

Campus Security

2009 - 2010 | A Special Report to the NYU Community

Message from the President

Dear Member of the NYU Community:

The safety of our students, faculty, staff and visitors is a top priority for New York University. We are dedicated to maintaining a campus where academic excellence can be achieved in an environment unburdened by fears for personal well-being.

The security of our community—students, faculty, administrators, staff, and visitors – is always at the forefront of our thoughts, and in creating a safe environment at New York University, our first and most important resource is our public safety personnel. We have a large and well trained corps of security professionals – our public safety officers—to whom you can confidently turn in all types of emergencies.

We are fortunate to have as our Public Safety leader a former three-star chief of the New York City Police Department. As a member of the University Leadership Team, he maintains a strong and productive relationship between NYU's Department of Public Safety, the NYPD, and NYU's senior leadership. Under his leadership, over 350 full-time officers and personnel operate 24 hours per day, seven days per week as first-line protectors of the NYU community. Through an extensive training regimen, our officers are kept abreast of security best practices, have developed substantial crime prevention and personal safety programs, and have cultivated and maintained a strong relationship with our local law enforcement agencies. Public safety officers are ubiquitous on our campus, keeping us safe and helping us all in difficult moments.

We are also fortunate that the greatest city in the world is protected by the greatest police department in the world—the New York Police Department. It is widely recognized that no finer law enforcement organization exists, and through its efforts crime has been steadily reduced in New York to levels not seen in decades. Our University community is one of the beneficiaries of its great and sustained achievements. Our own neighborhood is among the safest in America's safest large city. Our strong partnership with the New York Police Department extends from the local precinct commanders to the highest level of their senior executive ranks at headquarters. Indeed, many of our public safety supervisors are experienced veterans of law enforcement.

The world may seem a more uncertain place these days. However, I want to assure you that NYU has a long and exemplary history of maintaining high standards of personal safety through its own public safety resources, and its relationships with law enforcement agencies. We will continue to remain relentlessly focused on the safety of the students, faculty staff and all those who visit our campus.

Report on Security and Safety at New York University

Colleges and universities are required by the federal government to publish and distribute an annual security report containing campus security policies and procedures as well as campus crime statistics. In the 2009-2010 report which follows, the term "campus" will include all NYU facilities (on-campus and non-campus). The crime statistics on page 6 of this report are broken down into the categories of "on campus," "non-campus," and "public property," as defined by the Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act, Section 485 (f) of the Higher Education Act.

Security and Safety at NYU

In cooperation with the New York City Police Department, security for New York University is provided by the Department of Public Safety. Under the leadership of a vice president, the department comprises more than 350 uniformed officers and management personnel. The office operates 24 hours a day in three tours servicing 75 on-campus and non-campus locations. The NYU security force regularly provides vehicular, bicycle, scooter and foot patrols, emergency team response, building security, safety rides, internal communications, security at numerous special events, and security coverage at various on-going construction sites.

On University property, the Department of Public Safety officers have the same authority as all owners of property which allows for reasonable detention of individuals suspected of criminal activity. When not on University property, the officers have no authority beyond that of private citizens; they use citizen arrest procedures as necessary.

The Department of Public Safety maintains a professional relationship with local, state and federal law enforcement agencies, including the United Nations security staff. NYU's officers work closely with the New York City Police Department in the following precincts: the Fifth (Lower East Side), the Sixth (Greenwich Village), the Ninth (Broadway to the East River), the Tenth (West Side), the Thirteenth (East Side), the Seventeenth (Upper East Side), and the Eighty Fourth (Brooklyn Heights); all locations of NYU facilities.

Since September 11, 2001, the Department of Public Safety has been designated to receive alerts from the New York City Police Department and three private/public organizations. These organizations are NYPD Shield, the Real Estate Board of New York (notification from both is made via email), and The Landmark Task Force which is comprised of security leadership of prominent institutions and organizations in NYC. (NYU attends monthly meetings).

New York University's main campus at Washington Square is located in Greenwich Village, which historically has been one of New York's lowest-crime neighborhoods. Committed to creating the safest possible campus environment, NYU, in recent years, has initiated a wide range of measures to expand its safety and protection services for the benefit of all members of the NYU community — students, faculty and staff. The security services provided by NYU include:

- Mobile patrol including five NYU Department of Public Safety vehicles complete with public address systems and special lighting (one vehicle is accessible in accordance with requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), two unmarked vehicles)
- Four full size vans and one hybrid SUV and, three GEMs which are environmentally friendly vehicles in addition to two three-wheeled scooters
- Bicycle patrol during special events and other situations when warranted

- Foot patrols by NYU security officers to monitor routes traveled by students in the evening
- A Victim Assistance Program
- Orientation programs including safety seminars, crime prevention pamphlets and brochures
- University Transportation between Washington Square and outlying residence halls, College of Dentistry and School of Medicine
- Overnight on demand Safety rides and safety escorts
- Monitoring of incoming calls at the Department of Public Safety office to ensure proper attention
- An expanded Safe Haven Program that includes Fire Department houses
- Expanded student awareness programs
- Emergency Response Team with specialized training in evacuation and disaster control procedures
- Special events teams
- A telecommunications system linking all University-owned radios to provide better coordination during emergencies
- A list of security communication codes to minimize length of transmission in an effort to reduce response time to incidents
- Utilization of supervisors as dispatchers
- Security personnel trained as rape crisis counselors

The Department of Public Safety Web page (www.nyu.edu/public.safety/) includes safety tips and other useful information.

Reporting Procedures

New York University students, staff and faculty are urged to promptly report all crimes and emergency situations in relation to which they are a victim or a witness, including those that occur either on campus or off campus to the police and to the Department of Public Safety. The Department of Public Safety will offer support and assistance to any victim or witness. Reporting incidents to the Department of Public Safety will aid in providing timely warning notices to the community, when appropriate and will ensure inclusion of that reported incident in the annual disclosure of crime statistics for the institution.

If you are the victim of a crime and do not want to pursue action within the University system or the criminal justice system, you may still want to consider making a confidential report. With your permission, Department of Public Safety can file an internal report on the details of the incident without revealing your identity. The purpose of a confidential report is to comply with your wish to keep the matter confidential, while taking steps to ensure the future safety of yourself and others. With such information, the University can keep an accurate record of the number of incidents involving students, employees and visitors; determine where there is a pattern of crime with regard to a particular location, method, or assailant; and alert the campus community to potential danger. Reports filed in this manner are counted and disclosed in the annual crime statistics for the institution.

The University makes every effort to facilitate the reporting process by providing the University community with multiple ways in which to do so. Reports can be filed with the Department of Public Safety 24 hours a day, seven days a week by going to the office at 14 Washington Place or by calling (212) 998-2222.

When reports are received, the following actions are taken:

Message from the Vice President for the Department of Public Safety

New York University Department of Public Safety has a clear and straightforward mission: to create a safe and secure environment for students, faculty, staff and visitors to pursue their educational and professional goals and aspirations. To meet and exceed the expectations of everyone associated with New York University, we employ a number of programs supported by a dedicated and experienced staff of security professionals. The department consists of 350 highly trained Uniformed Officers, and an extraordinary management team. In 2008, two new positions were created to keep pace with the increased responsibilities of the department. We were joined by an Emergency Information and Communications Manager who essentially coordinates and manages a new Global emergency management notification system; NYU Traveler, which is described below. With the increasing amount of domestic and international construction projects necessitating the review, design, installation, implementation and maintenance of security technologies, and the need to always remain current with best security practices, a Physical Security Project Manager was hired. These two individuals have positioned the department to meet current and future security challenges.

While we have an amazing security staff, we cannot do it alone. As an extension to the department, we maintain a strong partnership with state and local law enforcement and municipal agencies that are responsive to the University's concerns. And, we provide a visible presence in and around the campus, so that security officers on post, on patrol or traveling to and from their respective assignments help enhance safety for the NYU community and our neighbors.

New York City continues to be the safest large city in the United States. New York University is located in Greenwich Village, one of the safest neighborhoods in NYC. New York City Police Department statistics have shown a 68% reduction in serious crime over the last 15 years, and the trend of further reductions continues.

The following highlights some of the programs designed to achieve our mission, vision and security goals:

- NYU is truly a Global University. With 10 Global Study sites on 4 continents, a Graduate degree granting campus in Singapore and additional program affiliations worldwide, the role of Public Safety has met these challenges. The latest University endeavor is in Abu Dhabi with an interim campus starting in 2010, and a full four year liberal arts campus slated to be launched in 2012 on Saadiyat Island. The goal is to reach a student population exceeding 4000 persons. In connection with both campuses, NYU Public Safety is responsible for the design, implementation and supervision of the NYU Abu Dhabi Department of Public Safety.
- Emergency Notifications – Communicating accurate and timely information has never been a more important necessity than after the tragic incidents at Virginia Tech and Northern Illinois University. NYU utilizes a mass communications service through an industry leading third party vendor which allows thousands of simultaneous messages to be sent anywhere in the world using text messaging and voice technologies. The system is tested each semester to ensure its accuracy.
- Each year, more than 4,000 NYU students, faculty, and staff travel overseas for NYU-sponsored programs on six continents. NYU's growing global presence and the many new challenges associated with that growth, make it imperative that University administrators and Schools be able to readily communicate with faculty, staff, and students participating in NYU-affiliated programs and events abroad. NYU has implemented NYU Traveler, a web-based application that provides the NYU community with a secure means of entering and updating travel itineraries, contact numbers, and flight or other transportation information. NYU Traveler also provides authorized University administrators and Schools with up-to-date information enabling them to locate and contact students, faculty, and staff abroad in the event of an emergency.
- Enhanced Guest Policy — The Department of Public Safety has worked in collaboration with student representatives and other departments to establish a thoughtful guest policy protocol that has eased student visits in residence halls without compromising security by the utilization of turnstiles and technology. We started with a test of a residential cluster (five residence halls) near Union Square three years ago. Last year, all of the remaining facilities were completed. This program has proven to be an excellent balance of providing student services without the decrease of security in the residence halls.
- The "Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act" (formerly the Campus Security Act) is a federal law that requires all institutions receiving Title IX funds to disclose campus security information including crime statistics for the campus and surrounding areas. In the past year, several enhancements were made to make this report and the information we offer to the community more meaningful. An additional map covering the entire borough of Manhattan which identifies non campus University locations can be found on page 8. An enhanced NYC tabular statistical report of crimes and judicial referrals to reflect non-campus residence halls was adopted and can be found on page 6. The crime log, which under the law must be made available during business hours and reflect the past 60 days worth of reported crimes, can now be found on the NYU Department of Public Safety webpage and contains a rolling 12 month report.
- Campus Transportation – During the past academic year, we successfully transported over 1.2 million student faculty, staff, and visitors within the boroughs of Manhattan and, to our new Graduate Residence Hall in Brooklyn Heights. Our campus transportation services consist of scheduled route from early morning till night, and on-call "safe rides" during late-night hours. We continue to assess ridership trends and customer feedback to determine route and service adjustments designed to maximize the use of personnel and equipment resulting in increased reliability of service.
- Safety in The City – As part of the Department's ongoing crime prevention and safety enhancement efforts, the Department has created educational programs and materials to discuss current safety issues, furnish valuable information for on- and off-campus safety, and highlight tips to keep incoming students out of harm's way. The commitment we have for student safety extends beyond the NY campus as the Department is involved in the coordination and planning of security for the numerous Global Studies and International sites throughout the world.

Allaying parent's concerns about the safety of their children is a priority as well. A parent's fact sheet covering several commonly asked questions is available on the NYU Department of Public Safety website: www.nyu.edu/public.safety/safety/parentfact.sheet.html

Although we are in the midst of some economic challenges, we nevertheless are also in a time of tremendous excitement in the area of campus safety. Security equipment have undergone remarkable improvements and security employees are considerably better trained. Here at NYU we have an extraordinary team of Uniformed Officers supported by a superb management and technical team. I am privileged to serve as their leader of the Public Safety department whose members perform their daily duties in the finest tradition of New York University

Regards,
Jules A. Martin, Vice President – Global Security & Crisis Management, Department of Public Safety

- Victims are referred to the appropriate offices/agencies on and off campus, including law enforcement, counseling, health/medical services and judicial affairs.
- The University does not have a written policy encouraging pastoral and professional health counselors to inform persons about reporting crimes. However, they do alert students of the services provided by Public Safety including assistance in navigating the criminal justice system if they choose to report the incident.
- Incident reports concerning students are promptly sent to the Vice President for Student Affairs, Office of Community Standards, Residential Life, New York University Health Center, Counseling Services, and Deans of Students of the individual schools, as appropriate.
- Incident reports concerning staff and faculty are sent to appropriate administrative or academic departments for review and follow-up.
- The Department of Public Safety distributes information on campus crime to the University community through the campus media. In the event of the commission of a serious crime or report of a crime pattern or trend either on or off campus, such as robbery or assault, the Department of Public Safety promptly distributes "Safety Alerts" to all deans, vice presidents, residence halls, and academic buildings. The University uses the information from incident reports to improve its campus protection program and shares the information with the proper law enforcement authorities and University personnel. For example:
- The Department of Public Safety analyzes the reports, compiles crime statistics, and develops strategies to reduce criminal incidents and enhance preventive measures.
- The Public Affairs Committee of the University Senate (representing faculty, administrators and students) is charged with reviewing annually the activities of The Department of Public Safety, the adequacy of current crime prevention programs, and policies for responding to victims of crime.
- Staff from University's Offices of Student Affairs, Residential Education, Health Services and Public Safety regularly meet to discuss campus safety issues and to develop related crime prevention programs, safety workshops, videos and posters.
- Local police agencies are requested to report to NYU and The Department of Public Safety any criminal activity involving NYU students or personnel at off-campus locations.

Message from the NYC Police Department Commissioner

Through the hard work and conscientiousness of the men and women of the New York Police Department, New York City is not only the greatest city in the world but the safest large city in the U.S. Thanks to the NYPD's dedicated and innovative policing, New Yorkers — whether long-time residents, students in our colleges and universities, or visitors passing through on holiday or on business — today enjoy a level of safety that has not been experienced for decades.

Like the city it serves, the NYPD is both local and global in scope. While maintaining a vigorous approach to the traditional emphases, modes, and techniques of law enforcement, we have since 2001 also taken on tasks not previously associated with municipal policing, including the creation of intelligence and counter-terrorism capabilities. Our global initiatives enable us to be pro-active in gathering information and implementing new measures to keep our city safe. We believe the efforts undertaken by the NYPD since 2001 are in the forefront of shaping police practices to address 21st century challenges without giving ground on our traditional law enforcement priorities; the result is a city in which both traditional crime keeps dropping and new threats to safety are evaluated and confronted before they reach our streets.

Regardless of whether the focus is on the traditional or the transformational, safety and security is most effective when there is a robust partnership between citizens, government agencies, and private institutions. In New York, we have forged especially effective partnerships with the public safety departments of our city's colleges and universities, many of which are led by former senior police officials. Their officers act as important and additional trained eyes and ears, and they make a significant contribution to both the emergency readiness of our city and in keeping our city and its citizens safe.

Our colleges and universities are among the institutions of which New York is most proud; they are magnets for the human talent that keeps New York vigorous and innovative. As Commissioner, I am strongly committed to providing effective police services to all communities in our city. New York is blessed with the finest, most admired, and most emulated police department in the world, and I am determined to build upon and expand this Department's existing achievements in reducing crime and enhancing personal safety. At the New York Police Department, we consider it a special trust and sacred duty to keep all the residents of this great city safe.

— Raymond W. Kelly

Campus Facilities and Programs

New York University takes very seriously its responsibilities to help ensure the safety of its residence halls, classrooms, and other facilities. In order to provide this level of security to the community, the University provides services and structures that include: biometric readers for access control at several residence halls and various academic facilities; call waiting at residence hall security desks to ensure that calls will be received by security personnel; television surveillance cameras in various outdoor and indoor locations, including residence hall lobbies; panic alarm buttons in rest rooms; emergency call boxes located near NYU facilities; an expansion of the number of buildings with 24-hour security officers; secure bicycle parking area behind Tisch Hall; an electronic card access system for entering and leaving buildings after hours.

Residence Halls

All undergraduate residence halls have a 24-hour security officer posted in the building. Graduate residence halls have either a doorman or 24-hour security patrol/coverage. No one is allowed into the residence halls unless he/she is a resident, guest or otherwise authorized visitor. All but two of the residence halls utilize a turnstile system tied into the University access control system allowing all resident students access by using their identification card and PIN number. Commuter students must be accompanied by the resident student and the commuter student ID card is swiped in conjunction with the resident student card for tracking purposes. All other guests must be in the presence of the resident student. The guest produces a photo ID which is either state issued or from another college or University. The ID is retained by the Public Safety officer until the guest is signed out. All persons seeking entry, including staff and faculty, are checked for proper identification.

Guests in doorman buildings must identify themselves and be announced. Residents must respond to the lobby to accept deliveries. Graduate students in residence halls with doormen may use a package room for deliveries or must approve deliveries to their doors.

NYU does not have any officially recognized student organizations that have housing facilities "off campus". If the NYPD is contacted about criminal activity occurring off campus involving NYU students, NYPD may notify the Department of public Safety. However, there is no official NYPD policy requiring such notification. Students in these cases may be subject to arrest by the NYPD and subject to University Judicial proceedings.

Classrooms

Security officers are stationed in the lobby of most classroom buildings to monitor persons entering the building.

Other University Facilities

NYU security officers are posted in Bobst Library and Coles Sports Center during all operating hours of these facilities. All persons entering these facilities are checked for proper identification and/or memberships. In addition, the Department of Public Safety maintains security officers in and around academic and administrative buildings. Closed circuit television cameras are located throughout campus buildings.

NYU does not have any officially recognized student organizations that have housing facilities “off-campus.” If NYPD is contacted about criminal activity occurring off-campus involving NYU students, NYPD may notify NYU Department of Public Safety. However, there is no official NYPD policy requiring such notification. Students in these cases may be subject to arrest by NYPD and subject to university judicial proceedings.

Maintenance of Campus Facilities

Facilities are maintained in a manner that minimizes hazardous conditions. NYU regularly patrols the campus and reports malfunctioning lights and other unsafe physical conditions to the Command Center, where an incident report is prepared. Incident reports are then routed to the appropriate building personnel for corrective action. Other NYU personnel are helpful when they report equipment problems to security personnel or Maintenance and Operations.

Fire Safety

Fire safety is a collaborative endeavor that involves the efforts of the Department of Housing Facilities, the Department of Residence Education; the Office of Environmental, health and Safety; the Office of Construction Management; the Department of Public Safety; and the Office of the VP for Student Affairs. Although the systems in our buildings meet, and in many cases exceed, the related codes, to enhance our fire safety systems we are engaged in a continual process of review and evaluation of those systems. Accordingly, the academic building and residence hall fire safety systems are tested and inspected on a regular basis. In addition to systems safety, NYU understands that efforts related to student and staff education are vital, especially in the student residences. Fire safety information is distributed to all residence hall students during check-in. Fire safety notices that include evacuation instructions are affixed to the back of room/ apartment entry doors. Fire drills are conducted four times a year by the residence hall staff in cooperation with representatives from Public Safety and the Office of Environmental Services who observe and make recommendations for future drills. A fire safety protocol for disabled students is available. Fire safety alerts are issued as deemed appropriate and necessary.

Defibrillator Action Response Team (DART)

The NYU Department of Public Safety in conjunction with the NYU Student Health Center has established a Defibrillator Action Response Team (DART). DART is a public access defibrillation program designed to make automated external defibrillators (AEDs) readily accessible to the NYU community as a preventive tool, with the potential for saving lives in cases of sudden cardiac arrest. Our program comprises 23 individual defibrillation units strategically located throughout University facilities, covering from as far south as Lafayette Street to as far north as 24th Street. Public Safety continually trains its members to meet certification standards. Training and certification come from the American Red Cross, and they are valid for one year. For information, call NYU’s Department of Public Safety training manager at 998-1341.

Student Property Identification Program

NYU’s Department of Public Safety encourages University students to mark their personal property to make illegal sale harder and recovery of valuables easier. As part of student orientations and crime prevention programs, methods for students to protect their property are discussed.

Crime Awareness and Prevention Programs

NYU students are educated about safety as soon as they arrive on campus. During Welcome Week, each incoming student receives the Student’s Guide. (which is also available online at: www.nyu.edu/students.guide/) Within this guide, students can access safety information including: locations of University buildings with 24- hour security, locations of call boxes and 911 telephones, a description of the 24-hour safe haven program for students, and maps showing University buildings. General safety tips regarding safety on-campus, security in the residence halls, navigating the city and being “street-wise” in New York City, and utilizing the University and city transportation systems are outlined for students. More specific safety information on how to avoid being a victim of con games, cults and sexual assault is also included within the guide.

A mandatory orientation session for incoming students, entitled “The Reality Show,” addresses issues such as sexual assault, bias and harassment, and general safety. A variety of other safety and security related workshops also are offered for students during Welcome Week including sessions such as “Safety in the City,” “Sexual Assault Awareness 101,” “He Said, She Said”, “Sexplorations”, “Queering Safer Sex”, “Imagine That: A Drinking Game”, and “I’m Listening”.

In addition to programs for incoming students, safety information is provided to students throughout the year in the following ways:

- General information and tips for being safe on campus and in New York City are presented on-line by the Department of Public Safety at: www.nyu.edu/public.safety/safety/tips.html
- Updates concerning specific safety related matters on the NYU campus, in the local community, and in relation to events in New York City are issued on the University website at: www.nyu.edu/about/alert.html/
- Special reports on campus safety are included in NYU Today, a University newsletter published monthly during the academic year.
- Articles about crime and safety on campus are published in the student newspaper The Washington Square News.
- A daily crime log is available on the NYU Public Safety webpage www.nyu.edu/public.safety/policies/crimestatistics.html or at the 14 Washington Place Public Safety command center which is open 24 hours a day, 365 days per year. The information contained in the crime log are criminal acts reported to Public Safety including the nature of the incident, dates occurred and reported, time occurred, general location and disposition.
- “Safety Alerts” are distributed as necessary to inform the community about safety-related issues, risk-reducing precautions, and sources of help and additional information.
- Safety brochures are available through the Department of Public Safety.
- Throughout the academic year, Peer Educators affiliated with the Student Health Center, Wellness Services, and the Center for Multicultural Education and Programs facilitate educational workshops for students in the residence halls, student organizations, and other University offices. The Peer Educators undergo a training program on issues related to the topic of sexual assault such as rape culture, consent in sexually intimate relationships, date rape drugs, and how to help a friend who has been sexually assaulted. undermines the character and purpose of the University. Such actions are illegal and against University policy, and will not be tolerated.

A bias-related crime occurs when a person intentionally commits a specified criminal offense against a person because of that person's actual/ perceived race, color, national origin, ancestry, gender, religion, religious practice, age, disability or sexual orientation. Examples of a bias-related conduct include but are not limited to physical or verbal assaults, theft, arson, electronic harassment, and hate mail. A bias-related incident does not have to meet the legal definition of a hate crime before NYU will take action under its own Anti-Harassment Policy.

It is the responsibility of all members of the NYU community to report incidents of bias. If you are the victim of a bias-related incident or if you have witnessed such an incident, you should report the incident immediately to the NYU Department of Public Safety. The Department of Public Safety can be reached 24 hours a day, 7 days a week at (212) 998-2222. Students at a global campus site should report the incident to the site director.

Filing a report with the NYU Department of Public Safety will not automatically initiate the disciplinary process at NYU. The appropriate person with whom a complaint should be filed depends on the status of the offender. The Anti-Harassment Policy, which includes information about the venues for reporting a bias incident, is available on-line at: www.nyu.edu/eo/. If the victim or witness is still unsure of where to report a bias related incident, he or she may contact Thomas Grace, Director of Judicial Affairs and Compliance at (212) 998-4403.

Sex Offenses on Campus

New York University is committed not only to providing broad-based education on the issues of sexual assault and harassment but also to pursuing disciplinary action against those who violate the rights of others by engaging in sexual misconduct. Detailed information about the University's policy and procedures regarding sexual assault and harassment can be found in appendix B of this document and also online at www.nyu.edu/student.affairs/policies.

Sex Offender Registry Information — New York "Megan's Law"

Information regarding a registered sex offender can be obtained by calling the New York State Sex Offender Registry Information Line at 1-800-262-3257 or on-line at www.criminaljustice.state.ny.us/nsor/index.htm. Callers must be 18 years old and must provide their name, address, and telephone number in order to request information. The Information Line is open Monday-Friday 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. To learn the status of an individual, callers must provide the individual's name and at least one of the following identifiers: the individual's street address and apartment number, driver's license number, social security number, or birth date. A physical description is helpful but is not required. To use the on-line link, the person inquiring must provide his/her name and address to access information about the registered sex offenders. Nationwide information is available at: www.sexoffender.com/.

Campus Security Report Preparation

This report has been prepared by a task force of University professionals from the Office of Student Affairs, Public Safety, the Office of Legal Counsel and the Office of Government and Community Relations. This group meets throughout the year to discuss security and safety issues and review existing policies. In addition, the University's Department of Public Safety meets consistently with the local precincts to discuss safety in the area and data that is included in this report.

Crime Statistics

The statistics are gathered by three methods:

1. Reviewing the daily incidents reported to the Department of Public Safety.
2. Designated campus security authorities report incidents that may have been reported to them.
3. Crime information is frequently gathered from local law enforcement authorities. The reported statistics are a combination of all three methods listed above.

Reporting Areas

The University reports incidents for its "on-campus" and "non-campus" facilities and is also required to report crimes that occur on "public property." For NYU, an urban university with no walls around its campus, this poses the challenge of reporting crime incidents when, in most cases, these incidents are not on University property and do not involve members of the NYU community.

This Campus Security report contains maps that shows the "campus" and "non-campus" areas (as defined by the Higher Education Amendments of 1998), with charts reporting "campus," "non-campus," and "public property" areas crime statistics. Residence Halls located on campus and in non-campus locations are further drilled down in those respective categories.

On-Campus NYU's on-campus properties include NYU facilities that fall within the borderline of the On-Campus map in this report. These facilities are owned and controlled by the University and are used primarily for supporting the University's educational purposes..

Non-Campus NYU's non-campus properties include NYU facilities that are owned or controlled by the University, primarily used for University purposes, but which are not located in the immediate on campus area. These facilities include academic, residence halls, and administrative buildings in New York City outside of Greenwich Village.

Public Property This category includes all streets, sidewalks, and thoroughfares adjacent to on-campus facilities. For NYU, this means including the sidewalks and streets that are traveled by thousands of New York City residents and tourists every day as well as Washington Square Park, a public park that is visited by thousands of people each day. NYU shares a responsibility for safety in all of these public places but does not have jurisdiction over them. While this expanded area of reporting has produced greater numbers in NYU's statistical reporting, only a very small percentage involves members of the NYU community.

Safety Tips

- Travel on streets where there is pedestrian traffic.
- If possible, use the buddy system – walk with a friend.
- Use campus transportation. For schedules and information, dial 998-RIDE.
- Be alert to your surroundings. BEWARE and BE AWARE.
- Carry money for emergencies (cab fare, quarters for phone calls).
- Use cash machines during daylight hours whenever possible.
- Avoid counting your money or displaying money on the street.
- Keep your knapsack tightly closed. In restaurants, keep your bag on your lap or where you can see it at all times.
- Always keep your valuables with you.
- Always lock your door whether leaving a room, office or home, even for a minute.
- When traveling by subway, stay near MTA personnel whether waiting or riding. Use Off-Hour Waiting Areas.
- Before going on a date, know your date's name, address, and contact phone number. Leave that information with someone you trust. If possible, have a roommate or other friend meet a first-time date when they pick you up; otherwise meet in a public place. If sexual interaction on a date makes you uncomfortable, clearly state this to your date and remove yourself from the situation. If you are assaulted, find a safe place from which to call 911 or call NYU Department of Public Safety 24 hours a day at 998-2222.
- Program cell phone to 911 and 212-998-2222.

Surviving Sexual Assault:

New York University Policies and Procedures Concerning Sexual Assault

2009-2010

Effective Date: August 19, 2009

Issuing Authority: Marc Wais, Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs

Responsible Officer: Thomas Grace, Director of Community Standards and Compliance

Sexual Assault: How Does it Affect Me?

Sexual assault touches everyone's life in many different ways. It affects us all, regardless, gender, sexual of age, race orientation, religion, ethnicity, class, or national origin. Sexual assault can encompass a variety of experiences a person may have, including unwanted sexual touching, non-consensual oral or anal sex, or rape, and can happen with someone you have just met, with an intimate partner, or with a stranger.

National statistics indicate that one out of five college women are raped during their college years and 10% of adult rape victims are male. In a survey at 171 institutions of higher education, alcohol was involved in 74% of all sexual assaults. Despite the prevalence of sexual assault on college campuses throughout the United States, less than 5% of completed or attempted rapes experienced by college students were reported to law enforcement officials. In many cases, individuals who have experienced interpersonal events that meet the legal definitions of rape do not define their experience in these legal terms. Factors that affect the likelihood of a survivor viewing their assault as rape may stem from self-blame, their relationship to the assailant, engagement in drinking before the assault occurred, or the degree of physical force used.

Talking about these issues can be very challenging. You are not alone, there are people who are here to help. This publication is intended to help you recognize misconduct of a sexual nature, to provide information about options and resources available as it relates to medical, legal, and counseling or support services, and to identify some tips to help reduce the risk of sexual assault. We encourage you to read this information, review it periodically so you will remember it, and keep this document for future reference.

Overview

New York University is committed to maintaining a learning and working environment that is free of acts of bias, prejudice, and harassment, which undermine the character and purpose of the University, and to creating a campus climate that supports, nurtures, and rewards educational and career advancement on the basis of ability and performance. The University Anti-Harassment policy (see Appendix A) is based upon federal, New York State, and New York City laws and expressly prohibits acts of harassment, assault, bias, or discrimination that are based upon one's actual or perceived race, sex, gender identity, color, religion, age, national origin, ethnicity, disability, veteran or military status, sexual orientation, marital status, citizenship status, or other such legally protected basis. The Anti-Harassment Policy is applicable to all of the University's Campus sites and to all University sponsored programs and activities whether those take place on a University campus or at another location.

Sexual assault is a term that can have a variety of meanings. Within the New York University Anti-Harassment Policy, the term sexual assault is defined as a sexual act against the will and without the consent of the victim or where the victim is incapable of giving consent. Defining consent in sexually intimate relationships can be difficult, however keeping the following guidelines in mind may be helpful:

- the more impaired your partner is from alcohol or other drugs, the more difficult it can be to clearly establish his/her consent to a particular action ,
- having sex with someone who is "passed out" or sleeping is non-consensual sex
- both people must be free to say no and/or change their mind, and
- both people must clearly and honestly communicate their desires and intentions.

While legal definitions of unlawful sexual conduct differ from state to state and from country to country in the case of the University's Study Abroad sites, it is important to recognize that behavior which violates the University Anti-Harassment policy may also be in violation of the laws of the locality in which the incident occurred and may subject the perpetrator to criminal action by the presiding authority. Where criminal behavior is involved, the University will cooperate with victims and law enforcement authorities in prosecuting such violations.

A) New York State: the New York State Penal Code uses the term "sex offenses" to include conduct that would be considered sexual assault by the University.

(For further information, including on what constitutes consent according to the New York State Penal Code, see Appendix B)

B) Study Abroad sites: students who are studying at one of the University's Study Abroad sites should be aware that they are subject to the laws of that country in regard to what constitutes sexual assault or another sex-based offense. Thus, students are strongly advised to familiarize themselves with the laws of the country in which they will be living while studying abroad.

I. University Procedures Concerning Sexual Assault

A) Obtaining Medical and Counseling Support:

1) New York City Campus: Through the Wellness Exchange, members of the student community can access information and support concerning, either recent or past, sexual assault, intimate partner violence, stalking and sexual harassment. A Crisis Response Coordinator (CRC) can offer crisis intervention, medical advocacy, legal advocacy and academic interventions. In addition, CRCs can provide links to, and help in using, an extensive network of related services on campus and in the city of New York. The approach of a CRC is to allow for a student to set the pace for their healing process and to be in charge of making their own decisions related to medical, legal, academic, and counseling services. CRCs are accessible 24 hours a day, 7 days a week through the Wellness Exchange 24/7 Sexual Assault Support Line at (212) 443-9999. A survivor can also call the University Counseling Service (212-998-4780) to set up an appointment. Survivors can also call the Wellness Exchange to talk and they can do so anonymously, if they prefer. Student can write to the Wellness Exchange at wellness.exchange@nyu.edu and a counselor will respond within 24hrs.

An additional resource for students is The Health Promotion Office which is part of the Student Health Center. The primary mission of the Health Promotion Office is to protect and promote the health and well-being of NYU students. Health educators provide comprehensive wellness information, advocacy and referrals on topics including alcohol and other drugs, mental and sexual health, body image and sexual assault prevention. Wellness programs include peer education, workshops, health fairs and one-on-one consultations. The Health Promotion Office is located at 726 Broadway, Suite 344, 212-443-1234.

B) Reporting a Sexual Assault:

As set forth in the University's Anti-Harassment Policy (Appendix A), in addition to obtaining medical and counseling support, students are encouraged to report such offenses as soon as possible, whether they occurred on or off campus, to the appropriate person identified in the Anti-Harassment Policy, the NYU Department of Public Safety, a Residence Life and Housing staff member, or the Dean of Students in their school. Students at a Study Abroad site should report an incident to the Wellness Coordinator at the site, a campus security officer at the site, a residence hall staff member at the site, or the office of the Site Director, or they may directly contact one of the appropriate persons identified in the Anti-Harassment Policy.

II. Victims' Needs, Rights and Choices When Sexual Assault Occurs

Victims of sexual assault may encounter a bewildering number of choices related to medical services, legal assistance, and counseling/support services. The emotional reactions that may follow a sexual assault often make the decision making process even more complicated. Supportive friends, family, and professionals can significantly improve the victim's ability to cope with their experience and make informed decisions.

Sexual Assault Survivor's Bill of Rights

- You have the right to seek and receive help.
- You have the right to be given the same credibility as any other crime victim.
- You have the right to courteous, efficient treatment.
- You have the right to be treated with dignity and respect, without prejudice against race, class, lifestyle, age, gender, religion, sexual orientation or occupation.
- You have the right to accurate information, presented in a way that you understand.
- You have the right to ask questions.
- You have the right to make your own decisions.
- You have the right to change your mind.
- You have the right to get help and support from others.
- You have the right to heal.
- You have the right to the same opportunity as the accused to have others present during on-campus disciplinary actions.
- You have the right to be informed of the outcome of any disciplinary proceeding.
- You have the right to be informed of your options to notify law enforcement.
- You have the right to be notified of counseling services.

- You have the right be notified of options for changing academic and living situations.

Medical Needs

Victims of sexual assault or attempted sexual assault should receive a comprehensive medical examination as soon as possible after the incident occurs. This is important for two reasons. One is to provide an immediate opportunity to treat medical conditions that may arise as a result of the sexual assault. A victim of sexual assault may also have injuries that are not physically visible. The second reason is to help in the collection of evidence.

A victim of sexual assault can go to the hospital for a forensic examination up to 96 hours after a sexual assault. This will include a collection of evidence. Therefore, when possible, it is best not to shower, wash, douche, eat, or drink. It is also important to bring, in a paper bag, the clothes that were worn at the time of the sexual assault. At the hospital emergency department, a victim can also be given a general medical examination, antibiotics and testing for sexually transmitted infections, emergency contraception, and HIV prophylaxis and testing. After completing a forensic examination, the victim does not have to immediately file a report with the police. A hospital will store the rape kit for 30 days, which allows for the victim to later decide if she/he wants to report to the police. Financial assistance for any expenses that are incurred at the hospital that are not covered by the victim's insurance may be covered by the New York State Crime Victim's Board if the incident took place in New York.

If the victim does not choose to have a forensic examination completed, she/he also has the option to go to the NYU Student Health Center, the health service provider at the Study Abroad site, a local health clinic or their private physician for a general examination, emergency contraception, and sexual transmitted infection treatment and testing. Medical assistance at the SHC is available at Women's Health, the Men's Health Program, HIV Testing and Counseling and Primary Care Services.

Testing for the presence of date rape drugs can be done at a hospital emergency department, up to 96 hours after a sexual assault, when a police report is filed. Rohypnol usually remains in the blood for only 2-4 hours after ingestion, but it can be detected in urine for up to 72 hours. GHB usually remains in the blood for at most 4 hours and in the urine for at most 12 hours.

Emotional Needs

Victims of sexual assault can experience emotional as well as physical consequences. Initial reactions vary and may include shock, denial, anxiety, guilt, anger, and self-blame. A victim may experience nightmares, changes in their eating or sleeping patterns, and depression. Individuals who have been sexually assaulted are strongly encouraged to obtain help from a professional counselor as soon as they are ready after the incident occurs.

Seeking Action

Students may seek redress regarding sexual assault through University procedures and/or legal channels. Information about complaint procedures is included in the University Anti-Harassment Policy in Appendix A.

Legal Action: The Department of Public Safety at NYU can assist and support a student through the process of reporting a sexual assault to the New York City Police Department or to the local police in the country in which the assault occurred at a Study Abroad site. Reporting a sexual assault to the police does not obligate the victim to file criminal charges or pursue other legal action. In the case of sexual assault, however, prompt reporting and a comprehensive medical examination completed at a hospital emergency department within 96 hours of the assault will enable the victim to file criminal charges at a later date if he or she wishes to do so. Try to note details of the incident and characteristics of the offender. Try not to clean the scene of the sexual assault, including furniture and any items that the offender may have touched. The Department of Public Safety can be reached by telephone 24 hours a day, seven days a week at (212) 998-2222.

University Action:

A member of the University community wishing to file a sexual assault complaint against a student should contact Thomas Grace, Director of Community Standards and Compliance, at (212) 998-4403 or via email at thomas.grace@nyu.edu. A student wishing to file a sexual assault complaint against a faculty member should contact the Office of the Dean of the appropriate school. A member of the University community who wishes to file a sexual assault complaint against a staff member or administrator should contact the Humans Resources Representative of the appropriate department or the Office of Employee Relations.

A member of the University community who wishes to file a sexual assault complaint against a visitor, vendor, or other third party should contact and the Executive Director of Equal Opportunity. For further information regarding University procedures for reporting a complaint, refer to Appendix A.

III. Other Support Services for Sexual Assault Victims

In addition to the services identified above, a number of staff members in the schools, Division of Student Affairs, Counseling & Behavioral Health Services at SHC, Department of Residence Life and Housing, NYU Student Health Center, and the Department of Public Safety are trained in rape crisis intervention. These Rape Crisis Intervention Team Members listed below, are identified as individuals with 1) sensitivity around the topic of sexual assault, 2) understanding of the dynamics of sexual assault and 3) information about resources for victims of sexual assault and their significant others.

IV. How To Help Someone Who Has Been Sexually Assaulted: Tips for Friends, Partners, Family, and Loved Ones

- Support. The support and understanding of a friend, partner, family member, and loved one can be very helpful for a sexual assault victim. It is important to let someone who has been sexually assaulted know that you are there to help and that they are not alone. It is also helpful to acknowledge their strength in disclosing to you about their experience.
- Listen and allow the victim to speak at her/his own pace. Sexual assault is a crime about power and control, not sex. It is important to return the control that was taken away from the victim by allowing her/him to reveal information and make decisions when she/he feels comfortable.
- Believe unconditionally. Only 2% of reported rapes are false reports. This is no different from any other crime. It is important to assure your friend or loved one that you support her/him.
- Don't question actions. THE VICTIM IS NOT TO BLAME. A victim's behavior does not cause sexual assault. No one asks to be sexually assaulted. Be careful of asking blaming questions such as "Why didn't you scream?" or "Why did you go home with that person?"
- Encourage the victim to seek help. She/he may need medical attention or additional support services. Encourage the victim to contact the Wellness Exchange at (212) 443-9999 to speak with an advocate about options and for support.
- Don't ignore your own need to discuss your feelings. You can contact the Wellness Exchange for information and support. You can also contact Counseling & Behavioral Health Services at SHC.

V. Minimizing the Risk of Sexual Assault

Although there is no guarantee when it comes to preventing sexual assault, the following tips are important to help minimize the risk:

Communication

- Communicate your sexual desires and limits clearly. If you feel uncomfortable about a behavior, someone is crossing your boundaries. Verbal cues are the most direct way to let someone know your limits.
- Be assertive and direct. Forget about being nice if you feel threatened. You have the right to protect yourself.
- Say what you are thinking, what you really want.
- Be an active partner in relationships and share decisions about what to do, where to meet and when to be intimate.
- Never take silence as consent. If you feel you are getting double messages, speak up and ask for clarification.
- Accept a person's decision. Respect the word "no".

Assessment

- Trust your instincts. If you feel uncomfortable or think you may be at risk, leave the situation immediately and go to a safe place.
- Exercise caution when dating. Have first dates in public places. Let someone know where you are going and when you will return. Try to provide your own transportation.
- Avoid anyone who puts you down, is physically violent or does not respect you or your decisions.
- Do not assume that a person wants to have sex just because they are drinking heavily, dressed in a particular manner, or agrees to go home with you. Do not assume that if a person agrees to kissing or other sexual intimacies, that they are also willing to have sexual intercourse.
- Know your limits when using alcohol or other drugs.

Some Things to Think About...

- Do not assume you know what your partner wants.
- If you have doubts about what you partner wants, STOP and ASK!

- Sexually interacting with a person who is mentally or physically incapable of giving consent (drunk, stoned, etc.) is sexual assault.
- Speaking out against sexual assault shows your support.
- You can stand up to racist, sexist, homophobic, and classist statements and jokes.

Tips Related to "Date Rape Drugs"

- Never go to a bar, party or social event alone.
- Use the buddy system.
- Watch your drink being poured and never leave it unattended-even take it to the bathroom with you.
- Don't share drinks with another person.
- Don't leave a party with someone you just met.
- Inform others of this information.
- If you have a strange reaction to a drink, get help.

VI. Penalties for Committing Sexual Offenses

The University will act promptly in response to information that sexual assault has occurred. Cases involving sexual assault by students are subject to adjudication under the University's Student Disciplinary Procedures which are outlined on the website of the Office of Community Standards and Compliance section of the Division of Student Affairs website: www.nyu.edu/student.affairs/judicial.affairs.

Such cases can be pursued simultaneously through the appropriate University processes and the criminal courts, if the victim wishes to do so.

Disciplinary sanctions for student violators can range from warning, censure, or disciplinary probation to suspension or dismissal.

Employees who are found to be in violation of the University Anti-Harassment Policy and/or public laws related to sexual misconduct are subject to disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment.

The University may also, as it deems appropriate, refer violators to the applicable civil authorities. Penalties for sex offenses under the New York Penal Code are included with the offenses listed in Appendix B.

VII. Sources of Advice and Information about Security

NYU students are educated about safety practically from the moment they first arrive on campus. During Welcome Week, each incoming student attends a mandatory orientation session for incoming students, entitled The Reality Show NYU. This program addresses issues such as sexual assault, bias and harassment, and general safety. Students also have the option to attend safety workshops during Welcome Week such as Safety in the City, Sexual Assault Awareness 101, Protect Yourself: Preventing Sexual Harassment on Campus, and On the Go.

Special information about preventing sexual assault is included in the Campus Security Report distributed on-line each year at the beginning of the fall semester. The New York University Anti-Harassment Policy is printed annually in the Washington Square News and is available on-line at www.nyu.edu/eo.

In addition:

- Special reports on campus safety are included in NYU Today, a University newsletter published monthly during the academic year.
- "Safety Alerts" are distributed as necessary to inform the community about safety-related issues, risk-reducing precautions, and sources of help and additional information.

Students can access safety information including: locations of University buildings with 24-hour security, locations of call boxes and 911 telephones, a description of the 24-hour safe haven program for students, and maps showing University buildings. General safety tips on the street, within University buildings, at home, in residence halls, on subways, buses or bikes are outlined for students. More specific safety information on con games, cults and sexual assault is also included within the guide.

APPENDIX A

New York University Anti-Harassment Policy and Complaint Procedures

Statement of Policy

New York University is committed to maintaining a learning and working environment that is free of bias, prejudice, and harassment — an environment that supports, nurtures, and rewards career and educational advancement on the basis of ability and performance. Harassment based upon race, gender and/or gender identity or expression, color, religion, age, national origin, ethnicity, disability, veteran or military status, sexual orientation, marital status, citizenship status, or any other legally protected basis is prohibited by law and undermines the character and purpose of the University. Such harassment is illegal and against University policy, and will not be tolerated.

This policy covers all members of the University community and those who affect the University community such as vendors or visitors. The University encourages everyone to report all incidents of harassment regardless of who the offender may be.

I. Definition of Prohibited Harassment

Prohibited harassment is conduct based on race, gender and/or gender identity or expression, color, religion, age, national origin, ethnicity, disability, veteran or military status, sexual orientation, marital status, citizenship status, or any other legally protected status when:

- (1) submission to or rejection of the conduct is either an explicit or implicit term or condition of employment, basis for participation or advancement in an academic program, or basis for participation in a University activity or benefit; or
- (2) such conduct creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive work, academic or residential environment; or
- (3) such conduct otherwise adversely affects employment or academic opportunities.

Examples of such prohibited conduct when based upon a legally protected status include, but are not limited to:

- Verbal abuse or hostile behavior such as insulting, teasing, mocking, degrading or ridiculing another person or group;
- Unwelcome or inappropriate physical contact, comments, questions, advances, jokes, epithets or demands;
- Physical assault or stalking;
- Displays or electronic transmission of derogatory, demeaning or hostile materials;
- Unwillingness to train, evaluate, assist, or work with an employee, faculty member, or student.

Harassment is unacceptable in the workplace, classroom, student and faculty housing, sports, University facilities, and in other University-related settings, such as study abroad programs and University-sponsored social functions and events. This behavior violates University policy even when it may not be sufficiently severe or pervasive to constitute a violation of law.

II. Responsibilities to Report

All members of the University community should report incidents of harassment in order to support the University policy. In order to assure the University is free of prohibited harassment, University officers, deans, department heads, faculty members, directors, and supervisors are required to report all incidents of harassment that they may have witnessed or have been advised of.

The most appropriate recipients of reports are:

- (1) The Office of The Vice President for Student Affairs or the appropriate School's designee if the alleged harasser is a student;¹

- (2) The Human Resources Representative of the appropriate School or Department or The Office of Employee Relations of the Human Resources Division if the alleged harasser is an employee, including a student employee;²
- (3) The Dean of the appropriate School or Faculty or the Dean's designee if the alleged harasser is a faculty member;³ or
- (4) The Director of Equal Opportunity if the alleged harasser is a visitor, vendor, or other third-party.⁴

It is not always easy to interpret words or actions that may be ambiguous and one may think are inappropriate. Therefore, the offices noted above are available to discuss the circumstances and address matters before they become severe or pervasive.

III. Reporting a Harassment Complaint

All individuals who believe they have been harassed should file a complaint with the appropriate individuals or offices cited above. Verbal complaints should be reduced to writing by either the complainant or the individual who receives the complaint in order to preserve an accurate record. The written complaint should identify the parties involved; describe the harassing behavior; when and where it occurred; and identify by name or description any witnesses.

Complaints should be promptly reported so that appropriate action may be taken in a timely manner. However, the late reporting of complaints may not prevent appropriate remedial action.

Any conduct that may be in violation of this policy will be investigated, regardless of whether a complaint is filed, and appropriate remedial action will be initiated.

Effort shall be made to complete the investigation of a complaint within thirty (30) days of the report of the harassment. Extensions of the time frame may be necessary in some circumstances. The complainant and alleged harasser will be notified of the extension.

IV. Confidentiality

The University will maintain the confidentiality of the complaint to the greatest extent consistent with our goal of conducting a thorough and complete investigation. Effort will be made to safeguard the privacy and rights of all persons involved.

V. Investigation and Disposition of the Complaint

The investigator will conduct a prompt, thorough and impartial investigation of the complaint in the manner he or she deems necessary. The parties to the complaint will each have an opportunity to be heard during the investigation. The parties will also be informed of the status of the investigation as deemed appropriate. The investigation process is strictly internal to NYU, so the presence of legal counsel or third parties is not permitted at any stage of the process unless otherwise required by law.

If it is determined that a violation of the University's harassment policy has occurred, prompt remedial action shall be taken. The nature of the remedial action and the process for its implementation will depend upon the particular facts and circumstances. If remedial action involves the imposition of sanctions, appropriate disciplinary procedures will be used. Sanctions imposed may be appealed through the appropriate appeals process. The disposition of the complaint shall be communicated to the complainant and the alleged harasser.

If it is determined that no violation has occurred, such findings shall be communicated to the complainant and the alleged harasser.

If the results of an investigation show that the complainant knowingly filed false accusations of harassment, or that a witness gave false statements, such individuals will be subject to the appropriate disciplinary action.

VI. Retaliation

The University will take every step necessary to protect the complainant and any witnesses against retaliation for reporting the harassment or for participating in the investigation of a complaint.

Any employee, faculty member, or student who retaliates against an individual who complains of harassment, witnesses harassment, or participates in the investigation of a harassment complaint violates University policy and may be subject to sanctions. Complaints of retaliation should be reported as violations of this policy.

VII. Sexual Assault

Sexual assault is a sexual act against the will and without the consent of the victim or where the victim is incapable of giving consent. This includes conduct that would be considered criminal under the New York State Penal Code. Since the medical, emotional, and legal needs of a sexual assault complainant may differ from those of other harassment complaints, sexual assault victims should, in addition to filing a University complaint, report the assault to the police and pursue counseling and other services available at the University. Students should consult the publication, New York University's Policies and Procedures Concerning Sexual Assault for guidance on medical and counseling services. Faculty members and employees should consult New York University's Faculty and Staff Assistance Program for medical and counseling service referrals.

VIII. Consensual Relationships

Sexual behavior that is welcome or consensual does not constitute sexual harassment under the law. However, romantic relationships in situations where one individual has greater power or authority over another frequently result in claims of harassment when the relationship ends and a perception of favoritism while the relationship continues. Such relationships are inappropriate. A "consensual" relationship between a professor and his/her student, a supervisor and a subordinate, or a coach and team player are examples of inappropriate relationships. If a consensual relationship occurs, any situation of authority must be discontinued and appropriate action may be taken.

IX. Education

The University supports a complete program for the education of its community with respect to the meaning and implementation of this policy. Training will be scheduled accordingly.

This policy does not form a contract of any kind. The University reserves the right to change or modify this policy as it deems appropriate and without notice. Any comments or suggestions concerning this policy should be forwarded to Mary Signor, Executive Director of Equal Opportunity.

APPENDIX B

New York State Laws Regarding Sex Offenses

The following is a summary description of sex offenses as they are defined in the New York State Penal Law, Sections 130.00 to 130.90. Sex offenses are ranked (first degree, second degree, etc.), and carry different punishments ranging from a few months imprisonment for misdemeanors, to up to 25 years imprisonment for felonies. Readers are urged to consult the following New York State government website for specific information: <http://public.leginfo.state.ny.us/menugetf.cgi?COMMONQUERY=LAWS>

What constitutes consent?

Consent "Lack of consent" is defined in New York State's Penal Law as occurring in the following circumstances:

- (a) forcible compulsion
 - actual physical force
 - the threat of physical force, expressed or implied, that puts the victim in fear of being physically harmed or of another person being physically harmed

- the imminent threat to kidnap the victim or third person
- (b) physically helpless
 - physically unable to indicate a lack of consent (e.g. because the victim is unconscious or because of a physical disability that makes one unable to physically or verbally communicate lack of consent)
- (c) under 17 years of age
 - if the victim is under 11, or a person over 18 has sex with someone less than 13, this constitutes a 1st degree sexual offense
 - if a person 18 or over has sex with someone less than 15, this constitutes a 2nd degree sexual offense
 - if a person at least 21 years old has sex with someone less than 17, this constitutes a 3rd degree sexual offense
 - if the victim is under 17 and the perpetrator is an adult, this is constituted as a misdemeanor
- (d) mentally incapacitated
 - When the victim is made temporarily incapable of understanding or controlling his or her conduct (e.g. the victim was given a drug or other intoxicating substance without his or her consent)
- (e) mentally disabled
 - when a person suffers from a mental illness or condition that renders him or her incapable of understanding the nature of his or her conduct.
- (f) inmate
 - when a person is literally or physically under the control of others. Some examples are: The victim is an inmate in either a state or city correctional facility, the victim is committed to a psychiatric institution, or the perpetrator is a mental health provider and the victim is her/his client.
- (g) some factor other than incapacity to consent
 - Rape 3 and criminal sexual act 3 have been modified with a "no means no" clause. In cases of intercourse, oral sexual conduct, or anal sexual conduct,, if the victim clearly expressed that he or she did not consent to the sex act in such a way that a reasonable person would have understood those words or acts as expressing lack of consent, this would be prosecutable as Rape in the third degree or criminal sexual act in the third degree.

What constitutes a sexual offense?

If any of the following acts are perpetrated against a victim "without his or her consent," as defined above, it is a crime under the New York State Law:

Sexual Intercourse: the penetration of the penis into the vagina, however slight - in other words, if the penis goes into the vagina just a little, not in its entirety, that is considered completed "sexual intercourse". (There is no requirement of physical injury and there is usually no requirement that ejaculation or orgasm have occurred).

Oral sexual conduct: does not require any penetration and occurs upon contact between penis and mouth, mouth and anus, or mouth and the vulva or vagina..

Anal sexual conduct: conduct between persons consisting of contact between the penis and anus.

Sexual Contact: any touching of the sexual or intimate parts of the body whether over or under clothing:

- between persons not married to each other
- done for the purpose of gratifying the sexual desire of either party
- includes the touching of the victim's sexual or intimate parts by the perpetrator AND the touching of the perpetrator's sexual or intimate parts by the victim

Aggravated Sexual Contact: insertion of a foreign object into the vagina, urethra, penis or rectum. Depending on the precise circumstances, this can constitute a 1st, 2nd, 3rd, or 4th degree sexual offense.

If a report is made to any of these offices, and that is not the appropriate office to receive the report, it becomes the responsibility of that office to forward the report to the appropriate office. If any of the persons at these offices is implicated in the harassment, or if a conflict of interest arises, the report should be made to the Director of Equal Opportunity. If that office is implicated, the report should be made to the Provost.

Report on Security and Safety at New York University Study Abroad Sites

New York University closely monitors travel advisories issued by the U.S. Department of State as well as other governmental and international agencies and responds appropriately. The Department of Public Safety has been granted privileges by the Overseas Security Advisory Council under the U.S. Department of State. These privileges allow for access to in-depth and highly current information on global affairs. Select members of Public Safety and the Office of Global Programs have access to this information and to key personnel in the Department of State. Designated staff of each Academic and Research Center abroad remain in contact with the local United States Embassy, as well as local authorities, for guidance on security matters. The staff at each Center has been instructed to monitor and adhere to both U.S. and local advisories closely. We have asked for similar vigilance from our exchange partner universities. Appropriate announcements are communicated to students via a variety of mechanisms at each site.

In addition, security has been enhanced at all Academic Centers abroad (post-September 11th), and remains so. While access to facilities and overall security vary from site to site, entry is restricted to individuals holding NYU identification; and outside guests to the Centers are announced.

New York University currently maintains overseas programs in Paris, Florence, Madrid, London, Ghana, Berlin, Prague, Buenos Aires, and Shanghai. Crime Statistics from these locations are contained in this report and are obtained from the Director of Student Services Global Education, who receives them from the designated campus security authorities at the respective sites. Below is a listing for each site along with contact information:

Due to the cultural differences in each of the countries, students who become the victims of crimes are encouraged to contact the appropriate site staff who will assist in coordination with local law enforcement. In the event of an emergency, law enforcement should be immediately contacted. In the event a crime occurs which necessitates a timely warning, the site's designated campus security authority, in consultation with the Director of Global Programs and NYU Department of Public Safety, will issue a site-specific Campus Safety Alert to advise community members of the event and potential risks. Security incidents are also documented and sent to the Assistant Director of Public Safety at the NYU New York campus.

Policies
The "NYU Policy on Substance Abuse and Alcoholic Beverages," "Surviving

Sexual Assault: NYU Policies and Procedures Concerning Sexual Assault," and the "Anti-Harassment Policy and Complaint Procedures" that are contained in this publication are applicable to the global sites. During orientation, these and other site specific security policies and programs are discussed. Students are encouraged to remain vigilant and be responsible for their personal safety. Students seeking to report or obtain assistance regarding an incident involving one of these policies are advised to contact the appropriate site administrator, as noted above.

The academic building of each site is staffed by a security officer who monitors access into the facility. Access into student housing ranges from keys to front doors of apartment buildings to front desk coverage. All problems, comments, and observations can be reported to site administration.

Additional information can be found on NYU Study Abroad at www.nyu.edu/studyabroad.

Report on Security and Safety at the New York University School of Medicine

While the policies and procedures presented in the New York University Campus Security Report are for the most part applicable to the New York University School of Medicine, because the School of Medicine has its own administrative infrastructure, there are a few differences in the manner by which those security policies and procedures are implemented at the School of Medicine. These differences are summarized below. For more detailed information, please consult the New York University School of Medicine Student Handbook at www.med.nyu.edu/studentaffairs/handbook. The NYU Clinical Cancer Center on 34th Street is one of the non-campus sites of NYU's School of Medicine.

The School of Medicine Security Department employs 87 New York State certified, uniformed security staff, who are supervised by 6 Security Supervisors whom work three shifts, 24 hours a day. On a regular basis, this security force provides foot patrols, building security, shuttle service to Bellevue Hospital & the VA, internal communications, security at special events, and acts as liaison with community organizations. The department maintains an ongoing professional relationship with all local, state and federal law enforcement agencies. Its officers work closely with the New York City Police Department, including the 13th and 17th Precincts. Local police agencies are requested to report to the Security Department any criminal activity involving School of Medicine students or personnel at off-campus locations, as well as incidents that occur on or in the vicinity of the School of Medicine campus.

The NYU School of Medicine campus extends along First Avenue from 30th Street to 34th Street in Manhattan's Kip's Bay neighborhood, which has been categorized by the city police department as a low-crime area. The number of serious crimes occurring on the School of Medicine campus is quite low.

The primary function of the Security Department is to provide the safe and secure environment for all members of the School of Medicine community. In addition to their regular assignments, security staff attend New York State mandated training as well as other in-service training, which includes management of disruptive persons, fire safety, infection control protocols, Bomb Threat protocols, knowledge of the campus, information about the alarm systems and building evacuation. Even though School of Medicine security staff have no authority beyond that of private citizens, they are trained to use citizen arrest procedures as may be necessary.

The Security Department is aided in its tasks by the use of various systems, such as card access, CCTV, and alarm systems. Many entrances and exits, to include high security areas are monitored by either security staff and or closed circuit television equipment which has the capacity to record images. The card access system is integrated with the ID card system so ID cards can provide access to doors when programmed.

More information about safety and security at the School of Medicine can be found by contacting the Security Department at (212) 263-5038 or visiting <http://redaf.med.nyu.edu/campus-security>.

Reporting Procedures

All criminal incidents, and requests for assistance should be reported to the Security Department. Victims or witnesses may report crimes on a voluntary and confidential basis. Reports can relate to incidents or emergencies that occur either on or off campus. The Security Department has an Operations Center (which operates around the clock), in which most security systems terminate. This center receives calls for service, monitors alarms and CCTV, and dispatches resources. Incidents or emergencies may be reported there or at any location where a School of Medicine security officer is posted. These locations include residence halls and hospital facilities. If something is sensitive, or egregious you should ask for the security supervisor on duty and report the matter to him. In addition to the Security Department, the following University offices and personnel may be contacted to report crimes:

Student Affairs: Associate Dean for Student Affairs, Director of Student Affairs (212) 263-6088.

Medical Education: Associate Dean for Curriculum, Director of Education (212) 263-0748.

Human Resources: Vice President of Employee Relations, Employee Relations Manager (212) 404-3714.

Once a report is received, it is assessed and investigated by security management personnel. Incidents concerning students are reported to the appropriate Dean for review and follow-up. All accounts are entered into an incident report data base. The department distributes information on campus crime to the School of Medicine community via campus media. Serious crimes, such as robbery and assault, the Security Department issues notifications called "Security Alerts" to the School of Medicine community.

Campus Facilities and Programs

The Facilities of the New York University School of Medicine exist to house or support the mission of the institution: to teach, carry on research, and provide services. The use of certain of these facilities by university and non university groups is permitted under certain conditions. For information on the use of these facilities, contact the Facilities Scheduling office at (212) 263-6997 or by visiting <http://www.nyumc.org/nyu/include.jsp?url=/home/mrm/index.html>

Residence Halls

Housing for the School of Medicine is administered through the Office of Real Estate and Strategic Capital Initiative. Residential buildings provide a 24-hour security personnel presence and CCTV in sensitive areas. Access into a residential facility is restricted to current students, residents, guests or otherwise authorized visitors. All entrants, including staff and faculty, will be requested to wear and display proper identification.

Classrooms

The School of Medicine provides 24-hour security CCTV coverage in lobbies, entrances and public access ways leading to as well as in and around classroom facilities. Several classroom spaces can only be accessed via card reader.

Fire Safety

In addition to the resources listed previously, students and staff at the New York University School of Medicine can also contact the School of Medicine Environmental Health and Safety Office at (212) 263-5159 or visit <http://redaf.med.nyu.edu/safety/environmental-health-safety> to obtain more detailed information.
