

Dick Tuttle

Dick Tuttle is a member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Marietta, where he is the Assistant Treasurer (bookkeeper), serves on the Vestry, and has led the stewardship efforts at St. Luke's for about 20 years. In the past he also served as Senior Warden and as a member of the building and grounds committees. In the Diocese of Southern Ohio, Dick is currently co-chair of the Stewardship and Development Commission, a member of the ACCR (Advisory Committee on Compensation and Resources), and an Associate Network Coordinator for Episcopal Relief and Development. As a member of the Stewardship and Development Commission, Dick has experience in speaking on stewardship, leading Bible Studies and adult forums, and leading Vestry workshops. Dick was educated as a Chemical Engineer at Syracuse University and worked for 32 years for a multinational chemical company, primarily in manufacturing and distribution process engineering and management. After an early retirement, Dick taught chemistry part-time at Washington State Community College and participated with his wife's small craft business for several years. He is now widowed and fully retired, spending much of his time working in the Episcopal Church, creating hardwood furniture, and visiting his large number of grandchildren.
