

Developing Your Concept Map

What?

Analyse your research proposal by identifying the key features, then synthesise these by creating a concept map which shows how the features are related.

When?

Make your concept map in the planning stage, before you start your research.

How?

This depends on your preferred learning style.

Search the internet for concept map. I used Google images to find examples, but you might prefer to look for the literature, find a guide or talk to someone who has done this before.

Why?

Designing a concept map may help you with your planning, and you can include it in your evaluation of the research process.

