ORHS hosting National Train Day on May 13

Saturday, May 13 is National Train Day, and Orrville Railroad Heritage Society will celebrate this country-wide annual event as it has from its 2008 beginning.

This year's event will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Orrville Union Depot and will include a local forger creating items for sale including knives, coat racks, bottle openers, home décor and more, as well as a model railroad flea market and toy train show that will be held around the depot grounds.

Inside the depot there will be "O" and "HO" scale layouts, and for the first time, ORHS will host the "Suitcase Guy." The Depot Gift Shop will honor coupons worth $2 off a minimum purchase of $10, and at the same time, ORHS will kick off its first Toys for Tots Drive with support from Norfolk Southern Corporation and the USMC Reserves.

ORHS Rail Yard National Train Day activities also include Speeder Rides from 10 a.m. to noon based upon demand. Train rides in the open-air car #501 and the vintage Phantom window coach #208 will run at 1, 2 and 3 p.m. All rides are first come, first served.

ORHS will kick off its first Toys for Tots Drive with support from Norfolk Southern Corporation and the USMC Reserves.

Speeder Rides are $5 per ticket ($6 if paying with credit/debit card), adult or child. Train ride tickets are discounted on May 13 to $10 for the open-air car #501 and $15 for car #208 (additional fee for credit/debit card). Tickets for rides are only available at the rail yard located at 2174 S. Crownhill Road in Orrville.

There will be lots of activities at both Orrville locations. For more information visit www.orrville-railroad.com, Facebook or call the depot at 330-683-2426. ORHS is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization.

National Train Day will be celebrated in Orrville on May 13 and will include rides on the vintage Phantom window coach #208.

Plybon edges Mosley; care center levy fails

The race started close and stayed close all night, but Matt Plybon has earned the nod to become the next mayor of Orrville.

Plybon, going against Darrell Mosley II in the Republican primary on the May 2 ballot, edged his way to a win by just 22 votes (646-624). Plybon will now be unopposed on the November ballot and will replace longtime Orrville

Mayor Dave Handwerk.

"It is truly an honor to win the Orrville mayoral primary in a close race on May 2," Plybon wrote on Facebook on May 3. "A special thanks to Mr. Mosley and his team and supporters for a very competitive and passionate campaign. I am proud that he is a big part of our community with even better things to come."

"I am grateful for my family, friends and community for your support. We live in a great city in a great nation in which every vote counts. I believe in the journey of respecting each other, building relationships and strengthening our resources for the foundation of making Orrville a better place."

Four Republicans who ran unopposed for Orrville City Council also will be unopposed in November: Paul Vance (council president), Kyle Shanklin (at-large), C.J. Handwerk (Ward 1) and Patricia Carr (Ward 3).

In the race for an at-large council seat for an unexpired term ending Dec. 31, 2025, Democrat John C. Lorson and Republican Rees H. Davies both advanced with no opposition and will square off in November.

The proposed tax levy for the Wayne County Care Center went down to defeat by 931 votes in the unofficial results posted by the Wayne County Board of Elections (5,792 against, 4,861 for).

Megan Sarver

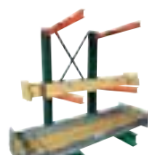

In the May 2 primary, Matt Plybon defeated Darrell Mosley by 22 votes and will advance to the November election as the lone candidate for Orrville mayor. Plybon, a Republican, will replace longtime Mayor Dave Handwerk.

OhioMeansJobs provides opportunity for success

By Dan Starcher

OhioMeansJobs' On-The-Job Training Program is designed to provide job training and hands-on experience to applicants seeking job-centric skills and knowledge.

Recently, area high school students visited the OhioMeansJobs Career Expo at Wayne College to explore opportunities.

According to Richard Owens, Wayne County job and family services director, more jobs are available than applicants, and companies are working hard to attract and retain top talent.

"Employers are hiring individuals that don't quite have the skill set they need, but if they are dedicated, show up and pass a drug screening, employers are ready and willing to hire them," Owens said. "They are also offering things like split shifts to accommodate work and life balance, and they are paying well above minimum wage."

Sandy Elliot of the Wayne County Schools Career Center echoed Owens.

"Companies are investing more in their employees," Elliot said. "They are spending more on training, and there is funding available for customized training and apprenticeship programs."

Bob Young, workforce program administrator for OhioMeansJobs, urges employers to take advantage of the federally funded OJT Program, which reimburses them up to $13,000 to hire and train new employees.

"We will do everything we can to help the employee and employer lessen the financial burden of training to become employed," Young said. "A completed apprenticeship program provides workers with a handsome salary and a credential that can be taken anywhere upon completion. It is a college alternative."

For both recent high school graduates and displaced workers, taking advantage of OJT programming can be a way to jumpstart their careers and gain experience and skills such as the following:

—Hands-on experience in their chosen field.

—Networking with other industry professionals.

—Often getting paid while learning.

—Getting personal growth by helping to identify individual strengths and weaknesses.

The length of the training varies depending on the employer and the specific training program. Typically, training is from six to 12 months.

To apply for the program, visit www.ohiomeansjobs.ohio.gov and complete the online application form.

Sport of pickleball is seeing its popularity explode

Pickleball is a sport that has been gaining popularity in recent years. What was once a backyard game has become a serious sport with tournaments, leagues and professional players. This game is a combination of tennis, badminton and ping-pong, played on a smaller court than tennis, making it more accessible for players of all ages and skill levels.

One person who has experienced firsthand the growth of the sport is Jeff Roberts. Roberts, who has been teaching pickleball at the Aspen Racquet Club in Wooster for almost four years, spent many years as an avid tennis player before getting bitten by the pickleball bug.

Roberts believes one of the main reasons pickleball has become so popular is due to the social aspect of the game.

"Pickleball can be played with two or four players; it is a great activity for couples or groups of friends to enjoy together," Roberts said. "It promotes social connectedness among players and is an excellent motivator for exercise."

The game was created in 1965 by three friends — Joel

Pritchard, Bill Bell and Barney McCallum — in Bainbridge Island, Washington. The three were looking for a way to entertain their families during the summer months and decided to create a new game using equipment they had lying around: a badminton net, a Wiffle ball and paddles.

Since then pickleball has grown in popularity, particularly among older adults looking for a low-impact sport that is easy to learn and play. According to the Sports & Fitness Industry Association, there were an estimated 4.2 million pickleball players in the United States in 2020, up from just 2.5 million in 2015.

Over the past year, Roberts has seen participation in pickleball events and lessons at Aspen Racquet Club double. In January the club hosted its annual Pickleball Tournament, and 64 competitors from Wayne, Ashland, Medina and Holmes counties participated in the two-day event. With over 70% of those participating playing at an intermediate to advanced level, this year's competition was highly competitive.

With the sport's popularity rising and recognizing the need for dedicated pickleball courts, the Aspen Racquet Club has made investments. This includes the addition of new nets, paddles and balls.

"We recognized the growing popularity of pickleball and the need for dedicated facilities to support the sport," said Kent Smith, director of tennis at Aspen Racquet Club. "Our goal is to provide players with a first-class facility and equipment that would enable them to enjoy the sport and improve their skills. We are thrilled to see the enthusiastic response from the community."

In addition to its increased popularity among older adults, there is a growing interest in younger generations. Younger players are experimenting with new equipment such as lightweight paddles and high-performance balls to make the game faster. Others are adding new rules and variations to make the game more challenging.

The rise of pickleball is a testament to the appeal of a sport that is easy to learn and accessible to players of all ages and skill levels. It provides a sense of community and socialization. With its growing popularity and international recognition, the future of pickleball looks bright.

For more information or to schedule a private lesson with Roberts, visit www.aspenracquetclub.com or call Heather Alexander at 330-439-5004.

A Message to Mom

How you can help make Mother's Day a special one

Mother's Day is an opportunity to show the moms in your life how much they are loved and appreciated.

Though many moms may insist they don't want anything beyond spending the day with their children, gifts are a big part of Mother's Day.

No two moms are the same, and fortunately, great gifts can be found for moms from all walks of life this Mother's Day. Though standards like flowers and greeting cards will always have a place on Mother's Day, the following are some gift ideas that can put smiles on the faces of moms from all walks of life.

Bookworm

There's no end to the gift options for mothers who love to curl up with a good book. Of course, some new books may delight Mom, but gifts that can improve the reading experience also merit consideration. For example, an ergonomic backrest reading pillow can make bedtime reading sessions more comfortable while a nightstand book holder also can be ideal for moms who can't seem to keep track of their bookmarks.

Fitness enthusiast

Some moms simply love to get in a good workout. Shoppers whose mothers or wives love to break a sweat might want to look into home gym equipment, as many fitness enthusiasts transformed part of their homes into exercise areas during the pandemic. A suspension training system won't take up much room but can provide an intense, full-body workout. A new yoga mat, some wireless Bluetooth headphones or a compression stretching mat are some additional gifts that might make exercise-loving moms smile this Mother's Day.

Traveler

Moms whose children still live under the same roof may not have much opportunity to travel, but empty nesters and grandmothers might. For such moms, a foldable, hanging travel bag can make it easy and convenient for Mom to carry all of her toiletries and access them without taking up what's often minimal hotel room counter space. For moms who want to document their excursions, a leather travel journal encourages them to note their experiences and gives them something they can revisit for years to come. Of course, some new luggage can make the perfect gift for newly retired moms who can't wait to start visiting places on their travel bucket lists.

Businesswoman

Millions of moms manage to juggle the obligations of family life with a challenging career. Mother's Day can be a great time to recognize that balancing act. A self-heating coffee mug can ensure Mom's morning cup o' joe doesn't go cold as she traverses her way through a hectic morning routine. Another great gift is a charging mouse pad that can charge all of Mom's devices even while she's working. If you want to help Mom remain calm as she navigates her way through a day filled with personal and professional obligations, an essential oils diffuser can create a sense of relaxation on the most hectic of days.

Ideas for children

Mother's Day also is a special time for children to show their appreciation. Older children typically are capable of designing their own Mother's Day crafts or even shopping for gifts for Mom while younger children will likely need some help from an adult.

Youngsters may not be able to take charge of Mother's Day festivities alone, but they certainly have the energy and enthusiasm to chip in. Handmade craft gifts are a thoughtful way for young kids to show their love for Mom and a great gift option for young children looking to give something special to Mom on Mother's Day.

Here are a few ideas that can occupy even the youngest of hands:

All that is necessary for this craft is a printed photograph of the child's face, paper, scissors, glue and finger paints. The child should dip hands into the paint and make four handprints on paper in some preferred colors.

When dry, cut around the perimeter of the handprints. These will serve as the "wings" of the butterfly. Glue the picture of the child's face in the middle of a piece of paper or card stock.

Draw a butterfly body underneath it or print out a stock image to use. Draw antennae sticking out of the child's head and attach the handprints around the head and butterfly body to make the wings.

Heartfelt masterpiece

Children can draw and color all over a large sheet of construction paper or another durable paper. An adult can then use another sheet of paper to make a frame mat of sorts, cutting out a heart shape from the middle.

Both pieces of paper are then trimmed to the dimensions of a photo frame. The artwork is placed first and then the heart matting on top so the artwork will show through the heart shape. Frame everything together for a lasting memento.

Fuzzy flowers

Kids can make Mom a bouquet of flowers that will never wilt.

Print a photo of the child's face and attach it to a piece of circular card stock that is roughly 6 inches in diameter. Have the child paint a Popsicle stick green and then attach that to the back of the round card stock.

The child then glues small, fuzzy pom poms to the card stock surrounding the picture to make a flower. If desired, attach a magnet to the back of the flower so it can be secured to the refrigerator.

One final gift

All of the above ideas are ones Mom will undoubtedly love and appreciate.

One gift she might cherish over all else, though, is free — your time. A visit, a FaceTime chat, a phone call — they all will brighten her special day and yours too. Your presence, to her, is better than any presents.

File

You can help Mom remain calm after a day filled with personal and professional obligations with gifts such as bath soaps, an essential oils diffuser or scented candles.

Next CWRT featuring Keyse as Great Lakes naval captain

The Wayne County Civil War Round Table, which is free and open to the public at the Wooster branch of the Wayne County Public Library, will continue May 16 at 6:15 p.m. with a presentation by Edward E. Keyse as Commodore John C. Carter.

Carter was the captain of the USS Michigan from 1861-64. The home port of the USS Michigan was Erie, Pennsylvania. The ship sailed on all the Great Lakes except Lake Ontario. She was stationed at Sandusky Bay to guard Johnson's Island POW camp in September 1864 when Confederates attempted to free the 3,000 Confederate officers held there and capture the USS Michigan. Keyse refers to this as "The Second Battle of Lake Erie" and gives his presentation in the first person in uniform.

Keyse is a lifelong resident of Lake County. His over 50 years of boating and sailing, mostly all over Lake Erie, and his military

Ohio's Hospice LifeCare adult grief support group starting up

Ohio's Hospice LifeCare's Pathways of Hope Grief Counseling Center will offer a seven-week grief group to support adults who are grieving the loss of a loved one. The series, Faces of Grief, will meet Wednesdays from May 17 through July 5 from 5:30-6:45 p.m. at the Marilyn B. and Mark E. Gustafson Center for Supportive Care at Ohio's Hospice LifeCare, 1900 Akron Road.

David Hargrave, LSW, CCTP, CGCS, bereavement counseling professional with Ohio's Hospice LifeCare, will lead the grief group. Topics covered during the group sessions include Myths About Grief, Common and Normal Grief Reactions, Different Grieving Styles, The Four Tasks of Mourning, Acknowledging the Secondary Losses, Factors That Influence the Grief Journey and Taking Care of Yourself During the Journey of Grief.

The Faces of Grief group provides a venue for sharing experiences, discussing challenges and learning about positive coping strategies along the grief journey. These sessions are designed to help adult griever understand the many aspects of grief, process the pain and adjust to a world without their loved one.

During the Faces of Grief group, Hargrave will lead participants in identifying and processing the various ways grief presents itself. It is not necessary to share openly in a group setting to receive support.

While the event is free and open to the public, registration is required. To register, email PathwaysOfHope@LifeCareHospice.org or call 330-264-4899.

Ohio's Hospice LifeCare, a not-for-profit organization established in 1982, is an affiliate of Ohio's Hospice that serves communities in Northeast Ohio.

WCSCC seniors honored by WEDC

Top seniors from 24 of the career-technical programs at the Wayne County Schools Career Center were honored at the Wayne Economic Development Council Best in Workforce Senior Breakfast held at White Oak Event Center in Orrville.

WEDC President Maribeth Burns welcomed the career center staff, students and representatives from area businesses that employ those students. She then introduced guest speaker Diane Jarrett, director of special projects for Jarrett Companies Inc.

Jarrett, a graduate of the career center's practical nursing program, spoke about the five best lessons she's learned from influential people in her life.

"Never let 'em see you sweat," Jarrett said, sharing the first lesson learned during her first clinical assignment at the career center. "You need to square up your shoulders, stand tall, put your chin up and face the challenge head-on."

Passing on wisdom gleaned from working, family relationships, and building and operating businesses, Jarrett said, "Always be willing to hear the other side of the argument. It will make you a better co-worker, family member, friend, and leader."

Students receiving certificates of recognition were Adam DeMassimo, agriculture and livestock production, Norwayne; Josiah Gasser, ag mechanics/power technologies, Heritage Private; Grace Cobb, animal science, Chippewa; Christian Garrett, automotive technologies, Waynedale; Dawson Wills, buildings and grounds, Wooster; Izaak Phillips, business, Dalton; Kayden Wertz, construction technologies, Smithville; Kara Rieman, cosmetology, Waynedale; Madysen Followay, criminal justice, Wooster; Han-

How nurses cope with loss

Working in the health care field comes with some soaring highs and considerable lows. It can be exhilarating when medical intervention saves the life of another person. Yet treatment is not always successful. Doctors, nurses and other care providers have to come to grips with the fact that, over the course of their careers, they will likely have to confront the death of a patient.

Patients tend to rely on their nurses for both medical support and emotional support. The bonds that develop between nurse and patient can be quite strong. However, nurses need to develop coping mechanisms to handle loss, whether it occurs frequently or less often.

The Journal of Nursing, the American Society of Registered Nurses and Nurse Journal offer these suggestions.

Prepare yourself.

Nurses who work in critical care and ICU wards should make an effort to recognize that death can strike patients at any moment. Critically injured patients or those with do not resuscitate orders could be on borrowed time, and recognizing that as a potential outcome can help nurses prepare for difficult moments.

Make time to properly grieve. Compassion draws many to nursing. Although nurses must compartmentalize while on the job, losing a close patient with whom you spent a lot of time can be devastating. Take the necessary time to mourn the loss so you can focus properly on other patients.

Help the family.

Nurses can comfort the family who has now lost a loved one, and advocate for anything they need. Put them in touch with the right services for the next steps in this difficult journey.

Talk to someone. Consult peers and talk about your feelings. It's likely others have gone through the same things as you. If speaking with coworkers is not enough, consider working with a therapist who can recommend further coping mechanisms. He or she also can recognize signs of burnout and when you might need to take a break.

Death is never easy. Coming to grips with patient loss is something nurses must do from time to time. With some ways to handle the situation, it may not get easier, but nurses can continue to do their jobs effectively.

first black male teacher, Russell is advocating for classrooms to reflect students' backgrounds and identities.

Russell's classes include African American history, which he has taught since the late 1990s, and race, gender and oppression, a class he developed. Part of his inspiration for the course came from an African politics course at Wooster with Akwasi Osei, then assistant professor of political science and black studies, and an intro to black studies course with then associate professor of sociology Terry Kershaw.

After completing his Bachelor of Arts with a major in history and a minor in black studies at Wooster, Russell earned a Master of Education in Curriculum and Instruction from Ashland University. He continues to take courses in child development at Oakland City University.

The 2023 commencement ceremony at the college also will include speakers from the Class of 2023 who have been nominated by their peers as having made an impact on the Wooster community during their time on campus. Speakers include Ethan Dasilva, Zoe Seymore and Britta Treu.

Approximately 480 students are expected to receive degrees from Wooster. Seniors and families who don't come to campus will be able to access livestreams of many commencement events and digital programs. For more information on the full schedule of events and guest services, visit the commencement website at www.wooster.edu/commencement.

Shaw, Shafer to present Paris Serenade concerts

Local musicians Susan Shaw and Ken Shafer will present a program of flute and piano music in Wooster on Sunday, May 14 at Westminster Church House and on Sunday, May 28 at First Presbyterian Church, both concerts at 7 p.m.

The program titled Paris Serenade will feature music by early 20th-century French composers including Fauré, Debussy, Bonis and others.

Both concerts are free and open to the public. A freewill offering will be received to benefit Musi-cambia, a nonprofit organization that develops music education programs and performances inside prisons and jails throughout the United States. Parking is available, and both locations also are wheelchair-accessible.

AU launching engineering program

Ashland University is launching a new academic program — industrial and systems engineering — which will be housed in the Dauch College of Business and Economics. The bachelor's program has been in development for almost two years and is enrolling students for this fall after recently being approved by both the Higher Learning Commission and the Ohio Department of Higher Education. "We are grateful to Bob and Jan Archer for helping us launch this new degree and to the faculty who moved the curriculum forward," AU President Carlos Campo said. "This new degree expands our academic offerings and gives us the opportunity to consider related degrees in the future as well."

"This is very exciting. We've never had an engineering degree at Ashland. We can now reach students that probably wouldn't even consider us in the past," said Dan Fox, dean of the College of Business and Economics and a member of the AU faculty since 2004. "Probably more important is the market really needs industrial and systems engineers." The demand for industrial and systems engineers has been growing. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, employment of industrial engineers is projected to grow 10% from 2021-31, faster than the average for all occupations. About 22,400 openings for industrial engineers are projected each year, on average, over the decade.

Fox believes this trend will continue well into the future, especially in Ohio, where the addition of the Intel plant in Licking County and other manufacturing initiatives are taking place. Companies across a

Auditions upcoming for HCA's summer musical

Holmes Center for the Arts will hold auditions for its summer musical, the award-winning "Guys and Dolls." HCA will bring the musical to Ohio Star Theater July 21-23.

HCA will hold open auditions May 17-19 from 6-8 p.m. or Saturday, May 20 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Holmes Center for the Arts, 5200 state Route 39, Millersburg (turn by the Burger King in Berlin).

Choose what audition day and time works best and walk in. Callbacks are the following week. Prepare one minute of a show tune to sing. No accompaniment will be provided, but participants may bring their own back-up track or sing a cappella. The song can be from any musical. Participants will be asked to read from a script and may be asked to do some dance steps as well. If unable to be present for the auditions, send an audition video to info@holmescenterforthearts.org. Auditions are for age 12 through all adult ages.

A musical comedy, "Guys and Dolls" is about gambling with luck and love under the bright lights of Broadway. It ran for 1,200 performances when it opened on Broadway in 1950. It received nearly unanimous positive reviews from critics and won a bevy of awards including Tony Awards, Drama Desks and Oliviers.

Rehearsals will start the week of June 5 and will be held Monday through Thursday from 6-8 p.m. and will gradually increase closer to the show. A more detailed schedule of rehearsals will be available. Performance dues for each performer are $80 with scholarships available.

Grady Suggs, Jr. will be the musical's director, his first time directing a musical. He's performed with HCA twice before — as Professor Bhaer in "Little

A lover of theater and music since high school, Suggs performed on stage in "Friday Night Live" at Indiana Wesleyan University and currently helps coach the youth drama team at Wooster Church of the Nazarene. He works at GOJO Industries in Wooster.

NEW conference coming in June to CFAES in Wooster

The Orrville Area Chamber of Commerce's second annual Networking Empowers Women mini-conference will be held Friday, June 2 at the Ohio State CFAES Welcome Center at 2122 Williams Road in Wooster.

This year's conference titled Creative Solutions in an Uncertain World will feature three female leaders presenting on topics around the power of positivity, creativity, resilience and grit, and storytelling from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Carrie Foy of The J.M. Smucker Co. will present Women in Leadership — The Power of Positivity in a Dynamic Environment. Attendees will discuss the importance of remaining open to change and even creating it, staying hopeful about the future, and continuously improving one's personal brand. A reflection exercise outlining the skills and attributes of successful leadership will conclude Foy's presentation.

Katie Kogelman, CEO at United Way of Wayne and Holmes Counties, will present Rise to the Occasion? I don't think so ...

Kogelman will engage attendees with a strategy exercise. She will teach a formula for success and walk attendees through the challenges and victories of her life and career.

Angie Giltner of Creating Fierce Female Titans LLC

will present How Impactful Leaders Can Rewrite History through Compelling Storytelling. Learn how to rewrite history and create your own ending.

The Orrville Area Chamber of Commerce invites members interested in networking with other women in leadership positions for personal and professional development to participate in the event. Log in to your chamber member account when registering. The cost to attend is $60 for OACC members. Nonmembers are welcome to attend as a guest for the price of $70.

Limited tickets are available. Casual dress is encouraged. A light breakfast and lunch are included.

WCA Dance Program set to present 'The Little Mermaid'

Wayne Center for the Arts' Dance Program will present "The Little Mermaid," a twist on the traditional recital, on May 25 and 26 at 7 p.m. and May 27 at 2 p.m.

"This year's spring recital is exciting because we are adding a theme and storyline to our typical showcase presentation," said Brittany Eckstrom, dance coordinator.

Eckstrom said 90 children age 3-18 will participate in the performance.

"The Little Mermaid" will take attendees under the sea as dancers are showcased by class including ballet, tap and jazz. Wayne Center for the Arts Ballet Company dancers will be featured in principal roles.

Wayne Center for the Arts' Dance Program will present "The Little Mermaid" on May 25, 26 and 27.

The event will be held at the arts center.

"This is the first recital to be held at WCA in many years. Our historic building is the perfect place to host our immersive production, where the audience will be sitting within the world of the show," Eckstrom said. "Original choreography, new costumes and young dancers from all over Wayne County are sure to make this recital one for the books."

Tickets are $15 for general seating, but VIP tickets also are available for $75, which include priority seating, name in the program and an open bar, and are available online at www.WayneArtsCenter.org. All proceeds from the event will support Wayne Center for the Arts, specifically to provide scholarships and access to dance programming. A cash bar, hors d'oeuvres and a gift shop will be available before each performance.

H-W Electric Co-op awards over $20,000 in scholarships

The Holmes-Wayne Electric Cooperative Scholarship Contest is offered annually to co-op members' children who are graduating high school seniors and reside in a home served by Holmes-Wayne Electric. The cooperative has distributed more than $275,000 in scholarships within the community since its establishment.

Judges for the two-day virtual competition were Dale Sidle, Craig Hershberger and Melinda Eliot.

Sarah Irwin of West Holmes High School is the first-place winner of $3,000 in scholarships in the 2023 contest. Irwin was part of a group of 37 students representing 11 area high schools who competed for a total of $20,200 in scholarships.

Irwin is the daughter of Cormac and Jody Irwin of Big Prairie. Her top school choice this fall is Marietta College.

"I am honored to represent Holmes-Wayne Electric Co-op, and receiving this scholarship means so much to me," she said. "While my major may currently be undecided, I know that this scholarship will benefit me in so many amazing ways. I can now focus more of my time on future education and goals rather than focusing too much on the finances that go along with it."

Irwin represented Holmes-Wayne Electric at the Ohio's Electric Cooperatives scholarship competition in Columbus.

Other winners

Jaret Snyder won second place ($2,800). Snyder is the son of Nate and Amy Snyder of Big Prairie. A senior at West Holmes High School, he will major in music education with an instrumental emphasis at Ohio University.

"The most meaningful experience of my high school career was the All-Ohio state fair band," he said. "It opened my eyes to how the arts can provide both technical and personal enrichment. Joining this group fueled my desire to constantly seek discomfort and try new things, which is exactly why I'm excited to begin college."

Katie Seboe won third place ($2,500). Seboe is the daughter of Kelly and Julie Seboe of Millersburg. She will graduate from Loudonville High School. This fall she will attend Geneva College, majoring in communications with a minor in writing.

"This scholarship shows the importance of community and the impact it has had on my life," she said. "By showing that others are greater than me, whether that's tutoring fifth-graders or simply sacrificing my time, I have seen how the people around me change who I am. I am so thankful for this opportunity."

Noah Cerniglia won fourth place ($2,000). Cerniglia is the son of Andrew and Angela Cerniglia of Holmesville. He will graduate from Waynedale High School and Tri-County International Baccalaureate Academy. He will attend The College of Wooster or University of Notre Dame, majoring in environmental engineering or architecture.

"In high school I was lucky to be able to attend the International Baccalaureate program at Wooster High School and pursue the academic rigor I desired," he said. "I want to thank the IB program for all it has done for me, allowing me to grow as a student and a member of this community. I would also like to thank Holmes-Wayne Electric for giving me this scholarship and aiding me in my academic pursuits."

Laci Snyder won fifth place ($1,900). Snyder is the daughter of Nate and Amy Snyder of Big Prairie. A senior at West Holmes High School, she will attend the University of Cincinnati, majoring in computer science.

"I am beyond grateful to have received this scholarship," she said. "It will help relieve some of the financial burdens of college and will aid me in focusing more on my academics and to achieve a technological career."

Jenna Rose won sixth place ($1,800). Rose is the daughter of Kevin and Jessica Rose of Wooster. A senior at Triway High School, she will major in kinesiology at Miami University.

Claire Yost won seventh place ($1,700). Yost is the daughter of Matthew and Abby Yost of Wooster. She is a senior at Central Christian High School and will pursue a degree in business management and minor in entrepreneurship at Taylor University.

Becca Schuch won eighth place ($1,600). Schuch is the daughter of Jason and Erika Schuch of Shreve. A senior at West Holmes High School, she will attend Grace College and major in environmental studies/sciences and minor in communications.

Lily Yoder won ninth place ($1,500). Yoder is the daughter of Brian and Stephanie Yoder of Walhonding. A senior at River View High School, she is pursuing a degree in dental hygiene at Shawnee State University.

Felicity Cline won 10th place ($1,400). Cline is the daughter of Heath and Amy Cline of Killbuck. A senior at West Holmes High School, she will major in nursing at Mount Vernon Nazarene University.

Established in 1935, Holmes-Wayne Electric Cooperative Inc. is a non-profit electric distribution utility owned and operated by its member owners. Headquartered in Millersburg, with a district office in West Salem, HWECC maintains over 2,300 miles of distribution line and 19 substations. HWECC serves more than 18,000 accounts in Holmes, Wayne, Medina, Ashland, Stark, Tuscarawas, Knox and Coshocton counties. A nine-member board of trustees, comprised of cooperative members and elected by the membership, oversees the cooperative.

One highlight of the annual Kidron Days is the schedule of races, with runners participating in either the 5k or 10k race.

'Bigger and better'

Village gearing up for this year's Kidron Days

By Jacqui Hershberger

The second weekend in June, Kidron Days will once again happen in the heart of Amish Country. Garage sales, discounts at local businesses, a benefit meal, and 1.75 mile and 5k/10k races will make up the weekend plans June 8-10.

"We hope to make it bigger and better," said Jacob Troyer, chairman of the Kidron Days Committee who also serves as president of the Kidron Council.

People can have their garage sales put on the map, which is available to view online at www.kidrondays.com, by calling or texting their name and address to 234-799-2137.

"Garage sales were already a big part of this time of year in the area, and organizing them and holding the bulk of them on a single weekend seemed like a good idea, bringing more people into the area and benefiting all the garage sales," said Henry Hershberger, who serves on the Kidron Days Committee. "We believe it will also help foster a sense of community."

Various sales and specials will be offered by the Kidron Merchants Group at locations throughout town. According to Sue Bukovitz, a member of the Kidron Merchants Group, the collaborative team with members from existing Kidron area businesses hopes to give back to the community, look for ways to enhance the downtown square, encourage new businesses and work together to increase traffic to local businesses.

The benefit meal this year will help two local men — Wayne J. Miller and Wayne H. Miller — who both have had recent medical expenses. The details of the meal that will be held Friday, June 9 are still being solidified.

"The decision was made by the Kidron Days Committee to approach these individuals and their families to ask whether they would accept, and both agreed," Hershberger said. "There is at this time no formal process for selection, and in the future the committee would be glad to hear from the community about individuals in need."

On Saturday, June 10, starting at 7:40 a.m., three races will start in 10-minute increments, beginning with the 10k, then the 5k and ending with the 1.75-mile family walk/run.

Participants will have the opportunity to run or walk on country roads and private farm trails with views of Kidron only accessible to outsiders during the race.

People can sign up online at www.midohiorm.com or on race day at the Sprunger Building, 13701 Emerson Road, Apple Creek, starting at 6:30 a.m. Registration will close 15 minutes before the race start time. Race costs through June 10 are $35 for the 5k, $45 for the 10k and $25 for the 1-mile. Each race is $5 more on race day.

All participants will receive an event T-shirt, finisher's medal, and a chance at awards and prizes including medals for first, second and third in all age groups.

According to Hershberger, last year there were 150 participants in the run, and this year the goal is to sign up 200-250.

"There may be slight variations to the course, but it will remain largely the same. We received many positive comments on the course last year," he said.

People not interested in racing will be able to sit back and relax at the Sprunger Building while having hot coffee from a trailer onsite. Activities will include a jump house and a balloon clown to keep the youngsters occupied during the races. Proceeds from the run will benefit Sonnenberg Village and the Kidron Merchants Group.

"Kidron is a special and unique place, and the people in the area have a strong sense of community," Hershberger said. "They are very supportive of an event such as this and are willing to help make things happen. We would like to thank everyone who helps in any way with donations, by volunteering on race day and all the other efforts that go into the event."

More details can be found at www.kidrondays.com and www.midohiorm.com.

Kate Hawthorn received the 2022 Officer of the Year from the Voices for Children Committee and Wayne County Children Services Board for investigating a suspected child abuse case.

Hawthorn earns county Officer of the Year award

By Dan Starcher

The Wayne County Children Services Board has a crucial role in ensuring the safety and well-being of children that face abuse, neglect or exploitation.

Each year the governmental agency, along with the Voices for Children Committee, recognizes a law-enforcement officer that has played a significant role in identifying and addressing child abuse and neglect cases. This year Kate Hawthorn, formerly of the Doylestown Police Department, was honored for her role in investigating a suspected abuse case.

"It was a long case, and there was a lot of work put into it," Hawthorn said. "I worked for several weeks conducting interviews. It was very tiring, but there was a child whose safety was impacted, so we needed to do it."

Hawthorn couldn't discuss any details of the ongoing case, only to say many red flags led to the investigation.

"(Cases like this) give me extra motivation," she said. "I have always been passionate about the protection of children. My (mom) was a principal; I have always been around children, so it gives me an extra spark when I see something like this going on."

Unfortunately for the Doylestown Police Department, Hawthorn resigned and will return to her home in England with plans to resume a career in law enforcement. However, she will leave the U.S. knowing she was instrumental in providing a brighter future for a child involved with the WCCSB.

Keynote speaker Anthony Bacon knows firsthand the opportunity individuals like Hawthorn, in conjunction with the WCCSB, can provide.

"I grew up in the system; children's services did a lot for me," Bacon said. "I spent 11 of my first 18 years in and out of the system."

Bacon entered the system for the first time at 2 years old after being left unattended by his mother and falling out of a second-story window.

"I don't remember much from these times," he said. "But by the time I was 4, I was back in the system. At 6, right back. My mother was addicted to drugs, and she let me do whatever I wanted."

With his mother in prison, Bacon was again back in the system.

Determining if nursing is the right vocation for you

Nursing is a popular career choice. With strong job security and the potential for growth, it is no wonder nursing draws such interest. In 2021, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated there would be about 203,200 openings for registered nurses each year for the next decade. And employment of registered nurses is expected to grow by 6 percent between 2021 and 2031.

A strong job outlook and competitive pay (nurses earn median salaries of $77,600 as of May 2021) appeals to any aspiring professional, but a career in nursing is about more than opportunity and compensation. Individuals considering nursing need to determine if the field might be the right fit for them. It's not always glamorous being a nurse. In fact, it can be quite challenging and often stressful. However, the rewards tend to outshine the trials and tribulations.

The following are some components of nursing that can help individuals determine if the field is right for them.

Training time constraints

There are different levels of nursing, each of which requires a different amount of training and certification. A certified nursing assistant must complete a program at a specific CNA vocational school, and such programs run between four and 10 months, on average. Licensed vocational nurses can expect to study for 12 to 18 months, and must pass the NCLEX-PN licensing exam. Registered nurses will need two to four years of schooling and are expected to earn an associate's degree or bachelor's degree. Aspiring RNs also will need a passing grade on the NCLEX-RN licensing exam. Most nurses will have to complete clinicals to showcase skills in real life situations.

Flexibility

Nurses need to be adaptable and flexible. Shifts may not be consistent and the demands of the job may differ from day to day, even though there may be some overlap. If challenging new experiences come easy to you or if you have the flexibility to work different shifts rather than a set schedule, then nursing could be a good option.

File
There are certain components of nursing that can help individuals determine if the field is right for them.

NURSING

Problem-solver, critical thinker

Although nurses are part of a larger health care team and may need to leave certain decisions to physicians, there are plenty of critical decisions and think-on-your-feet actions that may need to be taken to ensure patient health. It is essential for nurses to keep their emotions in check so they can think clearly in stressful situations.

Good communicator

Nurses must be able to speak and interact with doctors and others in a clinical setting, but also communicate effectively with patients who may not fully understand all of the medical jargon nor what is happening to them. Nursing requires social skills and an ability to pivot between many different roles — all the while adjusting communication tactics depending on the audience.

Organized and diligent

There isn't too much room for mistakes in health care, which means nurses will need to maintain their attention to detail; otherwise, they could subject patients to injury or even death.

In addition to these traits, good nurses should have compassion for patients. A desire to help others during difficult times compels many people to become a nurse.

“WCCSB was not against me,” he said. “Their job isn’t to hurt us children but to help us do better. They made me feel needed and wanted.”

Bacon realized he wanted a better life. He credits the constant support from WCCSB staff in helping him reach his potential. At 35 years old, Bacon is now a chef and is starting a food truck business.

Kara Wentz, director of children’s initiatives for Gov. Mike DeWine, thanked everyone involved in protecting children while speaking at the luncheon.

“We are all in this together,” she said. “We share the same commitment and end goals: to better serve our kids.”

range of industries need these types of engineers, from manufacturing to energy, healthcare, military, technology and transportation.

“Really, any organization that needs a process improvement. It’s all about increasing efficiency and speed,” Fox said.

Students who enroll in the program this fall as part of the first cohort will take core curriculum and prerequisite math and science courses, then engineering classes in future years, which is typical for engineering programs. Fox said Ashland is pursuing future internship partners, as well as accreditation from the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, which will be retroactive to all graduates of the program.

Ashland offers academic programs in supply-chain management, manufacturing management and business analytics, so the addition of industrial and systems engineering is a natural fit. It also gives business students who are undecided on a major another option.

“Maybe (students) come here with an interest in supply chain, but then they really get interested in industrial engineering — or the other way around,” Fox said.

For more information email or call Mark Sindelar, assistant professor of industrial engineering and supply-chain management, at msindela@ashland.edu or 419-289-5223.

I may have missed a photo of the whip-poor-will I recently spotted, but I did pick up a nice consolation prize by way of this shot of a palm warbler along a wooded trail near Orrville. The sparrow-sized bird was likely just passing through, as 98% of its species nests in the boreal forests of Canada after wintering along the Gulf Coast and all across the Caribbean.

Even with camera ready, you win some, lose some

For most of my adult life, I’ve carried a camera with me nearly every place I’ve gone. One of the points I’ve often emphasized while speaking about photography to different groups has been this: If you want to take great pictures, it helps to have a camera with you at all times.

That point has become relatively moot in the last decade or so as cellular phones have progressed in sophistication to the point that the camera in my smartphone is now actually more advanced and capable than my expensive, heavy and relatively delicate “good” camera. It also helps that the whole unit fits perfectly into my back pocket and weighs only a fraction of the big, digital SLR I used to have to lug along in a backpack if I was riding my bike, hiking or cross-country skiing.

Whatever the device, even if it’s as close at hand as your own back pocket, you’ve still got to hope for the grace of a moment to make the shot; otherwise that incredible “thing” you’re looking at is gone for good. I’ve got hundreds of missed moments to my credit. Fortunately, sometimes when a photo has proved impossible, a story will do nearly as well.

My most recent “missed moment” came as I was mashing my way around a local mountain bike trail the other evening. With racing season just around the corner, I was doing my best to get some off-road miles in after work as daytime melted quickly toward darkness. Deciding upon one last lap before sundown, I was on the trail just as the creatures of the night began to awaken. Deer dodging is a well-honed self-preservation skill for most mountain bikers, and I’m ever on the lookout for the high-speed shadows to come bursting through the brush.

John C. Lorson
The Rail Trail Naturalist

On this particular evening, however, I should have been looking out for something much closer to the ground as I avoided a T-bone crash with a rapidly traveling skunk by no more than 2 feet. Luckily for me, the skunk was coming rather than going, so by the time it squared its squinting end around in my direction, I was already out of range.

My next encounter, just a few seconds later, proved to be even more exciting and instantly became one of those moments I’ve missed with the camera that will be visible forever if only in my mind’s eye. I found myself face to face with my very first whip-poor-will.

A day sleeper, the whip-poor-will forages by night, catching flying insects in its gaping, oversized mouth. Much more frequently heard than seen, the whip-poor-will’s call has inspired poetry, song and legend for centuries. The male cries its own name repeatedly (sometimes seemingly endlessly) throughout the summer night, both to attract a mate and to defend its territory. To call the whip-poor-will a ground nester is a stretch as the adult bird, its eggs and later its young chicks are so thoroughly camouflaged all are nearly impossible to spot. The eggs are simply laid on the ground.

I was only lucky enough to catch my fleeting glimpse because the dark brown bird seemed to be momentarily “dust bathing” in the loose, sandy clay of the trail. One moment of me and the bird was on its way to tell its own story in the growing glow of the rising moon.

Not working at the hardest job there is in the world

I looked at their Facebook page with wonder. It was as if I were teleported back 28 years to when I was a young mother with two little ones of my own; only this time there were three children.

Evelyn and Violet were dressed in matching pink ensembles with halos of blonde hair. In between those little dolls sat my nephew's lovely 30-something wife Dani. In her arms lay her precious newborn son Augustus. Dani looked radiant, but I'm sure she was exhausted after wrestling those babies into their duds. Dani is what I was many years ago: a stay-at-home mother. And she is greatly outnumbered with three kids under the age of 4.

Many years ago I decided I wanted to be a full-time mom. I was a late bloomer, having already taught high school for 13 years, and I wanted to raise my own babies. I remember turning in my resignation letter to the superintendent tearfully. With one baby on each knee, one at nearly 2 years old and the other newborn, I knew that with no family nearby to help me, I needed to be present for my own children.

I was lucky to be able to do it, but many of my working friends assured me it was much easier to leave

Leslie Pearce-Keating
Notes from the Second Half each morning than to stay home with two toddlers. In truth those were the happiest days of my life. Now my niece Dani has made the same choice.

Recently, I was discussing my someday retirement with my sister, who was a principal for 40 years. She was quick to remind me I spent over 10 years at home with my kids as if I were leading a life of leisure. Instead, I was raising my children while also serving as perpetual room mother, directing plays for the fifth- and sixth-graders each fall at their elementary school, being the transportation engineer, running a daunting calendar of appointments for each child, and making sure they made each soccer or baseball practice, music or ballet lesson.

I also served a full-scale from-scratch meal each evening, did the laundry, packed lunches, stripped beds and cleaned a huge house. In addition, I did all the shopping, party planning, arranging of plumbers, raking leaves and picking weeds. I had Easter egg hunts for 75 kids with 2,500 stuffed eggs. I put up two giant Christmas trees, served on parish council and soloed in choir. I was a one-woman show.

Of course, back then I also was teaching several drama classes at the arts center and writing for the local newspaper. But repeatedly, I was told I was "not working." I learned early on when my preemie son had colic for five straight months that this was indeed the hardest job on Earth. Meanwhile, I was scrubbing the floor of my triple garage and cleaning my husband's car for Father's Day. And let's not talk about the basement.

When my children grew up enough to not need so much care, I went back to work. I began teaching full-time for OSU in the communications department. It was a relief to eat my lunch without also overseeing children doing their homework or cutting someone's meat.

I couldn't believe the quiet of this new life: No "SpongeBob SquarePants" blared on the TV as I tried to write. No guitar was echoing from the basement. I was heartbroken my boy's rock band was silent when he went off to music school. And then my daughter left, and there was complete silence.

So this message is for all those mothers out there who are home with children, perhaps unappreciated by the world for their hard work and toil.

I want you to remember the noses you've cleaned and the bottoms you've wiped, the knees you've bandaged, and the nights without sleep while doing the hardest job on Earth: being a mom.

I want you to be proud of the hard work you've done, often daunting and perhaps without support. And I assure you the world may not remember what you've done, but you will. And if you're lucky, your kids will too — some day.

I wish I could tell Dani in some meaningful way she will never forget what it felt like to nurse her baby in the middle of the night, or how sweet those first sloppy kisses were, or how happy she will be when her children make those first clumsy Mother's Day cards in preschool. But she will remember — every bit of it. I know she will — just like I do and you too.

Because being a mom matters. It really matters.

Squirrel Wars, Chapter 2: When things get nuts!

After having spent a good portion of my lifetime seeking to take them out to dinner in the most literal of ways, a strange epiphany allowed me to view squirrels as sort of misguided little puppy dogs.

Maybe they’re not just “tree rats” after all, I told myself. Perhaps, they’re more like miniature versions of my own pup, Frankie, with cold little noses, whiskers and expressive eyebrows.

When I abruptly but sincerely vowed to end my warring ways against their kind, the squirrels apparently missed the memo. I suppose it’s a stretch to imagine an animal with a brain the size of a chickpea can grasp the concept of a cease fire — especially when so much of that tiny brain seems to be devoted to driving me nuts. Or maybe it was simply too late to abort their latest mission once I announced my stand-down.

And so it was, on a recent Monday morning, when a co-worker and I spotted a large gray squirrel inconspicuously milling about near the front end of our work truck, we playfully mused the rodent was planting a bomb. When the critter seemed to vanish underneath the vehicle, I became genuinely suspicious.

“Cody, how about you stand clear as I start the thing up,” I said. “That way at least one of us will be left to name the suspect.”

When the engine turned over, that same varmint shot out from underneath the vehicle like a rocket-propelled grenade, missing the startled young man by less than a foot. Now fully wary of the interloper, we popped the hood to discover not just the hideout of a single actor but instead the headquarters of an entire squirrel sleeper cell. An entire platoon of young squirrels was hunkered down in a leaf-littered entrenchment between the valve covers.

Obviously outmanned, we called in reinforcements from the office who arrived within minutes. Their strategy of surrounding the baby squirrels with cameras in hand did little to shift the battle in our favor.

“Oh my gosh, they’re so cute!” “Can we take them home?” “How about we move their little nest to our office?”

This was not the type of tactical support I was looking for.

It was ultimately decided we would leave the hood open to allow momma squirrel to evacuate her brood. If, by the end of the day, any of the enemy remained, they would be transported by tow truck to an impoundment facility to await further processing.

For those of you who fear that such a trip might harm the young varmints, note that these young squirrels had likely traveled hundreds of miles already while huddled amid the whirr of gears, belts and dangerously gnawed electrical wires. Regarding the latter, their own mother’s work of sabotage, resulting in over $300 in damage, would mark the end of the brief period of détente between man and squirrel. Clearly there are battles yet to be fought and wars yet to be waged, whether or not my enemy has cute, little whiskers and expressive eyebrows!

WCAL baseball race could come down to last pitch

A few thoughts from the week in sports ...

The Wayne County Athletic League baseball title chase is a fantastic four-team race, which could come down to the last pitch next week.

Norwayne (13-2, 9-1) leads the way, followed by Hillsdale (13-4, 8-2), Waynedale (11-6, 8-2) and Dalton (10-7, 8-2).

If this was a horse race, the Bulldogs would definitely be the longshot bringing people to their feet down the stretch.

Ninth-year Dalton coach Scott Huth admits his team is the unexpected member of that quartet.

"It's definitely a pleasant surprise," said Huth, who had to replace seven graduated seniors. "Waynedale won a state title last year, Hillsdale went to the regionals and Norwayne had a lot back from a very good team.

"We only have three seniors, but we still thought

Aaron Dorksen
Columnist

we had the potential to be pretty good depending on how quickly the younger players came along. With the way we've been playing, we're probably a year ahead of schedule."

Huth didn't know just how good the Bulldogs would be. Dalton showed everyone it was for real by handing the Falcons their first two league losses last week.

The Bulldogs will be favored in a two-game series against Chippewa (6-11, 1-9) this week and then close with two huge contests against the Bobcats. Hillsdale will play Norwayne in a crucial series this week.

"We played Waynedale the second week of the season, and maybe the lights were too bright," Huth said. "But we've played really well since then. Lots of our guys also play basketball and football, which are very successful programs here. I think they just have that confidence that they can win, and it's carried over."

Huth said senior Jack Steiner is one of the best defensive high school shortstops he's ever seen. In addition to providing stellar glove work, Steiner leads the team with .400 batting (24 for 60) and 18 runs.

Classmates Justin Basinger (.353) and Bryce Johnson (.300) trail only Steiner and junior Trey Dunn (.386) among the team's leading hitters.

Junior Seth Wyckoff (4-1, 0.76 ERA, 51 strikeouts, 9 walks, 36.2 IP) and Basinger (2-0, 3.64, 24, 5, 25 IP) are the top two pitchers, with junior Will Carmichael (2-2, 4.30, 16, 15, 14.2 IP) also making key contributions.

Wyckoff and Basinger

Submitted

Dalton seniors Justin Basinger, left, Bryce Johnson and Jack Steiner have helped the Bulldogs battle for the WCAL title this spring.

don't overly impress people with how hard they throw but get the job done time after time.

"Wyckoff is a lefty, about 5-10, 150, and I'm so proud of the way he just comes out and doesn't back down to anyone," Huth said. "He has great movement and locates the ball well. He pitched last year against Division I Wooster, and we only lost 3-1. In our district semifinal game, he pitched really well in a 2-1 loss against Columbia Station.

"Sometimes our coaching staff doubts Basinger and thinks we need to get a reliever ready, but you look up and it's the sixth inning and he's keeping us right in the game. He's a winner."

It's been a challenging and rewarding 2023 season at the same time, Huth said.

"I have an entirely new coaching staff," said Huth, who led Dalton to the state Final Four in 2017 and won his only WCAL title in 2021 after sharing it with Waynedale. "They're all in their 20s and bring a lot of energy. They relate well to the players and have even recharged me."

The coach's son, former Dalton standout Cody Huth, is the varsity assistant. Also on the coaching staff are son-in-law Matthew Stewart (former Muskingum standout), nephew Hunter Shue, and former Grace College players Logan Swartzentruber (Dalton alum) and Xavier Harris.

The WCAL race will lead nicely into the postseason tournament, where the four local teams all have a shot of making some serious noise. Baseball brackets will be announced this weekend.

Softball brackets announced

Triway made a highly memorable run to the Div. II state championship last season.

The Titans (14-3) are having another phenomenal spring and are seeded second in the Div. III Northeast Sectional-District behind perennial power Keystone (15-0). Area teams Hillsdale (12-4), Tuslaw (15-4) and Northwestern (14-4) are seeded three to five in a loaded 22-team district. No. 7 seed Norwayne (12-3) and No. 8 Loudonville (12-3) also have strong teams.

For complete brackets and schedules for all divisions, visit www.ohsaa.org/sports/softball and then click Statewide Tournament Brackets.

Cavaliers' fallout

I had a lot of fun watching the Cleveland Cavaliers during the regular season as they won 51 games and made the playoffs for the first time since 2018.

Watching the fifth-seeded Knicks beat the fourth-seeded Cavs 4-1 in their opening round playoff series was miserable. Seeing the Knicks dominate the Cavs was as excruciating as hearing a dentist tell me I needed a dental implant a few years ago and then go over the necessary steps and tell me the cost. He did a great job, but it wasn't fun.

The Cavs were exposed as soft and badly lacking in a reliable 3-point shooter. Cleveland hung around late in several games, but the Knicks' Mitchell Robinson looked like a varsity player going against JVs as he crashed the offensive boards over and over.

Donovan Mitchell is in line to be named first-team All-NBA but didn't step up in the series. Darius Garland also was inconsistent.

It would really help both Mitchell and Garland, though, if Cleveland can get a small forward who can shoot, space the floor out and play defense.

Cleveland is limited in what it can do in the offseason due to Mitchell's contract, but the Cavs sorely need to address the 3-man spot and get a physical guy to play in the paint. Also, remind Evan Mobley and Garrett Allen where the weight room is.

Parting shot

I like what the Browns did with their draft picks, but it's impossible for anyone to grade a team's draft until the newcomers show their stuff on the field.

The Browns clearly put an emphasis on big linemen, with mammoth Ohio State tackle Dawand Jones (DE, 6-8, 374) and Missouri defensive end Isaiah McGuire (6-4, 268) among their picks. Even third-round pick Cedric Tillman (6-3, 215) from Tennessee is big for a wide receiver.

Aaron Dorksen can be emailed at aarondorksen24@gmail.com.

Supernatural thrills just seemed right for the time

For those of a certain age, these words still cast a spell: “A séance has been held in the great house at Collinwood, a séance which has suspended time and space and sent one girl on a frightening and uncertain journey into the past, back to the year 1795.”

There was something deliciously scary lurking in the very marrow of that expository sentence, a backbone-tin-gling, hair-raising frisson of anticipatory dread that made “Dark Shadows” so special.

I was 11 years old when the so-called “Gothic soap opera” made its debut, old enough to have left Santa Claus behind but still not ready to dismiss the possibility of witches and vampires. Having grown up with movies featuring Frankenstein, Dracula and the Wolf Man, I was already steeped in the legend and lore of the undead and the supernatural, being a “Chiller Theater” devotee.

Mike Dewey
Life Lines

Those Friday nights spent in front of the family black-and-white television set, the Jiffy Pop and a bottle of Cotton Club grape pop at the ready, were the stuff of childhood’s haunted happiness, and I looked forward to them with all my heart and soul.

Having friends over to share the experience made it even better, and those sleepovers forged a bond that lasted for a long time. Then we moved from the capital city to a small town, and it was time to make new friends, which is how I got to know Ghouardi.

Wearing his trademark lab coat, sporting a fright wig and Fu Manchu whiskers, he was a Friday night favorite long before I joined the faithful, but I was immediately amused by his catch phrases — “Ova Dey” and “Turn Blue” among them — and enjoyed his off-the-cuff riffing as he spoke stream-of-consciousness rants.

The movies he hosted weren’t really what you’d call classics of the horror genre, but that wasn’t the point. You tuned in for the vibe, the craziness, the chance he might say something scandalous.

But by the time “Dark Shadows” premiered, Ernie Anderson had left the stage, which meant young, impressionable imaginations were waiting for something new, something daring, something unlike anything that had ever aired on afternoon network TV.

THRILLS

It was the era of the Super Ball and Thing banks, Hot Wheels cars, and Sting Ray bikes, a time when music and movies and novels and, well, everything else was wired for unpredictable tomorrows.

And into that landscape of pop culture renaissance suddenly appeared a half-hour television show that, after a fitful start, exploded into a nationwide sensation, filling a void not many of us realized had been waiting for just that kind of thrill ride.

What happened, to give it a name, was Barnabas Collins.

It's rather difficult to explain just how massive a star Jonathan Frid became once his misanthropic vampire had made his debut, but in a time when the Monkees were in the Top Forty and "Star Trek" was creating its own buzz, Barnabas took a back seat to no one.

But it wasn't simply a one-vampire show. "Dark Shadows" featured the powerful Collins clan, a crazy-quilt assemblage of blueblood snobs, greedy in the worst sense of the word, a family bent on dominating every aspect of life in Collinsport. Having Barnabas suddenly show up with his rakish style and debonair ways — not to mention his penchant for biting people in the neck — created an unsettling dynamic in the mansion in the fog in the night.

Victoria Winters was the governess who had become unstuck in time, and it was through her adventures that most of the action progressed, but along with her we got to know Angelique, Josette, the Reverend Trask, Ben Stokes, Nathan Forbes, Peter Bradford and Willie Loomis, Barnabas' faithful Igor-like right-hand man.

"Dark Shadows" quickly became must-see-TV long before such a phenomenon existed, but with its popularity, at least in the world of the Catholic grade school

I attended, there came a vicious backlash.

Seemed as if all that manifestation of the dark arts — séances and witches and vampires and the like — created a collective outrage among the church elders, who quickly decided "Dark Shadows" could not be viewed by any child enrolled in the school.

This made it even more mandatory, truly appointment television.

The one thing you didn't want to do was tell a lot of preteens something was bad for them and, even worse, banning it, labeling it sinful and filing it under the harsh category of "condemned."

So, of course, we gathered every afternoon en masse at a house in the neighborhood with a very nice console color TV set, a home with an understanding mom and lots of room for us to spread out and enjoy the thrills of "Dark Shadows," creating lots of memories.

In the years that have passed since the show's demise, I've begun collecting VCR tapes dating from its inception, and naturally, being older and somewhat wiser, certain flaws have become apparent. Flubbed dialog abounds, overhead microphones appear suddenly, props fall over, off-stage sounds intrude and, when you get right down to it, the supernatural happenings are a bit hokey.

And let's not even begin examining the acting itself, which, because "Dark Shadows" means so much to me, I'll charitably call well intentioned and more than serviceable for its time, though it's still difficult to get past the awful Grayson Hall as Julia Hoffman.

My advice is to treasure the scary good times and the memories they evoke, even as Barnabas Collins butchers some of his lines.

Mike Dewey can be reached at Carolnamiked@aol.com or 6211 Cardinal Drive, New Bern, NC. He invites you to join the fun on his Facebook page, where a séance has been held and time bends.

Protecting trees and plants in sub-freezing temps

Our temperatures are hitting a wide range of highs and lows that have been causing some level of concern.

Warmer weather encouraged rapid progression of our landscape plants, fruit trees and other plant species, which has given us a spectacular show of spring blooms and flowers. The plants responded to the above-average number of growing degree days that accumulated and began flowering, budding, pushing shoot growth and beginning progress through developmental stages and reproductive processes. The flowers and buds are the most important part of the plant when we consider fruit production. They also are the most delicate and vulnerable part of the plant.

Regarding the cold temperatures, do what you can to protect your plants during prolonged near or sub-freezing temperatures. When we have clear skies, we have ample opportunity for extended periods at or below freezing. Being in the 20s for six to eight hours can result in a killing freeze. These kinds of weather events can have major implications on Ohio's agricultural and horticultural crops.

Frank Becker
OSU Extension

So what can be done to protect your plants? The challenge here is when our forecasted lows are below 32 F. This is not just a light frost but rather a freeze. There are a few steps you can take to try to protect the plants, and some of these steps can be better utilized on a small scale while others are better utilized on a larger scale.

On a smaller scale, simple actions like covering the plants with a sheet or some kind of fabric can help insulate them. This helps trap some of the warmer air from the ground around the plant and keeps the plant from being directly exposed to the colder air. It also may be of interest to protect the crown of the plant.

This freeze may be severe enough to damage the foliage, but you can take steps to protect the crown and the roots by mulching with straw, leaves or wood mulch around the plant to keep the warmer air from the ground around these vital parts of the plant. Basically, anything you can do to insulate the plant, conserve the heat in the ground and shield it from the cold air will be beneficial to the plant and give it a better shot at making it through the night.

Adding a strand of Christmas lights (not LED) under the sheets covering your plants can help add a little extra heat to keep the ambient temperature a little warmer. Make sure the lights are not touching the covering material and keep the covering material off of the plants. If the covering material is sitting directly on the foliage, that is defeating the purpose of having it there in the first place. Use stakes to keep the sheets or other covering materials just above the foliage. This will prevent the cold temperatures from being conducted onto the plants.

Watering the soil also can keep the immediate area around the plant a few degrees warmer. A wet soil is going to hold heat better than a dry soil. Even a few degrees can make a big difference. With single plants or with small enough shrubs or tree seedlings, an overturned bucket serves the same purpose as the sheets or coverings. Just remember as soon as the sun comes up the next morning, you will want to remove whatever coverings you have to allow the plant to be exposed to the sunlight and begin to warm back up.

On a larger scale, orchard growers and those with small fruit have big challenges. They are dealing with a lot of plants and trees over a big area.

Some orchards use frost fans to try and protect the crop. Frost fans work by utilizing warmer/drier air from the inversion layer to create air movement at the fruiting/flowering height in orchards on still cold nights — preventing damage to flowers, soft tissue and fruit.

Some orchards utilize water sprinkler systems to actually create a layer of ice on the trees. The key to using water is to continually use it to form clear ice. Clear ice means an endothermic reaction is taking place and the warmth of the plant is being trapped inside it. If the ice starts to become cloudy, the plant is losing heat, and damage can occur.

Spraying water must continue the entire time the freeze event is taking place, and the sprays must keep going from before there is a freeze event that would damage the fruit until the ice is completely melted from the tree after the event. If the water stops spraying on the clear ice, it goes from being endothermic to exothermic, and the heat loss and ice will damage the fruit.

In some cases burn barrels and smudge pots are placed around an orchard to add heat in the hopes of keeping the temperatures at or above freezing. Unfortunately, it can take roughly 30-50 heaters per acre to effectively protect the trees. In some cases, if you are working with just a few trees, a strategically placed burn barrel can do the trick. Keep in mind that if you decide to use any type of heater, you need to be extremely cautious.

Minimizing damage and losses requires knowledge of weather conditions and how to mitigate weather extremes. Just as important is having a knowledge of plant hardiness. Some plants will do just fine with this cold weather. Others may appear to be killed off but may regrow from the roots or the crown, even though the foliage appears dead.

The important thing here is to not be over-reactive. Give the plants time to recover. Plants can be remarkably resilient. If you see signs of frost damage, do not prune off the affected parts or dig up the plant immediately. Wait until the weather warms up to see whether new leaves sprout. You may see healthy new growth at the base of the plant, at which point you can prune out the damaged parts.

Hoping for the best and doing nothing will not result in any positive outcomes, so take this opportunity to at least cover the plants you can and give them a fighting chance to make it through the cold.

Northern Wayne County Land Auction

Tuesday, May 16 @ 6:00 PM

54 acres - 3 parcels - Tillable Land - Building Lots - Hunting - Pasture
Wayne County - Canaan Twp. - Norwayne Local Schools

54± ACRES

This property is being offered for sale at public auction as the seller is buying another farm closer to home. The Property is located on Parmenter Rd., just North of State Route 604 on the East side of the Rd.

REAL ESTATE: This is an exciting and rare opportunity to buy ground in Northern Wayne County, whether you are looking for a spot to build, some additional tillable acres, a playground, fantastic hunting ground or some pasture, this property checks all those boxes.

PARCEL 1: Approximately 8.6 acres of open and wooded land. If you are looking for a spot to build your dream home in the Norwayne School district, it won't get much better than this. The flat to gently rolling terrain provides room to move and build an outbuilding or 4H barn. Depending on what you are looking for, this parcel could stand alone or be combined with either of the other 2 parcels to make a great mini farm.

PARCEL 2: Approximately 18 acres of mostly scenic, open ground that is currently fenced and used as pasture ground. A small stream flows through the parcel adding character and scenery to the land. Whether it is a pasture, playground, or buildable lot, the possibilities are all there. The current drive to the homestead will be part of this parcel and the homeowner is granted an easement for ingress and egress up to their property line.

PARCEL 3: Approximately 27 acres of tillable ground that would make a nice addition to parcel 1 and 3. 30' of owned access off Parmenter Rd will lead you back to an open, nicely laid out field to farm. If you dream of building a home located back off the road with seclusion and privacy, this could be your place. For further privacy, you could nestle a dwelling clear back in with woods surrounding 2-3 sides.

NOTE: You may be surprised by the deer population and the size of some that have been harvested off this farm. The trail cams don't lie and there are some monsters up there!

OPEN HOUSE: An Agent will be on site to answer questions and can give you an ATV tour on Monday, May 8th from 4-6 PM or walk the land at your leisure. Call Seth Andrews 330-466-5471 or Steve Andrews 330-465-8498 with questions.

TAXES/LEGAL: Wayne County parcel # 07-00692.006 is located in Canaan Township. Taxes are currently $249.64 per half year and will be prorated to the date of closing. Any CAUV recoupments will be a seller's expense should a parcel or parcels be removed from the CAUV program. The seller will provide a warranty deed and certificate title and offer to split an owner's policy of title insurance.

TERMS: We require a non-refundable down payment of 10% of the purchase price on the day of the sale with the balance due within 45-60 days pending how it sells. Deed restrictions include no mobile homes, and no lot shall be used for rubbish, trash, or any type of waste dumping grounds. There are no financing contingencies, and the property sells as-is with no warranties expressed or implied. All mineral rights transfer subject to any leases of record. There is a 5% Buyer's Premium on the real estate which means 5% of your bid will be calculated and added on to determine your contract price, which is what will be the recorded sales price. If you plan to farm the land you will be given farming rights with your down payment as we know we are getting into the planting season.

Otherwise, possession will be at closing. Property will be offered separately and together and will sell in the way that nets the seller the most. We are not selling the residence so please respect their property and privacy. Thank you.

What an offering we have with this one. Centrally located between Dover, Sugarcreek and Strasburg sits this gem. 5+ bedroom well maintained home built in 1995 on 60.67 acres. Over 3,700 sq. ft. spread out over 3 levels of living space with multiple laundry rooms and 3 full baths. Perfect for that growing family that needs space to roam. Consolidate your home and recreational acreage and put it into one property. The home features so many amenities its difficult to consolidate everything. Cherry cabinets adorn the kitchen/dining room, 6 car garage is enough space for that gearhead in the family and you're guaranteed to fall in love with the wraparound porch with 270 degree views. 2nd level of the home features 5 bedrooms, laundry room, full bath with heated floors and a walk out balcony off the large master bedroom. We're not done yet as the lower level also contains an additional kitchen, potential bedroom, living room and a walk out entry. So many extras attached to the property which include a shooting range, blacktopped driveway, well maintained trails throughout and well-manicured landscaping including a waterfall. The 1.5 acre pond located on Parcel 3 is an awesome oasis that would make an excellent cabin site for somebody looking for a getaway. Parcel 2 already has a gravel drive cut into it and wildlife galore throughout. Also, on the west end of the parcel there's been a large additional pond that has already been dugout and looking for someone to finish it. Lots and lots of attention to detail and sweat equity has been put into this property by the Carr's and its very evident based on the condition of such a large property. Contact Pat Kaufman or Jamie Miller regarding walking the property.

SUMMARY: Welcome to this exceptional, retreat property on the outskirts of Doylestown! Set on 42.5 acres, this unique property offers privacy, seclusion, and the perfect setting for nature lovers and outdoor enthusiasts. The property is mostly wooded and features a beautiful pond with a fountain, stocked with Bass, Bluegill, and White Amur. The wildlife sanctuary on this property is home to a variety of species, including deer, turkey, and many birds. The home itself is a true gem. Built in 2001 with no expense spared, it boasts two finished levels with expansive windows that offer breathtaking views of the property. The great room features a vaulted ceiling and an exquisite chandelier imported from France. The Briar-Hill Stone chimney with 4 separate flues serves multiple fireplaces and adds to the charm and character of the home. The kitchen features hardwood cabinets with granite countertops, unique appliances that give a retro look, and tile and hardwood flooring throughout. Each bedroom has its own outside access, and the private wraparound porch is the perfect spot to enjoy the serene country views. The home also offers many extras, including zoned heating, (all new furnace and AC in 2022) an elevator, a sauna/hot-tub room, and a 2-car garage. The 1/ bedroom 1/bath guest house overlooks the pond and a 40x80 shop gives lots of space for storage and boasts 3-overhead doors.

PARCEL 1: 14.57 Acres with 401' of frontage on Black Diamond Rd. Mostly wooded with pond, main home, guest home, shop, and roughly half of the meadow to the east of the home.

PARCEL 2-4: 2.15-2.7 Acre lots with 210-213' of frontage on Galehouse Rd. Excellent building parcels with the back half of the lots a pine forest.

PARCEL 5: 20.01 Acres of mostly wooded land with exceptional timber and spots for your own Private Homesite! 302' of frontage on Galehouse Rd. This land has some mature Hardwood trees, a small creek and is a wildlife haven to enjoy that also includes a small meadow with all kinds of wildflowers and shrubs.

This property is a rare offering that affords many things - building sites, a unique home, and a wooded wildlife preserve - all in a desired area. Don't miss out on the opportunity to make this one-of-a-kind retreat property your own!

Or from SR 800, south of Freeport, take CR 10 (at Jones Equipment) west ¼ mile to Twp. Rd. 117 west 1 mile to Twp. Rd. 123 south to location. Signs posted. GPS coordinates are 40.199919, -81.288179.

Excellent tract of 91+ acres to be offered in 4 parcels. Has a great mix of wooded/recreational hunting land coupled with nice rural building sites. Has plenty of frontage on Covered Bridge Rd. for good access and provides awesome wildlife habitat with plenty of food and water source nearby. Also has several springs. This land was timbered approx. 10 years ago so there is some good growth of trees present. Mineral rights have previously been conveyed out and do not transfer. Sells subject to all easements and leases of record.

PARCEL 1: 15.1 acres of open and wooded land, approx. 705' frontage on TR 123.

PARCEL 2: 30 acres of open and wooded land, approx. 805' frontage on TR 123

PARCEL 3: 14.2 acres of mostly wooded land, approx. 652' frontage on TR 123.

PARCEL 4: 31.9 acres of open and wooded land, approx. 552' frontage on TR 123.

Call Jr Miller or go to www.kaufman-auctions.com for more details. Sells absolute, to the highest bidder, at 5 PM.

TAXES & LEGAL: Harrison County parcel number 09-0000249.000 (70 acres), under CAUV and 09-0000248.000 (20 acres), not under CAUV. Total taxes are $1646.98 per year.

TERMS: No buyers premium. Buyers to pay $500 per surveyed parcel in surveying costs. 10% nonrefundable down payment day of sale, balance due at time of closing with no financing or other contingencies. Auction will be offered in various amalgamations, including as individual parcels or lots, combinations of parcels or lots, and all parcels or lots as a whole. See sale order addendum day of sale for more details. All information gathered from sources deemed accurate but not guaranteed. Any desired inspections must be completed prior to bidding. Announcements day of auction take precedence over all previous advertising and statements.

LOCATION: In western Holmes County. Exact address will be on invoice. Shipping is available.

Clarence and Donna Myers have been well-known members of the Loudonville and Lakeville communities for the past 50 years. From their time as dairy farmers to Clarence's current role at AG-PRO, his passion for John Deere has been evident throughout. His love for the iconic green and yellow machines is showcased in his restoration of a 1952 John Deere B (his father's first tractor) and a John Deere 4010, as well as his impres-sive collection of toy tractors and related collectibles.

As the Myers are downsizing and selling their home, they have decided to part with their extensive collection of over 200 lots of toy tractors, implements, and other collectibles. While many of the tractors in their collection are new and some still in their original packaging, there are also a few that show signs of use and have "been in the field."

This auction presents a unique opportunity for fellow John Deere enthusiasts, collectors, and fans to acquire a piece of this remarkable collection. The Myers' dedication to preserving the history and legacy of John Deere will be apparent to any-one who participates in the auction, and their tractors and col-lectibles are sure to find new homes where they will be equally cherished.
