Northrop Grumman Settles Sixteen-Year-Old Lawsuit

LOS ANGELES, March 1, 2005 -- Northrop Grumman Corporation (NYSE: NOC) agreed to settle a 16-year-old complaint filed by four employees of Northrop Corporation and the U.S. Department of Justice under the qui tam provisions of the civil False Claims Act (U.S. ex rel. Rex Robinson v. Northrop Grumman Corporation).

The company said it will pay approximately $62 million to settle all claims, including that Northrop in the 1980s inappropriately accounted for scrap parts at its facility in Rolling Meadows, Ill. The company also has agreed to settle the relators' personal claims, including their claim for attorney fees, and to reimburse the government for previously billed legal costs incurred by the company.

The company expressly denied any liability for violating the False Claims Act and has agreed to settle this matter, allowing the company's management to focus on the company's excellent business prospects.

As a result of the settlement, the company recorded a pre-tax charge of $35 million to its 2004 fourth quarter operating results and expects to pay a total of $99 million in the first quarter of 2005. Accordingly, income from continuing operations for the 2004 fourth quarter totaled $273 million, or $0.74 per diluted share, compared with the previously reported $296 million, or $0.81 per diluted share. Income from continuing operations for 2004 totaled $1.09 billion, or $2.99 per diluted share, compared with the previously reported $1.12 billion, or $3.06 per share.
