

THE ARTS COMMISSION

INSPIRING A VIBRANT TOLEDO

Dear Friends of the Arts:

It is with much pride that The Arts Commission board and staff reflects back on the 2013 year. The Arts Commission expresses its thanks to all the artists, talented trustees, skillful staff members and the caring citizens and volunteers of greater Toledo who have made it possible to do more at a time when all the economic indicators say we should have been cutting services, not building new and stronger programs.

RESPONSIBILITY TO CITY

During this time The Arts Commission fulfilled its charge from the City of Toledo to administer the 1% for Arts program. The second phase of the Artist Designed Bike Racks public art project was installed in the Downtown Warehouse District, adding ten new functional sculptures to the city's collection of creative bike racks and creating a gallery of 20 original designs in total in the UpTown and Downtown neighborhoods. This year also debuted a new public art project for area literary artists as the Toledo Poetry Sidewalks project pilot program debuted, resulting in five Great Lakes-themed poems installed in sidewalk pavers surrounding landscape improvements at the recently opened National Museum of the Great Lakes in East Toledo. Conservation efforts for this year included the cleaning and maintenance of 18 sculptures in the City's collection, which includes more than 40 large scale sculptures in total.

ADVOCACY

The Arts Commission coordinated arts advocacy efforts locally, with Board members and staff visiting legislators and participating in Arts Day in Columbus. Executive Director Marc Folk has represented Toledo and Northwest Ohio in Columbus as a member of the Board of the Ohio Citizens for the Arts and across the country as a participant in Americans for the Arts. Marc was also one of a handful of arts leaders selected to participate in Americans for the Arts Leadership Institute at Sundance.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

In 2013, The Arts Commission began a series of community meetings to inform the Toledo Strategic Plan for Arts and Culture. By visiting and hosting community meetings in the eight neighborhoods in and surrounding downtown Toledo, and through online surveys, The Arts Commission engaged hundreds of community voices in identifying current cultural assets and long-term arts goals for our community.

Additionally, the programs staff worked with several hundred artists and volunteers in 2013 to present the fifth installment of Artomatic 419! in north Toledo. The three-Saturday event attracted more than 800 artists and creatives and more than 12,000 visitors. The SoundTrek program grew this year, offering greater opportunity for Toledo's music/performing arts community.

YOUTH ENGAGEMENT

In 2013, The Arts Commission employed 61 Young Artists at Work apprentices, taking advantage of funding for youth employment programs for underserved teens. Student apprentices between the ages of 14 and 18 were selected in a competitive process for six weeks of summer employment as working artists. The Arts Commission partnered with the University of Toledo Center for Visual Arts to use their arts-ready facilities during summer 2013. Planning also began this year for the 20th anniversary of the program to take place in 2014.

FUNDING

The Arts Commission Board and staff successfully reached out to friends, corporations, foundations and other funding sources, producing a balanced budget in one of the toughest fundraising years in our history. Toledo artist Edith Franklin added a second endowment fund to support Arts Commission programs at the Toledo Community Foundation, establishing a fund to support youth arts programming. The Arts Commission also has been successful in partnering with other organizations to expand our precious, limited resources.

For your support in all these endeavors
we are extremely grateful.

The Arts Commission supports, promotes and connects visual, performing, and literary artists, arts organizations, and businesses; and administers the City of Toledo's "1% for Art" ordinance.

For more than 50 years, The Arts Commission has provided quality arts programming and services to those in the metropolitan Toledo area. The Arts Commission is the longest-standing arts commission in the state of Ohio.

LIVE WORK CREATE TOLEDO

ARTOMATIC 419!

April 2013 brought Artomatic 419! to a warehouse on Summit Street in the Vistula district of downtown Toledo. More than 265 visual arts spaces were occupied by nearly 600 artists, and nearly 90 performances took place in which more than 250 individual artists showcased live music, dance, poetry readings and more. In 2013, Artomatic 419! became a decidedly more regional event, including artists from Flint, Detroit, Pittsburgh, and Cleveland. The event also saw an increase in inclusion of film during the event via the "Call for Clips" for the Artomatic 419! Cinematheque, which featured roughly 40 films and videos running on a loop throughout the event, from short independent and art films to cell phone videos shot and sent in by guests. 2013 saw significant new funding for the program, as The Arts Commission was awarded a $20,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to hire a Diversity Coordinator to expand interest and inclusion in the event and also received a separate grant from the Ohio Arts Council to hire program founder of the Washington D.C. Artomatic - George Koch - to assist in evaluating the program.

ART WALKS

The Art Walk series celebrate a successful sixth season in 2013. On the second Thursday of each month, June through September, several hundred guests came out to enjoy and purchase the work of more than 100 local, national and international artists. On average, the monthly series featured 20 to 25 partnering galleries, studios, and local businesses. At the beginning of the season, the new artist-design bike racks presented by the organization's Art in Public Places Program were highlighted during the event. During August and September, guided walking tours with Arts Commission staff and interns were offered to guests as an easy and fun way to explore new or perhaps less visible venues participating in the event.

GALLERY LOOPS

Four buses running two loops took guests to over 35 partnering venues in and around Downtown during the November Holiday Loop. Over 1,000 guests attended the event, experiencing the work of more than 150 participating artists, surrounded by a festive atmosphere conducive to holiday shopping and community camaraderie.

SOUNDTREK

The second year of the SoundTrek local live music festival took place, this year narrowing its focus to the burgeoning Adams Street Arts and Entertainment District. The event saw 37 acts (employing 137 individual performers) draw over 1,000 guests out for a night of diverse original local music.

ADDITIONAL SERVICES

YOUNG ARTISTS AT WORK

In its 19th year, YAAW engaged 61 apprentices, ages 14- 18 from 28 high schools, for an intensive, six-week employment experience in the arts focused on job skill development. Young artists created a mural inside the Zepf Wellness Center on Collingwood Boulevard and an exterior mural at the Roosevelt Pool in Smith Park on Dorr Street. Apprentices also designed and painted custom murals on park benches per commissions ordered by private individuals in Northwest Ohio, along with conserving benches created during prior years of the YAAW program that are regularly enjoyed by those who live, visit and work in downtown Toledo. The apprentices also participated in a week-long intensive theatre workshop where they were introduced to the art of theatre and guided in writing an original 20 minute theatrical work. This work was then performed for the public in the Lois M. Nevelson Theatre in the Collingwood Arts Center.

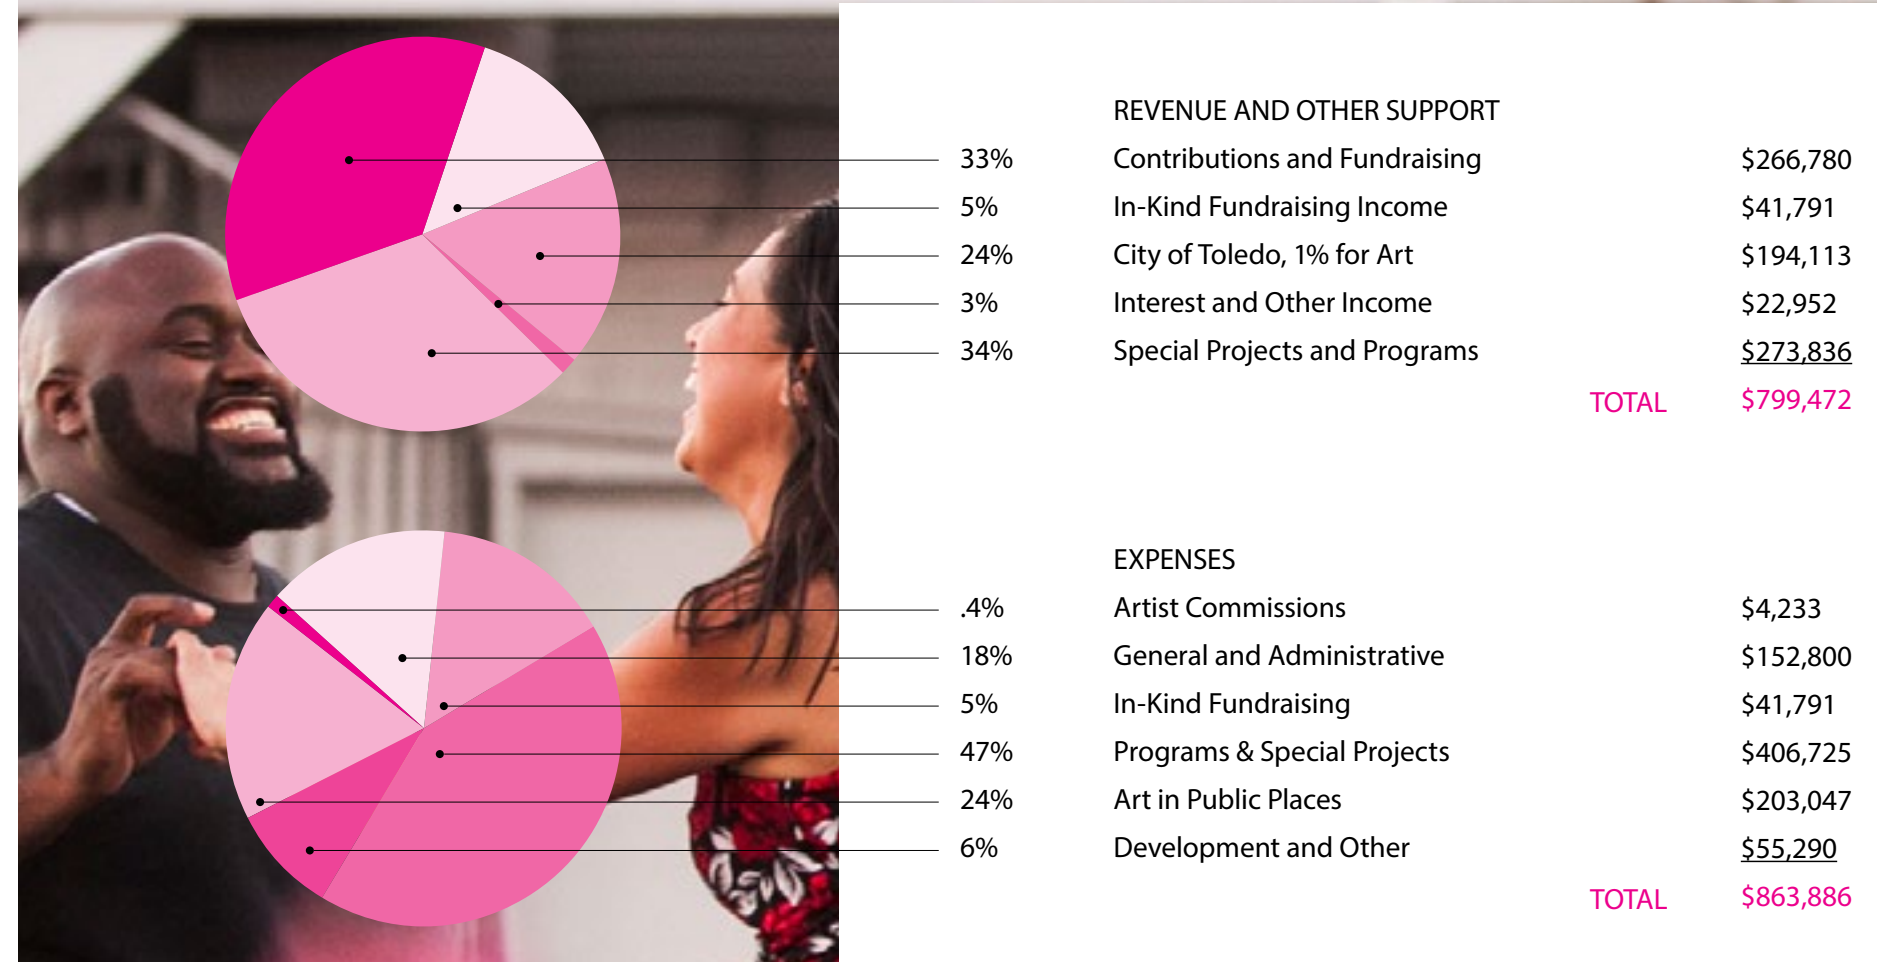

CONGRESSIONAL

The Arts Commission celebrates the talents of artists in our regional high schools in the Ninth Congressional District Invitational Art Exhibition. Last year, more than 50 artworks were submitted representing 9 high schools in the competition. Twenty-six artworks received awards. For an eighth year, Libbey Glass presented a unique award, selecting one student design to be featured on a limited run of glassware. The exhibition displayed inside Fifth Third Center at One Seagate.
