c. The Nazi conspirators sought to subvert the influence of the churches over the people of Germany.

(1) They sought to eliminate the Christian Churches in Germany.

- Statements of this Aim -

The defendant Martin Bormann stated in a secret decree of the Party Chancellery signed by him and distributed to all Gauleiters 7 June 1941:

"Our National Socialist ideology is far loftier than the concepts of Christianity, which in their essential points have been taken over from Jewry A differentiation between the various Christian confessions is not to be made here ... the Evangelical Church is just as inimical to us as the Catholic Church..... All influences which might impair or damage the leadership of the people exercised by the Fuehrer with the help of the NSDAP must be eliminated. More and more the people must be separated from the churches and their organs the pastors.... Just as the deleterious influences of astrologers, seers and other fakers are eliminated and suppressed by the State, so must the possibility of church influence also be totally removed.... Not until this has happened, does the state leadership have influence on the individual citizens. Not until then are the people and Reich secure in their existence for all time."

D-75, copy of letter dated 12 December 1941 from Security Police and Security Service (Sicherheitspolizei und Sicherheitsdienst) Inspector Bierkamp to the Reich Main Security Office (Reichsicherheitshauptamt) inclosing copy of the Bormann decree.

Hans Kerrl, Reich Minister for Church Affairs, in a letter dated 6 September 1939 to a Herr Stapel, which indicated that it would be brought to the attention of the Confidential Council and of the defendant Hess, made the following statements:

"The Fuehrer considers his efforts to bring the Evangelical Church to reason, unsuccessful and the Evangelical Church with respect to its condition rightfully a useless pile of sects. As you emphasize the Party has previously carried on not only a fight against the political element of the Christianity of the Church, but also a fight against membership of Party Members in a Christian confession

"The Catholic Church will and must, according to the law under which it is set up, remain a thorn in the flesh of a Racial State..."

129-PS, copy of letter dated 6 September 1939 from Kerl to Herr Stapel found in Rosenberg files.

Gaulleiter Florian, in a letter dated 23 September 1940 to the defendant Hess, stated:

"The churches will their Christianity are the danger against which to fight is absolutely necessary."

064-PS, copy of letter dated 23 September 1940 from Florian to Hess, forwarded to Rosenberg by Bormann, found in Rosenberg files.

Regierungsrat Roth, in a lecture 22 September 1941, to a group of Security Police, in the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) concluded his address on Security Police (Sipo) measures for combatting church politics and sects with the following remarks:

"The immediate aim: the church must not regain one inch of the ground it has lost. The ultimate aim: Destruction of the Confessional Churches to be brought about by the collection of all material obtained through the intelligence service (Nachrichtendienst) activities which will at a given time be produced as evidence for the charge of treasonable activities during the German fight for existence."

1815-PS, Church Investigation File, Aachen, State Police Regional Office, 1941-1942. Report of conference, pp. 12-15.

The Party organization book states:

"Bravery is valued by the SS man as the highest virtue of men in a struggle for his ideology.

"He openly and unrelentingly fights the most dangerous enemies of the State; Jews, Free Masons, Jesuits, and political clergymen.

"However, he recruits and convinces the weak and inconstant by his example, who have not been able to bring themselves to the National Socialistic ideology."

1855-PS, "Organisationsbuch der NSDAP" (Organization Book of the NSDAP), edition 1937, p. 418.

- (a) The Nazi conspirators promoted beliefs and practices incompatible with Christian teachings.

The 24th point of the Program of the NSDAP, unchanged since its adoption in 1920, is as follows:

"24)

"We demand freedom of religion for all religious denominations within the state so long as they do not endanger its existence or oppose the moral senses of the Germanic race. The Party as such advocates the standpoint of a positive Christianity without binding itself confessionally to any one denomination. It combats the Jewish-materialistic spirit within and around us, and is convinced that a lasting recovery of our nation can only succeed from within on the framework: common utility precedes individual utility."

1708-PS, "The Program of the NSDAP."

In official correspondence with the defendant Rosenberg in 1940, the defendant Bormann stated:

"Christian religion and National Socialist doctrines are not compatible.... The churches cannot be subjugated through compromise, only through a new philosophy as prophesied in Rosenberg's works."

He then proposed creation of a National Socialist Catechism to provide a "moral foundation" for a National Socialist religion which is gradually to supplant the Christian churches. He stated the matter was so important it should be discussed with members of the Reich Cabinet as soon as possible and requested Rosenberg's opinion before the meeting.

098-PS, original letter dated 22 February 1940 to Rosenberg, Bormann's signature. Found in Rosenberg files.

In a secret decree of the Party Chancellery, signed by the defendant Bormann, distributed to all Gauleiters on 7 June 1941, the following statements appeared:

"When we National Socialists speak of a belief in God, we do not understand by God, like naive Christians and their spiritual opportunists, a human-type being, who sits around somewhere in the sphere.... The force of natural law, with which all these innumerable planets move in the universe, we call the Almighty, or God. The claim that this world force...can be influenced by so-called prayers or other astonishing things is based upon a proper dose of naiveté or on a business shamelessness.

"As opposed to that we National Socialists impose on ourselves the demand to live naturally as much as possible, i.e., biologically. The more accurately we recognize and observe the laws of nature and of life, the more we adhere to them, so much the more do we conform to the will of the Almighty. The more insight we have into the will of the Almighty, the greater will be our successes."

D-75, copy of letter dated 12 December 1941 from Security Police and Security Service (Sipo und SD) Inspector Bierkamp to the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) enclosing copy of the Bormann decree.

The defendant Rosenberg in his book, The Myth of the 20th Century advocated a new National Socialist faith or religion to replace the Christian confessions in Germany. He stated that the Catholic and Protestant churches represent "negative Christianity" and do not correspond to the soul of the "Nordic racially determined peoples;" that a German religious movement would have to declare that the idea of neighborly love is unconditionally subordinated to national honor; that national honor is the highest human value and does not admit of any equal valued force such as Christian love. He predicted:

"A German religion will, bit by bit, present in the churches transferred to it, in place of the crucifixion the spirit of fire - the heroic - in the highest sense."

2349-PS, "Der Mythos des 20 Jahrhunderts" (The Myth of the 20th Century), edition of 1941, pp. 215, 514, 608, 616. Published by Hoheneichen Publishing Co., Munich.

The Reich Labor Service (Reichsarbeitsdienst), a National Socialist youth organization, was prohibited from participating in religious celebrations of any kind, and its members were instructed to attend such ceremonies as weddings and funerals only before or after the church celebration.

107-PS, Circular letter No 72/38, dated 17 June 1938, signed Bormann enclosing Directions for participation of Reichsarbeitsdienst in religious celebrations.

The Nazi conspirators considered religious literature undesirable for the Wehrmacht. National Socialist publications were prepared for the Wehrmacht for the expressed purpose of replacing and counteracting the influence of religious literature disseminated to the troops.

101-PS, original letter dated 17 January 1940 to Rosenberg, Bormann's signature.

100-PS, original letter dated 18 January 1940 to Rosenberg, Bormann's signature.

064-PS, copy of letter dated 23 September 1940 from Florian to Hess, forwarded to Rosenberg by Bormann.

The Nazi conspirators through the defendant Rosenberg's Office for Supervision of the Ideological Training and Education of the NSDAP and the Office of the Deputy of the Fuehrer "induced" the substitution of National Socialist mottoes and services for religious prayers and services in the schools of Germany.

070-PS, original letter dated 25 April 1941 from the Office of the Deputy of the Fuehrer to Rosenberg's Office.

On 14 July 1939, Bormann, as Deputy of the Fuehrer issued a Party regulation excluding clergymen, persons closely connected with the church, and Theology students from membership in the Party. It was further decreed that in the future Party Members who entered the clergy or turned to the study of Theology must leave the Party.

840-PS, certified copy of Regulation No. 140/39 on Admission of Clergymen and Students of Theology to the NSDAP.

- (b) The Nazi conspirators persecuted priests, clergy and members of monastic orders.

The priests and clergy of Germany were subjected by the police to systematic espionage into their daily lives. The Nazi conspirators through the Chief of the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) maintained a special branch of the Security Police and Security Service (Sipo/SD) whose duties were to investigate the churches and maintain constant surveillance upon the public and private lives of the clergy.

1815-PS, Church Investigation File,
Aachen, State Police Regional Office,
1941-1942.

At a conference of these police "church specialists" called by Heydrich, SS Gruppenfuehrer, and Chief of the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA), in Berlin, 23 September 1941, SS Sturmbannfuehrer Hartl, acting for Heydrich, stated that the greatest importance was to be attached to church political activity, and the intelligence network in this field was to be fostered with the greatest of care and enlarged with the recruitment of informants, particular value being attached to contacts with church circles. He closed his lecture with the following words:

"Each of you must go to work with your whole heart and a true fanaticism. Should a mistake or two be made in the execution of this work, this should in no way discourage you, since mistakes are made everywhere. The main thing is that the enemy should be constantly tackled with determination, will, and effective initiative."

1815-PS, Church Investigation File,
Aachen, State Police Regional Office,
1941-1942.

In a letter of 22 October 1941, Heydrich, as Chief of the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) issued detailed instructions to all State Police Offices outlining the organization of the Catholic Church and directing close surveillance of the activities, writings and reports of the Catholic clergy in Germany. In this connection he directed:

"Reports are also to be submitted on those Theological students destined for Papal Institutes, and Priests returning from such institutes to Germany. Should the opportunity arise of placing someone for Nachrichtendienst (intelligence) purposes in one of these Institutes, in the guise of a Theological student, we should receive immediate notification."

1815-PS, Church Investigation File,
Aachen, State Police Regional Office,
1941-1942. Heydrich letter pp 31-33.

Priests and other members of the clergy were arrested, fined, imprisoned, and otherwise punished by executive measures of the police without judicial process. In his lecture before a conference at the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) in Berlin, for "church specialists," of the Security Police, 22 November 1941, Regierungsrat Roth stated:

"It has been demonstrated that it is impracticable to deal with political offences (malicious) under normal legal procedure. Owing to the lack of political perception which still prevails among the legal authorities, suspension of this procedure must be reckoned with. The so-called "agitator-Priests" must therefore be dealt with in future by Stapo measures, and, if the occasion arises, be removed to a Concentration Camp, if agreed upon by the RSHA."

"The necessary executive measures are to be decided upon according to local conditions, the status of the person accused, and the seriousness of the case - as follows:

- 1) Warning
- 2) Fine
- 3) Forbiden to preach
- 4) Forbiden to remain in parish
- 5) Forbiden all activity as a priest
- 6) Short-term arrest
- 7) Protective custody"

Aachen, State Police Regional Office,
1941-1942. pp 12-15.

Members of monastic orders were forced by the seizure and confiscation of their properties to give up their established places of abode and seek homes elsewhere.

R-101D, letter dated 30 April 1942 from the Chief of Staff of the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) to Reich Leader SS.

A secret order of the SS Economic Administration Office to all Concentration Camp Commanders, dated 21 April 1942, concerning labor mobilization of clergy reveals that clergymen were at that time, and had previously been, incarcerated in Concentration Camps.

1164-PS, copy of letter dated 21 April 1942 from SS Economic Administration Office to Camp Commandants of Concentration Camps.

The Hindenburg Funeral Knell Cases

On the death of von Hindenburg, the Reich Government ordered the ringing of all church bells on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th August 1934. In Bavaria, there were many instances of failure to comply with this order. The Bavarian police submitted a report outlining the above situation and stating that in three cases the taking into protective custody of recalcitrant clergy could not be avoided.

"The Parish priest, Father Johann Quinger of Altenkunstadt B., Lichtenfels. He was taken into protective custody on 3 August on the express order of the State Ministry of the Interior, because he assaulted S.A. leaders and S.A. men who were ringing the bells against his wishes. He was released from custody on 10 August 1934.

"The Parish priest, Father Ludwig Obholzer of Kiefersfelden, B. Rosenheim. For his personal safety he was in police custody from 2400 hours on the 2 August 1934, till 1000 hours on 3 August 1934. On 5 August 1934, he said sarcastically in his sermon, referring to the S.A. men who had carried out the ringing of the funeral knell on their own account, 'Lord forgive them, for they know not what they do'!

"The Parish priest, Father Johann Nepomuk Kleber of Wiefelsdorf, B. Burglengenfeld, refused to ring the church bells on the 2nd and 3rd. He is badly tainted politically and had to be taken into protective custody from the 5th to the 8th of August '34 in the interests of his own safety."

1521-PS, copy of report of the Bavarian Political Police dated 24
August 1934 to Gestapo Central Office, Berlin.

The Case of Bishop Sproll

After Hitler's rise to power, Bishop Sproll of Rottenburg delivered a series of sermons regarded by the Nazis as damaging and on 10 April 1938 he refrained from voting in the plebiscite. For this, the Reich Governor of Wuerttemberg declared he would no longer regard Bishop Sproll as head of the Diocese of Rottenburg; made an official request that he leave the Gau, and declared he would see to it that all personal and official intercourse between the Bishop and the State and Party offices as well as the Armed Forces would be denied.

849-PS, original letter dated 23
July 1938 from Reich Minister Kerrl to the Minister of State and Chief of the Praesidium Chancellery, with enclosures.

For his alleged failure to vote in the plebiscite, of 10 April 1938, the Party caused three demonstrations to be staged against the Bishop and his household in Rottenburg. The third demonstration was described as follows in a teletype message from Gestapo Office Stuttgart to Gestapo Office Berlin:

"The Party on 23 July 1938 from 2100 on carried out the third demonstration against Bishop Sproll. Participants about 2500-3000 were brought in from outside by bus, etc. The Rottenburg populace again did not participate in the demonstration. The town took rather a hostile attitude to the demonstrations. The action got completely out of hand of the Party Member responsible for it. The demonstrators stormed the palace, beat in the gates and doors. About 150 to 200 people forced their way into the palace, searched the rooms, threw files out of the windows and rummaged through the beds in the rooms of the palace. One bed was ignited. Before the fire got to the other objects of equipment in the rooms and the palace, the flaming bed could be thrown from the window and the fire extinguished. The Bishop was with Archbishop Groeber of Freiburg and the ladies and gentlemen of his menage in the chapel at prayer. About 25 to 30 people pressed into this chapel and molested those present. Bishop Groeber was taken for Bishop Sproll. He was grabbed by the robe and dragged back and forth. Finally the intruders realized that Bishop Groeber is not the one they are seeking. They could then be persuaded to leave the building. After the evacuation of the palace by the demonstrators I had an interview with Archbishop Groeber, who left Rottenburg in the night. Groeber wants to turn to the Fuehrer and Reich Minister of the Interior Dr. Frick anew. On the course of the action, the damage done as well as the homage of the Rottenburg populace beginning today for the Bishop I shall immediately hand in a full report, after I am in the act of suppressing counter mass meetings."

848-PS, teletype dated 24 July 1938, from Gestapo Office, Berlin, to Gestapo Office Nurnberg, quoting teletype from Stuttgart.

Reich Minister for Church Affairs Kerrl and other Party officials alleged that these demonstrations were spontaneously staged by the indignant citizens of Rottenburg and caused representations to be made to the Holy See in an effort to effect the Bishop's removal from office.

849-PS, original letter dated 23 July 1938 from Reich Minister Kerrl to the Minister of State and Chief of the Praesidium Chancellery, with enclosures.

The Case of Protestant Priest Wilhelm Eichholz

On or about 3 December 1941, a copy of a secret decree of the Party Chancellery on the subject of Relationship of National Socialism to Christianity was found by the Security Police in the possession of Protestant Priest Eichholz at Aix-la-Chapelle. For this he was arrested and held for questioning for an unknown period of time.

D-75, copy of letter dated 12
December 1941 from Security
Police and Security Service
(Sipo and SD) Inspector Bierkamp to the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) enclosing copy of the Bormann decree.

(c) The Nazi conspirators confiscated church property.

On 20 January 1938, the Gestapo District Office at Munich issued a decree dissolving the Guild of the Virgin Mary of the Bavarian Diocese, together with its branches and associations. The decree also stated:

"The property belonging to the dissolved Guild is to be confiscated by the police. Not only is property in cash to be confiscated, but also any stock on hand and other objects of value. All further activity is forbidden the dissolved Guilds, particularly the foundation of any organization intended as a successor or as a cover. Incorporation as a body into other women's societies is also to be looked on as a forbidden continuation of activity. Infringements against the above prohibition will be punished according to para. 4 of the order of 28. 2. 1933."

The reasons given for the dissolution and confiscation were that the Guild of the Virgin Mary had occupied itself for years "to a most far-reaching degree" with arrangements of a "worldly and popular sporting character" such as community games and "social evenings" and further that the president of the society supplied the members with "seditious material", which served for "seditious discussions" and that the members of the Guild were trained and mobilized for "political and seditious tasks."

1481-PS, certified copy of Gestapo decree, Munich District Office, dated 20 January 1938.

In a lecture delivered to a conference of police investigators of Church Affairs assembled in the lecture hall of the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) in Berlin, 22 September 1941, Regiersrungsrat Roth stated that about 100 monasteries in the Reich had been dissolved and pointed out that the proper procedure called for seizure of the churches at the same time the monasteries were dissolved.

1815-PS, Church Investigation File, Aachen, State Police Regional Office, 1941-1942.

(Lt. (jg) A. K. Martin)

In February 1940, SS Gruppenfuehrer Heydrich suggested to Himmler the seizure of monasteries for the accommodation of Racial Germans. He proposed that the authorities of the monastic orders be instructed to make the monasteries concerned available and move their own members to less populous monasteries and pointed out that the final expropriation of properties thus placed at their disposal could be carried out step by step in the course of time. Himmler agreed to this proposal and ordered the measure to be carried out by the Security Police and Security Service (Sipo and S.D.) in collaboration with the Reich Commissioner for Consolidation of German Folkdom.

R-101A, letter dated 5 April 1940 from SS Standartenfuehrer Six to Reich Commissioner for Consolidation of German Folkdom, enclosing copies of Heydrich's letter.

These orders for confiscation were carried out, as revealed in a letter dated 30 March 1942 from the Reich Main Security Office (RSHA) Chief of Staff to Himmler mentioning claims for compensation pending in a number of confiscation cases. In this letter he stated that all rental payments to those monasteries and ecclesiastical institutions whose premises had been put to use as camps for resettlers had been stopped on receipt of Himmler's order. Concerning current developments, he stated:

"After further preparations in which the Party Chancellery participated prominently, the Reich Minister of the Interior found a way which makes it possible to seize ecclesiastical premises practically without compensation and yet avoids the impression of being a measure directed against the Church..."

R-101D, letter dated 30 March 1942
from Chief of Staff of the Reich
Main Security Office (RSHA) to Reich Leader SS.

In a letter of 19 April 1941, the defendant Bormann advised the defendant Rosenberg that libraries and art objects of the monasteries confiscated in the

Reich were to remain for the time being in these monasteries and that the Fuehrer had repeatedly rejected the suggestion that a centralization of all such libraries be undertaken.

072-PS, original letter dated 19
April 1941 from Bormann to Rosenberg.

(Lt. (jg) A. R. Martin)

- (d) The Nazi conspirators suppressed religious publications.

On 6 November 1934, the defendant Frick, as Reich and Prussian Minister of the Interior, issued an order forbidding until further notice publication of all announcements in the daily press, in pamphlets and other publications, which dealt with the Evangelical Church; with the exception of official announcements of the Church Government of the Reich.

1498-PS, copy of order dated 6 November 1934 signed by Frick with stamp showing receipt by Reich Governor of Bavaria 7 November 1934.

By order of the State Police for the District of Duesseldorf, the Police Regulation which is quoted in part below was promulgated 28 May 1934.

"The distribution and sale of published items of any sort in connection with worship or religious instructions in public streets or squares near churches is forbidden. In the same sense the distribution and sale of published items on the occasions of processions, pilgrimages and similar church institutions in the streets or squares they pass through or in their vicinity is prohibited."

R-145, copy of State Police Order dated 28 May 1934 at Duesseldorf signed Schmid.

In January 1940, the defendant Bormann informed the defendant Rosenberg that he had sought to restrict production of religious publications by means of having their rations of printing paper cut down through the control exercised by Reichsleiter Amann, but that the result of these efforts remained unsatisfactory.

101-PS, original letter dated 17 January 1940 from Bormann to Rosenberg.

In March 1940, the defendant Bormann instructed Reichsleiter Amann, Director of the NSDAP Publications Office, that in any future redistribution of paper, confessional writings should receive still sharper restrictions in favor of literature politically and ideologically more valuable. He went on to point out:

"...according to a report I have received, only 10% of the over 3000 Protestant periodicals appearing in Germany, such as Sunday papers, etc. have ceased publication for reasons of paper saving."

089-PS, original copy of letter dated 8 March 1940 from Bormann to Rosenberg enclosing copy of Bormann's letter to Amenn dated 8 March 1940.

In April 1940, the defendant Bormann informed the High Command of the Navy that use of the term "Divine Service" to refer exclusively to the services arranged by Christian Confessions was no longer to be used, even in National Socialist daily papers. In the alternative he suggested:

"In the opinion of the Party the term 'Church Service' cannot be objected to. I consider it fitting since it properly implies meetings arranged and organized by the churches."

068-PS, original letter dated 5 April 1940 from Bormann to Rosenberg enclosing copy of Bormann's letter to the High Command of the Navy of the same date, and a copy of Navy High Command letter to Bormann of 9 February 1940.

(Lt. (jg) A. R. Martin)

(e) The Nazi conspirators suppressed religious organizations.

On 28 May 1934, the State Police Office for the District of Duesseldorf issued an order concerning denominational youth and professional organizations which stated in part as follows:

"Denominational youth and professional organizations as well as those created for special occasions only are prohibited from every public activity outside the church and religious sphere.

"Especially forbidden is:
Any public appearance in groups, all sorts of political activity.
Any public sport function including public hikes and establishment of holiday or outdoor camps.
The public display or showing of flags, banners, pennants or the open wearing of uniforms or insignia."

R-145, copy of State Police
Order, District of Duesseldorf dated 28 May 1934, signed Schmid.

On 20 July 1935, the defendant Frick, as Reich and Prussian Minister of the Interior, issued secret instructions to the provincial governments and to the Prussian Gestapo that Confessional youth organizations were to be forbidden to wear uniforms, or uniform-like clothing, to assemble publicly with pennants and flags, to wear insignia as a substitute for uniforms, or to engaged in any outdoor sport activity.

1482-Ps, certified copy of secret letter dated 20 July 1935 to provincial governments and the Prussian Gestapo from Frick.

On 20 January 1938, the Gestapo District Office at Munich, issued a decree which stated in part as follows:

"The Guild of the Virgin Mary (die Marianische Jungfrauenkongregation) of the Bavarian dioceses, including the diocese of Speyere, together with its branches and associations and the Societies of Our Lady (Jungfrauenvereinen) attached to it, is by police order to be dissolved and forbidden with immediate effect."

(Lt. (jg) A. R. Martin)

Among the reasons cited for this action were the following:

"The whole behavior of the Guild of the Virgin Mary had therefore to be objected to from various points of view. It could be repeatedly observed that the Guild engaged in purely worldly affairs, such as community games, and then in the holding of 'Social Evenings'.

"This proves incontestably that the Guild of the Virgin Mary was active to a very great degree in a manner unecclasiastical and therefore worldly. By so doing it has left the sphere of its proper religious task and entered a sphere of activity to which it has no statutory right. The organization has therefore to be dissolved and forbidden."

1481-PS, certified copy of Gestapo decree Munich District Office dated 20 January 1938.

According to the report of a Security Police "church specialist" attached to the State Police Office Aachen, the following points were made by a lecturer at a conference of security police and security service church intelligence investigators in Berlin 22 September 1941:

"Retreats, recreational organizations, etc., may now be forbidden on grounds of industrial war-needs, whereas formerly only a worldly activity could be given as a basis.

"Youth camps, recreational camps are to be forbidden on principle. Church organizations in the evening may be prevented on grounds of the blackout regulations.

"Processions, pilgrimages abroad are to be forbidden by reason of the over-burdened transport conditions. For local events too technical traffic troubles and the danger of air-attack may serve as grounds for their prohibition. (One Referent forbade a procession, on the grounds of it wearing out shoeleather)."

1815-PS, Church Investigation File, Aachen, Gestapo Regional Office, 1941-1942. Report of conference pp 12-15.

(Lt. (jg) A. R. Martin)

(f) The Nazi conspirators suppressed religious education.

In a speech on 7 March 1937, the defendant Rosenberg stated:

"The education of youth can only be carried out by those who have rescued Germany from disaster. It is therefore impossible to demand one Fuehrer, one Reich and one firmly united people as long as education is carried out by forces which are mutually exclusive to each other."

2351-PS, "Das Archiv" Vol 34-36,
page 1716, published Berlin,
March 1937.

In a speech at Fulda, 27 November 1937 Reich Minister for Church Affairs Hanns Kerrl stated:

"We cannot recognize that the Church has a right to insure that the individual, should be educated in all respects in the way in which it holds to be right; but we must leave it to the National Socialist State to educate the child in the way it regards as right."

2352-PS, "Das Archiv", Vol 43-45,
page 1029, published Berlin,
November 1937.

In January 1939, the defendant Bormann, acting as Deputy of the Fuehrer, informed the Minister of Education, that the Party was taking the position that theological inquiry was not as valuable as the general fields of knowledge in the universities and that suppression of Theological Faculties in the universities was to be undertaken at once. He pointed out that the Concordat with the Vatican placed certain limitations on such a program, but that in the light of the general change of circumstances, particularly the compulsory military service and the execution of the four-year plan, the question of manpower made certain reorganizations, economies and simplification necessary. Therefore, Theological Faculties are to be restricted insofar as they cannot be wholly suppressed. He instructs that the churches are not to be informed of this development and no public announcement is to be made. Any complaints, if they are to be replied to at all, are to be answered with a statement that these measures are being executed in a general plan of reorganization and that similar things are happening to other faculties. He concludes with the statement that the professorial chairs vacated by the above program are to be turned over to the newly created fields of inquiry, such as Racial Research.

116-PS, copy of letter dated 24 January 1939 from Bormann to Rosenberg enclosing copy of letter of same date from Bormann to the Reich Minister for Science, Education and Training.

A plan for the reduction of Theological Faculties was submitted by the Reich Minister for Science, Education and Training in April 1939 to the defendant Bormann who forwarded it to Rosenberg for consideration and action. The plan called for shifting, combining and eliminating Theological Faculties in various schools and universities throughout the Reich with the following results:

"To recapitulate this plan would include the complete closing of Theological Faculties at Innsbruck, Salzburg and Munich, the transfer of the faculty of Graz to Vienna and the vanishing of four Catholic faculties.

- "a) Closing of three Catholic Theological Faculties or Higher Schools and of four Evangelic Faculties in the winter semester 1939/40.
- "b) Closing of one further Catholic and of three further Evangelic Faculties in the near future."

122-PS, original letter dated 17 April 1939 to Rosenberg Bormann's signature, enclosing letter from Reich Minister of Science, Education and Training dated 6 April 1939.

In a secret decree of the Party Chancellery, signed by the defendant Bormann, and distributed to all
