Students represent Claymont's dog program

Claymont High School students — senior Savania Whitten, junior Gemma Dotts, sophomore Maggie Lesiecki and freshman Cora Dotts — represented Claymont's facility dog program on Saturday, April 22 at the 2023 Stark State Student Symposium Spotlighting Student Success.

The symposium is a half-day annual event that highlights the academic excellence of students from Stark State College and local community high schools.

These students, all members of the canine handling team, under the supervision of teachers Heather Dotts and Jane Lesiecki, presented a 50-minute program titled The Impact of Facility Dogs on Student Learning and Leadership: A Student's Perspective. The student team highlighted four areas: the role of a facility dog in schools, their program's benefits on student learning and leadership, the neuroscience supporting the positive effect the dogs have on student well-being, and the impact their Peers Uplifting Peers program has on the lives of others.

The information they provided showcased how facility dog programs can be a safe and beneficial addition to the school environment.

Claymont FFA received state-level awards

On May 4 and 5, four Claymont FFA members were recognized on stage for their work and accomplishments.

On Thursday Daxx Peters was awarded first place in the state of Ohio for the Swine Production Entrepreneurship Proficiency Award area, sponsored by the Ohio Pork Council. On Friday Stockton Young and Madison Fox were recognized for their gold-rated treasurer and reporter books, respectively.

To close out the Ohio FFA State Convention, Gemma Dotts was awarded the Ohio FFA State Degree, which is the second highest degree an FFA member can receive.

To be considered for a finalist spot within a proficiency, award members must keep record in their specific Supervised Agricultural Experience for two years and meet the minimum qualifications set forth by Ohio FFA. From there they fill out an application and complete an interview if selected as a finalist.

After winning the state award, Peters will now represent Ohio by completing the national application. Each year the Claymont FFA reporter, secretary and treasurer complete their assigned books and record keeping to submit for grading. They may receive either a silver, bronze or gold rating. This year all three officers earned a gold rating.

To earn the State FFA Degree, students must first earn the Greenhand and Chapter Degrees. They must be at least a junior in high school and meet minimum requirements such as community service hours, other involvement in activities and investing or earning a certain amount of money within their SAE. Students must fill out an application to be considered for their State FFA Degree.

The Claymont High School agriculture program currently has 60 students. The program offers a variety of classes including agriculture, food and natural resources; animal and plant science; animal anatomy and physiology; and food science. The agriculture education program and FFA work as intracurricular programs to develop high school students. The Claymont High School agriculture teacher is Sydney Burns.

Twenty-three students have become the first in Tuscarawas County to receive the Teen Mental Health First Aid Certification.

Teens receive certification

Twenty-three Claymont High School students have become the first in Tuscarawas County to receive the Teen Mental Health First Aid Certification.

These students, who are members of the high school's canine handling team and leaders of the Peers Uplifting Peers program, work with ELA teacher and staff facility dog handler Heather Dotts and facility dog Audrey to create a positive school climate and address social and emotional needs of students. The certification course, which was funded by a grant from the Ohio Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services and taught by Tuscarawas County OSU Extension officials Bridget Britton, Kiersten Heckle and Kate Homonai, is part of the national Mental Health First Aid program.

The students received seven hours of training and learned how to recognize the signs and symptoms of mental health challenges and how to offer support and help to someone who is experiencing a mental health challenge or is in crisis. They will use their skills to help their peers and to create a supportive school environment.

"This is an important step in helping our students understand and recognize the signs of mental health challenges and teaching them how they can help," Dotts said. "I'm proud of these students who have taken the initiative to become certified in Teen Mental Health First Aid. It shows their commitment to helping their peers and creating a safe, inclusive environment in our school. I'm confident that their new skills will positively impact our school and help create a culture of wellness."

Dotts and Claymont Middle School teacher Jane Lesiecki act as staff handlers for the district's two facility dogs. Facility dogs are working dogs specifically trained to help more than one person in facilities like schools. Dotts and Lesiecki instruct a group of students to handle the dogs and serve as peer leaders who facilitate interactions with their peers to create a supportive learning community.

Ice cream party celebrates Blue Ribbon Award

By Teri Stein

Though Port Washington Elementary was recognized in September and November 2022 as a Blue Ribbon School by the United States Department of Education, the Indian Valley Foundation has carried the celebration through to almost the end of the school year by hosting an ice cream party for the students on May 15.

The school, which serves nearly 400 students from kindergarten through fifth grade, won in the category of Exemplary High Performing Schools.

This proved to be a problem for the Indian Valley Foundation, which usually recognizes award-winning people from the district during its annual gala in April.

“One of the recipients of our awards that we give each year was Port Washington Elementary for the Blue Ribbon Award, which is a national award for schools, and it involves the whole school. We couldn’t figure out what to do for them because usually it’s one person and we give them one gift,” said Pat Kohl, a member of the IVF. “We finally decided that we could do an ice cream day for the kids.”

The event took the foundation a half-hour to serve each student an ice cream cup with sprinkles. They received their treat while sitting on the grassy lawn of the school.

“We couldn’t figure out what to do for them because usually it’s one person and we give them one gift. We finally decided that we could do an ice cream day for the kids.”

Pat Kohl

The IVF has grown over the years and does many things to help the teachers and students in the district. It also gives scholarships, classroom grants and building grants. It gives new teachers $50 to help set up their room, and new support staff are included.

“At first we had to pinch pennies,” Kohl said. “But now we’ve grown and can do more.”

It was the State of Ohio that got the ball rolling. It first notified the school to nominate them for the award. Port Washington Elementary accepted and went through the application process. Its application filled out 20 pages.

“That’s quite an application process,” Principal Troy Page said. “We had a committee of teachers who volunteered their time. We all wrote our Port Washington application and submitted it. It was mostly just narratives that you had to write up and describe.”

The application included information on eligibility certification, demographic data, school overview, curriculum and instruction, school climate and culture, and strategy for academic success.

In November 2022 an award ceremony for all the national recipients was held.

“Indian Valley School District was kind enough to send the team of staff members from Port Washington that worked on the application to Washington, D.C.,” Page said. “Three of our team members were able to attend the actual award ceremony, which was myself, Mrs. Patty Coutts, who is one of our teachers, and Dr. Ira Wentworth, our superintendent. It was quite an honor.”

Other individuals from the volunteer committee also attended and participated in presentations on varying topics on how to make schools better during the two-day trip.

Port Washington Elementary School was only one of 13 schools in Ohio to receive the award last year. Schools can receive the award as often as every five years. Port Washington previously won the award in 2003. At the ceremony in Washington, D.C., the school was recognized as a two-time award winner.

The school also received a plaque and a flag to display.

People working together are the reason for Port Washington Elementary winning the award.

“It all goes back to our students, our staff and our families,” Page said. “They’re the ones that truly put in all the work on a daily basis, and it’s just nice to be recognized for doing what they do. That’s what makes our school special.”

Parts of the school overview section tell the reasons for the school’s success:

“Community members, parents, visitors and students who enter this exceptional building often tell staff that the school emits a feeling of family. Indeed, this is our secret ingredient. That’s something extraordinary — so vital to the students and staff who thrive here,” the overview reads. “Our teachers, cooks and custodians become their matriarchs. When students struggle, they are supported by our intervention specialists, Title I staff, speech pathologist, educational aides and community volunteers.

“These members fill the role of grandparents, spoiling the boys and girls by working with them in small groups, rewarding them at each small success, and treating any disabilities with unconditional love. All students can learn and are supported wherever they are on their academic journey. We work toward a common goal: our district mission of ‘working together to personalize a rigorous standards-based learning experience.’ Each morning as announcements conclude, these words resonate from our classrooms: ‘Say it loud and say it proud: P-O-R-T Positive Outgoing Respectful Team.’”

Page greets students by name each morning.

The staff uses social emotional learning lessons to show students how to get along and navigate challenges faced by the younger generation.

Season unveiling coming

The Performing Arts Center at Kent State Tuscarawas will announce its 13th season on Saturday, June 10 during an unveiling event at the Performing Arts Center.

The event will begin at 7 p.m. with the formal unveiling, followed immediately after by a reception in the lobby. The event is free and open to Performing Arts Center members. A livestream of the announcement will be available on the Performing Arts Center's website.

"We're thrilled to announce another season full of potentially once-in-a-lifetime experiences," said David Mitchell, general manager of the Performing Arts Center. "We also invite everyone to become a PAC member and help us to provide access to the arts to everyone in our community and beyond. The financial support from our members is the bedrock on which thousands of amazing, shared experiences are built each and every year."

Members of the Performing Arts Center receive certain benefits not available to the general public. In addition to attending the unveiling event, members are the first to purchase tickets during special presale periods. Members of the dean's circle and sustaining patron lev-

Pets are welcome to camp

The Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District announced all MWCD campsites are now pet friendly. In addition, select cabins at each lake will now allow pets.

“We love our pets and know our guests do too. Over the last few years, we have seen an increase in popularity of families traveling and camping with pets,” said Adria Bergeron, director of marketing and communications. “Our camp areas have been mostly pet-friendly for many years, but demand has caused us to review our rules, and as a result pet-restricted areas are a thing of the past.”

Some tips on camping with a well-behaved pet include ensuring they are up to date on required vaccinations, registration and identification. In addition, don’t forget to pack a dog bowl and food, dog water dish, outdoor toys, and a leash.

The MWCD lakes offer hiking trails, marinas with boat rentals and plenty of green space. While Atwood Lake Park is currently the only location with a dog park, more locations are under consideration in the future.

While pets will be permitted in all areas, they must be on a leash, and owners must clean up after their pets. Those not following the rules will be asked to leave. And for cabins, a nonrefundable $50 per pet fee also will be applied for cabin guests.

Find your own private fishing hole

By Lori Feeney

According to the Outdoor Foundation, 86% of adults who enjoy fishing learned to fish when they were children. Larissa Smith is one of those adults who learned as a kid.

"I used to fish with my dad at a friend's pond, and I have very fond memories of that," she said.

Smith and business partner Roger Hollis started FishMySpot hoping to keep the sport of fishing alive in an era when children tend to hole up indoors with video games instead of being outdoors with family. As a mother of three, Smith said she knows all too well how daunting it can be to plan a fishing trip with kids.

"It can be overwhelming figuring out where to go, packing up the car, driving a long way and fighting crowds at public lakes," Smith said. "It's a lot of variables, and we help take those variables out."

Hollis agreed. "We recognize that there are public places for people to go fishing, and that's fine. We're certainly not opposed to doing that. But they can be overcrowded and overfished."

FishMySpot is a website that allows people to locate a fishing pond or lake they find appealing and reserve it for an exclusive fishing experience. "It gives families a place where it feels more comfortable to teach kids how to fish," Smith said.

How it works

Visitors to www.FishMySpot.com can book a private fishing experience at private ponds and lakes throughout Ohio. Pond owners have agreed to open up their fishing holes for families and fishing parties at fees that are reasonable.

"Our ponds still have nice-size fish, and some are absolutely huge," Smith said. "Others have smaller fish, but if you're at an under-fished pond or lake, the chances are much higher that you're going to catch something."

Smith said the ponds are ideal for anglers at all experience levels. "We focused on family, so the reservation fee covers four people for a five-hour period. However, if you want to bring more than four people, it's just an additional charge."

Visitors to www.FishMySpot.com can search for ponds based on criteria such as price range, user ratings and types of fish desired. Prices range from $35-$400 or more. Some owners allow you to keep the fish you catch while others ask you to catch and release. Details of each location are spelled out on the website.

“If you want to go fishing at Lake Erie, it’s a long drive, and it’s expensive,” Hollis said. “This gives people a great place to spend some quality time at a very low price.”

Some locations offer just fishing while others offer extras such as camping and the use of canoes, picnic tables and grills. Fish range from crappie and catfish to largemouth bass, sunfish, bluegill and walleye.

A work in progress

Smith said she hopes to grow FishMySpot to include private access to locations across the country.

“When we took the company to market in 2020, we had only 12 ponds listed,” she said. “Now we have more than 25 in Ohio, and we just added one in West Virginia.”

Smith said there are additional locations not listed on the website that can be privately booked as well.

Smith invited pond owners to check out the website and learn how they can earn a little extra income by listing their locations.

“On our website pond owners can sign up to see how much they can possibly make,” she said. “If it’s appealing enough, they can list their spot.”

Smith said pond owners keep 70% of the fee they determine while 30% goes to FishMySpot. “That helps cover our expenses like marketing. We also cover all of our pond owners under a $1 million liability insurance policy.”

To list your fishing hole or to find one near you, visit www.FishMySpot.com or call 844-446-3474.

You grew it, now you lift it

In case you don't remember, in my last column I discussed how much I hate plank exercises when doing yoga. But it didn't take long to discover another exercise that isn't as much fun either. That exercise would be the Superman.

In this exercise you are on the floor laying on your stomach with your arms outstretched in front of you. The point of the exercise is to lift both your arms at the same time while they are outstretched like you are flying just like Superman. When I was younger, I used to be able to do this. But now, as much as my brain tries to communicate with my shoulder and arm muscles, nothing is happening. My arms are lying there lifeless.

In my brain I was taken back to the early 1980s when I was a big fan of the Joanie Greggains Morning Stretch exercise show at 6 a.m. Monday through Friday.

Oh no, after looking up her name to make sure I had the correct spelling, I just saw she passed away in May 2022. Now I'm sad. She had such a positive impact on me and everyone who watched her show and exercised along with her and an ever-changing group of friends.

Anyway, Joanie's influence will carry on forever. One of her favorite sayings on the show was "You grew it, you lift it." So now I'm thinking to myself, I grew these arms, and I can't lift them. Augh!

Yoga instructor to the rescue though. I think she saw my struggles or total inaction in lifting these arms, and she switched the exercise to lifting opposite arms and legs, one set at a time, which I could do. Whew!

The Superman isn't as bad as the plank. With practice I have hopes of being able to some day do the Superman correctly — if I can make it to class that is.

By the time you read this, I will have missed two yoga classes in a row. There's a very good reason for this. It's called no memory.

Because I love exercise, I knew I would always put exercise first, so I did not write down the class on my calendar. I can't live without my calendar, which I like to keep on paper and then take photos of with my phone. Call me old-fashioned.

I was out and about one day and needed to set up an interview. I checked the calendar photo on my phone. Nothing was written on the particular day in question, so I set up an appointment.

A few hours later when I went to write the appointment on my paper calendar, I realized my mistake. Coming to the disappointing realization that I couldn't depend on my memory (this is not a surprise to my husband Joe; he should have warned me), I went ahead and wrote "yoga" on every yoga day for the rest of the year.

In the meantime I have been using a senior fitness app to catch up on some exercise. I discovered a new instructor who does strength training, and he is really good. One of the things I like about the senior fitness app on Zoom is that instructors start the class early and stay late so you can ask questions via the chat. Many people comment on what a great class it was or thank the instructor for their time after the class. I thought the class was so good I actually put a comment on there myself, even though it's something I don't usually do.

Then the instructor began thanking the people who commented by name.

That took me back to my "Romper Room" days when the hostess would look through her magic mirror and say, "Magic mirror, tell me today, have all my friends had fun at play?" And then, as we kids would jockey for position in front of the TV, the hostess would rattle off a few names of kids she "saw." I think she only ever said "Teri" once, and she probably meant "Terry." And how could she see only one of us and not all of the siblings standing there?

Here I am reduced to "Romper Room" days at the age of 65 and waiting for a person on the other end of Zoom to recognize me. Did it happen? Of course not, because there are dozens of people all commenting at the same time. I am dealing with that same "Romper Room" disappointed feeling. But, maybe later, the next class is on at 5:30 p.m.

Cy Young Days Royalty

Madison Moore represents festival

By Teri Stein

Madison Moore, 2022 Cy Young junior queen, got into the competition because she wanted to be a role model for younger kids, but being a role model isn't always easy. There are long car trips with family members, sometimes having to change clothes in the car and keeping watch over the younger members of the court.

Some of the younger members of the court are family members. Younger sister Alliyah Moore serves as Cy Young Days princess, and younger brother Creed Moore serves as the little slugger. The children's parents are Gene and Crystina Moore of Newcomerstown.

Madison Moore and Queen Jādn Lindig traveled to more festivals than the younger members of the court or the senior queen.

Meeting new people, traveling and promoting her hometown are things Moore said she enjoys, and Moore said she is proud to talk about Cy Young in her speeches at other festivals around the state.

Teri Stein

Madison Moore enjoyed traveling around Ohio and helping others through her service as junior queen of the Cy Young Days Festival.

Moore wrote her essay on how she wanted to be a role model for younger children, her past years when she was involved in serving on the court and how she made new friends through her service.

"Our famous baseball player is nicknamed Cyclone because he threw the fastest ball," Moore said.

In the future Moore would like to be a radiologist or a phlebotomist. For now she said she enjoys learning about Greek mythology in her favorite subject, English/language arts, and is looking forward to writing an essay about the topic. She is on the honor society and leadership team at school and said she enjoys dance and cheerleading.

Essays are part of the process for those participating in the royalty competition.

QUEEN

"It's just a great opportunity overall," Moore said of serving on the court as a way to help others and your community. She said she's learned it's always best to be yourself, no matter the situation.

Community service is a requirement for those on the court, and it's something Moore said she enjoys. "It's always a great thing to help others," she said.

Moore has attended at least 15 festivals, and some of her favorites were the Jingle Bell Festival in Waverly, the Lexington Blueberry Festival and the Circleville Pumpkin Festival.

Crystina Moore has seen how serving on the court has helped Madison grow. "She's definitely come a long way. She used to be really quiet and shy. Now she's pretty outgoing," she said.

Jen Lindig, festival coordinator, hopes Madison Moore will run again.

It's not all about traveling.

One of Madison Moore's favorite activities at the Cy Young Days Festival is the car show.

"I like to see old cars, but I just like seeing cars in general," she said.

Members of the court get to hand out the awards too.

Members of the court are not restricted when it comes to entering the talent show at their festival. Madison Moore and a friend entered last year and received an award for their efforts. She is interested in entering again this year and performing a tap dance.

Titles for the court this year will be princess and little slugger for grades k-2, mini queen for grades 3-5, junior miss for grades 6-8, junior queen for grades 9-10, and festival queen for grades 11-12.

All of the titles are now open for participants who live in Tuscarawas or Coshocton counties.

There are various requirements for each title, and applications can be found online at www.cyyoungdaysfestival.com or at the Newcomerstown Library. Those applying must be of good standing in the community, someone who displays pride and love for their community, has a service-above-self attitude, and has a commitment to volunteerism and helping others.

The various titles also have different commitments for participation in other festivals and activities throughout the year as directed by the queen coordinator.

Although travel is covered by the parents, Lindig doesn't want concerns about cost to prevent anyone from trying out for the court.

"I don't want someone to not run because they can't afford to do the travel, because there's local things they can do," Lindig said.

Applications and a $10 fee are requested by Wednesday, May 24 or no later than May 31. In addition, there will be a mandatory meeting on Wednesday, May 31 at 6 p.m. at the Cy Young Park Pavilion by the pool to go over contest information and answer any questions.

Eric Gagne, a relief pitcher with the L.A. Dodgers when he won the Cy Young Award in 2003, will be honored at the luncheon and serve as parade marshal.

The luncheon will be held at the Labors Local Hall #134 at 150 N. River St. at the corner of River and Main streets in Newcomerstown on Saturday, June 24. Doors will open at 11:30 a.m., and lunch will be at 12:30 p.m. Tickets are $25 for adults and $15 for children under 12. Reservations can be made by calling 740-498-8562 or 740-227-1544 or by emailing chaney.janet8@gmail.com.

This year's Cy Young Days Festival will be June 23-25 with activities held at various locations around Newcomerstown.
