Students recognized for their pursuit of the arts

Tuscarawas Arts Partnership congratulated Tuscarawas County's high school seniors during the sixth annual Arts Signing Day on Tuesday, April 25 at the Performing Arts Center at Kent State Tuscarawas.

The Arts Signing Day recognizes Tuscarawas County high school seniors who are pursuing their education and careers in the arts, culture and creative-based fields.

For the past five years, TAP has recognized a total of 57 students through the Arts Signing Day with students ranging in their educational and creative pursuits from studio art to theater technology and arts education.

For the sixth annual Arts Signing Day, 22 students across Tuscarawas County were recognized at the event, which was the largest class of seniors in Arts Signing Day history.

Before recognizing each senior for their creative pursuits, an award was presented to an arts educator in Tuscarawas County for the Arts Educator of the Year. Twelve arts educators from across Tuscarawas County were nominated and recognized at the annual Arts Signing Day.

The nominated teachers included Aubrey Gealsha from Buckeye Career Center;

Carrie Kunkle, April Linard and Nicole Miles from Claymont School District; James Graves and Chris Redd from Dover School District; Melanie Glazer from Indian Valley School District; Heather Agar, Krista Prucha and Christa Roberts from New Philadelphia School District; Hope Haney from Strasburg School District; and Diane Richardson from Tuscarawas Valley School District.

The winning nominee was Glazer from Indian Valley High School, who is the drama teacher and directs the concert choir and color guard.

The students recognized include the following:

Buckeye Career Center

—Dominic Colantonio, graphic design at Muskingum University.

—Jordan Eick, animation game design at Kent State Tuscarawas.

Claymont High School

—Naomi Hallman, resort and attraction management at Bowling Green State University.

Dover High School

—Damaris Avery, psychology with minor in film and media studies at University of Cincinnati.

Claymont FFA takes on bee project

The agriculture education department at Claymont High School received some new residents as part of a learning opportunity for students. Over the past several weeks, FFA members prepared for the arrival of nearly 20,000 honey bees by building the hives and frames.

After spring break the bees arrived, and students were able to identify the drones, workers and evidence of the queen. FFA members will continue caring for the bees throughout the year as a part of their Supervised Agricultural Experience project and learning the importance of honey bees in the agriculture industry.

Bosler's Bee Stuff and Travis Poland have helped in this educational opportunity for the Claymont FFA members. They plan to eventually produce their own honey and sell it to the community in the coming years.

The Claymont High School agriculture program currently has 60 students. The program offers a variety of classes including agriculture, food and natural resources, animal and plant science, animal anatomy, and physiology and food science.

The agriculture education program and FFA work as intracurricular programs to develop high school students. The Claymont High School agriculture teacher is Sydney Burns. Visit www.claymont-ffa.theaet.org.

Day received a certificate and wooden plaque from Warther's Woodworking, and the Arts Educator of the Year was made by Museum Acrylics.

"This year's Arts Signing Day, as well as previous years, shows how creative and inspirational each senior is," said Wilma K. Mullet, executive director of Tuscarawas Arts Partnership. "We are seeing a future generation rise up and discovering their place in the arts and its niches and how they want to share it with others. We also have this synergy that exists between the students, their educators and family. It's incredible to see it under one roof and the amount of support there is."

AMERICA STRONG

Memorial Day service planned at Uhrichsville

By Teri Stein

When former Uhrichsville resident Daryl Hicks was shot in Vietnam just four days before he was to return home, he was tasked with a challenge.

“When I got shot in Vietnam, the medic who carried me out of the jungle — his name is Don Ballard — when he laid me on the cold floor of the helicopter to fly me to an underground hospital, he told me, ‘When you get home Sarge, help make America strong,’” Hicks said. “And that plagued me for years. I had no idea what he meant.”

Hicks spent the next 18 months in the hospital recuperating. Years later he got the surprise of his life.

“Then when the traveling wall came into New Philadelphia, I was asked to be the guest speaker. They asked me to close my eyes before I started to speak, and when I opened up my eyes, there was Don Ballard.”

Ballard received the Congressional Medal of Honor for his actions after one afternoon in the Vietnam War when he threw himself on top of a grenade to protect his fellow service members and the Marine casualties they were trying to evacuate. Fortunately, the grenade did not detonate, and Ballard continued his duties.

Ballard then asked Hicks the same question — What have you done to help make America strong?

“The worst thing you can tell anybody, any veteran, is never say Happy Memorial Day because it really isn’t.”

Daryl Hicks

“I still didn’t have an answer. On the drive home that night — it was a very warm night — I had my sunroof open. I had the windows open. And it dawned on me I didn’t have to do anything grandiose. I didn’t have to do anything big. And then that’s when the thought of the memorial was born,” Hicks said.

Hicks and his friend Dr. Richard McCullough designed the memorial.

The Uhrichsville High School Class of 1965, of which Hicks was a member, donated the memorial to the city.

This year’s event will be held at the memorial in the Uhrichsville City Park. Hicks, now of Mount Vernon, and McCullough of Coshocton, who is a former Uhrichsville resident, hope the event will remind people why the nation celebrates Memorial Day honoring the men and women who died while serving in the U.S. military. The event will be held Saturday, May 27 at 10 a.m.

Hicks will be the speaker, and a contingent of members of the Ohio Chapter 2 Rolling Thunder motorcycle group will cruise into town for the event to promote their mission: All are united in the cause to bring full accountability for the prisoners of war/missing in action members of all wars, reminding the government, the media and the public by the watchwords: “We will not forget.”

The Carl C. Stoller VFW Post 1445 of New Philadelphia will provide the honor guard. Students from Claymont High School will sing the national anthem and perform the playing of taps.

Uhrichsville Mayor Mark Haney will welcome everyone to the event, and Pastor Kory Rowland of First United Methodist Church in Uhrichsville will present the invocation. Sam Hitchcock will provide sound for the event.

“The worst thing you can tell anybody, any veteran, is never say Happy Memorial Day because it really isn’t,” Hicks said.

Hicks keeps the mission to help make America strong close to his heart.

“If I have a fault, it’s probably that I’m too patriotic. I love my country but not necessarily the politicians,” Hicks said.

He never plans a speech ahead of time but speaks from his experiences.

“I’m not qualified to talk about World War I or World War II or the Korean War, but because I served in Vietnam and got shot in Vietnam, I think I can talk about it,” Hicks said. “I’m going to give some very interesting statistics of the Vietnam War, and that would include the building of the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C. Not one penny to build that wall came from the federal government. It came from private donations.”

Hicks is thankful for the volunteers who help with upkeep at the Uhrichsville Memorial.

“There have been so many people who have dedicated their time to maintaining the integrity of the memorial. They plant flowers. They plant bushes. They sweep.

They power wash it. They supply the flags around the memorial. Without them none of this would be possible,” Hicks said.

Hicks recalled his friend, the late Dale McCauley, who was killed in Vietnam. Hicks said the memorial and the upcoming ceremony have nothing to do with the living. McCauley Drive in Uhrichsville was named after his friend.

The service is expected to last about an hour. R.K. Lindsey Funeral Home will provide chairs, but attendees are encouraged to bring their own lawn chairs if they wish.

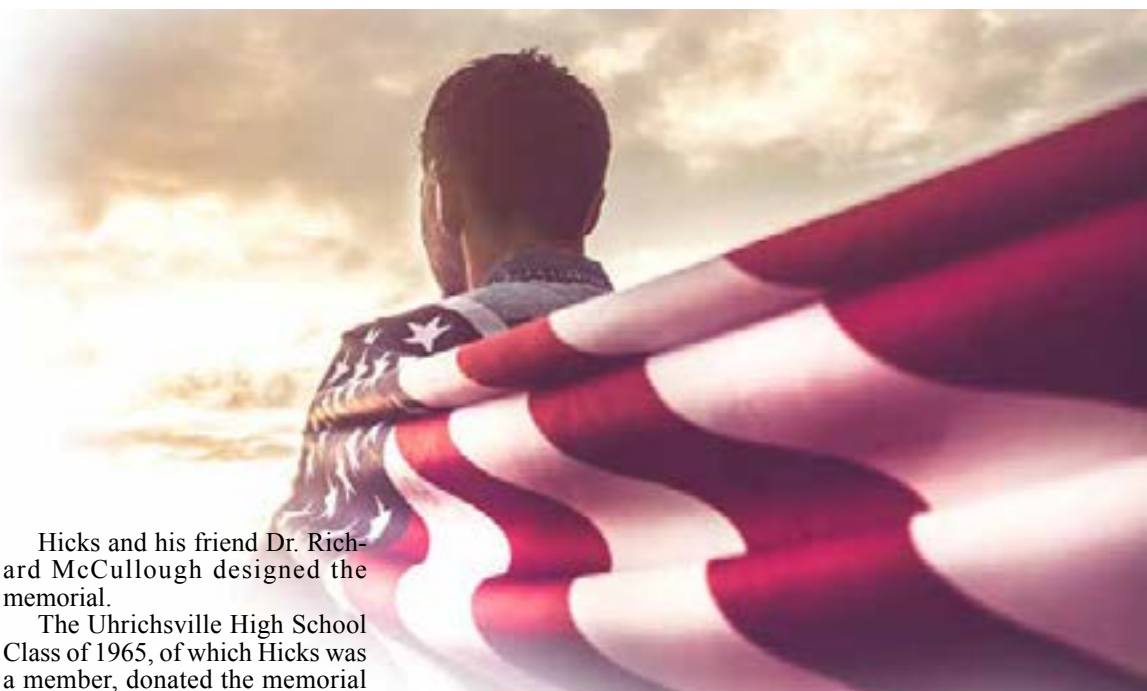

Hicks hopes those in attendance will remember the true spirit of Memorial Day.

“The main thing about this service is it’s about the people we lost,” Hicks said.

Warther Museum to host arboretum tour and flower sale

By Scott Daniels

The Ernest Warther Museum and Gardens in Dover is celebrating 87 years of sharing its many collections with a free tour of the David Warther Arboretum and an accompanying flower sale Saturday, May 13. The flower sale will begin at 9 a.m. while the tour will step off at 11 a.m.

Kristen Moreland, Warther Museum and gardens director, said the arboretum tours will be conducted by Rick Basnett, who is a former naturalist for the State of Ohio and a current employee of Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District.

"He is also a tour guide here at the museum," Moreland said. "He will be able to speak very knowledgeably about the gardens and also about their history and how important they are to the museum itself. He is a wealth of knowledge, both about the plants and landscaping and about the museum and its collections."

Moreland said the grounds on which the museum now stands were acquired by the family in 1910 while the museum began offering tours a few years later. "It was all just residential property at that time. This is the 87th anniversary of the museum's beginnings," Moreland said.

The arboretum tour will last about 45 minutes. "We want people who plan to attend to know that they will be standing throughout those 45 minutes, and there are some minor stairs involved," Moreland said.

No registration is required.

The plant sale is now in its seventh year.

"We have a big assortment of annuals this year. Everything we make from the plant sale will help to support Frieda Warther's original Swiss gardens," Moreland said. "I think many people miss the impact Frieda had locally. Frieda was instrumental in starting the Dover Garden Club. She worked so much with the 4-H Club and was a great teacher and resource for the community. She shared her gardens and craft making with so many hundreds of people locally. We work to keep her dreams and gardens alive at the museum."

Scott Daniels

Kristen Moreland said the museum works to preserve the legacy of both Ernest and Frieda Warther.

Plants offered for sale come from the same grower as those that are planted in the museum's gardens. "We will have some of Frieda's signature flowers, some seeds, perennials, vegetable plants and hanging baskets," Moreland said.

Flats of 36 plants are $23, half flats are $12, 4.5-inch pots are $4.50, Frieda's perennials are $4 and hanging baskets are $19.50. The flower sale will continue Saturday until the plants are all sold. Cash, check and credit cards are accepted.

The David Warther Arboretum tours are a relatively new addition to the museum's offerings, reflecting the museum's more recent recognition as an official arboretum.

"We gained that designation in 2020," Moreland said. "Part of that designation is opening the gardens for a free tour at least annually. We may return and do something similar again in the fall."

The museum is open every day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and features the carvings of artist Ernest "Mooney" Warther, who is recognized globally as carver in various mediums and as a sculptor. He and his wife Frieda amassed a large collection of artifacts including historically significant finds, Native American flint points, buttons and thousands of other objects.

Visit the museum website at www.thewarthermuseum.com or call 330-505-6003.

So much to do

I keep hearing people say, "There is nothing to do here," a statement that flabbergasts me because there is so much to do one can hardly find enough time to do it.

Just to name a very few of the opportunities available in Tuscarawas County, there are productions at the Kent State Performing Arts Center, the Little Theatre of Tuscarawas County, the Tuscarawas County Center for the Arts, Trumpet in the Land, all the schools and several outlying theaters.

There is music for every taste from classical to country, art exhibits, authors speaking, book clubs, writing groups, church choirs, baseball, basketball, football, soccer, volleyball, swimming and many special interest groups.

Museums of unusual natures are available, the cheese and wine industry flourishes, and the story of this very historic area in American history is told in multiple places. Opportunities for volunteering abound everywhere.

It has become noticeable lately that audiences are smaller in the theaters. The philharmonic is not filled to capacity as it used to be, and neither are those venues that offer musicals, dramas or comedies.

Sporting events are not as well attended as in the past. It is easy to blame these changes on COVID and the economy, or another thought occurs: Maybe there is too much to do, maybe no one wants to give up any of their time or, even more, maybe people just aren't interested as they used to be.

I believe if you want to

Leo Elliot

contribute to the society in which you live, as well as live a fulfilling life, you should experience as many different activities as possible. Investigate everything available, even if it is only to find out you don't ever want to do it again.

I also believe parents should expose their children to all those activities from the time they are very young. If you want your children to read, you must read to them and make the library a weekly visit. If you want them to love sports, they must have fun playing those games and watch you enjoying them yourself. If you want them to love music, there must be music. And why on earth wouldn't you want them to be enraptured by the world of make-believe? Far better to experience life by coming out from behind the cell phones provided for entertainment at such an early age.

If you want your children to be well-rounded and happy, there should be no "sissy singers," "athletic apes" or "scholarship snobs" in your vocabulary. Introduce your children to it all and let them decide for themselves what they love and what they don't.

Think about the interests you have chosen. Who or what headed you in that direction? Happiness is easy to find. Just look around for something to do.

Bolivar Strawberry Festival 5k organizer Lori Fritz poses with the race bib she wore the last time the run was held in 2018. The race will begin in front of the Huntington Bank on Canal Street.

Bolivar Strawberry Festival 5k Run is back this June

By Lori Feeney

For the first time since 2018, the Strawberry Festival 5k Run is back on the schedule. The race will be held Saturday, June 10 at 9 a.m., starting at the Huntington Bank on Canal Street in Bolivar.

At 8:30 a.m. kids age 10 and under can compete in their own 1/2-mile race called the Seedling Scamper. Both races are being organized by Lori Fritz of Bolivar.

“I had the idea back in December after I had just completed the Rudolph Run in Strasburg,” Fritz said. “I told my husband John it was a shame Bolivar hadn’t had the 5k in several years and said I thought I might be able to put it together. He said, ‘I know you can.’”

Fritz started floating the idea in social media groups and other conversations. “I got a lot of positive feedback from my running friends online, so I started posting the race on other running sites,” Fritz said.

The courses

“I’ve laid out the 5k course and run it a couple of times,” said Fritz, who believes the flat terrain that winds through Bolivar and the industrial park will appeal to beginners and runners who want to improve their speed. The Seedling Scamper also will start at Huntington Bank but will remain in the downtown area.

How to register

Registration forms can be downloaded by clicking on the Main Street Association's Strawberry Festival tab at www.villageofbolivar.com.

Forms also are available at the Towpath Tavern, Canal Street Diner and Oberlin Antiques in Bolivar and the Dover and Navarre YMCAs. Instructions for where to send the form and the $25 registration fee are on the form.

All runners registered by May 27 will be guaranteed a race T-shirt. Runners may still register the day of the event. The Seedling Scamper is free, and parents may register their children the day of the event.

The prizes

The top three runners in a number of age categories will receive awards, as will all participants in the Seedling Scamper. Door prizes also will be awarded after the race with donations of gift baskets and gift certificates from local businesses.

"Cassie's Candies and Creations in Bolivar has already committed to a door prize," Fritz said. "And the new Lock 7 Coffee House will be giving out free coffee samples the morning of the race." Both businesses are located on Canal Street.

Fritz said registration fees this year will all benefit Bolivar Main Street Association and the events the group sponsors: the Strawberry Festival, the Canal Street Cruise-In car show and Christmas on the Canal.

"In the future, if we can grow the race, I'd like to have the proceeds benefit a charity or provide scholarships for local students," Fritz said.

Sponsors and volunteers welcome

A number of businesses and volunteers are already signed on, but Fritz said there is room for more. "So far we've got Finlayson Towing, Superior Tank and Sanor Wealth Group as race sponsors," she said.

Race timing will be provided by CHAMP Racing, with Shutterbug Photography taking race photos and awards coming from M&K Engraving.

Volunteers are needed to help with registration, water at turns and handing out awards. To volunteer, call Fritz at 330-401-6000, email lorifritz210@gmail.com or message on Facebook.

The Bolivar Strawberry Festival will take place June 8-10 on Canal Street. The festival includes live entertainment, carnival rides, a fireman's parade, pageants, food and concessions. Admission is free.

Warther seeking community donations for permanent display

By Scott Daniels

What do you do when you are trying to make intricate carvings of complicated objects, but you have no knife capable of cutting the hard materials at hand? If you're Ernest "Mooney" Warther, you start making your own knives out of the hardest metals you can find.

Thus began a tradition within the family of knife making that stretches to this day. In preparation for an upcoming Labor Day special exhibit honoring Mooney's grandson Dale and the creations of the Warther family, Warther Museum and Gardens is seeking donations of pieces crafted by four generations of the Warther family.

"Mooney, out of necessity, started forging his own knives while he was carving so much and in some of the hardest woods in the world," Warther Museum Director Kristen Moreland said. "Standard knife blades weren't able to keep up, so he learned to forge his own."

This led to something for which the master carver and knife maker became well known. During World War II, Mooney crafted commando knives that saw service throughout the war.

"A few years ago, I began documenting the stories of these knives," Moreland said. "We've had knives returned to us over the years, and so I've written the stories of what the original carrier did during the war and then what they did after they returned. They're mostly made for local men, with a few from farther out or out of Ohio."

Moreland said the museum is at a point where they can provide space for a permanent exhibit of the knives, with photos and stories to match.

"We'll focus on the knives that Mooney made early on and then those he made as he got older. He made beautiful boxed sets of steak knives to present to, again, local people of note. Then we will go down through the generations of knife makers. And then you get to Dale Warther, who was an amazing knife maker in his own right. He made a presidential knife to present to George Bush and other special presentation knives," Moreland said.

A key part of the new exhibit will come from area families, Moreland said.

“Really, we are inviting the community and asking that if they have any of the knives made here that are unique or have a story behind them, we would love to see those return here and be a part of the permanent exhibit. We will note who they were donated by and share some of the stories of those who received these interesting pieces,” Moreland said.

Moreland said the museum will assemble its collection and any pieces that are donated into a permanent space for viewing.

“We have a place that has seen some temporary or revolving displays, but now we are adding new cases to be able to show these amazing items off to the fullest. They will always be here,” Moreland said.
