When the Orrville Fall Fest began in 2020, it started with a concert and a car show, but due to the challenges with the weather, the event has since become more focused on events for children. That said, the event is still fun with something for everyone, not just the kids, but kids at heart as well. See page 4.

County's loss of prime farmland concerning

By Dan Starcher

Wayne County's farmland is a source of pride and a vital component of the agricultural industry. The state's glacial history left a mark on the soil composition locally, making it one of the country's best-suited areas for agricultural production.

The soil is so rich that the U.S. Department of Agriculture declared portions of Wayne County soil "prime" or "land with the best combination of physical and chemical characteristics for producing food, feed, forage, fiber and oil-seed crops."

How did it happen?

Thousands of years ago, massive glaciers carved their way into Northern Ohio, stopping and melting along the areas now known as Chester, Wayne, Green and Baughman townships. The melt deposited a mixture of finely ground rock, minerals and organic matter.

Retired Wayne County Ohio State University Extension Integrated Pest Management program coordinator Ron Becker understands the value of the area's soil structure, and he is concerned progress may be ruining one of the area's most valuable agricultural resources: prime farmland.

One part of the soil structure most people are familiar with is the topsoil — the top 5 or 6 inches right underneath our feet. According to Becker, that 6 inches of topsoil is dependent on the composition of up to 30 feet of soil underneath it, called subsoil.

"Compare the soil layers to a mattress with a pillow-top," he said. "The springs below support the pillowtop and make it usable. The same is true of soil. The subsoil is an important factor of the soil as a whole, as is the topography."

Construction projects, whether they involve building infrastructure, residential areas or commercial spaces, require extensive land excavation and grading. These activities remove the topsoil layer and compact and permanently damage the subsoil.

In a recently written paper, Becker described the composition of subsoil deposits the county loses when prime farmland is developed:

—Gravelly soils: Contain large particle sizes and air spaces that allow for easy drainage and a firm base.

—Sandy soils: Contain smaller particle size, air space and surface area than gravel, allowing some moisture to adhere but still well-drained.

—Clay soils: Contain very small particle sizes and small air spaces that inhibit water movement through them. This impermeable characteristic protects groundwater from pollution and provides a sturdy base.

—Silt soils: Similar to a sponge, it holds moisture to a saturation point, allowing water to drain into lower ground layers.

Local subsoil is comprised of a unique combination of these layers.

In the agricultural community, the loss of this prime farmland is a growing concern. When farmland is developed, it is permanently destroyed. The food supply will decrease with less land and fewer farmers, forcing consumers to pay more at the supermarket.

"According to the USDA, in 2021 the U.S. lost 3,500 acres of farmland per day," Becker said in his paper. "This is prime farmland that we're talking about, not scrubby soils incapable of producing crops."

Farmland preservation specialist Jessica Eikleberry works with Becker to protect the area's prime farmland using tools like the Ohio Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Security Area program.

An ASA arrangement with farmers secures land specifically for agricultural use. One or more landowners with at least 500 contiguous acres of land can request enrollment in an ASA for a 10-year period. During this time the owners may receive tax incentives for investments in agricultural infrastructure projects.

Since the inception of the ASA program in 2008, Wayne County has secured more than 7,000 acres of prime farmland, more than anywhere else in Ohio.

"It is all about what the farmer wants to do," Eikleberry said. "We are here to support them."

Read Becker's informal paper, "An Oasis in the Desert," at <https://rb.gy/kd14t>. For information about establishing an ASA, email Eikleberry at AgPlan@WayneOhio.org.

MEET RAMBO

Rambo, a.k.a. Bernie, is a 3-year-old, 92-pound Bernese Mountain Dog mix who is also a very scared boy — at the shelter, he is quite stressed when out of his kennel, which has become his safe place. When tested with another dog, he seemed to come out of his shell, so he'd probably benefit from having another dog in the home. Rambo will greatly benefit from an adopter with experience handling fearful/flighty dogs, and will need to be leashed at all times and/or a fenced yard.

All adoptions are $75 regardless of age/breed, which includes DAPPv+Lepto4, Bordetella, dewormed, flea treated, heartworm tested and rabies (if age appropriate), spay/neuter voucher, microchip and current dog license.

Russell to speak at annual NAACP Freedom Fund Dinner

The Wooster-Orrville NAACP will hold its annual Freedom Fund Dinner on Sunday, Oct. 22 at 6 p.m. at the Greystone Event Center, 50 Riffel Road, Wooster.

The Freedom Fund Dinner is a fundraiser to support the Wooster-Orrville NAACP Scholarship, awarded annually to qualified high school seniors in Wayne County. To date, more than $45,000 in college scholarships has been dispersed through the Wayne County Community Foundation. The Freedom Fund Dinner also supports other community engagement projects of the local NAACP.

This year's Freedom Fund keynote speaker is Kurt Russell, a 1994 graduate of The College of Wooster and the 2022 National Teacher of the Year. Russell is currently a history teacher at Oberlin High School, where he teaches African American history, U.S. history and history of the Americas in the International Baccalaureate Program. He also has served as the Oberlin High School boys basketball coach since 1996.

In an AP interview shortly after he was named Teacher of the Year, Russell said his family's history has had an impact on his classroom instruction. His mother Retta Russell marched with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Linden, Alabama when she was in high school.

"That's how I fell in love with history, by hearing those stories," Russell said.

He said his hope in the classroom is to bring attention and awareness to the importance of diverse faculty and representative curriculum that helps students feel more empowered in their education.

The 2023 Freedom Fund event will feature an in-house soul food dinner and a variety of dessert choices. Before and after dinner, attendees will have the opportunity to check out the many items donated for the silent auction. People may bid on auction items at the dinner and/or online for five days afterward.

Tickets for the Freedom Fund Dinner are $60 per person, with other donation-based options available. Purchase tickets by filling out the Freedom Fund Dinner form on the website at www.wooster-orrillenaacp.org and returning it by mail or through the online tickettailor site at <https://buytickets.at/naacpunit3208>. Click on the green button on the right and follow prompts to the ticket sign-up. The tickettailor link also includes dinner information and directions to the Greystone Event Center.

NAACP chapters all over the country hold Freedom Fund Dinners to invite members of their community to support and celebrate social justice and equal treatment of all people. The Wooster-Orrville NAACP is inviting the Wooster/Wayne County community to gather with them on Oct. 22.

Fall Fest

Fourth annual Orrville Fall Fest
Oct. 21 at Orr Park

By Lydia Calabrese

Little ghosts and goblins, along with their families and friends, are invited to the fourth annual Orrville Fall Fest on Saturday, Oct. 21 from 5:30-7 p.m. at Orr Park.

With several planned events geared toward children in kindergarten through sixth grade, the night will include a gathering at Heller Hall for trunk-or-treat festivities with members of the American Legion Frank E. Cook Post No. 282; free hot dogs, chips and drinks, as well as hot coffee and warm apple cider; the Northwest Trail Walk including stops with the Orrville Public Library, Orrville Lions Club, Orrville Chamber of Commerce, Orrville Community Development Corporation and Orrville Community Theater; and even a fire pit for s'mores.

"I was elected to council in 2020 and was appointed as the committee chairman of the parks and recreation committee for the City of Orrville," said councilman CJ Handwerk, Ward 1 representative. "One of my goals was to bring the many groups in the community together, and I believe that Orr Park is a great central location to do so. The first year almost didn't take place due to the many challenges with COVID-19 in the fall of 2020. This year marks the fourth annual Fall Festival, and it's exciting to see what the community-focused event has evolved into."

He said the event is an opportunity for kids to enjoy the fall atmosphere in a safe environment, all while being rewarded with free candy and getting the opportunity to enjoy the Northwest Trail the city's service department developed over the course of the past three years.

"The Northwest Trail has been manicured to have a recycled asphalt walking path made out of city streets when repaving projects are completed," Handwerk said.

When the Fall Fest began in 2020, it started with a concert and a car show, but due to the challenges with the weather, Handwerk said the event became more focused on events for children. With the American Legion partnering together with the city for the event to hold the trunk or treat, Handwerk said many of the members choose to decorate their vehicles, "giving the kids a fun and unique first stop prior to walking the trails," he explained.

"Crossview Church has also been a huge supporter of all our park programs, and they will be supporting the event as yet another local community partner," Handwerk said. "Last but not least, our city council members, Mayor (Dave) Handwerk and our Safety Service Director Steve Wheeler all make this happen."

Last year more than 300 people came to the Fall Fest, and Handwerk is hopeful even more will come out to this year's event. Children are encouraged to wear their costumes, but dressing up is not mandatory.

"Most communities are not as fortunate as Orrville to not only have a great venue for events, but very few communities have the people to pull something like this event off each year at no cost," Handwerk said. "I would also encourage our local businesses and anyone who wants to volunteer to contact me directly. We have a lot of businesses and citizens who want to get involved but simply have not made the commitment to engage with the community. I am asking them to come out and be a part of what we are doing with the park district. The Fall Festival is simply a fun event for all citizens to come out and enjoy the park."

As the parks department gears up in 2024 to launch a campaign to secure funding from private donors, corporations and any nonprofit groups that want to support not only Orr Park, but also the continued development of the city's comprehensive park plan that was finalized in 2022, holding events such as this is a reminder as to how lucky Orrville is to have such great facilities right in its backyard.

"This (fundraising) program will range from Friends of the Parks donations of $50 all the way up to naming rights and co-branding options for our new Skate and BMX Park and even the new Union Depot Park. If anyone has questions, they should reach out to Janet Stimlen, Orrville's finance director, for more details," Handwerk said.

As the local community comes together for the Fall Fest, Handwerk said it will be a relaxed atmosphere everyone can look forward to.

"There is no cost to those who want to come out and snack," he said. "This is simply a local community coming together."

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

10th Wayne Economic Forum Oct. 26

By Elizabeth Schuster

Many good ideas do not last, so the 10-year anniversary of the Wooster Area Chamber of Commerce's Wayne Economic Forum is something to celebrate. The forum has provided value to participants through speakers and networking opportunities. This year's event will take place Oct. 26 from noon to 5 p.m. at the Greystone Event Center in Wooster.

"The networking that happens at the Wayne Economic Forum is actually pretty incredible, and we've even heard of stories of pretty decent-sized business deals," said Samira Zimmerly, president of the chamber, "and even friendships that happen. That is what this event is for, and those are the stories that the chamber loves to hear about. And that's why we continue to do it."

The forum is the brainchild of Dee Vaidya, local businessman and former board member of the chamber. Even after his board term ended, Vaidya has continued to help coordinate the annual forum.

The first forum was 11 years ago, and with one missed year due to pandemic-related closings, this year's forum will be the 10th forum. The forum is gaining in popularity, with last year's forum the most well-attended in its history. Vaidya attributes the event's success to its speakers.

"Most initiatives have not necessarily lasted for more than a few years. It seems almost like a passing fancy and something else takes its place," Vaidya said. "But this, we've been so fortunate to get stellar speakers like the ex-chairman of Smuckers or the ex-chairman of Chrysler. When you hear people like that speak, the audience's involvement with the event continues."

Last year's Wayne Economic Forum drew the largest crowd in the event's history. The 10th Wayne Economic Forum will be held Oct. 26 at Greystone Event Center in Wooster.

Selection of speakers starts many months before the event takes place each year. Initially, there were questions around whether a small micropolitan area like Wooster could continue to attract top-notch speakers each year. The secret is choosing speakers that have some connection to Wooster. Speakers are not compensated and therefore must have some interest in sharing their knowledge with the local community.

"We really choose speakers from all spheres," Vaidya said. "They can be from politics, but most of them are either current title holders in large companies or past CEOs and presidents in large companies. That usually provides a lot of color to this idea of economic, thought-provoking discussions."

Zimmerly said interest in the event has continued in large part because of the diversity in speakers and topics Vaidya has continued to attract.

"This event was Dee's idea, and we're very grateful to Dee for his continued support, and it wouldn't be possible without his support, and we're very grateful to him," Zimmerly said.

This year's speakers

This year's forum features five speakers. Representing SRC Holdings, Jack Stack, CEO, and Scott Dalenberg, executive VP, will travel to Wooster from Missouri. Stack came to SRC in 1979 as a plant manager of International Harvester. By 1983 Stack and employees purchased the company. Today SRC is owned by its 1,800 employees and has sales of over $600 million. Stack has written two books, the most recent of which is "Change the Game: Saving the American Dream by Closing the Gap Between the Haves and the Have-Nots."

Next in the lineup is Ohio's 66th Lt. Gov. John Husted. With a focus on economic and workforce development, he has worked to strengthen the economy, use technology to transform the way the government operates and build opportunities for every Ohioan. Prior to his election as lieutenant governor, he served for eight years as Ohio's secretary of state.

After Husted, Key Bank's chief information officer Amy G. Brady will present. She oversees all of Key's shared services for technology, operations, data, servicing, cyber and physical security, and procurement. From 2016-22 Brady was recognized by American Banker as one of the Top 25 Most Powerful Women in Banking and listed among the Powerful Women to Watch from 2013-15.

Then the chamber will round out the day with Cleveland-based entrepreneur Jodi Berg, recently retired as president and CEO of Vitamix, a 100-year family-owned company. Berg catapulted the brand, expanding U.S. manufacturing to support distribution in over 140 countries and leading to over 400% in organic growth. Berg was recognized as a national EY Entrepreneur of the Year, as winner of the Jerry Noyce Executive Health Champion Award and as Owl's Most Likeable CEO in Cleveland.

Registration is open until Oct. 19 at the chamber's website at www.Wooster-Chamber.com.

Halloween Bug Zoo Bash at OSU Wooster

By Laurie Sidle

The Pumpkins & Pillbugs Halloween Bug Zoo Bash will take place Friday, Oct. 27 from 6-8 p.m. in the Wooster Science Building at the Wooster campus of Ohio State, 1680 Madison Ave.

The Bug Zoo will be the main attraction, along with special guest reptiles, face painting, and Halloween crafts such as painting pumpkins and making yarn mummies.

Last year the Bug Zoo hosted a Halloween event on a smaller scale, said Valerie Anderson, outreach coordinator for the CFAES Entomology Graduate Student Association. "This year we wanted to make it bigger, so we decided to collaborate to bring together more resources."

Joining the Bug Zoo and graduate student association to host the event are two other CFAES groups: Graduate Student Advisory Council and Wooster Staff Council.

The zoo's outreach reptile owner Sarah Everhart will be on hand with her teaching collection of reptiles. That includes an Argentine tegu, "the second largest reptile you can own," Anderson said, as well as a leopard gecko, corn snake, blue tongue skink and tortoise.

Anderson said bash participants can get up close with the reptiles and handle some of the zoo's insects.

"If you wear an insect or reptile costume," she said, "you will have the opportunity to have your photo featured on the Bug Zoo Blog."

The graduate student association will sell merchandise including jewelry made by entomology students and honey bottled from bee hives they maintain.

The Bug Zoo is a curated collection of live insects and other arthropods for the purpose of education and outreach. Arthropods are a large group of invertebrates, meaning they do not have backbones. Insects, spiders, millipedes, centipedes and pill bugs are all arthropods.

In addition to the Wooster campus location, OSU Department of Entomology also has a Bug Zoo on the Columbus campus.

At Wooster the zoo has made its home in the Wooster Science Building since 2020. Anderson said the building, completed in 2019, allows the Bug Zoo to host open houses in an inviting atmosphere.

The zoo's mission is to promote awareness, display myths and ignite curiosity for arthropods and entice budding young entomologists to the field.

Effects breast cancer can have on a woman's body

No woman wants to be diagnosed with breast cancer. A potentially fatal disease, breast cancer affects millions of women across the globe each year. Thankfully, survival rates for the disease have improved considerably in recent decades, and women now have a much greater chance of living for many years after successful treatment.

A study from the American Cancer Society found the number of women who died from breast cancer dropped by about 40% in the quarter century preceding the study. A host of variables including advancements in detecting and treating the disease and a heightened awareness of the need for screening have contributed to that positive turn.

Though breast cancer treatment is highly effective, particularly when the disease is in its early stages at the time of an initial diagnosis, women may still experience some side effects of both the disease and the treatment their cancer care teams design.

The following are some ways breast cancer and treatment can affect a woman's body in both the short- and long-term.

Joint and muscle pain

According to Susan G. Komen, a nonprofit organization that helps to fund breast cancer research, aromatase inhibitors are hormone therapy drugs used to treat hormone receptor-positive breast cancer. Researchers have found joint pain and muscle pain are common side effects of aromatase inhibitors. This pain might be most noticeable after sleeping or a period of inactivity. Fortunately, the damage to joints and muscles is not permanent.

Fatigue

Breastcancer.org says breast cancer causes changes in the body that can lead to fatigue. That fatigue could be linked to cytokines, which are proteins released by certain breast cancers that researchers suspect cause fatigue. Breast cancer also can alter hormone levels in the body and cause inflammation, and each of those effects can contribute to fatigue.

Skin changes

The MD Anderson Cancer Center said certain changes to the skin are hallmarks of inflammatory breast cancer, a relatively rare yet aggressive form of the disease. Redness or another change in the skin color of the breast, swelling on one side, and/or a rash that appears suddenly are Breast cancer affects a woman's body in various ways. Though many effects are temporary, women can still discuss strategies to overcome them as they navigate their way through treatment.

changes in the skin that can appear due to breast cancer. Dimpling of the skin over the breast is another change in the skin that can result from breast cancer.

Libido and fertility

Breastcancer.org says some breast cancer treatments can lower a woman's libido, which is her desire for sex and intimacy. This side effect is possibly a byproduct of other effects of treatment that can affect a woman's mental state including anxiety, depression, weight changes, fatigue and difficulty sleeping.

In addition, the National Cancer Institute said certain types of chemotherapy can cause infertility. Though the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said most cases of breast cancer are diagnosed in women over 50, women can still get the disease at any age. Women who hope to have children after a breast cancer diagnosis are urged to discuss that goal with their cancer care teams so their course of treatment does not adversely affect their ability to give birth.

Take a Ghost Walk Through History

The Wayne County Historical Society's Ghost Walk Through History will take place Friday, Oct. 27 and Saturday, Oct. 28 from 7-9 p.m. on the historical society's campus at 546 E. Bowman St. in Wooster. Light refreshments will be served. A limited number of tickets are available at $25 apiece and must be purchased in advance.

Come hear tales of eight distinguished spirits from Wayne County's past including Wooster's first African American teacher, a Holmesville man whose valor in World War I earned him a Distinguished Service Cross, and a successful businesswoman whose shop was a fixture on Wooster's public square for more than 50 years.

Tickets may be purchased at the Wayne County Historical Society's office, which is open Tuesday through Friday from 1-5 p.m., or at Murr Printing, 201 N. Buckeye St., Wooster. In addition to the historical society's parking lot on Spink Street, just north of Bowman, additional parking will be available for these events at the Discount Drug Mart and St. Mary's Church lots.

Vote no on Issue 1 to protect our state's women, children

Letter to the Editor,

There are four basic undeniable facts concerning Issue 1 on the Nov. 7 ballot. The title of this proposed amendment, The Right to Reproductive Freedom with Protections for Health and Safety, is totally misleading and untrue.

Do you know it will shred parental rights? The ballot language uses the legal term "individual," which does not differentiate between minors and adults. An "individual" legally refers to citizens of all ages — nullifying the rights of parents to stop their children from making harmful decisions. Do you want parents to give up these rights? Vote no in November to protect your parental rights.

It will allow barbaric late-term abortion through all nine months of pregnancy. This language means up to the day of the baby's birth. Do you think a human baby capable of pain should be intentionally killed? Vote no in November to keep painful, late-term abortion out of Ohio.

It will enshrine the "right" to sex-change surgery and hormones for minors or anything involving "reproductive decisions." This language means it would include gender transition "therapy" such as irreversible surgeries, puberty blockers and hormones. Many refer to this as sex mutilation of our children.

It will enable abusers. Any "person" that "assists" an "individual," including a minor, in getting an abortion or sex change would now be legally protected in doing so. These words would protect rapists, traffickers and abusers who "assist" minor girls in getting an abortion, thereby eliminating existing health and safety protections for women. Do you think this is fair? Vote no in November to protect Ohio women and children.

Educate yourselves and check out truth-telling sites. The above information is easily found at www.ohio-life.org (Ohio Right to Life). Other sites explaining the truth include www.protect-womenohio.com (Protect Women Ohio), www.rtaohio.org (RTL Action Coalition of Ohio) and www.ccv.org (Center for Christian Virtue).

For the health and safety of our unborn babies, children, women and parents, please vote no on Nov. 7. Vote early and in-person beginning Wednesday, Oct. 11 at your county board of elections.

Group aims to protect Ohio hunting, fishing

T. Roosevelt Action, an advocacy group dedicated to preserving and promoting the rights of hunters and anglers across the United States, announced on Oct. 10 it is launching efforts in Ohio to send a constitutional amendment to the voters that would enshrine the right to hunt and fish into Ohio's constitution. The resolution has been officially introduced as HJR 5.

"The right to hunt and fish is deeply woven into the fabric of Ohio's heritage," said State Rep. Ron Ferguson (R-Wintersville), one of HJR 5's primary sponsors. "This joint resolution is about more than just preserving traditions; it's about safeguarding our state's rich environment, supporting rural economies and protecting individual rights. We must stand together to ensure these rights are not eroded by misguided policies or special interest groups."

HJR 5's other primary sponsor State Rep. Nick Santucci (R-Howland Township) said, "Hunting and fishing adds over a billion dollars to Ohio's economy every year, supporting not only jobs, but funding critical conservation efforts. The outdoors bring people together. Enshrining the rights of sportsmen and women in our constitution will preserve these great traditions for future generations in Ohio."

"Hunting and fishing are not just pastimes in Ohio; they are a way of life. They contribute significantly to the economy and play a crucial role in wildlife conservation," said Luke Hilgemann, executive director for T. Roosevelt Action. "This amendment will ensure that these traditions continue for generations to come. T. Roosevelt Action is proud to stand in the arena to protect the rights of hunters and anglers in Ohio."

Twenty-three states have a constitutionally protected right to fish and hunt. If passed by the legislature, the newly introduced amendment is set to appear on the 2024 ballot.

T. Roosevelt Action's efforts in Ohio follow its successful campaign in Florida to get the right to fish and hunt on the ballot in 2024. Nationwide, the organization is taking a proactive stance on engaging hunters and anglers, urging them to enshrine those rights in their state constitutions.

Facts on hunting in Ohio

—An estimated 479,000

Ohioans participated in outdoor hunting activities in 2022.

—Hunting contributes $1.3 billion annually to Ohio's economy and supports 15,500 jobs.

—American hunters contribute nearly $9.4 million daily, adding more than $3.4 billion annually for conservation.

—The amendment will provide legal protection against anti-hunting legislation and litigation in states previously lacking such safeguards.

—The amendment will protect those who rely on hunting and fishing for sustenance.

T. Roosevelt Action is an advocacy group dedicated to preserving and promoting the rights of hunters and anglers across the United States. The group's namesake is Theodore Roosevelt, the 26th president of the United States.

Jarrett's Sweigert earns supply chain award

Food Logistics, the only publication exclusively dedicated to covering the movement of product through the global cold food supply chain, and Supply & Demand Chain Executive, the only publication covering the entire global supply chain, named Christina Sweigert as one of the winners of this year's Women in Supply Chain Award, which honors female supply chain leaders and executives whose accomplishments, mentorship and examples set a foundation for women in all levels of a company's supply chain network.

Sweigert is logistics manager at Jarrett, an Orrville-based company.

Out of 400 submissions, the highest number of applications were submitted this year. Of that number, 118 compared to just 75 last year were submitted by male counterparts, nominating their boss, co-worker or associate. Additionally, 39 women self-nominated, which is a significant increase from last year's award, which just saw 12 self-nominations.

"This shows progress. This shows hope that one day we won't need an award like this because men and women in the supply chain will be equal," said Marina Mayer, editor-in-chief of Food Logistics and Supply & Demand Chain Executive. "While there's still more work to be done, what we're doing is working. From truck drivers to CEOs, what these winners are doing matters to the future of all supply chains."

Johnson Woods is a hidden gem of nature near Orrville

By Monica L. Miyashita

The woods are lovely dark and deep,
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.

—Robert Frost, from “Stopping By the Woods on a Snowy Evening”

Tucked away in a corner just north of Orrville is a natural area that is a state nature preserve. Johnson Woods, located at 13240 Fox Lake Road in Marshallville, is one of Ohio’s largest remaining old-growth forests.

According to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, many of the trees in Johnson Woods rise 40-50 feet before the first limbs occur, and several trees are more than 400 years old. As the website for the preserve notes, some of these trees date back to a time before the pilgrims set foot on Plymouth Rock in Massachusetts.

The property was a gift to the State of Ohio from Mrs. Clela Johnson and her family in memory of her late husband Andrew Johnson, hence the name Johnson Woods. There are two tracts of land that comprise the property, totaling 206 acres. The property includes old-growth forest primarily consisting of white oaks, red oaks and hickories, as well as newer growth in the form of more shade-tolerant trees including sugar maples and American beech trees.

There also are swamp forest communities in the preserve that include pin oaks and red maples. Johnson Woods also includes an array of wildflowers with spring flowers such as trout lilies, trillium, several species of violets and windflower.

For the amateur ornithologist, there is a selection of interesting birds in the woods. One can often find the pileated woodpecker, the scarlet tanager, the Acadian flycatcher, the wood thrush, the ovenbird and the hooded warbler.

The preserve has a wooden boardwalk throughout the park that allows 1.4 miles of the trail to be wheelchair-accessible. The wooden boardwalk also makes it impossible to get lost in the woods — just follow the wooden boardwalk around the preserve to get back to the entrance. There are several wooden benches and other stopping points along the trail for rest or just to enjoy a quiet moment in the woods.

Many locals make Johnson Woods a regular place to enjoy the outdoors. Wooster resident Anne Marie Shell said, “(It is) a soothing, magical place to get lost in and become one with nature, especially in the spring when the little peepers sing their song.”

“Johnson Woods is a place of power,” Matthew Wilkens of Orrville said. “Walking the long loop is a good, sober, happy hour. Watching the leaves fall and hearing the crunch of them beneath our feet as we smell and feel the autumn air blowing around us is something our senses need.”

Here are some things you need to know before you visit Johnson Woods:

—The park does not permit pets.

—Visitors are required to stay on designated trails. One big reason for the requirement to stay on the boardwalk is the plant life growing just off the path needs to be protected from being tread upon.

—There are no public restrooms at the preserve.

—The park opens a half-hour before sunrise and closes a half-hour before sunset.

The Orrville Area Chamber's Envision Your Future program kicked off Oct. 10 with nine local student participants.

Envision Your Future program

The Orrville Area Chamber of Commerce kicked off its Envision Your Future program on Oct. 10. The Envision Your Future program is a series of learning sessions that feature experiential and hands-on learning focused on the personal development of local students.

The program will focus on the three E's — enrollment/education, employment/apprenticeship and enlistment — and help to build each student's confidence as they explore where their path will take them.

The program was offered to local high school students in ninth and 10th grade via the high school guidance counselors. Specifically, the program will focus on students who want to explore their future career choices and are contemplating next steps after school. Nine students from Kingsway Christian and Orrville City Schools are participating in the program.

Molly Shaw of Junior Achievement of North Central Ohio guided the students through an online assessment that matched students' interests with potential careers.

"Developing a career plan by taking interests, abilities and skills and applying them to real-world opportunities is important," Shaw said. "Identifying what you're good at and interested in will help you hone in as you begin your career plan."

After taking the assessment, students explored potential careers that aligned with their interests and aptitudes. At the end of the session, students said they were surprised to learn about so many new jobs they had never thought about pursuing before.

SWCD helps celebrate 50 years of Parfitt's Paradise

By Dan Starcher

A 3-acre plot of land known as Parfitt's Paradise, situated behind the baseball field at the Chippewa Middle School (formerly the high school), has impacted students in the Chippewa School District for 50 years.

Parfitt's Paradise has become a landmark that draws students back for a visit years after they graduate.

"Back in 1973 I was teaching biology and general science," said Dave Parfitt, the 82-year-old founder of Parfitt's Paradise. "There was a vacant pasture outside of the school, and I took students out there to investigate once, and we decided it would be an excellent place to plant trees."

After several years of planting trees, Parfitt expanded on the idea and constructed a pond and later walking trails with the help of area Boy Scouts. The site was now attracting wildlife his students could study and watch.

"We would take water samples and study the microbes under a microscope," he said. "We would catch frogs and have frog-jumping contests. There would even be ducks sometimes. We would see some of the animals we discussed in the classroom and better understand their habitat."

For the Chippewa School District, Parfitt's Paradise is a place where students can cultivate a love for nature and develop a sense of environmental stewardship.

"I know some of my former students went into teaching science," Parfitt said. "Some kids have even pursued a degree in medicine. I feel incredibly grateful that I had some influence on their decision. They will see me and give me a big hug. I even see them visiting the pond, some with their own families."

In addition to celebrating the pond's 50th anniversary, Wayne County Soil and Water Conservation District program administrator John Lorson presented Parfitt with the Big Tree Award for having the largest eastern white pine tree in Wayne County.

Dalton lays it on line for WCAL, postseason success

By Aaron Dorksen

Take one look at the Wayne County Athletic League football standings and schedule and even a novice realized what was at stake when Dalton (6-1, 5-0) visits Norwayne (8-0, 5-0) on Oct. 13.

It was for the WCAL lead, and most likely for the outright championship.

It's easy to hype Dalton vs. Norwayne as the area's "game of the year," or something like that, but a visit to the Bulldogs' practice on the Monday night before the clash found them going about their business much the same as the first eight weeks of the season.

"We've talked a lot about how you handle success is really the same habit, same process you've been doing. You just do it a little bit better each week," said Dalton coach Broc Dial, whose team had won two straight over the Bobcats and is trying to win three straight WCAL titles for the first time since 1991-93. "We don't focus on who we're playing or being in the 'big game,' but playing our best football every week."

Dalton has a team-first mentality that all starts with Dial. No one said a word after practice as Dial spoke about everyone being important to the team and fulfilling their roles, even the JV players. All eyes were on Dial, and the players answered "yes coach" in unison each time he asked if they understood what he was telling them.

The Bulldogs' workmanlike, team-oriented approach starts up front with an offensive line that's once again among the area's best.

Despite graduating WCAL MVP and two-way tackle Quentin Lehman, who's now the starting center for Ohio Northern, through seven games Dalton is averaging 309 yards

Aaron Dorksen

Dalton's offensive front including tight end Kaden Russell, left, tackle Trenton Hurtt, guard Collin Jones, center Cohen Riggenbach, guard Grayson Lehman, tackle Matthew Heatwole and tackle Talan Greigor has helped lead the way to a 6-1 record entering the Bulldogs' Oct. 13 clash for the Wayne County Athletic League title at Norwayne.

rushing per game and 131 through the air. The Bulldogs are outscoring opponents by a 42-8 margin.

Senior guards Grayson Lehman, Quentin's brother, and Colin Jones, along with junior center Cohen Riggenbach, are returning starters and anchor the line.

Junior Matthew Heatwole has stepped in at left tackle while senior Talan Greigor and junior Trenton Hurtt split time at right tackle and junior Kaden Russell is the tight end.

"I think our tackles have picked it up here toward the end of the year, and we're where we were at last year, if not further ahead," said Grayson Lehman, a 6-foot-4, 285-pound player who also plays defensive end.

Jones, a 6-0, 210-pound player who's also a defensive end, said he expected it to be a "dog fight" against the Bobcats.

"It's just going to be which team comes out and wants it more," Jones said. "I think we've just got to come out and execute our game plan and get after it."

"We're all really excited for it, and we've been looking forward to this for a while now. We try to take every week the same, go into it like you're playing the best team ever. So we're taking this week the same and going into it with a strong mentality."

For Greigor (6-1, 195), the Bulldogs' success boils down to hard work and great team chemistry.

"We all get along," Greigor said. "We all do stuff together. We've all bonded as a team."

Dial appreciated the leadership shown by his seniors.

"Talan played some for us last year and has played a lot this year," Dial said. "He's a great young man and has been one of the players who's helped us take that next step as a team."

"Jones and Grayson both have played three years for us and are big, strong football players. We've seen them take that next step this year in really leading our players."

The biggest benefactors of the line's strong play are running backs Greyson Siders and Sammy Tomlinson, who have a chance to both record back-to-back, 1,000-yard rushing seasons. No team in Wayne County history is believed to have had a tandem accomplish that feat.

"That's a great accomplishment to possibly have,

and it's reflective of our O-line, but really we're just focused on what we need to do to win that battle each snap," Dial said. "We've talked a lot about how little things add up to big things."

Siders, a senior, leads the team with 79 carries for 974 yards and 16 touchdowns while the junior Tomlinson is close behind with 62 rushes for 550 yards and 12 scores.

Senior quarterback Colin Pearson has kept defenses honest by completing 59 of 92 passes for 914 yards, six TDs and four interceptions. Junior Brady Hignight is the leading target with 19 catches for 289 yards and two TDs.

Since opening the season with a 14-7 loss against perennial state power Kirtland (now 7-1), the Bulldogs rattled off six straight wins. Dalton entered the week ranked No. 2 in Division VII by Fantastic50.net while Norwayne was No. 8 in Div. V.

The Bulldogs' linemen continue to try to perfect their craft, getting an assist from Dial and assistant coach JD Murphy, both former linemen themselves.

"We ask a lot of our linemen," Dial said. "We can line up under center or shotgun. We run block, inside/outside, pull, screen block, pass block, roll out or run (bootlegs) in games. Then we go over the films with the players and work with them out on the field, trying to get better week to week."

Playing the line takes a lot more smarts in spread offenses than some fans might think.

"It definitely involves a lot of technique and fundamentals, but communicating (who to block) based on how the defense is lined up and getting off the ball is a big part of it too," Dial said.

With lots of hard work behind them, the Bulldogs appeared ready to lay it on the "line" for the huge matchup at Norwayne, and then for what they're hoping will be a long postseason run.

Smithies, Bears both primed for tournament runs

By Dan Brown

No area volleyball team is more eager to start the postseason than Smithville.

Check that — Waynedale is more anxious to get going when the OHSAA Sectional/District tournament opens this week.

OK, both squads are ready to make their respective playoff runs — the Smithies looking to make up for an early postseason exit last fall and the Golden Bears poised to defend their district championship and get back to regionals.

That focus has been on full display all season long as Smithville and Waynedale have been the top teams in the Wayne County Athletic League, having split their season series. The two could have a potential rubber match in the Division III district final later this month.

And for Smithies coach David Yoder, the sting of last season's five-set district-semifinal loss to Tuslaw was more than enough to charge his team for another strong regular season.

"They were really motivated after Tuslaw," he said. "I didn't have to say much; they came in when we started in April, and they were ready to go. And all summer we won every single tournament we were in. They were honed in and focused."

That locked-in approach was evident this fall as the team ran off 18 straight victories to open the year, including a four-game victory over Waynedale, to earn a share of the WCAL title for the fourth straight campaign.

Behind the leadership of All-Ohio outside hitter Naomi Keib, the Smithies earned the top overall seed in the upcoming sectional/district tourney. Smithville, which returned its entire 2022 roster, also has one of the top setters in Taryn Fath — who also is among area leaders in aces — along with gritty defenders like Maddy Lengacher and the emergence of hitters Caitlin Walsh-Knouff and Angelina Yates.

"We talk about the pressure all the time," Yoder said. "Everyone is waiting to give you their best shot. They know that. We have a sign in the locker room about pressure, and they see if every time they leave the locker room. It's there, and we've had to learn to play against it."

For the Golden Bears, who made an impressive run to the Sweet 16 last fall, the motivation of getting back was fueled a little more with that early season loss to the Smithies.

Waynedale returned the favor with a four-set victory of its own on Oct. 3, and like their local rival, they did so by rallying from a one-game deficit to earn a share of the county championship for the first time after a year hiatus.

"After Smithville beat us the first time, we had a decision to make — either play like we have nothing to lose or end up in second or third place in the league like the past few years," Bears coach Jen Lauber said. "We had to play Smithville like our hair was on fire and with a sense of urgency on every point. We had to play with everything we had. We all had to sharpen our focus and step up."

Indeed it did as Waynedale, which was tabbed with the second seed when the postseason starts Oct. 17, has used a balanced lineup with multi-talented veteran players Alyssa Geiser and Addessa Miller, along with newcomers like Callie Wolfe, to get back atop the standings.

The key to success, however, is a talented setter in senior Meghan Miller, who surpassed the 1,000 career assists mark earlier this season.

"Meghan is a talented and experienced setter," Lauber said. "She has grown mentally and emotionally this season, which has allowed her to set her hitters more effectively. She is competitive and seeing the court better, and that has allowed our hitters to find seems in blocks. She embraces challenges that we throw out to her every day."

Those challenges for both the Smithies and Golden Bears could be a district title match showdown, which would be held Oct. 28 at Smithville's Berkey Fieldhouse, provided both can take care of business in their tourney tests before that.

Retiring Abel plans to keep working

By Dan Starcher

Retirement marks a significant change in a person's life — unless the plan is to keep working. After 26 years of service, detective Alex Abel is retiring from the Wayne County Sheriff's Office; however, he isn't embracing it. After a few weeks off, he will begin a new chapter of his career as an investigator for the Wayne County Coroner's Office.

Abel started his career working in the jail before moving to road patrol and has seen a lot of changes over the years, like the use of technology.

"When I first started on the road, if you wanted to talk to a sergeant or to dispatch, you would have to drive around and find a pay phone, radio dispatch, and have them call the pay-phone number," Abel said. "Technology has been the most significant change I have seen. Everything is done on a computer now in the car."

Another change Abel has grown to embrace is the use of body cameras by law enforcement.

"Now everybody wants to see the video," he said. "We can provide video evidence that backs up the report."

Abel will take some of the memories with him as he changes roles.

"The most important case I feel that I worked on was when a family member was sexually abusing a handicapped girl and the guy ended up going to prison," Abel said. "I was off duty one day, and I was using the bank machine. I heard 'Hey Alex,' and it was her. She hugged me and thanked me for what I did to help her. That takes precedence over any other case that I worked on."

While the sheriff's office will miss Abel, Wayne County Coroner's Office chief investigator Luke Reynolds will welcome him with open arms.

"We were looking to hire someone with investigative experience," Reynolds said. "It takes a great deal of expertise to do what we do. It takes the same skill set as a detective, but we focus on cases where the cause of death is uncertain."

An investigator for the coroner's office documents any injuries or trauma on the body, collects samples for further analysis and secures the scene to preserve the integrity of the evidence. Additionally, investigators collaborate with other experts like forensic pathologists, toxicologists and law-enforcement agencies to ensure a comprehensive investigation.

Reynolds said the coroner's office fields from 300-400 calls per year, and they are on call 24/7 all year. In addition to Reynolds, Abel will be the second full-time employee in the office, along with approximately eight part-time investigators.

Dan Starcher is the public communications coordinator for the Wayne County government.

WCA film workshop on Nov. 18 features award-winning duo

Wayne Center for the Arts will present a workshop with award-winning editor and producer Jennifer Enskat and Emmy and Film Fest award-winning cinematographer Andy Gardner from Leapyear Studios Film School.

On Nov. 18 from 9 a.m. to noon, aspiring filmmakers age 16 and older can attend a three-hour workshop with the film duo at WCA. The workshop will introduce how the industry works as participants make a micro-short film in one session. The workshop also will cover the basics of preproduction, equipment, jargon, crew positions and post-production.

"We are very excited to welcome Jennifer and Andy to WCA. This is made possible by a great collaboration with the Lyric Theater," WCA Digital Arts Program coordinator James Buckley said. "This program has the potential to inspire filmmaking in our community, something which can eventually lead to local films being premiered at the Lyric."

The entire film program at WCA is growing, thanks to support from the Ohio Arts Council through its ArtsNEXT program, which funds innovative and experimental programs. The film program, dubbed Wayne Center Studios, will grow in conjunction with the Lyric as it works toward its opening in 2024. The hope is to eventually grow the program enough to host a film festival featuring local projects and artists.

"We're looking forward to inviting other talented regional filmmaking professionals to Wooster to share their movie production knowledge and skills with local movie enthusiasts and emerging filmmakers," Carolyn Robinson of the Lyric Theater Programing Committee said.

The Lyric Theater also is providing a limited number of full scholarships for anyone with an interest in filmmaking who cannot afford the workshop. The fee is $99 for the workshop and is open to those age 16 and over. Interested students can register at www.WayneArtsCenter.org. Email Lynn@WayneArtsCenter.org to inquire about scholarships and Buckey@WayneArtsCenter.org with questions about the course.

Grandsons witness startling origin of their favorite drink

There would be cows, of that much we were certain, and that's all the convincing it took to get our grandsons fired up about an afternoon on the Wayne County Farm Tour with Papa and Gee Gee. Actually, we could have said there would be dirt, bugs and stones and they would have been equally as excited to run around the countryside with Kristin and me. With James ringing in at 3 1/2 and Max at two years his junior, the pair is at that magical age where any outing can be pitched as the adventure of a lifetime.

It didn't take much selling to get the boys' parents on board with the idea of an afternoon off either. With Charlotte fresh off a road trip and Andrew stuck working on a research paper, the chance at a few hours without the constant din of crashing toys and loudly screeched inequities seemed like a dream too precious to own. Charlotte had the boys strapped in and headed toward our midway rendezvous point before I even hung up the phone.

Kristin and I got to drive a really nice truck in the deal, compliments of the unspeakably complex process of properly transferring the kids' car seats into our little Toyota. Charlotte just flashed us an ornery grin, gave us each a pat on the shoulder, handed me her truck keys and then drove off alone in our car. This was likely the best option for all. As a daily driver, the truck is already hopelessly polluted with the detritus of preschool travelers. Empty juice boxes peer out from beneath the seats, cracker crumbs line every crease in the upholstery and the sticky smear of disgorged applesauce packets draws fruit flies toward untimely death on the back seat floor mats.

I remember living like this 25 or 30 years ago and feeling hopelessly certain those days would never end. Now here we were, eager to dive right back into the madness. Funny what happens to your own good sense when your children start having babies of their own.

So there we were, with hours to kill and a free pass to dazzle the youngsters in any way we saw fit. We headed straight to the dairy farm. If you're looking to leave a lasting impression on a toddler, just show him where the white stuff that fuels his daily rambling really comes from. Tiny minds were blown. Even James, who has something to say about everything, was "udderly" dumbstruck when he witnessed the milk coming out of that cow!

As if the idea of a four-legged milk machine wasn't enough to make a memory that would last a lifetime, then standing in the middle of a whole mess of tractors, each of them half as big as a house, took the trick in a heartbeat.

The boys fed hay to the calves, posed for photos on bales of straw and petted weary kittens sleeping in a sunbeam. It was all as good as it gets for a pair of aspiring oldsters and their toddling progeny. And Frankie, our hound dog, even got his day as we swooped by our place to pick him up on the way back to Charlotte's house. He "detailed" the interior of the truck the entire way home, snorkeling every misplaced crumb with the happy lapping of an eager tongue. A good time was had by all!

Kristin and John Lorson would love to hear from you. Write Drawing Laughier, P.O. Box 170, Fredericksburg, OH 44627, or email John at jlorsen@alovnovus.com.

Exercise is the healthy treat

Halloween is upon us. The ghosts and goblins are showing up in stores and on doorsteps. A neighbor put up purple lights that look eerie in the dark. It won't be long before trick-or-treaters are traipsing up and down the streets.

Bags of Halloween candy are for sale everywhere. A few small candy bars will not cause obesity; overindulging is the culprit. Each year more and more children are becoming obese: In fact, according to the latest National Centers of Disease Control study, 16% of children age 2-19 are overweight. Nearly 20% of children and adolescents are obese. These percentages increase each year.

My philosophy on Halloween candy has always been about moderation. A mini candy bar will not increase body weight. It is the quantity of candy consumed that increases weight. A moderate intake of candy is no more than 1 ounce a day. If you do not know how much 1 ounce is, read the label and add up the weight. Approximately 30 grams of candy equals 1 ounce.

Adding up the calories also can help define moderation. Usually, less than 100 calories of candy per day

Bobbie Randall
Kitchen Table
Nutrition

defines a moderate amount. Roughly gauge calories consumed or get out the calculator to determine if you or your child have had enough.

Parents are the key to controlling the amount of candy kids eat. Limiting sugar intake is one way to help curb the obesity epidemic. If parents can make just one rule in their house concerning Halloween candy, it should be this: no candy in front of anything digital or electronic.

Usually, eating in front of an electronic device or screen leads to mindless eating. Candy should not be consumed while watching television or playing video games. Parents, this rule applies to you also. Munching on your kid's candy while at the computer can mean a tighter waistband. Pay attention to the quantities consumed.

A few candy bars eaten while walking or bicycling do not count in my book. The candy bar calories are used by the body for energy almost immediately when the body is moving. Go ahead and enjoy the feel of soft, sweet nougat on your tongue or the happy crunch of sugar-coated nuts or candy corn while the body is in motion.

The best way to keep a feel-good feeling flowing though the body is to increase the movement of muscles. Walking, stretching, bending and moving in general produce a happy reaction in the body called endorphin release. This causes euphoric hormones to run through the body.

The beneficial part of Halloween trick-or-treating may not be the candy at all. Movement of the legs and feet, arms and hands, and head and body make this holiday such a happy one. Eat Halloween candy in moderation and move every part of your body — the more movement the better.

Last year a dad laughed when he saw my hand drop a mini candy bar into his son's treat bag. He knew I was a dietitian. What did he expect, chocolate-covered cauliflower or gummy asparagus? Have fun trick or treating!

Lights, camera, and time for some fine fall films

Let's start with a baker's dozen of movies that always get me in the mood for fall, a time quite well suited to evenings in front of the fire, the frost coating the pumpkin and a crisp snap in the air.

In no particular order, these would be my choices:

"Halloween" (1978)

There's just something about a young Jamie Lee Curtis in knee socks that gets to me every time. Probably my Catholic grade school background. This is the film that set the standard for every slasher flick that followed ... and among the best of the blood-soaked bunch.

"The Blair Witch Project" (1999)

If what you're looking for is something scary in the woods, you don't want to miss this one. Three documentary film students — none of which is very bright — meet a mysterious end in a Maryland forest.

"All the Right Moves" (1983)

Set in a fictional Pennsylvania town called Ampipe, where high school football reigns supreme, this one evokes everything that's special about fall Friday nights, most of it having nothing to do with football and everything to do with growing up.

"The Rocky Horror Picture Show" (1975)

This isn't for everyone, I get that, but it's such a

Mike Dewey

campy send-up of so many tropes — done way before that was a thing — that I find it irresistible, despite never having seen it in a theater. And I have done the Time Warp ... though not ever in public.

"Home for the Holidays" (1995)

Back when my wife (then my fiancée) and I went to movies a lot, this one entertained us immensely. An incredible cast, led by Robert Downey Jr. and Holly Hunter, propels this well-written comedy into a rather dark place when it's time for a family Thanksgiving dinner that's cringe-worthy for all awkward get-togethers.

"The Paper Chase" (1973)

Fall never fails to take me back to this film and its depiction of Harvard Law School. It is a thing of beauty, just the trees and the lake and the buildings, all of which form the backdrop of a story about a first-year student trying to make it to — and stay in — the Upper Echelon. Saw this with my family just before I started at Notre Dame and Mom always used it as a touchstone in her weekly letters, sometimes calling me "Mister Hart." Magical movie-making.

"The Perfect Storm" (2000)

Having vacationed on Nantucket Island two years before this film was released, a lot of the town and its docks and wharfs and sea-going history were familiar to me. But for a warning as to how treacherous the North Atlantic can turn in the fall, this movie never fails to remind me that the ocean has no memory.

"Harvest Home" (1978)

I think this was a made-for-TV series based on the Thomas Tryon novel, which ought to preclude its inclusion on this list, but I just love watching Bette Davis (in one of her last roles) chewing up the scenery as the leader of a coven that wreaks serious autumn havoc.

"To Kill a Mockingbird" (1962)

Doubtless the most decorated and fondly remembered movie on this list, it's almost perfect in every regard, but the scene in which Scout and Jem dress up for Halloween and walk home through those woods is among the best ever filmed. And when you get the payoff with Boo Radley stepping out from the shadows, well, I can't blame you if you start to cry a little.

"Dark Shadows" (2012)

I had almost forgotten how much I liked this one until I watched it again the other day on one of those streaming services. If you want a taste of what Maine feels like in the fall, this is essential viewing, but if you're in the mood for some serious satire and killer screenwriting, with a cast led by Johnny Depp as Barnabas Collins, this is a can't miss. Then you add in Alice Cooper rocking out and you have a wonderfully entertaining, if subversive, film.

"Risky Business" (1983)

Tom Cruise makes his second appearance on this list, again playing a teenager with hopes that, well, may just be beyond his reach. We see him raking leaves in the back yard and have no idea what's going to happen, but you'll meet Guido the killer pimp, take a thrill chase in a Porsche ("There is no substitute"), witness a party for all ages and ride a Chicago train with Tangerine Dream laying down ambient atmosphere ... oh, yeah, a call-girl too.

"Rudy" (1993)

First of all, there's more than a little Fighting Irish pixie dust sprinkled on this fairy tale — I know because I was there when it happened in 1975 — but that's just Hollywood, right? This isn't a documentary; it's only a movie, but it's a darn fine one. Filmed mostly on a campus where I spent four years, it's got heart-break and heart, with more than its fair share of human shortcomings, all leading to a climax that, as you might guess, always leaves me inspired.

"Animal House" (1978)

"Seven years of college, down the drain," says John Belushi in his signature role as Bluto, a line that most folks probably wouldn't rank in the movie's Top Ten, but I've always liked for its inside-out logic. Set at a fictional Pennsylvania college, it is all about fall on a small campus, a place for fraternity rushes, toga parties, road trips, mid-term exams, expulsions and the sweetest kind of revenge.

So that's my list.

I'm sure you have more (perhaps better) suggestions, but that's the fun of publishing mine for your personal perusal.

It's in an autumnal spirit, which makes this the best time of year.

You have cooler days with those apple-cider breezes, azure skies so blindingly blue that you can almost see heaven and the reminder that winter's on its way, so get out while you can.

Take a walk, striding down a sidewalk, kicking the leaves out of your way as you wander through a landscape in transition, breathing in the aroma of a bonfire, a movie waiting back home.

Mike Dewey can be reached at Carol-amiked@aol.com or 6211 Cardinal Drive, New Bern, NC 28560. He invites you to join the fun on his Facebook page, where autumn is currently in the air.

What's in a number? For jerseys, more than meets the eye

A few thoughts from the week in sports ...

A simple comment while watching NFL highlights that I made recently got me thinking a lot about jersey numbers in sports.

After watching one great wide receiver after another wearing jersey numbers under 20 on the highlights, I said casually to my 12-year-old son Arch, who's a big fan, "Don't any receivers wear numbers in the 80s anymore?"

"No dad!" he replied. "The receivers say higher numbers make them slower!"

"Huh?" I replied.

A few hours later, I did what many people do in the year 2023 to fact check a statement. I took to Google and typed, "Do jersey numbers make a player faster in NFL?"

Lo and behold, the first thing that popped up stated, "Study shows NFL jersey numbers are linked to perceptions of body type.

Aaron Dorksen
Columnist

A UCLA study finds that lower NFL jersey numbers tend to be associated with the idea that a player's body is slimmer and faster."

Nothing surprises me anymore, whether it be politics, things I see while out on a shopping trip or even the idea that someone might think that wearing No. 10, like the Dolphins' Tyreek Hill, instead of 80 will make him slimmer and faster.

A check of FoxSports.com's seven top-ranked wideouts of 2023 shows they all want "lighter" jerseys: 1. Justin Jefferson, Vikings, No. 18; 2. Tyreek Hill, Dolphins, No. 10; 3. Davante Adams, Raiders, No. 17; 4. (tied) Ja'Marr Chase, Bengals, No. 1 (that's really light) and Stefon Diggs, Bills, No. 14; 6.

A.J. Brown, Eagles, No. 11; and 7. Cooper Kupp, Rams, No. 10.

Close to home, the Browns' WR1 Amari Cooper is No. 2.

Traditionally, wide receivers have often been associated with jersey numbers in the 80s, but a new trend has emerged where they are now donning lower numbers typically reserved for running backs, defensive backs and quarterbacks.

A big reason behind the shift in wide receiver jersey numbers is a rule change made by the NFL in April 2021. The league decided to relax jersey number restrictions, allowing players in different positions to choose from a wider range of numbers.

Previously, certain positions were limited to specific number ranges. For example, wide receivers were mostly confined to numbers in the 10s and 80s. However, the new rule permits wide receivers to choose numbers between 1 and 49, as well as 80-89.

For NFL wide receivers, wearing lower jersey numbers is probably more about breaking the mold and creating a unique identity.

NFL Hall of Famers such as Jerry Rice, best known for his days wearing No. 80 for the 49ers, and Randy Moss (84 for the Vikings) certainly weren't slowed down lugging around 80s numbers.

Ask any longtime Browns fan who wore Nos. 82, 84 and 88 in the 1980s and they should be able to reply "Ozzie Newsome (tight end), Webster Slaughter and Reggie Langhorne."

They say the only constant is change, and I don't have any issues with a team's wideouts wearing lower numbers.

From 1946-51, Browns quarterback Otto Graham actually wore No. 60 before switching to 14 for the final three years of his career.

We've seen this low-numbers trend popular with high school and college players before it was adopted by the NFL. It's also great for NFL jersey sales.

Numbers game

Casey Howard is one of my son's seventh-grade classmates at Edgewood Middle School and showed me an interesting book this summer that I recommend to sports fans: "Any Given Number: Who wore it best from 00 to 99" from Sports Illustrated.

John Elway or Mickey

Mantle at No. 7, Tom Brady or Terry Bradshaw at No. 12, Michael Jordan or LeBron James at No. 23, and Jim Brown or Magic Johnson at No. 32 are some of the many debates listed in the book.

When I think of area high schools and see players who I covered many years ago, I sometimes remember their jersey numbers. At Triway, No. 12 is synonymous with the Carmichael family, starting with the late Sean and continued with his children Derek, Parker and Zoe.

One of the most memorable players in area history was Adam Wallace, who stood out even more by wearing No. 45 as a state champion quarterback for Norwayne. It suited him perfectly because he also was a great linebacker.

The area's all-time football great, the late Dick Schafrath, wore No. 33 for Wooster High School in the 1950s. He was a standout tackle for championship teams at Ohio State and No. 77 for the Cleveland Browns.

There are lots more great athletes whose numbers I'll long remember, but that could take up another entire column.

It's fun to see colleges have special numbers that are only given out to highly touted players.

If someone's a true legend, one of the ultimate sports honors is seeing their jersey number retired.

Playing jersey numbers trivia with a fellow sports fan is a fun way to pass the time on road trips or while sitting by a campfire.

I'm sure some readers of this column have jersey numbers that are special to their families or at the schools they root for.

Family number

No. 24 has been special to me since my sophomore year at Chardon High School. I was thrilled to have earned a starting spot on the varsity as the center fielder but couldn't stand the No. 36 jersey my coach had handed me. I couldn't think of a single good MLB player who wore that number.

On the way to a scrimmage, I was scouting out numbers worn by teammates for a possible trade and saw a JV pitcher wearing No. 24 (varsity and JV had the same jerseys). After asking to trade, a classmate gave me a quick "no," but I offered up the $5 I had in my pocket, and he said "OK."

At the time, 24 was donned by Rickey Henderson and had been worn by Willie Mays. I'd worn 21 in football and basketball, so it also was pretty close. Seeing Ken Griffey Jr. and Manny Ramirez wear 24 soon after only made it more special, and that was my number for about 25 years in slowpitch softball.

After my grandpa Robert Pierce died in his 80s, we were given his scrapbook, and I got chills to see he had worn No. 24 in high school in Kansas City for football and basketball. I'm proud to see Arch continue the family tradition in baseball.

Junior fair baking contest, auction a sweet success

A giant cheeseburger with all the fixings won Sarah Hagan the Best of Show in the Wayne County Junior Fair Baking Contest and Auction.

Her creation was actually filled with sweet treats that snagged $2,100 for the Wayne County Food and Fashion Board and Wayne County Junior Fair Board during the auction portion of the fundraiser.

Held during the opening weekend of the county fair, the event raised about $16,700 for the boards to fund scholarships and sponsor the baking contest, 4-H Style Revue and Awards Program, and leadership activities.

Purchasing Hagan's Best of Show cake were Dave Acker Auctioneer, Jed Acker Auctioneer, and Jack and Trevor Gant Realty. Hagan created the confectionery delight by using cake layers for the buns, a large round brownie for the hamburger, sugar cookies for the French fries and colored frostings to add the condiments.

Hagan said she saw a picture of a similar cake online and then created her own version. She made a practice cake and took it to a potluck meal at her church, West Salem Mission. She said those who tried it liked it.

A veteran of the baking contest, Hagan said she made the decorated cake because she wanted to do something fun.

And fun was what it was really all about as junior fair youth age 8-18 brought their baked goods to the Fair Event Center, where a panel of six volunteer judges got the enviable job of tasting the entries and choosing the winners. The participants returned in the evening to receive awards and walk their entries in front of buyers. Auctioneer Seth Andrews volunteered his services to sell the baked goods.

Hagan's champion cake also was first place in the decorated category for participants age 8-11. Lexi Long's decorated cake was runner-up in the contest and first place in the decorated category for entrants age 12-18. It was purchased by Alan Michael Ulrich of Ulrich Farms for $300.

The Eric Johnson Chocolate Lover's Award went to Izzy Pope for her second-place brownies, which were purchased by Cheryl Dye for $200.

Other winners were as follows:

—Cookies (age 8-11): Colton Plessinger, second, and Grant Baker, third.

—Cookies (age 12-18): Allison Mullen, first; Mat-

—Decorated Items (age 12-18): Joy Phillips, second, and Leonora Zemor, third.

In the junior fair board category, Owen Grossniklaus captured first, second and third place.

All winners received cash awards, and every entrant received a coupon for an ice cream cone from the Wayne County Dairy Promoters red barn ice cream stand.

Also supporting our 4-Hers were buyers Dave Funk of Wooster Motor Ways, Daniel Allen, Kirk Sheets, Dave and Sharon Emler, Nancy and Dan Burkhardt, Jackie Leatherman, Dale Sidle of Valley View Spray Service, Shana Shriver of Remember Back When, Rick and Julie Grossniklaus, Kathryn Varner, Carl Redick, Lori Arnold, Leah Faye Acker, Lisa and Dan Broome, Catalpadale Dairy, Bailey Family, Clint Walenciak, Randy Yates, Marcia Reichard, Keith Snoddy, Sarah Beck, Carrie Hovest, Joseph Pajak-Stenger, realtor Dianne Hange, Baker's Acres, Madco Market, The Faithful Little Cupcake, Kevin and Marcia Trent, Kirk Morris of Morris Oil, Bob Winkler, Karen Silvestri, Samira Zimmerly, Andy Long, Doug Nieman, Ed and Priscilla Gresser, Steiner Lumber, and Leslie Dodaro.

Thanks to everyone who made the auction a sweet success.

Predators: I'm the same bug that made you sick

Out and about on a crisp October day, you're certain to notice the dramatic shift of green to red, yellow, orange and even brown. One of the more subtle changes that might be overlooked in this explosion of color is the slow fade to pale gray or brown of the milkweed seed pod. That change signals the plant's seeds are ready, and the pod in which they've spent the past few months developing is just about to split down the side and release a cloud of snowy fluff into the surrounding countryside.

Overlooking the drab hue of the milkweed seed pod is easily excusable, but if the pods are inhabited by the strikingly vibrant red milkweed beetle, the sight is a tough one to miss — and that's by design.

The red milkweed beetle is among the many organisms that have developed a survival mechanism that can most easily be described as the opposite of camouflage.

John C. Lorson
The Rail Trail
Naturalist

Such creatures bear some sort of tangible defense mechanism, be it a foul taste, horrible smell, a tough exterior — think spikes, spines or quills — or some other characteristic that makes for a difficult meal for would-be predators.

To advertise this to the world, these critters display bright colors, or at the very least striking contrasts in color — like the black and white of a skunk — to let predators know they're not worth their time in the making of a meal. This survival strategy is known as aposematism, which is roughly translated from ancient Greek as "away sign" or a signal to keep away.

The red milkweed beetle, just as its more famous neighbor, the monarch butterfly, spends its youth feeding on milkweed, therefore acquiring the plant's inherent toxicity into its own body. A predator that snacks on one red milkweed beetle — or monarch caterpillar or butterfly for that matter — is unlikely to try it again. Though rarely fatal, a bird that gags on a bright red or orange bug quickly learns there are other much easier meals to be had and avoids the practice from there on out.

While the presence of the adult beetles on a cluster of milkweed pods may appear to be a catastrophic infestation, and the insects can interrupt the life cycle of the plants to a certain degree, it's often best to let nature take its course, as any chemical efforts to destroy the beetles is just as likely to harm the monarch butterfly.

This time of year marks the annual drive to collect seed pods from the common milkweed plant as conservation groups work to enhance

John C. Lorson

The red milkweed beetle feeds on the leaves and flowers of the common milkweed, drawing the plant's toxicity into its own body to use as a defense mechanism. The bright coloration of the insect reminds all would-be predators "this is the bug that made you sick that time you tried it," and monarch butterflies, a species that peacefully coexists with the beetle on the milkweed plant, use the very same means of defense.

feeding opportunities for struggling monarch butterfly populations throughout the Midwest. Pods collected by citizen volunteers can be turned in at local Soil & Water Conservation District offices — both Wayne and Holmes counties are participating — where they will be processed and used to enhance habitat statewide.

Pods should be dry and gray or pale brown in color. It's best to collect and store using paper bags so moisture is allowed to escape, preventing mold from forming on the pods. Store the pods in a cool, dry place until you have the opportunity to drop them off. Remember to leave a few undisturbed pods on the plant's stalks so natural dispersal can continue, and don't be shy about knocking those bright red milkweed beetles off the pods you're collecting. I don't need those things crawling around my office at the Wayne SWCD.

Check the websites at www.WayneSWCD.org or www.HolmesSWCD.com for more details or call 330-263-5376 (Wayne SWCD) or 330-674-2811 (Holmes SWCD). Collection turn-in will end Oct. 30.

FAMILY-SIZED HOME ON SPACIOUS 8 ACRES ONSITE AUCTION

8 Acres | 3 Bedrooms | 36' x 40' Barn
Paint Twp. | Wayne Co. | Southeast LSD

Wednesday, October 18, 2023 • 5:00 PM

OPEN HOUSE: October 10, 2023 • 4:00-6:00 PM

LOCATION: 17485 Dover Rd, Dundee, OH 44624 Directions: From Mt Eaton, head east on US-250 for 1.6 miles to location on right.

SUMMARY: Welcome to this modern 3 - bedroom, 3-bathroom home located just 2 minutes east of Mt Eaton. Settled on 8 acres, this 2017-built property offers country living yet ease of access. For those with animals, the expansive 36' x 40' barn, complete with an 8' overhang, is paired with 5.5 acres of fenced pasture.

Inside, the home presents a spacious basement with extra-tall sidewalls and an overhead door that gives space for a garage. It features an additional kitchen, a third bathroom, bonus room and large open family room. The main floor, with its open concept layout, houses 3 bedrooms, 2 bathrooms, and a custom kitchen adorned with granite countertops. With 2,400 sq ft per floor there's plenty of elbow room in this home.

For utilities, the home is served by a private well and septic system. The property also comes equipped with a solar system, and the natural gas in-floor heating ensures consistent warmth across both levels. Offering location, acreage, and a newer home, here's an opportunity that you won't want to pass up! Legal: Wayne County Parcel 39-00605.006 in Paint Township and Southeast LSD.

TAXES: Taxes are currently $3,669.88 annually.

SUMMARY: Check out this attractive 3-bedroom, 2-bathroom home set on 1.57 acres in the heart of Wayne and Holmes County. Complete with a workshop, horse barn, stunning hilltop views, and a fenced pasture, this property is a unique find. A prime location between Mt. Hope, Winesburg, and Mt. Eaton, opportunities like this are rare. Step inside to find a newly renovated kitchen featuring a pleasant dining area with picturesque views from the rear window. Adjacent to the kitchen is a pantry and a door leading to an expansive deck. The fresh flooring throughout enhances the modern feel of the home. The main floor comprises a master bedroom, bathroom, nursery, a spacious living room, and a sewing room. The upstairs houses two additional bedrooms and a nice bathroom. The basement level is spacious, fitted with a secondary kitchen ideal for canning, a designated wash area, and the advantage of a walkout exit. The outdoor space is perfect for hosting, with a recently upgraded deck that overlooks a vast backyard—ideal for camping and play. Those with animals will appreciate the 28' x 30' two-stall barn with an adjoining fenced pasture. The barn also features a section for dog kennels. For those seeking extra space, the 30' x 52' workshop offers ample garage space, suitable for buggies, vehicles, or even hosting church. It's equipped with two new garage doors and a complete solar system, complemented by a 6500-watt Honda inverter generator. This move-in-ready home has been meticulously maintained and boasts upgrades including a new kitchen, flooring, garage doors, sidewalks, and a rebuilt deck. Don't miss out on viewing this property and participating in the upcoming auction. An exceptional opportunity awaits!

PORT WASHINGTON PRIME HUNTING LAND
ONLINE AUCTION ONLY

80+ Acres in 2 parcels | 50% Mineral Rights | Hunting Timber | Salem Twp. | Tuscarawas Co. | Indian Valley LSD

Bidding Begins Ending:
Thursday, October 19, 2023 • 5:00 PM

LOCATION: Near 12042 US-36, Port Washington, OH 43837 GPS: 40.303099, -81.542021 Directions: From US-77 & US-36 head east on US-36 for 1.2 miles to location on left.

SUMMARY: Escape to the great outdoors with these two parcels of prime hunting land in Port Washington, literally 1-minute off the Newcomerstown exit. With a combined 80 acres, both parcels offer stunning scenery, prime hunting, and ATV trails throughout, providing ample opportunities for outdoor adventure. The natural bowl shape of the land creates ideal settings for secluded hunting spots. Don't miss your chance to own your piece of hunting paradise in a prime location. The sale of 50% of mineral rights offers added value in a desirable area.

PARCEL 1: 50.525 Acres with road frontage on both US-36 and Glasgow Rd gives ease of access to both sides of the ridge. The natural lay of the land on this parcel offers the perfect opportunity to create your own pond, and some good timber stands add value to this already perfect hunting tract. A brand-new Double Drop hunting blind that overlooks a secluded food plot located on the SW side.

PARCEL 2: 30 Acres with 369 ft of frontage on US-36. Also, a 30 ft access easement as detailed on the map. This parcel offers prime hunting from creek-bottoms to field-edge, to a ridge-saddle that creates a natural funnel, to wooded ground and sheltered food plots. It's rare to find such a variety of options on a parcel this size.

PARCEL 3: 50% of the sub-surface mineral rights of Parcel 1, 50.525 acres.

PARCEL 4: 50% of the sub-surface mineral rights of Parcel 2, 30 acres.

LEGAL: Tuscarawas County Parcels 50-00328-001 & 50-00147-002 in Salem Township and Indian Valley LSD. Taxes: TBD Terms: Visit www.kaufman-auctions.com
