Our Mission

The Salvation Army, an international movement, is an evangelical part of the universal Christian Church. Our message is based on the Bible. Our ministry is motivated by the love of God. Our mission is to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ and to meet human needs in His name without discrimination.

A Letter From Our Leadership

Dear friends,

As we reflect on fiscal year 2025, we are filled with gratitude for your generosity, your compassion, and your faithful partnership in our mission.

Across North Texas, communities in the six counties where we have a presence continue to grow and thrive. Yet each day, we encounter individuals and families who are facing deep, and often unseen, challenges: rising costs of living, housing instability, addiction, and emergency financial situations, which leave them searching for hope and a new way forward. While much of North Texas is flourishing, so many are still being left behind.

It is in these moments that The Salvation Army is there.

Because of your support, we have been able to meet people where they are, not only for immediate needs such as shelter, food, and financial assistance but also for long-term, comprehensive services that display the care, dignity, and love of Christ in action. Some of the most impactful moments we have experienced as the new North Texas area commanders are the quiet ones — when we are sitting with someone, hearing their story, and reminding them they are not alone.

This past year, we have seen lives begin to change as individuals find stability, families experience safety, and those walking through recovery discover renewed purpose. 2025 was also one of meaningful progress as we looked toward a renewed future for North Texas.

Through the continued advancement of the One Army, Many Fronts campaign, we are moving closer to the realization of the Dallas Social Services Campus, a place designed to serve individuals and families with comprehensive, holistic care. This vision has been shaped by the needs we see every day and by a shared commitment to serve with excellence and compassion.

In all that we do, we are guided by our calling to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ and meet human needs in His name without discrimination.

We are reminded time and time again that transformation happens not only through services provided but also through ensuring all those who enter our doors at The Salvation Army feel seen, valued, and loved. That is the heart of our work, and it is only made possible because of the generosity of our supporters, volunteers, and donors like you.

Together, we will remain on the front lines, trusting God to guide this work and walking alongside our neighbors as they move toward hope, healing, and long-term stability and self-sufficiency.

Thank you for standing with us and being part of this mission.

With gratitude,

Carolynn & Rob Webb

Our Impact

2025 brought unprecedented challenges for all of North Texas. Thousands struggled to put food on the table, keep up with rent and mortgage payments, and afford household expenses and essentials.

Families were living in survival mode, balancing already tight budgets to make room for things such as childcare and high transportation costs.

As North Texans continued to struggle with the impacts of inflation, rising costs, and changes in vital government assistance, The Salvation Army of North Texas worked tirelessly to provide help and hope in every pocket of the region. Throughout 2025, during times of increased hardship, we saw a vast rise in requests for our services, with many of our neighbors who never imagined they'd be asking for help finding themselves on the brink of distress and in need of assistance. Many of our locations operated at and over capacity for most of the year. But we responded stronger than ever.

As North Texas' largest social services provider, The Salvation Army is equipped to meet community-specific needs as they arise.

Our services don't just solve immediate needs — they are designed to address the root causes of poverty, addiction, and homelessness to break cycles and build stronger neighborhoods across Dallas, Tarrant, Ellis, Denton, Collin, and Rockwall counties.

We remain on the front lines providing an array of programs and services to help individuals and families recuperate.

With your support and compassion, we are enabling God-empowered transformations of individuals and society and meeting human needs in His name without discrimination in every pocket of North Texas.

Client & Personnel Spotlights

The Salvation Army provides hope and help to all who are hungry and hurting — no matter who they are, where they are, or how they arrived. For many clients, a meal or warm bed is just the beginning of their journey to stability and self-sufficiency. Your generosity has powered countless stories of transformation across North Texas.

Ron

In service to those who served us, The Salvation Army of North Texas provides a range of support to veterans through extensive programming, including temporary housing, assistance in securing stable housing, and wraparound services designed to restore stability and dignity.

Ron is one of the many veterans who bravely fought to defend our country's freedom in the Cuban missile crisis and the Cold War in Berlin. So in his time of sudden crisis, The Salvation Army of North Texas was there for Ron — stepping in to provide help that went beyond meeting immediate needs to restore his sense of belonging.

When his apartment complex was upended, Ron was forced to vacate his home with little notice. In the process, all of his belongings were either taken to storage or thrown away. The sense of security Ron knew was suddenly gone almost overnight.

That's when The Salvation Army stepped in.

We provided financial assistance for Ron to get back on his feet as soon as possible, paying his first month's rent and furnishing his new apartment. To ensure he could regain a sense of normalcy, we gave him access to one of our community meal programs and one of our 12 food pantries. Ron describes The Salvation Army as a lifeline that helped him rebuild his life.

Ron is incredibly grateful not only for the assistance he received but also for the family he gained. The Salvation Army of North Texas gave him a place to belong. Ron said, "So many veterans today get forgotten. But I tell you what, The Salvation Army forgets no one."

Said

In North Texas, The Salvation Army's Arlington Youth Education Town (YET) has become a trusted pillar in the community, providing youth and families in need with a safe place to learn, grow, and belong.

For Said, the YET helped carve a path of self-discovery and growth. He had always been interested in learning an instrument but had never had the opportunity to do so in a place like school, where access and resources were limited. That changed when his mom saw a poster advertising piano lessons at the YET.

Suddenly, what once felt out of reach became possible.

Through the YET, Said began piano lessons and stepped into a broader environment focused on breaking the cycle of poverty for youth who might not have access to such opportunities. Through the curated personal development programming, youth leaders encourage self-esteem and leadership, as well as exploration, under the umbrella of Christian values. The curriculum builds on academic foundations such as reading, writing, and arithmetic while also fostering creativity through the arts, leadership development, and enrichment activities.

For Said, the impact of the YET has gone beyond skill-building. It's become about connection. Said says he has made long-lasting relationships at the YET, friends he'll have for the rest of his life: "They've helped me through some really difficult times, and I know I wouldn't be the same without them."

He is just one of the 50-60 children the YET serves daily, but every child is welcomed like family. For so many North Texas families, it is a consistent, safe space where our youth are uplifted for who they are today and encouraged to grow into the person they can become.

Dominique

"[The Salvation Army] provided a safe place for me and my family and for all the other families who need help. And I'm thankful for that."

Dominique

"Unwelcomed. Unloved. Unheard. Unseen."

These are the words Dominique uses to describe her childhood. She grew up largely on her own, spending most days alone while her father worked, but learning early on to take care of herself and carry responsibility far beyond her years. That experience shaped her independence — but it also left a lasting pain of feeling unseen, uncared for, and unsupported.

Now a mother herself, Dominique puts caring for her three children first. They are at the center of everything she does. "I'm able to give to them something that I was not able to have," Dominique said.

But even into adulthood, her life was not without its hardships. Dominique experienced new challenges as a mother and first came to North Texas after being forced to flee a domestic violence situation with her children in Georgia. Though she yearned for a fresh start, she struggled to find safety and stability.

With limited resources and nowhere to go, fearing for her children's safety while sleeping in their car, Dominique turned to The Salvation Army.

Dominique describes The Salvation Army as a blessing. With a room and beds of their own, our Family Life Center gave them not only a place to stay but also a sense of security. In a situation that felt hopeless with no way out, the Lord provided, and The Salvation Army was there.

"I thank God that [The Salvation Army] had a vision in your heart and you brought that vision to come true because you are really impacting people's lives and you are saving families," she said.

From that foundation, Dominique began rebuilding. Today, she and her family live in an apartment of their own, have a car, and Dominique is studying to enter a new career field. With safety restored and stability taking root, she now looks ahead with hope — for herself and her children.

Majors Rob and Carolynn Webb

North Texas Area Commanders

In 2025, we welcomed Majors Rob and Carolynn Webb as the new area commanders for The Salvation Army of North Texas.

First answering the call to ministry as Salvation Army officers in 1995, Majors Webb have since served the Lord faithfully across the country for three decades.

"We felt the Lord calling us into this work many years ago, and that calling has only grown stronger. Now, stepping into North Texas, we see so many families facing real struggles — trying to stay housed, keep food on the table, and hold onto hope," Majors Webb said.

Before he was appointed area commander, Major Rob held various roles in The Salvation Army USA Southern Territory, including corps officer, home and transportation officer, divisional finance officer, divisional financial secretary, and divisional secretary for business administration.

Much like her husband, Major Carolynn has experience in a variety of roles within The Salvation Army, including corps officer, divisional league of mercy secretary, divisional Women's Auxiliary secretary, divisional volunteer coordinator, divisional community care ministries secretary, and divisional older adult ministries secretary.

In their new role, Majors Webb oversee operations for one of the largest Area Commands in the world, leading programs that combat poverty, addiction, and homelessness across Dallas and Rockwall, Tarrant and Ellis, and Denton and Collin counties. Thanks to their vast experience in social service and administration, their steadfast faith and leadership have already had a profound impact on our communities.

Majors Rob and Carolynn Webb are excited to continue to fulfill the work the Lord has called on their lives and help those in need.

The couple has been happily married for 36 years and are parents to three sons involved in the mission and ministry of The Salvation Army, as well as grandparents to three grandsons.

> "We're here to meet people where they are, walk with them, and support the transformational work The Salvation Army offers every single day."

Christina Cavalier

Managing Director

While Christina Cavalier has worn many hats throughout her career, she has always been an unstoppable driving force behind the growth and development of mission-driven organizations in North Texas.

In 2025, we celebrated Christina stepping into a new role at The Salvation Army of North Texas as the managing director. In this role, she leads the executive leadership team, overseeing social services, youth programs, operations, finance, fundraising, and communications for the North Texas Area Command.

A seasoned nonprofit executive and strategic leader with more than 15 years of experience in fundraising, marketing, public relations, and organizational development, HER CAREER HAS BEEN DEFINED BY BUILDING SYSTEMS THAT SCALE IMPACT, STRENGTHEN DONOR ENGAGEMENT, AND EXPAND ORGANIZATIONAL REACH.

Prior to her current role, Christina was our senior director of community relations, where she helped generate around $37 million in annual philanthropic and government funding. She is also the architect and lead strategist behind the $212.7 million One Army, Many Fronts capital campaign, which will position The Salvation Army for long-term growth and expanded service delivery across the region.

Christina holds a Master of Business Administration with a concentration in marketing and a Master of Arts from Southern Methodist University, as well as a Bachelor of Business Administration from Millsaps College.

Across every role, she is known for her ability to align teams, inspire stakeholders, and translate vision into measurable impact. In her new role, she will continue to strengthen The Salvation Army's visibility, expand our donor base, and advance our mission across North Texas.

Tina Robertson

Carr P. Collins Director of Operations

Tina Robertson has always had a heart for people. As a licensed clinical social work supervisor, her deep commitment to people has not only shaped her career but also how she shows up for communities in need. Tina believes that all people can thrive spiritually, socially, and emotionally when compassionate care is normalized and translated into a felt sense of belonging.

In December 2024, she stepped into the role of director of operations at one of The Salvation Army's largest and most comprehensive facilities in the country: The Carr P. Collins Social Service Center in Dallas.

With more than 27 years of experience in mental health, social services, and nonprofit leadership, Tina has served in a variety of senior executive and clinical leadership roles across the field. Her work has included leading large-scale, trauma-informed initiatives, managing multimillion-dollar budgets, and expanding nationally recognized programs that have a profound impact on children, families, and professionals nationwide.

Tina is a native of Indianapolis, Indiana. She holds an undergraduate degree in English and political science from Jarvis Christian University and a Master of Science in social work from the University of Texas at Arlington.

When she's not working, Tina is still serving her community. She often mentors young women in her church community and volunteers as a mental health consultant for a nonprofit that supports student-athletes with character and social-emotional skill development.

Lieutenants Jeremy and Jillian Warf

Arlington-Mansfield and YET Corps Officers

> "[The Salvation Army] meets people in their hardest moments and reminds them that they are seen, valued, and loved by God."
> Lieutenant Jeremy Warf

Lieutenant Jeremy Warf recalls the feeling that came over him when his now-wife, Jillian, first invited him to church at The Salvation Army.

"Something just felt different. What drew me in wasn't the uniforms or even the programs; it was the people. They welcomed me as I was, flaws and all, and made me part of their community," he said. "For the first time, I experienced a group of believers who didn't just talk about the love of Christ — they lived it."

That experience became a turning point. In 2009, Lieutenant Jeremy gave his life to Christ, setting him and Lieutenant Jillian on a shared path of faith, service, and ministry. Prior to their current appointments as corps officers for The Salvation Army Arlington-Mansfield Corps Community Center, Lieutenant Jeremy, a U.S. military veteran, led efforts in volunteer engagement, disaster response, and community relations. Lieutenant Jillian, with her background in human development and family studies, held roles in human resources and administration.

The pair has made an incredible impact on the lives of those served by The Salvation Army for more than a decade and counting. Today, as corps officers, they oversee ministry and services that meet both immediate needs and long-term spiritual and personal growth of the surrounding community. Most recently, they spent two years at the Evangeline Booth College for Officer Training in Atlanta, preparing for full-time ministry as Salvation Army officers.

Now, as ordained officers and partners in ministry, Lieutenants Jeremy and Jillian are passionate about helping people experience the love and hope of Christ through practical service and meaningful relationships. As they serve The Salvation Army's mission in this new capacity, Lieutenants Warf are committed to serving their community with love, kindness, compassion, and a heart willing to meet people where they are.

"What has kept me in The Salvation Army and what I love most about it is how seriously it takes the Greatest Commandment: to love God and to love people. The Army doesn't just preach the gospel; it lives it out in very real, tangible ways," Lieutenant Jeremy said.

Looking Ahead

As the needs of North Texans combating poverty, addiction, and homelessness continue to grow and evolve, so does The Salvation Army's commitment to meeting them with urgency, strategy, and compassion.

In FY26, our focus is clear: strengthen the foundation of our work today while building the capacity needed to serve more individuals and families tomorrow. This begins with people.

We are investing in the growth of our Advisory and Auxiliary organizations to create more meaningful opportunities for community leaders and advocates to engage in our mission. At the same time, we are expanding our presence across city and county leadership, collaborative partnerships, and community forums to ensure The Salvation Army remains a trusted, visible partner in addressing the region's most pressing challenges.

To sustain and scale our impact, we are strengthening our funding strategy across all channels. This includes growing government grants and contracts, increasing contributed revenue, and securing more major gifts. We will also continue advancing the One Army, Many Fronts campaign to fully realize its vision while developing a more robust planned giving strategy to support long-term financial stability.

As we prepare for the future, we are equally focused on building internal strength. We remain committed to attracting and retaining top talent in the nonprofit space who bring both expertise and heart to their work. Alongside this, we are defining clear programming priorities, setting measurable goals, and implementing systems to better evaluate and communicate our impact.

Looking ahead to the opening of the Dallas Social Services Campus, fiscal year 2026 will be critical for preparation. We will develop a comprehensive Master Capital Plan, update our Futurity Plan to guide long-range decision-making, and establish cross-functional leadership to ensure a smooth and strategic transition to the new campus.

At the same time, we will launch a capacity-building fundraising initiative to expand operational support that ensures we are ready to meet an increased demand from day one.

This is a pivotal moment for The Salvation Army of North Texas as the largest social services provider in the region. With a clear strategy, strong leadership, and a growing network of supporters, we are not only preparing for what's next, but we are also building the systems, partnerships, and resources needed to serve North Texas for generations to come.

One Army, Many Fronts

As communities across North Texas continue to grow and prosper, too many families are still being left behind. Thousands of our North Texas neighbors are struggling to make ends meet, facing impossible choices such as whether to keep the lights on or food on the table. More than ever, our communities need us. And that need is growing.

At The Salvation Army of North Texas, it is our mission to help our neighbors in crisis and meet a growing demand for our services. Through strategic planning to alleviate poverty, fight addiction, and reverse homelessness, it is our goal with the One Army, Many Fronts campaign to advance the well-being of North Texans for decades to come.

Dallas-Fort Worth ranks third among metroplexes for the number of people facing hunger, with 1.3 million people unsure of whether they will have enough food for their next meal.

1 in 4 children live in a home where someone is abusing drugs or alcohol.

Across Dallas, Tarrant, and Denton counties, nearly 95,000 eviction filings have been recorded over the past year, reflecting tens of thousands of North Texas families facing housing instability.

An estimated 2.8 million North Texans struggle to afford life's basic necessities.

> THE VISION FOR THIS CAMPUS HAS BEEN SHAPED BY THE VOICES OF THOSE WE SERVE AND THE URGENT NEED FOR COMPREHENSIVE, DIGNIFIED SUPPORT.

Dallas Campus Progress

The Salvation Army of North Texas' Dallas Social Services Campus is the cornerstone and heart of the One Army, Many Fronts campaign. The 21-acre campus represents a transformative investment in how we serve: It will expand The Salvation Army's reach and impact in Dallas County, addressing the growing needs of homelessness, addiction recovery, domestic violence, and family stability in the area.

"This isn't just about building new facilities. It's about transforming lives by breaking the cycles of poverty, homelessness, and addiction," Lieutenant Colonel Mockabee, executive officer for the campaign, said.

Designed as a centralized hub of care, the campus will offer a continuum of services for individuals and families at every stage of need. That includes emergency shelter; inpatient and outpatient addiction recovery programs; supportive housing for single men and women, families, and veterans; a dedicated shelter for domestic violence and sex trafficking survivors; on-site childcare; and an integrated health clinic. This ensures holistic, wraparound support, all from one centralized location.

Since breaking ground last May, construction has made significant progress. Upon completion, the Dallas Social Services Campus will expand capacity, deepen impact, and provide a pathway to stability and life-changing support while setting a new standard for integrated social services and serving as a model for the region.

The Salvation Army has and will continue to work every day to meet people and their needs wherever they are without judgment.
