THE STEEPLE

The Church of the Nativity

February 15, 2017

God's family at the historic Church of the Nativity is joyfully and energetically committed to sharing Christ's love and healing by proclaiming the Good News of the Gospel through worship and service to the world.

A Note From Bishop Sloan

I've been asked to address what's going on in our nation, and I suppose I should, even as I imagine that some of you will think I should stay out of this altogether and others will think I haven't gone far enough. I do have strong personal opinions about partisan politics, but I don't think it's right or generally helpful to use my position as your bishop to inflict them on you. My place is to proclaim the love and grace we are given to share in Jesus Christ, and to invite all people to accept the love of God our Father through the Gospel of Jesus Christ our Lord.

In the Sermon on the Mount in the Gospel of Matthew, Jesus said the poor in spirit are blessed, as are those who mourn, the meek, those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, the merciful, the pure in heart and the peacemakers. I've always been greatly encouraged by this passage; I've known people who are poor in spirit, who long for righteousness who mourn, who are meek, who are merciful or pure in heart. I've even been some of those things sometimes.

But the peacemakers, who Jesus said are to be called the children of God — where are the peacemakers? I've tried to be a peacemaker from time to time, as a priest and as your bishop, and I can tell you — you can get pretty chewed up standing between people and groups of people who are angry and hurt and convinced that they are right and people who have other ideas are wrong. When the sides are chosen and it's "Us against Them," the peacemaker stands in the middle, and often alone. The work of the peacemaker is hard, particularly when the folks on either side are friends, family, and neighbors. Maybe that's why we don't have many.

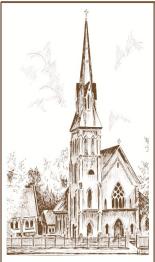

But you and I are called as Christians to be peacemakers, even when – especially when – emotions run high and hostilities seem unavoidable. The followers of Jesus are called to bring people together, and not to divide God's children into "Us" and "Them." Our place is to shine the Light of Jesus Christ, not to add to the darkness; to share the Good News of God's love for all people, not just the ones we agree with; to restore all people to unity with God and each other in Christ, through our prayers, worship, and promoting justice, peace, and love.

So can Christians address President Trump's recent action on immigration or other matters of politics with love and respect for people who think differently? Or is just not talking about it while others rage and shout all around us the best the Church can do? Should we protest, should we defend the President, should the Church be talking about this at all? I think we should say what we want to say in love – if it has nothing to do with love, we should have nothing to do with it.

When we gather around people who are being baptized or confirmed, we promise that we will seek and serve Christ in all persons, loving our neighbors as ourselves, and that we will respect the dignity of every human being. All those persons, neighbors and human beings include politicians and Muslims, liberals and conservatives, people we agree with and people we just can't stand. We should absolutely be talking about this – I hope and pray we can find voices of reconciliation, and that we will have the courage and patience to talk about it together in a way that shines the Light of Christ into the darkness.

The peace that Jesus talks about is not an easy peace, but a peace which surpasses all understanding. The peace of God is not a peace that requires absolute agreement, but it is a peace that requires relationship. As followers of Jesus, when we are at the point of deepest disagreement is when we need to most trust in the relationships we share in Christ.

"Lord, make us instruments of your peace. Where there is hatred, let us sow love; where there is injury, pardon; where there is discord, union; where there is doubt, faith; where there is despair, hope; where there is darkness, light; where there is sadness, joy." Right here, right now.... make us instruments of your peace, Lord – make us peacemakers. Make us peacemakers through your love, not ignoring the very real disagreements but celebrating that it is always in you that we find our deepest joy and our ultimate peace. Make us peacemakers in the hope and faith that it is you who lead us to seek and find ways to preserve the dignity of all with justice and righteousness.

STEWARDSHIP OF CREATION

Living consciously with creation in mind does not necessarily mean living without.

It does perhaps mean living differently.

It does mean living simpler and intentional lives.

The choice is ours to make.

Repurposing old household items is a good way to reduce waste and avoid making new purchases

Green Your Old Stuff:

Use Glass jars for a variety of purposes

With growing concerns over the levels of bisphenol A (BPA) in some plastics, storing leftovers in reused plastic containers is a concern.

In a study from the Harvard School of Public Health (HSPH), researchers found participants who drank out of polycarbonate bottles for a week - the popular, hard-plastic drinking bottles and baby bottles -- showed a two-thirds increase of BPA in their urine.

Exposure to BPA, used in the manufacture of polycarbonate and other plastics, has been shown to interfere with reproductive development in animals and has been linked with cardiovascular disease and diabetes in humans. The study was the first to show that drinking from polycarbonate bottles increased the level of urinary BPA, and thus suggests that drinking containers made with BPA release the chemical into the liquid that people drink in sufficient amounts to increase the level of BPA excreted in human urine.

As an alternative, glass, is safe, multifunctional, and reusable Good not only for storing food items such as homemade soups, salads or last night's dinner, glass jars of various sizes make excellent vases, storage containers for bulk ingredients, even to-go drinking cups. Smaller jars, like those for baby food, can help organize your toolbox; use them to store nuts, bolts, and nails. Empty jars can also become vessels for homemade gifts: Just layer with baking ingredients, sweets, or homemade treats.

Action item: drink tap water – filtered if you prefer. Get a reusable, sturdy water bottle for the road. One of the best choices is a thick glass jar with a silicone fitted cover, such as those made by Lifefactory.

Additional reasons for not buying bottled water:

Supplying Americans with water bottles for 1 year consumes 15 million barrels of oil.

15 million barrels of oil...

- releases 6,000,000,000 lbs of CO2 or 3,000,000 tons of CO2
- Generates electricity for over 250,000 homes a year or fuel for 100,000 cars a year.

An estimated 40% of bottled water sold in the US is just filtered tap water.

Reflection: "All things in God; God in all things." Is this what I behold? Is this what I know I behold? How do my actions affect all things, far and near?

SEWANEE SEMINARIAN RICHARD CULBERTSON BEGINS FIELD EDUCATION AT NATIVITY

We welcome Sewanee seminarian Richard Culbertson who will be our seminarian assistant while he does his Field Education at Nativity this year.

Richard was born in Georgetown, South Carolina and grew up attending Prince George Winyah Episcopal Church, where his formation as a Christian began. In high school, he began to have a sense of call to ordained ministry, and chose to attend Sewanee for college in order to continue to discern and test that sense of vocation. Through his involvement with All Saints' Chapel and his work as a sacristan, his sense of vocation was strengthened.

Richard enrolled in the School of Theology immediately after graduating from the college in 2015. He is now in his middler year at Sewanee, and excited to begin his field education at Nativity. Richard is sponsored for seminary by the Episcopal Church in South Carolina (Grace Cathedral in Charleston).

He has one younger sister, Carolyn, who is about to graduate from the University of South Carolina. His hobbies and interests include the study of ancient languages, playing the piano, and hiking on the Cumberland Plateau and in the mountains of North Carolina.

The abbreviated Camino pilgrimage, originally scheduled for June 15-26, 2017, to be led by Fr. Andy Anderson, has been postponed until 2018.
