Vestibul Palace

“Modern boutique hotel cleverly integrated into the walls of the sprawling palace (a World Heritage site) built by the Roman Emperor Diocletian more than 1,700 years ago. Access through subterranean tunnel (paved with the same ivory-colored stone from the island of Brac that was used for the White House), which leads to dramatic glass-roofed lobby. Book a suite; many include parts of the original Roman palace’s walls and come with oak floors, beds with Egyptian cotton, baths with soaking tubs and separate showers. Intimate, friendly restaurant offers good food from a short menu.”
