INTRODUCTION

Congratulations on completing The Maxwell Leadership Assessment powered by RightPath. This report is designed to provide valuable feedback that can have a positive impact on your leadership development, personal growth, and journey to become a highly effective 360-degree leader. The objective data in this report is related to how others are experiencing your influence in the five levels of leadership including Position, Permission, Production, People Development, and Pinnacle which all measure your overall leadership effectiveness. This report provides both metrics and written feedback about how you lead and develop others.

Read all the headers carefully. The information below and in the headers for each section will help you gain the maximum from your report. We encourage you to study it carefully from beginning to end without skipping over the explanations.

Be open to feedback. Your attitude toward the information in the report is crucial to how you receive and use it. You will have some elements of very positive feedback; consider how you can continue to build on these strengths. Also, you will likely have some constructive feedback in your report.

Remember, constructive feedback always stings. Our egos tend to be sensitive and even the slightest criticism can hurt. Expect the sting and remember it's normal. Avoid being defensive by recognizing there are no perfect leaders. However, great leaders are the ones who are secure enough to be open to feedback and willing to accept and use it for self-improvement. Consider both the positive feedback and the constructive feedback in balance. Then move ahead to the productive response of valuing these insights as helpful to your development process.

REPORT FORMAT

- Section 1: CATEGORY SCORES provide a summary of your feedback in the areas of Position, Permission, Production, People Development, and Pinnacle (Self and Others).

- Section 2: Written Comments provided by your raters are listed in unedited form.

- Section 3: Reflection and Analysis offers help as you evaluate your feedback.

- Section 4: Leadership Attributes Summary at the end of the report lists all items ranked from highest to lowest based on Overall Average score.

RATERS

Note: 19 of 20 of your selected raters participated in this assessment for you. The raters, by category, were as follows:

- 11 of 11 Direct Reports
- 1 of 1 Manager-Direct Line
- 2 of 2 Peer/Associates
- 5 of 6 Others

A total of 40 Not Observed ratings were recorded in this assessment.
1a. POSITION (Overall Average 5.5) This is the first level of leadership where people follow you because they have to – because of the position you hold. You serve in your position because of the promise you have shown as a leader. Others are watching you in this level to see if the walk matches the talk. The items below provide feedback on how you are perceived relating to areas like trustworthiness and commitment to the team, as well as how you are viewed as a role model. The scores in this level provide a reflection of how others view your attitude towards them individually and as a team.

1b. PERMISSION (Overall Average 5.5) At this level of leadership, people follow you because they have given you permission to develop a relationship with them. Great leaders inspire and motivate other leaders to perform with excellence. In order to motivate and produce the best results, a leader takes a genuine interest in others. Great leaders train, coach, mentor, encourage and empower! The scores in this level reflect your relationship competencies as part of your core leadership attributes.

1c. PRODUCTION (Overall Average 5.7) The third level of leadership is about getting results with a team. Every organization, and therefore every leader, must achieve results in order to grow and expand. Results-oriented behaviors include setting the vision, thinking strategically, making decisions and initiating action to achieve that vision. Producing results in the production level means casting the vision and holding others accountable. In this level, people follow you because of what you’ve done for the organization.

1d. PEOPLE DEVELOPMENT (Overall Average 5.3)  Great leaders embrace developing others both personally and professionally. Highly effective leaders realize that time invested in developing others has an immeasurable impact on leading organizational success and employee satisfaction. Using the other levels of leadership (Position, Permission and Production) together helps leaders effectively develop others. At this level of leadership, you use your experience and knowledge to reproduce your own skills in the lives of others. When you do this, people follow you because of what you’ve done for them.

1e. PINNACLE (Overall Average 5.3) At this level of leadership, you have helped many other leaders over a long period of time that you have earned the respect of people who follow you because of what you represent. The results in this level represent your awareness of your emotions – yours and others – and the appropriateness of your response to them. The scores in this category reflect the amount of respect you receive and give to others (and may also be referred to as emotional intelligence). The graph below shows your Overall Pinaccle scores.

2. WRITTEN COMMENTS

What are this person’s greatest strengths when it comes to relating to and leading others?

- I try to let people do their jobs without hovering. I believe I am open to new solutions like to see my team succeed individually and collectively.
- Max has strong technical ability. He grasps new projects quickly and drives them completion

- Max approachable and easy to talk with. He finds solutions and does not micro-manage.
- He is very knowledgeable. He shares information with other.
- His analytical skills. He is very thorough in assessing issues and resolving them.

- Open-minded. Fair. Does not talk down to reports.
- Delivers results. Leads by example.
- Organized in his approach to leading large complex projects. Max learns quickly.
- Max is extremely factual, non-emotional and fair.
- Having done the jobs his Direct Reports now perform, he can help with technical issues.

- Builds relationships and inspires others.
- Strong technical knowledge. Makes sound technical judgments.
- He sets clear goals based on what needs to be accomplished.

What are this person’s greatest struggles when it comes to relating to and leading others?

- Making sure Direct Reports have specific goals. Can spread too thin.

- Doesn’t always understand issues of the team. He moves quickly and sometimes forgets we do not have the same depth of experience he has.

- May forget that we want to share in the accolades when our group is praised.

- Struggles with those of us who learn at a slower pace.
- Can be absent minded when overwhelmed by projects and issues.
- Soft skills can use a bit of development.
- Organizational skills and planning.
- Time management and availability.
- Too many responsibilities leaves him little time to get to everything in a timely fashion.
What are this person’s strengths and struggles in relation to People Development? (Any other comments you wish to make can be put in this section also.)

- Max has definitly grown is his position. Working on making himself available to his team. Leads projects well but doesn't always understand when we feel like we are meeting his expectations
- As a great leader who gives us respect and the freedom to do jobs our own way.
- Great to work with and gives latitude for us to do our jobs.
- Sometimes get the impression that Max may be over-stressed.
- Max has come a long way and risen to the challenges given to him.
- Next challenge should be to manage a non-tech project so he can grow outside his comfort zone.
