County receiving more disaster relief aid

Financial relief aid from the June 2022 derecho storms continues to be distributed throughout the regions hardest hit by the derecho along with other severe storms around that time.

Ohio Emergency Management Agency executive director Sima Merick recently announced the third round of reimbursements of more than $850,000 from the State Disaster Relief Program (SDRP) for areas statewide impacted by severe storms last year.

The SDRP is a reimbursement program that can be used in instances where storm damage amounts do not meet the threshold for federal assistance. The program is intended to provide supplemental state assistance to local governments and eligible non-profit organizations for costs associated with debris removal, emergency protective measures and permanent work.

In November, Ohio Gov. Mike DeWine authorized the use of the SDRP to help provide relief to several counties impacted by severe weather in February, May, June and July of 2022.

The SDRP is authorized for counties whose damages meet a countywide per capita indicator. DeWine's authorization allowing the use of the fund permits the Ohio EMA to request funding from the Ohio Controlling Board.

"This storm was classified as a derecho with wind speeds estimated at 60 to 70 mph," Merick said. "The storm stretched across Ohio and was a primary cause for the sustained damage. The State Disaster Relief Program provides assistance to these hard-hit areas."

The reimbursements include the following government agencies and nonprofits.

Communities in Holmes, Knox, Monroe, Noble and Wayne counties impacted by the June 2022 derecho wind storm and who qualified for assistance are Berlin Township (Knox County) $5,709.14; Bethel Township (Monroe Co.) $36,302.68; Chester Township (Wayne Co.) $47,491.82; Franklin Township (Wayne Co.)

$18,980.81; Plain Township (Wayne Co.) $88,204.65; Prairie Township (Holmes Co.) $23,639.35; Saltcreek Township (Holmes Co.) $37,035; and Village of Belle Valley (Noble Co.) $8,359.28.

Two utility providers and one solid waste district that were impacted by the June 2022 derecho wind storm qualified for assistance, including Buckeye Rural Electric (statewide) $93,470.21; DKMM Solid Waste District (statewide) $25,181.25; and Washington Electric Cooperative Inc. (statewide) $449,493.25.

In Logan and Meigs counties, the following local government entities were impacted by the June 2022 County Engineer $19,538.71 and Meigs County Engineer $34,579.36.

Fredericksburg Road closed as project begins

By Dan Starcher

Ohio is known for its beautiful landscapes, thriving cities and charming small towns. It also is known for its extensive network of roads and highways that allow people to travel safely throughout the state.

They also require constant maintenance and attention.

Fredericksburg Road (County Road 501) in Franklin Township is receiving some of that attention through a safety improvement project requiring it to be closed for 21 days. The work will force the road's closure just north of Moreland Road (County Road 77) to improve sight distance from the intersection. The project began June 26.

Brock Yoder, traffic safety supervisor, said the conditions at the intersection pose a risk to travelers.

is a heavily traveled road for commercial trucks going to Holmes County," he said. "Moreland Road has a lot of Amish buggies and bicycles, and that combination makes this intersection very dangerous. Lowering the hill crest to the north will be a great safety improvement."

Yoder is grateful the project is finally underway.

"This intersection has been on my priority list for improvement," Yoder said. "We are thankful for the commissioners working with our office in conjunction with the Franklin Township trustees, Feikert Sand and Gravel, and Melway Paving to get this done before Fredericksburg Road gets repaved later this summer."

Ohio's roads are essential for commerce, transportation and tourism. However, they also can be dangerous if not properly maintained and improved.

Wayne County engineer Scott Miller knows the importance residents place on roads and roadway safety. When he discovers an unsafe area, he works to acquire funding from the state to resolve the issue.

"This particular project is special because of the involvement of a company in the general area of the concern, and Feikert Sand and Gravel offered to assist the county in fixing a dangerous intersection," Miller said.

It is Miller's responsibility to determine which projects in the county take priority. He oversees 500 miles of road and 489 bridges and must decide which ones are in the greatest need of repair.

"Our office routinely identifies and develops plans to resolve safety issues and concerns every year based upon accident data, increased traffic and other factors," Miller said. "It is sometimes a very difficult balance to decide upon a safety improvement versus a road or bridge rebuild."

Investing in road repairs and maintenance and implementing safety measures in high-risk areas can reduce the number of accidents and fatalities on Ohio's roads.

SAME FEELING

Rebuilt Miller Field
blends baseball, past and present

By Aaron Dorksen

Wooster's strong baseball tradition past and present came together for two special field dedications at the Miller Field complex, located at the corner of East Highland and Portage Road, on June 20.

And all indications are the Wooster Youth Baseball program will remain strong for many decades to come.

The former North Miller Field was renamed Jones Field, and South Miller Field was renamed Schaeffler Field. The Ralph R. and Grace B. Jones Foundation and Schaeffler Group USA Inc. both made $100,000 donations to act as lead donors as $470,000 was raised for the Miller Field capital improvement project.

"This project is the result of support from area businesses and local supporters with no government funding of any kind," Brian Ritchie, the WYB president from 2015-22, said to a crowd of around 100 people who gathered for the ceremony before Coach Pitch play-off games were held. "We've been really lucky to have some great partners, like Schaeffler Group USA Inc. and The Ralph R. and Grace B. Jones Foundation, the Donald and Alice Noble Foundation and many, many others over the years, who've helped get us to where we are. Thank you for the support that you've given us."

Current WYB President Tom Montelione and Ritchie also thanked a long list of current and former WYB board members for their roles in the project and program.

It's important to note the entire complex will still be called Miller Field, in honor of the family that developed and donated the land in 1958.

"The thing about this place is that Miller Field is more of a community building event," Ritchie said. "Any time you come down here, you'll see parents, grandparents, cousins, siblings and neighbors, all coming to watch that little kid get his first hit or that really cool play that they make in the field for the first time.

"Without those other surrounding people, we wouldn't have as big of crowds as we do on a nightly basis. We really appreciate all the family members who support these young boys and girls that are out here playing on the fields."

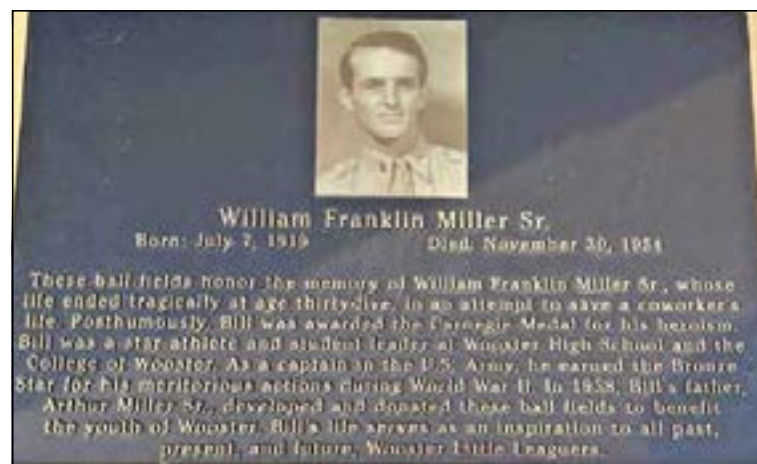

Major improvements hadn't been made at Miller Field since the mid-1990s, which led to the WYB board kicking off what was announced as a $1.5 million capital improvement project in 2017.

Although WYB hasn't been able to reach its fundraising goal, many of its capital improvement objectives have still been realized.

Ritchie detailed the many improvements to the crowd.

"Schaeffler and Jones Field were both repositioned as brand-new ball diamonds with modern drainage systems.

"We wanted to make sure that when we have Ohio weather in the spring, these coaches and these adults don't have to spend many hours looking at puddles and working on the fields," Ritchie said. "For those of you that have been volunteers here with brooms and shovels, you know what I'm talking about. This will help us get the fields playable much faster."

Aaron Dorksen

A plaque at Miller Field honors Bill Miller — a star athlete at Wooster High and The College of Wooster and World War II Army captain — who was posthumously awarded the Carnegie Medal for heroism. Arthur Miller donated the fields in honor of his late son, who died at age 35 in 1954 in an attempt to save a co-worker's life after a mining accident.

—Many safety issues also have been improved, ranging from going to all-dirt infields to eliminate the "Miller Field hop" off of the previous uneven grass infields to installing new dugouts and fences on Schaeffler, Jones and Denton Fuller fields.

"That's all cleaned up now to make sure that these kids have a safe environment to play at," Ritchie said. "Finally, we reshaped these diamonds so they're now all official-size fields, which means Wooster can now be a site that hosts official Little League tournaments or other sanctioned tournaments."

—Two new storage sheds were constructed.

—The next phase of the project the WYB board is working on is to construct a new concession stand.

Miller family legacy

Among the dozens of people who were thanked by Ritchie and Montelione were Ralph "Pete" Miller, Mady (Miller) Noble and Jay Rumbaugh, who was married to the late Susie (Miller).

Arthur Miller, who donated the ball fields that are still used 65 years later, was the grandfather of Susie, Mady and Pete.

"Without the Miller family, Wooster baseball wouldn't have been the same," Ritchie said. "We've had many generations who have learned the game here."

Arthur Miller donated the fields in honor of his late son William Franklin Miller, who died at age 35 in 1954 in an attempt to save a co-worker's life after a mining accident.

A plaque at Miller Field honors Bill Miller — a star athlete at Wooster High and The College of Wooster and World War II Army captain — who was posthumously awarded the Carnegie Medal for heroism.

Mady Noble, a retired Wooster teacher, was 11 when her uncle Bill passed away. Older sister Susie was 14, and Pete was 4.

"I loved my uncle Bill very much," Noble said. "This is very special to be here (for the field dedications) because our grandfather Arthur Miller was very generous to donate this land. I think my grandpa and dad had broken hearts for the rest of their lives over what happened to Bill."

Out of the Miller family's tragedy rose a beloved baseball complex that has positively impacted thousands of kids and families for more than six decades.

That was something to cheer proudly for as the Miller family representatives, Schaeffler's Chris Shamie and Jones Foundation representative Doug Drushal, himself a Miller Field player in the 1960s, threw out first pitches.

"The COVID pandemic was tough for WYB, but we're back close to having 300 kids in the program from Coach Pitch through majors," Montelione said. "Thank you to all of our sponsors, donors, volunteers, players and their families. This is a special night for Wooster Youth Baseball."

Donations to help complete the capital campaign project should be sent to the Wooster Youth Baseball Fund at the Wayne County Community Foundation, 517 N. Market St., Wooster. Visit the WYB website for more information at www.woosteryouthbaseball.com. All donations are tax-deductible as WYB is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization.

WYB will hold a golf scramble and silent auction dinner on Sept. 1. For more information or to sign up, go to the Wooster Youth Baseball Facebook page or email Landre.McCloud@gmail.com.

The two original diamonds at Miller Field, formerly known as North and South Miller, have been renamed. North Miller is now Jones Field, and South Miller Field, shown here, was renamed Schaeffler Field. Both fields were repositioned with modern drainage systems.

OhioMeansJobs.com adds new, speedier features

Ohio Gov. Mike DeWine and Lt. Gov. Jon Husted recently announced new features to OhioMeansJobs.com, coordinated by InnovateOhio, the Governor's Office of Workforce Transformation and the Ohio Department of Job & Family Services.

These new features are intended to take a faster, streamlined approach to connect unemployed Ohioans with jobs while helping employers identify new talent.

"Ohio currently has the lowest unemployment rate in our state's history, and we are aggressively working to fill all of the new jobs being created," Husted said.

With the transition of profiles to career hubs, individuals will get more targeted help in their job searches. For example, when a military veteran registers for a free account on OhioMeansJobs.com, they're prompted to answer a brief questionnaire specifically designed for them. They also are asked if they would like to be contacted by an employment specialist. In addition, the resumes of veterans are designated with a red and blue "V" and the resumes of military spouses are designated with a red and blue "S" to highlight them for military-friendly employers.

OhioMeansJobs.com enhancements — User-focused dashboards: All three user types — job seeker, employer and student — will have centralized dashboards to give up-to-date reports on their status. These dashboards will include tasks like uploading resumes, applying for jobs, creating career plans and summaries showing scholarships saved or submitted job applications.

— Tasks and alerts: This feature builds a foundation for a return engagement and customized messaging. This integration will highlight the tasks needed to be completed while most efficiently searching for jobs.

— Single sign-on using OHID: Users will now have access to a wider range of resources, connecting them instantly with multiple state agencies. Staffing agencies and third-party recruiters now can use one account to toggle between multiple employers. OHID also automatically saves people's information as they are setting up their accounts.

— User tutorial: When a new user logs in, there is a guided walk-through of website capabilities to ensure users leverage all the available tools.

The Home Energy Assistance Summer Crisis Program provides eligible Ohioans assistance paying an electric bill or assistance paying for central air-conditioning repairs. The program will run from July 1 through Sept. 30.

To apply for the program, clients are required to schedule an appointment with Community Action Wayne/Medina. Appointments can be scheduled by calling 330-461-9333 or by visiting <https://app.capappointments.com/>.

Parks, programs and play

City offers a wide variety of recreational activities

By Ellen Pill

The Wooster Recreation and Community Center is another Wayne County gem that can help to answer the perennial question: “What is there to do in Woo?”

The community center is part of the City of Wooster’s recreation division, which currently includes three aquatic facilities (Christmas Run Pool, Freedlander Pool and Knights Field Sprayground), the Wooster Soccer Complex and The Chalet at Freedlander Park. The community center building located downtown includes a fitness center for those age 50 and over and is the site for an assortment of classes, events and daily activities.

Recreation manager

Ashley Hershberger said, “The core functions of our department are one, quality of life; two, health and wellness; three, (an) information resource; and four, accessibility for all. The mission of the Wooster Recreation Department is to enrich the lives of our community members through parks, programs and play.”

Classes offered include aquaerobics. In partnership with Flex Yoga, there are yoga and pound classes. Senior stroll occurs on Tuesdays at various area parks, and senior hiking meets on Fridays at Wooster Memorial Park.

While the community center is the hub for many activities for residents age 50 and older, there are lots of recreation options for the younger set including youth soccer at the Wooster Soccer Complex.

club. Indoor futsal also is available. Futsal is based on football and played on a hard court, like a basketball court.

Sports-minded adults can get involved in sand volleyball, indoor co-ed volleyball and pickleball.

During any given week, groups of people age 50 and over gather at the community center for bingo, duplicate bridge, billiards, cornhole, ping-pong, canasta, euchre and mahjong. These are drop-in activities, and new people are encouraged to come and try something new or enjoy an old favorite.

Much of the activities, classes and events offered at the center are geared to older residents.

“Many of our daytime programs and our fitness center at the community center are available to anyone 50 and older,” Hershberger said, noting some programs and the fitness center have a monetary charge. “Our classes, facilities and programs are open to residents and nonresidents to register, when in season. However, we do offer a resident discount if you live or work within the city limits of Wooster.

“Pool passes are available for residents and nonresidents and can also be used at the Ellen Shapiro Natatorium Memorial Day through Dec. 31. YMCA of Wooster members can use their memberships to gain entry into city pools during the summer.”

The community center has numerous summer activities planned. These include outdoor pound classes on July 8 at Christmas Run Park, July 13 at Oak Hill Park, Aug. 5 at Freedlander Park and Aug. 24 at Kinney Fields.

According to the website, pound is a full body workout that combines cardio, conditioning and strength training with yoga and Pilates-inspired movements. Instead of listening to music, attendees become the music by using lightly weighted drumsticks engineered specifically for exercising.

There will be a farmers market on Thursdays, July 6 through Oct. 5 from 8 a.m. to noon. Vendors will set up outside the center to sell a variety of goods, and all products offered are home

Any individuals interested in becoming a vendor may call the center or fill out the new vendor form at <https://forms.gle/uHArd6cHpCdyP8Lr8>.

Additional summer events include Kids Day at Christmas Run Park on July 19 and Wayne County Humane Society Paws in the Park Party at Freedlander Pool on Aug. 6 from noon to 4 p.m.

Hershberger encourages everyone to go online and look through all the offerings. “Our website is a great resource to find out about everything we offer through the community center and the recreation department,” she said.

The Wooster Recreation and Community Center is currently looking for youth soccer officials and basketball referees. For more information call 330-263-5207 or email recreation@woosteroh.com.

The community center offers a scholarship fund for income-qualifying youth who live within the city limits of Wooster. They accept donations to this fund year round, and monies are used toward discounting programs and pool passes. Contact the center for more information.

The Wooster Recreation and Community Center is located at 241 S. Bever St. in Wooster. For more information, updates, cancellations and more regarding any of the programs, go to the website at www.woosteroh.com/recreation, call 330-263-5207 or find the center on Facebook at www.facebook.com/woosterrecreation/. A schedule of all activities, events and facilities is available to download from the website.

In an era where people often find much to disagree on, community-supported recreation opportunities are a great way to bring everyone together.

In addition to protecting soil from erosion, cover crops can provide an early season food source for pollinators. Such is the case with this stand of crimson clover.

Cover crop program sign-up ends July 7.

The Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District is once again providing funding for landowners to seed cover crops. Cover crops not only prevent erosion during the fall and winter months, but also help improve soil health and farm profitability.

Interested ag producers and landowners can apply through the Wayne Soil and Water Conservation District office in Wooster. An application and list of required information is available online at www.WayneSWCD.org. Hard copies are available at Wayne SWCD's office on the ground floor of 428 W. Liberty St. The application deadline has been extended to July 7, with all information due by that date.

A cost share of $12 per acre for up to 200 acres is available from MWCD for lands within the Muskingum Watershed, which spans all or portions of 27 counties in Ohio. Additional funding is specifically targeted for lands that also fall within the Sugar Creek Watershed, which is contained within the Muskingum. Check the website or call Wayne SWCD at 330-263-5376.

Camp Survival 101: It's location, location, location

My last dispatch, made from the cool and aromatic confines of a fast-food dining room somewhere in extreme Northeast Ohio, described my present situation. Kristin and I were living out of a tent in a fairgrounds parking lot. We had gone to the restaurant only long enough to write a column, draw a cartoon and juice up our phones. Then it was back to the lot to rejoin the 1,100 other bicyclists who had signed up for the annual week-long journey known as the Great Ohio Bicycle Adventure.

Rising at first light and pedaling 50 or so miles each day might sound like a punishment to some, but for Kristin and me, it's a weird summertime ritual we have truly enjoyed for years. While the ride is a big part of the adventure, the whole thing wouldn't be half the fun without the constant undercurrent of survival. There are daily missions to be made for the things that make life livable. Food, water and coffee top the list in equal measure. Showers and restroom facilities follow closely behind.

John & Kristin Lorson
Drawing Laughter

As one might easily imagine when over a thousand people are in the hunt for the same basic resources, a little bit of strategic thinking can pay huge dividends. Nowhere is this more crucial than when considering the placement of one's tent in relation to the banks of portable field toilets that serve this vagabond community. Prime land is quick to go in the optimum area both upwind and slightly out of earshot of the constantly slamming fiberglass doors of the Porta Pots. Selecting a spot more distant than necessary can create perils of an entirely different nature. As is so often said in the world of real estate, "Location, location, location!"

wearily visages of others in my cohort. Kristin makes a single trip and sleeps soundly thereafter. I may have married a camel.

The treat of foul weather helps to even the score, as any man with a lick of sense and a slight deficiency of modesty spends a portion of his daylight hours discretely gathering empty sports drink bottles in a desperate effort to remain inside his tent throughout the rain. Women have no choice but to dash through the raindrops toward the distant slamming doors.

I made the mistake of bragging about this in a gathering of camp friends, half of whom were women. I believe one or more of them may have unleashed a curse upon me based on the events of the following night. We'll get to that chapter next week.

Kristin and John Lorson would love to hear from you. Write Drawing Laughter, P.O. Box 170, Fredericksburg, OH 44627, or email John at jlorsen@alonovus.com.

Potty proximity is more crucial to the happiness and well-being of my wife than myself. After all, if you give a man a minute behind a tree wider than his shoulders, you've solved fully half the problem. But trees are scarce in fairgrounds parking lots, and quite frankly, for men of a certain age, nature seems to call at about a 5-to-1 ratio to that of his female contemporaries.

Further complicating

the matter is the downright necessity for constant hydration while riding the bike all day. I'm chugging over a gallon of water a day on the ride alone, and trust me that stuff isn't all evaporating off into the atmosphere. I spend half of my night wearing a zig-zag deer path between the tents to the distant Porta Pots. There, no matter the hour, I am invariably greeted in passing by the

Remembering and remembered by the kids from '88

I remember how nervous I felt when I joined my "kids" at Coccia House several Fridays ago. Would they remember me? Would I remember them? Would we recognize each other after 35 years apart?

My heart was knocking in my chest as I drove to the landmark restaurant. By the time I approached the back door, four or five former students nearly tackled me. I was at the Wooster High School's 35th reunion, and I couldn't have been happier to see those smiling faces.

It all started months before when my speech team kids from long ago began to communicate. Should they come to the reunion? Where should they stay? I was on the thread of communication. That's when I made the invitation to my girls: stay here at my house with me, I insisted.

Denise showed up first. Since her folks still live in the area, we had an evening visit at my house mid-week, then a luncheon with her mom Kathy the following afternoon. Kim came in on a flight on Thursday eve, so we had the whole evening to talk. We attended the first part of the reunion on Friday at Coccia House, and then Tina joined us on Saturday, following her son's high school graduation back home.

While the girls stayed with me, I cooked. I did towels. I

Leslie Pearce-Keating
Notes from the Second Half

even went to check on them as they slept to make sure they were warm and cozy. During the day we lunched with friends; we talked on my back porch till we couldn't stay awake any longer. I don't think I stopped smiling for four straight days.

But I was still a bit nervous at Coccia on Friday. I didn't have a name tag right away. I was relieved when I recognized some faces, hometown "kids" like Jennifer, Beth and Carolyn, and got a whole lot of hugs.

At one point, one of the speech team kids, Courtney, asked, "Do you go to all the reunions?"

"Oh no. I only go to the Class of '88's reunion."

"Why us?" she asked.

I didn't know what to say. So I began to enumerate. "I saw you guys through all four years. I had such close relationships to so many kids in your class. When I think of your class, my eyes fill with tears because I had my first state champion in Tina Bucher. Because we were district champions in speech team for the fourth time that year. Because I resigned after receiving tenure that spring. Because so many of those students stayed in touch over the years."

By the time I answered that question, I was very emotional. I remembered the communication with Tina when her first child was born. I remember taking my then-infant son to Kim's house when he was born. I communicated with Denise about her news agency over Facebook.

Didn't Linda leave a gift for me on the porch when my sweet Finnigan died last September? How long did Beth and I talk when we saw each other in TJ Maxx? Didn't Carolyn say we needed to celebrate our collective early March birthdays together just last year? Wasn't Mark a great speaker at Kiwanis years ago when I went to hear his talk? And Jennifer and I are such great friends, and she is such a sweetheart. Also, didn't I go to dinner with Drew when he moved back home? And the stories continued.

Thanks to Facebook, I learned of Kim's house being hit by two hurricanes down in Fort Myers. I learned of Steve's work as a minister and was so proud of him. I watched so many kids of my "kids" graduate remotely. I even saw Denise's new grandbaby.

And then those kids began telling me what they remembered about me from back when. I was 26 when I came to Wooster for the speech and drama job. Many kids said I looked like Madonna in those days. What they didn't know was that wild hairstyle was a mistake made by my new hairdresser, not a planned platinum do I'd wanted. Many "kids" talked about my yoga classes and breathing exercises to help them deal with stage fright and nerves. Others talked about the long talks we had when they were young and needed a mentor. All I remembered was how deep my love was for all of them.

I said goodbye to most of my former students on Friday at Coccia House. Kim left earlier on Sunday than Tina, who I didn't have to part with until dinnertime. My house was awfully quiet Sunday night after she left, until the messages started to appear in my inbox. Yes, thankfully, they had all gotten home safe.

Thanks for the memories, Class of '88. I promise I'll never, ever forget you.

Brueck, volunteers love to teach 4-Hers at sewing camp

It's the joy on their faces. That's what keeps Marcia Brueck coming back each year to coordinate the Beginning Sewing Camp for our 4-H program in Wayne County.

She loves watching the 4-Hers model their garments on the last day of camp as she describes their outfits during their walk across the room.

"The kids are just so special, and there is so much satisfaction in seeing how proud they are of what they've accomplished," said Brueck, who has been the camp's main instructor for most of the 20 years it's been in existence.

Brueck is retired from our Ohio State University Wayne County Extension and currently serves as the Wayne County Junior Fair secretary.

Recently, she and nine volunteers helped seven 4-Hers complete the three-day camp at Fisher Auditorium on the OSU Wooster campus. Each camper was paired with an experienced sewer who helped the 4-Her complete her Sew Fun project from a list of recommended patterns. The campers could choose to make a skirt, shorts or lounging pants, all with an elastic waist.

Campers bring their materials and matching thread, then take home with them their finished project, a sewing kit provided by the camp and a pin cushion they make the first day.

The pin cushion helps them practice stitching straight and turning corners. They also learn how to hand stitch the cushion closed after stuffing it with wool provided by a local sheep producer. Brueck shared with the campers that the lanolin in the wool keeps the pins smooth and shiny.

Before they sew the first stitch, Brueck instructs the group on sewing terminology, supplies and parts of the sewing machine. The campers get the feel of the sewing machine by sewing without thread on paper and following different lined shapes.

On day two she talks about fabric and pattern markings. "Then I turn them loose with their helpers," she said. "They go to work laying out their material with their patterns. They cut out their patterns and work on getting their garments constructed."

Normally, the campers are age 13-14, but this year an older 4-Her decided to give sewing a try.

"That's the first time a 17-year-old was willing to come among the little ones and learn," Brueck said. She was so enthused about the experience, Brueck said, she got several hugs from her.

The Sewing Camp was modeled after a similar one in a neighboring county, Brueck said. The first one took place at Dorothy Lackman's Sewing Center in Apple Creek before it moved to a larger room in Fisher Auditorium.

Brueck said she does not assign herself to a camper so she can be free to roam and troubleshoot. During the pandemic she conducted the Sewing Camp over Zoom and provided videos of the teaching she normally does in the classroom. "We did the same topics we would have done if we had been face to face," she said.

While it's a busy three days of camp, sometimes the project member has some work to do at home when camp is over.

"We have had kids do the mini style show on the last day with hems pinned up because they weren't able to get it all done," Brueck said.

Some campers have gone on to make sewing a career or a hobby.

And that adds to the joy for Brueck.

"I love to teach kids," she said. "I love to be able to perpetuate the skill of sewing. If one of those kids goes on to pursue sewing — even as a hobby — it's worthwhile."

Nearing midway point, jury is still out on Guardians

A few thoughts from the week in sports ...

The Cleveland Guardians will hit the midway point of the season this week, and I still can't figure out if they're contenders or pretenders in the AL Central.

Cleveland had a 37-40 record after dropping two of three games in a weekend series against the Brewers. The Guardians would be last in the AL East but were just 1.5 games behind the Central leading Twins heading into a three-game series at lowly Kansas City.

Hopes were high coming off a 2022 season in which Cleveland posted a 92-70 record, beat the Rays in the AL Wild Card Series and then fell in the ALDS Series 3-2 to the Yankees.

Cleveland has been just good enough to give fans hopes they can return to the playoffs, but if you've followed the Guardians closely, you know the season could go south in a hurry. There are lots of problems.

Ace Shane Bieber has been running out of gas late in games recently and is the subject of lots of rumors with the trade deadline on Aug. 1. How can Cleveland afford to trade Bieber, though, with No. 2 starter Triston McKenzie sidelined for the second time this year with an injury and inconsistent veterans and rookies making up the rest of a patchwork rotation?

I'm a big fan of Jose Ramirez (.293, 12 HR, 46 RBI) and Josh Naylor (.291, 10, 57), but after those two sluggers, the rest of the lineup has been average at best.

Offseason acquisition Josh Bell (.230, 7, 32) takes as big a cut as anyone in baseball and nearly hit a ball out of the stadium against the A's but has really lacked consistency.

The defense hasn't been as good, and the stolen base numbers are down from a year ago.

Entering the Royals series, Cleveland was last out of 30 MLB teams in home runs with just 50. The Guardians did up their team batting average to .247 (17th).

Bring Oscar back

Look for the Guardians to call up outfielder Oscar Gonzalez from AAA Columbus soon to help jump-start the offense. Gonzalez was a joy to watch as a rookie in 2022, batting .296 with 27 doubles, 11 home runs and 43 runs scored after getting called up on May 25. He hit a walk-off home run in the 15th inning to beat the Rays in the Wild Card Series and even had a two-run single in the ninth to beat the Yankees in game four of the ALDS.

After getting off to a .192 start to the 2023 season with just one homer, Gonzalez was sent to AAA to work on his plate discipline and find his stroke again. The player nicknamed "Sponge Bob" hit for the cycle for Columbus on June 25 and looks ready to get another shot.

Anna Yoder, left, and Michael Howman-Williams, right, were recently announced as winners of the 2023 Brian Tarpley Excellence in Athletics Award and Scholarship. Al Teague, center, who graduated with Tarpley in the Wooster High Class of 1972, founded the scholarship to honor his longtime friend.

a Generals athletic team. Each winner has earned a $2,000 scholarship for college in honor of Tarpley, a 1972 WHS grad and Wayne County Sports Hall of Famer who passed away in 2016 following a period of declining health.

Yoder played volleyball at Wooster and is going to Indiana Wesleyan to study psychology.

Howman-Williams was a first-team All-OCC honoree in football and qualified for the state track meet in the discus. He will attend Walsh College to play football and study psychology.

Tarpley was one of the best guys you could ever meet, and it's great to see this scholarship honor him and deserving Wooster athletes.

Al Teague, who graduated with Tarpley in the WHS Class of 1972, founded the scholarship to honor his longtime friend.

Smith cards ace

Kevin Smith, The College of Wooster director of athletic communications, spends countless hours making sure Fighting Scots athletes are recognized for their efforts.

Today, it's Smith who deserves a shout-out for his fancy shooting on the golf course.

Smith carded his first hole-in-one on June 24 at L.C. Boles Memorial Golf Course. Smith's ace came on the par-3, No. 5 hole, which was playing at 160 yards. The lefty hit his five hybrid.

Ken Carmel, a fellow member at Boles who plays frequently with Smith, witnessed it.

"It was fun to finally get one," said Smith, who starts his ninth year at Wooster next week. "With the front hole location and back tee location, I was really focused on clearing the trees down the left side in the woods, land the ball just short of the green and let it roll up. We watched it bounce, get on the green and disappear into the hole."

Smith is the Iron Man of local golfers. He's played at least one round in 78 straight months.

Scots stadium project nearing completion

Wooster's track and turf replacement project at John P. Papp Stadium is nearing completion. The facility has been offline since mid-March and is expected to be back in use just in time for fall sports.

The new turf features alternating tones of green every 5 yards, an all-black end zone with Wooster in gold across it and several other new branding elements throughout.

The college's 12 new outdoor tennis courts are surfaced and lined and ready for the varsity tennis teams to christen them when the fall semester begins.

Parting shots

The O H S A A released divisional breakdowns for the 2023-24 basketball season this week.

Here's a look at which area teams will change divisions: Boys teams at Norwayne and Orrville will move up to Division II, and Rittman and Loudonville will go up to Div. III. Girls teams at Loudonville and Rittman will move down to Div. IV.

—Does anyone else think summers move along way too quickly?

My wife and I just have one kid, and the schedule seems to always be booked with sports, camps or family events. In May my brother-in-law Thomas Tannhof and I sat down with our planners to schedule a "guys getaway day" with our sons and found one day in all of June that would work for all of us.

We went to Kelleys Island and had a great time enjoying fun in the sun, while driving golf carts all over the island, then hiking and swimming. Yeah, sports were a part of it too, as we threw a mini football around in Lake Erie and watched part of a Guardians game in a restaurant during a lunch break.

Here's hoping all our readers enjoy some vacation time this summer. I highly recommend Kelleys Island for some family fun.
