

Gary Cornell and his wife of 45 years, Janet (inset), have been selling roadside corn and other produce for 32 years. Cornell started his stand by selling just corn and tomatoes, but over the years, he has added cucumbers, green beans, onions and various fresh fruits. See page 4.

Strasburg Village Council

Street extension still has no completion date

By Barb Limbacher

Strasburg Village Council passed an ordinance, as an emergency, at the Aug. 1 meeting to hire Donna Reiger and Michelle Dickelhoof as crossing guards for the 2023-24 school year, effective immediately, with the start date and work hours determined by Police Chief Dave Warrick. The first day of school is Aug. 23.

A lengthy discussion was held concerning extension of Seventh Street Northwest, located between Williams Village and Dale Avenue. Louie Dreher, a resident, asked when the street will be completed. He said when he served on council 10 years ago, the competition of the street was discussed. Councilwoman Liz Dreher, chairman of the street and alley committee, was asked to set up a meeting with Mark/Brad Malcuit, developers, about the street.

Council did the following:

—Heard councilwoman Kathy Burrier has submitted applications for grants for tornado sirens to Reeves and Rosenberry foundations, prior to the deadline.

Barb Limbacher
 Terry Seeberge, law director, explains an ordinance to mayor Steve Smith and council.

—Passed an ordinance regulating a sidewalk replacement and repair program. Nothing in section 55.01-55.015 shall be construed or require a property owner to reconstruct an existing sidewalk that is in good and safe condition, as determined by the village administrator. Property owners can qualify for assistance if proper information is filed with the village.

—Heard from Fire Chief Steve Laskey that the squad responded on July 30 to three calls in 90 minutes. If help is needed, a text goes to contact mutual aid.

—Learned the fire department has been awarded a FEMA grant for an apparatus bay exhaust system to allow for the exhaust fumes to be removed from the bays.

—Heard since September 2022 the fire department has been requested more often by neighboring departments. Previously to March 2022, only 1-2% of fire responses were to Dover. Now it is 8.1%, and New Philadelphia Fire has requested mutual aid. Since the plans have been implemented in the fire department, it has proven successful.

—Received a quote of $4,785 to place seven Norway spruce trees and eight arborvitae on Haswell Circle. Mayor Steve Smith will visit all the residents on Haswell Circle to get their opinion.

—Heard from Louie Dreher that council has done exactly as promised using the 1/2 percent village income tax income funds to repair streets. Over $400,000 is collected annually for street repair.

—Passed an ordinance, by 4-2, to lower the speed limit from Second Street to Ninth Street on Wooster Avenue to 25 mph. Marty Zehnder and Dustin Briggs voted no.

—Adopted an ordinance rezoning Village Hall from B-3 (business) to S-1 (special).

Other information

The Strasburg American Legion will hold a chicken barbecue on Aug. 13 at 10 a.m. until sold out at Malcuit's on South Wooster Avenue. The cost is $12. Legion members are grilling less chicken due to not selling out in July.

Community garage sales will be held through Aug. 14. No permits are needed.

The fire department responded to 19 calls for service July 18-31: 14 emergency calls; one each for mutual aid to Wayne Township, Bolivar and Beach City; four fire responses; and one mutual aid to Dover.

Council thanked Brightwood Door for donating a door frame and Aaron Minard of Choice One for donating his time to install the new front door.

The police responded to about 280 calls in July. Also, there were three drug overdoses, no drug fatalities and police recovered items stolen two years ago.

Council set the fall cleanup for Oct. 17.

The next council meeting will be held Aug. 15 at 6 p.m. at 224 N. Bodmer Ave.

The public meeting of Strasburg-Franklin Township Joint Economic Development District will meet at 5:30 p.m. prior to council to add territory into the JEDD. Campbell Oil has purchased 3.8 acres in Franklin Township, 4991 U.S. 250 NW, with a proposal to construct a Bellstore, service station and car wash.

Strasburg Back to School Bash set

By Barb Limbacher

The annual Strasburg Back to School Bash will kick off Aug. 21 at 4 p.m. with a ribbon-cutting ceremony for the new multipurpose facility located off Tiger Drive.

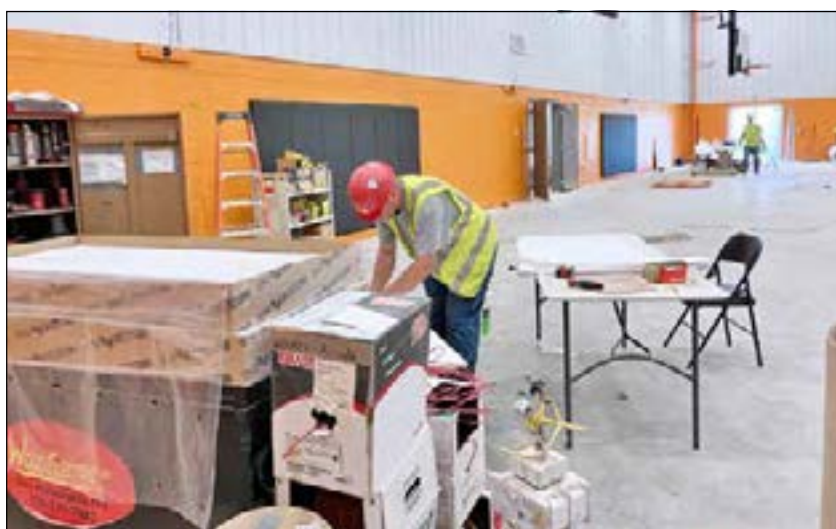

Superintendent Vince Lindsey said the new facility is a celebration of the work that has been done for the past year in the district. Inside the facility are basketball and volleyball courts, softball and baseball nets, a walking track, and weight room. The floor will allow softballs and baseballs to hit the floor without damaging it.

"This will allow student-athletes to hold practices and be home at a reasonable time," Lindsey said.

There also are restrooms, storage and a mechanical room. Double doors will lock so the public using the facility are not able to enter the school without permission. Designated times will be made available for the community to use the facility.

The $3 million facility was paid by COVID funds, donations from the Tiger Foundation, the district and other donations.

Beaver Construction was the construction manager at risk. Lesko Associates was hired as the design professional services. The board of education agreed to use a light tan brick trimmed in colonial red. On the back of the outside wall of the facility is a large tiger head that lights at night.

After the ribbon-cutting ceremony, visitors can attend the other activities from 4:30-6:30 p.m. inside the school.

Aug. 21 is the first day the staff returns to school. Students and parents can meet the teachers and visit their classrooms. There will be vendors, food trucks and other information available.

The first day for students is Aug. 23.

"We want to be the best. We do everything the Tiger Way. Every second counts. We want to tell our story," Lindsey said.

CREAM OF THE CROP

Bolivar man has sold roadside corn for 3 decades

By Lori Feeney

One could be forgiven for thinking the nickname “Corny” was given to a man because he sold roadside corn for 32 years. However, the moniker was bestowed upon Gary Cornell by one of his junior high coaches at Tusky Valley in the 1970s.

For more than three decades, Cornell’s corn, tomatoes and other crops have drawn families to his stand in Wilshire Hills. The last day for sales this year was July 30.

“Our motto is if people don’t like what they got here, all they have to do is come back. We’ll replace it or give them their money back,” Cornell said.

Sowing the seeds

“How it all started was we had built our house, and then I had to have open heart surgery,” Cornell said. “I was working at Nickles Bakery, and I was running out of breath. I could hardly work.”

The late Dr. Dan McDonnell of Bolivar pinpointed the cause: a birth defect that left Cornell with a half-developed aortic valve.

Valve-replacement surgery was performed, and soon, Cornell was back in business.

There was just one little problem. “My insurance didn’t pay all the medical bills,” Cornell said. “So my uncle said, ‘Well, come down here and do what your dad and granddad did — raise produce and sell it alongside the road.’ So that’s what we did.”

Initially, Cornell would finish his shift at the bakery, come home and eat dinner, then hit the highway, traveling to Meigs County in Southern Ohio, where his family’s fields were.

“I would be gone by 7:30 in the evening, drive all the way down there after being up all day, load up and get out of there, hopefully by six in the morning, to get back up here and start selling. Over time it just got bigger and bigger as more people came to buy corn,” Cornell said.

Adventures along the way

Cornell has plenty of stories to tell of his 32 years on the road. One story involves being pulled over by an Ohio State Highway Patrol officer when returning to Bolivar, towing his harvest in a trailer.

“I was tired, and I thought he was going to get me for weaving because I was falling asleep,” Cornell said.

It turned out the officer just wanted to alert Cornell to the fact his taillights were out on the trailer.

After fixing the lights, the officer asked what Cornell had in the trailer. “I showed it to him, and he said, ‘Where are you located?’ I told him, and this guy was out of the Cambridge post, but he said, ‘I’ll be up tomorrow to buy some corn,’ and by God he came up,” Cornell said.

Further road warrior tales include selling corn to people at gas stations and on exit ramps along the way.

“Back when the truck drivers and other people used CB radios, the truckers would ask, ‘What do you got on there?’ I’d tell them, and they’d say ‘pull over at the next exit. I want some.’ I didn’t even have bags to put it in, so they’d carry it off in their arms and put it down on the front floorboards. I don’t know how many times that happened,” Cornell said.

All in the family

Taking a lesson from his father and grandfather, Cornell has made his produce stand a family business. His wife Janet has been there from the beginning, and his brother Don helps out now.

“I owe a lot to Jan because there aren’t too many women that would work the way she does with me because it’s hard work with a lot of lifting,” Cornell said. “And our anniversary is July 14, and what do we do on July 14? Sell corn.”

Cornell’s children, Kevin and Rachel, were raised selling corn. “My kids learned a work ethic, down inside the kids are proud. They saw that we were doing this for them.”

Recently, the Cornell’s stand had to change locations after the new baseball field complex opened on Arrowhead Road, not because the owners asked him to move, but out of concern all the traffic, combined with the cars lining both sides of the road, may cause an accident.

After a few days selling at the site of a burned-down car wash on Edgebrook Road, Terri Davis, owner of Ohio Billing, invited the Cornells to set up in her parking lot.

“Terri buys a lot every year,” Cornell said. “When she saw where we were set up, she moved us over there and even put my name up on her sign. We owe her a lot.”

Although retired from the bakery, Cornell now drives a bus for Tusky Valley, has served as a statistician for several school sports and volunteers time for many school events. It’s a practice that has earned him yet another nickname: Mr. Tusky Valley.

“Volunteering for the school is just like selling corn,” Cornell said. “It’s in my blood.”

When asked about future plans for the produce stand, Cornell said, “My health the last couple of years has not been good, and one of these years, I’m going to have to stop doing it. I’ve had some close calls, and I’ve had some times I probably shouldn’t have been out there. But Lord willing, I’ll be there next year.”

Lori Feeney

Gary Cornell, right, and his brother Dan sold their last harvest of the season on July 30.

they learned how to count money and make change, and they’d count it back to the customers, which is unheard of these days,” he said.

After paying off those surgery bills, Cornell’s produce sales paid for both children to go to college and for family vacations, home improvements and other projects.

“I couldn’t have done this without them,” Cornell said. “I’m proud of them, and I think deep

Fairless Local Schools cuts ribbon on new school

By Barb Limbacher

Fairless Local Schools held a ribbon cutting and dedication of the 130,000-square-foot new high school building on Aug. 4.

The new high school for ninth grade through 12th grade is located at 800 Seventh St. SE in Brewster. Demolition has begun on the 1967 high school located at 11885 Navarre Road. The area will be filled in, seeded, graded and turned into a green space.

A large crowd attended the event held in front of the new high school. A memorial and flag pole were relocated from the former high school to the front of the new school. The Brewster American Legion Post #160 raised the flag.

Fairless Superintendent Michael Hearn said there is a great sense of pride in the new school. He said the community can smile about this new school and commended retired Superintendent Broc Bidlack for the hours spent at the site while the school was being constructed.

"Today is about the future and all the excitement that comes with the opportunity before us, which will impact generations of Fairless families. Soon, we will open the doors of this new building to the community. I have walked these halls many times the past year, and each time I cannot help but feel an immense sense of pride and awe that this is ours. Take the 21st century tools and resources and do great things with them. Keep Soaring to Excellence," Hearn said.

Hearn and band members chanted, "We are Fairless, couldn't be prouder. If you can't hear us, we will yell a little louder."

Hearn introduced the board of education: Dr. Jody Seward, president; Hope Hill, vice president; Ken Killian; Charles Snyder; and Jason

Kirby, whose vision, leadership and service made the project possible, along with treasurer Mark Phillips, who had a vision to take advantage of the revenue generated by Rover Natural Gas Pipeline. Administrators, teachers and other dignitaries were in attendance.

Bidlack said in October 2014, Phillips and he attended a community meeting held in East Sparta to hear about a proposed Rover Pipeline project. He said this initiated a dream of building a new high school.

"We have gathered here tonight because of the realization of that dream to dedicate this new high school to the students of this great Fairless community so they can begin to dream and prepare for their future," Bidlack said. "I am pleased and excited for all of you to see this brand-new, state-of-the-art high school that will serve generations of Fairless students.

"We never halted planning during the pandemic in 2020, which allowed us to lock in the construction of this building before major inflation hit the construction industry. I want to recognize the Construction Academy, which consisted of about 18 Fairless High students who participated in the construction."

The total cost of the new construction was $34 million with $13 million provided through the Ohio Facilities Construction Commission. The remaining $21 million was tax revenue from the Rover Natural Gas Pipeline. The district completely funded the project without asking voters for a bond issue.

Lesko and Associates of Westlake, Ohio was the architect on the project, and Regency Construction Services of Lakewood was hired as the construction management risk team. Others participating in the dedication were Seward; Brandon Simmons, Rivertree-Fairless church; Robb Blatchford, Lesko Architects; Tari Rivera, Regency Construction Services; and the Fairless High School band. Visitors were able to tour the new high school after the dedication.

An open house will be held for kindergarten through 12th grade on Aug. 18 from 4-6:30 p.m. The first day of school for first through sixth grade and ninth grade is Aug. 22, and the first day for seventh, eighth and 10th through 12th grade is Aug. 23. Kindergarten students have a staggered start.

Fairless teacher honored

By Barb Limbacher

Jennifer Best, Fairless Elementary visual arts teacher, was chosen as Ohio District 8 Teacher of the Year. She has taught in the Fairless School District for 13 years. She has been teaching art for the past seven years to 700 elementary students in kindergarten through fifth grade. She also is a Fairless High graduate and resides in Navarre.

In April Best was notified by the Stark County Educational Service Center of the honor and then was named one of 11 teachers to be honored by the state.

“I am so honored to be part of this and be able to spend time with the other 10 teachers I met during this school year,” Best said. “I love when students return and tell me what they have learned. They can’t make a mistake in art. Students can create something and show they are an artist. It is all about the students.”

Best offers different stations in her art room such as painting, fiber and sewing, collages, and 3-D sculptures, and students can explore all the areas of art. She also offers boot camps so the students can find their niche and soon know how to use each area of the art class. Students can create and express themselves.

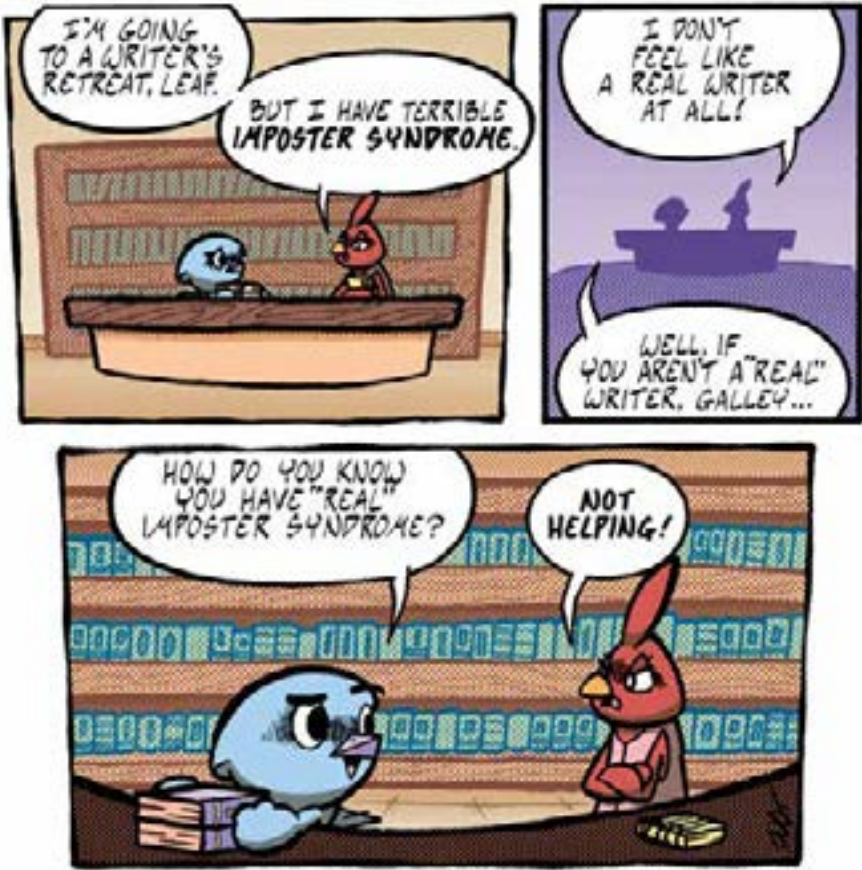

Best said she was not chosen as one of the four finalists to be interviewed in Columbus; however, she will continue to be part of the cohort and be active for the upcoming school year with the other 10 teachers from the state. They will travel to Columbus in October to celebrate the honor.

Career center is ready for new and returning students

Buckeye Career Center is preparing to open its doors to over 1,000 new and returning high school students for the coming school year. The year will begin with a Back to School Open House on Aug. 16 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., with orientation days Aug. 21-23.

The Back to School Open House is an opportunity for students and their family members to get acquainted with the building before school begins while also completing several orientation day tasks such as paying fees, applying for a parking pass, registering for a Drug Free Clubs of America membership and more.

Students also can drop off tools or supplies to their lab and get free ice cream at the event. The school nurse will be available, and students can ask questions about their schedule and online forms process. The Back to School Open House is optional.

Students officially begin the school year the week of Aug. 21 with select partner schools attending each day. Students from New Philadelphia, Garaway, QDA, Hiland and Carrollton and digital, homeschooled and open enrolled students should attend Monday, Aug. 21.

Student photos will be taken on the orientation days, and breakfast and lunch will be served. Complimentary ice cream will be served by Miller's Creamery.

Students from Dover, Sandy Valley, Claymont and Newcomerstown will attend their first day at BCC on Tuesday, Aug. 22.

Students from Indian Valley, Conotton Valley, Tusky Valley, TCC, Ridgewood, River View and Strasburg will attend Wednesday, Aug. 23.

All students will attend beginning Thursday, Aug. 24. Orientation days are considered school days, and students are expected to attend from 7:45 a.m. to 2:25 p.m. Student photos will be taken on the orientation days, and breakfast and lunch will be served. Complimentary ice cream will be served by Miller's Creamery. Student fees, lunch payments and Drug Free Club membership can be paid during orientation days with cash, check or credit card. Payments also can be made online using PayForIt.net, which is BCC's online partner for paying fees and adding money to student lunch accounts. Fees also can be paid over the phone at 330-339-2288 ext. 1212.

Incoming high school juniors can still apply to attend Buckeye Career Center for the 2023-24 school year by visiting the district's website at www.BuckeyeCareerCenter.org. BCC features over 30 career-technical high school programs.

Little Tiger Preschool to open

By Barb Limbacher

The Little Tiger Preschool will open this fall in the Strasburg-Franklin School District. The preschool will be held in the administration building located at 140 N. Bodmer Ave.

Only Strasburg children age 3-5 will be admitted. The only exception is if a sibling attends the district through open enrollment. The most the preschool will cost is $160 per month depending on the status of the family.

Emily Palmer, continuous improved and gifted education administrator, said she is pleased to have a preschool located in the district.

She said there are 16 students registered for the morning and 16 for the afternoon classes. Each class can accommodate about 20 children. Children will attend four days a week, Monday through Thursday.

"The Stark County Educational Service Center will hire a preschool teacher, and the aide resides in Strasburg," Palmer said.

Palmer said ESSER funds were used to purchase exercise toys that will be placed in the former weight room, once all the weight equipment is moved to the new multipurpose building.

The preschool room

décor has all new tables and light green and aqua chairs. The area has been remodeled and is ready for the students to begin preschool.

Recent studies help improve recycling knowledge

By Lori Feeney

In 2019 the Stark-Tuscarawas-Wayne Recycling District conducted a study that evaluated the rate of contamination in publicly used recycling bins. Contamination basically means items that are not recyclable are being placed in the bins or items are being placed in the wrong bin.

Based on the results, the recycling district then bumped up efforts to educate the public about what is recyclable and what isn't. Along with advertising and increased public awareness efforts through social media and the STWRD newsletter, new labels including pictures were placed on bins to better identify which items were acceptable and which were not.

According to Steve Tharp, Jr., program manager for STWRD, those efforts resulted in a 65% reduction in contamination. "That's a significant reduction,"

Submitted

To begin a study aimed at improving recycling knowledge, staff and drivers for the Stark-Tuscarawas-Wayne Recycling District sorted through the contents of bins meant for plastic bottles and jugs only.

Tharp said.

Fast forward to 2023. The district recently wrapped up a study measuring the public's recycling awareness, knowledge and practices in the Wooster area. According to Tharp, the six-week presort study, funded by the Ohio EPA, began in late April and wrapped up in early June.

GT Environmental of Columbus was selected to consult on the study, organizing and designing the campaign and then implementing it. The first phase involved dumping out bins to observe the items people were tossing in.

"In doing so, we were able to isolate the problem child," Tharp said, which was occurring in the bin designated for plastic bottles and jugs only.

Tharp said not only were people placing items in the bin that were neither plastic bottles nor jugs, but they also were tossing in all sorts of items, from food containers and flower pots to dish drainers, garden hoses and plastic bags.

After isolating the problem, STWRD staff, master recyclers and drivers gathered at the Wooster Buehler's recycling site for six weeks to try to change those habits. Tharp said the Wooster Buehler's was selected as the study's launch site based on the higher contamination levels there.

What they found

"We wanted to see what people are putting in the bins," Tharp said. "So we had them fill out a survey and then helped them

Ron Hansen

A closeup shot indicates the types of items deposited in the plastic bottles and jugs only bin, a number of which are considered contaminants such as clamshell food containers, hangers and prescription bottles.

unload their cars so we could identify items that were not recyclable or that they were placing in the wrong bins."

Among the most common contaminants were plastic clamshell food containers. Besides being placed in the wrong bin, those clamshells are not recyclable, according to Tharp. In fact, not all plastic bottles and jugs are recyclable.

"Those types of materials are labeled," Tharp said. "They also may have what people perceive as the recycle logo and a number on them. That logo is actually a resin code which identifies the type of plastic it is, but it doesn't indicate whether or not the material is recyclable. It's a common misperception."

The other complication is even if an item is recyclable, it may not be recyclable at the moment because there may be no market for it.

So how do we know what to do?

"Read the labels on the bins," Tharp said. "We tell you exactly what can be accepted and show pictures. We even provide little hints about things like flattening the cardboard."

Tharp said plastic bags are never acceptable in the bins because they cause a tangling hazard when the materials go through recycling machinery.

Over the six weeks, Tharp said people did react and respond positively. While the change in behavior was not as significant as the district would like to see, Tharp said a measurable decrease in contamination was observed.

"We felt that if we had the resources to be there more often, we would have experienced a more significant downturn," Tharp said.

Tharp said the information gathered in the study will serve as the baseline for a broader district-wide education program. "We have a number of collection sites in Tuscarawas County, but we plan to look at the Dover and New Philadelphia Buehler's first."

Fairless Salvation Army recently held a back-to-school event. The organization handed out 160 backpacks containing school supplies, personal care items and homework snack bags. They also were able to provide over 40 free haircuts to Fairless students. They also handed out 115 Fairless T-shirts and raffled Fairless merchandise.

Fairless Salvation Army would like to thank Newcomer's Chapel UMC at Pigeon Run and Otterbein UMC in Navarre for providing all the homework snack bags.

Fairless Salvation Army also would like to thank volunteer hairstylists Kate Black of Great Clips on Wales in Massillon, Mercedes Sisson of Lock 7 Hair

Studio in Bolivar, and Brit-tani Blaney and Vicki Dawson.

Fairless Salvation Army also thanks St. Paul UCC, which housed the event, and its kitchen crew, headed by Pastor Dennis Landaw, for providing hot dogs for refreshments.

Next year's event will be held Aug. 4.

Golf scramble seeks teams

On Wednesday, Aug. 23 at the Wilkshire Golf Course in Bolivar, Trumpet in the Land will host its annual four-man scramble golf outing. The scramble, which is a benefit for the outdoor drama, will begin at 9 a.m. with a shotgun start.

The cost per foursome is $280 and includes 18 holes of golf, Domino's Pizza at the turn, a beverage ticket, and Wendy's chili and a Subway sandwich at the end of the day.

Mulligans and skins are available for an additional charge. The event also will include a 50/50 drawing and prizes for lowest team score, longest drive, longest putt and closest to the pin.

Forester Luke Walters, left, Patsy and Mike Schmuki and grandson Ben Schmuki are preparing for a full day of activity for the Post Boy Farm tour on Sept. 9.

Tree farm tour coming in September to Post Boy

By Scott Daniels

Mike and Patsy Schmuki's Post Boy Tree Farm has been named Ohio Tree Farm of the Year, and they're opening their 238 acres of trees for tours on Sept. 9 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The farm is recognized as one of the best operations in the state.

Topics on the tour will include the following:

—Persimmon Grove.
—Food Plots for Wildlife by Merit Seed.

—Tree Plantings and Tuscarawas Soil and Water Conservation District.

—Pollinator Plot with Pheasants Forever wildlife biologist Abby-Gayle Prieur.

—Forest Management Plan by Colton Frink.

—Turkey Calls, Handcrafted With Wood by Chad Reminarc.

—Oxford Township History by John Wise.

—Homestead Barn Renovation.

—Oak Tree Regeneration.

Tours will be led by ODNR service foresters.

The nomination for Tree Farm of the Year came from Ohio Department of Natural Resources forester Luke Walters, who recognized the management of the farm during a visit in 2022 and now works closely with the family.

"They opened their farm for some workshops we wanted to do to educate people about forestry management," Walters said, "and the number of people who came out for it was around 50. It was an easy and obvious thing to nominate their farm. They're active in the community. They do a lot of outreach and education here. They took some ground which they could have easily left go, but they've done everything you could possibly do to make it better."

The beneficiaries of the Schmukis' work are numerous as the land supports a diverse variety of Ohio wildlife.

"Just about anything you would expect to see in a forest in Ohio is here," Walters said, "from woodcock to deer. There's just really excellent cover and brambles which the family has preserved, and it supports the kind of low cover which birds depend on. If we had more grouse around here, this is where they would want to be."

Such a large collection of carefully maintained trees also produces fresh oxygen for the atmosphere each day, helping to combat the effects of climate change. "The answer is to plant more trees," Mike Schmuki said.

The tree farm tour will feature workshops and speakers who will help visitors understand how tree farms are managed for the greatest benefit to everyone.

"We have been mowing and getting trails ready," Mike Schmuki said. "We will have a lot of foresters here acting as guides so you can get the most out of the visit."

Food will be available for purchase from food trucks.

"We want to showcase good forest management and help people understand how it's done," Walters said. "This is the perfect farm to do it."

The farm cuts trees when needed with the assistance of forester Randy Clum, who marks which trees can be harvested with paint.

"When you see logging trucks on the road," Patsy Schmuki said, "you rarely see them marked that way. So those trees have been cut without the assistance of a forester."

Mike Schmuki stood near red oak trees that were planted in 2018 and are now about 8 feet tall. “We wrap the tree trunks with material that allows light and water in but keeps animals out. Deer like to eat those early shoots when they appear, so this helps to give them a better start,” he said.

The farm is typically planted with 25% pine or soft woods, which are a sacrificial species.

“The deer eat those and rub their antlers on them and leave the hardwood trees alone,” Mike Schmuki said.

Hardwood trees include red and white oak and even a few elm and ash trees, which are unusual to see. The farm also plants uncommon persimmon trees, which provide food for forest-dwelling wildlife.

Walters pointed to young trees from the same planting year that are barely knee high and were not wrapped. “Oak trees spend the first few seasons establishing a solid root system before they begin growing for height,” he said. “That’s when the deer keep eating them, and it keeps them shorter like this. But they’ll recover.”

The Schmukis allow hunting on their forested land as part of its management.

To visit the farm for the tour in September, visitors should wear sturdy shoes and dress for the weather, as walking through forested paths will be a part of the day’s activities. Getting to the farm takes some driving on a one-lane road. The address for GPS is 17395 Starkey Hollow Road SW, Newcomerstown. This brings you to a cabin owned by another family at the edge of Post Boy Tree Farm. From there, there will be people to help with directions and numerous signs.

Call foresters Jeremy Scherf at 614-212-3309 or Walters at 216-215-6564.

Wild osprey rescued from fishing line near Delroy

Thanks to community cooperation and concern for wildlife, an osprey was rescued after becoming entangled in fishing line up in a tree. The rescue mission led by Atwood Park staff, MWCD rangers, Dellroy Fire Department and DH Land Clearing took place over the weekend near Dellroy.

A nearby resident noticed the osprey struggling in the tree and alerted local authorities. The osprey had been ensnared in discarded fishing line, leaving it unable to free itself.

"We have an awesome, supportive community and were able to quickly assemble a team to attempt a successful recovery," said John Lewis, Atwood Lake Park manager. "This rescue serves as a reminder of the importance of responsible fishing practices and the impact on our wildlife. We cannot stress enough how important it is to discard used fishing lines or other materials properly. We are grateful for the swift response of the community and the dedication of our team in ensuring the safety of this animal."

Rescuers managed to safely reach the distressed osprey and remove the fishing line. Following the rescue, the osprey was transported to Stark Park's Wildlife Conservation Center, where it is being cared for to ensure its health and well-being.

"The osprey is doing fairly well," said Stephon Echague, animal care supervisor at Stark County Park District's Conservation Center. "He has a swollen leg where the fishing line was wrapped, but he can put weight on it, so that is a good sign. He will see the vet this week and is currently receiving fluids and being well-fed. If all goes well and he continues to show positive improvements, we will look forward to releasing him back into the wild soon."

Fishing line disposal bins are located at the public launch ramps and various locations at each of the MWCD lakes. Additionally, residents are encouraged to report any wildlife in distress to local authorities.

The Little Theatre to present Tennessee Williams classic

By Lee Elliott

Little Theatre of Tuscarawas County will close its 2022-23 season with the Tennessee Williams' classic, "The Glass Menagerie." The show, directed by Sarah Spies, will open Thursday, Aug. 17 and run Aug. 18, 19, 20, 24, 25, 26 and 27.

Spies, who is making her directorial debut at the theater, has been involved for the past 10 years, serving as wardrobe chair for five years and as a member of the theater board. Some of her favorite past roles on stage include "Legally Blonde: The Musical" (Vivienne), "Thoroughly Modern Millie" (Alice) and "My Name Is Rachel Corrie" (Rachel).

She has served as an assistant director and worked backstage. Outside of the theater, Spies has been involved with Trumpet in the Land and Black Box Ensemble Theatre, but her favorite role is as the musical director at New Philadelphia High School.

"The play is memory," said Tom Wingfield, the show's narrator, who guides the audience through his past, giving context to the social and political background of his life in late 1930s St. Louis.

The action centers around the possibility of a gentleman caller for Laura, Wingfield's terribly shy older sister, but it also explores the tenuous relationship Wingfield has with his family, especially his mother Amanda, a Southern Belle whose life has not turned out the way she had hoped.

Laura Wingfield remains preoccupied with her collection of small glass animals and old phonograph records, too fragile to aspire to anything beyond the four walls of their apartment. When Jim O'Connor arrives for supper, the Wingfield family is forced to come to grips with their own reality beyond the illusions they have created for themselves.

"We plan to use haze to give a dream-like quality, like you're looking through a window or looking at an old, faded photograph," Spies said. "The set will look incomplete — not fully formed — because we're seeing this through the eyes of Tom, our narrator. Everything is just slightly off, but you can't quite put your finger on what's wrong."

"It has been so fun to get to dive into the text of this play with the cast, finding moments and details that allow us to understand the characters in a new way. This cast has worked so hard to understand their characters and what informs their thoughts and actions. The music has also been a fun piece to work with. It helps to set the tone for certain moments as moods shift within the scenes."

The cast includes Jay Cochran as Tom Wingfield, Elizabeth Thomakos as Amanda, Anna Zurcher as Laura and Michael Antonelli as Jim O'Connor.

Spies' staff members are Francis Brogan, assistant director; Seth Rhodes, Chelsea Dendler and Ryan Flaherty, lighting; Haley Kimble, sound; Daelyn Carpenter, stage manager; and Kyra Drescher, Matt Spies and Don Irven, additional technical assistance.

Sponsored by Andrew, Kait and Eliza Wilsterman, "The Glass Menagerie" features performances at 7:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. matinees on Sundays. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students and children. They are available online at www.thelittletheatreonline.org or at the Kent State Performing Arts Center ticket office.

Dover-Phila Federal Credit Union

70 acts of kindness celebrate 70 years in community

By Teri Stein

The Dover-Phila Federal Credit Union is celebrating 70 years of serving the community with 70 acts of kindness in the community. The Kindness Campaign began Aug. 1 and will continue through the end of the year. It includes a variety of projects designed to give back to the community.

The Dover-Phila Credit Union was originally established Aug. 5, 1953, when its charter was issued. Originally, it was for the employees of Warner & Swasey and was known as the Warner & Swasey Credit Union. Later when Warner and Swasey became Gradall, the name changed to the Gradall Employees Credit Union.

“Gradall Industries went through some ownership changes in the 1980s. The credit union wanted to diversify a little bit and open up their membership. We got approval from NCUA to open it up to everybody in the county. So if you live, work, worship or attend school in Tuscarawas County, you’re eligible for membership,” said Jason Garner, CEO of the Dover-Phila Credit Union.

Garner was a Gradall employee for 15 years before he began employment at the credit union.

The credit union still has many Gradall employees among its membership of around 35,000. If a customer moves from Tuscarawas County, their membership is not revoked, and there are now members from all over the United States. These out-of-town members can access services through other credit unions that are in the same network as the DPFCU.

The DPFCU has five full-service locations to serve its customers. The main location is in Dover on Fillmore Avenue since 1986. A north Dover office and a New Philadelphia office were opened in 1997. The following decade the Newcomerstown office opened in 2003, and in 2005 the Uhrichsville office opened.

Submitted

The Dover-Phila Credit Union has only had three leaders in its 70-year history. They are CEOs Jack Dooling, left, Jason Garner and Dave Andreatta.

The Dover-Phila Credit Union has only had three leaders in its history. Dave Andreatta started the credit union and retired in March 2014. Then Jack Dooling took the helm for a few years, retiring in April 2019, and Garner accepted the position and still serves as CEO.

Funds deposited in the credit union are protected by NCUA at the same level as banks have through the FDIC.

The DPFCU gives back to its members first, then to the community.

“The biggest difference between a credit union and a bank is credit unions are nonprofit. Our mission is to provide as good of rates as we can for people on their savings and as low of rates as we can for loans,” Garner said. “Our leadership is made up of about nine board members that are all voluntary. They’re not compensated, and they’re all members. So the members actually own the credit union, and the members participate in the management of the credit union through the board of directors. The nice thing is we’re able to make decisions on a daily basis that we put our members first in and profit second.”

More recently, with space at a premium, the credit union built an administrative building.

“We were running out of room for our back-office folks at the main office,” Garner said. “There are about 250 credit unions in the state of Ohio, and we are the 13th largest credit union in the state. The community has been very supportive of us over the years, and that’s why Kelsey (McConaha) has been heading up this campaign to try to give back to the community for the 70th anniversary.”

The credit union’s employees and board members will participate, and they suggested some of the kindness activities.

“We have a lot of stuff scheduled with local organizations, and then there’s some that we’re just going to be randomly doing on a nice day when we have the time available,” McConaha said.

Some things planned for the Kindness Campaign are a school supply drive, sponsored date night through WJER, food trucks at credit union locations, helping with United Way’s Rock-N-Run, planned activities at local nursing homes and senior centers, story and craft time at local libraries, helping at the food pantry, handing out passes for the Tuscarawas County Fair, gift card giveaways to support small businesses, working at concession stands at sporting events that support a cause, a turkey giveaway around Thanksgiving, a cookie giveaway around Christmas, gas card giveaways, a canned food drive, an animal supply drive and more.

The supply drives will be held in the credit union lobbies and will be open to members and the community to come in and donate.

Officials estimated the DPFCU has given back about $30 million over the past 70 years. Part of that amount is bonus dividends to members.

“The rest of it is for the community — its local organizations, libraries, schools. We provide free financial literacy to middle schools, high schools in Tuscarawas County,” McConaha said. “And then we also have an online wellness center for our members and for the community to look at called Banzai.”

They also provide low-cost financial literacy to local libraries and partner with Buckeye Career Center to provide a wellness program in the evening for students in the adult ed program.

“We have a partnership with the sheriff’s department for financial re-entry programs with their incarcerated inmates that we do,” McConaha said.

The DPFCU is running a special loan promotion for the 70th anniversary.

“We’re having a cash-back offer for auto refinance loans,” McConaha said. “Those that switch their auto loan to the DPFCU can receive up to $700 cash back.”

Terms, conditions and restrictions do apply, and the offer runs until the end of September.

To help small businesses, each DPFCU location also will host a local food truck one day through August and the first part of September.

As for the next 70 years, the DPFCU plans to grow along with its members.

“I would say the biggest challenge today, I think, for the credit union is staying relevant with the younger generation,” Garner said. “There’s so many options out there for financing. We’re constantly looking at ways to improve our digital footprint to be able to offer the services that the younger members are looking for.”

Like your land, this offer is a real beauty.

ABSOLUTE RABER LAND AUCTION MILLERSBURG/BERLIN AREA

40 Acres | 1 Parcel | Mostly Wooded | Pond | Hardy Twp
Holmes Cnty | West Holmes Schools

Thursday, August 17, 2023 • 6:00 PM

SUMMARY: How often can you find the opportunity to purchase 40 acres that is located between Millersburg and Berlin? This tranquil parcel of land boasts a nice blend of hardwood trees, with some marketable and up and coming timber for those interested in forestry management. The property has been blessed with a small, secluded pond, nestled right in the heart of the woods. This offers not just a beautiful view, but also serves as a sanctuary for local wildlife, increasing the attraction for hunting enthusiasts. Deer, turkeys, and a variety of other game frequent the area, providing a wonderful opportunity for those who enjoy the sport. What makes this property especially appealing is a prime cabin site. Located next to the pond, an open clearing provides a perfect place for a building. Here, you could construct a cabin that offers all the peace and solitude of an isolated retreat yet remains conveniently close to town. For the weekend nature lover, this land offers a unique escape from the bustling city life without a long, tiring commute. Just a short drive from town, you can enjoy the thrill of camping or hunting, or simply soak up the restorative ambience of the woodland surroundings. Indeed, this property is versatile. It could serve as a fantastic hunting ground, a secluded weekend retreat, or a remote yet accessible building site. If you've been searching for a property that allows you to experience the best of nature while still maintaining proximity to urban conveniences, this land could very well be the perfect fit for you.

LEGAL: Holmes County Parcel 06-00070-000 in Hardy Township and West Holmes Local Schools. TAXES: Taxes are currently 723.74 per half year and is in CAUV for commercial growth of timber.

REAL ESTATE TERMS: 10% nonrefundable down payment day of sale with the balance due at closing. The sale is not contingent upon buyer securing financing and or any additional contingencies, property sells "AS IS". Any required inspections must be completed prior to bidding. Sellers to transfer any and all owned mineral rights. Property sells subject to all articles of record. Announcements day of sale take precedence over all previous advertising and statements.
