FACULTY

Celeste Roseberry-McKibbin, PhD, CCC-SLP, received her PhD from Northwestern University. She is a professor of speech pathology and audiology and is also currently a part-time itinerant speech-language pathologist for the San Juan Unified School District, where she provides direct services to students from preschool through high school.

Roseberry-McKibbin’s primary research interests are in the areas of assessment and treatment of culturally and linguistically diverse students with communication disorders as well as service delivery to students from low-income backgrounds. She serves homeless persons in her community through direct work. She has more than 50 publications, including six books, and has given more than 270 presentations at the state, national, and international levels. Roseberry-McKibbin is a fellow of ASHA and winner of ASHA’s Certificate of Recognition for Special Contributions in Multicultural Affairs. She lived in the Philippines as the daughter of Baptist missionaries from age 6 to 17.

Financial Disclosures

- Professor at California State University
- Speech-language pathologist at the San Juan Unified School District
- Book royalties from Plural Publishing and Academic Communication Associates
- Financial compensation from ASHA for this presentation

Nonfinancial Disclosures

- No nonfinancial relationships to the content of this presentation