

Standards allow shared services.

Shared services require a new approach to security.

Shared services will contain information with a variety of access rules.

EVERY data item in the shared service should be encrypted.

Central service should provide a central identity management service (e.g. Thawte/Verisign).

Access can be controlled by granting “capabilities” to users rather than using ACL.