Dear Educator,

Cavendish Square is committed to responding to the ever-changing needs of today's students by providing a robust, diverse list for learners from kindergarten to high school and into college. Our objectives are not only to educate but also to captivate our readers by producing compelling and engaging materials across the entire curriculum. Our materials have been carefully developed to meet today's curriculum standards—state, national, and Common Core. Careful editorial and design expertise are brought to a range of subjects and formats across the K–12+ space, which allows us to improve student learning and outcomes. With more than 250 new titles, available in both print and eBook editions, and the best curriculum-related content available for online researchers through Cavendish Square Digital (pp. 4-17), our core mission and commitment to you are stronger than ever.

School Library Journal said that Cavendish Square Digital "...is the standard by which other encyclopedia-style databases should be judged." With that in mind, we proudly present the incredibly extensive, comprehensive, and wide-ranging Middle School and High School resources that comprise this remarkable database, covering everything an online researcher could want or need, from animals, science, and technology to literature, history, world cultures, mythology, civics, and health.

Let us not forget about Cavendish's peerless print offerings, however! Our best-selling, critically acclaimed Cultures of the World® series (pp. 70-71) is now in its third edition and continues to captivate young minds with comprehensive coverage of the people, geography, history, government, economy, culture, arts, and environment that make each country unique. Studying world cultures at the elementary level? If so, be sure to look at the new entries in our Exploring World Cultures (pp. 122-123) series. Also be sure to check out our innovative and dynamic new series Fighting for Their Country: Minorities at War (High School; p. 19), Mysteries in History: Solving the Mysteries of the Past (Middle School; p. 72), and A Day in an Ecosystem (Elementary; p. 120).

Looking for biographies for high school researchers? Be sure to check out Great Military Leaders (pp. 26), Fearless Female Soldiers, Explorers, and Aviators (pp. 25), and new titles in our renowned Leading Women series (pp. 22-23).

We would love to hear your feedback! Should you have any questions, comments, or suggestions while browsing through our new catalog, please call us at 877-980-4450 or visit us online at cavendishsq.com.

With Best Wishes,

This allows much greater visual acuity and opportunities for understanding. The comments I have received from teachers regarding the ease of use and applicability for students at grade level, below grade level, and those requiring resources for differentiated learners with various disabilities have been beyond positive. epointplus has hit it out of the ballpark."

Great Filmmakers

"Written in a snappy, journalistic style, these texts offer rich, nuanced views of the filmmakers' lives. They especially shine when spotlighting the ways in which failures can lead to successes… Students will come away with a strong cultural understanding both of film and the other art forms that shape it."

Game-Changing Athletes

"Primary source quotes and archival photos make this series a great resource for research writers, aspiring athletes, and readers interested in reading true stories of overcoming adversity. Each book in this electric series serves as a well-rounded biography of one or more athletes while showing very clearly how the subjects changed their sport while fighting against public perceptions about their race and gender. A necessary first purchase for teen nonfiction collections."

The Craft of Writing

"This series has a lot more to it than just steps on how to write...Terminology and formatting specific to each genre is clearly explained and incorporated smoothly into the texts. The last section of each title offers multiple prompts and ideas to motivate writers. Each book could stand on its own, but together they offer an even richer experience."

The Amazing Human Body

Did you know that there are as many nerve cells in a human brain as there are stars in our galaxy? Or if you lined up all your blood vessels, end to end, they would wrap around the equator more than two times? The Amazing Human Body discusses the composition and function of the complex networks and systems within our bodies. The series examines the disorders, diseases, and injuries that can affect our bodies and explains how these problems can be treated. Readers will also learn how to stay healthy and strong as their bodies grow and change. With its age-appropriate text, vibrant photographs, detailed anatomical illustrations, and helpful charts, this series provides readers with information they can use for reports, projects, or general knowledge about health.

Ancients in Their Own Words

The great civilizations of the ancient world can seem remote and static—unless we consider the written records left behind by people living during that dangerous and fascinating time. Ancients in Their Own Words brings to life the everyday experience of ancient people through written accounts of their rulers, laws, conquests, myths, marriages, and religious beliefs. From familiar documents such as the Rosetta Stone and the Code of Hammurabi, to obscure accounts of gladiators, soldiers, priests, and politicians, here is a fresh look at a dynamic period in human history.

Animal Attack And Defense

It's a jungle out there! To survive, animals have developed many different mechanisms for protecting themselves from predators and for fooling prey. Animal Attack and Defense, which is organized based on scientific groupings, focuses on animals with impressive and extraordinary survival techniques. Young readers learn about why an animal has a particular defense feature—like a skunk's smell—how it uses it, and how that feature helps it to survive. Books in the series provide habitat and geographic location information for all the profiled animals. Text in spreads makes the books kid-friendly, and full-color photographs with informative captions enhance the text.
