is unique among large colleges. For its size, he said, the interest shown in the individual by faculty and administration is unparalleled.

"Naturally I am prejudiced," he said, "having been a student here not so long myself. I am now a collegue of many persons who were once my teachers."

Halloran said that the University is characterized by a group of men who actually practice what they preach. At first he found it difficult to understand why men who might do better from the economical standpoint remain teachers in colleges.

"But then," he said, "I began to see the challenge inherent when you work with the future —when you watch and help people grow up."

"It is a wonderful experience to watch the individual grow up—the way it is with your own children." Col. Halloran has three girls and two boys.

For one of the liberal educational institutions it is rare to see any feelings for the military, the colonel said. But he added that given the proper circumstances and being able to appeal to logical values, the cadts turn oue well.

Halloran said tha tthere is a challenge to the military too. "You don't get this stamped affair—the students try to be better and wiser. If the military doesn't get better and wiser too, it is licked."

Understanding, he said, is important, and the military has in that sense become a working part of the University.

He said that the world situation has enabled the corps to get a good cross-section of boys who as they go along become the biggest influence by which the corps is judged.

Halloran said the corps has met much of this challenge. But he added that there is much to be dont. The program must be carefully approached if it is to succeed on a peacetime basis. It will never, he said, be accepted on the same level as the traditional educational subjects.

He said that there has been much cooperation and mutual work between the Air Force and the universities.

Stating that this year's senior class is the best yet, Halloran said he has been able to say that each year since he has been here.

He recalls that when he came here he had a file of 20 projects: "Now I have 120 to be completed."

The colonel said the cadets themselves have been responsible for much of the military tradition and esprit de corps in AFROTC. He said he hopes the corps has helped individual members and added that AFROTC takes second place to none as a process of commissioning officers.

Haloran has served as an air attache, teacher, linguist, and a bomber pilot. In civilian life, he did advertising work for the Syracuse Post-Standard.

Comment from his friends and colleagues is that the University will remember Col. Halloran as one of its best products; and the cadet corps will remember him for taking some parts and from them making a whole.

Education Seen With Reference To the Theatre

By ROBERT H. HIGGS
Valedictory

The large sign with its purple background stands solitary against the new green of a coming spring. Its simple legend ACT IV telling the end of a drama. It is a fitting comparison to make for four years of college. Each year an act in itself and each year, like a carefully planned drama, leading to a climax in ACT IV.

College in a sense is like summer stock where we gather a little experience before going out to assume our roles in the third act, or the third quarter of the 20th century.

The play has been going on for a long time and, as in the case of long runs, it is necessary to find new blood and new faces with new ambitions and new dreams to replace the actors who have tired along the way, or who have turned to other expediencies.

The name of the play is ALL IN A LIFE TIME and the stage is the world. The casting director is father time and he will select the new actors, determining whether our aging has brought us the experience needed to take over various and sundry roles. In other words, how well have we learned in summer stock?

Whether or not we accept the anology of college to summer stock it is still a time for summing up. With the thought of a coming reckoning in mind this is directed to those undergraduates who still have most of their time in summer stock.

ACT IV is an inescapable climax and there will be other final curtains. Will there be undue discrepancy between promises given and promises fulfilled? This is an important consideration in a society where competition for roles is keen and performance is the only valid criteria.

The time is ours, but not to waste. Let those approaching other final curtains in summer stock look beyond to the larger drama.

SAC Schedules Dance Friday to Close Year

By MARY VIVIAN

The last of the events held this year in the Women's Building will be the "Orange Special" mixer this Friday night. The dance will be the last all-University function of the year.

The Friday night dances have been held all semester under the direction of the Student Activities Committee of the Women's Building. The committet, appointed by Women's Student Government President Stanley Leff, was formed by a motion of both student governments to supervise the building's activities.

The eight members were advised by Miss Margaret Parker, director of the building and social director of the University, and Mrs. Margaret Bonisteel, assistance director of the building.

Appointed to the committee last February were Merle Bank, Marleigh Barkley, Nancy Boerner, Ann McKaig, Jerry Gerber, Roger J. Herz, Arthur Kinney, and John de Palma.

The $15 million Women's Building was dedicated on November 15, 1953 with a ribbon-cutting ceremony and formal dedication speeches bu such personalities as Chancellor William P. olley; Miss Katherine Sibley, director emeritus of the physical education department; Lucille M. Verhulst, the present director of the department; and Mary Anne Dalton, WSG president.

The activities of the building got a good start this year. In addition to the weekly series of dances, Wednesday evening dance classes were set up under the direction of Mr. F. Walter Medicis of the University staff and Jane Russell, both of whom handled the Student Union dances classes for several years. Both beginner and advanced classes were taught by a corp of instructors.

Plans for a proposed activities center have been in the offing for several months. The center would be located in the building's basement and would consist of a large lounge and dance hall surrounded by several smaller rooms. A kitchen and snack bar would be included. A director's office, three meeting rooms with removable partitions, a television and card room, a listening room, and space for ping pong, games, and club meetings would be included, in addition to a study lounge.

The "Orange Special" dance planned for this Friday night will be in line with the other dances in the series. Stag or drag, the dance is free to any student who produces his identification card.

Also, a concert is given via records in the alumni lounge simultnaeously with the dances. This week's concert will spotlight jazz records. Games are set up in the lounge, in addition, each week. These include chess and cards.

Refreshments are sold at all of the events. Often they are made by members of the committee, such as the homemade cookies served at the Variety night in February.

Each of the dances has a central theme. The Variety Night, a Sadie Hawkins Dance and dance in honor of victorious candidates in campus elections have been among those held this semester.

The dances were begun in February with the first dance featuring Ray Caldiero and his orchestra. The Outing Club and a ventriloquist have also added to the various functions.

A talent bureau has been formulated to take the place of that which was sponsored by the defunct Student Union. This bureau is made up of campus showmen and is available to any campus and city organizations requesting talent for entertainment.

The activities at the Women's Building have gotten a very good start under the capable director of the Student Activities Committee. And next year's activities hold the promise of being equally if not more successful than this year's.

Award of Year

Butler Cottage, a freshman dorm, may not have come in first in the contest for the best freshman house award, but they did receive an honor almost as important.

Washington Arms recently voted Butler the best all-around freshman girls' cottage. Last week the coeds received the award along with a surprise serenade from some of the Arms residents.

Liberals vs. McCarthy: Fight Fire With Fire?

By LEE KIKLIER

Of late, the population of this nation have been supjected to almost a dozen days of McCarthy, Stevens, Jenkins, Welch et al. The aimless hearings have wandered and managed to lose everyone except the relentless television cameras.

Since the issue is muddled, one must resort to a study of the participants. Is this really, as some claimed it would be, the end of McCarthy?

Against McCarthy are his vicious, unsubstantiated attacks on innocent and guilty alike, his slander, his innuendo, his generalizing, his name-calling. It is said that McCarthy ignores democratic process; that in his avowed effort to save America he is actually destroying it, curtailing its liberty, its freedom of thought that caused the very growth of America.

Let us, however, not lose sight of the goal in the McCarthy battle. It is to defend democracy, not to further McCarthy's methods by using them as a means of battling him.

Items:

Edward R. Murrow, whose reputation is stacked on his impartiality and his well-modulated voice, presented what was hailed as the first real step taken by TV against McCarthy. As well meaning as it was, Murrow's show was a painstakingly edited movie of McCarthy at his most obnoxious. It showed the Senator belching, yawning in the face of testimony, blowing his nose, etc.

Admittedly, this was a doctored show and Murrow made no pretense as to its completeness or its impartiality. Essentially, though, this was a show concerning McCarthy's manners, not his morals.

McCarthy replied in his usual style: Murrow was a Red, a bleeding heart journalist and the leader of the jackals.

Murrow took seven minutes of his nightly 15-minute show to refute McCarthy's accusations piecemeal. Murrow did a fine job but couldn't resist, at the end of his show, "If McCarthy means that I am left of him and Louis XIV . . ." Murrow had no justification to compare McCarthy with Louis XIV. This must be termed a form of name-calling.

At the recent hearings McCarthy was on the stand. Questioning: Joe Welch for the Army. McCarthy had revealed a letter from a man in G-2 whose name he refused to reveal.

Welch pressed McCarthy to reveal the name. Welch made a reference to the Fifth Amendment, insinuated that McCarthy had violated the witness oath and went so far to insist on revelation because McCarthy didn't take an oath when he promised to keep the name a secret.

Some have lost sight of the goal. They are anti-McCarthy rather than being pro—the salvation of democracy. They say that men like McCarthy use the democratic process for their own ends and eventually destroy it. Does this give them any more right to attack McCarthy in much the same manner that they complain about?

There must be a cool, logical way to beat McCarthy. If the persons in position don't use it, then it reflects their lack of faith in popular opinion. They then appeal to the popular support that McCarthy has received and his methods for receiving it. In the end, they both destroy the need for popular opinion.

It brings to mind a picture of McCarthy running around the flower bed crying: "Wolf! Wolf!" and the liberals trampling the same flowers crying: "McCarthy! McCarthy!"

Edward Lear's 142nd Birthday Commemorated

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Director

If Edward Lear were still having birthdays, he would have been 142 years old last Sunday. Lear, of course, was inventor, discoverer and manufacturer grand of the limerick.

We salute Mr. Lear and the limerick with a few up to date lines:

There once was a cobalt bomb
Which tried not to do any homb,
But it dropped from the sky
Blew up everything high
'Twas the end of the earth, God domb.

Thinclads Topple BU In Lone Home Clash

Within a space of eight days, Bill Orange's dual track meet season has come to a close and the Hill tracksters have compiled a perfect 2-0 record. Saturday, Coach Bob Grieve's runners copped the previous week's victory over Colgate with a thumping 78½-52½ verdict over Boston University.

Although the Beantowners saw fit to bring only ten men to Archbold and the weather saw fit to put as many puddles on the track; competition was surprisingly fierce. Times turned in by the runners brought approving applause by the 100 fans who braved the drizzle and the cold.

PARTICULARLY SURPRISING were the performances in the 100, 220, 440 and 880-yard events and the broad jump. BU's top sprinter, Bill Shearer won the 100 in 9.9 and the 220 in 21.7, both very reputable times.

Orange quarter-miler Jack Hubbard won his specialty in 49.3 seconds, his seven-foot stride spanning most of the rain puddles on the oval. Broad jumper Dick Jackson took a first for the Pietymen in that event with a leap of 22 feet, 2¾ inches, despite the slippery take-off area.

The visitors' low-built Bill Smith, uncorking a tremendous kick in the last 250 yards, broke the tape in 1:55.8 in the half mile.

The results:

Mile run—1. Osterhout (S), 2. J. F. George (S), 3. Armstrong (S). Time—4:39.4.
440-yard dash—1. Hubbard (S), 2. Shupe (S), 3. Bell (B). Time—49.3.
100-yard dash—1. Shearer (B), 2. Jackson (S), 3. Covington (F). Time—09.9.
120-high hurdles—1. tie: Savoye (S) and Palmieri (B), 3. Beattie (S). Time—15.7.
220-yard dash—1. Smith (B), 2. Vickery (S), 3. Armstrong (S). Time—1:55.6.
220-yard dash—Shearer (B), 2. Hubbard (S), 3. Bell (B). Time—2.17.
Two-mile run—1. Osterhout (S), Parker (S), Cole (S). Time—10:12.5.
120-yard low hurdles—1. Savoye (S), 2. Shupe (S), 3. Palmieri (B). Time—25.2.
Mile relay—1. Syracuse (Hubbard, Vielbig, Armstrong, Shupe). Time—3:31.2.
Broad jump—1. Jackson (S), 2. tie: Kirby (S) and Bruce (B). Dist.—22 feet, 2 3-4 inches.
Pole vault—1. tie: Hoose and Wrightman (S), Hesseck and Covington (B). Height—11 feet, 6 inches.
Javelin—1. Martin (S), 2. Fremm (S), 3. Allen (S). Dist.—182 feet, 3 inches.
High jump—1. tie: Palmieri and Hesseck (B), 3. Savoye (S). Height—5 feet, 8 inches.
Shot put—1. Bates (B), 2. Allen (S), 3. Sargent (S). Dist.—45 feet, 10 inches.
Discus—1. Bates (B), 2. J. E. George (S), 3. Covington (B). Dist.—125 feet, 10 1-2 inches.

EASY RUNNER—Junior JACK HUBBARD'S effortless running carried him to a first place in the 440-yard dash in the Boston University meet Saturday.

Frosh Cindermen Edge Red Raiders

Brown Sets Disc Mark In Home Victory

Paced by an amazing 21-point performance by Jim Brown, the Syracuse yearlings downed a visiting Colgate frosh track team, 66½-62½ Friday afternoon. Roger Gilbert, Bob Milner and Dick Day also turned in sterling efforts for the young cindermen.

Brown, who probably spent as much energy running from one event to another, won first place in the high jump, broad jump, shot put and discus events and placed third in the 100-yard dash.

The Long Island youth set a new freshman mark in the discus with a heave of 134 feet, 7 inches, breaking the old mark by an inch over three feet. In the broad jump, the all-around performer missed the frosh mark of 21 feet, 4 inches by one-third of a foot. In his first and only jump, Brown sailed 21 feet.

Milner upheld the Syracuse tradition of top-notch distance running by winning the two-mile and placing second in the mile. Gilbert ran second in both the 880 and 440 and ran on the winning mile relay team.

Day galloped to the tape in 22.7 seconds in the 220, ran the third leg of the mile relay and placed third in the broad jump.

SAM, AXP Win In Intra Softball

A three run outburst by Alpha Chi Rho in the last inning of their softball game played against Alpha Epsilon Pi enabled the former to win by a 5-4 score to highlight last night's card at Hendricks Field.

Mel Kline's strong pitching and timely hitting by his teammates gave Sigma Alpha Mu an easy 5-1 victory against Sigma Alpha Epsilon. In another strongly pitched game, Jerry Bertisch of Pi Lambda Phi two-hitted Beta Theta Pi in hurling his team to a 3-1 victory.

The remaining game played was a slugfest between Pi Alpha Chi and Alpha Tau Omega and the Chi's finally won out 9-7. If not for so many errors, probably neither team would have scored more than five runs.

Nine Meets Larries Today

By BOB LEFKO
Associate Sports Editor

It's becoming a redundant statement, but Syracuse's baseball nine will again strive to open its home campaign this afternoon at Lew Carr Field. This time, the scheduled opposition is St. Lawrence with game time 3:30 p.m.

Today's game, if played, will be the first successful home field venture of the year for the Saltines. The original scheduled opener against Cornell was rained out two weeks ago and a re-scheduled clash between the two squads also fell at the hands of Jupiter Pluvius.

ANOTHER BATTLE with Clarkson last Wednesday also was postponed due to rain as have been away contests with Sampson and Penn State. The Orange were scheduled to battle the Nittanies in a double bill Saturday but again were held back by the weather. So far, they've attempted to play nine times with only two successful ventures.

Mickey Kyff is again scheduled to open on the mound for the locals with either righty Bob Smart or southpaw Graham Glover, his probable Larries' opponent.

Kyff has been responsible for both decisions in Orange clashes so far, having pitched all the way for the opening game 7-5 victory over Union way back on April 24. He was losing pitcher in a relief role at Colgate in the most recent outing for the Saltines.

GLOVER COMPILED a 3-1 record for the Saints last season, his only setback being at the hands of Syracuse. Smart compiled a 1-2 ledger.

Leading hitter for the Scarlet is center fielder Ed Zifcak, holder of a .303 batting average in 1953. His other outfield partners will probably be veteran Dave Karlen and sophomore Brad Fenner. Karlen, a slick fielder, hit only .095 last season.

Probably the soundest position for the Larries is behind the bat where veteran Bud Saunders holds way. A talented signal-caller with a strong arm, the 200-pounder connected for a .285 clip last season.

Yale Golfers Win

The Orange golf team placed last in the competition for the Eastern Intercollegiate golf title on Sunday. Yale took the meet, with Dartmouth and Boston tied for second. Tomorrow, the frosh golfers are at Cornell.

ARMY MIDFIELDER—One of West Point's veteran midfielders, JOHN GIDDINGS, will face the Orange lacrossers tomorrow on the Hudson. Giddings, a second-classman from Severna Park, Md., won honorable mention all-American honors last year.

Stickmen Face Army Tomorrow at Point

Coach Roy Simmons' stickmen engaged in one of their hardest practice sessions of the year yesterday afternoon in preparation for tomorrow's struggle against powerful Army at the Point. The lacrossers easily gained their sixth win in seven starts against the Onondaga Indians, 15-8 last Saturday.

Syracuse forged into an early lead over the Indains on mud-drenched Hendricks Field and never were headed. Coach Simmons had most of his bench in during the second half as they coasted in with the win despite some rugged opposition.

STEW LINDSAY drove home four goals for the Orange and chipped in with two assists. His total for the season is 10 which is high for his team. Don Moller and Tom Havill each scored three times with Al Duff netting two and L. B. Sutherland, Don Muller, Ed Smith and Bob Tucker garnering one apiece for Syracuse.

The loss of a half dozen key players by Army hasn't affected the winning ways of the Cadets who have come through with seven straight wins. They had the toughest game of the season last Saturday against Maryland and came through with a 16-12 decision.

COACH MORRIS Touchstone in his 26th year with the academy Capt. Pete Leone, a senior from Brooklyn. Leone was second string all-American last year and was second high scorer for his team with 20 points.

Skip Combs and John Giddings give the Army good balance at midfield with the third midfielder to be selected from Gary Thomas or Vic Hugo Giddings received honorable mention on last year's all-American squad.

The biggest loss that the Army stickmen sustained through graduation was that of goalie Jack Johnson. Johnson was first string all-America as well as being voted the outstanding defensive player in the country. Jim Kriegh, a senior from Missouri has taken his place in the goal this year.

Syracuse will be back at home this Saturday to face last year's Upstate New York titlist, RPI. The Engineers playing a tough luck this season have split their first six games.

Eastern Competition In Sprint Regatta Awaits Hill Crews

Cornell Retains Cup In Carnegie Race

The Orange crews prepare for Saturday's important Eastern sprint regatta today after competing in the Carnegie Cup races on Cornell's Cayuga Lake last weekend.

Coach Gus Eriksen's varsity boat finished last in the field of four in the featured race of the day at Ithaca. The Hill shell was four lengths behind third place Princeton in the race which the Cornell varsity had little trouble in winning.

THE BIG Red, wresting the lead from Princeton shortly after the start of the event, won going away by two and one-half lengths. Yale was second, another two and a half lengths ahead of the Nassau.

Syracuse was never in serious contention in the race as the Pietymen rowed in fourth position most of the way down the two-mile course. All the boats were bothered by the inclement weather. The varsity race could not be started until 7:30 on the wind-and-rain-swept lake.

The Orange junior varsity also finished last in its race, won by the Yale JV shell. Cornell was second in this event with Princeton third.

SYRACUSE'S FROSH boat was the only Saltine shell not finishing last. Coach Mike Michalson's crew was third, trailing Cornell and Yale but beating Princeton. The yearlings were three lengths in front of the Tigers at the finish. The powerful Cornell frosh won the race also three-lengths, with Yale leading home the Orange by about two and one-half lengths.

The second frosh race went to Cornell, also. Rowing in almost impossible weather, the Big Red was some 16 lengths in front of the Tangerines at the end.

The Eastern Sprint races are over one and five-sixteenth mile course and are held on Washington's Potomac River course. Thirteen schools are expected to compete this year.

Triangular Meet Off

Track Coach Bob Grieve announced yesterday that the triangular meet at Alfred, slated for this Saturday, has been called off by the host school. Colgate, Syracuse and Alfred were to compete.

Frosh Gain 12-3 Nod Over Rochester Nine

The fine pitching combination of Tom Hallett and Bill Williams enabled the Syracuse frosh diamondmen to whip Rochester by a 12-3 score yesterday on Lew Carr Field. The game was close until the eighth inning when the Tangerines rallied for eight big runs to clinch the game.

Both teams were hampered by the unseasonably cold weather, eleven errors committed by both sides. Rochester got off to an early lead by scoring two unearned runs in the top of the first inning but the Orange frosh immediately countered with a run in their half.

THE SCORE remained thus until the fourth inning, when the Tangerines scored three runs in the visitors one to go out in front 4-3. Hallett, now working with a lead, settled down to hurl scoreless ball until relieved in the eighth inning by Williams.

The Piety frosh really went to work on Rice, the visitor's starting flinger, scoring seven times off him and his successor, Timmen in the eighth inning. Timely hitting and loose defense by the opposition, gave the Tangerines the runs they needed to sew up the game.

The Orange offense, which at times included the poor Rochester defense, consisted of only six hits. John Pannucci led the attack with two.

The Tangerines, who now possesses a 2-2 record, will take on Colgate Thursday, hoping to avenge a defeat suffered at Colgate, Saturday, the frosh will play a road game against the Ithaca frosh.

Yacht Club Coeds Win Quadrangular

Coeds representing the Syracuse University Yacht Club captured the quadrangular race on Onondaga Lake Sunday afternoon. The Orange scored 35 points followed by Cornell with 27, Wells 25, and Rochester 24.

Syracuse skipper, Mary Jean Perry, with Sally Crabbe, crew led the field by tallying 18 points. The other Hill entry was Ann McKenzie, skipper and Alice Hotchkiss, crew.

Games on WAER

Radio station WAER will broadcast today's Orange-St. Lawrence baseball game starting at 3:20 p.m. Don Decker and Ken Gilchrist will do the play-by-play with Jim McNerney handling the color description.

Chiefs Win, 3-2, As Victory String Stretches to Nine

The Syracuse Chiefs made it nine wins in a row last night as they scored all their runs in the fourth inning and eked out a 3-2 win over Richmond. It was the fourth straight time the Chiefs have downed the Virginians.

Ben Tompkins came through with a bases-loaded single in the fourth frame to provide starter Jim Owens with a comfortable margin. Owens, however, was relieved in the eighth frame by lefty Kent Peterson.

The Chiefs continue their series at Richmond today and tomorrow and then fly to Havana for a six-game series with the Cuban Kings. The rampaging league-leaders return to MacArthur Stadium on Tuesday, May 18.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

A Lucky tastes better for two important reasons: 1. Lucky Strike means fine tobacco...light, mild, good-tasting tobacco.

2. That tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' fine tobacco... makes it taste even better—cleaner, fresher, smoother.

That's why a Lucky tastes better. And naturally, better taste is why thousands of college students prefer Luckies to all other brands.

So, enjoy better taste. Be Happy—Go Lucky!

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER cleaner, fresher, smoother!

New Schedule Reported By Famous Artists Series

Famous Artists Series, directed by Prof. Murray Bernthal, has announced its 1954-55 schedule of concert attractions which will include nine performances. The new listing has been labeled a "dream series" by Famous Artists.

The concerts will begin on Oct. 30 with the appearance of Robert Merrill, Metropolitan Opera baritone. Boris Goldovsky's opera theater will present a New English version of Rossini's "Barber of Seville" on Dec. 8. Jacha Heifetz, called "the greatest violinist of our times," will offer a concert on Feb. 17 and pianist Arthur Rubinstein will be presented by Famous Artists on March 8.

SYRACUSE WILL be included in the first American tour of the world famous Berlin Philharmonic orchestra when Famous Artists presents that group on March 22. Contralto Carol Brice is guest soloist.

All attractions in the "dream series" will be presented in Lincoln auditorium.

Extra attractions have also been booked by the concert office. On Oct. 9, Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn will be featured in "Face to Face", a panorama of their most noted productions as a theatrical team. The Benny Goodman Ensemble, a azz and string combination, will be offered on Oct. 20.

AN AS YET unannounced but unprecedented attraction will be presented on Jan. 24 by Paul Gregory and Charles Laughton who have scored amazing successes in the past three seasons with "Don Juan in Hell," "John Brown's Body" and "Caine Mutiny Court Martial." This season's presentation will be a musical.

Another Famous Artists extra will be the Ballet Russe De Monte Carlo featuring Maria Tallchief's Frederick Franklin and a company of 60 on Nov. 2.

Single and season ticket arrangements are available for the Famous Artists Series. Prof. Bernthal has revealed, however, that due to the expected demand for tickets, season ticket holders will be limited to 1,200 this year. Information is available at the Famous Artists office, Clark Music building.

"THE VERY fact that the Davis book rose so quickly to the top of the best seller list is indicative of the increased feeling of the rapidly growing informed segment of the American public towards a more liberal outlook," Lerner declared.

"I believe that this feeling will result in a Democratic victory in the November congressional elections," he stated. "If the Democrats gain control of the Congress, many more liberal measures, including those of the President, which were thwarted by the reactionary wing of his own party, will come into existence."

America's Knights of the Sky...

The Spartan Band that held the pass,
The Knights of Arthur's train
The Light Brigade that charged the guns,
Across the battle plain
Can claim no greater glory than
The dedicated few
Who wear the Wings of Silver
. . . on a field of Air Force Blue.

EMBLEM OF THE CHOSEN FEW

For Fellowship...High Adventure...and a Proud Mission... wear the wings of the U. S. Air Force!

In days gone by, young men in shining armor ruled the age. Today, a new kind of man rules the age—America's Knights of the Sky, the Air Force Pilots! They rule from on high, in flashing silver-winged Air Force jets . . . a gallant band that all America looks up to! Like the Knights of old, they are few in number, but they represent their Nation's greatest strength.

If you are single, between the ages of 19 and 26½, you can join this select flying team and serve with the finest. You will be given the best jet training in the world, and graduate as an Air Force Lieutenant earning $5,000 a year. Your silver wings will mark you as one of the chosen few who ride the skies in Air Force jets.

As an Air Force pilot, your kingdom is space—a jet is your charger and your mission is the highest. You are a key defender of the American faith, with a guaranteed future both in military and commercial aviation.

Falk Will Present Seventh Lecture In Current Series

Final Humanities Talk Set for Tomorrow In Maxwell

Sawyer Falk, chairman of the Drama Department and director of dramatic activities at Syracuse University, will present the seventh and final lecture in the current Humanities series at 4:15 p.m. tomorrow in Maxwell Auditorium.

Professor Falk, who this year supervised production of Boar's Head's plays "Gigi," "Lysistrata" and "Up in Lights," will speak on "The Changing Theatre."

A MEMBER of the Syracuse University faculty for 27 years, Falk has had a varied experience in the theater. He was president of the National Theatre Conference from 1944 to 1952, and is still a member of its board of trustees.

Falk is vice-president of the American National Theater Academy. He has held a Rockefeller grant to study the British theater, and appeared at the University of Bristol to speak on "The Responsibility of the University Theatre."

Dr. J. F. Olson, head of the humanities series, recommends the lecture as of special interest to drama students, and general interest to the whole student body, inasmuch as the theater is an important phase of humanities.

Previous speakers in this year's humanities series have included Neil H. Richradson, archaeologist; Suzanne K. Langer, artist-philosopher; David H. Owen, English faculty member; J. V. Langmead Casserley, theologian; Karl J. Shapiro, poet; and Robert Mierow, Phi Beta Kappa speaker.

Dining Hall Will Reopen in Fall At Present Engineering Library

The North Room of Slocum Hall's basement, now housing the College of Engineering library, will be reopened as a dining hall next fall, Mrs. Ursula Pettengill, director of food service, said yesterday.

At the same time she announced several improvements in University dining hall policy which will be tried on an experimental basis starting immediately.

COMPTROLLER Francis A. Wingate reported that the engineering library will be moved into the new law college building at the west end of campus as soon as the structure is ready for occupancy in the fall.

At that time food service will be able to open the North Room to serve lunch and dinner to transients, relieving Commons in Slocum of some of the heavy traffic and congestion there.

The North Room had been used as a dining hall until September, 1952, when it was remodeled to house the engineering library. This library was moved to campus after the University sold its Thompson Rd. engineering college campus.

MRS. PETTENGILL, after a meeting with Wingate and Vice-president Frank P. Piskor, dean of student services, annouonced the following, to remain in effect in all dining halls for the balance of the year:

1. Seconds will be allowed on salads.

2. Extra glasses of milk and seconds on coffee will be given diners if they request same after their meals.

3. A choice of one among the special dessert of the day, ice cream and fresh fruit will be offered.

4. Diners may take, on their first trip, either milk, coffee or tea, or any two.

SECONDS ON vegetables and bread and butter will continue.

If these improvements meet with favorable reception from students, they will remain in effect next year, according to Mrs. Pettengill.

Miss Clarridge, Lefko New Campus Chest Chairmen

Jean (Jackie) Clarridge and Robert Lefko have been named co-chairmen of the 1954-55 Campus Chest drive.

Miss Clarridge, a liberal arts-journalism sophomore, worked on this year's drive as a member of the secretariat. She is a member of Delta Gamma sorority and secretary of Piety Hill Alliance.

IN ADDITION, she is a junior guide and was a member of the Goon Squad. She was also refreshments chairman of the Soph Hop.

Lefko, a junior dually enrolled in speech as a radio major and journalism, acted as publicity chairman for this year's campaign. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, Phi Kappa Alpha, senior men's honorary, Orange Key, junior men's honorary, Sigma Delta Chi, journalism honorary and Alpha Delta Sigma, advertising honorary.

He is also president of the St. Thomas More Holy Name Society, a Daily Orange associate sports editor and a member of Campus Leaders. He was formerly chairman of the Soph Hop and worked as publicity chairman for this year's Winter Weekend.

IN ADDITION, he was editor of "Meet the Greeks," banquet chairman for IFC weekend and co-chairman of the IFC awards banquet.

Interviews for committee chairmanships will be held next week and appointments made before the end of school.

This year's Campus Chest campaign, under the co-chairmanship of JoAnn Swalm and Stuart Parker, collected approximately $5,000, falling under its $7,500 goal. The proceeds were contributed to eight charity organizations.

Held annually during the first part of the second semester, Campus Chest is the only fund-raising campaign on campus. Competition is held with Colgate, which won the Orange Key-Maroon Key trophy this year by collecting nearly $7,000.

Draft Deferment Forms Available Today In Dean of Men's Office

Men who expect to continue in college next fall and who are seeking student deferment should pick up application cards for Selective Service form 109 immediately in the Dean of Men's office.

Form 109, a report of class standing for the academic year 1953-54, will be sent to local draft boards only if the student fills out the application before the end of the school year, Assistant Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford announced yesterday.

AFTER FILLING out cards, men should return them to the Dean of Men's office, except in the case of forestry, law and graduate students, whose requests for deferment should be submitted to their colleges.

Score on the Selective Service College Qualification Test should be indicated on the 109 request cards if known, Clifford said. "This will insure our office making fullest use of a student's qualifications for deferment." These scores are available on the registrant's request from the local draft board.

MORE THAN 2,500 certifications of class standing selective service form 109 were mailed to local draft boards by Syracuse University since June, 1952, the Associate Dean of Men stated. Of the 2,500, only nine students were forced to withdraw from college since September because of orders to report for induction.

An additional selective service qualification examination is scheduled for May 20 for those students who missed the April test.

Consideration for deferment as an undergraduate student is a score of 70 or better on the qualification test. According to class ranking, men must be in the upper half of the freshman class if they are first year students; upper two-thirds of the sophomore class; or upper three-fourths of the junior class.

SENIORS ACCEPTED for admission to a graduate school satisfy the deferment requirements if they are in the upper half of their fourth-year class or make 75 or better on the test.

Graduate students will be con-

Five Juniors Named Associate Editors

Sports Department Promotes Reporters

Five juniors—Lee Kiklier, Joel Feidelman, Bob Lefko, Stan Rosenfeld and Alex Strasser—have been named to The Daily Orange Associate Editors Staff by Sports Editor Lowell Toenniessen.

Kiklier will serve as Executive Sports Editor, a new position created this year. A 20-year-old economics major, he will assist the sports editor in staff co-ordination and scheduling, instruct new writers and write a weekly column, "The Long Run," which makes its first appearance today on the sports page.

IN HIS THREE years on The Daily Orange, Kiklier has covered fans' forum, spring football, football, boxing and lacrosse. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kiklier of Scranton, Pa.

Active in many campus activities, Lefko is a radio major in the School of Speech—School of Journalism. Son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Lefko of Shaker Heights, Ohio, Bob is co-chairman of St. Thomas More Chapel, newly-appointed co-chairman of Campus Chest, a member of Delta Tau Delta social fraternity and a member of four campus honoraries.

A RESIDENT of the Bronx, Rosenfeld is a social studies—pre-law major in the College of Liberal Arts. He has written lacrosse, crew, cross-country, track, swimming, soccer and spring football while at Syracuse. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Rosenfeld.

Strasser, a pre-med student in liberal arts, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Strasser of Queens. While on The Daily Orange he has written wrestling, swimming, crew, track, soccer, golf, tennis and fencing. Among his other campus activities, he is Chief Defense Counsel of Men's Student Government, president of the debate team and a member of four honoraries.

Feidelman, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Nathan Feidelman of Hazelton, Pa., is a member of Tau Delta Phi social fraternity. A political science major, he has covered the football, boxing, baseball, gymnastics, tennis and cross-country beats for The Daily Orange.

Graduation Guests May Get Housing

Housing accommodations for the guests of graduates are available from 3-5 p.m. today until Friday in the appointment office in the Administration Building.

Rooms in University living centers will be available to all seniors and graduate students registering for these rooms at a charge of $1.50 per guest each night.

Definite assignments will be available from 1-5 p.m. May 31 and June 1 in the Dean of Men's office, according to Harold S. Johnson and Mario J. Cataffo of the Commencement Housing committee. The living centers will be available for assignment for the evenings of June 5 and 6.

Students may cancel their request for rooms at any time prior to June 5. The Housing Committee suggests that the students register for their guests even though they are not certain that the visitors will definitely claim the room.

Form 109, for both undergraduate and graduate students, will be sent to draft boards after grades for the spring semester are compiled, probably within a month after Commencement.

Professor Offers Tour

Young Musicians Attend Competition

Music School to Host For Fifth Year

More than 4,000 high school musicians from 50 central New York schools will participate in the annual competition festival of the New York State School Music association, planned for the five years that the program has been in effect. All members of the state association are eligible to participate, but only about 50 schools, located within a 75 to 100 mile radius of the city, send competitors.

IN ADDITION to more than 500 instrumental soloists, 31 bands, five orchestras, and 18 choruses will compete in the festival.

Several of the programs, which will take place in Crouse Auditorium, are not open to the general public because of space limitations. Friday morning eight of the choruses will sing from 9 a.m. to 11:20 a.m. and Friday afternoon eighteen of the bands will perform, divided into two sessions, 1 p.m. to 4:20 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7:20 p.m.

Saturday morning the remaining 10 choruses will sing from 9:20 a.m. to noon. The remaining 12 bands will perform from 1 p.m. to 4:40 p.m. and the five orchestras from 5 p.m. to 6:20 p.m.

CLARINETS, SAXOPHONES, flutes, oboes, horns, trombones, baritones, tubas, percussions, pianos, bassoons, violins, and violas will compete in various rooms in Crouse throughout the two-day festival.

Approximately 30 twirlers will vie for honors behind Crouse College on Saturday morning.

DR. IRVING Chayette, professor of Music Education in the School of Music, is the organizer and coordinator for the entire program. Dr. Chayette announces that the food service will set up a snack bar for the hungry high-scholars in Crouse. Campus tours will also be provided as a service to the visitors.

Among the Syracuse University faculty members who will act as judges for the competitions are Frank Hakanson, Louis Krasner, Sidney Sukoenig and Kenneth Fredericks.

Visiting judges include J. Edward Hacker, Utica; Arnold Gabriel, Sampson Air Force Base; Beryl Hill, Oswego Public Schools; Robert Hubbell, Rome; William Whybrew, Ithaca College; and Charles Rudesheim, Clinton.

AMA Elects Heads; Set Sunday Dinner

At a recent business meeting of the American Marketing Association, the following officers were elected for the fall term: president, Sam Shawhan; vice-president, Dilys Chuba; treasurer, Walt Simindinger; secretary, Roland Smith.

The AMA banquet will be held on Sunday, May 16 at 5 p.m., at Martin's. Those wishing rides should meet at Slocum at 4:15 p.m. of that day. All those attending the banquet must pay their club dues.

Further details will be on the bulletin board in Slocum.

Hill May Donate Blood Tomorrow

Lt. Col. William A. Hoy, AFROTC announced today that those interested in donating blood for the Armed Forces blood drive tomorrow may contact him for further information in his office, 305 Machinery Hall.

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 59 may be a donor. The drive is slated for 3-9 p.m. in the Red Cross Building, 749 S. Warren St.

Business Conference Will Discuss Controls

Executive controls in managing a business and the possible contributions of a university in training executives in use of these services will be the topics discussed in today's conference sponsored by the College of Busness Administration and the Alumni Association of that college.

The morning session will last from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the State Medical College, while the afternoon meetings will last from 2:45 to 4:30 in Slocum.

NINE TO twelve a.m. and 2:45--4:45 bus ad classes will be dismissed to enable students to attend the lecture. Proof of attendance will be provided for presentation to teachers of classes other than those in Bus Ad.

Finance Professor James Close will moderate the first panel which will disuess "Problems in developing management controls in modern business." After a brief intermission, the panel will discuss a university's role in executive training.

Drumlins Country Club will be the scene of the conference luncheon, with Alumni President Donald McLeod and Chancellor William P. Tolley as speakers.

FOUR WORKSHOP panels will be presented at the afternoon session to discuss the method and content of advanced training for management.

Specific titles of the workshops are Production Planning and Control, moderated by Howard Lewis; Marketing Management, moderated by Edward Cundiff; Controllership and Financial Management; moderated by Maj. Gen. William O. Reeder; and Communications, moderated by Andrew Barta.

Following the workshops, William Jerome, director of the Army comptrollership school, will chair a general summary meeting.

Blue Permissions Needed for Convo

Coeds for Pinebrook Should Obtain Slips

All coeds who plan to attend the Spring campus leaders' conference at Pinebrook must obtain blue overnight permission slips between 11 and 1 p.m. today at Winchell or Shaw in order to be able to make the trip.

Senior women are especially cautioned to get these permissions. If they are not obtained on campus may be the result and seniors cannot be graduated without having fully served all penalties incurred while here. Lack of a blue permission slip might result in withholding of a degree by the University.

Those who have made arrangements to go to Pinebrook should meet at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Colonial room of Hendricks chapel for transportation assignments. All conference people should be prepared to leave immediately following these assignments.

Coeds' Scholarship Deadline Extended

City Women's club has announced that the deadline for $100 scholarship applications has been extended to May 21. Applications may be picked up in Dean Ruth Haddock's office in the Women's Building.

This is the first year the club has offered the award and members have staged projects to raise money during the past months. The voucher award, open to any city girl, is mentioned in the club constitution. Marcia Frink is acting as charman of the scholarship committee.

ROTC Honors Tolley At Annual Review

Syracuse University's Reserve Officer Training Corps celebrated Armed Forces Week yesterday, paying tribute to Chancellor William P. Tolley with the annual Chancellor Review on Hendricks Field.

More than 1,500 Army and Air Force cadets were inspected by Dr. Tolley, who rode in a jeep with Col. Robert Halloran, PAS&T of the Air Force, and Cadet Col. Robert Leberman.

Eighteen awards were made to outstanding cadets. Dean Eric H. Faigle of the College of Liberal Arts received the Sons of the American Revolution medal for good citizenship.

Armed Forces Week in Syracuse will run through Saturday. In a proclamation Mayor Donald H. Mead stated:

"One of the most precious heritages of our citizens is God-given liberty with freedom to all, regardless of race, creed or color.

"The men and women of our armed forces are actively engaged at home and overseas, in protecting our shores and our people against the spread of those ideologies.

"It is fitting and proper that we honor our fighting forces in gratefulness for the protection and security they afford us.

"I call upon my fellow citizens to display the flag of the United States on Saturday, and to observe this week by attending observavances and open houses at military installations in Syracuse and vicinity."

J-School Students Down Faculty 8-7

The students in the School of Journalism defeated the Faculty, 8-7, in a curtailed two and a half inning softball game at the J-school picnic Monday at the Ski Lodge. Prof. Lawrence Siegfried acted as umpire.

Hugh O. Muir received the award for the outstanding male senior in the school.

THE STUDENT-faculty spelling bee resulted in a tie, with Dean Charles C. Noble as moderator.

In a satirical skit, members of the faculty were impersonated by the students. The skit depicted freshman entering the J-school. Edward Hardy impersonated Dean Wesley Clark, Roger Herz acted as David Norton, and Kenneth Lent played the role of Philip Burton.

The part of Prof. William Burch was played by Arthur Siegel. Curtis Ford acted as Alfred P. Wirephoto, a sub-freshman. Elizabeth Goddard took the part of the Fairchild machine.

Co-chairmen Phyllis Deming and Howard Van Kirk announced that the affair was a success. Refreshments consisting of hot dogs, pickles, potato chips, pop, and ice cream were served.

'Picnik' Planned By School of Art

The School of Art "Picnik" will be held at Green Lakes this year and all students interested in attending may obtain tickets from one of seven people for 50 cents.

The ducats are available for three more days, and the picnic is scheduled at 4 p.m. Monday.

The following students are selling tickets: B. Cohen, M. Spain, N. Skeele, B. Waggott, V. Taber, J. McDermid and B. Davies.

Soph Exec Council Applications Due

The deadline for applications to the Sophomore Exec Council is 6 p.m. this evening.

The applications should be returned to Norman Butterfield, Theta Chi; Joan Scism, Theta Phi Alpha; Margaret Churchill, Delta Delta Delta, or David Boreanaz, Mu

ISA Schedules Speech By Director of 'Tours'

Mrs. Rosalind Fiscus, director of Friendship Tours International, will speak to the International Students group at 8:15 p.m. today in the Chapel Colonial room.

Friendship Tours International is fostering tours to Europe this summer to cement relations between the US and Europe.

THOSE TAKING the tours will attempt to carry into action President Dwight D. Eisenhower's recent statement: "If this is not to be an age of atomic hysteria and horror, we must make it an age of international understanding and peace."

Fifty persons will take the tour. The first group of 25 will leave New York City on June 12 for England, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Monaco, and Franace.

The second group of 25 will leave New York City on July 6 for England, Scotland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Switzreland, Holland, Belgium, and France. Both tours will last 70 days and cost $1035.

THE TOURISTS will meet leaders in government, religion, reconstruction, peace, business, and education.

They will live in Swiss chalets, and attend the Shakespeare festival in Stratford, England. Another stop on the tour will be a refugee station in Germany, where they will meet escapees as they break through the iron curtain.

Cultural centers will be visited, as will the Riviera and the sights of Paris.

MRS. FISCUS served with the Red Cross and did Swiss refugee work from the end of World War II to 1948. She has agreed with President Eisenhower's statement that "We know that we seek only peace, by cooperation among equals. Success in this great purpose requires that other likewise know this."

Friendship Tours International makes its headquarters at 146 Concord St., New Haven 12, Conn. Additional information may be obtained there.

Arnold Air Meets Angel's Flight Girls

Members of Arnold Air Society, AFROTC honorary, entertained coeds from the Angel's Flight at a coffee last night in the Alumni Lounge of the Women's building.

New officers of the Col. Robert Halloran unit of the society were introduced to the women, who form an auxiliary group to the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps at Syracuse University.

Plant Honorary Slates Banquet

Pi Sigma Plant Honorary will hold its annual banquet and installation of new officers tomorrow at Drumlins.

The new officers are Lenore Y. Taylor, president; Frank Arazy, vice president; Sondra Rose, secretary; and Lavern Durkee, treasurer.

"Tangents to Plant Sciences" will be the topic of guest speaker Dr. Orren Chapman of the State University Medical School in Syracuse.

Word to the Wise is Sufficient

Applications for selective service form 109 are now available in the office of the dean of men and should be returned to that office by [illegible] for law and graduate students, who should return their individual colleges.

These forms should be filled out by all male students who expect to continue in college next fall and who are seeking a student deferment.

Form 109 will be sent to the draft board within a month after grades for the spring semester are complete, noting the student's rank in his class and college.

Herewith, then, just a reminder . . . this is a matter of great importance to a great many people on campus.

Signs of Progress in Dining

Proof that the University does try to please its students where the dining halls are concerned was even more apparent yesterday.

After announcing last week that women students could have a voice in the menu planning committee meetings, food service again has moved ahead with a policy that happier eaters make happier students.

During the past year many complaints—some major, some minor—have flowed into the office of the University food director, Mrs. Ursula Pettengill. Of course, some of the complaints were nothing but petty grievances or things that would be impractical to accomplish in the large-scale setup. There was basis for some complaints, though.

Mrs. Pettengill, Vice-president and Dean of Student Services Frank P. Piskor and Comptroller Francis Wingate put their heads together and came up with a number of improvements that may make eating a little better for some students. Included are a choice of desserts, more than one beverage, seconds on salads and more coffee or milk on "return trips."

If the improvements meet with success and favorable reception, students may expect to find them established permanently next year. In fact, they may even herald the coming of more changes bound to please.

As far as the crowded conditions at Slocum are concerned, relief is in sight. The North Room, now housing the engineering library, will be reopened as a dining hall in the fall to ease the burden on Commons.

The University is definitely doing its part where the eating situation is concerned. It's up to the students and their governments to keep the ball rolling.

I Hold These Truths...

By DEAN ERIC H. FAIGLE
Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and the School of Speech

I believe that a person's activities are determined by his faith and beliefs. I believe that the teachings of Christianity are the greatest force for good that the world has ever known and that if each individual who believes this acted in the light of his belief the world would not be the sorry mess it is today.

I would go further than this—if the adherents of every great tenets of their group there would dawn an era of peace and harmony such as the world has not yet known.

I do not believe that this is an impractical dream. Life is made up of many small things which taken as a whole make up a very large and forceful entity. If individuals could even begin putting their beliefs into action in their everyday contacts with people the whole tenor of life would change. The attitude in the home, in the classroom, on the campus would become the attitude in the city, in the nation and around the world.

I believe this is basic. I believe strongly in democracy. I do not think for a minute that it has failed but I do believe it could be very much more effective if the individuals who make up the democracy demonstrated in their own lives that they justify the responsibility and power that democracy places in the hands of each one of us.

I do not believe that Communism or any of the other current philosophies that tortured and confused minds have dreamed up would even be a threat if each individual released his potential force for good.

Connecticut Sets Course Survey

By the Intercollegiate Press

Approximately 4,500 questionnaires were distributed recently to students on the University of Connecticut campus in the first Course Critique effort since 1950. The questionnaires were designed to evaluate about 75 common elective courses.

Publication of the critique will include an evaluation of the course organization, information as to the number and type of quizzes and exams, term papers, field trips and library work. Students will be given an opportunity to evaluate the instructor, his manner of lecturing and the extent to which he encourages discussion and arouses interest on the part of the student.

A rating of the textbook will be included and also an estimate of the average time students allotted to the study subject outside of class.

"Information of the kind that will be compiled by the committee can be of value to the students, however, the information should be considered carefully, and it should be kept in mind that it is merely a composite of student opinion, not an infallible guide to course selection, and certainly not the only guide," stated the chairman of the Student Senate-sponsored Course Critique committee.

Although students were urged to include their names with the questionnaires to avoid duplication, the information will be strictly confidential. It was emphasized that questionnaires should be returned regardless of identification, as no course evaluation will be published unless there is at least a 75 per cent return for the particular course.

Publication of the critique will be available at various student centers on campus for a nominal fee.

Music in 'Up in Lights' Praised; Record Good

By DICK CASE

The words and music of Lan O'Kun and Bill Angelos took a strong right jab last week by several observers, including this newspaper's critic, who viewed the opening performance of "Up in Lights." It was a severe and almost unwarranted blow to the composers who found themselves face to face with a giant apparition.

The image and myth of "White Bucks and Tales" loomed in the minds of the audience and it hung there throughout the performance of the revue. It can be argued in both directions as to whether comparison is a healthy thing in the theater but regardless, everyone who had viewed last year's revue found themselves comparing the substance of "Up in Lights" with the substance of "White Bucks." This is a common practice. It is an unfair practice, however.

It is a situation which placed the new music at an uneven balance. As a result, a multitude of fault was found with the "Up in Lights" score because it did not seemingly measure up to the previous attempt. The product should be observed as an entity in itself.

It seems, though, there is no escaping comparison for many. I will not attempt to list how many people questioned "Do you think the music in "Up in Lights" is as good as "White Bucks?". The continual replay was that, from my personal observations, it was, save perhaps for the absence of a strong ballad, choral number as "My Sweet." The majority of the tunes in "Up in Lights" were not of the stick-tight quality that one can easily remember and hum after one hearing. The quality is there, nevertheless, I maintain.

The one large fault which threw the tunes in the revue into a bad light, an inferior light, was the way in which many of them was performed. Two of the tunes, "Who Are You?" and "She's the Girl for Me," fell with a thump due to only fair singing. The audience was straining to get the words in both of these and especially "Girl," one of the boy's best jobs, might have been performed in a more effective fashion. The lead number, "Show Business," is a good show tune but, once again, it was slighted by overproduction. Small specialty numbers, "Tip that Halo," "Construction" and "Turnabout," sported catchy melodies and cute lyrics.

I would like to disagree loudly with the persons who felt the lyrics were only fair. The words, if comparison must be brought out, were better than the similar product in "White Bucks."

Little ground can be seen from this department for a slighting of the "Up in Lights" music. This may be a minority report but it was good college musical material.

The boys have prepared a record album of 11 good tunes from "Up in Lights" which this time bears no similarity to the ill-recorded souvenir item marked after last year's production. In general, the LP is well-recorded with only a few level problems noticeable on the choral numbers.

One of the contributions that polishes this recording is the instrumental group which backs the voices. Lan's arrangement and piano backing coupled with Mike Flanagan's brilliant work on guitar adds a great jazz feeling to the sounds. The singing, too, is inspired on the recording, much more so than in the revue itself. A listen to this LP will reassure many people, I think, that the music is not so bad after all.

Of particular interest are "Love Me Easy," by Lorraine Peters, "It Can't Be Too Hard," "Who Are You?" by Fred Griesinger and "Turnabout" by Bill Angelos who presents a remarkable similarity to Donald O'Connor on this one.

Lan and Bill's best number in some time, "Stop, Look and Love" gets a fine treatment on wax.

I find myself humming these things more and more as the days from the actual performance increase. I find others humming the same things. This would seem to be the ultimate test of the O'Kun-Angelos music . . . its durability long after the sounds have died forever at the Astor.

Reflections on Regurgitation of Non-Creativity

By JUDITH B. TAYLOR
On Creative Thinking

The genesis in the drought of creative thought is no mystery. There is a misinterpretation in the meaning of intelligence. The curve busting, parrot type of individual who regurgitates memorized copy on a bluebook is complemented by the whole grading system.

Unaware of what is going on about him and his relations to it, he is words without insight. Garbed in his chemise of knowledge, from which often dangles a Phi Beta Kappa key, he probably never had a creative idea of his own in his life.

A vulgar interpretation of the "democratic principle" has resulted in the applauded subjugation of the individual to the group. The ruling majority has become synonymous with the rightness of the majority.

The individual adopts the group norm of mediocrity, suppressing creative thought before actualization.

Man must subjectively conquer within himself his sloth desire to seek painless acceptance of established ideas when he feels that something better exists.

The tragedy of the drought in creative thought stems from the individual's fear of being persecuted from external sources for his creative thought, or seeing his expressed ideas convoluted and his integrity threatened.

There are periods when the fear of the new manifests itself in hysterical attempts to achieve a status quo of ideas, sentiments and conduct.

Opportunists celebrate a quasi-real issue into a bogus reality. They play upon the emotional appeal of paradoxical objects, objects capable of being good or evil relative to the situation in context. They establish themselves on the right side of their self-created dicotomy or right and wrong.

They are the destroyers of creative thought, or imagination, that makes men more than just a "monkey who don't hang on."

TelephoneBook Education Aids

HOW TO DIAL . . .
LOCAL CALLS

1. Look up the number.
2. Lift the receiver and listen for the DIAL TONE—a steady humming sound. Be sure to leave the receiver off while dialing.
3. Then, for example, if you are calling 3-4100, place your finger in the opening where the numeral "3" appears and turn the dial around until your finger strikes the stop.
4. Raise your finger and without touching the dial let it return to its original position.

Do not force or retard the return motion of the dial.

5. Dial the remaining numerals "4," "1," "0" and "0" in the same manner.
6. Listen for the RINGING SIGNAL—an intermittent bur-rring sound indicating the called telephone is being rung.
7. If the called telephone is busy you will hear instead the BUSY SIGNAL—a rapid buzz-buzz-buzz quicker and louder than the ringing signal.
8. If you have difficulty in completing a call, dial Operator (Numeral "0") and she will assist you.

I think I have it, but go through once more just to make sure.

Better Governmental Cooperation Proposed

To the Editor:

MSG and WSG need to become one in operation, if not in fact, to give strong unified, efficient representation of Syracuse student body opinion. And joint governmental groups are the best means to this goal, short of complete integration.

However, WSG assemblywomen last week rejected a proposed joint assembly steering committee which would make WSG and MSG assemblies more effective parts of student government.

The WSG Assembly action simply shows how strong is WSG's fear of single student government. They object to a joint assembly steering committee because it symbolizes this fear. Again we hear a WSG contention that the two student governments serve "different" purposes. But do they?

Aside from regulation of women's hours, which is only a committee function in efficient government, MSG and WSG have many common responsibilities to the student body.

Food service problems, improved academic policy, registration efficiency, reserved seating revision, and control of student organization budgets, are just a few common responsibilities of both governments.

Yet past student government records show assembly failure in WSG and MSG. Failure, not to solve water fights, but to solve problems involving University services to students. Coordination and planning are the keys to unlock this failude.

In the past WSG and MSG assemblies have gone separate ways while attacking the same problems.

They can no longer follow separate paths, if they are to effectively legislate for the entire student body.

Joint steering committee opponents may cite "existing cooperation" as a reason for rejecting a formalized cooperative planning unit. But from experience we know "existing cooperation" is hit or miss and inadequate.

Uncoordinated and unplanned legislative activity is the chief fault of both MSG and WSG. The result is needless delay in getting WSG and MSG to pass the same legislation dealing with the same problem.

A joint steering committee could speed-up or eliminate the process of resolving legislation conflicts. And by responsible and responsive legislative planning the committee could avoid delays in acting on student problems.

The joint steering committee would survey areas in which assembly activity might be directed.

The two assemblies, working together through a formal and permanently functioning unit, would be more authoritative in presenting student views on university services.

Since speakers and speakers-pro tem of both assemblies with equal additional panel representation would comprise the joint committee, the WSG fear that men would dominate the group is pointless, as well as childish.

Student government assemblies must become more efficient, unified and responsible to the student body, or else die from lack of service and purpose.

To the Editor: Grass Must Fall 'Cause of Time

To the Editor:

I like green grass too, Miss Reed, but when I am confronted with the possibility of being late for a class or violating a blooming green bud there is but one choice open to me. That is making my own path and getting to class on time.

There are certain times when it is absolutely impossible to walk on designated paths. One such time is when I am going to ROTC drill. My 11 a.m. class on Tuesday and Thursday is usually dismissed at about five minutes before noon. That leaves me five minutes to get to Hendricks field and take my squad attendance report which is due to the second.

In the course of these five minutes I have destroyed many a blade of grass inadvertently in my haste. There are about 1,500 others faced with the same plight. What shall we do, Miss Reed?

Another instance is when my alarm for my class at nine rings at eight and I shut it off and go back to sleep. At 8:45 a.m. I suddenly awake and have to hustle to get to class on time. Since my class is in Maxwell, I have to cut across the path (foot path, that is) between HL and Maxwell. I just haven't got the time to take the regular route.

I suggest that you must think of us grass destroyers in a better light when you realize our problems. My answer would be a more sensible building of paths that are in great use by students who are using the grass.

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

Dogs, Window, Spring; Traffic Lights, Signs

By MILT SHEFTER

The spring weather wasn't too conducive to classes last week, at least not to those in the classes. One English class in 104 HL was discussing Robert Frost's "Tree at my Window" when two canines decided to audit the class via the window which is at pavement level. They left soon after when their thoughts turned to where thoughts usually turn at springtime.

The final "thirties" had been written and the new staff took over the D.O. We walked in to face the new boss and were surprised to see our ex, Hugh O. Muir sitting disconsolately beside his old desk. He was soon joined by the former chief Arlene Lambert. They mumbled something about not being able to stay away. We kept quiet. No explanation necessary.

• • •

Gripe Dept.: We've been griping about traffic lights for some time now. An ad in Monday's D.O. brought it to a head. There has been no answer to the ad which requested a witness to an accident. A coed was injured in that accident, and it could have been avoided. By actual count, there are 114 no parking signs in this area. Count the traffic lights. Why must someone get hurt before anything is done? Mr. Chancellor, you saw 1,500 young men parade in front of you yesterday. In a few years some of them will lose their lives on behalf of the ideals you teach. Don't let them get killed uselessly beforehand. Crouse-Hinds, who make the lights, is right here in Syracuse. A few words to the wise sufficient?

Bouquet Dept.: Student opinion has come through once again. An editorial in the D.O. spoke of a student panel to help plan menus for next year. Recent pictures and articles showed an overloading situation at one dining hall because of the multi-choice menu. The Food Service is now making every effort to respect the students' wishes. Last year interest fell through. Let's hope actions speak louder than words this time.

It rained all night as usual and still the hammering went on. Sounds of hammers and saws filled the night as the float entry deadline approached. And finally the big moment and a few hours more in the rain. Some had to walk bare-footed and others wore scanty costumes. And after the decision—only disappointment and chills and colds for most. And for what—maybe the intangible we call spirit. At any rate everyone did themselves proud this last weekend. The Class of '54 will have some swell memories besides exams to keep them company.

And now if you'll excuse us, we must put on our monkeysuit. The APE CIRCUS is coming this weekend to Comstock Ave.

Rainbow's End

As we stood on the library steps complete with raincoat, rubbers and umbrella last Saturday we couldn't help noticing that our fellow spectators looked as uncomfortable as we felt, with the weather.

Then the parade began. It seemed that the wetter the floats became the bigger the prizes they won. Zeta Tau Alpha, most beautiful, wore dripping wet leotards. Kappa Kappa Gamma carried the girls' fathers, who seemed to relish getting their Easter suits soaked.

But best of all was the grand prize winner Lambda Chi Alpha. The bretheran not only paraded in loin cloths, but had to go barefoot to boot.

THE LONG RUN

In the long run, we're all dead—Lord John Maynard Keynes

By LEE KIKLIER, Executive Sports Editor

CREDIT LINES

Deficit Spending

It's a rotten feeling to start off owing people things. But I'm one of those few who owe so much to so many. I shall use the first few sentences of "The Long Run" to merely acknowledge my debts and not to pay them. To Jean Crane, a lovely red-head from Senator McCarthy's hometown of Appleton, Wis., I owe something equivalent to my masthead. To Dick Hazleton, I owe the time he took to draw a picture of me that never ran.

To Lowell Toenniessen, the sports editor, I owe the space (I don't think he's charging me rent). Finally, to Prof. Roland Wolseley, who gave me the information for this first column while he was mowing his lawn, a deep bow.

A NEW SPORT MAGAZINE

Henry Rolls Again

In some deep cellar in New York City a certain Mr. Henry Luce is cocking his arm to have another whirl at the dice. His point: a new weekly sports magazine to be produced by TIME LIFE & FORTUNE unlike anything that has yet hit the market.

The magazine will cover every conceivable sport. For example, in their April 19 dummy edition the table of contents included: the Kentucky Derby preview, a story on steelhead fishing, motor sports, a feature on Bobo Olson, a story by James T. Farrell (of the Studs Lonigan triology) called "Baseball Nourished My Boyhood Dreams" and finally, a fiction story.

Different, yet different

The magazine will try to have features, up-to-the-week news, results and previews of any sport in the country that has more than local interest. In addition, TIME will touch it up with a LIFE gimmick: lots of pictures, some in color.

In one word, this magazine is different. It is different from the usual style of TIME, Inc., yet different from any other sports magazine on the market.

MNORX & DUMMY: 8¼ x 11½ x 132

The magazine as it stands now (and it stands 8¼ x 11½ inches and 132 pages fat) some three months before scheduled publication, is aimed at the upper-middle class market.

The two dummies that have been printed to date (one named: MNORX and the other simply DUMMY) have ads that are merely plates left over from other magazines and not necessarily an indication of the kind of ads that will appear in the final product. TIME, however, could not be adverse to running the clothing, automobile and beverage ads that now appear free of charge.

Obviously the magazine can't be called, as it is referred to in the circulars: "The New Weekly Magazine of Sport." In TIME tradition the final title will probably be a mono-word, mono-syllabled catch-all. Both SPORT (which is copyrighted) and LEISURE (which has been dropped) have been suggested.

TIDE, an advertising trade magazine, offers some reservation to TIME's enthusiasm. Can the new sports fan, incited by television, break away from the TV set long enough to read the magazine? Can baseball be mixed with dog shows, football with fox hunting? Can TIME develop the staff, or can they keep the high quality of contributions.

It's been a long time since Henry tried to make a point and he's made three out of four (his single failure was a LETTERS magazine). TIME probably has another winner merely because they have enough capital to keep the magazine on the newsstand while innovations are made to settle it down into its own market. It will probably have to be aimed a little lower. Henry aims high, though, and he doesn't often miss his point.

Orange Defeated By St. Lawrence In Home Opener

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's varsity baseball team, defeated 8-5 in its home opener yesterday by St. Lawrence, journeys to Ithaca College today for an 8:15 game with the Bombers. Coach Ted Kleinhans' nine will bring a 1-2 record into tonight's contest after the loss to the Larries.

Two shaky innings, the fifth and the sixth, in which St. Lawrence picked up seven runs, proved the undoing of the Orange. The Hillmen, although scoring three runs in the last three innings, could never close the gap after losing an early lead.

THE GAME, played under cold, dark skies, drew less than 100 spectators to Lew Carr Field. Three previous attempts to open the home season, against Cornell and Clarkson, were rained out. A slight downpour earlier in the afternoon almost caused the postponement of this game, also, but the weather cleared up in time for the Saltines and the Scarlet to begin play at the scheduled 3:30 starting time.

St. Lawrence jumped to a quick lead in the first inning. Shortstop Harry Kane singled, advanced on a walk, and scored on Bill Deck's one-base blow.

The Orange gained the lead in the third inning. Al Totaro tripled, pitcher Burt Rich doubled, and then Dick Darr slamed his second triple as the Pietymen took a 2-1 advantage.

THE SYRACUSANS' lead was short-lived, however. The Larries from Canton exploded for three runs in the fifth and added four more in a marathon sixth inning to sew up the victory.

A walk, a single, Dave Karlen's double and an error by Totaro pushed the Scarlet to a 4-2 margin after five innings. Three singles, two walks, a fielder's choice and two Hill errors gave St. Lawrence its four-run sixth inning. Ten men came to bat for the Larries in this frame and the runs scored proved to be the winning margin.

Syracuse tallied two runs in the seventh and one in the eighth. Tataro and relief pitcher Bill Cassidy crossed the plate in the stretch frame. Ed Albright drove in Paul Slick with a booming double in the eighth to conclude the afternoon scoring.

RICH WAS the losing pitcher for the Orange. He hurled five and one-half innings, being relieved by Cassidy in the hectic sixth frame. Bob Smart went all the way to pick up the victory for St. Lawrence. He has won all four games for the Larries, who now sport a 4-6 record.

Outstanding at the plate for Syracuse was Dick Darr, while Kane and Ed Zifcak lead the invaders. Darr had two triples and a single; Kane, four singles and Zifack, two one-sackers.

Today's game against Ithaca should be a tough one. The Blue and Gold have a 7-4 record against topflight collegiate and military service competition. The Bombers have beaten, among others, Sampson and St. Lawrence.

COACH KLEINHANS will probably go with one of three pitchers, Mickey Kyff, Bill McGarvey or Gordie Smith. Kyff has a 1-1 record this year, beating Union but losing in relief against Colgate.

Following the Ithaca encounter, the Orangemen face a rugged weekend with two powerful Eastern opponents carded for Friday and Saturday home games. Holy Cross and Bucknell will invade Lew Carr Field on these days as the Piety diamondmen attempt to push their won-lost record over the .500 mark.

ARMY VETERAN—Letterman SKIP COMBS will be one of West Point's big scoring threats this afternoon when the Cadets entertain Roy Simmons' Orange stickmen. Today's game will have an important bearing on the Intercollegiate lacrosse ratings.

Syracuse Stickmen Play At Army Today

By STAN ROSENFELD
Associate Editor

Syracuse's once beaten lacrossers will attempt to hand Army its first loss of the season when the two juggernauts collide today on the plains off the Hudson.

A win today would put the Orangemen in an excellent position to take the Laurie D. Cox trophy which is symbolic of dominance in the 17 team second lacrosse division. Last year's winner of this title was RPI, but the engineers have already suffered three setbacks.

COACH ROY Simmon's squad suffered their only loss this year against the Maryland Terrapins, 16-9 in an early southern trip. Army downed the rebels last weekend by a count of 16-12. Comparative scores may mean little as Syracuse practically began the season against Maryland while Army faced them in midseason shape.

The Pietymen will field the same team that started against the Onondaga Indians last Saturday. Ed White will be the starting goalie for the Orangemen. Goal has been the one weak link in the Hill armour so far this season but White has shown considerable improvement in recent efforts.

The attackmen will be led by high scoring Stu Lindsay with Ed Smith and Don Muller on his flanks. Lindsay has been the top point getter for Syracuse with 10 goals to his credit in the first seven games. Muller and Smith have set up Lindsay in great fashion as well as scoring quite a few goals themselves.

BRUCE YANCEY, Don Moller and Bob Duff spearhead one of the top midfield lines seen in central New York in several years. Yancey was second string all-America last year and continues to show reasons for his selection. Moller and Duff have shown the most improvement on the team from last year's outfit.

On the defensive line for the Orange will be Primo Belluz, Leo Pollack and Bob Miller. The senior trio have been of considerable aid to goalie White with sharp backchecking and blocking.

Army has lost six starters from last year's squad which won nine out of 11 but have seemingly found excellent replacements. Their only losses last year came at the hands of national champ Princeton and traditional rival, Navy. The cadets still have to face these rugged opponents.

CAPT. PETE LEONE on the attack is the one Cadet that will have to be stopped. Leone was second team all-America last year and seems a cinch to repeat of this year's performances.

John Giddings, Skip Combs and Gary Thomas give the Army a potent midfield combo. Giddings was an all-America honorable mention last year while Thomas set an all time hockey scoring record for the Pointers.

The two biggest losses via graduation for Coach Morris Touchstone's stickmen were all-America goalie Jack Johnson and the coach's son Stan Touchstone at midfield. Jim Kreigh has taken over Johnson's spot this year with Thomas filling in for Touchstone in good style.

Johnny Echeandia's frosh lacrossers face the Army plebes in a curtain raiser to the varsity contest. The frosh stickers have taken starts from the St. Bonaventure varsity and the Hobart frosh.

Red Raiders to Invade Hill

By ALEX STRASSER
Associate Editor

Syracuse will entertain two varsity teams from Colgate this afternoon as the spring sports head into the second half of the campaign.

Tecumseh golf course will be the scene of the golf match while Coach Francis O'Brien's netmen meet the Red Raiders at the Skytop courts

THE HILL tennis squad will be looking for the first victory of the season, having suffered losses in its first two outings. The starting lineup hasn't been determined yet by O'Brien and last minute changes will probably decide the starters for the Saltines.

Playoffs were scheduled for Skytop yesterday afternoon but inclement weather once again forced a cancellation. Like the Orange diamond squad, the racketmen have been finding it difficult to get in practice sessions and matches. Their last outing was scheduled for Saturday against Colgate. Rain forced postponement of the match.

John Kerr, Pete Bratt, Win Lott and Boone Sone appear the most likely starters for the Hill net squad. Kerr succeeded Art Sholk as net captains and currently holds down the number one tennis slot.

THE OTHER starters will be drawn from Tom Long, Ken Smiley, Sone and Walker. Long, Latham, Lorenz, Haft and Joe Bernstein are other prossible starting double combinations.

The last time out Kerr combined with Lebhar and Smiley joined forces with Bratt in a losing effort against Cornell.

In intercollegiate tennis matches there are six singles and three double combinations. A victory in any event gives the victors team one point, with five points clinching the match.

While the Orange netmen will be engaging the Raiders at Skytop, the Hill linksmen face Colgate on the Tecumseh.

Co-capts. Bob Mandeville and Gerry Sullivan once gain head the Orange aggregation, followed by Ed St. Pierre, and Sam Scoller, Dick Golobic and Tom Burke are the other probable starters, with Tom Dady and Jim Roach being [illegible]

IN THEIR first four outings, Syracuse has compiled a 2-1 record in dual meet contests. Fordham and Hobart lost to the Hillmen by counts of 6-1 and 5-3 while the Orange's defeat came at the hands of Cornell.

Last weekend, the Hill golfers entered the Eastern intercollegiate golf championships at Hannover, N. H. for the first time since prewar days and finished last in a field of 18 teams.

One of the highlights of today's match will be the effort of co-Capt. Mandeville to set a new record for a member of the varsity golf squad.

Mandeville shot a three under par 69 in his first outing, then countered with a 76 and a 73 in his next two dual meet matches. At the intercollegiates last weekend, Mandeville shot the lowest score for the Orange, though it wasn't enough to prevent Syracuse from finishing last.

Should Mandeville be able to average a one over par score in the squad's next five matches, he will be matching a record set by Capt. John Kaplan way back in 1929.

Although he is a few strokes behind Mandeville, co-Capt. Sullivan also has a chance to beat the record. He must average one under par, however, to complete that feat.

This coming Friday, Syracuse meets Clarkson in an away match while the Tangerine golfers entertain the Colgate frosh at home. Following the Clarkson match, Syracuse has four more matches remaining, with the season finale being scheduled for a week after Saturday.

NET CAPTAIN—JOHN KERR, recently-elected tennis captain, will see action today against Colgate on the Skytop courts.

Tau Delts, ZBT, Win in Intra Play

Tau Delta Phi and Zeta Beta Tau advanced into the semi-finals of the fraternity flight in intra softball action last night as a result of victories over Sigma Chi and Phi Delta Theta. In other action last night Skytop M-8 and the Bureaucrats gained the quarter-finals in the independent, living center flight with wins over Skytop M-4 and the Irving D 13.

The Tau Delts, winning 4-1 again received good hurling from Joel Feidelmen who handcuffed Sigma Chi with but five hits. The only run for the losers was scored on a home-run by Ken Gilchrest. For the winners, Chuck Williams and Al Gefen, got two hits apiece.

A four run outburst in the fifth inning enabled Zeta Beta Tau to break a three-all tie and defeat Phi Delta Theta 7-3. Mel Besdin gave up but four hits as did his mound opponent George Newi.

Skytop M-8 defeated Skytop M-4, 7-4. For the winners, d Collier and Sam Booker blasted home runs. RolloHoffmeier, pitcher for the losers, also hit for the distance.

In the last game of the evening, the Bureaucrats defeated Irving D 1-3, 15-1. Roger Hughbanks and Ernie Huncker were the battery for the victors.

Chief's Streak Ends

Announcing A MEDICINE To Get Rid of DANDRUFF!
Now available at drug stores in U. of Syracuse area

What is Dandruff? Doctors say it is an infection, and is caused by a germ. This germ (P. Ovale) hides in hair follicles, feeds there and inflames your scalp, causing that annoying itching and flaking.
To get rid of it you need a positive medicine—not a mere hair tonic or shampoo (they just "tease" Dandruff) You need a special type germicide. Such a germicide—medically proven and stronger than in any hair product you can buy—is a major ingredient in M.F.D. In a balanced formula—acting tenderly, yet surely—this germicide sinks deep into hair follicles where it kills the Dandruff germs, relieves the inflammation and itching and leaves your scalp clean, fresh, soothed. M.F.D. permits you to stay rid of Dandruff, too. One application every week is a safe, sure preventive.
M.F.D. goes right to the scalp, because you apply it by a dropper. Just a few drops; then a brisk massage. You'll see Dandruff disappear altogether.

Workshop at Ed. School Attracts 10 Organizations

Over 150 representatives from 10 different organizations including several high school and junior high school students, attended the recent Workshop in Human Relations co-sponsored by Syracuse University's School of Education.

The Workshop featured a student panel under the leadership of Dr. Margaret Scoby which reacted to a series of films slides concerning the problems of human relations. One of the highlights of this panel presentation was the "rumor clinic," an actual demonstration of the way in which a rumor is instigated and developed.

A SLID WAS shown depicting several people seated in a subway. A well-dressed man of a minority racial group was confronted by a workman representing a majority racial group. The slide was shown to one of the students on the panel who proceeded to describe what he had seen to a second person who had not seen the slide.

The impressions of the students to this slide indicated the way in which a person's feelings of prejudice toward a minority group originate and grow from an unwarranted rumor.

That person passed the "rumor" on to the next person and this process continued until the sixth person related to the audience his interpretation of what the slide had depicted.

DR. STUART Gerry Brown, Chairman of the Citizenship department at Syracuse, delivered the final address to the group. His topic dealt with the conflicts which students must face at college, and how these conflicts must be overcome by persistence and determination.

The enthusiastic response made by those who attended the Workshop, has led Dean Rogers of the School of Education to hope for a repetition of this affair at a later date.

Dr. Wilbert Dipboye, assistant professor of education, was the local chairman for the event.

Debate Squad Elects Strasser President

Alexander L. Strasser, a liberal arts political science major, has been elected president of the Syracuse debate squad.

A member of the varsity debate squad since 1952, Strasser is retiring secretary of the debate society. Among the tournaments in which the new president has participated are the Brooklyn, Vermont, Rochester and LeMoyne debate tournaments.

This March, Strasser was a member of the Hill debate team that took first place honors at the LeMoyne debate tourney and brought back Syracuse's first trophy of the new year.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Strasser of Astoria, New York, Strasser is a pre-medical student. Besides his debate duties, Strasser is Chief Defense Counsel and Associate Sports Editor.

At the same meeting, Camilla McCarthy was elected vice-president of the debate squad. A junior in the College of Liberal Arts, Miss McCarthy won a scholarship for summer study at Norway.

In addition to her debate duties, Miss McCarthy is president of Alpha Delta Sigma, advertising honorary.

Max Baratz, Sigma Alpha Mu, and Bob Hecht, Beta Sigma Rho were elected business manager and secretary of the squad.

Hecht is retiring treasurer of the sophomore class and a member of men's student government assembly. He has recently been appointed to the Defense staff of men's student government.

Miss McCarthy, Baratz, and Hecht combined with Strasser to form the executive counsel of the debate squad, which in conjunction with the coach, decides debate policy.

This Thursday, Hecht, Strasser and Doug Ingalls journey to Albany to compete in the Albany legislative conference which is held annually in the state capital.

Unlike other debate trips, the Albany conference is not a debate tournament but a legislative conference. Two of the topics that will be discussed at the conference are "Resolved: What shall we do with our aged" and Resolved: Should the Legislative reapportionment act of New York state be changed."

Yesterday afternoon, Syracuse gave a demonstration debate before a Central high school class. Miss McCarthy and Baratz took the affirmative side and Strasser and Rudolf Johanns took the negative side of the question, "Resolved: That the United States Adopt a Policy of Free Trade." The debate was judged a tie by the class, 19-19.

Contest to Choose US Coed Queen

New York Committee Has Entry Blanks

Free entry blanks in the national college queen contest are now available, the committee announced this week in New York.

Undergraduate coed students of colleges and universities throughout the nation are eligible to enter the second annual contest, which last year was won by Toby Gerard a journalism senior at the University of Miami.

FINALS IN the national contest are slated from Sept. 10-12 at Convention all, Asbury Park, N.J.

Complete contest details and application forms are available from Contest Director, National College Queen Contest, 218 W. 47th Street, New York 36, N.Y.

Coeds in New York will first compete for the state title, with the winner going on to vie with contestants from other states.

ACCORDING TO the committee, the contest is intended to "select and honor the most all-around beautiful, talented and versatile college girl in America."

The national winner will receive $5,000 in prizes, including an all-expense paid trip to Florida and Cuba.

The contest will be judged on a basis of 50 per cent beauty and 50 per cent for the best essay on "What a College Education Means to Me" and general personality appeal, stage presence and extra-curricular accomplish- [illegible] board of judges will [illegible] of nationally-known [illegible] beauty authorities and others, [illegible] headed by Bess Myerson, former Miss America and now a television star.

USP Houses Form New Political Party

Five Strong Members Assert Inactive Status

A regular meeting of United Students Party turned into a surprise formation of a new campus political party last night as representatives voted acceptance of its constitution and elected officers.

The Political Equality Party (PEP) has as its members thirteen Greek houses and one independent student, which, with the exception of four, were all formerly affiliated with USP. Delta Upsilon and Alpha Chi Omega came into the party from a politically inactive status and Pi Lambda Phi and Phi Epsilon Pi joined after leaving Piety ill Alliance.

FOUR FORMER USP power houses walked out of the meeting at Zeta Tau Alpha before voting for officers of the new party began. Zeta Psi, Chi Omega, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Tri-Delt last night gave no reason for becoming inactive, but it was expected they may be leaders in an attempt to form a second new party.

An hour after the meeting was ended, Samuel Shawhan, who had been nominated and elected president of the Political Equality Party on a white ballot, announced that he would give up the post and that he had withdrawn his house, Sigma Chi, from the new group.

BY POPULAR DEMAND "Lysistrata" returns to the stage this weekend. JOANNE REED (left), as Kalonika; BARBARA RUSH, as Lysistrata; and SHIRLEY ANN FENNER, as Myrrhina pose here in costumes by Mario Forte. The three feminine leads, appearing with a cast of 65, will plot their strategies against the male race Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Drama Building.

'Lysistrata' Play Reopens Tonight On Drama Building Theatre Stage

Brought back by popular demand, "Lysistrata" will reopen again tonight at 8:15 p.m. in the Drama Building. The Greek comedy by Aristophanes enjoyed a six-week run earlier in the semester.

Performances of the play will be given tonight, Friday and Saturday, under the auspices of Boar's Head, dramatic society. It is under the direction of Prof. Sawyer Falk, head of the department.

TICKETS FOR all performances are available at the box office of the Drama building. Reservations may be obtained by calling 4-2776 from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Tickets are priced at $1 and $1.50 per person.

Starring in the role of "Lysistrata" is Barbara Hush, a sophomore in Drama and a Boar's Head apprentice. She is supported by Shirley Anne Fenner and JoAnne Reed who portray the two other leading females in the production.

Other members of the cast include: Gerald Leider, instructor in the drama dept.; Helen Hurdis, Robert Dishy, Sam Baskin and Robert Scapato.

COSTUMES FOR the production were designed by Mario Forte of the drama department while John Jay Moore designed the set.

The theme of the play deals with an eternal question of how to put an end to war. It's the women in this case who come up with a solution, and a novel one at that.

The three performances of "Lysistrata" this wee kwill be the final endeavor of the drama department this year. When the show ran previously it was well received by both downtown and Hill audiences.

Pi Gamma Mu Sets Initiation Banquet

Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honorary, will hold its annual initiation banquet at 5:30 p.m., Sunday, May 23rd, at the Eastwood Sports Center.

The speaker will be Mr. Richard Mosher, local attorney and public official. Mr. Mosher was formerly a candidate for a seat in the US House of Representatives. Tis topic for discussion will be "Education for Public Service."

THE PRICE of tickets for members and guests is $1.75. All interested faculty members are especially urged to attend. Reservations should be made with Don Ackerman Jr., 213 Wellesley Rd., Syracuse 7, N. C.

Initiates will include: Margaret Bloch, Phyllis Williams, Ruth Whiting, Nancy Watkins, Maizie Tyson, Roberta Faxstein, Linda Pollock, William Hood, Robert Bodkin, Leigh Newcomb.

Also, Spencer Swanson, Hugh Ripley, Albert Ossman, Ray Guenther and Paul Veillette.

Bus Ad Honorary Takes 8 Members

Beta Gamma Sigma, national Business Administration honorary, initiated eight new members at Sherman's restaurant Tuesday night.

Carl R. Bye, dean of the graduate School, was the principal speaker, following the initation ceremonies.

Undergraduate students initiated and their averages include: Robert E. Conklin, 2.73; Malcolm E. Washburn Jr., 2.53; Harold Steinburg, 2.45; and William E. Plaus, 2.2.

Sororities Prep For Powder Bowl

Alpha Xi Delta, Pi Phi To Clash Saturday

Football returns to Syracuse University this weekend when Alpha Xi Delta and Pi Beta Phi clash on the Hendricks Field gridiron Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in the fourth annual Powder Bowl game.

Sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha the contest is free, although donations will be gladly accepted. All proceeds will be turned over to the Damon Runyon cancer fund.

HIGHLIGHTING the game will be the coronation of the football king. All fraternities and mens' living centers are requested to submit one nominee for the contest. Nominations must be left at either Alpha Xi or Pi Phi by noon today accompanied by a $1 entry fee.

The series, begun at Ohio State, is the result of a rivalry on the Ohio campus in 1947. Theta Chi was unable to choose between the girls of Alpha Xi and Pi Phi. To settle the issue they suggested a football game between the houses. Since the first game at Syracuse University in 1950, Pi Phi has been undefeated.

PLAYING FOR the champions are: Lee Goodnow and Marilyn Allen, co-captains, Carol Cook, Betty Swenson, Joyce Oglebay, Alice Hunt, Barb Hopkins, Ricky Urzi, Janet Swenson, Kay Springstein, Shirley Terwilliger, and Marg Jones.

On the Alpha Xi team are: Marion Geipel and Mickey Elder, co-captains, Connie Spriggs, Bart Breck, Jan Beamer, Bette Blanc, Hilda Holden, Lynna Stevens, Leslie Moock, Alice Hotchkiss, Barb Traynor, Marcia Oberlander, Jeanne Clark, Harg Ziebarth, and Carol Anderson.

Law Teacher Gets Judicial Position

Robert W. Miller, of the Syracuse University College of Law, has been named as a special assistant to the attorney general by US Attorney Theodore F. Bowes. Miller will act as hearing officer in the Northern New York Judicial District.

Hearing officers serve without pay but receive expenses. The US Attorney's office furnishes office space.

MILLER TAUGHT at the University of South Dakota Law School and the University of Wyoming Law School before coming to Syracuse in 1932.

He served as a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation from March; 1942 to August, 1945, and with the War Crimes Defense Division at Yokohama, Japan, during 1946-47.

Henry Juda was elected chairman for next year of the Joint Student Sections of the Institute of Radio Engineers and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at their last meeting.

Easter Vacation Time Extended Four Days

Easter vacation has been extended four days in next year's University calendar which was released yesterday by Keith Kennedy, registrar. To compensate for the loss of class hours at this time, there will be no vacation after January exams.

Commenting on the new schedule, Registrar Kennedy said yesterday, "The change was made due to the many complaints from the students."

MANY PERSONS have felt that there was no need to have a vacation so soon after Christmas and that a longer vacation in the Spring would be more satisfactory to the majority of the students.

This is the first time in recent years that the Easter vacation had lasted more than a week. It will extend from April 6-18. Less than a month remains after the vacation.

The University will open officially for classes on Sept. 27. Registration begins on Sept. 23. Jan. 15 is the last day of classes for the first semester.

SPRING registration begins Jan. 31 and classes begin on Feb. 3. May 21 is the last day of classes in the Spring semester and commencement will be held on June 6.

Including the Orientation period, the first semester had 96½ days. There are 97½ days in the second semester. These figures include a three-day registration period and an 11-day examination schedule.

Christmas vacation will extend from December 18 through January 3. Thanksgiving vacation will remain the same as it has been in past years beginning on November 24 and ending on the 29.

The summer session was also announced. The first semester begins June 28 and will extend till August 6. On August 9 the second semester begins and continues until September 10.

Independence Party May Join With PEP

Group Now Considers Supporting New Unit

By GRACE FRARY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Independence Party, led by Chairman Philip Sperry, decided last night to join the Political Equality Party, provided that a constitution for PEP would be drawn up by an equal number of representatives from Greeks, independents, city students, and veterans.

George Winston, Tau Epsilon Phi, one of the organizers of PEP and spokesman for the party, stated "PEP leaders have received the proposal of Independence Party favorably, and we agree with Independence Chairman Sperry that this will create the strongest voting party on campus.

"PEP IS endeavoring to end the spoils system which has been the ruin of previous campus political parties. Candidates will be picked on merit and merit alone."

Other officers of Independence Party are David Rogers, Acacia, vice-chairman; Mary Cole, secretary; and George Allen, treasurer.

Chairman of PEP is Konstantinos (Gus) Salonika, Alpha Chi Rho. Former chairman Samuel Shawhan, Sigma Chi, vacated the post when his fraternity withdrew from the party after Tuesday night's meeting.

SIGMA PHI Epsilon also left the party after the meeting. Houses who withdrew during the meeting are Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Zeta Psi, Chi Omega, and Delta Delta Delta.

Present members are Alpha Epsilon Phi, Alpha Tau Omega, Alpha Chi Rho, Delta Upsilon, Zeta Beta Tau, Zeta Tau Alpha, Kappa Phi Delta, Pi Lambda Phi, Sigma Delta Tau, Tau Epsilon Phi, and Phi Epsilon Pi.

Pi Sigma to Hold Annual Banquet

Pi Sigma, plant science honorary, will hold its annual banquet today at Drumlins. The honorary's new officers will be installed at this time.

President for next year is Lenore Taylor. Frank Arazy has been selected as vice-president. Next year's secretary will be Sondra Rose and Laverne Dunkee will be installed as treasurer.

Guest speaker at the banquet will be Dr. Orren Chapman of the University's College of Medicine. He will speak on "Tangents to Plant Sciences."

Humanities Lecture To Feature Falk As Final Speaker

"The Changing Theatre" will be Sawyer Falk's topic at today's humanities lecture planned for 4:15 p.m. in Maxwell Auditorium.

Today's lecture will be the final offering in a season of seven speakers from various fields which have related to the humanities.

PROFESSOR FALK, who has had a wide background in the theater, is director of dramatic activities at Syracuse, and chairman of the Drama Department. Falk was faculty advisor for the senior class-Boar's Head musical "Up in Lights," which ran four days last week.

Other productions which he has supervised this year are "Lysistrata," which will reopen tonight, and "Gigi."

Falk is vice-president of the American National Theater and Academy, and served for eight years as head of the National Theater Conference. He studied the British national theater on a Rockefeller grant in 1948.

SYRACUSE University's dramatics have been under Falk's direction for over 25 years. Under his influence, dramatic activities have undergone several changes from the days when thespians rehearsed in the old chapel on HL's fourth floor.

Falk plans to direct a play in New York this fall. His Broadway connections have been strengthened by the success of several of his students. Helen Hayes saw "Harriet" here in 1942, and later starred in its Broadway version.

Other activities of Professor Falk have included speaking at the University of Bristol on "The Responsibility of the University Theatre," and an address before the United Nations Economic and Social council. He has also been active in the American Educational Theater Association, a group which fosters drama education.

WAER Slates Readings

Campus Radio station WAER will again present "Ebb and Flow," its weekly series of interpretive readings, at 7:30 p.m. today. Miss Rosemary Sinnett and Raymond Irwin of the School of Speech and Dramatic Art will interpret scenes from Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.

Campus leaders, faculty and administration members will gather at Pinebrook Camp late this afternoon for a long weekend to evaluate and discuss University problems and projects.

Located at Saranac Lake in the Adirondacks, Pinebrook is the site of biennial conferences of top officers in campus organizations with guidance and leadership from faculty and administration.

KEYNOTE OF this weekend's conference will be given by Prof. Theodore Denise of the philosophy department, who will present problems of leadership, to be followed by group discussion.

Chancellor William P. Tolley is scheduled to give his state of the union address to campus leaders Friday morning, preceding several panel discussions about current campus interests.

Two phases of University life will be the subjects of Friday morning panels. Led by Dean M. Eunice Hilton of the College of Home Economics, Dr. Richard Wessels from the business education department, Mary Anne Dalton and Stuart Parker, the first group will discuss campus mores. Areas planned in this panel include dress, courtesy, drinking and smoking.

DEAN CHARLES C. Noble of Hendricks Chapel and John Beach will lead an evaluation of the Footprints conference following the campus mores talk.

In the afternoon, activities will have their say in a panel led by Michael Sawyer of the Maxwell School, Elizabeth Brydon and Arthur Siegel.

Leaders will devote Saturday morning and afternoon to student and independent problems, a survey of the reorganized administrative workings of the University, requirements for campus leaders, the library, recreation and athletics.

FACULTY AND administration members participating as coleaders of these groups will be Dean of Women Marjorie C. Smith, Dean of Public Relations Kenneth G. Bartlett, Comptroller Francis A. Wingate, Assistant Dean of Men Earle Clifford, Dr. Phillips Bradley of the political science department, Miss Edith Cobane of the women's athletic department and Lewis P. Andreas of the men's physical education department.

A faculty panel discussing the student and his relationship to activities and academics will be Saturday evening's agenda. Participants in this final panel will be Sawyer, Dr. Robert T. Lee of the College of Engineering, Dr. Alfred Cope of the Maxwell School, Dr. David Owen of the English department and Dr. Walter Kell from the College of Business Administration.

Miss Dalton Offers Final WSG Address

Ex-President Calls For Work Completion

"Women's Student Government's work this year is not a job well done. It is a job well begun," said Mary Anne Dalton, former president of WSG at her final report to Assemblywomen last night.

She expressed hope that next year legislators will look into the of Dilemma, campus literary magazine. Miss Dalton said she believed the Colgate anti-vandalism pact will be strengthened again next year, and the Student Activities Committee will expand its operations beyond Friday night dances.

MISS DALTON emphasized that this was a year of beginning and experimentation in the Assembly, and though much was accomplished, there were many things begun by the legislators which will be continued and completed next year.

Among these is a proposed student advisory board of health service at Syracuse University.

The proposed board would be comprised of two representatives from each class, chosen by the executive council of the class, and

Home Ec Seniors Schedule Convo

The annual senior convocation of the College of Home Economics will take place at 10 a.m. today in Hendricks Chapel, with Dean M. Eunice Hilton presiding.

Dressed in caps and gowns, the faculty and seniors of the college will form a procession down the Chapel aisle.

ALL STUDENTS in the college are required to attend, and will be excused from 10 a.m. classes.

Dean Hilton will present the Sellick award of $30 to the outstanding senior. Other seniors will receive citations.

NEW OFFICERS of four of the colleges organizations will be presented: Marilyn Empie, Omicron Nu president; Beverly Darrow, home economics club president; Mary Kraemer, "Euthenia" editor-in-chief; and Christine Wulfetange and Judy Richardson, president and secretary of the student board.

Other members of the student board will also be presented. They are juniors Joanna Kimball and Wriginia Hill; sophomores Martha Smith and Jean Mantel; and freshmen Carol Feller and Joan Hollister.

The American Home Economics Association will hold its induction ceremonies at the convocation. All seniors who have signified they wish to join will take part in the induction.

Business Show Set By Alpha Kappa Psi

Alpha Kappa Psi, national business honorary, is co-sponsor of a business show to be held this weekend at the War Memorial.

Norman Fromberg is campus representative of the group and will be in charge of ticket sales in the basement of Slocum. The exhibit will feature demonstrations of adding machines, comptometers and business furniture.

The other sponsor of the affair is the Syracuse chapter of the Association of Cost Accountants.

Alpha Kappa Psi has just initiated sixteen members into the Syracuse chapter. They are Donald Abramsky, Richard Browner, Roland Cayer, Dean Comeau, William Endres, Allen Frost, Gerald Haines, Frederick Haverly, John Konski, John Mathis, John McDermitt, Jack Moffit, Peter Morreale, Glen Slater, Leslie Steinkerhoff and Glen Trew.

Soph Exec Council Meeting Slated

All those who have submitted their applications for the Sophomore Executive Council report to Delta Delta Delta Sorority house, 300 Walnut Pl., 4 p.m., Sunday.

For further information contact Norman Butterfield, Theta Chi; Joan Scism, Theta Phi Alpha; Margaret Churchill, Delta Delta Delta; David Boreanaz, M-9.

Symphony Concert Planned for Sunday

The University Symphony orchestra will present the final concert in the current Sunday afternoon series at 4 p.m. Sunday in Crouse auditorium. Although the concert will be free, a collection for the Sigma Alpha Iota "foundation fund" will be taken.

The "foundation fund," which will be benefitted by the concert, will use donations for music charities and scholarships.

DR. ALEXANDER Capurso, director of the School of Music, will direct the 60-piece symphony in "Amaryllis, Suite for Orchestra."

The orchestra, which has rehearsed weekly under Dr. Capurso's direction since the beginning of the year, will be performing for the second time this year. The first concert was given March 7.

This final program will be the eighteenth of the Sunday afternoon concerts this year. The programs have featured the various University music groups in addition to faculty talent.

Co-ed Selected For DO Position

Judith A. Berman has been appointed assistant business manager of The Daily Orange for the year 1954-55, according to Sheldon Lessen, business manager-elect.

Miss Berman, a junior, is a psychology major in the College of Liberal Arts.

HER NEW duties will include handling advertising accounts, organizing of the business staff, instructing new staff members and assisting Lessen in other advertising and circulation tasks of the paper.

Born in New Haven, Conn., the 20-year-old appointee is an accomplished pianist, studying music as an avocation. She intends to do graduate work in psychology after receiving her bachelor's degree here.

Miss Berman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Berman, New Haven, Conn.

Shades of Fort Sumter: Phi Ep Secedes!!

By Col. M. Beauregard Braun
Civil War Correspondent

Due to reluctance on the part of David O. Selznick, who is obviously not a Phi Ep, the brethren of that fraternal organization will not be able to sponsor the world premier of the return engagement of "Gone With the Wind" this weekend.

They will, however, have just about everything else that makes living below the Mason-Dixon line so enjoyable. In a press release breathlessly handed in to The Daily Orange, the boys explained how the idea for the weekend was formulated.

"AT ONE OF those frequent semi-intellectual discussions called bull sessions the idea of a weekend was born. After secret meetings of the social committee the plans for the weekend were laid.

"For the past six months the concerted efforts of all 70 men have been directed in an effort to make this affair the greatest the campus has ever seen."

And thus is explained the presence of all those sideburns which have traversed the quad of late. "The fella with the mostest" gets to be Mr. South.

YESTERDAY, the gentlemen's ladies received their invitations, in the form of fans which had a little book attached. The book explained how the fan was to be manipulated. Said fans were delivered by a little Negro boy dressed in a jockey's uniform.

At 5 p.m. tomorrow, replete with rented Confederate uniforms, the Phi Eps will storm the chancellor's residence and formally secede from the union.

At 6 p.m. their "march to the

... with enthusiasm to the ideas and plans which will come out of the leaders conference starting at Pinebrook today. These concentrated sessions can be the basis for ... of the activities of the next academic year. Yet, ... the total effect of last year's meeting, we feel a ... apprehension and distrust for some of the promises ... commitments that will be made.

The problem of continuation of Student Union activities is a case in point.

A major announcement from last May's conference was the decision that the organization would no longer exist as a separate entity. However, the Chancellor pointed out, all the functions of the Union would be carried out by the facilities in the Women's Building and other suitable campus locations. This has obviously not yet been done.

Let's look at the record! Early in September a student-faculty committee made a thorough search of the campus for ... to house the 1,669 volume textbook lending library. Nothing suitable was made available to the group so they were forced to sell the books at a $2,500 loss.

... the browsing library, Friday night dances and travel bureau have been revived in the Women's Building, ... like recreational facilities formerly provided by the Union organization have disappeared from the campus.

Open lounges, the opportunity to listen to radio and records, television, free movies, table tennis, juke box dancing and regular bridge club meetings have not been available this year.

Small organizations without office space are operating under extreme disadvantages this year. The Union activities center offered telephones and desk space to them. In addition to its mimeographing and silk screen services, it offered a mail-box distribution process of posters and publicity to all campus centers. Small groups could also borrow dance records for social functions and pianos for rehearsals. These are no longer available.

Other of the usual functions of a student union have been continued but in such a fashion that they are inadequate or not generally available to the public.

The responsibility for this state of affairs lies largely with the Administration but also with the student body which was neither vocal nor active enough to see the promise fulfilled.

And so we look to Pinebrook again. We trust that this year's conference will conclude with a comprehensive program to be followed to solve the union and other student problems.

I Hold These Truths...

By DEAN ERIC H. FAIGLE

... College of Liberal Arts and the School of Speech

I believe that a person's activities are determined by his faith and by this I believe that the teachings of Christianity are the greatest force for good that the world has ever known and that if each individual who believes this acted in the light of his belief the world would not be the sorry mess it is today.

I would go further than this—if the adherents of every great religion lived by the tenets of their group there would dawn an era of peace and harmony such as the world has not yet known.

I do not believe that this is an impractical dream. Life is made up of many small things which taken as a whole make up a very large and forceful entity. If individuals could even begin putting their beliefs into action in their everyday contacts with people the whole tone of life would change. The attitude in the home, in the classroom, on the campus would become the attitude in the city, in the nation and around the world.

I believe this is basic. I believe strongly in democracy. I do not think for a minute that it has failed but I do believe it could be very much more effective if the individuals who make up the democracy demonstrated in their own lives that they justify the responsibility and power that democracy places in the hands of each one of us.

I do not believe that Communism or any of the other current philosophies that tortured and confused minds have dreamed up would even be a threat if each individual released his potential force for good.

Connecticut Sets Course Survey

By the Intercollegiate Press

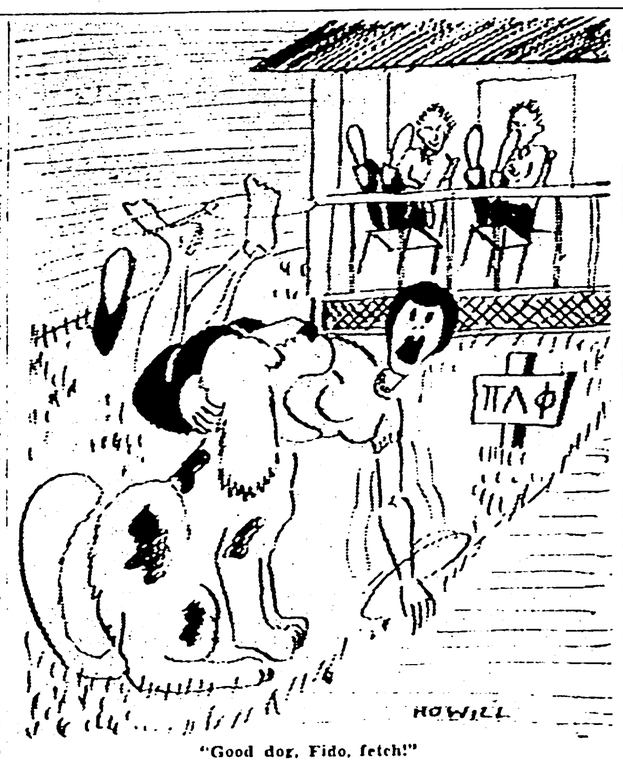
Approximately 4,500 questionnaires were distributed recently to students on the University of Connecticut campus in the first Course Critique effort since 1950. The questionnaires were designed to evaluate about 75 common elective courses.

Publication of the critique will include an evaluation of the course of instruction, information as to the number and type of quizzes and papers, term papers, field trips and Library work. Students will be given an opportunity to evaluate the instructor, his manner of instruction and the extent to which he encourages discussion and arouses interest on the part of the student.

A rating of the textbook will be included and also an estimate of the hours that students allotted to the study subject outside of class.

"Information of the kind that will be compiled by the committee can be of value to the students, however, the information should be considered carefully and it should be kept in mind that it is merely a composite of student opinion, not an infallible guide to course selection, and certainly not the only guide," stated the chairmen of the Student Senate-sponsored Course Critique committee.

Publication of the critique will be available at various student centers on campus for a nominal fee.



"Good dog, Fido, fetch!"

Equivalent Tactics but Not Quite, Seen as Goal

By MICHAEL BRAUN

Just what are the methods that an intelligent person should use in opposing McCarthy without resorting to the Senator's methods?

In his article "Liberals vs. McCarthy" in yesterday's Daily Orange, Lee Kiklier poses the question of "liberals trampling the same flowers that McCarthy has ruined" in their opposition to him.

It seems to me that Max Lerner by citing Elmer Davis' recent book, "But We Were Born Free" as an example of effective anti-McCarthyism has solved Mr. Kiklier's problem adroitly.

Mr. Kiklier feels that it is better to keep quiet about McCarthy entirely than to use any of his methods in opposing him. Davis in his book states "I believe that America endure, but only if we stand up for it. The frightened men who are frightened, because they have no faith in their country, are wrong; and even wronger are the smart men who are trying to use the frightened men for their own ends."

Thus Mr. Davis shows that there is today a group of men who have no moral scruples and will take advantage of any situation no matter what method is necessitated. It is however, very important and vital that we do oppose them, and not stand wishfully by because of refusal of "descending to their level."

Mr. Kiklier appears afraid to do this. He seems to feel that unless the fight against McCarthy can be carried out in a "cool and logical" manner, and may we add in a completely unbiased and factual way, it shouldn't be carried out at all.

He makes the statement ". . . The goal in the McCarthy battle is to defend democracy, not to further McCarthy's methods by using them as a means of battling him."

By this statement we may assume that Mr. Kiklier feels that any use of McCarthy's methods is furthering McCarthy's goal. McCarthy would obviously love nothing better than being the only one in the country allowed to use his particular methods.

As an example of how not to oppose McCarthy, the Murrow case is brought up. Mr. Kiklier says that Murrow had no right to compare McCarthy with Louis XIV, and calls this "a form of name calling."

Why name calling? Was not Mr. Murrow entitled to his opinion when he said that he was "left of McCarthy and Louis XIV?" Is every attack on McCarthy to be placed in a bottle of disinfectant before being presented to the public?

We may assume that McCarthy would like all attacks on him to be complete and factual. But in a situation such as this and with an opponent so formidable, who undoubtedly will continue to use the same methods that he has in the past, we have no recourse other than to fight "fire with fire" as far as it does not harm innocent parties.

In answer to Mr. Kiklier's statement on a "cool and logical way to beat McCarthy," and at the risk of appealing to the "popular support that McCarthy has received" and "destroying the need for public opinion" I would like to quote the last paragraph from Mr. Davis' book:

". . . a text taken from the fourth chapter of the first book of Samuel, the eighth and ninth verses—the mutual exhortation of the Philistines before the battle of Ebenezer. 'Woe unto us. Who shall deliver us out of the hands of these mighty gods?' But then, realizing that nobody else was going to deliver them, they said to one another, 'Be strong, and quit yourself like men; and fight.' And they did fight, and delivered themselves. So may we; but only if we quit ourselves like men. This republic was not established by cowards; and cowards will not preserve it."

Writer Praises Krinsky Truths

To the Editor:

I wish to add a fervent "amen" to Dr. Fred Krinsky's fine affirmation in the May 10 D.O. We should emulate his courage in denouncing the all-too-prevalent idea that "faith in man" is the root of all social evil in our time.

The old expression "Let George do it" seems, for all practical purposes, to have become "Let God do it."

I say "Let man do it." God is already busy enough running the universe.

Sincerely yours,
Donald Ross Wittig

Prof. Krasner to Make Europe Concert Tour

By GEORGE MEEK

Louis Krasner, internationally known violinist and member of the School of Music faculty, will tour Europe on a concert tour with Dimitri Mitropoulis this summer.

On this tour Mitropoulis will direct and Krasner will be solo violin for German and Italian symphonies, including those in Munich and Cologne. Krasner plans to leave Syracuse soon after classes are over, and will return in mid-July.

Professor Krasner has an impressive record of performances in this country and abroad.

His tour with Mitropoulis this summer will not be the first time the two have worked together. They have worked locally with the Krasner chamber music ensemble, in New York with the Philharmonic and with the Minneapolis Symphony.

Krasner says that Columbia records will soon put on sale a long-play recording of the Schoenberg Concerto, made when he was solo violin with the New York Philharmonic last year.

The Schoenberg Concerto, a contemporary piece, is one of Krasner's favorites, although some violinists maintain that a musician must have "six fingers" to play it.

Alban Berg's violin concerto, written for and dedicated to Krasner, was performed by him several times here and abroad in the late 1930's. It was recorded in 1941 and acclaimed by the New York Herald Tribune as the best contemporary recordings of the year.

Krasner can relate experiences of five solo appearances with the Boston Symphony, and four with the Philadelphia Orchestra, as well as his other American appearances. He has served as soloist at the Library of Congress.

Several foreign papers have highly praised Krasner for his appearances abroad. Barcelona, Brussels, Amsterdam, Buenos Aires, Prague, Zurich, Copenhagen, Vienna, Rome, Berlin, Paris and London publications have mentioned the Syracuse faculty member quite favorably.

Krasner will leave Germany after this summer's tour on July 16 and be back in Syracuse on July 19. He says this is "cutting corners closer than usual", but he is returning to participate in a chamber music group.

Chamber music is one of Krasner's "pets" and aside from his contributions as head of Syracuse's violin department, he is best known for his chamber music group.

The local chamber music group was founded by Prof. Krasner to broaden musical interest and activity at Syracuse. He feels that chamber music should be an integral part of any community's cultural activity.

To the Editor: An Answer to 'Name Witheld'

Dear "Name Withheld"
c o the Editorial Director:

With reference to a letter in yesterday's Daily Orange from the writer who cursed the grass as he traipsed to class, I state:

We are dealing with one of the major products of our American society: the rationalizer. The refugee from sub-Frosh day who penned that lame excuse about the necessity for short cuts would be happy in two choice places that comes to my mind: the salt flats of Utah or the main runway at La Guardia.

In either case there is little in the way of grass to impede progress.

However, to drag this letter from the somewhat equally ridiculous name-calling level to a more reasonable approach, I should like to point out a few points.

We have a difficult campus to work with sidewalk-wise. The center quad has to be interlaced with sidewalks that will both allow for future expansion and provide connections between the opposite shores, so to speak.

With this in mind, it is a challenge to the landscaper to keep two jumps ahead of the short-cutting student and lay four inches of concrete where he or she will run without completely asphalting the quad.

To regress to our writer for a minute. Just what are the banes of his college life? A dawdling professor and and irritating alarm clock.

The prof problem actually does not exist except in the student's mind. When the 50 minutes are up the class can get up and walk out en masse or one by one and this is merely a strike against the faculty.

As for the clock . . . well, my only reaction is to send the clock on to graduate school and let the slumbering student be left to pass out and pass on . . . so that he may serve as fertilizer for what grass is left when he and his kind have cut across the lawn for the last time.

Sincerely,
Hugh O. Muir

Sports Notebook

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN, Sports Editor

Syracuse University's Mr. Baseball, Lew Carr, has been named to the newly-formed College Baseball Hall of Fame according to a release from Los Angeles today. Carr and 19 other famous college coaches will be instituted as charter members of the new Helms Foundation shrine later this year.

Coach on Piety Hill for 35 years until his retirement in 1945, Carr compiled a record well over the .500 mark.

The famed Orange mentor started his baseball career before the turn of the century as an infielder and captain of the Hobart College nine. He continued his diamond activity after enrolling in the Syracuse University Law School, then went on to the professional game with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

While playing with the Pirates Carr was involved in the discovery of one of the game's greatest shortstops. Lew was injured and, faced with the loss of his star infielder, the Pittsburgh manager called in one of his outfielders to fill the midfield spot. That outfielder was the immortal Honus Wagner who later became a professional Hall of Fame shortstop.

LEW CARR

Carr left the playing field in 1910 and returned to Syracuse as coach of the Orange nine. In the fabulous 36 years that followed he turned out many great teams and many great stars. Outstanding among his proteges were Jim Konstanty, Jonah Goldman and Vic Hanson.

Konstanty is probably the best known of Carr's students. A third baseman on the Hill, Jim later turned to the mound, pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a National League pennant in 1950 and winning the Most Valuable Player award. Goldman played shortstop for Cleveland several seasons while Hanson, better known as an all-American football and basketball star, was signed for a bonus by the New York Yankees of the Babe Ruth-Lou Gehrig era.

Many tributes have been paid Lew Carr over the years including the re-naming of Syracuse's ball diamond in his honor at the 1952 Colgate game. Many more will be sent his way following today's Helms Foundation award. But, to the multitude we add our sincerest congratulations, Mr. Baseball.

With the Orange stickmen in a contending position for the Laurie D. Cox Division title, it seems a few words would be appropriate about the Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association and its rather complicated rating system.

The 51-school ILA has long been faced with the disturbing task of selecting a national lacrosse champion despite great differences in team schedules. In an attempt to alleviate this problem, the ILA executive committee last year divided the association members into three divisions, rating each team on its record for the previous five seasons.

The first division, now known as the Cyrus C. Miller Division, encompasses the so-called "cream" of the lacrosse world—Army, Duke, John Hopkins, Maryland, Navy, Princeton, Rensselaer Poly Virginia and Yale.

The second flight, named after former Orange coach Laurie Cox, is composed of supposed second-class teams. Syracuse, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Hobart, Pennsylvania, Penn State, Rutgers and Swarthmore are among the 19 rated as Class B. The third, or Roy Taylor division is made up of lacrosse's weaker teams.

Avoiding much of the detail, division championships are decided somewhat like this: A victory over a Class A team scores six points, a tie with same, five, a loss to one of the top clubs, four. In like manner, games with Class B opponents are worth either five, four or three points and those with Class C either four, three or two. Each team selects the seven games from its schedule which give it the highest score. The top scorer in each division is declared division champ with National honors going to the winner with the most total points.

Without expounding on the many pros and cons of such a system, it is quite obvious that the National champ will most certainly be a member of the first division. In fact, after yesterday's victory over the Orange, Army has already assured itself of 39 points, one more than amassed by champion Princeton in 1953.

Nevertheless Saturday's contest with RPI is of great importance to Syracuse. With victories over Dartmouth and Penn State, worth five each, and losses to Army and Maryland, worth four each, the Orange has tallied 18 points. A victory over RPI this weekend followed by wins at Cornell and Hobart would give Syracuse 34 points, the total with which Swarthmore won the division title a year ago. So the six big points at stake Saturday will probably determine just how far Roy Simmons' 1954 squad rises on the lacrosse ladder. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

Undefeated Cadets Hand Syracuse Second Stick Loss of Season, 19-7

Pietymen Meet Rensselaer Poly Here Saturday

Special to The Daily Orange

WEST POINT, May 12 — Army's undefeated Cadets rolled to their eighth straight lacrosse victory this afternoon, rallying for a 19-7 win over visiting Syracuse. The victors thus remain among the contenders for the national championship Wingate Trophy.

Syracuse, winner in eight of 10 contests, jumped to an early 3-0 lead but Army settled down and moved to an 8-3 advantage at the quarter. The Cadets added nine goals in the second period and one in each of the final chapters as Coach Morris Touchstone cleared the bench.

ELEVEN CADETS got into the scoring parade with Oliver (Skip) Combs and John Giddings netting three goals apiece.

Army had defeated the Maryland Lacrosse Club, Williams College, Swarthmore, Yale, Rensselaer Poly, Virginia and Maryland before today's contest.

The Orange returns to Syracuse Saturday for a battle with Rensselaer Poly, its final home game of the season.

The Rensselaer team is undergoing renovations this year. Coach Ned Harkness lost nine of last year's starting 10 which won eight and lost one. Included in this were two one-point victories, 11-10 over Syracuse and 7-6 over Cornell.

RENSSELAER HAS had a tough time getting experience and they have a .500 record with three wins, three losses and last weekend's 8-8 tie with Duke.

Rensselaer has had a week's rest coming into the Syracuse match.

At the beginning of the season, Rensselaer Coach Ned Harkness was counting heavily on John Griffis. Griffis came through as expected scoring 18 goals in the first three games. Since the whole team only scored 35 goals Griffis' efforts constituted slightly more than half the team's goals.

ATTACKMEN—Leading the RPI lacrosse team against the Orange stickmen tomorrow afternoon at Hendricks Field will be lettermen JOHN GRIFFIS and PHIL CARROLL. The Engineers have enjoyed phenomenal success in the sport since its inception at the Troy institution in 1944.

Tangerines to Play Rough Colgate Nine

The Tangerine nine will be seeking vengeance this afternoon when they meet the strong Colgate frosh contingent at Lew Carr Field. The last time the two teams met, the Raider yearlings handed an 11-1 defeat to the Syracuse freshmen in their season's opener.

Bill Williams, who hurled the final two innings in last Monday's 12-3 trouncing of Rochester, is scheduled to start, with Bob Kuhne completing the battery. The rest of the lineup will be almost the same as those of the last few games with the exception of shortstop and an outfield berth.

THE INFIELD is pretty well set with Dick Barstow at first base, Vin Albanese at second, Joe Krivak at third and newcomer Ron Tyler at shortstop.

The outfield slots are undecided as of yet but will probably be filled by John Panucci, Sam Booker, and either Jack Thoden or Joe McCann. After tomorrow's game, the Tangerine's last at home, the frosh will travel to Ithaca to face the Bomber's frosh on Saturday.

Pi Alpha Chi, SAM Gain Semi-finals in Intra Softball

By FRANK VECCHIONE

Led by the pitching of Lou Petricola, and some timely hitting, Pi Alpha Chi rolled on to a well-earned victory over Alpha Chi Rho last night in quarter final action.

In other games high scores dominated as Sigma Alpha Mu, Skytop M-2, and the Bureaucrats, easily handled Pi Lambda Phi, Skytop M-8, and Collendale A-9 respectively.

PI ALPHA CHI gained a berth in the intra softball semi-finals with their 7-3 victory over Chi Rho. Leading the winning attack were home runs by Jack Theures and Joe Dean. In his five-inning stint on the mound Petricola struck out six and gave up but five hits.

Pete Kennedy pitched commendably for the losers, but Chi Rho was outclassed from the start. Don Flynn led the losing attack with a long home run.

In the other Greek contest, Sigma Alpha Mu, behind the strong left arm of Mel Kline, also won their third straight game and gained the semi-finals by walloping Pi Lambda Phi, 12-2.

KLINE PITCHED a two-hitter striking out 12 Pi Lambs to set a new intra mark for the current year. He also contributed two hits to lead the Sammies at the plate.

Another Sammy who excelled at bat was Dick Caro who pounded out three hits in as many times at bat. The Sammies started their onslaught early in the game against Phi Lamb pitcher Jerry Bertisch and were never headed after scoring six runs in the third inning.

Gerry Brown, supposedly under contract with the Brooklyn Dodgers, led Skytop M-2 to a 13-3 victory over M-8 in other intra softball action last night. Brown pounded out a homer and a triple in three times at bat.

IN THE final game last night, the Bureaucrats continued their winning streak by beating Collendale A-9, 14-1. The Collendale team was badly outmanned as it showed up with only two outfielders. Kane of the Bureaucrats had the best hit of the game—a booming home run, while Carl Matte hit a circuit clout for the losers.

Tonight Sammy and Pi Alpha Chi meet in one fraternity semi-final while Tau Delta Phi and ZBT meet in the other. The two winners will face each other tomorrow night to determine the fraternity champion in intra softball.

Skippers to Enter Mid-Atlantic Races At Naval Academy

The Orange sailing squad leaves tomorrow for Annapolis where it will compete with nine other teams in the Mid-Atlantic Sailing Championships.

The sailors qualified for the races two weeks ago, when they took fourth place in the Division A elimination at King's Point. Four other teams from this division will also compete.

REPRESENTING PIETY Hill will be Ken Resen, next year's captain, Leonard Montague, Jack Dickerson, Warren Witherstine and Mary Jean Perry.

Favored in the race are Navy, who has won the race the past two years, Princeton and George Washington. Other teams to watch will be Cornell's division A Winners, Georgetown and King's Point.

Navy's skipper, Bob Englert, is a native Syracusan, and last year's garnered the most points among the competing sailors. His crew will probably be R. J. McGurk.

PRINCETON ALSO has an outstanding man in John Van Dusen, who should give Englert a good battle.

In former years the Hill has done little at these races, finishing tenth last year. However, this year's team is expected to give a good account of themselves, having shown up well at King's Point throughout most of the race.

The two top finishers will go to the Nationals in Los Angeles in June, with the winner receiving the American Cup as the victory symbol.

Orange Golfers Barely Nip Colgate in Close Contest

By ALEX STRASSER
Associate Sports Editor

Colgate University's golfers gave the Orange linksmen a big scare yesterday afternoon before bowing 4-3 in a golf match staged on the Tecumseh fairways.

Co-capt. Bob Mandeville led the home side with a four and three victory over Bob Smith of Colgate. Larry Larson then shot a par 72 to tie co-Capt. Gerry Sullivan of the Orange, making the score, 1½-2½.

In the final match of the evening, Jim Johnson of Syracuse clinched the Saltine triumph by tying Ron Sheimershans of Colgate.

Clarkson and St. Lawrence will provide the competition for the Hillmen this weekend. Syracuse will meet Clarkson away on Friday and on Saturday, the Saltines resume rivalries with the Larry Linksmen for the first time since 1936.

NOT TO be left behind, the Hill net squad will engage in two dual meet matches this weekend. Sampson will provide the competition this Friday afternoon while on Saturday, the Nittany Lions invade campus. Both matches will be held on the Skytop tennis courts.

Yesterday's match against Colgate was rained out, as were earlier practice sessions, so tennis mentor Frances O'Brien is finding it difficult to determine his starting lineup.

Capt. John Kerr and Pete Bratt are the only definite starters. Boone Sone, Win Lott, Herb Walker, Tom Long and Al Bernstein are other possible starters.

IN THE doubles' matches, Bratt and Kerr will probably form one team, while the other two doubles' teams haven't yet been chosen.

Of the two squads, Penn State figures to give the Orange the most competition. Although they lost half of last year's starting squad, the Nittany Lions have three returning lettermen and four sophomore prospects around whom to build their squad. Sampson, like all service teams, has a constant change in personnel, so not much is known about the team.

Track Entries Due

All intramural teams who have received entry blanks for the track competition to be held May 22, are requested to fill out and return them to the intramural office by tomorrow.

Saltine Baseballers Rained Out For Seventh Time This Season

For the seventh time this season, the Syracuse University baseball team was stopped by the weather. The scheduled game with Ithaca College last night was postponed when an afternoon rain added to the sogginess of an already soggy Percy Field in Ithaca.

Coach Ted Kleinhans and his charges are keeping fingers crossed that the adverse weather will let up for at least the weekend. Home games with powerful Holy Cross tomorrow and Bucknell on Saturday afternoon are in store at Lew Carr Field, weather permitting.

FOLLOWERS OF the diamond sport on Piety Hill can't remember when the weather ever played as much havoc with the schedule as it surely is doing this year. Of the seven washouts, six were of regularly scheduled games while the other was a re-scheduling of a previously postponed game with Sampson AFB.

It is almost certain now that the Sampson tilt is permanently cancelled. The officials of both teams can't seem to find a suitable date for a third try at playing the game.

It was also announced yesterday that the Clarkson tilt, rained out last week, will be played on Monday, again with the permission of the weatherman pending. Since neither team wants to travel far, a neutral site midway between the schools, Watertown, has been designated as the place of the game.

With just a little over a week remaining before classes are finished for the year, the Orange has been able to complete only three games, beating Union and losing to Colgate in extra innings and to St. Lawrence two days ago.

IFC Award Banquet Planned for Sunday

The Interfraternity Council will pay tribute to all IFC representatives Sunday at the annual awards banquet at 6 p.m. at Sherman's Restaurant in the Hotel Hilton.

Individual awards will be given to representatives who have done outstanding work for the council and the Intramural trophy will be presented to the house which has compiled the top record through the year. In addition, retiring and new IFC officers will be introduced.

AL CERVI, coach of the Syracuse Nationals basketball squad will be the main speaker at the affair. A short movie of some of the highlights of the Nats' season will also be presented.

Guests at the banquet will include two IFC representatives from each fraternity and the house presidents. Members of the University administration will also be present with Dean Charles C. Noble giving the invocation. Toastmaster will be Howard Osofsky, new president of the organization.

Co-chairmen of the affair are Robert Lefko, Delta Tau Delta and George Taback, Sigma Alpha Mu.

BANQUET INVITATIONS for each house were distributed at last night's meeting. A representative from each fraternity is urged to call back immediately and notify him how many representatives the house will send.

Rated "one of the greatest pro competitors of all time," Cervi will relate some of the thrills of his career. He gained national prominence in recent months by leading the injury-ridden Nationals to the finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs. They were eliminated in their final clash with Minneapolis.

Hill Young GOP'ers Bound for Convention

Philip Huttar and Carol Flamm were elected last week by the Young Republican Club of Syracuse University as delegates to the Monticello convention of New York Young Republican Clubs Inc.

The convention, to be held today, tomorrow and Saturday at the Laurels Country Club in Monticello, will decide on the new officers of the state association and several important resolutions effecting McCarthy, Dewey's reelection and the farm policy of the administration.

THE ASSOCIATION consists of 200 clubs and has 75,000 members. Each delegation has one vote. Its president is a member of the state executive committee.

Huttar, also acting chairman of the college division of the association, which consists of 20 clubs, said that the association was the first group to endorse Dewey for a third term four years ago.

Other Syracusans going to the convention are Cynthia Satow, Kaye Dawson and Bruce Kennedy.

Sociology Students Schedule Banquet

Labor Representatives To Attend Festivities

Representatives from labor and industry will be on campus today for a panel discussion and banquet with Hill sociology students.

Bell Telephone Co., Kodak Co., Federal Employment Practices Commission, CIO, Child Welfare Agencies, and small business will all be represented.

THE INDIVIDUALS, all of whom have spoken to the Sociology 52 class during the semester, will be available as a panel this afternoon in Maxwell for the 17 students to question on attitudes like "What is Your Opinion of Collective Bargaining?"

Vice-Chancellor Finla G. Crawford, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts Eric H. Faigle, and Registrar Keith J. Kennedy will attend the banquet planned for 7:30 p.m. in Sims. The members of the afternoon's panel will receive certificates recognizing their contributions to the work of the class.

NIXON COMMENTS

WASHINGTON — Vice-president Richard Nixon commented yesterday on the sudden death of Senator Clyde Hoey (D-N.C.), who was formerly head of the Senate Investigations sub-committee, now headed by Senator Joseph McCarthy. Nixon said, "it is particularly significant to note that under his leadership, the subcommittee went after facts rather than headlines."

Fine Arts Junior Chosen Guest Editor Of Mademoiselle

Twenty Coeds Picked To Prepare Issue Of Magazine

Millicent D. Auerbach, a junior in Fine Arts, was chosen to be one of twenty guest editors who will assist in putting out the annual college issue of Mademoiselle magazine this summer.

Selected on the basis of work submitted in three competitives assignments given to all members of the Mademoiselle College Board Miss Auerbach will be the guest of the fashion magazine in New York during the month of June while she and other college editors prepare the August college issue.

A MAJOR in costume design and fashion illustration, the guest editor is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi and hails from Hazleton, Pa. This is the second year she has been a member of the College Board from which the twenty editors are chosen.

Besides the experience of working on a large-circulation magazine, Miss Auerbach will have the chance to meet fashion designers and other people connected with the art fields in which she is interested.

Home Ec College Sets Style Show

"Fashion Serenade," the annual fashion show presented by the merchandising sequence of the College of Home Economics will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the dance studio of the Women's building.

Clothes from the clothing department of the college have been made, and will be modeled by students. The show will last for two hours and admission is free.

Ruth Calish is general chairman of the show. Assisting her are: Norma Engelhart and Marlene Smith, commentary; Joyce McGrath, publicity; Mrs. Virginia Seymour, programs; Mary Eckberg, staging; Patricia Murray, selection; and Kaye Petersen, modeling.

Hood College Sets Change in English

By Intercollegiate Press

FREDERICK, Md. — Revisions in the English department's curriculum have been announced here by Dr. Andrew Meyer, head of the department at Hood College. The changes occur primarily in the freshman English course.

Basically, the course will achieve greater unity through the study of larger literary works of a few authors rather than scattered, short readings. Henry David Thoreau's "Walden" is an example of a larger literary piece to be studied.

THE GREATEST change occurs in the second semester when students will study works of American authors such as Ralph Waldo Emerson and Benjamin Franklin. The text for this study of American literature will be "Major American Writers," edited by Jones, Leisy, and Ludwig. Up until now second semester work was a continuation of various short readings and essays on English literature.

These changes, creating a broader, unified field of study, will provide a better background for freshman term papers. However, the freshman English will still place emphasis on composition and critical analysis. It is the material to be studied that will be changed. Sonnets, short stories, and poetry will also still be studied to some degree.

sea" will take them to the library steps. James Carleton, assistant dean of men, who is from the South ("I said the South"), will weigh in the contestants in the fatman's Kentubby Derby to be held on Saturday.

FROM HERE, the boys in gray will proceed to the main ballroom of the Hotel Syracuse, which will be transformed into a "southern paradise complete with a 15-foot showboat which will be complete with a revolving paddle wheel."

After seeing all this any coed should be properly overwhelmed and agree to secede quietly. But wait, there is more. At 11 p.m. there will be a show aboard the showboat which the boys assure us "has been in rehearsal for two months."

Saturday morning a southern type reveille will be blown to awaken the revelers. Eleven a.m. will find them on Hendricks Field where the race for the "golden cow trophy" is to be run. All men obese enough to admit it publicly, are invited to enter.

SATURDAY afternoon and evening the couples will enjoy a fish fry and hayride. Sunday, after reveille (presumably Dixie). Aunt Jemima will serve fried chicken for the people. Presumably she will serve pancakes too.

At 3 p.m. a jam session will be held featuring "original Dixieland." Sam Blumkin will supply the licks.

Marlene Seme Chosen National Crescent Girl

What seemed like a routine serenade by Lambda Chi Alpha last night was really a tribute to a national queen—Marlene Seme.

The local chapter of Lambda Chi received news early in the evening that Miss Seme had been chosen national Crescent Girl, to reign over an entire five days of Lambda Chi convention activities next month in Miami.

THIS WILL be the fourth crown to grace the head of the pretty 19-year-old home ec freshman. She has been New York State Fair queen, Syracuse University Winter Carnival empress and Crescent Girl of the local Alpha Upsilon chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha.

Saturday morning she appeared as Gertrude Lawrence on the Lambda Chi float, the King and I which captured the trophy as best all-around entry in the annual competition.

Miss Seme has also been a cover girl. She smiled at members of the American rural population from the March cover of Country Gentlemen magazine.

A FRENCH Cottage resident, Miss Seme is from Lafargeville, N.Y. She was valedictorian of her high school class and is here on scholarship. In 1952 she was the winner of a national 4-H clothing competition.

She will travel to Miami for the June 28th opening of the Lambda Chi convention with all expenses paid for the five-day conclave. Her chaperon during that time will be the woman voted nationally outstanding housemother by members of the fraternity.

Miss Seme will be crowned and preside over the Grand Ball at Miami's Hotel Casablanca.

At present every member of the local chapter is planning to be present at the convention.

Physics Colloquium Set

Mrs. Margot E. Bergmann of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn will speak on "Microtechniques in X-ray Diffraction" at a Physics Colloquium planned for 4 p.m. today in 106 Steele. The meeting will be preceded by a tea in the library.

Slate Announced For Women's Pool

The regular Women's building pool schedule will be observed during the first week of exams, as dips will be held from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Friday, and from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Wednesday. Pool facilities will be available for staff women, alumnae and faculty women Monday and Thursday evenings.

Special dips will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the second exam week.

Coeds' lockers in the Women's building must be emptied by 5 p.m. June 1. Articles remaining in lockers after this date will be confiscated.

one representative from WSG, Men's Student Government, Panhellenic Council and Interfraternity Council.

THE MOTION for the group will be brought up again next year in Assembly.

Achievements of individual panels were also cited. The honors program for juniors and seniors wishing to do extra work in their major has been tentatively approved.

The proposed parent's convocation will take place during Orientation week. There will also be an investigation into the reason why Syracuse does not participate in Who's Who in American Colleges.

Manicas to Head University Bands

Peter Manicas a junior in Liberal Arts, was recently elected president of the University marching, concert, symphonic and pep bands.

As president, Manicas will preside over the meetings of the staff of the bands. He has participated in band activities for three years, and this year was student leader, directing the marching band in the stands and taking charge of the pep band.

HE WAS partially responsible for two trips to Utica and a journey to West Point.

Ever Study
TERRESTRIAL ENGINEERING?

Probably not. As far as we know, there isn't such a term. Even so, the terrain of a manufacturing plant may have a vital effect on the design and location of its engineering equipment.

It certainly did in the case of our Belle, West Virginia, plant, which is just across the road from a flat-topped hill, 750 feet high.

Perhaps you'd like to match wits with Du Pont engineers, for we feel that this problem was interesting—and its solution ingenious.

Briefly, the situation was this: Carbon dioxide was to be removed from a mixture of gases by bringing them into contact with water in "scrubbers" operating at 450 psi (gauge). The inlet gases contained about 25% CO_2 by volume. Because of its greater solubility, most of the CO_2 would leave the scrubbers dissolved in the water.

It was necessary to reduce the pressure of this water to atmospheric and recover the dissolved carbon dioxide, since CO_2 was needed for use in a chemical synthesis. The degasified water then had to be pumped back into the pressure scrubbers, to repeat the scrubbing cycle.

Still like to match wits? How would you design an economical closed system for this scrubbing water? After you've thought out your solution, you might like to compare it with the one given below.

Du Pont engineers made use of the precipitous terrain in this way: pressure on the water leaving the scrubbers was sufficient to force it up to the top of the hill for CO_2 recovery. The returning water thereby provided a pressure of approximately 325 psi (750 feet of head) at the base of the hill. This gift of pressure on the suction side of the water pumps resulted in considerable energy saving.

Do unusual problems such as this one challenge you and stir your enthusiasm? If they do, we think you'll be interested in technical work with the Du Pont Company.

Campus Leaders Gather At Pinebrook Conference

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Director

PINEBROOK CAMP, Upper Saranac Lake, May 13—"The leader is obligated to honor the organization's reason for being," Dr. Theodore Denise, Professor of Philosophy, said tonight in the keynote speech at the first session of the Annual Campus Leaders' conference.

He noted three types of basic organizational purposes: friendship, utility and common objectives. The first type of group is based on personal pleasure and "fund;" the second result is in groups such as business partnerships or men's clubs; and the third with the agreement as to objectives, is the most stable and "kicks most in dying."

THERE MUST be clear knowledge of the type of the organization. The first, for instance, should not take on a program of group social consciousness, unless the group decides upon a change of purpose.

Dr. Denise said, "The leader must be a master of ceremonies, a little bit of a Machiavellian, a dynamic force, upholder of the will of the electorate and defender of traditions a long time in the making."

He noted that the type of leadership will invariably depend upon the type of group, including the figurehead who merely represents the individual spearheading a group otherwise weak and inactive.

PANELS FOLLOWED the talk, taking up group continuity, limits of structure, self-determination, and leaders, freedom and distinction.

On the agenda for tomorrow is an address by Chancellor William P. Tolley, panels on campus morals, Footprints, activities progress and campus leaders' requirements. The conference will run through Sunday afternoon.

The weekend schedule includes:
TOMORROW—Chancellor William P. Tolley will give his state-of-the-union address to campus leaders. Several panel discussions concerning campus interests will follow.

Saturday will be devoted to student and independent problems a survey of the reorganized administrative workings of the University, requirements for campus leaders, the library, recreation and athletics. The evening will feature a faculty panel discussing the student and his relationship to activities and academics.

Campus leaders are meeting at Pinebrook Camp, Upper Saranac Lake (shown above), to discuss problems of leadership in various types of organizations. Dr. Theodore Denise, Professor of Philosophy, addressed the group and elucidated group objectives.

Art Museum Plans Special Displays

Five special displays are featured in the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts for the month of May. These are arranged in connection with the current Museum Membership campaign and are of unusual interest.

An 18th century portrait by the English artist, Sir Joshua Reynolds has been lent by the Metropolitan Museum of Art. One of his renown portraits, depicts life size, George, Viscount Malden and Lady Elizabeth Capel. It was formerly in the J. Pierpont Morgan collection.

"Popular Art in the United States," an exhibition of original water colors, is hung in the main gallery. It was selected from the American Index of Design and is owned by the National Gallery of Art in Washington. It pictures our national crafts and folk arts with subjects like the cigar store Indians, ship figureheads and antique furniture.

A leading American sculptor, Peter Abate of Boston, has a one-man show of his original studies. He is a protege of the great sculptor Ivan Mestrovic.

An outstanding Syracuse artist is also displayed at the exhibition. The Fred Gardner Memorial is a collection of his paintings and prints assembled by the artist's widow, Adelaide Morris Gardner. He was one of the best-known and best-loved Syracuse artists.

Other local artists are featured in a third gallery. Invitations have been extended to artists in the vicinity of Syracuse who have shown prize-winning paintings in regional exhibitions during the last years.

The final display is a delightful exhibit of drawings and water colors by students. These children are members in the classes conducted by the School Art League. The classes are held in the Museum on Saturday mornings.

University students are urged to take the opportunity to view this display. The Museum is located at 407 James St. It is open from 12 to 5:30 p.m. during the week and from 2 to 5:30 p.m. on Sunday.

School of Music To Honor Bus Ad At Sunday Concert

Capurso To Direct Final Presentation In Music Series

Dr. Alexander Capurso, Director of the School of Music, will direct the University Symphony Orchestra in a concert honoring the College of Business Administration at 4 p.m. Sunday in Crouse Auditorium.

The concert will be the final presentation in this year's series of 18 free programs presented by the School of Music.

Sigma Alpha Iota, professional music fraternity for women, is sponsoring Sunday's program for the benefit of its Foundation Fund for musical charities. Contributions will not be accepted at the concert, which is open free to the general public, but persons desiring to support the fund have already contributed and their names will appear on the program.

The program will open with Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" overture. Following this selection, Wilfred Burkle, a faculty member of Syracuse University and Liverpool High School, will be solo oboist in the Barlow arrangement of Wayne's "The Winter's Passed," written for oboe and strings.

Handel's "Amaryllis Suite," arranged by Beecham, will be next on the program. It is programmed into Entice, Bouree, Musette, Gigue, Gavotte, and Scherzo sections.

Following a short intermission the orchestra will offer Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 5, "The Reformation." This is divided into andante-allegro con fuoco, allegro vivace, andante, and andante con moto-allegro maestoso movements.

The University Symphony, which performed earlier this season, is a community organization made up of students and faculty of several of the colleges as well as a few prominent local musicians. The group has rehearsed weekly since the beginning of the year under Dr. Capurso's direction.

Louis Krasner will be associate director for Sunday's concert, and Mrs. H. Winfield Chapin is honorary chairman of the event.

Evolution of Theater Discussed by Prof. Falk

By GEORGE MEEK

Professor Sawyer Falk of the Syracuse Drama department told how and why the "theater of realism" is changing to the "theater of expressionism" in yesterday's humanities lecture.

Addressing more than 150 persons in Maxwell Auditorium, Falk first described in detail the "realistic" theater and then speculated as to what the "theater of expressionism" will be like.

The currently declining theater of realism directly simulated real life, according to Professor Falk. Acclaimed at its peak, "the final phase of theatrical evolutions," the realistic theater was prompted by both social and scientific attitudes.

Psychology was the main element of this phase of the theater, and origin of actions was stressed rather than actions themselves. Realistic plays also sought to leave out lyricism and extraneous details.

Falk described the realistic theater as the "drama of cogency," because dramatists always strived to make characters actions credible and logical.

Regarding the settings of this declining form of drama, Falk termed them overly realistic, and cited humorous examples of attempts at authenticity. One instance mentioned told of a playwright who imported a complicated full-size laundry into the set, and had to hire laundry workers as actors because the regular thespians couldn't operate the equipment.

Realistic acting detracted a great deal from the "theatrical glamour and audience contact" according to Professor Falk.

Moving to the theater of the future, Falk described an "equation" of the theater in which theater differed from other art media by being "art in which a living presence acts on a three-dimension l stage and the audience participates.

Three main points which Falk related to this "equation" were the "Dynamism of change," "increased involvement of man," and "socialized man." These three concepts supported his contention that the theater is changing.

"Dynamism of change" referred to man's changing attitudes in a progressive world; "increased involvement of man" pertained to man's current desire to be in the midst of things: and "socialized man" referred to man's departure from a personal attitude.

Falk proceeded to conjecture as to the appearance of the theater of the future. He said it would have more poetry, songs, and dances. It will concern itself more with actions of characters than psychological motive

Phi Eps to Hold 'Kentubby Derby'

'Fat' Fraters Featured At Annual Event

The oft-forgotten University fat men will waddle over to Hendricks field at 10:30 a.m. Saturday to exhibit athletic prowress and mass propultion in the annual campus "Kentubby Derby."

Sponsored by Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity as part of its Southern Cotillion celebration, the derby will pit a large field of large campus individuals in a 100-yard dash. Phi Ep founded the race in 1948 with the aid of a group of advertising majors. The event will be held during the half-time of the traditional Powder Bowl, female pigskin scramble.

Also Richard Coulter, Zeta Psi; John La Paro, Phi Kappa Psi;John di Pietro, Phi Kappa Alpha; Thomas Nelicott, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Richard Brauer, independent; Stanley Leonik; Collendale; and Raymond Kicherer, independent.

Musical relief will be given the contestants and other campus jazz lovers when Phi Ep offers a modern music concert from 2-6 p.m., Sunday at the chapter house.

WSG Announces Six New Officers

Lois Clark, chief of the WSG Civil Service has appointed six new commissioners.

Elaine Greenberg, a member of Sigma Tau Delta, was given the position of Election Commissioner. The Chief of Secretariet will be Roberta Wagner, a member of Theta Phi Alpha.

Dee Schrier, of Delta Delta Delta, is head of communications and Kaye Peterson is in charge of reserve seating. Miss Peterson is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Carolyn (Lynn) Jamieson of Delta Delta Delta has been appointed in charge of the Infirmary Service. In charge of the Student Discount Service will be Marti Tallman, a member Alpha Phi.

Curfews Unaltered For Hill Women

Permissions Same Until Fall Semester

According to Marilyn Murtha, vice-president of WSG, there will be no changes in permissions until the end of this year. This will apply for all freshmen who are to continue with their present 10:15 p.m. curfews until next fall.

The one exception to this ruling will be Sunday, June 6, when 12 p.m. curfews will be granted to all seniors and other women remaining on campus at that time.

ALL COEDS can take city overnights after their last exam without a pink permission slip. lue permission slips will still have to be obtained at either Winchell or Shaw.

All freshmen, sophomore and junior women may obtain two extra pink permission slips at the WSG office from 12 a.m. to 1 p.m. or 4-5 p.m. at any time until the end of the semester.

Miss Murtha request that each girl come individually for her slips and ask for them only if she needs them.

THE OFFICERS of WSG would like all women who have accumulated ten minutes to take their campus before the end of this semester.

Senior women are to be reminded again that they will not receive their degrees until they have taken al ltheir campuses.

No Rise in Tuition Seen For Coming School Year

No rise in Syracuse University's tuition rates for next year has been considered by the University cabinet, Chancellor William P. Tolley told the Daily Orange this week.

The University's 1954-55 budget is nearly completed according to Dr. Tolley. It contains no advance in tuition from the present $200 per year.

THE BOARD of trustees will receive and consider the budget at its meeting early in June.

This will be the first time in four years that the University has not been forced to raise tuition. Fifty dollar per year increases had been invoked since the $550 rate of 1950.

Tuition rates at Syracuse remain less than those at other institutions in the New York area. In addition, no special fees are contemplated for undergraduates, Dr. Tolley said.

MANY COLLEGES in the country have been forced to up costs of an education to their students for the coming academic year. The prevailing rate is $800, with some charging as much as $900 for two semesters.

Cornell University's rate is $350 per semester plus a $60 general fee. Columbia College's tuition is $375, plus about $33 in fees. Harvard College's tuition and fees comes to more than $400 a term.

Announcement was made early this semester of a tuition increase from $200 to $500 for the junior and senior years of the School of Nursing. These clinical years are the only deviation from a general all-University tuition program which became effective several years ago.

RPI Lacrossers Battle Orangemen In Traditional Meeting Tomorrow

By LEE KIKLIER
Executive Sports Editor

Renesselaer Polytechnic Institute fanatic lacrosse Engineers drop in on Hendrick's Field tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 for their traditional Syracuse game. If Syracuse Coach Roy Simmons had his way, he'd rather not.

For although the Engineers have only a 3-3-1 record, as compared to Syracuse's 8-2, they have a week's rest as compared to the Orange's bruising loss to Army on Wednesday 19-7.

ON THE LINE for this game: perhaps the Cox trophy as these two mid-state New York powers crash again.

Syracuse will probably go with the same high-scorers that have played all season. Eddie White at goalie; Primo Belluz, Leo Pollack, Bill Miller on defense; Bruce Yancey, Don Moller and Bob Duff at midfield; Don Muller, Stew Lindsay, and Pug Smith at attack.

The Cadet game for the Orangemen was long and exhausting as Simmons could only afford five substitutes during the game. Syracuse started fast and had a 4-1 lead but Army started retaining possession move and struck hard. The Orange team arrived 2:30 Thursday morning and many missed practice yesterday afternoon.

RPI Coach Ned Harkness has had his hands full rebuilding. this year. Then, after three games he lost his star Johnny Griffis, who until his knee injury became permanent, was leading the team, in scoring 18 out of their 35 goals.

Griffis was injured against Army and didn't play in the succeeding Dartmouth and Yale games. He is expected to be out the remainder of the season.

HARKNESS'S LINE-up will run roughly the same: Rod Wilson, Phil Carroll and Bruce Baum on attack: Willie Lick, Dill Headden and George McBride at midfield; Bob Kluthe, Bill Engels and John Magadini, an adjusted mid-fielder, will open on defense. Goalie duty will be shared between Doug Barrie or Dave McGarvey.

The Syracuse-Rensselaer game is one of the traditions on both campus. The game is usually played in Archbold Stadium to accommodate the usual high turnout. It seems that there is some grass on the Archbold turf this year and they want to save it.

Ever since the Engineers thought they would make lacrosse the campus national pasttime in 1944, the sport has grown all out of proportion to the school. Lacrosse borders on being their daily bread. The RPIans 3-3-1 record is not a good indication of their team's strength.

IN LACROSSE'S new classification system RPI is a Class A team. Meaning: that their schedule is one of the toughtest and they are one of the more consistent winners in the country.

Therefore the team is stronger than its record looks. they have had a week's rest and have the benefit of a scouting report.

All this added to the fact that Simmons is counting natty little bruises which were picked up in the Army game pose a problem.

UNDER THE new classification system, Syracuse has a chance to gain on the Cox trophy awarded to the Class B title holder.

Coeds Receive Awards At Home Ec Convo

Senior Patricia Fay was presented with the Sellick award of $30 at the annual senior convocation of the College of Home Economics held yesterday morning in Hendricks Chapel.

Dean M. Eunice Hilton presented the award to Miss Fay for maintaining a 2.32 average, service to the College, service to the University, and general social development. Last year's award went to Claire Church.

SOPHOMORE MARY Ann Jenson, College Orchid Girl, was presented an award by Dey Bros. for having maintained the highest average in textile courses.

Senior Harriet Donaldson received Dey Bros' award for achieving the highest average in merchandising courses.

CITATIONS TO outstanding members of the senior class were received by Durga Duelkar, student from India, Mrs. Cynthia Overton Squires, Mrs. Rosann Balaban Dunn, Elizabeth M. Curtin, Hanako Hillen, Lois MacCrea, and Rosemary Graham.

Also, Patricia Saxton, Madge Evans, Patricia Fay, Ann Lines, Ann McKenzie, Nancy Bauer, Ellen Reece, Caroline Hussing, Ellen (Billie) Williams, and Harriet Donaldson.

Miss Lois Simons, Home Economics Club advisor, inducted nearly half the senior class into the American Home Economics Association.

THE CONVOCATION opened with a procession of the seniors and faculty, wearing caps and gowns.

Dean Hilton presided over the program. Marilyn Empie, new president of Omicron Nu, was introduced, as were Beverly Darrow, Home Economics Club president, Mary Kraemer, "Euthenia" editor-in-chief, and Christine Wulfetange, student board president.

Also presented were the other members of the student board; Joanna Kimball, Virginia Hill, Judy Richardson, Martha Smith, Jean Mantel, Carol Filler, and Joan Hollister.

Women's Building Will Hold 'Special'; Last Dance of Year

The last if this semester's Friday night dances, "The Orange Special" will be held from 8:30 p.m. to 12 midnight in the dance studio of the Women's Building.

The garb for the dance will be sport clothes, according to Norma Voracio and Elnora (Honey) Hoyt, co-chairmen of the dance.

Card games, chess, and checkers will be set up in the alumni lounge during the dance. In addition, jazz records will be played in the lounge.

This dance will be the last university registered function. Refreshments also will be served.

Applications for co-chairmen of the dances and of dance committees are being accepted. They must be turned in to Miss Parker, University social director, in the Women's Building by Tuesday.

The applications should include name, address, telephone, class and activities. In addition, experience and suggestions will be helpful.

This year's dances all have been free, but students must show their identification cards for admission.

Among the special features of the various dances have been a band, a ventriloquist, a Sadie Hawkins dance, a tribute dance to the campus election victors, the outing club, and a variety night.

Art School 'Picnick' Set for Monday

The first large "all-school" outing for the School of Art in several years will be its "Picnik" Monday at Green Lakes State Park.

A committee of freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors has been in charge of the event, which is announced by a poster in front of Lowe Art Center.

Tickets are priced at 50 cents and will cover food and transportation. Tickets may be purchased from Jeanne Delorme, Mary Spain, Barry Cohen, Barbara Gould, Nancy Skeele, Mary Brownlie, Clarence Mather, Bert Waggott, Jim McDonald, Joseph Mendola, Virginia Taber, Jan Beamer, Laurie Totten, Barbara Davies, Charles Radcliffe and George Negus.

Cars and a bus will leave Lowe Art Center at 4 p.m. and will return at 8 p.m. The committee announces that the picnic will still be held in case of rain.

Applications Due For SAC Group

Applications for chairmanships for the student activities committee functions must be handed in to Miss Margaret Parker, University social director, by Tuesday.

The applications should include, name, address, telephone, class and activities. In addition, experience and suggestions would be helpful.

Applicants should also specify the committees for which they are applying. Among those committee chairmenships open are the Friday night mixer dances and the talent bureau. Anyone interested who can add to the committees is urged to do so.

Prof. Irwin to Direct Dylan Thomas Play

Production Scheduled In Drama Building

"Under Milkwood," a verse play by the late Dylan Thomas, will be presented at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Drama Bldg. The production is under the direction of Prof. Raymond Irwin of the School of Speech.

One of the few plays written to be presented as a group reading "Under Milkwood" will be the twelfth of such plays Prof. Irwin has directed during the past few years.

Included among these previous readings given by the Speech and Dramatic departments were, "Electra," "Antigone," "Faust," and "Salome."

The subject of the play concerns the life of the people in a small Welsh town. Welsh accents will be used by the characters in the play. Recorded sound effects will accompany the reading.

Daniel Leary will be featured as the principal narrator. Janet Bettenfield, Robert Cheesman, Claire Swan and Bette Neejer complete the cast. Prof. Irwin will direct the entire production.

Dylan Thomas, author of the play, completed it-just prior to his visit to Syracuse. At that time, he spoke at the Humanities lecture. He was in New York arranging for the casting of the production when he died.

Dylan Thomas has been called the greatest lyric poet of the 20th century. Students have been urged to attend. There will be no admission.

Fredrick Wheeler To Address AMA

The American Marketing association will welcome Frederick Wheeler, prominent Syracuse advertising executive, as guest speaker for the banquet this Sunday.

Wheeler's topic will be "Do It Yourself—Market or Myth?" He was graduated from Syracuse University with a major in advertising, and spent three years in the Air Force during World War II. Upon his discharge, he attended Harvard Business School where he received an MBA in advertising.

The speaker is presently employed as advertising and sales promotion manager at Porter Cable's main office in Syracuse. He heads a department of 11 people.

Wheeler's talk will highlight the AMA banquet, scheduled for 5 p.m. Sunday at Martin's. Cars will leave Slocum at 4:15 p.m. All students and faculty are welcome to attend. The prices of the dinners are—$1.50, chicken; $1.20, turkey; $1.00, ham. Anyone interested in attending should call Joyce McGrath, 72-4692, for reservations.

Rabbi Hyman to Talk on Israel

Rabbi Irwin Hyman

Rabbi Irwin Hyman, rabbi at Temple Adath Yesherun, will speak at this week's Sabbath eve service. The service will be held at 7:15 p.m. today in Hendricks Chapel Auditorium. Cantor Harold Lerner also of the Temple Adath will assist at the service.

Speaking at the service for the first time this year, Rabbi Hyman, who is also advisor to the Jewish students on campus, will talk on Israel in connection with its Independence Day celebrated this week.

A rabbi at Syracuse for 20 years, he served as advisor from 1935-1945 and resumed the post again this year. In 1949 he traveled to Israel where he spent two months. Since then he has made many speeches and sermons based on his experiences there.

Cantor Harold Lerner

Methodist Picnic Set for Elmwood

The annual Methodist Student Fellowship picnic, originally scheduled for the Ski Lodge, will now be held from 3:30-8 p.m. this Sunday at Elmwood Park.

Transportation will leave from Hendrick's Chapel at 3:30 p.m. for this final fellowship activity of the year. The price of the picnic will be $:40 which will cover the costs of the food.

Everyone is invited to attend.

Change in Vacation Schedule

With the changing of a vacation schedule, part of which has been in existence for several years, Syracuse University's administration once more demonstrated its willingness to comply with student wishes wherever possible.

Yesterday's Daily Orange reports an announcement by Registrar Keith J. Kennedy that the 1955 Easter recess will be extended four days. This should remedy student complaints that a four-day mid-semester vacation in January is expensive and impractical, and that Easter recess is too short in comparison with other colleges and universities.

Next year vacationing Syracusans will legally be able to continue their holiday celebration through the Sunday following Easter, and those who must travel several hundred miles will find it worth their while to do so.

The class time lost during this extra recess will be equalized by discontinuing the four-day mid-semester break. This vacation was the source of much controversy when it was adopted last January after a lapse of about nine years. Students argued that the reinstated policy cost them too much money for too short a time with parents and friends at home.

With the new policy reigning, kampus kids will have to break piggy banks only once to spill out pennies for travel expenses.

Change in Radio Programs

Staff members of Syracuse University's frequency modulation station WAER are currently surveying students on their radio listening habits.

Object of the study, which developed out of a radio class discussion, is to determine if a change in the campus station's programming policy would be feasible or necessary.

WAER, being a regularly-licensed station and not wired-wireless like many college radio setups, must direct its programs not only toward a University listening audience, but to the community as well. Each program by the station thus should meet the qualifications of suiting both groups.

If anything, in the past few years, WAER's programming has been directed away from the students and operated predominantly with the "downtown" audience in mind. It was thought that few students had FM sets and listened.

Recently, however, it has been felt that WAER might be able to provide the student body with programs they would like to hear and at the same time not lose outside listeners.

This is where the poll come in. The survey is asking students picked by random sampling the hours they listen to the radio daily, favorite types of programs and if they listen to an FM radio and WAER.

WAER is beginning to realize again its role as a University station. The survey is reported to have uncovered a greater number of listeners among students than formerly thought. The station is known to rate high among city and county residents who desire quality music.

When the results of the survey are complete, we may find that the so-called "secret station" is no secret any more.

I Hold These Truths...

By JOHN BEACH
President Class of 1954

Our society is in a great hurry. Technology has provided ingenious tools with which to hurry, and is itself hurrying to create more and better tools. The idea seems to be that the faster and more furiously we go, the more apt we are to reach... well, to reach Success. Yet the powerful means which science and technology provide can be either constructive or destructive, either beneficial or tragic, according to the goals toward which they are applied. Life's goals are determined in a broader and more difficult field of endeavor; the field of values and value judgments.

Clear, objective truth is impossible to attain in the area of values. Problems which we can't solve with assurance of truth or falsity, we are forced to resolve with beliefs. We often hear that arguing about mere beliefs—that concerning ourselves with mere ideas—is a waste of time: "You can't prove anything either way." But people live and, unfortunately, die because of beliefs. I think that the search for legitimate standards for making value-judgments and moral committments is vitally worthwhile.

As technology and science continue to make unprecedented advances in providing means for motion through history, I think it is important that at least some people make an effort to determine just where we'd like to go. There is a crucial need for beliefs which establish directions for men without pulling the individual down into mere superstition and dogma.

Negatively, I can't really believe that life is an obstacle course constructed by a stern Diety to separate saints from depraved sinners and label the human soul for an eternal Heaven or Hell. Positively, I regard our allotted three-score years and ten as an opportunity to help meet the challenging needs of the human species. Hamlet complained that "the time is out of joint..." I suspect that it always has been.

Meeting life's challenges can become almost unbearably oppressing. Yet it has always struck me as a fascinating paradox that an individual's capacity for experiencing sorrow is proportional to his capacity for experiencing joy. Sorrow and joy are in a sense, opposite sides of the same coin; their faces are different and they certainly look out upon opposite directions, but to increase the magnitude of one inevitably brings increased possibilities for the other.

Success is not strictly a goal. It is not a pot of blissful gold discovered at the end of a rugged rainbow. Success is always relative to one's capabilities—and one's capabilities are never fully utilized. Success is, at best, a condition en route, and by no means a stopping place.

Such sentiments are, perhaps, more exacting than profound. For they imply that material gain and social prestige may only scratch the surface of successful living. Even good old mediocrity suffers an indictment for being morally wrong to some degree. And as for "happiness" which, it seems, we all seek but hesitate to define, it too is but a condition en route. It loses its very meaning when we sit down for very long to enjoy it.

Politics, Art Mixture Correct Only for Stage

By HUGH MUIR

The only place for politics in the arts is on the stage, preferably in the setting of a comedy lampoon.

The French government bungled upon this cogent point the other day when it decided that the fall of Dienbienphu merited dismissal of the Russian ballet from Parisian opera houses.

Somehow the politicians confused an alleged "anti-communist feeling" with a distaste for ballet Soviet style. We put a lot of stock in the Ruskies skill for putting a propaganda twist on about everything. But what we've seen of the ballet, we think this is just too much of a challenge.

Anyhow, the French people apparently don't think much of not having the opportunity of seeing what is recognized even in conservative circles as some of the best in toe dancing.

But then most politicians are rather short-sighted anyway. With their power to sling taxes, tariffs and red tape, they have lapsed into the arts, a field that most of them are very inept at.

We face a similar problem in this country when some quasi-legislative men in uniform picket various theaters that present importation of "dubious" artists. This type of action speaks little of the intelligence or appreciation of these men. And it says absolutely nothing for their alleged patriotism.

The day that any public has to chooses its taste in the arts along political lines is the day the Schubert concerns should hie off to Washington to tell the President just what to do about Far East policy.

We are taught from grade school up that this country bases its government on a separation of powers. All too frequently this theory is restricted to the executive, legislature and courts. We should like to add the arts to a list that should be much longer.

Heavens. If the politicians are really serious about banning good ballet merely because it comes from the wrong side of the Iron curtain, than why not ban ballet entirely? We mean, well, after all, if the Russians do it WE certainly won't... it's undemocratic!

Bosh.

It is time someone put a little deliberative thought into just what kind of a battle we are waging with opposing ideological elements across the world. We are not just fighting ideas in general.

We are fighting political theories, governmental dogmas, dictatorial aggression... but not finger painting, grand opera or ballet.

If we were fighting on that level we could clear up a lot of this international squabbling by just pitting our marble champion against the best Soviet shooters... and may the team with the most marbles win.

ON THE TOWN

New 'Lysistrata' Show, Cinema Top Weekend

By MICHAEL BRAUN

This weekend the lucky few will be off to the hinterlands. For those of us who will not be taking a respite in Greenlakes, Suburban Park, etc. we offer the following as diversion in town.

LE CINEMA

Schines Eckel—

It's been a long time since Ingrid Bergman has graced the screen. She returns to us once more in "The Greatest Love" with Alexander Knox. Also showing is "Caruso" with Gina Lollobridgia who is reason enough for anyone to make the trek to the Eckel. Feature at 6:45 and 9:50 p.m.

RKO Keiths—

Gina and Ingrid are at the Eckel, but if you're still not satisfied Elizabeth Taylor is at the Keiths. This time she's riding around on the back of a pachyderm in "Elephant Walk" with Dana Andrews. Also playing is something called "Paris Models." Feature at 7:05 and 8:31 p.m.

Loews State—

For the curious few who have always wondered about the inner workings of burlesque, "Top Banana" is your dish. It features girls, Phil Silvers, girls, Rose Marie, girls and more girls. Also showing is "Wicked Woman" with Lana Turner whom we suppose can be very wicked when she sets her mind to it. Feature at 6:56 and 10:05 p.m.

Schines Paramount—

We've seen Alan Ladd as Shane. This time he's a member of the Royal Canadian Mounties (you know the fellas that always get their man). Shelley Winters, who incidentally gets her man too, is also starred. The other picture is "Man in the Attic" with Jack Plant. Something about some guy named Jack the Ripper. We understand that HE always got his woman. Feature at 7:39 and 10:32 p.m.

Loews Strand—

This is the picture that is noted for primarily two things. First of all it features enough stars to light a small galaxy. Secondly it is one of those rare flicks that Charles Samuels admitted he liked. Starring Frederic March, William Holden, Barbara Stanwyck et al. Feature at 6:32 p.m. and 9:43 p.m.

LEGITIMATE THEATER

Not satisfied with the tumultuous reception accorded to "Up in Lights" Sawyer Falk and company are bringing back "Lysistrata," which can be pronounced any way you want, this weekend. The comedy stars Barbara Hush. Performances at 8:15 p.m.

CONGRESSIONAL FAIRY TALE

Fox, Bald Eagle Fight for Place In the Spotlight

By IRENE NOWIKAS

A fox came to the forest one day and because they had never seen one before the people were afraid of him. A ringmaster came who had heard of the clever beast, and wanted him for the circus.

The fox knew he could not elude capture himself, so he rallied the animals to help him. They, however, were not nearly as clever and one day the fox awoke to find himself a caged attraction at the circus.

Realizing now that it was his wits vs. those of civilized peoples, and resigned to his plight, the fox determinedly connived to at least make his position more noteworthy.

He reverted to jungle tactics and yelping and howling with indignation, intimidated the ringmaster until finally he was given a spot in the center ring.

Also in the ring, however, were a mule who wouldn't be intimidated, a tiger who wisely refereed, and two asses, former jungle companions.

In the center of the circle was a bald-headed eagle, who was eventually roared and howled out of the spotlight.

Realizing full well that if things kept up the fox would dominate the show, the tiger tried to force the eagle to star, but alas, she never quite made it.

The howling would always start again. The fox, not oblivious to this threat of comeback, threatened to turn loose his bear skinned acquaintances.

The tiger paid no heed and soon even the audience got wind of the fight behind the scenes, and gleefully awaited the coming showdown for star billing.

The fox is still . . .

The eagle alerted . . .

Only the chains on the bear wait snapping.

Facing the eagle the bear falters . . . remembering foes vanquished, averting poised, penetrating eyes.

As long as the eagle stands firm and gazes straight, the chain will hold. Should the bear break loose a curtain would fall, and both F.B.I. files and fox would shrink from the spotlight.

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Film Critic

The misfortunes that befell the makers of "Elephant Walk", now at the Keith's would furnish material for a good story. The original star, Vivien Leigh, suffered a nervous breakdown while making it, and her substitute, Elizabeth Taylor, got hers in the eye. After viewing the film, one wonders why they went to all the trouble.

The script, by John Lee Mahin, is a mechanical reworking of the "Rebecca" theme. The only difference here is that the gal battles the ghost of her father-in-law and not the preceding wife, and that her troubles have a Ceylonese rather than an English setting. With concessions to the differences, this tale of a young wife's attempts to wrest her husband from the influence of his dead father, is a rather rusty one.

The old man seems to have been an arrogant fellow. The film gets its title from his decision to build his house right smack in the middle of the elephant's path to their favorite water hole. Before the film has run its unhappy course, the elephants decide to take a drink and throw the whole place down. This provides some exciting moments. It unfortunately comes at the film's end and by that time all is already lost.

The acting is every bit as bad as the script. Elizabeth Taylor is an exquisite woman, but she is hardly up to a role that was tailored for Vivien Leigh.

The ghost of Miss Leigh hangs over the film more persistently than the ghost of the hero's father. As a matter of fact, in an attempt to salvage what had become a white elephant, the producers retained some of the footage involving Miss Leigh. On distance shots Miss Leigh becomes highly distracting to the audience.

Comparisons aside, and it is difficult to eliminate them here, Miss Taylor performs as if she had just been dragged away from a cocktail party and couldn't wait to get back. She faces wild elephants, a neurotic husband and an invitation to adultery with all the concern of a woman who has been given a martini without an olive.

Dana Andrews convinces you that he would like nothing better than to have an affair with Miss Taylor. Since this is not difficult to believe in the first place, and since he can not convince you of anything else, his performance could hardly be called adequate.

Peter Finch is hopelessly puzzled by the role of the husband and Abraham Soaefer plays the role of a native overseer as if he belonged in front of a cigar store.

McCarthy, Way Of Action Topic In Controversy

To Mike Braun:

Despite my personal distaste for prolonging the argument I felt that I must write a personal letter concerning your apparent disagreement with my views.

Look carefully at the two quotes you inserted, Mike.

Elmer Davis says that the frightened men are wrong "and even wronger are the smart men who are trying to use the frightened men . . ." This, as you say, Mike, points out the evil in the world, but I fail to see its bearing on the argument.

For your other quotation you included the inevitable Biblical quotes. It says the Philistines fought and delivered themselves. "so may we; but only if we quit ourselves like men." If being a man means, as you insinuate, using McCarthy's methods, then I'll remain a boy.

The over-all tone of your article suggests that you decry McCarthy for his methods, yet you feel justified to utilize them. Isn't this hypocrisy?

If I may refer to the Bible, remember the story that surrounds the quote: "Let him who is without sin, cast the first stone."

You can "fight fire with fire", Mike, but you destroy the trees and you eventually have to use water.

If democracy must, as you imply, stand, survive and rely on the methods which you advocate (but deplore in the hands of Senator McCarthy) then I will be among the first to desert.

If you wish the last word, Mike, you can have it. It is my belief that the reader has already been over-burdened with these prattlings, which, I don't think, can alter the state of affairs appreciably.

Sincerely,
Lee Kiklier

Song Show Reviewed: TV Program Debuted

By DICK CASE

Fred Griesinger Show, 6:45 p.m., Wednesday, WAER.

The weekly "Fred Griesinger Show," situated on the WAER schedule since sometime around the second Ice Age, should have gotten over its growing pains long before this. Apparently it is still experiencing them.

Format on this series is, of course, music. This sung mostly and mostly sung by romantic baritone Fred. There are occassional guests who drop in to contribute their particular talent and an instrumental group, Barbara Berger, piano; Mike Flanagan, guitar; Don Rossman, bass. Smooth purring Dick Ballentine is there to handle the announcing trade.

The basic fault in the Griesinger series would seem to be, once again, over production. There is a strong, yet hollow attempt to inject a plot into the thing while a few songs, carefully performed through the 15 minutes would suffice. On this week's show, and previous airings, the story got the better of the folks.

This situation is to be found on many such shows. The producers find themselves building a giant construction around the featured personality which is subject to toppling spells.

The Griesinger show of the previous week, dedicated to "Up in Lights," presented a pretty effective aural picture of backstage preparation and a highly musical review of the revue.

Might it be recommended that Ed Rasch, producer of the show, and his writer, Ken Luchs, view a few times Perry Como's thrice weekly TV show. This would seem to be the right way to manage a personality singer. Just a few songs, easily sung, and some music, easily played. We get a few sniffs of relaxation on the Griesinger show, but not nearly enough.

Fred is a very capable singer and his personnel on the show and guests display a high array of talent. From our minor glimpse of the show, it would appear that the program could profit greatly by a general tearing down to the bare essential . . . singing.

"Fred Griesinger Show" is remarkably interesting listening at times but the feeling cannot be held back that it might profit from a new format. Less pressure.

Elliot Spiro is the capable technical director.

"So You Want to go to College," 3:30 p.m., Sunday, WSYR-TV.

This is the new television series which debuted on channel 3 two weeks ago from the campus radio-television center. It seeks to enlighten area parents and students who are looking toward a college education.

Dean of Admissions John Hafer, moderator of the show, proves himself a very glib and accomplished guide of the questions and answers. On each show, a group college administrators are questioned on the topic by an audience their parents. Last week, the of local high school students and group discussed "Who should go to college?"

This type of thing admittedly has a limited audience, but for those interested, the questions are wrapped up quite effectively and the whole business moves along in smooth progression. The panelists are well-versed in the subject and take care of the inquiries in a rapid, easy manner.

"So You Want to go to College," produced by Shirley Brocker, has set itself about a commendable task, that of selling and clarifying a college education. By the end of the series, the show should accomplish this.

It is well on its way.

Piety Crews Compete In Washington Races

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Three Syracuse crews journey to Washington D. C. today to compete in tomorrow's big Eastern Sprint Regatta on the Potomac River. Twelve top area shells will provide the opposition for the Orange oarsmen in what will be the last races for Syracuse until the IRA regatta next month.

Coach Gus Eriksen's varsity and junior varsity boats and Coach Mike Michaelson's frosh crew will meet Boston U., Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, MIT, Navy, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Rutgers, Wisconsin and Yale in one and five-sixteenth mile events.

BECAUSE THE Potomac is too narrow to handle all 13 competing crews in one race, two heats to determine the championship finalists in each category will be held in the morning. Drawings for heat positions will be held at Washington today.

The Hill varsity, loser in its first three races this season, is not afforded much of a chance of winning the feature race. Experts expect Navy, Cornell, Pennsylvania and arvard to battle for the EARC varsity title, with defending champion Navy ranking the favorite.

The Midshipmen from Annapolis have won 25 consecutive races. Included in their undefeated string are a win in the 1952 Olympics, two IRA regattas titles and four victories against rugged Eastern competition this year. Coach Rusty Callow's boys have beaten, among others, Cornell, Wisconsin, BU and Syracuse in a big five-way regatta on Onondaga Lake two weeks ago.

CORNELL, a driving second to the Middies in the race here, are given a good chance of upsetting the Sailors. The Big Red beat the Orange, Yale and Princeton last week. Pennsylvania, undefeated except for a one-length loss to Navy, is also considered a top contender for the Sprint championship.

Syracuse, beaten by the Midshipmen at Annapolis, finished last in the regatta here and also was fourth and last one week ago at Cornell. The Piety boat, more experienced now after being hampered by early season inclement weather, has hopes of springing an upset, however.

The Hill JV shell, also winless this season, rows in a race in which Navy and Yale rank as the favorites.

THE SALTINE frosh are given probably the best chance of any of the local shells.

The Orange yearlings have finished third in their two races this year. In the home regatta, the Cubs beat BU and lost to Cornell and Navy. At Ithaca, they trailed the Big Red and Yale but outrowed the Princeton frosh.

Improving with each outing, the freshmen expect to at least survive the elimination heats. Cornell's powerhouse crew rates the favorite, but Navy, Yale, Penn, Harvard and the Hillmen hope to surprise the undefeated Ithacans.

Six Frosh Teams Play This Weekend

A sextet of frosh athletic teams are scheduled for weekend competition. The Tangerine tennis and golf squads entertain Colgate's Little Raiders this afternoon

Bob Grieve's yearling trackmen race Alfred in Archbold Stadium, John Echeandia's lacrossers meet Renesselaer Poly on Hendricks Field, the frosh crew goes in the Eastern Sprints at Annapolis and the diamondmen visit Ithaca in tomorrow's events.

Hill Nine Tests Holy Cross Today

Bucknell Invades Lew Carr Field On Saturday

By JOEL FEIDELMAN
Associate Sports Editor

Breathing sighs of relief after seeing the sun shine yesterday for the first time in days, the Syracuse University baseball team is awaiting with expectation the invasions of Holy Cross and Bucknell to Lew Carr Field this weekend.

The Crusaders, perennially the best collegiate nine in New England, will meet the Orange today at 3:30 p.m., while Bucknell provides the opposition tomorrow at 2:30 p.m.

SYRACUSE WILL be distinct underdogs this afternoon but probably will be favored tomorrow against the Pennsylvanians.

In 1952, Holy Cross, with a 21-3 record, was NCAA College World Series Champions, and last year the New Englanders posted a commendable 13-3 mark.

Probable pitcher for Holy Cross this afternoon is senior Ron Perry, also a first-string basketball player, who posted a 5-1 record last year. In the event Perry doesn't pitch, veteran coach Jack Barry of the Crusaders will undoubtedly rely on soph Ron Cote, possessor of a 4-0 mark for the freshmen a year ago. Veteran Tony Parisi will handle the catching chores.

THE ULTIMATE strength of the visitors rests in the infield where Capt. Paul Brissette and footballer Gene Schiller hold forth. Brissette led the team in hitting last year with a .328 average. The remaining infield positions will be manned by sophs Don Prohovich and Jack Stephans, each of whom batted over .300 a year ago on the frosh nine.

Outfield starters are lettermen Bob Johnson and sophs Frank Lonergan and Jim Quinn, giving the Crusaders a good blend of experience and youth.

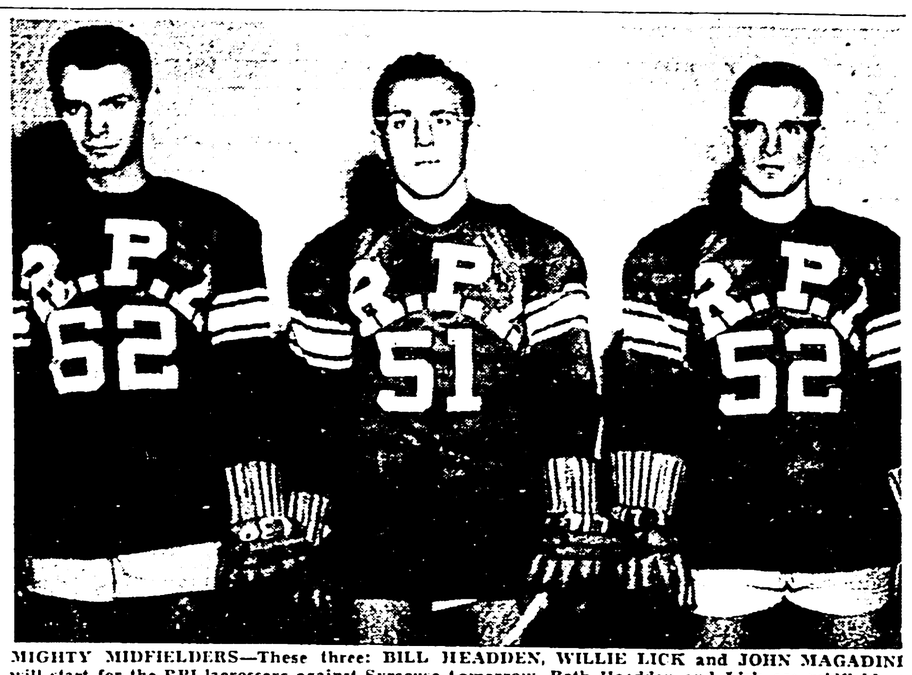
Bucknell will invade the Collendale field tomorrow with depth on the mound, but inexperienced men in almost all other positions. Lettermen Joe Dailey, Tom King and Jack Flurer bolster the pitching staff which surprisingly is led by lefty Don Richards, only a sophomore.

ONLY OTHER veterans on the Bison squad are Capt. Hal Vanarnam at third, George Klauder at second and John Chironna in centerfield.

In the two games this weekend, Orange Coach Ted Kleinhans will probably use Mickey Kyff, possessor of the only Piety victory this season, and either Bill McGarvey or Gordie Smith.

Klienhans is expected to remain pat with the other positions, opening with Phil Young behind the plate, Dick Darr, who had three hits in the losing effort against St. Lawrence on Tuesday, at first and Eddie Albright at second base.

Al Totaro is expected to start at shortstop and Ted Kukowski at third, with Joe Orzehowski, Nick Coyne and Paul Slick the probable nominees to open in the outfield.



MIGHTY MIDFIELDERS—These three: BILL HEADDEN, WILLIE LICK and JOHN MAGADINI will start for the RPI lacrossers against Syracuse tomorrow. Both Headden and Lick are midfielders but Magadini has been switched from the midfield position to defenseman, which is where he will start at face-off time.

Frosh Trackmen Race Here

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse's freshman track team, seeking to duplicate its "parent" club's spotless 2-0 dual meet record, entertains Alfred University here Saturday afternoon. The opening event is slated for 1:30 p.m.

Coach Bob Grieve's varsity runners will compete in time trials between several of the events. Jack Hubbard, Ray Osterhout, Steve Armstrong, Les Vielbig, Bob Savoye and Hank Wrightman are to perform in preparation for the coming IC4A meet.

JIM BROWN, one of the principals in last week's victory over Colgate, again will take part in six events for the Piety yearlings. Brown, who set a new frosh mark in the discus last week, will be gunning to break the present broad jump record of 21 ft.-4 in.

The Manhasset youth will high jump, broad jump, throw the shot, discus, and javelin and run the 100. Bob Milner and Rog Gilbert will wear the gray frosh livery in the middle and long-distance events. Gilbert in the 440 and 880 and Milner in the mile and two-mile.

Dick Day and Bob Smith will run the quarter with the former also entered in the 220-yard dash and broad jump. Jim Sneeder in the 220 hurles and 100-yard dash, Craig McArt in the 120 and 220 hurles and Jim Hyde in the 120 highs round out the Orange running contingent.

Warren Jennings, Rudy Farmer and Randy Colton will supplement Brown in the shot. Jennings and Colton are also slated to throw the discus. Ted Warholak in the javelin, Ed Lynn in the broad jump and Oz Simpson in the pole vault complete the Syracuse aggregation.

Pi Alpha Chi Wins, Advances to Finals

Pi Alpha Chi got to Mel Kline for five runs in the first two innings last night and held on to win, 5-0, thereby advancing to the finals in fraternity intramural softball.

Winning pitcher Lou Petricola held the Sammies to four hits while Al Rutledge slammed out the big blow, a three-run double in the initial frame. Kline's wildness set up the rally as he walked the first three men he faced.

PI ALPHA will now play either Tau Delta Phi, Sigma Chi, or Zeta Beta Tau in the finals in Greek competition.

This wide variety of possibilities came about last night when the Intramural Council upheld Sigma Chi's protest of its loss to Tau Delt on Tuesday.

Claiming that Tau Delt's hurler, Joel Feidelman, had committed a balk with men on, in an attempt to try the hidden-ball play, they were upheld when the Council referred to a rule regarding the pitcher's motion without possession of the ball.

The two squads will replay the game tonight at 6:15 p.m. with the winner to play ZBT Monday in the semi-finals. The all-fraternity final will take place Tuesday.

WAER to Carry Weekend Games

Station WAER continues its coverage of Orange baseball games with broadcasts of the weekend Holy Cross and Bucknell contests. Don Decker, Jim McNerney and Ken Gilchrist will take the air at 3:20 p.m. for today's tilt with the Crusaders. Tomorrow's Bucknell broadcast will start at 2:20 p.m.

years of trying to decide national champions, classified teams into three leagues, each according to their past schedules and records.

Then points were awarded for a win, lose or draw from any team in each classification, with a Class A victory being worth the highest number of points, etc. At the end of the season, seven-games-worth of points are counted up and the national champ is the one with the highest number.

SYRACUSE, WHO just missed being one of the nine teams in Class A, is one of the leaders in bigger Class B. A win over Class A RPI would enhance their prestige and give the Simmonsmen a good base to stand on, when crucial Class B games Cornell and Hobart come up next week.

Syracuse's frosh who seem to win at home will be on familiar territory (Hendrick's Field) but in a poor position (the midst of a two game losing streak) when they battle RPI's frosh at noon Saturday.

Yearling Diamondmen Nip Colgate at Lew Carr Field

By EV MURCH

A rifle-like throw by centerfielder John Pannucci cut down a Colgate run in the final inning yesterday at Lew Carr field and preserved a 4-3 victory for Bill Williams and the Syracuse yearlings.

The game-saving throw came with one out, after Van Note of the young Raiders lined a two-on single over second base. As Savage tried to score on the bingle, Pannucci raced in and fired a perfect throw to catcher Bob Kuhne which nailed the runner by a step.

THE TANGERINES grabbed the lead in the seventh inning, breaking a 3-4 tie, when Joe Krivak and Sam Booker banged back-to-back singles and the visitor's shortstop dropped the ball on an attempted force play.

Williams pitched another fine game for the yearlings, with third-inning wildness being his only fault. Three walks cost him a pair of runs in that frame and in the fourth two single and a double steal made it 3-0.

That score stood until the bottom of the sixth, when, with two down, Booker beat out a shop hit in front of the plate to open the door for singles by Ron Tyler and Dick Barstow. Two wild pitches and three walks sent all three home and knotted the score.

Golf, Tennis, Sailing Squads in Action

Syracuse's varsity tennis team will play two matches on the Skytop courts this weekend while the golfers and sailors take to the road. Coach Francis O'Brien's netmen entertain Sampson AFB today and Penn State tomorrow, both matches starting at 2:30 p.m.

The Orange golfers are on a two-day northern trip, visiting Clarkson today and St. Lawrence tomorrow. The sailors will compete in the Mid-Atlantic Sailing Championships tomorrow and Sunday at Annapolis.

Convo to Feature Research By High School Students

By JOY YUNKER

Thirty-three high school students will demonstrate their research in the fields of bilology, chemistry, and physics at the Annual State Science Congress this weekend. The students are winners of the regional conferences held this year throughout the state.

The original experiments will be conducted in gym A of the Women's Building from 2 to 5 5 p.m. this afternoon, and 9 a.m. to 12 noon tomorrow. The students, some of whom have already won Westinghouse scholarships, will explain their work and answer questions from the audience. The experiments are open to the public.

Some of the research to be demonstrated this year will include the effects of Colchicine on plants; the study of humor transplanting and growth studies in mice; and hybridization of the production of fat lambs.

The students, juniors and seniors in high school, are competing for six full tuition scholarships offered by 23 colleges and universities in New York State. The scholarships do not specify the field of study the recipients must follow. Syracuse is offering one scholarship.

The scholarships will be awarded on a point system. Those things under consideration are the research done, high school grades, and extra curricular activities.

The winner will be allowed to chose any school he wishes and the other five runners-up until all six have been used, the other 17 scholarships will not be awarded.

Judges for the event are representatives of industry and universities. William Fredrickson, professor of physics will represent Syracuse. The judges will circulate among the contestants during the experiments to ask specific questions.

This year marks the first time that the Congress has been held at Syracuse. The students will be housed in sorority and fraternity houses for the weekend. Friday night there will be a mixer and Saturday evening a banquet.

At the banquet the awards will be announced. Marshall W. Jennison, professor of plant sciences, will give the principal address of the evening. His subject will be "Tangents of Research."

The entire plans for the weekend are in charge of students in the science teaching program at Syracuse University. Alfred T. Collette, dual professor of science and education is director of the entire weekend activities.

On campus for the Congress are Charles Gardener, president of the New York Science Teachers Association, Gardener is a graduate of Syracuse; Hugh Templeton, superintendent of science in New York State; Richard Lape, Chairman of overall arrangements for the Congress; and Philip Johnson, formerly of the office of education in Washington, now professor of science and education at Cornell.

Guidance Booklet Ready for Students

A new guidance booklet to assist high school and college students in planning for their first job in business and industry has been announced by Paul Garrett, General Motors vice-president in charge of public relations.

The new publication, "Can I Get the Job?" is a 32-page brochure and is available to educators and placement officials in high schools and colleges for counselling purposes.

BASED ON information obtained from General Motors personnel staffs, it tells the young applicant how to weigh his own interests and background and thus help him to decide on the job for which he is best suited. The brochure outlines an orderly approach that the graduate may use in seeking employment in his desired field.

The vice-president, in announcing the new booklet, said that it was General Motor's answer to the need expressed by educators for practical information on how to go about getting the all-important first job.

As a part of industry and a direct employer in more than 150 localities, the corporation felt it helpful to present general procedures to assist young people.

"CAN I Get The Job?" is the fourth in General Motor's guidance series. Previous booklets include "Can I Be a Craftsman?", which deals with the skilled trades; "Can I Be An Engineer?" which describes the requirements necessary for an engineering career; and "If I Had Your Chance" an analysis of the opportunities open to college graduates in today's industry.

Hill Coeds Powder Up

Pi Beta Phi will defend its football crown against women of Alpha Xi Delta sorority in the fourth annual Powder Bowl game at 10:30 a.m. on Hendricks Field tomorrow.

Coronation of a football king will highlight the game which is sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha. King candidates have been entered by fraternities and men's living centers.

William Shaughnessy, and Nicholas Coyne are coaching Pi Phi which has won every game since the series began. Coaches for Alpha Xi are Al Watrel and Glen Coller.

Although the teams will consist of six women on each squad, both sides are training groups of 20 players.

Admission to the contest is free but donations will be accepted and contributed to the Damon Runyon cancer fund. The series was begun in 1947 as a result of a rivalry on the Ohio State campus. In 1950 the tradition was brought to Syracuse and female football became an annual event.

WAA Selects Reps For Various Groups

Diane Williams; Arlene Semilof and Rence Osterneck have been chosen class representatives to the Women's Athletic Association, Francine Harbach, WAA president, announced yesterday.

Miss Williams, a Liberal Arts sophomore from Tallman, will act as senior representative. She has been hockey manager, a member of Chapel publicity committee and a Delta Gamma sorority member.

THE JUNIOR representative, Miss Semilof, is a sophomore journalism-political science major from Kingston. She has been chairman of the WAA Petitions Board and softball manager. She is a junior guide and a member of the Jewish Student Fellowship publicity committee.

Miss Osterneck of Philadelphia, Pa. will serve as sophomore representative. She is social chairman of Schultze cottage, WAA Lower House representative and a member of Sigma Delta Tau sorority.

Patricia Houlihan, Theta Phi Alpha, has been appointed chairman of the WAA sports night planned to follow the Traditions Commission picnic during the fall orientation week. The Women's Building will be open for freshmen to view and a complete sports program has been planned for their participation.

St. Thomas More Communion Breakfast to Feature McClusky

Municipal Court Judge William E. McClusky will deliver the main address at the annual St. Thomas More Communion Breakfast according to co-chairmen Frederic Hopmeier and Margaret O'Connor. The event is scheduled for Sunday at Drumlins, directly following the 9:30 a.m. Mass at Crouse college.

McClusky, a graduate of Holy Cross College, also attended Syracuse University College of Law. He was admitted to the Bar in 1918 and received an honorary MA from Holy Cross in 1920.

AFTER JOINING his father in law practice, McClusky was elected to the Municipal Court bench in 1942 to fill an unexpired term. In 1944, he was elected to a full six-year term and recently was re-elected to another term.

Judge McClusky, a Syracuse resident and native, is a leading Catholic layman active in interfaith and social welfare programs. He is past Grand Knight of the Knights of Columbus and is former president of the New York State Conference on Social Work.

Tickets are still being sold at $2 for the affair and will be available until Wednesday, according to reservations committee co-chairmen Lorraine Chanatry and Thomas Bird.

THE FOLLOWNG people are selling tickets:

Mary Egan, Mary Lou Hill, Barbara Carmella, Jo Ann Wallace, Jeanne Delorme, Patricia Gallagher, Constance Devlin, Grace DiCaprio, Dorothy Deiso, Carol Palumb, and Marie Basil.

Also, John Skvorack, Robert Craven, Basil McHarris, Andrew Kowalcyk, Anthony Loiacono, John Giutta, Anthony LaParo, John Theurer, John Clark, Francis Procopio, and Richard Sutter.

MUNICIPAL COURT JUDGE WILLIAM E. McCLUSKY has been named as the speaker at the St. Thomas More Communion Breakfast, scheduled for Sunday at Drumlins, following the 9:30 a.m. Mass at Crouse College. Tickets are still available.

Chautauqua Center Will Offer Credits

Students working for bachelors' degrees in Liberal Arts or Fine Arts, or master's degrees in Education, may earn credits for these degrees and have a vacation at the same time at Syracuse University's Chautauqua Center at Chautauqua, New York.

The summer program, sponsored jointly by the University College and the School of Education, is also open to adults not seeking degrees.

THE CHAUTAUQUA session is divided into two three-week periods, and students may earn three credit hours in each period.

Swimming in Chautauqua lake, tennis, sailing, fishing, golf and semi-pro baseball are all available for the enjoyment of summer students. The Chautauqua campus itself is spacious and in a colorful location.

Students pay the regular Syracuse rate of $22 for each hour of credit taken. A nominal "gate fee" permits students to attend lectures, conferences, plays and musical programs held on the campus.

DORMITORIES ARE provided on the Chautauqua grounds, with single rooms at $8.50 a week and doubles at $7.00 per person per week. Accommodations are also available for couples.

Registration for the two sessions will be on July 5 and July 26 and fees will be payable at these times. Classes in all courses will be held Monday through Friday except for registration week, when Saturday classes will be held.

The tentative program will offer 11 education courses, 10 in Fine Arts and seven in Liberal Arts.

DR. MICHAEL O. Sawyer, co-Chautauqua session, will be available in his office at 108 Maxwell to answer students' questions about any phase of the session.

For further information and registration blanks, interested persons may apply to Registrar Chautauqua Institution, Chautauqua, New York. Dormitory information may be obtained from Charles E. Pierce, Summer Schools' Dormitories, Chautauqua, New York.

Industrial Designers

Three students have been admitted to the Industrial Designer's Institute for membership in the Syracuse chaptre. They are Peter Hayes, a sophomore in Fine Arts, David O. Chase, and John Chantler, both seniors in Fine Arts. All three are enrolled in the School of Art.

Architects Will Face Good Job Prospects

Name your price. Name your locale. Name anything you want and you can have it, if you're an architect student looking for either a summer or permanent job.

"Graduates in the School of Architecture have no placement problems whatsoever," said Dean L. C. Dillenback yesterday.

THE BUILDING INDUSTRY the country over is booming and architecture graduates can choose practically any locality they wish to work in. And they can get very good financial rewards.

Some wish to work in Florida where there is a big building boom the year round. They need not aply for jobs but can wait until they arrive in Florida and then decide where they would like to work.

Dean Dillenback said that during the past five or six years there has been absolutely no problem with the placement of undergraduates during the 'summer either.

THE STUDENTS don't need to bother asking the school to place them for they can place themselves in the most favorable position. Students who just want summer jobs are grabbed up by companies at the end of their sophomore year.

This is after they've had the basic construction courses and they are put to work as junior draftsmen for the summer months. The northern climate also makes it favorable for the students because more building and building contracts are received for the warm months.

"It's quite different from the depression time," Dean Dillenback noted. "Then the students would ask for help in being placed Now I ask them where they're working.

When companies want a draftsman now they may send a letter to the school and Dean Dillenback will have it posted, but unless it is just the job some student wants, the company can feel very lucky to get anyone at all.

Seniors to Complete Executive Council

Next Year's Program Outlined by Prexy

At the final junior assembly meeting of the year, held last week, class president Samuel Shawhan announced that the senior executive council would be completed in the fall.

Class exec councils consist of the four officers, the two defeated candidates who had the most votes and six others chosen from among applicants.

ACCORDING TO the Class Governing Act, at least two members must be independents, but this year the junior assembly upped the number for its class to three.

Shawhan also outlined the program for next year. Jobs for the new senior class will include selling mums at football games, and sponsoring the Bill Orange breakfast, the Senior Ball and the Senior show. Also, the class will decide what gift it wishes to leave the University.

Currently the class is over $1000 in the black, the result of several successful functions this year.

Army ROTC Cadets To Spend Six Weeks At Fort Bragg Camp

All Cadets to Train At Southern Post Starting June 19

Fort Bragg, N.C. will be the distination of 78 advanced Army ROTC cadets on the 19th of June. The southern camp will be the site of this year's six week summer camp training.

The Fort Bragg military reservation is located in the South Central Piedmont Plateau regin of North Carolina, about 10 miles north of Fayetville, a city with a population of about 47,000. The 1954 ROTC summer camp will be located in the Spring Lake Area at the post.

FOR THE FIRST time in many years, all cadets will be going to the same summer camp. Usually a cadet is sent to the camp of the branch of his designation. Starting this year, however, all advanced cadets will go to a branch general camp and make their branch designation in their senior year.

Training will be intensive in character and is designed to give the cadet the necessary training to qualify for a commission in the US Army. Methods of training will be the same as followed in training units under field conditions.

Instruction will be conducted along simplified, progressive and practical lines. Applicatory methods will be used, with subjects being presented by demonstrations, application by individuals and team performance.

Cadets will be thoroughly instructed in duties up to and including company level and familiarized with duties at battalion level. To develop initiative and leadership, all cadets will be rotated under careful supervision in positions of responsibility and in command, both in administration and training.

Inspection Slated For ROTC Groups

Army and Air Force cadets totaling 1500 will be reviewed tomorrow by inspectors on their annual visit to campus.

Viewing the cadets on Hendricks field will be three officers each from the Army and Air Force. From the Air University at Montgomery, Ala., will be Col. Byron R. Switzer, Lt.-Col. Ernest J. Boucher, and Maj. James M. Hughes.

Members of Pershing Rifles honor society will put on a drill demonstration for the visitors. This unit placed fifth in a field of 21 teams at the annual Perishing Rifles competition in New York City.

The review, held at noon in conjunction with Armed Forces Week, is open to the public.

Scholarship Set Up For English Major

A $700 scholarship is being offered on a competitive basis to students who intend to major in English.

Called the Joan Garfinkel Scholarship Fund, the money has been provided by Mrs. Sadie Garfinkel in memory of her daughter, Joan, who graduated as an English major from Syracuse University in June, 1951, and died in October of that year.

AN ORAL examination, 15-30 minutes in length, will be required of each applicant. The exam committee, composed of members of the English Department, will endeavor to determine the student's literary interests and his ability to handle ideas.

Applications for this oral exam are due by Wednesday to Prof. James Elson, 108 HL.

Requirements for applicants include: no fewer than 57, no more than 67 credit hours at the end of the present term; declaration of intent to major in English; a 2.25 average in English courses to date; and recommendation of present English instructor.

Final selection of the recipient will be made by a committee composed of members of the English Department, Dean Marjorie C. Smith, Dean Frank P. Piskor, and Dean Eric H. Faigle.

New 'On' Arrives Today; Available at Bookstore

The 1954 Onondaga arrives on campus today. The books are now available at the University Bookstore, according to Charlene Velon, business manager.

Copies of the yearbook will be distributed today through Friday from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Those students who do not call for their books this week must wait until September as no books will be distributed during exam week.

THOSE STUDENTS who have not made their second or final payments may make them at the Bookstore when they call for their books. Students are advised to bring their stubs, which serve as receipts, when calling for the yearbooks.

The books have reached campus a week before the staff anticipated despite the financial difficulty in the beginning of the year.

The plight of the 1954 "On" was first revealed by University Vice-president Frank Piskor, when he announced that graduating seniors would not be billed for the annual. During the past four years when the seniors have been automatically billed for the book, they have provided the bulk of the funds for publication.

SENIORS WERE polled at registration to determine the number who would voluntarily support the publication. Approximately 500, or half the members of the class of 1954, responded to the poll. This was not enough to insure publication of the 71-year-old annual.

A poll was taken in the living centers and by the Daily Orange to determine the number of students who would purchase the yearbook.

With the endorsement of the board of publications the editors of the Onondagan started a drive to secure 1,500 subscriptions, which would guarantee publication of the book.

Beta Sigma Rho fraternity sponsored a 1954 Onondagan because . . ." sored an essay contest, "I bought to help the faltering subscription drive.

Marshall St. merchants joined Beta Sigma Rho to secure the necessary subscriptions for the Onondagan. With their aid the prizes for the winners amounted to $440.

Four Appointments Announced By Head of DO Business Staff

By SHELDON LESSEN
Business Manager

Four new members have been apopinted to The Daily Orange business staff. They are Loretta Schwartzman, Jacquiline Harris, Johanna Reed and Judith Berman.

Miss Schwartzman, a "veteran" of four semesters on The Daily Orange, has been apointed layout manager for the next year.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Schwartzman, 33 Cooper Dr., New Rochelle. A junior in the College of Business Administration majoring in finance, she is a member of Quills and Keys, business women's club.

Miss Schwarzman is treasureor of Sigma Tau Delta sorority and has maintained a cumulative average of 2.

She has worked in every department of the business staff, but devoted much of her time to her job as Assistant Layout Manager during the past year.

Miss Berman, recently appointed assistant business manager, is a junior in Liberal Arts, is a psychology major. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Berman of New Haven, Conn.

Her new duties wil include handling advertising accounts, organizing the business staff and aiding in other advertising and circulation tasks of the paper. She previously was layout manager.

Assembly Will Vote On Senior Class Gift

Senior assembly representatives will vote on Thursday night for the gift which this year's graduating class will leave to the University.

Three choices have been considered and will be voted on at the meeting. They include a diathermy machine for the infirmary. This machine is used for muscular relief and relief for bruises, aches and pains. It is the choice which Dr. Gary Cronk expressed as the equipment which the infirmary is most in need.

THE SECOND prospective gift would be for the library. Nothing definite has been chosen but many students feel that the library is in need of so many things that a gift there would be worthwhile.

The third suggestion is a piano to be used expressly for the purpose of all-University functions. At present, committees are forced to pay at least 40 dollars or more for piano rental fees. This would help cut down the costs of the dances and other all-University functions.

Any other ideas for gifts are welcome. The senior assemblymen are requested to poll their houses in meetings and find out what their opinions are.

'Drink Milk and Vote Row A'

By MICHAEL BRAUN

As an added attraction to stories concerning such mundane subjects as the war in Indo China, or the Hydrogen bomb, the nation's press had a new plaything last week.

Governor Dewey, in a rare burst of good fellowship, (and probably with an eye to the dairy farmers, and next November's gubernatorial election) told everyone to start drinking milk.

YOU CAN imagine the consternation when Mr. and Mrs. New York State awoke, to find that the cup of coffee that they were drinking while reading their morning newspaper was an unpatriotic cup of coffee.

Dewey using all the adjectives in a Madison Avenue ad man's briefcase urged the citizenry to start drinking milk because, "Milk is the perfect food. It is good for us; it makes us healthier."

The good governor continues as BBD&O moves over, "Mother Nature in one of her rare and inscrutable coincidences of compensation, offers us the oportunity to solve the milk surplus and the coffee shortage through one decision —a decision by all of us to drink more milk instead of coffee."

To show that what is good for the herd is good for the chief bull, Tom even posed drinking a glass of the stuff. He looked as contented as Mr. Borden watching Elsie.

MEN OF Syracuse! Are we to be unpatriotic? Are we going to leave Tom Dewey holding the bag? Certainly not!

From now on let's hear no more talk about anything as subversive as a "coffee date." Make it a "milk meet" instead.

WHEN CONTACTED by The Daily Orange this Syracuse resident promised to give up his morning cup of coffee and stick to milk. Asked for a statement he replied, "If it's good enough for Dewey, it's good enough for me."

State Grants Cease For Summer Term

No claims for State Regents scholarship during the summer session will be honored this year for Syracuse University, according to Assistant Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford.

According to a ruling from the Office of Commissioner for Higher Education in Albany, N. Y., the regulations regarding the use of State Scholarships during the summer periods require summer terms of at least 15 recitation hours a week for not less than 12 weeks during the summer.

SINCE THE University summer program involves two sessions, one six weeks in duration and the other five weeks, this is not equivalent to "an approved summer term" as defined by the regulations, according to Clifford.

This ruling is contrary to the custom to honor these scholarships even though less than 12 calendar weeks were involved.

Rogers Named NAM Chairman

Dr. Virgil M. Rogers, dean of the School of Education, has accepted appointment as chairman of the Educational Advisory Council of the National Association of Manufacturers, the NAM announced today.

Dr. Rogers joined the Syracuse faculty in September. He had worked as a teacher, principal and superintendent of schools in western and mid-western cities, and served on the faculties of universities in Illinois, Michigan, New York and Texas.

HE IS ALSO a former president of the American Association of school Administrators and a leader in many other national education associations.

The NAM's Educational Advisory Council is composed of 26 leading educators representing all levels of education drawn from all parts of the country. It advises the association on the needs of education and problems confronting educators.

Student Support Assured ON

They never thought it would happen this year.

But they proved 'em wrong.

The 1954 edition of the Onondagan makes its appearance on campus this week after a beginning early in the year that made things uncertain whether or not there would be a yearbook.

You might say what some once expected not to arrive at all will come—and on time too.

Cooperation from many sides made publication possible this year.

Things looked dark for the On in September when it was announced that seniors would not be required to purcase the book. In past years graduating students have provided the bulk of the funds.

During registration week students were polled to determine if they would purchase an annual. Less than 500 seniors replied in the affirmative. The board of publications, however, wisely endorsed the 70-year-old Onondagan and asked for 1,500 subscriptions.

A campus fraternity even stepped into the picture, sponsoring a contest to save the yearbook.

Student support finally came, just in time to insure publication of the yearbook.

Results of the On's efforts may be seen this week. Students will be able to pick up their yearbooks at the University Book Store.

The 1954 On story goes to show that a little effort, cooperation and support combined with student action can bring almost anything.

Campus, City Work Together

Many a Hill student spends four years of his life in this city, and leaves without even a vague knowledge of local issues and happenings.

The excuse most frequently offered is—this isn't my home town, so what does it matter to me.

Actually it matters very much, because the University is a part of the city and student attitudes reflect on the University as a whole. Students who are unconcerned with the thoughts and feelings of the city people cannot possibly expect fair and understanding treatment from them.

Currently relations between the town-folk and the college people are running smoothly, and in a large sense it is up to the students to see that they are kept that way.

Students must recognize that they have as much to gain from the city as they have to offer it. The University is, of course, a source of local pride, as a cultural and educational center. In turn, the city offers the advantages of a large, well-populated industrial center to students.

Since the bad-feelings and unfavorable publicity that resulted from the water fights of a few years back, administration and city officials have made a concerted effort to better relations, and have been successful to a large degree.

Ultimately however, the bulk of the responsibility is with the individual student. It is up to him, and her, to remember that "There is a City Below Marshall Street . . ."

I Hold These Truths...

By MARILYN PFLEUGER
Lutheran Counselor

One of the truths I hold is that people are worthy of my belief in them; and another is that they are unique among all creatures that roam the earth. It would be easy upon close analysis to disect the human animal and its relationship—interactions (nagging wives, yelling babies, distrust, bigotry, etc.) and say to my inner self, "Be a pessimist, it's more realistic, basically people are no---- good!" But I can't because I do believe in people; but maybe I wouldn't believe in them if I didn't have some more primary beliefs.

And I really believe in the truths of democracy, responsible freedom, a semi-capitalistic-semi-socialistic economic society, representing government, the labor movement, and particularly in the two-party political system. I'm terrified by evidences of thought control, submission to the "voice of authority," apathy in myself as well as in the general public. And I'm convinced that what freedom we have exists only because we have a kind of faith in an ideal, an ideal, mixed up in a blind trust that the preacher, the pick-pocket, and the Ph.D. all have the same right to Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness that I have. And I believe that it's the hardest thing in the world to be free: oh, for the benevolent dictator who would tell us when to make our beds, take in laundry, and remove commercials from TV.

And as I believe and hold these truths, I also believe and hold and know that there is a Truth. This Truth is ultimate, is God who made man in His own image, endowed him with a spirit of freedom so strong that he could slap his own Creator in the face and deny his Creator's existence. This Truth, this God is also some other things which I can't understand. He was so concerned about man, even me, so much that he is described as perfect love, the kind which has its example in a perfectly innocent man voluntarily suffering and dying for a guilty one.

The most important truth of all the truths of life, fact of science, psychology, sociology and democracy included is that all of us human beings are in the same boat together as special creations of God and that we have to live together and that the most successful, but hardest way to live together is in mutual trust and concern. Knowing myself, I know that the only source of power for that kind of living comes as a gift from God; all I have to do is want it.

AT THE FLICKERS

'Top Banana,' Phil Silvers at Movie Theater

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Film Critic

"Top Banana," now at the State, was a shot directly from the stage, a mistake that was similarly committed by "New Faces." In the latter film some highly talented people managed to save the show. In the current production the saviour is one man, Phil Silvers. His rescue trick will undoubtedly be the most spectacular of the year.

The albatross that the writer's have hung on Mr. Silver's neck is a script that is maudlin when it isn't inane. It, fortunately, is a rather thin one and it, still more fortunately, doesn't intrude itself too often. Since it gives Mr. Silvers the opportunity to display his abundant talents, it will have to do.

Burlesque has in our day, become an appellation for a tastelessly erotic form of entertainment. The truth of the matter is that it has a heritage no less honorable or old than classical tragedy. The plays of Aristophanes and Moliere are burlesque as were the plays of the Commeodia Dell Arts. If Mr. Silvers' version is not possessed of the wit and pointedness of Aristophanes or Moliere, it is because neither of them have written the script, and because he has chosen to restate the form in an idiom more readily understandable to modern audiences.

However you chose to measure the Silvers antics, they undoubtedly retain the ability to convulse an audience. His timing, sense of pace and mobile face and voice; combine to present a virtuoso performance that is, in its field, a masterpiece.

The rest of the show isn't much. Its big production number, by Rod Alexander, is an imitation of the pseudo-Oriental trickery of Jack Cole, but it never attains the inventiveness that makes Cole's work distinctive. It was, however, danced by two young people who managed to invest it with meaning sufficient to pull it through.

The young lady who danced that number, incidentally, performs a burlesque bit at the end of the film that not only separates the men from the boys, but makes the boys wish they were men and the men wish more censorable things.

Some other fine low class comics, notably Joey Faye, ably abett Mr. Silvers. But the rest of the crew should have been sent to the showers.

Rose Marie is not too bad but Judy Lynn, a comely lass, has a voice with the timbre of a fire engine siren. Furthermore Danny Scholl, whose voice is better, has a style of delivery that suggests a third-grader reciting "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

"Top Banana" may be a sad item but it gives its star a chance to do his stuff and his stuff is wonderfully funny.

Survey Shows Students Even Study at Night

By POLLY REED

In an effort to prove that University students do spend their week nights studying, we conducted a one-night survey of the study habits of Syracuse University students.

Music majors prepare for music classes with dorm record sessions lasting until the wee hours scorning sleep in their efforts to attain scholastic heights through the medium of Kenton, May, Gleason and Flanagan.

Not to be disregarded are the ROTC men getting in shape for military classes by popping fire crackers. From fire crackers to rifles to cannon—Excelsior.

Marshall St. eateries serve as lab sites for many a home ec major. Who can deny that a "cuppa cawfee" doesn't steady one's nerves, anyway?

Prospective mathematicians gain a mastery of their field when the complex task of adding bridge or canasta scores is turned over to their superior abilities.

Naturally, journalists are seen perusing the New York Daily News, Times, and starring in Scrabble games.

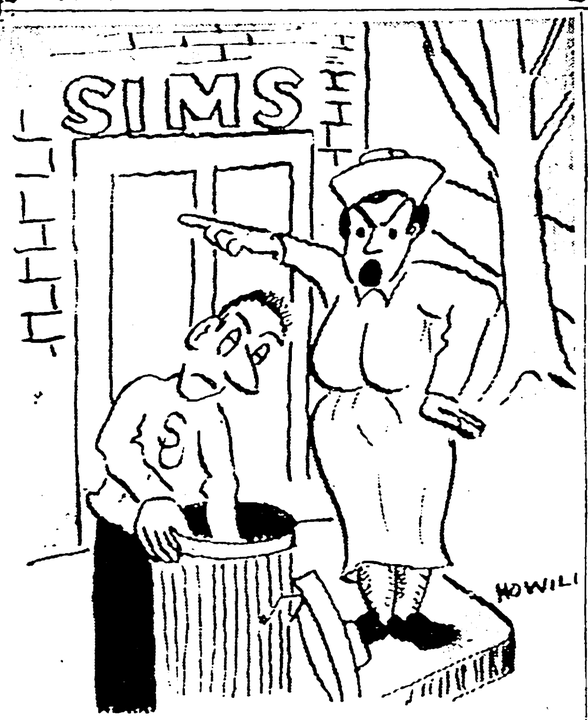
Labs for physical education dance classes are conducted nightly in a juke box haven which shall be nameless. Students of all courses have become connoiseurs of beverages there.

Up in Thornden Park, foresters and botany students may be seen studying the evening flora and fauna.

Farther along, poli sci majors study city handling of the water suply, and architects peruse the same edifice for its superior structural points.

Drama students study the very best techniques at the nearest movie house.

Never let it be said that on an average evening at Syracuse University, students aren't following diligently their own major field of interest in preparation for tomorrow morning's class.



"Get back in there. You're no better than the rest."

A Night With Bridge Deck: Addict Tells All

By JAMES CARR

I'm not sure how many people realize it (because I've actually found a few people who don't play bridge) but there is a necessary atmosphere conducive to playing bridge. Since we had just been kicked out of the Varsity because the poor waitresses had to make their midnight curfews, we were looking for the atmosphere necessary to continue the game.

As we were walking toward Crouse we hapened to glance over at the Special Ed building and then decided that there was our atmosphere. We ran back to the Varsity and pounded on the door until they let us borrow four chairs and an old pizza for a card table. We set it up on the portico, protected from the rain, and continued our game.

Since the opposition had 80 on toward game and they were vulnerable, my partner and I thought it was about time we took the bid. My partner bid three clubs and I promptly put us in four spades because of a void in clubs and seven spedes 10 high.

Just as I was to try the crucial finesse for the Ace, King and the Queen, Skippy, the campus cop, came along and evicted us into the rain. In the jumble the cards were lost and I'll never know whether it would have worked.

We were faced with a serious dilemma: only chairs and an old pizza card table, but no cards. But never underestimate the power of four bridge players trying to get into the mood to study! We decided that there was only one thing to do. We just had to wake up Joannie and Irv so we could use their apartment.

After a few more rubbers we were ready for the library to open so we could get into the listening room to study for our 9 a.m. exam. The evening turned out to be quite a success, even if my partner and I did go down a few thousand points.

Caught in Our Concrete Jungle; Or, A Campus Obstacle Course

By MEL SHAFT

9:55 A.M. I came out of the Coke and Caper and started toward my 10 o'clock. I overslept so I figured I couldn't make my 8. I decided to have some coffee. By the time I finished it was too late for my 9. I had more coffee.

9:56 I knew I wouldn't have time to follow the paths to the engineering prefabs and the DO said we shouldn't walk on grass. I decided to take a short cut through the construction.

9:57 A few workmen pulled me out of the pit I fell into. I continued to carefully thread my way thru the maze of steel and concrete.

9:58 I started to get dizzy. My careful threading had me following a cement mixer.

9:59 It was too late to get to my class. I decided to do some construction research. My professor would have been proud of me, if he only knew me. This wasn't the only class I missed.

10:00 Noticed they were ready to pour concrete into some forms. I planted myself at a safe distance and watched.

10:00:30 I felt a squishy feeling around my feet. One would almost think they were pouring concrete on me.

10:00:45 They were. I was standing in a form.

10:01 My feet felt numb. I started to holler. Some men approached me. They looked the situation over. One wanted to use dynamite and the other nitroglyceryn.

10:05 They finally decided on a hammer and chisel. I was amazed to see the stuff that had gotten sealed up. There was an old Tri-O ribbon; here was an envelope full of hair from Colgate Weekend; They pulled out a green flag. It was the old WAER weather flag which got lost. This was really old. An Orange Bowl button.

10:15 They got one foot free. I thought both were free. I tried to walk and stumbled backward into another form. I felt squishy all over. They were back in business again.

10:20 Most of the concrete had been removed. They needed a rake to get the stuff out of my hair since it was beginning to harden.

10:30 I decided to cut my 11 o'clock and go home to take some courage, about two fingers worth.

10:31 I bumped into some pipes, I was surrounded. I saw a round opening and went through it.

10:32 I felt airy. I was airy. I had walked into a sewer pipe and they were lifting it. I looked up and saw the long arm of the monster which had grabbed me. I looked down. I quickly looked up again.

10:35 I don't know who was more surprised—the riveter or me. He sent me down again. My stomach jumped. It didn't catch up to me until I hit the ground.

10:39 Once again I started for home.

10:40 They helped me out of another pit.

10:50 I tripped into another pit. This one was in front of Machinery Hall.

10:55 I passed Lyman and crossed to the fourth house on the other side of College Pl.

10:56 All hell broke loose. I was trampled upon by millions of little feet. Nursery school had let out.

10:58 I was dizzy. I looked at Thornden and saw the Civil War all over again. An elephant from a circus on Comstock started bearing down on me.

11:00 The Orange Just opened. I needed that courage.

Tau Delt to Face ZBT In Softball Semi-final

Tau Delta Phi easily shelled Sigma Chi, 11-5 last Friday night to reach the fraternity semi-finals against ZBT which will be played tonight. The winner of tonight's contest will face Pi Alpha Chi tomorrow night in the Greek final.

The Tau Delt win settled a protest which was filed against them last Thursday as they held a 4-1 lead over Sigma Chi. The protest was made by Sigma Chi against the illegal pitching motion of Tau Delt hurler, Joel Feidelman.

AS IT turned out, Feidelman gained his revenge by holding Sigma Chi in check the whole way as his mates collected 11 runs. The Tau Delt chucker tired in the late innings but the lead was insurmountable for Sigma Chi.

Charlie Williams led the Tau Delt attack with a homer. Although outhit by the losers 9-7, Tau Delt made their hits count. A rash of errors by Sigma Chi kept them in constant trouble.

Skytop M-2 and the Bureaucrats will clash for the independent title on Tuesday night. Both fraternity and independent games will take place on Hendricks Field. The all-University champion will be determined Wednesday night when the winners of the independent and fraternity league meet.

We have 'em... The essentials of your courses highlighted and packed into a nutshell, for quick thorough review!

Intramurals In Perspective

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Intramural Director

Once again the "insure intramural competitors" drive has gotten underway. This noble campaign, even though its purpose is to merit immediate acceptance by all intramural participants, seems always to wind up in the scrapbook. The why and wherefore of this is, simply, LAZINESS on the part of those who would benefit from its existence.

From discussing the matter with Jeff Wenig, chairman of the MSG Athletics and Public Relations Committee, Lowell Toeniessen, sports editor of The Daily Orange and a member of that committee, and Milt Howard, head of the intramural department, I have concluded that there are three major obstacles in the path to successful negotiation of this benefit plan.

The first is: acquiring the signatures of a suitable percentage—at least 60—of intra competitors on a slip of paper saying, in effect, "The undersigned signifies that he will take membership in the insurance benefits program for intramural participants at Syracus University, and will comply to the rules thereof."

In other words, merely a guarantee to present to the insurance company representatives when setting up the policy. Last year, slips such as this were mimeographed and distributed to all living centers and fraternities.

The ultimate failure of these being filled out and returned to the proper persons sent the program zooming to a quick defeat. The only reason for this lack of approval on the part of the future beneficiaries that we can see, is faulty handling of distribution and collection of the affidavits by the representative of each house.

This carelessness or laziness, whichever it was, incited a high degree of discouragement in the attitude of those sponsoring the campaign. And why shouldn't that have been? A little pushing by the house representative would have given the drive a sturdy foundation.

The second obstacle is the absolute laziness on the part of those who would benefit from the program. Human nature seems to have it that the barn door is never locked till the horse is stolen, or some such. I fail to understand, however, why a fellow will not carry such a worthwhile policy when all it costs him is his signature and a dollar, payable in quarterly installments no less. (Those were the terms of the tentative policy last year.)

The third and largest obstacle is the collection of that money. The intramural office does not have adequate secretarial help to undertake this herculean task. The genial, but very busy Mr. Howard lists this as the biggest problem.

Admittedly, I would not want to worry two semesters about collecting this revenue. But that's the way it would be, for there the beginning of the fall term when they have it, to save their soul. And they are generally sorry afterward.

Jeff Wenig and the committee he chairs are going to assemble early this week. Jeff, an intramural participant and member of the Frosh crew himself, is understandably enthused with the insurance policy idea. In fact, he is so determined to see such a policy realized here, that the stalling machinery of this drive might be cranked by his desire. If he can instill others with the same determination some fellow who breaks his arm next year playing football might be able to compensate his loss with the policy he wears under his nightshirt.

Hill Nine Faces Clarkson Today

By BOB TATA

The Golden Knights of Clarkson College will furnish the opposition this afternoon as the Piety Hill nine resumes action. Today's game will be played on the neutral Watertown diamond as a result of the original game's rainout. Watertown was selected as the site of the game because of its mid-way location between the two schools.

The Orange squad is expected to go along with its regular lineup of Dick Darr at first, Ed Albright at second, Al Totaro or Dick Neufang at short, Ted Kukowski at third, Phil Young back of the plate and Nick Coyne in right, Paul Slick at center, and either Joe Orzehowski or Bill Cassidy in left.

COACH KLEINHANS plans to use either Bill McGarvey or Burt Rich on the hill. Clarkson Coach Hodge will probably counter with Dick Stys, Frank Gorman or Cliff Chute.

Norm Schulenberg, a converted third baseman, is also a possible starter for the Knights. He showed up impresively in his first start allowing only two singles in a six-inning stint. His addition to the Clarkson mound corps gives Coach Hodge a well-rounded staff.

Colgate hung defeats on both Clarkson and the Orange, the latter being a one-run affair. The Clarkson record is slightly better than the Hill one, but with the lack of a few common opponents, making a comparison of the two teams is difficult on these terms.

THIS WEEK'S schedule will be quite heavy as the Saltines try to make up the many rained-out games. Cornell, Hobart, and the Sampson Sabres comprise the rest of this week's action. The two former games are road contests and the latter a home encounter.

Coach Kleinhans will have to juggle his twirlers a little in order to have a well-rested moundsman ready for each engagement. Syracuse suffered a 6-1 loss Friday at the hands of Holy Cross, perennially a powerhouse among the college nines throughout the nation.

Jack Barry's nine pushed across two runs in each of the fourth, fifth an dseventh innings. Syracuse registered its lone tally in the ninth on singles by Paul Slick and Bill Cassidy and walks to Kyff and Nick Coyne. Infielder Dick Neufang had two his for the Orange.

Baseball Highlights Week's Sports List

Lacrossers, Linksmen Conclude Season

Syracuse University's spring athletic teams close out their schedules this week except for a few scattered events that will be held in baseball, track and crew in the next month.

Coach Ted Kleinhans' varsity nine is the busiest team this week with four games scheduled. On Monday the diamondmen face Clarkson at Watertown, Wednesday they journey to Ithaca to play Cornell, Friday and Saturday afternoons they are host to Hobart and Sampson AFB respectively at Lew Carr Field.

THE HARD charging Lacrossers of Roy Simmons wind up their schedule this week with games against Cornell away on Wednesday and Hobart on the road Saturday. The frosh stickmen also end their season with games at Hobart on Wednesday and Cornell here on Saturday.

Other sporting events scheduled this week include sailing, golf and tennis. The sailors are host to the upstate championships this Saturday afternoon. The linksmen face Cornell away Wednesday and close out against Sampson here Friday. The netmen face Colgate Tuesday and Bucknell Wednesday.

All holders of tickets for St. Thomas More Communion Breakfast should make payments today to Lorraine Chanatry, or at St. Thomas More Chapel. No reservations will be held later than Wednesday.

Liberal Arts sophomore major cards due today in LA office, H.L.

IFC meeting, 8 p.m., Wednesday, 111 Maxwell.

Junior Executive Council meeting tomorrow, 4 p.m., Kappa Alpha Theta house.

Lambda Lambda Sigma meeting, 9:30 p.m., Dean Hilton's home.

MUST VIRTUE BE ITS OWN REWARD?

Once there was a Junior who devoted most of his time and energies to Social Pursuits, with correspondingly little emphasis on the Curriculum in the Catalog. Consequently, while he was Right Up There socially, academically he was close to the Point of No Return.

Topping it off was an Irate Ultimatum from the Male Parent, warning that his next acquisition had better be either a List of Passing Grades or a Social Security Card. All Our Boy could foresee was a lifetime at Hard Labor, unless Something Drastic happened.

So he made it happen. Invested heavily in benzedrine and black coffee and lined up three super-skull Tutors. Night and day he Sweated It Out—and wound up with Remarkably Respectable Grades. First thing he did, naturally, was to consult his Trusty Telegrammar. (What—you haven't got a Telegrammar? Just drop a line to Room 1727, Western Union, 60 Hudson St., New York City and get a copy of this bright and breezy little guide, for free.) On its advice, he called Western Union and flashed the Joyous Tidings homeward by Telegram.

The Reaction came an hour later. A Telegraphic Money Order for $500, plus a message that read: "Delighted at your confounding the Prophets, including myself. Hope you will join me on two-month European trip, expenses paid, starting June 20th." Signed, POP.

There Is a City Below Marshall Street...

By POLLY REED
Daily Orange Junior Editor

"The advantages of a University to the people of a city are incalculble," began Richard F. Torrey, executive secretary to Mayor Donald H. Meade.

He cited not only higher educational opportunities for high school graduates, but the opportunity for city people to attend night classes at the University.

"By the same token, the city provides a giant workshop for students. It is a laboratory, giving students the opportunity to learn from practical experience," he continued.

The important thing to remember, in Torrey's opinion, is that the University is part of the city, and cannot be considered a separate entity.

"We in city government serve the community as a whole, and think of the University as part of that whole," he said.

Torrey expressed the opinion that city-University relations are good at the present time. "Relations between groups, as between people, can always be improved. However, I don't think there are any real sore spots in our relations with the school."

Torrey, who graduated from Syracuse three years ago, felt that the water fights a few years ago were "childish," but that city people thought instances like this were "inevitable" if there is a University in a city.

"What people did get upset over was the tie-up of public safety forces. Any time police, fire and water facilities are concentrated in one spot as a "prank" it is dangerous to the community. We never know when an emergency will occur," he said.

The former journalism and political science major said that no one could condone the students who let air out of police cars and motor cycles at the time.

The city people are part of the University just as you are part of the city. "When Syracuse won the Orange Bowl bid, just about every resident was nearly as excited as the students," he said. "It sure was gloomy around here on New Year's Day."

A winning basketball or football team imbues a spirit of community pride among city residents. When an athletic team makes a name for itself, it is favorable advertising for the community.

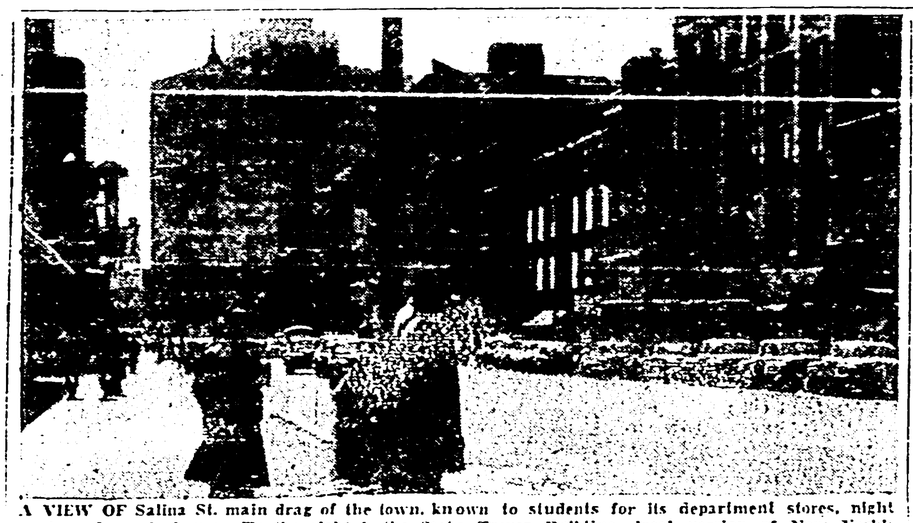
"Take, for instance, the Regatta. This event spreads the name of Syracuse as a city and school just about across the country," said the young executive secretary. "It is another example of community-University cooperation, as many members of the committee are city people."

The University's concert and choral groups certainly add to the cultural life of residents, he added.

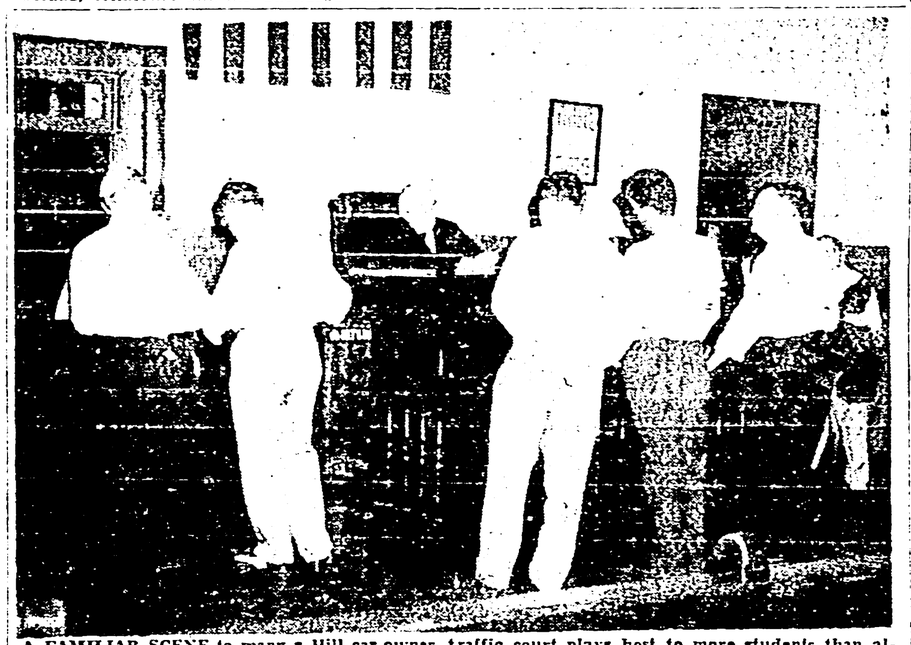
"The students are not the only ones participating in community life," Torrey said. "Faculty members often take an active part in the life of the city, culturally, in government and church groups, and activities in general."

Many community leaders are graduates of Syracuse University. "Just take a list of city officials and leaders and you'd be surprised at all the former Syracusans," he said.

Fine artists, engineers, journalists, Maxwell graduates are some of those who stay in the city and contribute their talents: "The mayor himself is a graduate of Syracuse University law school," said Torry, "and every school on the Hill contributes some graduates to the city."



A VIEW OF Salina St. main drag of the town, known to students for its department stores, night spots and movie houses. To the right is the State Tower Building, local version of New York's Empire State Building. Many a Hill habitant gets lost if stranded beyond the confines of Loew's Strand, Witherill's and the Onondaga Music Store.



A FAMILIAR SCENE to many a Hill car owner, traffic court plays host to more students than almost any other institution, except maybe the Orange. Students should remember, however, that parking is one of the city's major problems, just as much of a headache to residents as to them.

History Books Show City Was a Swamp Settled by Miners

By DIANA DAHLMAN

"Mr. Forman, do you call this a village? It would make an owl weep to fly over it."

"Never mind, you will live to see a city yet."

This was Syracuse in 1820. And the men quoted were Colonel Stone and Joshua Forman. Colonel Stone was an example of the typical person seeing the village for the first time. But Forman saw ahead and he had dreams of the great city of the future.

How much more desolate the place must have looked to Ephiaim Webster, the first white settler in 1788. Then it was mostly a swamp, but he did manage to run a good trading post near Onondaga Creek.

Salt was the gold that really created Syracuse. Now only the Salt Museum remains as a relic of the area, reaching its peak in 1862. The first settlers were salt miners and the center of town consisted of a red mill and Bogardus Corners, the local tavern.

But business was good and the community began to grow rapidly. The swamps were drained and in 1824, Syracuse was incorporated as a village. John Wilkinson, a prominent citizen named the city. His love of the classics prompted him to name it after Edward Stanley's poem "Syracuse" which extolled the ancient Hellenic city.

Salina was the major rival of the village of Syracuse and there was a question of which would grow to be a city and swallow the other. In 1847, the courthouse in Salina caught fire and most of the buildings in the village were destroyed. Since it was impossible to finance the rebuilding of the whole town, Syracuse and Onondaga county took over and Salina became part of Syracuse.

One description of the city in 1830 pictured Syracuse as a pretty village when the mud was dry. (Conditions haven't changed too much.) But industry moved in, department stores grew up, banks opened and by 1847 the village became a city.

On September 1, 1871 Syracuse University opened its doors. It was brought to Syracuse from Genesee because Syracuse was a growing city and would give students a chance to take advantage of the opportunities offered by a large city. Also it was felt that great universities make great cities the world over.

The two have grown together, expanding, improving their facilities, and benefiting from each other. Syracuse has gone a long way from the time Joshua orman said,

"Never mind, you will live to see a city yet."

BUSES, THE SALVATION of the College Kid, often lead to confusing scenes like this, with people running every-which-way to toss a token in the box. Citizens have a rightful pride in their bus system, though, because the drivers are always friendly and courteous, and seldom is there "standing room only."

COLLEGE BOYS HAVING some "innocent" fun on a spring afternoon led to one of the most unfortunate aspects of city-University relations. Water fights resulted in much destruction of property and bad feelings all around.

Some Major Sore Spots In Town-Gown Relations

By MICHAEL BRAUN

The location of a university in the midst of a metropolis of 250,000 inevitably leads to dissention among the residents and students.

This so called "town-gown" dissention has diminished over the years, so that today it is practically non-existent.

However during the spring of 1950 and 1951, due to action on the part of a small group of students, many citizens were up in arms.

This was the day of the water fights. In May 1951 the situation became so acute that it received national publicity, all unfavorable.

Newspapers all over the country ran stories decrying the students that had wrecked police equipment, and broken windows. The local papers carried editorials asking for immediate action on the part of university officials.

The Hearld-Journal of May 2, 1951 carried the following lead editorial with the heading "The Only Comment That is Necessary."

"The Syracuse water brawl on Monday night in which a member of the police officers were injured and much Police Department equipment was damaged is certainly a great recommendation for deferment of college students in the draft.

"Or isn't it?"

Delegations of townspeople from all manner of civic groups descended upon the administration demanding restitution.

In a statement by Dean of Men Frank Piskor, the citizens of Syracuse were told "The University does not in any way admit legal responsibility for any of the damages, and will collect the full amount from the students."

Prior to this statement money started to pour in from living centers. The Inter-Fraternity Council passed a resolution calling on each fraternity to contribute $10 towards the fund. Panhellenic took similar action.

At the end of the semester over $3,000 had been collected. The instigators of the fights had been punished, the University publicly apoligized and Piety Hill was once more at peace with the rest of the city.

Mens and Women's Student Government had just passed a "Water Fight Agreement" when panty raids which were occuring in colleges all over the country, started on the Hill.

May 22, 1952 will be remembered by many city dwellers as the day when they woke up to find pictures of Sims dormitory with agitated coeds leaning out the windows staring at them from the front page.

When one of the residents of Sims II was asked for a statement her immortal words were:

"It's been pretty dull around here. The school banned water fighting and promised us a "Spring Fever" day. But we never got it."

According to this statement the University was at fault. So that night more than 70 residents of College Place got water thrown on them by coeds "who were just restless and had nothing to do."

The city again took a dim view of the actions on the Hill, MSG and WSG again wrote statements decrying the "immature irrational behavior" of the students. This time the community observed a period of watchful waiting. Final exams were upon the students and no more was heard in the nature of a riot.

Meanwhile the Administration was at work to promote good relations with the comity. A list of "Community Services at Syracuse University" was printed and distributed widely throughout Onondaga County.

Such services as art classes, meeting space, voice lessons, consultation conferences are offered free of charge.

Currently, with efforts at cooperation rather than dissention on both sides, indications are that "town-gown" relations are entering a new era of good-feeling and good neighborliness.

Supreme Court Declares Segregation Unlawful

WASHINGTON, May 17 — Segregation in the nation's public schools was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court today. How and when to discontinue the practice will be determined by the court in the fall.

Today's cases found segregation unconstitutional in the District of Columbia and four states: South Carolina, Virginia, Kansas, and Delaware.

THE RULING will affect a total of 20 states, lawyers said. In 17 of these states, separation of races is required. These states, plus the District of Columbia, have 70 per cent of the nation's Negro population, or 10,522,495 out of 15,142,692.

These states are Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia and Florida.

Three other states, New Mexico, Wyoming, and Kansas, permit, but do not require segregation.

FOR THE FIRST time in recent years, printed copies of the Court's decision were withheld until Chief Justice Earl Warren read it from the bench. The usual procedure is to distribute printed copies of the opinions to reporters in the courtroom.

The court's opinion, as read by Chief Justice Warren, stated: "We conclude that in the field of public education the doctrine of separate but equal has no place. Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal.

"Therefore, we hold that the plaintiffs (Negro parents) and others similarly situated for whom the action has been brought are, by reason of the segregation complained of, deprived of the equal protection of the laws guaranteed by the 14th amendment.

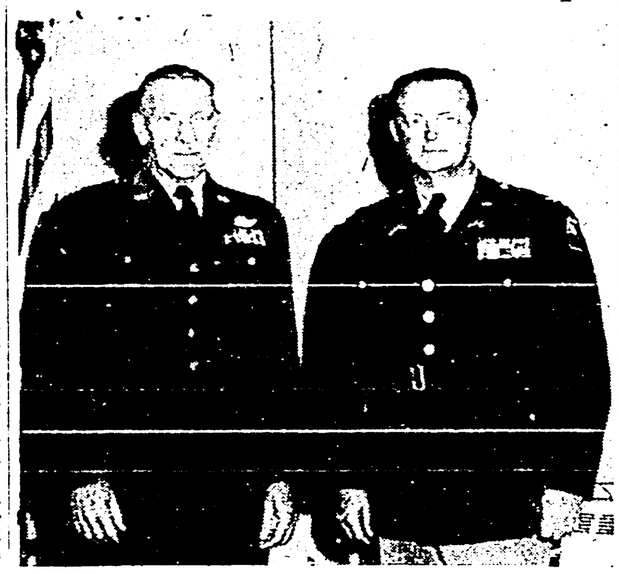
"THIS DISPOSITION makes unnecessary any discussion whether such segregation also violates the due process clause of the 14th amendment."

The 14th amendment, passed when Abraham Lincoln was president, declares that no state may deny any person due process and equal protection of the law, nor abridge their privileges or immunities.

Speaking for the court, Warren said that segregation denies equal educational opportunities to Negro children. "In these days," he stated, "it is doubtful that any child may reasonably be expected to succeed in life if he is denied the opportunity of an education.

"Such an opportunity, where the state has undertaken to provide it, is a right which must be made available to all on equal terms."

Cadets Will Parade For Officials Today



INSPECTORS—COL. BYRON R. SWITZER, HQ AFROTC, Montgomery, Ala. and COL. GEORGE V. SOTTONG, U.S. Army Reserve Training Center, Buffalo, take time out from the annual inspection of the Syracuse University ROTC units. The officers are part of a three-man inspection team from each service here today. (Owen Kendall Photo)

More than 1,500 Army and Air Force ROTC Cadets will parade at noon today on Hendricks Field for teams of inspectors making their annual visit to ROTC units on the Syracuse campus.

REVIEWING THE cadets will be three officers each from the Army and Air Force. From the Air University at Montgomery, Ala., will be Col. Byron R. Switzer, Lt. Col. Ernst J. Boucher, and Maj. James M. Hughes.

Inspecting for the Army will be Col. George V. Sottong, commander, USAR Training Center, Buffalo; Lt. Col. John Byus, Jr., Commander, USAR Training Center, Syracuse; and Maj. Edward W. Wheeler, New York Military District.

Members of Pershing Rifles honor society will put on a drill demonstration for the visitors. This unit placed fifth in a field of 21 teams at the annual Pershing Rifles competition recently.

This review is open to the public.

US-USSR Clash, International Power Discussed by Walsh

Power Conflict Traced By Ideolgy, Historically In Final Cit Lecture

The structure and division of international power and, more particularly, the nature of Soviet power were discussed by Warren B. Walsh, professor of Russian Studies, yesterday at the last of this year's citizenship lectures.

Walsh traced the current power clash of the United States and the Soviet Union back to the days immediately preceding World War I.

IN 1914 GREAT Britain, France, Russia, Austro-Hungary, Germany and Italy constituted the main European political powers. After the war France and Italy decreased in power due to internal disorder. Austro-Hungary was split up and Germany assumed the role of the defeated.

During, and immediately after the war the United States and Japan assumed the role of international powers. However, during the twenties the U.S. reverted to a policy of isolation.

AT THE conclusion of the WW II Germany, Italy and Japan were vanquished; France was rebuilding a stable government; Britain was still shaky from attack. Only the United States and the Soviet Union could be considered as major powers capable of open aggression.

"The United States immediately divested itself of the majority of its munitions. Russia didn't." She not only armed herself but assisted her satellites in Europe and the Communist of Red China.

Instead of being "aloof" as we were in the league of nations, we assumed a new attitude, became "active" in the UN. A ramification of this new international policy was in such things as NATO and the Marshall Plan.

UP UNTIL 1949 the exclusive U.S. monopoly on the Atomic Bomb "maintained the peace." In 1949 Russia exploded an atomic bomb ending our monopoly. In 1952 we exploded the H bomb. The same year Russia exploded an H bomb which very well may be "superior" to ours.

With this fact in mind Walsh posed the question of "what were we afraid of? If the power base of communism was Denmark, Finland tr Portugal we would not be faced with a clear and present danger. As much as we oppose the USSR doctrines by themselves are not evil, either is power by itself, it is only when they are put together that they become dangerous."

THERE ARE two facets of Soviet power. Military strength and national boundaries within Russia. In regard to military strength, their air force is up to date, they have a growing submarine and cruiser fleet. They also possess the knowledge of bacteriological warfare methods, rockets and guided missles.

Russia and the United States being the only two nations capable of world conflict, they are bound to disagree. If there was a third nation as powerful there would be no disturbance.

The absence of war, however, does not mean that the world is at peace. To the United States peace means harmony and the absolvement of war." To the communist it means a "complete liquidation of the bourgesious and an abolishment of the class struggle."

Today, mainly because of the various alliances between the "have and have not" nations, we are in the midst of what Lenin called "partial war."

WHEN LENIN assumed power he thought that the Russian revolution was the only the first in a world wide series of revolutions.

THERE IS a basic difference between existence in Russia and in this country. In the USSR the Fall Opening of Activities Center Announced at Pinebrook Meeting

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Director

Facilities will be available next fall in the basement of the Women's Building for a student activities center, Frank P. Piskor, vice president and dean of student services, told students, faculty and administration last weekend at the annual Campus Leaders' conference at Pinebrook.

The student governments will submit to the architects a clear statement of proposed facilities along with the present plans.

AFTER A keynote speech by Dr. Theodore Denise Thursday night, the conference moved into its second day with the Chancellor's message Friday morning.

Dr. Tolley reported on the University's structure, finances, and presented three problems: dollars, responsibility to the rest of the world, and numbers—how large should the University be?

A student panel on campus mores discussed drinking, necking in Slocum basement, and the wearing of Bermuda shorts. A panel on activities, which discussed reasons for their inclusion in the schedule of the well-rounded individual followed.

LEWIS P. ANDREAS, director of athletics, foresaw no new Eastern football league in the near future, but pointed out that many potential league members will be playing Syracuse in the coming years. A panel on Campus Leaders' requirements followed, at which suggestions were made changing representation to the group. It was referred to the steering committee.

A panel Saturday morning came to the conclusion that much apathy among the independents was due to the individual.

An organizational chart of the University was presented by Comptroller Francis Wingate and Vice President and Dean of Public Relations Kenneth Bartlett.

SEVERAL recommendations came from the panel on Library and Academic Facilities. Dr. Phillips Bradley presented the program of the Library Associates, which includes gifts to the library of microfilm of all US books published before 1800 and all magazines before 1850. The group suggested heavier penalties for library rule violations. An evaluation of the Syracusan followed.

A faculty panel of evaluation and skits by all groups completed the Saturday night program.

After worship services Sunday morning, an evaluation of the conference was presented by Assistant Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford. The group returned to campus Sunday night.

Style Show Will Feature Spring, Summer Fashions

"Fashion Serenade," the annual style show sponsored by the merchandising sequence and clothing classes of the College of Home Economics, will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight in the dance studio of the Women's Bldg.

Glenn Miller's recorded music will set the mood for the fashion parade of spring and summer ensembles, modeled by girls in the clothing department.

"SUNRISE SERENADE" will announce the modeling of sleeping and morning togs, while daytime and afternoon dresses will be heralded by "In the Mood" and evening wear by "Moonlight Serenade."

Ruth Calish is chairman of the show, assisted by Patricia Murray, selection; Norma Englehart and Marlene Smith, commentary; Joyce McGrath, publicity; Mrs. Virginia Seymour, programs; Mary Eckberg, staging; and Kaye Petersen, modeling.

Models will be Gwynne Butters, Irma Diamond, Martha Smith, Betsy Prior, Mary Lagerbaum, Roberta Chamberlain, Joan Bosworth, Joyce Klock, Nancy Draley, Carol Fogol, Rosanne Dunn, Nancy Nelson, Joan Gershweir, and Marilyn Empie.

ALSO, LOIS HENKE, Lenora Neiman, Barbara McAndrews, Carolyn Cotton, Joanna Kimball, Joan Harding, Shirley Citrenbaum, Ann McKaig, Dorianne Bright, Harriet Shulman, Marlene Seme, Charlotte Easterbrook, Harriet Ehrlich, Gail Rudder, and Arlene Feller.

Also, Millicent Auerbach, Alma Kirch, Lois Clark, Jane Arnold, Jean Jackson, Barbara Hopkins, Elizabeth Frick, and Jacqueline Drohan.

Instructors in the clothing department are Miss Ruth Gauger, Miss Lois Simon, Mr. Charles Dibble, and Mrs. Edna Damon.

Student Researchers Receive Scholarships

Six high school students were awarded full tuition scholarships for outstanding research at the annual Science Congress held here Saturday. Of the scholarships offered by 23 colleges and universities in New York State, one has been granted by Syracuse.

Demonstrating their ability in the fields of biology, chemistry and physics, the contestants presented original experiments which had already won them recognition in regional contests.

THE SIX winners are: M Samuel Adams, Sotus Central, whose experiment was the breeding of sheep; David W. Bouton, Endicott High School, experiment; insect collect; John E. Jones Jr., Horseheads High School, experiment: hela coil; William D. Carrigan, Troy High School, experiment: visual problem of Mars; Frederic Miller, Woodmer High School, experiment: keyboard-operated electric xylophone; Wilson H. Smart, Carthage High School, hydrolysis of celluose.

The scholarships are granted on a point system. High school grades and extra curricular activities as well as their research were taken into consideration in the awarding of the scholarships.

THE WINNERS will be allowed to choose any school for which they have a preference. When the six full tuition scholarships have been given out, partial scholarships will be granted to the runners-up by the remaining colleges and universities participating.

Judges for the contest represented industry and universities. William Fredrickson, professor of physics, was the delegated judge from Syracuse.

Awards were made at the annual banquet, held Saturday in Sims. Marshall W. Jennison, professor of plant science, gave the principle address on the topic, "Tangents of Research." Alfred T. Collette, dual professor of science and education directed the weekend's activities.

THIS WAS the first year that the congress was held at Syracuse. Students were housed in sorority and fraternity houses for the weekend. Friday night, they attended the "Orange Special" for the final mixer dance of the season.

Experiments were conducted in Gym A of the Women's Building Friday and Saturday. The students competing explained their work and answered questions presented by the public. Thirty-three students participated in the conference.

Catherine Mallatis To Present Recital

Organ Music to Include Works of Pachelbel

Catherine Mallatis, organist, will present a graduate recital in partial fulfillment of her Master of Music requirements at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Crouse auditorium. The recital is open free of charge to the general public.

The program will open with Pachelbel's Prelude, Fugue and Chaconne in D Minor. The chorale prelude "Ach Gott, Erhor Mein Suefzen" will follow. Miss Mallatis will then play Bach's Prelude and Fugue in D Major and Franck's Chorale No. 2 in B Minor.

NEXT ON HER program will be six sections of Milhaud's "Neuf Preludes."

The recital will close with "Symphonie - Passion Resurrection" by Dupre.

Miss Mallatis, who is currently studying under Dr. Arthur Poister of the School of Music, was graduated from Illinois Wesleyan University where she studied under George Scott.

A member of Phi Kappa Phi scholastic honorary and Sigma Alpha Iota, professional music fraternity for women, Miss Mallatis is organist-choir director at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Syracuse.

Leider Awarded Fulbright Grant

Gerald Leider, Syracuse University drama instructor and graduate student, has been awarded a Fulbright grant to study drama for a year at the University of Bristol, England.

Leider, who received his undergraduate degree from Syracuse last June, is director of the original musical revue "Up in Lights" which opened yesterday for a four-day at the Astor theater.

While an undergraduate, Leider appeared in 11 major theatrical productions. He was president of Boar's Head dramatic society and last year directed the student musical revue, "White Bucks and Tales." Originator of the idea for the musical revue, Leider has worked "Up in Lights" for over four months.

He will receive his master's degree in August, 1954 and will be in England from September 1954 to June 1955.

Big Chum Signups Set for Slocum, HL

Signups for city women interested in working in the Big Chum Little Chum program next fall will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. tomorrow at booths in Slocum Hall basement and Hall of Languages first floor. Dorianne Bright, chairman, announced yesterday.

Signups in women's living centers will be completed by tomorrow, Miss Bright said. Any camus women, however, who missed signups at their houses may sign up at booths.

EACH BIG chum will be notified in August of her little chum. Women are matched according to college, majors, activities and interests. The program is under the sponsorship of Traditions Commission.

Miss Bright may be reached for questions at Kappa Kappa Gamma, 75-9336 or 76-8856. She is being assisted in the program by Janet Brenneman, Delta Gamma, 9-9722 or 75-2155 and Patricia Cain, Kappa Alpha Theta, 72-0622 or 75-4191.

History Fellowship Received by Beyer

Barry K. Beyer, a Syracuse University graduate student, is one of four persons who have received an American history fellowship in the University of Rochester's special graduate program to train college teachers in American history.

Beyer, who is from Norwich, was graduated from the University of Rochester in 1953 where he won the Ellison History Prize and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

This year he has been studying social science at Syracuse University's graduate school.

Beyer was chosen from a large number of candidates from all parts of the US and abroad. He will begin his studies at Rochester in the fall.

Alta Burg Will Make Summer Twirling Trip

Alta Burg, the part brunette who made her Syracuse debut as the head of the marching band this fall, will entertain audiences across the country this summer with her flashing smile and magic baton.

Included in the tour are stops at twirling schools in Palo Alto, San Bernadino and Pepperdine College in California. She will also visit Big Trees twirling camp while in that area. Since she had retired from the competitive field she will teach and act as a judge in the competitions.

TELEVISION AND parade performances have also been scheduled in the trip. Miss Berg is especially looking forward to this part of her trip. She commented: "This is the first time I have been as far west as California and although I have flown before, I am looking forward to the cross-country flight."

Starting in July, the tour will last three weeks. At the end of this time, she will attend the National Baton Twirling Jamboree in South Milwaukee. At the National Teachers Association of Baton Twirlers, held at the same time, she will perform, and act as a judge at the competitions.

After that, she travels to the Chicago Music Land Festival in the Windy City. She will assist in the competitions held there.

EARLIER IN the summer when she returns home, she will help her sister, also expert twirlers, to give their fifth annual recital in their baton school. They are now instructing between 100 to 150 students in the school.

The week before the tour, she will hold her second annual Baton Clinic in a nearby town. High school twirlers from a radius of 100 miles of her hometown, Red Lion, Pa., will come for a four-day training period.

Dr. Cady Awarded Guggenheim Grant

Dr. Edwin H. Cady, English professor, has been awarded a Guggenheim fellowship grant, and will use the money to continue research on author William Dean Howells.

The announcement was made by the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation in New York. Cady is the only professor in the state to receive a grant for English and American literature this year.

He will take a research leave of absence for the coming academic year, traveling throughout the country collecting material on Howells.

Articles on this author by Cady include "William Dean Howells and the Ashtabula Sentinel," "William Dean Howells and 'The Smiling Aspects of Life,'" and "The Neuroticism of William Dean Howells."

Phelps Appointed Financial Adviser

Robert L. Phelps, Syracuse University graduate student, will serve as financial adviser to student publications and also be an instructor on the journalism faculty, according to Dean Wesley C. Clark.

Phelps was graduated from Morningside College with a BA degree last June and has been doing graduate work at Syracuse since September.

PHELPS WILL continue toward a master's degree in journalism after assuming teaching duties on July 1.

He edited The Collegian Reporter, student news magazine, in his junior year at Morningside and was director of student publicity during his junior and senior years.

He is a member of Pi Gamma Mu, social science honor society, Sigma Tau Delta, national English fraternity and at graduation was elected to Zeta Sigma, national honor society.

Phelps is also a member of Phi Sigma social fraternity.

Information On Accident Sought

Students who might have seen an accident which occurred Feb. 14 on the corner of Waverly Ave. and Walnut Pl. are being sought as witnesses in a law suit by Sanford Engle, Syracuse attorney.

Injured when hit by an automobile was Anne Micchelli, a sophomore at the University who lives in Shaw dormitory and is a member of Phi Mu.

Anyone who has information about this accident is asked to contact Engle between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 74-4205. After 5 p.m. he can be located at 72-7558.

Sanzenbach Gets Award for Poem

Keith Sanzenbach, a junior in Fine Arts, has been awarded the first prize in the annual Whiffen Poetry contest. Sanzenbach received $25 for his poem entitled, "Her Tan Hair Slept."

Three students received honorable mention in this year's contest. They are: James Blier, a senior in Business Administration, Susan Cooper, a freshman in Fine Arts and Victor Hosson, a freshman in Liberal Arts.

The poems were judged by an English Department committee consisting of Robert Holgate, Mrs. K. Wylie and Harlow Waite.

A Call for Responsibility

Sporting distinctive sunburns, some 75 campus wheels and members of the administration and faculty returned Sunday night from the annual Leaders' conference at the University's magnificent Pinebrook Camp in the heart of the Adirondacks.

They brought with them a better understanding and appreciation of each other. It was a chance for the leaders to communicate their problems and feelings to the administration and for mutual discussion and evaluation of important topics.

Many student problem areas were brought out and in some cases solutions offered. In other instances basic issues were avoided, probably because students still fear to open their minds completely to the faculty. All in all, the conference was a profitable experience.

The discussions, ideas and opinions will become useless, however, unless they are followed up. During the coming year, each person who attended the Pinebrook sessions owes a responsibility to his University community to make sure these discussions weren't left somewhere along the road from Upper Saranac Lake.

A Far-Reaching Decision

"We conclude that in the field of public education the doctrine of separate but equal has no place. Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal."

With these words read by Chief Justice Warren, the US Supreme Court yesterday unanimously ruled out segregation in the nation's public elementary and high schools.

Citing the 14th Amendment, the court decided that segregation denies equal educational opportunities to Negro children and violates the Constitutional guarantee of equal protection of the laws.

There are immediate difficulties created by the court's historic decision—difficulties of which it's fully aware. The justices said they could not rush into immediate enforcement. Further hearings must be held to determine how to put the ruling into effect in the states involved. Should Negro children be admitted forthwith to schools of their choice or does the court have the right to allow gradual adjustment?

In history books yet to come the court's action yesterday could rightfully be classed as one of the most important in the race issue since the Emancipation Proclamation.

Fashion Without Fanfare

Tonight about 40 women students in the College of Home Economics will model dresses, suits, coats and blouses put together by hand and with the help of sewing machines at Syracuse University. The annual home ec fashion show features garments designed by the Ceil Chapmans and Christian Diors of the future.

The show, although put on by undergraduates without elaborate carpeting and original background strains of music, exhibits work which is professional in scope. Styles presented are those of today, and a few of tomorrow's fashion world.

"Fashion Serenade" goes on stage at 8 p.m. in the Women's Building Dance Studio. Sleeping and morning togs will be labeled "Sunrise Serenade." Daytime, afternoon and evening wear presentations will be titled "Moonlight Serenade." The music, Glenn Miller's, is old; the styles are new.

I Hold These Truths...

By DEAN M. EUNICE HILTON
Dean of the College of Home Economics

I begin my thinking about life and its meaning with a basic belief in the worth of the individual human being and the importance of his achieving his best potential through coming to an understanding of himself and through relating himself successfully to his physical world, to his fellow human beings, and to his God.

The solutions to all of the difficult problems that plague our world must be effected by individuals of ability who have achieved the necessary insights and who have developed the moral courage to carry through action programs based on their convictions.

I believe every person able to participate in the business of living must share in the responsibility for the state of our society and for its progress of retrogression. Every person, therefore, must make decisions and throw his weight where he feels it will do the most good for mankind, both for his own and following generations.

Here, I cannot over-emphasize the importance I feel must be attached to the small decisions and actions of everyday living. Every thought and act of every individual is significant in the great universal plan and has impact for good or ill. Therefore, I, myself, can do much toward bettering the world if I put my best into my work and play every day.

I believe that man is capable of dealing with even this fast and terrifying age of scientific development which blesses the world in so many ways but curses it in so many others if he will but throw into the development of his spiritual power a small part of the energy he devotes so generously to the exploitation of his physical environment.

I believe the great triology of faith, hope, and love—deep and abiding faith in God and man, hope always for a better future coupled with the effort to achieve it and the altruistic love of all mankind expressed in selfless service—moving in the lives of individuals can and will save us from annihilating ourselves.

Because I have believed these things, I have chosen to work in a field in which I might have a small part in helping individuals to grow and develop and release their powers.

I never face a new student without wondering what hope for the world resides in him and how well Syracuse may be able to serve him and through him serve all men.

"I can't understand why they don't treat us like women."

HEARING AIDS

The Year Musically: Viewed in Retrospect

By DICK CASE

Crammed tightly under a telephone and framed starkly by a pair of naked Pepsi-Cola bottles on the editorial director's desk lay a note.

"Unable to write final column this week . . . No material."

It was signed by The Daily Orange reporter who had covered music for the past year. The message cried sharply that, for his final piece of the campus writing year, he had been unable to dream up enough copy to fill the alloted space.

Perhaps the season had not produced enough material to stimulate a final obit to the accomplishments of that time.

It had certainly not been a particularly artful year for the recording industry. Or, the business had chugged along at the usual speed; producing records as the assembly line produces auto parts. Each not unlike the last. Each a precision job but nothing that would make it stand apart from the mass that had passed before.

There had been a few feeble attempts at new sounds and a few new voices made themselves known, but for the most part, these offered no sign of bettering the field. A few of the more flighty,' interesting fads like Johnny Ray and the screaming crew passed on in music only to be replaced by Liberace, Teresa Brewer and people who made sound by rapping on concrete or shouting through an echo chamber.

It was the old steadies who kept things to a medium brightness in music. The return in fine form of Frank Sinatra gave a thrill and the presence of Jo Stafford, Doris Day, Les Paul, Como, Crosby and friends presented a few pleasurable moments. Glenn Miller's music had a rebirth too, and they made a fine movie about his life and some began to wonder what this Guy Lombardo was up to.

Something which came to be known as high fidelity became a national rage among the seekers of solid sound. The recording business began being more concerned about recording techniques as the public became more sound conscious.

The music reporter got very concerned about local radio and television at one time and he called for some improvements and imagination in musical programming. There were many who agreed that the Syracuse radio stations were stuck in a bad rut but few who cared to do anything about it. Listeners appeared happy with three hours of hillbilly back to back with hours and hours and hours of nothing but the "tops in pops."

Readers were aware last season of a great lack of "live" musical attractions, popular and classical, on the Syracuse scene with only Famous Artists series coming through with decent performances. The music critics and others wondered, I guess, what made Syracuse so dead. Many remembered the night the Sauter-Finnegan orchestra thrilled a handful of people in the Nottingham auditorium and how many loafers wished they had gone after the word got back.

There was also a disturbance about the musical quality of the new campus revue. Some said it wasn't. Others, like this writer, said it was.

Not a highly fruitful year for the musical mind, all in all. It is little wonder that our friend could find nothing to say. It would only have been blue, at that.

Reply to Segregation; What of the Future?

By HUGH O. MUIR

Fifteen bells.

In news rooms all over the country yesterday fifteen bells rang out news from Washington D. C. This is the signal for a "flash" announcement, news of paramount importance.

The news was from the Supreme Court, the first time since the Rosenberg execution announcement of last July that a "flash" had come from the highest court in the nation. The announcement was that "segregation was unconstitutional."

This was the climax to a legal argument that began 17 months ago. In December of 1952 the case first came before the court. When the Justices adjourned last June no decision had been reached.

Last December the Supreme Court demanded more arguments and the court again reviewed in detail the five test cases from So. Carolina, Virginia, Delaware, Kansas and the District of Columbia.

And then the suspenseful waiting began.

There is a small room below the main chamber of the Supreme Court. A Pneumatic tube snakes into that room from the chamber above. It is through this tube that the Court's verdicts are shot the second they are read by the Justices above. This happens each Monday while the court is in session.

For five months the reporters packed into the cubicle . . . and every day retired in frustrated ignorance.

Yesterday, May 17, 1954, the tube clicked again and in two minutes the two words "segregation unconstitutional" were coming off the wire tickers in New York City behind the ringing of the 15 bells.

Before Chief Justice Earl Warren had finished reading the Court's opinion radio broadcasts across the country were being interrupted with the flash announcement.

Just what were the questions that the Court had been asked to answer and the nation awaited so tensely?

In a refutation of the 58-year-old "separate but equal" doctrine the Court was faced with:

1. Whether Congress in submitting the Fourteenth amendment and the states ratifying it, intended or understood that it would abolish segregation in the public schools.

2. If that was not the intention or the understanding at that time, did Congress and the state understand that future Congresses or the courts might outlaw segregation?

3. Is it within the judicial power in construing the amendment, to abolish segregation in the public schools?

4. If it were decided that segregation was unconstitutional, should the court decree order admission of Negroes to white schools forthwith or did it have equity power to permit a gradual adjustment to be brought about?

5. If the court exercised its equity powers to end segregation, should it formulate detailed decrees or should it remand the cases (then before the court) to lower courts to formulate decrees in accordance with the high court's ruling?

The key to the entire constitutional challenge is the Fourteenth amendment. It was passed by the Congress on June 16, 1866 and became ratified on July 21, 1868 when 30 of the 37 states then in the Union ratified it. It provides that "no state shall make or enforce any law that shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States."

Now the spirit of the Fourteenth has been upheld. The Court has answered the first and second questions above to the affirmative. The third question has not been answered as clearly. Obviously the Court's statement that segregation in public schools is in violation of the Constitution answers the first two questions. But the judicial power to abolish such segregation is still unanswered.

The answers to the fourth and fifth questions depend on question three. This now becomes the problem of paramount importance before the Court: does it have the power to (1) abolish public school segregation and, if so, (2) can the Court exercise equity and formulate gradual adjustment?

These are the questions that the Justices could have come to no other conclusion than the one they did on the constitutionality of segregation. But the grays of how to enforce a judicial decision that is completely contrary to the laws of 17 states (those states, which have segregation), is a major problem.

The Court can so easily be snagged on its process of equity, if the Court decides it has the right to require equity. And if the answer to the problem is left to the states, it could take another 58 years to bring about any material change.

Yesterday afternoon a query was put to Walter White, head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. What was his reaction to the Court's decision?

"Well," he said, "as Joe Louis would say, '. . . we have won'"

But the victory here, as in boxing, is not static. This crown must be defended again and again if the Negro is ever to be the undefeated champion of his rights.

Clarkson Tops Nine, 15-8

WATERTOWN, May 17—Wind, bases on balls, errors, and Clarkson bats joined forces today to humble the Orange nine 15-8. Although they matched Clarkson with 9 hits including two long homers by Bill Wham, Syracuse lost the game on six errors.

Bert Rich, first of five hurlers was charged with the loss as the Clarkson rightfielder, Christian, smashed five safeties in five appearances at the plate to lead the Upstaters and insure the victory for hurler Chakalis.

CLARKSON TOOK an early lead, scoring two runs in the first. The Hillmen moved ahead with three in the bottom of the third on three hits, two walks, two stolen bases and a catcher's error.

The victors countered with single runs in the third, fourth, and fifth to take command, 5-4 after Wham polled his first homer in the fourth for a Syracuse tally.

A triple by Nick Coyne sparked a three-run 6th frame and gave Syracuse the lead again. Then the storm broke. Three walks, a hit batsman, two errors, a single and a double netted five Clarkson runs. Before the smoke settled, Esmay and Kyff had taken the mound. Wham's second four-bagger in the eighth accounted for the final Syracuse tally.

SMITH AND McGarvey took the hill in the ninth as Clarkson rampaged again to score five more runs and sew up the game, 15-8.

The Orange lost a pair of contests over the weekend, a 6-1 decision to Holy Cross Friday and an 11-inning, 7-2 loss to Bucknell on Saturday. Both games were played on Lew Carr Field.

Syracuse and Holy Cross each collected six hits but the Crusaders bunched theirs for two runs in each of the fourth, fifth and seventh innings. Mickey Kyff pitched well for the Orange and drove in the lone Piety tally in the ninth.

SATURDAY, BILL Cassidy held Bucknell in check for 10 frames before the Bisons exploded with five big runs in the 11th. Dick Workman's bases-loaded single broke the game open after Cassidy and Bucknell's Tom King had hurled on even terms.

The visitors scored an unearned run in the second and added another in the third. Syracuse tallied twice in third on singles by Paul Slick, Phil Young and Nick Coyne. Five Orange errors kept the pressure on Cassidy most of the afternoon.

Baseball Results

National League — Chicago topped Pittsburgh, 10-6; St. Louis shut out Philadelphia, 8-0, after the Phils won the three-inning completion of Sunday's nightcap, 8-4.

American League—Boston edged Detroit, 4-3.

International League—Havana downed Syracuse, 5-1; Ottawa whipped Toronto, 7-5.

Hill Stickmen Drill For Cornell Test After 13-5 Victory

Basking in pleasant memories of a 13-5 win over Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Roy Simmons' lacrossers began practice for their next game, Wednesday against a tough Cornell team. Cornell, with only one loss, to Yale, is currently leading upper New York State teams in the B division.

In the bright sunshine of last Saturday afternoon, a hither-to unmentioned and not consistent segment of the Syracuse team came into play to help the Orange down traditional rival RPI. Syracuse's defense shone as never before this season as goalie Ed White worked hard on a shutout, but lost it in the third period.

The tension-filled first quarter was a sparring round for both teams. RPI controlled the ball most of the time, but Syracuse had it enough to take three shots, make one and lead 1-0 at the end of the quarter.

Goalie White still had his net clean when the half ended 7-love. During the third quarter, with Stew Lindsay utilizing his shovel-shot, the Orange pulled ahead 9-0 before the Engineers scored with half of the third period gone.

When Rensselaer awoke in the last period, they were too far behind and they absorbed their fourth loss.

Adding to the insult, the Piety frosh came from an 8-6 deficit to down the RPI first-year men when John Stawicki and Paul O'Donaghue racked up Syracuse's last six goals in a 12-8 win.

Three Records Set By Frosh Runners

Syracuse University's freshman track team and the existing frosh records clashed Saturday during a dual meet with Alfred. Four amendments were made in the record book in the Orange yearling's resounding 101-30 victory.

A six-man nucleus accounted for 75 of the Piety points. The amazing Jim Brown garnered 25 to pace the point parade. Dick Day counted 12¼. Craig McArt and Bob Milner got 10 on double wins. Roger Gilbert totaled 9¼ and Jim Hyde collected 9.

BROWN SET a second record in as many meets. Last week the all-around performer established a new discus mark. Saturday he cleared 21 ft-9 in. to break the board jump record by five inches. The Manhasset youth also won the high jump, javelin throw, shot put and discus throw.

Day won the 100 and 220-yd. dash events and placed third in the broad jump. The Binghamton speedster tied the frosh mark (22.2) for the curved furlong. Milner won the mile and two-mile runs. The Philadelphian set a new time in the latter event, eclipsing former record holder Tom Coulter's 9:56 with a 9:52.6 performance.

The mile relay team knocked 1.6 seconds off the former relay record of 3:25.6.

GRIM REAPER—Known to some of his teammates as "The Grim Reaper" because of his methodical way of passing opponents, RAY OSTERHOUT will run the two-mile event for Syracuse in the coming IC4A meet.

Crews Ready for IRA; Fail in Eastern Sprints

Three Syracuse crews, unsuccessful in last Saturday's Eastern Sprint races at Washington, resume practices this week for the Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta next month on Onondaga Lake.

The Orange oarsmen were unimpressive in the Sprint events on the Potomac. The varsity and JV boats finished last in their morning elimination heats and the frosh shell also failed to qualify for the finals by rowing fourth in a race which the first three finishers placed in the title test.

COACH GUS Eriksen's varsity trailed Penn, Cornell, Wisconsin, Princeton and MIT in its race. The Hill crew was approximately two lengths behind the fifth place Engineers at the conclusion of the one and five-sixteenth mile event.

The varsity finals found Navy nipping Yale and Penn in a thrilling stretch duel, with Harvard, Cornell and Wisconsin finishing far back. The win was the 25th in a row for the Midshipmen, but the men from Annapolis had to go all out as a surprising dark-horse, Yale, put on a stirring drive in the final 100 yards to lose by less than one-half a length.

Syracuse's jayvees were also shut out, as Yale, Princeton, Harvard and Penn proceeded them across the finish line. The Piety boat was edged by about a deck-length by the Pennsylvanians.

The JV final was won by Navy, with Harvard, Princeton, Cornell Yale and MIT trailing the powerful Middies.

THE ORANGE frosh gave probably the most credible performance of the day for Syracuse. Coach Mike Michalson's boys lost a heartbreaking race as Navy, Harvard and Boston U beat them in an extremely close battle in the first yearling elimination heat.

The frosh finals went to powerful Cornell, with Yale and BU second and third respectively.

The Easterns marked the conclusion of regular season competition for the Hill shells. The big IRA regatta is scheduled for June 19, giving the Syracusans more than a month to prepare for this, the "world series" of crew racing.

Piety Tars Eighth In Mid-Atlantics

The Orange sailors failed to overcome their old jinx at the Mid-Atlantic Championships Saturday, as they finished a poor eighth out of a field of nine schools.

The Nivins Trophy, symbol of Mid-Atlantic sailing supremacy, was awarded to Kings Point.

Frosh Nine Wins Over Ithaca, 4-2

Thanks to a stellar five-hit performance by Tom Hallet, the improving Tangerine nine topped the Ithaca yearlings, 4-2, Saturday on the Bombers' home grounds. The victory was the third consecutive win for the Piety yearlings.

The last game of the season will be played Thursday at Lew Carr Field, a return engagement with Ithaca.

Piety Tennis Team To Engage Colgate Today at Skytop

Netmen Split Weekend Tilts While Golfers Win Two Matches

By BOB TATA

A highly-regarded Colgate tennis team, sporting a nifty 7-2 record, invades the domain of the Saltine Warrior this afternoon. The two teams will square off on the Skytop courts at 2:30 p.m.

The Orange racketmen, who won one and lost one match over the weekend, hope to regain the win trail. The Saltines now have a one-and-three slate.

SYRACUSE DEFEATED the Sampson Sabres on Friday, 5-4. Pete Bratt, Win Lott and Pete Latham won sigles matches as Capt. John Kerr and Bratt, Lott and Latham teamed up to take the doubles matches.

On Saturday, the Orangemen were crushed by Penn State, 6-3. The dependables, Latham, Lott, Kerr, and Bratt, all lost. Dick Lorenz was the only Syracusan to dent the win column in the singles division.

Two of Syracuse's point total of three were scored in the doubles matches. Goff Lebhar and Al Bernstein, Bratt and Kerr combined to rack up the two points.

FOR TODAY'S matches, the starting men will be chosen from: Latham, Kerr, Lott, Bernstein, Lorenz, Bratt, and Tom Long. The Saltines have done very well in their doubles matches to date and now they will be looking for improvement in the singles events.

The Golf team was also active during the weekend, but they faired a lot better by taking both of their matches, one from St. Lawrence, the other from the Clarkson Tech linksmen.

The golf team, which boasts a 5-1 record, will try to play three matches this week. They play Sampson today and Friday, with a match against Cornell sandwiched in on Wednesday.

Large Field

The number of houses entering teams in the intramural track meet to be staged at 2 p.m. Saturday totals 21. This number comprises one of the largest fields ever to be signed up for the one-day, six-event affair.

Last year, only nine teams competed in the annual intra meet.

Tau Delt Gains Finals With One 'Big' Inning

By DON HENRY
Daily Orange Intramural Director

A seven-run outburst in the top of the last inning gave Tau Delta Phi a ticket to the intramural fraternity softball finals last night as they racked up a 10-4 verdict over Zeta Beta Tau.

Joel Feidelman checked the losers with five hits and his mates threw up a fairly tight defense to down the Zebes.

THE TAU DELTS touched losing pitcher Mel Besdin for 11 safeties, including a brace each by Tony Gross, Curly Adler and Lou Grossman. Adler's triple to deep left was the power blow of the night.

Len Eisen opened the scoring parade in the ZBT half of the first inning by rapping out a one-base hit and circling the sacks on two throwing errors. Tau Delt drew ahead in the top of the third, counting twice on a single, double and two-base error.

The Zebes knotted the score in their turn at bat on singles by Art Distler and Herb Portnoff and a one-base error on the latter's hit. The winners edged ahead, 3-2, in the top of the fourth on Gross' single, Steve Neuberger's two-bagger and an error.

THEN CAME the barrage. Adler led off with a triple. Grossman doubled. Three hits and four errors later, the Tau Delts had a 10-2 lead. The Zebes got to Feidelman for two hits and as many runs in the last half of the fifth, but the cushion was too soft, and Tau Delt had the nod.

Tonight the winners meet Pi Alpha Chi for the fraternity championship, and Skytop-2 takes on the Bureaucrats for the independent-living center crown. The two victors will meet tomorrow for the all-University title.

THESE ARE THE Twins of Championship Tennis

The Tennis Twins (Spalding-made) are unmatched in their record in top tournament play. And here is the clinching proof: The Wright & Ditson is the only official tennis ball used in all U.S.L.T.A. National Championships (since 1887). Official, too, in all U.S. Davis Cup Matches. Official adoptions of its twin, the Spalding, in other leading tournaments assure their championship stature in American tennis. Play the championship twins to your own advantage.

Announcing A MEDICINE
To Get Rid of DANDRUFF!
Now available at drug stores in U. of Syracuse area

What is Dandruff? Doctors say it is an infection, and is caused by a germ. This germ (P. Ovale) hides in hair follicles, feeds there and inflames your scalp, causing that annoying itching and flaking.

To get rid of it you need a positive medicine—not a mere hair tonic or shampoo (they just "tease" Dandruff). You need a special type germicide. Such a germicide—medically proven and stronger than in any hair product you can buy—is a major ingrediant in M.F.D. In a balanced formula—acting tenderly, yet surely—this germicide sinks deep into hair follicles where it kills the Dandruff germs, relieves the inflammation and itching and leaves your scalp clean, fresh, soothed. M.F.D. permits you to stay rid of Dandruff, too. One application every week is a safe, sure preventive.

M.F.D. goes right to the scalp, because you apply it by a dropper. Just a few drops; then a brisk massage. You'll see Dandruff disappear altogether.

Italian Embassy Offers Fellowships to Americans

Six fellowships for study in Italy have been offered to American graduate students by the Italian government, according to Kenneth Holland, president of the Institute of International Education.

The Italian Embassy in Washington has offered $300 to successful candidates to be used for round-trip travel on an Italian ship or plane.

THE AWARDS, made available through the Cultural Relations Office of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, are for a minmum period of six months between October 1954 and July 1955. Closing date for application is July 1. Men or women in any field of study may apply.

The fellowships are in keeping with the Institute's increased emphasis on Italo-American exchange. Last October it established a committee of advisers on exchange with Italy. The Institute is now seeking to raise a $100,000 Italian fund, half in dollars, half in lire.

Free tuition will be given at a school or university for an entire academic year. Candidates in the musical field will be given extra funds for private lessons. A small price is also provided for travel inside Italy.

CANDIDATES MUST be US citizens, preferably under 35 years of age. Preference will be given to candidates who apply from the US and who have not had previous study in Italy.

Applicants must have a master's degree or the equivalent in advanced work. They must submit a project for advanced study.

Although a knowledge of Italian is not required at the time of application, successful candidates are required to learn some Italian before taking up their fellowships. Free tuition will be given to those who wish to attend the summer orientation course, held especially for foreigners, at the University of Perugia.

MR. FORMAL—D. SCHWARTZ, proprietor of the Wardrobe Men's Shop (right), adds the professional touch to Syracuse Universtiy Mr. Formal's new tuxedo. Looking on is RICHARD HOFFMAN, campus representative. Mr. Formal. DONALD ARONSON, Phi Epsilon Pi, will enter the national contest as the Hill's hope.

Slocum Club Installs Air Conditioning Unit

"Man, is this cool!" When you hear this comment emerge from the Coke and Caper club from now on, it not only means the music from the juke box, but the brand new air conditioning unit. Operations began Monday to install the Carrier unit, and will be completed today.

"The old unit was too small," Gerald Hill, club manager told The Daily Orange. "Besides, it hasn't worked in seven years. I think the new one will improve the afternoon business, and also make it more pleasant for the students in the summer school session."

HILL EXPLAINED that the conditioner was expected to be in before the end of the term. Students and help have complained about the heat and smoke in the club, and the unit should alleviate much of this.

It will purify the air, circulate it, remove ten per cent of the smoke and make the atmosphere more comfortable in summer and winter. Theoretically, it will be controlled so that the outside and inside temperature are regulated.

Mrs. Ursula Pettingil, foods service director, and Hill have been working on arrangements for the unit. Francis Wingate, comptroller for the University okayed the project, and today it makes its first appearance on campus.

AS A SORT of "formal christening," there will be an open house at the Club tomorrow night. C. T. Duncan, of Syracuse Bottlers of Pepsi Cola, will offer free pepsi to all the students, and free cartons of cigarettes and gum will be distributed. Quite a night for coke and caper enthusiasts.

George Grattan, then smiling, summed up his enthusiasm of his new addition to the club with these words: "It makes graduation even more difficult."

Economics Profs Edit Law Book

Sidnay C. Sufrin and Robert C. Sedgwick, two Syracuse University economics professors have just had a book published this month by Thomas Y. Crowell Co., New York.

The title of the volume is "Labor Law—Development. Administration. Cases." It is dedicated to Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, a former professor of the authors at the University of Chicago.

SUFRIN, PROFESSOR of economics and direction at the Maxwell Research Center; and Sedgwick, assistant professor of economics, deal largely with the period since the New Deal.

The book covers two main areas of legislation—standards of labor, and industrial relations. An unusual feature is the inclusion of reprinted editorial cartoons dealing with labor subjects.

Professor Sedgwich has been at Syracuse since 1937, while Dr. Sufrin joined the faculty in 1946. Both writers have had numerous articles published in various technical journals in the labor field. In addition, Dr. Sufrin has served in many governmental positions.

Pi Phis Victorious At Powder Bowl

Alpha Xi Loses In Cancer Benefit

Pi Beta Phi captured the fourth annual Powder Bowl game Saturday, defeating Alpha Xi Delta 14-13 on Hendricks Field gridiron. Lee Goodnow was the star for the Damon Runyon Cancer benefit, scoring the two touchdowns for the losers.

Miss Goodnow, co-captain for Alpha Xi, scored early in the first half on a 27 yd. run around right end. A pass from Joyce Oglebay to Marilyn Allen added the extra point making the score 7-0.

Pi Phi came back with a touchdown as Marian Geipel carried the ball 30 yds. to paydirt. The extra point tied the score.

BOTH TEAMS scored again in the final quarter but Alpha Xi failed to make the extra point when the ball carrier was tagged before he crossed the goal line.

Several hundred spectators attended the game and cheered the halftime entertainment. Phi Ep sponsored a race between the campus fat men. Collendale received the Kentubby Derby cup winning from a field representing the fraternities and men's living centers.

Deferment Forms Due

Men who intend to return to school next fall and who are seeking student deferments must pick up application forms for selective service form 109 immediately in the dean of men's office, according to Assistant Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford.

Form 109 is a report of class standing for the academic year, 1953-54. Only if application is made for the forms before the end of the school year will the reports be mailed to local draft boards, Clifford said.

Students seeking deferment should return the applications to the dean of men's office, excepting graduates, forestry and law students. Men in those classifications should submit their requests to the dean of their college.

Score on the selective service college qualification test should be indicated on the 109 request cards if known, Clifford said.

'Kum Bak' Show Stars Ohio Pianist

The annual Kum Bak show for graduating seniors and returning alumni will be held Friday, June 4, and Saturday, June 5 in Archbold gymnasium.

This year's show stars Gilford Plumley. He received his AB degree from Syracuse in 1936 and received his MA in 1939. At present he is head of the department of piano at Baldwin Wallace Conservatory of Music, Berea, Ohio.

PLUMLEY WILL present a program of three numbers from Chopin.

Geraldine Arnold, class of '15, will present her group of singers. The group tours service hospitals to entertain the veterans. This year marks a return engagement for the singers, who were featured in last year's Kum Bak show.

Three students in the College of Fine Arts majoring in music will participate in the show. Louise Orlando, Donna Jeffrey and Gail Faulkner will present their program of selections from "Hansel and Gretal" which they performed for Morning Musicals.

BEFORE THE show on Saturday the Kum Bak dinner will be held in Sims Dining hall. The classes holding their reunions will march to the gym in a body preceded by bagpipes.

Other members of the alumni attending the weekend will have been seated when the groups are announced and file into their reserved seats.

Before the curtain goes up the George Arents Medals will be presented to the two or three alumni who are outstanding in their chosen fields. The presentation of the medals which originated in 1939 have been awarded continuously since that year.

Miss Watson Chosen President for Fall

Miss Watson, who will be a senior next year, is also a member of the student-faculty board of the College of Business Administration.

INA SWADE, newly-elected vice-president, is a resident of Shaw dormitory and has been secretary of JSF, member of Campus Guide and the student-faculty board of the college, and Chapel representative.

Janet Swanson, Alpha Xi Delta, was elected secretary-treasurer. Miss Swanson, a junior, has been co-copy editor of the Onondagan, assistant treasurer and journal correspondent for her sorority, and a member of the University Chorus.

Plans for next year were also discussed at the meeting. Mrs. Pauline Madey, administrative assistant in the Admissions Office, spoke to the group about her work with the FBI in the United States and Chile.

Quills and Keys is an organization for all women in the College of Business Administration.

Theta Beta Phi To Honor Piper

Theta Beta Phi, honorary philosophical society, will pay tribute to Dr. Raymond F. Piper of the Philosophy department at a dinner at 7:30 p.m. today in Shaw Dormitory.

Dr. Piper is retiring as professor of Philosophy after thirty-seven and a half years of teaching. He will speak on "The Decline and Reprieve of Philosophy" at the banquet. Dr. Paul W. Ward, the chairman of the department, will act as toastmaster.

THE FRATERNITY will also hold its initiation meeting at 5 p.m. today. The following students are eligible for membership.

Emerald Balboa, Ann Higbee, William Hood, Anita Khanzadian, Herbert Kagi, Peter Manicas, Ann Middleton, Roger Pugsley, Harvey Raff, Marjorie Rowe, and Elizabeth Scherer.

Shawhan Appoints Council Members

Samuel Shawhan, new senior class president, has announced the appointment of eight members to the executive council of the class of 1955.

The following were named: Barbara Witter, Kevin Wilson, Marcia Sank, Susan Berman, Arthur Koeppel, Carol Amacher, Lois Cohn, and Deborah Terillo.

Center Receives Grant for Study Of Local Economy

An additional grant has been given to three local organizations investigating the economy of metropolitan Syracuse, including the Maxwell Research center.

The Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturer's Association of Syracuse have also been conducting an analysis of local economic conditions.

DR. SIDNEY Sufrin, professor of economics and director, Maxwell Research center, announced today that an additional grant has been made to the project by the Committee for Economic Development.

Late in June, the report on the first phase of the work is scheduled to be released. Titled "Business Opportunities and Possibilities for Growth in Greater Syracuse."

The CED, in cooperation with the Fund for Adult Education, an organization established by the Ford Foundation, has assisted numerous other cities, throughout the United States in college-community research programs.

THIRTY SYRACUSE businessmen and ten Hill faculty members are cooperating in the survey. These committee members operate in three groups: Advisory Committee including key Syracuse leaders who plan the program, research committee which does the actual research, and faculty advisory.

The scope of the first study is an economic analysis of the Syracuse area. Involved are Syracuse's commercial and industrial structures, its stability aspects and its resources for growth.

Cornell May Bar Sophomore Driving

ITHACA—The faculty of Cornell University has voted to recommend to the Board of Trustees that sophomores, as well as freshmen, be forbidden to own automobiles in Tompkins County except in cases of serious hardship.

The recommendation followed a special committee report on the Cornell campus driving and parking problems.

It is expected that the Cornell Board of Trustees will decide upon the issue at its June meeting.

Two Hill Students Win Jingle Contest

Two Syracuse students were named winners recently in the Be-Happy-Go-Lucky Jingle Contest sponsored by the American Tobacco Co.

Ronald Gillespie and William Scherer have both been awarded a $25 prize.

The Student Marketing Institute has announced that the jingles may be used in a Lucky Strike advertisement in college newspapers.

PINEBROOK—Campus leaders, faculty and administration members listen to a discussion on campus mores in a morning session last weekend at the annual conference held at Pinebrook Camp, Upper Saranac Lake. This discussion was held outside Loeb Lodge under sunny skies. Third from right in the background is CHANCELLOR WILLIAM P. TOLLEY.

Hill Music Students Slate NY Concert Next Month

Graduate and undergraduate students in the School of Music, will present a concert at 8:30 p.m. June 16 in Steinway Concert Hall, 113 W. 57th St., N.Y., directly across from Carnegie Hall. The students will be under the direction of Sidney Sukoenig, professor of music at Syracuse University.

Shirley Kidder and Judith Hicks, the two graduate students, will play the finale, Gershwin's "Piano Concerto."

UNDERCLASSMEN performers will be Barbara Ennis, Joan Braiman, George Winfield, Marion Gelbman, Mary Ann Woods, and Natalie Goldman. Miss Goldman has recently been elected as president of the women's music honorary, Sigma Alpha Iota.

Sukoenig spent eight years on the major faculty in the Julliard School of Music before coming to Syracuse. He studied piano in the United States and Europe and became well known as a concert pianist. Sukoenig has appeared as soloist with Walter Damrosch and NBC Symphony, National Broadcasting Co., the NBC String Quartet, the Boston Sinfonietta and he Goldman Band.

He hopes to make this concert trip to New York city an annual project, as it once was, to give the students a chance to perform in a professional atmosphere and to check the progress of their work. The professor urges all university students living in New York to come to the concert.

Banquet Sunday Ends Boar's Head Activities

The annual Boar's Head banquet, held at Bob Casey's in DeWitt last Sunday, officially terminated the group's activities for the year.

The semi-formal affair attended by approximately 50 people included Boar's Head members, new initiates, faculty and guests.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE affair included the presentation of awards for this year, the introduction of the honorary's president for the coming year and a talk by the guest speaker, Robert Broder.

Emceeing the affair was Robert Dishy. Jane Esmay, who was the president this year, passed the gavel on to Sheldon Wiener who will assume the responsibilities of that post during the coming school year.

Robert Broder, the guest speaker at the banquet, is a Boar's Head alumnus and successful theatrical lawyer. Well-known in the theater world, he donated his collection of books to the drama department and has remained in close contact with the organization through the years.

HIS SPEECH covered his own experiences with the theater both here in Syracuse and those following in the professional world. Show business being "the most contagious disease in the world," he spoke of the mechanics of the business and the many facets involved in the theater as a calling.

Among the awards presented at the banquet was a trophy given by Tau Delta Phi to the best actor or actress of the year. Broden, an alum of the fraternity, presented the trophy to Shirley Anne Fenner.

Awards were presented to graduating seniors for work in the drama department and in Boar's Head by Samuel Baskin. Those receiving the honors were: Judy Deichler, Shirley Anne Fenner, Robert Scapato, and Maris Ubans.

TWENTY-THREE people were given special recognition for their work and dependability in connection with "Lysistrata," one of the most successful shows of the year.

WSG Warns Seniors Who Have Minutes

All senior women who have incurred late minutes within the past few days should notify a Women's Student Government senior officer as soon as possible so that penalties can be served before the Spring semester is over.

No senior woman can be graduated unless she has served all penalties which she has incurred.

WSG senior officers are Dorianne Bright, 75-9336; Marilyn Murtha, 75-7736; Lois Clark, 4-3193; Charlotte Easterbrook, 76-2195; Patricia Mosher, 75-7736; and Roberta Baliba, 76-2186.

Film Company Considers Feature on 'Up in Lights'

By DICK CASE

Tentative plans are now being considered by Ward-Villani productions of New York City for a motion picture short to include portions of the recent production of "Up in Lights." The new musical revue completed a four-day run at the Astor theater May 8.

Ward-Villani had originally planned to prepare a 26-week television series featuring top college musicals.

PORTIONS OF "Up In Lights" are slated to appear in the series, titled "Varsity USA" and optioned on the CBS television network. Plans have now been expanded to include a possible motion picture.

Representatives of Ward-Villani viewed the final performance of "Up in Lights" and formulated tentative ideas for the filming of the production.

It was revealed that select portions of the revue will be filmed at studios in Mineola, Long Island early in June. Members of the cast will be transported to the studios for the filming which is expected to take about a week. Production and musical numbers will be used, for the most part. A small segment of the skit material will be utilized.

LEAD SINGERS from "Up in Lights" will record the music selected for use on the film's sound track. The revue's music, by Harlan (Lanny) O'Kun and William Angelos, is already in the hands of Ward-Villani for selection and orchestration. It is being arranged for a 28-piece orchestra by Donald Walker.

According to Gerald Leider, drama department assistant and director of the revue, the film company was very impressed with "Up in Lights," stating that the show "had class."

The proposed "Varsity USA" series would feature a leading college musical production in a weekly 30-minute program.

IN ADDITION to the revue material, a feature section highlighting a film view of the campus being honored would be included. Bennet Cerf, publisher of Random House and panelist on the TV show "What's My Line," is slated to be moderator of the series.

A decision on the motion picture short is expected sometime next week.

Board Names Beisch Editor of Syracusan

Charles Beisch has been named acting editor of the Syracusan, for a period not to exceed four months, by the board of publications. He can be named permanent editor at any time, Dean Wesley C. Clark, chairman of the board, said.

Richard Menschel, business manager of the Syracusan for the year 1953-1954, has been renamed to that position for the coming year.

BEISCH WAS formerly assistant production editor of the humor magazine and was in charge of advertising layouts. In his new position he will supervise the production of art, features, and fiction writing for the publication, as well as coordinate the work of the business and editorial staffs.

The 20-year-old junior is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Beisch of Teaneck, N. J. He is majoring in fine arts and advertising.

Beisch is a member of the junior assembly and is social chairman of Alpha Chi Rho fraternity. He was a member of the art staff of the 1954 Onondagan.

MENSCHEL IS a junior in the College of Business Administration majoring in finance. Prior to his work as business manager of the Syracusan he was publicity editor.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Menschel of New York city, the business manager was vice-president of Zeta Beta Tau fraternity. He is treasurer of Interfraternity Council and a member of Tau Theta Upsilon, senior men's honorary.

The staff plans to increase the size of the magazine from 36 to 40 pages an issue and to use more color work.

Law College Conference Discusses Medical Proof

A conference on medical proof, conducted by Syracuse University College of Law, State University College of Medicine and Practicing Law Institute, was held last Saturday in the Medicine College Auditorium. Prof. Robert W. Miller, College of Law, was executive director.

The preparation and trial of the medical aspects of personal injury provided the central theme. Physicians with experience in litigated matters discussed current medical theories in the diagnosis and prognosis of head and back injuries.

TRIAL LAWYERS with specialized experience in this field discussed methods of preparing the medical side of cases and demonstrated, through the direct and cross-examination of physicians, the techniques employed on behalf of both plaintiffs and defendants.

Throughout the conference, methods of effectively presenting medical evidence, including the mental and neurological results of injuries, were demonstrated and explained.

Dean Ralph E. Kharas, College of Law, welcomed the group of visiting lawyers and physicians in the morning. Vice-Chancellor Crawford welcomed the delegates at the luncheon meeting.

DR. EDWARD J. Stainbrook, Department of Psychiatry, State University College of Medicine, spoke on "Criminal Behavior and the Sick Role in Society."

McAllister Injured In Auto Accident

Robert McAllister, former Orange head cheerleader was reported in "good condition" at Crouse Irving Hospital last night.

McAllister, Phi Delta Theta, was injured last week when his car collided with a dump truck in in the downtown area. He suffered a head injury.

THE TRUCK driver, Tobe B. Ervin of Syracuse, suffered brush burns and contusions of the head and a back injury. His co-worker Howard M. Longdo suffered injuries to the back, elbow and left shoulder.

Patrolmen Edward Kincella and Robert Smith said Ervin was driving east in Fayette Street, and McAllister north in Walnut Avenue, when the accident occurred.

Longdo, riding in the truck, was thrown from the vehicle by the force of the impact.

At Onondaga General Hospital Ervin told police he had the green signal light when he entered the intersection. McAllister will be questioned later by police for his version of the accident.

Six Chapel Keys Available Today

Review Tomorrow Honors Cadre

SPECIAL INSPECTION TEAMS on their visit to Syracuse reviewed the ROTC detachments at a special drill yesterday. (Left to right) VICE-CHANCELLOR FINLA G. CRAWFORD, COL. SOTTONG, COL. SWITZER, LT. COL. BEYERS, and MAJ. WHEELER.

Air Force and Army ROTC cadets will pass in review at 12 noon tomorrow on Hendricks Field to honor Col. Robert Halloran and other members of the cadre who are being reassigned.

Besides Halloran, Air Force personnel who are being transferred include Maj. James C. Finlayson, WOJG Francis W. Carey, M/Sgt. Arthur E. Bond, M/Sgt. Frank T. Sinclair and M/Sgt. Clinton L. Miller.

ARMY PERSONNEL include Capt. Allan T. Sylvester, Capt. Harry J. Sternburg, Sgt. Roy F. MacInnes and Sgt. Arthur W. Stone.

Tomorrow's review will be the final college military ceremony that the reassigned staff members will watch before assuming their new posts. Most of them have been on duty on the Hill for four years, the normal ROTC tour of duty.

Col. Halloran has been assigned to Headquarters, Air University, Maaxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala.

VICE-CHANCELLOR Finla G. Crawford will receive the Citizenship Award from Charles Morse on behalf of the American Legion.

Gwyn Thomas, executive of the Manufacturers' Association of Syracuse, will present trophy cups to the Military Queen and her court.

The colors of the sponsoring American Legion Post will be retired and new colors—those of the Harvey S. Smith Post—will be raised to take their place.

Final Syracusan Begins Sale Today

"The Syracusan's" last issue of the year will go on sale today on campus.

The issue will have a special guide on Indochina for all seniors who will be entering the service. Other stories include accounts of the Men's Cooperative housing and a feature on Bernie Custis.

A Salute to the Colonel

Tomorrow more than 1,000 cadets will parade on Hendricks Field to honor Col. Robert P. Halloran and other members of the Army and Air Force ROTC staffs who are being reassigned.

Four years ago, Col. Halloran came back to Syracuse, his alma mater, to see what could be done with the AFROTC program. The Air Force was a relatively new entity in the military services and there was much to be done.

Four years later—this year—Col. Halloran has built the AFROTC here into one of the top detachments in the United States.

Persons in and out of the cadet corps respect Col. Halloran as a man and a good citizen—a man who is interested in the welfare of those with whom he works and of those whom he supervises. He has proven that loyalty to the military service can be combined effectively and even more strongly with loyalty to the individual.

A franker man than most, Col. Halloran, realizing the import of the reserve officer program, readily admits the faults of the setup and is eager to correct the faults that may exist.

Tomorrow the colonel and his associates watch their last college military review before being reassigned. To all of them we wish lots of luck—the kind of luck that is made, not inherited—the kind of luck that is fashioned somewhere up above—somewhere in that vast, wild blue yonder.

A Question of Location

Decorous necking is spreading, but not far enough.

Discussions at the Campus Leaders Conference at Pinebrook brought out the fact that Syracuse couples haven't been restricting their love-making to parked cars and dark corners of living centers. It's out in the open now, even in public campus buildings, and embarrassing to many.

Two universities have passed rules recently to govern this phase of college life.

At the University of Houston, good-night kisses must be exchanged in the dorm parking lot, with heads showing above the car seat. Necking is prohibited in all other areas.

Indiana officials have decided that a big light must be on before a couple can smooch. Feet have to be on the floor in the Union Building there.

It's still four feet on the floor at Syracuse, but no place to go.

I Hold These Truths...

By DEANE LAVENDER
Former Co-Chairman, Chapel Board

Concerning the nature of the world in which we live, I believe that it is the creation of an infinitely wise and loving God, who was its beginning and is still present in the lives of men today.

The true nature of the world is discoverable to man, partly through his use of reason and intellect, and partly through revelations or insights which men from time to time seem to have.

I believe in the infinite worth of all men, and regard with great hope the possible achievements which men can attain. A more perfect world order is possible, certainly we must be optimistic about that.

We are free to make the choice which will lead to happier and more meaningful lives for all of us. We are not puppets, nor slaves, nor even the subjects of a benevolent but despotic deity. We can make of the world what we will.

Our freedom gives us the opportunity to make wrong choices as well as right ones, and we must constantly choose between the two, but this is not always easy. True, there are times when we can see clear-cut cases of right and wrong, but this is not always the case.

There are many times when the path of truth is not clearly marked and when it is almost beyond our capabilities of reason to discern. Most of the alternatives with which we are faced in life are not either black or white; they are shaded and often vague.

This leads me to believe in God as responsive to our pleas for insights into truth. The far-away, disinterested God of the Deists is a rather dismal picture, offering little in the way of a guide for practical living.

We are not able merely on the basis of our own ability to make the right choices and build the kind of world which is our ideal. This can be done only through a conscious cooperation with the father.

I believe in the proposition that each of us has a place to make in the life of the world. Our mere existence puts a demand upon us that we contribute as much as possible to the life of the whole. A great worth implies a great responsibility, and if we do not meet this responsibility we do not not measure up to the standards which are demanded in this world.

The gift of life is a sacred trust, not to be dealt lightly with. The material gifts which we are granted are ours to use, but not to abuse. They must be treated not as ends in themselves, but as the means to the far greater end of accomplishing the purposes which we have determined are uniquely ours.

The business of humility as opposed to pride is a strange paradox. Certainly humility is a virtue to be cultivated and constantly practiced. Pride and conceit are luxuries which even the foolish cannot afford.

My infinite worth must not be cause for men to claim precedence over the man next to me, for he has the same amount of it as I. Rather, the realization of my worth makes me more humble when I realize how many times I have done less than my worth implies that I should do.

My pride must take the form of gratitude. I am proud to be born a child of God, and extremely grateful for the gifts and opportunities which are mine because of my birth. My pride must also take the form of determination.

When I fall I must ask for strength from the source of all strength, pick myself up, and continue on, knowing that aid is mine when I need it. So pride and humility, which seem to be opposites, are actually bound up together.

My pride in recognizing my inheritance and my worth leads me to be humble at my down-fallings. The courage and determination which my humility compels me to ask for, makes me proud that my request may be granted, at that I may have another chance to make good.

I hold the truth that life must be lived with zest and determination. It holds great promises and great rewards. The rewards are incidental. The accomplishments which are possible are overwhelming to think of.

Report of Pinebrook: Chancellor's Message

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Director

"Universities have a very unique place in our American culture," Chancellor William P. Tolley noted in a talk last weekend at the Campus Leaders' Pinebrook conference.

He said that one might think at first of factories or public buildings in connection with our culture, but development of the universities is our crowning factor. All are relatively young, the oldest about 300 years, Syracuse only about 80.

"Together with the public schools and churches," he said, "universities are the most influential institutions we have." Sometimes we think they should follow the culture rather than lead, but they shouldn't be too quiet in time of discussion or conflict, he said.

Dr. Tolley noted that relations between students and faculty are good here. "Because we are still a young university," he said, "we can still change. You have a voice in this shaping—more than just the planning of new buildings," he told the group.

The Chancellor presented a picture of the Board of Trustees and the other University boards: the University Senate, Board of the Institute of Industrial Research, and boards of the Colleges of Law and Architecture.

Functions of the Board of Trustees, which holds all the property of the University in trust, are (a) select a chancellor when a vacancy exists; (b) enunciate policies, (c) increase financial resources, and (d) guard physical properties and endowments.

The Trustees have little to do with academics, which falls within the scope of the University Senate, a coordinating body for all the colleges. "A great deal of power resides in the faculties of the individual colleges," Dr. Tolley said.

He raised three problems facing Syracuse:

1. Syracuse is not a rich school by endowment, and the dollar problem is a constant. Alumni should give the school $1 million a year, though at present the figure is only $200,000.

2. Responsibility for the rest of the world. Only the American type of education is going to be of any use in backward countries. We must address ourselves to education for change, and get ready for the problems of tomorrow.

3. Problem of numbers. By 1974 there will be twice as many college students as today, but this doesn't mean that Syracuse must be twice as large. Syracuse is more selective today than at any time in the past five years, and it will be "tougher and tougher" to be admitted.

The graduate - undergraduate ratio is also under study. During the early past of World War II, the split was 6,000 to 500. Today it is 6,000 to 2,500. The student body must help in determining the answers to these questions.

Dr. Tolley noted that progress is being made on programs for gifted students, but that the communication problem has prevented some students from hearing of such programs.

Campus Radio: Presentation of WAER's Policy

By DICK CASE

Radio station WAER has, in its brief history at Syracuse, garnered a large and unfavorable reputation as a "secret station." This title was bestowed upon the FM outlet by a small group of persons who turned into a near-joke the simple fact of life that WAER is unable to reach the average Syracuse student and is therefore "secret."

It is closer to the truth that most students not only cannot hear WAER's programs but up until this year knew little if anything about the station.

In an attempt to clarify WAER's point of view and perhaps release the fog which hovers about the radio shack, the Daly Orange offers an interview with James Fellows, program director of the station. Fellows answered to a series of questions most commonly asked of his station.

1. What, in your estimation, is the basic function of WAER as a radio station? Is its loyalty first to the University or to its audience?—To provide a service to the city of Syracuse that other stations in the area do not find it commercially feasible to present. This is implemented by fulfilling a second basic function: to represent the University.

Any station's loyalty must be to its audience, of course. At the same time we are loyal to the audience, we are loyal to the University by accurately representing it to this audience.

2. Is WAER really a "secret station" to the students of the University? If so, why?—Yes, because until recently it has not been powerful enough. (Only in the past four years, WAER has had 1000 watts power which reaches, at the least all of Onondaga county). FM is a limited medium. There is a very small amount of FM sets on campus. Also, until recently, WAER has had inadequate publicity on campus. There has also been apathy on the part of earlier WAER staffs.

3. What is the main concern of WAER: to break in new recruits to the radio business or to act as an effective radio outlet?—To act as an effective radio outlet. Most people on the staff have had some commercial training. WAER's policy, in regard to experience, it to add to it and not to initiate it, in most cases.

4. What is meant by the term "educational radio"?—This is a difficult question to answer and it has never been answered to the satisfaction of those who operate in the field. As far as I can see, it is a radio station whose main concern is to do something other than entertain.

In terms of programs, most educational radio shows offer a felt need, what someone at the station thinks the audience ought to be able to hear. Educational radio, as far as WAER is concerned, has nothing to do with classes or professors.

We do not attempt to teach instructionally over the air. Educational shows are not primarily entertaining but in order to have an audience, they must be interesting. If it is well done, the fact that a program is educational should be shown only to the people who produce it.

(To be concluded)

Braun's Article Puzzles Writer

To the Editor:

I have just completed reading Mr. Braun's article in the May 13th issue of The Daily Orange.

I am completely mystified by his article. What is he trying to say? This narrative of his seems to be a conglomeration of quotes, out of context, not even distantly related to each other.

I have painfully searched the article for a main idea, and for continuity of thought but have not been able to find either.

I sincerely wish that Mr. Braun would please try to bear this in mind in the future, or better still have someone proofread his material.

Yours truly,
Frank Zawislan

SIGHTS ON SYRACUSE

Early Morning Auto 'Sinks' Big White Boat

By MILT SHEFTER

Among the standard decorations highlighting Traditional weekends of Hill frats, was a huge boat on Comstock Ave. Early Saturday morning, about 4 a.m., a light convertible tore down the driveway and right through the ship. And so the next morning, the brothers were greeted by scattered tissue paper and chicken wire.

With the help of their neighbors, they reconstructed the entire structure. The party came off as scheduled, and two houses became a little closer. But one person is still involved. We wonder if the driver of that late model, light-colored convertible will ever be found.

* * *

And the band played on . . . .

As part of yesterday's ROTC review, the Pershing Rifle drill team put on a special presentation. What these uniformed acrobats can do to the manual of arms shouldn't happen to a drill sergeant.

Among the spectators was a little brown mongrel which wanted to enlist. However, the team was complete and were not accepting volunteers. After several efforts which succeeded in nothing but distraction, the little dog retired to serve on the home front with the dog biscuit patrol.

* * *

There seems to be another evil in the Slocum basement besides the "buggers." Panels at Pinebrook discussed necking in this area. Members of Traditions Commission were unavailable for comment but it's reported that they were highly incensed over this.

All their orientation is geared around Thornden and the water tower. It is not yet known why Slocum is the setting for most campus evil, but a full investigation will start June 7th.

* * *

There comes a time when all good things must end—there also comes a time when we must finish. We've had a lot of fun writing "sights" and if you got a little amusement or relief from class grind from it, we've served our purpose. So we'll type our temporary "thirty" too.

And now if you'll excuse us, we must study for our finals or we won't be back to crusade for traffic lights next year.

P.S. Best of luck on the finals and have a nice summer.

Slocum Is Not Lone Hangout Of the 'Bugger'

To the Editor:

Although the problem of "line-crashing" in the Commons in Slocum seems to have been solved, the practice of crowding into line in other dining halls has not yet been dealt with. If anything, it has become more prevalent since it was first discussed in The Daily Orange several weeks ago.

I am referring particularly to the conditions in Sims dining hall. Although a host is stationed at the exit of the hall, he rarely tells anyone who is seen crowding in to go to the end of the line. Maybe he does not see them, but the practice has become so common during the last few days that it would be hard to overlook the students who get in line with their friends, making others behind them wait to be served.

The construction of the building is a factor in promoting "line-crashing." The rear exit of the men's room is often used to enter the line, for it is located away from the entrance to the dining hall. There is also an entrance from the Sims living centers at the same end of the lounge. These two doors permit many students to enter the line without being noticed.

It seems that, with all the publicity about the problem in Slocum, students eating in other dining halls would take a hint and give a little consideration to those already in line.

Letter to the Editor: View on Cooperation

To the Editor:

Mr. Alvin Applegate in his letter to the editor of May 12 unfortunately exhibited not only a complete lack of understanding of why the recent MSG proposal for a joint Assembly steering committee was rejected by the WSG Assembly but also a misrepresentation of the desire for cooperation between the two governments.

The proposal was made and it was passed by the MSG Assembly without consulting WSG first. Had it gone through the proper channels, all differences of opinion could have been ironed out and an agreement reached before being brought to the floor of the WSG Assembly.

The Assembly most certainly did not object to the idea of coordination between the two Assemblies; it merely disagreed with this particular plan for providing such coordination.

The proposal suggested a committee of at least 14 persons, a group much too large to accomplish what two or four people could do much more efficiently and completely.

Meetings once a month would be too infrequent; the week-to-week meetings of the Assemblies require weekly planning between the two speakers and Panel chairmen. WSG this year tried to do just that.

WSG recognizes the imperative need for the two governments to unite their efforts in all the phases of common interests and in the joint goal of serving the campus.

It is my impression that there has been a great feeling of friendship and a desire to work together on the part of both the governments and I'm certain that these sentiments will continue.

The WSG Assembly is looking forward to another proposal for a joint Assembly steering committee.

Read Carefully And Watch Out For Gremlins

We quote from The Daily Orange of Friday, May 14, 1954, a day that may live in infamy because of the following:

"The University's 1954-55 budget is nearly completed, according to Dr. Tolley. It contains no advance in tuition from the present $200 per year."

The casual reader may have skimmed over this without quite being ablt to put his finger on the error. To avoid unnecessary waste of time, and as a public service, we hereby state that tuition is at present $700.

As to the cause for this discrepency: it was the gremlins. These little elves hang out not only in airplanes but in the local Linotype machines. They add and subtract letters as a game to pass the time of day.

And so we're just a little worried that the "$200" we've quoted in the second paragraph may turn up "$700" and ruin the point of all this.

Lacrosse Team Makes Bid For Cox Trophy

By LEE KIKLIER
Executive Sports Editor

In one of the biggest color clashes of the season, Syracuse's Orange lacrosse team travels to Cornell's Schoellkopf Field to meet the Big Red today at 4:15 p.m. The chances are that the winner can have the Class B Laurie Cox Trophy for the asking.

Cornell's Red are "Big" this year. They have lost only one game, that an overtime loss to Class A Yale. Coach Jim Smith, who doubles as assistant athletic director has molded a fine team around several veterans.

IN THE center slot, Smith's attack features Capt. Herb Bool, a senior who quarterbacked the football team last season. One of the midfielders is co-Capt. Dave Bradfield, a Big Red basketball player. Clarence Fauntleroy, who high-schooled with Bruce Yancey, is the other midfielder.

Coach Smith has nominated three of his players for the North all-star team: Bradfield, Hopper and Bob Schriver, an excellent feeder in the Cornell plan.

Simmons' men came out of the Rensselaer Polytechnic game in good style and he expects to start the same club down in Cornell.

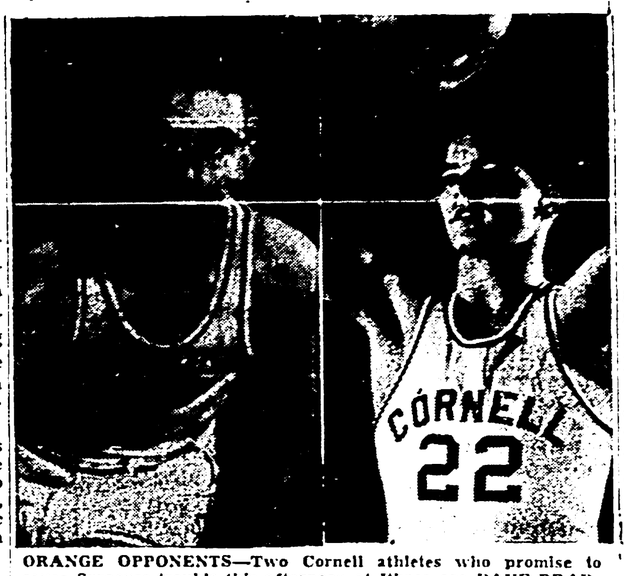
STANDING ON the six-point base that the RPI win formed, the Orange will still have to swing to get the five points that a Cornell win offers. Cornell is said to be a better team than RPI, having more experience and better shooting accuracy.

Cornell's single loss to tough Yale was not the one-sided game the 14-9 score indicates. Cornell led at half-time, 6-5, and was never headed, but repeatedly tied, throughout the rest of the match.

Yale scored first and early in the overtime and Cornell became desperate. The Eli's took advantage and scored five goals.

EARLY IN the season, Cornell stumped through the heartland of lacrosse, the South, and came through uncatched. Their most notable triumph was an 11-6 win over Baltimore, which the week before had upset traditional toughie Loyola of Baltimore, 10-5.

So when Roy Simmons loads his boys on the bus for Cornell this afternoon, visions of the Cox trophy will dance in their heads; but Cornell will have the same dream.



ORANGE OPPONENTS—Two Cornell athletes who promise to cause Syracuse trouble this afternoon at Ithaca are DAVE BRADFIELD and LEE MORTON. Co-captains of last season's basketball team, the senior duo has split up for the spring with Morton playing baseball and Bradfield roaming the lacrosse field.

Diamondmen Seek Second Win of Year

By BOB LEFKO
Associate Sports Editor

Syracuse's baseball forces will be out to break a four-game losing streak this afternoon when they travel to Ithaca to visit the Cornell Big Red. Games time is 4:15 p.m.

Victory-less since their season's opener against Union April 24, the Pietymen will have to win their remaining four clashes to come out above the .500 mark.

COACH TED Kleinhans will probably nominate veteran Mickey Kyff for mound duty against the Cornellians. Kyff saw relief action against Clarkson Monday but so did just about every other member of the staff.

The veteran Cornell nine enters the fray with an impressive record above the 50-50 mark. Their most recent win was a 9-4 shellacking of Penn Saturday.

Coach Royner Greene is expected to call on righty Joe Marotta or Bob Young for hurling duty for the Big Red. Marotta, a 180-lb. junior has been the most effective hurler for the Ithacans.

LEADING THE Cornell offense will be second baseman, Capt. Don Jacobs, a .426 slugger last year. Top power for the hosts is provided by shortstop Lee Morton and catcher John Simek.

Morton, co-captain of the basketball squad, was the first player to hit a homer over the Cornell right field wall in 17 years. Simek, a soph, is an outstanding prospect.

Sophomore Bill Wham has provided the power for the locals in recent competition, connecting for two round-trippers in the 15-8 loss to Clarkson. Wham, a surprise stater, kept the Orangemen close in the slubfest.

Kleinhans may shift his lineup around today hoping to find a winning combination and few positions are definite.

Sports Notebook

By LOWELL TOENNIESSEN, Sports Editor

Stan Musial is once again driving National League pitchers to the bomb shelters, collegiate crews are working hard in preparation for the annual IRA regatta and the nation's top three-year-olds are vying for racing's Triple Crown. All this goes to prove that spring is nearly spent and summer is almost upon us.

But one thing is missing from the picture—spring football practice.

A year ago the University's Administrative Board on Athletics voted to abolish spring practice in 1954. Ben Schwartzwalder and his grid aides were allowed off-season drills last year because the two-platoon system had recently been banned. Then too, seven Orange opponents were scheduled for spring workouts.

Although, to the best of my knowledge, no specific statement of policy was issued by the University or the Athletic Department, there seem to be three major reasons for the board's actions: First, collegiate football was under fire at the time for alleged over-emphasis and "professionalism." Second, our relations with Cornell and and Colgate were under great strain, especially when the traditional rivals decided to end spring drills. And third, spring sports were suffering on Piety Hill.

And so, spring football practice went the way of the dodo and the mastodon.

But then, like the boy who wanted to eat his cake and have it too, Syracuse University—which had just abolished spring practice because of "over-emphasis"—decided it wanted "big-time" football. And so, Army, Pittsburgh and West Virginia were added to the 1955 schedule. And the rumors, whether founded or not, continue to flow that Maryland will be next.

This basically-inconsistent, hypocrytical policy is what raised the dander and motivated this article in the first place.

Don't get me wrong; I'm not necessarily an advocate of spring football. The game would suffer little and everyone would probably be just as happy if it were abolished on a national scale. But that doesn't seem to be in the cards.

To be sure, there are many arguments against spring practice—probably more than there are for same. "Why, for example, should a two or three-sport athlete be restricted from participating in spring sports?" Just ponder the contributions of Dick Darr, Eddie Albright, Paul Slick and Joe Orzehowski to the Orange nine; of Don Laaksonen to the lacrosse team; or of Pete Schwert to the track squad. These boys, free from off-season football drills, have helped fill big holes for Coaches Ted Kleinhans, Roy Simmons and Bob Grieve.

Also ask yourself, "Why should a football player be prevented from devoting his off-season to studies or some other aspect of campus life? Why should spring practice itself, a product of the "roaring twenties" when everything had to be bigger and better, be allowed to dominate the modern collegiate scene?"

But no matter how we try, we always come back to that basic inconsistency—a schedule against major football powers who benefit from spring practice while being deprived of those benefits ourselves.

There is a ray of hope, however. The general opinion seems to be that "No spring practice" is not a hard and fast policy; 1954 may be just a test year.

Syracuse has an eight-game slate ready for next fall. Four of those opponents—Fordham, Illinois, Penn State and Villanova—have spring football; four do not. It's just hope Ben Schwartzwalder and his boys don't have to be the "guinea pigs" to prove this inconsistency. Let's hope 1954 is a winning football season for Bill Orange.

Freshman Nine To Play Ithaca

The Syracuse yearlings take on the Ithaca frosh today at 3:30 p.m. on Lew Carr Field in their final home contest of the season.

The Tangerines will be out to make it three in a row while the Ithacans will be trying to avenge last Saturday's 4-2 defeat.

Coach Joe McDaniel expects to start Bill Williams on the mound. Williams owns a 4-3 victory over Colgate and was the victim in the 2-1 loss to Cornell. His strikeout total is an impressive 22 for the two games.

Frosh Lacrossers To Visit Hobart

Coach John Echeandia's frosh lacrosse team return a visit today when they travel to Hobart to retake on the Hobart yearlings. The Tangerines, now at 3-2, hold a 16-10 Hendricks Field win over Hobart.

Led this season by streak scorers John Stawecki and Paul O'Donahue, the Orange frosh have yet to win on the road.

In the previous game, Hobart stayed in contention for most of the first half. In the face of a 5-5 score, John Stawecki rolled in three. O'Donahue was again top scorer in that game with five goals and six assists.

Phi Alpha Chi Beats Tau Delt For Fraternity Softball Crown

By EV MURCH

In a see-saw, nip-and-tuck battle last night on Hendricks Field, Phi Alpha Chi squeezed out an 8-7 victory over Tau Delta Phi to clinch the fraternity intramural softball championship.

Trailing 7-5 going into the sixth frame, the men of Phi Alpha reached Tau Delt hurler Joel Feidelman for a pair of runs to knot it up and then, in the final stanza, won the game on a walk, single, and an error.

LOU PETRICOLA was the winning pitcher as he allowed only four hits, but had wildness trouble which cost him four runs in the first. He also belted the big blow of the game, a triple to right in the fifth.

Phi Alpha Chi opened the scoring in the top of the initial frame as four consecutive singles brought in three tallies. However, in the bottom of the inning, Tau Delt racked up four scores of their own on an error, two free passes, and Lou Grossman's double.

The next three innings saw fine pitching by Feidelman and Petricola with no hits and few baserunners. Feidelman cracked first in the fifth, giving up a base on balls and then Petricola's line triple to right. An error on the catcher allowed the second run of the inning and Phi Alpha led, 5-4.

PETRICOLA HAD his worst time in the last of the fifth when Tau Delt brought in three runs on a walk and a trio of bingles.

This was the last threat by the Tau Delts and Petricola's teammates went to work to put him back in the game.

Netmen Lose to Colgate; Cornell to Host Hill Golfers

By ALEX STRASSER
Associate Sports Editor

Colgate University continued on its winning tennis ways yesterday afternoon when it downed a determined but outmanned Orange squad, 6-3, on the Skytop courts. The victory was Colgate's sixth in the last three weeks.

Capt. John Kerr got the Orange off winning with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over the Raiders' Lewis. Colgate evened the score with a victory by Hipkins over Pete Latham, 6-3, 6-0.

MARV POMERANTZ then defeated Tom Long of Syracuse, 6-0, 6-3, to give Colgate a 2-1 lead in the match.

When Pete Bratt lost the match to Ed Soderlund, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, Colgate took a lead which they never lost. Al Bernstein of the Orange won the next event, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, to bring the Saltines within one point but this was as close as Syracuse got.

Al Bernstein won his tennis matches against Sampson AFB and Penn State over the weekend by scores of 6-3, 6-2, and 6-2, 6-0. It was erroneously reported in yesterday's Daily Orange that he had lost both matches.

Goff Lebhar has started in all of the Orange contests and is one of the net regulars though omitted from the list of starters in yesterday's issue.

The Kerr-Bratt and Al Bernstein-Goff Lebhar duos won doubles matches for the Orange.

This afternoon the Orange team journeys to Ithaca to meet Cornell. Yesterday the Linksmen beat Sampson AFB, 5½-3½.

Boasting a 5-1 record in dual meets outings, the Orange linksmen are out to close the season with their best record since pre-war days.

THE STARTING lineup for tomorrow's match hasn't yet been determined, but co-capts. Bob Mandeville and Gerry Sullivan will hold down the No. 1 and No. 2 positions. Ed St. Pierre and Sam Scoller will probably start from the No. 3 and No. 4 positions.

Mandeville will be going into the match with five dual meet victories under his belt. Should he finish the year undefeated, he would be the first Piety golfer to do so since pre-war days.

"THE GUY'LL LOSE HIS SHIRT!"

"... I walks into this haberdasher just off campus, see, and ask for a white shirt. He starts givin' me this song-and-dance about that Van Heusen Century with the soft collar that supposed to not wrinkle ever. The jerk starts showin' me with some 14-day free trial deal, that if I'm not satisfied after wearing it and washing it for 14 days, he'll gimme my dough back.

"I'm from Brooklyn, see, and I don't trust nobody. I ask the guy, 'What's the catch, buddy?' He says, 'No catch. Wear it as much and as hard as you want. If the collar ever wrinkles or wilts, you get your money back. Wash it yourself. It's easy. You just iron the collar flat, flip it, and it folds perfectly because the fold-line's woven in. If not, your money back.'

"The guy tells me it's the only soft one-piece collar in the world, that it lasts up to twice as long as other shirts and only costs $3.95 for whites and $4.95 in colors and superfine whites. I tell him he's nuts to make such a stupid offer. I tell him he'll lose his shirt. It's a kind of joke, see. I figure no shirt will live up to all that malarky.

"And y'know what? I been wearin' and washin' it now for a hunerd and fourteen days, and I still can't find nothin' wrong with it."

Chem Honorary Society Takes 12 New Members

Alpha Tau Chapter of Phi Lambda Upsilon, honorary chemical society, held its annual initiation on May 15 at Bowne Hall.

The new members of the organization are the following: Faculty: Dr. Walter Katz and Dr. Gordon Moulds. Graduate students: Vincent Ambrosiani, Sol Gilman, Leonard Ginsberg, Carl Horner, Frederic Leavitt, Richard Sands and Richard Waack. Undergraduates: Kling Goodwin, Melvin Leibson and Maung Boon Sone.

THE PURPOSE of the society is to promote high scholarship and original investigation in all branches of pure and applied chemistry and its members are chosen on the basis of outstanding scholastic achievement.

The Syracuse Chapter was founded three years ago and since that time has engaged in several worthwhile activities. One of these is the presentation of awards to students who have displayed creative ability and unusual achievement in their undergraduate chemistry courses. This year's awards will be presented by Prof. Henry E. Wirth, chairman of the department.

The Fresenius award in general chemistry will go to Wayne Lee, Charles Martinez and Joan Seism; The Fresenius award in analytical chemistry will go to Lawrence Krisher. Henry Brown will receive the Van't Hoff award in physical chemistry and Aristake Kachadourian will receive the Liebig award in organic chemistry.

THE CHAPTER also instituted bi-monthly film shows featuring movies on chemical subjects open to the public. This program will be continued in the fall.

Election of officers was held during the last meeting. Outgoing are: Joseph W. Collins, president; T. Mark Korn, vice-president; Henry R. Bungay III, secretary-treasurer; Siegfried Aftergut, corresponding secretary; Dr. Henry E. Wirth, councillor.

theatrical group that year. Last year's winner was Sigma Alpha Mu. This year the same house shared in honors with three others whose aid was outstanding. They were: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Iota Alpha Pi, and Alpha Phi.

Professor Sawyer Falk, head of the department spoke about the ideals of the honorary and the theater in general. He emphasized the great importance of faith and integrity which the artist must have in his work and himself.

FALK ALSO presented the Gould cup, which is given to the individual showing outstanding ability in any phase of theater activity. The cup was jointly presented to Sheldon Wiener and Gilbert Cates for excellence in stage managing. The cup was first presented in 1949 when John Jay Moore received the honor for technical work.

Gerald Leider, now an instructor in the drama dept., won the Gould cup both in '52 and '53.

Recent initiates into Boar's Head, drama honorary are: Ann Higbee, Helen Hurdus, Sidney Flynn, Parker Connors, Francesca Kalcheim, Alfred Gross, James Trantum and Mario Forte.

'Dilemma' Staff to Return Supporters' Contributions

Dilemma, campus literary magazine, which has been unable to publish this year will return contributions made to aid in the publishing of a spring issue, Prof. Stanford B. Meech of the English department announced yesterday.

The money will be sent from the English office through campus mail, Meech said.

THE MAGAZINE was unable to publish during the first semester because of financial difficulty. During the second semester, repreesntatives of Dilemma contacted students asking for financial support for the magazine.

The signatures of the supporters were to appear on the spring issue of Dilemma. This issue never materialized. The reason was the same as for the first semester. A minimum of $250 is needed to publish the magazine; the amount contributed was $55.

All material needed for publication of the literary magazine has been collected. The editors were holding the funds hoping for further financial aid.

IT WAS decided to return the money when it was realized that it was too late in the semester to publish a spring issue even if the required funds were obtained.

Dilemma, which is sponsored by the board of publications will try to raise enough funds to publish next year. It was felt that holding of the funds that have been collected until the fall would be unfair to those contributors who are seniors and would not receive the publication.

'Up in Lights' Records

Record albums of "Up in Lights" may be purchased at the University Bookstore for $2.50. 1954 ON's may also be picked up there.

Marshall St. Merchant Escaped Nazi Horrors

By JOSEPH GEORGE

A familiar face to diners on Marshall St. belongs to Gregory Stam, owner of one of the local restaurants. But few of his customers would guess that Greg narrowly escaped cremation at the hands of the Nazis during World War II.

When the Nazis gained control of Austria in 1937, Greg was director of the Fruit Import and Export Association, representing the largest American fruit growers' association in Central Europe.

HE AND his family (father mother, three sisters and a brother) were held under "preventive arrest," and then sent to Dachau Concentratoin camp at Munich, Germany.

"My family was cremated and I was beaten and starved, when in October 1938, just before they were to cremate me, I escaped," he said.

"I was alone, it was very cold, I knew the route I was to take over the Swiss Alps into Italy. There I had friends and relatives who would help me," he continued. "I travelled through wooded areas by night, hid by day."

"AS I entered the Alps, I encountered a German patrol. They called for me to 'halt'; I started to run; they opened fire with their machine guns and rifles," he said, as we sat together in his restaurant drinking coffee.

"Fortunately for me, they were poor shots. I eluded them by dashing into a thicket, crawling about like a rabbit. I hid until they passed me by," he said.

"I succeeded in getting over the Alps, and was received by the Italian border guard, with loaded and pointed rifles. The Nazis were close behind. As I approached running, I yelled to them in Italian, hoping they would recognize me as 'Italian and not fire," he stated.

HE FINISHED his coffee, got up to wait on one of his student customers, then returned to say "They let me through. Fortunately it was in 1938, before Hitler and Mussolini joined forces."

By profession, Greg is an agricultural engineer, having graduated from the State University of Agriculture and from the Academy of Commercial Sciences, both in Vienna.

He came to Syracuse University to teach Russian in the Air Force program at Collendale and was soon appointed a senior instructor. Last September he went into business for himself on Marshall St. and presently lives at 628 S. Crouse Ave.

Born in Odessa, Russia in July, 1908, next year he hopes to receive his citizenship papers.

Applications Ready For Overseas Study In Fulbright Plan

Eligible Students May Apply to Government For Graduate Studies

Competition for United States government scholarships for graduate study abroad for 1955-56 will open soon, according to an announcement by Kenneth Holland, president of the Institute of International Education.

Application blanks will be available the week of May 31 in the Dean of Men's office or at the Institute of International Education, 1 E. 67th St., New York City. A brochure describing overseas study awards under the Fulbright program and the Buenos Aires Convention Program has just been published by the Institute.

ELIGIBILITY requirements for these foreign study fellowships are: United States citizenship, a college degree or its equivalent by the time the award is received, knowledge of the language of the country sufficient to carry on the proposed study, and good health.

Competition for the 1955-56 academic year closes Nov. 1, 1954. An exception is the program of New Zealand, for which Oct. 15 is the closing date.

Final selection of Fulbright grantees is made by the Board of Foreign Scholarships appointed by President Eisenhower. The Institute of International Education, private agency in administering the United States for exchange students programs, is the organization designated by the Board and the Department of State to screen applications.

UNDER THE Buenos Aires Convention, the Institute makes the preliminary recommendation of candidates, with the cooperating countries making the final selection of candidates for study within their borders.

The Fulbright and Buenos Aires Programs are part of the educational exchange activities of the Department of State. They will give almost 1000 American citizens the chance to study abroad.

Since the establishment of the Fulbright Program in 1947, over 3,500 American students have gone abroad under its auspices and almost 1,000 more are scheduled to go in September 1954. Under the older Buenos Aires convention, awards have been made to 97 Americans since the program's beginning.

Fulbright awards are made entirely in the currencies of participating countries abroad. The awards cover transportation, tuition, books and maintenance for one academic year. Under the Buenos Aires Convention, grants include transportation provided by the US government, and tuition and maintenance allowances provided by the host governments.

Honors Program To Accept Frosh

Freshmen who have maintained a 2.0 accumulative average on a full schedule in the College of Liberal Arts at the end of the present semester will be eligible to participate in the sophomore honors program next year. They must have completed all freshman requirements.

Under this plan, students will not be required to continue two courses begun in the freshman year. Participants will take courses as guides rather than as requirements. The advisor will assist the student in setting up the individual programs.

SU Two-Year Scholarships Replace Four Year Grants

By TOM LONG
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse University Trustee scholarship previously awarded for four years will be granted for two years in the future, Frank P. Piskor, vice-president and dean of student services announced yesterday.

THE NEW two-year full-tuition grants will give students $700 for each of their first two years at Syracuse. Piskor stressed that the ruling affects new students enrolling in September, 1954, and does not concern students awarded scholarships in previous years.

Students receiving the scholarships will be eligible for annual renewal of the award for their third and fourth years depending upon academic performance, financial need and school citizenship. The new ruling will not affect holders of Alumni club, Faculty and Employees Dependent scholarships or supplementary grants to winners of New York state Regents scholarships.

Recipients of the grants must maintain a 1.5 cumulative average in all work carried as in the past.

STUDENTS who are not awarded scholarships for their first two academic years may also apply for one-year grants at the end of their sophomore or junior years. They will be considered along with holders of Trustee scholarships for future aid.

Winners of Citizenship scholarships and Fine Arts awards will also be affected by the ruling.

The records of students receiving scholarships will be reviewed at the end of the sophomore year by the University Scholarship committee. If the student has maintained the necessary average and fulfilled his other obligations, he will be considered for renewal of his grant.

Coeds Show Little Interest In Panel on Dining Problems

No concrete interest in attending an open meeting to discuss student participation on a University menu committee has been indicated by coeds who eat in Hill dining halls, according to a statement yesterday by Patricia Mosher, former chairman of the Women's Student Government panel on student welfare.

Announcement that such a meeting would be held this semester if enough women students contacted panel members at one of three phone numbers was made in an earlier edition of The Daily Orange.

THE POSSIBILITY of student advice in planning dining hall menus had been revealed after extensive investigation this year by members of the student welfare panel. Because of many complaints about meals or food, Mrs. Ursula Pettengill, food service director, had agreed to include representatives from each of the four dining hall areas on the menu committee.

All reasonable suggestions for changes in food, preparation or service would be considered by regular members of the committee, Mrs. Pettengill said.

She has been responsible for a number of improvements in food service this semester as a result of consultation with Student Welfare Panel members. These include double milk servings at either lunch or dinner, choice of two desserts at each meal and condiments on tables at all times.

"I HAVE had good reports from people who are awed at the change at Shaw," Miss Mosher said yesterday. The new policies have also been adopted in Winchell, Sims and Washington Arms.

Other innovations which have been discussed, many of which will probably be in effect in the near future, are the possibility of serving peanut butter and jelly for those who do not like particular foods which may be on the menu, and additional space to leave trays in Sims.

Dining halls are at present serving more eggs at breakfast than have been given to students in the past. Food service officials are now working on a possible special menu for Jewish students at the University.

MISS MOSHER indicated that work will continue in the fall on menu committee representatives. A mimeographed list will probably be sent to all living centers in each dining hall area with dates on which students may attend a meeting of the committee.

The list will be coordinated so that three student representatives will be present at each menu committee session.

Boxed lunches for students who cannot eat at the regular noon hour in dining halls because of class conflicts is another possibility under consideration by food service officials. Work on this will also be continued when the fall session gets underway.

The University food service carries on operations in a total of 16 places, including the infirmary, Campus Commons, the Faculty club, Pinebrook, Minnowbrook and a catering service.

-- Correction --
Senior Exec Council Named in Sept.

The Daily Orange yesterday incorrectly stated that eight students had been named to the senior class executive council. These students are members of the present junior executive council.

Samuel Shawhan, class president, has announced that the senior executive council will be completed in the fall. Present members of the council are: Shawhan, Cynthia Satow, Jacquelyn Jarrett, Gregg Doherty, Marcia Sank, and Arthur Koeppel.

International NSA Meetings Scheduled

Foreign Conferences Set for Summer

Two international conferences have been scheduled for this summer by the National Students Association.

The Fifth International Student Seminar will be held in San Remo, Italy from late July to middle August, under the sponsorship of the Italian National Union of Students and the NSA of the United States. All European national unions will be represented.

"FREEDOM OF Culture" will be the topic under consideration. In addition to the daily discussions, excursions, visits, and similar activities are listed on the program.

Applicants will be responsible for all traveling expenses, but the cost of the actual seminar will not exceed twenty dollars.

The Japanese International Conference, sponsored by the International Student Association of Japan, will include representatives from approximately 20 Asian countries. It will be held from July 11-August 11.

"Crisis of our Times" is to be the general topic.

NSA IS ATTEMPTING to raise funds to cover traveling expenses to Japan. Delegates will be responsible only for incidental expenses.

All students at NSA member schools are eligible to apply. Applications are due by June 4. Those accepted will be notified approximately June 10. Lucille Levine and George Kibbey are NSA co-chairmen on the Hill.

Officers Elected By Alpha Sigma Phi

Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity recently elected officers to serve for the fall semester. They are: President, William Carrigan; Vice-president, James Barnum; Secretary, Theodore Wilson; Treasurer, Richard Ernst; Corresponding Secretary, Roger Kemp; Marshall, David Denton; Pledge trainer, Robert Finger; House Manager, Joseph La Spisa; and Rushing Chairman, Thomas Kennedy.

Miss Swalm Named Leaders Group Head

Martindale Selected Executive Secretary

JoAnn Swalm, a junior in business administration, will head Campus Leaders organization next year. She was appointed to the positions during the recent Pinebrook conference.

Serving as executive secretary will be Robert Martindale, a sophomore in the School of Speech.

MISS SWALM, 20, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Swalm of Malden, Mass. She is a member of Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, and is chief justice of the women's student court.

Co-chairman of this year's Campus Chest drive, Miss Swalm is also a junior guide and was a junior court justice. She was a member of Lambda Sigma Sigma, junior women's honorary.

Martindale, a member of Kappa Sigma Fraternity, was elected junior class president for next year, and was also tapped by Orange Key, junior men's honorary. He also works at WAER. His home is in Kenmore.

Campus Leaders consists of the two top officers of every major organizations on campus. It meets every month to discuss campus problems, and also sponsors the annual Pinebrook weekends.

This year Jane Dempsey and Deane Lavendar headed the group.

Selective Service Forms Available

Applications for Selective Service form 109 for student deferments are available now and may be picked up in the Dean of Men's office.

Men who are planning to return to school next fall and want deferment under the student qualification should get these blanks as soon as possible, stated Assistant Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford.

FORM 109 is a report of class standing for the academic year 1953-54. The applications must be in before the end of the school year.

Graduates, forestry and law students do not need to return these forms to the Dean of Men's office. Men in those classifications should submit their requests to the dea of their colleges.

Scores on the selective service college qualification test should be indicated on the 109 request cards if known, Clifford said.

Vet Grants Unaffected

The State War Veteran scholarships will not be affected by the announcement that no claims for Regents Scholarships will be allowed this summer session, according to Assistant Dean of Men Earle W. Clifford.

Loser's Honorary Sets Annual Picnic

Sigma Omicron Beta, campus losers' dishonorary, will hold its annual initiation rites at a picnic tomorrow at Chittenango Falls. The group will leave the former site of Yates castle at 3 p.m. All people with cars are urged to bring them.

Charter member Fred B. Burke, now a grad student at Yale university, will act as chef for the afternoon. All members, pledges and guests must make reservations and pay their $2 fees by 11:15 p.m. today with Janet Caro, Shaw dorm.

THE FOLLOWING people will be rushed: Elizabeth Goddard, Thomas Bird, Daniel Merims, Richard Elman, Samuel Braun, William Angelos, Malcom Foster, JoAnn Swalm, William Murray, Sheila Hicks, Arthur Koeppel, Richard Menschel, Rita Frankiel, Pearl Bernstein, Milton Shefter, Lois Cohn, and Joan Nadelhaft. Invited guests include Mary A. Dalton, Stanley Leff, Dorianne Bright, Stuart Parker, Stephen Reiss, Sandra Eaken and Bruce Yancey, plus the 22 active members of the group.

The organization is dedicated to all those who have lost campus elections. Adlai E. Stevenson, honorary advisor to the group, has sent a letter to be read at the picnic.

Prof. Graeme O'Geran Edits Economics Book

Economics Professor Graeme O'Geran is one of the editors and is chief contributor of "An Introduction to the Social Sciences," published this month by The Telegraph Press, Philadelphia.

The volume deals with sociology, political science and economics; and is designed as a survey-introductory course in citizenship. Approximately one-third of the book—concerning economic facets of contemporary America—has been written by O'Geran.

LAST YEAR, O'Geran also edited and contributed to "An Introduction to Modern Economics," a beginning economics book published by The Dryden Press and now being used at New York University, Temple University and other schools.

That volume concerns government participation in economic life.

From 1945-52, O'Geran was a contributor to the Grolier Society's Book of Knowledge, for which he discussed trade and economic problems.

Holding degrees from the University of Michigan, University of Wisconsin and Laurence College, O'Geran wrote his doctoral dissertation on the history of the Detroit Street Railway. The thesis was published by the late Sen. James Couzens of Michigan.

O'Geran, in addition to being a professor and author, is also an expert in public utilities and American economic history.

Engineers Group Elects Officers

New officers for Eta Kappa Nu, national electrical engineering honorary, are as follows: Henry Juda, president; Ronald Kanner, vice-president; Gerald Gary, recording secretary; Kelvin Smith, corresponding secretary; John Jureller, treasurer; James Holbrook, "Bridge" correspondent.

Food Service Starts New Diet Program

A new special diet program will be controlled and operated by the University Health Service for 1954-55.

The Health Service plans to establish a special diet table with a special dining room for this purpose. Applicants will eat in the dining room in the infirmary. Cost will be $18.75 per week.

The Infirmary will accept only eight applicants. A private physician of the applicant must report that students require a special diet.

The Student Personnel Committee will review results of the year's program and will decide if there is a need for this in future years.

Yachters to Elect New Commodore

The yacht club will elect a new commodore at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. today in 204 HL.

Also to be elected are vice-commodore, rear commodore, secretary-treasurer, fleet captain and four trustees. Colored movies of the up-state women's regatta held on Onondaga Lake last week will be shown.

Exhibit Features Student Work

A cross section of art created by Syracuse University students will close the monthly exhibits at Lowe Art Center this year. Opening at 4 p.m. today at the center, the show will feature 500 pieces of all types.

Ivan Mestrovic, world famous Yugoslav sculptor and teacher at the center, will offer works done by his students. The ceramics display is under the supervision of Mrs. Ruth Randall, and Miss Helen Williams is in charge of the class exhibiting novel jewelry.

Tapestries, paintings, mosaic art, weavings and a piece of stained glass also compose a major part of the exhibit.

Norman L. Rice, director of the art center, is overall chairman of the exhibit. Each teacher chooses the best products of his classes for past year for display.

"This show gives the rest of the campus a chance to see what the art students do," James Dwyer, art instructor, said yesterday. Refreshments will be served at the exhibit.

CERAMICS OF ALL sizes, shapes and varieties are among pieces on display at the art center. The show features about 500 articles prepared by students in crafts courses. Each instructor exhibits the best work of his pupils since September.

ABSTRACT DESIGN panels are part of a Syracuse University art exhibit which opens today at Lowe Art Center. These tapestries, set up in the art building, are included in the final monthly display for this year. (Photos by Miriam Esser)

Hill Professor Visits Wisconsin

Syracuse University professor of education, Harry S. Ganders will teach this summer at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin.

Dr. Ganders will begin his teaching duties on June 28, according to Dean John Guy Fowlkes, director of the University of Wisconsin Summer Session.

Formerly the Dean of the School of Education, Ganders was a transfer professor to London in 1948. He has written many books and articles.

Phi Sigma Sigma Installs New Head

Sandra Stoller was recently installed as Phi Sigma Sigma's president.

Other officers include Carol Ackerson, vice archon; Myrna Horowitz, tribue; Candy Guterwitz, corresponding secretary; Leita Addison, bursar; Ruth Bleir, rushing chairman; Vicki-Ellen Herman, social chairman.

Governmental Year in Review

Student government has gone through a strange sort of year.

As Mary Anne Dalton, president of Women's Student Government, described it, "This year has not seen a job well done, but one at least well begun." Things moved ahead during 1953-54 in WSG and Men's Student Government, but there remain many fields where government merely brushed or never touched. It was a productive year, yet the actual accomplishments are hard to measure at present. Groundwork was laid and beginnings made.

The year was critical for MSG. The assembly, bulwark of the government, was not functional. Much of 1952-53 was concerned with revision of the group into an efficient body to better serve the male student on the Hill. A new assembly election plan was instituted and got its initial tryout last fall.

Once again the assembly ran into trouble. All 36 spots could not be filled because of lack of competition, especially among upperclassmen. The legislature, despite its incomplete number, operated throughout the year; last month saw all but four posts filled by campus-wide balloting. It remains to be seen whether or not the new assembly setup is the best possible.

In WSG, house presidents for the first time formed the assembly as sole legislative body and from their number a speaker was elected by women students. Many found during the year, however, that continuity suffered somewhat at mid-year by re-election of house presidents, in many instances bringing in new blood unacquainted with the assembly and its progress during the first part of the year. Civil service was also developed under a new constitution approved a year ago. WSG's various commissions, which had progressed at different rates, were coordinated and the structure formalized under the civil service chief.

The governments worked together in three areas--administrative, legislative and executive. Weakest of these was the legislative, where the assemlies often worked in different directions. Both MSG and WSG assemblies were in a year of trial. Both had been revised--WSG from a bicameral system and MSG from a house representative setup.

Actual accomplishments for the most part in the legislatures were improvements of old things or framework for new. The joint student court was established permanently. An organizations registration act now requires all student groups to file forms with student government. Elections regulation included passage of a political parties act, an anti-noise measure and protest board procedure.

National Student Association brought investigation by a joint government panel to determine NSA's role on the Syracuse campus. Reserved seating, instituted in the fall, was also under fire; a list of solutions and areas demanding further investigation was prepared. Further work by students in this important field is necessary.

Plans for a student activities center in the basement of the Women's Building were developed. Also set up by government was a student activities committee, which ran dance classes and Friday night mixer dances in the Women's Building.

The government moved ahead with student discount service. Seven merchants in the University area now give discounts to students who secure cards through MSG-WSG and NSA.

Food and housing problems of students were tackled by both MSG and WSG, but action proved somewhat ineffective mainly through failure of students.

MSG panel investigations kept hope alive that an intramural insurance program could be tried again. Also considered was the status of minor sports.

Both governments carried on training programs. WSG's Through the Keyhole once again outshone its MSG counterparts, Future Student Leaders and now Insight. More than 200 women were graduated from TTK, while only about 60 men received completion certificates. The trend as far as TTK is concerned is away from being just a student government training program and towards being an orientation for all campus life. On the other hand, both MSG courses suffered because of a weak program which those men outside of government interests did not care to take.

The women were far ahead of the men in at least two fields. Both demand the attention of the men in the fall. At present there is no adequate foreign student guide program for men. This is an area that must be investigated. WSG's social chairmen's assembly could well be copied in some form by MSG.

The executives of MSG and WSG worked during the year with student leaders from Colgate University to renew and attempt to revise the anti-vandalism pact. More work to foster both friendship and tradition between Syracuse and the Maroon is due in the fall.

Government is still in the evolutionary stage. This is apparent from the many changes that become necessary and the lack of appreciable progress. Such seemed to be the case during the past year.

The new presidents of MSG and WSG—Stuart Parker and Dorianne Bright—face a hard task. It will be their job to build upon the beginnings made this year. They and their co-workers in student government will be seeking the right steps along that course leading to a better student government of the future.

Dilemma in Dilemma: Will It Be Next to Die?

By JOY YUNKER

Dilemma is in a dilemma.

The campus literary magazine has been dying a slow death this year for lack of finances. The funds necessary to insure publication were not available.

The magazine was first published in 1950. At that time it was not a member of the board of publications and therefore could not solicit advertising.

For the first two years of its existence on campus it was completely subsidized by the English department, and Rho Delta Phi, English honorary.

Last year Dilemma was granted special permission to solicit advertising. This fall the magazine gained the permanent right when it was admitted to the board.

The amount of advertising required could not be raised. The merchants did not find it feasible to support a publication with so limited a circulation.

Patricia (Rusty) Roden and Betty Barsha, then co-editors of the magazine, had the material necessary to fill the pages of the fall issue. The campus heard nothing of the magazine, even though it was ready for the press. The funds were not available but its plight was not made known to the campus.

At the beginning of this semester Richard Elman, Beatrice Schaap and Barbara Browne contacted students asking for contributions. The signatures of the contributors were to appear on the cover of the spring issue.

Before that the students did not even know if the magazine had planned to publish. Freshmen did not know the publication existed.

The magazine has been published each semester for the past three years. Those who knew Dilemma and those persons who the staff members were able to contact contributed.

The planned publication never materialized and after a long delay with no mention of what became of the funds, Prof. Stanford B. Meech of the English department announced yesterday that the money would be returned to the contributors through campus mail.

Prof. Meech said he did not know when the board would meet to consider the plight of Dilemma and to elect a new editor. Dean Wesley C. Clark, chairman of the board could not be reached for comment.

'ON' Ommission Of Foresters Seen, Explained

To the Editor:

Many Forestry students appreciate the opportunity to be a part of Syracuse University. They have demonstrated this by their participation in University athletics, politics, religious activities, fraternities, etc.

Members of the graduating class of the College of Forestry are included as a part of the Syracuse University graduating class, and become members of the Syracuse University Alumni Association upon graduation.

The above facts are not borne out by an inspection of the 1954 Onondagan. We realize that the 1954 Onondagan was faced with many problems, one of which was a lack of space.

This problem was recently given as the reason for the omission of the pictures of Forestry College graduates from the Onondagan. While we do not consider this a reasonable excuse, we will accept it. However, we wish to clarify the situation—

1. At no time did the Forestry graduates request to be left out of the 1954 Onondagan.
2. The pictures of Forestry graduates were available in time for publication.
3. Many Forestry graduates have purchased the 1954 Onondagan under the pretense that they would be included as a part of it as they have been in the past.

A Few Queries

To the Editor:

We are very pleased that the editors of the Onondagan have brought the yearbook out on time for the first time in years.

However, what happened to the College of Forestry?

Inasmuch as six members of our fraternity's graduating class are in the College of Forestry, we feel that they have been discriminated against out of proportion to their nonentity on campus.

An explanation would be welcomed, as to why, after four years of considering themselves as a part of the University, their pictures were left out of the University yearbook.

On another count, why were the activities lists of many cut to less than the bare minimum?

And, in closing, although we realize the staff had a rough time in even publishing a yearbook, we would appreciate an explanation as to the allotment of space for various events, such as for Colgate Weekend in comparison with Winter Weekend.

Yours Truly,
Theta Chi Fraternity

P.S. Get the proofreaders glasses!

Editor's Answer

To the Editor:

In answer to the letters by the presidents of the Forestry College senior class and the Forestry Club Cabinet and the letter from Theta Chi Fraternity I would like to further clarify the situation concerning the Onondagan and the seniors of the Forestry college.

Due to the very late start in production, the "On" wasn't contacted in reference to the Forestry seniors until after all the other seniors had been photographed. The photographs of the Forestry seniors were available but they weren't used.

The reason give at the time was that there wasn't enough space. This was of prime consideration at the time although it seems unreasonable now. There is another reason which is more logical and that is that the contract between the "On" and their senior photographer would not have permitted the use of other photographs.

This, I believe, is the same reason the Forestry seniors were omitted from the 1953 book whose example the staff followed.

Concerning the cutting of activities lists, this was done only in the few cases where it was necessary to make the copy fit, and in these cases only the absolute minimum of cutting was done.

The allotment of space was left to the discretion of the editor in charge of the section. In some cases the amount of material available was the determining factor. In the case of Winter weekend, the staff was able to get enough material but Colgate weekend came before we got the go-ahead from the University and the staff wasn't functioning to get the necessary material.

In conclusion I would like to offer sincerest apologies for the misunderstandings and the situation in which the Forestry seniors are placed. Steps are being taken to see that this does not happen again.

I also want to apologize to all those who are victims of errors in the senior section and other parts of the book. The proofreaders aren't infallible, I'm sorry.

Sincerely,
Tom Beckett
Editor-in-Chief

Decision Strengthens Freedom of the Press

By ART SIEGEL

Reversal of the Minot Jelke conviction Tuesday means more than just a new trial for Jelke.

It means that freedom of the press is something, after all. It means that the law is not ignorant of the assumption by the press and our law that the press is one of the vital facets of our way of life—and is important as one of the informal balances of power.

We think it means that judicial eyes have again recognized that the press and the public does have a right to know what goes on in a criminal trial.

Or else how is the public to know what constitutes a crime, what breach of the law really is and what moral turpitude consists of?

According to the decision of the Appelate court, there is no question of Jelke's guilt involved. But the "star chamber" made the whole affair illegal because it took rights as a citizen away from the accused.

While the guilt question is not involved, it certainly is worth a new trial to assert this right to which each accused person should be entitled—that of a public trial.

The court recognized that a court is exceeding its authority when it bans the press in a case such as this.

The press now has the law on its side. But the decision was a close one.

Most newspapers will continue to respect the right to cover trial proceedings—these papers were justified in complaining about Judge Valente's original ban.

But some other newspapers were not justified in complaining because they were the papers that sensationalized such news in the past and used no discretion whatsoever. These are the newspapers that Valente was censuring.

And unless these few newspapers begin to show some integrity, some judge may at a future date again ban the press.

And that time his decision may be sustained.

All in all the decision adds up to an assertion of the rights of the citizens and the rights of their spokesman—the press.

No person should be deprived of his freedom or property without due process of law. And we believe that this process includes the press.

Greek Attacks Summer Living Rules as Unfair

To the Editor:

Please tell me and the rest of the students what the University is trying to do to students and fraternities. Many of us plan to work for "good old SU" this summer and now we have no place to live between graduation and the fall semester.

It has been decided that all fraternity houses shall close between graduation and the summer session. Where shall we stay while waiting to be allowed to live in our houses? If we don't have to go to summer school, we are not allowed to live in our houses at all.

With the new housing laws, hours and grade points earned in summer school will not be counted toward eligibility to live in fraternity houses. Just what do people go to summer school for?

It seems very obvious that the University is trying to run fraternities off the campus. They don't seem to realize that this doesn't make very good alumni relations. I'll be darned if I will leave any money to SU if this attitude keeps up.

I sincerely hope you will print this so that student opinion may have an airing . . .

Name Withheld

(Editor's note: It has always been a normal University regulation to prohibit any persons but students registered and attending classes from living in fraternities and dormitories, according to Jack C. Buckle, director of men's counseling and residence. This policy had not been enforced in recent years.

All University houses and fraternities close when school is not in session, Buckle said.

New housing regulations affecting sophomores apply to summer sessions also, he stated. Under the rules, summer credit will not apply to the 24 hours needed for soph status to live in a fraternity house.)

WAER Station Policy Statement Concluded

By DICK CASE

(Editor's Note: Yesterday's Daily Orange carried the first of two articles on WAER policies, stated by James Fellows, the station's program director. The question and answer interview is concluded below.)

5. How would you describe the type of programming done by WAER?—Educational, the majority of it, that is. Many shows, like Bachelor's Quarters while it does not educate in the true sense of the word, implies perhaps not intentionally, that this is the way to approach life—carefree and easy-going.

6. Is WAER programming distinct in any way from commercial radio? Do you feel it is better?—It is distinct with the consideration to the fact that we can afford to present what we feel ought to be presented and not just what the people want to hear. In commercial radio, if a show can be sold to the public, it is considered popular because the audience listens, when actually this may be all this is available.

7. Why doesn't WAER program more popular music?—Would this offer Syracuse something that isn't already there? No, so why do it? To balance the schedule, we present some popular music and this is mostly "live" because the listeners do not get so much of this type elsewhere.

As far as jazz music is concerned, we want a good jazz show. So far no one has been found who could do a good job on such a program. Also, enthusiasm for this sort of thing by the performer often dies out after the first few shows.

8. What facts are being uncovered by the survey now being conducted by the radio production class in regard to campus listening habits?—We can report no conclusive results as yet, but, in general, it has been found that most students are late-at-night listeners. We have also discovered that there are very few FM sets on campus and until this year few people have heard anything about WAER.

9. Would you recommend any measures so that the average WAER programs would be readily available to the campus? Is this possible and have any steps been taken in that direction?—Wired wireless has been suggested, carefully thought over and found unfeasible for this campus because the area is so spread out. (Note: wired wireless is a plan of transmission which operates through th epower system. Programs are piped into campus buildings and living centers to AM radios.) Also, it is far too expensive. It would cost approximately $2,000 just to perform the operation known as "jumping transformers" which is required of wired wireless, in this city. In addition to this, wired wireless operates on AM and therefore has to be commercial under existing conditions.

This would mean that WAER would either have to set up a separate wired wireless operation or obtain a new license and drop the FM station because our license is non-commercial.

I would suggest that whenever anyone buys a new radio, that he purchase an FM set. The expense is not too much more than an AM receiver. This is the only way people will hear WAER. The University has installed FM sets in living centers but this type of programming is not the kind that people sit down in a group and listen to. It may be possible to obtain an understanding with the dealers so that a reduced cost of FM sets could be effected if they were guaranteed a certain number of sales, thereby increasing the opportunity and desire for students to buy these receivers.

10. Conclusions—WAER will never achieve the campus popularity of The Daily Orange because it is radio and cannot pinpoint its audience so carefully. It would hardly be fair for the station to broadcast just to the campus merely because it is located here. Its duty is to a wider area. The only way WAER will be more widely heard by students in the future is by the increased use of FM receivers.

What WAER must do is build an awareness among the students o fthe station and its type of programming.

Make the campus want to hear WAER.

Words by Which To Live in May From an Annual

Passing the time of day:

Today is the 27th anniversary of Lindburgh's hop over the Atlantic Ocean.

It is a holiday in North Carolina (the admanac doesn't state which one). There goes our source of information, too.

The quotes for the month:

May showers bring June flowers (that ain't the way we first heard it).

Relax in the sun and really have fun (and cut class?).

Sultry and hot all over the lot (when raining it's not).

Rain raises Cain (no comment).

This brings us to astronomical calculations. Which reminds us: have you ever been to Holden Observatory on campus? Have you ever been aware that there was an observatory on campus?

Today's daylight will be 14 hours, 46 minutes long. Tomorrow will be 14 hours, 48 minut long. And Saturday will be 14 hours, 50 minutes long.

Speaking of tomorrow, there was a tornado in New Hampshire on May 21, 1814. We haven't heard of an upcoming celebration, though. Damned apathy.

Exact source of the above (or most of it) is The Old Farmers Almanac, No. CLXII, "being 2nd after Bissextile or Leap Year, and (until July 4) 178th year of American Independence."

Lacrossers Defeat Big Red, 12-8

Special to The Daily Orange

ITHACA, May 19—Roy Simmons' lacrossers put their other hand on the Laurie Cox Trophy and squeezed tight, as they passed by once-beaten Cornell, 12-8, here today in a late afternoon game. By downing the Big Red on Schoellkopf Field, the Orange outdid their rival for the Cox Division Trophy.

Don Muller led the charge with four goals and two assists to run his season's total to 58 points. Pug Smith was second in attacking with three goals and one assist. Tom Hopper led Cornell scoring with four goals. Bruce Yancey donated three goals to the Orange cause.

THE ORANGE started slow for their ninth win. In fact, they waited for Cornell to score first as Tom Hopper did in 4:13 of the first period. Pug Smith came back for the Orange and Bruce Yancey chipped in two. Cornell's Jemison scored in the first period and the quarter ended 3-2, Syracuse.

Pug Smith paced his goals in the second period, one at the beginning and one at the end and that was all the scoring in that period. The half ended 5-2, Syracuse.

When the third quarter came around, Syracuse decided it was time to sprint, but only after Bob Schreiver and Dave Bradfield scored two for the Big Red to make the score 5-4.

THEN, IN four minutes, the Orange scored five goals, the last two coming within 11 seconds of each other. Syracuse led 10-4. Cornell tried mightily in the last quarter, but Syracuse scored two cushion points.

Lanky Stew Lindsay was shut out here for the first time since his high school days, thus he couldn't add to his 45-point season total. Herb Bool, much talked of Cornell scorer and football quarterback, managed only three shots at the nets and missed them.

Line Score:

SYRACUSE	2	3	5	2	—12
CORNELL	2	0	2	4	— 8

Goals—Syracuse: Muller 4, Yancey, 3, Smith 3, Moller, Havill. Cornell: Hopper 4, Schreiver, Jemison, Bradfield, Cohn.

Assists—Syracuse: Tucker 2, Muller 2, Smith, Duff. Cornell: Schreiver 2, Jemison 3, Tfann 2.

The frosh lacrossers were again afflicted with their away-game jinx and dropped a razor-edge 10-9 decision yesterday down at Hobart. Paul O'Donahue again led the frosh with six goals. This marked an even swap as the frosh beat Hobart at Hendricks Field earlier this season.

Bureaucrats Clinch Independent Title; Defeat M-2, 13-11

By FRANK VECCHIONE

The Bureaucrats, with Roger Hughbanks leading the way, last night won the intramural Independent Championship, over Skytop M-2, 13 to 11.

Both teams scored four runs in the first inning, which was indicative of a good slugging battle. Hughbanks started it off by driving in three runs with a double, and then scoring himself on an overthrow to the plate.

GERRY BROWN belted a home-run with two on for Skytop M-2, in the bottom half of the same inning to help knot the game up.

The game see-sawed back and forth with M-2 getting three runs in the second inning, after the Bureaucrats had garnered two runs in the first half of the same inning. After the Bureaucrats retied the game in the third on a run scoring single by Vance Kane, the game remained scoreless until the fifth inning.

In the fifth the Skytoppers tallied two tie-breaking runs, mostly on errors, mixed in with a key hit by Joe Shanley. This lead lasted until the sixth inning, when the Bureaucrats scored two runs of their own to tie the game once more at nine apiece.

IN THE seventh and final inning, singles by Herm Merlins and Stan Guild, and a double by Don Hitchman led to four runs for the Bureaucrats, making the score 13 to 9.

A last ditch rally by M-2 fell two runs short, thereby giving the Bureaucrats the independent crown.

The game had a peculiar aspect to it. The Bureaucrat team is made up mostly of Resident Advisors from various men's living centers, and an undisputable amount of rivalry existed between the two teams.

TONIGHT THE Bureaucrats meet Pi Alpha Chi to determine the all-University intramural champion.

In tonight's game, Lou Petricola will start on the mound for the fraternity champions, Pi Alpha Chi, while Roger Hughbanks will most likely be starting again for the Bureaucrats.

Petricola will be trying to keep the Pi Chis in the University sports spotlight. After failing to place in any other intramural sport, Pi Chi has gained much respect in the intramural sports world for their championship effort.

Tonight's game will be played on Hendricks Field and will start at 6:00 p.m. In case of rain the game will be played Friday night.

Alpha Sig Takes Greek Net Crown

Continuing on t heir winning ways, the Alpha Sigma Phi intramural tennis team yesterday downed the Sigma Chi semi-finalists for the fraternity championship. They will meet Skytop M-2 this afternoon for the all-university title.

Starring for the winners were Jerry Sowinski, who beat Charlie Clark 6-4 and 6-2, and I Festa, who won over Sigma Chi's Ken Sparks 6-2 and 6-4.

The Alpha Sigs won five matches to gain the title, including victories over strong teams fielded by Alpha Chi Rho and Beta Theta Pi. Sowinski and Festa have played all singles events, winning every set but one. Joe La Spisa and Bill Carrigan represented the house in doubles events.

Spring Football Practice

"But when thou dost alms, let not thy left hand know what they right hand doeth . . ."—Jesus, The Sermon on the Mount, Matthew vi, 1

The Man Between

In recent years, that nebulescent, all-seeing, un-interviewable entity called: "The University" has engaged in a kind of parlor game concerning spring football practice that defies reason. The result: a strange sandwich affair, with football Coach Ben Schwartzwalder in the middle. On one side: the Athletic Governing Board who have issued two orders to cancel spring football and on the other: the schedule makers completely disregarding the other hand and hunt up the nightmares that Schwartzwalder will soon face in the fall.

BEN SCHWARTZWALDER

Two years ago, the word came that Syracuse was cancelling its spring football practice. Only the abolition of two-platoon football saved that year's spring practice. This year nothing saved it.

What were the reasons for the move? One can only guess.

THE LEERY

It has been said that the University did this as a move to appease both Colgate and Cornell, both high drawing cards, who were becoming leery of their growing Orange neighbor. As it turned out, Cornell abdicated the schedule in 1955.

Others claim it was a move with the times. That at that time the big football teams were being looked down upon.

Basically, however, it can all be compressed into two categories: 1) the de-emphasis of football or 2) the saving of money.

If the motive was to save money it was a short-sighted view. By simultaneously eliminating spring practice and scheduling big name teams in the long run the gate receipts will suffer when the big name teams drop off the schedule for lack of competition.

THAT GREAT VALLEY OF INDECISION

The matter then revolves around the de-emphasis of football. Was entering the Orange Bowl as de-emphasis of football? Is hiring a man of Schwartzwalder's ability and salary a de-emphasis of football? Are the rumors that float at the end of every season concerning games with SMU, Iowa, Southern Cal and all the other powers that Syracuse use to play, a de-emphasis of football? More important, is the 1955 schedule a de-emphasis of football?

The University seems to have entered "that great valley of indecision" where the best advice is: "Kindly remove yourself." It doesn't have to be a standing policy to de-emphasize football all year round, or a standing policy to have spring practice and, by inference, a policy emphasizing football.

The choice isn't black and white. There is a moderation between emphasis on football and de-emphasis of football. It is a fine line but it isn't the University's confusing, contradictory slant.

It is said in higher circles that the only way spring practices can return is: 1) entering an Eastern League which allows spring practice or 2) a losing season next year.

THE SPRING FAUCET

The chances of entering an Eastern League are slim and so, for that fact, are the chances of a losing season (but the latter is more easily attainable).

Is it right though, to spend the money to hire a talented coach just to set up obstacles within his own school to run through? If spring practice is going to be turned on and off at every losing season, Uncle Ben finds himself in the middle of the sandwich again.

WITH MUSTARD ON TOP?

He can have a winning season next year, with a lot of hard work, but the chances for one against the likes of Pitt and West Virginia is, at the least, debatable. But a winning season next year, eliminates one of the mentioned excuses.

So, over the summer, while the University on top ponders the question of sprin gpractice and while the schedule-makers on the bottom try to contact bigger and better teams, Schwartzwalder's in the middle with mustard on top.

Seven Orangemen Will Enter IC4A Meet May 29, 30

A skeleton crew of Syracuse trackmen worked out yesterday in Archbold Stadium, preparing for the IC4A meet (May 29, 30) at Randall Island, New York. The remainder of the 1954 team had already turned in their togs after a successful season's work.

Coach Bob Grieve has entered seven men in the top Eastern attraction of the outdoor season.

Ray Osterhout in the two-mile, Steve Armstrong and Les Vielbig in the mile and Jack Hubbard in the 440 are the Orange representatives in the running side of the IC ledger.

IN THE field events Grieve has Dick Jackson in the broad jump, Hank Wightman in the pole vault and Capt. Joe Martin in the javelin. Martin paced the Hill entries in last year's IC4A event with a third place finish.

Whether or not Wightman and Hubbard participate depends on the status of their present injuries. The latter is bothered with a sore leg and the Orange's top pole vaulter has a bad heel.

All of the Hill septet might place in the big meet, judging on past performances. But each will have to do his best to earn some points for the Orange cause.

OSTERHOUT HAS run a 9:19 two-mile, Armstrong and Vielbig are capable of miles in the 4:18 area and under and Hubbard can break into the 48-second quarter-mile circle. Jackson has cleared 22 feet, Wightman with a good take-off could make 13 feet and Martin has tossed his javelin a couple feet past the sought-after 200 mark.

The '54 Syracuse track team was a well-balanced competent group. They compiled a perfect 2-0 slate in dual meet competition, whipping Colgate and Boston University by adequate margins. If these seven outstanding runners come through with top performances in the IC tourney, the name Syracuse may be placed well up in the huge list of competing teams.

Hill Nine Loses to Cornell, 3-1, For Sixth Consecutive Setback

By EV MURCH

Mickey Kyff and the Orange baseball team lost a toughie to Cornell yesterday, 3-1, at Ithaca. It was a case of too many errors as the Pietymen gave away three unearned runs in the second and third.

Although Syracuse got seven hits, three more than the Big Red, they were unable to bunch more than two at a time and got their only run in the fifth on a double and single.

CORNELL BROKE into the scoring column in the second, scoring on two errors and a single. Morton led off by fanning, but Hill catcher Phil Young dropped the third strike and Morton reached. John Simek then gained first on an error by shortstop Ray Shapley.

After a sacrifice play Morton was thrown out at home, but Simek came in on a single by Joe Marotta, Cornell pitcher.

The men from Ithaca tallied the winning markers in the third, thanks to two more misplays. The leadoff man singled and stole second. Next man, John Anderluh, was hit by Kyff and then Shapley's second miscue loaded the sacks.

KYFF STILL had a chance to escape when the fourth hitter bounced to the firstsacker, who threw home in time to cut down the run. However, the return throw by the catcher sailed into right field and Anderlun crossed the plate. Simek then banged a sacrifice fly to make it 3-0.

The only other threat by the home squad came in the sixth when a two base error and wild pitch put a man on third with none out. But Kyff showed his best stuff of the day, forcing the following three to fan the breeze.

Syracuse scored its lone tally in the fifth. Ray Shapley led it off with a long double. Dick Darr then flew out, but Ed Albright drove in the run with a sharp single.

THE HILLMEN had another good opportunity in the ninth. Ted Kukowski and Ed Albright knocked out singles to put the tying runs on the paths but both died on base.

Kyff pitched a game deserving of a win. Holding the Big Red to a mere four in the hit column, he set down five of them on strikeouts and issued no free passes.

His opponent, Joe Marotta, didn't pitch as fine a game, but his fielding was tighter, having only one error committed behind him.

Frosh Nine Loses to Ithaca, 11-5

By ART STERNBERG

The combination of cold Syracuse weather and hot Ithaca bats proved too much for the Piety yearlings to handle yesterday as they went down to defeat 11-5 in their last home game this season.

Bill Williams, who has pitched two finely hurled games, was the victim of his own wildness, which led to his pitching demise. His blazing fastball and effective change-up was enough to keep him out of too much trouble in the early innings.

HOWEVER, THE Ithaca offense really opened up in the eighth frame, racking up a total of eight big runs, which proved an ample cushion to withstand any further Tangerine rally which could come up.

The visitors led off the scoring with an unearned run in the second and tallied one more in the next inning. The Piety frosh narrowed the gap to 2-1 in their half of the third on a single by Williams plus a walk and an outfield error.

Both hurlers settled down to pitch fine ball until the volcanic eighth inning. The big thrill of the game until then came in the Tangerine half of the fifth. Sam Booker, of the home side, after reaching first through an error, showed the proper way to run the 100-yd. dash by streaking around the bases to score via a throwing error plus the indecision of the opposition as to which base to catch the fleet Syracusan.

THE EIGHTH frame was a nightmare for both sides. The aptly dubbed Bombers combined three walks, a couple of errors, and three hits for a total of eight runs, virtually sewing up the game.

However, the Tangerines did not give up easily. An infield error and a walk set the stage for a dramatic pinch-hit triple by Jim Snider of the home team. He scored a minute later on a single by Tangerine flinger Williams.

But the visitors, who had good pitching from starter Hank Catherwood and Ed Messenkopk, withstood this final Hill rally and took the game by an 11-5 score.

Line score:

Ithaca	0	1	1	0	0	1	0	8	0	—11 6 3

News Bureau Gives Four Internships To Undergraduates

Misses Russell, Kirch; Bartkevicius, Braun Receive Stipend

Four undergraduates have received internships in the University News Bureau, William Ehling, director of the bureau, and Wesley C. Clark, dean of the School of Journalism, announced yesterday.

The four, Joan Russell, Alma Gene Kirch, Albin Bartkevicius and Michael Braun will work as interns for the academic year of 1954-1955, and will receive a stipend of $500.

THEY WILL be engaged in news writing and publicity work.

The internships are granted to undergraduates majoring or planning to major in journalism, and are made available by the News Bureau in co-operation with the School of Journalism.

Miss Russell, from Catskill, is a member of Kappa Delta, and is planning a dual major of olitical Science. She has been active in Angel's Flight this year. Miss Kirch, from Lowville, is president of Alpha Gamma Delta.

Bartkevicius, Milford, Conn., is in Phi Kappa Psi and is presently co-editor of Meet the Greeks. Braun, the only freshman of the four, is from New York City. Both men have been active on the Syracuse Daily Orange.

Graduation Room Applications Open

Registration for commencement housing for guests of male graduates is being reopened from 1-5 p.m., today and tomorrow in the Appointment Office on the second floor of the Administration Bldg.

This will be the last opportunity for graduates to make arrangements to house their guests in University living centers, according to Harold S. Johnson, coordination for commencement housing for men.

Coffee? Milk? - Battle Royal

By MICHAEL BRAUN

What do the cows think?

Our bovine friends seem to be the only ones who have not been consulted in the current fracas of milk versus coffee.

THE DAY AFTER Governor Dewey issued his suggestion which has since re-echoed around breakfast tables all over the world, Marshall St. was still experiencing normal milk sales.

When talking of Marshall St., milk sales normal means nil. As the manager of the Savoy so aptly put it, "I wish the kids would buy milk. We don't make anything on coffee."

The only local entrepreneurs who don't seem to have been affected are the irrepressible dinglemen. Milk seems to continue to be a big seller here. Perhaps its easier to carry a cold container of milk down the street than a finger burning cup of coffee.

THE WHOLE milk business started when the good governor issued a suggestion to the people of New York to stop drinking coffee and start drinking milk.

The press immediately derided the governor's statement. From large city daily to farm weekly the sentiment was against Dewey.

The anti-administration forces called it a plot to win the farmers' vote. Even the staunch Republican papers had to admit that they liked their morning cup of coffee.

ACCORDING TO an editorial in the pro-Republican New York World Telegram and Sun, the writer had tried to wake up with five glasses of milk that morning. He wrote that one cup of coffee was much more effective.

Commented the Herald Journal, "it is rare that you see a farmer drinking milk. Their staple is coffee." From state wide press coverage the matter became a political football.

The state Democratic boss Richard Balch stated that the Democrats had thought of the idea first, and Dewey was only trying to capitalize on an election issue.

IT BECAME an inevibility that the coffee producing nations would protest. This took place in the form of a statement by Brazilian ambassador Joa Carlos Muniz who charged that Dewey's statement was "short sided and ill advised."

Yesterday Dewey said that in his original statement he had nly meant that coffee drinkers should drink milk only once a day. "Coffee is too good a drink—to expect coffee drinkers to switch to milk completely."

During the political bickering the coffee companies had a field day. Advertisement ran in the staid New York Times proving that a quart of coffee, which after all is almost all water is cheaper than a quart of milk. "Besides," they add, "coffee tastes sooooooo good."

BY THE time that this is settled, the election most likely will be over and all concerned will have a headache over the matter.

May we suggest a remedy?

"Cuppa cawfee, black!"

SYRACUSE'S OWN PERIPATETIC dingleman feels very loyal these days. His sale of milk complies with Governor Dewey's campaign to get everyone to drink the stuff. There is only one hitch. Friend dingleman sells coffee, too.

Fine Arts Museum Exhibits Local Work

An exhibition of prize works by local artists in currently on view at the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts.

Included are prize water colors by the following Syracuse University art faculty members: Prof. Montague Charman and Mrs. Charman; Prof. H. Lee; Prof. Frank Kent; Prof. Margaret H. Boehner and Prof. George Vander Sluis.

MISS PRUDENCE Burg, head of the art department of Cazenovia Junior College and a Syracuse graduate and Charles Hinman, now a student here, are also represented.

Peter Abate of Boston has a one-man show of sculptures which was arranged by Prof. Ivan Mestrovic.

The exhibits include a group of paintings and prints by Syracusan Fred Gardner. These were assembled by his widow, Adelaide Morris Gardner, who is also a painter.

A painting by English artist Sir John Reynolds is on display in the reception room. It was borrowed from the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

All of the exhibitions were arranged in connection with the current Museum membership drive.

Applications Now Available For Summer Terms Housing

Applications for housing for all men who are attending summer school are available now and may be obtained at any time in the Dean of Men's Office, according to Director of Men's Housing Jack C. Buckle.

All undergraduate male students are required to live in a University living center, a fraternity, or an approved private home. Freshmen and sophomores must reside in University dormitories and eat in dining halls.

TRANSFER STUDENTS are also required to live in dormitories and eat on board contract if admitted with less than 57 hours credit.

Sophomores who are not living in fraternities of which they are members or pledges, must live in the dormitories.

Applications for the special engineering session from June 8-Aug. 28 should be turned in immediately, Buckle stated. Rooms for this session will be available in the Ruben Fenton living center.

SOME FRATERNITY houses will be open during the summer. Juniors and seniors who wish to live in the Greek houses should check with Buckle in the Dean of Men's office.

Dormitories will open for the first session at 10 a.m. on June 27 and will close at the end of the second session at 5 p.m. on Sept. 11.

Upperdivision and graduate students who reserve rooms in University living centers are not required to eat in University dining halls. However, board in the dining halls can be contracted voluntarily. A special ticket is also provided for graduate students only. This ticket enables a student to eat meals in a dining room from Monday to Friday at a special rate of $10 per week.

GROVER CLEVELAND house, 700 University Ave., will be open during both sessions for freshmen and upperclass students. This building houses 104 men in two, three, and four room suites. For the six weeks session from June 28 to Aug. 7, the room prices range from $42 to $54. The range for the five weeks session from Aug. 9 to Sept. 11 is $35 to $47.50.

One floor of Grover Cleveland will be reserved for freshmen. Board for freshmen and sophomores will be $15 per week.

Single male graduate students may contract for rooms in two graduate apartment houses. The Marshall Apartments, 728 S. Crouse Ave., and Flick Apartments, 530-550 Ostrom Ave. Both are within three blocks of the campus and are furnished as dormitories. Graduate students who desire to live in Grover Cleveland may also contract for room there.

CHARGES FOR the six weeks session of the Marshall Apartments are $60 and $66. Five weeks session charges are $50 and $55. The Flick Apartment charges are $54, $60, and $72 per resident for the six weeks session; and $45, $50, and $60 for the five weeks session.

A limited number of apartments will be reserved in Marshall and Flick for married couples without children. Rentals in these units will range from $120 to $144 for the six week session. Charges for the five week session will range from $100 to $120.

Arrangements to rent one of these units should be completed by writing to the Housing Office, Office of the Dean of Men, Syracuse University. Married couples may also write to A. B. C. Douthwaite, Manager, Temporary Housing, 1528 E. Colvin St., Syracuse, for information concerning units for married students in the University Temporary housing areas.

Assembly Selects Class of '54 Gifts

DO Microfilming Unanimously Decided

A diathermy machine for the infirmary and microfilming of The Daily Orange will be the gifts of the class of 1954 to the University, it was unanimously decided at the senior assembly meeting last night.

A trasury surplus of approximately $800 will be used to purchase the two gifts.

THE SUGGESTION of the diathermy machine was made by Dr. G. Arnold Cronk, head of the student infirmary. Used in the relief of bruises, aches, and pains, the machine was mentioned by Dr. Cronk as being the infirmary's greatest need.

The microfilming of The Daily Orange was the suggestion of Wharton Miller, dean of the library school. The paper on which some of the older editions of The Daily Orange is printed is not sufficiently durable, and the newspaper provides the only day-to-day record of the University.

The microfilming of these papers would constitute a permanent record for the use of students, faculty and alumni.

Also discussed at the final meeting of the year for the assembly was the progress of a committee designed to investigate the abolition of Saturday classes.

Alan Gefen, committee chairman, reported that he had discussed the matter with the College of Liberal Arts, but no definite decision has been reached as yet.

Speech Honorary Elects Seidman

Matthew Seidman was elected president of Sigma Tau Rho, recently reorganized men's speech honorary at the second meeting of the group this week.

The honorary, formed in 1947 at Syracuse University, became defunct when its adviser, Prof. Ramon Irwin, left for the armed forces. Dr. Irwin, now back on the Hill, has reinstated the honorary.

OTHER OFFICERS elected this week are James Fellows, vice-president; Kenneth Brown, corresponding secretary; Robert Martindale, recording secretary and Lewis O'Donnell, treasurer.

New initiates are Samuel Baskin, Brown, Fellows, Kenneth Gilchrist, Donald Lloyd, O'Donnell, Philip Burrell, Martindale, Kenneth Sparks, Seidman and Sheldon Weiner.

In cooperation with Zeta Phi Eta, women's speech honorary, Sigma Tau Rho will provide hosts next fall at the School of Speech tea and convocation for incoming freshmen. Other projects planned are a speech weekend and sponsoring a poetry reading contest.

Members of the honorary are working on plans to become a national fraternity.

'ON' Distribution Ends Today

Today is the last day to pick up the 1954 Onondagan during the present academic year. Those who have ordered the book and do not call for their copy today must wait until September as no annuals will be distributed during exam weeks.

Seniors who do not call for their books and have not made the completement payment will be charged the remainder of the price and cost of mailing.

There are 100 copies of the new "On" on open sale today for anyone who wishes but has not ordered a copy of the book. They are $8.

WSG Announces Office Hours

Special hours have been announced for the Women's Student Government office during the examination period. The office will be open only from 4-5 p.m. on both Mondays, and only from 12-1 p.m. Tuesday through Friday of both weeks.

Tour Scheduled Of Marion Dorm

All men who have rented rooms in Marion dormitory and any who plan to room there can make a tour of the building from 2-4 p.m. next Thursday. This is the only time the tour will be given.

Rental charges for rooms in Marion are $322 p[illegible]. All residents of Marion are required to eat on board contract in Watson dining hall, regardless of class. Board is $440 for the academic year.

Marion will open in the fall. Located one block off the main campus, the dormitory can house 142 men in two single rooms and 70 double rooms.

Form 109 Available

Applications for selective service form 109 for student deferments are available now and may be picked up in the Dean of Men's office. Men who are planning to return in the fall should get these blanks immediately.

Campus Chest Picks Committee Heads, Officers for Drive

Officers and committee chairmen for next year's Campus Chest campaign have been announced by co-chairmen Jean (Jackie) Claridge and Robert Lefko.

Shirley Samek has been named executive secretary and Phillip Stern will be treasurer. Members of the secretariat include Barbara Reed, Gloria Giovanelli, Charlotte Krouner and Evelyn Dart.

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN include Diane Hirschhorn and Daniel Masterson, promotions; Winifred Schaeffer and John Johnsrud, publicity; Geraldine Hanna and William Barnett, speaker's bureau; Joan Vinicoff and Richard Zallen, carnival; Sabra Jones and John DePalma, feather day; and Myrna Horowitz and Aaron Miller, brochures.

Named chairmen of solicitations committees were Anthony Loiacano and Richard Sutter, fraternity; Gail Dudkin, Ann McKaig and Nancy Puleo, sorority; Anna Garner and Audrey Haberle, independent women; and Joseph Easton, independent men.

Others are Genevieve Volotta and Haden Patton, city; Mary McMillan and Margery Smerling, faculty gifts; and Aileen Brand and Peter Giopoulos, special gifts. Named sorority captains were Roberta Levitt and B. J. Seligman.

The only authorized fund-raising campaign on campus, Campus Chest collected approximately $5,000 this year. Next year's drive is scheduled for the third week of the second semester. Competition will be held with Colgate for the Orange Key-Maroon Key trophy, won this year by Colgate.

Miss Rubel Named Promotion Manager

Rujeanne Rubel, a junior from Forest Hills, L. I., has been appointed Promotion Manager of The Daily Orange for 1954-55.

Miss Rubel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Rubel, is a junior in the College of Liberal Arts. She is majoring in psychology and in science.

A MEMBER of Phi Sigma Sigma sorority, Miss Rubel is a junior guide and is treasurer of Panhellenic council. She was a member of the speakers bureau of Campus Chest and was on the publicity committee for last semester's Soph Hop.

Her duties will include the formulation and supervision of promotion campaigns for The Daily University campus and the metropolitan area of Syracuse.

Krinsky to Speak At JSF Services

Dr. Fred Krinsky will speak on the topic "My Philosophy of Judaism: A Restatement" at the final JSF service at 7:15 p.m. today in Hendricks Chapel.

Oneg Shabbot will be held following the regular service.

At 11 a.m. Saturday, June 5, a brunch service will be held for the seniors. Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Arlene Rothman at Hendricks Chapel.

Coeds to Perform In Music Recitals At Crouse College

First Program Tonight Given by Miss Hicks; Open to Public

Four seniors in the School of Music will participate in recitals for their bachelor's degrees within the next two weeks.

Judith Hicks will perform at 8:30 p.m. today; Mrs. Anita Cronemeyer will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 29; and Louise Orlando and Jean Ridgeway will perform jointly at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 2.

ALL PROGRAMS will take place in Crouse Auditorium, and are open free to the public.

Miss Hicks, piano student of Sidney Sukoenig, has won the Pennsylvania State Forensic music league contests for the past two years. She has been featured on Syracuse's WAER and Philadelphia's WIBG.

A member of Chi Omega and Sigma Alpha Iota, music sorority, she has been active in the University chorus and the Madrigal singers.

MISS HICKS will be assisted tonight by Audrey Hazlett, mezzo soprano, and Natalie Goldman, accompanist. The program will include "Fantasy and Fugue in C Major" by Mozart, "Von Ewiger Liebe" by Brahms, "Gesang Weyla" and "Verborgenheit" by Wolf, and Beethoven's Sonata opus 57.

Other selections which will be offered tonight will be Dvorak's "Gypsy Songs opus 55," Stravinski's "Pastorale," Verdi's "Don Carlo," Ravel's "Ondine" and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6.

Mrs. Cronemeyer, who will play on May 29, is studying piano under George Mulfinger. A former Buffalo resident, she is now director of music at Liverpool Baptist Church. Her husband, Donald C. Cronemeyer, is a physicist with General Electric.

IN HER program, Mrs. Cronemeyer will be assisted by Robert Evans. She will offer a number of selections including Bach's "Taccata in D Major" and Chopin's "Polonaise."

Miss Ridgeway, a pianist, and Miss Orlando, a soprano, will perform jointly on June 2. In the program Miss Ridgeway will play Bach's "Tocatta in E Minor," Scarlatti's "Sonata in E Major" and "Sonata in D Minor," and Chopin's "Nocturne in F," "Mazurka in A Minor," and "Ballade in A Flat."

Miss Orlando will sing "Shepherd! Thy Demeanor Vary" by Thomas Brown, "Casta Diua" by Bellini, "Fiocca La Neue" by Cimara, and three arrangements by Clifford Shaw.

SHE WILL also offer "Ah, Mai Non Cessate," "Stornello," "Nebbie," "Villanelle," and "Daybreak."

Miss Ridgeway, a member of Alpha Gamma Delta, Chapel choir, and University Chorus, is a student of George Mulfinger. She has been active in summer programs on WSNJ, the WAER music staff, and Boar's Head children's theater musicals.

Known to many Syracusans as Miss New York State of 1952, Miss Orlando is also known for several solo performances with the University chorus, the Oneonta College choir's "Messiah," and several other musical groups.

SHE HAS performed on all the Syracuse radio ad television stations, and was soloist on two network shows "Show Time, USA," and "The Hormel Girls' Show."

A member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, she also belongs to Sigma Alpha Iota and Pi Lambda Theta, education honorary.

Blanks Available For NAACP Aid

Applications are now due for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People scholarship.

Any student in the University may apply. The grant is based on scholarship and need.

Application blanks may be obtained from Dr. Fox in 105 Maxwell. Robert Holland is president of the Hill chapter of NAACP.

University Will Celebrate 100th Commencement

Syracuse University will celebrate its 100th commencement weekend Thursday, June 4, through Monday, June 7, graduation day.

The weekend activities will officially get under way with the Tau Theta Upsilon, senior men's honorary, initiation banquet at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, June 3 at the Liederkranz Club.

ACTIVITIES FOR Friday, June 4 will start at 8 a.m. at Kappa Sigma with the annual breakfast and meeting of Syracuse-in-Asia. Jack Ling will speak on "Projeet India."

The semi-annual meeting and luncheon of the Board of Trustees will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the Hotel Syracuse. The first meeting of the academic year was held Colgate Weekend.

Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women's honorary, will hold its Alumnae luncheon at 12:15 p.m. in the Club, Slocum Hall.

THEA CHI Beta, bible honorary, will hold initiation at 3 p.m., room 301 Library. A dinner will be held at 6 p.m. in University Methodist Church, 1085 E. Genesee St. Following the dinner, at 7:30 p.m., Edwin P. Booth of the School of Theology of Boston University will speak on "History and Bible Criticism."

Course Offered In Nation's Capitol

Summer Session Set By Poli Sci Group

Twenty-six undergraduate students from Syracuse and other colleges and universities have signed up to study for the program Institute of Government in Washington, D. C., Prof. Phillips Bradley of the Maxwell political science department said yesterday.

The three-credit course, which is offered by the Syracuse University political science department will be in session from June 14 to June 26.

Study in the course, which was formerly known as political science 103, will concentrate on the investigative powers of congress and the President and his staff. Each topic will be under discussion for a week. The last session of each week will be an evaluation seminar.

The course, which has openings for 30 students, will accept four more applicants. Applications can be obtained from the political science office, 218 Maxwell.

John Owens of Wesleyan University and Dr. Bradley are in charge of the two week course and will alternate in instruction of the class.

While there will be no examinations in the course each student is expected to submit a research paper on some aspect of the course. Specified mornings and afternoons will be designated for field research to allow the student to dig deeper into his chosen project. The papers will be due in Syracuse July 15.

In coordination with their studies of the investigating powers of congress the students will meet with Senators Ives, Lehman, Douglas and Morse, and Representatives Realman and Keating. They will visit committee hearings, and talk with congressional aides and individual officers.

The group will visit the White House and talk with the President's immediate staff and the Budget Foreign Operations Administration in connection with their study of the President and his staff services.

The students will live at the Emeroy Hotel at a cost of about $2.50 a night. Meals will cost the students about $3 a day and incidental expenses, including taxi fares about $1 a day.

Miss Lambert, Dobry Top Graduating Class

Arlene M. Lambert, a journalism and psychology major with a 2.94 average, and Reuven Dobry, a chemical engineering major with a 2.93 average, will be the valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively, at the June 7 graduation in Archbold Stadium.

Miss Lambert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lambert, Rochester, was the editor-in-chief of The Daily Orange this year, and is a member of seven honoraries.

ARLENE LAMBERT

THE ORGANIZATIONS include Phi Beta Kappa, liberal arts; Theta Sigma Chi, women's journalism; Psi Chi, psychology; Phi Kappa Phi, senior scholastic class; Delta Sigma Rho, forensics; Lambda Sigma Sigma, junior women; and Eta Pi Upsilon, senior women.

Theta Sigma Phi presented her with awards for the outstanding member in her junior and senior years, and Alpha Delta Pi, her sorority, persented her with its regional award.

She is the holder of three scholarships: the Empire State School Press Association scholarship, the New York Press Association scholarship, and a Regents scholarship.

IN ADDITION to four years' work on The Daily Orange, the 21-year-old senior also served as house president in her freshman year, and was a junior and senior guide. She was a member of the sophomore senate, junior assembly, women's student government council, WSG elections commission, and the Catholic students' choir.

Dobry is from Tel Aviv, Israel, and plans to do graduate work in chemical engineering at the University of Illinois. He is a member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and of Sigma Xi, research honorary.

He is also a member of Tau Beta Pi, engineering honorary, and Phi Kappa Phi, senior honorary.

Dobry received his first three years of high school education in Tel Aviv, and, after serving in the army, finished his fourth year through correspondence courses. He came to Syracuse in 1950, and his since lived in the city.

Miss Muller Given Zeta Phi Eta Award

Marlene Muller has been awarded the Edith A. Parsons scholarship for the outstanding junior woman in Zeta Phi Eta, professional speech fraternity for women.

The $50 scholarship, presented at the honorary's recent banquet at Sherman's restaurant, is given for scholarship and service to the department.

Miss Muller, a drama major, has maintained a 2.59 average.

Jane Blanchard was presented with the outstanding pledge award. Her cumulative average is 2.44.

New officers of Zeta Phi Eta are: president, Lois Lachnicht; vice-president, Jane Blanchard; recording secretary, Harriet Kusher; corresponding secretary, Marlene Muller; treasurer, Marjorie Austrian.

Fulbright Blanks Available Soon

All who intend to apply for the Fulbright and Buenos Aires grants should contact the Dean of Men's office during the week of May 31, according to Earle W. Clifford, assistant dean of men.

Eligibility requirements for these foreign study fellowships are: United States citizenship, a college degree or its equivalent by the time the award is received, knowledge of the language of the country sufficient to carry on the proposed study, and good health.

Competition for the 1955-56 academic year closes Nov. 1, 1954.

Communion B'fast Set for Sunday

The annual St. Thomas More Communion Breakfast will be held this Sunday at Drumlins, immediately following the 9:30 a.m. Mass at Crouse College.

State Supreme Court Justice William E. McClusky, of Syracuse, will be main speaker at the event. Over-all co-chairmen are Margaret (Midge) O'Connor and Frederick Hopmeier.

Heller to Present Recital Tonight

Original Composition Included in Concert

Alfred Heller, graduate of Syracuse University School of Music, 1952, will give a piano recital at 8:30 p.m. tonight in Clark Music Store's 4th floor.

The program will include the Brahams Sonata in C major, three Scarlatti sonatas, "Movement" by Debussy, a Chopin Ballade, "Fantasia" Grotesque by Novick, and an original composition.

Heller is now studying at the Manhattan School of Music with Robert Goldasand, and will receive his Master of Music degree in June. He was awarded a Fulbright to study music at the St. Cecelia's Academy in Rome, Italy.

Dr. William Fleming remarked about Heller's concert here last year, "piano playing of great feeling" and "musical intelligence of great promise."

Wilbur to Head Forensic Group

William Wilbur of Utica College and Alex Strasser of Syracuse University were elected president and vice-president respectively of Delta Sigma Rho, national forensic honorary. At the same meeting, Arlene Fisher was elected secretary-treasurer.

Arlene Lambert, Wilbur and Kevin Wilson were initiated into the honorary preceding the elections.

AFTER THE initiation, the debators joined the remaining members of the Stuart Steven's debate council at the annual debate banquet held at Bersani's.

Dean Eric Faigle of the School of Speech and Dramatic Arts and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, was guest speaker.

Howard Osofsky, outgoing president, received the award for the outstanding varsity debator while Bob Newman won the award for the outstanding frosh debator.

THE NEW officers of the team were officially installed at the banquet. The officers are: president, Alex Strasser; vice-presiden, Camilla McCarthy; manager, Max Baratz; and secretary, Robert Hecht.

Meeting Set Today For Goon Squaders

All new Goon Squad members are requested to report at 3 p.m. today to Archbold Stadium to begin placard cheering work.

The Goon Squaders will wash and sand placards so that they may be painted early in the fall.

Those attending are requested to wear old clothes.

Dr. Lillian Gilbreth To Talk in Maxwell

Lillian Moller Gilbreth, known internationally for her work in production engineering and as the mother of 12 in the book "Cheaper by the Dozen," will lecture at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Maxwell Auditorium.

She will speak on topics in motion, space and dimensioning in relation to work efficiency.

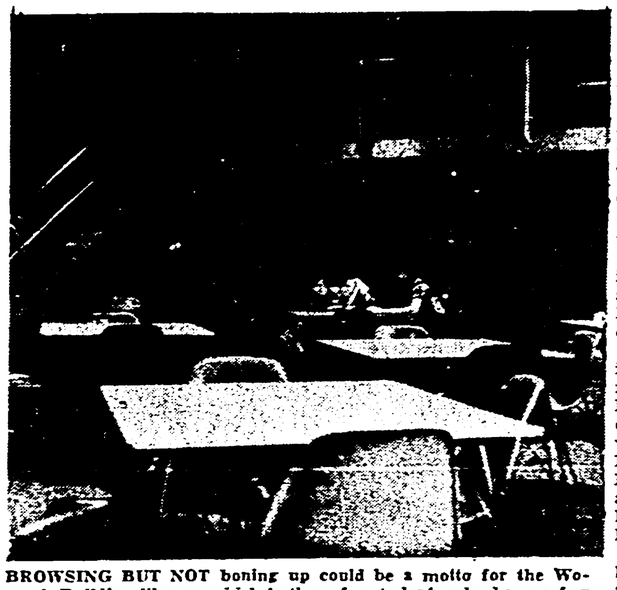
DR. GILBRETH and her husband Frank Gilbreth were pioneers in the field of motion, time and efficiency methods and through their work caused extensive revisions and development in industrial production planning.

She recently returned to the United States after a tour of South America where she received many honors for her work. The Washington Engineering Award for 1954 was given to Dr. Gilbreth "for the contribution she has made in the field of engineering."

At the age of 75 she is president of Gilbreth, Inc., consulting management engineers of Montclair, N. J.

Dr. Gilbreth's lecture is sponsored by the Industrial Design department on the occasion of the Syracuse Industrial Design Alumni Conference.

Student Library Head Set



BROWSING BUT NOT boning up could be a motto for the Women's Building library, which is there for students who have a few minutes for recreational reading. Chief browser in charge of the enterprise for next year is Mary Todd.

Mary E. Todd, a junior in psychology and advertising has been appointed chairman of the student brousing library in the Women's Building.

The library, which opened in January, is completely student operated. Barbara Bushnell and James Carr headed the student committee to set up the library. They have worked toward the establishment of a balanced collection.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS dealing with scholarship information, student activities, graduate catalogs and Onondagans have been compiled this year.

The library depends on gifts as its major source of books. It has received donations from Chancellor William P. Tolley, Vice-Chancellor Finla G. Crawford, J. Edward McEvoy, Dean Kenneth Bartlett, Mrs. Margaret Bonisteel, Dr. Piper, Miss Bettie Neeger, and also the Student Union brousing library and the textbook lending library.

Miss Todd was chairman of the house committee and was secretary of the Student Union, secretary of the Associated Campus

Library Changes Suggested

This is the time of year when student minds turn to thoughts of the library. There are last minute term papers to knock off and books and notes to pour over in preparation for finals.

The library, however, is the subject of constant complaints. There are many areas where its service to the student body could be vastly improved. Campus leaders discussed the problem last week and came up with nearly 20 suggestions about the library.

Many of the complaints concern things that it would appear the library could remedy without much trouble. The entire stock privilege setup needs revision. Taking out books Sunday afternoon—something asked for months ago—still is prohibited. Longer daily hours and more weekend hours are in demand. Date due instead of date checked out could be stamped in books. Also needing revision are faculty and graduate loan privileges, the reserve book system and method of replacing lost books.

These are but a few of the suggestions that will be forwarded to the administration by student leaders. We hope their ideas receive full consideration and subsequent action will follow. In such an important matter as library policy, student voices deserve to be recognized.

An Opportunity to Listen

And the strains of Moussorgsky made the old castle live and the great gate of Kiev swing open again . . .

We have the opportunity to be stirred by the music of modern and more antique masters as three piano seniors in the School of Music and one soprano present final recitals for bachelors' degrees in Crouse auditorium within the next two weeks.

The recitals are in culmination of four years' study with music professors and instructors, some of whom are world-renowned. They are free concerts, lessons in appreciation or further experiences in enjoyment for the more accomplished listener.

Three of the concerts are scheduled during examination weeks and one will be given tonight. For those who need a study break, the former provide the ideal change in pace, and tonight's recital can be a welcome interlude for others who wish to rest after tons of term papers.

Musicians are like other people in at least one way. They like to be heard. The recitals are also a gauge for instructors who must determine the students' eligibility for degrees. A large and interested audience can be of great assistance.

I Hold These Truths...

By MARY ANNE DALTON
Former President, Women's Student Government

I believe that God has created me as He has all men, to live a life on earth that will be in His honor. I believe that He has created me, as He has all men, to die that I may be with Him in Heaven.

I believe that God did not desert me at birth leaving me to attempt this life alone. Rather, He is with me always to offer the aid of His grace and love. Yet God has lived his life on earth in the person of Jesus and my life is mine to live. I am responsible for it. I must give it purpose and direction.

A life well lived to the good end must have purpose. I feel this purpose is first found in a dream. Man must dare to dream, to dream about himself, his fellow man, and his world. Here man reaches perfection, the only perfection he can know on earth.

The dream of man will be his idea of how he will relate with his fellow men and he will imagine the physical world and how he will alter and improve it.

I believe that these dreams of man can be positively directed to goodness is perfection. Man is capable of dreaming of perfection because God is with him. In these dreams man finds the purpose of his life.

Man is on earth to live and living involves much more than dreams. The word life seems synonymous with action and man by nature is a creature of action. This action must be given direction if the end of a good life, and God, is to be reached in the short span of our years.

After man has dreamed he is ready for action, activity in fact is demanded of those who would dream. From the purpose found in his dreams he will give direction to action.

In action man's dreams of what his life should be will be tempered by the reality of other people's lives and of the whole world situation. Direction is found in the reality of action.

Man must learn to accept the fact that other men and himself are different in the reality of life than they are in the perfection of his dream. Morality has imposed imperfection on the living.

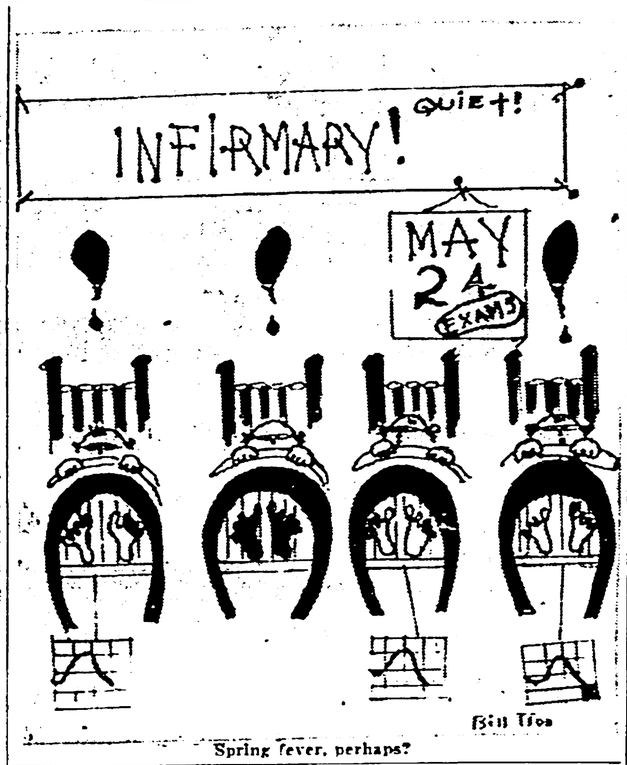
It seems that the subjects war and peace are always with us. We are much concerned with the horrors of war and its affects on our lives. Few of us stop to think that the end of war will not bring peace. Peace is not a commodity found under the blotters of diplomats at a conference table.

Peace is rather within each individual person and can be there regardless of the turmoil in the world. Peace is found as man has direction for his life.

It seems that possession of peace of mind and soul is man's greatest obligation to others for it can be his greatest for others. Through peace of mind he can help create a security for his world.

I believe that man can and must have faith in his ability to act. His actions may not always be for the best, the outcomes not always as he predicts. Yet it is in action that change is accomplished. Man is not fulfilling his reason for living if he retreats from action for fear of imperfection.

I believe that directed action is man's obligation in life; yet this obligation is only completely met if first man has dreamed and found purpose for living. I believe that this purpose will be a life ending in eternity with God.



Spring fever, perhaps?

Re Joint Committee: Writer Calls for Deeds

To the Editor:

Miss Dorianne Bright's May 19th letter confirming her faith in the idea of a joint Assembly steering committee was encouraging and inspirational. We know Miss Bright, who heads WSG, will urge WSG to create an acceptable committee next year.

WSG can easily resolve the "meeting" and "membership" flaws which Miss Bright found in MSG's proposal. However, Miss Bright contradicts herself on the "membership" flaw. First, "at least 14 persons" are too many for the committee, then she desires "weekly planning between two speakers and panel chairmen." If her committee will "accomplish what two or four people could do more efficiently . . .," we are for it.

We agree with Miss Bright that monthly meetings of a joint steering committee "would be too infrequent," but she has merely forgotten the MSG bill's passage asked for meetings "at least once a month," which doesn't bar weekly meetings that Miss Bright desires.

If WSG really wants "another joint steering committee proposal" and the single student government inferred, WSG should take the initiative and present its own ideas as has MSG.

About $4,000 is spent each year by the University to support WSG and MSG. This is the price we pay for duplication of officers, services and materials. A joint steering committee is the first step in achieving less expensive government.

A joint steering committee could eventually lead to a single student government assembly, but at the secular prestige of both assemblies. It seems WSG is willing to maintain its prestige at the expense of the student body. If the facts were otherwise, Miss Bright and WSG would propose a public forum to discuss single student government.

The joint steering committee is an experiment, which seeks to prove or disprove the feasibility of one responsible efficient student government on the Syracuse campus. WSG's reaction so far has been purely verbial, while MSG at least did something.

Unfortunately we are forced to conclude: (1) there will never be a joint steering committee, (2) WSG is not primarily concerned with general student body welfare, and (3) bad government will continue.

An Early Notice

"I've got a straight 'A' average!" one local citizen screamed at 2:23 p.m. yesterday afternoon as he ran into the dorm.

Seems that the fellow had a one hour course in oral French, had an oral final yesterday, and got his mark orally (though unofficially) immediately thereafter. Last we saw of him he walked off muttering ". . . only 17 credit hours more . . ."

Cattle Business Set for 'Ranch' By Two Seniors

Capt. M. L. Goumallas
Lazy "C" Ranch, Inc.
Sugarland, Ft. Bend County, Tex.
Dear sir:

This week Robert S. Yallum and Arthur B. Siegel purchased on behalf of Bar JARJ Ranch Syndicate of Syracuse 10, N.Y., six tracts of land from the Lazy "C" Ranch, Inc., through its appointed selling agent, Hill Smoke Shop, Syracuse, N. Y.

The tracts are numbered 1227464 through 1227469 inclusive on the main deed registered in Ft. Bend County Clerk's office.

Each tract measures exactly 2 square inches, making a total tract of 12 square inches.

We plan to erect an electric fence around our property as soon as we have erected a dwelling. Right-of-way privileges will then cease, as you know. We are enclosing a sketch of a proposed development.

As soon as some of the members of the syndicate serve their time in the armed forces, we will begin cattle ranching on the property. We plan to drive the cattle to market each spring after the roundup. We are certain you are familiar with this practice.

Or don't you attend cowboy movies?

We have received reports that cowhands are being allowed to trample cigarette butts out on our 12 square inches of land.

And gophers! Our agents inform us that gophers are being allowed to run rampant over the property. Let us remind you that even one small gopher can ruin the land irreparably. We refer you to the Homestead Act of the last century.

It is thus necessary that our 12 square inches of land be kept in good order. We trust that you will live up to the terms of the sale contract in which you promise to "forever warrant and defend" said property.

Please keep the stogies off the grass, the gophers off the soil and the sheepherders away from whole said affair.

We are enclosing an electric fence in the envelope with this letter.

Very truly yours,
Robert S. Yallum
Arthur B. Siegel

An Unjustified Fear: Criticism Is Welcomed

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Director

This is the time of year that a great many people hold that it's been a great year, that we've made progress, that all is just beautiful.

We tend to look at things a bit more somberly.

We see a great deal of material progress: the law building, two dormitories, two engineering buildings, a quad to replace the old oval, the women's building opened.

There has been a good academic program, with Humanities and other lectures, and a fine Footprints conference.

But here's part of the debit side of the ledger:

Loss for a semester of almost all Student Union functions. Many of these have since been reinstituted, some through the Student Activities Committee, which started working with Friday night mixers.

Additional functions will be available next fall with the opening of the student activities center in the basement of the Women's Building.

Still missing will be vital functions such as the textbook lending library.

An attitude among the students characterized by the oft-repeated noun "apathy" is prevalent. Many organizations, ranging from Dilemma to groups such as Men's Student Government and this newspaper have felt it. Vitality and size of many organizations is on the decline.

This applies to passive participation, too. Cite the trouble in getting "ON" subscriptions.

We're not quite sure how many permanent deaths this year will have brought. We hope to see Dilemma once again in the fall.

We feel that no one group is entirely responsible for this mess. The administration has been out of touch with student needs at times. Poor communication accounts for a great deal.

This we feel is a very major factor: most students at this University, or at least a majority of students in groups such as the student governments and Campus Leaders feel that they should not criticize any Administration policy.

Such an attitude is not what the Administration is looking for as we see it. We cite as examples speeches made by the Chancellor at Pinebrook, noting that students must help make policy decisions, such as the future enrollment of the University.

Student groups have felt that they didn't have the right to criticize, to comment upon, or to suggest. Example: Men's Student Assembly refused to investigate the overall University housing policy for this reason, feeling it was not within their power even to comment upon it.

We realize that a communication difficulty exists. Perhaps The Daily Orange can better serve in that capacity in the future. But this attitude must be changed—it is not basically desired by students or Administration.

AT THE FLICKERS

Talent Wasted In 'Casanova,' Hope's Wit Bad

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Daily Orange Film Critic

"Casanova's Big Night", at the Keith's, employs such talented people as Joan Fontaine, Arnold Moss, Basil Rathbone, Vincent Price and John Carradine. The result is a colassal waste of this precious commodity. For the new Bob Hope opus is the most witless, tasteless and genuinely inane film that you are likely to see this year.

Bob Hope is undoubtedly adept at sending his audience with a fast line of comic patter. Save for those times when he was aided by Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour, or appearing in one of the Damon Runyon romps, he has had no such success in films. Since neither Crosby or Lamour are on hand and since his script has none of the wit of Runyon's, his gondola goes down with all hope lost.

The film has Hope as the tailor of the infamous Jacques Casanova. When his customer does a vanishing trick over some unpaid debts, his creditors rig Hope up to impersonate him. The rest of the film, dealing with love, sword play and very low comedy, labors under the misapprehension that an oaf impersonating the great lover would be devastatingly funny. We wouldn't vouch for the fun involved.

The antics of Hope are contemporaneous with Genesis. When all else fails he impersonates a female, a trick that is as old as it is humorless. Rathbone is fed dialogue like, "Somebody goofed," and everyone else behaves as if they just couldn't wait for the newsreel.

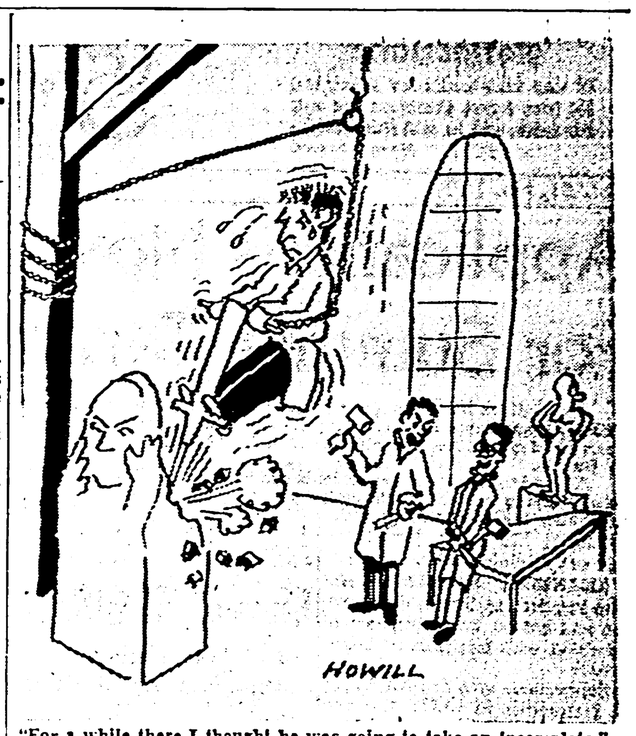
"Casanova's Big Night" might have been funny if it just could have made up its mind as to what manner of fish or fowl it was.

As it stands it is neither comedy nor drama, neither parody nor slapstick, nor anything else that ever crawled, lurched or slithered across the silver screen, except maybe the greatest test of an audiences's staying powers on record.

Set in the Grand Canal it has its characters converse as if they lived on Broadway at 42nd St. This curious mixture defeats all of the actors except Hope, who probably didn't care much anyway.

Arnold Moss, who two years ago graved a revival of "King Lear," delivers his lines as if they were also the product of Shakespeare's remarkable mind (which they obviously are not) and the Messers. Rathbone and Price play, respectively, melodrama and parody. Miss Fontaine plays cheesecake and Audry Dalton just looks sick.

Who's confused?



"For a while there I thought he was going to take an incomplete."

(Editor's Note: No, Kiddies, the cartoon that ran in yesterday's Daily Orange wasn't an abstraction. It wasn't doodling space or meant primarily for autographs, which don't look very good on newsprint.

The secret to the matter is the overwhelming complexity of modern technology. We thought first yesterday morning of running the cartoon today with a reference to yesterday's cutline. We thought of trying it upside down. But we're cowards at heart.)

Sale to Benefit Coffee Fund

A pewter chalice, recently excavated from the beach of far-off Thorndenika, is on exhibit in the office of the English department in the basement of the Hall of Languages.

The cup is believed to be a faithful replica of the Holy Grail, according to a card in place on front of the cup. It is on sale for the benefit of the English faculty coffee fund.

Those with 20-20 vision can see without too much effort that the chalice is actually ocnstructed of common twentieth century tinfoil Near-sighted ones might have to get a bit closer to realize that this is an object of art by Prof. A. E. Johnson.

Pi Alpha Chi Garners Softball Crown

By EV MURCH

Whip-armed Lou Petricola held the Bureaucrats to two hits last night on Hendricks Field as Pi Alpha Chi walked off with the all-University intramural softball championship, 17-0.

Petricola completely baffled the independents as he fanned 14 and gave up a pair of singles. Although he allowed five walks and hit a batter, his fast one was good in the clutches and only two men got as far as third.

MEANWHILE, HIS teammates, aided by eight Bureaucrat errors, belted Roger Hughbanks for 17 runs. John Dickerson was number one on the hit parade, as he accounted for four of Pi Alpha's 16 safeties.

The losers' two hits were a liner to left by Harry Spindler in the third and Vance Kane's drive into right in the seventh. Hughbanks banged two long flies, but both were pulled down by the Greeks' hustling outfield.

The champions clinched the game in the opening frame. After Petricola flew to center, Jerry Dean was hit on the foot by one of Hughbank's offerings. Tony DeAngelis followed with a slam through the hole into left, moving Dean to third.

DEAN COUNTERED on John Whearty's bounce to first, DeAngelis scored when Jack Theurer's fly bounced off the left fielder's glove and Theurer himself came in as the ball rolled all the way into center.

Phi Alpha added two more in the second on a single and four errors and that was the ball game. From then on the fraternity men just added insult to injury, scoring three in the third, two in the fourth, three in the sixth, and four in the seventh.

The game's big blow was DeAngelis' homer in the fourth. It was a line-shot that took off over leftfielder Wiley's head and bounded through the fence and into the cemetery.

The Bureaucarts are graduate students of the School of Public Administration and not a squad of resident advisors as was reported yesterday in The Daily Orange.

Frosh Nine Ends Season at Cornell

Syracuse's freshman, ball and bat boys will close the scorebook for another season this afternoon at Ithaca, when they tangle with Cornell's yearlings.

The Tangerines will have vengeance in their hearts as they seek to atone for the early season defeat at the hands of the Little Red on Lew Carr Field.

ALSO riding on the contest is a percentage. In six games, the locals have split with the opposition, winning from Rochester, Colgate, and Ithaca while losing to the latter two and Cornell.

Tom Hallet is Coach McDaniel's choice for hurling chores. Hallet has a record of 2-1 and pitched a fine three-hitter his last time out against Ithaca.

Golf, Net Seasons Close

Syracuse's golf and tennis teams conclude their campaigns today with home matches. The golfers will entertain Sampson AFB on the Tecumseh links at 2:30 p.m. while the netmen play host to Bucknell at Skytop one-half hour later.

Orange Lacrossemen To Visit Hobart Ten

Syracuse's lacrossers "shoot the works" tomorrow afternoon when they invade Geneva for the season finale against Hobart. The twice-beaten Orange can assure itself a piece of the Laurie Cox Division championship with a victory over the Statesmen.

Coach Roy Simmons sent his charges through a rough workout yesterday to eliminate the possibility of a let-down following Wednesday's 12-8 win at Cornell. Simmie has indicated he will start with the same combination that rolled up eight victories, in ten starts, commenting, "You can't change horses when they're riding good."

DON LAAKSONEN will see action at defense tomorrow afternoon when the Orange stickmen end their season against Hobart at Geneva.

ED WHITE will open in the nets with Co-capt. Leo Pollack, Primo Belluz and Bob Miller at defense. Co-capt. Bruce Yancey, Don Moller, and Al Duff draw the midfield assignments with Stew Lindsay, Don Muller and Ed (Pug) Smith on the attack.

Francis (Babe) Kraus, Hobart's director of athletics and lacrosse coach, is completing his 28th season at the Geneva college. He faced a terrific rebuilding job this year with only seven lettermen to build around.

Brightest spots in the Hobart picture are the attack posts filled by Capt. John Snape and Jon Kraus. Both are seniors and won all-America honorable mention last year.

SNAPE IS the highest scoring attackman in Statesman history, having registered 105 goals in three seasons. Second son of the coach, Kraus is a fine play-maker and team leader. The third forward spot will probably go to Bill Burhans, a converted midfielder.

The Hobart center line is indefinite with only Pete Karp and Dick Marx having much experience.

Defense is not too great a problem for Kraus with Hank Bolin, all-America honorable mention last year, Jerry Angelli, Dick McKnight and Augie Gates available for duty. Senior Hugh Pickering is the probable goalie.

Tomorrow's contest will be the 41st in the Hobart series. The Orangemen hold a 28-10-2 advantage, including a 12-7 win here a year ago.

Te frosh stickmen also end their season tomorrow when Cornell visits Hendricks Field at 2:30 p.m. John Echeandia's yearlings have split six games, winning three at home and losing three on the road.

Alpha Sig Captures Intra Tennis Title

Alpha Sigma Phi annexed the all-University intramural tennis championship yesterday with a 2-1 victory over M-2 on the Skytop courts.

Al Festa and Jerry Sowinski accounted for the triumph, Alpha Sig's sixth straight. Festa beat Jerry Hayslip, 6-2, 8-10, 6-3, while Sowinski turned back Dick Dolle, 6-0, 6-2.

ED CHENEY and Dick Napoli scored the lone freshman win, topping Joe La Spisa and Tom Kennedy, 6-0, 8-6, in the doubles match.

Orange to Run in IC4A's

Seven Orange trackmen will compete in the IC4A championships in New York City May 29-30. Ray Osterhout will run the two-mile, Steve Armstreng and Les Vielbig, the mile and Jack Hubbard the 440-yd. dash. Dick Jackson is entered in the broad jump, Hank Wightman in the pole vault and Capt. Joe Martin in the javelin.

Piety Diamondmen Seek Second Win Against Statesmen

By BOB LEFKO
Associate Sports Editor

Unable to regain their winning ways since an opening game victory over Union, the Syracuse diamondmen enter the final part of the season this afternoon opposing the Hobart Statesemen at Geneva. Game time is 3 p.m.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 p.m., Sampson's Sabres invade Lew Carr Field for a clash and then the Orangemen conclude their schedule Saturday, June 5 as hosts to the Colgate Red Raiders.

BURDENED BY a 1-6 record, the locals will have to win all three of their remaining battles to save face for the season. The road ahead seems difficult though for the luckless Saltines, who have already fallen to Colgate in an earlier extra-inning battle. Sampson and Hobart are also reported to be strong this season.

Either soph Jll Cassidy or Junior Bert Rich is scheduled to get the call on the mound for the Syracusans today, both looking for their first win of the campaign. Coach Spike Garnish will probably call on righty Will Byrne or southpaw Roy Bush.

Orange coach Ted Kleinhans is expected to continue to shuffle his lineup around hoping to find a winning combination. In Wednesday's 3-1 defeat at Cornell, Mickey Kyff gave the Syracusans good pitching but a shoddy defense spelled his downfall.

Syracuse was scheduled to face Sampson earlier in the year but inclement weather caused cancellation of the battle. The airmen have a power-hitting nine and will be favored in the clash. Kleinhans may come back with his ace, Kyff, in the weekend battle.

Greta Wolff to Sing With Lyric Theater

Greta Wolff, attractive music major whose show business life stretches from Olson and Johnson to "Up in Lights," will be a member of the resident company of the Finger Lakes Lyric Circus for the upcoming summer season.

The Circus, located on US Route 20 near Skaneateles, 20 miles west of Syracuse, will present a series of 11 Broadway musical productions beginning June 19 with "Show Boat." Miss Wolff will do choral work and his hoping to garner several small parts during the Lyric Circus season extending through Sept. 13.

A FRESHMAN in the College of Fine Arts majoring in voice, Miss Wolff can boast a full and varied career in the stage prior to entering Syracuse last September. She toured with the road company of "Brigadoon" March through June, 1952 playing a small part and understudying the female lead. She also spent six months with Olson and Johnson's "Skating Vanities" as featured singer during 1952-53.

Television work in Detroit and a radio show in Newark, N. J. are among Greta's other credits.

THE 20-YEAR-OLD soprano was guest artist in a concert with Lauritz Melchior at Plainfield, N. J. in May, 1953. A native of Westfield, N. J., Miss Wolff has a lifetime scholarship with Estelle Liebling, noted voice coach from New York city.

Since coming to Syracuse, she has become a member of the local Geraldine Arnold Singers and has appeared in several campus productions including "Christmas, U.S.A.," WAER's mamouth holiday pageant broadcast from Chapel last semester. One of the bright lights in the recent production of "Up in Lights," Miss Wolff received plaudits for her rendition of "I Fell in Love with You Again."

Syracuse Graduation Plans Head Toward Final Stages

Commencement weekend activities go into final stages today and tomorrow as the class of 1954 becomes Syracuse University's newest alumni.

Activities for today get under way at 9 a.m. with the Baccalaureate Mass of Catholic graduates in Crouse College.

BACCALAUREATE service is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. in Archbold Stadium. Graduates will assemble for the academic procession at 9:30 a.m. on Hendricks field by their college standard.

In event of rain the services will be held in Archbold Gymnasium. There will be no procession but graduates must be in their seats by 10:15 a.m.

After the services, at 2 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. there will be television programs in the first floor of the main library.

BEFORE AND after the class day exercises which take place at 3 p.m. Carleton James will be at the organ on the main quadrangle.

Hospital of Good Shepherd Alumnae Association will meet from 3 to 5:30 p.m. at Drumlins.

Campus open house will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Chancellor and Mrs. William P. Tolley will receive in Sims Hall.

FACULTY MEMBERS and their wives will act as host and hostesses in the following places: Joe and Emily Lowe Art Center, School of Architecture, School of Music, College of Liberal Arts, Women's Building, College of Business Administration, School of Education, and Maxwell.

Others having open house are Utica College, Library Science, College of Forestry, College of Home Economics, College of Engineering, School of Journalism, School of Speech, Hendricks Chapel and the School of Nursing.

THE PROMENADE organ concert with Carleton James at the organ will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. University Symphonic Band Concert will be held at 7:30 p.m. on the Main Quadrangle. Harwood Simmons will direct.

Reception for Catholic graduates, their families and friends will be held at 8 p.m. at St. Thomas More Chapel.

COMMENCEMENT exercises begin at 10 a.m. in Archbold Stadium. Graduates will assemble by their college standards at 8:45 a.m. on Hendricks field. Procession will begin at 9:10 a.m.

In the event of rain Commencement exercises will be held in the Onondaga County War Memorial at 10:30 a.m. There will be no academic procession but graduates must be in their seats by 10:10 a.m.

Guests of the graduates, in order to see the academic processions, should be in their seats by 10 a.m. for the Baccalaureate Service and by 9 a.m. for the Commencement exercises.

An informal buffet luncheon will be held at 12 noon in Bray Hall.

Dr. Noble to Speak On New Dimensions At Baccalaureate

The need of new dimensions to live with the overall bewilderment and uncertainty overshadowing the daily problems of our time is the theme of Dean Charles C. Noble's sermon at the Baccalaureate service at 10:30 a.m. in Archbold Stadium.

Opening the service, which will be held in Archbold Gym in case of rain, will be the "Largo," from Quartet Opus 76, No. 5, by Haydn. The University band will be conducted by Prof. Harwood Simmons.

GRADUATING SENIORS and candidates for advanced degrees assemble on Hendricks Field at 9:30 a.m.. "March Noble," Chr. Bach, and "March of Homage," by Liszt are the processional numbers.

Rev. Arthur Hopkinson Jr., chaplain to Methodist students, will give the invocation. "Father of Lights," a hymn written for the 100th Commencement by A. E. Johnson, poet in residence at the university, will be sung by the congregation.

Scripture will be read by Rabbi Irwin Hyman, chaplain to Jewish students, and a prayer given by Rev. K. Arnold Nakajima, Presbyterian chaplain.

BACH'S "CHRIST Lay in Bonds of Death" will be played by the band before Dean Noble's Baccalaureate address.

The congregation will sing "Faith of Our Fathers," and Rev. W. Wesley Konrad, co-chaplain to the Episcopalian students, will give the benediction. The recessional, "Marche et Cortege," from "The Queen of Sheba," by Gounod closes the service.

In case of rain there will be no processional and graduating seniors and candidates for advanced degrees should be in their seats by 10:15 a.m. in the gym.

Mass for Catholic students and their guests will be held at 9 a.m. in Crouse College auditorium, with the Rev. Gannon Ryan officiating.

MARY ANNE DALTON

JOHN BEACH

Senior Marshals Set For Commencement

New types of quarterbacks will trod the turf of Archbold Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

They will be University Marshal A. McKinley Terhune and overall Class Marshals John Beach and Mary Anne Dalton.

DR. TERHUNE, professor of English, will have top control over the complicated Commencement ceremony, the University's 100th. Assisted by 32 faculty marshals, he may again, as he has in the past 11 years, be confronted with such problems as uncertain weather, confused graduates, broken chairs and late speakers.

Beach and Miss Dalton will lead the 1,500 graduates into the stadium to their seats from Hendricks Field. Marching according to colleges, the graduates will have 22 student marshals among them.

Beach, who will receive his AB from the College of Liberal Arts, is president of the graduating class. Miss Dalton, who headed Women's Student Government this year, has been enrolled in Liberal Arts-Education.

DR. TERHUNE, wearing his scarlet Cambridge robe, will lead the academic procession into Archbold Stadium. In the procession will be faculty members, trustees, deans and directors and the Chancellor's party.

Thirty-two faculty marshals, sporting brilliant orange robes trimmed in blue, will be posted along the route of march and in the stands.

The college marshals will be: Ann Forrest and Clarence Mather, fine arts; Allan Anderson and Eugene Parker, business administration; Elizabeth Brydon and Lawrence O'Sullivan, liberal arts.

ANN LINES and Ellen (Billie) Williams, home economics; Audrey Drezen and Constance Pierson, education; William Terrell and Albert Smith, engineering; Hugh O. Muir and Winona Brierly, journalism; Judith Abbott and Barbara Laubach, nursing.

Mary Ubans and Tess Oestereicher, speech; Blair Knapp and James Craine, forestry; and Patti Ann Burke and John Finnegan, Utica.

Class Day Exercises Set for Quad Today

Students to Deliver Prophecy, History

The third annual Class Day exercises will be held from 3-4 p.m. today in the bandstand on the Main Quadrangle. In case of rain the exercises will be moved to Archbold Gymnasium.

According to co-chairmen Tess Oesterreicher and Alan Hart, Class Day is plaanned as a last informal meeting of the seniors, with their parents and friends.

VINCENT RIGOLOSI will deliver the ivy oration. Janet Caro and Arthur Siegel, class historians, will review the events of the class of '54.

Class poet Nancy Knapp will offer a poem, and William Dixon and William Levine, class prophets, will speculate on future activities of class groups.

Dr. Raymond Irwin of the speech department is adviser to the speakers, who were chosen by the senior exec council.

ARLENE LAMBERT, valedictorian, and Reuven Dobry, salutatorian, will be introduced.

Ceremony Scheduled For Archbold Stadium

A total of 1,581 Syracuse University students will receive degrees from Chancellor William P. Tolley at the University's 100th Commencement tomorrow morning in Archbold Stadium.

The ceremonies are scheduled to get underway at 10 a.m. with the color and pageantry of the academic procession starting a short time before.

IN THE EVENT of rain, exercises will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the Onondaga County War Memorial, S. State and Madison St.

Baccalaureate candidates among the students to receive degrees number 1,239.

Of the 321 advanced degrees to be awarded, 51 will be doctorate degrees and 270 will be masters.

149 ROTC Seniors Get Commissions

Service Ceremonies Follow Commencement

Forty-seven Army ROTC cadets and 102 Air Force seniors are scheduled to receive commissions as second lieutenants.

Thirty-six Army cadets will be presented their commissions by Lt.-Col. George R. Stevens, PMS&T, in ceremonies in 301 Machinery Hall following Commencement tomorrow. Maj. Milton Falk will swear the 36 in and bars will be pinned on.

TEN OTHER Army seniors will get their bars following completion of summer camp.

Four Army seniors have been designated distinguished military graduates. They are George S. Kepner, Glenn Kohler, John F. Holzworth and Peter B. Seevers. Harold D. Ratcliffe is a candidate for the honor. James A. Buffington is a candidate for the designation at summer camp.

The Air Force will commission 52 seniors in ceremonies in Maxwell Auditorium following Commencement exercises. Twenty-seven men who accepted the special Air National Guard commissions offered two weeks ago will receive them at a later date. Twenty-one graduates are expected to get their bars at completion of summer camp, while two others will be commissioned at the end of summer school.

THE AIR FORCE ceremonies will include an address by Col. Robert Halloran, PAS&T, who has been reassigned after four years at the helm of the Air Science department, and swearing in by Capt. Joseph R. Peartree.

Both the Army and Air Force will have brief preliminary commissioning exercises as part of the Commencement program in the Stadium.

The Air Force ROTC department here said that the 27 men who accepted the National Guard commission plan were among the 38 seniors who were slated originally to receive certificates of completion instead of commissions since they were in non-flight categories.

The Air Guard plan requires that men serve three years of active Air Force duty, followed by an additional three years in the active Guard.

THE COLLEGE of Liberal Arts leads in number of graduates, with 459, followed by the College of Fine Arts, which has 166 graduating seniors.

There will be 152 graduates from the College of Business Administration and 103 from the State University College of Forestry.

Seniors receiving degrees from the other schools and colleges are: School of Education, 66; College of Engineering, 64; College of Home Economics, 77; School of Nursing, 4; Schoool of Speech and Dramatic Art, 42; and Utica College, 79.

TWENTY-SEVEN students will graduate from the College of Law.

Associate degrees will be awarded to 21 students, four from University College and 17 from Utica.

Seven honorary degrees will also be granted by the University.

HAROLD E. STASSEN, director of the Foreign Operations Administration, former governor of Minnesota and former Mutual Security director, will be guest speaker at the exercises. He will also receive an honorary doctor of law degree.

Miss Arlene M. Lambert, a journalism and psychology major with a 2.94 average, will be honored as valedictorian of the graduating class. Miss Lambert, a resident of Rochester, was editor-in-chief of The Daily Orange in 1953-54 and is a member of seven honoraries.

Salutatorian of the Class of 1954 is Rueven Dobry, chemical engineering major, with a 2.93 mark. Coming from Tel Aviv, Israel, he lists membership in four groups. He plans graduate study at the University of Illinois.

WSYR-TV will telecast the Commencement proceedings starting at 9:30 a.m. in cooperation with the Syracuse University radio-television center. WAER, the campus FM station, is taping the exercises for rebroadcast later in the day.

The public is invited to Commencement, with no tickets required for admission.

Members of Eta Pi Upsilon; senior women's honorary; Tau Theta Upsilon and Pi Kappa Alpha, senior men's honoraries; and Orange Key, junior men's honorary, will usher.

Tolley to Present Honorary Prizes

Five men and two women will receive honorary degrees for outstanding service in their fields at Commencement tomorrow. Six Doctor of Law degrees and one degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology will be awarded.

Receiving degrees will be Harold E. Stassen, director of Foreign Operations Administration and Commencement speaker; Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia University; Dr. David Dallas Jones, president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N.C.; Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, author, reporter and trustee of Barnard College.

MRS. OSWALD B. Lord, US representative to the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations; Rear Admiral Hyman George Rickover of the Atomic Energy Commission; and Rabbi Philip Sidney Bernstein, Temple B'rith Kodesh, Rochester.

Stassen began his political career as attorney of Dakota County, Minn. He was elected governor of Minnesota at 31 and became the youngest governor in the history of the United States. He was re-elected and remained in office until his third term when he entered active duty in the Navy.

While in service, he received the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star and six battle stars.

IN 1948 AND 1952 he was placed in nomination for president at the Republican convention, but was defeated both times. In November, 1952, he was appointed director of the Foreign Operations Administration, the job which he holds today.

Admiral Rickover, designer of the new atomic-powered submarine, graduated from Annapolis in 1922 and received a degree of Master of Science in electrical engineering in 1929.

In December 1945, he reported as Inspector-General of the 19th Fleet and engaged in "moth-balling" vessels of the Pacific Fleet. Admiral Rickover was then assigned to the Atomic Energy Commission and today holds the post of director of Nuclear Power Division of the Navy Department of Ships.

MRS. LORD, US representative on the United Nations Commission of Human Rights, has been

Dr. Murphy Gains News Group Post

Dr. Robert D. Murphy of the School of Journalism has been named executive secretary of the New York State Society of Newspaper Editors. Murphy, who succeeds Harold E. Addington, took over the office Friday.

Chairman of the Newspaper Practice department, Murphy is a 1938 graduate of the journalism school here. He has been an Associated Press editor in New York and Chicago and has worked on papers in Ohio and New York.

MURPHY RECEIVED both his MA degree in journalism and PhD in political science at Syracuse and has taught at Westminster College and the Institute for Journalistic Studies at Stanford University.

College Prepares Special Course,

A special course in executive controls has been announced by the College of Business Administration for Aug. 9 through Sept. 2 at Minnowbrook, the University's summer conference center on Blue Mountain Lake.

Designed to aid management in developing skill and understanding in interpretation and use of figure data and controls, the program will accept up to 25 participants and is limited to two men from one company.

Cost of the four-week course will be $950. Further information may be obtained from William T. Jerome, director of the executive controls program.

Nottingham Scene Of Med Ceremonies

Dr. Moore to Address Sixty-Six Graduates

Dr. Robert A. Moore, vice chancellor in charge of schools of health professions, will speak at commencement exercises of the State University of New York College of Medicine at 3 p.m. today in Nottingham High School auditorium.

An executive on numerous national health boards and committees, he will address the 66 graduates on the subject, "Some Basic Problems in Medical Education."

DRS. ROBERT O. GREGG and Tyree C. Wyatt have been named by the senior class as faculty marshals to lead the processional. Robert H. Drachman and Edward P. Wandersee, juniors, will be student marshals.

Dr. William R. Willard, dean of the college, will present the graduates and Dr. William D. Carlson, president of the State University, will deliver the charge to the graduates.

Maj. Milton Falk will swear in graduates of the ROTC medical program and Dr. Herman G. Weiskotten will administer the Hippocratic oath to the new doctors.

Marketing Chooses Outstanding Senior

Henry E. Grethel of Syracuse has been named outstanding graduating senior in the marketing department of the College of Business Administration.

Grethel, who worked on bus ad picnic committees, was chosen by the faculty of the department on the basis of scholarship, participation and citizenship.

Federal Aid Given for Construction Of Dormitory on Mount Olympus

The Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency has granted Syracuse University a $2.2 million loan for construction of a women's dormitory on Mount Olympus, F. Gordon Smith, University vice-president and executive secretary, has announced.

Final plans and specifications are being prepared by Harry A. and F. Curtis King, architects. The University expects to advertise for bids by the end of the year.

LANDSCAPING OF the building for 540 coeds will be under the direction of University Prof. N. A. Rotunno, with Olmstead Bros., Brookline, Mass. consulting landscape architects.

Yet unnamed, the new dormitory will have two four-story L-shaped wings. A large high-ceiling central unit will connect the wings and house an entrance lobby, lounge, recreation hall and administrative suite.

Two student lounges are planned for each floor.

PLANS CALL for 262 double rooms, 16 singles and eight proctor rooms. The average double room, according to plans, will be about 16 feet long and 12 feet wide.

Freight elevators, laundry rooms with automatic washers and driers, storage and maintenance rooms will be in the basement along with study and recreation rooms, post office, lounge and snack bar.

Coeds will literally be living on top of the University, since the building will be about 300 feet above sea level and nearly 100 feet above the average campus terrain.

A RAMP type covered passageway is eventually planned to connect the dormitory with Sims hall.

No dining facilities are provided for in the immediate future, according to the plans.

Once the Olympus dorm opens, most of the small cottage housing units will probably be closed, since they are becoming more expensive to operate and heat.

WHEN COMPLETED, the Mount Olympus dorm will bring the number to three of new housing units on campus. Shaw dormitory was dedicated in November, 1952, while the Watson and Marion dorms for men will be ready for occupancy in the fall.

Government financing of the new women's dorm is under a 1950 amendment to the National Housing Act which permits the federal housing administrator to grant loans to educational institutions to assist them in providing housing for students.

A previous loan was made to the University in May, 1952, for the 665-men Watson and Marion units.

Menschel Will Lead Tau Theta Upsilon

New officers of Tau Theta Upsilon, senior men's honorary, elected Thursday night at the annual initiation banquet are: Richard Menschel, president; James Fellows, vice-president; Jerome Gerber, secretary; Edward Hardy, treasurer; and Stuart Parker, historian.

Japan Program Set for Summer

An intensive summer session program of studies on Japan and Japanese civilization will be offered by the University in cooperation with the Japan Society Inc.

Included will be Japanese geography and Cultural Patterns in China, taught by Prof. George B. Cressey of the Maxwell School; History of Japan and Cultural Patterns in Japan, taught by Prof. Douglas G. Haring of the sociology and anthropology department; and Elementary Japanese, taught by Kinichiro Sakurai, assistant professor of economics at Aoyama College, Tokyo and now studying at Harvard University.

A SERIES of weekly guest lectures on relative subjects is also planned.

Further information is available from Prof. Haring, 305 Maxwell.

Song of the Open Mind

As there is a variety of personalities in the world, there are many concepts of what the college graduate should be. Sometimes these ideas are static with their generations; sometimes they are carried along as a number of senior classes pass through commencement exercises.

In the early days of the University a classical education was emphasized for graduates. A basic knowledge of literature, philosophy, languages and history were stressed as requirements for degrees. Today, although academic endeavors beget sheepskin facsimiles, the college emphasis seems to be on activities and athletics as well. A happy medium of the two concepts is accepted by many as the criterion of the well-rounded graduate.

We propose that the student who leaves a university bearing a diploma, if he has wisely utilized this experience, will take with him two fundamental values, a liberal mind and a cultured mind.

The liberal mind embraces the willingness to consider views other than one's own. In addition, its owner seeks to increase international understanding on a diplomatic and personal basis. Loss of ethnocentrism could be the greatest gain of the college graduate of 1954 or of 1974.

A cultured mind holds within itself the key to appreciation of fine music, art and other humanities, the spirit to arrive at an independent evaluation of all or most of them.

The word "challenge" is a hackneyed one at commencement time. We exhort you "who are about to leave us" to strive for a cultured and non-dogmatic mind, basic attributes for better understanding.

Commissions Come Through

We're pleased that the Air Force belatedly, but finally came through for its 4,840 ROTC "certificate" men—those not in flying training.

Special Air National Guard commissions have been offered to these men, including 38 in the non-flight category at Syracuse University. Twenty-seven of the Hill seniors took the offer. Some of the 11 who rejected the proposal plan to go to graduate school and felt they would be better off "getting out."

Before the sudden change of plans the 38 seniors had the choice of entering the Air Force as Airmen Third Class or await the draft. They complained bitterly that the Air Force's decision to withhold commissions was a breach of faith.

In the final consideration, although the offer isn't as good as the original promise, the Air Force didn't let its 4,840 "ground men" seniors down. And to the 8,000 other ROTC officers who will be commissioned, "Happy Flying."

I Hold These Truths...

BY DEAN CHARLES C. NOBLE
Dean of Hendricks Chapel

It is evident to most observing and thinking persons that there is a power operating in this universe in a law abiding and orderly way.

This power, certainly greater than ourselves, expresses and fulfills itself in manifold forms—sticks and stones, trees and mountains, stars and animals, human beings like ourselves. In terms of reason and mentality it seems to find fulfillment best in the human mind and in the outreach of the human spirit.

Just as we expect a mountain to be mountanous, or a dog to be doggie, so we expect a person to be human. It is man's privilege and duty to let the power of God come to fruition in him in all that humanity means. Human nature, far from being essentially base, is seen to possess potentially everything we mean by divine nature.

The process by which we become completely human starts, to be sure, from a biological base; but it should move to ever higher and more rarified levels, through sociological and psychological developments, until it reaches moral, aesthetic, and creative expressions of what we call our minds and spirits.

Few of us attain our potential stature because we frustrate the workings of the infinite power by violating its laws, and by preventing its fullest expression in us.

Love, in its broadest implications, seems to hold life together. We assume, therefore, that love is a fundamental law of life and one way of describing the essential nature of the ultimate power of God.

Every constructively effective life bears witness to the wisdom and necessity of giving the love of God full opportunity to get itself expressed within that life. Self-surrender to the loving mind of God has always made for power and growth, for reconciliation and the integration of humanity.

In such a life as that of Jesus of Nazareth, the amazing results of commitment to God's goodness and of cooperation with the love of God are dramatically apparent. Even when the fulfillment of God's life within us results in a cross, the power released for the lifting of man's life is infinite.

Such a view of religion is broader than any one faith in its strict creedal form. It suggests that all who believe in the spiritual interpretation of ultimate reality in ethical terms, could unite on a workable faith that has four principals: first, at the center and heart of all being is a loving mind or power we call God. Second, we are His offering and have an obligation to use His life or power within us to the full. Third, as "children of God's family" we must treat ourselves and others with infinite respect. Fourth, the way to overcome evil is with practically implemented love or good will. In such a faith we can all find forgiveness, inner renewal, ethical empowerment, and a wider fellowship.

Such a down-to-earth approach to religion should give man new dignity; should make him aware of his vast responsibilities as a co-worker with the eternal; should challenge him to a new inclusiveness in his churchmanship and human relations; and, in the face of the transitory nature of life's eternals, it should lead him to put his trust in the things that are unseen and in the values which abide.

Living in a world of motion, flux, and change, we must have such an integrating faith within and without which will hold us together against split personalities as well as against split atoms.

Reflections on Sheep And the Local Senior

By ROGER J. HERZ
Editorial Director

Ladies and gentlemen of the graduating class of June, 1954:

In one humble estimation, a majority of you are sheep.

Not all. There are original thinkers in the bunch. But there seems an unfortunately large group that goes along with the crowd.

Take such a group, supply strong leadership with a few men who can lead, and you've got a herd.

So in these last few minutes of musing before the graduation ceremonies, we wonder if the only hope is for a benevolent shepherd. We hope not.

We think of the visualizations of this approaching ceremony:

Tomorrow comes the ultimate, the end, finis, period. Be it Phi Beta Kappa or Kappa Beta Phi. The ship of sheep leaves the port of graduation and sails on the murky waters of life, through doldrums, hurricanes and a bit of sun. Some are washed overboard, some jump.

There are no oars and eventually the guiding wind places the hearty passengers on the shores of the land of no return.

Or you can see it as a birth, the breaking out of the cocoon, the beginning, the emmigration into the world of reality. Here on the college green, some think, we haven't had anything more than a lot of theory that won't work. It's the hard knocks to come that will be real.

Well, look at it as either end of the yardstick of relative time, as you please.

Or perhaps take a center view.

Maybe this university life has been pretty close to that which is to come. Not the same right down the line, but no doubt there will be elections, for instance.

Nowhere on campus we have less than half the electorate voting in an all-campus election.

In the 1952 national election less than half voted.

The die isn't entirely cast, if such metaphoric license may be granted. But we pray that graduation and awakening will be synonymous in a great many cases.

A Dissertation On Graduation, June, 1954, A.D.

By LEE KIKLIER

A boy stood in a green jacket under the sign of Gate D looking down on Archbold Stadium Friday morning. On the field a huge group of students were making noise, joking and generally botching things. One boy led a line of civilians in marching order, he made a smart left flank and promptly tripped over the string that lined the field. Girls talked, smoked and talked.

The boy in the green jacket with LeMoyne lettered across his back turned to his friend and said: "They're just like public school kids."

And last Friday, the noisy, joking crowd at their graduation rehearsal were like a bunch of kids.

Some will have you believe that this class, this generation is a "lost generation." They are searching. They are searching for security and it takes many forms: a job, money, a wife. They are a lost generation and they are laughing to cover up their anxiety for the search.

Others will have you believe that this generation, this class is riddled with apathy, disconcern and a live-it-while-you-can attitude. They have heard about so much of life that they are numb or they have heard so little about life that they don't care.

They have loose morals and no respect.

Actually this class is neither any nor all of them. There are some who are searching and some who are apathetic for one reason or another.

But times now, broiled in strife were no harder than the class of '29's world soon to be emmersed in poverty. In fact the class is no different from any other graduating class.

They will have their minority percentage of world leaders and they will have their minority percentage of convicts.

But that great middle class that falls between—will fill the ranks of citizenry. They will live, die, get married, have children and benefit the community. Above all however, they will be adults.

Perhaps this was best noted by Dean Smith when he picked up his electric public address microphone and "advised" his public school kids to practice discretion on Saturday and Sunday nights. They were finished taking orders.

Later he also advised them to be on time for graduation or you've had it." They were finished taking orders and now they had to pay for wrong moves.

Some were searching, some were dull, some didn't care, but about the only generalization one could make was that they would all be adults. Or, almost all.

Merrie Summer

To all graduates past, present and future:

The Syracuse Daily Orange extends sincere wishes for a pleasant, safe and rewarding summer, to be followed by similar seasons of fall, winter and spring.

Final Review

As a minor postscript to the recent two weeks of final examinations which tomorrow's graduates will reflect upon for many a day, we present this small incident:

Student taking an economics exam, puzzled over a question on collective bargaining, asks a passing proctor if it refers to labor or management.

Hail and farewell! Finally graduating. Been five years now—finally got those 120 hours. That is, if I can pull that D in Introduction to Basketry.

Had a pretty good bunch of courses this last year. Didn't need to study for any of the finals, and didn't even have to hit many of the classes. Smart to pick classes where attendance isn't taken.

Guess they'll graduate me, anyway. They need good intelligent college men in the army.

Got a lot out of college. Pretty great the way I'll be getting out with a dead 1.0 average. No energy wasted. It's been a busy five years. There was that committee I joined in my sophomore year. Can't recall just what it was now.

There was fraternity, the "O", Green Lakes, Thornden, crew races. Women really kept me on the go.

So I get the degree soon. Finally some reward for the years of work. The army oughta be okay. Then when I get out I guess I'll try my father's business for a while and see if there's any money in it . . .

Generation of Egotists, Conviction, Security

By HUGH O. MUIR

Commencement is a mere formality.

No magic wand will wave over the 1,500 graduates tomorrow and turn them instantly into clear thinking, free wheeling compatriots. Perhaps they could be in danger if they did.

We refer the reader to an isolated paragraph in the reports on Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer issued last week. While its immediate significance was on the career of the noted physicist, the contradiction behind it will affect the future of us all . . . perhaps.

"Any man, whether specialist or layman, of course, must have the right to express his deep moral convictions; must have the privilege of voicing his deepest doubts . . . (but) emotional involvement in the current crisis, like other things, must yield to the security of the nation."

The above was written by intelligent men who sincerely believe that the dismissal of a man who has taken the "right" and "privilege" is in the interests of "the security of the nation."

Two of the major purposes of higher education is to give meaning to deep moral convictions and to raise a sense of doubt. A college graduate, thought liberated from idiotic fetishes, is reduced to the bondage of his conscience. The conscience is a hard taskmaster.

This nation was founded by men whose convictions demanded a freedom of doubt. The "current crisis" is merely this generation's challenge, an inheritance from crisis and generations past.

The essence of history is conflict; if this generation's ego is sufficient that it claims a new and tragically different crisis as its plaything, than "emotional involvement" is truly detrimental.

Commencement is the inevitable starting gun. Let no one hesitate from the race whose goal is not the yellow caution flag, but the checkered flag of victory—the victory of moral conviction over the hazy safety of "security."

Security is based upon moral conviction. Moral conviction is not based upon security.

Middies Favored in IRA Regatta

By DAVE BENNETT
Daily Orange Junior Editor

Syracuse becomes the capital of the crew-racing world once again on Saturday, June 19 when the 52nd annual Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta is held on Onondaga Lake.

This will mark the third consecutive year that the IRA event has been held in Syracuse. After being rowed for many years on the Hudson River at Poughkeepsie, the Intercollegiates were moved to Marietta, Ohio in 1950.

UNFAVORABLE RACING conditions on the Ohio River necessitated a change, however, and in 1952, Onondaga was picked as the best possible site for the big event.

This year, as in the past, 11 varsity crews will go to the starting line in the feature race, scheduled to get underway at 4 p.m. Nine JV and nine frosh shells will also compete, with the jayvees slated for three and the yearlings for two.

Navy's powerful varsity will probably be cast in the favorites' role in its race. Coach Rusty Callow's oarsmen are undefeated in 26 consecutive outings. The Middie string, longest in recent crew history, includes two IRA titles, three Eastern sprint championships and a win in the 1952 Olympics.

WASHINGTON'S STRONG western contenders cannot be counted out, however. Coach Al Ulbrickson's boat easily whipped California by five lengths in its major race this season. Coach Callow of Navy has picked this Huskie eight as the crew his boys will have to beat if they wish to remain undefeated.

But while Navy and Washington will rule the favorites, two or three eastern crews must be given dark-horse chances.

Cornell's fine varsity has been beaten by only Navy and Pennsylvania this season, and in two of its unsuccessful races, it was without the services of captain and stroke Pete Sparhawk. If Sparhawk is ready on June 19, the Big Red could surprise.

PENNSYLVANIA, ALSO, has an outstanding varsity. The Red and Blue have lost only one race, finishing behind Navy and Yale in the Eastern Sprints. Penn defeated Cornell last week in a dual meet at Ithaca.

Wisconsin, the midwest's sole representative, has another successfull shell, but the Badgers have not been able to beat Navy, Cornell or Pennsylvania thus far this year.

Boston U, California, Columbia, MIT, Princeton and Syracuse will round out the field of 11 in the varsity event and all are hoping that the long and smooth three-mile course and the additional one month to get ready will enable them to spring a surprise.

SYRACUSE'S VARSITY boat will need to improve its early season form if the Orange are to be contenders. Coach Gus Eriksen's oarsmen have been unsuccessful in four races this season.

Opening with a dual meet against Navy at Annapolis, the Hill eight trailed the Midshipmen by two and one-half lengths. The next week on Onondaga, Syracuse finished fifth following home Navy, Cornell, Wisconsin, and BU.

The Orangemen then journeyed to Ithaca, where the host Big Red boat beat Yale, Princeton and the Piety, in that order, in the Carnegie Cup regatta.

In the Eastern Sprints at Washington, Syracuse finished sixth and last in its elimination heat.

THE VARSITY race will see one lineup change. Boston U. did not compete last year and Stanford, due to financial difficulties, will not send boats this year.

The junior varsity race does not have the outstanding favorites that the varsity event does. Navy, however, probably has the best chance of winning. Like their varsity teammates, the Middie jayvees are undefeated. But Cornell and Princeton and a Washington eight that is somewhere of an unknown quantity will also be well supported in the JV race.

Syracuse's JV has about the same record as the varsity, with the Hill boatload losing close contests to BU and Penn in early season events.

THE IRA frosh race will find Cornell's amazing boat the one to beat. The Little Red have swept by all opposition this year, beating, among others, Yale, BU, Harvard, Navy and Penn in the Eastern Sprint finals. Last week, the Ithacans broke the Cayuga Lake course record in coasting to a five-length win over Penn.

Navy's frosh, with a good season record, and Washington are given the best chances against Cornell. But Penn, BU and Syracuse cannot be counted out.

Coach Mike Michalson's Orange yearlings, especially, will be looking for an upset. Improving steadily with experience, the Syracusans were nosed out by less than a decklength in the Eastern Sprint elimination heats.

IN OTHER races, the yearlings outrowed Princeton while trailing Cornell and beat BU while following home the Big Red and Navy.

Syracuse boatings for the IRA races are only tentative at this time. In the Eastern Sprints, Coach Eriksen's varsity had Ham Dixon at stroke, with Ollie Richards, No. 7; Neil Gutchess, No. 6; Rog Parfitt, No. 5; Henry Einhorn, No. 4; Dick Nichols, No. 3; Captain Bob Curran, No. 2; and Dick Reubelle in the bow. Jack Cooper has been the varsity coxswain in every race this year.

Prices for this year's race are unchanged. General admission to the finish line area is one dollar with a reserved grandstand seat costing $2.40. Parking facilities have been improved and will cost 50 cents.

BY THE SEA—The Ten Eyck Boat House residing on Lake Onondaga will see much activity and many spectators on June 19 when the IRA Regatta comes to town. It will be Syracuse's third consecutive year playing the role of host.

Phi Delts Win Greek Intra Championship

BY BOB LEFKO
Associate Sports Editor

Phi Delta Theta's track squad romped to victory in the fraternity track competition May 22 to give the house the overall intramural fraternity championship for 1953-54.

Entering the track event, final competition of the year, the Phi Delts, Beta Theta Phi and Phi Kappa Psi were hotly engaged in a fight for the overall crown. The Phi Delt win gave them a commanding 217½ points while Beta, with 213, and Phi Psi with 209, took down the second and third slots.

ALL 34 HILL fraternities competed in at least one of the 14 intramural sports throughout the year with nine different houses garnering titles.

Phi Delta was the only quadruple victor, garnering trophies in basketball, ping pong and golf in addition to track. Beta copped two titles, cross-country and skiing, while Tau Delta Phi also garnered two crowns, handball and volleyball.

Theta Chi won the first title of the year by taking the football crown. Phi Kappa Psi reigned in swimming and Phi Epsilon held the upper hand in bowling.

IN SPRING SPORTS, Pi Alpha Chi topped the softball competition, Alpha Sigma Phi ruled the tennis courts and Kappa Sigma copped the horseshoe award.

Fraternity intramural competition was directed by University Intramural Director Milt Howard and Interfraternity Council intramural committee chairman Bud Clement. Next year's program calls for the addition of two sports, rifle and sailing.

Points toward the overall championships are awarded for both competition and victory. Each house entering a squad in a particular sport is awarded points, while additional points are awarded for each game participated in, each championship won.

The top 10 houses for 1953-54:

Phi Delta Theta	217½
Beta Theta Pi	213
Phi Kappa Psi	209
Sigma Chi	192½
Tau Delta Phi	172
Theta Chi	167½
Sigma Alpha Mu	155½
Alpha Chi Rho	153½
Zeta Psi	144
Kappa Sigma	149½

Simmons to Coach Northern Lacrossers In All-Star Tilt

Orange Stickmen Tie Washington College For Cox Award

By LEE KIKLIER
Executive Sports Editor

The long sweat is done. Coach Roy Simmons went through another typical lacrosse season—8-2, won another championship—a tie for the Laurie Cox Trophy with Washington College, and accepted a bid to coach the northern All-Stars.

After several years of refusing the offer of head coach for the Northern All-Stars, because of pressing duties (and serving as assistant coach), Simmons will take two of his players and face the loaded Southern All-Stars as head coach of the Northern All-Stars.

CLEVER MIDFIELDER Don Moller and veteran defenseman Leo Pollack are the pair that Simmons' selected to accompany him down to the Long Island game.

Simmons' boys spent the season struggling through five top teams and found themselves in contention for the Laurie Cox Trophy. After downing their closest rivals, Rensselear Polytechnic Institute and Cornell, Syracuse breezed past Hobart 18-11, came home to have their banquet and then found themselves in a tie for the crown.

Washington College also had an 8-2 record, and on the point award system had 34 points, the same as Syracuse. Washington's only shutout: 18-0 at the national champion hands of Navy.

WASHINGTON and Syracuse played no common opponents and the closest they came was when they each played a service team.

Washington downed Kenyon, Swarthmore, Hofstra, Washington and Lee, Western Maryland, Baltimore, Loyola and Deleware. Syracuse beat Lehigh, Darthmouth, Cortland Penn State, Onondaga Indians, RPI, Cornell, and Hobart.

The award is given by taking the seven top games that each team plays. Every team in the country is split into three classifications. A win, lose or draw in every classification has a certain amount of points attached to it, no matter how big the score is. Beating a Class A team is worth 6 points, a draw, 5 and a loss 4. The B and C are awarded lesser points by degrees.

Golfers Enjoy Successful Spring As Baseball and Tennis Suffer

Only golf managed to survive the heat of the spring as Syracuse spring sports baseball and tennis suffered woefully throughout the campaigns.

Although a comparatively minor sport, the golf 7-2 record was the best of the three. The linksmen beat Colgate, Sampson twice, Clarkson, St. Lawrence, Hobart and Fordham. They lost to Colgate and Cornell.

THE GOLFERS thought this record good enough to take into Eastern competition for the first time since pre-wars days. They finished last, however, not an indication of the season they enjoyed.

The tennis team had a tough season winning only one match and losing five. Their only win came over Sampson Air Force Base 5-4 when Capt. John Kerr and Pete Bratt pulled the last doubles match out to give Coach Fran O'Brien's men the win.

Baseball was a paradox of well pitched games coupled with poor fielding and support. Only two games were won, over Union 7-5 and Hobart 6-3.

THEY LOST some close ones: to Colgate 10-9, 8-5 to St. Lawrence and 3-1 to Cornell. Generally however, the team batting average of .264 wasn't high enough nor was the fielding average of .913 impressive enough to give good pitchers Mickey Kyff, Bob Cassidy or sophomore Dick Esmay enough.

This trend was noted when the players on the team voted pitcher Kyff the most valuable player. His record: 1-4. Cassidy won the only other game for the Orange over Hobart and was tagged for a 7-2 Bucknell loss.

Kleinhans filled his team with football players who had no spring practice this year.

Among them: first baseman-quarterback Dick Darr, outfielder-lineman Paul Slick, catcher-center Joe Orzehowski and third baseman-All-American center Ted Kukowski.

NORTH AMERICAN HAS BUILT MORE AIRPLANES ... THAN ANY OTHER COMPANY IN THE WORLD

"O.K...You're on your own"

Moments ago his instructor said, "Good luck son. Now you try it alone." And as the young cadet turns to his plane he feels a sudden thrill run through him. He is sure he's ready...after those long months of tough, hard training. And he is ready. He'll win his wings, because those who chose him know he has the qualities a pilot must possess.

You too can know the same thrill that young man feels now...if you have the stuff in you to become an aviation cadet. Ahead of you lies a great adventure...flying with the U. S. Navy or Air Force in the planes that guard our nation's shores.

You'll meet them all. Planes like this T-28, North American's trainer for the Navy and Air Force, that outflies many World War II fighters. And when you've won your wings you may graduate to a squadron that flies FJ-3 Fury Jets, Korea-famed F-86 Sabre Jets...or America's fastest production jet fighter, the supersonic F-100 Super Sabre.

Yes, there's high adventure ahead for you, if you take the challenge a flying career in the services offers now...if you're ready to be on your own.

actively engaged for many years in welfare, cultural and political activities. In 1947 she was named a member of the US committee for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund and served as chairman until her appointment to the Human Rights Commission this year.

Dr. Kirk, 14th president of Columbia University, succeeded President Eisenhower to that position in 1953. He has been a professor in Columbia's department of public law and government, and was a member of the trustee-administration-faculty committee which arranged for the installation of Gen. Eisenhower as president of the University in 1948.

DR. KIRK was named director of the University's European Institute, then trustee, vice-president and president.

Dr. Jones received his AB degree in 1911 from Wesleyan University and also received honorary degrees from Wesleyan and Howard Universities. In 1926 he was appointed president of Bennett College, Greensboro, N.C.

From a rapidly diminishing student body of 10 students, and four well-worn buildings with a total endowment of $100, he built the Bennett College of today which has 438 students, 16 buildings, 14 faculty homes and a capital investment of approximately $3,000,000 and an endowment of $1.5 million.

From the time she started as a reporter on the New York Sun in 1907, Mrs. Meyer has been outstanding in her journalistic career.

SHE HAS served on many committees, including the President's Commission on Higher Education, and worked with many youth projects. Mrs. Meyer has received many awards for her work, among them the Women's National Press Club achievement, Educations Writers Association and citation from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

A graduate of Syracuse University and Jewish Institute of Religion, Rabbi Bernstein has studied at Columbia University and the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

He was president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and is now vice-president of the World Jewish Congress Executive (American Branch), vice-president of the World Alliance for Friendship Through Religion and author of "What the Jews Believe" and many magazine articles.

Three Concerts Slated for Today

Three concerts are on the Commencement Weekend program for today.

Carleton James, organist of Plymouth Congregational Church, will play on the Main Quadrangle starting at 2 p.m. Following the campus open houses, he will return to the organ at 6 p.m. and present a promenade concert until 7:30 p.m.

THE UNIVERSITY symphonic band, under the direction of Dr. Harwood Simmons, professor of music, will perform on the Quad at 7:30 p.m. Marches, symphonic excerpts and the Rossini-Respighi ballet are on the program.

In case of rain, the two organ concerts will move into Archbold Gymnasium and the band concert will be canceled.

Tolley Praises Education, Calls Structure Permanent

In a defense of American education, Chancellor William P. Tolley told Syracuse University's Board of Trustees Friday that "the structure of American education is fundamentally sound" and that there is no need to fear new ideas.

Speaking at the semi-annual meeting in the Hotel Syracuse, Dr. Tolley said, "In defending our system of American education, I am conscious of the points of strength in the educational systems of other countries. Ours is not the only culture of importance. After all is said and done, however, I would not exchange our American schools and colleges for those of any other country."

CHANCELLOR TOLLEY listed four distinguishing characteristics of American education: (1) its interest in the individual, (2) its attention to social change, (3) its concern for democratic ideals and social justice, and (4) its attention to teaching and efficiency in learning.

Because of these distinctive marks, the "American brand of education is one that meets particularly well the needs of backward peoples of the world," he continued.

"We should bring the energy and strength of the American schools to backward areas on every continent through carefully planned long-range programs adequately financed, the chancellor said. "This is not to say that we should impose our culture on the rest of the world. This is not to encourage a feeling of arrogance, conceit or undue national pride."

UNLIKE THE countries of Europe, the American approach to social and economic problems is through the individual rather than the group, Dr. Tolley added. "It is the importance that we attach to individuals that makes us so sensitive to human values."

Further, American education is interested in the whole student, he asserted. "It is concerned with the total development of the individual; his mind, his body, his emotions, his values and ideals."

Chancellor Tolley added that "public schools may not indoctrinate a sectarian faith, but even with this element missing there is a notable contribution of freedom of mind and spirit and sensitivity to moral and spiritual values."

He noted that "the charge is sometimes made that we have a materialistic, Godless culture, interested only in gadgets and comic books. However, our foreign students, particularly those from Asia, are the first to remind us that ours is a culture extraordinarily sensitive to human needs and social justice."

37 Faculty Members Receive Promotions

The University Board of Trustees Friday approved the promotion in rank of 37 faculty members.

In addition, seven staff members, now retiring, were honored with the title "Emeritus," which will be added to the rank of professor at which they are all retiring.

THE NEW PROFESSORS Emeritus are: Jacob Kwalwasser, College of Fine Arts; Lewis W. Crawford, John T. Illick, William C. Lehmann, Raymond F. Piper, College of Liberal Arts; and Dr. Leo E. Gibson and Dr. Harold H. Joy, College of Medicine.

Promoted from Associate to full Professor are: Vincent Glennon, John Shaw, School of Education; George S. Parker, College of Engineering; Robert F. Koretz, College of Law; Herbert W. Berry, Jesse V. Burkhead, Frederick C. Mosher, College of Liberal Arts; and Carl H. Melinat, School of Library Science.

WALTER R. BAUM, Benjamin P. Burtt, Dorothy Drew, Melvin A. Eggers, Paul Gilbert, Erik Hemingsen, John F. Olson, Edward E. Palmer, H. Neil Richardson, College of Liberal Arts; and Virgil Crisafulli, Utica College.

From Instructor to Assistant Professor: Walter W. Amster, Ruth Haddock, Laura Preston, School of Education; Norman Balabanian, David W. Spence, Julius Werner, College of Engineering; Franklin E. Morris, College of Fine Arts; Georgette Guth, Katherine D. Wylie, College of Liberal Arts; Eugene S. Foster, J. Edward McEvoy, School of Speech and Dramatic Arts; and Morris Budin, Francis A. Loeiro, Utica College.

Med Center Bids Total $5.3 Million

Low bids received by State Public Works Superintendent Bertram Tallamy in Albany for development of the Syracuse medical center of the State University amount to $5,301,627.

Work on the center, including three wings, on the site of the demolished Yates Castle will begin this summer and is scheduled for completion by September, 1956.

Tolley, Two Others Get Arents Awards

Chancellor William P. Tolley received the George Arents pioneer medal for excellence in education last night prior to the annual Kum Bak show. Awards were also made for excellence in political and social betterment and medicine.

Mrs. John W. Brooks received the political and social betterment award and Dr. Edward C. Reifenstein was given the prize for medicine.

CHANCELLOR TOLLEY, university head since 1942, has been recognized as one of the leading educators of the country during this period of time.

Mrs. Brooks, a trustee of Syracuse University, was one of the leaders in the fund drive for the Women's Building. Dr. Reifenstein, was affiliated with the College of Medicine from 1904 until his retirement from teaching in 1946.

Johnson Named Poet-in-residence

Veteran faculty member A. E. Johnson has been named the first poet-in-residence at Syracuse University by Chancellor William P. Tolley.

In this capacity Prof. Johnson will be relieved of formal teaching duties for the next academic year and will devote his time entirely to writing and consultation.

THE ENGLISH professor, a member of the Hill faculty for 30 years, expects to publish his fifth book of verse this summer.

Board Names Krathwohl To Dean of Men's Position

Carlton L. Krathwohl was appointed Dean of Men Friday at the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Trustees in the Hotel Syracuse. Charles E. Wilson, the chairman of the executive committee of W. R. Grace & Co. and chairman of Grace Chemical Co. was elected one of two new trustees at the meeting.

Krathwohl assumed the position of Associate Dean of Men a year ago, when Dean Frank P. Piskor was appointed vice-president in charge of student services.

A MEMBER of the University faculty since 1951, Krathwohl has done extensive research work in education evaluation and measurement as a member of the University's psychological research center. Since 1952, he has been a consultant to the United States Air Force in a research study of the school of aviation medicine.

The new dean, who also serves as assistant professor of education, received his BA degree and Ed.M degree from the University of Buffalo in 1938 and 1942 respectively.

Wilson, former president of General Electric, fills the unexpired term of Lewis S. Chapman, trustee-at-large, who died in February. Wilson's term runs to 1958.

Rev. William A. Perry of Albany, the other new trustee, was elected organization trustee from the Troy conference. A graduate of Syracuse in 1935, Rev. Perry will serve for six years.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!
WHY do thousands of college smokers from coast to coast prefer Luckies to all other brands?
BECAUSE Luckies taste better.
WHY do Luckies taste better?
BECAUSE Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. And that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—brings fine tobacco to its peak of flavor . . . tones up this light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better—cleaner, fresher, smoother.
SO, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Enjoy the better-tasting cigarette—Lucky Strike.
