About Ben

Ben was born in Black Diamond, Alberta, and raised all over BC. His parents were small-business entrepreneurs in the tourism industry. From the age of eight onward Ben began to learn the art of hospitality, following it up with a college diploma in Tourism & Hospitality Management. He now holds of a Bachelor of Commerce degree in Entrepreneurial Management from Royal Roads University (2006) and is a CMA Candidate.

He's added to this with travel experience to over 25 countries; Ben has ventured as far east as Japan, north of the arctic circle, to the island of Cuba, and most of Europe.

Ben is a long-time volunteer. In school he earned multiple citizenship awards. He is a Chief Scout. While at University, he was elected by his peers to student council, and his peer-group of the council picked him to lead the transition of committees as Acting President. After University, he volunteered on the board for a small charity, holding the portfolio of business development. In 2008 he co-founded Urbantastic.com to introduce micro-volunteering to the World. Along with this role, Ben is now a Big Brother, and leader within an adventure-based learning program.
