

This sea defence is a good protection for the beach however it does have some problems such as the material is made out of wood so that will lead to it eventually rotting away and will need to be replaced. Despite this good looking defence when the waves get too strong they will go over the top or maybe even just straight through the gaps if they start to rot away.