Nominations sought for Jenco Awards

To honor people of all ages who work in the service of others in Appalachian Ohio, the Jenco Foundation Fund is seeking nominations for the 2022 Jenco Awards. The deadline is June 1.

This year celebrates 20 years of recognizing visionary leadership in service through the Jenco Awards. Nominated by fellow community members who witness their service and leadership in action, Jenco award-ees are selected through a formal committee process. Jenco awardees receive an individual cash award to use in the manner most appropriate to their leadership.

The Jenco Foundation and its awards are named for Father Lawrence Martin Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest who committed his life to the service of others. In the 1980s Jenco served as the director of Catholic Relief Services in Lebanon, where he was kidnapped and spent 19 months in captivity.

Even in confinement Jenco continued to serve, providing a listening ear for other detainees including journalist Terry Anderson. Following Jenco's death in 1996, Anderson wanted a way to honor his legacy, so he created the Jenco Foundation.

The Jenco Foundation joined the Foundation for Appalachian Ohio in 2011 as an endowment to ensure it can continue to honor Jenco's legacy by recognizing unsung heroes throughout Appalachian Ohio.

"The Jenco Foundation Fund always looks forward to learning about those in Appalachian Ohio who have dedicated themselves to service, and we are excited to recognize their work," Carolyn Fisk of the Jenco Foundation Fund committee said. "Additionally, 2022 is special for the Jenco Foundation as it marks the 20th anniversary of honoring Father Jenco's legacy with these awards. We are grateful that we are able to continue to recognize these leaders in our region."

The Jenco Award recognizes individuals of all ages for their service contributions. Their service demonstrates action that contributes to the quality of life of individuals living in Appalachian Ohio.

Nominations are encouraged across areas essential to quality of life: arts and culture, community and economic development, education, environmental stewardship, and health and human services.

Organist to perform concert

American organist Joshua Brodbeck will perform at the Coshocton Presbyterian Church on Sunday, May 1 at 3 p.m. The public is welcome to attend this free event, which will be held in conjunction with the Pomerene Center for the Arts' annual Dogwood Festival.

"Brodbeck has delighted concert-goers with his talent and with his audience-friendly programs," said Alice Hoover, organist at the Coshocton Presbyterian Church. "His program entitled 'Buxtehude, Bach, Bish, and Brodbeck' will be one of classical music and hymn arrangements. We are excited to welcome this young artist."

Brodbeck played his first concert in the United States at the age of 9. His international debut was playing for an organ dedication in Slovenia, Europe at the age of 12. He began formal organ studies at the age of 12 with Dr. Stephen Jacoby at Bluffton University. Later he studied at the Capital University Conservatory of Music and at the Jacobs School of Music at Indiana University with international concert organist Todd Wilson.

Since graduating, he has had coaching sessions with Paul Jacobs of the Juilliard School of Music and Dame Gillian Weir of the United Kingdom. He has won first prize in many competitions.

In addition to several concerts in the United States, Brodbeck has performed for tours in Germany, Switzerland and the Czech Republic.

Currently, Brodbeck is the minister of music and artist-in-residence at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Columbus, overseeing the entire music program and concert series. He also is the artistic director for the Delaware Community Chorus and director of worship for the Southern Ohio Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

At the May 1 concert, Brodbeck will play the Engle organ, a tracker-action organ built by the Taylor and Boody Company. The organ was a gift to the church from Joe R. Engle and was dedicated May 20, 1979. This historic organ is similar to instruments J.S. Bach would have played.

The Coshocton Presbyterian Church is located at 142 N. Fourth St. in Coshocton, across from the court square. The parking lot and the building are wheelchair accessible.

Schoenbrunn celebrates 250th anniversary of its founding

By Teri Stein

www.thebargainhunter.com

A free two-day event will celebrate the 250th anniversary of the founding of Historic Schoenbrunn Village near New Philadelphia.

Tuesday, May 3 marks the exact date Moravian missionary Rev. David Zeisberger, other Moravian missionaries and Christian Delaware families arrived at the site in 1772. Zeisberger had been invited to establish a mission at the invitation of the Delaware leader Netawatawees.

The first event on May 3 will feature a number of representatives of the groups that have been involved at Schoenbrunn from the very beginning — the Delaware Tribe and the Moravian Church.

Wendy Zucal, director of the Dennison Depot Railroad Museum, which operates the village for the Ohio History Connection, feels it's important to mark this occasion.

"It's also an opportunity to bring people together — the Ohio History Connection, our Delaware partners and our Moravian partners — for the betterment of the village," Zucal said.

Legacy gifts and improvements to the village in honor of the 250th include the rebuilt Shebosh cabin, a metal sculpture in honor of the Delaware Tribe, a new guidebook to the village, and a new pollinator garden and trees. The OHC also will showcase a new exhibit in the museum.

"Our goal is always to improve the sites under our watch, and through the legacy gift improvements at the site, we can lift the village up into the future," Zucal said.

On May 3 the day will begin at 9 a.m. with a meet and greet. Members of area Moravian churches will serve Moravian sugar cakes to guests. For those who are unable to attend, a live-stream of the program will begin at that time on the Historic Schoenbrunn Village Facebook page.

Pastor John Wallace of First Moravian Church in Dover will serve as emcee. A welcome will be presented in three languages: Delaware, German and English. The New Philadelphia Welty Middle School choir, directed by Christa Roberts, will perform, and a Moravian musical medley will be presented by the trombone/flute choir, directed by G. Randall Gibbs.

Speakers include Chief Denise Stonefish representing the Delaware Tribe, David Hipp of the Tuscarawas County Historical Society,

New Philadelphia Mayor Joel Day, Tuscarawas County commissioner Chris Abbuhl, Congressman Bill Johnson, Director of Ohio Tourism Matt MacLaren, Tom Chema of the Ohio History Connection, Todd Kleismet of the Ohio Commission 250th and Elizabeth Miller, president of the Northern Province of the Moravian Church.

At the end of the program, a new metal sculpture, a gift from the Moravian Church in honor of the Delaware people, will be unveiled. A blessing and ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at newly reconstructed Shebosh cabin.

A break will be held for lunch before the History Bits programs begin in the afternoon. Two food trucks will be onsite both days: Cheezylicious and Ross Mountain Barbecue.

On May 3 the History Bits programs will run simultaneously at five locations throughout the village, and there will be two sessions: 1:30-2 p.m. and 2:15-2:45 p.m.

Topics and speakers in the first session include Delaware Life, Moravian Missionaries and Native American Christians in Ohio, Records of Schoenbrunn Moravian Archives, and the First Phase Overview of Museum Additions.

Session-two topics include The Rediscovery of the Village, Lenape Story Telling, The Shebosh Story, The Story of Anna Jungmann and The First Phase Overview of Museum Additions.

A 250th anniversary Children's Day will be held May 4. Topics will be modified for children with morning and afternoon sessions including Delaware Life; The Lenape Story; Meet Mr. Zeisberger; Brown Bear, Brown Bear; and Anna Jungmann. Gates will open at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, and admission is free.

One of the programs for children will feature Theresa Johnson, a member of the Delaware Tribe, reading the book, "Brown Bear, Brown Bear," in the Delaware language, and she will teach some of the Delaware language to the children.

The event is the first time a field guide, "Understanding Schoenbrunn Village: Field Guide to the Moravian Delaware Village of Welhik Thuppeck," will be available for purchase at the gift shop. Welhik Thuppeck is what the Delaware called the village and the name Zeisberger used in his diaries.

Seth Angel, a volunteer at the village for 10 years, originally wrote the new field guide so Schoenbrunn volunteers had a better grasp on the history and to let them know about some of the people who may have been overlooked.

"Each of the individuals that lived in the village had a story. Unfortunately, a lot of those stories have been lost to time, but the ones that we still know and still remember through the diaries, we need to tell so they aren't forgotten," Angel said.

In addition to the history, the center portion of the book is a walking tour around the village, stopping at each of the reconstructed homes, and it also has a section to talk about God's acre, the village's cemetery. A time line of the Moravian missions ends with Goshen, which was founded in 1798 and was Zeisberger's last mission.

Angel of New Philadelphia will portray the town crier at the event.

"I'm looking forward to just the opportunity to meet with some of the folks that are coming in, both the Delaware contingent coming in and people coming from Bethlehem, Pennsylvania," Angel said. "I'm also looking forward to talking about to donate to the project.

Another project to look for will be a map inside the museum that is going to be representative of the Ohio Country between 1760 and 1780.

"That's going to show distances of how long it took to get somewhere," Laurence said. "It's going to be interesting. It's a small map, but it's good for the kids. It took two weeks to go from Schoenbrunn to Fort Pitt or to Detroit."

The 250th anniversary will be celebrated year round with a speaker series from May 2022 to May 2023 in conjunction with Kent State Tuscarawas and the Moravian churches. There also will be commemorative items for sale in the gift shop including original artwork from local artists.

On Aug. 14 the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District will partner with Schoenbrunn to sponsor a Paddle into the Past event

Anna Jungmann, who lived in the village."

Life in the village revolved around a system known as choirs.

"In the choir system, the village was divided by age, gender and marital status. And those choirs or groups attended church worship, had fellowship time and studied, worked and so forth together in those choirs. And that was kind of the overarching structure of the village," Angel said. "That's something that's kind of hard to understand today, but I'm hoping the book will help visitors and staff understand how the village operated at that time."

Longtime volunteer George Laurence of New Philadelphia headed up a project to build a ghost cabin that will be part of the village for the first time during the 250th event. Made of a metal framework, the structure gives shape to the next cabin rebuilding project village officials would like to undertake. Visitors will be able to use their phones to celebrate the 250th anniversary of Schoenbrunn with a paddle trip on the Tuscarawas River. The event will begin at the Snyder's Landing Boat Ramp in Tuscarawas and end at the Charles B. Miller Boat Ramp in Gnadenhuetten. Canoes, kayaks and standup paddleboards are welcome. The paddle is for experienced paddlers only, age 12 and up.

Registration is required at www.MWCD.org/kayak. All participants must sign a participation form. Kayaks are available for rent at $25 per person.

Sponsors for the events include the Ohio History Connection, Greg Kimble, Dover-Phila Federal Credit Union, Marilyn Stocker, Lin Sidel, Linda Earley, Amy Ansel (McDonald's), Wendy's, Craig Barnett, VFW Ohio Charities, Tuscarawas County Convention and Visitors Bureau, BM & LL Peacock, Lilly Family, Donald and Helen Borland, Freeport Press, the Commercial and Savings Bank, and WTUZ.

Tobacco Take-Back event set

Through a partnership of local organizations, smokers have an extra incentive to take the first step to stop smoking or vaping at the Tobacco Take-Back event on Saturday, April 30 from 10 a.m. to noon at Cleveland Clinic Union Hospital's south entrance.

All smokers who are willing to make a commitment to quit and who drop off a pack of new or opened cigarettes or a vape or electronic nicotine device will be entered into a drawing to win one of fifty $10 gas cards.

The drawing is made possible through the Tuscarawas County Health Department Tobacco Use Prevention & Cessation grant program, which is working in partnership with Leadership Tuscarawas, Empower Tusc and Wendy's.

"Making a commitment to quit smoking or vaping is challenging," said Autumn Poland, TCHD health educator and grant coordinator for the Tobacco Use Prevention & Cessation Program. "We are thankful to work with community partners to provide this little incentive to help people take that important first step to quit by calling 1-800-QUIT-NOW for free help. Currently 16 million Americans are living with a disease caused by smoking, and studies show that those who quit begin to experience health benefits within the first 24 hours. We hope this event helps people start on that journey to better health."

With leadership from Poland of TCHD, Jodi Salvo of Empower Tusc and Chris Lane of Wendy's, as well as a Leadership Tuscarawas project team of Denise McEnroe-Petite of Kent State Tuscarawas, Brenda Pope of Eagle Machinery, Steve Rippeth of Buckeye Career Center and Niza Rodriguez of Redwood House of Real Estate, the Tobacco Take-Back event was planned in conjunction with Prescription Take-Back Day.

The gas gift cards were donated by Eagle Machinery & Supply Inc. and Redwood House of Real Estate. The gift card drawing will take place at the conclusion of the event, and winners will be notified by phone.

Call Poland at 330-343-5555 ext. 178 or email healed@tchdnow.org.

Help for kids who stutter as close as your library

"Stuttering: For Kids By Kids," a DVD in English and Spanish starring kids who stutter, is available at most public libraries or through interlibrary loan. Many children who stutter have never met others who struggle with the same disability. In this DVD from the Stuttering Foundation, they meet kids who recount how they handled challenges such as teasing, speaking out in class and teaching others about stuttering.

Swish, an animated basketball character designed by students at Purdue University, narrates the DVD. The children, who range in age from first-graders to high school students, offer differing views of stuttering.

For example, Matthew, age 10, said, "It's no big deal," but Kate, age 9, worries about talking, what is going to happen next and whether or not she'll stutter.

Arianne, age 14, said, "The hardest part about stuttering is to get through it and to stay in there when you're stuck."

Umang, age 12, said, "Sometimes it gets kind of annoying when you want to say something and you can't. I also get worried what other people might think if I do stutter and wonder if I'll be able to get out of my blocks and things."

"All those interested in helping kids learn more about stuttering will want to see this tape," speech-language pathologist Bill Murphy of Purdue University said. "The children featured are a perfect example of how to openly and honestly handle stuttering."

"This is an important tool for families and teachers of kids who stutter," said Jane Fraser, president of the nonprofit Stuttering Foundation.

Other professionals and specialists in stuttering in this production include Kristin Chmela of Northwestern University, Joe Donaher of Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, Lisa Scott of Florida State University and Lee Caggiano of Friends.

Since 1947 the nonprofit foundation has provided free materials to public libraries nationwide. A library that will shelve them can download a request form at www.stutteringhelp.org/libraries-information, email info@stutteringhelp.org or call 800-992-9392.

Local volunteers sought for Ohio River Sweep

The Ohio River Sweep Program is an annual volunteer cleanup to remove litter from the Ohio River. Litter in waterways is a global problem, and the Ohio River Sweep addresses the problem locally. Mini-river sweeps enable small groups to make a big impact on waterways in their community.

The general public and Scouts are invited to participate. Volunteers will be given trash bags, gloves and a T-shirt. The goal is to clean the banks of the Tuscarawas River from Dover Dam to Zoarville, a 1.5-mile stretch, on Saturday, May 21.

Volunteers will check in at Camp Tuscazoar and confirm they have signed a waiver and watched a safety video, and then they will be shuttled to the banks of the Tuscarawas River, where they will be supervised during cleanup.

At the end of the cleanup, volunteers will be shuttled back to camp. The event will be from noon to 4 p.m., with Trash Trophies and a special dinner at the end of the day.

Volunteers are required to watch a safety video and sign a waiver prior to volunteering and must be able to walk on uneven terrain for varying distances.

Register at www.Eventbrite.com and search for Ohio River Sweep Volunteer Registration.

Camp Tuscazoar is located at 6066 Boy Scout Road NE in Dover.

Today Camp Buckeye sponsors many programs and outreaches. It offers guest group facilities, fundraisers and Nature Discovery classes. During the summer camping season, people of all ages can have experiences in nature.

Lucy Richards, executive director, and Laura Milarcik, instructor for the Nature Discovery Program, will show photos from the past and present of Camp Buckeye, which is located on 90 wooded acres near Dundee Falls, on Tuesday, May 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the community room at the Dover

Public Library. Richards and Milarcik will tell how this Boy Scout camp established in the 1940s became a Christian conference and retreat center in the 1980s. People are welcome to share their personal experiences as a Boy Scout and/or summer camper at Camp Buckeye.

Public Library.

Today the camp sponsors many programs and outreaches. It offers guest group facilities, fundraisers and Nature Discovery classes. During the summer camping season, people of all ages can have experiences in nature.

“Lucy and Laura are great ambassadors for Camp Buckeye,” said Sherrel Rieger, library program specialist, “because they not only have fond memories of the camp, but also have a passion for introducing the joy of camping to others.”

Richards began serving at Camp Buckeye as the office assistant when her youngest son graduated from high school. She was eventually asked to be the executive director and said she has enjoyed seeing lives changed by time spent at Camp Buckeye. She believes being at camp gives everyone a chance to slow down and enjoy the simpler side of life.

Milarcik was first introduced to Camp Buckeye as a camper when she was 9. Today she serves as an instructor for the Nature Discovery Program and aids in the office with special projects. This program helps to unite her passions of the outdoors and history.

Cinco de Mayo a bigger deal in the U.S. than Mexico

Mexico gets quite a bum rap here in the states. The country has been invaded by numerous old-world powers and by the U.S., trampled and cut down to size so frequently they become an easy target for fatuous politicians with no more knowledge of Mexico or Mexicans than a snake has hips.

Cinco de Mayo, literally Fifth of May, is next week, and many of us will make some kind of tequila-soaked jab at joining in the celebration.

The holiday, which is a bigger deal in the U.S. than in Mexico proper, marks a victory in turning the forces of Napoleon III out of the country in 1862. Mexicans suspended debt payments to other nations in 1861, and French, Spanish and English troops marched right in to try and slap some coin out of them.

The English and Spanish soon left as it wasn't worth the trouble. The French stayed on, hoping to weaken American influence south of the border and turn Mexico into a monarchy led by the Austro-Hungarian empire.

The French took a beating at the battle of Puebla,

Scott Daniels
We Ate Well and Cheaply

and Cinco de Mayo celebrates that victory, even though the French kept on fighting for a few more years before taking their cigarettes and heading back to Paris.

Because of the large Mexican population there from the earliest days, California was the starting point for United States celebrations of the day, and the rest of the country got on board after Franklin Roosevelt's Good Neighbor Policy opened the way for better relations with nations in the Caribbean.

The usual celebratory dish for Cinco de Mayo in Mexico is a poblano pepper in mole sauce, a rich, dark brown sauce with an ingredient list as long as a Pontiac, with Mexican chocolate playing a central flavor role.

Mole is something I've never tackled outside of buying it in a jar and thinning it a bit, but it is most surely delicious with just about anything you might pair it with.

Not counting fast food, I can think of at least six Mexican restaurants off the top of my head, which we are fortunate to find in our backyard, plus a great many pop-ups and food trucks. That makes us extremely lucky as the LatinX community has matured enough to stabilize and begin sharing more of their culture and cuisine.

As I would bet you had misconceptions about the origins of the day, Cinco de Mayo in the United States has become more of a generalized celebration of Mexican culture. Los Angeles, Chicago and Houston make a really big deal of it, closing streets and throwing a big party, more so than in Tijuana.

Cinco de Mayo has been a federally recognized holiday in America since 2005, but it is not an official holiday in Mexico. We celebrate pretty heavily in the U.S., consuming 81 million pounds of avocados and more tequila than any other nation on earth that day. That's a lot of guacamole and margaritas.

Everyone has their favorite recipe for guacamole, and this is the one

I've worked on and fussed with over the years. It probably has more ingredients than a purist would like, but I like my guac a little chunky and with a little added color.

In taking the pit out of the avocado, turn it upside down and push from the back after halving it. Sticking a big knife into the pit sends a lot of people to the ER every year. The injury even has a name, "avocado hand."

Broadband study reveals lack of internet access

A new broadband study revealed 38% of households and 81% of populated acres in the 10-county Appalachian region of the Ohio

Mid-Eastern Governments Association do not have access to FCC minimum internet speeds of 25 Mbps down/3 Mbps up.

In 2020 OMEGA received a CARES Act Supplemental Planning Grant for COVID-19 Economic Recovery from the U.S. Economic Development Administration. Using funds from this grant, OMEGA retained the Reid Consulting Group to conduct a regional broadband feasibility study for the OMEGA region, which includes Belmont, Carroll, Columbiana, Coshoc-ton, Guernsey, Harrison, Holmes, Jefferson, Muskingum and Tuscarawas counties.

The pandemic exacerbated the need for reliable, affordable, high-speed broadband in this Appalachian region of Ohio for students, employees and businesses.

Using data gathered through the study, broadband profiles were created for each county detailing where existing broadband coverage is lacking, where businesses and homes are located, how many miles of fiber-optic cable are needed to reach those businesses and homes, and the total cost and grant funding needed to install that cable.

Fixed wireless also may serve as a competitive technology in some areas.

"These profiles go beyond just identifying the problem," OMEGA executive director Jeannette Wierzbicki said. "They also show what it will take to fix the problem and provide guidance to our local officials to identify priority areas for broadband expansion. We are excited to work with the counties and communities in our region to identify funding opportunities to extend broadband to the underserved residents and businesses in our region."

The study estimates it will cost $743 million to install fiber to the home in the region with $558 million in grant funding needed. Tom Reid, president of Reid Consulting Group, said this is about what it would cost to build just 50 miles of highway.

"The state has built a lot more than 50 miles of highway," Reid said. "It's time to invest in digital highways."

Detailed county broadband profiles are available for public download at www.omegadistrict.org/regionalbroadband/ and at www.connectingappalachia.org/mapping.

On my way to decluttering, fridge love takes hold

I just love how easy it is to find new books on the library's website. About once or twice a year, I take a few hours to go through all the new book listings, put some books on hold and then wait for them to come in.

I have a few favorite fiction authors, but I'm usually looking for cookbooks and other books that can improve my life. I was clicking away a few weeks ago, putting a variety of books on hold including such topics as tiny space gardening, health-improvement books, a writing how-to book, zero-waste cooking and two air-fry cookbooks, among others.

So on my book list was "Keep the memories — lose the stuff: declutter, downsize and move forward" by Matt Paxton. Yes, the Matt Paxton of "Hoarders" television show fame, the expert who helps people sort through their stuff and make those tough decisions of what to keep and what to give up. I like to watch the show for inspiration, although I feel bad for the people on it. It's usually something very traumatic and painful that sets these poor people on the path of too much stuff.

That is a book I want to read because everyone like me who has lived in the same spot for quite a while can attest it's easy to get too much stuff. Despite the progress I've made, I'm still on my quest to clean out my clothes and get rid of extra stuff.

Teri Stein Better Days

How does it all get there? One minute you've got plenty of space, and then all of the sudden, your stuff secretly grows and threatens to overtake your existence like a bad 1950s sci-fi movie.

The lose-the-stuff book was what I really wanted to read first, but what book gets to the library first instead? An interesting book on organizing your refrigerator. I'd put this book on hold because I'd never seen a book on organizing your fridge before.

There had to be a lot more to organizing your fridge than I ever imagined, especially because this book is 334 pages long including the index and 100 recipes.

One look at the cover of the fridge-organization book, and I was feeling inadequate. The cover and inside photographs featured perfectly organized refrigerators filled with healthful foods in clear containers including many that were prepped and recipe ready and some ready to eat. Everything was carefully stacked in neat rows with some items organized in clear plastic boxes.

Yikes, in a million years, this is never going to be my refrigerator. As the week goes on, more forgotten food items in plastic storage containers or zippered baggies get shoved to the back only to resurface weeks later as a science experiment.

And with the fridge book, it was obvious that instead of getting rid of stuff, I was going to need way more clear containers and clear plastic bins. In fact, I don't have any of these very attractive containers. My life is incomplete.

But then I shifted away from the photos and started to read the book. There's a section on fridge goals. I didn't know I even needed fridge goals, but this was looking interesting. Then there was page 45, where the author suggested you just recycle some empty glass jars you already have around, like from salsa or spaghetti sauce. I could do this.

Then there's an alphabetized section on foods and the best way to prep and store them. I checked out the recipes in the back of the book. They are super healthy, and many are easy to prepare and store so you can just grab them out of the fridge and eat.

So now, just like the title of the book, I have "Fridge Love." It's written by Kristen Hong, who also has a blog at hellonutrition.com. I'm checking that out now.

In the meantime one of the books I'd like to read next is "365 Quick and Easy Tips for Home Organization," which has simple techniques to keep your home neat and tidy year round. It's got a corporate author name of Weldon Owen Inc. Probably not getting it soon, though, as 17 people are ahead of me for that one. Looks like I'm not alone in this quest.

Hmmm, maybe I should use the wait time to actually start organizing instead of just reading about it.

Oh look, it's an email from the library. I've got another book ready for pickup.

How to find educational trips for retirees who love to learn

Dear Savvy Senior,

My wife and I plan to travel much more frequently in retirement and are very interested in educational trips and adventures. Can you recommend any groups or firms that specialize in this type of travel geared toward retirees?

Love to Learn

Dear Love,

Educational travel, which combines travel with in-depth learning opportunities, has become a very popular way of travel among retirees. Here are a few good places to turn to find these types of trips in the U.S. and abroad.

Tour organizations

One of the best places to start is with Road Scholar at www.RoadScholar.org, which invented the idea of educational travel for older adults in the mid-1970s. The Boston-based organization offers 5,500 learning adventures in all 50 states and 150 countries.

You can search for learning adventures by location, interest, activity level and price. Road Scholar also offers Choose Your Pace senior travel tours that allow participants to adjust their level of challenge on a daily basis. And for skip-gen vacations, they offer tours designed specifically for grandparents traveling with their grandkids.

Jim Miller

Another excellent option is Smithsonian Journeys at www.SmithsonianJourneys.org, a nonprofit travel group affiliated with the Smithsonian Museum. They lead 350 educational trips a year on every continent that are led by experts from a variety of fields — academia, the diplomatic corps, scientists and curators, among others.

If you're seeking more adventure, you may want to consider ElderTreks at www.ElderTreks.com, which offers over 50 travelers small-group adventures by both land and sea in more than 100 countries. Their trips center on adventure, culture and nature, letting you get up close and personal with the locals.

Academic travel

Another good source for educational trips is colleges and universities. Some of my favorites include Cornell University's Adult University at SCE.Cornell.edu/travel, which offers a half-dozen educational trips and courses in the U.S. and abroad, each lasting a few days to a week or more. And Stanford Travel/Study at Alumni.Stanford.edu offers educational travel journeys to more than 80 countries each year.

Most college/university trips are led by faculty who share their expertise, along with regional experts and local guides, and you don't need to be an alumnus to participate.

Also check out the Traveling Professor at www.TravelingProfessor.com, a small-group touring company led by Steve Solosky, formerly a professor at the State University of New York. They offer a dozen or so tours abroad each year and take between eight and 16 people.

Cruising options

If you enjoy cruising, consider Grand Circle Travel at www.GCT.com, which offers educational travel aboard small ships, and Naturalist Journeys at www.NaturalistJourneys.com, which specializes in nature and birding tours.

American Cruise Lines at www.AmericanCruiseLines.com also offers more than 35 river and coastal itineraries in the Northeast, Southeast, Pacific Northwest and along the Mississippi River. And it has themed cruises — Lewis and Clark, Mark Twain, Civil War and more — for people with specific historical, literary or other interests.

And Viking River Cruises at www.VikingRiverCruises.com is geared to older travelers and focuses on European art, history and culture. Each cruise makes one to two port stops a day as the ship winds its way up or down Europe's most famous rivers like the Rhine, Seine, Danube and Douro. A free sight-seeing tour is included at all stops, and special-interest excursions are available for additional fees. Viking offers tours in the United States too.

Send your senior questions to Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit www.SavvySenior.org.
