River Radio Ministries buys Wooster stations

River Radio Ministries has entered into an agreement to purchase 104.5 WQKT-FM/960 WKVX-AM, located in Wooster, from WWST Corporation, owned by parent company Dix 1898 Inc., for just over $3 million. It was announced Nov. 13.

The stations were the final media assets of the former Dix Communications, now Dix 1898. The company sold its newspaper holdings in 2017 including The Daily Record and had owned both stations since they were built in 1947.

River Radio will add the Wooster station to the four it already owns in Gahanna,

Q Media Wooster

Chillicothe, Newark and Lancaster.

"We are excited to serve Wooster and the surrounding community the way we have served Central Ohio for the last 50 years," River Radio Ministries President/CEO Bill Montgomery said. "We desire to continue building on a community-focused foundation that the listeners and advertisers can embrace."

Montgomery said the large signal coverage (52,000 watts) and the new FM transmitter that will be able to broadcast an adjacent (second channel) high-definition signal that can rebroadcast the AM format in FM quality to a larger geographic audience is exciting.

"We also look forward to using two newly remodeled recording studios for community programming and advertisers," he said.

The Wooster stations currently broadcast country (FM) and rock oldies (AM); an array of sports including high school, College of Wooster and Ohio State University; and all three Cleveland pro franchises.

"Wooster and the surrounding area have played a role in our business and family since 1898; it is a dynamic and thriving community," said Charles Dix, president of WWST Corporation and Dix 1898 Inc. "It has been an honor to serve listeners with news, sports and music, as well as help and support our advertisers."

Montgomery explained his company's desire to be part of the local community and its plans for a local staff to serve the community effectively.

"We will be a commercial station, and we will need the necessary local staff to run it properly," he said. "We look forward to interviewing the existing staff, which has made the station so successful."

"We are a nonpolitical group and are excited to have what will be the equivalent of two stations with equal range and quality. It will take us some time just to evaluate what the stations are doing now. Our plans are not finalized, and we want to see what is working well and assess what is good for listeners, advertisers and the stations."

River Radio plans to operate the stations commercially. River Radio is not owned by a church affiliation, but rather is independent.

The agreement has been filed with the FCC for approval, and River Radio Ministries will take possession of the stations, pending FCC approval, likely in the first quarter of 2024.

Veterans Day service concludes with highway dedication

By Dan Starcher

The men and women who served in the Vietnam War returned home to find a nation deeply divided over the conflict, and many people were ungrateful to them for their service.

In the years following the war, communities have found ways to recognize the sacrifices made by these veterans. One local Vietnam-era veteran, Jeff Sampsel, saw his two-year effort to earmark a segment of Old Lincoln Highway, from state Route 250 to state Route 302, in their honor come full circle on Saturday, Nov. 11 when the Wayne County commissioners dedicated the Wayne County Vietnam Veterans Memorial Highway following a Veterans Day service at the fairgrounds.

"This project has been on my bucket list for a long time," Sampsel said. "I have never seen (a Vietnam Veterans Memorial Highway) here in Wayne County, and I felt we deserved to have one after 50 years. This is my way of paying things forward."

Sampsel said the memorial started taking shape after he contacted commissioner Sue Smail.

"I talked to many people about getting this project done," Sampsel said. "But Sue is the one who went forward and made it happen for me."

Smail and commissioners Jon Hofstetter and Ron Amstutz attended the service and dedication ceremony.

"Throughout the history of our great nation, countless brave individuals have answered the call to serve our country in the armed forces including 32 from Wayne County who gave their lives fighting in the name of freedom in Vietnam," Smail read from a proclamation. "As residents of Wayne County, we must never forget the bravery and courage of the men and women who fought with honor in Vietnam. Let us never forget their sacrifice and always hold their memory in our hearts."

While Sampsel is pleased with the memorial highway's tangible connection to the past, he said his work honoring veterans isn't finished.

"I want to get the bridge we cross on Memorial Day during the parade leading up to the Wooster Cemetery named the Vietnam Veterans Bridge," he said. "But I have to go through the state to get that done."

Dan Starcher is the public communications coordinator for Wayne County.

JOE Rock n Roll

Wooster native Joe Wickens helps preserve music history at Rock and Roll HOF

By Dottie Sines

Joe Wickens can barely carry a tune and couldn't play the first note on a musical instrument.

But the Wooster native is responsible for ensuring 45,000 music artifacts are cataloged and preserved. To be fair, Wickens has always loved music, so he treasures his position as collections and exhibits manager at the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame, located on the shores of Lake Erie in Cleveland.

"I love taking care of history that in some way means something personal to all of us," Wickens said.

Wickens' work begins when an artifact arrives. He lets it acclimate for 24 hours, especially instruments, to prevent warping. Next is accession, which involves establishing a catalog record of the item and documenting its condition including any marks and stickers.

He then photographs the item, utilizing a light box and a foot candle reader to gauge light exposure, and tags it with when and from where it was acquired. He then either stores it at 68 F with 50% relative humidity or passes it to the exhibit team. Sometimes he assists with exhibit installation or deinstallation.

A Wooster High School graduate, Wickens earned a B.A. in History at Baldwin-Wallace University, then his master's degree in museum studies at Cleveland State University. Soon after, he started at the RRHOF as a security representative, which he viewed as a stepping stone to a position where he could apply his education and interest in history and museums.

So he learned all he could about the organization, from the grounds to curating. After working his way up to security supervisor, he accepted a coordinator position in the curatorial department. Following two years in that role, he was promoted to the position he's held now for 2 1/2 years.

Wickens and his team of three handle an array of artifacts from rock and roll music's past. On a recent trip to the collections storage vault, he opened a cabinet, and inside was what might be mistaken for a haphazard stash of old Halloween costumes in anyone's basement. Wickens donned gloves and proceeded to pull out one garment after another, identifying them: Jimi Hendrix's patchwork jacket, a gold lamé concoction worn by Beyonce, a purple tunic Anne Wilson wore in a Heart performance, George Harrison's gold suit from the premiere of "Yellow Submarine" and Elvis Presley's U.S. Army jacket.

"These items are valuable, beyond monetarily, and culturally significant," he said.

He slid open a drawer of what looked like a blueprint cabinet and retrieved the guitar Joe Walsh used to compose and record one of his biggest hits as a solo artist, "Rocky Mountain Way." In another drawer is a guitar repurposed by Jerry Garcia from a couch. From a battered leather case, Wickens removed a mandolin played by The Band's Levon Helm at Woodstock, and there's a five-necked guitar played by Cheap Trick's

Rick Nielsen.

Artifacts arrive in various ways. Sometimes the curators seek out specific pieces for a planned exhibit. Frequently, artists and collectors donate or loan items. Most often, fine art shippers transport the artifacts, but sometimes the owner personally delivers an item.

Wickens and his team often pick up or return artifacts, sometimes at artists' homes, recently traveling to New York City on behalf of David Bowie's estate. The widow of the Doobie Brothers' John Hartman donated his drum kit and requested it be picked up. After traveling through the hollers of West Virginia, Wickens and company arrived at the home to find the widow emotional.

"She wanted assurance that the drum kit would be well cared for," Wickens said. "It was very touching."

The RRHOF also loans and borrows items to/from other institutions. "We have great relationships with Graceland, Paisley Park and the Country Music Hall of Fame," Wickens said.

He also travels to preview exhibits, recently going to Los Angeles. "I enjoy the opportunity to talk about our collections since I work alone much of the day," Wickens said. He also appears frequently on Fox-8 TV's "Kickin' It With Kenny" feature.

Wickens' favorite artifact is a small piece of paper. Songwriter Doc Pomus contracted polio in childhood, leaving him wheelchair bound. At his wedding reception, he sat watching his wife dance with various friends and family. In that moment he grabbed a wedding invitation and scribbled a song onto it. "Save the Last Dance for Me" became a hit for the Drifters.

"I like artifacts that humanize artists. Knowing the inspiration for that song makes it land differently for me now," Wickens said. "Artifacts can fall flat without context and history."

The artifact he considers most important is the guitar John Lennon played during the Beatles' first appearance on the "Ed Sullivan Show" because the 1964 performance inspired many RRHOF inductees to begin playing music and because of the number of the show's viewers — over 70 million Americans, about 40% of the population at that time.

In his job at the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame, Joe Wickens, left, got to know hip hop artist Flavor Flav when he escorted him around the Rock Hall earlier this year.

Through his work Wickens continually learns about music and its history. He also has gained a deeper appreciation for various artists and has met some, including Alice Cooper, Flavor Flav and Nancy Wilson. Steven Tyler and Dave Grohl each unexpectedly dropped in and stood in line to buy a ticket.

"I enjoy seeing an artist geek out over other artists," Wickens said. "They're fans just like anybody."

Wickens knows he has a very cool gig, and his passion for his work is apparent.

"Everyone has a favorite band, song, album, singer, drummer, guitarist, bassist or keyboardist," he said. "Visiting the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame can be a very personal, intimate experience. Working on the team that facilitates those experiences and getting to handle the artifacts is truly awesome."

Wooster native Joe Wickens is constantly learning more about music in his role as collections and exhibits manager at the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland. Here, he points out a feature on the mandolin played by The Band's Levon Helm at Woodstock.

Breaking down Wayne County's 492 provisional ballots

By Dan Starcher

Elections are the cornerstone of democracy. They provide an opportunity for citizens to have their voices heard and to participate in selecting their leaders and the passage of issues.

One of the ways the Wayne County Board of Elections ensures fair elections is by employing a fail-safe mechanism called provisional balloting to ensure every vote counts, even if there is an initial question of a voter's eligibility.

In the Nov. 7 general election, Wayne County Board of Elections Director Julie Leathers-Stahl reported 492 ballots were given provisional status.

“Provisional ballots cast on or before election day are sorted by precinct, and we make sure that all of the information is provided, like proper signatures,” Stahl said. “Then we look at each ballot individually.”

What are provisional ballots

“(Provisional ballots) are one way we maintain election integrity,” Stahl said. “If a person moves

Dan Starcher

Some Nov. 7 general election races were tightly contested, and the 492 provisional ballots cast in Wayne County could still determine their outcome.

into the county and forgets to change their address, we make sure that the ballot was cast at the correct location. Then we contact the county they moved from to see if they were registered there and if they cast a ballot in that county.”

Provisional ballots are held temporarily when an individual's eligibility to vote is in question for various reasons such as missing identification, discrepancies in registration records or even casting a vote outside their designated precinct. Instead of denying these individuals the opportunity to vote altogether, provisional ballots offer a temporary solution, allowing their votes to be counted provisionally until their eligibility is verified.

First, they ensure no eligible voters are kept from having the chance to participate in the polls. Secondly, provisional ballots are one of the many safeguards against potential voter fraud. By subjecting these ballots to a verification process, election authorities can meticulously examine each case and determine if the individual's vote should be counted as valid.

A mountain of work

“Realize that we have less than five days to verify ballots,” said Bryon Bell, elections board deputy director. “If the address of a person is in question, we have to call or email the board in that county and verify they were registered. Keep in mind that boards of election from possibly all 88 counties are also calling us to verify ballots that they received.”

By addressing potential concerns after the election, provisional ballots help maintain the integrity and fairness of the electoral system.

“This mechanism also protects voter access to the ballot,” Bell said. “If provisional ballots did not exist and there was a question about your eligibility, you would not be able to vote, which is something we do not do. Instead of turning a voter away, they may cast a provisional ballot, allowing us to research it and ensure it is countable. There is also a cure period that allows the voter to fulfill the requirement they failed to meet. That information is given to the four-person bipartisan board of directors for a ruling.”

In addition to the 492 provisional ballots cast on Nov. 7, more than 300 absentee ballots were mailed out to voters, and to be counted, they must arrive back at the board office by Nov. 13.

The finalized tally must be completed by Nov. 27.

Dan Starcher is the public communications coordinator for Wayne County.

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

DocuPet makes purchasing a dog license easy

By Dan Starcher

Dog ownership is a joy but comes with responsibilities. One of those responsibilities is ensuring proper licensure. In addition to being legally required, licensing provides an effective way to reunite lost dogs with their owners.

To help make dog licensing convenient, Wayne County Dog Warden and Dog Shelter Director Katelyn Lehman and auditor Jarra Underwood partnered with DocuPet to purchase dog tags online. Dog licenses may be purchased from Dec. 1 through Jan. 31.

“Without question lost dogs with clear identification are returned home much faster than those without tags,” Lehman said. “DocuPet is taking it one step further and allowing dog owners to upload a current photo of their pet directly to the license program, which has also been very helpful. When we all work together, we can keep dogs safe and happy and return them home as quickly as possible.”

The standard tag includes the pet profile link, HomeSafe ID, and DocuPet’s 24/7 HomeSafe hotline number. The owner can personalize the tag with the pet’s name and phone number for an additional fee.

Getting started with DocuPet is a straightforward process.

First, visit the Wayne County DocuPet website at <https://waynecounty.docupet.com> and create an account.

Next, select the type of license needed. DocuPet offers various options including annual and lifetime licenses.

After choosing the license type, additional information such as name, breed and any relevant medical or identification details should be entered. This information will help ensure lost pets are correctly identified and can be reunited with their owners.

Once all the necessary information is provided, proceed to the payment step.

DocuPet offers secure online payment options. The cost of the license will vary depending on the type chosen; 2023 dog license fees are as follows:

- One year, $16.
- Three years, $48.
- Lifetime, $160.
- Puppy, $8 (available July 1 through Dec. 1 for puppies under 3 months old).

Once payment is confirmed, the tag will be mailed to the address on the account.

Having a license with clear identification information increases the chances of a swift and successful reunion of a lost pet with its owner in the case of a missing pet.

Orrville’s Snyder family answered the call to adopt

By Monica L. Miyashita

Editor’s note: This is the second in a three-part series celebrating National Adoption Awareness Month, from the perspective of the adoptive parents.

For one Orrville family, a little girl named Ella changed their lives. Tim and Christine Snyder were already the parents of biological children Brennen, Sophia and Cole when they felt a tug on their hearts to adopt a child.

The Bible verse from Jeremiah 29:11 cried out to them: “For I know the plans I have for you, declares the Lord, plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you a hope and a future.” They listened to this call and contacted an adoption agency in Medina, and that call led them to Ella. Ella’s adoption is what is considered an open adoption, meaning the birth parents and the adoptive parents know the identity of one another and the option is there to maintain contact.

Ella was adopted at birth. “Ella was placed in our custody at birth,” Christine Snyder said. “She was in the NICU at birth due to the side effects of addiction.”

The name Ella is an amalgamation of her birth parents’ names, a name Christine and Tim came up with to honor her parents. Their three biological children accepted Ella without question.

“Our other children were amazing with Ella and immediately accepted her as their sister,” Christine Snyder said. “I have to remind myself sometimes that I did not physically give birth to Ella. She has made our family complete.”

But adoption is not without moments of loss, as even a child adopted at birth can experience loss, trauma and anxiety. Ella has exhibited some of that anxiety.

“We have seen some separation anxiety in her

Perception Studio

The family of Tim and Christine Snyder of Orrville already included children Brennen, left, and Sophia and Cole, right, when they decided to adopt Ella, being held here by Christine.

even though we have had her in our care since birth,” Snyder said. “It is difficult to determine the source of the anxieties; however, we feel as though the in-utero trauma and just overall trauma from the adoption presents as anxiety. “We are discussing adoption with her in appropriate terms. Ella knows that she grew in her birth mother’s tummy but that she also grew in our hearts.”

Christine and Tim Snyder know that as Ella grows up, there will be more questions, and they plan to answer those questions as openly and honestly as they can.

While adoption is not always easy and brings some trials along with the joys, Christine Snyder has some advice for prospective adoptive parents.

“If anyone is considering adoption, I would tell them to listen to the nudge that is being placed in their heart,” she said. “It is important to be prepared in knowing that you are entering a world of brokenness and trauma. You are also entering the world of paperwork.”

“Adoption is not for the faint of heart. It is also one of the richest experiences we have ever known. It has changed our lives and our perspective of others.”

For the Snyder family, adoption has woven the life of Ella into their hearts forever.

Honor loved ones with an Aultman holiday tree light

The Aultman Foundation will offer community members and families the chance to honor and remember loved ones during this year's Light Up a Life Memory Tree. The 17th annual event, featuring the tree lighting, will premiere virtually on Thursday, Dec. 14 at 6 p.m.

Families, friends and local businesses are invited to sponsor a light on the tree for $25 or a tribute wreath for a $250 donation. Other sponsorship opportunities also are available at www.aultman.org/MemoryTree.

The names of those supported with a light and/or wreath will be displayed in the Aultman Hospital, Aultman Alliance Community Hospital and the Compassionate Care Center lobbies throughout the holiday season. Supporters can choose whether they would like their tribute wreaths displayed in the Aultman Hospital or AACH lobby. The names of those supported also will be highlighted during Aultman's Memory Tree virtual ceremony and on Aultman's social media platforms.

Proceeds from this event will benefit Aultman hospice patients, families and grief support programs. Sponsorships will be accepted through Monday, Dec. 4. Those who make a gift will receive the invitation to attend the virtual premiere and watch with family and friends. For more information or to contribute to the event, visit www.aultmanfoundation.org or call 330-363-4908.

Orrville Area Chamber is offering solo memberships

The Orrville Area Chamber of Commerce is offering membership for individuals who are retired or do not currently own a business but wish to remain invested in the work of the chamber and participate in its activities.

"I was having a conversation with Donna Dale Davis, and she shared a desire to be involved with the chamber, but we didn't have any way for her to participate," said Dan Franks, chamber president. "At a previous chamber of commerce I served on the board of, we had an individual membership level, and I approached our board about starting this new opportunity here, and they were happy to approve it."

This chamber membership is not meant for current business owners or civic organizations. There are already opportunities for those who fall into those categories. This membership level is for retired individuals who want to continue to support the chamber as a way of bettering the community.

Those who join at the individual membership level will receive chamber newsletters, eblasts and invitations to chamber events.

This membership level would require annual dues of $100 per person or $150 per household. Membership would run on the same calendar year as business memberships. Membership only applies to the individual who has paid the membership dues and cannot be applied to any associate memberships, persons, organizations or businesses to which the member may be connected.

Farm Credit Mid-America scholarships

Farm Credit Mid-America is now accepting applications for its Customer Scholarship and Farm Credit Mid-America Scholars programs. Children or grandchildren of Farm Credit Mid-America customers and college students who plan to pursue a career in agriculture are encouraged to apply. Scholarship recipients are chosen based on academic performance, leadership qualities, community involvement, and passion for promoting and being part of the future of agriculture.

Jobs related to food, agriculture, renewable natural resources and the environment are expected to increase 2.6% from 2020-25 to nearly 60,000 jobs annually. Farm Credit Mid-America's scholarship programs encourage the next generation of agricultural leaders to pursue degrees in these fields.

"We are excited to see the many career opportunities that exist in agriculture and related fields. We want to encourage young people to pursue these careers and nurture them in their journey because we recognize they are the future of our industry," said Randy Barbee, Farm Credit Mid-America community investment manager. "By awarding financial support to tomorrow's agricultural leaders, we are fulfilling our mission to secure the future of rural communities and agriculture."

The Farm Credit Mid-America Scholars program is available to rising college sophomores and juniors pursuing careers in agriculture. The program awards $5,000 in financial support over two academic years to 25 students each year. Recipients also participate in learning and travel experiences that develop leadership skills and enhance financial literacy.

The Customer Agricultural Scholarship is awarded to children or grandchildren of Farm Credit Mid-America customers. Each year 36 students majoring in agriculture or pursuing an agricultural or rural community-related career at an accredited two- or four-year college, university, vocational or trade school receive a $1,500 scholarship.

Farm Credit Mid-America's collegiate scholarship programs are a part of its community investment initiatives, which will return nearly $4 million this year to programs and organizations that nurture the next generation of agriculture leaders, expand industry access for young and beginning farmers, and promote agriculture's value and economic impact.

College-bound students who meet the eligibility requirements for a Farm Credit Mid-America scholarship are encouraged to apply before the Dec. 31 deadline. Recipients will be announced in spring 2024. To learn more about the scholarships or to submit an application, visit www.fcma.com/scholarships.

Farm Credit Mid-America exists to secure the future of rural communities and agriculture as a leading provider of reliable, consistent credit and financial services to farmers, producers, agribusinesses and rural residents in Arkansas, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Ohio and Tennessee.

Historical Society is holding holiday open houses Dec. 1, 2

The Wayne County Historical Society will hold two holiday open houses for the public on Friday, Dec. 1 from 5-8 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 2 from 1-5 p.m. Admission is $5 for adults and free for age 18 and under. The historical society is located at 546 E. Bowman St. in Wooster.

The eight-building campus will be decorated for the season, and several special exhibits will be on view including “Glitz and Glamour,” clothing from the Roaring Twenties, in the dress shop and “Men with Aprons and Tools” in the Kister Building. The Beall-Stibbs House will be fully decorated as it would have been in the 19th century, and the historical society’s newest acquisition, a 1923 Ford Model T depot hack, will be on display in the carriage house.

is set for Nov. 24 in Orrville

Kick off the holiday season at Orrville's Home for the Holidays celebration on Friday, Nov. 24.

Santa and Mrs. Claus will arrive at 5 p.m. at the Smith Orr Homestead by fire truck and then will be escorted by the Orrville Lions Club for the Homestead's lighting ceremony at 5:15 p.m. From there Santa and Mrs. Claus can be found at various stops along the HFTH event route throughout the evening.

Attendees can view and take photos with over 55 ice sculptures and visit businesses and organizations along the event route, which extends from Main Street, to Market Street, to Sterling Avenue, to High Street. Stops will include activities, beverages, crafts, snacks and more. Christ United Church of Christ's live nativity, a crowd favorite, will begin at 5:30 p.m., followed by an ice-carving demonstration at the American Legion at 6 p.m. and the live fire and ice demonstration at Gary's Drive-Thru at 7:30 p.m.

Visitors of all ages can participate in a scavenger hunt by picking up a ticket at Cornerstone Park and following clues to find some of Santa's friends along the event route. Once you find all 10 of Santa's friends, you can get your ticket punched and turn it back in to receive a prize or enter for a chance at several giveaways donated by local businesses. While at Cornerstone Park, listen to WQKT's live broadcast and holiday music and check out the community Christmas tree donated by Gary's Drive-Thru and decorated by members of the Orrville Area Boys & Girls Club.

Iceless skating will again be provided by Serpentine Chevrolet at its body shop location until 9 p.m., where people also can visit and take photos with a reindeer.

For a complete list of events, times, who's participating and a map of ice sculpture locations, be sure to check out the Home for the Holidays Facebook page.

KIKO cuts ribbon on Dalton office

The Wayne County KIKO team with KIKO Realtors, Auctioneers and Advisors recently opened a new office in Dalton at 19 N. West Lebanon Road.

KIKO celebrated the opening with the Orrville Area Chamber of Commerce at a ribbon-cutting ceremony with food and the Blend of Grace coffee truck. The new Dalton office solidifies a commitment to serving all of the community's real estate and auction needs. With a history now spanning five generations, KIKO has grown from a small family business to an industry with the capacity to serve clients as real estate advisers across the region, specializing in selling farmland, residential and commercial real estate, agricultural equipment, classic cars, industrial machinery, firearms and more.

KIKO was established in 1945 by Russ Kiko Sr. and has been a family-owned and operated company for the past 78 years. Russ Kiko Sr. chose a covered wagon to represent the company's role as pioneers in the auction industry. KIKO's headquarters is based out of Canton, with a satellite office in Dover.

The Wayne County KIKO team is led by Peter Kiko Sr., a third-generation

MOCA House participant Emily Nulph gets ready for the recent Expressions of Hope Art Auction at The Connection Conference & Event Center in Wooster. Nulph's acrylic "Red/Blue Swirl" was among the works up for bid.

Art auction showcases works of MOCA House

When Emily Nulph moved from her Maryland home to be closer to family in Orrville, she found she had lost her support system of friends and fellow breast cancer survivors.

And while having family around was great, she said, "You need the love and care of people who understand you."

She grew more and more depressed.

Then in what seemed like divine intervention, Nulph and her husband found a MOCA House calendar in her doctor's office, and the calendar included art. MOCA House is a drop-in peer recovery program offered at no cost at NAMI Wayne and Holmes Counties.

Six years later Nulph is a MOCA House regular. There, she said, she found her support system. "We express ourselves," she said, "and we get our feelings out."

Nulph has created a number of canvases, but it was the contemporary "Red/Blue Swirl" that was chosen as one of 30 pieces for NAMI of Wayne & Holmes Counties' Expressions of Hope Art Auction.

Proceeds from the fourth biennial event, which also included a silent auction, benefit MOCA House's recovery program, according to Jen Grim, agency director.

"Around our art table, no one needs any previous art experience or training," original volunteer art instructors Tom Wood and Connie Barnard wrote in the auction catalog. "It is not about the final creation as much as it is about transformation and expression. It is about relationships, creating, sharing, learning and supporting each other."

Nulph would agree. "When you get the brush in your hand," she said, "it's like you escape from your problems and your everyday life. No matter how you put it on the canvas, you get joy inwardly. You escape to another world."

The art slated for auction was created by MOCA House participants, supporters and instructors. Fast bidding kept auctioneer Junior Miller of Kaufman Realty & Auctions busy while attendees also could purchase holiday artwork, MOCA House greeting cards, matted watercolors, photography and canvases, and MOCA House artwork tumblers. In total there were 30 pieces in the silent auction, 30 pieces in the live auction, over 60 artists represented and over 125 in attendance.

MOCA — Motivating, Optimistic, Caring and Accepting — House, which started in 2010 in a College Avenue house, is a drop-in, peer-run program designed to build skills, friendships and confidence.

NAMI now has a permanent home at 2525 Back Orrville Road in Wooster, which is where MOCA House programming happens Monday through Friday.

"Today, I am not ashamed of who I am. I am me, and God created me," Nulph said. "We can contribute to society. It's OK (to have a mental health issue). I didn't ask for it, but it came. I was lost until I got to (MOCA House)."

NAMI of Wayne & Holmes Counties is a partner agency of the Mental Health & Recovery Board of Wayne and Holmes Counties.

NEW roundtable talks budgeting

The Orrville Area Chamber of Commerce’s Networking Empowers Women
hosted a roundtable on Nov.
9 at Cobblestone Hotel &
Suites in Orrville. Loni
Weaver of Edward Jones presented on the Power of Budgeting.

The workshop explored the importance of creating and maintaining a budget, examined the differences between needs and wants, and explained how to set goals for spending, savings and debt repayment.

“Only 20% of people say they have had financial education,” Weaver said.
“Knowledge leads to confidence, and confidence creates resilience.”

Weaver said there are two debt-management strategies she recommends:
avalanche and snowball
methods.

“Avalanche method has said, “while the snowball smallest balance first while paying the minimum payment on other debts. For these methods to work, you must commit to them.”

Weaver encouraged attendees to set financial goals, whether they are short-term (a few months to a year), medium-term (two to five years) or long-term

(more than five years).
“Financial goals are personal goals you set for yourself about how you will save and spend money,” Weaver said.

Weaver shared strategies for saving such as making a habit to save, using automatic savings and limit spending.

Key takeaways were to use a budgeting strategy to manage your spending,
saving and debt repayment.
Weaver suggests speaking to someone you can trust like family, a friend or a financial adviser for support and to always keep learning by reviewing financial education.

OHuddle event raises over $27,000

OHuddle had a successful Floor is Lava fundraising event on Saturday, Nov. 4 at CrossFit Orrville.

Community members and their families came out to Orrville CrossFit to compete in four different obstacle courses. The beginner course allowed the youngest participants to join, and the professional course was for more serious competitors. In honor of the mentor relationship, a new course this year allowed two individuals to compete at the same time.

First-place winner of the professional course was Matthew with a time of 46.19 seconds, first-place winner of the red intermediate course was Paisley with a time of 11.13 and the first-place winner of the beginner course was Wyatt with a time of 14.15.

OHuddle thanks all of the participants who came out to support school-based mentoring. The organization raised more than $27,000 to sustain its mentorship service at Orrville City Schools.

Special thanks go to event sponsors CrossFit Orrville and Stage Skins; gold sponsor Heartland Education Community; silver sponsors Justin Haislip, State Farm Insurance Agent and Mission: Thrift in Orrville; and bronze sponsors Rogue Tree Solutions and Serpentine Orrville.

Sonnenberg Station, a local 19-member men's ensemble, recently announced its schedule of holiday concerts in the area.

The group, which derived its name from a landmark in the Sonnenberg Valley northeast of Kidron, strives to weave a thread of local culture to the area. Directed and accompanied by Tim Yoder, the ensemble has given over 160 programs in more than 80 venues over the course of 17 years and continues to sing to audiences without the aid of amplification.

This season Sonnenberg Station's repertoire will feature the sounds of Christmas. There will be some old and familiar Christmas songs with perhaps an unfamiliar twist and some new ones.

Sonnenberg Station concert dates, times and venues are as follows:

Previewing the H.S. girls basketball teams in the area

The high school girls basketball season will begin Nov. 22.

Here are season previews for each school in The Wayne Bargain Hunter's coverage area:

Waynedale

While Smithville certainly will have something to say about it this year, and Chippewa has had a lot to say about it in the past, Waynedale's girls basketball team has emerged over the past three seasons as the class of the Wayne County Athletic League, and the numbers make that difficult to dispute.

While the current seniors have been part of the program, the Golden Bears have posted a 75-7 overall record, 40-2 in the WCAL with two outright and one shared championship, and have gone 14-3 in the post-season. That mark includes back-to-back trips to the final four in 2020-21 and 2021-22.

The team last year finished 22-4 overall and 12-2 in the WCAL, which left the Golden Bears tied atop the standings with Chippewa and Smithville, then made it to the district finals.

"Our experience will be a huge strength for us this season," sixth-year coach Rick Geiser said. "Our senior leadership has been tremendous and will ultimately determine how steadily we improve as a team. All of our players are willing to work really hard and sacrifice for the benefit of what's best for the team."

Waynedale looks to have its cupboards well stocked heading into the 2023-24 season and should be able to give a loaded Smithville team all it can handle in the pursuit of a fourth consecutive league championship.

Back in the fold is a talented and experienced group led by senior guard Alyssa Geiser. A first-team All-WCAL performer a year ago, the 5-foot-7 senior guard has her name firmly etched in program history.

She averaged 11 points as a junior, was named first-team All-Northeast Ohio Inland District and first-team All-WCAL, and earned an All-Ohio special mention. Geiser is the only current Golden Bear to have appeared in multiple state tournament games.

Adessa Miller, a 5-7 senior guard, earned first-team Inland honors last season, was a second-team All-WCAL pick and earned an All-Ohio special mention after averaging nearly 13 points. Senior guard McKenna Baney returns after earning second-team All-WCAL honors a year ago. Baney received an Inland honorable mention.

Also back is senior forward Cheyanne Chupp, who like Geiser, Baney and Mast, appeared in the team's 2022 state semifinal game. Senior guard Tiana Mast and sophomore guard Kylie Geiser round out the returning group of letter winners.

Newcomers looking to make some noise this year include sophomore forward Brooke Compston and sophomore guard Jorja Persinger.

"We need to continue growing in our ability to always do the little details that make teams better," Rick Geiser said. "As we grow in our consistency, we will grow as a team."

Dalton

Sometimes a team's record doesn't tell the whole story. Dalton's 2022-23 girls basketball season was one of those times.

The Bulldogs' regular-season record was 8-14. Then came the tournament, and Dalton shrugged off the regular season and rolled to the Division IV Northeast District 3 championship.

Dalton grad Chase Moyer is back at his alma mater to coach the girls basketball team.

If the Bulldogs are going to make another run, they'll have to do it with a mostly new roster and a new coach. Six letter winners graduated from the regional-qualifying squad, and Chase Moyer is taking the reins from Katie Miller, who led the program for the last eight seasons. Miller will be on the opposite bench twice this year, piloting Chippewa.

"A certain level of change comes with every new season," Moyer said. "Our program is going through a transformation with graduating several multiyear lettermen and having a new coaching staff."

Veterans Josslyn Reynolds (post), Sydney Geiser (post), Kendall Maibach (guard) and Grace Dorffer (forward) all will be counted on to fill some of the void.

New to the fold are senior forwards KayeLee Meinhart and Paige Smith, along with the sophomore trio of Baylie Horrisberger (guard), Jacey Clark (guard) and Phoebe Lehman (forward).

Moyer said his troops are hard workers and very coachable and hopes those attributes will help them overcome some of their inexperience.

GIRLS

“By blending these characteristics with the athleticism and skill level of our group, we are hoping to compete every time we step on the court,” he said.

They have no small tasks ahead of them. Last year the WCAL produced a trio of standout squads in Chippewa, Smithville and Waynedale, who shared the conference championship three ways. None of them look to have taken much of a step back from a year ago.

Smithville

The key word on the Smithville girls basketball preseason information form is short, concise and in all capital letters.

NONE.

That’s none, as in zero for how many letter winners were lost from the Smithies’ 2022-23 team — a team that went 23-3 overall, 12-2 in the Wayne County Athletic League, tied for a conference championship with Chippewa and Waynedale, and advanced to the district finals.

Nothing like some major league expectations heading into the season. Fourth-year Smithville coach Eric Nickles, owner of a 48-25 record at Smithville and two wins away from being a 100-game winner as both a boys and girls coach, probably wouldn’t have that any other way.

“Varsity experience will be huge for us,” Nickles said. “We got a late start with everyone, so having that experience back is really beneficial because they already kind of know our system and how we want to do things.”

The veterans start with 6-foot senior forward Naomi Keib. A 15-point scorer a year ago, Keib was a first-team All-Northeast Ohio Inland District selection and WCAL Player of the Year.

Earning all-district honorable mentions were 5-10 senior Cammi Wickens and 5-9 junior guard Aly Wickens. Both are back along with 5-11 senior forward Audrey Sidle, 5-9 junior guard Madi Singer, 5-8 sophomore guard Leah Keib, 5-10 sophomore forward Kiersten Ross and 5-6 sophomore guard Regan Gherian. All eight among that group were letter winners a season ago.

The only new faces in the crowd are 5-8 freshman guard Faith Lengacher, 5-6 guard Cora Baney and 5-10 forward Ashley Walters.

“I think just being a year older with more varsity experience is something new for us,” Nickles said. “We have a lot of kids that worked really hard this offseason, and we’re excited for this team and the upcoming season.”

There’s definitely an advantage built in to having the entire team return. When it comes to doing things like installing offenses and defenses and going over various sets, out-of-bounds plays and the like, it all will be review for the Smithies.

“As coaches it’s nice because we can focus on little details that maybe most seasons we couldn’t,” Nickles said. “We are proud of the seniors and the leadership they bring. The intensity in practice has been great, and we just want to keep getting better and play our best basketball at the right time.”

Orrville

Maggie Summers is still looking for some of the old magic she once saw up close as a basketball player at Orrville High. Now in her fifth year as her alma mater’s head girls basketball coach, Summers has her work cut out once again.

Orrville was competitive a year ago, going 8-15 overall, 4-10 in the PAC-7, which left the Red Riders in sixth place.

Gone from a year ago from the Orrville roster are Averi Haley, Sophie Pertee and Annie Ayers. Haley was a 15-point scorer and second-team All-Northeast Ohio Inland District selection in Div. III.

“We lost some scoring experience and leadership, so we will have to find alternate scoring options,” Summers said. “We hope to be more aggressive defensively and solid on the boards.”

The squad returns seven letter winners, which is a nice crop any year. They include seniors Abby Ankerman (post), Natalie Dalton (guard), Ellie White (guard) and Madie White (guard); juniors Britney Butzer (post) and Abby Gonzalez; and sophomore guard Cadence Wilson.

New to the fold this year is a trio of freshmen guards in Emma Brede, Brooklyn Butzer and Jacy Mulpas. Other freshmen who could see time are Payton Baer, Serenity Feliciano, Kate Lazy and Zoe Zehnder.

“We hope to be competitive in the league and in our nonconference games,” said Summers, who listed defense, hustle, coachability and unity among her team’s strengths this year and height and consistent scoring among the weaknesses.

Central Christian

The Comets have plenty going for them. Chief among that is experience. Speed and intangibles also are on Central’s side.

The Comets are coming off a 9-13 season in which they finished 3-6 in the Mid-Buckeye Conference, which left them in fifth place in the six-team league.

That finish was accomplished with a very young team overall, as will their finish this year.

That’s because the Comets return the bulk of their 2022-23 squad, having graduated just a pair of letter winners. Center Abby Hewitt is the team’s only senior, so second-year

Continued from 29 coach Brock Holmes will be able to play the majority of his current roster for a couple of seasons. “Coming into this season, we are looking to be more experienced than we were last year,” Holmes said. “Last season we started four underclassmen, and they all return this year looking to make a huge impact. Also this year, we are expecting to play a much faster game while playing cleaner.” Back from a year ago are sophomores Maclaren Fry (point guard), Saralyn Stjernholm (shooting guard) and Adaline Aubrey (center) and juniors Micah Kozel-Steiner (small forward), Neveah Dickens (power forward) and Molly Green (power forward), along with Hewitt. They are joined by a pair of freshmen, center Sommer Shue and small forward Chloe Rohrer. Fry, Kozel-Steiner and Hewitt each earned all-conference honors last year, Fry getting a first-team nod. Holmes said his team will be loaded with speed and toughness and stressed chemistry and communication as two other areas that could set the Comets apart. “But most importantly, our effort,” he said, stating another intangible quality his squad will bring to the court. “We control what we control. We know that if we play with all our effort, then we are going to live with the ending.” On the other side of the coin, the Comets have a size deficiency. It’s not a weakness that can be easily overcome, but it’s one good teams find ways to circumvent. No matter what happens, the Comets won’t lack effort on a given night. Holmes expects his team to be the kind that gets the 50-50 balls and makes its own luck. Part of that comes from teams maybe not looking at Central Christian as a team to be reckoned with. “We are going to be a very scrappy team,” the coach said. “We play with the chip on our shoulder that a lot of teams count us out.”

Locals help AAU hoops team have 2 great summers

By Aaron Dorksen

Practices for another OHSAA girls basketball season are underway, and opening night for regular-season games is Nov. 22.

A quintet of area girls will enter the season with a huge amount of added confidence and experience after playing in several high-level AAU tournaments this summer.

Triway's Caitlin Titler and Aaliyah Wirth, Smithville's Cam Wickens, Waynedale's McKenna Baney, and Northwestern's Caydence Scale were a part of the Buckeye Blast Neon 2024 team, which compiled a 49-9 record over the last two summers.

Buckeye Blast Neon, which was coached by Sid Cline and Mike Baus, also included Lexington's Cora Palmer, Streetsboro's Ella Kassan, Lake's Paige Marshall and Marlinton's Chelsea Evanich.

A BB Neon schedule that included playing in college exposure tournaments in Cincinnati, Columbus and Pittsburgh was highlighted by winning their division for the second straight year in The Run for the Roses in Louisville, Kentucky July 5-8. Neon won the silver championship this summer and captured the platinum title in 2023.

"The Run for the Roses is the largest high school girls basketball tournament in the United States," said Cline, an assistant coach at Smithville and former head coach at Waynedale for nine seasons and Northwestern for five. "More than 2,000 college coaches attended, and there were 2,800 teams, representing six different countries. They used 100 full courts in the Louisville Convention Center. It's actually covered by ESPN."

Buckeye Blast Neon's season went from April through July and once again culminated with an exclamation point in Kentucky.

"Last year the highlight was we played the No. 1-ranked team out of Kansas and beat them by 26 points," Cline said. "These girls were just dialed in."

"This year we also beat some really good teams including Carolina Express in the championship. It was pretty special to walk into the Kentucky Convention Center this July and see the team's banner hanging from the rafters as 2022 platinum champions."

Buckeye Blast Neon also had a memorable win over a Pennsylvania team to win an AAU tournament in Pittsburgh this past summer.

"As I was talking to the Pennsylvania coach, he told me before the game that all of his players were either in the state semifinals or state finals," Cline said. "We beat them by 20-plus."

Cline and Baus used an up-tempo strategy to outrun, outscore and outwork nearly all opponents.

“We get out and run,” Cline said. “The girls totally bought into what Baus and I were doing, and it was just a lot of fun.

“Part of our belief is ‘shoot it before you lose it.’ We get out and run. We’re going to do man-to-man defense and a variety of presses and traps. Our mentality is ‘get out and go.’ We’re not looking to always get the ball to our point guard. If you get it, go, and the other girls fill the lanes. We just wore out a lot of teams that we played.”

Among the college commits from BB Neon, Titler is headed to Lake Erie College, Evanich to Seton Hill, Wickens to Heidelberg and Kassan to Westminster. Several other girls are weighing offers.

“It was fun because there were college coaches everywhere watching our team,” Cline said. “With nine girls on the roster from eight different schools, we had to get many different personalities to play together, and they did that. They were very unselfish, and we did a good job finding the hot hand.”

Asked to comment on the Wayne County players, Cline said, “Baney, the past two seasons, has done a remarkable job rebounding the ball, both offensively and defensively. She really improved her shooting this summer, making seven 3-pointers in a game.

“Wickens is very confident in her ball handling, an excellent defender and has good range as a shooter. Scale shot lights out in many games and handled the ball well. Wirth has outstanding athletic ability and had some big games scoring. Titler ran the show at point guard. She really improved her decision-making, long-range shooting as well as attacking the basket and finishing.”

Wayne-Holmes realtors award auction proceeds

The Wayne-Holmes Association of REALTORS presented the proceeds from its community benefit auction to three recipients: Whit's End Community Place, Share-A-Christmas of Holmes County and The Lt. Philip Wigal Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Share-A-Christmas and Whit's End are returning benefactors while The Lt. Philip Wigal Foundation is a newer organization, and it is hoped the donation has boosted them well over their threshold so they can begin giving back to the community soon.

A small reception was held in their honor, and each was presented with a check.

The Wayne-Holmes Association of REALTORS community benefit auction has been held in October the past two years; however, the committee is reviewing this time frame and may alter it a bit in the coming year.

In the months leading up to the next auction, application forms for benefactors will go out, and nominations will be reviewed. The community benefit auction hosted by the Wayne-Holmes Association of REALTORS has raised over $110,000 in the past two years, and the proceeds have stayed in Wayne and Holmes counties.

Some tips if you’re going shopping on Black Friday

Retail holidays now dot the consumer landscape throughout much of the year. That shift has made a day like Black Friday somewhat less unique than it was in years past. However, Black Friday remains the unofficial kickoff to the holiday shopping season, and it’s still a major day for retailers big and small.

According to Adobe Analytics, in 2022 consumers spent $9.12 billion while online shopping on Black Friday. A separate report from the National Retail Federation and Prosper Insights & Analytics indicated just under 200 million consumers shopped online and in store between Thanksgiving Day and Cyber Monday, which is the Monday following Black Friday. Such figures indicate that holiday shopping on the weekend of Thanksgiving might have changed, but it’s still wildly popular.

This Black Friday, shoppers can consider these tips to ensure they find the right gifts at the right price:

Do some research before

The spirit of competition is alive and well on Black Friday. Consumers once flocked en masse to store parking lots in the wee hours of the morning in order to get sale items before shelves emptied. Some still do, so shoppers may need to be willing to compete to find the best deals. But some pre-Black Friday research might prove the best way to land the best deals, and it may not require waking up in the middle of the night. Much like shoppers compete with one another to grab sale items, retailers also compete to get shoppers in store or on their websites. As a result, it’s not uncommon for retailers big and small to advertise Black Friday sales weeks in advance. Shoppers can research these sales and plan when to visit certain stores in order to land the best deal.

Wake up early

Shoppers may not need to get out of bed at 3 a.m. to land the best Black Friday deals, but the early bird still gets the worm on the day after Thanksgiving. Plan to shop early in the morning, which increases the chances of finding the right gift at the right price. If an item you’ve earmarked is part of a doorbuster deal, plan to get to the store or onto the website as early as possible.

Establish a budget

It’s easy to go overboard when shopping deals on Black Friday. However, busting the budget on the first day of the holiday shopping season sets a bad precedent for the weeks to come. A holiday debt survey from LendingTree found that 35 percent of shoppers took on debt to pay for their holiday purchases in 2022, with the average consumer accumulating more than $1,500 in debt. Savvy shoppers devise a budget prior to shopping and stick to that budget.

File
Black Friday remains a wildly popular retail holiday. A little research, a willingness to get up early and some determination to stay on budget is a formula for a successful Black Friday.

Stay safe the night before Thanksgiving

The evening before Thanksgiving may be crunch time for holiday hosts. However, for the hordes of college students arriving home for the first long break since the semester began, that night is often seen as a chance to let loose with friends close to home.

The night before Thanksgiving goes by many names, including Blackout Wednesday, Drunkgiving, ing, Wacky Wednesday, and even Whiskey Wednesday. MADD and many local law enforcement authorities warn that this day has become associated with binge drinking and additional dangerous behaviors that can put individuals at risk. In fact, MADD says that Blackout Wednesday is one of the most fatal days of the year, even when compared to New Year's Eve or St. Patrick's Day. Easy accessibility to liquor (as parents likely are stocking their supplies in advance of holiday entertaining), coupled with no school or work responsibilities, can give college students free reign to party. Furthermore, certain bars or entertainment establishments may offer promotions on the night before Thanksgiving to appeal to returning students or even others who want to let loose before the Thanksgiving weekend.

Thankfully, there are many ways to make the

—Keep alcohol out of reach. Parents may need to police their young adults by making alcoholic beverages less accessible to those who are not yet legally eligible to drink. Lock up liquor cabinets and do not try to be the “cool parents” by offering to buy or serve underage drinkers. There’s a very real legal risk should you serve an underage drinker and he or she goes on to get hurt or injure someone else.

—Choose designated drivers. Those who are 21 are free to drink, but reminders should be made to never get behind the wheel while intoxicated. Arrange for a rideshare vehicle or offer to pick up a loved one if need be.

—Offer to host friends. Your college student can be encouraged to invite people over for refreshments and entertainment that does not revolve around drinking alcohol. Hosting such a gathering means you can keep tabs on your own child.

—Avoid packed establishments. Encourage your child to skip bars or restaurants that are packed with other students to reduce the pressure to drink heavily.

—Go out with an accountability buddy. Ria Health suggests students look out for one another and embrace the buddy system. This way one student can stop the other if he or she is being irresponsible. Binge drinking can result in memory issues, unsafe sex, fights, sexual assault, and alcohol poisoning. People who binge drink often also may develop a dependence on alcohol.

—Keep things open and honest. Foster a strong relationship with your child so there is comfort in communicating. Those who are nervous about contacting parents if they become intoxicated may take risks rather than calling home.

How to help make turkey terrific

Sweet potatoes may be stars; cornbread dressing a contender. Dinner rolls are divine and green bean casserole a go-to.

But Thanksgiving dinner isn't complete without turkey.

Even in households that don't eat meat, plant-based turkey alternatives find their way onto the dinner table in a nod to Thanksgiving tradition. Given the emphasis placed on the main course each Thanksgiving, cooking a turkey can be intimidating.

These turkey-cooking tips can calm anyone's nerves and result in a mouth-watering main course:

Allow ample time for thawing

Some people may not be able to buy a fresh turkey, and millions of individuals purchase frozen turkeys each year. The Food Network says it can take 24 hours per every five pounds to thaw a turkey. Therefore, if you have a 15-pounder, allow for three days for thawing. Always thaw a turkey in a refrigerator.

Get the right size bird

The general rule of thumb is 1 pound (uncooked) to 11/2 pounds of turkey per person if you're buying a whole turkey. Rather than purchasing the largest turkey you can find for a large crowd, consider two smaller turkeys or one turkey and one breast to make cooking more even. Smaller birds are more tender as well.

Adjust the temperature

The food and cooking resource TheKitchn advises preheating an oven to 450 F, then dropping the temperature to 350 F after putting the turkey into the oven. Cook, on average, 13 minutes per each pound of turkey. The turkey is done when it registers a minimum temperature of 165 F in the thickest part of the thigh.

To brine or not to brine?

Many food fanatics swear by brining turkey to achieve more moist and flavorful meat. However, a wet brine may not lead to the crispiest skin possible. Good Housekeeping suggests trying a dry

File

Some turkey-roasting techniques can ensure a moist and flavorful main course this Thanksgiving.

brine instead. This involves rubbing salt all over the raw turkey, placing the bird into a large plastic bag, and refrigerating overnight or up to two days before cooking; otherwise, purchase a kosher turkey, which already has been salted from the inside out.

Avoid stuffing the bird

Rather than stuffing the turkey and cooking everything en masse, prepare the stuffing mixture separate from the turkey. This reduces the risk of contamination from the turkey's raw juices and helps to achieve a crispy coating on the stuffing guests will enjoy.

Make an aromatic roasting rack

Turkeys typically are placed on a metal rack for cooking so the juices do not cause the turkey to stick to the pan. However, you also can cut onions and lay them with a bed of whole celery stalks and carrots to elevate the roast. This creates extra flavor in the bird and the vegetables also can be served or mixed into the stuffing.

WSO tribute to Elvis' holiday music is Dec. 1

The Wooster Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Jeffrey Lindberg, will present a holiday concert, "Elvis Has Entered the Building," featuring holiday music as recorded by Elvis Presley, on Friday, Dec. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in McGaw Chapel. The concert is free and open to the public. McGaw Chapel is located at 340 E. University St. on The College of Wooster campus.

Elvis Presley impersonator Mike Albert will join the WSO to perform holiday arrangements transcribed from original Elvis recordings specifically for this concert by Lindberg, WSO music director.

Albert is known worldwide for his portrayal of the late Presley. He has won several major world Elvis contests, has appeared on the Oprah Winfrey show and has had six of his music videos featured on the national show "A Current Affair" with Maury Povich.

With the WSO he will perform songs from Elvis' Christmas album. With sales exceeding 20 million

True crime: Dumpster diver triggers domestic distrust

The weekly trip to play with our grandsons has evolved to the point that each visit now includes some sort of gourmet dinner prepared by our compulsively overachieving son-in-law. While Andrew whirls about mincing his herbs, searing his salmon and rubbing his brisket, I have fallen into a ritual of carrying the kitchen waste out to the big rollaway waste and recycling bins beside the garage.

“It’s the least I can do,” I insist while knowing full well it is instead, quite literally, the most I can do. I know when I’m outclassed. I make dinner; Andrew creates masterpieces.

A few weeks back while performing my galley boy duties, I found a large, clear, plastic tank there in the recycling bin amid the coffee cans, sports drink bottles and laundry detergent jugs. I quickly recognized it as the reservoir of the dogs’ watering station. This find was meant to be.

A quick aside: Conservation is not only my livelihood, but also it is a lifelong obsession rooted in an upbringing provided by children of The Great Depression. My parents could have walked the soles off a pair of shoes and then recycled the uppers into a wallet, a belt and a stylish hand purse. Frugality was our life force. I graduated from college in a second-hand suit and a pair of pre-owned wingtips for heaven’s sake. If I were ever forced to choose a tattoo, “Reduce. Reuse. Recycle.” would be at the top of the list.

Anyhow, that cast-off jug instantly became the solution to a vexing gardening dilemma that had seen a favorite pair of hosta plants consistently out-competed for water by a neighboring maple tree. This tank was destined to become the perfect 5-gallon drip irrigation tank come springtime. I tossed it into the back of the car without another thought.

I explained the serendipity of the find to Kristin on the drive home.

“So did you ask Andrew if you could have it?” she said.

“Seriously?” I asked with a laugh. “Why would he give a care? It was in the recycling bin.”

This past weekend, over the din of laughing grandchildren and rigorous meal preparations, Kristin happened to mention my newfound treasure. You’d have thought she’d just solved the crime of the century.

“Hold it right there!” Charlotte said. “Dad, tell

Andrew what you found in the trash!”

“Well, it wasn’t actually in the trash; it was in the recycling bin,” I started.

“Wait a minute, it was you?” Andrew shouted. “You took the water jug out of the bin?”

“Well, yeah, of course,” I said. “I have a really great use for ...”

“Andrew was half nuts with paranoia over that stupid jug,” Charlotte laughed. “He had all sorts of theories about ne’er-do-wells rooting through our trash: the neighbor, the delivery man, the mail carrier — anyone who has entered this neighborhood in the past week has been a suspect!”

“And here the perpetrator was within our midst the whole time,” Kristin said, “just one freakishly thrifty little old man.”

Kristin and John Lorson would love to hear from you. Write Drawing Laughter, P.O. Box 170, Fredericksburg, OH 44627, or email John at jlorsen@alovus.com.

Jimbo's jackpot: Buyout reaches new level of absurdity

A few thoughts from the week in sports ...

If you follow the Cleveland Browns, how many times this season have you complained about Deshaun Watson's fully guaranteed $230 million contract over five years?

I'll admit it's been more than a handful of times for me, and I'm definitely not alone in that statistic.

Whether it's grumbling after hearing Watson's going to sit out another game, watching poor play, discussing legal troubles, or worst news yet, finding out he's out for the season due to a shoulder injury on Wednesday, that huge contract puts him under a much closer microscope.

Give Watson a lot of credit for his second-half performance against the Ravens, though, overcoming a slow start and gimpy ankle to help lead a 33-31, come-from-behind win on the road against the Ravens this past Sunday. However, with Watson now ruled out the entire season looks questionable.

Babe Ruth was the first pro athlete to reach $50,000 for a season, getting paid $52,000 in 1922, according to the Society for American Baseball Research. When someone complained to the Sultan of Swat in 1930 about making $80,000 and getting paid more than President Herbert Hoover, Ruth famously quipped, "Why not? I had a better year than he did."

Another Yankees great, Joe DiMaggio became the first $100,000 man in 1949.

The first $1 million a year player was Nolan Ryan in 1980.

According to Forbes.com, eight athletes made $100 million this past year, with international soccer stars Cristiano Ronaldo ($136 million), Lionel Messi ($130 million) and Kylian Mbappe ($120 million) leading the way, followed by NBA superstar LeBron James ($119.5 million).

Former Texas A&M football coach Jimbo Fisher set a different kind of sports record this week: largest contract buyout in college football history.

Aaron Dorksen
Columnist

Before the 2021 season, Fisher's contract was extended to 2031, and his annual salary was raised to $9 million.

After being fired on Nov. 12 with a 45-25 overall record leading the Aggies, including 6-4 this season, Fisher is still owed $76.8 million. And he'll get every penny of it because he had a guaranteed contract. It breaks down to $26,301 per day until 2031 — not to work.

The buyout will be paid with donor dollars from the school's 12th Man Foundation and athletic department funds. (Read in a sarcastic voice: Texas oil money is really being put to good use.)

What could you buy with that kind of money?

I was talking to a friend about Jimbo's "jackpot," and he told me The College of Wooster's reported expenses for the entire 2021-22 academic year as listed in the alumni magazine were $83.44 million. OK, so Jimbo could just about foot the bill to run a small college for a whole year.

If Jimbo likes to collect sports memorabilia like I do, he could buy one of each of the best sports cards ever and still have plenty of cash left over.

According to ESPN.com, the 1952 Topps Mickey Mantle baseball card sold for $12.6 million in 2022; the famed Honus Wagner 1909 T206 baseball card sold for $7.25 million in 2022; and gem mint 10 rookie cards for Pele, Tom Brady, Patrick Mahomes, LeBron James and Wayne Gretzky sold between 2021-22 for a combined $17.68 million. That combined sports card bill would only be $37.5 million.

Or maybe Jimbo wants a new place to live? The 780-acre private island complete with an 18-hole golf course, air strip and mock old west town owned by telecommunications billionaire Craig McCaw in British Columbia was listed for $75 million recently.

Browns town

Why can't the Browns ever have nice things?

Cleveland's 33-31, come-from-behind win over the Ravens on Dustin Hopkins' 40-yard field goal as time expired was a result of a complete team effort and tenacity.

Optimism was about as high as we've seen it for Browns football since 1999. Then came the news about Watson being lost for the season.

The AFC North still looks to be a complete dogfight, but the Browns will have to rally behind PJ Walker or whoever winds up at quarterback down the stretch.

The Ravens lead the division at 7-3. The Browns will host the Steelers in a huge matchup of 6-3 teams this Sunday. The Bengals are lurking right behind at 5-4.

Despite losing several key players to injuries, the Browns have a chance to win any game because of their defense.

If the Browns eventually become a playoff team — and that's a big "if" — I'll look back to Jerome Ford's 12-yard run on the drive that set up Hopkins' game-winning field goal as the rallying point. It seemed like the entire offensive line pushed the pile, allowing Ford to pick up the first down after appearing to be stopped for a 5-yard gain.

In all my years watching football, I don't remember seeing that many players pushing a pile, or for that long of an added gain. It was the kind of "team" play that I hope carries the Browns a long way over the remainder of the season.

Parting shots

Congrats to Dalton for being the last remaining area team in the high school playoffs. The Bulldogs (11-1) defeated Norwalk St. Paul 48-28 and took on Danville (13-0) in a Division VII regional final at Dover's Crater Stadium on Friday.

Kudos also go out to West Holmes, which had another strong playoff run this fall. The Knights dropped a hard-fought 38-21 contest against Sandusky Perkins in Div. IV and finished the season 10-3.

—Stephen Vogt was a surprise choice to be named the Cleveland Guardians' new manager. Just one year removed from his playing days, the 39-year-old Vogt has no previous managerial experience. However, Vogt has received high praise for his baseball knowledge, personality and ability to connect with other players.

Dalton resident Justin Thomas is a former MLB pitcher who played with Vogt as a member of the Oakland A's organization in 2013 and in the Venezuelan Winter League.

Thomas, who pitched in the Big Leagues for the Mariners, Pirates, Red Sox and Yankees, believes Vogt will be an outstanding manager.

"I know people may think he's young, but in my opinion he's built for this," Thomas told me. "I don't think it will take long for him to gain the trust of his players and have the city of Cleveland behind him. I think he will do great things."

Thomas described Vogt as a guy who "lit up a clubhouse."

"He was a fantastic teammate and pushed everyone to be their best by putting in 100% effort every day on the field," Thomas said. "He elevated the play of others due to his leadership and work ethic. Ever since I've known him, he has always wanted to be a manager."

Ruminating on life, death and a case of brotherly love

“So,” my brother said, “you’re going home for a place to die.”

“Not exactly,” I said, but I could see how he connected the dots.

He’s a pistol, my brother is, a couple of years younger and far more accomplished than I’ll probably ever be professionally.

When he writes, his words are bound between hard covers, destined for the Library of Congress, while most of mine line bird cages and garbage cans or are simply recycled for use as furnace filters.

Years ago his wife and the woman who was to become mine came up with what they thought was a brilliant idea. The two of us would collaborate on a novel that would be a sure-fire bestseller. To them, it was a fast track to financial independence, a hedge against any and all bad luck we might encounter, a true ticket to paradise.

They had a title — “Gull’s Way” — and the rough outline of a plot, nothing too complicated, just a way to guarantee a Hallmark movie.

I can still see the four of us, sunning on the beach in Ocean City, relishing a week together on the Maryland shore, just conjuring a future that included royalties, residuals and the requisite fame that would accompany the world’s astonished appreciation for our work, bookstore signings, paperback rights and an option for more.

There came a time, not too long after, when I found myself between jobs, and on a whim, he and I decided to get together and see if what the ladies in our lives imagined might actually happen.

Mike Dewey
Life Lines

In a word the answer was a big fat no.

My brother put it best after a week of head-butting futility.

“It’s like a car with two steering wheels,” he said, rather sadly.

So there was no vacation in Jamaica, no seven-figure advance on the sequel, no financial windfall, though we did get a kick out of discussing the idea of a Jaguar XKE with twin steering capability.

My brother used to write me the most entertaining letters, but those, along with what used to be bimonthly visits, have all but vanished.

Part of it is simply the distance our lives have created, both geographically and philosophically, though we sometimes talk on our cell phones, however difficult those once-a-week chats become.

And part of it is he’s the father of two, whereas my destiny lay in a different direction, probably for the best, since I’m certain that had I ever become a parent, my progeny would surely despise me.

But when I mentioned my and my wife’s increasing desire to move back to our hometown, he immediately pressed me for details, the phone call taking on the texture of a conversation that could matter.

That’s the thing about long-distance communication between Baby Boomer brothers. So much exists in the back and forth, especially when they’re both English majors who truly enjoy verbal jousting.

Think Frasier and Niles Crane, with even more elitist smugness.

When I let it drop that my wife had found a house in our price range and that she was planning to contact the owner, my brother said the sentence with which I began this essay all those words ago.

I’ll turn 69 — God willing — in a couple of months, and that puts me squarely on the back nine of life, not so far from the clubhouse as I used to be, though I hope it’s going to be a while before I take off my spikes and retire my clubs for good. I feel fine, considering a bevy of bad habits, but no one’s ever guaranteed another tee time.

“Six Feet Under,” an HBO series that ran from 2001-05, always began with a death, everything from being hit in the head with a golf ball to being electrocuted in a hot tub, an OD to murder.

It followed the Fisher brothers, owners of a funeral home, and the various interactions they had with those close to the deceased. A lot of the time, however, those who had just died hung around long enough to see what happened after they had breathed their last.

Life after death is hardly a new concept on this astral plane, and theological beliefs aside, no one really knows what awaits us all.

Unlike every other mammal, we live knowing we will die. That’s part of what being human is all about, the certainty that we all owe a death, a surety perhaps best expressed by Jim Morrison, who, while he was fronting the Doors, wrote the following six words:

As an English major at Notre Dame, I once based an entire term paper on that oh-so-obvious premise and managed to get an A-, an accomplishment that still generates a sense of misplaced pride. Of course, when you’re 20 years old and in love with your own words, you don’t quite comprehend how lame they’ll seem 50 years later.

Speaking of the passage of time, my brother wasn’t exactly wrong when he said what he did about my preferring to die back home, rather than down here in North Carolina. It’s just part of the plan.

I can’t leave this topic without thanking my brother for being the one person who’s always challenged me to be better tomorrow than I am today, his inexplicable love of disco notwithstanding.

Sorry for all those times I knocked your glasses off your face.

Mike Dewey can be reached at Carolinamiked@aol.com or at 6211 Cardinal Drive, New Bern, NC 28560. He invites you to find him on his Facebook page, where English majors aren’t always boring.

In the end, love will be the one great memory I keep

Over the past five years, I have spent a lot of time thinking about my mother's mind. She suffers from vascular dementia, which is an affliction caused by reduced blood flow.

I remember all too well the gradual emergence of Mom's dementia. Physicians blamed the mental changes on aging, but her falls seemed to be a contributor. In fact, with Cou-

Leslie Pearce-Keating
Notes from the Second Hall

madin on board, her entire upper face was purple after one fall. Mom was ashamed about that accident, but the stroke that took her from her home years before had stolen her ability to walk, even when using a walker, or merely transferring from a wheelchair to the bed. Although her injuries frightened both her and us, we began to see evidence of memory loss during that time.

The pandemic was another game-changer for Mom. Her family couldn't be with her for over a year. I once read about orphans during WWII who died despite the nourishment and care they received. What they lacked was loving touch. During our weekly visits through Plexiglas, I began to hear questions from Mom: "Who are you?" When I finally got into the nursing home, she clung to me like someone drowning. Now, years later, she says I am the "nice woman who decorates her room," denying her "baby" could be an "old woman" like me.

The hurt involved in dealing with a dementia patient is life-altering. After almost four years of weekly FaceTime calls from Mom, last Saturday I was relieved when the nursing home's I-Pad battery died, and we were unable to visit. I told myself she was sleeping.

Perhaps that is why I relished Sandeep Jauhar's touching memoir, "My Father's Brain: Life in the Shadow of Alzheimer's." Jauhar, a cardiologist, tells the story of his failing parents: his mother to Parkinson's but mostly his father's battle with Alzheimer's. As a physician himself, he gives in-depth but digestible medical information about his father's demise between storytelling. His dad, a Ph.D. scientist, transforms from a world traveler to a man who loses his way home from CVS, just a mile away. In Jauhar I found a kindred spirit, a fellow traveler in the sad, confusing landscape of dementia.

As I read the book, I realized once again that my mother is end stage. She is having great difficulty swallowing and often sleeps continuously even while being fed. She has lost a great deal of weight. Her tongue and mouth are almost always in motion, like an infant's. Or as Jauhar says, "At stage seven, the final stage, patients need assistance with virtually every aspect of daily living."

Mom has been bed-bound for many years. She is oblivious to her diaper being changed or company coming into her room. In other words I have been losing her for a long time. Dr. Day at Washington University in St. Louis told Jauhar, "(With dementia), eventually the whole brain is affected. Patients generally can't speak." Which Mom seldom does. If she does speak, she often makes no sense at all.

What I admired most about Jauhar's book though was his fierce love for his father coupled with the explanations he gives as a somewhat baffled physician. In addition is the perception of the author as a son, a son whose perfectionist father suddenly cannot remember the difference between a brake and a gas pedal but still insists he can drive. Although his father no longer remembers the tools of his livelihood, he can surprisingly recall his wife when she was young or his childhood nickname for his younger boy. The heart-break is palpable, and the author allows us into that pain and helplessness with heartbreaking gallantry.

Last week a new palliative care nurse called my sister. He asked if she realized how bad her mother was doing. My sister wrote me a tearful text. "What more could we do?" she asked. And that is the hardest part — the part Jauhar expresses so eloquently in his intense discussions with his siblings — for with this disease, even when you are doing all you can, it never seems like enough. And then Jauhar's father dies.

The author says, "As he drifted away and people began to wail, I experienced a strange remembrance. That sunny March morning as I gripped his lifeless body, for some reason I saw him running beside me. I was pedaling furiously down the rutted path, flying over sticks and weeds as my father kept pace to make sure I did not fall. I know it didn't happen this way: I can't imagine that it did. But it is my memory now. I'll keep it."

That is how Jauhar remembers his father — with great love, the same way I will remember my sweet mother.

REAL ESTATE: Custom brick and stone ranch-style home built in 2008 with a complete kitchen remodel, master bedroom addition and many quality upgrades done in 2019. This sprawling ranch home has over 2,800 sq. ft. on the main floor and features an open great room with vaulted ceilings, a 3-sided gas stone fireplace, custom Schrock kitchen with center island, granite countertops and gourmet stainless steel appliances. The large master bedroom suite has vaulted ceilings and a top-of-the-line bathroom with a claw foot tub, tile walk-in shower, and two walk-in closets. The main floor also has 2 more bedrooms each with private bathrooms, a laundry room/mudroom with tons of storage, half bathroom, and a cedar sided enclosed porch complete with a state-of-the-art swim spa hot tub. Just off the enclosed porch is a deck with gorgeous views overlooking the pastures, and a hardscape patio. The walk-out finished basement is complete with a 1,000 sq. ft. open entertainment room that has a gas stone fireplace and tons of natural light, 4th bedroom and full bathroom, work-out room, and plenty of storage space. Gas heat, whole home generator, and a two-car attached garage. This home boasts quality throughout! A must see! Fenced pastures with 2 run-ins, a chicken coop, windmill attached to ag. well and water trough, and outdoor riding arena.

OUTBUILDINGS INCLUDE: A horse barn equipped with 12' ceilings, (5) 12x12 stalls, tack room, hay loft, wash bay and dog kennel. Attached is 34'x40' 3-bay garage with cement floors, propane back-up generator, and a heated laundry room. A detached 44'x48' shop building with a 20'Wx14'H overhead door, sliding door and 2 covered carports.

The home and buildings sit nicely back off the road. Blacktop drive with gated entry. Plus a lake out front with fishing dock and shaded pavilion. All of this on 22 acres in Tuslaw School District!

GRIFFITH ASHLAND COUNTY 65-ACRE ABSOLUTE FARM & PERSONAL PROPERTY AUCTION

Friday, November 24th
Personal Property @ 10AM | Real Estate @ 12 Noon

Real Estate

Selling to the highest bidder is 65.7 acres of diversity with a two-story home and outbuildings. The home offers great character with great woodwork, large rooms, and an ideal country feel. On the main floor you find an oak kitchen, dining room, family room, living room, a full bath with handicap accessible shower, and a large, enclosed porch with laundry hook up. The second story houses 3 large bedrooms, a full bath, and a small kitchenette. The kitchenette could be remodeled to make an additional bedroom or expansion of the current bath. A few of the updates and amenities to the home include a new shingle roof, on demand water heater, replacement windows, propane heat, and newer water softener system. Overall, the structure of the home is solid with the ability to add your modern touches while preserving this great country charm. Outside, you will find a 70'x90' metal shop building offering concrete floors, water, and electricity. This building has two heated rooms, one with a half bath, and 24' hanger-style doors on each end. Used as a shop or equipment storage, this building will suit. There is also a 30'x60' 3-sided pole building with lean-to addition perfect for livestock or horses. The buildings, setting, and acreage make this a perfect gentlemen's farm. The land features 65.7 acres with a mixture of tillable land, woods, and the best natural deer habitat I have seen in quite some time. Currently, there are approximately 25 acres of open rolling tillable land with the ability to add more. Several acres that were once pasture have had deer and mother nature take over, however could be converted back to farm use. The balance of the farm is wooded with great character. Spend a little time walking this farm to discover why these natural funnels and wildlife habitat create the ultimate hunting and recreational paradise. This farm offers a great deal of upside potential and as good of investment opportunity as we will see this fall. The farm will be sold in its entirety to the highest bidder with no reserve.

Open House: The home and buildings will be open for inspection on Thursday, November 9th 5PM-6:30PM. Private showings are available through Andy White 419-651-2152. Feel free to pick up a flyer in the info box on the property and walk the property at your leisure.

Taxes - Legal: Ashland County parcels J31-007-0-0001-09, J31-007-0-0001-01, & J31-008-0-0003-00, Orange Township, Mapleton Local Schools. Current annual taxes are $1,945.84 based on CAUV and will be prorated to the day of closing. All mineral rights will transfer to the new owner subject to leases of record. There is an existing oil well on the property.

Terms: The successful purchaser(s) will be required to make a nonrefundable down payment of 10% at the conclusion of the auction with the balance due at closing within 45 days. A 10% buyer's premium will be added to the final bid to determine the purchase price. All desired inspections need to be completed prior to bidding. Additional details can be found at www.RES.bid.
