History will come to life during reenactment

By Lori Feeney

“Revolution on the Tuscarawas,” a Revolutionary War reenactment, will be held July 14 and 15 at Fort Laurens in Bolivar. The annual event gives visitors a glimpse into the lives of Revolutionary War soldiers, from the weapons they used to the hardships they endured fighting for independence from England.

British and Continental soldiers will be portrayed by members of the Brigade of the American Revolution Northwest Department’s 8th Pennsylvania Regiment and the 13th Virginia Regiment, from which soldiers were stationed at Fort Laurens.

Bob Cairns has been the commander of the Northwest Department for longer than he can remember. “We are an international nonprofit organization dedicated to portraying the life and times of the common soldier during the American Revolution,” he said. “You’re not going to see a bunch of guys dressed like generals or other high-ranking individuals hanging around. You will see the regular soldier.”

Cairns said visitors can expect to see demonstrations of muskets and cannons, 18th century clothing, and tools and other military subjects.

“We’re going to have a fellow that’s presenting as an 18th century surgeon. He’s got lots of tools in his surgeon’s kit to show, and he will talk about different illnesses and treatments for everything from an upset stomach to removing a limb,” Cairns said.

Artillery demonstrations and skirmish reenactments will be part of the activities at the Fort Laurens “Revolution on the Tuscarawas” event.

Cairns said historic geographers also will be on hand demonstrating 18th century surveying equipment, map-making methods, cooking, music and other skills of the time.

“If you walk away and didn’t learn something, it’s because you didn’t want to,” he said.

There also will be reenactments of skirmishes, which are smaller than battles. How much the groups can reenact will depend on how many reenactors can attend because they are all volunteers.

“We’re hoping we will have enough there to do a big artillery demonstration with five or six cannons,” Cairns said. “We’ll show people how the cannons were loaded, how they were used and what their different purposes were.”

A living history

Tanner Immel, site manager at Fort Laurens, said the soldiers and camp followers will be camped out on the grounds for the weekend. “Everything will be full public discourse,” he said. “We encourage the public to come up to them, ask questions, look at their camps and see their setups.”

Immel said there will be a food truck for refreshments and kids crafts and activities.

“I think seeing living historians at the site is a great reason to come out for this event,” Immel said. “It really brings history to life for our local community, and I think it’s better to see history and be involved in history — to be able to live it and see the conditions the Fort Laurens soldiers lived under — than to just read some words on a wall.”

A ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Patriot on the fort grounds also is planned for Saturday and Sunday to honor the sacrifice of all Revolutionary soldiers.

An important historical site

Fort Laurens is the location of Ohio’s only Revolutionary War fort, built as a staging site for a possible attack on the British at Fort Detroit. The outline of the original fort is visible on the grounds.

Fundraising and plans are currently underway by the Friends of Fort Laurens Foundation to eventually rebuild the fort. Along with Historic Zoar Village, Fort Laurens is managed by the Zoar Community Association.

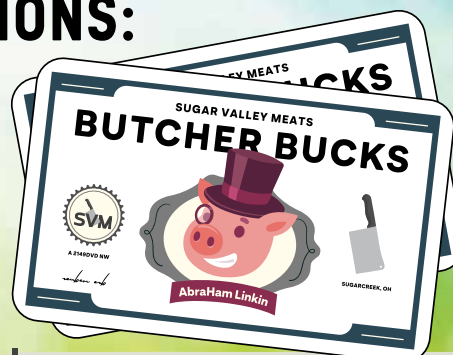

Admission

Tickets for the event are $10 for adults and include admission to the Fort Laurens Museum. Children under 12 are free.

For more information call Fort Laurens at 330-874-2059 or visit the website at www.fortlaurens-museum.org.

Loving Lucie

Bolivar girl with leukemia receives special gift

By Lori Feeney

There is a brand-new play set in a yard outside Bolivar that is so much more than a play set. It is a symbol of the hopes, faith and dreams of a 7-year-old girl with leukemia, Lucie Dillon, and her family.

On Sunday, June 25, a multitude of volunteers came together at the Dillon home to assemble a play set the family received from the Roc Solid Foundation, a national organization that provides play sets free to families fighting pediatric cancer.

The signs

Maria Dillon, Lucie's mother, said Lucie became sick right around Christmas last year. "We didn't really know what was wrong. She was running a low-grade fever off and on but acting OK and still playing outside. But by mid-January, she wasn't eating much and she was really tired."

After taking her daughter in for some blood tests, Maria Dillon said she looked at the results and then consulted Google. "I knew it was going to be leukemia because it was the only result that explained everything she was experiencing," she said.

“Cancer isn't judgmental. It doesn't play favorites. It doesn't care if you have lots of money or not a dime to your name. It just doesn't care.”

Maria Dillon

After a flurry of tests, the diagnosis came. It was leukemia. Specifically, it was acute lymphoblastic leukemia.

Fortunately for Lucie Dillon, the diagnosis came early in the onset of the disease, and treatment at Akron Children's Hospital started immediately.

"She is in remission now, but leukemia likes to adapt," she said.

To avoid relapsing, Lucie Dillon will undergo an arduous treatment protocol. By the time this article is published, she will be on day 157 of treatment at Akron Children's Hospital. She will have 755 more to go.

"Our first month in the hospital, Lucie was just beside herself," Maria Dillon said. "But now she loves riding in the elevators, and they have a Princess Room she loves staying in with castles and fairy tale murals painted on the walls."

Making lemonade out of lemons

On the same day as the build, Silas Dillon was determined to help out with a fundraising roadside lemonade stand. The 9-year-old also created a virtual lemonade stand online where people could make donations.

From 6 gallons of lemonade and out of the cyberspace, he made around $3,000.

"When I first heard about (the leukemia), I thought it would last maybe a few weeks," he said. "But then I learned it was going to be two years, and I was like, 'Oh this is bad. It will be a lot of pain for her.'"

Giving back

Maria Dillon said when she learned they were going to receive one of three play sets being donated to Akron Children's Hospital patients, she and her husband Doug decided they were going to donate the cost of their play set right back to the Roc Solid Foundation.

"The fact is we can buy our own play set," she said. "We don't want any other kids to miss out because we took one of the sets available."

After tallying up the lemonade money, the family was actually able to donate enough money to provide two play sets to ACH families.

Maria Dillon said it still seems surreal that her daughter is one of the children like those you see in television commercials for places like St. Jude's. She is keeping a daily log of her daughter's journey on Facebook, where she said in a recent post, "Cancer isn't judgmental. It doesn't play favorites. It doesn't care if you have lots of money or not a dime to your name. It just doesn't care."

Not only does cancer not discriminate, but also it affects the entire family. For Lucie Dillon, that family includes her mom, her dad, Silas and Joey, and brothers Gavin, 15, and Toby, who turned 5 on July 3. Extended family and friends also ride the emotional roller coaster that accompanies cancer in a child.

Still, family and friends remain positive. "Every time I turn around, someone is helping," Maria Dillon said. "Holy Trinity is or our parish, and they gave us about $1,200. Gavin attends Tuscarawas Central Catholic High School, so they held a fundraiser. People I'm friends with on Facebook that our kids played ball once together or whatever have helped. Doug's boss set up a GoFundMe account. Lucy's school in Mineral City did a Light Up for Lucie event, and it was organized by someone I hadn't even met who just said, 'Hey, I'm doing this.'"

Maria Dillon said it has been a separate journey just learning to accept help. In addition to the organizations already mentioned, the family wants to express their gratitude to Immaculate Conception School, Tusky Valley Schools, CrossFit, Chris T's Dance Emporium, Ferris Chevrolet and others who have shared their money, their prayers, their hope and their love.

Coming home

Lucie Dillon was able to enjoy a week at home, starting the day after the play set went up.

Maria Dillon said on Facebook, "This girl is just so happy about having this play set. She is less pleased with Canada's fires that are preventing her from being outside and enjoying it much."

Now Lucie Dillon is back in the Princess Room at Akron Children's Hospital, hopefully for her last extended stay.

How to help

The Dillon family would like those wishing to help to donate to the Roc Solid Foundation at www.rocsolidfoundation.org to keep those play sets coming for children fighting cancer. E-cards also can be sent to Lucie Dillon at www.akronchildrens.org.

Lori Feeney

Silas Dillon, left, poses with his brother Toby at the lemonade stand he set up to help raise funds for the Roc Solid Foundation. He also set up a virtual lemonade stand online, and between the two stands, $3,000 was raised.

Submitted

Lucie Dillon, who has leukemia, is thrilled with the play set she received from the Roc Solid Foundation. More than 20 volunteers assembled the set the day before she came home for a week's reprieve from treatment.

Rockets shine at Special Olympics Summer Games

For the first time, the Tuscarawas County Rockets took 65 athletes and coaches from five sports to Special Olympics Ohio's Summer Games at the Ohio State University.

Over 2,200 athletes from across Ohio competed June 23-25.

The Rockets have been training weekly since March and April for the season-culminating and largest annual state event. The Rockets also took part in several events including a volleyball invite in Hilliard and a track and bocce meet in Minerva.

The athletics team had many standout performances. Allison Halsey competed in the pentathlon and was the only female in the entire state to do so. Two rookies, Chris Wernert and Matthew Toole, Jr., both captured triple gold medals for the Rockets. Wernert competed in the 100-meter dash and mini javelin while Toole competed in the 100-meter dash and softball throw. All three athletes were part of two 4x100 relay teams that came from behind to capture the gold medal in their respective divisions.

Other Rockets and their finishes include the following:

—Kaylee Arthurs: first in 4x100 relay, fifth in (100-meter dash and sixth in shot put.

—Chris Bayne: second in 100-meter walk and sixth in softball throw.

—Chris McDade: third in 50-meter dash and softball throw.

—Jess Seevers: first in softball throw and 200-meter run and third in softball throw.

—Tory Seevers: first in 4x100 relay and 100-meter dash and sixth in softball throw.

—Brian Wernert: first in 4x100 relay, fifth in softball throw and sixth in 100-meter dash.

—Kershel Zehnder: first in 4x100 relay, fourth in

The bocce team was represented by four teams at Summer Games. They competed in the unified, traditional men's and traditional women's divisions.

Winning medals for the Rockets were the following:

—Gold: Star and Kasey Basiletti in the unified division.

—Silver: Rodney Fuller and Eric Lingo in the men's traditional division.

—Bronze: Robert Easlick and Cody Lynch in the men's traditional division and Samantha Mastro-ine in the women's traditional division.

The bowling team was represented by 10 athletes. Many Rockets bowled above their averages and saw some placements divided by less than 10 pins.

The Rockets competing in bowling and their respective finishes included the following:

—Gold: Aaron Scott and Lonnie Thornton.

—Silver: Steve Hazelip and Jordan Miller.

—Bronze: Tyler Ross, Ean Seevers and Nathaniel Wells.

—Fourth place: Kris Klapper, Austin McGinnis and Samantha Thornton.

The volleyball team faced some tough foes in the Franklin Flyers and the Pickerington Jaguars. Rachael Russell, who represented Team Ohio at the 2022 USA Games in Florida, and Joey Fulton led the team in aces and service returns. Other team members included Lucy Cooper, Conner DiGenova, Kitana Livengood, Sonya Livengood, Brandon Miller and Larry Smitley. The Rockets were awarded fifth-place honors for their efforts.

The powerlifting team had six athletes compete in a variety of weight classes in both the men's and women's divisions. All athletes competed in the bench press, deadlift and combination. Many of the athletes achieved personal records in both events.

Powerlifters for the Rockets included the following:

—Heather Baker: gold in bench press, deadlift and combo.

—Craig Gordon: fifth in bench press, deadlift and combo.

—Carter Holbrook: silver in bench press, deadlift and combo.

—Chelsea Lefler: gold in bench press and combo and silver in deadlift.

—Aidan McClain: silver in bench press and bronze in deadlift and combo.

—Emma Ward: gold in bench press, deadlift and combo.

The Rockets received a four-car police escort from the New Philadelphia Police Department on the morning of June 23. Prior to Summer Games, the Rockets also had a pep rally and a track team dinner at Hog Heaven, donated by Nate Penrod and Bair Foot Lawncare. At opening ceremonies Gordon was one of four athletes selected from across the state to carry the Flame of Hope into Jesse Owens Stadium alongside law-enforcement officer Davey Jones.

The next sports for the Rockets will be softball and golf. Sign-ups are currently taking place. Email Richelle at tuscarawascountyspecialolympic@gmail.com.

Youth mentorship program available

Big Brothers Big Sisters of East Central Ohio will present Ask a Big at the Main Library of the Tuscarawas County Public Library System July 18 at 6:30 p.m.

The program will be a frequently-asked-question session for those interested in becoming a mentor to area youth. BBBS requires a minimum of four hours a month from volunteer mentors, which can be done through their community or school-based programs.

The mentorship program through Big Brothers Big Sisters provides guidance, wisdom, encouragement, and support to assist mentees in accomplishing their goals and achieving their full potential.

A current mentor and staff member from BBBS will be on hand to answer questions about services and programs provided to youth in Tuscarawas, Carroll and Harrison counties. They will discuss camp opportunities, individual assistance and resource connections.

Those interested in volunteering or becoming mentors with BBBS are encouraged to attend. The time commitment is not large, but it makes a world of difference to the child served by the program.

Registration for this program is required. Register online at www.tusclibrary.org or by calling 330-364-4474.

The county's Main Library is located at 121 Fair Ave. NW in New Philadelphia.

Museum receives designation as historic landmark

By Scott Daniels

Ernest Warther Museum and Gardens in Dover has been a favorite destination for tours for close to 90 years. The museum has just received designation as a historic landmark by the National Register of Historic Places, recognizing its importance to the nation on a state and national level by the National Park Service. The recognition arrived just as the museum marked 50 years since Ernest "Mooney" Warther passed away.

"We actually started the application process two years ago," Warther Museum Director Kristen Moreland Harmon said. "The application process was hefty. We submitted more than 80 written pages. Everything we submitted regarding the history of the museum is recorded by the National Park Service. It's much harder to prove the historic significance of a person such as an artist like Mooney Warther. Sites like Zoar or Ft. Laurens are a little easier."

Harmon said the designation is important in that it will help preserve the museum's holdings in the future.

Scott Daniels

The museum will be able to protect the important structures on the grounds including the small shop where Warther carved many of his creations.

"For example, the roof on the family home is slate, and we have some cement original tiles on the museum building. Things like that which can be tricky to preserve, we want to keep as original as possible. So if need arises in the future, being designated a national historic place enables us to apply for grants to help with that. It will help us keep things as historically accurate as possible," Harmon said.

The family home dates to 1910 while the first museum structure came about in 1936.

Though the museum has been notified of its inclusion on the list of historic places, the plaque has not yet arrived. "We expect to get that soon," Harmon said.

"It's a common misconception that designation with the National Register means you're not able to do anything to the property," Harmon said. "That's not the case. You're encouraged to maintain historic integrity and accuracy and keep things up. You just wouldn't get any grant funding to make any modernizing updates. If you keep everything historic, you can get help with that."

Though Harmon isn't aware of any visits to the museum at the federal level, representatives of the Ohio preservation organization did visit and expressed surprise the museum had not been recognized before.

The recognition helps to solidify the contributions of Harmon's great-grandfather as an artist and important figure in the community.

"Mooney Warther made important contributions to the city of Dover, of course, but his art had a real impact at the state and national level as well," Harmon said. "This only helps to underline that contribution, both for him and for his wife Freida."

Harmon said the museum is welcoming more and more visitors, recovering from the effects of the pandemic shutdown. "We are doing well. People of all ages come to visit, just as always. People travel differently and split their work and personal lives a little differently now, but it is definitely rebounding from where we were in 2020," she said.

Ernest Warther began carving his creations as a 5-year-old boy using a rusted, old pocketknife. In time his skills in carving some of the world's rarest woods and animal ivory became recognized the world over.

Warther toured with his carvings before opening a museum to welcome the public to view his creations. He was featured on television several times and corresponded with the greatest leaders and figures of his time.

Ernest Warther Museum and Gardens is at 331 Karl Ave. in Dover and online at www.thewarthermuseum.com. The museum is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Tusc SWCD holds legislative tour

The Tuscarawas Soil & Water Conservation District hosted a conservation tour for legislatures on Thursday, June 22.

Agriculture is the No. 1 industry in Tuscarawas County, and we wanted to showcase the importance of it to our legislatures. We were joined by Tuscarawas County commissioners Chris Abbuhl and Kristen Zemis, State Sen. Al Landis, USDA-NRCS staff, and Tuscarawas SWCD board members.

Our goal was to get them out in the field to see firsthand some agriculture production and conservation practices happening around the county. We made five stops throughout the day looking at five different aspects of agriculture.

The first stop was in Newcomerstown to see a 186-acre agricultural easement. Ag easements protect the agriculture interests of the land for future generations. In other words the land will always remain in agriculture production and will not be able to be developed.

Next, we toured a tree farm enrolled in the American Tree Farm System, which promotes wood production, wildlife habitat, water quality and recreation. This farm is a prime example of forestry production and management. Many forestry practices such as invasive species removal, timber stand improvement and tree plantings have taken place over the years to improve the land, native species and wildlife habitat.

Our third and fourth stops were both near Stone Creek. At the beef cattle and crop farm, we talked about grazing conservation practices, dry manure storage and crop production for feeding cattle. Tuscarawas County is ranked 12th in the state for beef production.

At the dairy farm, we talked about crop and hay forage production for dairy cows, liquid manure storage, and manure management. Tuscarawas County is ranked fifth in the state for milk production.

Our last stop brought us to the village of Baltic, where we were joined by Mayor Keith Ely. We enjoyed a local lunch and talked more about the programs and assistance we offer to Tuscarawas County landowners. We looked at a stream bank restoration grant project we are working on at the village park. Stream bank erosion and degradation is a major issue for water quality, fish and aquatic habitat. This project will take care of those issues and improve the recreation and aesthetic aspects as well.

We want to thank our wonderful producers who allowed us to stop at their farms to help show our legislators a little more about agriculture around Tuscarawas County.

To learn about what's happening at the Tuscarawas Soil & Water Conservation District, be sure to follow us on Facebook and check out our website at www.tuscsosil.com.

Dylan Stine is a Tuscarawas SWCD district technician.
