Wayne County recorder addresses title fraud

By Dan Starcher

Can a home be stolen right out from under its owner? The answer is yes.

Should homeowners be concerned? Wayne County recorder Jane Carmichael said everyone including homeowners should stay vigilant and learn about the latest fraud schemes to help protect their assets. If something does not sound, look or feel right, investigate it.

"The recorder's office has had many inquiries about title fraud or if someone could obtain the title of your property and change ownership," Carmichael said. "There are so many scams out there, so my answer would be yes, it could. I believe that family members taking away property from a relative would be more common."

In 2008 the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported a real estate business owner in Los Angeles pled guilty to leading a scam that defrauded more than 100 homeowners and lenders out of approximately $12 million. Since then the number of real estate scams has risen.

According to the FBI, there are a few variations to the swindle. However, they boil down to a fraudster ultimately stealing the homeowner's identity, transferring the property's deed using fake ID cards, forging signatures and filing paperwork with the proper authorities. A homeowner may continue paying the mortgage and living in the house only to find out later they no longer own the home.

Another type of scam involves homeowners who are struggling to pay their mortgages, according to the FBI. A crook promises to refinance the mortgage, but instead, they buy the house using a false identity. The homeowner loses the house, and the bank loses the money they loaned to the fake buyers.

The good news is that according to the FBI, because the paperwork is fraudulent, the house does not legally belong to the swindler.

The recorder's office archives information that pertains to land, which includes deeds and mortgages. Therefore, Carmichael is keeping an eye on how real estate scams evolve.

"The records in the Wayne County Recorder's Office are public, but they are not online right now," she said. "But they will be in the future."

Carmichael offered the following tips and advice to help avoid being the victim of title theft:

—People most preyed upon include the elderly and those with more than one piece of property.

—Do not give out any personal information, do not sign anything you do not understand, do not sign anything from a stranger and question any mail regarding your property you are unsure about.

—Make sure you receive bills at your address, especially tax bills.

—Watch for identity theft and check credit reports.

—Many people would have to be in on the scam: banks, notaries, appraisers, title companies, et cetera.

OneEighty medical director elected to board

Dr. Nicole Labor, DO, medical director, was elected to serve as director at large on the American Society of Addiction Medicine.

Labor, a graduate from Pennsylvania State University with a Bachelor of Science in Biobehavioral Health and from Lake Erie College of Osteopathic Medicine, started her career by working with Summa in Akron at the Ignatia Hall detox unit. She has worked with OneEighty for over 10 years, accepting the role of medical director in 2016.

She is known for her work within the community to reduce the stigma of addiction and provide evidence-based care to patients with substance-use disorder.

"I have extensive experience treating substance-use disorder in every setting I can think of, from hospital-based detox and medical consultation to community and clinically based detox, outpatient, medication-assisted treatment, residential, level two and three recovery housing, and harm reduction, as well as special populations like pregnant women," Labor said. "My skill set also allows me to take complex information and reformulate it into something that virtually any adult can understand."

ASAM believes in a future in which addiction prevention, treatment, remission and recovery are accessible to all and where they profoundly improve the health of all people (www.ASAM.org).

Dr. Nicole Labor

If you or someone you know is dealing with addiction or a substance-use disorder, reach out to OneEighty for more information regarding its programs and services. Call 330-264-8498 or visit the website at www.one-eighty.org to learn more. OneEighty also has two 24-hour hotlines that can provide information for those dealing with a substance-use crisis at 330-466-0678 or in recovery at 330-464-1423.

Free field day scheduled for March 29 in Wooster

Nutrient runoff and algal blooms are a growing problem while fertilizer costs are at an all-time high. Best Management Practice Field Day is an event to address these problems and offer solutions for farmers, students and community members interested in attending. BMP Field Day is a full-day event to learn more about phosphorus usage, the environment and strategies to save on fertilizer.

BMP Field Day will be held in person on March 29 at the Secrest Welcome Center at the Ohio Agricultural Research & Development Center in Wooster. Sign-in will start at 8 a.m., and the event will start at 8:30 a.m. and end at 4 p.m.

This event is provided free for farmers, students and community members because of sponsorship from the USDA NIFA, and it is co-hosted by Virginia Tech and the Ohio State University. Registration includes a free lunch and tour of OARDC field sites. A total of 4.5 CLM and CCA credits will be available for attendees. Registration is free but required by March 20. For more information and to register, visit bmpfieldday.carrd.com.

BMP Field Day will feature a variety of extension specialists and research scientists with expertise in phosphorus and how it relates to soil, water, crop health and more. The afternoon session will feature a poster and demo symposium to showcase strategies to decrease fertilizer usage and costs while maximizing crop growth and protecting the watersheds. Attendees also will be transported on a tour bus to view two of OARDC's large-scale BMPs: a sediment capture and reuse field site and smart drainage field demonstration.

Email Dr. Catherine Freed at freedc@vt.edu with any questions or for additional information regarding the event.

Signatures also would have to be forged.

—Protect email accounts. Take measures to avoid email hacking.

—Monitoring companies that advertise protection cannot prevent title theft. They require a monthly fee and only find out after the fraud occurs. They may offer reimbursement.

—Check indexes online; this will show what is happening with a property. Go to www.ohiorecorders.com, click on Wayne County, Ohio and click on the link to the indexes. Sign in as a guest, accept, search, and type last name and then first name. This will return what has been recorded since May 1988.

—Search online for title fraud to find out more information.

Carmichael urges anyone with questions regarding title fraud to call her office at 330-287-5464 or email jcarmichael@wayneohio.org.

COVER STORY

It's a special year for the team at Wayne Garage Door of Dover, as they celebrate their 50th Anniversary.

The company started in 1973 when Menno Yoder acquired a garage door installation and service business from a local preacher. With a new name, Wayne Garage Door was the first service department established in the area. In 1996 Yoder retired, but not before handing over the business to his sons to continue its success.

"We've got a caring and committed group of people who enjoy what they do, and they represent our company well."

-Bob Habeger

As Wayne Garage Door became a trusted name among local communities, the company quickly grew and the Yoders brought on Bob Habeger as General Manager. Habeger later became a partner and in 2018, acquired sole ownership of the company. What started as a small location with a showroom and warehouse, has now grown to 4 locations serving residential, commercial, and wholesale customers all over Eastern, Ohio.

As the company continues to advance, so has the industry. Today's garage door industry is evolving at an amazing rate, adding new technology and designs, making it easier to find custom solutions for each customer. "The changes we've seen since I got involved in this business are fascinating," Habeger said. There is a smartphone app that lets you open and close your door from anywhere. Companies like LiftMaster and Amazon have worked together to develop a service that gives garage access to delivery drivers, a solution to reduce the theft of packages. Even though the technology has changed since Menno Yoder started Wayne Garage Door 50 years ago, the company's dedication to knowledgeable, reliable customer service has remained constant, according to Habeger.

Over the years the catalog of products has grown to more than just garage doors. In 2021 the company re-branded to Wayne.

The company still installs garage doors today, but they have expanded their line-up of residential, commercial, and industrial products to include:

- Entry & Storm Doors
- Patio Doors Including Panda Doors
- Windows
- Rolling Doors
- High Speed Doors
- Fire Doors
- Dock Equipment
- Automatic Sliding Doors
- Commercial Pass Doors
- Gate Operators

The company has also added a Door Tech & Security Division to offer additional solutions such as Access Control Systems, Surveillance Cameras and Locksmithing. Wayne also continues to expand in areas of Gate Operators and Commercial Pass Doors, both of which require significant electric knowledge and training.

The company has separate departments that concentrate on solely the installation of their specific residential or commercial products. This also includes a Service Department with crews that specialize in residential and commercial doors, dock equipment, and truck doors. Habeger sets his team up for success by putting an emphasis on expert training and a thorough understanding of the products. "We are solutions providers," Habeger said. Their goal is to accommodate service calls in a day or two. That is one key factor that sets Wayne apart from others in the industry.

Over the 50 years, the Wayne team has grown from 3 employees to 90, some of whom have been here from the beginning. Wayne employees are what really distinguishes them from other door companies. "They are the face of Wayne Door — the ones who leave a lasting impression with our customers, and they do an outstanding job," he said.

The team at Wayne is celebrating its 50th with special events throughout the year to say thank you to their employees, contractors, and customers who have trusted them throughout the 50 years. The company has a lot of special things planned for this year. Volunteering at local community projects and a company picnic in the summer are just a few events they have planned for this year.

Mark your calendars for their annual Spring Sale on April 10-15, with special discounts on windows, entry doors, and other products, only offered once a year. You can check out the company's Facebook page @WayneDoorSales and Instagram @waynegaragedoor for announcements.

You can view Wayne's vast selection of residential and commercial products at its showroom at 2150 State Route 39 NW in Dover. You also can find more information at WayneDoor.com. The phone number is 330-343-6679.

Wayne Garage Door will celebrate its 50th anniversary throughout the year with sales and special events planned each month. In April, for example, the company will hold its annual Spring Sale, with discounts on windows, entry doors and other products.

WHS Drama Club preparing for upcoming spring play

Brett Hiner, Drama Club advisor/director, will be the first to tell you he has only read one of the Harry Potter books — a shock to many because people assume all English teachers have read the popular young adult series.

But that did not stop him from landing on the play, “Puffs or Seven Increasingly Eventful Years at a Certain School of Magic and Magic,” for the Wooster High School Drama Club’s spring production.

The show will be produced March 24-25 at 7 p.m. and March 26 at 2 p.m. in the Wooster High School Performing Arts Center, all in conjunction with the Wooster City School’s Fine Arts Festival.

“Ugh, I am judged all the time by students and colleagues because of my lack of Potter readings,” Hiner said. “But what appealed to me regarding this show is the perspective/point of view; it is the story of another house of students, the ‘Puffs,’ who were not cool enough to be in Harry’s circle when Harry was there but still faced all the challenges he did. They are the outcasts at a school for outcasts, and underdog stories always allow for wonderful theater.”

“Puffs or Seven Increasingly Eventful Years at a Certain School of Magic and Magic” tells the story of a different trio of students — Wayne Hopkins, played by senior Ethan Keating; Oliver Rivers, played by senior Ishaan Gireesh; and Megan Jones, played by senior Hayley Sleek — as they journey through their own struggles and triumphs at magic school.

Nora Levy

Hayley Sleek, left, Daisy Carmon, Hannah LoGiudice and Ethan Keating do battle in the penultimate scene of “Puffs or Seven Increasingly Eventful Years at a Certain School of Magic and Magic,” the Wooster High School Drama Club’s spring production, scheduled for March 24-26.

Facing evil wizards, trolls and insurmountable wizarding tasks are all par for the course in the play, but also the much more relatable teenage issues like peer pressure, the struggles of fitting in and tackling school dances provide for some of the truly hysterical moments in the show.

“This play is a little different than anything we have done before,” said Kristi Hiner, assistant director. “There are a lot of belly laughs, and our students do such a wonderful job of conveying that hilarity, but the play itself is one connected piece. Matt Cox, the playwright, had to get through seven years of wizarding school quickly, so a lot of the show’s progression is conveyed in character movement, not set/scene shifts or character entrances/exits like traditional shows. It is a challenge, but one the students have certainly accepted.”

The cast agrees.

“Capturing the complexities of a character is always a challenge. (Megan) has a great story to tell, and doing her justice is not easy, but the high-energy show makes it exciting,” Sleek said.

Senior and second-year member Olivia Hiner said, “It is a play with constant movement; there is no downtime, and that has really forced us to rely on each other. It is a reminder that friendships are so, so important — in character and out.”

These challenges also allow for some wonderful moments to peak through.

“I think the audience will leave the theater assured that everyone has a story to tell, that sometimes we get lost in another’s story, but ‘Puffs’ is a reminder that everyone is important and unique in their own way,” said senior Stella Powers, who portrays the show’s narrator.

The cast and production team said one does not have to be a Harry Potter expert to enjoy the show.

“The show is unique because it does have an established universe, but the main characters are unknown so we get to delve deeper into their world, which is great,” said senior Hannah LoGiudice, who plays Ernie Mac.

“Yes, there are some inside jokes that the fans of the books or movies will truly enjoy, but the overall comedy and enjoyment is not contingent upon Potter expertise,” Brett Hiner said. “One of the taglines for the show is that it is for anyone who has never been destined to save the world, and that is how we have approached every rehearsal. Getting that universal message/feeling across to an audience bigger than the Potter experts has been really, really important to us.”

Another added bonus for the production team has been seeing club members consistently display their talents with enthusiasm.

“After two months of rehearsals, it is tough to be surprised and keep laughing at the same lines or moments over and over, but the students’ delivery of some of those lines honestly has me in stitches every night. It has been a joy working with these kids and playing in this universe the last couple of months,” Brett Hiner said.

Along with Powers, Keating, Gireesh, Sleek, Hiner and LoGiudice, the show is led by seniors Layne Nelson and Caleb Singer-Holden and juniors Daisy Carmon, Emily Hammond and Ben Wright, and it features a cast of 20 more Drama Club members.

Tickets for “Puffs,” now on sale, are $10 for adults or $8 for students/senior citizens and can be purchased by visiting www.ticketpeak.co/whsdrama or at the door the day of the shows.

Nora Levy

The Puffs — Daisy Carmon, left, Hannah LoGiudice, Layne Nelson, Ethan Keating, Hayley Sleek, Caleb Singer-Holden and Olivia Hiner — rally together as they prepare to take on Lord Voldy and his Death Buddies in a scene from “Puffs or Seven Increasingly Eventful Years at a Certain School of Magic and Magic,” the Wooster High School Drama Club’s spring production, scheduled March 24-26.

Board accepts resignation of Held, then rehires him

By Barb Limbacher
The board of directors of the Stark-Tuscarawas-Wayne Joint Solid Waste Management District passed a resolution to accept the retirement resignation, effective June 1, of David Held, executive director, during the Friday morning meeting.

The board then voted to offer him the same job, effective Aug. 1, at the same annual salary of $111,844. Held has been executive director since 2004.

Held said resigning will make him eligible for Ohio Public Employee Retirement benefits. He must take a mandatory break in service for 60 days to avoid any penalties or other forfeitures.

Held said he decided to resign to explore his financial situation.

“I don’t want to abandon the district and want to continue to train individuals and work hard to improve the process,” Held said. “When you are working at a place like this for 19 years, you know when people leave and you have a small organization it can be devastating to the people that are left.”

That was the reason behind his decision to return to the position on Aug. 1, after a 60-day hiatus.

Erica Wright, finance director, told the board the main savings would be Held would not receive his wages and benefits during his hiatus.

David Held

The board of directors consists of nine commissioners, three from each county.

Most of the commissioners spoke in favor and supported Held’s decision to retire and then be rehired. Tuscarawas County commissioner Chris Abbuhl cast the lone no vote on the resolution.

Abbuhl said after the meeting, he was glad to have Held back on the job.

“I am glad he is staying. He does a fantastic job, has a good work ethic and great communication skills. He has built a great team in the district. My decision has absolutely nothing to do with his job performance, but it has just been a philosophical rational of mine that I am just not supportive of retire and rehire,” Abbuhl said.

Other action

The board did the following:

—Approved $5,110 for four damaged or missing gas probes to be repaired or replaced at the Newcomerstown Landfill. The district paid $1.4 million for the landfill cap, which closed in 2006. In 2018 the OEPA required assessment and an updated compliance plan due to the explosive gas monitoring probe level exceeding acceptable limits.

—Approved the open dump, litter law enforcement budget plan for $285,000. Each of the three counties will receive $95,000 for their sheriff litter control deputy.

—Heard the outreach program’s plan initiatives are outreach priority, e-newsletter, virtual engagement and special programs. The district’s focus is to inform residents about contamination and illegal dumping, promoting quality over quantity.

—Agreed to explore the Drug Enforcement Agency if they will be willing to incinerate drugs collected at drop-off boxes and those collected at the DEA collection events.

—Agreed to assist communities with drop-off sites that want to make site improvements beyond what can be funded through the district. They will be encouraged to apply directly to the OEPA.

—Gave approval to the 2023 yard waste collection total grant award for $148,976.

Spring Used Book Sale slated for March 24-25 in Wooster

The Spring Used Book Sale will be held Friday, March 24 and Saturday, March 25 at The Book Cellar, located in the basement of the operations center of the Wayne County Public Library, corner of North Market Street and Larwill Avenue in Wooster. Friday’s sale will run from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday’s sale from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Sponsored by the Wooster Friends of the Wayne County Public Library, the spring sale features thousands of donated books and books culled from the Wayne County Public Library, along with audio-visual items such as DVDs, CDs and books on CD for children and adults. Also at this sale, a silent auction will take place for an Expression 24-inch Cricut machine along with 13 cartridges.

Prices range from a quarter to $1.25 for adult books and 25-50 cents for books for children and young adults. The shelves are packed with books ranging from general fiction and sci-fi to mystery and romance, both in paper-cover and hardback. There also is a good selection of books in large print. The sale includes an array of nonfiction books, especially in biography.

For youngsters and early readers, there are board books, picture books, readers and chapter books. The sale also includes juvenile fiction, non-fiction including many science books for grade-school kids, graphic novels and comic books, and young adult novels. There is a collection of illustrated fairy tales, legends and myths from various cultures.

Proceeds from the book sale will be used to benefit the Wayne County Public Library to better serve its patrons. Free parking will be available at the Zion Lutheran Church across the street.

There will be no Bag Day for the spring book sale.

Spring classes starting at Wayne Center for the Arts

Spring classes in visual arts, dance, music, pottery, digital arts and more will begin March 20 at Wayne Center for the Arts. There is still time to sign up before these classes begin. Classes are available for all ages and skill levels.

Of special interest are new classes in music including introductory classes in acoustic, electric and bass guitar.

Also of note is a workshop on Ukrainian Eggs with local artist Pat Anderson. This three-hour workshop will allow participants to create traditional Pysanky Ukrainian Eggs using wax and dyes.

Another new addition is the visual arts open studio. Any adult registered for a visual arts class also will have access to open studio times that allow use of the arts center space, the communal experience of creating with other artists, and extra opportunities for instruction and critique periodically.

Fire dept. event raises $25k

On Saturday, March 4, firefighters and staff of the Wooster Township Fire Department, along with families and friends, served 2,803 meals during the annual Pancake Day fundraiser.

Fire Chief Dallas Terrell anticipates the department will clear around $25,000 from the event. These monies are earmarked to help build and advance the department's drone program.

"Drones used in the fire service can help us in many ways," Terrell said. "The eye in the sky can provide us with an aerial overview of a scene, find hot spots from a fire with its thermal camera, assist with surveying flooding incidents without putting personnel in hazardous environments, assist in searching for missing people and so much more. The more we use it, the more we realize how much of a benefit it can be to personnel safety, scene management and incident mitigation."

Terrell said the department wants to continue to add to the equipment and training already in place in order to ensure there is a drone and pilot available whenever needed.

"Thank you to everyone who helped to make our event successful," Terrell said. "Whether you helped work at the event, attended the event or donated to the event, it would not have been successful without everyone's contributions, and we are all very grateful."

Next year's Wooster Township Fire Department Pancake Day has been scheduled for March 2.

Meet Dr. Laura Conley!

Dr. Laura Conley started her career in mixed animal practice (farm animals as well as pets) where she learned a wide variety of skills and procedures, and emergency medicine too. She switched courses and decided to hone her skills for just dogs and cats when she joined a traveling relief service that served Northeast Ohio veterinary practices in need of temporary veterinarians. Flexibility and creativity were a must for this position, you just never know what tools, supplies and staff abilities you might find in a clinic where you have never worked! Now settling back into a full-time position at New Pittsburg Veterinary Clinic, she can use all the skills she has acquired from both previous positions. Her favorite part of practice is preventative medicine and helping clients understand the best ways to keep their pets happy and healthy. When it comes to sick pets, the challenge of figuring out the mystery is what keeps things interesting, and drives the desire to always be learning and growing as a professional. In her youth, Dr. Conley wanted to be a vet because of her love of animals. However, through college and now well into her career, she has realized and completely embraced that this is a "people profession", not just working with animals. She gets to talk to all kinds of awesome pet owners every day and help them get the most out of their veterinary visit, answer questions, and be there as a resource for follow up care. Dr. Conley loves to guide and empower owners to take their pets' care into their own hands, and make decisions that both help their pet and are right for each family.

Love spring, not the cleaning

Despite the snowflakes falling, I have high hopes spring isn't too far away. It is so exciting to think of warmer days and blooming gardens.

Unfortunately, there is a part of spring that I don't happily anticipate — spring cleaning. We don't have fall cleaning or winter cleaning or summer cleaning. Why just in the spring?

To be honest, anticipating spring cleaning does not get me excited. Once winter has finally made his exit, I just want to install myself in a rocking chair on our porch, admiring the grass growing and soaking up the sunshine. If I get an urge to do anything, it is trimming bushes in our gardens. After all those months of having to be inside our house, I don't want to do anything inside.

But eventually, even on the prettiest spring day, I have to go inside for no other reason than to fix a meal. In the process of doing that, I notice the need for a bit of cleaning here and there — actually pretty much everywhere. After our meal and clearing up the kitchen, I get out the mop, the dust rags and the bucket holding the spray cleaner and paper towels. Before long I am in the midst of a cleaning frenzy.

It continues until Taller Half begs for some downtime. Did I mention that when a cleaning frenzy begins, I insist Taller Half be included? But with the two of us working together, we get a lot accomplished fairly quickly. Once things begin looking fresh and clean, we can relax and head out to the porch and the rocking chairs.

Though it is exhausting, spring cleaning comes only once a year, and once done, it's done until next spring. Isn't that how it's supposed to work? That's what I choose to believe. If by chance I'm wrong about that, please, please don't tell me or Taller Half. Thank you!

COW's Hoover selected for NCAA Postgrad Scholarship

By Kevin Smith

The College of Wooster's Isabelle Hoover is the latest Fighting Scot to be selected for the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship. The Fighting Scots' distance ace, who is the first Wooster cross country student-athlete to win the scholarship, was among the 21 female fall sports student-athletes chosen for the one-time, nonrenewable $10,000 award.

"It is an incredible honor to receive this scholarship from the NCAA," Hoover said. "I am thoroughly indebted to the efforts of Dr. (Shelley) Judge, who aided in my nomination and the completion of my application, as well as to Dr. (Kara) Morrow and Dr. (Monica) Florence, who generously wrote me letters of recommendation. I am also extremely thankful for the support of coach (Dennis) Rice, with whom I have worked both on and off the track and cross country course for the past five years, and coach (Ellie) Jindra, whom I have loved getting to know these last few years.

"Finally, I would like to thank my family and teammates for their steadfast love and encouragement. This honor would certainly have been impossible without the help, sacrifices and guidance of those I mentioned."

In cross country Hoover repeated as a first-team All-NCAC performer this fall, finishing fourth at the NCAC Cross Country Championships. She was an all-region harrier at the 2019 NCAA Div. III Great Lakes Regional Championships, earned two All-Ohio awards in cross country and was a five-time NCAC Athlete of the Week.

Hoover's distinguished track and field portfolio is headlined by 2022 NCAC Indoor Track & Field Distance Athlete of the Year honors. She helped the Scots to a runner-up team finish at the 2022 NCAC Indoor Track & Field Championships, which marked the program's highest finish since 1997. Hoover swept the 3,000 (10:32.11) and 5,000 meters (17:47.61) titles at the 2022 indoor meet, and she is a four-time conference champion and is the two-time reigning 10,000 meters outdoor champion.

Hoover has six All-NCAC and one All-Ohio honors in track and field and is a five-time NCAC Athlete of the Week for middle-distance and distance events.

Elsewhere, the art history and classical languages major was voted to the College Sports Communicators Academic All-District Team for the 2021-22 academic year, is a five-time U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association All-Academic qualifier, and is a three-time member of the NCAC Academic Honor Roll.

The researcher's paper titled "Homer's Song of Sympathy: Andromache and Her Portrayal in the Iliad" was selected for the Eta Sigma Phi Convention in 2021 and was published in University of Chicago's Animus Classics Journal. She also had papers selected for the Eta Sigma Phi Undergraduate Research Conference and the Ohio Classical Conference.

Hoover spent last summer as an intern in the registrar's office at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. She helped with the filing and archiving of insurance paperwork, shipping paperwork, condition reports and other legal documents. Other key duties of Hoover's internship included budgeting, planning, installation and deinstallation of special exhibitions and uploading information into systems for the museum.

Hoover also held a summer-long internship with the Toledo Museum of Art, where she helped with a full collection inventory, implemented a new barcoding system and digitized museum files.

On campus Hoover is a peer tutor, working with Greek and Latin courses. She previously served as a research assistant, departmental assistant and teaching assistant within the classical studies department; was a research assistant to an art history professor; was a health coach in the community with the college's Wooster Community Care Network; and was a violinist with the Wooster Symphony Orchestra. She has been a member of Eta Sigma Phi since 2019, holding officer positions for two academic years.

Hoover is planning to pursue a Master of Philosophy in Art History and Architecture at the University of Cambridge.

Wooster now has 27 all-time NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship recipients, with 14 of them coming in the last 10 academic years.

Wooster-Wayne DAR holds annual awards ceremony

The Wooster-Wayne chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution recently held its award ceremony at Parkview Christian Church in Wooster. An Outstanding Teacher of American History and DAR Good Citizens from area high schools were recognized. Honorees were invited to receive their awards in person, and their families and school personnel also were welcomed.

Kimberly Huffman was chosen as the 2022-23 Outstanding Teacher of American History. Since 2000 she has been instructing American government, personal finance and political science at the Wayne County Schools Career Center. She is the school's student leadership advisor and coordinator for Constitution Day and Veterans Day and also serves as an adjunct professor teaching political science at Stark State College.

Huffman has received many awards and recognitions, the most important being the James Madison Memorial Fellowship, which paid for her graduate program and required a concentration on the U.S. Constitution. Most recently, she received the National Council of Social Studies 2022 Secondary Teacher of the Year and the Ohio Sons of the American Revolution Dr. Tom & Betty Lawrence American History Teacher Award.

Huffman serves on the National Constitution Center Teacher Advisory Council, iCivics Network Team and the National Council of Social Studies Board of Governors. She was recently appointed as a National Constitution Center curriculum fellow and is an advocate of civics.

The DAR provides each high school the opportunity to recognize one of their graduating seniors as a DAR Good Citizen. They must demonstrate the qualities of good citizenship: dependability, service, leadership and patriotism.

These individuals are members of the National Honor Society, are involved in their church and community, and participate in extracurricular activities at school. Most have already earned college credits and have part-time jobs. They do all of this while maintaining an exemplary GPA. Once chosen by their school, the students have the option to compete for a scholarship by submitting additional paperwork and completing an essay.

The chapter's DAR Good Citizen scholarship winner is Kendrick Wilson, a senior at Hiland High School and the son of Jon and Lynne Wilson. Wilson is currently enrolled in Kent State University's Bachelor of Science Biology program, which is part of the premed track. Upon completion he plans to enroll in medical school to become a practicing physician. His goal is to practice medicine in underserved rural areas while also inspiring future generations of students to serve others through the medical profession.

The DAR Good Citizens from other schools include the following:

—Isabelle Hostetler is a senior at Waynedale High School in Apple Creek. The daughter of Jake and Brenda Hostetler, she will attend the University of Akron for nursing with a goal to become a nurse at Akron Children's Hospital.

—Kirsten Swain is a senior at the Wayne County Schools Career Center in the exercise science and sports medicine program.

Isabelle Hostetler

She is the daughter of Ed and Shannon Swain, and Triway is her home school. She plans to attend college with the goal of obtaining a position with a professional team in the NBA, NFL or a collegiate team.

—Drew Totten is a senior at Orrville High School and the daughter of James and Jaime Totten. She plans to attend Ohio University, majoring in accounting and business analytics, and would like to work in a private accounting firm or as a business analyst in a larger city.

—Paige Walter is a senior at Northwestern High School and the daughter of Matthew and Jennifer Walter. She plans to attend the Ohio State University, pursuing a major in environment, economy, development and sustainability. Her goal is to become an environmental economist.

—Nathan Zuercher is a senior at Kingsway Christian School and the son of Marvin and Glenda Zuercher. He lives in the Smithville school district. He plans to play college football and pursue a degree in business. While he is unsure of what the future holds for him, he is excited about where God will lead him.

Following the presentation of awards, visitors were congratulated by chapter members.

Snowbarger resigns as Wooster boys basketball coach

By Aaron Dorksen

Michael Snowbarger has been doing a juggling act for 18 years, trying to balance his time between family, work and coaching.

With life busier than ever, Snowbarger decided something had to give. He alerted Wooster athletic director Alex Mallue that he was stepping down as the Generals' head boys basketball coach on Thursday.

Snowbarger compiled an outstanding 116-63 record in eight seasons at Wooster and, counting his time at Smithville, won more than 200 career games. His Generals teams won three Ohio Cardinal Conference titles.

"Coaching is tough and it's a year-round thing that takes up a lot of time," said Snowbarger, who's the e-commerce manager for Goodyear. "It takes a lot of time away from family. Not being a teacher, I work 45 minutes away in Akron so there's a lot of challenges with it."

Submitted

Michael Snowbarger

"After coaching the last eight years at Wooster and 18 overall, it's just one of those things where I'd like to sit back and watch my kids play, get involved with different things. I want to have more flexibility and freedom, while still maintaining a professional work life."

The Generals won outright OCC championships in 2016-17, 2019-20 and 2020-21, but slipped to 12-11 in 2021-22 and 9-12 this season.

Mallue said he was initially surprised by Snowbarger's decision, but after considering how active the Snowbarger family is, he understands.

"We're obviously sad to see Michael go, but I fully support his decision," Mallue said. "Michael and Jen have three kids, who are all very involved in a variety of activities."

"Jen coaches our varsity volleyball team and also coaches JO volleyball. Michael works 45 minutes away. When you look at the overall family dynamic that's a lot."

The Snowbarger's oldest kid, junior Luke, plays football and basketball for Wooster. Freshman Sara was a third-team All-Ohio volleyball player.

With Luke being a junior, why wouldn't Michael stay on for one more year to coach him as a senior?

"That's a valid question and something we've been asked," Michael said. "Being able to sit back and truly watch your kid his senior year is rewarding."

"The basketball grind isn't just a November to February type job. It's an all-year job, with offseason workouts, preseason workouts and then during the season there's a lot more that goes into it than people realize. There's a great deal of film work, practice preparation and different things like that. I thought, alright, let me just enjoy my kids more and take a step back."

Although Snowbarger had an outstanding .648 winning percentage, the relationships built with players is what matters most.

"The administrations I've worked with at Wooster and Smithville have been amazing," he said. "They've been very supportive."

"We've had a lot of success with wins and losses and people look at that, but we also had a very tough schedule, playing teams like Jackson, Solon and Akron St. Vincent-St. Mary. When you get into the college ranks, you focus on wins and losses as a coach because you have a mortgage payment. At the high school level, it's more about the relationships with the kids and being a positive influence."

Snowbarger and long-term assistants Todd Terakedis and Drew Durbin pride themselves on how many former players return to play in open gyms during winter break, or stay in touch through text messages or phone calls.

"Last year, we had eight seniors, this year we had seven seniors," Snowbarger said. "That means a lot when you have that many seniors wanting to come back and stay involved in the program."

"Most programs have three or four per class.

We've had the benefit of having some great relationships with the kids and that's what high school sports is all about."

Mallue said the district is accepting applications until April 1. He plans to work with fellow school administrators to set up a search committee.

"I think this is a highly attractive job and that we should get some outstanding applicants," Mallue said. "We have a great gym, great facilities and we're a competitive Div. I program in Northeast Ohio."

Designed to encourage a demographic that is underrepresented in science, engineering and research, the Buckeye Women in Science, Engineering and Research summer camp will take place June 18-23 at The College of Wooster.

Signups are soon for COW science camp

College Communications

The Buckeye Women in Science, Engineering and Research summer camp, an educational partnership of the Martha Holden Jennings Foundation and The College of Wooster, will take place June 18-23 at The College of Wooster. This residential science camp invites girls completing seventh or eighth grade this year to apply with an application deadline of April 20.

Designed to encourage a demographic that is underrepresented in science, engineering and research, B-WISER pushes girls to pursue their interests in science throughout their education and career path by surrounding campers with like-minded peers and engaging them in hands-on experiments in a range of scientific disciplines.

Campers will complete a daily curriculum with classes in physics, chemistry, biology, geology, robot construction and engineering. Outside of classes attendees will continue to participate in science-based activities including hands-on projects and demonstrations in engineering, physics and chemistry.

"Getting the opportunity to participate in a week-long immersion in hands-on science will show these young women that the sciences can provide a very rewarding and meaningful approach to problem-solving," said Susan Godez, camp director.

The camp also will host career presentations that feature women with careers in science, engineering and research. Past speakers have included Dr. Summer Holmes Mason, an obstetrician/gynecologist at Wooster OBGYN; Rebecah Troutman, a natural areas biologist at Holden Forests & Garden; Denise Rafferty, an applied physics technology manager at The Lubrizol Corporation; and Julia Wood, Melissa Blischak and Anna Signorino, automotive engineers at Schaeffler Transmission Systems.

The teachers and counselors at B-WISER also have a special interest in promoting science among young women.

"The teachers, who are all females, understand what these young women need to foster their scientific inquiries. The counselors are all former B-WISER campers and are here because of what they gained from the program," Godez said.

The cost to attend B-WISER is $600, with scholarships available for students eligible for free or reduced-price school lunches. Acceptance to the camp is on a first come, first served basis. For more information visit the B-WISER website or email or call project coordinator Manon Grugel-Watson at mgrugel-watson@wooster.edu or 330-263-2105.

Right now, country is in a lot of trouble

Letter to the Editor,

Our country is in a hot mess, and I have a few ideas why this happened. How did someone or something seize control of our country while we weren't paying attention? Who erased the U.S. border and allowed 5 million illegals to cross it? Who decided to turn our backs on abundant, cheap energy, needlessly squandering our nation's wealth on windmills, solar farms and battery-powered cars for the rich while working people struggle to buy once-affordable fuel for their cars and homes?

How did it become OK for mobs to riot in the streets, burn down businesses and attack our police? Who decided criminals shouldn't be penalized for theft, murder and mayhem in our streets and cities? Why weren't the bullies and thugs who surrounded homes of the conservative Supreme Court justices hauled off to jail but patriotic Americans who attended a rally by a sitting president were hunted down by the FBI? As far as I've seen, none of the thugs who harassed the justices' homes have been arrested.

How did it suddenly become normal to tempt children to change their gender but wrong to object? Why is Social Security in danger of going bankrupt, yet our government has never-ending funds to take care of the millions of illegals pouring into our country every day? Why didn't our shameful and embarrassing retreat from Afghanistan prompt a single congressional hearing? Why are we paying Ukrainian pensions when there are homeless veterans on our streets? Why are working-class Americans now expected to pay off the student loans of other people's children?

Could it be because our government, press and media have become so corrupt and biased that it's now virtually impossible for American citizens to find out the truth? We've allowed the systematic takeover of our country by tyrants without a shot being fired. No one can save us now but ourselves, and we'd better get cracking.

Wooster Music Club program includes woodwind quartet

The Wooster Music Club met March 7 with a program at Wesley Hall in the Wooster United Methodist Church.

The program began with the audience singing "Peace Like a River," followed by a prayer given by member Meg Litteral.

Pianists Meg Litteral and Stephanie Musselman played three duets, the first two consisting of songs written by Stephen Foster, "Oh Susannah" and "Swanee River (Old Folks at Home)." The last duet was "Spanish Dance No. 1" by Moszkowski.

A woodwind quartet — Annie Gerig, English horn; Kathy Helmuth, flute; Jay Klemme, bassoon; and Marty Starkey, clarinet — opened with "Loch Lomond," an old traditional Scottish song written in reference to the famous Battle of Culloden Moor.

"Loch Lomond" tells the story of two Scottish soldiers imprisoned, one who was to be executed and the other to be set free. According to Celtic legend, if someone dies in a foreign land, his spirit will travel to his homeland by the "low road," the route for the souls of the dead. In the song the spirit of the dead soldier shall arrive first while the living soldier will take the "high road" over the mountains to arrive afterward. Hence the words, "ye'll tak' the high road and I'll tak' the low road, and I'll be in Scotland a fore ye."

This was followed by "You've Got a Friend in Me" from the film "Toy Story" by Randy Newman, "Curious Story" by Stephen Heller, and Bob Hope's theme song "Thanks for the Memories" by Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger.

Laura Tappan, performing on the banjo and singing, played five selections. The first was a Stephen Foster medley of six tunes, followed by a bluegrass tune called "Chuck Old Hen," written around 1886, and another, "Oh Groundhog," written close to 1920. Her last two pieces were more contemporary and written by Lizzy Hilliard, titled "If You Were a Worm" and "I'm Thumbelina."

A compilation of Paul Simon's songs and lyrics were read by Marilyn Hyde and Day Logan, accompanied by Gene Keen on guitar, vocals, harmonica, tambourine and bongos. The first reading with guitar accompaniment was "The Sound of Silence," written by Simon and recorded with Art Garfunkel in their early years of collaboration. Marilyn Hyde read "Graceland" with Keen accompanying on guitar and Logan on tambourine. Following this was a humorous interpretation of "50 Ways to Leave your Lover" by Hyde and Logan with Keen on bongos and tambourine. The program ended with vocalist Gene Keen on guitar and harmonica, singing "Me and Julio Down by the Schoolyard."

Poetry rounded out the evening with Myra Leeper reading the fourth verse of the "Star Spangled Banner." Leeper said it is not commonly known the national anthem actually consists of four verses. She then read all 11 verses of "Doxology," written in 1674 by Thomas Ken, and followed up with "The Clever Skipper" from the songbook, "Scenes and Songs of the Ohio-Erie Canal."

The evening concluded with guest poet Neil Larks reciting three original poems, "Winter Pleasures," "One Satisfied Cat" and a sonnet titled "Fourteen Lines."

The Wooster Music Club meets the first Tuesday of the month at 6:30 p.m. from September through May, with the exception of January and February, at Wesley Hall in the Wooster United Methodist Church. Guests are welcome.

The sensational divorce trial of Elmore and Grace Taggart

By Mike Franks

Elmore Findlay Taggart was born Oct. 5, 1858, to Morrow and Sarah Slusser-Taggart. His father was a farmer in Wayne County's Baughman Township. Young Elmore attended Baughman Township schools and helped on his family farm. Eventually, he attended preparatory school at Wooster University between 1876 and 1878.

In 1879 he was nominated for West Point Military Academy. He entered the academy in 1880 and graduated in 1883 with a commission in the United States Army as a second lieutenant.

Grace Culver was born Oct. 27, 1871, to Mr. and Mrs. John Manville in Chicago. The Manvilles found themselves unable to raise the large family they had. Mr. Manville persuaded his sister Viola, who was married to a wealthy Chicago businessman, Charles Culver, to raise Grace and her sister Nellie as their own.

In 1890 Grace Viola Culver attended a social event near Fort Sheridan, north of Chicago. There she met Elmore Taggart. The two dated briefly, fell in love and decided to wed. They were married Dec. 30, 1890, at the Culver home.

From Fort Sheridan, Elmore was transferred to Fort Thomas in Kentucky. The Taggarts set up household there. Living with them was Howard Taggart, Elmore's brother. It was there their two sons, Charles and Elmore II, were born.

When the Spanish-American War broke out, Elmore would be required to spend long periods of time away from his family. Grace would develop friendships that were innocent at first but became more and more scandalous.

Elmore, once established at a new base, would send for his family. But things kept getting worse.

In February 1899 Elmore was promoted to captain. By April 1900, he and his family had moved to the Philippine Islands. Accusations of Grace's infidelity continued. Elmore decided to intervene.

In June 1900 Elmore brought his family to Orrville, left them with his parents and returned to the war. In the Philippines he was again promoted.

When the war ended, Elmore was assigned to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and the tension between he and his wife reached its peak. One night in a drunken rage, Elmore confronted Grace, struck her, ripped her clothing off and sent her into the street. Grace stayed with neighbors that night. The following day she sought help from the base commander. Shortly after, she left with the children, and Elmore was ordered to have no contact with Grace or the children for four months.

In May 1904 Elmore took the two boys on an outing, ostensibly to tour the hospital ship he commanded. Instead, he brought them back to Orrville. On June 2, 1904, he filed a petition for divorce in Wooster, charging Grace with neglect and willful absence.

Grace followed her husband and children back to Wooster and, learning of the suit for divorce, filed a cross petition charging cruelty and neglect.

Grace filed a petition to regain custody of the boys, which she was granted on the condition she would not leave the jurisdiction of the court.

The divorce trial began on Aug. 2, 1905. For the next eight days, Elmore Taggart would present his case. Damning testimony tried to paint Grace as a hard-drinking harlot who, while living in Orrville, carried on an adulterous affair with William "Billy" Taggart, a distant cousin of Elmore's. Further testimony involved allegations of infidelity at the various Army bases they had lived at. Names of prominent Army officers were given as co-defendants.

Grace's testimony began in late August. A witness testified knowledge of an affair Elmore had with a servant in the Philippines. An Army officer said he saw Grace battered and bruised.

In the end on Oct. 13, 1905, Elmore Taggart was granted a divorce from Grace, and the judge awarded custody of the two boys to him.

Shortly after the decision, Grace and her two boys vanished. A search began immediately. Every effort to locate them proved futile. For a couple of years, it made the news, but interest slowly waned.

In April 1913 Grace applied for a passport to visit Europe. Once there, in November of the same year, she married Dominic Peronti, a merchant of

One voice: Festival of Choirs holds 50th annual concert

By Jacqui Hershberger

Across Wayne County, sports competitiveness between the high schools can be fierce. But this year marked the 50th year of choirs across the county gathering in Smithville to sing separately and then together as a mass choir, joining together schools and students that usually work against each other.

On March 6 in Smithville High's Berkey Fieldhouse, over 300 students were directed first as individual choirs by their directors and then by Dr. Scott MacPherson, the professor of music and director of choral studies at Kent State University.

Michelle Muro, Ed.D, Tri-County fine arts consultant and organizer of the event, said she contacted MacPherson in spring 2022 to see if he would be interested in leading the choirs. On a fine arts teacher in-service day in October 2022, they held a choral director workshop.

"This professional development provides time for teachers to learn from the guest conductor and find out what the conductor intends to do with the music — for example, accentuate a crescendo in measure 27 or slow down a tempo," Muro said. "Then it's up to the choral directors to purchase the music and prepare the choir students."

All winter choir directors worked with their students to learn and perfect the music. A few days before the concert, the school choirs met together to practice.

"The choral directors are key to the success of the mass choir because of the music preparation required before the mass rehearsal," Muro said. "We are blessed to have such a great group of choral directors. Everyone works together and does their part."

The National Association

Michelle Muro

Ten Wayne County schools performed at the Festival of Choirs under the direction of Dr. Scott MacPherson from Kent State University. The annual Festival of Choirs was held March 6 at Smithville High School's Berkey Fieldhouse.

tion for Music Education has designated March as Music in Our Schools Month for more than 30 years.

In 2020 when "essential" things were being highlighted, arts and education organizations including NAFME joined to call arts such as music essential.

This year the program also included a proclamation signed by Ohio Gov. Mike DeWine. Muro said as president of the Ohio Alliance for Arts Education, she wrote to DeWine to request statewide support and recognition for arts education during the month of March.

According to John Hopkins University, more than the students involved in the performance were positively affected by music.

Lowell Frantz, who had been the music teacher at Green Local Schools, understood the importance of music in schools and started the festival in 1974. Frantz was invited to the anniversary concert and was able to say a few words.

Another man from Wayne County who passed away in 2022, David J. Westfall, was recognized. Westfall, an American composer who made his permanent home in Wooster, was asked to compose a short choral piece for the 50th anniversary of the Festival of Choirs. The piece, called "A Land for Patriots," was performed for the first time with a mass choir at the festival.

His son Rich Westfall ended the performance with some words of encouragement.

"Although my dad couldn't be here tonight, I know he would have been very pleased with what they did this evening. They sounded angelic, and perhaps he heard from heaven. So great job," Westfall said. "I have to say I'm so impressed with what it takes to put together an event like this. These choirs play competitive sports, right, and yet they've come together today in unity. And they made the community a better place. They've encouraged us."

"And it takes the support of parents to make this happen, all the hard work of the students and of course the teachers who've invested their lifeblood in their music education to pass it on. I know if my dad were here this evening, he would say that the God-given talent that each of these students has, he would hope that you will use it for the rest of your life to make the world a better place and to bring peace to our world. Thanks for the job you've done and continue to use that gift."

College of Wooster pole vaulter makes program history

By Kevin Smith
The College of Wooster's Dylan Garretson made program history on March 10 as the junior pole vaulter became the Fighting Scots' first men's indoor track and field All-American. Garretson placed fourth at the NCAA Div. III Championships after clearing a school-record 16 feet, 2.75 inches at the meet in Birmingham, Alabama. "It was an awesome performance," said Dennis Rice, Wooster's head coach. "We are super proud of Dylan. His consistency throughout the whole season really carried over and enhanced his opportunity to perform at the national championships and earn our first men's indoor All-America honor. We are looking for an exciting start to the outdoor track and field season." Garretson, who upped his school record for the sixth time this indoor season, passed on the opening height of 14 feet, 11 inches, then got over the crossbar on the first try at 15 feet, 5 inches. The music education major needed two tries once the bar was raised to 15 feet, 11 inches, and then he mustered up enough to get over 16 feet, 0.75 inches on his final try, which secured the All-America honors as just six competitors remained after that progression. Garretson had one more clearance in him, getting over 16 feet, 2.75 inches on his second try. The University of Southern Maine's Ben Drumme was the national champion at 16 feet, 6.75 inches. On Saturday Wooster senior Claudia Partridge logged a career-best ninth-place finish in the high jump.

Partridge, who has qualified for the last three NCAA Div. III track and field championships, had no problem with the opening height, clearing 5 feet, 1.25 inches on her first try. The first-try success carried over to 5 feet, 3.25 inches, after which just 14 of the 20 competitors remained.

Eight of the 14 cleared 5 feet, 5.25 inches on their first try, the mark Partridge was unsuccessful in clearing. Thanks to her unblemished performance in the opening two heights, that

Recently, the Women's Service Club of Wayne County held an '80s/'90s Adult Prom Fundraiser at the Greystone Event Center in Wooster. The night included a disc jockey, photo booth, dinner, open bar, auctions, ring toss, games, raffles and 50/50 raffle, all of which helped raise $16,000 for People to People Ministries — nearly twice what the event raised a year ago. Cover letter a valuable tool serving a unique purpose

What if there was a way to capture and hold a hiring manager's attention with just 300 words?

It's called a cover letter.

I hear the groans now, and that's expected. Few things these days attract strong opinions among job-seekers with the intensity of the cover letter. In an age of online applications, they're widely viewed as relics of the typewriter and stamped envelope era. An increasing number of employers are dropping them entirely or making them optional.

And that makes sense, to a point. Why waste time telling people about your interest in the job when you're showing your interest by applying? Why should you bother highlighting your experience when your resume already does that job?

Dan Shortridge
Career Stories

Those are valid questions. But that's not what a good cover letter should do.

Think of the marketing tools you have on hand to sell your career. There's your resume, outlining your experience. A LinkedIn profile is an optional resume-like tool to help people connect with you. In some industries you need a portfolio or work samples to highlight what you can do.

A cover letter has an entirely different job — telling stories and giving examples that draw a direct line between you and the job opening at hand. If it's a copy-and-paste rewrite of your resume, then you're doing it wrong.

They are extremely valuable tools for career-changers, people returning to the workforce or job-seekers with resume gaps because you can explain those circumstances while highlighting what makes you an excellent candidate.

Here's a five-step framework to writing a solid cover letter:

1. Lead with a story that showcases your strongest accomplishment or achievement relevant to the job at hand. Just one to three sentences is all you need — keep it simple.

2. Formally state you're interested in the position including the job title and mentioning the employer's name.

3. If you were referred to the position, mention your referrer by name.

4. Use one to three sentences to outline your approach to or philosophy of the work. Then use that as a framing device to mention other central accomplishments in your career. Connect those results to something positive about the job or the employer.

5. End with a statement about your availability for an interview, mentioning your resume is enclosed or attached, and thank them for their time and consideration.

Once written, use a traditional marketing approach to make sure you've covered all your bases: AIDA, which stands for attention, interest, desire and action. That's the path you want to move your reader along in those few hundred words. Capture their attention, spark their interest, ignite their desire and lead them to taking an action — calling, emailing or otherwise connecting with you for an interview.

Figuring out phlegm —ways to deal with your stuffy nose

Phlegm is a strangely spelled word for an equally strange substance made by the body. The "Ph" is pronounced as an "F," and the "g" is silent. This thick, goopy secretion is the body's counterattack against foreign bodies that invade it from time to time.

When dust, grass, pollen and other respiratory irritants enter the body, it responds by creating a mucous coat to trap them and prevent them from doing further harm. Exposure to these invaders is inevitable. Phlegm settles in the chest and throat.

Constant coughing is nothing more than trying to expel phlegm from the lungs. Persistent throat clearing is due to a post-nasal drip of phlegm. A runny nose is nothing more than a spigot of phlegm.

Phlegm may eventually become infected because it can contain bacteria and viruses, which can lead to upper respiratory tract infections, sinusitis and allergic symptoms.

The trick is to treat the backup of phlegm before it becomes infected. Steam from a shower is a highly effective way to loosen phlegm. Steaming dilutes the phlegm, changing it from a solid to more liquid state, which is easier to break up and remove. A towel surrounding the head over a steaming bowl of water with added essential oils such as eucalyptus oil, menthol, lavender oil, peppermint, sandalwood, basil and thyme oil also is a very successful congestion buster.

Bobbie Randall
Kitchen Table Nutrition

A tablespoon of table salt to a cup of warm water is a recipe for gargling. Many people gag at the thought of gargling, but tilting the head back and open mouth breathing through this mixture can dilute the thick, sticky phlegm and aid in breathing.

The healing power of honey is well-known. It can provide throat relief. It also is known to contain antiseptic, antibiotic, antibacterial, antiviral and anti-fungal properties. Honey also is regarded as an immune system booster that helps the body fight infection.

Mix about 2 tablespoons of lemon juice with a tablespoon of honey in a glass of warm water. Drinking this mixture three times daily will loosen phlegm and reduce phlegm production.

Making a watery mixture of turmeric, ginger or cayenne pepper clears congestion by breaking up the phlegm, making it easier to be blown into a tissue. Fresh spices work the best. Apple cider vinegar also has been known for the breakdown of phlegm when mixed with warm water.

The healing powers of homemade chicken soup should not be dismissed as it has been proven to be very effective. Consuming multiple cups of chicken broth a day can help battle the phlegm and boost the immune system.

A strange but highly effective way to break up phlegm is horseradish. Blocking one nostril and taking a deep breath of a fresh jar of horseradish will cleanse the sinuses and cause phlegm to become drippy enough to blow into a tissue. Alternate the sides of the nose for the most effective treatment. Don't let your drippy nose touch the jar of horseradish. It is a crazy treatment, but it works.

On a roll — Leiendecker carrying on family tradition

A few thoughts from the week in sports ...

The accomplishments of area athletes and teams never cease to amaze me, and the OHSAA postseason is the biggest stage to display their talents.

Wooster bowler Abbie Leiendecker has been as impressive as just about any local this winter — on and off the lanes.

For starters, she began the 2022-23 school year as a junior and will end it as a senior. She will have enough credits to graduate this spring.

Leiendecker made an official visit to Div. I Louisiana Tech in December and signed a letter of intent. She will graduate a year early in order to bowl with her sister Allie, who will be a fifth-year senior in 2023-24.

Abbie, who started taking a larger class load in the fall, has a full athletic scholarship. She put the exclamation point on an outstanding career for Wooster by placing ninth out of 96 bowlers at the Div. I state tournament to earn second-team All-Ohio honors on March 10.

"This year really shows that hard work pays off," said Abbie, who was a sectional and district champion, two-time Ohio Cardinal Conference Player of the Year and had a 215 average as a senior. "People don't know how much work I put in behind the scenes.

"I announced my signing on New Year's Day, but I'd met with my guidance counselor (Cordell Smith) in November to change my schedule to make sure I can graduate early and be NCAA eligible."

Abbie was only in classes at Wooster High School for 3 1/2 hours a day to start the fall but increased her class load to all seven periods. In addition to bowling 10-15 games six days a week, she did CrossFit five times a week leading up to the season and also lifts weights.

Abbie is carrying on a family tradition. The Leiendeckers could be called

Aaron Dorksen
Columnist

the first family of Wooster bowling.

Al Leiendecker is part-owner of Wayne Lanes and coaches his daughters in their non-OHSAA tournaments. Tracie Leiendecker is the Generals varsity coach and founded the program as a club team in 2009. In addition to having her daughters bowl at the state tournament, she helped coach senior Dawson Gaynor to a state trip this season.

"Some people might think 'it's just bowling,' but to be really good, you have to put in lots of extra work like in any sport," Tracie said. "I actually have mixed feelings about Abbie starting college early, but how can I not be proud to see how hard she's worked?"

None of this seemed possible during Abbie's freshman year when the COVID pandemic forced schools to shut down and turn to remote learning. Being stuck at home was the worst thing for an energetic, highly social girl.

"When Abbie was an eighth-grader, she was near the top of her class," Tracie said. "Having to learn online was the worst possible thing for her, and we heard of other families who had kids really struggle. She became distant, detached. We butted heads. It didn't look like a bright future for her."

Abbie said, "I tried finding the easy way out with school work, and I wasn't putting as much work into bowling as I should have."

Al Leiendecker said his daughter has made a complete 180 in the last two years.

"We're very proud of her," said Al, a Waynedale graduate who was the center on the Golden Bears' 1985 Final Four football team. "We missed out on a lot of valuable training time when she was a freshman and sophomore, yet I think she is ready to step in and make an immediate impact on the collegiate level.

"Abbie has made impressive improvements on the lanes over the last year. She's always had a big-time physical game. It just took a while for the focus and mentality to catch up."

Many in the bowling community call the OHSAA state tournament a "three-game crapshoot" because it takes as much luck as skill in such a limited format.

Colleges and other states use a five-game qualifying series, followed by bracket match play. Abbie's career highlights are much bigger than just the OHSAA action.

Abbie shot 621 to finish ninth out of 96 bowlers at the Div. I tournament on March 10 to earn second-team All-Ohio honors (Allie's best finish was 10th). Abbie was the individual sectional and district champion this season.

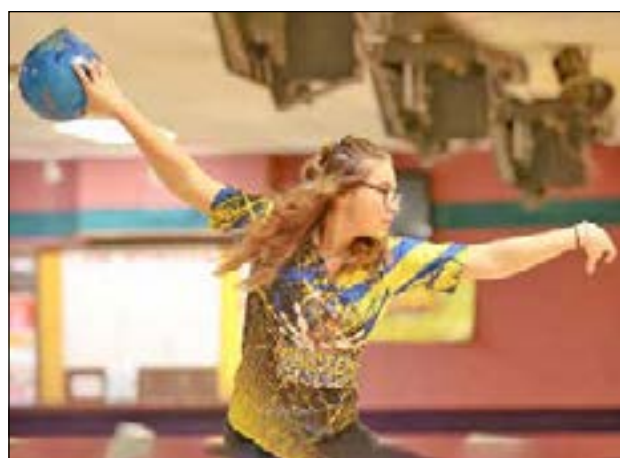

Nationally, Abbie has two top-10 finishes at the National Teen Masters and three match play appearances at Junior Golds (youth bowling's U.S. Open) with a high finish of 13th. She has seven Ohio Junior Tournament Bowlers Association championships and is a four-time Ohio State Pepsi champion.

Abbie's career-high game is 300, and her high three-game series is 798.

Louisiana Tech is ranked No. 12 in Div. I, and older sister Allie, who received an extra year of eligibility due to COVID, is their cleanup bowler and a four-time All-American.

"I wouldn't be where I am without my family," Abbie said. "My dad owns a pro shop and is a partner in the bowling alley, so I get a lot more opportunities than other kids. My dad is my competition and physical coach, and my mom is my high school coach and my mental coach. They definitely help me a lot."

"My sister is a huge part

After finishing ninth at the Div. I state bowling tournament, Abbie Leiendecker will graduate a year early from Wooster High and will join her sister Allie on the team at Louisiana Tech.

of my life when it comes to bowling. Not that I'm trying to match expectations to do everything she's done, but she's shown me what's possible and is there for me."

Parting shots

Congrats to the Hiland boys basketball team on qualifying for the Div.

IV state tournament this weekend and coach Mark Schlabach for earning his 500th win. Schlabach's photo was put on social media to recognize the accomplishment, and my first thought was, "He has to be the youngest-looking coach to ever win 500 games."

—Condolences go out to the family and friends of Larry Acker and Andy Kobilarcsik, who both passed away recently.

Best known as Norwayne's superintendent and a longtime OHSAA board member, Acker was a great man who passed away at age 83. I always enjoyed talking to Larry and appreciate his support over the years.

Kobilarcsik was voted No. 21 on The Daily Record's 50 greatest athletes of the 20th century list in 1999. I was privileged enough to meet with Kobilarcsik to write that story and recount his incredible senior year at Wooster High School in 1960-61. He scored the game-winning TD in a battle of unbeaten against Orrville, won a state wrestling title and was a track standout.

One birthday party adds up to three big winners

Turning 3 years old is a big deal, and when you're coming at it fresh off the sugar rush of your little brother's first birthday party just a few weeks before, the expectations are stratospheric. In James' mind, if the celebration for little Max was that big for just one measly year on the planet, then his own third birthday should be three times as awesome.

While I have no way of accurately quantifying the awesomeness factor of James' birthday, I can tell you this much: The celebration ended with not just one, but rather three big winners.

Perhaps it's best to start with the dog. Our mutt Frankie has a bit of a love-hate relationship with traveling to our daughter's place. The love part comes from simply going somewhere. Frank is so enamored with the very idea of travel that I once let him jump in the cab of the truck as I pulled it out of the garage to unload a box from the bed. The round trip — all of 50 feet — lasted a full three hours as the dog refused to leave the cab for the rest of the afternoon.

Going to Charlotte and Andrew's place, however, is a bittersweet journey as his "cousins," grand puppies Jax and Beasley, tend to go all alpha on him whenever no parents are about. To make matters worse, Andrew's mom's Labrador Belle would join in the scrum. Belle, while young and attractive, has all the subtle romantic charm of a drunken rugby player as far as Frank is concerned. The only upside to this trip would come when all four dogs were set loose in the garage with five meaty shank bones — one extra so there'd be no quarrelling.

Frank would win big at the end of the day when he scooped up the largest and juiciest of those bones and hustled it into our car for the trip home.

Now on to the birthday boy. I've made it a point during my admittedly brief time as a grandpa to pay close attention to what the boys love the most. It's been clear for quite some time now that nothing gets James more fired up than construction vehicles. Dozers, backhoes, track hoes and dump trucks — this kid could sit all day and watch a construction site. When the family passed a logging operation along the highway a few months back, James began to talk about the "tree cutter" during every single conversation we had.

The bar was set. I was going to give that boy a toy tree-harvesting machine even if I had to make it myself. The search was not easy, and for a guy who despises the whole notion of "shopping," it was a decidedly foreign experience. Still, I persevered, and landed what I immediately declared to be "the best gift I'd given anyone ever!" Then I had to sit on it for a full six weeks — utter torture.

Our final pair of winners were crowned simultaneously as James unwrapped what instantly became our shared favorite toy — a genuine, scale version of a John Deere 1270 G Tree Harvester complete with plastic tree and detachable stump. The party pretty much stopped as the little lumberjack set off to roam the forest of imagination.

Sure, James got the toy, but I got the satisfaction of scoring the biggest win of the day.

Kristin and John Lorson would love to hear from you. Write Drawing Laughter, P.O. Box 170, Frederickburg, OH 44627, or email John at jlorson@alovus.com.

ABSOLUTE WAGNER LAND AUCTION

74 ACRES NEAR LAYLAND

ONLINE AUCTION ONLY

74.38 Acres Offered in 3 Parcels | Mature Timber
Small Cabin | Ridgetop Field | Trails | Cabin/Building Sites
Seller Owned Mineral Rights Transfer | Clark Township
Coshocton County | West Holmes Schools

Bidding Begins Ending:
Tuesday, March 28, 2023 • 5:00 PM

LOCATION: CR 343 Killbuck, OH 43812. GPS Coordinates: 40.426422, -81.957674. Directions: From Millersburg take US 62 west 6 ½ miles to SR 60 south 4 miles, to CR 19, straight onto CR 343. Property on your left in approx. ½ mile. Signs posted.

Selling Absolute, to the highest bidder, this 74-acre hunters paradise is conveniently located just 15 minutes from Millersburg in the Layland area. Mostly wooded acreage and an excellent recreational/investment opportunity that will be offered in 3 parcels. PARCEL 1 is approx. 43 acres and has seemingly everything that everyone is looking for, an excellent ridge with ample deer sign, mast bearing trees, trails, a small hunting cabin with electric, and timber. The timber on this tract is good tall mature poplar, red and white oaks, some hard and soft maples, and even a few hickory trees. PARCEL 2 is approx. 19 acres and offers that secluded ridge top field that everyone seems to be looking for. This open area is approx. 3 acres and would make for an excellent food source location for the many deer in the area, or a great spot for a secluded cabin for those weekend family gatherings. PARCEL 3 is approx. 10 acres and is mostly floodplain, but it does have enough room for a building site and/or pasture space. This parcel also offers excellent hunting opportunity towards the rear where a natural pinch point occurs, and this should help funnel the deer right past your stand. All in all, this property has the location and features that will hold value, now and in the future, making it an excellent investment. Don't miss it! Walk the property at your own risk and convenience. Call Jr Miller for details.

PARCEL 1: 43.026 acres wooded land with cabin and 194' frontage on CR 343.

PARCEL 2: 19.87 acres open and wooded land with 922' frontage on CR 343.

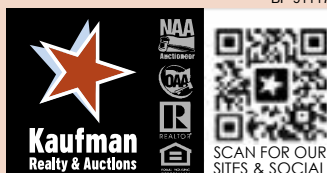

PARCEL 3: 10.8 acres mostly open land with 922' frontage on CR 343.

TAXES & LEGAL: Coshocton County parcel numbers 0050000016800, 0060000003800, 0060000018900, and 0060000019000. Taxes are $2,642.67 per ½ year.

TERMS: 5% Buyer's Premium. 10% non-refundable down payment day of sale with the balance due at closing. No financing or other contingencies, property sells "AS IS". Sellers to transfer any and all owned mineral rights. Property sells subject to all articles of record. Announcements day of sale take precedence over all previous advertising and statements. The auction will be offered in various amalgamations, including as individual parcels or lots, combinations of parcels or lots, and all parcels or lots as a whole. See the sale order addendum in Documents tab for more details. Online bidding terms apply. See www.kaufman-auctions.com for full terms.
