Frequently Asked Questions

Q. What if the student misses the first four items in the assessment for his or her grade level?
A. You should end the assessment, and begin a new assessment at a lower grade level.

Q. When does the assessment end?
A. The assessment ends when the student answers incorrectly or is marked no response for four items in a row after completing all items in the starting grade level.

Q. Why does the assessment not stop at the beginning of the next grade level start point?
A. There is an overlap of 10 items for each grade level. The first 10 items of a grade are the last 10 items of the previous grade.

Q. What if I know the student cannot answer any more questions in a certain trajectory and I do not want to assess those items or I want to end the assessment?
A. If the student has incorrectly answered four items in a row within his or her grade level and you want to skip over certain items in a trajectory or end the assessment, mark the items as “no response” until assessment ends.
