Good afternoon all,

What a beautiful, crisp day the Lord has given us to do His work. As Frances and I prayed this morning, we thanked God for each of you – your devotion to Him and your dedication to the mission of this ministry – feeding hungry children. We prayed for this ministry, which the Lord has blessed beyond measure. Most important, we prayed for the safety and well-being of the hundreds of thousands of little children we have fed around the world and the hundreds of thousands of little children we will feed in the years ahead, Lord willing.

For 30-years, we have reached around the world to bring the loving and caring touch of Jesus to His precious little children. As many of you know who have graciously toiled in this ministry for a number of years as our beloved partners in the Lord's work here, we have faced adversity before when a few people, for reasons difficult to understand, see to halt our calling to feed little children. We now face adversity again. As is always the case, we will call upon the Lord for His wisdom, compassion and strength to guide us together through this tunnel the next several weeks in a manner that will honor Him.

Many of you have asked me to talk about the lawsuit. I would love to do so. However, we simply cannot comment at this time since litigation is in process. It is important to remember that there are always two sides to every story. Because of the lawsuit, Frances and I are limited in what we can say. We trust in Him and know the truth will prevail.

We have received a couple of inquires from reporters. I want to share with you the statements we are sending to the media. One is from me on behalf of our Feed The Children family, and the other is from one of our attorneys with the McAfee and Taft law firm.

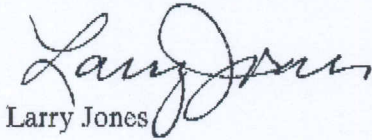

"We simply cannot comment at this time about the lawsuit since litigation is in progress. This is truly an unfortunate distraction and everyone with this ministry remains steadfast in carrying out our mission to feed hungry children around the world. On a personal note, Frances and I pray for this ministry several times every day. The Lord has never failed to see us through difficult times and bless the good work of this ministry beyond measure. Everyone associated with Feed The Children is deeply moved by the outpouring of support we have received this week. It has been amazing and all of us thank you. We are moving ahead for the sake of the hundreds of thousands of hungry children we have fed since we began this ministry 30-years ago and the hundreds of thousands we will feed in the future, Lord willing. Rest assured we are not deterred, but we are determined. Please pray for this ministry, especially the wonderful children we serve. Larry Jones, Feed The Children

"Remember, there are always two sides to every story. That is definitely the case here. As we turn over every stone and uncover the players and motives behind this regrettable lawsuit, we are confident the truth will emerge and prevail. Our legal team has been hired by Larry and Frances in large measure to help them preserve a ministry they, along with many others, have worked to build the past 30-years of their lives so they can continue to follow God's call to feed children here and abroad." Jim Webb, McAfee & Taft

Please pray for this ministry and the children we serve. May God bless each of you. It is an honor to work alongside of so many who put service above self.

For the children,

Larry Jones
