Mystery Guest Audit

Instructions:

Look for mystery guests who would represent at least two different age groups and cultural backgrounds. For the most value, have one of your friends from another church find the mystery guests and make all the arrangements. That way, no one in your church knows who they are.

How to Benefit Most from Mystery Guests.

1. Explain to your mystery guests that the people of the church want to be more welcoming and hospitable to strangers, but they first need to know in what ways they must change.

2. Give each mystery guest a copy of one of the audit sheets on the next pages, and provide a self-addressed stamped envelope for them to return the audits.

3. Instruct them to fill out the audit at home, not during the church service.

4. Ask the mystery guests to visit the church sometime within the next month just as if they were regular visitors.

5. Consider giving a gift certificate in appreciation for mystery guests’ time. At a minimum, send thank-you notes and, of course, invite them back to the church to check up on the progress the welcoming ministry is making.

What to do with the results of the Mystery Guest Audit?

1. In addition to receiving the written response of your Mystery Guest, ask this person to be present at your welcoming ministry team meeting to provide clarification.

2. Begin to build a short list of things you can do immediately to respond to the findings of the Mystery Guest Audit.

3. Set goals and priorities, as well as make assignments or solicit volunteers, to address the longer-term findings of the Audit.

4. Where possible, enlist the support of the entire congregation as a part of the radical hospitality and welcoming lifestyle you want to develop among all the members of your congregation.

Audit forms you can duplicate and distribute are provided on the next pages.
