

SECURITY IN THE MAGHREB-SAHEL

FEBRUARY 9, 2017, 1-5 PM
FOUNDER'S HALL 134, GMU ARLINGTON CAMPUS
3351 NORTH FAIRFAX DRIVE
VIRGINIA SQUARE-GMU METRO

The Maghreb-Sahel region sits at the center of some of the most significant challenges facing the world today, ranging from terrorism to refugees, from poverty to weak institutions. Please join experts from the United States Institute of Peace, the Center for Strategic and International Studies, RAND Corporation, the Embassies of Mali and Niger, the World Bank, and more, in a discussion of these challenges.

The event is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Organized by George Mason University's Global Affairs Program, Middle East Studies, and Global Programs in collaboration with the Maghreb Center. For more information, please contact gloa@gmu.edu.
