

Technical Co-Founder

About Us

We are a team of experienced serial entrepreneurs who previously co-founded one of Silicon Valley's great success stories. We're launching a start-up to connect business and consumers using a common link that has not been done before and which is possible for the first time due to recent technological advancements. We have passion for "Wisdom of Crowds" market opportunities and have defined the opportunity based on connecting internet technologies with mobile and enterprise applications. We have access to adequate funding to assure our runway of time and are actively looking for a technical co-founder to help build this revolutionary platform.

Mission Description

We're addressing an important commerce connection in a way that will alter consumers behavior in a positive and meaningful manner. We are beyond market and opportunity research and beginning to define the product and technology, including specifying specific technologies to integrate. Now we need your technical expertise to make it happen!

About this Job

As our co-founder, you will be the technical muscle of our organization and responsible for building the foundation for development. You will have the opportunity to make strategic technical decisions to define and shape the product from vision to reality. You will also play a key role in determining which technologies will be employed and participating in the patent process as co-inventor.

We're Looking for a Skilled and Energetic Co-Founder

We're looking for a developer who is not looking for a job but is looking for an opportunity to do something big. The early days and weeks will involve rapid prototyping and fast iterations. You should have a natural drive and desire to always be releasing code. We need to move fast.

We Need Someone With...

- Excellent programming skills in a major programming language
- Expert Javascript/HTML/CSS/Ajax coding skills
- Experience and knack for building awesome web user interfaces with an "of course" feel
- Very comfortable in an agile development environment
- "Duct-tape" programmer - can build anything attitude.
- Amazing collaborative skills and tons of raw horsepower
- Disciplined approach to development and testing
- Strong command of web standards, CSS-based design, cross-browser compatibility
- Proactively think about how to make our mission better
- Invigorated by a fast-paced, start-up environment

Working with Us

We are an energetic team of people who have achieved incredible success in previous ventures. We're driven to succeed and are focused in creating another "Home-Run". We're based in Silicon Valley. For the type of person who has the qualifications that we're seeking, we are offering a very compelling total compensation package and the chance to make a difference in your future and in the lives of many others.

Join us and become part of something great!

Contact

If you feel you are the best person for this position and want to join us on this mission, email ekinsey@me.com.