Commercial trademarks and copyrighted works reproduced here (AIA, CSI, etc.) are the property of their respective owners.

Use of these excerpts for educational purposes are believed by the author to be “Fair Use” per 17 U.S.C. § 107 , reprinted here:

Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 17 U.S.C. § 106 and 17 U.S.C. § 106A , the fair use of a copyrighted work, including such use by reproduction in copies or phonorecords or by any other means specified by that section, for purposes such as criticism, comment, news reporting, teaching (including multiple copies for classroom use), scholarship, or research, is not an infringement of copyright. In determining whether the use made of a work in any particular case is a fair use the factors to be considered shall include:

1. the purpose and character of the use, including whether such use is of a commercial nature or is for nonprofit educational purposes;
2. the nature of the copyrighted work;
3. the amount and substantiality of the portion used in relation to the copyrighted work as a whole; and
4. the effect of the use upon the potential market for or value of the copyrighted work.

Otherwise, all works used which are traceable to authors are believed to be in the public domain as follows (application implied in context):

This work is in the public domain in the United States because it was published anywhere in the world before 1923.

The work is in the public domain because its copyright has expired. This applies to the United States, Canada, the European Union and those countries with a copyright term of life of the author plus 70 years.

The work is in the public domain in the United States because it is a work of the United States Federal Government under the terms of Title 17, Chapter 1, Section 105 of the US Code. See Copyright.

The work is in the public domain in the United States because it is a work of the Canadian Government .
