

Real Estate Update

It's important to recognize opportunity when it comes knocking.

If you're interested in getting into the Real Estate market, opportunity probably looks a lot like the historically low interest rates and wonderful selection of homes available now in the Edmonton area! Interest rates aren't expected to rise this year, but listing activity is. That's a combination that should have potential home buyers excited.

In January, single family home prices were 2.5% higher than a year ago. If you're currently in a different type of residence, maybe an apartment condo or a townhouse, this might be a chance to upgrade to a single family home.

Your local REALTOR® can help you explore the many choices you have available to you, and to understand exactly what's happening in the market. Of course, no matter what the interest rates are or how many homes may be available, most people make a decision to buy or sell a home based on what's happening in their life. REALTORS® are here when life happens. If you're at a point in your life where you're watching for a good opportunity to come along – this might be what it looks like!
