

This is Part 3 in a continuation of our effort to provide ongoing resources to educate ourselves and church members about anti-racist efforts. The following resources link to websites with information about Quaker/Friends history and their involvement with anti-racism and abolition. The purpose of these resources is not to take credit for what has been done historically by Friends as something that justifies our denomination. Rather, this is continued effort to re-dig the wells to help us understand that many Christians and Friends have done the hard work of addressing racism and injustice and should inspire us and convict us to do the same.
