

SIENNA MILLER SAYS:

TIGHTS CAMERA ACTION

FILMMAKERS EVERYWHERE, GET READY TO ROLL

It's time for some serious mischief to do some serious good. The public have bailed out the banks to the tune of £1.5 trillion in total or £31,250 per person. Isn't it now time society was paid back?

The Robin Hood Tax is a tiny tax on banks that would give billions to tackle poverty and climate change, here and abroad. And now we're calling on filmmakers to help make it happen.

Create a 60-90 second film to convince people that the Robin Hood Tax is a crucial idea for the world.

Submissions will be judged by a panel of the UK's top film and advertising industry talent and your entry could earn you:

- A masterclass with multi-award-winning director Richard Curtis
- A prime spot for your film on the front page of YouTube
- A place in history for being part of this important campaign

Closing date: Friday 18th June. For full details and to enter, visit the competition website: robinhoodtax.org/competition
