Dear Mr. Hazani:

Thank you for the important role you played in the International Women's Day Symposium Saturday 8 March in the "Creativity" segment of the three-part program: "Crisis, Creativity and Courage" sponsored by Harvard Medical School, Physicians for Human Rights, the Harvard Humanitarian Initiative and the Longwood Symphony Orchestra.

Your guitar perfectly complimented the two singers in the piece "We are all Connected." We are grateful for your improvisational work during the transitions of the program, which helped move the day along and provided the connecting theme we were trying to present with the three segments. We were particularly impressed with how adaptable you were to the needs of the program and the technical capacities of the facility and the room. You didn't "skip a beat" when we suggested at the last minute that you fill in before, during and after the program.

We appreciate your presence, your talent and your poise, and we hope to hear more about you as you continue your work at Berklee and beyond. Thank you again!

Sincerely,

Susannah Sirkin
Deputy Director
