

Ready to Restore The One Anothering of Biblical Counseling

One methodological distinctive of biblical counseling is the regular use of homework. Good, well-tailored homework can play a significant part in the counseling and change process.

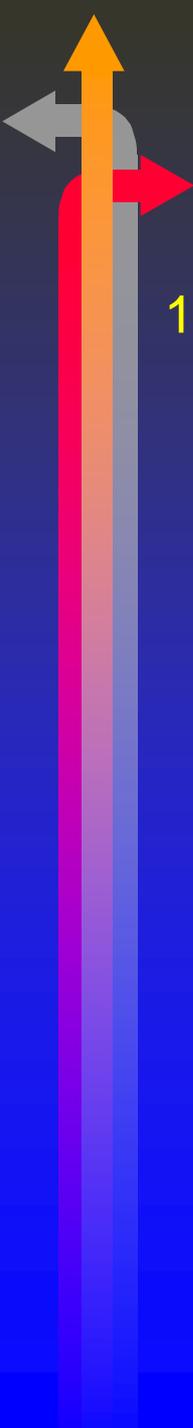

Jay Adams has written, “Biblical counselors have found homework to be one of the most vital and effective forces that they can marshal in counseling.”

COUNSELING SUMMARY

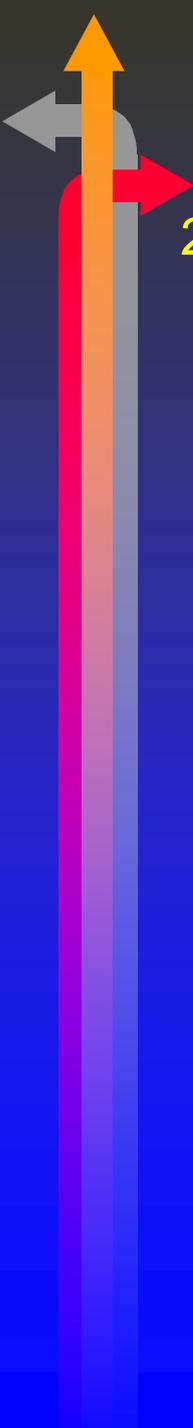

1. The Christians Ultimate Goal Chart

This assignment was the first of our discussions on a biblical philosophy of living. Our goal was to point out to you that the Christian life is singular in focus – To Please God.

This assignment should cause you to look at how you have been living your Christian life. Has your heart been ruled by the singular focus to please God?

Are you doing things to somehow gain God's favor with the focus on doing, rather than having a heart that is centered on pleasing God?

Do you now have a desire to please God so that everything you do emanates from that philosophy of living?

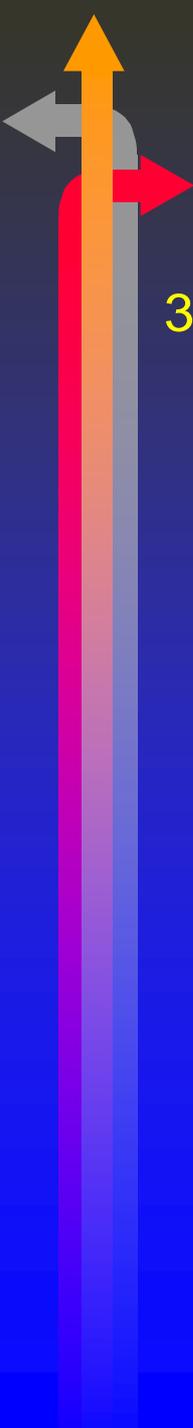

2 Getting to the Heart of Our Behavior

The object in this study was to teach you how your behavior, speech or actions originate from the heart.

You must understand that the reason that you respond to life the way that you do is because that is where your heart has lead you. You have habituated or trained yourself from the heart level to respond like you do. Remember the heart is the control center of our response to life.

When our heart goals are right it is reflected in our outward behavior, speech, actions, and emotional responses.

We know that the heart can rule us to respond sinfully because we want control of life's situations. Our study has taught us to trust in a sovereign God.

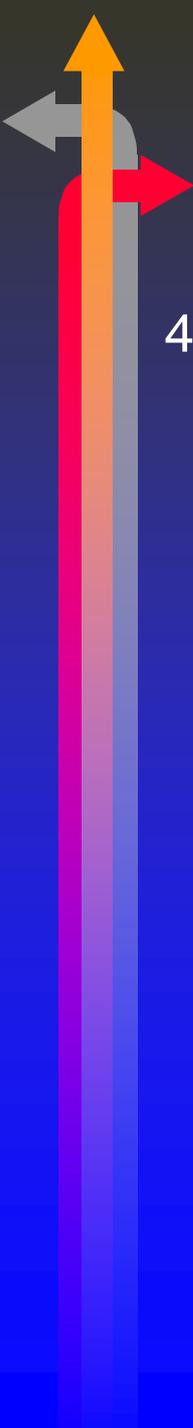

3 A Biblical Understanding of Love

The goal of this study is to test our understanding of what love is from a biblical perspective. Where have we failed in demonstrating biblical love in concrete ways toward others?

The reason we are walking through 1 Cor 13 is to examine ourselves against each attribute of love, how we have not modeled a particular attribute of love in our lives.

If we understand love from a biblical perspective, then we should be practicing God's kind of love toward those we are having a conflict with in a potentially undesirable situation.

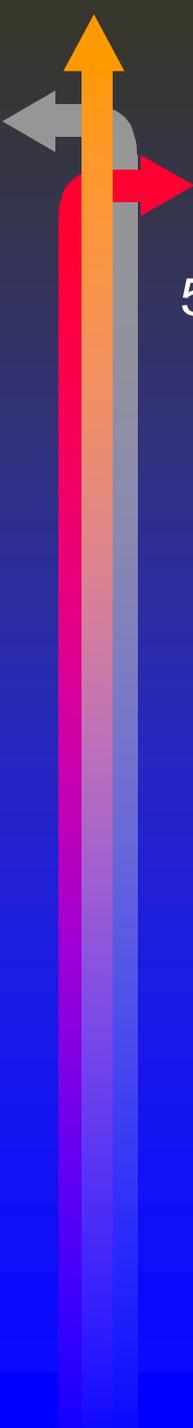

4 Doctrine Of Feelings

This study spotlights how we are often feeling oriented rather than command oriented in how we respond to life situations.

We do not deny that we have feelings, however we need to identify in concrete terms what those “feelings” are, and then address how we respond to them or why we have them.

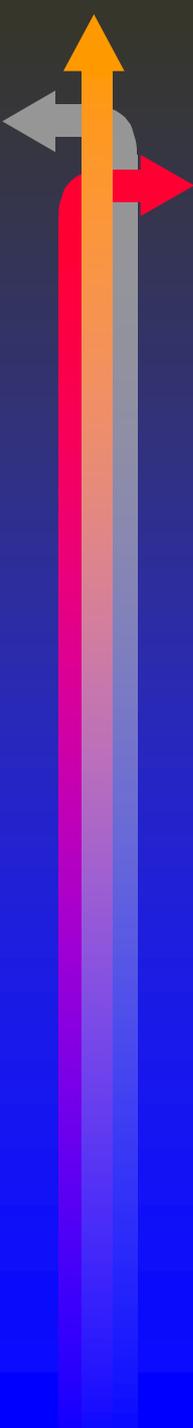

A wrong understanding of feelings can cause us to respond sinfully -
- being a feeling oriented person often controls our outlook and response to difficulties in life.

5 Dynamic Of Conflict Resolution.

Our goal here is to see how to approach conflicts and reflect on how you have previously handled conflicts.

Your thinking now should be directed toward how to apply the previous homework assignments in a conflict.
