Dr. Richard Walker retired in 1995 after a thirty year academic career of research and teaching as a professor of accounting at several public universities including Pennsylvania State University, Miami of Ohio University, and Indiana University. Prior to his academic experience he was employed in public accounting as a CPA. That experience, coupled with an M.S. degree from Southern Illinois University and Ph.D. from the University of Northern Colorado, gave him the background that allowed him to fulfill his aspirations to serve both undergraduate and graduate students in the classroom. During his tenure in academia, he maintained an active professional involvement with the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the American Accounting Association, as well as serving on numerous university committees. His devotion to the field of accounting led to various awards from professional organizations including the CMA, CIA, CCA, and CBA certificates.
