Pair honored at Child Abuse Prevention event

By Dan Starcher

For the first time in two years, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Wayne County Children Services Board and Voices for Children Committee returned to Grace Church to hold their 28th annual Child Abuse Prevention Luncheon in person.

The event, held each April during Child Abuse Prevention Month, brings awareness of the need for families and the community to work cohesively to prevent child abuse.

"There are three things we know about child abuse," Wayne County Children Services Executive Director Deanna Nichols-Stika said in her opening remarks. "First, it is preventable. Second, we know that child abuse happens in Wayne County. Third, we know there continues to be much more we need to do to ensure children are growing up safe in our community."

Stika presented some statistics to nearly 400 people in attendance.

"In 2021, WCCS investigated 988 child abuse and neglect cases," she said. "These cases are more complex and denser with challenges than ever before. On March 31 of this year, there were 217 children receiving services from our agency including 28 children in our permanent custody awaiting their forever home."

Accepting awards for their work to prevent child abuse were detective Juan McCloud of the Wooster Police Department for the 2021 Law Enforcement Officer of the Year and Mental Health and Recovery Board Executive Director Judy Wortham Wood for the 2021 Child Advocate of the Year.

Charlie Hardman, retired sheriff department captain and Wooster Exchange Club member, introduced McCloud as an exceptional interviewer of adult suspects.

According to Hardman, he led an investigation involving a child with multiple broken bones. He also collected and combed through hundreds of pages of evidence, which ultimately led to charges being filed against the parents for the abuse.

Judy Wortham Wood, executive director of the Mental Health and Recovery Board, received the 2021 Child Advocate of the Year at the 28th annual Child Abuse Prevention Luncheon.

"The good news is that the infant has fully recovered from the injuries and is doing fine," McCloud said. "I do this for those children that are unable to protect themselves. This is a team effort, and without this team in Wayne County, we wouldn't be able to accomplish what we have."

McCloud previously earned the award in 2004.

Wood has experience in the public and private sectors, being the deputy director of the Ohio Department of Mental Health and the chief executive of a comprehensive behavioral system.

"I would like to thank you, but not just from me," Wood said. "I want to thank you on behalf of the people that work in the system of care across the multi-systems. I appreciate all of them. This is one of the greatest honors that I have ever received because it is about the children who really, really need help. This system does such a wonderful job of saving lives."

Valley College Grange an important local asset

Letter to the Editor,

The community is invited to a fundraising event at the Valley College Grange at 2411 Shreve Road on May 14, beginning at 2 p.m. Food and music will be provided by the church that meets at the hall.

The fundraiser is to finance the two new stair lifts recently installed. This will provide safety for those needing help up and down steps.

The Grange Hall is an important asset for the community. The original part of the building was moved to its present spot in the 1920s. Over the years additions and inside rest rooms have been added.

The Grange Hall has hosted various 4-H clubs over the years, plus rented at a reasonable rate for baby showers, bridal showers, family reunions, Christmas parties, graduations and more.

The hall also is host to 12 recycling bins.

Many of you have memories of the hall. I remember square dancing there as a teenager in the 1950s.

Please come out to support the Grange and our efforts to serve the community.

Thank you.

Cory Jewell Jensen was the keynote speaker. During her presentation, she outlined the behavior of adult sex offenders.

"Out of 100 kids that get sexually abused, 15 or 16 disclose," Jensen said. "Out of that, nationally, about one-third of those disclosures result in an arrest, and about one-third of those will result in a conviction."

According to Jensen, only between 1% and 3% of offenders are caught.

"We are not doing a very good job of catching people for this crime," she said, "in part because we don't have people really believing the kids who are reporting to the degree that we really need to."

COVER STORY

Bridging the community-wide gap

Early Head Start and Head Start are just the beginning of the programs and services available to the community at CAW/M. Economic assistance, housing assistance, home repairs and weatherization are all available for those who are eligible.

By Mary Malik

Since 1966 Community Action Wayne/Medina has been assisting community members with child and family development and support, mortgage, rental and utility assistance, transportation services and so much more. As a federally funded and supported program, CAW/M's goal is to provide these services and opportunities to thousands of low-income individuals and families to improve their lives and generate a positive impact in Wayne, Medina and surrounding communities.

"Community Action offers many programs designed to support children and their caregivers even before a child is born," CAW/M CEO James Fox said. "The Early Head Start program for children up to age 3 actually begins by working with mothers-to-be right in their homes, offering general parenting and nutritional guidance with a wrap-around focus of helping the entire family."

CAW/M staff members are able to work with parents and children and recognize and address any physical, social or emotional deficits before Head Start begins.

Head Start, the federally funded preschool program for children ages 3-5, ensures children have the skills they need to succeed before they transition to kindergarten.

"We get people the help they need because when our low-income neighbors flourish, the entire community benefits."

—James Fox, CEO

"These are services that families wouldn't find in a traditional preschool program," Fox said. "Programs run from August through May, a traditional school year, with year-round programs offered in some instances."

As CEO of CAW/M, extended childcare and flexible options for families is one of Fox's priority initiatives.

"We have five-star ratings at all of our eight Head Start locations," Fox said. "This is a difficult achievement and something we are very proud of. Over 750 children and families are supported by these programs every year, but we know that we can do more to help families in need of childcare."

Early Head Start and Head Start are just the beginning of the programs and services available to the community at CAW/M. Economic assistance, housing assistance, home repairs and weatherization are all available for those who are eligible.

"Programs like the Home Energy Assistance Program assists with energy bills, and the Percentage of Income Payment Plus Plan is an extended payment arrangement with regulated utilities based on income," Fox said. "Our goal is to first let people know these programs exist and to then assist them in getting the specific help they need."

Another area of need that CAW/M addresses is transportation.

"Whether it's your job, seeking healthcare or getting groceries, if you can't get there, you can't get the help you need," Fox said. "We have mechanics who work with us and help with car repairs so people can work and get where they need to go. Transportation is essential."

Fox would like to develop a transportation program that would get people anywhere around the greater area they need to be.

"People often don't seek help outside their immediate circle due to lack of transportation," Fox said. "Things like job interviews and more advanced medical care are simply not an option. It's another one of our goals to provide people the transportation they need to expand their world and their opportunities." For all of the current services and future goals of the CAW/M, volunteers and donations are always needed. CAW/M has many volunteer opportunities available to community members who want to help support their programs today and goals for the future. CAW/M has always been dedicated to educating families and supporting self-sufficiency through education, health and household stability.

"We're here to bridge the gap impacted by poverty in these communities," Fox said. "Together we can provide people in need with the resources to empower them to meet any challenges they might face, either long term or a one-time crisis. We get people the help they need because when our low-income neighbors flourish, the entire community benefits."

Community Action Wayne/Medina is located at 799 N. Court St. in Medina. The Wayne County office is located at 905 Pittsburgh Ave. in Wooster. For more information on both locations and all services offered, call 330-723-2229.

Community Action Wayne/Medina supports people of all ages and helps connect them to the services they need to flourish.

WEDC chief: County economic outlook promising

By Elizabeth Schuster

The news is filled with information on rising prices, supply-chain disruptions and the labor shortage. However, the outlook for economic development in Wayne County is promising, according to Wayne Economic Development Council's new president, Maribeth Burns.

Wayne County's diversified economy has long been a factor in the county's economic resilience. But successful economic development does not usually happen without planning and strategic investment. WEDC has a history of success in incentivizing private investment in the county and encouraging public-private partnerships.

In June 2022 the WEDC board hired Burns, who previously was at the J.M. Smucker Company, where she rose to the level of vice president of public, state and local affairs.

"I was at Smuckers for over 30 years in various roles, starting with HR, corporate communications and most recently with government relations, and I focused on both state and local affairs," Burns said. "I served on the WEDC board many years ago and came back on four years ago and was part of the executive committee. I always was involved in WEDC and had a fondness for the organization."

One of Burns' first priorities was building her team. First, Burns hired Cassie Slansky as director of economic development. Slansky most recently came from City of Cleveland in its department of economic development, and before that she focused on community development in Barberton.

Then Traci Carmony joined the team as the marketing expert. Carmony was manager of community relations for nearly 17 years at University of Akron Wayne College and then spent one year at OSU Mansfield before joining WEDC.

"I think that 2022 has really started off with a bang for Wayne County. We're going strong with the business community, and we have several expansion projects that are already on the way and have several others in the pipeline that will be announced soon," Burns said. "We have had a lot of recent interest in the Rit-tman Industrial Park and the Wooster Innovation Park. And there are some new housing initiatives under way to address the issue of lack of housing supply in Wayne County."

Another story that has garnered media attention across Ohio is the Intel announcement about its upcoming $20 billion investment for the semiconductor plant in Licking County. Many have reached out to WEDC to see if the Intel investment could be potential competition for Wayne County.

"Many see Intel as a potential competition with Wayne County, but we see it as an opportunity," Burns said. "We've had some inquiries about the Wayne County mega site, which is over 1,000 acres on Route 71 in West Salem, and we have been contacted by Intel suppliers about potential use of that site. Plus, we may have businesses that could be a supplier to Intel or a supplier to a supplier."

Burns said filling open job vacancies does continue to be a challenge for businesses in Wayne County, and WEDC is developing multiple strategies to support businesses with workforce retention and attraction.

"We do want to keep the workforce that we can in Wayne County," she said. "That's the number-one thing that has been an issue with our business community — that there are so many positions open that employers can't fill."

The first step toward addressing that need is to revamp the Work in Wayne website, which is an online resource for employees considering moving to Wayne County. Burns' goal is to have a complete database on the Work in Wayne website that links to Wayne County jobs on the OhioMeansJobs website. The website also will provide information on business sectors and quality of life in the county.

Burns also has worked with her team to implement tools in the economic development tool kit that have been previously underutilized, a key example being the Community Reinvestment Area.

Mayor Dennis Finley of Dalton said the village received significant help from WEDC and the county on getting the CRA established for Dalton earlier this year.

"I believe we are the first CRA in any Wayne County village. We already have an auto parts store, bank, newspaper, and we have some decent businesses that are already here. We were looking for a way to incentivize new businesses to come in and complement our existing businesses," Finley said.

Finley said with a CRA, if a new or existing business in the region designated as the CRA were to make improvements to the building that increase the property value, that business gets a 50% tax abatement for 10 years on the net increase. The boundaries on Dalton's CRA are along the village main street and then along Mill Street.

"And we've had some interest from individuals who have been considering some projects but are still early in the process," he said.

Keeping car clean not just cosmetic

The first things to come to mind when many people ponder vehicle maintenance are oil changes and routine tune-ups. Though each of those things are vital components of automotive maintenance, it’s important that drivers recognize the value of a thorough car wash as well.

Drivers may see a car wash as a way to make their car look good, and that’s not untrue. An effective car wash can give a car a look that mirrors how the vehicle appeared the moment it was driven off the lot. But an effective wash is more than just cosmetic. A thorough car wash removes grit and residue, thus protecting the car’s paint job and reducing the likelihood of corrosion. Though late model vehicles aren’t as susceptible to rust, fading and peeling as cars made decades ago, they still need a thorough and routine wash to remove dirt, grime and bird droppings that, over time, can adversely affect the paint job and, if left unchecked, eat away at the metal.

Another benefit to

File

Car washes may be seen as a purely cosmetic form of vehicle maintenance. But the benefits of routine and thorough car washes extend far beyond aesthetic appeal.

CAR

routine car washes is they can prevent damage related to seasonal issues. For example, individuals who live in regions where winter snowfall is common may routinely drive on roads that have been salted. Deicing the roads makes driving safer, but salt can accumulate on the undercarriage of the vehicle and contribute to corrosion. Winter may not be a time many drivers visit the car wash, but it's important to do so after snow has melted and salt on the roadways has been washed away by rain. Most car washes now offer high-pressure undercarriage treatments that can wash off salt and prevent corrosion and the formation of rust.

But it's not just the exterior of the car that can benefit from routine washing. When taking their cars to get washed, many motorists pay a little extra to have their vehicle interiors cleaned. Sometimes referred to as "interior detailing," cleaning the cabin of the car helps to maintain the interior so it looks new longer. Routine interior cleaning also can remove dust and other particles that can serve as irritants if allowed to build up over time.

Resale and trade-in value is another factor to consider. The average transaction price for a used vehicle in the second quarter of 2021 was $25,410, which marks a 21 percent increase over the year prior. Much has been made of the microchip issues that have compromised auto manufacturers' ability to produce new automobiles, and that led many motorists to the preowned vehicle market. Dealerships also offered incentives to drivers willing to trade in their late model cars. By taking care of a vehicle's interior, drivers are putting themselves in position to capitalize on the increased reliance on the preowned market. Prospective buyers, whether they're private citizens or dealerships, will see more value in a vehicle with a well-maintained interior than one with a cabin that's seen much better days.

Downtown Wooster Farmers' Market opens May 14

By Ellen Pill

Community. "That's a word I really associate with Main Street Wooster and our beautiful downtown," Main Street Wooster program manager Guinevere Steensen said.

Along with managing the Main Street Music series and Second Saturday, Steensen is the new manager of the Downtown Wooster Farmers' Market.

A Wooster tradition for 20 years, the farmers market will open for the season on Saturday, May 14. The downtown Saturday gathering is all about community — an opportunity for residents to meet, greet and socialize. It also provides a regular marketplace for local farmers and food producers to showcase and sell their wares.

"Eating locally and supporting local farmers supports our local economy and strengthens the community," Steensen said.

This year the market roster thus far boasts 24 vendors. The market will include naturally grown and certified organic vegetables, flowers that are both edible and decorative, herbs, goat milk, skin care, teas, breads, bagels, keto-friendly and regular baked goods, berries, lavender products, honey, hot sauce, mushrooms, dog treats, meats, and poultry and eggs. There also will be live music weekly at the markets, provided by an array of local musicians.

Second Saturdays will occur on the second Saturday of the month, beginning in June. On these dates market hours will be extended to include local artisan vendors and wine tastings with local wineries.

Steensen said there are numerous downtown coffee shops within a few blocks of the market. "We want people coming down to support these businesses," she said. "It's the same reasoning with food trucks. We have so many great restaurants."

Steensen said the summer also will bring the Main Street Music series to downtown Wooster. According to Steensen, on most Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, there will be free music underneath the pavilion on the square beginning at 6 p.m.

"I'm booking a variety of musicians so everyone will be able to find something they like," she said. "I love giving local talent a stage to share their music. Get some takeout from one of our downtown restaurants, a DORA beverage, and grab a seat for some good tunes."

The Downtown Wooster Farmers' Market runs weekly, rain or shine, on the northeast corner of the square in downtown Wooster on Saturdays through Oct. 8. Hours on the second Saturday of the month are 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. All other Saturdays are 8 a.m. to noon. On May 21 and Oct. 1, the market moves to South Walnut Street between Liberty and West South Street due to other downtown events.

The Downtown Wooster Farmers' Market is presented by Main Street Wooster with the support of primary sponsor E&H Ace Hardware, along with Smile Doctors and Briggs Financial Group.

All music presented downtown is provided in partnership with the City of Wooster.

"To me downtown Wooster really is the heart of this beautiful place we call home," Steensen said.

"It's a place for us to gather and celebrate. Main Street Wooster is here to support our partners and bring fun and vibrancy to our downtown."

Some spots remain for musicians, and those interested are invited to apply online at www.mainstreet-wooster.org/main-street-music. Steensen said she is particularly looking for more female performers and someone to play steel drums.

For anyone interested in participating as a regular vendor at the market, there may still be availability. It also is possible to attend just once. Apply online at www.mainstreet-wooster.org/farmers-market.

The artisan market is a separate application process. Local makers may email Steensen at Guinevere@mainstreet-wooster.org to request an application.

Northwestern Ruritans honor Wigal at April meeting

The Northwestern Ruritan Club recently met for the monthly dinner/meeting at Northwestern High School.

President Kim Wellert welcomed members, and prayers were extended to the family of Town and Country firefighter Philip Wigal, who was killed in an accident. He graduated from NWHS in 2006. The club gave the family special wind chimes as a memorial to Wigal.

The group joined in singing "America." The invocation was given by Jim Johnson, and the dinner was prepared by school cooks.

A program on buying and selling real estate was given by club members Michelle and Jamie Bowman, the Bowman Team with Cutler Real Estate. They both were raised in the area, graduated from NWHS, their children go to Northwestern schools and they reside in Chester Township. They are involved in the community with the Ruritans, their church and the school's athletic programs.

The Bowmans were licensed in 2015 and are licensed to sell real estate in the entire state of Ohio, their focus being Wayne, Ashland, Medina and Holmes counties with a hyperfocus in the Northwestern School District. They specialize in residential, commercial, farms and auction properties, utilizing a partnership with Kaufman Realty & Auctions.

Michelle Bowman's treasurer's report was approved subject to audit. Randy Tegtmeier reported the Pancake/Sausage Day held March 12 went well. Next year he suggested adding another grill to better keep up during the busy time. He also suggested that next year the hours of 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. be the same as this year.

The following have signed up to man the recycling bins at the Congress Township House from 9 a.m. to noon: Phil Keener on Saturday, May 7 and Chuck Beck on Saturday, May 21.

A motion was passed that the club give each of the 12 Northwestern High seniors selected by the committee a $550 scholarship. The students will be recognized at the May 9 meeting.

Outstanding businesses in the community to be recognized at the May 9 meeting are the American Legion Ladies Auxiliary Post 523 Lodi/West Salem and Frito-Lay of Wooster Manufacturing Facility.

Beck reported the Husky Brigade will send packages to five overseas service people. They will pack the boxes after the next meeting, and club members are making cookies to send.

Dave Howman reported the JD Two Cylinder Show will be June 16-18 at the Wayne County Fairgrounds. There will be a sign-up sheet to work at the gate those days.

The next meeting will be May 9 with the dinner/meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the NWHS cafeteria with scholarship winners and outstanding businesses to be recognized. Directors will meet at 6 p.m. in the school library. With no more business, the meeting was adjourned with the recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance.

State Route 83, from just south of U.S. 30 to Wooster's Milltown Road, will have daily lane closures for the removal and replacement of all existing full-depth pavement, shoulder widening, and ramp improvements, and the roadway curvature on state Route 83 northbound, south of state Route 3 interchange, will be modified to improve sight distance.

The state Route 3/83 northbound exit ramp to state Route 3 (Cleveland Road) will be closed for 45 days, starting May 2, to rebuild the ramp with full-depth concrete pavement removal and replacement. The detour route for northbound motorists will be to continue north on state Route 3/83 to state Route 604, east on state Route 604 to state Route 3, and south on state Route 3. The estimated completion date is June 16.

Traffic will be maintained in one lane in each direction at all times. The state Route 3 southbound ramp to state Route 83 south is closed, but traffic will still be able to turn right at the stop sign located at the end of the straight-legged portion of the ramp and will be able to continue southbound on state Route 83. Motorists are still able to go northbound or southbound onto state Route 83 from the state Route 3 entrance ramp.

How to prepare your landscapes

New plants can add much to a landscape. Whether they're replacing plants that are no longer thriving or being added to supplement an existing landscape, new plants are an affordable way to give a home's exterior a whole new look.

Much consideration is given to which plants to add to a landscape. That's understandable, as homeowners want to choose plants that will thrive and won't compromise the health of surrounding plants and trees. Before planting or even choosing plants, it's important to plan for new additions to a landscape. Preparing the landscape can inform homeowners about which plants to purchase and can ensure they thrive after planting.

Document sunlight exposure

Plants have different needs, and one of the biggest differences between species is the amount of sunlight they need to thrive. Plants characterized as "full sun" require six or more hours of sunlight per day while those considered "partial sun" need between four and six hours of sunlight per day. Plants designated as "partial shade" need two to four hours of sun per day while "shade" plants need less than two hours of sunlight a day.

Documenting sunlight exposure in advance gives homeowners an idea of which plants should be planted and where they should be planted. Jot down these observations in a journal over several weeks and then choose plants that will thrive in each area.

Test the soil

A soil pH test is a simple and quick way to determine the acidity of soil. Soil pH levels will indicate how likely a plant is to thrive in a given spot. High levels won't necessarily mean an area should be avoided, as some plants thrive in acidic soils. Additional soil tests can determine other characteristics such as the nutrient levels of soil and the amount of organic matter it contains. Each of these variables can help homeowners make the right choices as they introduce new plants to their properties.

Consider local wildlife

If local wildlife makes its presence known on a property, homeowners may want to take proactive steps prior to planting anything new. A new fence might prevent animals like deer from getting in, but that likely won't do much to repel smaller animals like squirrels, rabbits or foxes. If wildlife is a concern, homeowners can seek advice at their local garden center about which plants certain animals are likely to ignore. Homeowners who want to attract wildlife can do the same in reverse, choosing plants wildlife will be drawn to. Homeowners who want to deter wildlife should erect fencing or other barriers prior to planting.

Preparing the landscape can inform homeowners about which plants to purchase and can ensure they thrive after planting.

Clear space if necessary

Plants grow up and out, and cramped quarters can make it hard for new plants to thrive. Some may thrive but only at the expense of other plants. If necessary, clear space prior to planting to ensure plants have ample space to grow.

Some preplanting landscape preparation can ensure new plants thrive.

The annual Stamp Out Hunger National Association of Letter Carriers Food Drive will take place Saturday, May 14.

Fill a bag and help post office stamp out hunger May 14

By Dave Mast
Helping others May 14 is a walk to your mailbox away.

Thanks to area letter carriers, people throughout Wayne and Holmes counties will have a chance to help needy families while mailing their letters.

The annual Stamp Out Hunger National Association of Letter Carriers Food Drive will take place Saturday, May 14, allowing anyone with a mailbox the opportunity to help fight hunger in their local communities of Orrville, Wooster and Millersburg.

The collection day is the largest one-day food drive in the country, and whether someone donates one or two cans or an entire grocery bag full of nonperishable items like pasta, canned fruits and vegetables, oatmeal, peanut butter, soup, sauces or countless other items, it will all be put to good use in feeding the hungry.

All families must do to help those facing hunger is fill a bag with food and drop it off next to their mailbox on May 14 before their mail carrier arrives. Area carriers will not only be picking up their mail on Saturday, May 14, but also they will collect any donated nonperishable food items customers leave at their mailboxes.

All the collected food will be delivered to local food banks in the three cities.

Over more than two decades of collecting food during the drive, mail carriers have collected hundreds of thousands of pounds of food for those in need.

Help stamp out hunger by joining your local mail carriers and the U.S. Post Office on May 14.

3-D printer lending library a hands-on opportunity

By Ellen Pill

Under the auspices of The Romich Foundation, a new lending library has been formed to loan 3-D printers to Wayne County residents of all ages who are interested in a hands-on opportunity to learn more about the printers and how they work.

Izabel Meshew, a sophomore at Norwayne High School, is managing the new program. After becoming more and more involved in the STEAM program at her school, Meshew met Barry Romich on a school trip late in 2021 to look at a laser engraver in use at Smithville High School.

"We got to chatting, and he gave me his business card," Meshew said.

In January she reached out to Romich to discuss the work he does with 3-D printing and laser engraving. "We chatted about my future," Meshew said, "and on the way home, I realized that I had just gotten a job."

Romich knew of 80 laptop computers that were about to be recycled at the PRC-Salttillo Company in Wooster and decided he and Meshew could repurpose the outdated gear for use with 3-D printers — and the new lending library was born.

"The idea of the library,"

Meshew said, "is for adults as well as kids to be able to explore the world of 3-D printing. Anyone can get a chance to use the software and materials at no cost."

She said the library provides a beginning experience — one that can potentially lead an individual on a path toward a new hobby or career.

Romich created the first prototype of the 3-D printer kits the library now lends and gave it to Meshew to try. "I was the guinea pig," she said. "From there we created a user manual that's now included in every kit."

The manual takes users through the entire process of using the printer.

Each kit contains everything needed to set up and create 3-D printed items — either original creations or using templates that can be found online. Included among the items in the complete kit are two stands, one for the computer and one for filament. These were designed by Romich using PVC pipe. Students in the multi-handicapped classroom at Norwayne High School then helped by assembling all the stands.

"We heard they had a blast," Meshew said.

Right now the library is looking for hosts — places

Mason Rupp, 10, made earrings that he is selling on a 3-D printer. Under the auspices of The Romich Foundation, a new lending library has been formed to loan 3-D printers to Wayne County residents of all ages who are interested in a hands-on opportunity to learn more about the printers and how they work.

that will be clearing houses for connecting interested community members with a kit to borrow. A host site may be anywhere, from a school, to a library, to a historical society or makerspace. The options are open. Currently, Meshew is reaching out to all the middle schools in Wayne County to determine their interest in hosting.

Host sites will be tasked with locating individuals interested in borrowing a kit, checking out the materials, and then cleaning and prepping returned kits to be loaned out again. Each kit is valued at $370, and those checking one out are required to sign als for 3-D printing. Mason Rupp, 10, is a fourth-grader at Norwayne Elementary.

"Mason is a great example of what can happen when kids get to try out a printer," Romich said.

"Mason came to his dad and me and asked for some trains, and we told him he would have to earn some of the money," said Mason's mom, Melissa Rupp.

"I needed a job," Mason Rupp said. "But who was going to hire a fourth-grader?"

So Rupp came up with the idea of making earrings on a 3-D printer. He found a paw print pattern online that fit with the Norwayne mascot and made a few pairs. With the help of social media, the earrings have been selling, and Rupp has become a 3-D printer entrepreneur.

"Ultimately, it started with Barry," Melissa Rupp said, "with Mason being exposed to learning how to use the printer."

In addition to the lending library, Romich hosts a makerspace that is open to the public by appointment. The space includes 3-D printers, laser engravers, CNC routers, and welding and woodworking equipment.

Anyone interested in using the makerspace or in borrowing a 3-D printer while the program is still seeking host sites is invited to email Romich at bromich@aol.com or call 330-464-7877.

Potential lending sites are invited to contact Romich or email Meshew at izey.meshew@gmail.com. Both Romich and Meshew will be at the Wayne County Maker Faire to discuss the lending library and demonstrate a test kit. The faire will be Saturday, May 21 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the University of Akron Wayne College, 1901 Smucker Road, Orrville.

Find the lending library online at www.romichfoundation.org/3DPLL/.

"As far as we know," Romich said, "there's no one else in the world doing what we're doing with this project."

Rocko is a very sweet boy. He came in very timid and scared. He is still on the shy side but loves to be petted and talked to. Rocko still prefers his feet to be on the ground though. # Meech leaving Smithville with his character intact

A few thoughts from the week in sports ...

Senior Luke Meech was on pace to become one of the best two-sport athletes in recent memory at Smithville.

The 6-foot-3 Meech scored seven touchdowns in football as a sophomore and then averaged 15 points a game in basketball.

Meech had it all — size, speed, athleticism, smarts and good genetics. His dad Scott and mom Lorah (Way) were both basketball players at The College of Wooster.

No one could have known 10th grade would be the athletic high point for Meech, who would go on to tear the ACL in his knees three times.

Counting a torn ACL suffered playing AAU basketball in eighth grade and a torn meniscus as a freshman, Meech had five knee surgeries. Those are statistics I hope no one would wish for their worst enemy.

Meech's final ACL tear came this past July while working out with a trainer. It cost him his entire senior year of athletics.

However, the character that was revealed in how Meech responded left many in the Smithville community in awe.

"Luke tore his ACL four different times (three times on left knee) during his high school career," said Corey Kauffman, who coached the Smithies basketball team this past winter. "Luke never complained in practice or made the situation about himself.

"During each period of rehab, his medical team always remarked about his toughness and drive. His persistence, selflessness and maturity have been a model for each of our players."

Kauffman said, "Luke made the Smithies a better

Aaron Dorksen
Columnist

team and strengthened our culture even without him on the floor."

Despite not playing a single play in football or a minute in basketball, Meech was selected to earn one of the Roy Bates Foundation's eight prestigious $2,500 scholarships.

The award is based on character, academics and athletics and was founded by legendary coach and broadcaster Roy Bates, who died at age 88 in 2004. The scholarship fund he set up has doled out approximately $430,000 in its 29 years.

I'm proud to be a long-time member of the Bates Scholarship committee. Meech may be the first of the 200-plus scholarship winners who didn't play a sport as a senior, but in learning his story, the committee felt he was a deserving award winner.

Meech excelled in the classroom with a 3.8 GPA, which ranked 12th in a class of 84. He's been accepted into the University of Cincinnati's prestigious mechanical engineering program.

The manner in which Meech bounced back after each surgery, both physically and mentally, was arguably more impressive than anything he could have done on the field or court.

Meech helped in any way he could during basketball practices and sat on the bench during games.

During the football season, he made regular appearances at practices and during games helped lead the student section cheering from the stands.

"Luke had great physical attributes, but his smarts really set him apart as a football player," Smithies head football coach Phil Olsen said. "A lot of guys might have become bitter after all he went through and maybe not come around the team much, but Luke still really supported us.

"I know it must have been humbling for him to sit in the stands, but that really meant a lot to the team and me to have him as a mainstay leading the cheers."

There will always be some sadness thinking about missed opportunities, but Meech is long past wondering "why me?"

"The last injury hurt the most because I realized I'd miss my senior year, but the best way to deal with it was staying around my teammates," Meech said. "One of my physical therapists said he'd been through a similar injury. He told me, 'If you isolate yourself, that's how you become really down.' I've actually come to realize some blessings from it."

Five knee surgeries and Meech sees blessings?

"During my junior year when I tore my ACL, my younger brother, Aaron, actually tore his in the exact same week," Meech said. "We went through that together, and I was able to help him through the rehab.

"When it came to academics, I really made it a priority to get into an elite college program. I'm excited to be going into chemical engineering at Cincinnati. I don't think I'd have been able to do that if I'd been playing two sports all along."

Meech had all of his surgeries at the Crystal Clinic in Akron and rehabbed each time at Wooster's HealthPoint.

Aaron Dorksen

Smithville's Luke Meech, right, stands with his dad Scott in front of the Roy Bates Scholarship plaque after receiving the award. Despite having five knee surgeries in four years, Meech remained a positive role model for the Smithies.

"My family and I discussed switching doctors or physical therapists, but even though I kept having recurring injuries, we didn't think it was anything they were doing wrong," Meech said.

Meech thanks everyone who's supported him, especially his parents.

"My mom and dad were always there for me and never pushed me to try to come back," Meech said. "They always said it was my decision."

Meech hopes to recover his knees to the point where he can shoot hoops and play in some intramural games in college.

Here's hoping Meech's knees will hold up so he can have some fun again on the court. No one's worried about his character; it's as strong as they come.

Bates winners

Congrats to the 2022 Roy Bates Scholarship winners: Northwestern's Shayna Allshouse, Dalton's Kole Miller, Orrville's Amari Slaughter, Triway's Hailey Massaro, Norwayne's Isaiah Portis, Smithville's Luke Meech, Wooster's Jack Williams and Wayne-dale's Josiah Raber.

Everyone seems to agree with my basic point: Let's go easy on referees and umpires. There are fewer and fewer of them, and it's the right thing to do.

A reader from Apple Creek said her son was really enthusiastic about becoming an umpire several years ago, took the required classes and bought the gear. However, a fight broke out between parents, and the police were called during a game he umpired.

"Even though he was not threatened directly, that ended his brief time as an umpire, and I didn't blame him," the reader wrote.

—Postseason tournament time is almost upon us, and I wish local high school teams and The College of Wooster lots of success. I plan to write a feature story on the Fighting Scots baseball team.

He is one of a kind, and now the last of his line

He's a veritable poster child for the merits of mutt-dom with his friendly, lovable disposition, bright eyes and shiny all-weather coat, but when it comes down to it, our boy Frankie is a simple product of overabundance. And while this goofy mélange of hound dog and heeler has made us the happiest pup parents on the planet since his rescue from the run, far too many mutts never make it to a happy home. Another generation of "Frankies" might not be as lucky. It was inevitable he would eventually come under the knife.

It's tough to explain such things to a dog, but I did my best.

"Listen, Frankie," I said holding his pouty jowls

John & Kristin Lorson
Drawing
Laughter

between my palms. "We're going to take you to that place where they talk really nice to you just before they stick you with needles. There you will become very sleepy, and when you wake up, you'll be about two kiwi fruit lighter in your step. You might feel a slight discomfort in your nether regions, but you won't be able to see, smell or lick that spot for about 10 days because you'll be wearing a giant cone around your head. By the time the cone comes off, you will have completely forgotten about the excruciating, life-altering trauma your mother has chosen to put you through."

He seemed to understand. I made sure I had to work the morning Kristin took him in to the vet's office. (There's a code among dudes, you know.)

I was told Frankie's little procedure went as smoothly as a shave and a haircut, although I'm fairly certain the "haircut" didn't end with a dramatic spin of the barber's chair and a cheerful "voilà!" as the cape was pulled away. He arrived home from his operation to little more fanfare than a cautious, full-body sniff-over by the cats. Moses, a fellow "broken bro," dropped his ears and tail in sad recognition of the unde-niable truth.

A small upside to Frankie's recovery period is there has been a substantial upgrade in the technology that keeps a dog from messing with his own medicine — the "cone of shame" that prevents those patients capable of sniffing their own butts from plucking out sutures with their teeth is now of a kinder, gentler design. Rather than a stiff, plastic, entirely opaque neck shackle, the cone is now a softer cloth-like affair with windows on the sides to afford a pup a bit of peripheral vision as he stumbles about the house.

That vision may be a plus in terms of making a dog feel a bit more "normal" early in his convalescence, but it also can encourage a bit of zealous overconfidence as recovery progresses. Hijinks were certain to ensue. (More on the "Call of the Cone" next week.)

Kristin and John Lorson would love to hear from you. Write Drawing Laughter, P.O. Box 170, Fredericksburg, OH 44627, or email John at jlordon@alonovus.com.

Building family relationships more important than ever

I hope many of you are planning to spend family time to celebrate Mother's

Day. Whether you are close enough to visit in person or utilize technology to visit, building and maintaining strong family relationships are more important than ever.

Family relationships have changed through the years. Distance separates many of us from our parents, aunts, uncles, cousins and other extended family. Sometimes when we do make time to talk, it's about the current schedules, what's going on this week or what the needs are for the week.

One of the assets the Search Institute talks about is being connected with our family members. It helps our children feel grounded, and it helps us all feel like we are a part of a lineage in history. Families mold our values and traditions. We may laugh like our aunt or have the story-telling ability of our grandfather. Or we may be ornery like our uncle and have talents like our grandmother. Some of those things we won't know if we don't take time to ask the right questions and listen for the answers.

Melinda Hill
OSU Extension
Wayne Co.

In this hurry-up world, time is a precious commodity, and unless we are intentional with our choices, it slips by. Following are a few questions I found to increase the depth of conversation either around the dinner table or on the phone the next time. See if you can answer them or ask your parents and record the answers for your children:

What happy memory will you cherish forever?

Growing up, who inspired you the most?

If you had it to do all over again, would you pursue the same career path?

Sometimes being the life of the party is stupid

"I like large parties. They're so intimate."

From "The Great Gatsby,"

By F. Scott Fitzgerald (1925)

On its surface, Jordan Baker's analysis, taken from the third chapter of what many believe remains the Great American Novel, rings a little false or, at least, runs contrary to common sense.

But I think I understand her logic.

Big gatherings — wedding receptions and class reunions, for example — carry with them the promise of secluded corners where, far from prying eyes and busy ears, there exists something akin to the "Cone of Silence," a device made famous in TV's "Get Smart."

Designed to guarantee absolute privacy, the see-through plastic invention usually malfunctions, often with hilarious results, my favorite of which has Agent 86 and Chief unable to hear

Mike Dewey

each other while their conversation is quite audible to those outside the bubble.

There is a tenuous connection to be drawn between that and Hamlet's soliloquies, but I'm not up for any more heavy lifting.

I just want to get back to the party.

Over the years, in another lifetime it seems, I used to go to parties every now and then.

In high school they were usually clandestine affairs, news of which was transmitted via sotto voce communications, a clique-driven and word-of-mouth jungle-drum grapevine aimed at excluding those deemed unworthy of inclusion, a privilege reserved for the popular, with the hoi polloi kept in ignorance.

That, most of the time, included me.

In college, though, owing to a combination of Notre Dame's time-honored rejection of a fraternity/sorority system and its daunting 7-to-1 men-to-women enrollment ratio, the rules changed.

Suddenly, any excuse for a party was a good one.

Some, like the day we beat Southern Cal to become the top-ranked football team in America, were self-explanatory. Others, including the release of the new Patti Smith album, were less obvious.

At their pulsing heart, however, was the possibility of meeting someone special, someone who might change your life. When you're hundreds of miles from home, certain alliances grew less reliable and, given the circumstances, anyone might be tempted.

That, most of the time, included me.

I remember a dorm party — well, to be accurate, a Saturday night second-floor section party — at which I removed my girlfriend's class ring from my little finger and tucked it into the pocket of my jeans because there was something in the air and not just weed.

Not to put too fine a point on it, but I was not the best boyfriend.

But that's what can happen at parties, especially big ones. Intimacy, even shared over the sprawling brawl of Blue Oyster Cult's sonic assault, can provide a lingering, invisible curtain behind which are shared secrets large and small, connections so electric as to be vital.

When this happens — and trust me, it isn't often — the obvious move is to escape the throng in favor of something more private, less observable, a place that offers another, better, soundtrack.

Bruce Springsteen, say, or Neil Young, even Jackson Browne.

But what about the vast majority of parties that don't result in seismic interpersonal shifts, the ones that you go to because you're in the mood to get out and about, the ones that celebrate a lunar eclipse or invite you to "Come as Your Favorite Dead Celebrity?"

What happens then?

Well, I'll tell you. If you're like me — and Lord knows I wouldn't wish that fate on anyone — you'll find yourself staying well past the expiration hour, hanging around until you're the last one standing, someone whose capacity for small talk and large libation intake makes him the one willing to help clean up after the rest have left.

This altruistic tendency carries with it a heavy price tag, especially if the person with whom you arrived was ready — even eager — to bolt before most of the guests had arrived. I wish I could tell you this only occurred a handful of times and that I learned early on that when you're with the woman you love, you listen to her.

That, most of the time, included me.

My wife — once my date, then my girlfriend, then my fiancée — has had to put up with my last-guy-to-leave proclivity for more than 30 years now, and it's a tribute to her that we're still happy together.

Well, that and the fact that I'm quite irresistible when I want to be.

I remember one summer night when a state highway patrolman picked me up on a dark country road because I was walking home after she and a friend had driven back, leaving me without a ride.

"Where you headed?" the officer asked me, obviously concerned.

"Back to where I belong," I said. "Parties can be so overrated."

HILL

What were you like in high school?

What do you wish you had made more time for in life?

Is there a family tradition you value most?

Do you have a favorite place you've lived or visited?

Who in our family do I remind you of?

What values are most important to you to pass on?

Whether we are beginning a conversation or strengthening the relationships we have, remember making time to talk is valuable. If you are a grandparent reading this, tell your grandchildren the stories of your life and help them think about their own goals and dreams. Model the values and tell them why they are important to you and how they influence your life.

It's reflective to have conversations about raising families too, points like child development or how they coped with certain behaviors. Remember experience may count for more than what Google can provide and often has more positive outcomes. What do you expect from a toddler or a teenager? Those questions can open the doors for many rich conversations to build upon for the future.

Ultimately, they know there is no such thing as a perfect parent. We all try, and we all have successes and challenges. Many times older family members have time and patience to give to children that offer self-confidence, time to explore interests and hobbies, and most importantly their unconditional love.

Strong families don't just happen — the more time you spend together, the more opportunities you will have for sharing quality experiences. Starting conversations when the children are young builds a foundation for the challenging times ahead. Nurturing those relationships through life allows a rich relationship with aging parents.
