City of Wooster leaf pickup begins Oct. 30

The City of Wooster Public Properties Maintenance Division will begin the first round of leaf pickup on Monday, Oct. 30.

The following guidelines should be followed:

—All leaves should be at the curb the day before your street is scheduled for pickup. Leaves will only be picked up on your street once on your scheduled day. The city will not return to your street if you rake your leaves after PPM workers go by your property on the scheduled day. Advise your landscaper of the days and dates of your scheduled pickup so they will have your leaves ready for pickup in advance of the pickup days.

—Rake leaves to the tree lawn or at the road edge in

City of Wooster

The City of Wooster will begin leaf pickup on Oct. 30, continuing until mid-December.

3-to-4-foot-wide windrows. Do not place leaves in the street or behind sidewalks, trees, signs, et cetera. Raked leaves are not to be placed in the street. In addition to being a traffic hazard, leaf piles in the street can cause storm sewer problems including water backing up into basements.

—Remove all vehicles from the street by 7 a.m. on your scheduled day. Leaves around the cars will not be raked, and PPM workers will not return to your street if your leaves were blocked.

—Do not put sticks, branches, stones, trash, garden debris, et cetera, in the leaf pile. These tend to clog machines and can cause extensive and costly damage. Piles containing debris will not be collected.

—Review the leaf pickup schedule listed by street at www.woosteroh.com/parks-ppm/leaf-collection. If your street is not listed, consult the map for your street location/section and the corresponding schedule dates contained in the legend. See below for the schedule for each of the nine sections in the city.

The city crews will do their best to keep to the scheduled day; however, due to unforeseen circumstances such as severe inclement weather or equipment breakdowns, they may at times fall behind schedule. If you have questions regarding leaf pickup details, go to the website or call 330-263-5275 Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

PPM collects on average 5 million pounds of leaves annually, which equals 825 truckloads hauled to a local compost facility, which is enough leaves to cover a football field over 6 feet high. Over 600 curb miles are covered on average every fall.

Any yard waste placed at the curb before and after

Council discusses plans for Christmas Run Pool

At its regular monthly meeting of the Wooster City Council on Oct. 2, Mayor Bob Breneman led off the meeting by reporting on Woosterfest, the yearly two-day celebration in downtown Wooster that he said was well-attended.

Breneman then briefly summarized the three pieces of legislation on the agenda for the meeting and also said city administration had met with the Wayne Economic Development Council and a group called

The Next Move to discuss a housing study for Wayne County.

In old business council took up the issue of amending city bidding procedures and contract requirements. Council member Bob Reynolds said there was discussion about the 3% automatic increase every year. He said the city administration stripped that language from the legislation and has submitted an increase of the bid level from $50,000-$75,000 and that the administration sent out a memo with a list of items that fall within the $50,000-$75,000 range.

Council member Scott Myers said he would like to receive the proposed budget earlier to allow more time to review it and to make changes or recommendations. The motion to adopt the ordinance changing these procedures failed to garner the votes it needed to pass.

In new business there was discussion about an ordinance that would authorize the mayor to enter into an agreement with 585 Partners LLC for community reinvestment area tax incentives. Reynolds said he intended to leave the legislation on first reading, adding there are some questions about a 2022 amendment to the CRA. Reynolds also requested a committee meeting in December to talk about those changes. Reynolds said Wooster Growth voted 5-4 against recommending this CRA application for approval.

Also, council took up a first reading of a resolution that related to a contract with OHM Advisors for engineering services related to the Christmas Run Pool. Ashley Hershberger, the city's recreation manager, explained the need for this legislation. She described the history of the pool and the number of repairs it has needed over the past several years, noting the importance of accessibility to the pool. The city is proposing a zero-depth entry as part of the pool design, as well as emphasizing shade features and green space. Hershberger also said the city intends to gather input from the community for the pool design.

After council member Jen Warden asked about the timeline for completion of the design and construction, Hershberger said the plan is to have the pool open next summer and then have construction begin right after the pool closes next season, with the intent to have the pool closed for only one season. Myers mentioned reaching out to transportation partners to provide transportation to Freedlander Pool while the Christmas Run Pool is under construction. The ordinance passed its first reading.

MEET STELLA

Stella, just 1 ½-years-old, is a spayed female and the cutest little beagle mix you ever did see. Stella has the prettiest smile and isn't afraid to wear it everywhere. She's a bit timid when meeting other dogs and would benefit from learning some social skills — Stella was a little more into hanging out with the shelter kitty so we think other calm animals would fit her best at the moment. She is very trainable and just as silly and playful as they come. She gets springs in her feet when you play ball with her, and to her, tennis balls are life.

All adoptions are $75 regardless of age/breed, which includes DAPPv+Lepto4, Bordetella, dewormed, flea treated, heartworm tested and rabies (if age appropriate), spay/neuter voucher, microchip and current dog license.

Enjoying THE PAST Learning for THE FUTURE

Visiting History Day provides a united glimpse into the area's history

By Dave Mast

There's so much to learn and experience from our past that can help us learn for the future."

That sounds like a glorious quote from Abraham Lincoln, Teddy Roosevelt or Martin Luther King.

Instead, it comes from a local historian who understands the value of history and the role it can play in benefiting future days.

That quote comes from Bruce Biggs, board member of the County Line Historical Society, and in making that statement, he defines the essence of an upcoming event.

On Saturday, Nov. 4, several area historical societies and museums will unite in an effort to relay the importance of the past during Visiting History Day, an area event that invites the public to visit various participating partners from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Buckeye Ag Museum and J&R Acres Farming Through the Decades, the Smithville Historical Society, Moreland Community Historical Society, and County Line Historical Society came together to create this event, where the public is invited to travel throughout the area and visit these organizations that are committed to honoring the past.

"The problem we're facing is that the people who have the knowledge and experience from the past are passing on, and once they go, our history is gone unless we record it, collect it and pass it on for future generations," Biggs said. "I wish now that I had sat down with my dad many more times than I did and talked about that type of thing. We can't afford to wait and recognize the value of our past until it's too late."

“The problem is that the people who have the knowledge and experience from the past are passing on.”

Ron Grosjean, owner of Buckeye Ag Museum and Farming Through the Decades, reiterated that message and said he hopes this event opens the door to many visitors as he and many others will wait to share their knowledge and showcase memorabilia from the past.

"Each participating museum and organization has their own unique collections to share," Grosjean said. "We have an incredible amount of historical items in our area, and each of us shares the same passion for something we believe is important to keep alive for future generations, and that is our history."

Grosjean went on to say seeing all of the entities come together to share this day is heartwarming and gives people a chance to travel and view some wonderful pieces of history.

"With the leaves changing color and all of the history present, it should be a wonderful opportunity for families and couples to get out and enjoy a great day together while learning something about the past," Grosjean said.

Gail Miller of the Moreland Community Historical Society said they will have the restored Church of God, cabin and former Franklin building open to visitors, and like the other groups, there will be members on hand to discuss history.

"Our intent is to create a buzz around history and share everything we're passionate about that can educate the public," Miller said.

Wayne County Convention and Visitors Bureau

This spinning wheel is part of the collection on the Smithville Historical Society's Pioneer Village, which will have all nine of its mid-1800s buildings open for viewing during Visiting History Day, an area event that invites the public to visit various participating partners from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Buckeye Ag Museum will feature plenty of old farming implements, with rare tractors and tools on hand. County Line boasts an old-fashioned schoolroom setting, military memorabilia and an array of memorabilia from the Shreve community.

Smithville Historical Society will showcase its pioneer village, which transports people back into the 1800s with plenty of old-time items.

Several of the organizations will provide refreshments, and Grosjean said the food wagon EATZ will be available for those who want a bite to eat.

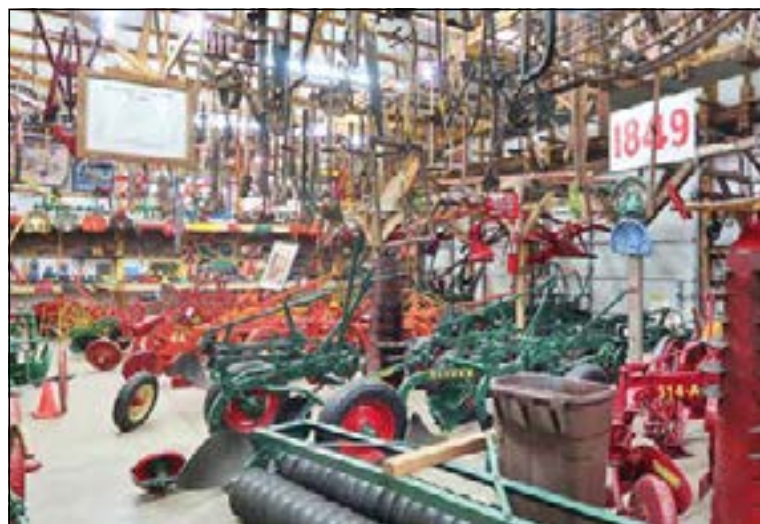

Matt Reese of the Smithville Historical Society said the entire Pioneer Village and its nine rustic buildings will be open to the public, which will include the Irvin Pioneer Cabin, Sheller House, Village Blacksmith, Wheelright Shop, Tin Shop Carriage Barn & Pottery and more.

Reese said all of the buildings were brought into the facility in 1990, and all were originally built in the mid-1800s.

"It's a neat way to step back in time," Reese said.

That sums up exactly what this event is geared to do, which is help people step back in time and experience history as each entity works hard to preserve the heritage that paved the way for this area to grow into what it is today.

A massive collection of old farming equipment can be seen at the Buckeye Ag Museum and J&R Acres Farming Through the Decades.

The old tractors are only a small part of the collection at Buckeye Ag Museum and J&R Acres Farming Through the Decades that can be experienced Saturday, Nov. 4 during Visiting History Day.

Van Wie Rotary Classic includes youth skills clinic

By Kevin Smith

The 29th Al Van Wie/Wooster Rotary Classic is coming up, and the two-day tournament is just one of the many ways the Wooster Rotary Club helps restock the food bank at People to People Ministries in Wooster.

This year's Al Van Wie/Wooster Rotary Classic Youth Skills Clinic, hosted by The College of Wooster basketball team and coaching staff, will take place Sunday, Nov. 5 from 2-4 p.m. at the college's Timken Gymnasium. The clinic is open to all boys and girls in third grade through seventh grade, and you do not need to be on a basketball team this winter to participate. Clinic participants are asked to bring boxed or canned food items as admission or make a monetary donation to People to People Ministries.

Fans attending the Al Van Wie/Wooster Rotary

Classic on Nov. 17 and 18 can gain half-price admission with the donation of two canned or boxed food items, which will be donated to People to People Ministries. Hampden-Sydney College and Widener University will open this year's Al Van Wie/Wooster Rotary Classic on Friday, Nov. 17 at 6 p.m., and Wooster will take on Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology at 8 p.m. The consolation game will take place Saturday, Nov. 18 at 2:15 p.m. with the championship game to follow at 4:30 p.m.

Raffle tickets will be sold on both days with drawings for a variety of prizes taking place at half-time of Wooster's games.

Additionally, a local school food drive will take place in November with Rotarians assigned to coordinate collections to deliver to People to People Ministries. Over the last 10 years, more than 150,000 food items have been collected in this drive alone. Finally, Rotary members are solicited to make cash donations in support of the tournament, with the donations passed along to People to People Ministries.

The 29th Al Van Wie/Wooster Rotary Classic, named after former College of Wooster head coach Al Van Wie, shown here celebrating a big 1970 win with star player Tom Dinger, will be held Nov. 17-18 at the college. On Nov. 5 a free youth skills clinic will be held at Timken Gym in conjunction with the classic.

Al Van Wie, the Classic's namesake, was selected to succeed Jim Ewers as Wooster's head basketball coach in 1961, and during the next 21 years, he guided the Scots to 302 victories, two Ohio Athletic Conference championships and two berths in the NCAA Tournament. He established Camp Fighting Scot, one of the first summer basketball camps for middle school and high school boys. In addition, he partnered with business leaders in the community to establish the Downtown Rebounders, a support group that remains to this day.

In 1973 Van Wie was named chair of the department of physical education. One year later he was named director of athletics and physical education and guided the athletic program through a period of expansion during the next 17 years. One of his many achievements was taking a lead role in the establishment of the North Coast Athletic Conference, which promised a heightened emphasis on academic achievement and a pioneering commitment to equality in women's athletics. And in 1988 he was elected vice president of the executive committee for NCAA Division III.

Van Wie was involved in a number of civic organizations and initiatives including the Wooster Rotary Club. When he was approached in the early 1990s about having a tournament named in his honor, he would only agree to it if the event was about more than just basketball. The Wooster Rotary Club stepped in then, and its sponsorship and goodwill have been a central part of this event since.

Van Wie, who was inducted into the college's W Association Hall of Fame, the Wayne County Sports Hall of Fame and the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics Hall of Fame, was chosen for the Wooster Chamber of Commerce Wall of Fame and received a Distinguished Alumni Award from the college. He passed away in 2013.

Bob Reynolds, candidate for Wooster mayor

Name: Bob Reynolds

Party: Republican

Education: Wooster High School, Wittenberg University (cum laude) with a BA in Business Administration and the Ohio State University College of Law (with honors)

Occupation: Attorney at law with Reynolds Law Office and managing member of Reynolds Title

Agency Ltd.

Why are you running for mayor?

In recent years I've become both a grandfather and a senior citizen. The former event has given me not only a lot of joy, but also an increased level of interest in what our community is going to look like when they are having grandchilddren of their own. The latter event has impressed upon me the fact that if I wanted to have a bigger role in determining Wooster's future, the time to do so was now.

I believe my background with the downtown businesses, the public schools and the community as a whole provides me with the experience needed to do the job. I have a reputation as a pragmatic problem-solver who can get things done. I believe my experience and my skill set make me the best qualified candidate to serve as mayor.

What past experiences qualify you to be mayor?

Currently a member of Wooster City Council, chairperson of the laws and ordinances committee, and 40 years of experience as an attorney including representation of clients before Wooster City Council, Wooster City Planning Commission, and the board of building and zoning appeals.

Former treasurer and member of the Main Street Wooster Board of Trustees, advocating for the establishment of the "bed tax," which has played such a key role in our downtown revitalization; a member of Wooster Growth Corporation since 2015; and previously served eight years on the Wooster City Schools Board of Education and three years on the Wayne County Schools Career Center Board of Education.

Currently legal counsel for Wayne Metropolitan Housing Authority and previously have provided pro bono legal services to assist Salvation Army with the establishment of its shelter and headquarters on South Market Street and to assist with the remediation and sale of the former Larwill Street Trailer Park, as well as over 20 years of experience on the board of trustees of College Hills Retirement Village.

Past president of Wooster City Schools Board of Education, United Way of Wayne and Holmes Counties Board of Trustees, Wooster-Wayne Legal Aid Society, College Hills Board of Trustees, and Wayne County Bar Association.

What are your top priorities if elected?

Improving my understanding of the city's various departments and the people that work in them is at the top of the list. I also want to take a look at how both the city as a whole and the mayor's office in particular communicate with the community. We need to look at new strategies for keeping the community fully informed.

Housing will be an ongoing challenge. We need more housing units right now, and that need is projected to grow over the next few decades.

United Way Wayne Holmes kicks off its 2023 campaign

United Way of Wayne and Holmes announced the launch of its 2023 fundraising campaign, aimed at addressing issues in the community. Since 1957 United Way of Wayne and Holmes has been a support for individuals and families facing housing instability, hunger and hopelessness.

This year the campaign seeks to raise $1.65 million to continue its mission of helping people measurably improve their lives.

The campaign theme, "Just Love," underscores the power of people uniting in love. Support provides resources and opportunities, and one gift helps thousands in the community.

By partnering with local programs and organizations, donations are leveraged to maximize their impact. This year the campaign supports 20 local programs and partners including Salvation Army Wooster Corps, Darb Snyder Senior Center, National Alliance on Mental Illness and Holmes Center for the Arts, to name a few.

These organizations work to address various aspects of the community's needs, from shelter and sustenance to mental health support and cultural enrichment.

Katie Kogelman, CEO of United Way of Wayne and Holmes, expressed her enthusiasm for the campaign launch.

"Our 2023 fundraising campaign is a testament to the strength and compassion of our community," Kogelman said. "For over six decades, we have come together to support one another and create lasting change. We invite everyone to join us in this meaningful endeavor and be part of the positive movement forward that we can achieve together."

Visit www.uwwh.org to make a donation or learn more about the campaign. People also can make a donation on their cell phone by texting JustLove to 44-321.

Bill Bostancic, candidate for Wooster City Council At-large

Name: Bill Bostancic

Party: Democratic

Education: Wooster High School; B.A. Regional Planning and M.A. in Geography from Bowling Green State University

Occupation: Semi-retired general manager of Farmer Boy Restaurant in Wooster

Why are you running?

Having been nearly a life-long resident of Wooster, I felt the need to get involved and to use my educational background for the betterment of the community. Being a member of city council felt like the best place to use my interest in politics and educational background. After serving on Wooster City Council for four years, I felt I had made a good decision. I believed I was making a difference and found the issues coming before council interesting. I also enjoyed meeting with constituents and trying to solve any issues they may have had with the city. This is why I am a candidate.

What experiences qualify you?

I have a long-standing interest in urban planning

Submitted

Bill Bostancic, candidate for Wooster City Council At-large

and in the problems and possible solutions that apply to urban areas. This interest started going back to my college years at BGSU, where I earned my B.A. in Regional Planning and M.A. in Geography. I also have four years of valuable experience serving on Wooster City Council from 2018-21, serving as a councilman-at-large.

What are your top priorities if elected?

The availability of affordable housing is an issue with many cities across the country, and Wooster is no exception.

While we have made some progress in this area (the rent subsidized apartment complex on Akron Road, another breaking ground on Cleveland Road), much more needs to be built. One possible solution the city may be considering is to create overlay districts. This would enable certain underutilized or fallow land in one zoning area — say in a commercial area — to be zoned for apartments, if certain conditions are met. Using the Wayne County Land Bank to identify and obtain abandoned property and sell to those who would build new housing also should be a priority.

The above are just a couple of ideas. Solving this problem will take many different solutions, money and time.

A top priority of mine on my previous experience on council was improving the infrastructure throughout our city. As chairman of the infrastructure committee for four years, I gained valuable insight on the priorities of the city pertaining to infrastructure and on how the process works. I will keep infrastructure as a priority if elected.

Michael Abernathy Jr. candidate for Wooster City Council At-large

Name: Michael Abernathy Jr.
Party: Republican
Education: BA, Ashland University; MBA, NYIT
Occupation: President and CEO of Buckeye State Credit Union

Why are you running?

After multiple poor experiences working with congressional representatives and state legislators, I felt the call to step forward and be a better representation of the people, and the best place to do this is being part of the Wooster City Council.

What experiences qualify you?

I am presently a business executive in an industry that focuses on “people helping people.” I work closely with different city councils around Northeast Ohio and understand the different challenges each community faces. I also have spent time on different boards of directors working on localized issues and delivering collaborative solutions.

What are your top priorities if elected?

My top priority is focusing on how to manage rapid growth in Wooster — how we can continue to grow, but at a pace the community can keep up with rather than being overwhelmed by the growth. I also would pursue more collaborative efforts between the city council and the county commissioners so surrounding communities also could participate in our growth as well.

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Pregnancy Care Center event will help fund renovations

By Jacqui Hershberger

On Saturday, Nov. 4, the Pregnancy Care Center will have a pancake breakfast fundraiser for its renovation, which will start in mid-November.

The event will be held in the Knights of Columbus building at 132 S. Buckeye St. in Wooster, and those who come will not only be able to eat pancakes, but also will be able to meet PCC's mascot, Sprinkles the Cow. Presale tickets are $5 in advance and $6 at the door, and children age 8 and under eat for free. The event will be from 7:30 a.m. to noon.

The Pregnancy Care Center of Wayne County is a faith-based nonprofit that provides alternatives to abortion and is committed to saving lives physically, spiritually and emotionally. Its purpose is to engage, equip and empower women to make healthy pregnancy decisions.

Bekah Hilty, executive director of the PCC, said the group purchased its building at 331 W. Liberty St. in Wooster in 2020. At the time, half of the building was occupied as a hair salon, and PCC decided to renovate half of the space and lease the other space to the salon. Earlier this year, looking at the growth being experienced at the center, it was decided the PCC would take over the whole building.

"The rest of the new space will have a larger meeting room that will meet the need for our growing group classes and volunteer trainings," Hilty said. "Many of our programs, like our parenting classes, are 100% volunteer led."

"And storage — we will have more storage. Currently, our ministry utilizes four different places, two of which are offsite, for storage. Our Baby Boutique is a critical piece supporting women in their pregnancies. Already through September of this year, we have passed out over 13,000 items in our Baby Boutique."

Currently, the PCC building is about 3,300 square feet. The new space will double that size and is expected to be done in spring 2024. Most of the renovated building will be medical. Since last year the PCC has tripled the amount of medical staff and volunteers, and in 2023 its medical clinic will experience a 100% increase in patients.

The new space will allow for two larger exam rooms, which will each have their own private bathroom for clients. The exam rooms will allow for more support people for clients, and PCC is hoping to add an additional ultrasound machine for the second exam room so two ultrasounds can be done at one time.

In October the PCC held its 34th yearly banquet. Mark Schultz was the keynote speaker for the record-breaking banquet that raised over $250,000. Proceeds from the banquet will go toward the general operating cost of the center.

In an effort to better communicate with clients, the PCC now uses an online service using an IPAD that provides live translators in over 240 languages, plus sign language. Affectionately named Waldo and introduced as a member of the staff, it allows PCC workers to better help clients who do not speak English. The PCC also offers a 24/7 chat on its website for anyone who has questions about their pregnancy.

"Sprinkles, our mascot, will be there for the kids, and we have a few more surprises up our sleeve for anyone that comes," Hilty said. "We are also going to be raffling off an IPAD PRO, a baby stroller, and a car seat and maybe a few more fun things."

"Our community has been so supportive of the work we do. Not everyone can give thousands of dollars towards a building renovation, but if they come, for only a few dollars they can come out and support the PCC, bring their kids and have fun."

Mary Salva-Reans candidate for Wooster mayor

Name: Mary Salva-Reans
Party: Independent
Education: Wooster High School; University of Akron with a degree in communications and theater arts
Occupation: Retired from career in healthcare administration

Why are you running for mayor?

Although I am not a politician, after coming back from the east coast seven years ago, I was shocked at the decline in some of our first neighborhoods. I realized there was a lack of affordable housing and truly felt I needed to focus the city on what the citizens want from the 10-year comprehensive city plan. No town can survive without a thriving middle class, and that can't happen when houses are upward of $300,000. I feel strongly this can be achieved.

Mary Salva-Reans, candidate for Wooster mayor

What past experiences qualify you to be mayor?

My background is healthcare administration; however, I have been in many different positions within that arena, from admissions in a retirement community to marketing director in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania at an all-level of care community, from independent to nursing home, in which I designed and oversaw the construction of a 25-bed memory care unit. My last job was as the director of a medical day care center where I oversaw a staff of 30. I tell you this to say I am not a stranger to budgets, pressure or managing people and projects, and because of my former career, I have an empathetic ingredient and nature.

What are your top priorities if elected?

As I mentioned above, affordable housing is my top priority. However, since the mayor and their administration represents the town, they should be much more visible. I certainly will be.

I actually just learned the mayor's office has an open door policy, and that needs to be advertised much more strongly. This leads me to transparency in general. It took me a long time to find out answers about what was going on in the city. I did find out some info on the City of Wooster website, but if people don't know to go there or have no access to a computer, they stay in the dark. I, as mayor, will have quarterly town meetings instead of the required once-a-year meeting for the citizens. I will listen to citizen comments and questions and report on their concerns.

Whatever the creepy crime, Jack was surely involved

By Mike Franks

In 1888 a series of gruesome murders were carried out in London, England. The perpetrator was given the pseudonym “Jack the Ripper.” The crimes remain unsolved to this day, and “Jack” was never identified. The stories were carried in newspapers worldwide, not withstanding Wayne County newspapers.

Local newspapers began paying attention to the serial murders when copycat crimes started taking place in the USA. New York City, for example, suffered a series of murders remarkably similar to those committed in England. Some newspapers of the time speculated the London and New York murders were committed by the same person. That has never been proven, but it sold newspapers. Fortunately, Wayne County was spared the worst of the serial criminal’s deeds, but that didn’t stop our local newspapers from cashing in on the notoriety.

Between 1902 and 1927, the Wooster Republican and the Wayne County Democrat reported occasional instances of a man in Wooster following women walking on a sidewalk at night. He would close the distance, and once close enough, he would lunge forward, grab the woman and hug her. Then he would disappear into the darkness. Both newspapers referred to him as “Jack the Hugger.” Most likely there were more than one responsible.

In 1899 Canal Fulton was besieged by a man seeking brief but affectionate rendezvous with a variety of women, young and old. As reported by the Stark County Democrat, the man first accosted a middle-aged woman, “prominent in church and society circles,” and while embracing her, he whispered in her ear, “Is that you, darling?” Upon releasing her, he disappeared into the night. The same man, it is assumed, performed his dastardly deed twice more in short order — once with two young school girls and a final time with a “plump, little maiden of about 18.” The newspaper named him “Jack the Hugger.”

In 1902 a New Philadelphia woman was walking home along Tuscarawas Avenue and was confronted by a man asking to walk with her. She refused and tried to get around him, but he blocked her. She was able to make her escape down Fair Street to safety. That same evening a young couple was walking along West Ray Street. In a dark spot, they were confronted by a man who, realizing the woman was not alone, apologized and disappeared into the night. The New Philadelphia Democrat and Times referred to the man as “Jack the Hugger.”

In 1896, as reported by the Wooster Republican, Blachleyville was troubled by a man who hid in the shadows, waiting for innocent maidens to come near “Jack the Hugger” terrorized women in many communities in the late 1800s and early 1900s. The perpetrator was rarely identified or prosecuted.

Submitted

to him. At once he would emerge from his hiding spot, grab the woman and kiss her. Once he had finished his deed, he dashed off into the night. It is not known if he was ever apprehended. The Republican referred to the perpetrator as “Jack the Kisser.”

In 1906 the Freedlander

store in Wooster was the unfortunate recipient of damage from a vandal who would enter the store and secretly slash fine men’s clothing using a very sharp knife or a straight razor. This happened on at least four occasions, destroying men’s dress jackets and pants. Although a suspect had been identified, no evidence can be found that the culprit was ever brought to justice. The Wooster Republican tagged this criminal “Jack the Clothing Slasher.”

In 1908 Wayne County had an administration building in downtown Wooster. In front of that building was a public well, where Wooster visitors could quench their thirst. Back then there was a community tin cup. The custodians of the county building were responsible for the well and would inspect it daily.

One day the custodian noticed the cup had been punched through, so he replaced it. This repeated over the next couple of days. Before too long the commissioners complained about the persistent cost of cup replacement and demanded that it stop. At that point the custodian began taking the cups in at night. The perpetrator was never caught and became known as “Jack the Tin Cup Slasher.”

Clearly, the “Jack the Ripper” crimes in London have inspired other “Jacks” to become part of history. What is not clear is which came first, the criminal behavior or assignment of the name “Jack.”

Yes on Issue 1 will restore safety

Letter to the Editor,

It is important to vote yes on Issue 1 in Ohio that supports a constitutional amendment to restore safe reproductive rights for an individual. This amendment makes no change in parental rights for children, which the opposition keeps indicting. The amendment does not allow abortion on demand at the moment of birth (this is called birth, and a child is born). This is an inflammatory and deceptive claim by extremists to scare people. This amendment allows for reasonable limits on abortion after fetal viability but maintains patient health and safety and leaves it out of the hands of politicians.

Issue 1 has absolutely nothing to do with gender-relating issues. Any claims otherwise are an attempt to confuse and deceive voters about the goal of this amendment.

Please read the amendment to understand why voting yes on Issue 1 on or before Nov. 7 is important. It takes the issue out of politics and places it with an individual and the doctor.

Solidly in support of Mary Reans on Nov. 7

Letter to the Editor,

I am 28 years old and a homeowner in Wooster. I am in solid support of Mary Reans for mayor, and you should be too.

Mary Reans is making affordable housing her top priority in her campaign for mayor. She is an absolute firecracker and will continue to push for the dignity and betterment of the community.

She also is dedicated to improving the school systems so young families will want to stay. As someone hoping to grow my family in the near future, this is important to me.

I want to raise my children in a community that values them regardless of their socioeconomic status, and that's why I'm voting for Mary Reans.

Levy questions were never really answered

Letter to the Editor,

I attended the Wayne County commissioners meeting on Oct. 18. My purpose was to find out why they need a levy for Wayne County Care Center.

Q. How will you use the money gained from a levy if passed?

A. For operation of the facility.

Q. Why do you need operation money when you receive the same funds as the other 13 nursing homes in the county receive Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance and cash. They pay real estate tax and you do not; they make a profit and you need subsidy.

A. We have more staff than the other nursing home.

Q. How do you know that?

A. We have someone who collects data for us.

I asked the county CPA how much money would the levy generate in a year. He said $1.574 million. That sounds like a lot of money for staff. This is just a 50-bed facility. So I still don't understand why we need the levy.

Q. Who develops the budget?

A. It's a team effort.

Q. Do you get the assistance of a CPA?

A. Yes, from the county CPA.

Q. What advice does he give since you can't develop the budget with the funds generated by the facility?

A. He says to get a levy.

Q. Do you submit your budget to the county budget committee?

A. No.

Q. Have you reviewed the proposed regulations for nursing homes that came out more than a month ago?

A. No.

I suggested they review them because most of it is related to staffing.

Q. Have you considered establishing a board that would relieve you of the responsibilities of operating the facility?

A. Yes and no.

My conclusion: I am going to vote no on this levy because I can't get enough information to convince me it is really needed.

Kleinhenz is an excellent choice for school board

Letter to the Editor,

I am writing to present this letter of support for Joy Kleinhenz, candidate for Wooster City School Board. I have known Joy for over 20 years and had the pleasure of volunteering with her at various community and school activities. Joy is hard-working, dedicated, has unlimited energy, and truly cares about the individuals and organizations she engages with. Joy is approachable, is a great listener and is extremely detail oriented. She continues to be involved as a parent volunteer in the schools and has been willing to take on leadership roles.

As a school psychologist, Joy has the knowledge and expertise to serve as an effective school board member because she understands how children learn and the factors that contribute to advancing positive educational outcomes for students. Her 30-year career also has given her strong insight into what works to promote resilience and maximize a child's learning potential. Joy has the background and education to thoroughly study the issues that come before the board, will ask thoughtful questions and will balance different perspectives.

I am truly grateful Joy has decided to serve as a candidate for WCS Board, and I am confident the election of Joy Kleinhenz would make a positive impact on our community.

October is the month to honor breast cancer heroes

Each October everyone is reminded more research is needed to reduce the incidence of breast cancer. Things that are usually not pink turn pink. Everything from pumpkins to football players switch colors to pink.

The campaign to make the public aware of breast cancer has been going on for decades.

Bobbie Randall
Kitchen Table Nutrition

Funds are needed for research studies and education, but awareness is what saves lives.

Men and women can develop this dreaded cancer, but it usually affects women. The earlier that a noxious growth is detected, the survival rate increases.

I know a woman who is currently undergoing treatment for breast cancer. In fact, long before her cancer diagnosis, she invited me to coach her as she decided to become healthier.

First, she came to a class to learn more about healthy eating. I walked her through the basics of how and why to receive essential proteins, vitamins and minerals. One of the ways she lost weight was by limiting added sugar and alcohol from her diet.

Then I watched her attend as many physical fitness classes as her schedule allowed. She changed her body from a high percentage of fat to an even higher percentage of muscle.

Her clothes became too big and baggy for her slimmer self. The new clothes she bought were bright and bold. She was like a caterpillar turning into a butterfly.

Then she developed breast cancer. This shocking news made healthy eating and staying physically fit seem like a farce. How can this woman who worked so hard to be healthier get hit with this devastating news?

Wooster City Schools students trump bullying with kindness

Wooster students and staff participated in kindness activities throughout October to celebrate Unity Day and Anti-Bullying Month. Falling in line with goal two of our district's strategic plan, we have been focused on creating an accepting, respectful and appreciative culture so every student, staff and community member feels welcome and safe.

The celebration included a variety of instructional and visual reminders of the impact of kindness. Our schools'

Gabe Tudor
The General's Report

morning announcements featured daily inspirational kindness quotes, and anti-bullying displays and posters lined our schools' halls throughout the month.

Also, on Oct. 18 students and staff were encouraged to wear orange to unite for kindness, acceptance and inclusion and send a visible message that no child should ever experience bullying.

Wooster High School students covered the topics of bullying vs. conflict with their fourth-period teachers. They also reviewed the Positive Behavior Management and Prevention matrix, which encourages students to RISE by showing respect, integrity, safety and engagement in each area of the building.

At Edgewood Middle School, students revisited the Buddy Bench, an initiative that challenges students to extend invitations to their peers to join their lunch table when they notice someone sitting alone. Additionally, students participated in lunch trivia centered around kind acts and were awarded PBIS tickets when they displayed RISE anti-bullying actions at any point during the school day. Edgewood students also received instruction that focused on bullying prevention and the bullying chart.

Cornerstone, Kean, Parkview and Melrose elementary schools embraced anti-bullying with kindness service projects including participating in the Al Van Wie Wooster Rotary Food Drive for People to People food collection. School counselors taught classroom guidance lessons focused on defining bullying and teaching students what to do if they see bullying happen. Students shared kindness quotes on the morning announcements and created kindness and anti-bullying displays, and all students listened to a read-aloud titled "Be Kind."

Fostering unity, celebrating diversity, and standing against bullying in and out of the classroom are incredibly important to our district. I'm thankful to our students and staff for their eagerness to participate in our anti-bullying initiatives.

To read more about our climate, culture and mental wellness goals, visit the district website to view our strategic plan.

Little mutt jumps at his chance, holds on to his dream

I had known the day was coming for quite some time. Old dogs really just get older, and there is no justice in a dog's days versus those of a man.

In a perfect world, a man's boyhood pal would be the same dog that greeted his children, watched them grow to leave the nest, and eventually saw them return on weekends and holidays with little ones of their own. If the clocks were adjusted equitably, a man and his dog, graybeards both, would be buried side by side. Maybe dogs are sent to teach us how to grow old with grace — in a lesson the length of a highlight reel.

I'm not sure how 12 years passed so quickly as my buddy Rex and I lived our lives. One minute I was a kid and he was an unruly lunatic of a pup, and the next he had spent a full decade as first mate in my duck boat. His enthusiasm for the season never faltered. As autumn approached each year, he displayed the same restless jitters as me — ears cocked toward an unseen call from the clouds, eyes turned skyward at every dawn and dusk, and a hopeful longing for the foulest of weather on any given morning. But I could see the coal black jowls fading to gray, a slower turn of an arthritic neck and finally a pale cataract haze over eyes that still tried their darnedest to pull the flicker of a wingbeat off the far horizon.

We took to the water on opening day of his 13th year, and Rex aptly boat-ed a drake wood duck I'd dropped into a deep pool not far off the bow. He shook off all over me and the boat, but he just couldn't seem to get warm again. Minutes later I gunned a mallard into the cattails, and Rex watched it fall, but that was it. He looked at me as if to simply say, "Nope, I'm done."

I took off my coat, wrapped it around him and then waded in after the bird myself. We called it a morning and went home to build a fire. He spent the rest of the season warming beside that hearth, a privilege well-earned through a lifetime's toil.

This story, however, isn't only about the growth of a man through the lessons of an aging dog. It's also about succession and the opportunity for the young to finally rise. Indy, our little mutt, had waited years as an unlikely understudy. Imagine the lead role back to the boat, it was as if the duck carcass was being propelled by some unseen force as the diminutive dog was completely hidden behind the body of the bird.

Indy was drawn aboard to a hero's welcome with bird still in mouth. He spent the next two hours clutching that dead duck like a winning lottery ticket, never loosening his grip until we debarked at the shore and he found it difficult to sniff for rabbits with a mouth full of feathers.

The torch had been passed and with it another lesson learned. A dog's life is short because each of a man's best friends carries their own unique message. Indy's was to rise to the moment and never let go of that dream.

Kristin and John Lorson would love to hear from you. Write Drawing Laughter, P.O. Box 170, Fredericksburg, OH 44627, or email John at jlorsen@alovus.com.

She followed all the rules. Staying in shape is one of the main means of reducing the risk of all cancers. Her exercise and sweat did not protect her from cancer as she hoped it would.

All the fruits and vegetables she learned to like did not shield her from this deadly growth. No matter how many changes were made to her lifestyle, she was not guarded from breast cancer.

After undergoing months of cancer treatment, I had the opportunity to candidly talk to her and commend her for the years of healthy eating and physical fitness. I reminded her of our first session that was loaded with good nutrition facts and recommendations. I applauded her for deleting the sugar from her coffee and candy bars from her afternoon snack.

We laughed as she told me about the menu mistakes she made with her family at first. She learned healthier cooking methods over the years and found ways to prepare fewer processed foods. The colorful produce section of the grocery store is her favorite destination.

Then she explained her chemo and radiation schedule and how it has not interfered with her job. She proudly announced that so far she had not missed one day of work because of breast cancer. I admired her tenacity and cheerfulness.

Then I asked her a soul-searching question, "Why you?" I will never forget her response. "Why not me?" she replied. Breast cancer survivors are my heroes.

In search of truth, justice and a full-size Butterfinger

For a kid coming of age in the 1970s and '80s, it could not get much better than heading to the local department store, in my case Harlow's, and beelining it directly to the Hallows-een section of aisle seven. Like Ralphie in "A Christmas Story," lovingly gazing at his Red-Rider BB Gun through the frosted window of Higbee's, my siblings and I would stand in the aisle, for what seemed like hours, contemplating which costume we should snag off the metal shelves.

More often than not, I headed directly to the superhero section, agonizing over my loyalty to Batman while being tempted by whatever the year's current trends would bring.

I can still picture those Ben Cooper boxes, with plastic mask perfectly centered in the clear window of the lid. I would send a little prayer up to the Great Pumpkin that when a selection was finally made, they would have it available in my size. Too big was workable, knowing my mom's demand of a snowsuit being worn under the costume was likely, but too small meant the inevitable tear of the cheap plastic down the backside well before a doorbell was ever rung for a full-size Butterfing (my childhood favorite).

Despite the quality of the costumes, Ben Cooper Inc. was no dummy. Before anyone else in the business world, they saw the potential in brand licensing and pounced. Snow White, Davy Crockett and Zorro in the '40s and '50s led to the first-ever licensing deal with Marvel Comics: Ben Cooper helped introduce Spiderman to trick-or-treaters in 1963.

Interestingly enough, the company's top seller in the 1960s? The Beatles. The costumed outfits looked nothing like anything the Fab Four ever would have worn — they looked more suited for a kid working the front counter at McDonald's in the '70s — but the four costumes now routinely sell in the thousands when they come up for auction, reaching into the tens of thousands on the rare occasion they are new-in-box. If Moms and Dads only knew ...

But Ben Cooper's biggest money maker came along in the late '70s and early '80s when "Star Wars" began its dominance of our pop culture consciousness. The one year I did not go as Batman, at least in my Ben Cooper wearing days, I was Chewbacca. I never really understood why Chewie's face and name were emblazoned on the front of the costume; were there actual candy passer-outers who might mistake the Chewbacca costume for another Wookiee? More likely Bigfoot, I guess.

The kid behind this mask may or may not be able to breathe.

And oh, those masks, with the two small nose holes and slit in the mouth that made every kid wearing one feel like they had asthma.

It also did not help that by the time trick or treat rolled around, the rubber band, stapled to the mask and used to fit around my head, broke several times, and every time my parents reattached it, it was a half inch shorter. By the end of two hours of trick-or-treating on Oct. 31, the mask was so snug it felt like my skull was being strangled by a head-sized hula hoop. And because of the lack of ventilation, well please, do not get me started on the smell.

But the wear and tear on a costume never diminished the enthusiasm we all felt when, at the end of a school day, we paraded from classroom to classroom, donning our costumes, providing a visually spooky spectacle for our schoolmates. It was always fun guessing which classmate was behind each mask and always feeling a little competitive when someone shared the same costume as me. As if anyone else could pull off Chewie or the Caped Crusader as well.

A dear elementary teacher friend of mine tells me those gloried parades no longer occur, at least in her school. In Wooster it is “hit and miss” on whether kid-dos are given the chance to showcase their costumed alter egos. I hope they do get to. Looking back, it seems to have played a role in the storytelling of our imaginative youth.

It was a sad, sad day when the mask would rip — always the first thing to go — and the costume became unwearable. Like the discarded costumes themselves, eventually Ben Cooper Inc. filed for bankruptcy. Financial woes really began in September 1982 when seven people died from consuming Tylenol capsules laced with cyanide. There was a nationwide panic — a sense of security lost that a month later led many moms and dads to question the safety of their children accepting candy from strangers. The company suffered heavy financial losses.

After some annual ups and downs in the subsequent years, they were eventually purchased by Rubie's Costume Co., and the company known as Ben Cooper Inc., which in its heyday owned 70-80% of the costume market, ceased to exist.

Eventually, those costumes would have become childish anyway, but they gave way to weaker and weaker attempts at creating Halloween magic. Wearing my actual Hardee's uniform for trick or treat does not really count, right?

Living in a pretty rural part of Ashland County, trick or treat did not happen in our neighborhood, so we always headed to my cousin's house to forage their neighborhood for candy.

But looking back, I think what I most value were those rural backyard antics, in full costume, played amongst my siblings and me. It did not matter that, in “reality,” Batman would never fight the shark from “Jaws.” In the world of Ben Cooper, costumes were the impetus for creating fantastical, imaginative stories and memories.

And most of those memories, cheap costume and all, are worth more than even a full-size Butterfinger.

Browns' late-game magic has been Kardiak Kid-like

A few thoughts from the week in sports ...
For the second Sunday in a row, the Cleveland Browns pulled out a last-second win that left fans with an equal mix of exhilaration and anxiety.

Anyone over the age of 50 surely remembers the Browns' Kardiak Kids team of 1980. That squad had a penchant for last-second wins and was Cleveland's first playoff qualifier since 1972.

The 2023 Browns have shown similar late-game magic the last two weeks while their $230 million quarterback has watched most of the action from the sidelines.

The Browns' 39-38 victory over the Colts on Oct. 22 was capped by Kareem Hunt's 1-yard touchdown run with 15 seconds left. The Browns benefited from two huge penalties on the final drive, then needed four plays to finally punch it in as Hunt got the ball over the end zone line without an inch to spare.

What a crazy final drive! My family was yelling out loud encouraging the Browns and offering play suggestions after each heart-stopping, unsuccessful attempt from the 1.

"Run the ball" was said a lot earlier than fourth down.

It was a scene I'm sure played out in similar fashion in living rooms all over Ohio and beyond.

That win over the Colts was preceded by a 19-17 triumph over the previously unbeaten 49ers the week before, which was still in doubt until San Francisco missed a field goal as time expired.

Since coming back to the NFL in 1999, the Browns have been one of the league's worst franchises as fans know all too well. The Browns are the ones who we usually watch snatch defeat from the jaws of victory.

Aaron Dorksen
Columnist

However, these Browns have been different this season, led by their outstanding defense. Cleveland (4-2) is tied for second with Pittsburgh behind Baltimore (5-2) in the rugged AFC North entering its matchup at Seattle (4-2) on Oct. 29.

The Browns have the lowest rated passing offense in the NFL, but XFL alum PJ Walker has done just enough to lead winning drives in each of the last two weeks.

The undrafted free agent from Temple hasn't topped 200 yards passing in either game, doesn't have a single TD pass and has thrown three interceptions, but he's been out there giving it his all, which is a lot more than can be said about Watson.

Walker — the underdog Browns fans are all rooting for — has made several big late-game throws and, more importantly, shown a lot of heart.

However, fans have to wonder how long the team can continue to win with Walker at the controls.

Watson returned from a shoulder injury to start the game but was 1 for 5 passing and then went out with a head injury. Although Watson was medically cleared to return, Stefanski said he wanted to "protect" the franchise quarterback by keeping him out.

The Browns' defense had its first rough game, giving up 456 yards, but also forced four turnovers. Myles Garrett, aka Superman, had nine tackles, two sacks, two forced fumbles and flew over the line to block a field goal. Yeah, it's awesome to have Garrett on the Browns.

It's also wonderful to finally have a clutch kicker in Dustin Hopkins.

Running backs Jerome Ford and Hunt haven't been spectacular but provided enough to keep the sticks moving and take some pressure off of Brown. With Nick Chubb already out for the year, word at the start of the week was Ford will miss one to two weeks with an ankle injury suffered against the Colts.

With no Chubb, no Ford and no clue about Watson heading into the Seahawks game, Seattle entered the week a 2.5-point favorite. This Browns team is really growing on fans, and we'll of course be rooting for them again, hoping the late-game magic can follow them to Seattle.

Can Cavs take next step

The Cleveland Cavaliers were a lot of fun to follow last season — until the playoffs.

The Cavaliers finished with a 51-31 record, a seven-game improvement from the previous year. However, the Knicks won their opening-round playoffs series 4-1 in dominant fashion to send Cleveland into the offseason knowing it had a long way to go to make any kind of serious noise in the postseason.

GM Koby Altman added Max Strus, Georges Niang, Ty Jerome and Tristan Thompson in the offseason, hoping to add much-needed depth.

The 2023-24 Cavs opened the season on Oct. 25 on the road against the Brooklyn Nets. The Cavs' "Big Four" of Donovan Mitchell, Darius Garland, Evan Mobley and Jarrett Allen will once again lead the way.

As a Cavs fan, it's been disheartening to hear chatter that Mitchell wants out of Cleveland. Mitchell is a special player, and hopefully the team can get on a winning roll and everyone is "All In."

H.S. football playoffs underway

There's nothing quite like the excitement of the high school football playoffs. Six area teams qualified for the postseason and opened play Friday night. Here are the matchups that involved locals:

—Division IV: Bryan (5-5) at West Holmes (8-2).

—Div. V: Youngstown Liberty (5-5) at Norwayne (9-1) and Triway (5-5) at Harrison Central (8-2).

—Div. VI: Rittman (6-4) at Cuyahoga Heights (8-1).

—Div. VII: Conotton Valley (4-6) at Dalton (8-1) and Lucas (7-3) at Hillsdale (8-2).

I don't agree with the OHSA putting all games on Fridays, instead of splitting them up on Fridays and Saturdays like in past years. It takes away chances for fans to see multiple games in a weekend, results in less media coverage and the pool for picking game officials is obviously spread out more thinly.

Parting shots

Congrats to the Wooster volleyball team for improving to 24-0 after a Div. I district semifinal win over Olmsted Falls on Oct. 24. Fifth-seeded Wooster advanced to a district final against second-seeded Avon Lake (23-2) at Midview High School.

—The baseball playoffs have been awesome to follow, with the ALCS and NLCS both coming down to Game 7s to determine the pennant winners who will battle in the World Series. The Rangers outlasted the Astros in the AL while the Diamondbacks edged the Phillies.

I haven't had time to watch much of the action live but have watched most of the highlights after each of the games on YouTube. The six- or seven-minute game recaps are like Cliff Notes for sports fans.

—Former Guardians catcher Austin Hedges is now a backup on the Rangers and will get a crack at a World Series ring. Good for "Hedge Hog."

FEEL FREE TO WALK AND INSPECT THIS PROPERTY AT YOUR CONVENIENCE.

Selling absolute to the highest bidder, this 240-acre hunters paradise is located between McConnsville and New Lexington Ohio, just south of State Route 37. Mostly wooded acreage and an excellent recreational/investment opportunity that will be offered in 4 parcels.

PARCEL 1: being approx. 14.6 acres, has excellent hunting potential and is the right size for your new home/cabin site. Being bordered to the south by public hunting ground lends this parcel well to being your cabin site and allowing you to access hundreds of acres to hunt like it's part of your backyard. 1675' frontage on Morganville Rd. (CR 16).

PARCEL 2: is approx. 65.4 acres and consists of wooded ground, with a few creek bottoms, funnels, bedding and various food plot areas. Good trails in place make this parcel nearly ready to hunt. Just hang your stands and hunt. 1675' frontage on Morganville Rd. (CR 16)

PARCEL 3: is approx. 67 acres. It is mostly wooded and provides many of the things previously mentioned including but not limited to a good creek bottom and ridge that run nearly the entire length of the parcel, various food plot areas, cabin/building sites. 134' frontage on Newlon Rd. (CR 93).

PARCEL 4: is the largest tract at approx. 93 acres. It lays relatively nice with a good roll to it and has lots of trails and bedding areas as well as multiple food plot areas and building/cabin sites. This property offers something for everyone. Be it the excellent ridges that run through it, the ample deer sign, mast bearing trees such as red and white oaks, good trail system, various clearings for food plots, cabin/building sites. 130' frontage on Newlon Rd. (CR 93). This one offers it all so do yourself a favor and go check it out.

FARM SELLS TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER. CALL JR MILLER FOR MORE DETAILS. Immediate hunting rights upon receipt of 10% downpayment. Go to www.kaufman-auctions.com for more information/pictures and to bid online.
