

What's So Bad About Babylon? (Part 2)

Babylon's Corrupt Foundation

John W. Ritenbaugh

Given 13-Oct-03; Tape #FT03-05

In my previous sermon I wanted to show that there is an unbroken connection between Genesis 11 and Revelation 17 and 18. Babylon began in revolt, and it was begun by leaders of overweening pride under the influence of Satan. They rejected the word of God and began building a city and a tower that figuratively reflected the grandiose visions and opinions of themselves, and what they dreamed of accomplishing apart from God. They took of themselves God-like prerogatives in order to produce a unity of mankind of their own devising.

Today, in our time, because Satan is still manipulating from behind the scene, we see the same goal in its finishing stages of development. It is still anti-God, but now it is a worldwide system epitomized in the Great Whore Israel, and the forming Beast.

We are surrounded by it, but we must resist its influence, framed to conform us to its image. We must be alert to its persuasions because it is very appealing to human nature, and it has an addictive drugging quality. The whole system creates the perfect environment for Laodiceanism to develop in the Christian.

Today I am going to continue to expound upon Babylon's deceptive qualities, and to show you, that despite its fascinating appeal, God shows what it is in reality, and that it cannot deliver on its promises.

Revelation 17:2 With whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication.

Revelation 18:3 For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies.

We are going to be looking at "wine" here for just a little bit, but before we get to that I want to look at this phrase, "the wrath of her fornication." That is a rather awkward statement, but here is what it means: The wrath is God's wrath which the Great Whore is going to receive, and the wrath is directed at the fornication, or the sexual perversity of the Great Whore. As we found in the sermons, that sexual perversity is in reality faithlessness to her marriage vows uttered when she, Israel, made the Old Covenant with God.

The nations have been made drunk with the "wine of the wrath of her fornication." I feel that this word "wine" is representative of the Whore's appeal. This is the very thing we have to resist being deceived by.

The word "wine" appears over 230 times in scripture, and overall it is used in a positive manner. It holds a place amongst milk, honey, olive oil, and grain as being symbols of God's great gifts not merely given to sustain life, but to add enjoyable blessings as well. But there is also a negative use quite a number of times to be exact, and here in Revelation 17 and 18 is one of them. Too much wine can very quickly produce bad fruit in a person because the drugging effect of its alcoholic content alters a person's thinking.

From here we are going to go to the book of Proverbs as we look at some of what God's word says about alcohol and its effects.

Proverbs 20:1 Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.

I believe that Babylon's wine on which the inhabitants of the earth become drunk is the exhilarating-to-anticipate mixture of all of Babylon's intoxicating delicacies. There is something anti-God for anybody to taste and become addicted to.

Anything with alcohol in it has the potential to enslave one to it because of its quality. It has to be used with serious caution. I think it especially interesting that God uses wine as representative of this in that it is something that God gives us the opportunity to use. It is good in small quantities, but its use has to be controlled because it has that deceptive power within it to actually enslave somebody in an addiction.

Babylon has a similar quality to it. It too is a mocker and a deceiver, and it too has an indicative quality that can enslave human nature. And as I said in the previous sermon, there is no way to physically escape Babylon. It is here, and we are to use it; but like the wine, it has to be used in very small amounts. Our use of it has to be controlled. We can taste of it, but we cannot allow ourselves to imbibe of it so much that we become enslaved by it, because Babylon is appealing to human nature.

Now to mock is to treat with ridicule, scorn, or contempt. Wine, like sin, deceives through guile, ensnaring one even as it is enjoyed. The alcohol in wine does not care who you are, because it treats everybody the same way, and all can become caught up in its effects regardless of one's station in life, and so everybody has to deal with it cautiously, and so it is with Babylon. This is why we have to be so careful.

The wine of Babylon's wrath does not care who we are. We must not allow ourselves to presumptuously think that somehow or another we can outwit it. "I am strong enough to take it." "I can handle my booze." Oh, yeah! Joseph had the only safe course of action. He fled from its temptation, setting an example for mankind for all time.

We will read Proverbs 23, beginning in verse 27. I want you to notice carefully the wording here, and to notice some of the words that are in it, and I want you to apply it to your relationship with Babylon.

Proverbs 23:27 For a whore is a deep ditch: and a strange woman is a narrow pit.

That word "whore" also appears in Revelation 17 and 18, and refers to Babylon, does it not? The words "strange woman" is more synonymous with the English word "seductress." Babylon is a seductress. "For a whore is a deep ditch: and a seductress is a narrow pit." In other words, one easily falls into it and is trapped by it, with no easy way out.

Proverbs 23:28 She also lies in wait, as for a prey, and increases the transgressors among men.

My Bible margin says for transgressors "unfaithfulness." It increases unfaithfulness among men.

Proverbs 23:29-30 Who has woe? Who has sorrow? Who has contentions? Who has babbling? Who has wounds without cause? Who has redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine.

Babylon has to be treated very carefully, in small amounts.

Proverbs 23:30-33 Look not you upon the wine when it is red, when it gives his colour in the cup, when it moves itself aright. At the last it bites like a serpent, and stings like an adder. Your eyes shall behold strange women, and your heart shall utter perverse things.

The scripture goes on to describe what happens to the mind and behavior when it becomes ensnared by the mocker wine?by the mocker Babylon.

Proverbs 23:34-35 Yea, you shall be as he that lies down in the midst of the sea, or as he that lies upon the top of a mast [rocking to and fro]. They have stricken me, shall you say, and I was not sick: They have beaten me, and I felt it not: [You do not feel very much when you are drunk, except bad things.] When shall I awake? I will seek it yet again.

God is talking about an addiction.

Now just as in the Garden of Eden, Babylon's attractiveness is in the form of an appeal to one's senses for fulfillment and pleasure. It stimulates and invigorates one's desire to reach out and partake of its fruit. But it cannot deliver on its promises, because it is from a false source whose desire is to destroy.

Notice how powerful the alcohol's addictive quality is. I want you to turn to Psalm 107, verse 27. He is talking about something very close to drunkenness when he says the following:

Psalm 107:27 They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wit's end.

That last phrase literally means that all their wisdom is swallowed up. Babylon is the fountainhead of instruction that impairs people's ability to function properly. Because they are spiritually drugged, those who partake cannot think properly, and herein lies its grave danger. They become confused and helpless.

We know that the term "Babel" means confusion, and that those who are going to partake of its way of life are going to be led into confusion. Spiritually they are going to be staggering like a drunken person, having lost all perception virtually of anything that is right and good, just going from pillar to post. They then, being unable to break themselves of it, partake of it again, and again, and again. And so people have formed in them wrong values, wrong perspectives, the wrong vision, and that, brethren, is a deadly combination for a Laodicean. We will get to that in another sermon.

The sermon is going to take a little bit of a bend from this foundation. I want you to turn to the book of Ecclesiastes. It will still be connected to the same subject, but we are going to go off on a little bit of a tangent here that is related though. Notice how he describes cyclic life.

Ecclesiastes 1:4 One generation passes away, and another generation comes: but the earth abides forever.

The book "The Fourth Turning" kind of fits in here somewhat because he is describing a continuous round of cycles that occur every 80 to 100 years.

Ecclesiastes 1:9 The thing that has been, it is that which shall be: and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun.

The names change, and the dates change, but human nature never changes, because it is generated from Satan the Devil who never changes, and so mankind keeps repeating the same general pattern of life over and over and over again. That is Solomon's concern here. He says, "How in the world can we get out of this mess that we have gotten ourselves into, with the same bad cycles keep repeating over and over again?"

Ecclesiastes 1:18 For in much wisdom is much grief: and he that increases knowledge increases sorrow.

Now life went on pretty much unchanged from Genesis 11 until about 1850. But since that time knowledge, especially technical knowledge, has increased spectacularly. Man takes a great deal of pride in his accomplishments, giving himself credit for making life easier and better. But is it really better?

Things have gotten to the place now where we yearn for simpler times. But was life really simpler then? Was it really any simpler in Solomon's day than it is now? This is hard for us to properly evaluate, because we did not live in those times, and so for us it is almost like trying to compare apples and oranges. But there is one who has done this, and he has given us a great deal of insight into this, because he has the wisdom to properly evaluate.

I want you to think of this verse 18, first in terms of the overall theme of the book of Ecclesiastes. Ecclesiastes is asking, "How can a person have a really meaningful life in a very perplexing world?" If you think it is perplexing now, it was perplexing for them. He would not be asking these questions if it were not all that simple, as we would tend to look at it.

Maybe life back then was a great deal faster than we think it was. We think we live in fast times, maybe time for them was pretty fast as well. If Solomon had all the answers in his day, he would never have asked the question. And so like us in our day, Solomon was reflecting on the past as compared to his day. Solomon wrote this when ancient Israel was at the height of its power and grandeur. He is saying that as we extend the frontiers of knowledge, all we do is succeed in opening doors to more mysteries.

Power, grandeur, knowledge were not solving Israel's problems in Solomon's day, and they are not solving them in our day either. In Solomon's day were the seeds of Israel's breakup, which did not occur for another three or four hundred years, but it was already showing in his day, and it depressed him. I think you can tell there is a great deal of depression that is evident in the book of Ecclesiastes.

There is a saying that "ignorance is bliss," and there is an element of truth to this cliché, because the more that we know, the more dissatisfied we become. The possession of more knowledge shows ever more clearly the imperfection of the system and its potential for further dysfunction, and the system's problems are never really solved, and thus the increase of knowledge seems to lead nowhere. This was what was so frustrating to Solomon.

In terms of a person's sense of real well-being, it does not matter when a person lives. The times were always perplexing and confusing, because the system did not, and does not have the answers to the problems. It has no solutions.

We can see and evaluate the same today. Each increase only makes us more aware of our ignorance and impotence, because each increase never brings solutions to the problems. Each discovery only makes us more aware that much remains concealed of which we had no awareness of before. Have computers, automobiles, refrigerators, and television banished fear? Have they destroyed greed, solved marital problems, and ended family breakups? Have they removed murder from the streets, or stopped war? None of that increase of knowledge has.

The creations of the heavens, I think, is a very clear example of this. Some of you have seen that Moody Bible Institute film on the heavens, which shows the awesome magnitude of what God has created. After that film was over, I thought, "Wow! This is really glorious!" And it is. But the next day that knowledge of how glorious God's creation is, and how magnificent, how big, how awesome, and how much power and wisdom there is left me with a feeling of dissatisfaction, because I am going to have to wait for Christ's return to see all these problems solved. I am sure that men who are looking out there, without taking God into consideration, see that magnitude, but they know in them that this is not going to solve the problems.

Every time an advancement is made enabling us to see farther and deeper into space, or any other material thing, or anything that lies beyond that which we did not dream of before, becomes just another mystery. And so the technical increase can actually bring with it a humbling sense of weakness and defeat so that there is a frustrating quality to life, because man finds that he cannot use the increase to really improve the quality of life. And so technology changes, but the quality of life remains the same. I think that I would use the word Solomon used in Ecclesiastes, that life is just so much vanity, futility. "Vanity of vanities," he said. "All is vanity."

In a way this increase of knowledge depicts Babylon's futility, and as it is increased, the futility increases. So neither Israel in Solomon's time, nor Babylon in the time of the end can deliver on its promise. Why not? Because the underlying human nature rages unchanged, destroying virtually any good use a civilization might make of an increase of technical knowledge. Human nature, inspired by Satan, is driving the Babylonish system.

Jeremiah 17:9 is a very well-known scripture to us. It says, "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: Who can know it?" The Hebrew more literally says that "the heart is incurably sick." Babylon, the system, is evidence of that. This is amplified by Paul back in Romans 7, verses 22 through 24.

Romans 7:22-24 For I delight in the law of God after the inward man:
But I see another law in my members warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members. O wretched man that I am! Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?

That was written a little over twenty years after his conversion, and so the implication of this is that this wretched nature still rages against the law of God. This in turn explains why God must give a new nature? a new heart? upon conversion. And so we can reach a conclusion that is correct. The solution to your problems and to my problems lies within our own personal relationship with God. That is the only way to bring to us the fruit that God wants to be part of our life so that we live life in well-being. Human nature cannot be changed any other way. It is the driving force that still rages on earth. Jesus had an interesting, very needful-to-understand statement in Matthew 7:17-18, when He said, "Even so, every good tree brings forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree brings forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit; neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit."

Here is a very important principle of judgment. Regardless of how exciting, or how attractive a person, a product, or a system is, it is what they produce that determines their value. Jesus said here that a corrupt tree cannot? absolutely cannot? produce good fruit.

Sometimes we misunderstand, because there is within us a very strong possibility of misinterpreting what Jesus meant by "a corrupt tree." We kind of approach that with the notion in our mind of a tree that had been good, but became corrupt in the process of time. But "corrupt" here indicates something that was bad from the very beginning. It had never been good. It was bad from the get-go.

Was Babylon bad from the very beginning? Absolutely! That is why I spent so much time on the foundation laid in Genesis 10 and 11. Babylon was formed in rebellion against God, and it derives its powerful influence from the Prince of the power of the air. Now look at Babylon's fruit. There are three major fruits to look for in a teacher, especially of this sort. This includes me too. I am a teacher. But right now I am thinking about the system out there where we all got our education. There is no avoiding it. We have been conformed to the image of that system out there, and conversion consists of being "dis-conformed," (even if there is such a word), and converted over to conformation to God's system.

These are the three things you want to look at:

1. What is the character and conduct like of the teacher?
2. Is the teaching true?
3. What has the teaching produced in those who are adherents to the teaching?

Consider what Babylon has produced. In general, it has produced a lot of good things, but they are all material. But as a system, it is fraught with problems that reveal it is a corrupt tree that cannot produce good fruit. It cannot solve anxiety, hopelessness, fear, war, disease, famine, violence, divorce, estranged children, drug addiction, thievery, chicanery in government, abuse of power, and on and on. In any given institution it may take a while for the fruit to be seen, but seen it will be. "Your sins will find you out."

The background of this statement in Numbers 32: 23 is kind of interesting. Moses was warning the tribes of Reuben and Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh about following through with what they promised to do. Yes, they could have their land on the east side of Jordan River, but they had to follow through on their vow that they were going to assist their brethren, their fellow-Israelites, in the conquering of the land. Moses warned them that if they failed to follow through and support their brethren in the way they said they were going to do it, Moses said, Do not think you are going to get away with it. Your sins will find you out."

Numbers 32:23 But if you will not do so, behold, you have sinned against the LORD and be sure your sin will find you out.

Brethren, Babylon lies expose. A wolf may hide in sheep's clothing, cloaking its true nature, but it is still a wolf, and that nature will explode on a hapless victim. The Apostle James asked the question, "Can a spring bring forth both pure water and poison from the same source?" Do you see James' point? What comes out of a spring where both are coming out together is all bad. It is a bad mixture. And so the answer to James' question is that it is impossible. What one gets is a bad mixture, and that is what Babylon is. That supports what Jesus said that a corrupt tree cannot produce good fruit.

Added to this "What Is So Bad About Babylon?" I John 2: 17 says that the world (cosmos) is passing away, and brethren, those conformed to the world will pass away with it. There is no future in the World Tomorrow for those who are conformed to Babylon. Why? Because their conformation to the world confirms them as God's enemy (James 4: 4).

Ecclesiastes 1:15 That which is crooked cannot be made straight: and that which is wanting cannot be numbered.

Again Solomon is talking about quality of life in this world. This confirms again what Jesus said. It cannot be made straight! It cannot produce good fruit, and it cannot be changed by us. The only One who can change it is God, and He is going to destroy it and start all over again. The same is true of our heart. It has to be gotten rid of and replaced with a circumcised heart that can come only from God.

Babylon is a system that was twisted from its very genesis and produces a drunken-like confusion so that life is reduced to a series of complex and frustrating futilities. It can produce futilities, but solutions it cannot. Babylon's foundation was laid in pride, rebellion, and human technology, and the source of its driving spirit is therefore Satan the Devil.

Genesis 11 time-wise is a long period of time from Hosea the 4th chapter. We are going to go to Hosea 4, and we are going to see examples of what developed in Israel, because Israel adopted the Babylonish system.

Hosea 4:1 Hear the word of the LORD, you children of Israel: for the LORD has a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land.

Think of that "no truth." It is one of those three tests of a teacher. Is what the teacher says true? God says there is no truth in the land.

Hosea 4:2-6 By swearing, and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and blood touches blood. [There are so many crimes that the blood of different victims is running together.] Therefore shall the land mourn, and every one that dwells therein shall languish, with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of the heaven: yea, the fishes of the sea also shall be taken away. Yet let no man strive, nor reprove another: for your people are as they that strive with the priest. Therefore shall you fall in the day, and the prophet also shall fall with you in the night, and I will destroy your mother [meaning the whole land.] My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because you have rejected knowledge, I will also reject you, that you shall be no priest to me: seeing you have forgotten the law of your God, I will also forget your children.

Hosea lived and wrote about 200 years after Solomon. Even before this time, they had rejected the law of God as we saw in I Samuel 8 in Samuel's day. Hosea points out both the "cause and effect" of the system that Israel adapted to itself. That system did nothing good for the people, because it was only about 40 or 50 years after Hosea wrote that Israel went into Assyrian captivity, and that certainly is not an indication that they pleased God.

What Hosea does in the whole book is to paint a poignant picture of Israel's betrayal of God's love. What we see specifically in chapter 6 is God's response. He is bringing a lawsuit against them on the basis of their moral condition. It is interesting, that even though Israel also adopted Babylon's economic and political approaches, it is their immorality that has the greatest impact on the quality of life.

Now here is the fruit of Israel's Babylonish adaptation. The first thing God says is that there is no truth. That word in the Hebrew is emeth, and it is not merely uttering what is right, but it includes within its usage doing what is right. It indicates a very highly developed sense of obligation, and it could rightly be translated "righteousness."

There is a broad application to this word emeth, but within the context of the whole book, it more clearly indicates faithlessness. In other words, the people are not true to their word. They do not keep their word to each other, and they, above all, did not keep their word to God. In other words, whenever Israel was not true to her marriage vows?when she said there in Exodus "All that the Eternal has said, we will do,"?she was capricious and devious, and fickle, lacking in fidelity, stability, and dependability. She was irresponsible, untrustworthy, and unreliable. She sought fulfillment in entertaining pleasures rather than a loving relationship expressed in an understanding obedience to God.

He also says that there is no mercy. This is the word chesed. It literally means kindness. But like emeth, it is more than that. It indicates a living bond of relationship and fellowship between two who have accepted obligations in a spirit of trust and goodwill. It is a further extension of them being so faithless in breaking their marriage vows to God to be obedient to the covenant. Chesed is talking about the bond of obligation, of trust that a husband and wife have with each other, and which children have in their relationship with their parents, and their parents in the rearing of their children.

So what does Israel reveal in regard to this fruit? He goes right on, and He says, "Here is what I see: swearing, lying, killing, stealing, adultery." All this is taking place in an atmosphere where people do not have a highly developed sense of obligation. Competition and enmity prevail. Commitment to the self is greater. What we are looking at here is Babylon within Israel.

Do you see these things right outside your doors in your city? That is exactly what you see. This is the fruit of Israel's adaptation of the Babylonish way. It breeds competition, and thus divorce, disunity, war, and death. It does not produce qualities and virtues that really matter to a relationship. The record shows that the fruit produced is, in a spiritual, moral, social, and ecological way, a crisis that is threatening all life on the face of the earth.

What nation on earth has the greatest ability to do this? I mean, to wipe out all life? It is the Great Whore that has taken Babylon's way to the nth degree. But eventually we see, (and I do not know whether you call it good news), that the Great Whore is going to be replaced by the Beast as the worst one on earth.

The roots of our crisis are found right back in Genesis 11 again: arrogance, irreverence, selfishness, and greed. And eventually, as God says, the land will vomit us out because it can no longer bear our way of living in which we will sacrifice a whole future for the cravings of the moment.

I remember that about 15 or 20 years ago big banner headlines appeared in one of the major news magazines in an article by Jack Anderson, who I think has died since that time. But he, looking over the United States of America, came to the conclusion "We are selling our birthright for a night on the town!" It is even more true today than it was then. But never forget, brethren, Babylon has an addictive appeal that is very alluring to human nature. Though we may not become involved in the worst of Babylon's sin, we can be lured into Laodiceanism.

The worst perhaps of this triumvirate of sins?no mercy, no kindness, no truth (I gave you three there)?is "no knowledge of God." I would have to say this is the major root of the problem. Again, combining this with the understanding of Babylon's formation with what we find here in Hosea in regard to Israel, we can understand that this is not mere ignorance, but rather it is willful rejection. Notice again in verse 6: "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: [and] because you have rejected knowledge, ?" We are not rejecting technical knowledge. We suck it up like a swamp, but we have rejected the knowledge of God. Now is that not what is happening today as the Bible is being rejected piece-meal all across our culture?

We have to be a little bit careful here, because Babylon acknowledges the fact of God, and our land is dotted with church buildings from one end to the other. It is interesting that God first places blame on the priests?those responsible for teaching. However, let us look at what He says in verses 7 through 11:

Hosea 4:7-10 As they [the people] were increased, so they sinned against me: [They sinned just like the priests.] Therefore will I change their glory into shame. They eat up the sin of my people, and they set their heart on their iniquity. And there shall be, like people, like priest [Both are alike.]: and I will punish them for their ways, and reward them their doings. For they shall eat, and not have enough: they shall commit whoredom, and shall not increase: because they have left off to take heed to the LORD.

Verse 11 is interesting again in relation to Babylon, and Revelation 17 and 18.

Hosea 4:11 Whoredom and wine and new wine take away the heart.

The Apostle Paul stated in Romans 10:2 that Israel has a zeal for God, but not according to knowledge. So what we have here is that there indeed is knowledge in Israel about God, but the people do not know God, and thus there is no acknowledgment of God in the way life is lived. If the people had true knowledge of God, they would show it in a sturdy committed loyalty and responsibility to God in their lives.

On the one hand we have experienced a surge of material knowledge, but as a nation w
