

HOLIDAY GIFT GUIDE

We know you've worked hard for your paycheck. Stop buying gifts that are going to end up re-gifted next year or donated to the thrift store next to our office. We know what the people in your life really want.

For your sugardaddy:

The Macallan 60 Years Old in Lalique For just $20,000, say thank you to that special spender in your life with one of 400 limited edition, Lalique-designed bottles of The Macallan's 60 year old Speyside single-malt. This is the second-oldest whiskey the distillery has ever released, and the spendy crystal decanters are meant to be an homage to the secret behind The Macallan – their curiously small stills (and your curiously large budget).

For your father-in-law:

Cirrus Ice Ball Press

The man loves his Scotch and has everything, but we can pretty much guarantee he doesn't have perfectly spherical ice cubes that minimize melting and ensure optimal whiskey enjoyment. It's a technology that originated in Japan, but now you can get your press from Cirrus, made in the good old US of A. We promise, he'll be impressed. $429 for the 2" press

For your neighbor you never have time to see:

Anchor Distilling Old Potrero Whiskey

We all have that warm hearted neighbor, but we can never track them down when we need them. Give them the gift of a spirit that is delicious, but just as hard to find as they are. One taste of the Old Potrero, and maybe they'll make sure to be around the next time you need to borrow a cup of sugar. $76.99

For the recent college grad:

Ekke Shot Glasses

If they insist on taking shots, at least get them to take shots in style. Chill these soapstone glasses in the freezer for a stylish, ice-cold vessel. The glasses are so cool (pun intended), you just might convince that co-ed to start sipping their spirits for a change. $40 for 4

For your child's science teacher:

Bev Shots Scarf

Geek meets bar chic. Available in eleven 'flavors,' these scarves' patterns are actually different beverages as viewed under microscope. Whether she's a red wine woman or a margarita mama, you can cross this gift off the list. $48

For your boss:

Maker's Mark 46

A special version of the original Maker's Mark, the 46 spends some time aging in French Oak in addition to the usual American Oak barrels. It's bolder and stronger than the original, just like you're bolder, stronger, and deserving of that promotion (we've got you covered). $46.99

For your tastemaker cousin:

Don Amado Mezcal Añejo

Mezcal hasn't quite hit the mainstream yet, so it's a favorite of bartenders and tastemakers alike. Don Amado's version is bright and full of citrus flavors, while still holding on to the rough, smoky edges that make mezcal unique. $59.99
