The Church of the Nativity

Mission of the Church of the Nativity

God's family at the historic Church of the Nativity is joyfully and energetically committed to sharing Christ's love and healing by proclaiming the Good News of the Gospel through worship and service to the world.

Your Perfect Offering

I just ran across a wonderful story about the famous jazz musician Duke Ellington. The San Francisco Chronicle in 1965 was reviewing the very first "Sacred Concert" performance of Duke Ellington, which was heard at Grace Cathedral the previous night. That review, titled "Duke Swings at Grace Cathedral," reported that the performance "appeared to leave many of the audience discomfited, nervous, or edgy, not completely willing to accept the idea that the wild sound of a sax should pierce the austere heights of the Episcopal cathedral's nave. 'It's all very strange,' a high churchman commented during intermission, 'but oh, lordy, it's fascinating!' The point of the performance, according to Grace Cathedral's dean, was that any offering to God is sacred, whatever its form."

Duke Ellington himself went on to say, "It has been said once that a man, who could not play the organ or any of the instruments of the symphony, accompanied his worship by juggling. He was not the world's best juggler, but it was the one he thing he did best, and so it was accepted by God. For my part, I regard this concert as the most important thing I have ever done."

I think about "offering" a lot. At every Sunday service, I give the offertory sentence, leading into the part of the service which most of us recognize as the time the collection plate comes around the pews. In addition to money and bread and wine, the Church receives all sorts of offerings at this time. Musicians offer their music. Maybe a few of us offer silent prayers. At this time all are invited to offer to God whatever it is—whatever!—that we have brought to church that day. Some of us have brought great joy to church, and others of us have brought only some sadness or pain that we woke up.

A powerful miracle occurs every Sunday at the Offertory. God accepts whatever it is that we have offered, and God blesses it. God blesses all our various offerings at the same time that God blesses the bread and wine of the Eucharist. God blesses our money as a sacramental expression of our lives transformed to be utilized in God's mission in the world. God transforms our joys and our sorrows, our hopes and our fears, to reflect God's love, encouraging us to know God's abiding presence with us. When we physically receive the Body and Blood of Christ at communion, we spiritually receive back our own original offerings. But these original offerings are not the same; they have been consecrated and renewed. When we receive them back, they become the tools for ministry that enable us to be the Body of Christ in the world.

The dean of Grace Cathedral, San Francisco in 1965 was able to see that any honest offering to God is sacred, whatever its form. Duke Ellington offered his jazz that day, and God blessed it. The world is now a better place because Duke Ellington had his offering accepted and blessed.

Each one of us has so much to offer God because God has already offered the perfect offering to us in Christ Jesus. God gives us life, blessing us to share this holy life. Our faith in the abundance of God's mercy and blessings then flourishes. The first and most important offering we have is ourselves, our very hearts and lives and souls given as a living sacrifice to God and God's purposes. From this offering flow other offerings: our time, our talent, our hopes, our money.

Over the past two weeks, almost 250 households of Nativity have made an offering of the first fruits of their lives to God's work at Nativity by making a pledge for 2014. Witnessing the Pledge Card Procession on October 27, we visibly saw hundreds of lives offered to God represented by the pledge cards brought forward to the altar.

If you have not yet joined in this offering, please consider joining those whose hearts and lives have been sacramentally offered to God through pledging. We need for everyone to be a part of this sacred offering. Whatever you have to offer is enough, for all offerings are perfect when they are offered to God in love and thanksgiving. For God is the one transforming our offerings and our very lives, to be perfect as God's offering to us in Christ Jesus is perfect. Thanks be to God!

Plea for Casseroles for the Bazaar Sale

Frozen and refrigerated food items (casseroles, soups, salads, etc.) are one of the top profit producers of our Bazaar. There is always a shortage of vegetable casseroles. Broccoli, sweet potato, and squash are very popular. There have also been requests for items that serve two people.

To get your dish ready for sale at the bazaar, prepare it as you normally would, then cool your dish in the fridge, freeze it uncovered for a short time, and slip it into a plastic freezer bag. Finally, please attach a label of some kind listing the main ingredients and approximate number of servings of your dish along with Instructions for its final preparation. You may also include anything about the dish you think would be of interest, including your name.

Thank you for your support of our great bazaar!

Stewardship of Creation Tip: The Clean Fifteen List

In the last Steeple, we discussed, "When is it important to buy organically-grown items?" The Environmental Working Group Dirty Dozen List, the 12 fruits and vegetables that typically have the highest levels of pesticide residues, thus are important to buy organically-grown were: apples, celery, cherry tomatoes, cucumbers, grapes, hot peppers, imported nectarines, peaches, potatoes, spinach, strawberries, and sweet bell peppers; additionally, two other vegetables, kale/collard greens and summer squash - while they didn't meet traditional Dirty Dozen criteria - were high-lighted because they were commonly contaminated with pesticides that are exceptionally toxic to the nervous system.

This week, the "Clean 15" list is our topic. These are the fruits and vegetables that are lowest in pesticides: onions, sweet corn, pineapples, avocados, asparagus, cabbage, cantaloupe, eggplant, grapefruit, kiwi, mangos, mushrooms, papayas, frozen sweet peas, sweet potatoes.

Choosing foods from the "Clean 15" list will slash the pesticide volume by more than 90 percent. Reducing pesticides in your diet is critical to reducing the toxic effects of pesticide exposure for you and your family. Infants and children are the most vulnerable because of their lower body weight; also their bodies don't have the detoxifying mechanisms that adults do.

"We have very good data showing that if people eat organic, measurable pesticide levels in their tissues drop, and this has been shown with kids as well," says Dr. Andrew Weil. Of course, while the EWG strongly encourages going organic when it comes to items on their Dirty Dozen List, they do clearly state that conventional produce is certainly better than none at all: "The health benefits of a diet rich in fruits and vegetables outweigh the risks of pesticide exposure." Eating conventionally-grown produce is far better than not eating fruits and vegetables at all.

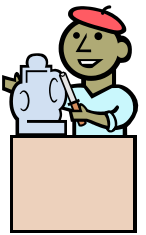

Check out the Environmental Working Group's website for additional information.

Fifty million Americans—1 in 4 children—don't know where their next meal is coming from. Award-winning film, A Place at the Table, tells the powerful stories of three such Americans, who maintain their dignity even as they struggle just to eat. In a riveting journey that will change forever how you think about the hungry, A Place at the Table shows how the issue could be solved forever, once the American public decides—as they have in the past—that ending hunger is in the best interests of us all.
