

Languages – Where Next?

A Conference for Primary and Secondary Practitioners

Wednesday 29 February 2012

9 am – 3.30 pm

Nottingham Conference Centre
Nottingham Trent University, City site

Keynote speaker – Dr Anthony Seldon

Dr Anthony Seldon is headmaster of Wellington College and author or editor of over 30 books on education, contemporary history and politics including biographies on Gordon Brown and Tony Blair. He appears regularly on television, radio and in the press, and writes for several national newspapers. His views on education have regularly been sought by the government and political parties. Dr Seldon recently spoke out in the media about the urgent need to expand language teaching in the UK and increase the number of language teachers in schools.

Question and answer session

A panel of national experts will take part in a question and answer session on some of the issues surrounding languages and the International Dimension in Schools.

Workshops

The conference aims to showcase local, regional and national talent in order to prepare and inspire delegates to face impending curriculum change. Delegates will be able to choose between a series of workshops which will be delivered by practising teachers. The day will focus on practical activities and delegates will leave with lots of ideas which can be used in the classroom. Workshops will focus on a range of languages including opportunities in Mandarin and Latin.

There will also be opportunities to view the latest resources and speak to publishers in the exhibition space and to meet, and network with, colleagues in the beautiful surroundings of the Nottingham Conference Centre. Housed in the Grade II* listed Newton building, the Centre offers superb facilities in a stunning architectural setting.
